Pampa Girl To Compete For Texas Beauty Title

Janelle Joy Bevel, 16, a Pampa High School junior, will represent Pampa in the Miss Texas Teen-Ager Pageant at San Antonio on July 28-29.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Bevel, 932 E. Francis, Janelle will compete against other girls ages 13-17 from throughout the state.

The girls will be judged for scholastic achievements, civic contributions, poise, personality and appearance. It is not a talent or bathing suit contest.

State finals for the Miss Teen-Ager Pageants are held in 46 of the 50 states at this time. The winners from each state will compete in the national finals in Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 23-26.

In high school, Janelle is currently serving as a cheerleader, received the outstanding physical education for girls award and gained a divisional rating in interscholastic league contests.

She has been a member of the Hep Cat Club, Girls' Auxiliary, 4-H, Girls Choir, Student Council, the President's Physical Fitness Team and Future Homemakers of America.

Janelle at present plans to be a secretary or an English teacher.

Local sponsors are Clayton Floral Co., One-Hour Martinizing Dry Cleaners, The Slack Shack, Coronado Men's Wear and Johnson Radio and TV.

Nixon Announces New Pullout Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced today plans for a two-month withdrawal of 10,000 U.S. troops from South Vietnam and directed that only draftees who volunteer be sent there in the future.

Nixon's action would reduce the authorized troop level to 39,000 by Sept. 1.

The average monthly withdrawal rate of 5,000 for the summer months was half the level of the May-June rate of 10,000.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, who made Nixon's announcement, said the President also ordered that no draftees will be sent South Vietnam unless they volunteer for service there.

However, Ziegler said, if they are already in the war zone or under orders to go there, they will stay or be sent.

The press spokesman said the Sept. 1 troop target level of 39,000 would represent a 93 per cent reduction from the authorized ceiling of 549,500 in effect when Nixon took office in 1969.

Senate Okays $200 Million For Emergency Flood Relief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has voted $200 million in emergency relief funds for victims of tropical storm Agnes in the Eastern United States, doubling the amount requested by President Nixon.

In a two-pronged effort to help flood-stricken areas, the White House asked Tuesday for urgent approval of $100 million in flood aid, and announced a two-day tour by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew of battered cities in Virginia, Maryland and New York.

The Senate acted almost immediately. The $200 million would be administered by the Office of Emergency Preparedness, which already has a disaster relief fund of $92.5 million.

The House still must approve, although it was uncertain whether it would do so before recessing on Friday until July 17.

White House officials said the funds would be used for such things as repairing bridges, highways and other public facilities, and was "just a small portion" of the total aid available from 25 other agencies, including the Small Business Administration, which supervises disaster loans to businessmen and homeowners.

Viets Try To Retake Quang Tri

SAIGON (AP) — More than 10,000 South Vietnamese marines and paratroopers surged across the northern defense line Wednesday in the Saigon government's first attempt to recapture Quang Tri Province.

The government troops were backed by tanks, artillery and U.S. naval gunfire and air strikes.

They faced elements of four North Vietnamese divisions which have had nearly two months to dig in since they overran Quang Tri, South Vietnam's northernmost province, in May.

South Vietnamese marines already were about 10 miles east of Quang Tri City, the provincial capital. They moved north of the My Chanh defense line earlier in the latest of several forays to keep the North Vietnamese off balance.

American B52s, which have been pounding the front-line area heavily for nine days, dropped some 1,350 tons of bombs to pave the way for the South Vietnamese push.

There were no immediate reports on the extent of enemy resistance or casualties on either side.

Informants said the South Vietnamese crossed the My Chanh river, the boundary between Quang Tri and Thua Thien provinces, along a 10-mile front stretching from the South China Sea to the jungled foothills west of Highway 1.

The line is about 25 miles northwest of Hue and about 27 miles southeast of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam.

Since the North Vietnamese completed their conquest of Quang Tri, South Vietnam's northernmost province, on May 1, the South Vietnamese have made a number of in-and-out sweeps into the Communist-held territory along the coast.

But the drive today was the first large-scale attempt to carry out President Nguyen Van Thieu's orders on June 19 to retake all territory captured by Hanoi's forces in the offensive that began March 30.

Meanwhile, President Thieu fired a province chief American officials consider one of the best in the country. Vietnam Press, the government news agency, confirmed the ouster of Col. Nguyen Van Chuc as the top official in Binh Dinh, the coastal province at the foot of the central highlands, and he would be replaced by Col. Hoang Dinh Tho, who has been chief of Quang Tri province, farther north.

The report gave no reason for the switch, but some Americans thought it was a payoff to Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Toan, who was recently named commander of the 2nd Military Region, which includes Binh Dinh. These sources said Col. Tho is an old friend and associate of Toan.

Binh Dinh is one of the areas least controlled by the Saigon government, and the North Vietnamese captured three of its nine districts in their current offensive. But the Americans blame the South Vietnamese army's 22nd Division rather than the militia forces controlled by Chuc. "Without him it would have been worse," said one American.

Texas Senators Approve Huge Appropriations Bill

BETTER THAN NOTHING is about the description of this shelter in a South Vietnam battle area in the Chan Thanh region.

Solon's Filibuster Sets World Record

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas legislators moved rapidly on the new-tax $4.1 billion general appropriations bill today after more than 42 hours of delay caused by Dallas Sen. Mike McKool's world's record filibuster.

Senators passed the massive bill on a voice vote about 30 minutes after McKool sat down at 7:33 a.m. with a filibuster record of 42 hours and 33 minutes.

McKool received only six votes for his amendment—the subject of his filibuster—to keep up spending for treatment of the mentally ill and retarded by $17 million.

Within an hour after the bill passed, the House received it and sent it to the appropriations committee, which substituted its own version that contains more funds for higher education and mental health and retardation programs.

House leaders plan to lay the bill out for debate Saturday morning—a day later than they had planned, due to McKool's delaying tactic.

A House debate earlier than Saturday is forestalled by a new "reform" rule adopted in March which gives House members an automatic 72 hours—three days—to study appropriations bills before taking a vote. The 72-hours began at 9 a.m. today.

The rule was the result of years of griping about "railroad" tactics that sometimes forced representatives to vote blind on the complicated spending measures.

Appropriations are the only item before the special session, which the governor called specifically to enact a state budget for the fiscal year starting Sept. 1.

Sen. Mike McKool of Dallas added four hours and 11 minutes to the world filibuster record today, but his ordeal failed to add a dime to the state budget to help the mentally ill.

McKool held the floor for 42 hours and 33 minutes, eclipsing the mark of 38 hours and 22 minutes set by South Carolina State Sen. Ralph Gasque in 1968. After the 5-foot-4 Dallas lawmaker sat down, the Senate rejected his amendment by voice vote and sent to the House its $4.1 billion spending bill for the year beginning Sept. 1.

McKool said he had called attention to need for more money for mentally handicapped persons and that a House-Senate conference committee might later agree to appropriate extra funds because of the public pressure his fight created.

He complained of numbness and aching bones. This did not stop him, however, from standing and talking some more for television cameras.

The self-styled Chihuahua of the Texas Senate seemed fresh toward the end.

McKool, who was defeated in June in a primary runoff race for Congress, gained the floor Monday morning to speak for a proposed amendment to the Senate appropriations bill that would give an additional $17 million to state mental health and mental retardation institutions.

He stuck close to the subject throughout his delaying tactics reading and rereading his amendment and "istics on Texas' status in spending for mental health. He read newspaper clippings concerning the mentally retarded who had been helped by treatment. He also read numerous notes, letters and telegrams received from supporters.

Throughout almost all of his filibuster McKool was serious and deliberate, speaking in a slow, carefully paced monotone. Occasionally he sucked a lemon or chewed a cough drop.

"The first night was the hardest," Sen. Mike McKool said today after setting new state and world filibuster records.

"I really didn't intend to go as long as I did," the Dallas senator told The Associated Press shortly after he sat down at 7:33 a.m. after holding up debate in the Senate since 11:30 a.m. Monday. He held the floor continuously, talking most of the time, for 42 hours and 33 minutes.

"When I got up Monday I thought maybe I would go until maybe 9:30 or 10 that night. I was going just as long as I could. But this was my first filibuster. I've never had any experience in this. Then did you see that gallery the first night. That gave me the drive to go on. There must have been 40 or 50 right over there. They cheered and they sent me notes. Then the wires started coming in. I just kept going."

"I don't think this is a defeat," McKool said, after the Senate overwhelmingly defeated his proposed amendment that would add $17 million more to the spending bill for treatment of the mentally retarded and ill. "I think this (filibuster) has caused an awareness in Texas of the situation in our mental schools and I believe by the time this bill gets through the House and Senate it will have more money in there for the mentally ill, particularly for community treatment services. I've been assured they will try to add $1 million at least."

McKool sucked on lemons, chewed throat lozenges and sipped just a small amount of water. That was all he had during his more than 42 hours.

Pair Slaying Investigation Continues

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — Police continued an investigation today of a double slaying near Lake Creek north of here checking possibilities that the murders may be linked to others in the Mesquite and Dallas area.

The victims were Sylvia Jeanne Chaney, 19, of Paris and James Gary McConnell, 19, of Bogata.

Their half-naked bodies were found sprawled near a dirt road in a wooded area Tuesday by a fisherman who had gone to investigate after seeing McConnell's abandoned car.

McConnell had been shot three times in the back. The girl had four bullet wounds, also in the back.

Investigators said the two were shot with a .32-caliber pistol. The girl had not been sexually attacked.

Police said they were checking into the possibility of a connection between the two murders and other unsolved slayings in the Mesquite and Dallas area in recent months where the victims were shot with .22 and .32-caliber weapons.

Daily Test Underway To Turn Lake Water Into City System

By TEX DEWESE Daily tests are being run at Pampa's new $1.4 million water treatment plant preparatory to running Lake Meredith water into the city distribution system for local consumption.

City Manager Mack Wofford said today no date has been set for releasing the lake water into city pipelines.

He added that when the change-over is made advance notice will be given to Pampa water consumers.

Possibly to allay apprehension, in some circles about the water's taste, The News learned today that employees at the Cities Service gasoline plant southwest of the city have been drinking the Lake Meredith water for some time.

Cities Service has a contract with the city and purchases part of Pampa's lake water allotment through a pipeline connection with the Pampa aqueduct west of the city.

Bob Jamison, plant superintendent, says employees have been drinking the water ever since analysis tests were made showing the water conformed with all requirements for human consumption.

The tests were ordered because the water received at the plant was untreated and direct from the Pampa supply line.

Jamison said he was unable to detect very little difference from Pampa's well water.

City Manager Wofford said today: "We are not going to turn the lake water into city mains until we are convinced it is being treated chemically to taste as nearly as possible like the present city water."

He added that no lake water has yet been turned into city lines and will not be "until it is as good as it possibly can be."

The current tests by representatives of the A.E. Mitchell Co., Dallas contractors for the treatment plant, have been under way for a week.

The tests also are being checked by Willis Nees, an inspector for the consulting engineers on the job, and Norman Rogers, of the city water production department.

State Officials Inspect Beef Packing Plant Here

Representatives of the Texas Water Quality Board and the Texas Air Pollution Board today were conducting a check of the Western Beef Packing Co. plant to determine progress of the company's development of a water pretreatment plan to comply with Pampa's industrial waste ordinance.

Visit of the water and air pollution officials came in the aftermath of recent complaints of air pollution in areas adjacent to the packing plant.

Although The News was unable to contact the plant manager today, officials reportedly were taking necessary steps to eliminate a nauseous odor which apparently originated from a malfunction of the company's rendering system.

City Manager Mack Wofford said the Water Quality Board area representatives checked the city's sewage treatment plant yesterday.

The city manager explained that Pampa has been engaged in an upgrading improvement program at the treatment plant since late last summer when the board requested immediate steps to bring the plant standards up to state law requirements.

Enforcement of the city's industrial waste ordinance was requested at the same time.

Western Beef then launched a program schedule to bring waste discharges from the plant into compliance with the city ordinance. Reportedly that program now nearing completion and has had the full cooperation of the packing company.

Wofford said he understood Western Beef will continue to do whatever is necessary to remedy waste discharge and odor problems.

A spokesman for Western Beef said this forenoon a statement for public release was expected to be forthcoming later today.

McGovern's Backers Mounting Efforts To Beat Back Challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern's supporters are mounting a massive effort to beat back a California credentials challenge which could be the last major threat to his nomination.

McGovern forces succeeded on another front Tuesday when Democratic party platform-writers produced a document echoing the senator's key positions, but in terms that his two main rivals also could embrace.

The platform draft will be offered for a vote at the Miami Beach convention where debate seems certain on a number of planks opposed by Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and his supporters.

The Platform Committee voted overwhelmingly to authorize a minority report by the Wallace forces on such issues as taxes, the economy, welfare, busing of school children, prayer in schools, and crime.

McGovern continued his tour of the South where he found a friendly reception and indications of possible later ballot support from Arkansas delegates.

In a significant gesture to party regulars, he indicated that, if he wins the nomination, he will keep Lawrence F. O'Brien as national party chairman.

With the proposed platform ready to be mailed to delegates, attention in Washington turned to the Credentials Committee which, in its first decisions Tuesday, tossed out challenges to the Alabama, South Carolina and Florida delegations.

A half-dozen key McGovern advisers met Tuesday night with the senator's supporters on the committee to map plans for the showdown Thursday on the California challenge led by allies of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

The McGovern forces won the first round when hearing examiner Burke Marshall refused to support the attempt to split California's 271 votes, won by McGovern in the June 6 winner-take-all primary, and award them on a proportional basis.

That could take 151 votes away from McGovern, who claims to be within 20 votes of the nomination. The latest tally by The Associated Press gives him 1,358.9 votes—150.1 votes short of the 1,509 needed.

The entire California delegation could not vote on the case if it is appealed to the full convention as expected. With the California votes eliminated, a solid block of McGovern opponents possibly could muster a majority.

Another potentially divisive argument was shaping up over the 59 Chicago delegates headed by Mayor Richard J. Daley. They face possible expulsion for violations of party rules in their selection.

Cecil Poole, the hearing examiner in the Chicago case, ruled Tuesday that the 59 delegates were slated in violation of party reform rules on "procedures, notice, openness and timeliness."

Though many of the challengers support McGovern, he has taken no position on that dispute but backs a similar challenge by some of his downstate Illinois supporters.

Council Predicts Many Will Be Injured In Fireworks Accidents

CHICAGO (AP) — Thousands of persons are injured each year in fireworks accidents despite strict state laws which have reduced fatal mishaps almost to zero.

This Independence Day will be no different, according to the National Safety Council which predicts that hundreds of injuries will result from use of bootlegged fireworks around July 4.

The council says many otherwise law-abiding citizens ignore the laws, which cover more than 60 per cent of the population, and bring fireworks into a state or municipality which has banned their possession, sale or transportation.

The laws have succeeded in cutting the death toll from 466, tabulated by the American Medical Association in 1963, to none in recent years.

The AMA says another contributor to the absence of deaths is the fact that Americans take to the roads in automobiles on holidays instead of staying home and shooting fireworks.

The council says that bootleg users find a black market connection or bring fireworks from some rural area where they are sold in the open.

Mail-order chemical kits, containing potentially explosive chemicals, are available through magazine ads even though they are illegal, the council observed.

Deuel Richardson, a spokesman for the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) in Boston, says that although the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has banned Class B explosives, it still allows use of Class C fireworks which carry a warning note.

Class B fireworks include cherry bombs and some types of aerial bombs and rockets. Class C fireworks are small firecrackers and nonexplosives such as sparklers and snakes.

"We are still puzzled by the attitude of the FDA in allowing Class C fireworks," Richardson says. "It has taken the position that as long as these fireworks carry a warning label, they are not harmful to children."

"We doubt very much," he says, "if any 6-, 7- or 8-year-olds pay any attention to warnings on small firecrackers."

Phil Dykstra, manager of the council's home department, says even Class C fireworks are dangerous and destructive enough to warrant banning of all fireworks except those used for licensed public displays.

He cites a study made jointly by the NFPA and the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness which showed 42 per cent of fireworks accidents resulting in personal injury and/or property damage were caused by Class C fireworks.

House Expected To Take Action On Spending Bills

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas House Members planned to push the special legislative session's main item of business, appropriations, today after being blocked for more than a day by a Senate filibuster.

House leaders had planned to substitute their version of the $4.1 billion general appropriations bill for the Senate Tuesday. But that step now is expected today.

A three-day period for study of appropriations bills is required by new "reform" House rules, and Speaker Rayford Price had hoped for floor action Friday.

But Dallas Sen. Mike McKool's record-breaking filibuster to talk his colleagues into beefing up spending for treatment of the retarded and the mentally ill forced a delay at least until Saturday.

McKool broke the Texas filibuster record of 29 hours 22 minutes at 6:23 p.m. Tuesday and kept on talking.

Assault Trial Set For Today

The trial of Freddy L. Wilbon, 17, 528 Crawford, on assault charges is scheduled for 1:15 p.m. today in municipal court.

The charges were lodged by Delmar Durrett, Amarillo, father of Robert Durrett, Amarillo basketball player who became involved with Wilbon in an altercation at a game here last February.

The complaint contends that Wilbon struck Durrett on the playing floor knocking him unconscious.

Judge Don Lane will sit on the case.

Man Found Unconscious

A 19-year-old Pampa man was admitted to Highland General Hospital unconscious and in a state of shock last night.

He had been found in that state by a 21-year-old man who got him to the hospital. The official police report of the incident said the man's condition was believed to be the result of "sniffing" glue.

Police will investigate further when the man recovers.

Four Witnesses Granted Immunity In Federal Grand Jury Arms Probe

FORT WORTH (AP) — In a move similar to that which resulted in the jailing of Kenneth Tierney, a U.S. district court judge here has granted immunity to four more witnesses in a federal grand jury arms investigation, despite protests from defense attorneys.

Tierney and the four other men are all being questioned concerning possible traffic of weapons to rebel forces in Northern Ireland.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Leo Brewster Tuesday granted immunity to Mathias Reilly, Paschal Morahan, Daniel Crawford, and Thomas Laffey and instructed them to testify before the grand jury.

Attorneys for the four, William Cunningham and Frank Durkan, protested the ruling, calling it "use immunity" that would leave their clients open to prosecution in another country.

Reilly and Crawford say they are from Britain. The other two men are believed to be from New York.

Last week, Kenneth Tierney of New York refused to testify after being granted immunity and was jailed by Judge Brewster for contempt. Duncan and Cunningham, also attorneys for Tierney, have filed motions for his release with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Bentsen, Tower Introduce Legislation On Freeway

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Texas Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and John Tower introduced legislation in the U.S. Senate Tuesday aimed at lifting a 10-year legal blockade against a controversial freeway through local parkland.

Tower told San Antonio newsmen that the move was intended to correct "an intolerable situation in which courts ruled a state may not return federal highway construction assistance funds in order to be able to proceed on its own without federal assistance."

Transportation Department that they wish to terminate federal aid on "any particular project" in their highway programs.

After the Transportation Secretary receives such notice and approves termination, and the state returns the funds involved, "the particular project shall immediately cease to be a federal aid project and no further federal action shall be required," the legislation states, in part.

After the immunity ruling, the four men were called to the grand jury room but it was believed none of them testified. Judge Brewster was expected to conduct a hearing today on what, if anything, the men told the jury.

Also on Tuesday, Brewster ruled on a request from defense attorneys to determine if telephones in their law offices had been subject to a government wiretap. "I'm going to make further findings on the matter of the wiretapping to the extent that there isn't any," Brewster said he was satisfied with a report from government attorneys that there had been no wiretaps.

Heart Specialist Testifies In $4.5 Million Damage Suit

HOUSTON (AP) — Dr. Denton Cooley testified Tuesday in a $4.5 million damage suit against him that Haikel Karp was near death when he operated on him in 1969.

Cooley performed the world's only artificial heart transplant on Karp after an operation to repair Karp's damaged organ failed.

John Holloway, the lawyer for Mrs. Karp, asked Cooley if the anesthetic given to Karp might have caused his problems.

"It's very likely we opened him without it (anesthetic)," Cooley replied. "They are in an anesthetic state when like that."

Cooley said he had promised Karp he would try an operation to repair the heart but that prior heart attacks had so damaged the organ it was "virtually hopeless." He went ahead and performed the repair job, but the heart would not pump, Cooley added. It was then he implanted the artificial heart until a human heart could be found.

3 Youths Charged In Firebombing Of Houston Home

HOUSTON (AP) — Three persons were charged Tuesday but were still at large in the firebombing of the home of a Houston business executive early Tuesday.

A burning railroad flare was thrown through the window of the home of Ray K. Bullock Sr., vice chairman of Surety Savings Association.

Tower said an overwhelming majority of local citizens favor completion of the expressway and that "this has been evidenced by a petition I have received containing 103,000 signatures."

The State of Texas has withdrawn its request for federal aid on the expressway in an unsuccessful attempt to remove "federal questions" in suits against it.

Dr. Michael DeBakey, another Houston surgeon with extensive experience in heart transplants, was due to testify Tuesday but did not. He left the courthouse after spending an hour and a half in a closed session with U.S. District Court Judge John V. Singleton and lawyers for both sides. It could not be determined whether DeBakey will testify later.

Houston Lawmen Probing Multi-State Theft Ring

HOUSTON (AP) — Investigation of a multi-state theft ring, which officers say may involve two police officers, will continue today.

The police chief of suburban South Houston said Tuesday "it looked like" one of his officers was involved in the alleged ring while intelligence agents with the Department of Public Safety say they plan to question another police officer in the Northeast Texas town of Clarksville.

The agents say the operations of the ring stretch from Texas to Missouri to Florida and involve the stealing on order of motor cars, mobile homes and boats.

The elephant is named Mithura, which means friend in the Sinhala language.
Mrs. Bandaranaike made the presentation Tuesday at Peking's indoor stadium. On hand to receive the elephant were Premier Chou En-lai and six Chinese children, the news agency said in a broadcast monitored here.
FT. CAMPBELL, Kh. (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the retiring Army chief of staff, has presented a Presidential Unit Citation to a unit which he formerly commanded.
Westmoreland, who will step down as chief of staff Friday, ending 33 years of military service, presented the citation to the 3rd Brigade of the 101st Airborne Division, the highest honor presented to a unit by the nation.
During the ceremony Tuesday Westmoreland praised the unit for its "extraordinary heroism in action against the enemy" in Vietnam.
Westmoreland, the former commander of all U.S. forces in South Vietnam, also was commander of the 101st and of Ft. Campbell from April 1958 to June 1960.

Unique Way Of Fighting Crime

EDITOR'S NOTE — It was quiet; the moon cast a light, the woman seemed asleep. The perfect setup for a mugging or robbery. But as the prowler moved in on his victim, hell broke out. Following is a report on New York's latest elite anti-crime group and how it operates.

By MALCOLM CARTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A figure in denim stole from the shadows of Central Park, his eyes flashing in the glow of mercury street lights.

He looked downtown, toward the lights of Broadway, and then uptown, past blocks of fashionable apartment houses and a string of benches against the park wall.

Four benches uptown, he saw a woman seemingly asleep, chin on chest. She wore a loose gray dress with white polka dots, and a white shawl against the summer night's chill. A beige pocketbook hung from her right arm and rested at her hip. Her stringy black hair straggled into her eyes.

But the shadowy figure could not know that the woman was a decoy, a policewoman in wig and costume.

Neither could he know that 16 eyes were watching his every move. They belonged to operatives of New York's new elite police unit, the City-Wide Anti-Crime Squad—CWACS, which has been waging all-out war on street crime here.

This is what happened one night recently in mid-Manhattan:

Because this normally peaceful area where lovers stroll, residents walk dogs and indigents sometimes nap has had a run of muggings and purse-snatchings, the eight policemen disguised as hippies, cab drivers, and thugs had lain wait four hours.

Across Central Park West, a street running for 51 blocks alongside Manhattan's biggest park, a police lieutenant with a Mickey Mouse patch on his dungaree jacket sat in an unmarked car and studied the prowler. Ready to cut his potential escape route through the park were three other policemen.

Thomas Sullivan, in bell-bottom jeans and funny hat, sat holding a styrofoam jug he had taken from a garbage pail and had "filled" with a walkie-talkie.

Daniel Cavello, wearing a fringed buckskin jacket, leafed through a girlie magazine by the moon's light.

With Sullivan was Robert Lucette, whose Army fatigues, beard and floppy black hat made him another unlikely cop.

Looking to his left, downtown, the prowler barely could have noticed an off-duty yellow taxicab, where Patrolman Kenneth McCann slouched behind the wheel.

On a distant bench sat Patrick Quinn, seemingly absorbed in the newspaper he had been reading all night.

Fred Schroeder also had positioned himself on the street, obscured by the shadows. A slim black in dungarees ambled past the prowler, hardly heeded. He was Don Stewart who might have been a potential mugger, but was another cop.

The engine of his squad's late-model vinyl-topped sedan idling. Lt. James Motherway sat with a walkie-talkie in hand.

As the prowler skulked uptown in the direction of 29-year-old Policewoman Mary Glatzel, Motherway breathed into the walkie-talkie. "There's a live one heading her way."

The prowler approached the woman, hesitated in front of her and went on. Half a block away, he stopped, bummed a cigarette, from a passer-by and lit it.

Then he turned toward the woman—known by her colleagues as "Rocky," for her bravery, and "Muggsy," for her success as a decoy. Motherway inched his car closer.

At 10:25 p.m., the prowler plopped onto Mugsy's bench, and the muscles tensed in Motherway's bearded face.

Peering at the motionless woman, the prowler made his move. He sprang toward her and slipped his hand into her pocketbook.

She rose suddenly, brandishing a gun from beneath her shawl. A quick tussle, and the gun barrel slapped against Mugsy's mouth. She fell to her knees, momentarily dazed.

The prowler darted down the sidewalk and swerved to avoid the strangely clad men who popped from everywhere, breaking the evening's tranquility with their shouts.

"Stop!" came a yell. The prowler veered into the intersection where Motherway had maneuvered his car. The headlights flashed on, and the prowler, pursued by a half-dozen gun-wielding patrolmen, raced uncomprehendingly for the vehicle.

The youth could be seen clearly in panic.

Motherway slammed his foot on the brakes. The boy plunged into the hood and slid under the bumper.

Police instantly yanked him to his feet, pressed the uninjured youth against the hood and handcuffed his arms behind his back.

"I didn't do anything," the youth said, over and over. "Taking a pack of cigarettes. That's all I did. I had no bread."

Squeezed into the back seat of Motherway's car on his way to the nearest stationhouse, he muttered in wonderment. "I never saw this before—policewoman on a park bench... with a gun."

Thus the prowler became the 1,618th person this year to have discovered that potential crime victims, and occasionally accomplices, were really the fuzz.

CWACS was organized last October out of the Taxi-Truck Surveillance Unit, which used policemen disguised as cab drivers in real taxis. The unit played a role in cutting robberies against hacks from 492 in July 1970 to 163 last October.

When the new squad was organized, it acquired wigs, Santa Claus outfits, ice cream vendor uniforms, dresses, wheelchairs, bicycles, crutches and other items for disguise.

Why so many volunteers?

MOBILE TV antenna? A self-propelled supermarket cart? The headgear on Art Stancliff's goat would appear to be a puzzler but actually has a very serious purpose. The artificial antlers are to give advance warning when the goat gets too close to the electrified fence surrounding Stancliff's El Paso, Tex., pasture.

Deputy Inspector Anthony Voelker, the commander, says, "Because this is police work the way it should be done."

While the CWACS makes up only 76 per cent of the nation's biggest police force, they account for 1.7 per cent of all arrests here and 3 per cent of all felony arrests.

Its success has led to a $528,000 federal grant, which will supply binoculars, a radio network, theatrical makeup and late-model cars with white-wall tires and jazzy trim not usually found on unmarked police vehicles.

Patrolman Schroeder put it this way: "This has gotta be the most exciting job in the world."

Society's Image Of Madman Changing

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Society's image of the madman is changing. The once-sharp line that seemed to separate sanity from madness is blurring and the American public's concept of mental illness growing more vague.

The violent, seriously disturbed madman isn't so violent or disturbed as he used to be, psychiatrists are finding.

On the other hand, ordinary people whose counterparts a generation ago wouldn't have dreamed of seeking psychiatric help are doing just that today. They want to ease a variety of mental maladies ranging from plain unhappiness to lack of personal identity.

These shifting sands of mental health are concerning many psychiatrists. The subject received considerable attention during the American Psychiatric Association's recent meeting here.

What's responsible? Psychiatrists are perplexed about the answer, but many place the blame on rapidly changing social and cultural values which are producing new stresses on the individual as he attempts to cope with the rigors of life.

"The changes going on in our culture are so fast that we can hardly catch our breath and adjust to them," said Dr. Roy Grinker, professor of psychiatry at the University of Chicago, who presented a scientific paper and then discussed it in an interview.

"Sigmund Freud once said psychoanalysis should be able to help the person adjust to the normally expectable environment," he said. "But now we have to modify that because the normally expectable environment has come to mean the unexpected."

The result has been felt in psychiatrists' offices. "There certainly has been a big change in the kind of people who come to see a psychiatrist," said Dr. Paul Chodoff, a Washington, D.C., psychiatrist in private practice and a clinical professor at George Washington University.

In a scientific paper, Chodoff said the new stresses are producing an "alienated man" who regards himself as a quantity to be marketed. He is searching for a guiding force to give him definition and boundaries.

"In an earlier age, he may have sought his salvation through religion," Chodoff said. "Today, he seeks it through psychotherapy."

Besides seeking psychiatrists to treat the traditional mental problems that don't require hospitalization, such as phobias, patients now seek psychiatric cures for loneliness, unhappiness, lack of fulfillment and lack of personal identity, he said.

Likewise, the public's idea of normal mental behavior is becoming blurred. "There's a big grey area now where there didn't use to be,"

Chodoff said. "There is no sharp dividing line between mental normality and abnormality." "People are more tolerant of deviation in behavior and thinking currently than they were a decade ago," said Dr. Ewald W. Busse, outgoing APA president.

But psychiatrists are puzzled about why the seriously mentally ill who require hospitalization, such as schizophrenics, manic depressives and other psychotics, don't show the severe symptoms they once did.

"Psychoses are changing to the point where they're not so severe, not so dramatic or histrionic," Grinker said. "And they're not requiring so much incarceration in a protective environment."

These changes, gradual at first but now apparently escalating, are causing psychiatrists to re-examine their role.

"Psychiatry has oversold itself or has been overbought and we have tended to become doctors of happiness who are supposed to make everybody gloriously happy all the time," Chodoff said.

"Psychiatrists must bring an end to the popular idea that they have the magic answer to life, Busse said.

"We must tell people trying to cope with what really is a normal problem of life that it's something they're just going to have to live with," he said.

Can man in jail trust 'lady of the evening'?

By Abigail Van Buren
(c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you from the State Penitentiary in Huntsville, Tex., where I have been locked up for two years. I have three more years to serve and here is my problem:

Three months before I got locked up and sent here I met a very lovely young lady. She is 27 and I am 29. She works in the daytime and goes to school three nights a week. She is a "lady of the evening" but that doesn't interfere with her love for me. She writes to me faithfully and says she loves me and will wait for me. She is loyal and true, Miss Abby, and I think about her all the time.

Should I put all my faith and trust in this woman? I believe I really love her. I need your advice and opinion.
VERY TRULY YOURS,
"278946" [Not my real number]

DEAR "TWO": If she has stuck by you, writes faithfully and promises to wait for you, I'd say your faith in her is well justified. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter signed "Troubled Daughter" in which two brothers refused to share with three sisters the responsibility of caring for their elderly mother.

Did you know that in the State of California only sons are responsible [money-wise] for an aged parent who is on welfare, unless the daughter works or has an outside income, regardless of how large her husband's income is?

My husband [an only son] pays over $100 a month to the California Public Welfare office while his three married sisters pay nothing, as they are not employed outside the home.

Our attorney advised us that it is unconstitutional to discriminate against the sexes, but Kings County Department of Public Welfare threatened to take us to court if we don't reimburse them $100 per month.
UNLUCKY TO BE LIVING IN CALIF.

DEAR UNLUCKY: Your letter [accompanied by valid documentation] was a surprise to me. Does anyone out there have an ace to beat that King?

DEAR ABBY: A wife signed "Old Fashioned" wrote to say that she didn't share her husband's yen for X rated movies. If you read between the lines you could see a middle-aged male with a sagging libido. What he needs is a wife who can kindle a few sparks, lose some of her inhibitions and be a little less old fashioned.

Let's face it, that husband is hoping that if he exposes his wife to a few explicit scenes in the biological realm it will give her an inspiration.

It's amazing how dense some women can be when it comes to something as basic as satisfying a man. Prostitutes will tell you that most of their customers are married men. And do you know why? Because that sweet little lady at home knows how to dish out the steak and potatoes, but she's too nice to dish out eroticism in the boudoir.
NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR NORTH: Before blaming the inhibited woman for batting zero in the boudoir, consider this: Psychiatrists tell us that a surprising number of men can perform anywhere except at home because of their inhibitions. Every decent woman is "mother," so they find their pleasure where "mother" isn't.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "YOUR HUSBAND'S MISTRESS," who ends up with, "What good is the status of being a legal wife when all your friends know that your husband is in love with another woman?"

I would like to know since when is love equated with sexual satisfaction? If that man really loved you, he'd have married you first and had his sex later.

Wake up, Sister. You're being used!
Thanks for letting me get this off my chest, Abby.

Mackie Hudgins, Terry Fisk United In Marriage In Iowa

Wedding vows were pledged by Miss Mackie Renielle Hudgins and Terry Lynn Fisk at 3 p.m. Saturday, June 10, in the First Assembly of God Church, Des Moines, Ia.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Hudgins, 2523 Aspen, Pampa. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merlynn Fisk of Des Moines.

THE CEREMONY
Rev. Charles Crabtree, church pastor, officiated for the double-ring ceremony. Dave Gerard was organist, and Miss Sharon Bruce sang "One Hand, One Heart" "Oh Perfect Love," "The Lord's Prayer," and the recessional dedication.

The ceremony was performed before a background of 16-branched candelabra and arrangements of white gladioli and yellow and pink chrysanthemums in white Grecian pedestal urns. The bridal aisle was marked with yellow and white ribbon streamers.

THE BRIDE
Given in marriage by her father, with the "her mother and I avowal," the bride was attired in a floor-length white gown of peau de soie, styled with a bodice, Victorian neckline and leg-of-mutton sleeves of Venice-lace. The empire waistline was accented with a bow. The over-skirt and hemline of the gown were edged with Venice lace, as well as the detachable chapel-length train. Her circular veil of illusion fell from Camelot cap of Venice lace.

ATTENDANTS
Mrs. Ramona Crabtree of Des Moines served her sister as matron of honor, and Miss Glenna Hudgins, another sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Sandy Casady and Miss Sharon Fisk, both of Des Moines.

The bridal attendants wore yellow, pink and avocado green gowns of sheer orlon over satin. They wore yellow picture hats and carried sheer yellow orlon umbrellas accented with flowers.

Candlelighters were Renee Crabtree and Stan Masters, and Rachel Crabtree was flower girl. Rhonda Crabtree was the miniature bride and David Sturtz was ringbearer.

Serving as best man was Merwin Ullestad. Groomsman were Bill Jess, Cliff Casady and Harold Moeckl. Gary Jones was head usher.

MOTHERS
The bride's mother wore an aqua and white dress with white accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a peach-colored knit dress with white accessories. Both wore corsages of mixed flowers.

RECEPTION
Following the ceremony, a reception was held in Alber Hall. The serving table was covered with a yellow lace cloth, centered with a fruit-bowl arrangement. The four-tiered wedding cake was trimmed in yellow, pink and white.

The program at the reception included a wedding toast by Merwin Ullestad. Miss Sharon Bruce sang "Edelweiss" and Miss Shari Messick sang "Now May There Be A Blessing." Rev. Crabtree served as master of ceremonies and presented part of the program. Miss Ramona Crabtree accompanied the soloists.

For the wedding trip to the Land of the Ozarks, the bride wore a white lace dress with white accessories.

AFFILIATIONS
The bride is a 1970 graduate of Pampa High School and a music and business major at Drake University. She is employed by Northwestern Bell Telephone Company, Des Moines. The bridegroom attended schools in Des Moines and is a commercial art major at Drake University.

THURSDAY, JUNE 29 YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY:

Begins a smoother year of steady activity. Business is productive, with occasional mixed going, generally averaging at normal rates. You stabilize long-range plans on a simpler, more mobile basis. Today's natives usually switch from one hobby to another if their job lacks variety.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Cooperation is on the upswing. Get an early start and make the most of it. Diversions—cultural or festive—should fill the later hours.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: You can gather in odds and ends, make sensible progress in reorganizing ventures. Your steadiness in recent days is partially rewarded.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Your persuasive powers are suddenly higher and your mood brighter. Round up friends and relatives, find out what you can do for fun.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Expect more than the surface simplicity to any deal offered. Collective activity thrives above normal level. Relax with a good book.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Test an excellent idea carefully. Home conditions improve as you make long-overdue corrections.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Not as much as you imagine can happen. Your efforts provide most of the drive for today's growth. You have extra marks to make now.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: You have time and space to express an original thought—speak out! Romantic appeal runs thru today's seemingly routine activities.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Plan repairs, home improvements. You have cooperation and a chance to consolidate your position. It's a busy and worthwhile day.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec

21]: Discipline that fly-away mood and get your work done first. Some old puzzles you find sudden solutions to some old puzzles in the rush.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Yesterday recedes readily into past; a fresh start is available, bypassing old obstacles. Release people from their pledges.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Creativity arises in most areas of your daily living. Inspiration comes from romance and from echoes of past happy incidents.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: See what you can work out alone, call in help if you need it. Almost any venture has silent partners backing it.

Wig Wash
Synthetic wigs, especially handy after a day at the beach, should be washed in cold water with a very mild detergent to keep them looking new.

Shower Fetes Martha Myatt

Miss Martha Myatt, bride-elect of Wiley B. (Pete) Cunningham Jr. of Waco, was honored with a miscellaneous shower hosted by Mrs. J. Kirk Duncan, Mrs. Floyd Watson and Mrs. J.B. Veale.

The honoree was presented a corsage of mums surrounded by miniature lemons. Her mother, Mrs. E.A. Myatt, was given a corsage of carnations surrounded by lemon leaves.

Members of the houseparty wore corsages of a small yellow daisy, surrounded by miniature lemons.

In the receiving line were the honoree, her mother and the hostesses. Guests were registered by Miss Beth Watson.

The serving table was covered with a gold linen runner, and centered with an arrangement of lemon leaves, lemons and mums. Presiding at the serving table were Miss Carolyn McKinley and Mrs. Mary Jane Johnson.

Facing Death as a Fact of Life

By DAVID HENDIN
NEA Science Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — In today's outspoken age we are willing to talk about almost every aspect of human life. The most intimate sexual matters, once taboo, are now discussed without hesitation in schools, newspapers and once-staid magazines.

Yet one subject of profound interest to each of us has remained submerged in the murky pond of profanity until very recently. That subject is death.

More than 5,000 Americans die daily. Violent death figures prominently in the news and popular entertainment. Nevertheless, the behavior of the dying and their survivors remains private.

The majority of today's dying are relegated to out-of-the-way beds in hospitals and nursing homes. The death of a loved one is no longer a sad, but peaceful, family matter. Once there was a time when man knew how to die, he was aware of approaching death and he prepared for it. Today, however, the intimate circle of family and friends no longer gathers to exchange final words of love, faith and wisdom.

Loved ones no longer slip away peacefully. Instead, when man goes his mind is fogged by drugs, he is intubated, aerated, glucose and comatose. He is alone, surrounded only, perhaps, by the hissing of life-sustaining oxygen. Surely the dying wonder why, after years of sharing sorrows and joys, they cannot be allowed to face the greatest of all crises with their family.

This combined problem is only one of the factors that have combined to push the study of death and dying (thanatology) into the forefront of concern. Add the profound questions of euthanasia, transplantation and the dilemma of the exact time of death—if there is one. Spice things up with the tantalizing—to some—prospect that a form of immortality, by freezing and later reviving the newly dead, may be possible. Question patterns of grief and bereavement. Ask how professionals can help.

IN DEATH, Socrates saw a striking phenomenon, the cure for life.

The result is a growing interest among thousands of sociologists, psychologists, physicians, lawyers, clergymen and just plain people who will, inevitably, die themselves someday.

"We have shown an unmistakable tendency to put death aside, to eliminate it from life," wrote Sigmund Freud in 1918.

Today we are dusting it off and taking another look. Large segments of the society are interested in a return to humanity, a back-to-earthiness movement. The students of death are among this group.

The Foundation of Thanatology is a few-year-old organization founded by several members of Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons. The prime mover of the foundation is Dr. Austin H. Kutcher, professor of dentistry, who was brought into the field after his own experience with anxiety and grief after learning that his wife was fatally ill with cancer.

Kutcher found that he was almost totally unprepared for the tragedy that struck. Furthermore, he found that little counseling help was available to him or his dying wife.

His organization now publishes three scientific journals, holds regular symposiums and has published a number of books for professionals.

In Boston, the Equinox Institute, led by Dr. Melvin Krant of Lemuel Shattuck Hospital, is another of the new organizations created to encourage a greater interest in the human problems associated with death.

Wayne State University has a center for the study of death, dying and lethal behavior and Chicago, Oregon, Pennsylvania State, Stanford, Rochester, Purdue and Boston universities are among those which have already held major seminars on death. Many more are being planned. Universities holding regular courses on death and dying are finding long lines of students waiting to enroll.

At the 1970 convention of the prestigious American Association for the Advancement of Science, a major symposium on "Problems of the Meaning of Death" was held. The Chicago session was sponsored by the Institute for Society, Ethics and the Life Sciences, a work-study center in Hastings-on-Hudson, New York. The foundation-supported institute also has a task force on death and dying which meets several times a year and uses a multidisciplinary approach. The nation's most eminent theologians, physicians and lawyers attend.

"Our embarrassment at the individual face of death forces the seriously ill dying person to live alone on the brink of an abyss with no one to understand him," says California psychologist Dr. Herman Peifel.

Indeed, while modern medicine has done a great deal to help overcome physical pain, it has accomplished precious little in the way of easing the final burden of loneliness.

"The sting of death is solitude," adds Princeton University theologian Paul Ramsey. "Desertion is more choking than death and more feared."

So, we need compassion. We need discussion. We need education. We need much more. All of it must be carried out on a very large scale, for the layman as well as the professional need help.

History has shown, after all, that dying—natural process that it is for mortal men—need not be so difficult. "If you see anyone distressed at the prospect of dying," remarked Socrates, "it will be proof enough that he is a lover not of wisdom but of the body. As a matter of fact, I suppose he is also a lover of wealth and reputation."

Socrates himself spent his final day of life in prison discussing his philosophy of life with his students. Even when he drank the fatal cup of hemlock, the courageous philosopher maintained tranquility of body and mind. With his final words, Socrates asked that thanks be given for him to the God of Healing, for in death this great man saw "a striking phenomenon, the cure for life."

AD REVENUE UP IN MAGAZINES
NEW YORK (AP) — The first four months of 1972 saw magazine advertising revenue up 8 per cent over the same period a year ago, according to the Magazine Publishers Assn. Stephen E. Kelly, president of the association, said this was the largest January-to-April revenue in magazine history.

'Texas' Musical Drama Opens In Canyon Park

CANYON — The seventh season of the "Texas" production opened with full houses for the first three performances.

As part of the opening night ceremonies, visiting editors were presented with miniature bedrolls about three inches wide made by the committee of Miss Ruth Cross who was chairman of the gala opening festivities. Many papers sent photostats of their early editions for display, other materials were furnished by the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum in Canyon. A number of deaf people attended the Friday production and the production was interpreted in sign language for their information by Charles Bell and Cherry Burk of Amarillo.

There will be a special performance on July 2, Sunday evening. Otherwise the cast will not appear on Sundays, but will play all other evenings through Aug. 26.

For tickets and information, write Box 268, Canyon, Tex., or call 806-655-2182.

State Rep. Christian Named To Who's Who In Politics

AUSTIN (Sp.) — State Rep. Tom Christian of Claude was recently named to Who's Who in Politics in the South and Southwest.

The book, to be published later in the year, provides a resource of biographical data of men and women who make up local, state and national government. In addition, the publication renders honor and recognition to those in public service. Rep. Christian's biography will join those of Governors, United States Senators, Congressmen and other political leaders in the South and Southwestern United States.

Rep. Christian was elected to the Texas House of Representatives in 1968 and ran unopposed for a second term in 1970.

A director of the Panhandle Livestock Association and the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, Rep. Christian also holds membership in the Sons of the American Revolution and the Sons of the Republic of Texas.

Senate Unit Okays Bill Outlawing Commercial Sale Of Small Handguns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday approved a bill to outlaw the commercial sale of small concealable type handguns not suitable for sporting purposes.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., was approved by a 12-2 vote after the Hiroshima Have The atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima, Japan, by the B-29 Superfortress Enola Gay in 1945 destroyed 4.7 square miles of the city. An estimated 70,000 persons were either killed or missing.

African Bird The secretary bird of Africa was named by early naturalists who observed that an erectile tuft of long black feathers on the back of the head looked like a secretary with quill pens in his hair, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Philip is a Greek name which means "lover of horses."

committee turned down a rival measure of Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb.

Three bills offered by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to require the registration of all firearms, or the licensing of both long guns and handguns and of only handguns were rejected by one-sided margins.

The handguns used in the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in 1968 and in the attempted assassination of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace last month would be banned from sale under the legislation.

The shooting of Wallace during his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination spurred action by the committee on Bayh's bill, which had been lying dormant for over a year.

The only two committee members who voted against approval of Bayh's bill were chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., and Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

Hruska supported Bayh's bill after his own proposal, based on standards of safety and reliability for the sale of handguns, was defeated.

Gun-control proponents argued, as they have following the assassinations of other political figures, that the Wallace shooting was further evidence of the need for greater restrictions.

But the National Rifle Association, the most visible opponent of restrictions, replied that new prohibitions would not keep guns out of the hands of a determined assassin.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see others to see its blessing.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Union Vs. Archie

The Teamsters Union has decided that the image of the "average worker" is suffering from Archie Bunker.

Who's Archie Bunker? He's that dingbat on television who is ignorant, amusing, a confirmed racist and the husband of the funniest woman in the world.

But Focus, a new Teamster publication, says more and more blue-collar workers resent Archie as a television writer's vision of what the average laboring man must be.

Hah! We doubt that a show which depicted the average worker as a nice, quiet, clean-cut guy who does his eight hours, moonlights a couple of hours at the corner service station and goes home to fall asleep reading the paper would attract many viewers.

Anyway, Archie is a refreshing relief from the other extreme in which the black must always be a brain surgeon of national repute or a nuclear physicist, the policeman must be fat, smoke cigars and wear a derby.

We cannot defend the wise guys in the national columns who tend to categorize everyone and everything with their "in" jokes, either by talking about the Archie Bunker vote or by labeling Spiro a meathead.

All we can suggest is that they leave Archie alone since they have already straightened out the world by eliminating prayer in schools, wiping out any reference to color in Stephen Foster's Old Black Joe and busing for racial balance.

And we must ask one question in reference to "image" and the Teamsters Union.

What makes the Teamsters experts on image?

Three Failures

Three times in recent years, the United States has empowered full scale wage-price bureaucracies of the scope recommended by Meany.

The demand by AFL-CIO President George Meany to the congressional Joint Economic Committee for a sweeping new bureaucracy to enforce rigid price controls across the board or to drop all efforts to restrain wages and prices turns back the pages of memory.

The experience the nation gained from those efforts is hardly encouraging. During the period of actual hostilities, wage and price controls led to many abuses and black marketeering.

Moreover, a bureaucratic army of more than 60,000 civil servants was mustered during World War II to administer price controls—an inflationary force in itself.

Nor was the experience more fruitful between 1950 and 1953. More than 17,000 government employees applied for more modest wage and price control efforts during the Korean conflict—at an annual cost of $137 million.

The experience with full-scale price controls during the three wars and immediate post-war periods was summarized eloquently by Economist John M. Clark to the Senate Banking and Currency Committee in 1960.

There was no mention in news stories of the summit talks on agreements for inspection, either by the contracting parties or neutral nations. Orbiting satellites can obtain a lot of intelligence on the construction of silos for nuclear missiles but they do not guarantee that we shall know everything the Russians are doing to stockpile weapons aimed at destroying the U.S. and its allies.

The strategic arms limitation treaty still must be approved by the United States Senate and we as citizens who don't want to see our country subjected to future nuclear blackmail can still get going on a campaign to influence that high legislative body.

Quick Quiz

Q—Why is ammonia commonly called spirits of harts-horn?

A—Because it was first obtained by boiling and distilling the horns of animals, chiefly deer.

Q—When was the first birth control clinic opened in the United States?

A—On Oct. 16, 1917, Margaret Sanger and associates opened it in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Question Box

QUESTION: Why were we able to win a war against Japan and Germany combined in four years and not be able to win one with a tiny country like North Vietnam? They say it is money, and our boys die for this?

ANSWER: It would appear that World War II is the last one in which the politicians had the avowed purpose of winning, if anyone wins a war.

We do not believe most politicians are in war for money. There no doubt are some interests which receive financial gain from wars, and obviously those interests would be in favor of electing politicians favorable to war.

Since World War II, the United States politicians have taken upon themselves the task of policing the world. Where once it was said the sun never sets on the British Empire, it now is said equally truthfully that the sun doesn't set on U.S. soldiers, who are scattered around the world.

It is noted that in World War II, the U.S. politicians helped build up the world power of Communist Russia and China. Since then, politicians of this nation have been reacting defensively at various parts of the world when those communist powers continue their previously announced expansion.

It is generally agreed that there is increasing loss of freedom in a nation at war. It seems ironic that the United States would claim to be defending freedom in other nations, while destroying or infringing freedom of its own citizens by its warlike activities.

"Now We Can Kill Everybody on Earth. He Can Only Kill What's Left!"

Inside Washington

Peace in Vietnam Nears—Red War Machine Stalling By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — There will be a Vietnam cease-fire in a matter of weeks—possibly by Aug. 1.

It depends on the outcome of extremely delicate dialogues between Washington, Peking, Moscow and Hanoi—which have been underway for about a month.

These potentially fateful exchanges could jell very quickly into concrete results. They also could evaporate in frustrating futility—as has happened in the past.

Moscow and Peking appear to be desirous of bringing the years-long Vietnam warring to an end. If that is the case, Hanoi will have to go along.

INSPECTIONS OMITTED The nuclear arms agreement signed by the United States and Soviet Union in Moscow left this country on the short end of the stick, even on the face of the pact.

The Russian, whose trademark is secrecy, can and probably will go one better in the development of operational nuclear weapons.

There was no mention in news stories of the summit talks on agreements for inspection, either by the contracting parties or neutral nations.

Orbiting satellites can obtain a lot of intelligence on the construction of silos for nuclear missiles but they do not guarantee that we shall know everything the Russians are doing to stockpile weapons aimed at destroying the U.S. and its allies.

The strategic arms limitation treaty still must be approved by the United States Senate and we as citizens who don't want to see our country subjected to future nuclear blackmail can still get going on a campaign to influence that high legislative body.

It will take a lot of letters, telephone calls and personal contacts where possible.

It is to be hoped that the great majority of our Senate has studied the treacherous record of the communists and has learned that they can't be trusted.

Now a nuclear arms limitation agreement has been signed which gives the Russians the advantage in all categories except anti-ballistic missiles.

While the North Vietnamese offensive has been largely aborted, it is still potentially dangerous. The Communists still have the capability of striking limited but heavy blows.

Another significant omission in the news stories originating from Moscow is any agreement that might have been reached on the release of our prisoners of war in Indochina.

As we contact the members of the Senate, we should keep those prisoners in mind. They must never be forgotten.

There are two kinds of fools. One says, "This is old, therefore it is good." The other says, "This is new, therefore it is better."

Whether they will be able to use them is conjectural. They are under intense air bombardment.

Your Health

Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Altitudes O.K. For Emphysema?

Dear Dr. Lamb—Do you think it would be harmful for a person who has emphysema to visit some western states where the altitude is 5,500 feet high?

Dear Reader—Characteristically, emphysema obstructs the outflow of air from the lungs. The trapped air loses a certain amount of its oxygen and as a result the air in the emphysema lung usually contains less oxygen than the normal lung.

The more severe the emphysema, the less oxygen the actually will be within the lung itself. In a sense the person with emphysema already lives at altitude. Thus, when a person with this type of lung disease goes to an altitude of even 5,000 feet it can be the same as going to a much higher altitude.

People do live at relatively high altitudes. Some even live at altitudes of over 14,000 feet, but it requires that they become adapted to these levels over a period of time. I can't specifically answer your question in your individual case because some people with mild emphysema can tolerate altitudes of around 5,000 feet and some can't.

It would be wise for such a person to avoid any unnecessary physical exertion, particularly when they first arrive at this altitude, permitting time for the body to adjust to the altitude. Then you also have to consider the problems associated with going to nearby mountains at higher altitudes or driving over roads that carry you to higher altitudes in reaching your destination.

In general we consider that Denver is just about the physiological threshold and that altitudes below 5,000 feet don't cause most people any real difficulties unless they are doing lots of physical exertion or have very severe lung disease.

At altitudes above 5,000 feet changes in the body in relationship to altitude begin to be significant.

Commercial jet aircraft keep the cabin altitude below 7,000 feet even if the jet is at 40,000 feet. For people seated quietly, altitudes of 7,000 feet cause no problems unless again there are severe underlying medical problems to begin with.

The possibility that cabin altitude can be 7,000 feet though is a good reason for everyone who has a significant medical problem to get their doctor's O.K. for air travel. For most people, the problems at the terminal, such as baggage and schedules will be more stressful than the cabin altitude.

Marilyn Manion 'Law And Order' Still A Controversial Issue

"Law and Order" remains a large and controversial issue as the 1972 Presidential campaign gains speed. The Liberal Experts contend that the poor criminal doesn't get all of the rights he's entitled to. But to those of us who no longer venture out of the house alone after dark, the "rights" of our would-be attackers seem well down on the list of law-enforcement priorities.

Frank C. Carrington is the Executive Director of a novel organization that takes the side of the police and public. Americans for Effective Law Enforcement is a citizen's group which is setting up local chapters all over the country. On a national scale, Americans for Effective Law Enforcement has achieved a phenomenal record of success in winning key cases for law enforcement.

Carrington described his organization's work when he spoke over the Manion Forum Radio Program. Here is what he said: "It is, I think, best described as a counterweight in the area of criminal law to the American Civil Liberties Union and organizations such as that which are totally concerned with the rights of the criminal suspect. We are concerned with the victims of crime and the potential victims."

Carrington described a case which Americans for Effective Law Enforcement recently won: "The Turco vs. Allen case was a case in which the Federal District Court in Baltimore was asked by the Black Panther Party, through their attorney William Kunstler, to enjoin the Baltimore City Police Department from 'infiltrating, surveilling, or otherwise interfering with' in effect, they wanted the court to tell the Baltimore City Police Department not to investigate the Black Panther Party."

"The Black Panther Party in Baltimore had, in an earlier case, been enjoined by a court, at least temporarily, from giving out hate literature which called for the murder of policemen. One policeman was murdered in exactly the way this hate literature called for. And based on this, we felt that the police had every right, not only a right, but a duty, to investigate the Black Panther Party."

"The American Civil Liberties Union came in and entered the case in support of the Black Panther Party, in effect supporting their right to call for the killing of policemen."

Americans for Effective Law Enforcement also entered the case of the Chicago Seven. "Judge Hoffman", said Carrington, "sentenced the Chicago Seven defendants and their attorney, William Kunstler and Leonard Weinglass, to very long terms for contempt of court for the way they behaved. We have entered the case and have asked the Court of Appeals to uphold these contempt citations. We feel that if people are permitted to make a mockery, a circus, out of a courtroom—this happened in Judge Hoffman's courtroom—that in this lies the seeds of destruction of our whole legal system. If people can't behave themselves in court and resolve their differences in a proper judicial manner then what use is law enforcement or anything else?"

Carrington pointed out that at least three organizations—the American Civil Liberties Union, a Chicago Counsel of Lawyers, and the Center for Constitutional Rights in New York had entered the case in support of the Chicago Seven. But, he said, "If citizens would get involved, take a stand against lawlessness and in favor of proper law enforcement, the future of law enforcement can be very encouraging."

There is your invitation to do something about law and order instead of just worrying about it. Write to the Manion Forum, South Bend, Indiana, for more details about this organization, and how you can become a part of it.

Linda Jenness is challenging George McGovern, Hubert Humphrey and Richard Nixon for the highest office in the land. But she doesn't expect to win. For one thing, she's too young according to the Constitution, and in fact

She'd Rather Be Revolutionary Than Be President

By RALPH NOVAK

BOSTON—(NEA)—It's not an unusual crowd for a political rally in 1972. Mostly young people, from early teens to mid 20s, simmering and fidgeting with the excitement of being involved, nervously anxious as they wait to hear a talk by their presidential candidate.

But this meeting, in a bright, clean hall that seems incongruous in the dingy area-around South Station, is in the local headquarters of the Socialist Workers Party (SWP). And the party's candidate for president in 1972 is Linda Jenness, who bears as much resemblance to George McGovern or Hubert Humphrey or Richard Nixon as your local Good Humor man does to the chairman of the board of General Motors.

For one thing, Ms. Jenness (she prefers just plain "Jenness") does not insist that she will win. For another, she knows that even if some electoral miracle happened and she did win the election, she could not legally be president, since she is only 31 years old and the Constitution says you have to be 35 to be president. And finally, when you get right down to it, Ms. Jenness does not even want to be president.

"We don't have any illusions about changing this country through the electoral system," she says. "This campaign is just an opportunity for us to gain some new members, to challenge some restrictive election laws and generally to alert people to the undemocratic nature of the whole capitalist society."

The SWP is, after all, a revolutionary socialist party. Its goal is to end private ownership of factories and resources — the "means of production."

Marxism has been downplayed in the party's use of the electoral system to attack the Vietnam war, sexism, racism, inflation and the rest of the catalogue of ills that confound even Americans who can't tell dialectical materialism from the chicken pox. But nobody denies that the party is revolutionary.

Jeanne Lafferty, an SWP candidate for Congress from a Massachusetts district says, "Everybody thinks we want to storm the White House with rifles and take over. We would if we could but we know that it would be absurd to try that right now, so we use the electoral system instead."

Ms. Jenness dresses conservatively and looks like a schoolteacher, which creates a nonrevolutionary image she says she has to overcome when talking to radicals. She is no rookie, however.

She ran as the SWP candidate for governor of Georgia (1970) and mayor of Atlanta (1969). And she emerged unscathed even after getting knocked off the ballot at the last minute both times by what she calls "discriminatory election laws designed to keep everybody but the Democrats and Republicans off the ballot."

A former secretary, Ms. Jenness was raised in a middle class Oklahoma family (her father, a veterinarian, is "still a reactionary," she says, shrugging) but was alerted to the problems in American society by the early civil rights movement and has been finding things wrong ever since.

Her nomination came at the SWP convention in Cleveland last August.

She has secured a place on the November ballot in three states already and says she expects to be on about 27 more. She can avoid the Constitutional age limit in most states because voters actually pick electors who are pledged to vote for a candidate, not the candidate himself, and in others the party will use the names of eligible candidates on the ballot to substitute for her and her running mate, Andrew Pulley, a 21-year-old black.

In any case, for Ms. Jenness getting there is more than half the fun, it is all of it. She is campaigning nationwide, armed with an impressive memory for facts and figures and a speaking style that is unexciting but earnest.

She and nearly 100 local SWP candidates in 15 states are backed by a campaign fund of about $500,000 (the money comes from speaking engagements — at $500 per speech for Ms. Jenness — collections and individual contributions from individuals and sympathetic groups), a slick publicity operation and a hard core party membership of about 4,000.

Her appearance here drew about 200 people, ranging from the mildly interested to the fanatic. One of them was a 59-year-old plumber, a socialist for 36 years, who kept saying, "I've never seen anything like it" as the young SWP leaders celebrated the successful end of a three-week petitioning drive to place their candidates on the ballot in Massachusetts.

The drive ended, the leaders said, with more than 100,000 signatures. Most of the signers were not socialists, of course.

Ms. Jenness, in fact, says that at best, with somebody other than George McGovern running as the Democratic candidate in November, she would expect to get no more than 250,000 votes nationwide. Even that would be an achievement of sorts.

But Ms. Jenness and the rest of the SWP — no doubt aware of the fact that all of history's revolutions have started among small, elitist groups — are optimistic beyond all bounds of reasonable expectation.

"We are going through a period of tremendous radicalization in this country," she says. "People are becoming more and more aware that there is a group of 30,000 or 40,000 people who make all the decisions about everything that happens in this country. And they will see that with the profit motive as the end-all and be-all of existence, all the problems of war, poverty, racism and sexism we have are not just an accident, they are inevitable."

Maybe you can ignore her. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Can Coyote Outthink Man?

By ROBERT E. FORD Associated Press Writer

Possibly the world's most lonesome sound can be heard throughout the West provided the listener is at the right place at the right time.

This is anywhere in rough country on a clear night. From somewhere far away comes a cry, rising and falling, as if the heart were being torn from something living.

Actually, it is nothing more than coyote trying out his vocal cords.

The Indians believed he was the smartest animal around, and created legends about him.

The coyote possesses many of the traits that the Indian needed before he was forced onto reservations.

He was intelligent, clever, an expert on hit and run raids, and could melt away into the wilderness so that his enemies couldn't find him.

Mr. Coyote is having one of his good times right now, and we'll wager that he's in his den right now laughing his furry head off at his latest victory.

This is because the federal government has switched over to his side, in effect.

So now a new howl is heard in the land—coming from ranchers and chicken raisers. They howl pretty good, too.

This triumph for what the encyclopedia calls the Prairie Wolf came this year when President Nixon banned use of coyote poison on federal land and the Environmental Protection Agency stopped interstate shipment of predator control poisons.

For, smart as he is, the coyote isn't a very good chemist and can't distinguish a poison from a non-poison.

Particularly he hasn't learned to cope with a device which, when he takes a tug at a piece of meat, flips poison into his throat far enough down so that he can't spit it out.

Ranchers, particularly sheep and goat raisers, protested loudly in Washington against the ban of poison. They estimate that coyotes, even with widespread use of poison, cost them $17 million in 1970 in animal losses.

They offered another deal to the government: Pay them damages if poisons are completely banned. They estimate the coyote population will explode to the point that their losses will be 50 million annually.

The government, in the person of Nathaniel Reed, assistant secretary of the Interior Department, said poison really isn't necessary.

Advised Reed: use packs of killer dogs or airborne hunters to control the coyote population.

This sounds very good on paper. But it just doesn't work that way.

Killer dogs do not stop killing just because they've chased the coyotes away. They turn to killing stock, too, and can be worse than coyotes.

Or take the experience a few years ago of a rancher-farmer on the edge of the Wichita Breaks between Seymour and Wichita Falls.

He got tired of coyotes and bought several greyhounds who surely could outrun a coyote and kill it.

The greyhounds drove the coyotes deep into the breaks for a time. Then the dogs disappeared.

The rancher-farmer never knew whether the dogs: 1. Were killed by the coyotes, 2. Decided to run away, or 3. joined the coyotes.

Asst. Secy. Reed apparently doesn't know much about coyote habits, else he wouldn't have suggested shooting them from the air.

Eagles can be shot from the air, as bird lovers know, but coyotes are not birds of the same feather.

They prowl at night mostly, and until riflemen develop night eyes there isn't much chance of seeing one so they can shoot.

In daylight, coyotes mainly hide in dens or other places where they can't be seen. Seeing a coyote is somewhat unusual.

Out in West Texas you probably could get another western type war started between ranchers and farmers over coyotes.

One time the ranchers pretty well rid Baylor County of coyotes. So what moved in? Jack-rabbits.

The rabbits started chewing on the farmers' crops—there being no coyotes around to catch the fast little beasts.

So the farmers had to organize great rabbit drives to save their crops.

The balance of nature is very delicate. So what are you going to save—livestock or crops?

Environmentalists say the coyotes do not inflict damage heavy enough on ranchers to warrant their destruction through poison.

And we can just see an angry rancher waving that $17 million loss bill in their faces.

W. M. Sims of San Angelo told a congressional committee last April that 80 per cent of all predators killed were destroyed by poison. Others said shooting and trapping simply could not keep the coyote population within bounds.

Most of the poison-ban objections made in the congressional hearing came from ranchers, but the farm housewife should have her say, too. A coyote can pretty well clean out a hen house any night.

Only the turkey knows how to protect itself. This must be because he grew up with the coyote over whatever eons they existed together in America. Give a turkey the chance and it will roost in the highest tree around and never on the ground. He knows Mr. Coyote can't climb trees.

Muhammad Ali Wins As Quarrys Are Defeated

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Muhammad Ali wants Joe Frazier and Bob Foster wants a bout with Ali after a short and sad night of boxing for the Quarry brothers.

After the Quarrys were stopped in their fights Tuesday night, a Quarry relative wound up in jail after a melee in the 100 seats after the Ali-Jerry Quarry bout in Las Vegas Convention Center.

The 30-year-old Ali, 216½, clowned with 27-year-old Jerry, 198, early in their heavyweight bout. He stood in the corner and gestured as if to say, "Come on. Give me your best punch."

Ali, making Quarry his sixth victim in six bouts since losing to heavyweight champion Frazier last year, started hitting Jerry at will in the fifth round and punished him with innumerable blows in the sixth.

Ali landed about a dozen blows before the fight was stopped 19 seconds into the seventh round.

Meanwhile the Quarry clan argued with other fans after Jerry was defeated. Mother Arawanda and sister Diane were involved, along with Robert Colbaugh, 23, of Norwalk, Calif., a brother-in-law of Mike and Jerry.

As security guards restrained Mike, Clark County Sheriff's deputies arrested Colbaugh, who was booked for investigation of battery and held on $250 bail. No other arrests were reported.

Despite their troubles, there were cash rewards for the Quarrys—$200,000 for Jerry and $45,000 for Mike. Ali earned $500,000 and Foster $80,000 as the crowd of 6,549 in the 7,500 seat arena paid $349,800—a Nevada record gate.

Meanwhile, Ali, who previously has indicated he would fight Foster, said, "I'm back. I'm ready for Frazier. He's got to come out. He's been fighting nobody."

Foster called Mike the best challenger he's faced and said he tagged him with the same punch combination he used to KO Dick Tiger for the title in 1968.

Foster, who upped his record to 48-5 with 41 knockouts, said, "I'd like to fight a guy like Muhammad Ali. Him and I are the same type of fighters. I'll take him any time."

S&J And Cabot Are LL Champs

S&J Mart beat Motor Inn 6-3 last night to clinch the American Little League championship. Steve Stout was the winning pitcher.

S&J got all of its runs in the fourth inning. Three men were walked. Harrell got by on an error and Stout hit a grand slam home run.

Cabot beat Moose Lodge 8-3 in 10 innings to wrap up the NL championship. Kerry Braddock came in to pitch in the seventh and got the victory. Cabot got five runs in the tenth to win.

In Babe Ruth play Ideal beat First National Bank 4-3 in the opener. Edmondson got the win.

Cree blanked Grant Supply 2-0 in the nightcap with Leverich on the mound. Leverich got two doubles in three trips to the plate to lead all hitters.

Cree will play Ideal in Friday night's first game. First National will take on Grant in the second tilt.

Hull Gets $2.5 Million To Sign With The WHA

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP) — Blake Hull, overhearing a conversation about his hockey-playing father, interrupted: "Can they really sue my dad?"

The question delivered by the 10-year-old son of Bobby Hull is very timely, especially after Tuesday's chain of events.

Hull, who starred for 15 seasons with the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, signed contracts worth $2.5 million to serve as player-coach of the new World Hockey Association's Winnipeg Jets.

The 33-year-old "Golden Jet" appeared at a St. Paul, Minn., news conference Tuesday morning to sign a personal services contract and receive a $1 million certified check from WHA Properties Ltd.

Then Hull, his wife and three of their five children, flew aboard a chartered jet with WHA officials to Winnipeg to sign a $1.5-million playing contract with the Jets.

WHA officials called it the largest contract paid to a professional hockey player.

"His playing contract was signed here in Winnipeg," Donald J. Regan, WHA general counsel said from league headquarters in Santa Ana, Calif. "And it is governed by the laws of Manitoba."

"If the Black Hawks and the NHL would like to sue the Winnipeg Jets in Winnipeg, I think they'll have a tough row to hoe."

There was no immediate comment from the Black Hawks or NHL President Clarence Campbell if a suit would be filed maintaining that Hull had not played out his option, even though his contract had expired.

Hull said he didn't think Arthur and William Wirtz, chief executives of the Black Hawks, would take him to court.

"I think the Wirtz' will consider this as a business transaction," Hull said. "If they do, I think they are barking up the wrong tree. I have no regrets, no ax to grind. The WHA is going to be as great as the NHL some day. My main concern now is to make the league go. I'm hoping a few more of the boys will come over now."

Hull was the 91st player the WHA has signed and the 34th with NHL experience.

A WHA spokesman said 24 more players have signed but "the other teams didn't want their announcements to get lost in the middle of the Hull signing."

The WHA, gearing for its first season in the fall, has franchises at Albert, Chicago, Cleveland, Houston, Los Angeles, Minnesota, New England, New York, Ottawa, Philadelphia, Quebec and Winnipeg.

Hull said he will play, as well as coach, for at least five more years. He then would serve as an executive in the front office.

"I've still got a lot of good hockey left in me," Hull said.

Graebner Meets Nastase At Center Court Today

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Clark Graebner the fierce-serving American tennis star, renews a bitter old personal rivalry today in a bid toward winning the Wimbledon title.

Graebner was scheduled to play his old foe Ilie Nastase of Romania, in the second round on Wimbledon's center court.

Nastase, a 25-year-old gypsy who was once a "herd boy," is the No. 2 seed and is expected to meet Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., in the final.

The last time Graebner and Nastase played each other was at London's Royal Albert Hall in January. That match ended in one of the most astonishing scenes ever seen on a tennis court.

Graebner climbed over the net and grabbed Nastase by his shirt. The Romanian walked off the court claiming he had been intimidated.

"It had better not happen on the center court," said an official of the All-England club.

"We have given all players a stern warning that anyone who misbehaves in any way will be instantly disqualified."

Graebner, of New York, is sore because the Wimbledon Committee left him out of the seedings.

Nastase is one man in a three-pronged East European thrust for the Wimbledon title.

The others are Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, seeded No. 5, and Alexander Metreveli of Russia, seeded No. 8. Both learned their tennis on hard courts but got into the seeding list because the grass court stars of the World Championship Tennis professional group are not competing.

Metreveli, who spent the winter playing on the grass courts of Australia, came from behind to beat Patrice Dominguez of France 7-9, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 in the second round Tuesday.

Smith reached the third round, beating Hank Irvine of Rhodesia 6-4, 9-8, 6-3, without reaching the form that took him to last year's final.

Two more U.S. Davis Cuppers, Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., and Erik Van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif., both won their first round matches.

Meanwhile, the fans still were waiting to see Chris Evert, the 17-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Late Tuesday, they were getting ready to welcome her on the No. 1 court. Onny Parun of New Zealand was on match point against Andres Gimeno of Spain, and Chris was due next.

But Gimeno, the No. 4 seed, saved the match point and kept Chris waiting in her dressing room for the next 80 minutes.

Then with the score at two sets all and 3-3 in the fifth, the match was halted by rain.

It was scheduled to resume today.

Suns May Sign von Breda Kolff

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Phoenix Suns of the National Basketball Association were to name a successor to coach Cotton Fitzsimmons today. Bill van Breda Kolff appeared to be the strongest contender.

Shortly after the Phoenix Gazette reported Tuesday that Van Breda Kolff probably would have the job within 24 hours, the Suns called a noon press conference to name Fitzsimmons' successor.

"Everyone is welcome to speculate as much as they want," said Suns general manager Jerry Colangelo. "We do have a press conference scheduled for noon today and he may or may not be the man selected."

Van Breda Kolff, the 50-year old former Los Angeles Detroit coach, went to the Lakers five years ago after putting together a combined 308-108 record at Lafayette, Hofstra and Princeton.

Group Sues Jim McDaniels

NEW YORK (AP) — A suit against Jim McDaniels, who broke a $1.5-million contract with the Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association to play for the Seattle SuperSonics, was filed Tuesday in state Supreme Court.

Athletes Advisory Group, which negotiated Daniels' pact with the Cougars, claimed in its suit, which also names as defendants the SuperSonics and the National Basketball Association, that the former Western Kentucky star paid it $10,000 in commissions and still owes $65,000.

Under the contract, signed by McDaniels in 1970 when he was a student, he was to begin playing for Carolina in the 1971-2 season, and was to receive $1,425,000 for six seasons, the suit said.

STAPLE GUN with staples $14.85 value with your purchase of three or more cartons of a Chandelier Ceiling

Take a look at the nicest rooms in your home. You've spent lots of time—and all that money—to make sure your furniture, floor, walls, and accessories match. Now look at the ceiling. It doesn't match anything. But you can complete the picture with an Armstrong Chandelier Ceiling you install yourself. Choose from Early American, Spanish, French Provincial, or four other handsome designs that complement any style. It's so easy! The rich texture flows so smoothly from wall to wall, it's hard to believe you're looking at a tile ceiling. Most designs also soak up noise, to make rooms nicer to live in. Buy a Chandelier Ceiling now, and you also get a free Swingline® Heavy-Duty Staple Gun. It's yours to keep for hundreds of other household uses. Hurry, supply is limited!

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

Ivan shows that many young husbands subconsciously fear that their wives may NOT get pregnant. The wives, however, usually fear that they will. So read this problem with care. And send for the "Pregnancy Booklet" when you wish to bear a baby!

CASE U-521: Ivan K., aged 22, is engaged.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "my family is Russian in background."

"And my grandfather says in the old country, a girl who had borne a baby before marriage was often regarded more highly than a virgin."

"For she had demonstrated her ability to get pregnant."

"But here in America most women seem obsessed with a desire to avoid pregnancy, even after marriage."

"What happens to them if they later want children and then find that they cannot conceive?"

"Isn't this famous 'Pill' a great cause of mental problems, as well as possible medical dangers?"

"PILL" VS. PREGNANCY
Ivan is quite correct in saying the "Pill" causes many wives to become neurotic.

Many college men who are cohabiting with girl classmates and even living with them in common-law marriage, routinely have their coed roommates employ the "Pill."

"Dr. Crane," they have often casually remarked, "There can't be much danger from the 'Pill' can there?"

"Otherwise, far more coeds would be dead on college campuses!"

"And if, by long shot odds, my girl friend should have a blood clot and die, that would be bad, I'll admit."

"But she isn't my wife, you know, so I could easily pick up another coed to sleep with!"

Lurking in the subconscious mind of the usual woman on the "Pill" are these vague fears:

(1) Will the "Pill" shorten my life in some manner?
(2) Will it prevent my becoming pregnant later on when I want a baby?

(3) Would its use prior to pregnancy leave any medical ill effects when I do get pregnant, and thus produce a defective baby?

In general, modern medical answer "No" to all of those questions.

But there are exceptions, for medical often find unexpected ill effects later on, when the first impact with a new drug seems 100 per cent successful.

It often takes an entire generation to be sure as to the possible dangerous side effects of new drugs or hormones.

Young wives should have their babies early.

And if you young wives find you can't get pregnant, then you will not need the "Pill."

In a previously sterile wife who menstruates regularly and whose husband is not sterile, pregnancy can often be produced by use of the alkaline douche immediately prior to mating.

Also, timing is essential, for there may be only a 6 to 12 hour interval in the entire month when a wife can conceive.

So send for my booklet "Facts About Pregnancy," enclosing a long, stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane, Hopkins Bldg., Mellott, Indiana 47958, enclosing a long, stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Wednesday, June 28, the 180th day of 1972. There are 186 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1914, the heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, was assassinated at Sarajevo, Bosnia. It was the spark that set off World War I.

On this date: In 1778, the Revolutionary War Battle of Monmouth, N.J., was fought.

In 1902, the United States bought the uncompleted Panama Canal from France.

In 1919, the Versailles Treaty was signed in France after the first World War.

In 1941, in World War II, guerrilla warfare against the Nazis began in Yugoslavia.

In 1944, a Republican National Convention in Chicago nominated New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for president.

In 1945, in the Pacific war, the United States announced that the Philippine Island of Luzon had been retaken from the Japanese.

Ten years ago: The U.N. General Assembly called on Britain to hold a constitutional conference to give adequate political representation to African people in Southern Rhodesia.

Five years ago: King Hussein of Jordan met in Washington with President Lyndon B. Johnson to discuss the plight of Jordan after the six-day Middle East war.

One year ago: The U.S. Supreme Court banned state aid for parochial schools as a violation of the Constitution's provision separating church and state.

Today's birthdays: Composer Richard Rodgers is 70. New York Democratic Congressman William William F. Ryan is 50.

Thought for today: Everyone thinks his own burden heavy—French proverb.
