

Getting the most out of the system—two paychecks

Pensioners take jobs, draw disability

By BROOKS JACKSON and EVANS WITT Associated Press Writers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal civil servant retired on grounds that he was disabled, yet earned a total of $117,560 in a new job in 1974 and 1975, an internal Civil Service Commission report shows.

Another disability pensioner held a job that paid him a total of $100,943 in the same two years.

Yet another supposedly disabled federal pensioner earned $76,793 in a single year, and still another earned $66,444 in one year.

At the same time, the four were drawing disability pensions ranging from $404 to $1,793 per month, paid mostly by the taxpayers.

The pensioners, whose names were not listed, are among the commission's "Top 20" — persons who earned the most in new jobs while drawing pension checks granted because they could not perform their old government jobs efficiently.

These 20 get the most from the system that grants disability pensions to federal workers who in many cases still are able to work.

On the average, the 20 earned more than $29,000 a year in 1974 and 1975, while drawing disability pensions of $9,284 per year. And most of the pension was considered tax-free sick pay.

The 20 are a small minority among the more than 279,000 disability pensioners drawing more than $1.5 billion a year. Yet they illustrate dramatically features of the system that have drawn criticism.

Under the system — The definition of disability is so broad and vague that virtually any ailment, including those that are relatively easy to fake, is grounds for a pension. Nearly 96 per cent of those who apply for a disability retirement get one.

Monitoring whether disabled pensioners have recovered their earning power depends almost entirely on unverified earnings reports by the pensioners themselves. Officials admit that fraud usually goes undetected, and when it is discovered, the pensioner virtually never is prosecuted.

Government agencies according to the National Association of Retired Federal Employees, often are unwilling to find light duty assignments for employes with medical problems, instead pushing them onto the retirement rolls.

The system also is relatively stingy when it comes to those who need help: the most young, low paid federal workers who become totally unable to work. Many of these workers would receive more money if they were covered by Social Security rather than Civil Service, a report by the General Accounting Office said.

To receive a disability pension a federal civil servant need only be declared medically unable to perform one or more parts of his job efficiently.

In contrast, the Social Security disability system and most disability programs in private industry pay only when a person is unable to work.

Bombs bursting in air

A crowd estimated at more than 3,000 persons was at Recreation Park Monday night for the annual Chamber of Commerce fireworks extravaganza. Floyd Sackett, chamber manager, reported "about 1,200 persons" were in the stands and "close to 2,000" were in the area outside the stands. "A lot of people from surrounding areas come to see the show," Sackett said. The show, which lasted about 45 minutes, was produced by Western Enterprises of Enid, Okla. The Rev. John Hansard presented a speech of Patrick Henry. Melvin Kunkel, chamber president said between 600 and 700 persons watched the pre-show activities which included square dancing by members of the Lone Star Squares of Pampa and the Circle L Square Dance Club of Lefors. Seaman seizes bus; 'I was broke'

NEW YORK (AP) — An embittered 26-year-old seaman charged with initiating a siege of terror that left two dead aboard a hijacked bus and nearly paralyzed a giant airport told police today he took over the bus because he was broke.

Sources close to the investigation told The Associated Press that Luis Robinson told them he was headed back to his ship, the USS Detroit, based in Bath, Maine, but only had enough money for his fare to Hartford, Conn.

Robinson was booked today on charges that he hijacked the bus, shot two people to death, injured three others, then held authorities at bay during the siege for about nine hours at holiday-crowded John F. Kennedy International Airport.

He surrendered shortly before midnight after unsuccessfully demanding $5 million and a plane to fly him to Cuba.

Robinson was arraigned today on 25 counts of kidnaping, two counts of murder, two counts of attempted murder and possession of a dangerous weapon — a .45 caliber revolver.

His lawyer told the court that Robinson had a "prior history of some psychiatric disturbance" and the judge then ordered Robinson remanded to Kings County Hospital for a psychiatric examination.

Robinson did not speak during the proceedings. No bail was set.

The sources quoted Robinson, born in Panama and living in Somerset, N.J., as saying he boarded the Vermont-bound bus, undecided whether to commandeer it or get off in Hartford and hitchhike to Maine.

Meanwhile, the New York Post quoted a source today as saying Robinson told police he had been inspired by a dream. "He said it came to him in a dream, he had to do this," the source said. "He said the country was going into chaos and somebody had to do something to stop it."

Police also said Robinson told investigators that he had experienced problems with "people who picked on him" aboard his ship.

In New Jersey, Robinson's mother, Doris, today expressed grief for her son's alleged actions. "How could you be killing people? I don't understand. I don't understand," she said.

Robinson's father, Ernesto, said he last saw his son two or three months ago. "I don't know what led to this," he said, his voice shaking.

For most of the 25 passengers aboard the bus the first sign of trouble came after the bus left the Port Authority terminal in midtown Manhattan. The gunman fired a .45-caliber pistol at a college librarian, then forced him to move to the front of the bus, bleeding from the neck.

"This is what's going to happen to you if you don't do what I say," the gunman told the passengers as he ordered the driver to turn toward Kennedy Airport.

Later, after the bus had crashed through an airport fence and the hijacker had killed a woman passenger and the driver and dumped them onto a runway, passenger Bruce Deboer, 17, of East Hartford, Conn., was ordered to drive the bus.

"I decided, as did the other passengers, that it wouldn't pay off to try and rush him," said Deboer of the long ordeal.

Deboer was ordered to drive after Norman Bozick, the 41-year-old driver of the Vermont Transit Co. bus, was fatally wounded. Bozick died later at a hospital.

Before that Nettie Blassberg, 57, of Greenfield, Mass., had been shot and killed when she tried to overpower her captor. She reached up behind him and grabbed him around the throat and tried to do karate on him so that he would drop the gun," said 11-year-old Sunjoy Toteau.

He said "Don't ever ever try that" and he shot her," the young passenger said.

Deboer said Bozick was shot when he reacted to the woman's death and "made a lunge for the man and tried to push him out of the bus."

A Hong Kong businessman aboard the bus, Jimmy Lo, was seriously wounded several hours later when he tried to escape during negotiations with Robinson.

And an 8-year-old boy suffered cuts and bruises when he was hurled from the moving bus about half an hour before Robinson surrendered.

The 47-foot bus was the largest thing Deboer ever had driven. It showed twice. Deboer drove the bus across the airport. Both times the airport was closed, forcing all flights to be delayed or diverted.

The second time Deboer said he had only been ordered to back it up but he didn't know how. The result was another trip across the airport, where a police vehicle rammed the bus shortly before the siege ended.

"I'm happy to be alive. We're all happy to be alive because it was tough and go and none of us knew if we'd ever get off the bus," said Deboer.

"We were in the Bronx when I heard a gunshot and this man walked forward with another man pointing a gun at him," Deboer said.

The wounded man was John McGovern of Hartford, Conn., a librarian at the University of Hartford. He was shot in the neck.

McGovern was shoved off the bus at the airport. Interviewed later from a hospital stretcher, McGovern described Robinson as "racially upset."

He said Robinson "was very upset about the racial situation in the United States. He talked about how badly he had been treated in the United States and wanted to leave."

Catholics to seek funding

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican urged the bishops of the Roman Catholic Church for the first time today to seek government funds to support their parochial school systems. It said Catholic schools are a necessary counterbalance to modern secularism and a guarantee of religious freedom.

The Sacred Congregation for Catholic Education issued a 10,000-word document which also criticized some Catholic school systems for catering mostly to the rich, urged priests, brothers and nuns not to abandon teaching, and insisted that the church's schools must meet high professional standards.

A spokesman confirmed that it was the Vatican's first public advocacy of government financial support for parochial schools though many bishops have agitated for such aid for years. The spokesman said it took the Congregation for Education five years to prepare the document.

The document noted that some governments already provide financial support to Catholic schools and "guarantee both the preservation of the special status of the Catholic school and its ability to perform its function adequately."

"Catholic schools are thereby more or less closely associated with the national system," the document continued, "and are assured of an economic and juridical status similar to state schools. These solutions are an encouragement to those responsible for Catholic schools in countries where the Catholic community must still shoulder a very heavy burden of cost to maintain an often highly important network of Catholic schools."

The document said the church must "mobilize her educational resources in the face of the materialism, pragmatism and technocracy of contemporary society." It said Catholic schools help "promote that freedom of teaching which champions and guarantees freedom of conscience and the parental right to choose the school best suited to a parent's educational purposes."

The document set forth answers to a number of criticisms of Catholic schools.

—Those who argue they are out of step with the lay character of the modern secular state ignore the need for institutional witness.

—Religious schools are not intended as "instruments of proselytism but take into account the religious dimension of every man."

—Catholic schools have not outlived their usefulness but may be more important today because of the tendency of the modern state to establish monolithic systems of education.

—If Catholic schools seem to serve only the wealthy in some countries, that is because of the state's lack of appreciation of their benefit to society and its failure to support them financially.

—Schools which seem to fall short of top professional standards may be just isolated cases and may actually provide more long range values for the child.

The document warned against schools that cater primarily to the rich, even though lack of government financial support may be a cause of this.

Since education is an important means of improving the social and economic condition of the individual and of peoples, it said, "if the Catholic school were to turn its attention exclusively or predominantly to those from the wealthier social classes, it could be contributing toward maintaining their privileged position, and could thereby continue to favor a society which is unjust."

Sheriff harvests grass

Sheriff Rufe Jordan is mowing grass today after picnickers on July 4th discovered a patch of marijuana growing near Dancigor Park located near Lefors.

"I received two calls within an hour that marijuana was growing in that area," Jordan said this morning before leaving his office to join other officers in the investigation.

The sheriff said officers had been searching for patches of marijuana in the area for the past five years.

Pointing to 50 or 60 pounds of green marijuana brought to the sheriff's office Monday, Jordan said, "I think this has been there a long time. We've been hearing of it south and east of Lefors at McClellan Creek, and we've been working too far down."

A former deputy searched the area from a dune buggy several years ago, but did not find any marijuana.

The pot patch is located on property owned by Atlantic Richfield Oil Co.

"It doesn't look like it has been planted recently," Jordan said.

He theorized that it may have been "thrown out at one time, there are a lot of possibilities as to how it got here."

He said that officers have "run into several pot parties in that park in past years — but none in the last 15 to 18 months."

The pot plot reported Monday yielded a total of 250 pounds to Deputies Ken Keith, Jesse B. Boad, Doug Davis and Constable Herman Keith who spent this morning chopping under a hot sun.

The harvest was hauled to Cabot just before noon to be burned.

The sheriff recalled a similar incident in Wheeler County when sheriff's officers there tried to determine the origin of a marijuana patch. Jordan said they finally concluded that it probably fell from hay airlifted into the area during a blizzard.

The sheriff said that while his office is investigating reports of several patches of marijuana growing in the Lefors area, very little land is covered with it.

No dogs allowed; blind man may sue

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Edwin Myers says he will file a civil rights suit on behalf of all blind people against the night spot that refused him admission because he was accompanied by his guide dog.

The 29-year-old Myers, who has been blind since an automobile accident 12 years ago, spent four hours in jail Sunday morning after being charged with disobeying a police order to stay out of the Starving Artist, a restaurant-night club in the basement of Actors Theater of Louisville, which owns the club.

The incident began early Sunday morning when Gloria Donaldson, manager of the restaurant, barred Myers and his German shepherd guide dog from the club.

Ms. Donaldson, who prefers that designation, said that she suggested Myers leave the dog in a friend's car and allow his two companions to help him around the restaurant. She said that the club was busy and that she was concerned that the dog might get nervous because of the crowd.

Myers said he refused the offer, citing a Kentucky statute prohibiting any restaurant, hotel or "public places of amusements" from denying admittance to a blind person or his guide dog.

Myers of Lexington, Ky., said he told Ms. Donaldson, "Miss, you don't understand that seeing eye dogs have a right to go any places their masters go."

"He kept insisting that he had the right to have his dog and didn't I know the law — and I didn't," said Ms. Donaldson. "It was my first experience with one (a guide dog) anyway."

Myers and Ms. Donaldson agreed that police should be called.

Myers said the officers took him out to the street and told him, "The lady doesn't want you in the restaurant. She wants you and your dog out."

Police told Myers he would be arrested if he tried to reenter the club.

"I said, 'Where's the door...'" Myers said, and he was arrested.

Carl Yates, a spokesman for the Louisville Police Department, said the proprietor didn't want Myers in the club and that it makes no difference on what grounds entrance was refused.

The arresting officers were bound "to preserve the peace and tranquility" of the establishment, Yates said.

Film shooting recalls JFK death

DALLAS (AP) — For a few brief moments, it was Nov. 22, 1963 again.

High-powered rifle shots rang out. Crowds screamed and scattered. The "President" was shot.

And "Lee Harvey Oswald" leaned out of the Texas Schoolbook Depository Building, a rifle cradled in his shoulder.

The scene at Dealy Plaza Sunday and Monday was the recreation of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy for an ABC television movie, "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald."

Hundreds of tourists were attracted by the sight of actor John Pleshette, who portrays Oswald in the fictional account of the trial of the man the Warren Commission identified as Kennedy's assassin.

"It was really haunting," said Pleshette, who bears a striking resemblance to Oswald.

Earlier, a police marksman had "fired" the shots at the Presidential limousine six floors below in a scene that was to be shown to the fictional jury.

Oswald never went to trial. He was shot to death by Dallas nightclub manager Jack Ruby two days after the Kennedy assassination while he was being transferred from the police department to the county jail.

On Sunday, the recreation of the shooting had taken place before hundreds of tourists and with a cast of several hundred extras who scattered and "panicked" as the shots were "fired" into the Presidential motorcade.

Women wearing bobby-socks and men in thin ties fell over each other in mock hysteria under the direction of supervising producer Larry Schiller who shouted:

"Bang. You hear it, but don't have time to react."

"Bang. Now you go down running that way. You realize now it's not a backfire."

"Bang. The motorcade's moving now and you run as if to catch it."

A few in the crowd seemed perturbed. Fermin Garcia said the assassination should not have been recreated. "God would have wanted it that way."

Mrs. Maevie Chapman of nearby Irving, one of the spectators, said: "When I saw the way she (the actress playing Mrs. Kennedy) was dressed, and the President bareheaded, it gave you a stranger feeling. It brought tears."

Bob Etheridge, who plays the part of then Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, recalled that on the day of the assassination, "I was watching the parade five minutes before it (the assassination) happened. I could have reached out and touched him (Kennedy). It's a real weird feeling to have seen the parade and then to see them recreate the assassination."

Pleshette said he believes the film will renew interest in the assassination and the various conspiracy theories.

He added "I think Oswald probably shot Kennedy, but I doubt that he operated alone. He might have thought he was alone, but he was being used."

RESEARCH PROGRAM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it. Mark Twain is said to have said.

Next year the United Nations' Global Atmospheric Research Programme is going to do something. It will conduct the most detailed survey ever made of the earth's atmosphere, attempting to track air and moisture movements and temperature variations over the earth's surface.

Since 1940 the average global temperature has fallen about half a degree Fahrenheit and some scientists are predicting the return of the Ice Age.

On the other hand, other studies have shown a warming process, says National Geographic. In a recent report on climate change, Geographic writer Samuel W. Matthews concludes, "man still does not really know what controls and changes his climate, his daily weather, his seasonal comfort."

The Light Side

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Some of those camper-trailers ride so smooth a driver might not realize he is towing one behind his car — or that he has lost one that he was towing.

Vernon and Janetta Wear of Hillview, Ill., heading for the Wally Byam trailer rally here over the Fourth of July, traveled 10 miles before someone caught up with them and told them their trailer had separated from their car at a stop sign in Greybull, Wyo.

The driver said he didn't feel a thing.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — If an award were given for Matchmaker of the Year, Ruth Rubin Feldman would be a shoe-in. But Mrs. Feldman deals in soles rather than hearts. Thirty-seven years ago, Mrs. Feldman decided to help people like herself who have feet of different sizes. She formed the National Odd Shoe Exchange — NOSE — to acquaint people who otherwise would have to buy two pairs of the same shoe style.

"That is the way it was for me when I was growing up in St. Louis," said Mrs. Feldman. "Because I had polio, my left foot was smaller than my right by a size and a half."

The local polio society helped Mrs. Feldman organize NOSE. For a $5 charge to pay for the paperwork, a subscriber's name and shoe sizes go into Mrs. Feldman's files and the person is sent a list of subscribers throughout the world.

Safety--no laughing matter

A program on bicycle safety was presented recently at the First Christian Church by the Texas Department of Public Safety. Jerry Burgdorf of Pampa, a DPS employe, is "Troopie," the clown. He is assisted by Trooper Tony Guess of Amarillo. The two DPS employes present safety programs throughout the year. During 1976 they spoke to students from kindergarten through the sixth grade in 29 counties in North Texas. Their programs are aimed at safety in general along with fire precautions. Burgdorf said the clown suit works well because it serve to hold the students' attention longer. Burgdorf is holding Greg King, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Terry King left, and Stacie Slaughter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Slaughter, right. The clown makes mistakes to give the Trooper an opportunity to make corrections. (Pampa News Photo by Ron Ennis)

Feminists, Nixon lost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civil liberties groups and feminists lost more than they gained, law enforcement authorities gained more than they lost and Richard M. Nixon lost during the Supreme Court's just-completed term.

The nation's highest court reached 176 decisions during a nine-month period in which it studied almost 5,000 cases. Generally, the justices continued the conservative trend which began seven years ago under Chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

Led by Burger and Justice William H. Rehnquist, the court again came down heavy on the side of law enforcement officials in cases involving individual rights claimed by criminal suspects and defendants.

The court's majority also frustrated the efforts of women's rights groups by deciding that states have no legal duty to pay for medically unnecessary abortions and that health insurance plans do not have to include disability payments for pregnancies.

In one of the court's most publicized decisions, the justices, with only Burger and Rehnquist dissenting, ruled that Nixon cannot control the 800 White House tapes and 42 million pages of documents he left behind when resigning from the presidency.

Byron R. White was the justice joining most often with Burger and Rehnquist in a dozen criminal cases in which the court retreated from more liberal holdings of the court under the late Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Another so-called swing vote, Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., generally could be counted on to join the conservatives in showing deference to the powers of state legislatures and the two other branches of the federal government.

Justices Potter Stewart and John Paul Stevens most often sided with Burger and Powell as swing votes. But Stevens, serving in his first full term since being appointed to the court by former President Gerald R. Ford, established himself as one of the court's most prolific writers and sharpest thinkers.

Stevens often joined the court's two consistently liberal justices, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall, in voting to strengthen the rights afforded criminal suspects.

The court's ninth member, Justice Harry A. Blackmun, again sided with the Burger-Rehnquist block more often than not. But Blackmun, in the past disparagingly called "the Minnesota twin" in references to what court aides saw as his undue dependence on the ideology of Burger, his lifelong friend and fellow Minnesotan, showed new independence in voting on numerous key decisions.

Of the court's 126 signed decisions, a unanimous vote was gained 45 times and more than half were decided by at least seven-member majorities.

Violent toll reaches 48

By The Associated Press

A four-fatality accident near Alpine and a three-fatality crash near Wilmer contributed to a holiday traffic death toll that threw a shroud over Fourth of July festivities.

By late Monday, the Texas Department of Public Safety had recorded 31 deaths on Texas roads and highways — shy of the 51 the DPS predicted would die in traffic mishaps. The total violence toll, including drownings and shootings, reached 48.

The holiday death count was started Friday evening and ended at midnight Monday.

The violent tone of the weekend was heightened early Monday by three shooting deaths in Sweetwater.

The shooting spree, which apparently grew out of a domestic quarrel, took the lives of Danny Garcia, Tony Gonzalez and Garcia's wife, Linda. Police-woman Edyth Brothers was wounded by Garcia as she entered his home, police said.

Four motorists were killed early Saturday in a collision 16 miles east of Alpine in far-West Texas.

Officers said Ricardo Olivas of Alpine, being pursued by Alpine police for investigation, reversed directions and crashed head-on with a car driven by Elizabeth Land, 34, of Alamo. Olivas, 16, Miss Land, Edna Land, 54, of Pharr and Lowell Farris, 14, of Alamo were all killed.

Webb Eugene Bradford Jr., 72, of Paris was killed when his auto slammed into a car carrying John Sumner Booth, 21, of Dallas and Jeffery Keith Collins, 23, of Denton on Interstate 45 near Wilmer. All three died.

Among the other victims were:

Gregory Browning Zant, 20, of Weatherford, killed early Monday in a one-car roll over on Interstate 45 near Ferris.

Melvin Wayne Norwood Jr., 19, killed Sunday night when the car in which he was riding overturned on a dirt road near Slaton in West Texas.

Maurice Laverne Steen, 35, who died in Brazoria when he was hit by a car early Monday.

Ostrich roams Texas

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — A maverick ostrich roamed the Texas prairie around here — at least until Wichita Falls dog catcher Jim Ray Goodner and a posse of vigilantes cornered it.

Out no one has any idea where the 5-foot, 100-pound ostrich came from. For the moment, the bird is in the dog pound, caged next to two mutts who were also nabbed Monday by Goodner.

"We've never caught an ostrich before," said Goodner, who took nearly an hour to run down the bird. "I have no idea what the thing eats."

Goodner was spending a leisurely July 4 at the city's animal control center until he got a call to pick an animal on the outskirts of Wichita Falls. The animal turned out to be the ostrich. Goodner and five bystanders chased the bird for an hour, until it tired in the 95-degree afternoon heat.

"It took six of us to catch him and he sure didn't want to be caught," said Goodner. "We never would have caught him if he hadn't been tuckered out from the heat."

Goodner then managed to cram the bird into his dog catcher truck.

City officials, completely mystified about where the bird came from, said if no one claims it in three or four days, they will turn it over to the humane society. The society will probably donate the ostrich to a zoo.

July 4 recovers from Bicentennial

By The Associated Press

July 4, 1977: Bicentennial plus one. For most Americans, this Fourth of July was a return to low-key normalcy.

In most places the spirit was light-hearted. Billy Carter, the President's brother, appeared at a World Champion Pole-Climbing Contest and played softball in Lexington, Tenn. There were fireworks and rallies, picnics and concerts, regattas and parades throughout the land. And few dissenters anywhere.

Racial turmoil, Vietnam, Watergate seemed echoes of the past. And most people weren't listening.

Instead, Air Force demonstration jets screamed over the Statue of Liberty and tiny rickety sailboats slapped the waters of New York Harbor. Under sunny skies in Tuscaloosa, Ala., there were arts and crafts, games for all ages, softball rock music and bluegrass.

Night skies exploded with fireworks over the Hudson River in New York, the Charles River in Boston, the Mall in Washington, D.C. — and over Muscle Shoals, Ala., and countless small towns.

Actor John Collium did the traditional reading of the Declaration of Independence at Federal Hall on Wall Street in New York. Four or five thousand people stood — intent, respectful.

In Washington, health consultant Larry Peaco relaxed against a tree in West Potomac Park and said he felt a "collective relief. All the bad stuff is over. Maybe the last of the Watergate ghosts have been exorcised."

The day was not entirely harmonious, but the discord was scattered.

At John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York, a gunman seized a bus and held its passengers hostage for nine hours before being captured. Two people were killed.

In Skokie, Ill., anti-Nazi demonstrators rallied against the threat that courts will allow an American Nazi group to march through the town, where 7,000 survivors of Nazi concentration camps live.

In Columbus, Ohio, state highway patrolmen quickly broke up a fracas between rallying Ku Klux Klansmen and counter-protestors who used clubs and fists to try to prevent the rally.

In Oakland, Calif., where Black Panther leader Huey Newton was in jail pending efforts to release him on bail while he awaits trial, a march and rally for "jobs and justice" was scheduled — but its political tone made it unusual for this year.

In nearby Berkeley, a Fantasy Costume Parade was staged, and across the bay in San Francisco, the main event was a fireworks display at Candlestick Park baseball stadium, preceded by music by the Golden Gate Park Band and a daytime Giants' baseball game.

In Washington, the National Archives sealed a time capsule filled with memorabilia from the Bicentennial to be uncapped in 2076.

In Boston, the fireworks display included a huge aerial bomb, designed to create a quarter-mile wide red, white and green chrysanthemum across the sky.

Most Texans made their Fourth of July holiday just that — a holiday.

It seemed only U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, Anita Bryant and state troopers were busy, as Texas quietly celebrated the nation's 201st birthday in contrast to last year's Bicentennial pomp and pageantry.

Krueger, a congressman from New Braunfels and former university English literature professor, used a July 4th picnic at his home to officially begin his campaign for the U.S. Senate against Sen. John Tower, R-Tex.

Miss Bryant shrugged off a full-page ad in the Brownwood Bulletin attacking her anti-gay rights campaign and high lighted Brownwood's "Freedom Night" celebration Sunday.

The rally, which highlighted "Freedom Week," packed 12,000 persons into the stadium at Brownwood, a city of only 18,000.

A Dallas gay rights organization paid for the ad, but no protesters appeared for Miss Bryant's performance.

Meanwhile, state troopers patrolled Texas highways at maximum strength over the holiday weekend. However, at least 31 persons had died on Texas roads and highways by late Monday.

Elsewhere, there were only scattered reports of a few parades and very few speeches.

"It is the quietest celebration we have had in years," said one Midland resident.

Texans took advantage of fair and hot weather to pack Gulf Coast resort areas, parks and lakes. A record crowd of 45,596 crowded into Six Flags Over Texas at Arlington.

Most big cities had little or no organized city-wide events. In Dallas there were art shows, fairs and square dancing.

About 75,000 gathered at Keist Park in Dallas for a giant picnic.

In San Antonio, there was mariachi and military march music.

Most of the parades were in smaller cities. Arlington sponsored its annual parade with clowns, marching bands and mounted units.

But mostly it was a time for family fun. Among the attractions in different parks in the Dallas area, for example, were belly dancing, Polish cello music, Chinese line dancing, Jewish parties, taco eating, sack racing, tobacco-spitting, cake walking, pea shelling and washer throwing.

Army takes Pakistan

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Pakistan army, promising fresh elections in October, put Pakistan under martial law today after taking control of the government and arresting Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, Radio Pakistan said.

In an address to the nation, broadcast by the radio and monitored here, army chief of staff Gen. Muhammad Ziaul Haq said President Fazal Elahi Choudhry would continue as head of state.

Ziaul said he had taken over as chief martial law administrator in order to assure that free and fair elections are possible in October.

"The Bhutto regime has ended," said the 52-year-old general whom Bhutto installed last year as chief of staff.

He announced dissolution of the National Assembly and state assemblies and removal from office of all cabinet ministers and state governors.

An earlier announcement of the coup by Radio Pakistan said Bhutto and other political leaders had been placed in "temporary protective custody." The coup followed four months of political unrest and a threat of non-violence between supporters and foes of Bhutto.

The broadcast said those arrested were from both Bhutto's Pakistan People's party and the opposition Pakistan National Alliance. But only Bhutto was identified.

"Peace and tranquility prevail everywhere," the broadcast said. It added that the army was guarding all vital installations.

Unofficial reports said the army began making arrests about 2 a.m. Radio Pakistan said the takeover was accomplished by about 7:30 a.m.

The government radio said the army chief of staff, Gen. Muhammad Ziaul Haq would address the nation in a special broadcast tonight. Meanwhile, there was no announcement of a ruling junta or a military prime minister.

It was believed that the army's leaders would be reluctant to retain control for a prolonged period because of the difficulties the military had when it was in power from 1958 until December 1971.

Military rule then was brought down by economic decline, the secession movement in East Pakistan, student disturbances, political and economic discontent and the army's defeat by the Indian Army in the December, 1971, war which made East Pakistan the new nation of Bangladesh.

The last military president, Gen. Mohammed Yahya Khan, resigned immediately after the war, and Bhutto, the head of the largest party in the National Assembly and the leading politician in what was left of the country, became president. In 1973, when a new constitution restored parliamentary government and made the presidency a ceremonial figurehead, he became prime minister.

Girl's body found
BANGOR, Mich. (AP) — Just hours after she presided over holiday activities, the nude, battered body of Terri Wilson, 18, Bangor's centennial queen, was found stuffed in the trunk of her car about three miles west of town.

After discovering the body early Monday, police arrested one of the young woman's former schoolmates, Carl Lee Johnson, 19, on an open charge of murder. He was being held in the South Haven City Jail.

Sgt. Robert Berghuis of the South Haven state police post said Johnson would be arraigned today in the slaying.

"I can't believe this happened," said one of Miss Wilson's friends, echoing the sentiments of many Bangor residents.

City officials immediately canceled a fashion show and other events the dead woman was to have presided over Monday.

Police, checking on a report from three youths who said they heard a woman screaming when they were driving past on their way to Lake Michigan sand dunes, found Miss Wilson's body in the bloody trunk

Man to be arraigned for bag trash murders

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — One of two men charged in connection with the "trash bag murders" has led authorities to two Imperial County locations where bodies were found one and four years ago. Imperial County sheriff's deputies said.

Patrick Kearney appeared "pretty calm" during the five-hour search Monday, said Sgt. Lon Hettinger of the Imperial County department.

Kearney, 37, and David Hill, 34, former roommates from Redondo Beach and both avowed homosexuals, were scheduled to be arraigned today in Municipal Court on murder charges in the deaths of two men whose bodies were found in Riverside County.

Police had been questioning the two about a total of eight murders over the past two years in four southern California counties, but Monday's search brought that total to 10. Police say the men have told them about an additional 33 bodies.

All of the bodies were found along highways. Some were shot, dismembered or both. Several were found stuffed in plastic trash bags, leading detectives to dub the case "the trash bag murders."

Hettinger said the two Imperial County bodies were found in 1973 and 1976 but not previously linked with the "trash bag" slayings.

The shallow burial sites were a mile apart about 15 miles east of Calexico near Highway 98.

The search for more bodies was expected to resume today, although authorities said Kearney claims he is no longer sure where the remaining grave sites are. Investigators from Riverside, San Diego, Los Angeles, Orange and Imperial counties have joined in the search.

Kearney and Hill were being held in Riverside County Jail in lieu of $500,000 cash bail each.

Their surrender Friday was one month after warrants were issued by the Riverside County district attorney's office charging them with two murders.

Police report

Pampa police investigated three criminal mischief complaints, four burglaries, five thefts, a stolen vehicle report, one assault, a complaint of making alcoholic beverage available to a minor and three non-injury accidents over the holiday weekend.

Windows at 427 Hill had been broken with a BB gun and someone opened the door at 503 E. 19th Street and threw a string of firecrackers inside the house. A fist-size rock was thrown through a glass storm door, damaging the storm door and a wooden door. Damage was set at $75-100.

A man told police a .22 caliber blue steel revolver was taken from 504 Naida two months ago and a CB radio was taken from a car parked at 2200 N. Christy.

Thieves took a 30 - 30 Winchester and approximately 10 shells from 2237 Evergreen after gaining entry by breaking the latch on a sliding door. All the drawers and closets in the house were ransacked. An estimated $1,000 was taken from 1344 Hamilton by burglars who broke the glass on the front door. A dog was taken from the backyard at 716 S. Gray and a lawnmower was stolen from a pickup parked at 2132 N. Zimmers. A CB radio antenna was removed from a vehicle at 2100 Lynn and a man told police a battery-operated lighter valued at $25 was taken from a Bell Service Station. A purse containing $180 was taken from a parked car.

A man who said he wanted to test drive a car took a vehicle from Jim McBroom Motors, 807 W. Foster. Police were called when the man did not return with the car. Another man told officers he was assaulted and his life was threatened. No charges have been filed against the suspect.

Police reported this morning that no charges have been filed by a man who told police someone has been giving beer to his son, a juvenile.

Officers also arrested two persons for driving while intoxicated over the holidays.

Names in the news

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP) — Eddie Fisher, the "Golden Throat" of the 1950s, has launched what he hopes will be a successful comeback with a one-night stand at Grossinger's, a resort hotel in the Catskill Mountains.

Fisher, now in his late 40s, began his career at the same hotel when he was 17.

He said his appearance Sunday night "is like a rebirth for me, a new beginning."

During the almost 30 years of his spotty show business career, Fisher has had four wives, including Debbie Reynolds and later, Elizabeth Taylor, run up heavy debts and battled with amphetamines.

"This will be my last shot," he said.

He plans a series of appearances across the country leading to a "whole new act in Vegas" in October.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The trans-Alaska oil pipeline was shut down Monday night because of a nitrogen-leaking drain plug buried beneath 20 feet of "gravel as hard as concrete," said an Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. spokesman.

He said it was expected to take 11 to 13 hours to repair the 1 1/2-inch plug. On that schedule, oil would start moving again at mid-morning Tuesday.

The malfunctioning plug allowed nitrogen to leak under Pump Station No. 8, which is at

Demonstrators disrupt Klan antibusing rally

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Flagstaffs, signboards, eggs and fists were thrown as about 100 young demonstrators broke up a Ku Klux Klan antibusing rally on the steps of the Statehouse.

State police restored order quickly, and Ku Klux Klan Imperial Wizard Dale Reusch, 38, vowed to return in September. He said he would "meet violence with violence."

The July 4th melee here was the second Klan rally broken up violently over the holiday weekend.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have a friend who is married with two small babies. This man brings his girlfriends over to our house. We are good friends with both him and his wife.

I feel that by allowing this man to bring his girlfriend here, we are condoning his actions.

Should we just tell him bluntly that he can do as he pleases, but not in our house? My husband says his wife knows what's going on, and as long as she doesn't care, why should we?

Should I find out if his wife really knows? And if she knows and doesn't care, should it matter?

I still don't like the idea of a married man breaking his marriage vows on our sofa. What do you think?

A FRIEND TO BOTH

DEAR FRIEND: If he's breaking his marriage vows on your sofa, whether his wife knows or not is beside the point. Since you disapprove of his conduct, don't make it any easier for him by providing him with a place to rendezvous.

DEAR ABBY: I am an independent grocer with a question for you. Why do some customers (including relatives) ask for groceries on credit, but when they have the cash they will drive an extra mile to shop at a supermarket and give their money to strangers?

The people they give cash to wouldn't give them groceries on credit if their whole family was dying of malnutrition.

FED UP WITH PEOPLE

DEAR FED UP: There are two kinds of people in this world: The givers and the takers. The credit customers (including your relatives) who spend their cash elsewhere are "takers." You may complain, but the next time someone is broke and needs groceries on credit, you won't turn him down, because you are a "giver." The takers may eat better, but the givers sleep better.

DEAR ABBY: Before the wedding "X" promised to give up cigarettes.

For the first three years after our marriage, he was still smoking, and when I would gently remind him of his promise, he would tell me that he was "trying" and I should be a little more patient.

We have been married for eight years now, and this turkey is still puffing away, only he tries to hide it from me.

His deceit irritates me more than the smoking itself. How much longer should I be patient? And do you think he ever sincerely tried to quit?

DISGUSTED IN CALIF.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Give him until the 4th of July, and if he's still smoking—fireworks! I have no way of knowing if he sincerely tried. Perhaps he did. I'm told it's harder to quit smoking than to quit drinking.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THE KENOSHA KID": Be patient. Dessert is never the first course.

Ask Dr. Lamb
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if you could recommend anything for dry skin. My skin is light and I get brown spots and they peel off. My doctor advised me to wear a hat most always. When out in the sunlight all makeup burns my face. I have tried several soaps and they don't work either. I also have dry places on my body and would appreciate some advice.

DEAR DR. LAMB — On so many of the soap operas, every time a woman becomes pregnant she experiences dizzy spells and usually faints once or twice. Is it common for a woman to faint in early pregnancy? What causes her to faint? Also what would happen if one fainted, say at home, when she was alone?

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm afraid that is more soap opera than medical fact. Most pregnant women do not faint in early pregnancy. In fact many women feel better in the early months of pregnancy than they did before. Some have morning nausea and related problems but many do not.

Later in pregnancy the more developed baby may compress the large veins that return the blood from the lower part of the body to the heart and that can lead to fainting but even that is not common.

If a woman is anemic with her pregnancy it can increase her tendency to faint. Should a pregnant woman faint at home alone it is likely that nothing would happen. Most healthy people who faint recover rather quickly when they are lying down and the normal circulatory mechanisms are resumed.

Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.

Gardening by the moon signs

Pick spent blooms off daily

By LOIS BOYNTON
Special to The News

The moon will be decreasing 1-15. The moon will be increasing 16-29.

The Fruitful Signs are: 4 after 11 a.m.; 5-6 until 5:20 p.m. (Pisces); 14-16 until 4 p.m. (Cancer); 23 after 1:20 p.m.; 25 until 4 p.m. (Scorpio).

The Semi-fruitful Signs are: 1-28-29 (Capricorn); 9-11 until 4:30 p.m. (Taurus); 21-23 until 1 p.m. (Libra).

The Barren Signs are: 2-3 (Aquarius); 7-8 (Aries); 12-13 (Gemini); 17-18 (Leo); 19-20 (Virgo); 25 after 4 p.m. - 27 until 5 p.m.; 30-31 (Aquarius).

We continued to have rain all through June which was great. Oh! Yes the hail was bad, left our flower beds depleted of color. But they are making a remarkable recovery, even in the vegetable garden it is amazing how quickly they stage a comeback.

It is time now for hot dry weather; thus we can expect from July.

Pick spent blooms off daily. This is important, otherwise plants will lose their interest in flowering and put all their energy into seeding.

When collecting ripe seed for use next year choose the best plant of the variety, being sure they are well ripened. Store in airtight container with a screw-on lid. The seed may not come true, but to grow your own is fun and a great experience. You might even come up with an exciting new cultivar (variety).

Plants are making rapid growth and will benefit by a feed of liquid fertilizer. We use our own made from a bucket of water which first was half filled with manure. This is seeped for a day, before using. This is good for your tomatoes also.

It is time to order your fall bulbs now. Try some fall blooming crocus; they will give you a bright performance during the last months of the year. Colchicums, their close cousins, are very dependable and will perform for years, if left undisturbed.

In hot weather, roses require the equivalent of one inch of water a week, this can be done with one or two soakings. Keep a can sitting under sprinkler and measure it to be sure.

Harvesting crops as soon as they mature is very important, picking the young fruit keeps the plants cropping.

Sow green beans the 5-6th, also cabbage, and broccoli. Sow beets the 15-16th.

Rambler roses should have this season's flowering shoots cut back to the ground once the blooms have faded, tying up young growths to take their place for next year's bloom.

Put down cuttings of roses and other shrubs the 14 and 15th. Keep suckers removed from the base of dahlias, feed them and water well. They should always be well staked.

Do not prune spring flowering shrubs after July, flower buds are formed in August.

Sow seeds of pansies and violas 21-24. Also sow perennial seed at this time for blooms next spring.

Do not pinch back chrysanthemums after the middle of this month.

Some annuals such as sweet alyssum and petunias tend to grow straggly and benefit greatly and bloom better later if they are lightly sheared back at this time. This is good treatment for violas too.

If you plan to make a new lawn this fall, it is not too early to begin getting the ground into condition. Around new homes the soil should be graded and loosened to a depth of 8 inches or more. Any bits of foundation left in the soil should be removed. It may be necessary to bring in good topsoil, before planting your lawn. A crop of buckwheat sown over the area in the first part of July will be ready for turning under in 5-6 weeks and will improve the soil by adding humus to it. Rye grass can be used for the same purpose, and also will add some organic matter to the soil. By repeated shallow surface cultivation during August and early September, weeds that germinate will be destroyed and a nearly weed-free seedbed will be ready for sowing lawn grass seed.

Possibly the question asked most about iris, should the tops be cut back after blooming? We never cut ours back only when lifting and resetting them.

If other bulbs get food and strength from their foliage why shouldn't iris? We like their foliage in our beds; they give beauty and background for annuals and perennials.

The time to lift and divide iris is from July 4 to Labor Day. Use a spade or fork to lift the entire clump, shake the soil from the roots. Break apart so there is one rhizome for each single fan of leaves, these are generally connected to a central, older rhizome. These are best broken or cut off, and discarded, cut out all rotted or diseased portions. As a precaution the effected root should be soaked in a solution of one gallon water to which has been added one-half cup of cloxol, for 30 minutes.

In preparing the bed for iris, dig down 8 to 10 inches, mix the soil about half and half with compost to which a little cotton seed meal has been added. We use cottonseed meal for fertilizer because it is rich in both phosphorus and potash, these are important needs of iris. It also has an acid reaction, bringing down the PH of the soil which is necessary in our alkaline soil.

Remember there are other types of iris than the tall bearded. We recommend the Siberian and Spurias, also the dwarfs, these develop and multiply like a house fire, blooming lavishly in the early spring border, with the daffodils. Plant a few; you won't be able to resist their tiny beauty.

Gather all waste vegetable matter that is not likely to harbor soil-borne diseases and place on the compost pile. It is better not to put woody branches or leaves of evergreens on the compost pile.

Make last planting of gladioli the 24th and 25th.

Pieces of root, each about 2 inches long of oriental poppies planted the 14th or 15th in a sandy, well-drained soil and kept moist will produce new plants by fall.

Watering and weeding will take up most of our time throughout the month. Too little or too late will not produce satisfactory results.

How to grow gardenias

By ELVIN McDONALD

Not long ago, I was in my neighborhood dime store and noticed a large shelf filled with gardenias. As I poked among them looking for a well-shaped plant with lots of buds and an open flower or two, another customer came up and with hardly a moment's hesitation picked the one young bush that was wilted almost beyond recovery.

At this point, I forgot what I was doing and began to wonder if the Florence Nightingale of the plant world was in my presence. As she headed for the cash register, I hastily picked up a gardenia for myself and followed, fully intending to caution the woman about the pitfalls of buying a wilted plant, especially one with woody stems like the gardenia.

However, as I drew near, shyness overcame me and I said nothing. I will never know what happened to the wilted plant, but about two weeks later mine came down with the worst case of mealybugs I have ever seen. Obviously, I should have been minding my own business in the store and not Florence's.

Gardenias are actually easy to grow; it's getting the buds to mature into fragrant white flowers that's tricky. If you acquire one that is already budded, as I did, here is the care I suggest:

Light: A half-day or more of direct sun in the winter months, somewhat less in hottest summer weather.

Temperature: A range of 60 to 70°F. is ideal during the winter heating season. At other times of the year gardenias are less sensitive to higher or lower temperatures. However, buds are not likely to develop properly if nighttime temperatures are consistently higher than 70°F. or lower than 60°F.

Humidity: Ideally 40 per cent or more during the winter heating season. Frequent misting of the leaves with water helps keep them clean and naturally glossy, but it doesn't do much to increase humidity. I grow all my plants with the pots grouped in trays filled with pebbles and water.

Soil: Repot gardenias in late winter or spring, using a mixture of one part each of all-purpose potting soil and sand to two of sphagnum peat moss. Apply fish-emulsion fertilizer in spring and summer.

Gardenias need a growing medium on the acid side, specifically a pH range of 5.0 to 5.5. If the leaves on an apparently healthy plant turn yellow between the veins, apply an acid-type fertilizer, or a solution made by mixing one ounce of ammonium sulfate in two gallons of water.

Water: Gardenias need soil that is evenly moist at all times. Dryness to the point of causing the leaves to wilt will dry up the flower buds and may threaten the life of the plant.

Problems: If you discover cottony white mealybugs on a gardenia, take it to the sink or bathtub and use lukewarm water to wash off as many of the insects and their residue as possible. After the plant dries, inspect it for signs of any bugs that may remain. If you find any, remove them with a cotton swab dipped in denatured alcohol. Repeat this treatment at weekly intervals as necessary.

If a gardenia is allowed to dry out repeatedly, red spider mites are likely to attack. Treat by showering daily in water. Also increase the amount of fresh air circulation around the plant. If mites persist, spray with a miticide such as Kelthane.

THRIFFTWAY

By Abigail Van Buren
1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old widow contemplating marriage to a widower. He is affectionate, trustworthy, and thoughtful. He loves my children and they love him. He is a wonderful father to his own children. He cooks, cleans, washes, irons and never complains. We couldn't help but have smooth sailing, and I do love him, but my problem is the strong objections my family has to this man. They don't like him because our backgrounds are so different. My parents are culture-conscious and somewhat snobbish. My friend is the eldest of 15 children of a struggling immigrant family. His English is not very good because he hasn't had the educational advantages I've had. If left alone, I'm sure we could overcome these differences, but I am very close to my family, and they could make life unbearable for me if I were to marry this man. I've told him yes, but wonder if perhaps I should reverse my decision. Do you consider my parents' objection too great a stumbling block?

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Yes, because apparently you do. When you are able to say, "I intend to live my own life with a man of my choice, and if my parents don't like it, they can lump it," I'll reverse my answer.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know what I am writing to you for. My problem is money, and you can't help me unless you get big-hearted and send me a check for $50,000. I own my own business and make good money, but my wife spends it faster than I can make it. To make matters worse, I have four daughters who are exactly like their mother. I am drowning in bills every month, and there doesn't seem to be any end to it. Will you please tell my wife and daughters to quit being extravagant?

OWES PLENTY

DEAR OWES: No, that's YOUR JOB. It's bad enough to have spoiled your wife, but you are guilty of perpetuating the crime by raising four more females in her image. Turn off those charge accounts, Dad, and put your wife on an allowance.

DEAR ABBY: A girl I work with is getting married, soon, and she wants to borrow my wedding gown and veil. She's not even a close friend, but she's seen pictures of my wedding and says that's exactly the kind of gown and veil she's always wanted. Unfortunately, we're the same size, too.

Abby, I'm saving my wedding gown for my two younger sisters to wear—and someday I will have daughters who will want to wear it. So many of my friends have told me they let someone wear their wedding gowns and they were returned in terrible condition that I hate to take the chance. What story can I tell this girl so I won't have to let her wear it? I hate to have her mad at me, as we work together every day.

SIZE TEN

DEAR TEN: Why make up a story? Tell her the truth.

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK

Ten years ago I didn't know anything about myself. I didn't know who I was, where I was or where I was going.

I didn't know how I felt about my plants, my tennis game, breast feeding, nicknames, waxed dental floss or pre-marital sex. I had never analyzed my marriage, my dreams, my hostilities, or my reasons for taking a tape recorder with me to the labor room.

I crossed my legs at the ankle and slept with my fists closed, but I never knew why. I fantasized about Paul Newman calling me out of a high-level Girl Scout cooking meeting because he was unable to sleep. My marriage was working, but the reason was something I couldn't put my finger on.

Then came the tide of self-analysis books — one, two, sometimes three and four a month inviting me to dissect my motivations for living and understand myself.

So, I became my own best friend, went around saying, "I'm okay, you're okay" and opened our marriage at both ends. It has taken ten years of self-analysis, but I've discovered something I never knew about me before. I'm boring.

I liked me better when I was mysterious and shallow. Even my anxiety attacks aren't any fun anymore. What good does it do me to get uptight when deep down inside I know it's merely a psychological signal to myself to alert me to future dangers and threats?

My friend, Mayva, is really into self-analysis and continues to drive me crazy. The other day I tried to down a vitamin pill when Mayva said, "Are you having trouble swallowing that pill?"

"Yes."

"What year did your dog die?"

"Two years ago. What's that got to do with swallowing a pill?"

"Why are you so hostile about the dog's death?"

"I am not hostile!"

"Have you ever felt you were too assertive and tended to dominate your marriage?"

"Mayva, I am sick to death of analyzing my every move."

"You're uptight. Maybe you should meditate for 30 minutes."

"I can't. I forgot my mantra. Her eyebrow raised, "That's rather Freudian, isn't it?"

"I call it old age."

"I think you're going through a predictable life crisis."

"Which one?"

"I don't know. Gail Sheehy only went through age 40 in 'Passages.' You're probably right. We think too much about ourselves."

"Tell me about it," I said, putting my arm over her shoulder.

PREYING MANTIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The praying mantis would be better named a preying mantis, says National Geographic, referring to the insect's predatory habits.

Although it is harmless to humans, an adult mantis gobble up flies, boll weevils, locusts, crickets, wasps, beetles, and grasshoppers. In addition the female often devours the male after mating, says Geographic.

Because of its dining habits, it has gained a new popularity among gardeners as nature's answer to pesticides. While stalking its victims, the insect waits patiently with its long forelegs raised, ready to strike.

Foods cause 'cerebral allergies'

A chocolate bar triggers a patient's schizoid attack. The behavior of a seven-year-old boy kicking walls and charging on-coming cars on his tricycle is traced to his consumption of artificial flavor and color additives. Such violent reactions to food and flavor and color additives are caused by "cerebral allergies," reports the July issue of Science Digest, and are analogous to hives but occur on the lining of the brain. Diagnosing cerebral allergies requires the patient to fast four to six days and then reintroduce the suspect foods one at a time, according to the article's author, Thomas O. Marsh, a biocriminology expert and chief of police in Fairfield, Ohio. "Many times an entire food family is the allergen rather than a single food," Marsh writes. "For example, tomatoes, potatoes, bell peppers and tobacco are all in the same food family. Any one of them will create the same reactions in a victim of the appropriate allergy." Turning to food additives, Science Digest quotes Dr. Ben Feingold, allergist for the Kaiser Research Institute in California, as saying they are "the pharmacology of violence."

"You tell the public and even the professions that a drug can cause a reaction, and they aren't surprised," Dr. Feingold says. "But tell them that a food additive causes a reaction and they are surprised. But there's not one iota of difference between the two chemicals."

New York's Carnegie Hall was inaugurated in 1891.

Dallas rape program achieves results

DALLAS — In a recent episode of the NBC television series "Quincy" a man accused of rape goes free — even though Quincy is certain of his guilt — because the evidence that would have convicted him is accidentally destroyed in the hospital emergency room.

During the hour-long show the fictional Los Angeles County medical examiner, played by actor Jack Klugman, refers several times to a highly successful rape program in Dallas which prevents such tragic foul-ups.

By centralizing the examination and treatment of alleged victims of rape, the Dallas program has assured that a specially trained team will take care of not only the rape victim, but also the rape evidence.

Dr. Charles Petty, Dallas County Chief Medical Examiner and professor of pathology at The University of Texas Southwestern Medical School at Dallas, is one of the originators of the program.

"Prior to 1973, when our comprehensive rape program began, rape victims were brought to different hospitals helter-skelter by law enforcement agencies," says Dr. Petty, who is also director of the Southwestern Institute of Forensic Sciences, which includes the medical examiner's office and the county crime lab.

"There was no guarantee whatsoever that a rape victim would be given prompt, sympathetic treatment or that the evidence obtained would be handled properly," he says.

Now all rapes reported in Dallas County are processed by the obstetrics-gynecology (OB-gyn) emergency department of Parkland Memorial Hospital, the major trauma hospital in the county and the medical school's primary teaching facility. The attending physicians are all faculty members in UT Southwestern's OB-gyn department.

The program has resulted in one of the best rape prosecution and conviction records in the country. In Dallas County in 1975 (the last year for which final figures are available) there were 127 indictments for rape. Of those, 110 pleaded guilty. Of the 17 that went on to jury trials, 14 resulted in convictions.

"When you have really good physical evidence, the suspect is usually going to plead guilty," says Dr. Irving Stone, chief of the physical evidence analysis section of the forensic sciences institute and an assistant professor of pathology at the medical school.

The analysis of physical evidence also may show that a man who has been accused of rape is, in fact, innocent. Dr. Stone points out, "Everybody talks about how many you can convict, but the most important thing is to make sure that you don't shove an innocent man into jail."

A vital concern in rape cases is the care and custody of the physical evidence, he continues.

"This is one of the weakest links in what is called the chain of evidence in a rape case. We have to prove to the jury that we had care and custody of the evidence and that no one tampered with it."

"The chain should be as short as possible with as few people involved as possible. And each time evidence is transferred from one person to another, they must get a signed receipt.

"Of course our primary concern is to treat the victim as a patient," adds Dr. Stone. "This is not to minimize the collection of physical evidence, but it does mean we maximize the treatment of the victim."

The rape victim is going through what may be the most traumatic experience of her life, he explains. "Even if the victim is lucky enough to receive no permanent injuries, she still has to face the emotional problems associated with rape and the ordeal of the trial."

Contrary to the stereotype seen on TV and in movies, the rape victim usually is quiet and subdued, not hysterical, says Dr. Daniel Scott, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at UT Southwestern and an originator of the rape program.

"She usually just feels kind of depressed and dehumanized," he says. "She may show evidence of hostility, anger or frustration. But regardless of her emotional state you cannot infer whether or not she is a bona fide rape victim. You simply can't look at a woman and determine what has happened to her."

When an alleged rape victim is brought to the Parkland emergency room, her case is given a priority second only to those in life-threatening situations. A victim suffering apparent physical or emotional trauma is usually taken directly into the examining room.

"Our first concern is to treat the patient for injuries," Dr. Scott says. (About 10 per cent of rape victims are seriously injured, while another 25 per cent suffer bruises and lacerations.) "The patient is also treated for venereal disease and given the option of treatment against pregnancy."

"The second part, and truly the second part of the examination, is for the purpose of collecting physical evidence that will support or refute an allegation of rape," he continues.

The examining physicians at Parkland are concerned, sympathetic and highly trained specialists from the medical school who are accustomed to working with rape victims and are sensitive to their needs.

"We try to show them we are removed from the legal aspects of the alleged crime," Dr. Scott says. "We do not ask them for the background or all of the details that the police will need later for their investigation. Our questions are confined to what is important to the medical history."

The rape program includes special training for both Parkland nurses and members of the various law enforcement agencies in the county, so that they too will be aware of the special needs of alleged rape victims.

The Dallas County Rape Crisis Center, operated by the Dallas Women Against Rape, is another part of the system. In addition to other services, the center operates a 24-hour crisis line (630-7700) and provides immediate personal counseling for rape victims admitted to Parkland.

Partly due to these improvements in the treatment of rape victims, the number of reported rapes in Dallas County is rising. In 1973, the year the program began, 500 victims were examined at Parkland. By 1975 the number had risen to 675 and in 1976, to 730.

The key to the success of the Dallas rape program is the close coordination of the various state, county, municipal and private agencies dealing with rape.

This system is unique to Dallas and serves as a model for other cities across the country designing rape programs. A number of Texas cities have shown interest in or have already begun setting-up such programs, including Denton, McKinney, Denison, El Paso, Waco, Corpus Christi and Beaumont.

Author calls Watergate 'penny-ante stuff'

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the latest of the Watergate books claims that Richard M. Nixon's predecessors committed "numerous political excesses, some of which make Watergate look like penny-ante stuff."

Victor Lasky writes in "It Didn't Start With Watergate" that the affair "has been blown up out of all proportion to the realities, becoming a veritable teapot in a tempest."

He cites an "IRS witch-hunt" directed against right-wing dissenters by the Kennedy administration, the use by Lyndon B. Johnson of "various investigatory agencies to carry on political warfare against his adversaries" and requests by Franklin D. Roosevelt "to snoop into the private lives of his opponents."

"The fact is that Democratic scandals of comparable, if not greater, significance were permitted to glide by without any of the overwhelming and unrelenting attention later paid Watergate by a press, which, in its lust for machismo, sought to disembowel a hated President."

The book, now in its third week on the New York Times best-seller list, is devoted in large part to a defense of Nixon.

"If Richard Nixon was guilty of anything at all," Lasky writes, "it was his inability to hold on to the overwhelming mandate given him by the American people in 1972."

FDR kin have reunion on island

CAMPBELLO ISLAND, N.B. (AP) — Descendants of Franklin D. Roosevelt vacationed Saturday on his beloved Canadian island, visiting spots where the late president summured as a youth and was stricken with polio as an adult.

Two of FDR's sons, Franklin and John, joined four grandchildren and other relatives for a weekend of sailing, golf, picnicking and tramping through the woods of the fog-shrouded seven-mile-long island near the Maine-New Brunswick border.

The family reunion was organized by son Franklin, 62, a New York businessman who serves on the Roosevelt Campobello International Park Commission. The 2,600-acre park was established by the United States and Canada in 1964 as a memorial to the late president.

Also on hand was John, 60, a New York investment banker, and the younger of the four Roosevelt brothers, who is making his first trip to Campobello in 20 years.

In the book Lasky says the famed White House tape transcripts "show a president loath to move against longtime associates who somehow had blundered into an untenable position."

"The President found himself in a no-win situation. Had he acted at the very beginning, he undoubtedly would have been accused of a lack of loyalty to those who had served him. Now with the release of the transcripts the moralists were scornful because he had not flayed about in righteous wrath."

And, Lasky says, the damning June 23, 1972, tape — publication of which preceded Nixon's resignation — shows it was H. R. Haldeman, not Nixon, who initiated the suggestion that the FBI be asked to stop investigating Watergate.

HANOVER, Pa. (AP) — Not even a diesel locomotive passing over him was able to awaken Robert Bechner.

Maryland Railroad engineer J. E. Siasler told police he saw a man lying between the tracks, his body parallel with the rails, but was unable to stop until 40 feet of the engine had passed over the man.

Police were summoned and awakened Bechner, 29. He was found to be uninjured and was taken home to continue the nap.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Detective Donald Foster arrested two men on charges of driving a vehicle without the owner's consent and he ought to know. They were driving Foster's car, which he had reported stolen three days earlier.

Foster saw his car, which had switched license plates, on a freeway, tailed it several miles and when the driver pulled over to let Foster's cruiser pass, Foster stopped, leaped out and pulled his gun. A young skateboarder called police while Foster held the men.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Procrastinators Club promise a block-long parade on the Fourth to observe the Bicentennial—that is, if they make it the full block in front of Independence Hall.

"Actually we're only one day late with this," said Les Waas, president of the international club that rarely does anything on time.

"The Bicentennial year actually ran from July 4, 1976 through July 3, 1977. It didn't end last December as everyone believes."

Waas was elected president

Will rights stand hurt salt talks?

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter can't seem to make up his mind whether his support for Soviet dissidents is hurting his chances for a new SALT agreement.

Less than two weeks ago, the President said Soviet reaction against his human rights crusade is an obstacle to a new in 1956 and is still in office because the 1957 elections haven't been held yet.

"We're going to march for one block there in front of Independence Hall," Waas said. "That is, if we make it that far. We should. We'll have first aid stations set up along way."

Waas promises the presentation of a bicentennial medal to a passer-by in honor of the Unknown American who never gets anything unless he's killed in war.

"I don't know what the recipient will do when he gets it. He'll probably turn it over and over in his hand. You see, there's nothing printed on it. We didn't get around to that."

NEW YORK (AP) — A couple of city councilmen have asked the quarrelling Central Park hot dog peddlers to call a holiday truce until the hot dog war can be heard in court Thursday.

The battle lines were formed in May after the Parks Department gave Yum Yum Hot Dog Co. exclusive rights for $80,000 to peddle hot dogs in the park over the next five years.

One recent day, Yum Yum owner John Zervas and Fotios Velis, whose family has a vending business, got into a battle as hot as their mustards.

They were separated, but Zervas went to court and got a temporary restraining order to prevent the Velis family from pushing its hot dog carts in the park.

Manhattan's two councilmen at large, Robert Wagner Jr. and Henry Stern, on Saturday urged that the hot dog warriors declare a truce at least until Thursday, when a court hearing is scheduled on the dispute.

again about human rights and SALT during his news conference Thursday.

"I have doubts," Carter replied, "based on analyses in our country and from those who know the Soviet system very well in other countries, that there is any connection between the two in the minds of the Soviets."

Which is it? Is Carter's human rights stand affecting the SALT talks or isn't it?

The question goes to the heart of a concept called "linkage."

Expoused by former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, this theory holds that different parts of foreign policy are interrelated, or linked.

Kissinger sought to involve the Soviet Union in several different areas at once, including nuclear weapons talks, trade agreements and other multinational accords.

By doing that, he hoped to make the Soviets realize negative behavior in one area could hurt their relationships with the United States in other areas—particularly in areas where the Soviets could gain some benefit.

Linkage, of course, works both ways.

But at the outset of their administration, Carter and Powell went to considerable lengths to assure critics that the United States could be tough on human rights without jeopardizing SALT.

Carter's indecision brings to mind a statement about human rights last month by U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young in his Playboy magazine interview.

Kiddies learn math via calculators

BERKELEY (AP) — Children who haven't yet learned to write numbers are mastering basic mathematical concepts with the help of rubber frogs, dinosaur eggs and electronic calculators.

Children as young as four years old are learning to enjoy math, says Arthur Kessner, a University of California mathematician. He developed the innovative system in collaboration with Dr. David Miller of UC's School of Education.

Calculators aren't intended to replace traditional teaching methods, but they're a valuable aid, Kessner and Miller report.

Concerns of some educators and parents that calculators are a "crutch" rather than a teaching tool is unjustified in the new highly structured system, Kessner said.

"Adults normally use calculators for speed and accuracy. We use them to teach children the logic on which the calculator is based. We don't use the calculator as a shortcut for computation."

Parents alienated by some "new math" procedures in the past should have no difficulties in helping their children with calculator homework, Kessner said. He said one study shows seven out of 10 households already have one calculator, which can be purchased for as little as $5.

The calculator program for kindergarten and first graders has been tested for three years in 20 classrooms involving 800 students in California, Massachusetts, Minnesota and Texas.

Independent evaluation by Syracuse University showed the calculator-trained children did just as well on most tests as control groups without calculators, Kessner said. The calculator children did significantly better on other tests, he added.

"But the most significant data comes from teachers," Kessner said in an interview. Teachers report students enjoy doing math with the calculator programs, "which are a good deal like games," Kessner said. For example, kindergarten youngsters learning to count use a calculator with only the one, zero, plus and "clear" buttons showing. As they pick up a plastic frog, they say "plus one more" and push the plus and one keys — with the new total showing in the display window. Other calculator keys have the appropriate number of dots, instead of numbers, with the running total appearing in the display window.

"The physical act of picking up the frog and pushing the buttons helps them to grasp the concept of counting, and consequently addition," Kessner said. "When students this young learn numbers they often chant them off as if they were reciting letters of the alphabet. They frequently don't know what the numbers mean and often make mistakes getting the sequence right."

More advanced calculator programs have been developed for fourth through sixth grades. Both systems are copyrighted by the UC Lawrence Hall of Science.

Vets' land forfeited

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — For the first time in seven years, some tracts of land purchased under the veterans' land program have been forfeited for non-payment of loans, says Land Commission Bob Armstrong.

The Veterans Land Board received 847 bids Thursday on the 30 forfeited tracts, Armstrong said.

The high bids total $400,105, which is $193,131 higher than the balance owed on the tracts, he said.

The new bids will be financed at 6 per cent over 40 years.

"I think it speaks well for the veterans of Texas that in the seven years I have been here this is the first sale we have had to hold," Armstrong said Friday. "Considering that we have almost 38,000 active loans, these 30 tracts represent a remarkably low forfeiture rate. This record would be the envy of any large lending institution."

Since its inception in 1949, the board has loaned $460 million to almost 61,000 veterans for land purchases.

Currently, veterans can get up $15,000 to buy tracts of 10 acres or more.

On Nov. 8, voters will decide whether to authorize an additional $200 million in bonds for the program.

Corbett has enough; puts Rangers on sale

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Brad Corbett, the free-wheeling, big-spending majority owner of the Texas Rangers, has had it with big league baseball players "who don't give a damn" and put his stock on sale today for about $6 million.

Corbett, who runs a multi-million dollar plastic pipe business, said, "I'm selling the team. I just can't stand it anymore. It's killing me."

His emotional remarks came after the Rangers suffered a 1-0 defeat to the Kansas City Royals before a standing-room holiday crowd of 34,600.

"I've got players that I put complete confidence and faith in and I've found that those players just don't give a damn," stormed Corbett. "They don't care about anything but drawing a paycheck. They are (expletive deleted) on the field and (expletive deleted) off the field."

Corbett said that his actions were "keyed on an article in the Fort Worth Star Telegram. It said I was bringing shame on the city of Fort Worth. This is not a spur of the moment thing."

"I've got to think that I'm responsible for what's wrong with the team," said Corbett, who took over 60 per cent control of the team in 1974. "I guess some people have been hurt because I know this."

The emotional Corbett said he would not change his mind because, "I can't sleep. This thing is eating me up inside. I can't take care of my business. I've neglected my family. I've got to get out. I can't take it anymore."

The portly, cigar-chomping Corbett, speaking to newsmen at various areas of the Ranger press room in a running, machine gun-style press conference, said, "The Star Telegram article cut deeper than anything else. I love Fort Worth. I moved my (pipe) business there. I. His voice trailed off at that point.

The 39-year-old Corbett, who was born in Brooklyn and became a millionaire with Robin-tech Industries, said, "This club is in better shape than when we bought it. When we bought it, it was on the verge of bankruptcy."

He added, flicking a cigar ash on the carpet, "You'll never know the hardship this has been on my family. I had wanted to leave this club to my children. I don't know that it is something I'd want to leave with my children."

Corbett named developer Ray Nasher and former Congressman Alan Steelman as possible heads of a syndicate that would buy his interests in the team.

"I'd like to keep it in the hands of local people," he said.

At this point, Corbett shook hands with several reporters and said, "I just can't talk about it anymore. This is not a spur of the moment thing. I'm selling the club." Then he walked away.

Corbett spent big money in the off season, to land such free agent stars as Bert Campaneris, Doyle Alexander and Darold Knowles and Paul Lindblad.

He also shelled out hard cash for designated hitter Willie Horton and had one of the major leagues' biggest payrolls, which included $250,000-a-year pitchers Bert Blyleven and Gaylord Perry.

Former Oakland star Claudell Washington was snapped up by Corbett money and recently pitcher Dock Ellis was quoted as saying "The only reason I've done so well for the Rangers is because the man (Corbett) shelled out the money to make me feel welcome."

Crum decision due

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Louisville basketball Coach Denny Crum was expected to announce today whether he will accept an offer to become head coach at UCLA, his alma mater.

The 40-year-old California native, once an assistant to former Bruins Coach John Wooden, was expected to reveal his decision after meeting this morning with Louisville Athletic Director Dave Hart.

The Newark Star-Ledger, in its Tuesday edition, quoted a highly-placed source as saying that Crum would accept the position. But Crum, reached at home by the paper, said: "I have not made my decision yet."

Crum would succeed Gene Bartow, who resigned last month to become basketball coach and athletic director for the University of Alabama at Birmingham. Crum has said he was offered the UCLA coaching position last week by the school's athletic director, J.D. Morgan.

During Crum's six-year tenure, the Cardinals have compiled a 139-37 record and have reached NCAA post-season play four times and the National Invitation Tournament twice. Ironically, UCLA eliminated Louisville from NCAA action three times — twice in the semifinals and once, last spring, in an opening-round game.

The college basketball rebounding championship in the 1976-77 season was decided by a tiny fraction. Glenn Moseley of Seton Hall won it with an average of 16.31 to 16.30 for John Irving of Hofstra.

Petty burns up Firecracker 400

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "Old blue was flying," said Darrell Waltrip. "I was running after him, but there was no way anybody was gonna catch him."

Old Blue is Richard Petty, winner for the seventh time in major stock car races at Daytona International Speedway when he beat Waltrip by 17.7 seconds in the rain-interrupted Firecracker 400-mile Monday.

"We weren't the fastest, but we were the quickest," Petty said. "I mean the quickest getting back to the finish line. Some of those cars that go fast down the straights don't do as well in the corners."

The money incentive is still there for the six-time national champion on the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) grand national circuit.

It wasn't only the $23,075 Petty won in the race, but the fact that it pulled him within 17 points of defending national champion Cale Yarborough in this year's race. Yarborough had mechanical trouble and had to settle for 24th place.

Petty was leading after 205 miles, when the race was halted for hours by rain. Twenty three laps under caution to dry the track slowed the winner's speed to 142.716 miles an hour.

Petty left behind the Chevrolet of Waltrip and third-place Benny Parsons as well as David Pearson's fourth-place Mercury.

A J. Foyt, a contender in his Chevrolet until his final pit stop, was fifth.

Three women drivers started in the 41-car field but none was running at the finish. Janet Guthrie, who had 12th and 15th place finishes here in other races, ran only 11 laps before her engine failed. She finished 40th. Christine Beckers of Belgium went out with a loss of brakes after 33 laps and was 37th. Lella Lombardi of Italy fought handling problems for 103 laps before retiring in 31st place.

Nicklaus favored for British Open

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, superstar of the British open golf championships for 15 years, is heavily favored to win it again over one of Scotland's wildest and windiest courses.

The bookies rated him an 11-2 shot for the tournament starting Wednesday over Turnberry's 6,875-yard Ailsa course beside the Firth of Clyde.

Next after Nicklaus in the bookies' list are Tom Weiskopf 10-1; Tom Watson, winner of his last two tournaments, 12-1; and Ben Crenshaw 14-1.

Since 1962, Nicklaus has won the British Open twice, been runnerup five times and placed third three times.

The 117-year old tournament, which is alternated among eight of Britain's ancient courses, is being played at Turnberry for the first time. If the wind blows, it could turn into a nightmare.

"I played here once in a tournament in 1973," said Johnny Miller, the defending champion. "It was horrendous weather, even by Scottish standards."

The ninth tee, out on a windswept promontory beside a lighthouse, is the most notorious on any British links. The players have to drive from a tiny patch of ground, with waves breaking over the rocks right beneath them.

"On a course like this you have to use imagination," Miller said. "By comparison, on American courses it's like shooting darts."

"At Turnberry the game is more like it was intended to be when the British invented it."

Miller won his title last year on the comparatively tame layout at Lytham, in northwest England.

Bosox sock eight more

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Boston Red Sox are starting to sound like a broken record... and continuing to look like record-breakers.

The home run-happy Red Sox have been hitting baseballs into the seats with fatiguing consistency all season long — and Monday tatted eight more in a 9-6 decision over the Toronto Blue Jays.

"It's like a disease around here," said George Scott, biggest of the Boston boomers. "One guy gets home run fever — and every one else catches it."

Scott hit two of the homers to bring his season's total to 23. Fred Lynn added a pair for the Red Sox, while Butch Hobson,

English Regatta won by U. of Washington

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP) — The University of Washington has shown that rowing prowess among American schools is not necessarily confined to the Ivy League.

The Huskies won the Grand Challenge Cup to climax the 1977 Henley Royal Regatta and become the first American crew to capture the prestigious race since Harvard did it 18 years ago.

"We're the top now," said Washington Coach Dick Erickson after the Huskies' eight rowed to a one-length victory over the British National

Heavyweight crew in Sunday's finals

Washington's time was six minutes, 27 seconds — the fastest all week.

The Washington crew had to come all the way to Henley to prove itself the best in the United States. The Huskies won the Western sprints but had never competed against Harvard, the Eastern spring champion, or Cornell, winner of the intercollegiate championships.

Both Harvard and Cornell also were here for the Grand Cup, but never met head-to-head. Harvard and Cornell both lost in the preliminaries.

Prigmore No. 2

Borger's Bud Abbott shot a 137 to edge Don Prigmore of Pampa by one stroke to win the annual Huber Golf Course Invitational.

Prigmore trailed by two strokes after the first round and could only make up one shot on the leader in yesterday's final round.

Finishing behind Prigmore's 138 were: Elgie Seamster, Borger, 139; Bill Garrett, Amarillo, 142; Joe Gibson, Amarillo, 143; and Cameron Roach, Amarillo, 144.

Fed pushes for wine labeling

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
The federal government is trying to help the growing number of wine drinkers across the country learn more about the beverages they buy.

dict that by 1980, Americans will drink more wine than liquor. Many consumers, however, are confused by the variety of wines available. Government efforts to simplify things by providing more information about the contents of American wines have been under way for some time, but they have bogged down in debate and discussion.

Earlier this month, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms of the Department of the Treasury announced a new set of proposed regulations for labels on U.S.-produced wine and officials say they hope to be able to take some firm action soon.

The new proposals are an outgrowth of 1976 recommendations which were modified after public hearings and comments from consumers and industry spokesmen. Hearings on the latest plan are scheduled in Washington and San Francisco next month.

A key section of the bureau regulations would involve standards for wine which is labeled to show where it comes from. The bureau proposed three nations for individual, named vineyards and specific locations distinguished by a particular geographic feature, known as "viticultural" areas, such as "Napa Valley."

Eighty-five per cent of the grapes used in a wine labeled with a viticultural area and 95 per cent of those in a vineyard-labeled wine would have to come from the place named.

The proposed regulations would set new standards for varietal wines made from specific grape types, requiring that a varietal wine such as cabernet sauvignon derive at least 75 per cent of its volume from the type listed on the label. If more than one grape type is used, the percentage of each would have to be shown.

dominant flavor, would be exempt from this provision. These varietals would be allowed to contain only 51 per cent of the Concord-type grape.)

Wines labeled with a vintage would have to be derived from grapes harvested during the year shown and grown in the labeled area of origin. The bureau rejected an industry proposal to lower from 95 to 75 per cent the volume of grapes used in vintage wine which must come from the labeled area of origin.

Consumer watch

"appellation of origin" designations: the United States, a state or a county. Seventy-five per cent of the grapes used to make wine that listed an appellation of origin would have to come from the place named. The agency also proposed two "controlled appellation" designations.

Rep. Krueger opens campaign for senate

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., was to open a four-day campaign swing across Texas today in his first official day as a candidate for the U.S. Senate.

Krueger officially announced his plans to challenge U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., in 1978 at a Fourth of July picnic here Monday — finally unveiling one of Texas' worst-kept political secrets.

Krueger, a second-term congressman from New Braunfels and former Duke University English literature professor, planned campaign stops in Austin, Dallas and Houston today.

"Let us not overlook the fact that Texas needs more than just a vote in the U.S. Senate," said Krueger, 41, in an indirect slap at Tower. "It needs a voice, one sufficiently free of narrow partisanship and one sufficiently sensitive to the hopes of all the people in Texas to gain a hearing among more members of both political parties both at home and in Washington."

Tower, who has served in the Senate since 1961, has not officially announced for reelection, but most Republican leaders feel he will seek another term.

State Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie, former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough and former senatorial candidate Barefoot Sanders have also been mentioned as possible Democratic challengers in the 1978 primary.

Krueger has been an acknowledged candidate for the senate post since January 1977, but refused to make it official until Monday.

"Our state has not fallen on bad times, rather it is entering the time following fast and uneven growth when its real opportunity to give direction to the nation can be fulfilled," Krueger told the holiday crowd estimated at 4,500.

"Above all, we have a commitment to individual liberty. That is why millions of people in other countries would give anything to live here and it is why, even amid discouragement, we don't want to leave," he added.

Krueger, a close ally of Texas oil and gas interests, has been a sponsor of measures in Congress that would gradually deregulate the wellhead price of new natural gas.

He also called Monday for a balanced national budget, expanded education for young and old Americans and a strengthening of agriculture by enlarging export opportunities.

Krueger, a bachelor, holds a Ph.D. from England's Oxford University.
