Jail fire asphyxiates 42; youth charged

COLUMBIA. Tenn (AP) - A youth who admitted setting a jail fire that killed 42 persons had twice been taken into custody in Wisconsin in connection with arson or a threat of arson, authorities said today Andrew Zinmer. 16. was taken to a Nashville hospital in critical condition Sunday after a fire in his foam rubber padded cell at the Maury County Jail unleashed toxic fumes that killed 34 inmates and eight visitors

Maury County Dist Atty Gen Robert H Gay said he planned to charge Zinmer with arson and would ask to have him tried as an adult

Roy Martinson, police chief in Superior. Wis, said authorities had first picked up Zinmer on Feb 28, 1975, in connection with a fire at the Board of Trade Building

Martinson said Zinmer did not admit setting the fire and was referred to a guidance clinic in Superior after the incident

Martinson said the last contact police had with the youth was on June 17, 1976, in connection with a threat of arson At that time he was taken to a home for problem children, the chief said

Attempts to rescue the victims of Sunday's fire were hampered when a deputy sheriff carrying keys to the jail's 12 cells collided with fleeing visitors. He dropped the keys on the floor and was unable to find them for about 12 minutes. officials said

One husband and wife, who both were prisoners, died in the fire along with his visiting parents and sister. In another fam ily tragedy, a prisoner and five relatives died

Blanton promised an investigation When you have 42 persons dead within a few minutes," he said, "you need to know why they were lost

Authorities said the burning foam rubber in the padded cell spewed heavy smoke and toxic fumes, including carbon monoxide and possibly some cyanide gas, through an air duct system, setting off panic among the inmates and visitors

The fleeing visitors collided with Deputy Sheriff Jerry Dickey, causing him to drop keys to the cells. Dickey had to grope on the floor through the smoke for the keys, said Deputy Sheriff Howard Blake

Each of the one-story jail's 12 cells required a separate key. The jail has a 60prisoner capacity

Firemen wearing oxygen masks eventually used a second set of keys kept in the prison office to help deputies go through the smoke and open all the cells

The city's main fire station is about a block from the jail, which officials said did not have a fire alarm or contingency plans for evacuation in case of fire Firemen arrived promptly but were driven back from rescue efforts by the dense, toxic smoke

Rescuers seeking to get to the trapped inmates and prisoners used sledgehammers to punch holes in the concrete building. A tow truck arrived at spokesman said The main petrochemical-industry objections are to Car ter's proposed tax on oil at the well and an additional tax on major industrial users of oil The industry says the taxes

petrochemical industry in US would raise costs so much that foreign competitors would have an advantage

The consumer would pay more in any case, either for more expensive foreign products or for domestic products whose prices would be increased to offset the new taxes. Under the President's plan, the first tax, a $3 levy, would bring prices up to the world level by 1980; the "user" tax applied primarily to the petrochemical industry - would start at 90 cents a barrel in 1979 and increase to $3 by 1985. But the petrochemical industry says the taxes, currently being considered by the House Ways and Means Committee. would increase "feedstock" costs from $3 below world price levels now to $3 above the levels by 1985. Feedstock is oil that is used as a raw material

"The question is: What do you do if you're non-competitive?" said Robert Mitchell, executive vice president of Celanese Corp. "The first thing is that we lose our export markets ($10 billion of the $40 billion in annual sales). Then, the foreign competitor can compete

This positive impact on our nation's balance of trade would be lost over the next few years as the Carter taxes phase in." said Ronald S. Wishart, director of energy policy for Union Carbide In place of oil imports, we might be importing more chemicals as well as other energy-intensive products such as steel and aluminum. How would the dozens of U.S. petrochemical firms react?

"Given a free world for in vestment purposes," Mitchell said, "what will evolve is a shift of the petrochemical industry - assuming a degree of political stability - to the Mideast

An industry spokesman said firms might simply abandon their American plants if they found that "it was not economically beneficial to run them." But Jim Bishop, an administration spokesman, added that if Carter's conservation-designed proposals are not accepted, the industry soon will have to deal with critical shortages of raw materials - a problem every bit as serious as increased taxes.

Officials said there are no plans to protect the industry by imposing quotas on imports of petrochemical products.

Baby DOE'S 'obscene' tab

In naming President Carter's proposed Department of Energy the "Baby DOE," the editors of the Wall Street Journal may, or may not, have been reaching back into Colorado history

In any event, the appellation is apropos, perhaps even ominous. For, as Colorado history buffs well know, "Baby Doe" was the nickname of the flashy gal Colorado silver king Horace A.W. ("HAW") Tabor picked as his second wife who, as it turned out, helped to squander his millions.

The analogy stops there, of course; for, in the case of the proposed Department of Energy (DOE), the squandering will run into the billions with the taxpayers at large being forced to pick up the tab.

Just how large that tab is likely to be, as well as its harmful impact upon the economy of this country, were drawn into clear perspective by the Journal in a recent editorial. Entitled "What Baby DOE Will Cost," the text follows:

"A Chevron statistician has been sizing up the $10.6 billion budget of the proposed new Department of Energy. For example, it is about

"It is equivalent to about $3 a barrel of domestic crude oil production, which means, if our own arithmetic is correct, that you could decontrol all domestic crude oil prices and still end up paying less for oil than the federal energy bureaucracy costs.

"And one should keep in mind that the $10.6 billion is only the cost of the newly borning baby DOE. Think what it will cost when it grows up!"

Postscript: With "HAW's" millions gone, "Baby Doe" Tabor, lacking access to the taxing apparatus, died destitute after tramping the streets of Denver for years seeking aid in an effort to follow Tabor's last wish: "Hang on to the 'Matchless''' - his mine in Leadville.

Nest feathers for Congress

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Is it possible that the World Bank and other international development funds are in the business of rewarding tyranny, dictatorship, repression, torture and blatant violations of human rights?

Of course not, insist the major international financial institutions, all beneficiaries of heavy financial support from the United States. But the record suggests otherwise, as indicated by these examples:

-From 1970 to 1972, the Philippines received $69 million from the World Bank and three similar organizations which specialize in providing aid to developing nations. In late 1972. President Ferdinand Marcos imposed martial law, ordered strict censorship and arrested citizens suspected of political opposition to his regime.

During 1973-75, the three years after initiation of those repressive measures, aid totalled $214 million, a whopping 210 per cent increase over the three predictatorial years.

-From 1970 to 1972, South Korea received $105 million from the same four international financial institutions. In late 1972. President Chung Park Hee placed the country under martial law. then engineered revision of the constitution which allowed him to hold office for life, weakened the legislature and restricted civil liberties.

During the next three years, 1973-75, aid amounted to $284 million, an increase of 170 per cent over the 1970-72 period when the nation enjoyed at least some semblance of democracy

-From 1971 to 1973, when Chile's government was headed by Salvador Allende, a Marxist who nevertheless attained office through a popular and constitutional election, that country received only $6.4 million from the World Bank and three other aid funds.

An Army-led coup toppled Allende in late 1973, leading to the establishment of a military junta which today governs the country under a reign of terror. During that government's first three years in power, 1974-76, aid totalled $77.6 million, a phenomenal 1,112 per cent increase.

Those figures, compiled from official reports by Americans for Democratic Action, are being quoted frequently these days as Congress and the administration wrestle with the question of how to implement President Carter's oft-repeated pledge to emphasize human rights in our dealings with other nations. The setting for the debate is pending legislation which authorized a United States contribution of more than $5.2 billion during the next three years to the World Bank and five similar assistance funds.

A coalition of conservative Republicans and liberal Democrats convinced the House to approve an amendment to that bill which directs this country's representatives to those international organizations to vote against aid "to any country which engages in a consistent pattern of gross violations of internationally recognized human rights.

The White House, however, opposes that approach on the grounds that it is unnecessarily negative and deprives the United States of needed flexibility and negotiating options in the financial organizations.

In a close 50-43 vote, the Senate sided with the administration, which prefers weake. language in the law, stating that this country's representatives should use their "voice and vote" to "advance the cause of human rights."

That crucial difference now remains to be resolved by a House-Senate conference committee. where there is good chance that relatively strong language will be adopted.

But the debate has shown Carter to be a man apparently intent upon ignoring Teddy Roosevelt's wise admonition to "speak softly and carry a big stick.

In an effort to simplify tax reporting, the Journal reports, the Internal Revenue Service is paying Commerce Clearing House $3,000 to recommend improvements in the short 1040A tax return and two chapters of the booklet. "Your Federal Income Tax." Give the agency a good mark for initial effort. Simplification tax reporting certainly needs.

Trouble is, after the contract with Commerce Clearing House was awarded, but before actual work on the form and booklet had begun, Congress enacted changes in tax laws which affected both the form and the instructions.

Until the atomic era,

Queried about the matter, a spokesman for the IRS replied that the agency doesn't see any reason for doing anything about it, even though Commerce Clearing House will be working on a defunct form. After all, the official pointed out, half of the work won't be outdated. Quipped the Journal, but, of course, the other half will.

Nor. as an accountant with dollar signs flashing before his eyes can testify, is the IRS's lure of easy money held out to tax squezlers to be taken at face value. The accountant found this out, the Journal also reported, after quitting his job of 28 years, losing his income, pension, and other benefits. Counting on 10 per cent of the $3 million he figured the firm owed in taxes on unreported income, he turned his employer in to the IRS. Instead of the bonanza he was already counting and, no doubt spending, the IRS gave him $200; a court, backing the IRS, said that was all he was entitled to.

"Poetic justice," you might say.

The handbag, notes and a movie By JIM FTTZGERALD

If it Fitz

While escorting my wife about the town, showing her the myriad delights of living in Detroit, I make her earn her keep. She takes notes for me. I dictate a sporadic stream of cryptic, unrelated sentences which, after being scrunched into my propinquity drawer for gestation, will breed enough paragraphs to fill this space. If you have figured out what you just read, you may have further questions. You may ask, for instance, why I don't take my own notes. The answer is my wife's beach bag Pat bought the beach bag shortly after we married, midway throught the adminstration of Abraham Lincoln. Originally she used it to carry picnic lunches and her pail and shovel to the beach. And I used the bag for carrying sand back home. I like to have sand handy, even when I'm not at the beach, so I can always accommodate a bully who wants to kick some in my face. This type of wisdom has allowed me to grow from a 97-pound weakling into an 180-pound weakling. Never force a bully to kick concrete. It will scuff his toes and make him angry.

As the months kept falling off the calendar (courtesy of Warner Brothers), more and more uses were discovered for the beach bag. It carried clean diapers to Cedar Pointe, in the front seat, and the same diapers back home, in the trunk. It carried binoculars and Thermoses and both summer and winter clothing in case the seasons changed more than once before we got out of the parking lot after the Michigan football game.

After a few years, it became an accepted fact that our family never goes anywhere without the beach bag. Anything that anyone might need, Pat has it in the bag. This frees everyone's pockets for carrying only the most personal things, such as morals, if they have any, or dandruff, if they are bald.

Although I am a dedicated newspaperman always prepared to cover the beginning of World War III, even on a weekend, I do not have to bulge my jacket with a pad and pencil. Pat carries them for me in the beach bag. So she might as well take the lousy notes, too.

Aren't you glad you asked? But that's all the time for questions. What I want to do today is decipher one of those beach-bag notes which has been gestating long enough, I hope.

The note says: "The Adams Theater why did it happen to me?" Ah, yes. I remember what that means. It means I asked my wife to go to the movies, and she balked.

I wanted to see Muhammed Ali in "The Greatest." The reviews said it was pretty good and Ali is one of my favorite characters, even if I do loathe boxing. The film was showing at the Adams, one of those once - grand theaters which keeps hanging on in downtown Detroit, and I keep rooting for it. I like huge theaters with balconies and decorated ceilings and marble restrooms.

Pat was reluctant. She figured "The Greatest" was one of these black exploitation movies. She said her face and mine would probably be the only white faces in the theater.

"I think I would be uncomfortable," she said. "I love all black people but I'm not sure they all know it."

I told her this was nonsense. I attend downtown theaters often, when I should be working, without a bit of trouble. Sure the crowds are mostly black. All the white folks have moved into mazed malls where the dinky theaters are hidden behind displays of panty hose. (I'm glad Ken Maynard didn't live to be treated that

Besides, I added, it does a WASP good to feel like a minority. That did it. We went to the Adams for Ali

The place was packed. The complexion breakdown was as Pat had predicted. No one made any more noise eating popcorn than I did. Ali is a natural actor and we were all enjoying the movie. Then it happened.

There was a loud BANG in the back of the theater. People near the noise got up and ran into the lobby. There was screaming. It could have been a firecracker. Or it could have been a gun aimed by some righteous dude determined to get the honkey for persecuting Ali.

In a few seconds we learned it had been a firecracker. A prank that could have happened in any theater, anywhere. Why did it happen to me?

"Take a note," I said to Pat who had climbed into her beach bag. "And hand me some of that sand.

Billy Graham discloses secret $22 million fund

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) -Evangelist Billy Graham said his organization has been reluctant to discuss finances, including a secret $22.9 million fund, for fear the public would think it too rich.

The Charlotte Observer reported Sunday that Graham spoke publicly about the fund for the first time last week, admitting his ministry has tried to keep it hidden from public view.

Graham said a second reason for the secrecy was to avoid being inundated with requests for help

The fund, known as the World Evangelism and Christian Education Fund of Dallas, Tex., includes assets in land, stocks, bonds and cash that have been amassed in an apparently legal manner over the past seven years, the newspaper reported.

It supports such groups as Campus Crusade for Christ, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, the Baptist World Alliance and Young Life, and reportedly has given away as much as $1.2 million in a single year.

Between 80 and 90 per cent of the fund's receipts each year come from the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, the main arm of the Graham ministry. But the two million contributors a year, whose gifts to Graham's ministry average less than $10 each, have never been told of the fund, which makes the ministry far wealthier than ever reported, the newspaper said.

Among assets of the World Evangelism fund, according to the Observer, are 2,600 acres of prime undeveloped land in Buncombe County, N.C., valued at $3.6 million, and a $19.3 million portfolio of blue-chip stocks and bonds, including AT&T, Exxon.

General Electric and IBM. Graham told the newspaper last fall he thought it would be wrong for his organization to own stock because such ownership could be construed as endorsement of a corporation.

The evangelist said last week, however, he felt it was acceptable for the World Evangelism fund to have such holdings because the fund does not carry his name.

Included in the Burncombe County holdings is a 500-acre treat, N.C.

tract of mountain land about 15 miles east of Asheville, which was purchased in 1973 from the Broad River Corp. The corporation's founders include Edward Dawson Roberts, also a founder of the Bank of World Commerce in Nassau, the Bahamas, the newspaper said.

Law enforcement officials have found the bank to be involved helping organized crime figures disguise money that was illegally acquired, the Observer said. But in an interview with the newspaper, Roberts said his only involvement with the bank was to draw up the papers of incorporation.

Graham, his associates and lawyers and realtors involved in the transaction said they knew nothing of Roberts' reported connection with the Nas-Hart, the man charged with the sau bank, the newspaper said. slayings of three Girl Scouts. prives the white worker of terracial associations. The decision by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in a California case is seen as a major expansion in how federal courts can apply the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which outlawed on-the-job racial discrimination

While the Carter administration supported the circuit court's ruling, attorneys for the employer charged with discrimination told the justices that the unprecedented decision will overwhelm the federal courts with new and complicated lawsuits.

The appeals court decision means that an employer can be sued for on-the-job discrimination by a minority member it refuses to hire for reasons of race or by a white worker who feels injured by the employer's action.

Laurel Waters, a white woman, filed a complaint with the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in 1970 charging her employer, United Vinters, with discrimination against women and blacks. She said employment policies by United Vinters violated the Civil Rights Act, and sued on behalf of all women and blacks who might have been injured by such policies. A federal trial judge in San Francisco ruled that she had no standing to sue for racial discrimination because she was not a victim of such dis crimination The appeals court reversed that decision, accepting the argument that white employes are "aggrieved" persons within the meaning of the Civil Rights Act when employers' actions discriminate against blacks or other racial minorities The appeals court was unanimous in its ruling, a decision one of the judges_called "a liberal approach to the question of standing in a civil rights class action.

In urging the Supreme Court to leave intact the appeals court ruling, Justice Department attorneys drew a parallel to a 1972 unanimous decision by the high court in a housing discrimination case.

PAMPA NEWS Monday, June 27, 1977 5

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Don't tell me you've been a closet sexist all these years. How can you say flatly, "There is no such thing as a 'frigid dear'-only clumsy men"?

I thought that satisfying sex was achieved through the loving cooperation of both partners, and not dependent on the male's aggressiveness or degree of expertness.

Or maybe you will agree to another sexist corollary: "There are no impotent men, only emasculating women." That way you can offend BOTH sexes. EQUAL PARTNER

DEAR PARTNER: Generalizations are dangerous, but you may have stumbled on a truism.' I wouldn't be surprised if more than half of the cases of male impotency were due to "emasculating women." Witness the number of men who can't perform at home but are tigers with their mistresses.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for four months to a man who was married and divorced twice, and unless his terrible table manners improve, he is going to be a three-time loser

I saw him eat a few times before we were married and was appalled at his table manners, but I thought I could change him after we were married.

Maybe it's a case of not being able to teach an old dog new tricks, but every time I mention the way he eats he becomes irritated and the battle is on.

When he starts to eat, he puts his face right down into the plate like a dog, and he doesn't speak or look up until he's cleaned his plate.

He is a good man, a good provider, and believe it or not. he's well-educated. How he escaped learning table manners is a mystery to me.

I love him and don't want to divorce him, but he's repulsive at mealtime. Any suggestions on how to save an otherwise good marriage?

NEAR ATLANTA

DEAR NEAR: Yes. Don't bring it up when he's eating, but catch him when he is in a good mood and tell him how important it is to you that he improve his table manners. If he's as wonderful as you say he is in all other respects, you may have to be a little more tolerant. Divorcing a man because he lacks table manners is like chopping off a man's head to get rid of the dandruff.

DEAR ABBY: We have a big, headstrong, disrespectful 17-year-old son who uses abusive language and breaks the furniture in order to get his way.

Now he is demanding the $900 he earned and put away in a savings account.

My husband wants to give it all to him right now, and then completely disown the boy when he turns 18 (legal age).

I want to hold back some of that money to pay for the damage he's done to our house and furniture, plus a deposit for further damage until he leaves. What do you think, Abby?

OREGON MOM

DEAR MOM: I would not give him any of the money until he reaches legal age. And then I would deduct the cost of repairing the damage.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box, No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

At wit's end Dear Abby T stands for summer this year

"First of all, we get up and boom, we go to breakfast wearing bathing suits under our culottes and a blouson top. "Let's say that's a fizzle, zero action at the breakfast table, so the weather's good and we go to the pool. I'm in my black maillot or my blue check bikini with the detachable straps, or the new one with the South Seas print bandeau top and the matching sarong skirt. "You know, don't take this wrong, Gladys, but those salong skirts are terrific because if you tie them right, who knows you've got a stomach roll?

"So, okay, we sit at the pool, we dip a little, check out who's around and now it's time to stroll to the tennis court. Yeah, I'm packing my brother's racket but I'll just carry it. Remember that cute white cotton eyelet tennis outfit I saw? Well, I bought it. So I'm taking that plus a pair of bright green terry warm-up shorts with a terry tank top you, Gladys, but green does not make me look washed out. Are you sore because I mentioned your stomach roll?

'Anyway, it's now time for lunch, so, boom, we go back to the dining room and I'm wearing my new white skinny jeans with a turquoise big top that works with my culottes and my short shorts, too.

argument's sake nothing

happens and we decide to do a little sight-seeing in the afternoon, you know, before we go back to the pool.

"I figure I'll wear what I'm traveling in, my wrap skirt with a short-sleeve T, or maybe a halter top if it's really hot

"So boom boom boom we sight-see and it's time for the pool again and cocktails then. for which I'm packing at least one peasant blouse and /a floral dirndle skirt with a ruffle. Okay, a flounce, what's the difference?

"And then it's dinner time. we take a little nap before, and zap, right into my blue crepe strapless jumpsuit which I will wear with the stole so I don't devastate the waiter. But later, when we're out on the town and we meet two fascinating men who will sweep us off our feet .

"One more thing, Gladys. I'm taking two Agatha Christie's, how about you?'

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a male age 59 and have trouble getting my bowels to move unless I take a laxative. Doesn't that sound to you like I have a lazy or inactive liver. As long as I can keep that bile flowing my bowels move all right. I have tried the high fiber diet that you have recommended but that doesn't seem to do any good.

The doctors say there isn't anything wrong with my liver or gall bladder but it sure doesn't seem to be doing anything unless it is nudged a little to get the bile flowing. Would you recommend seeing another doctor or what can a person do for a lazy inactive liver?

DEAR READER - Your doctors are probably right that there is nothing wrong with your liver. More likely you are one of the many victims of the laxative habit.

What happens is that the laxative empties your bowel ahead of time. Then there will not be a movement again until it is filled. The lag leads a person to take a laxative again and soon that person is hooked on laxatives

You need bowel training. I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation. Follow that program every day and be patient and you may be able to overcome your problem. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Incidentally it is not necessary for everyone to have a bowel movement every day. That idea is the basis for many people getting started on the laxative habit to begin with

DEAR DR. LAMB - I read that receiving a bit higher dose of hormone medication after hysterectomy results in unwanted facial hair growth. I thought it was if you didn't take hormones. Please set me

Polly's Pointers Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY - Mrs. P.F. should have no trouble fastening the rear supporters on her girdle if she just reaches between her knees with one hand while holding the supporter with the other and then hook over the hose and fasten it. One can learn to do this by the touch system. Once I bought a girdle that had too short rear supporters so I cut them off, added some elastic, sewed them back on and they worked fine. -MRS. F.B.

DEAR POLLY - The new multi-colored shag rugs are really lovely but when needles or pins are dropped on them they are almost impossible to see. I put cheap strips of magnets on the bottom of a long handled sponge mop with glue and found this to be most helpful. Such magnets can be bought at a hobby or craft shop and are especially good for those who have trouble bending. - CHRIS.

straight on this. I was 47 when I had a hysterectomy and took hormone pills one year after, then no more and I have a problem of facial hair. DEAR READER - There are all kinds of hormones. The common female hormone, estrogen, and related estrogen compounds do not cause facial hair

Women normally have hair on the face but it is usually very fine and not obvious Under the influence of male hormone, testosterone, it may become heavier and more marked. That may make the natural fine hair on the upper lip unsightly.

You may be surprised to know that women and men both form testosterone and estrogen. The ratio is what counts. The adrenal gland, over the kidneys, is able to produce estrogen and testosterone in both males and females. When a woman's ovaries stop functioning for any reason or are removed, the adrenal gland becomes the main source of male and female hormones. If it is producing an increased amount of testosterone then a woman may become more male and less female, in terms of external secondary sexual characteristics. Some hormone preparations are combinations, including two types of female hormones and testosterone

In your case the most likely causes of increasingly prominent facial hair are a variation in hormone production by your adrenal gland combined with familial characteristics. Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of this newspaper, P.O. Watson owns Western Open

By HOWARD ULMAN AP Sports Writer

OAK BROOK, III. (AP) -With a stroke of luck, Tom Watson overcame his own blundering and putting problems to win, his fourth tournament of the 1977 pro golf tour. He admitted he played poorly on the hole that clinched his one-stroke victory Sunday in the Western Open.

Heading into the 17th hole. the Masters king held a oneshot lead over Johnny Miller and Wally Armstrong. Ahead of him was a tough, par-four hole with a pair of sand traps and trees on the left side of the fair-

He aimed for the bunkers, intending the ball to fade to the right and the middle of the fairway. It didn't. Playing his second shot from a hard dirt lie in the rough, he made a fine recovery as the ball landed on the rear fringe of the green, leaving a 16-foot putt.

"It was entirely too hard. But

Austin wins

PLYMOUTH, Ind. (AP) Debbie Austin gave a lot of thought to quitting the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour last month After her performance at the Plymouth Country Club here Sunday, a lot of her colleagues may wish she had.

Miss Austin, 29, from West Palm Beach, Fla., won the $50,-000 Hoosier Classic with a course record three-day total of 207. Her final round was a sizzling five-under 67.

it hit the back of the cup and went in." said Watson. "If it missed the hole, it's five or six feet past the hole.

Watson's birdie gave him a two-stroke margin and provided the cushion that enabled him to three-putt from 20 feet for a bogey on the 18th hole and still take his second Western Open crown in four years.

Watson, who earned $40,000 for the victory to push his tourleading earnings to $269,115, won with a five-under-par 283. a stroke ahead of Miller and Armstrong, who shot 69 and 70, respectively on Sunday. Tom Weiskopf, with three double bogeys and two eagles in an erratic round of 71, was one stroke back at 285.

Watson rebounded from a 75 Saturday to fire a three-underpar 69 Sunday.

The difference between the rounds, he said, was "stupidity. Yesterday I played one shot I wasn't ready for and on one shot used the wrong club." Armstrong, who was tied for the lead with Watson and Weiskopf after three rounds at twounder-par, said, "I was in there close the whole day. I didn't look at the scoreboard. I just tried to stay with Tom."

Armstrong. 32. joined the tour in the fall of 1973 and has improved his earnigs each year. His $18,500 check Sunday increased his take this year to $46.055, 39th on the money list. Earlier this year. Watson won the Bing Crosby and captured the masters by two strokes over Jack Nicklaus, who did not play at the Western Open.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - The great American tennis boom has produced some startling U.S. successes at the centenary Wimbledon tennis championships, which enter their second week today.

Record crowds at the All England club were kept buzzing last week by the brilliance and composure of 14-year-old Tracy Austin, who double-backhanded her way into a second-round clash against defending women's singles champ Chris Evert. The center court contest drew some remarkable tennis from the spindly-legged youngster although the more experienced Miss Evert won 6-1, 6-1. Chris later said it was the toughest match mentally she had ever played and at times she looked across the net and thought: "I wonder if she is going to be No. 1 in the world some day.' Tracy, who has been playing for seven years, is a wellgroomed product of relentless and costly coaching. Her mentor, Coach Bob Lansdorp, thinks the fair-haired Californian will be Wimbledon champ within three years.

Another promising girl is 18 year-old Anne Smith of Dallas, who took a set from Billie Jean King before succumbing in the second round. British commentators said the Texan was one of the most athletic newcomers to appear on the

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) Television actor and comedian

Jimmy "J. J." Walker, star of the "Good Times" series, says these are not good times and that he's not happy with his career "This is the first time I've thought of suicide. I can see suicide," Walker said in an interview during a local appearance as master of ceremonies for a jazz festival. He plays the grinning and irrepressible teenager who bursts through the door of an imaginary Chicago public housing apartment every week. His tag line is "Dy-no-mite."

"The real frustration is that the Good Times image is really negative," said Walker. Walker said he has approached producer Norman Lear more than once, asking to be let out of the series. But he said he's locked into it.

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Rep. Barbara Jordan says that women's rights are being hurt by a "perceptible shift of America to the right."

"This country is moving away from us and we've got to bring it back," the Texas Democrat said in the keynote address at the weekend Womankind Conference, an outgrowth of the International Women's Year.

Ms. Jordan, who gained national prominence as a member of the Judiciary Committee investigating the Watergate scandal, said a "diminished commitment" to woman's rights calls for new tactics and new strategy. 'We must organize politically at every level - county, state and national," she said. "If you don't have political clout, politicians won't listen to you. That's the way politics works."

Sunday MILWAUKEE (AP) - An experiment in Sunday balloting fell short of Milwaukee County officials' goal of inspiring an increased voter turnout on the average citizen's day off. "We shouldn't do this again," a poll worker decided after weighing the public response to Sunday's special primary election for a seat on the county's Board of Supervisors.

The 1st District turnout was only 1.991 despite sunny weather and vote-promotion publicity spearheaded by the county's executive administrator. William F. O'Donnell.

It was the lowest turnout on record for a primary, the worst having been in a regular weekday primary in 1976 when 4.029 voted in the 4th District.

If Sunday's experiment showed any benefits, it may have been that the flow of voters was less congested than on a weekday when there is usually a supper-time rush of voters trying to squeeze in their balloting between leaving work

Carter, congress friends Wright says

said

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) -President Carter and Congress are getting along just fine, despite "highly publicized disagreements and conflicts," House Majority Leader James C. Wright, D-Tex., said here Saturday

Wright, in town to address a Democratic fund-raising dinner. said he believes the record of Carter's first five months in office will overshadow the early days of all but the Roosevelt and Johnson administrations. "The real unwritten story of these first five months of Jimmy Carter's presidency is the story of a growing, harmonious relationship within the framework of the dynamic tension that should exist" between the president and the legislative branch. Wright told an afternoon news conference.

He called Carter's economic stimulus package a key part of "a very impressive, quantitative and qualitative body of legislation" enacted this year.

Wright said the "growing harmony" can be attributed to "a President who is rapidly. rapidly learning the nuances and complexities of the Congressional system and to a Democratic Congress that wants to support the President

Asked if Korean payoffs to Democratic congressmen might create that party's own Watergate, Wright replied, "There are some who are desperately trying to make it that kind of a problem

Wright noted that the Justice Department is investigating payments from Korean Tongsun Park to members of Congress and "the Justice Department has never shown any reluctance to proceed in the case of criminal wrongdoing.

On other matters, Wright -He thinks it was "a little court much" for the House to prohibit the use of federal funds for abortions. "It does discriminate to some striking degree against the poor and the unlearned," he said.
