Fifty years ago Saturday Charles A. Lindbergh set his 2,100-pound single engine Ryan monoplane down in Paris, marking the first nonstop solo flight across the Atlantic which began May 20, 1927 and ended 33½ hours later. The flight won Lindbergh the worship of many throughout the world and a $25,000 prize donated by a French industrialist. The anniversary prompted observations in the United States and France. St. Louis, which donated the money for "The Spirit of St. Louis," kicked off a three-day celebration today with the takeoff of a near-replica of the monoplane. Anne Morrow Lindbergh, widow of the aviator, will be honored in New York. The French government will lay a wreath at the spot where Lindbergh landed at Orley field in Paris and will issue a commemorative stamp in his honor. The original plane hangs in the National Air and Space Museum in Washington as part of the Smithsonian Institution. Pictures and story appear on page 7. (AP Newsfeatures photo)

Gen. Hershey dies at 83

ANGOLA, Ind. (AP) — Gen. Lewis Blaine Hershey, who supervised the draft of 14.5 million Americans in three wars before retiring as the oldest military man on active duty, died today in his hometown of Angola in northeastern Indiana. He was 83.

Hershey died in his sleep at a motel where he had spent the night. Steuben County Sheriff Paul Gordon said he was to have attended graduation exercises Saturday at his alma mater, Tri-State University, where a memorial to him is being created.

Gordon said Hershey was found in bed about 7:15 a.m. EST by his son, Col. Gilbert Hershey, who was staying in the same room. Hershey died sometime after 4 a.m., the sheriff said.

Gordon said the body was being flown to Ft. Benjamin Harrison at Indianapolis, where an autopsy was scheduled at the son's request to determine cause of death. The body then will be flown to Washington for funeral services at Bethesda, Md., and burial at Arlington National Cemetery.

From 1941 to 1970, six presidents signed the "Greetings" received by every draftee, but it was always Hershey — as director of Selective Service — who sent the letters.

He retired in 1973 at age 79 — the oldest military man on active duty.

The general had been ill in recent months and was hospitalized at Walter Reed Army Hospital for some time after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage on Feb. 20.

While he was working hard, he seemed to be doing all right," Mrs. Hershey said while her husband was in the hospital. "It seems when they have to quit the things they have been doing for many years, they just fold up."

Mrs. Hershey, 84, died recently.

Hershey was eased out as draft director in 1970 under the pressure of antidraft forces and the changing times. He became then-President Richard M. Nixon's adviser on manpower mobilization, stepping down from that post in 1973.

Despite his age and near-blindness, Hershey was not one to resign gracefully, saying later, "I would have felt I was running away."

His job as draft director was enough to drain the nerves of a paratrooper. "You don't know what pressure is," he once snapped at critics who had accused him of partiality. "I've seen experts in the pressure business."

He was proud that his Selective Service System had performed without a taint of scandal its delicate, unpopular task of deciding who must serve.

He let criticism and pressure bounce off.

But the antidraft protests of the Vietnam war finally pierced his armor. To Hershey, an attack on the draft was a direct attack on national security, and violent protesters were "enemies of the United States or stooges for the enemies of the United States."

On Oct. 26, 1967, he urged his 4,087 local draft boards — he could not order them — to reclassify and draft demonstrators who violate the law.

Critics charged him with using the draft to punish the dissent, and the Supreme Court eventually voided the regulation which underlay his "personal letter."

Hershey was out of tune, as well, with the view of President Richard M. Nixon who wanted to institute a draft-by-lottery and who foresaw eventual replacement of the draft with an all-volunteer army.

General recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — On orders from a displeased President Carter, the third-ranking U.S. Army general in Korea is flying here for a face-to-face White House confrontation triggered by his public criticism of Carter's plan to withdraw American ground forces from South Korea.

At issue is Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub's public statement that adherence to Carter's plan for withdrawing U.S. ground forces from South Korea over a period of four to five years "will lead to war."

In an interview with CBS News' broadcast today, Singlaub was quoted today as saying he was not sorry for anything he said. However, he also was quoted as saying he was baffled by the recall order, had not meant to undercut the President's Korean policy and would apologize to Carter for all the disturbance he has caused.

Singlaub commented to CBS reporter Melinda Nix on a flight from Seoul to Tokyo

He was quoted as saying he only wanted to offer the opinion of someone who was close to the situation. He added that he would faithfully execute the President's policy, whatever it is decided, and just thought he was doing his duty as a good soldier.

Singlaub was to arrive in Washington today, but White House officials said Thursday they did not know if Carter would see the general Saturday or make him cool his heels until Monday.

The 55-year-old Singlaub, chief of staff of the United Nations Command in Korea, was believed to be the first high-ranking officer called home from overseas by a President since Harry S. Truman recalled Gen. Douglas MacArthur from Korea, during the war there, in 1951.

Although Carter spokesman Rex Granum declined Thursday to say what the President has in mind for Singlaub, another White House official said, when asked if the President was displeased.

"He wasn't happy. Here you have a general making a policy statement when he (Carter) is the commander in chief."

Another Carter aide suggested you could guess the President's reaction "toward one who said something like that" by keeping in mind the fact that Carter once was a professional Navy officer.

The quick White House reaction was dramatized by the speed of his recall. A Pentagon spokesman said Singlaub received, through the chain of command, his order from Carter by 10 a.m. Washington time Thursday — the same day the general's comments were published.

The general boarded a commercial airliner in Seoul on Thursday night for the long flight home.

The Pentagon said it was not known if Singlaub would return to his Korean assignment.

Food prices take giant step upward

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another big jump in the cost of food pushed consumer prices up eight-tenths of 1 per cent in April, the third big monthly rise in consumer prices this year, the government reported today.

Food prices rose 1.5 per cent during the month, more than twice the March increase of six-tenths of 1 per cent. A major cause of the food price rise was the 13.1 per cent increase in the price of ground coffee, the government said.

The April increase in consumer prices, equivalent to an annual rate of nearly 10 per cent, showed inflation will continue to be a major economic problem for the Carter administration in the months ahead.

However, administration economists remain confident that spiraling food costs will slow down later this year, easing the over-all pressure on consumers' pocketbooks.

The Labor Department said its consumer price index for April stood at 179.6 of the 1967 average of 100, meaning that goods priced at $100 10 years ago cost $179.60 last month.

Consumer prices last month were 6.8 per cent higher than in April of 1976.

The April surge in consumer prices followed a six-tenths of 1 per cent gain in March, when food prices also increased by six-tenths of 1 per cent. The April increase put the price rises back at the worrisome levels of February when they rose 1 per cent and January when they rose eight-tenths of 1 per cent. For the year, consumer prices have increased 3.2 per cent.

But the Labor Department saw some good news in the report. It said that excluding food and energy items, prices rose six-tenths of 1 per cent in April, about the same as in February and March and less than in January.

In addition, commodities prices other than food increased four-tenths of 1 per cent, matching the March figures and considered by economists to be an acceptable increase.

Economists look to prices of nonfood commodities for evidence of the underlying rate of inflation in the economy, since food prices are volatile and subject to wide swings from month to month.

'Let us sing together'

Seven hundred young voices will mesh tonight as all school choirs will present the Spring Festival at 8 p.m. in the High School Field House. One of the 700 will be April Roan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denny Roan, 205 Miami St. She sings with Sue Higdon's middle school choir. Other directors for the free concert will be John Woickowski, Louise Richardson, Elena Donald, Hester Branham, Eloise Lane, Missy Pirkle, Edith Sayles, Pat Surface and Wathena Watt. All 700 voices will sing "Let Us Now Praise Famous Men" and "Fanfare for a Festival." Other numbers will include "The Entertainer," "Jambalaya," "No One's Perfect," "Sneaky Snake," and "Love Will Keep Us Together."

Senators delay school debate

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Crucial debate on the controversial subjects of public school financing and medical malpractice insurance was delayed today as end-of-session pressures built in both houses.

At the request of Sen. A.M. Aikin, D-Paris, debate on the $820 million public school financing bill that includes $335 million for school teachers was postponed until the afternoon.

Aikin called for a public hearing near noon "to explain just what is in this bill voted out of committee yesterday and put all these rumors and gossip to rest."

In an unusual action, Aikin spoke directly to crowds of schools administrators and teachers in the spectators gallery, inviting them to a public discussion of the new bill.

In the House debate on a bill continuing stop-gap measures to protect Texas doctors in case efforts to write a compromise medical malpractice insurance bill fail was delayed until 2 p.m.

Also up for action was an oral confessions bill that touched off fiery oratory Thursday when it won preliminary House approval.

The malpractice bills continue the risk-sharing pool, or Joint Underwriting Association, for doctors who can't obtain coverage on their own, retain State Insurance Board power to veto rates; and give patients three years from the date of an injury or one year from its discovery to sue their doctors.

House-Senate negotiations over a bill providing permanent malpractice legislation are at a stalemate.

The oral confessions bill would require that a defendant's statement be tape recorded and include his answers to the usual warning of his right to silence and counsel. Prosecutors would have to prove the tape was not tampered with.

Before it won tentative approval Thursday, the bill was blasted as an attempt to impair defendants' rights and praised as an effort to protect them.

"If you had a choice of reading a written confession or hearing a recorded confession, which do you think would more accurately reflect whether it was taken under duress?" asked Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas.

"There is no question but a recorded confession would be preferable. You could hear the whops," said Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, a co-sponsor of the bill.

But Rep. Ruben Torres, D-Brownsville, and several others said they feared manipulation of tapes, and some referred to Watergate.

The House passed, 64-63, and sent to the Senate a bill relaxing state regulation of child care facilities operated in the name of religion. Sponsors accepted an amendment that would leave the facilities under welfare department regulations that govern physical health and safety, children's personnel effects, parental visits and staff-child ratios.

But there would be no license that the department could take away in order to put a child care facility out of business.

Rep. Dave Allred, D-Wichita Falls, said church-related facilities include some that are full-time homes for emotionally disturbed or wayward youngsters, such as those operated by evangelist Lester Roloff.

"These are high-risk kids who need special care. What you could have is unskilled staff dealing with a bunch of disturbed kids and packing them into small rooms because it is cheaper," Allred said.

But sponsor Kenneth Vaughan, D-Garland, said the real issue was separation of church and state.

"The state should stay out of the churches so we can raise our children according to our own beliefs," he said.

Legislative action Thursday passed and sent to Gov. Dolph Briscoe's desk bills that would: —Raise maximum unemployment compensation benefits from $63 to $84 per week and bringing Texas into compliance with new federal laws. Failure to do so would have cost employers about $600 million a year in penalties.

—Require men and women in families receiving child welfare to register with the Texas Employment Commission and accept suitable jobs if offered. Mothers with pre-school children would not be affected.

—Authorize a $50 million prison hospital in Galveston that also would serve as a teaching hospital for the University of Texas Medical Branch there.

—Impose added record-keeping requirements on salvage yards and require them to admit police officers for inventories and inspections. Sponsors said it would be a weapon against organized car thieves.

—Establish a state program of financial aid to hemophiliacs, whose requirements for whole blood sometime strain their families' budgets to the breaking point.

House members passed and sent to the Senate — where only 10 days remain for action — bills that would:

—Allow schools to charge pupils fees for such things as driver education and band uniform upkeep but prohibit them for workbooks, lab equipment, field trips and other essentials.

Taxation will make it worse

President Carter looked into his crystal ball at the dark clouds of an energy doomsday.

He asked the people to make sacrifices and to support his painful, unpopular programs to conserve energy because the alternative may be a national catastrophe.

With the exception of preventing war, Carter said in his television address, this is the greatest challenge our country will face during our lifetime. The energy crisis has not yet overwhelmed us, but it will if we do not act quickly.

Once again, the man is crying wolf. This time it is a different man and a different wolf. But the message is the same.

Last time, it was President Ford trying to ride the fear of swine flu back into the White House. He might have made it if there hadn't been so many fouroops along the way.

In the meantime, has anyone seen a case of swine flu? How many millions of dollars went down the tube on that outing?

Of course there is an energy shortage. That much was proved last winter when homes in the East went cold and industries saw their machines coast to a shutdown. The problem is real and it is perplexing. It will become more real and it will become more perplexing.

People simply don't believe what high officials tell them anymore.

They will believe it when they see their gasoline taxed inordinately and their cars bearing a load that even big engines have difficulty pulling.

Jimmy Carter says that the only way out is through government regulation.

We say that is the worst way possible.

If government would release its death-like grip on private initiative so it could explore and experiment and work on the problem of energy, unhampered by government, it wouldn't be necessary for presidents to go to the people with threats of things to come.

The people of the United States have a history of doing what is necessary in time of crisis. They will give in and give up necessities if need be; they will put away and put back, they will deny themselves pleasures — if they know what the problem is and they think that their actions are necessary.

But when their leaders turn from the carrot to the stick, Americans begin to stiffen their backs. We predict that Mr. Carter will find a program of taxation, to "save energy," one of the most difficult jobs he ever cut out for himself.

Moreover, the more he succeeds in this respect, the more he will fail in solving the energy problem. For taxes, rather than encouraging increased production (the obvious answer), inhibit it instead.

But before you sign these financial obligation forms, Mr. Hartley, ask yourself if you're really worth it'

Junior high schools unneeded

By DR. MAX RAFFERTY

An editorial from the Billings (Mont.) Gazette asks an old, old question:

"Do junior high schools really do anybody any good?"

They've been with us for more than half a century now. The theory behind the whole billion-dollar junior high school buildup has always been this:

In a typical four-year high school there is such a vast difference between the maturity, the needs and the interests of 17-year-old seniors and those of 14-year-old freshmen that a "middle school" — usually for children between 12 and 15 — would do a far better job of educating them.

The Gazette editorial attacks this entire assumption. Commenting on an impending effort by the Billings school board to get taxpayer approval of a new junior high school building, the paper had this to say:

"We don't question the need for additional classroom space in a rapidly growing area. What we do question is the advisability of erecting another monument to a disastrous sector of the educational process. That's what junior highs are — an educational concept that failed."

I've administered several junior highs in my time, and I'll go along with the editorial's thesis at least part of the way. I have seen no evidence, statistical or otherwise, that senior high school students who have gone through junior high do any better scholastically than do those who went through eight straight years of elementary school. In addition, I know of no research findings which point to greater success in college by junior high schoolers.

On the other hand, I haven't been made aware of any negative correlations, either. Ex-junior high students don't seem to have been adversely affected by their experience. In short, junior high does about as well as any other instructional and administrative contrivance these days. Which is to say, poorly.

And that's the point I wish the editorial had zeroed in on. Whether it's an eight-year elementary school or a two- or three-year junior high school or a three- or four-year senior high school, if the curriculum is Mickey Mouse and if the teachers are concentrating on "sharing" and "relevance" and "group interaction" instead of on organized, disciplined learning of specific subject matter, then the graduates of the system are going to be shortchanged and miseducated. The grade level grouping setup will be largely irrelevant.

I'll agree that the junior high schools have "failed." But so have the elementary schools and the senior high schools, pretty much across the land and with some honorable and shining exceptions. What we have to do now as a people is to change completely the current concept of American education as it is defined by the educationists.

The Gazette, of course, is saying that it's useless to spend money on a new junior high when no one can demonstrate

Battin' around

Reputation is a valuable asset

By C.R. BATTEN

The popular wisdom of today seems to hold that a person who manufactures or sells a product cannot tell the truth about that product, or the consultant hired by a corporation is nothing but a paid liar who is hired to say whatever the corporation tells him to say.

Such mistrust has led to the belief apparently held by a significant number of people that chemical manufacturers sell pesticides that they know are hazardous to human health even when used according to the directions on the label. They are after all, only interested in short-term profits.

This has led to the introduction of a bill in the California Senate that in itself has a unique contradiction that its promoters probably cannot see. The bill would declare it a conflict of interest for a pesticide sales person to also be licensed as a pest control advisor. If the bill should become law, a chemical pesticide salesman could not longer advise his customer how to use the product he sells.

Yet the same bill authorizes the licensing as pest control advisors of those persons who sell biological pest control agents such as parasites or viruses that apparently is not a conflict of interest.

If such a philosophy were carried to the extreme, one can visualize a salesman prohibited from showing a boy how to use an archery set he has just purchased. The salesman sends his young customer around the corner to the licensed archery instruction bureau for lessons.

At the same time, across the aisle, a person selling a doll to a girl proceeds to show the customer how to change the doll's diapers. This salesperson is a licensed doll-nurse advisor.

One reason such inconsistencies occur is that those who hold them believe that the bow and arrow can be dangerous if improperly used, while the doll is harmless under any circumstances. The chemical pesticides are dangerous if improperly used. The biological control agents are said to be completely safe (though this observer is not prepared to state that they are).

Yet in either case, who knows more about the product than its manufacturer? Who has a greater stake in making sure that the product is used correctly than those who make and sell it?

One of the best explanations of the reasons the maker and sales people of any product must represent their product correctly was written by Alan Greenspan, who was former President Ford's chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors. Greenspan's article "The Assault on Integrity" appeared in the August, 1963 Objectivist Newsletter, and was reprinted in Ayn Rand's Capitalism: The Unknown Ideal.

(New York, The New American Library, 1967).

Greenspan points out that one of the most important assets of every business is its reputation for honest dealings and a quality product. It requires years of excellent performance to build such a reputation, says Greenspan, and so even greater effort is required to maintain it. A company cannot afford to let down its quality standards for one inferior product, or it will lose its reputation.

The incentive that is provided by the need for a good reputation "as a built-in safeguard of a free enterprise system and the only real protection of consumers against business dishonesty," says Greenspan.

The attempt to protect the consumer by force undercuts the value of reputation by placing the reputable company on the same basis as the unknown, the newcomer, or the fly-by-nighter. Greenspan explains: "Government regulations do not eliminate potentially dishonest individuals, but merely make their activities harder to detect or easier to punish."

Cars Without Countries

The automobile business is taking on a distinctly international flavor. The Conference Board points out. One of the most popular small cars sold here, for instance, is designed in Detroit but its motor is made in Germany, its transmission in Great Britain and its electrical system in Canada. The suppliers of these components are all subsidiaries of the U.S. company.

that it is going to do any good. A new senior high is advocated instead. Okay. But remember that merely calling a building either "junior high" or "senior high" will amount to zilch if the philosophy, the teaching methods and the goals of the faculty and the administrators are puerile and sterile.

So I guess if I were a school board member in the year 1977, I wouldn't be building any new junior high schools, in Billings or anywhere else. They are expensive and they don't do anything very extraordinary. But I wouldn't kid myself into thinking that doing in the junior high idea is in itself going to solve the skull-cracking headache of American miseducation.

In Washington

Slow motion study

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — In the Alice-in-Wonderland world of the federal government, no agency is more infamous for mindless ritual, topsy-turvy logic and bizarre reasoning than the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Given that reputation, it should be no surprise that during the past quarter century HEW has doled out hundreds of millions of dollars to the country's educational institutions under a system which it acknowledges to be faulty.

At issue is "accreditation," a murky process which produces an academic "seal of approval" most colleges and universities must have for survival.

More than 75 accrediting organizations exist throughout the nation. Some operate on a regional basis while others concentrate on specialized fields of education such as the teaching of law or medicine.

One indicator of their importance lies in the fact that every major federal aid-to-education law enacted since 1962 has specified that a college or university cannot qualify for government grants, loans or other forms of financial assistance unless it has been accredited.

The inadequacies of accrediting organizations as a screening mechanism for federal largesse were cogently summarized at a 1975 Senate hearing by Terrel H. Bell, then Commissioner of HEW's Office of Education, the government agency which relies most heavily on their findings.

"Accrediting agencies are private, independent, voluntary" groups whose purposes "do not always coincide neatly with the objectives inherent in federal aid to education," he explained.

"They do not view themselves, nor do they function as regulatory bodies. They have no legal authority to require compliance with their standards. They work instead by persuasion in order to maintain understanding and acceptance of their role," Bell added.

Another witness at the same hearing, a representative of the American Bankers Association, was more succinct. He bluntly characterized accrediting procedures as "not too hot."

That testimony persuaded Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., to suggest that HEW might tighten up its procedures by pressing accrediting organizations to undertake in-depth background checks on the operators of profit-making trade schools, to closely examine the financial support of such schools, to verify academic experience claimed by teachers and to conduct unannounced visits at schools.

The "visitation teams" currently conduct on-site evaluations of schools only after giving months of advance notice to those being examined, a practice which prompted one accrediting official to acknowledge that "it is conceivable that an institution does put on its Sunday best... I suspect they do."

Another official even said "we want them to show us their Sunday best" and Bell acknowledged that a school could "gear up and pass muster during accreditation and then lapse back

Percy wrote Bell in February 1976 to propose stiffer accreditation requirements. Almost three months passed until Bell responded with a letter which said although the senator's suggestions "are commendable in spirit, most of them cannot be practically and effectively implemented."

An angry Percy wrote to then-HEW Secretary David Mathews to complain about Bell's "entirely negative attitude." Three more months passed, and late last year HEW took action — by resorting to the most popular of all devices for bureaucratic delay, the study commission.

Early this year, Percy wrote to newly installed HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., who reduced the response time to a mere two-and-a-half months but provided little satisfaction.

The study commission's original timetable called for completion of its "intensive six-month review" several months ago, but Califano reported that its work "is still in progress." Don't hold your breath waiting for either a report from the commission or any dramatic changes from HEW.

Another assault on free trade

The big guns of America protectionism are being lined up to lay down a rolling barrage on foreign trade.

The purpose is to shoot down "cheap" imports and protect the American market for higher priced American products.

Sugar, color television sets, shoes, steel — these are among imports the protectionists would like to shut off. They want the American consumer to pay the price of protecting the American producer, in each case, from competition.

The problem — besides the cost to American consumers — is that in each case the protectionist moves could provoke retaliation abroad. There are protectionists in every country where our exports under-sell the local competition. We dominate world markets in jetliners, computers, construction machinery, mineral mining machinery, communications equipment, medical instruments and many other products. We cannot build a tariff wall around this country that will not impeded trade both ways. It must eventually restrict our exports as it restricts our imports.

President Carter is going to come under great pressure from some industry, from unions and from the Congress to come to the rescue of ailing industries. The political heat could become intense.

Many people supposedly, are firm believers in the virtues of the free market and free trade, but when it comes to their own industry, they want "order and stability and protection" against outside competition.

The president should stand up against selfish pressures of this type and speak for the good of the entire nation. Tariff barriers and import quotas are designed to escalate consumer prices. We don't need them. Free trade is better for everyone in the long run.

The state flower of Oklahoma is the mistletoe.

Your Birthday May 21, 1977

Advancement and a commensurate reward are likely in your chosen area this year if you'll tie up the loose ends. They may seem insignificant, but they're important.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You and an associate are both heavy today on the mental end of the spectrum. Unfortunately, you may both fall short on execution.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're sensible in handling your resources today, there's no reason not to realize a profit. Subdue possible urges to gamble or be extravagant.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Even though you're willing to bend over backward to accommodate friends today, you may not be similarly inclined toward family.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Good intentions must be acted on if anything is to come of them. The longer you tarry, the more reasons you'll find for inaction.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Give freely of your time and advice to friends today, but think twice before granting a loan. Money has ruined more than one close relationship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It's important to live up to your instinct for fair play today. You could have an inclination to take the lion's share for yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's a possibility you could read more into a companion's remark than was intended. Don't stow. Ask the person for clarification.

those you associate with today. If they're productive, you will be too; if they waste time, you'll follow suit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Feb. 19) Shop talk or a recitation of your ambitions won't interest others today. You might as well stow the heavy stuff and have fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Use those resourceful and innovative qualities you abound in at work today. They'll serve far better than mundane methods.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't use any new procedures today unless you know all the details. Operating on incomplete information could bring about losses.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your ideas on how to balance the budget are very clever today, but it will take some real selling to convince your mate.

Nixon claims President above the law

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL, Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Nixon's claim that a President is above the law finds no favor with Jimmy Carter and draws no response from Gerald Ford, who pardoned Nixon for all crimes because it was "the right thing to do."

White House reaction to Nixon's statement that "when the president does it, that means it's not illegal" was swift.

"President Carter does not feel that any president has the right to break the law," said spokesman Rex Granum. "He feels very strongly that it is a tragic mistake to follow that philosophy, as past events have shown so dramatically."

Hamilton Jordan, the President's chief aide, said "if we haven't learned from Watergate that the president and the people around him are not above the law, then we've learned nothing."

And Ford, here Thursday for a Republican fund-raiser, said: "As far as any questions about Mr. Nixon are concerned, his words speak for themselves."

Throughout the 90-minute program, third in a five-part paid-for television series with David Frost, Nixon defended his actions in the Vietnam war and said that without division at home "the war would have been ended one to two years earlier."

He called Pentagon Papers leaker Daniel Ellsberg a "punk"; referred to the "pipsqueak Watergate thing"; labeled Democratic hawk-turned-doves as hypocrites, and said he cracked down on dissidents to speed the end of the war.

He admitted to having paranoia about his critics, "but paranoia for peace isn't that bad."

And he said bitterly that he and his wife "were never invited to the White House, to a dinner or to a lunch" by the Kennedys or the Johnsons in the eight years of their administrations.

During their discussion of that dissent, Frost brought up Nixon's approval of the so-called Huston plan calling for use of wiretappings, burglaries, mail openings and infiltration of anti-war groups.

"Wouldn't it have been better here though, to have done what you were going to do legally, rather than doing something that was illegal... rather than adding another crime to the list?" Frost asked.

"The proposition you've just stated in theory is perfect," Nixon said. "In practice, it just won't work."

Frost suggested Nixon was saying in certain situations "the president can decide that it's in the best interests of the nation... to do something illegal."

Nixon: Well, when the President does it, that means that it is not illegal.
Frost: By definition?
Nixon: Exactly. Exactly. If

the president... approves something, approves an action, because of the national security or in this case because of a threat to internal peace and order of significant magnitude, then the president's decision in that instance is one that enables those who carry it out, to carry it out without violating a law. Otherwise, they're in an impossible decision."

White House spokesman Granum said Carter feels "there are adequate judicial means to prevent danger to the country."

Nixon's belief that the presidency bestows a legal umbrella over his actions runs counter to court decisions and to the findings of the House committee that recommended his impeachment.

The Supreme Court, in ordering Nixon to release his White House tapes — the action that speeded his resignation in 1974 — said in no sense is a president "above the law." Aides on trial for Watergate abuses were not permitted to use presidential sanction as a defense.

The House Judiciary Committee determined Nixon had committed "high crimes and misdemeanors," including abuse of his presidential powers and not seeing that the laws were faithfully executed.

And Ford said on Sept. 8, 1974, that Nixon had "become liable to possible indictment and trial." The pardon "for all offenses against the United States," he said, was to spare Nixon further punishment and degradation.

"What's the dividing line between the burglar not being liable to criminal prosecution, and the murderer?" Frost asked Nixon.

"There are degrees, there are nuances which are difficult to explain," Nixon replied.

The discussion turned to the White House dinners, so-named because their duty was to plug leaks. Agents of the unit broke into a psychiatrist's office looking for dirt on Ellsberg.

Nixon couldn't recall John Ehrlichman telling him E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy had to go to California to find information.

"He may well have," said Nixon. "And if he had, I would have said 'go right ahead.' But, I recall no conversation whatever with Ehrlichman about their going to California for the purpose of what was called a 'covert operation' or for the purpose of determining whether Ellsberg's psychiatrist might furnish information."

to do us in." "Isn't there in that whole conversation...?" Frost began.

Helpfully, Nixon finished the question: "a paranoid attitude?"

Then he launched into the slights he suffered by not being invited to the White House in the Kennedy-Johnson years. "I remember Rose Mary Woods, my secretary who made up the invitation lists, went out of her mind when I put Hubert Humphrey on the list for White House dinners," Nixon said.

"What I'm trying to tell you that this whole business of 'am I paranoid about hating people and trying to do them in?' And the answer is: at times yes."

He recalled that after the New York Times in May 1969 revealed that U.S. planes were bombing Cambodia, he suggested to Henry A. Kissinger that someone on Kissinger's staff might have leaked the information.

"And Henry said 'I will destroy them," said Nixon. "Henry's not a mean man... We felt this way because people on the other side were hypocritical, they were sanctimonious and they were not serving the best interests of the country... 'Call it paranoia, but paranoia for peace isn't that bad.'"

Nixon promised $5 billion to Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressman who disclosed Richard Nixon's secret agreement to give up to $5 billion in U.S. aid to North Vietnam says the promise is not binding on the current administration.

Rep. Lester L. Wolff, D-N.Y., said the agreement is "an historical document, null and void." His opinion is shared by Nixon, and more importantly by President Carter, who has said he does not feel bound by any of Nixon's commitments.

Details of the four-year-old agreement were revealed officially for the first time Thursday in a previously classified document released first by the State Department and then by Wolff, who also made public a recent letter from Nixon explaining his views on the subject.

While asserting that the documents proved Nixon and senior State Department officials "consistently misled" Congress and the public about the aid agreement, Wolff said the disclosure should not give the Vietnamese any "false hopes" that the aid is forthcoming.

"As has been firmly indicated by the Carter administration, by the Congress and by Mr. Nixon, events of the past have no bearing on any future agreements which may be negotiated. The Paris peace accords have been breached and therefore voided by the actions of all signatories," Wolff said.

The declassified paper defining the agreement was a Feb. 1, 1973, letter from Nixon to North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong, declaring that under the peace pact signed three days earlier, the United States would contribute about $3.5 billion in postwar reconstruction aid to his regime "without any political conditions." It promised another $1 billion to $1.5 billion in other forms of aid.

Hanoi defeated the Saigon regime in 1975 and since then has demanded fulfillment of the Nixon pledge before restoring relations or giving further data on Americans missing in Indochina.

U.S. officials have always denied any secret aid promise was ever made. Wolff recalled that former secretaries of state Henry Kissinger and William P. Rogers did so in 1973, and Undersecretary of State Philip A. Habib repeated the denial in House testimony a year ago.

Wolff said he wanted to ask those individuals about their denials again, and also has some "unanswered questions" for Nixon. In a letter from San Clemente dated last Saturday, Nixon did not confirm or deny any "secret" agreement for aid, but he said congressional leaders were thoroughly briefed on the peace pact, including aid proposals, at the time the agreement was signed.

And he recalled that his letter to Dong noted that all terms of the agreement would be carried out according to each country's "constitutional provisions," which in the case of the United States meant the approval of Congress.

Nixon added that inasmuch as the Vietnamese broke the agreement by refusing to pull troops out of Cambodia and Laos and by invading South Vietnam in 1975, "there is no commitment of any kind, moral or legal, to provide aid to the Hanoi government."

Ky blames Watergate on fall of South Vietnam

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former South Vietnam Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky blames Watergate for his nation's fall, saying that a strong Richard Nixon would never have let South Vietnam collapse.

Ky, now operating a liquor store-delicatessen in suburban Norwalk, viewed former President Nixon's televised interview with David Frost Thursday night and said, "I don't want to blame Mr. Nixon."

"If Nixon had stayed in, and with the power of the United States President intact, he could have put a lot of pressure on the Communists to respect the treaty. What happened was Watergate, and the power of the American President was no more."

By the time Ford came to power, Ky said, "He had another situation on his mind. Ford had nothing to gain by sticking to the (South) Vietnamese."

Ky said that what Nixon claimed to be his "solution" to the war — the Vietnamization program — was in fact a policy that Ky himself thought of and Nixon implemented at his suggestion.

"I personally convinced them (Nixon and Pentagon staff leaders) to accept the Vietnamization plan, to pull out and let Vietnamese fight the war," Ky said.

Ky agreed with Nixon's assessment of the 1970 invasion of Cambodia as being necessary, but said Nixon was wrong in calling it "one of the most effective operations of the war."

"It was successful, but only halfway," said Ky, who claimed to have crossed the Cambodian border himself at the time. He said there were three divisions of North Vietnamese across the Cambodian border at the time, and while the U.S.-South Vietnamese offensive was successful in dispersing part of the sanctuary, it failed by stopping short of wiping out all three divisions.

Nixon, while saying Presidents Kennedy and Johnson were right in entering Vietnam, criticized their conduct of the war, and Ky agreed.

"I told President Johnson that the best way to fight the war is to have Vietnamese fight the war themselves, to defend themselves," Ky said. "They didn't listen to me."

Golden Meadow, La., told rescuers that his boat went down Tuesday night and that there was an unidentified woman aboard.

"He also said he had been adrift for 17 days," the Coast Guard spokesman said. "Some questions he answered succinctly; others he didn't seem to understand. I guess he could be described as mildly delirious."

Barthelemy said he was asleep, nude, when Hebert came into his compartment and told him the "Cleo C" was sinking. He said he jumped overboard without getting anything to wear.

Man lives 8 days on raft

CAMERON, La. (AP) — Cooked by the sun and badly dehydrated, crewboat skipper Danny M. Barthelemy, 24, was reported in guarded condition after what he said was an eight-day ordeal in an open life raft on the Gulf of Mexico.

Still missing Thursday night was Carlton Hebert of Galliano, La., the other member of the crew of the 80-foot crewboat "Cleo C."

Barthelemy's life raft was spotted by an oil company helicopter Thursday, 20 miles southeast of here and about 100 miles from the area in which the "Cleo C" was thought to be operating, a spokesman for the Coast Guard said.

The Coast Guard said the "Cleo C" was reported missing Thursday. Barthelemy, from Bridge run over by troubled waters

Mike Swindle, son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Swindle of Miami, looks over the hand rail of the recently completed but more recently abused county footbridge over the normally dry but more recently raging Coon Holler Creek. Three miles upstream.

an earthen stock tank dam, called upon by recent downpours to hold back more water than ever before, cracked and sagged under the pressure. A dozer was put into play Wednesday evening to open up a spillway.

Flooded pond threatens Miami

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff
An earthen stock pond dam built in 1961 on the Elmo Gill Ranch developed a couple of dangerous looking dips along its top Wednesday and some deep cracks appeared.
Recent rains have swelled the pond to lake-like proportions, creating a source of concern for Miami residents located three miles downstream from the dam.
Folks in town with homes and trailer homes located alongside Coon Holler Creek became worried about the dam's condition Wednesday and many of them left their homes.
Terry Gill, who manages the ranch, and several other men from the Miami area moved a caterpillar up to the lake and bladed out a spillway to relieve pressure on the dam.

The lake contains a draw down pipe, but it could not keep up with the large volume of water that poured in behind the dam as a result of more than seven inches of rain in the area on Monday and Tuesday nights.
By Thursday afternoon the water level had dropped four feet in the lake and Dee Passmore, district conservationist in Roberts County said, "It should hold. We got another eight-tenths of an inch of rain this morning and it didn't cause any problem."
Passmore said that the design of the pond was based on 50-year frequency rainfalls, and he indicated that the recent rains have surpassed that.
"I don't remember hearing of anything quite like this," he said.

"No, not day after day like this," Terry Gill added. "That pond's never been within 15 feet of where it is now."
With skies cleared enough to let the sunshine through, the countryside greened beyond normal, and the stream of water spilling over the spillway and down the creek through the canyon, the view from the Gill Lake was one of beauty.
But sunny Thursday afternoon was in contrast to stormy Tuesday evening when rain in the Miami area fell so fast that runoff in the three miles between the dam and town caused Coon Holler Creek, dry most of the year, to become a raging river.

The basement of one creekside home filled with water. Another homeowner, with no basement, had carpeting and furniture damaged when the water rose above his floor level.
And the county footbridge in city-county park, completed only a week earlier and solidly secured with cables and concrete, collapsed under the onrush. Cables snapped and the concrete anchors were uprooted.

Ronnie Gill, Roberts County Commissioner of Precinct 2, said that the bridge would be repaired "in time for the Cow Calling."

The World Championship Cow Calling Contest is set for June 3 and 4. Gill said, "if the Good Lord's willin' and the creek don't rise...again."

Talks with Vorster fail

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — U.S. Vice President Walter F. Mondale and South African Prime Minister John Vorster said today they had failed to agree on U.S. efforts to change South Africa's race segregation policies.
Mondale told a news conference that Vorster agreed in two days of talks here to help achieve black rule in Namibia and Rhodesia, but had stubbornly defended his government's policy of apartheid.
"We hope the South Africans will not rely on any illusions that the U.S. will in the end intervene to save South Africa from the policies it is pursuing," Mondale said, "for we will not do so."
Vorster, in a news conference immediately following that of Mondale, said there was a "vital difference" in the U.S. and South African positions.

He claimed the United States wants to equate the position of the American Negro with that of the South African black man and said, "This is where the difference comes in."
Vorster said the black South Africans were never slaves and have never been deprived of their nationality. He claimed blacks in his country have their own government and the right to vote.
Critics of South Africa dispute that blacks enjoy rights and opportunities comparable to that of whites.
Mondale said, "I think the message is now clear to the South African government. They know that we believe that, perpetuating an unjust system is the surest incentive to increase Soviet influence and even racial war, but quite apart from that, is unjustified on its own grounds."

He said he hoped South Africa would consider the American experience with civil rights and reassess its apartheid policy of racial segregation.
"But I cannot rule out the possibility," Mondale said, "that the South African government will not change, that our paths will diverge and our policies come into conflict should the South African government so decide."

McManus found guilty in slaying of couple

HOUSTON (AP) — A state district court jury which convicted Vernon McManus of capital murder in the slaying of a Baytown couple now must decide whether he is assessed the death penalty or life imprisonment.
McManus could receive the death penalty if the jury determines he intentionally killed the couple and if it decides there is a possibility he could commit future acts of violence. The minimum sentence is life in prison.
The jury of nine men and three women returned the verdict Thursday 24 hours after receiving the case and after 10 hours of deliberations.
McManus was accused of conspiring to kill Paul Cantrell, an electrical contractor, and his wife, Mary, for a share of their estate and insurance money. Their slashed bodies were found last July 25 in their Baytown home.
McManus, 34, a former high school football star and later an assistant football coach at Lamar University in Beaumont, slumped into his chair as the verdict was read in State District Judge I. D. McMaster's court. He shook his head in denial.

The state sought to prove that McManus conspired with Paula Cantrell Derese, 27, the only child of the slain couple, to commit the murders.
Mrs. Derese was originally charged with capital murder but pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of murder and agreed to testify for the prosecution. She spent three days on the witness stand. She is to be sentenced later.
McManus did not testify and his lawyers called no witnesses. The state presented 87 exhibits and called 27 witnesses during the nearly nine weeks of jury selection and testimony.

Defense lawyers Mark Vela and Don Smith said they would appeal.
"We are disappointed," Smith said.
Mrs. Derese testified her parents had threatened to take her son, Chad, 3, away from her. She testified that McManus told her he knew how to take care of the problem. She said she did not take him seriously at first but he later told her he and two men he did not identify had killed her parents.

Firemen answer four calls here

Units of the Pampa Fire Department responded to four calls since Tuesday.
A car fire was reported Tuesday in the 100 block of N. Cuyler. A fire department spokesman said the car sustained minor damage in the fire that was believed caused by a flooded carburetor.
Firefighters went to Heard and Jones Drug Store, 114 N. Cuyler, at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday. A ballast on a light had shorted out, causing smoke damage to the light fixture.
Lint in a clothes dryer is believed to be the cause of a fire at 601 Sloan. The spokesman said the property, which belongs to Travis Gilbert, sustained no damage.
A electric blanket set a mattress and bedding on fire at 2713 Navajo at 12:50 a.m. today. There was light smoke damage to the bedding.

Breakthrough in SALT reported

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A breakthrough is reported in the nuclear arms talks between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, and a compromise formula has been referred to Moscow.
U.S. and Soviet negotiators indicated they should know today or Saturday whether the two superpowers are going to be able to agree on their second treaty — SALT II — to limit or reduce their arsenals of long-range nuclear weapons.

Informed sources said the compromise formula, reached in a five-hour meeting Thursday and subject to approval by President Carter and the Kremlin, was a blend of a Russian proposal and the U.S. package rejected by Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev last March.
The sources gave this outline of the compromise:

1. Each government would make a modest reduction in its nuclear arsenal and would agree to hold another round of talks on further weapons cuts.
2. Development of the U.S. cruise missile would be limited, and restrictions would be put on where the Soviets could base their Backfire bomber.
The Backfire and the cruise have been the chief obstacles to agreement in negotiations for the past two years to incorporate the 1974 Vladivostok agreement by President Ford and Brezhnev into a treaty. It provided for each nation to be limited to 2,400 long-range bombers and intercontinental missiles. But the two governments could not agree whether the new Soviet bomber and the new American missile should be included in these ceilings.
Gromyko told reporters the situation there "is not normal" and is "potentially dangerous," but Vance said the region "has continued dangerous for a long while" before the Likud victory.

Watkins quits WT post

CANYON, Tex. (AP) — A search is expected to begin soon to find a successor to Dr. Lloyd Watkins, the president of West Texas State University, who announced his resignation to accept the same post with Illinois State University at Normal.
Dr. Watkins, 48, said he will assume his position at Normal July 15.
WTSU Regent James Lovell of Dumas said the school's board of regents will name a search committee to find a successor to Dr. Watkins, who has served as president of WTSU since 1973.

Lovell said he expected the search for a replacement for the $37,500 post to take about six months.
Dr. Watkins replaces Dr. Jean Budig at the Illinois university.

Bake, garage sale to raise money for boy

Contributions for the Russell Hughes Fund will be sought during a two-day bake and garage sale Saturday and Sunday at 916 Christine.
Hughes, 13, was burned Saturday in an explosion at his home west of Pampa. He was flown to the Shrine Burn Institute in Galveston.
A fund to benefit the family has been established at the First National Bank and donations may be turned over to Glenda Anderson.
Mr. and Mrs. B.P. (Pete) Hughes, parents of the injured boy, did not have insurance on their home which sustained heavy damage in the fire.

Arson suspected at Wilson

Arson is suspected in a fire at Wilson Elementary School, 801 E. Browning, Thursday night.
A Pampa Fire Department spokesman said this morning an alarm was turned in at 9:30 p.m. Thursday, adding that the fire, which caused light smoke damage, appeared to have been set.
Charlene Frazier, Wilson Elementary School secretary, said the fire started in the gymnasium in a stairwell to the back of the stage.
"Maintenance men are over here now working on it," Ms. Frazier said. "I have been into the gymnasium and you can definitely smell smoke."
The secretary added that she was told the fire report "was called in by some kids."

Larry Smith fined

Larry Smith, 26, of Pampa, entered a plea of guilty Thursday in 31st District Court to a charge of delivery of a controlled substance (amphetamines).
Judge Grainger McIlhenny sentenced Smith to four years adult probation and fined him $350.
In other 31st District proceedings Thursday, Carl Wayne Dunn, 20, of Pampa pleaded guilty to a burglary charge and was sentenced to three years in the Texas Department of Corrections.

The judge considered two other charges pending against Dunn in assessing sentence.
Randy Beck, 22, of Pampa, pleaded guilty to delivery of marijuana, a charge that stems from an incident that occurred Nov. 7, 1975, when a transaction was made with an undercover agent of the Metro Intelligence Unit of Amarillo.
Beck was sentenced to 15 days in county jail, six years probation and $750 fine.

Police report

Police investigated reports of three thefts, three burglaries and two non-injury accidents Thursday.
Bobby Allen Teague of 420 N. Ballard was arrested on a charge of theft in the amount of $5 or less after the manager of the North Ballard Street Ideal store notified officers the subject was observed shoplifting there.
The resident of 408 N. Dwight told police someone took a coil wire from her car parked at the home.
The manager of the Pampa Montgomery Ward store notified police that a chain saw was carried out of the store by two men who did not pay for it.

A report of burglary of an auto was received by police from a resident of 1200 S. Faulkner, who said several items were taken from her car.
Officers investigated a burglary report from 453 Pitts, where a black and white tv was said to be missing.
Another burglary occurred at Mayo Oil Co., where money was missing from a cash register and a candy vending machine.
A Chickasha, Okla. man was turning his vehicle into a driveway at 1300 E. Browning when his car was struck from the rear by another vehicle. A second accident occurred in the 1100 block of Varmon Drive.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Stormy weather revisited Texas during the night but struck considerably lighter blows than during the past several days.
Threatening turbulence caused a tornado watch in a 120-mile-wide corridor through West and North Texas from Big Spring to Ardmore, Okla. It expired before midnight with no report of a twister striking.
Hail the size of golf balls pounded the Rotan area as heavy thunderstorms ranged from Abilene to Sweetwater and Snyder in West Texas.

There were showers and thunderstorms also between Dallas, Denton and Sherman in North Texas, and from nearby Paris into Oklahoma and Arkansas, and in East Texas from around College Station, Lufkin, Palestine and Texarkana into Louisiana.
Rainfall amounts were small in most areas, with the heaviest 1.12 inches at Wimberly in the Hill Country.
More hot and humid weather was promised throughout the state with scattered thunderstorms predicted once more by evening. Early morning temperatures ranged from 51 degrees at Dalhart up to 78 at Brownsville. The warmest spots Thursday at 93 were Midland and Presidio.

National weather

By The Associated Press
Heavy thunderstorms which dumped up to six inches of rain across parts of the south and central Plains had diminished by today, and flash flood watches for parts of western Texas, south central Oklahoma and southeast Nebraska were cancelled.
But a flash flood watch for sections of eastern Kansas and extreme northwest Missouri remained in effect.
In the Oklahoma portions heavy rain, with two to four inches in many sections, and up to six inches in some, fell during the evening. A flash flood warning was posted until after midnight for eight counties.
The strongest thunderstorms at midnight were over southeastern Oklahoma. Other thunderstorm activity covered parts of Indiana, Illinois, Upper Michigan, Ohio, Virginia and the Carolinas. A few dotted eastern Colorado.

Cash taken from store in Lefors

LEFORS — Gray County Sheriff's officers have questioned several suspects in connection with a burglary here Wednesday night.
Deputy Randol Nichols said thieves broke into the Wilmart sometime between 10 p.m. Wednesday and 7 a.m. Thursday.
The burglars kicked in the back door to gain entry and took $2,632.88 in cash and checks "from a hiding place."
The deputy said the case is still under investigation, though no suspects were in custody as of 10:45 a.m. today.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: After years of reading your column you finally pushed the "write" button.

To PUZZLED IN FLORIDA who can't find anyone to do her repairs or remodeling, here are some reasons for the shortage of good professional craftsmen.

Many people have the idea that people who wear work clothes should work for peanuts. I charge $12 per hour and do top-quality work. After I pay the expenses of my truck and tools, license fees, insurance, etc., I'm lucky to have $9 left. And considering the time I spend, without compensation, making up bids, talking to customers and material suppliers, and doing paper work, I might net $7 per hour before taxes for the 2,000 or so hours I spend working hard in a year's time.

People who ask for estimates on remodeling or repair jobs are sometimes slow to make up their minds. They think my time should be free, but they gladly pay $30 to $50 per hour to talk to a doctor, lawyer or accountant.

When people learn to treat professionals in work clothes with as much respect as they treat professionals in suits and ties, good craftsmen will be easier to find.

TIRED OF PEANUTS

DEAR TIRED: Hooray for your side. I couldn't agree more.

DEAR ABBY: My wife's widowed mother has made her home with us for the past 22 years. She was not a built-in babysitter for our children or a servant. (Fortunately we have always had help.)

Lately my mother-in-law has become difficult to live with, and even violent. Her health is failing fast, and she constantly accuses us of trying to do away with her for her "money." (She doesn't have any.)

She has made such a madhouse out of our home that our teenage children can no longer have their friends over. My wife and I have discussed putting her mother in a fine rest home, but my wife's only worry is, "What will people say if I send my own mother away to be cared for by strangers?"

If you have a comment on this, I would like to see it in print.

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR N.: Elderly people who pose such problems in the homes of their children should be cared for in a rest home, if possible, for their own sakes and those of their children. Of all the reasons for refusing to send her, "What will people say?" is by the far the poorest.

DEAR ABBY: I am tall, handsome, intelligent, sincere, divorced, 43 and broke.

I would like to remarry. The woman's age, shape or looks are of no consequence...as long as she's rich.

I hope you'll agree to play matchmaker. And you may publish my real name and address because I am on the level.

HONOLULU

DEAR HON: Sorry but you'll have to find another way to find a rich woman who would marry a man with your qualifications and desire to sell himself to the highest bidder.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My mother recently died at age 64 from hypertensive arteriosclerotic cardiovascular disease. Could you please explain this condition?

As far as we know she had no symptoms. Would this disease have taken a long time to develop? What caused it? What could have been done to prevent it?

DEAR READER — It is always a shock to lose a loved one. If it has to happen, a sudden demise during sleep with no symptoms or disability before that is the best way. You have the satisfaction of knowing that your mother was spared prolonged anxiety and pain that might have accompanied a stroke.

Your mother died of a stroke. High blood pressure increases the speed of changes in the arteries. These changes are the fatty-cholesterol deposits that may suddenly obstruct an artery. If the heart is involved it causes a heart attack and if the artery is to the brain it causes a stroke.

Such events are quite common in our population. As I explain in The Health Letter number 2-5 on strokes, there are about 200,000 such deaths in the United States each year. I am sending you that issue so you can better understand the problem. Others who want more information on strokes and what to do about them can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for this issue.

I want to emphasize to my other readers that this is one reason why there has been a national campaign to find people with high blood pressure and to treat it. Adequate treatment of high blood pressure helps delay or prevent strokes. Even despite treatment the stroke can still occur.

High blood pressure and the changes in the arteries usually do not cause any symptoms. It is a silent disease. Often the first symptom is of a complication such as a heart attack or a stroke.

Diet, weight control, not smoking cigarettes and a sensible exercise program are all important in preventing these common diseases.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was shocked to learn that a baking company is now putting wood cellulose in its bread to increase the fiber content. I had just bought a loaf of the bread before I heard what they were using. I threw the whole loaf in the garbage. I'll be darned if I'll eat wood!

Does wood cellulose have any nutrients? Would prolonged use of such bulk be an irritant to the intestines?

DEAR READER — There are several undigestible fiber sources being used now to make low calorie bread. It won't hurt you. There are lots of undigestible fibers in some of nature's best unadulterated foods.

There are two reasons for doing this. The fiber decreases the calories for those who need to decrease the calorie intake and the fiber may actually help the function of the intestines.

This is really an outgrowth of the observation that cereal fiber found in whole wheat before it is milled and converted to white flour improves bowel function. The colon needs a minimal amount of undigestible fiber to contract and relax normally in performing its function.

There are no nutrients in any of the fibers that we can use. Our body does not break down cellulose, but some animals are able to do this. Cellulose is really a form of carbohydrate and animals who can break it down use it as carbohydrate, just as we use starch.

Polly's pointers

Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns ladies' slacks. Why must the elastic be sewn directly to the casing. It makes it so exasperating and difficult when it is necessary to put in new elastic. I am by no means the only one with this complaint. — ALICE N.

DEAR POLLY — Set aside a special time each day for your "Friendship Hour" when you telephone a shut-in, write a get well card or a long newsy letter to a lonesome person, bake some cookies for an elderly friend or make a personal visit. You will be surprised at what you can accomplish in even 15 minutes set aside for this purpose and it gives you a warm glow for the rest of the day.

When starting a day of cleaning I pick and arrange a bouquet of flowers for the living room before I start and this gives me a lift of spirits and an incentive to clean.

In our church circle we exchange coupons by placing our extra ones in a box and taking out any we can use. Some may use one kind of coffee and some another and so on with dog food, cleaning supplies, etc. None are wasted and the new products are tried. — MRS. A.W.G.N.

Hands hold fascination

By Jean Barnes

Hands hold a special fascination for Jessie Y., a resident of western Missouri. Jessie has been collecting since the early 1940s. "If you like puns you could say I have a 'hand-y' home," she said, her dark eyes sparkling.

Jessie explained that her collection grew to alarming proportions before she really realized that there was no stopping place. "I just kept finding more hands." Friends, knowing her collecting interest have added many to her collection through the years. "Now there are hands all over the place," she said.

Her comfortable brick cottage-style home contains hands of all descriptions — metal, porcelain and glass; Parisian hands, bisque, Worcester, Staffordshire, Bristol, Irish Beleck, engraved crystal, opaque glass, brass, silver, pewter and copper. Even the small bars of soap in her soap dish are molded in the shape of hands.

Hands came in to vogue in the middle of the 19th century, soon after Queen Victoria's hands were modeled by an artist. Although the majority of those marketed were manufactured in ceramic ware, the glass houses of America adapted the hands for a wide selection of household objects.

Thus, Jessie has hands which ornament jewel boxes, ash trays, pin trays, paperweights, match holders, vases, cake plates, bread plates, candy dishes and even a kerosene lamp with a glass base held by a hand.

Business and Professional Women
Special speaker for the Tuesday evening meeting of the Pampa Business and Professional Women's Club at the Pampa Senior Citizens Center was James Barber. His topic was "Rape: a Changing View."

Barber is director of the Pampa Family Service Center located in the Cabot building. He told of changes in social and legal attitudes toward rape victims and discussed problems and characteristics of persons who commit hostile acts. The group was cautioned about reporting prowlers to the police, locking doors and other precautions. In addition he explained the function of the Family Service Center.

Barber transferred to Pampa two months ago from the Child Guidance Center in Corpus Christi. Prior to that he was in Amarillo 14 years. He specialized in psychology for both his bachelor's degree at Texas Tech University and a masters at Texas A&I. Barber was introduced by Lillie Mae Fowler.

Dovye Massie directed a business session when plans were made to charter two buses for a Pampa evening at the musical, "Texas." Alma Ash and Bertha Chisum were appointed to head the reservation committee.

A thank-you letter from the Pampa High School counselors was read expressing appreciation for the club's support of the scholarship program.

Dovie Breeze was appointed to audit the club treasurer's ledger for the 1976-77 club year.

The next meeting will be a dinner at 7 p.m. May 24 at the Pampa Senior Citizens Center.

Alma Ash will install the new officers for 1977-78.

Pampa Summiers Toastmasters Club
The highlight of the May 17th meeting was a debate on "Environmental Impact should dominate any solution to the Energy Crisis."

In the debate the Affirmative Team of Mike Herbert and Art LeClert was judged to have presented a more persuasive position than the Negative Team of Bob Hutton and Jim Olsen. For his part in the debate, Mike Herbert won the Best Speaker Award. Mike Herbert also won the Best Table Topics award for his discussion of the "pop off valves" used in the racing cars in the "Indianapolis 500" Memorial Day Race. Bill Watson won the Best Evaluator Award.

The group meets every Tuesday morning at 6:15 a.m. in the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room, 220 N. Ballard. Art LeClert, president, said that new members are welcome.

Today women constitute more than 40 per cent of the U.S. labor force, yet only 4.7 per cent of the nation's lawyers and only 3.4 per cent of the judges in the State Court system are women, according to the Community Survey on the Status of Women done by the Population Institute.

Four attend Salvation Army camp session

Four delegates from the Pampa Salvation Army are in Midlothian for a three-day camp session at the organization's Camp Hoblitzelle.

The Pampa delegation will include Marie Tennison, Ruth Rawkins, Mollie Hollis and Mrs. Capt. Bodell Heath.

Mrs. Heath said more than 350 women from 36 Texas cities are participating in the Home League Camp, which concludes Sunday.

Activities range from craft classes to dramas, with meetings emphasizing the Home League's four-fold purpose: education, service, fellowship and worship, Mrs. Heath said.

Guest speaker is Mrs. Col. Paul Thronburg, former director of women's services for the corps in Texas.

Barrett names pastor

Barrett M. Greenwood has been named pastor at Barrett Baptist Church, 903 E. Beryl. A graduate of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, he has pastored churches in Oklahoma and Texas. Prior to coming to Pampa, he was pastor of Calvary Hill Baptist Church in Mesquite. The Rev. Greenwood and his wife, Pam, have three children, Gwinn, Toni Dee and Gregory. The family is at home at the church parsonage, 342 Henry. Worship services at Barrett Baptist Church are at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sundays.

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

Allow me to ask you to consider a very vital question. ARE YOU A CHRISTIAN? Will you dare to answer this question?

In everyone's life there comes a time when he separates himself from God through disobedience. This is what Adam and Eve did in Eden. We all become guilty, for "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God" (Rom. 3:23). Whether your sin has been great or small, it brought about your guilt. In common with all mankind you stand in need of salvation. You may say in all sincerity, "I believe in God"; or "I go to church"; or "I am honest, I am a good neighbor." But these are not answers to the question.

No one ever became a Christian accidentally, or without intention of doing so! If you are a member of a fraternal order, you know that to become a member some things were required of you. You also had the desire and the will to act, to go through whatever initiation that order required to become a member of it. You did not do that by accident.

The application of the example is clear. A man has no right to call himself a Christian until he has been properly initiated into that of which Christ is head. The Word declares that He is the head of the body, the church (Eph. 1:22-23). The church is composed of living stones (1 Peter 2:5), or those who have been saved and added by the Lord to the church (Acts 2:47). These are disciples of Christ and such are called Christians.

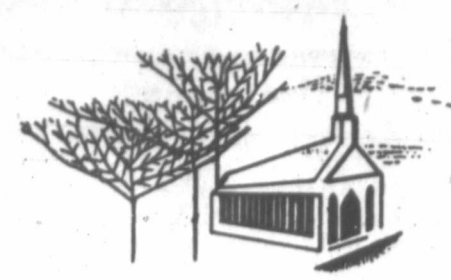

The same things that saves one makes him a member of the church. One is saved by "obeying from the heart the form of doctrine the apostles delivered" (Rom. 6:17). Its commandments require: (1) hearing the gospel (Rom. 10:17); (2) Believing the gospel (Acts 16:31); (3) Repentance (Acts 17:30); (4) a confession of faith in Christ (Rom. 10:9-10); (5) baptism for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38). These acts "initiate" one INTO CHRIST (Rom. 6:3-4; Gal. 3:27); or, into the body, the church (1 Cor. 12:13). If one has so obeyed, he can answer the question in the affirmative and with confidence. Why so? The Bible teaches man WHAT TO DO to become a Christian. A man can know when or if he does it. How do you answer?"

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

GREEN THUMB... is the way of describing those that have a way with plant life. The ones, who are so gifted, will tell you that to be successful with plants, you must see that they have plenty of water. God knows too, that a soul must be watered in order for it to mature and grow.

PARIS, MAY 21, 1927--

American aviator Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Le Bourget today, completing the first solo trans-Atlantic flight.

Where no lone human being has ever ventured

EDITOR'S NOTE — A halfcentury ago, there was a race of sorts among France, Britain and the United States to be first to fly the Atlantic nonstop. The United States, in the name of a man called Lindbergh, won. But all the world benefited, for "The Lone Eagle" and his 33½-hour flight led the way to commercial aviation and the space program.

By SAMUEL G. BLACKMAN
For The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Before the main heavyweight bout at Yankee Stadium, Joe Humphries, the announcer, asked the crowd of 40,000 to rise. Pointing to the sky, he asked everyone to say a prayer "for a boy up there tonight who is carrying the hopes of all trueblooded Americans." A hush fell over the stadium.

At an Iron and Steel Institute banquet in New York City, the toastmaster pointed to the American flag and said: "I am proud to live under that flag. I am thinking of a young American boy who left this morning for Paris with a sandwich in his pocket. May God deliver him safely."

Will Rogers wrote in his daily newspaper column: "No attempt at jokes today. A slim, tall, bashful, smiling American boy is over the middle of the Atlantic Ocean where no lone human being has ever ventured before."

A drawing in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch by Daniel R. Fitzpatrick, which was to win a Pulitzer Prize, showed a tiny plane over a wide sea darkened by a threatening storm.

Indeed there was a little plane. A single-engine Ryan monoplane called "The Spirit of St. Louis." Inside, alone with his thoughts, two canteens of water and five sandwiches, was Charles A. Lindbergh. Age: 25. Occupation: air mail pilot.

He had taken off from Roosevelt Field, N.Y., in the early morning mist of May 20, 1927, clearing a tractor by 10 feet and telephone wires by 20 feet. He landed at Le Bourget Airport in Paris some 3,600 miles and 33½ hours later, the first person to fly the Atlantic nonstop.

But as he flew over England, only a few hours short of his goal, he looked far beyond the Paris landing:

"What limitless possibilities aviation holds when planes can fly nonstop between New York and Paris! The year will surely come when passengers and mail will fly every day from America to Europe... Possibly everyone will travel by air in another 50 years."

Fifty years? That's now. We have gone far beyond Lindbergh's early expectations, not only in conquering the seas, but space as well. John Glenn, the first American to orbit the Earth, said Lindbergh's flight "triggered aviation to what followed — intercontinental travel and the space program. You need a catalyst to start anything. That's what Lindbergh's flight did."

Twelve hours passed from takeoff before Lindbergh, in his words, climbed over the fog, over the sea and into the night. By contrast, Glenn in his Mercury-Friendship 7 was on the dark side of the Earth 45 minutes after an early morning liftoff from Cape Canaveral, Fla., 35 years later.

Michael Collins, commander of Apollo 11 which took Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin to the moon on July 20, 1969, said Lindbergh's flight not only "accelerated interest in aviation around the world" but was "certainly a piece in the jigsaw puzzle which led to the space program."

Collins, now director of the Smithsonian Institution's National Air and Space Museum, was asked if Apollo 11, on display at the museum, is as popular with visitors as "The Spirit of St. Louis."

"It is difficult to say," he replied. "But when people see 'The Spirit of St. Louis,' they see Lindbergh flying that plane. Apollo 11 looks like a lump on the floor."

"They see Lindbergh flying that plane." Lindbergh became interested in flying when he was 20 years old. Born in Detroit on Feb. 4, 1902, he grew up in Little Falls, Minn. He worked on the family farm during World War I, entered the University of Wisconsin in 1920 to study mechanical engineering but left after a year and a half to take flying lessons in Lincoln, Neb. He barnstormed in the Midwest, and in March 1924 attended the Army Flying School at San Antonio, Texas. Graduated top man in his class, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Service Reserve in 1925.

Transatlantic flight activity had been heating up in the United States, Britain and France and Raymond Orteig offered $25,000 to anyone who could fly nonstop between New York and Paris.

Six pilots died trying, including two only 10 days before Lindbergh left San Diego for St. Louis and New York.

"They see Lindbergh flying that plane." He is in a curtain of mist as he heads over Long Island after takeoff at 7:54 a.m. after a night without sleep. His altitude is 200 feet, and his air speed is 116 m.p.h.

The haze thickens and the coast line is no longer visible. The haze clears over the Thames River between Norwich and New London, Conn. With his homemade periscope he sees the hills of New England through the clouds.

He loses the coastline as he leaves Cape Cod. At noon, he is over Nova Scotia where he has resolved to turn back if he finds it covered with fog. He spots some houses and wonders if his plane will be reported. There are storm clouds but he decides to go on...squalls, heavy rain, then patches of blue sky.

In his "cabin that floats through the air," now 500 feet above the sea, he heads for Newfoundland. He is over St. Johns as daylight fades, having covered 1,100 miles in 11 hours. No plane, he reminds himself, ever flew over Newfoundland before without landing. Ireland is 2,000 miles ahead, and he heads eastward "across two oceans, one of night and one of water."

Sleepiness was becoming a problem, and it was to plague him all night. He had seen a newspaper clipping that Nungesser had failed because he probably tried to pilot his plane all the way and had been unable to stay awake for 40 hours.

"I can barely stay awake," Lindbergh commented to himself, as related in his book, "The Spirit of St. Louis." "I can't let anything as trifling as sleep ruin the flight... how wonderful if this really were a dream, and I could be down on a cloud's soft, fluffy quilt and sleep... I've lost command of my eyelids... they shut. I lift them with my fingers."

His thoughts drift back to fantasies of his childhood, to his experiences as a mail pilot, to farm life in Minnesota — "A feverish dream."

He sees icebergs... his altitude varies 5,000 feet... 7,500... 10,500... his flashlight beams on a strut... ice! Should he turn back? No, he is nearer Ireland than New York... the coating of ice is thinner... the clouds give way... he sees stars and mistakes them for ships... dawn comes as he noses down to within 50 feet of the waves... fog covers the sea... he rises to 1,500 feet... will the fog never end?... it dissolves and the sea appears... brilliant light... a speck on the water... it's a boat... several small boats... the coast can't be far away... he glides down to within 50 feet.

"Which way is Ireland?" he shouts. N's waser. He makes a second and third pass. Still no answer. He's wasting time and fuel and flies on... 27 hours have passed since he left New York.

Green fields ahead... it's Ireland... he picks out Valentia and Dingle Bay on the southwestern coast.

Now the news bulletins: The steamer Hilversum reports: "Lindbergh sighted 500 miles from Ireland coast. Plane keeps full speed."

"The French trawler Nogi sighted a plane off Valentia."

Crowds gather outside radio supply shops and at newspaper windows to hear and read posted bulletins.

Theaters announce the plane's progress to audiences between acts. There are loud cheers when actress Alice Brady announces at the Ritz Theater in New York that Lindbergh is approaching France.

The sky is clear...he crosses England, the Channel...there's the coast of France...the sun is low as he reaches Cherbourg...he levels off at 4,000 feet to see the lights of Paris...now he's down to 2,000 feet...there's an airport...it must be Le Bourget.

Now there are minute-to-minute news bulletins: Paris — "An unknown airplane appeared over Le Bourget at 10:21 p.m. It is believed to be Lindbergh. There is great excitement."

"Paris May 21 — Lindbergh alighted at Le Bourget at 10:24 p.m."

He stopped his plane in the center of the airport and saw "the entire field covered with running figures."

"I am Charles Lindbergh," he said, introducing himself. He explained later that "I was afraid they might think I was somebody else."

He was rescued from the crowd by two French aviators and taken to the U.S. Embassy where he asked for "a bath and a glass of milk."

Lindbergh was to spend the rest of his life seeking refuge from hero worship and the publicity surrounding the kidnapping of his son. But he never forgot what he set out to do that day in May 50 years ago. He made goodwill flights to 75 cities in 48 states and Latin America to promote aviation. As a consultant to commercial airlines, he laid out transatlantic and transcontinental and Caribbean air routes.

But as much as he loved aviation, he also had an interest in conservation. Even as he flew across the Atlantic in 1927 he looked ahead with dread to "millions of planes flying around overhead. I love the sky's unbroken solitude," he mused. "I don't like to think of it cluttered up by aircraft, as roads are cluttered up by cars."

In later years, when conservation became a chief concern, he remarked, "If I had to choose, I would rather have birds than airplanes."

Charles Lindbergh (1902-1974)

Is that a cloud on the horizon, or a strip of low fog — or — can it possibly be land? It looks like land, but I don't intend to be tricked by another mirage... Is each new illusion to become more real until reality, itself, is meaningless? But my mind is clear. I'm alert. The temptation is too great. I can't hold my course any longer. The Spirit of St. Louis banks over toward the nearest point of land...

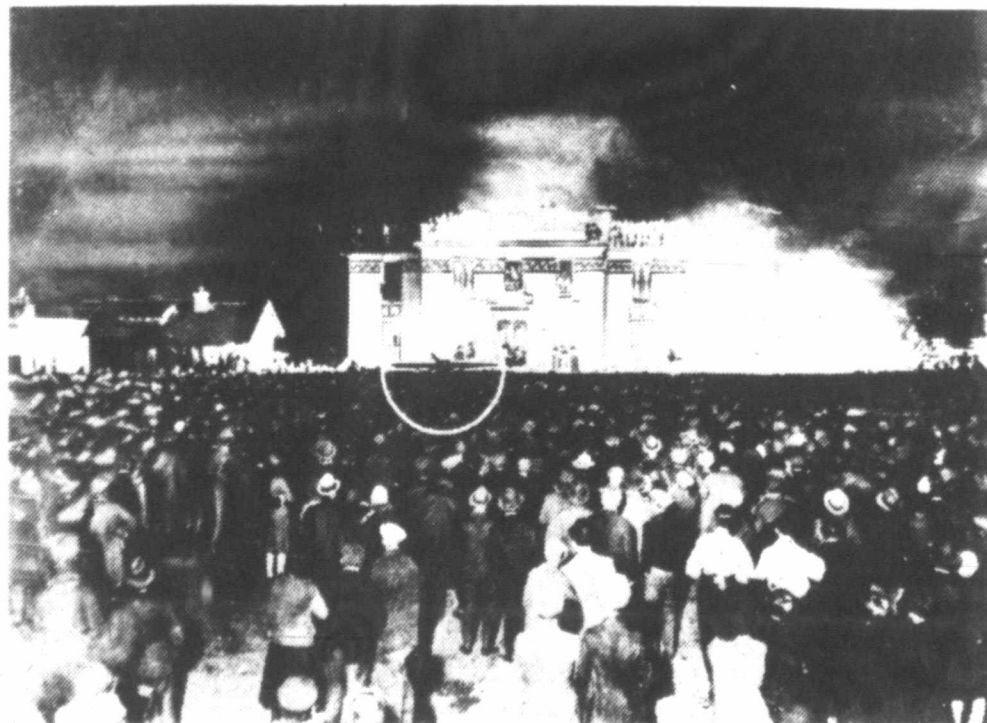

The southern tip of Ireland! On course; over two hours ahead of schedule... I circle again, fearful that I'll wake to find this too a phantom, a mirage.

One senses only through change, appreciates only after absence. I haven't been far enough away to know the earth before. For 25 years I've lived on it, and yet not seen it till this moment... During my entire life, I've accepted these gifts of God to man, and not known what was mine until this moment. It's like rain after drought; spring after a northern winter. I've been to eternity and back. I know how the dead would feel to live again.

(From "The Spirit of St. Louis," by Charles Lindbergh, published by Charles Scribner's Sons, 1953.)

Widow buried in Ferrari, nightgown

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Sandra Ilene West, a wealthy California widow, was buried today just the way she wanted — "in my lace nightgown and in my Ferrari with seat slanted comfortably."

The 37-year-old widow of a Comfort, Tex., oilman was placed in a 1964 baby blue Ferrari, enclosed in a large gray-painted wooden crate. She had died March 10 in her Beverly Hills home in California.

The crate, measuring 6 feet by 8 feet by 17 feet, was brought to the cemetery on a flat-bed truck.

A crowd of several hundred curious onlookers, watched quietly as a large yellow crane lifted the crate from the truck bed, set it next to the truck and then deposited into the grave.

Cement concrete was then poured on top of the box in the grave to protect further.

Los Angeles County officials watched the burial to make sure it was carried out according to a court order. The court had given its official approval to the unusual burial request.

Mrs. West was buried next to her husband, Ike West Jr., of Comfort, Tex., an oilman who died in 1968.

A spokesman for the Public Administrator's office who watched the preparations for the burial Wednesday night said the procedure complied with the court order. They offered no details.

Mrs. West's body had been entombed temporarily in a mausoleum following funeral services last March.

Funeral home director Porter Loring said he was not aware of any family or relatives of Mrs. West at the burial.

Authorities in California have yet to say officially what caused Mrs. West's death. California officials say an inquest will be held next month.

The handwritten will left most of her estate, valued at between $3 million and $6 million to her brother-in-law, Sol West III, of Comfort, Tex.

The document contained a clause asking that she be buried "in my lace nightgown and in my Ferrari with the seat slanted comfortably."

A court battle erupted after Mrs. West's death concerning her estate.

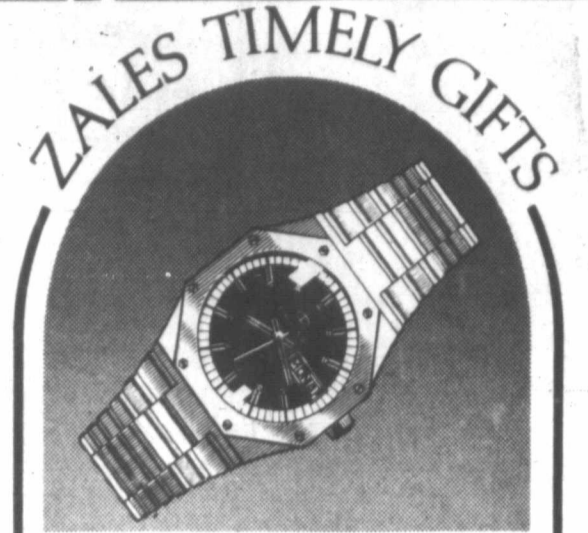

Fred Seaman, a San Antonio attorney, produced a will that he said Mrs. West had executed in his office last year. Seaman, who claims to have been the West family lawyer for the past 20 years, said the document left most of Mrs. West's estate to him.

Seaman has also submitted his will to California courts for probate.

Loring said the embalmed body of Mrs. West has been kept at a local mausoleum since arriving in San Antonio in March.

The cost of the burial will be about $9,000, Loring said.

Catholic school rolls continue to plunge

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Enrollment in Roman Catholic parochial schools still is falling, dropping 3 per cent last year and continuing a 12-year plunge that has driven a swelling proportion of one-time church pupils into the public schools.

Over the period, despite growing population, enrollment in Catholic elementary and high schools has declined about 40 per cent, from 5.7 million to 3.3 million. The drop in the past year was 104,410.

The continuing shrinkage, shown by the new 1977 issue of the Official Catholic Directory, came amid an intensifying financial squeeze on church-run schools, with parents who support them denied tax breaks for doing so, although they also pay public school taxes.

The trend was cited recently by a leading official of the Carter administration as creating an educational monopoly — the public school system — and limiting free choice in the schooling of American children.

"One of the most important fundamentals of our Constitution is freedom of choice," says the new director of the federal Community Services Administration, Graciela Olivarez. "But we have been so intimidated by the separation of church and state that we are in conflict with the First Amendment."

"We cannot have freedom of choice if there is only a public school system. We must have that other system."

She told the recent convention of the National Educational Association in San Francisco that the double financial load on parents of private and church-school students, brought about by court interpretations, has made free choice in education "quite limited in our country."

"We oppose monopolies... yet when it comes to basics in preparing our most valuable asset — our children — we allow a monopoly — the public school system — to take over," she said.

She pledged efforts to change that process, emphasizing that church-run schools provide a "savings" to taxpayers generally that has not been credited and that it would cost them approximately $4 billion more annually to accommodate in public schools the children now in church schools.

A recent survey by the Public Action Council, a secular organization, of public and Catholic school systems in Illinois found that it costs, on the average, about 10 times more per pupil to run public schools than it does Catholic schools.

Administration costs in the Chicago public school system were $42.73 per pupil, while administrative costs in the Catholic school system there was $4.10 per pupil, the study found.

The new Catholic Directory, issued by P.J. Kennedy & Sons, also showed a growing proportion of lay teachers in church schools, the 106,844 of them now making up 64.3 per cent of all Catholic school teachers. They had constituted only 8.24 per cent in 1944, and had first outnumbered nuns and priests teachers a continuing decline in priests, down 546 to 58,301, and of nuns, down 191 to 130,804, but the decade-long downturn in religious personnel has slowed.

Overall church membership increased 443,880 to 49.3 million, or 22.8 per cent of the population, a fairly steady figure in recent times.

Illegal aliens flood US

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The new U.S. immigration chief is being told the flow of illegal aliens into the United States from south of the border is reaching flood stage.

Leonel Castillo, commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, arrived in San Diego Wednesday as the Border Patrol announced apprehension of more than 3,500 undocumented aliens in three days this week along 12 miles of the U.S.-Mexican border.

Thousands more foreign nationals made it into the United States without getting nabbed, Border Patrol supervisors said in estimating that up to two aliens cross successfully for every one that is caught.

There is no way to handle the paperwork involved in processing everyone in the tide. Most taken into custody by agents simply are turned back into Mexico, according to Robert McCord, assistant chief of the district.

Castillo, a Mexican-American, planned to spend 48 hours looking at conditions and huddling with officials on both sides of the boundary before returning to Washington Friday.

He canceled a tour of Border Patrol, Immigration and Customs Service facilities Wednesday because he was late in arriving from Los Angeles, but aides said the inspection would be a must for the commissioner before departure.

Officials estimate that more than half the illegal aliens entering the United States from Mexico and other nations to the south breach the border along the narrow corridor in the Tijuana-San Diego sector of the 2,000-mile demarcation.

"The piece of geography forms a natural funnel bounded on the east by high mountains and on the west by the Pacific Ocean.

Castillo's visit coincides with a conference by the Hispanic Advisory Committee, a group formed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service to give Latin communities a voice in U.S. immigration policies. Castillo served on the organization prior to his nomination by President Carter for the commissioner's job.

Raul Yzaguirre, committee chairman, said the prime issue the group will consider is proposed amnesty for foreign nationals who have resided in the United States for long periods.

Castillo crossed into Tijuana, Mexico, briefly Wednesday and met with Mayor Fernando Marquez Arce and Mexican customs and immigration chiefs in the city. His call was mostly considered ceremonial.

Earlier in the day, Castillo told a Los Angeles new conference a task force is being established to function in six major cities in an attempt to clear a backlog of an estimated 236,000 applications for foreign nationals for residence.

He said the expanded work force would tackle the problem starting June 5 in Los Angeles, New York City, Newark, Chicago, Miami and San Francisco.

Nissalke voted top coach

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Tom Nissalke celebrated his wife's birthday Thursday, took his driving test to get a Texas driver's license and topped it off by being named National Basketball Association coach of the year.

Nissalke, 42, already had driven the surprising Houston Rockets to the NBA's Central Division championship and to the Eastern Conference finals with the fourth best record in the NBA.

After covering all that hazardous territory without an accident, the driver's test should have been a breeze.

"Coaches in general get too much credit when they win and too much flak when they lose," said Nissalke, who turned the Rockets from a 40-42 record to a 49-33 champion. "This is the biggest personal honor that has ever come to me and it's a reflection of the job the team did."

Nissalke beat out Los Angeles

Coch Jerry West by a first place vote margin of 26-21 and became the second pro coach to win coach of the year honors in both the NBA and American Basketball Association.

Former Utah Stars and Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman also was a dual winner. Nissalke won ABA coach of the year honors after the 1971-72 season at Dallas.

Nissalke took charge of the floundering Rockets prior to last season and immediately started wheeling and dealing. He traded Joe Meriwether and Gus Bailey to Atlanta in exchange for the No. 1 choice in the 1976 NBA draft.

That selection was used to take Maryland All-American John Lucas, who became an almost instant starter and quarterback of Houston's controlled-tempo offense.

Nissalke then gave Buffalo the Rockets' No. 1 draft choice for 1977 and 1978 to Buffalo for 6-11 Moses Malone, who blossomed into one of the most feared rebounders in the NBA.

The Rockets, after going ownership for 20 months, were purchased by Greenway Plaza, Ltd., owners of The Summit, and this solid backing carried over to the team. Nissalke said.

"This had a good effect on the team because they knew the coach wasn't under pressure (of being fired) so they just went out and played relaxed," Nissalke said.

Nissalke said he also had the trust of Rockets owner Kenneth Schnitzer in making the Malone trade. "He didn't know Mo from Curley, Larry and Moe," Nissalke said. "But he trusted my judgment."

Although Nissalke brought with him a reputation as a tough-guy coach, he says there were no problems during the season. His business-like approach apparently has won the players respect.

Nissalke's humor can be biting however. After a sluggish first half during a regular season game against Atlanta, Nissalke said "I was going to ask the players to make a magnificent gesture and refund all these peoples' money."

"The Rockets came back to win 118-107."

Former Rocket guard Dave Wohl, after being traded early in the season, said "He's (Nissalke) always needed intimidators and that's the way he coaches, which isn't a knock. When I was with the Rockets this year, he seemed to have everybody walking on eggshells."

Nissalke sometimes jokes about his disciplinarian image. He says while coach at Dallas, he took the team picture at the airport.

Rugby no longer a man's sport

By BOB DVORCHAK
Associated Press Writer
BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — A year ago, a group of women in the Lehigh Valley decided to tackle an old game — rugby. The team, known as the Maulie Maguires, already is a smash hit.

"For a lot of women, it's an interesting experience because it gives us a chance to do something we were never allowed or encouraged to do," said Carol Lyman, a 25-year-old halfback.

"It was never right to go out and run around in the mud and tackle each other," said Mrs. Lyman, an original member of the team that won all five of its games in its first season.

The Maguires had a tough time fielding a minimum of 15 players for each match last spring. This year, about 25 women are active members.

Four men's teams, the first one organized in 1967, have been a rousing success in the area. So the women got in on the act too, overcoming initial timidity and a shortage of experience.

"The men used to laugh at us because we apologized to each other after making the tackles. Now they're very supportive," said Mrs. Lyman, whose husband plays on one of the men's teams.

They even have blossoming heroes.

One is a 5-foot-4 forward affectionately known as "Gretchen the Beast" because of her vicious tackling and high intensity. A darting halfback nicknamed "O. J." adds speed to blend with that power.

"One of the hardest things was practicing against ourselves. We had so few players that we didn't want to hurt each other. That doesn't happen any more," said Mrs. Lyman, who works in public relations.

"Most women had watched football on television with their husbands or brothers. It was very tempting to hold onto the ball when you're tackled. But in rugby, you have to pitch it back right away to keep the play going," she said.

The Maguires are named after a rugby term.

Daredevil jumps

Saturday night will be a good night to catch the Gold Sox play at Amarillo's Memorial Stadium. The Texas League contest between the Gold Sox and the Jackson Mets will be preceded by a Evil Kneivel-type snowmobile jump.

Randy Hill, a 32-year-old daredevil from Phoenix, will attempt to jump 12 Chrysler Arrows on a 320 pound snowmobile.

The jump is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. with the Gold Sox-Mets game due to begin 15 minutes later.

Slew picked for 2nd racing jewel

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — Trainer Smiley Adams can't pull another major Preakness surprise Saturday, but there are indications his entry is again being overlooked.

Two years ago, Adams saddled Master Derby to victory in the second race of the Triple Crown series, with the son of Dust Commander going off at 23-1 despite having finished out of the money only twice in 20 starts.

Now Adams is back at Pimlico Race Course with Run Dusty Run, another Dust Commander colt who has finished worse than second just once in 15 career starts but is listed at only 8-1 in the early odds.

Run Dusty Run has finished second in his last four outings including the Kentucky Derby May 7, leading many observers to conclude the colt merely is a perennial runner-up. But Adams disagrees.

"I think I've got a good shot," the veteran trainer said. "Only this time, I don't want to be 10 or 12 lengths back."

That was in reference to the Kentucky Derby when Run Dusty Run came from far off the pace and lost to unbeaten Seattle Slew by 1 1/4 lengths in the 1 1/4-mile classic.

For the Preakness, one-sixteenth of a mile shorter, Seattle Slew is expected to be in the lead along with two colts who missed the Derby because of illness, Cormorant and J.O. Tobin.

Seattle Slew will break from the No. 8 spot, just inside Run Dusty Run in the nine-horse field, and is a 3-5 choice in the early line to continue his quest of becoming the 10th Triple Crown champion in history.

Cormorant, the second choice at 4-1, drew the No. 1 post position — an excellent spot in view of his front-running tendencies and the speedy condition just off the rail at the current Pimlico meeting.

"No. 1 is all right if he can maintain that position at the finish," trainer Jim Simpson joked about Cormorant, who had a seven-race winning streak snapped last Saturday, losing the Withers by a nose to Iron Constitution.

J.O. Tobin, a Maryland-bred horse which was named the champion 2-year-old in England last year, has won four of six career starts. But he has run on dirt only once, and is listed at 10-1 along with Iron Constitution.

Regal Sir, an invader from Canada, and Counter Punch, who has made all of his career starts in Maryland, are quoted at 20-1. Sir Sir, the 12th-place finisher in the Derby, and Hey Hey J.P., winless in eight starts this year, both are listed at 30-1.

Salinas an Irish

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Notre Dame now has the name of Gilbert Salinas, the 6-foot-11 high school all-American center, on a letter of intent that ends a recruiting war that once included almost 200 schools.

Salinas signed to play for the Fighting Irish Thursday night as more than 50 friends, neighbors and reporters watched.

"Of course I am very pleased Gilbert selected Notre Dame," said Notre Dame Head Coach Digger Phelps.

Salinas, the all-time leading scorer in San Antonio basketball history with 2,204 points, said he decided to go to Notre Dame after visiting the school more than three weeks ago.

"I did not want to say anything then because I wanted to talk to other coaches about their programs," Salinas said. "But I felt warm at Notre Dame. I felt like I belonged there."

Salinas averaged 20.5 points a game and 14 rebounds this past season as he led Burbank High School to a 31-4 record. Burbank lost in the semi-final game of the state 4-A tournament to South Oak Cliff, the eventual champion.

Ross bewilders Arkansas hitters

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas A&M Coach Tom Chandler mentioned his sophomore pitcher, Mark Ross, in the same breath with San Diego Padres hurler Randy Jones, last year's National League Cy Young award winner.

Chandler didn't even think twice about it.

"He's kind of like Randy Jones—he's not overpowering but he's got that good sinker ball," the Aggies coach said. "Mark looks like the type of pitcher you watch from the grandstand and want to get a bat and go up and hit against him—but he's a tiger."

Ross convinced the Arkansas Razorbacks of that and, after losing to him and the Aggies 5-2 in the first round of the South-west Conference postseason baseball tournament Thursday, they just might prefer to stay in the grandstand and watch him. He yielded five scattered hits.

In the other first round game Baylor nipped Texas 3-2 after jumping into a 3-0 lead. Baylor relief pitcher Shane Nolen coaxed two fly balls from Texas batters for the triumph after Wendell Hibbett led off the ninth inning with his fourth hit of the game.

Texas faces Arkansas at 3 p.m. today at Ditch-Falk Field in the elimination game and Baylor meets A&M at 7:30 p.m. in the winners' bracket with the victor advancing to the finals.

The Aggies' victory was interrupted by a 90-minute rain delay, but that didn't seem to bother Ross. He retired 12 batters in a row after Arvis Harper's leadoff single in the first inning. Then, after the rain delay, Ross retired 11 of the last 12 Razorbacks he faced.

Gov opposes energy plan

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who once tirelessly campaigned across Texas for Jimmy Carter, is now vigorously stamping the state against Carter's energy proposals. Briscoe leveled another bitter attack at Carter's energy plan Thursday and promised to continue his assault in a series of speeches "until they are changed." "They are horrible," Briscoe said of Carter's proposals. "The energy proposals submitted by the President would, if adopted, constitute a disaster for Texas."

added "If this program is fully implemented the federal bureaucracy will have a death grip on the energy resources of our nation." "I will be making more speeches," Briscoe promised later. "It will be an ongoing effort until the Carter proposals are changed." Carter's proposals include provisions for the federal regulation of intrastate natural gas. This is bitterly opposed by Briscoe and other Texas leaders who say the energy program could be solved by deregulation of oil and natural gas prices. "The philosophy behind this energy plan is wrong," he control of intrastate gas. Briscoe answered, "If we lose in Congress, we must keep all of our options open. We will use every available means to prevent federal control of intrastate gas." Briscoe's latest attack on the proposals came at the first East Texas Chamber of Commerce Conference on State and National Energy Policies. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., was scheduled to speak, but said he was unable to attend because he had obligations in Washington. "The President's energy team has little concern for the producing states and a real fear to our legitimate requests," charged Briscoe. "The bias in Washington against Texas and other producing states is neither a figment of our imagination nor provincial over-reaction to criticism." Texas produces nearly 40 percent of the nation's oil and natural gas.

NOTICE OF SALE UNDER ORDER OF SALE AS UNDER EXECUTION. WHEREAS by virtue of Order of Sale issued out of the 223rd Judicial District Court of Gray County, Texas, on a judgment rendered in and to the said F. J. Pressang, in favor of Canadian Production Credit Association, as Plaintiff, against F. J. Pressang (also known as Fern J. Pressang) and wife, Juliette Pressang, A. Theodore Kuhns II, Irene K. Neef, individually and as Independent Executrix of the Estate of George H. Neef, Sr., deceased, Russell Neef, d-b-a George H. Neef Welding Works, Archetta Ann Langley, individually and as Independent Executrix of the Estate of Vernon Eugene Langley, deceased, and James O. Gray, in the case of Canadian Production Credit Association versus F. J. Pressang et al., No. 20-183 in the 223rd Judicial District Court of Gray County, Texas, which cause was duly transferred from the said 223rd Judicial District Court to the 223rd Judicial District Court of Gray County, Texas, I did on the 3rd day of May, 1977, at 11:00 o'clock A.M., in and to the following described tract and parcel of land situated in the County of Gray, State of Texas, and being the same land described in said Order of Sale, to-wit:

All of the Southeast Quarter (SE-4) of Section No. Seventy-seven (77), Block M-2 of the H&G S. Co. Survey, Gray County, Texas, Certificate No. 13-2657, Abstract No. 305, Poles No. 13-2657, dated March 16, 1976, and containing 160 acres of land, more or less, located in said County approximately three (3) miles north of Laketon and commonly referred to as the F. J. Pressang land, and which Order of Sale was issued pursuant to said judgment foreclosing the deed of trust lien of the said Canadian Production Credit Association on the above described land as same existed on the 1st day of July, 1970, and renewed and extended on the 23rd day of June, 1975, subject, however to the prior lien on said land held by The Federal Land Bank of Houston, Texas.

And on the 7th day of June, 1977, being the first Tuesday of said month, between the hours of 10 o'clock A.M. and 4 o'clock P.M. on said day at the courthouse door of said County in Pampa, County, Texas, I will offer for sale and sell at public auction, for cash, all the right, title and interest of the said F. J. Pressang (also known as Fern J. Pressang) and wife, Juliette Pressang and A. Theodore Kuhns II in and to said property, free and clear of the judgment liens of Irene K. Neef, individually and as Independent Executrix of the Estate of George H. Neef, Sr., deceased, Russell Neef, d-b-a George H. Neef Welding Works, Archetta Ann Langley, individually and as Independent Executrix of the Estate of Vernon Eugene Langley, deceased, and James O. Gray, but subject to the lien of the said The Federal Land Bank of Houston, Texas. DATED this 10th day of May, 1977.

Lefors Junior High leaders

Lendi Livingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Livingston, has been named valedictorian of the 1977 Lefors Junior High School class; and Jackie Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Baker, has been named salutatorian of the 1977 class. Miss Livingston holds a two year academic grade average of 97.05, and Miss Baker's two year grade average was 96.05. Also named by the junior high school as an honor student is Christel Atchley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Atchley. Graduation exercises for the 1977 junior high class of Lefors will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in Lefors High School auditorium. Pictured, from left, are Lendi Livingston and Jackie Baker.

ROTC commissions up

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 10,000 college graduates will become military officers this summer, marking the first increase in commissions through the Reserve Officer Training Corps since 1970.

The numbers reflect an apparent turnaround in ROTC enrollment two years ago after a steady eight-year decline resulting from an anti-military mood, often marked by open hostility, on many campuses during the Vietnam war.

The ROTC's recovery appears to be continuing, judging by an 8 per cent rise in enrollments this year to a total of 81,544 men and women cadets at 356 colleges and universities. The services view the turnaround as vitally important because the college ROTC program is a major source of young officers, particularly for the Army.

In recent years, as never before, the services have been drawing on college manpower for young officers.

All in all, Pentagon officials report, the climate on campus has changed drastically from what it was in the late 1960s and early 1970s when ROTC buildings were attacked and military instructors harassed.

In the 1968-1970 academic year alone, the armed services reported 225 acts of violence aimed at ROTC.

"ROTC buildings and programs provide a visible and convenient target for campus dissidence directed toward the federal government," a Pentagon official told Congress in May 1972.

Damage ran into millions of dollars, according to official estimates.

Rivera art could be 'monuments'

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Americans who buy paintings or other works by Jose Clemente Orozco or Diego Rivera next May 26 at a Sotheby Parke Bernet Inc auction in New York City may be purchasing "historical monuments" and be subject to Mexican government legal action.

In a paid advertisement in Mexico City newspapers Wednesday the secretary of education's subsecretariat of culture specifically identified the auction by name and warned "the secretary of education will exercise the corresponding legal action."
