Rape doesn't warrant death penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that states may not impose the death penalty for the crime of rape.

The court said the death penalty is a disproportionate punishment for rape. "It is difficult to accept the notion, and we do not, that the rape with or without aggravating circumstances should be punished more heavily than the deliberate killer as long as the rapist does not himself take the life of his victim," the court said in an opinion by Justice Byron R. White.

The court's action, decided by a 7-2 vote, struck down the death sentence a Georgia court imposed on Ehrlich Anthony Coker, convicted for the 1974 rape of a 16-year-old Waycross, Ga. housewife who three weeks before had given birth to her first child.

Although Georgia's law concerned the rape of adult women, the court decision's wording indicated that states may not impose the death penalty even for the rape of children.

Joining White's opinion were Justices Potter Stewart, Harry A. Blackmun and John Paul Stevens. Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall, who oppose the death penalty under any circumstance for any crime, filed concurring opinions.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. voted to strike down Coker's sentence but said he did not think the death penalty for rape was cruel and unusual punishment in all circumstances.

Although rape invariably is a reprehensible crime, there is no indication that petitioner's offense was committed with excessive brutality or that the victim sustained serious or lasting injury," Powell said.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented, saying that the death penalty for rape can be a justified punishment.

In a separate related action, the justices struck down the death sentences of two other convicted Georgia rapists who had appeals pending before the court.

The justices sent the cases of John Wallace Eberheart Jr. and John Wesley Hooks back to the Georgia Supreme Court for the imposition of new sentences. Presumably, Coker and the two others will be sentenced to life imprisonment.

Eberheart and Hooks had been sentenced to death for the 1973 rape of a woman whose car had broken down on a highway.

The court's decision dealt only with the crime of rape but it may have a profound impact on the history of capital punishment in the United States.

Had the court ruled that states may impose the death penalty for crimes in which the life of the victim was not taken, it could have opened the door for future rulings that capital punishment may be valid for crimes such as treason, espionage, kidnapping, hijacking and terrorism.

Of course, the court still could rule in favor of the death penalty for such crimes but that prospect is less likely after today's ruling.

The court's decision affects only six of the 350 death row prisoners across the nation. If the justices had ruled the other way, states that do not use the death penalty for rape could have come under pressure to enact such legislation.

Attorneys for Coker argued that while the rape of a woman is a serious crime, it almost nowhere is viewed today as warranting the punishment of death. Coker's lawyers said use of the death penalty for rapists "has been overwhelmingly repudiated by evolving standards of decency" and that Georgia's law permitting such a penalty violates the constitutional ban on cruel and unusual punishment.

Georgia is the only state in which rape of an adult woman remains a capital crime.

In other states, such as Florida where one rapist is on death row, the rape of a child under 12 years of age can be punished by death. However, there are no condemned rapists in states other than Florida and Georgia, where five men are awaiting death for rape convictions.

The city of Pampa is planning a $3 million budget for 1977-78 and the folks at City Hall are sharpening pencils and math skills to make the budget feasible.

Meanwhile, administrators at the Pampa Independent School District office are stymied in their budget work.

A portion of the work is done. But salaries, which make up nearly 85 per cent of the total, are up in the air until the state legislature finishes.

Legislators have been called back to Austin July 11 for a special session to set salaries and other issues in a school finance bill. Until a bill is passed, PISD budgeters can go no further.

Last year's school budget was more than $6 million.

Salaries for the city account for about 65 per cent of the total budget.

Lee James, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick James of Pampa, was traveling to East Texas to visit Grandma and Grandpa.

"I can tell we're almost there," she reported after glancing out a window. "The trees are starting to gather up together."

"If you had it to do all over again, would you marry the same person?"

When Ann Landers asked this question in her column, the results came pouring back from 50,000 readers. Fifty-two per cent of them said no.

Mrs. Landers called the results a "devastating commentary on marriage, American style." One husband wrote, "Marriage is the only war where you sleep with the enemy."

Mrs. Dollie McBee Barnhart recently celebrated her 95th birthday.

She maintained the family home and farm in Pampa until last year when she moved to Kress to live with her son, John. She now lives in Care Inn of Plainview.

Mrs. Barnhart is a Plains pioneer.

Her husband moved their belongings and farm stock to Mobeetie in 1903 from their home near Gainesville. Mrs. Barnhart and her daughter arrived by train.

The family stayed in Mobeetie for three years before moving to Pampa where they farmed and the late Mr. Harlie F. Barnhart built and sold houses.

Mrs. Barnhart is a longtime member of the Methodist church in Pampa and lacked two months of being a charter member.

The average person sees about 20,000 written words, hears 11,000 words on the radio and receives an additional 10,000 words plus visuals from television, which he must process. It all adds up to 41,000 words a day.

Alice Duer Miller listed five reasons why men should not be allowed to vote.

1. Because man's place is in the army.
2. Because no really manly man wants to settle any question other than by fighting about it.
3. Because if men should adopt peaceable methods women will no longer look up to them.
4. Because men will lose their charm if they step out of their natural sphere and interest themselves in other matters than feats of arms, uniforms and drums.
5. Because men are too emotional to vote. Their conduct at baseball games and political conventions shows this, while their innate tendency to appeal to force renders them particularly unfit for the task of government.

Mrs. Miller was an American novelist and poet who wrote this list in 1915.

Beginning next week, Mind Ajar is moving to the editorial page on Thursday.

Rations not quite ready

Two Pampa teenagers won't have much variety in their diet during a two-week stay in the Pecos wilderness later this summer. Chris Coffman, left, of 1824 N. Dwight, and Dale McClure of 1616 Hamilton, picked an unlikely spot to prepare rations for the trip. The pair of 17-year-olds have been drying beef jerky on a rope anchored to the television antenna on the McClure home. The boys will leave Pampa for the wilderness area July 25.

Archbishop defies Pope Paul

ECONE, Switzerland (AP) — Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre ordained 14 priests and consecrated 16 subdeacons today in his crusade against modernization of the Roman Catholic church. He said he would continue to defy Pope Paul VI because "we refuse to collaborate in the destruction of the church."

Rejecting the Pope's threat to excommunicate him if he carried out the ordinations, the 71-year-old French prelate said, "We do not hesitate to continue on our course."

He charged that "mercenaries, wolves and thieves" had sneaked into the church to destroy it.

"We will not lend a hand to them, we will not collaborate in this destruction," he declared.

About 4,000 sympathizers crowded around the tent in which the three-hour rites were held near the seminary Lefebvre founded in 1970 to fight the "virus" of ecclesiastical liberalism with the 16th century liturgy of Pope Pius V. Dark clouds hung over the Alpine hamlet.

The new priests, who studied for five years at the Econe seminary, included one American, Anthony Cekada, 26, of Milwaukee, Wis. One of the subdeacons also was an American, Terrence Finnegan, 34, of Rapid City, S. Dak.

He rejected the Pope's warning of an "irreparable rupture" between the church and the traditionalist movement, which refuses to accept the celebration of the Mass in vernacular languages and other liturgical reforms ordered by Pope Paul since the Second Vatican Council.

Lefebvre said Pope Paul had accused him of pursuing personal aims.

"I do not believe this," he declared. "I believe I act for the good of the church. We want to guard the faith, we do not want anything else."

Lefebvre, a former archbishop of Dakar, also opposes Pope Paul's efforts to improve their church's relations with Communist governments and with other churches. Last year he accused the Pope of "dealing with Moscow communism, Freemasonry and Freudianism, and destroying the Church."

The traditionalist movement has enlisted many thousands of followers in France, West Germany, Italy and Switzerland who believe that the liberal reforms launched by the 1962-65 Second Vatican Council perverted Roman Catholicism. They are particularly insistent on the celebration of the Mass in the traditional Latin because to them, Mass in vernacular languages is a symbol of the church's compromises with other churches and modern social trends.

Pope Paul suspended Archbishop Lefebvre in June 1976, from all priestly functions because he refused to close his seminary. He was the first bishop to be disciplined so severely in 150 years. But he continued to ordain priests trained in his seminary, to celebrate well publicized, well attended masses in Latin and to attack the Pope in sermons and speeches.

The Pope wrote Lefebvre last week that if he carried out the ordinations this week he might be excommunicated. But the archbishop ordained a priest in eastern France on Sunday and went ahead with plans for the ceremony today.

Excommunication cuts a person off from the sacraments of the church and is the church's most severe form of punishment.

At the same time, the justices ordered a lower court to review the constitutionality of the abortion funding ban, the so-called Hyde amendment.

The court's action means the federal government must, for the time being, continue spending Medicaid money for abortions sought by poor women.

The court turned down a request by Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., for whom the amendment was named, and others asking it to authorize an immediate end to federal funding for most abortions.

The justices, without comment, sent the federal funding for abortions question back to U.S. District Judge John Dooling in Brooklyn, N.Y., for study in light of the high court's recent ruling that states have no legal obligation to pay for medically unnecessary abortions.

Supreme Court refuses to cut abortion funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to let Congress immediately cut off all federal Medicaid funds for abortions deemed not necessary to save the lives of mothers.

At the same time, the justices ordered a lower court to review the constitutionality of the abortion funding ban, the so-called Hyde amendment.

The court's action means the federal government must, for the time being, continue spending Medicaid money for abortions sought by poor women.

The court turned down a request by Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., for whom the amendment was named, and others asking it to authorize an immediate end to federal funding for most abortions.

The justices, without comment, sent the federal funding for abortions question back to U.S. District Judge John Dooling in Brooklyn, N.Y., for study in light of the high court's recent ruling that states have no legal obligation to pay for medically unnecessary abortions.

Last Monday, the court ruled that states have no legal obligation to pay for the elective and HEW and is considering cutting off federal funding for all abortions — even those necessary to save the lives of mothers.

Such a bill was passed by a big majority in the House but has run into trouble in the Senate.

It was not immediately apparent how the court's action today will affect the current congressional action.

The Supreme Court in 1973 ruled that most abortions are not illegal.

Weather

Conditions will be partly cloudy through Thursday with a chance of thunder showers tonight. High today will be the low 90s and the overnight low will be the upper 60s. The high Thursday will be the mid-90s. Southerly winds will be 10-15 mph today, dropping to 5-10 mph tonight.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Simon blasts Carter plan

"The more the government has tinkered with the marketplace, the worse things have become. It is folly to believe that the same people who created this energy mess can now improve the situation."

That, coming from William Simon, former Secretary of the Treasury and the first federal energy czar under President Ford, is quite an indictment of the Carter so-called energy policy.

Writing in a recent issue of the Wall Street Journal under the caption "The Energy Policy Calamity," Simon tore into the President's 10-part program pointing out that each and every part of the Carter plan is founded on a basis fallacy.

Fallacy number one, Simon suggests for example, is the common belief, frequently voiced by Carter, that the federal government has no comprehensive policy for dealing with energy. To the contrary, Simon asserts, the government has long had an energy policy. "It's just been the wrong policy. For more than 20 years, the government has increasingly tried to regulate the energy industry so that prices were artificially held below market levels. Consumers, the intended beneficiaries, have naturally increased their demands, but producers have gradually curtailed their output," simply because, at the government's dictated prices, they could not continue to produce at the same level, much less expand productivity.

As a result of this basic fallacy, Simon shows, "Demand for natural gas, the most clear-cut example, has risen spectacularly since the Phillips decision of 1964 (legalizing wellhead price regulation of natural gas), but drilling for new domestic wells peaked in 1961 and production has been sliding downward since 1970."

In fact, the former Secretary of the Treasury concludes, there is only one aspect of the Carter plan which is based on fact and with which he can agree. "On one point," Simon writes, "I find myself in agreement with the National Energy Plan. The President has predicted a calamity in energy. By adopting this program, that's exactly what we'll get."

A reader's right

You like to stir things up locally (eg the infamous Highland General Hospital Scandal and Trial), so just thought I would pass on an occurrence which I deem you will find unpalatable — therefore unprintable.

As a traveling salesman, I ate at a local (Pampa) restaurant this evening (June 21). While there 2 black men entered, ordered, and sat down. One had some resemblance to the much sought "Traveling Rapist." Many in the restaurant noticed and stared — no one made a move to the phone to notify the police (Might get involved?).

I left the restaurant at approximately 8:20 p.m., drove to the police station, explained to the dispatcher my presence in the station. Did I want to talk to a patrolman? Yes, I would. After about 20 minutes, a patrolman was notified over the PD radio a "complainant" was at the station. The "10-28s" and "10-29s" took precedence, causing the 20 minute delay in notifying a patrolman.

He responded he would be in a few minutes, he needed to check on another patrolman having car trouble (Acceptable reason.) After 40 minutes at the PD, I advised the dispatcher I was leaving, feeling certain the subject of my concern was now long gone. I was thanked for coming by the P.D. This did not assuage my feeling that somebody really didn't care.

This is my only dealing with your P.D. and I have traveled this area for over 12 years. I hope I never really need them for help. I doubt if it would be available in time to count.

I thank the Lord he gave me the size, the strength, the intelligence and I hope the guts to take care of my own problems should any arise which might fall into a category of police assistance, while in Pampa.

Sincerely,
W.C. Sparks Jr.

Congress' costly Conrail

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

When the Consolidated Rail Corporation was created by Congress in 1974, critics of this government-financed railroad corporation warned that it would be a bottomless pit. Taxpayers, they said, would be compelled to shell out more and more money to fund this major step toward nationalization of the U.S. railroad industry.

Well, the critics were right. Consider the first quarter figures released by Conrail. The public corporation reported a net loss of $207.6 million for the first quarter of 1977.

Conrail has been financed by the federal government to the tune of $2.026 billion. Total borrowing for the railroad's first year of operations amounted to $667 million. The financial outlook for Conrail is gloomy indeed.

It was absurd to imagine that Conrail would be a roaring success. Nationalized and quasi-nationalized railroads the world over are deep in debt. Both the German and Japanese state railroads run up huge deficits. All the U.S. public hears about, however, is the efficiency of German passenger operations and the speed of Japanese "bullet" trains.

Conrail was created to take over bankrupt lines in the North. Proponents of the Conrail legislation insisted that an infusion of federal money would revitalize rail transportation in a heavily industrialized region of the United States. But the basic problem of America's troubled railroad industry isn't deteriorated tracks or an inadequate supply of modern locomotives. The fundamental trouble with American railroads is labor union domination of the roads, which results in perpetuation of 19th century, steam age labor practices.

With one exception, U.S.

railroads pay operating personnel on the basis of mileage, instead of by the hour, as in other lines of work. These railroads are compelled to carry larger crews than are necessary and to change crews unnecessarily, as well as submit to other archaic rules based on the stem locomotive of yesterday.

The unions seriously reduce earning of railroads and lessen their competitiveness against other transportation systems. The unions, in other words, insist upon make-work, or featherbedding.

The dismal story of union domination of American railroads is laid out in a recent issue of "The Reader's Digest."

The "Digest" story also reports on the one railroad that is free of union domination: the Florida East Coast Railway. This railroad, with far-sighted and courageous management, broke the union hold, despite massive labor violence directed against the railroad and its employees who wanted to work. Today, the Florida East Coast operates a highly profitable service, using small but adequate crews paid on an hourly basis. Archaic work rules have been junked. The FEC is a model for the entire American railroad industry. But it's ridiculous to think that a quasi-nationalized railroad such as Conrail would have the intestinal fortitude to face up to the need to change railroad employment and work policies.

In the absence of forthrightness and courage, Conrail is destined to run up colossal deficits. The taxpayer public is condemned to supporting a transportation network that serves the labor unions before it serves its customers.

For Thursday, June 30, 1977
June 30, 1977

This year you will form several new associations. One could be of immense value, but unfortunately the others will be of small worth.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Independence is admirable, but not when you're supposed to be participating in a joint effort. Today you're not a good team player.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Conditions could shift today so that you'll be required to shoulder another's burdens. You're partially to blame for letting this occur.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An overbearing acquaintance could upset you today by trying to pressure you into doing something you're averse to. Refuse, but don't overreact.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today's frustrations should not be taken home. Either solve your problems where they originate or leave them at the doorstep.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov 22) It's possible you could do something today even though the same action has caused trouble in the past. The results will be similar.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 19) To request something material today from one with whom you have not settled an overdue account would be a grievous error.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Underestimating the strength of your competition today would be a serious mistake. Act with some concern and you'll avert a large folly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Responsibilities you thought you'd swept under the rug could raise a dust storm today. Get them out in the open. Do what you should.

Voice of business

The great pajama flap

By RICHARD L. LESHER
President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

Several years ago, the U.S. Department of Commerce — acting under the Flammable Fabrics Act — ordered that children's sleepwear be fireproofed. Industry quickly complied with the order. Who could oppose such a benevolent decree?

But as time passed, suspicions grew that the major fireproofing chemical — known as "tris" — might itself be harmful, perhaps even a cause of cancer. And so, after considerable prodding from the Environmental Defense Fund, the Consumer Product Safety Commission banned tris-treated children's garments.

The combination of these two federal orders leaves the clothing industry facing a loss of $120 to $150 million in now-worthless merchandise, plus the grim possibility of future suits alleging tris-caused illness. Who will pay for what is being thrashed out in the courts. But one thing seems certain: The Federal Government, which caused the problem, will not pay a red cent.

There are some important lessons in this whole, sad affair. The first of them is that good intentions are not enough. Before the government tries to force industry into some worthwhile action, it should be sure that the means to accomplish it safely are at hand. At the time of the original fireproofing order, tris was the most effective fireproofing chemical known for certain fabrics.

The second lesson involves one of the virtues of the free market. In the absence of a government order, some companies would probably have offered flame-resistant sleepwear, and others would not. Of those that did, some might have turned to tris, while others would have concentrated on fabrics that are inherently incombustible, or selected other chemicals. Consequently, the damage done by tris — if any — would have been much more limited than is now the case, both medically and economically. People with a naive faith in government action tend to think only in terms of the potential good that the government can do. And indeed, when the government decides wisely, everyone is likely to benefit. But the coin has another side: When the government makes a mistake, everyone is likely to suffer.

Then too, there's the question of over-protection. Normally, I would expect few people to quarrel with the twin objectives in this case: Protection from fire and protection from cancer.

But as the saccharin and smoking controversies have demonstrated, the American people do not like paternalistic government, even where the risks of that dread disease are concerned. People want to be informed of the degree of risk and then allowed to make their own decisions.

This issue of how far to trust the consumer's judgment is one of the most difficult on the public scene today, for both government and industry. And yet it is seldom debated head-on, but rather comes up in the context of something like the seat belt-ignition interlocks of recent memory.

I wish we could reach some sort of national consensus on the extent of the consumer's responsibility for his own welfare, or, conversely, the extent of the business-government responsibility. As it is, we are following a painful process somewhat akin to the development of the English common law, defining the parameters of responsibility one case at a time. There must be a better way. Neither the economy nor the consumer can stand many more tris-type fiascos.

If it Fitz

It's not that I don't like Ginger...

By JIM FITZGERALD

This will be hard to explain. I know my mother will never understand. I was invited to meet Ginger Rogers, but I declined. It was even suggested I might dance with her, but I said I had a previous commitment. I was lying.

This is nothing personal against Ginger. I am a movie freak and also a leg fan. I saw every movie Ginger Rogers made. I reached puberty two years early because of the way she looked tap dancing in short pants. What a doll!

In recent years, I've seen Ginger on the TV talk shows. At first, I didn't want to watch. I was afraid she'd be just one more of those show biz legends who keep reappearing on Johnny Carson's couch, looking like the Ghost of Glamour Past. They make me nervous. I worry that a stitch will pop and Grandma Moses will burst out of Lucille Ball's skin.

But Ginger is a legend who stands up well under close examination. That's what Chuck Thurston, the Detroit Free Press critic, wrote after seeing her show at the Music Hall Center recently. At age 65, she looks 45, even in shorts, and certainly a man with several chins will forgive her the inevitable scarf or turtleneck.

No, I didn't avoid meeting Ginger because I feared that her appearance 40 years later would ruin marvelous memories of boyish lechery. If she can't still turn me on today, the fault is in the ignition, not the igniter.

So, what was my reason for sending regrets? My wife wondered if it were politics. Movie stars frequently come to town to entertain but spend more time explaining White House policies than entertaining. Because they play golf with the President, they know how to save the world from communism and vapor lock. This always bugs me.

Bob Hope, for instance. When he was in town recently he pronounced Spiro Agnew and Richard Nixon innocent. Hope said they never did anything wrong. Those were not the jokes. I didn't meet Hope, either.

Ginger Rogers recently sold her plush home in Palm Springs to Gerald Ford, who will use it to house his golf cart. There was the danger that the amenities of this transaction made Ginger privy to the solution to the energy problem. And she might relay this solution from the Music Hall stage, between songs. If you don't believe it could happen, you didn't see Marlon Brando's stand-in save the American Indian by waving an Oscar on TV.

But Ginger proved as politically innocent as she is remarkably preserved. Twice on TV I heard her admit doing business with Gerald Ford. And that's all she said. No claims to special knowledge because of her proximity to Ford's backswing. Another point for Ginger.

And another excuse lost for me. It wasn't that I feared being bored by a phony pundit. And it wasn't that I prefer to remember Ginger the way she was. So why did I snub the invitation to meet her?

It's confession time. The invitation to meet Ginger was hand-delivered by two nice women from the Music Hall. It was in a bag along with a bottle of champagne, dainty crackers and fancy cheeses.

That's class. It is also intimidating to a guy who always used to get his party invitations via the office bulletin board, with no RSVP but always a BYOB.

That was before I became a big-city columnist. Now I receive all sorts of engraved requests for the honor of my presence at everything from the introduction of a new car in California to the opening of a new seine in a sewage plant.

"It is a remarkable coincidence that my overwhelming desirability as a guest was discovered at the same time I started writing a column," I once told my wife.

She explained my charm succinctly. "Show up without your typewriter and they will throw you out," she said.

Whatever. The Ginger Rogers invitation said "Black Tie Optional."

"There's no option," I explained to my wife. "Every guy there will be dressed like Fred Astaire. The ushers are going to wear white satin tails. I wouldn't be comfortable in an unstuffed shirt. We aren't going."

Instead, we went to the Woodbridge Tavern, one of our oldest saloons, and listened to Gerry O'Connor sing, and Yolanda Jones on the piano. A sozzled fellow at the bar danced solo every number.

"They are not having this much fun at Ginger Rogers' party," I said, flicking the beer suds off my nose.

"You are a natural born slob," my wife said.

Now you know the reason I didn't meet Ginger Rogers.

Cates favors shorter school year

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
State Representative Phil Cates said Tuesday night that he is afraid to predict what may be the outcome of the public education bill which will come before the Texas Legislature's special session July 11.

"There are so many issues involved from evaluation to the length of the school year, teacher salaries, whether administration officials will receive special pay raises, matters of operational costs, transportation..." Cates thinks the school year should be shortened.

"I'm not sure I would want to tie myself to the exact number of days -- it seems that we start school in the middle of August before vacations are over. I think children need time off," he added.

Cates was speaker for the Desk & Derrick Club of Pampa at the Country Club.

"On teacher salaries I favor an increase as money permits... once we address ourselves to other issues including maintenance and reform of the ad valorem tax issue."

In an interview, Cates was asked about the water issue.

He explained that the past session combined the three water agencies: the Water Development Board, the Water Rights Commission, and the Water Control Board. This will allow work on the problem without going through three government agencies.

"There are enough problems with one government agency much less three," he commented.

Asked how many bills he authored during the last session, Cates listed the county ordinance making authority, small city annexation bill and was co-author of the coal slurry bill.

Cates told the group that he has completed his fourth regular session and commented that his 10-county district has varied interests ranging from oil and gas to cotton.

"We met in excess of 400 hours and issues ranged from abortion to the length of the school year."

He said there is no more "respected person in this state than Max Sherman," state senator.

"This applies equally to Congressman Jack Hightower," he said.

"It is the responsibility of the public to keep people like that in office," he added.

In urging everyone to vote regardless of political conviction, he said the "good guys have let crooks and bad guys run the show by not voting."

"Politics in both parties need good people -- folks who disagree. We each must carry our part of the responsibility. Have pride and become active in the political process," he said.

The group was apparently most concerned about child abuse which Cates labeled as "horrible."

"It is unbelievable. If you get too concerned politically you can't be objective," he advised.

Representatives amend pay raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives is preparing to vote on an amendment that would have congressmen give back the $12,900 raise they got in March.

Congressmen hoping to repeal the pay raise maneuvered toward a vote today that would focus only on the pay of House members and would not tamper with increases given at the same time to some 20,000 top level federal employees.

Funds to continue the pay raise into the next fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1, are in a legislative appropriation bill before the House. It is these funds the amendment would cut.

An extremely close vote was predicted.

If the House members delete the funds to cover the pay raises for the next fiscal year, the Senate would not have to go along. Senators could vote to put the money for their raises back into the bill. Then the measure would be sent to a conference committee, which would try to reach a compromise agreeable to both chambers.

The March pay raise went into effect automatically without the need for a vote. It raised the salaries of congressmen and senators from $44,600 to $57,500 and included pay increases for the vice president, Cabinet members, other high officials and top civil servants and federal judges.

The House Democratic leadership, fighting to preserve the pay raise, sought approval of procedures that would make any amendment to roll back the increase apply to all recipients except the judges. The Constitution protects judges against having their pay reduced during their terms.

Many congressmen indicated that if the congressional salaries could be linked to those of the federal employees who received raises at the same time, the House members would find it easier to justify a refusal to give back their raises. They could say they were simply thinking of all those deserving

Human fetuses found in fridge

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Police here are still unable to discover why four human fetuses, floating in coffee, were kept in pickle jars in the refrigerator of a midwife and licensed pharmacist who was charged last Friday with injuring a child.

Officers and members of the Cameron County District Attorney's staff made the grisly discovery Monday when they raided Miguel S. Orihuela's clinic.

Det. Chris Hess described the site as "sickening."

"The largest one was perfectly formed right down to the fingernails," said Hess. "You could tell it would have been a little boy."

Hess said the fetuses ranged in size from "about as big as your thumb" to "about the size of your fist."

"It looked like a typical refrigerator that hadn't been cleaned in four or five months," said Asst. Dist. Atty. Joe Hendley.

Orihuela, 44, was arrested

Friday and placed under a $500,000 bond for allegedly crushing the head of an infant with surgical forceps during delivery. The child spent five days in the intensive care unit of a local hospital and is now listed in stable condition. However, doctors say the child's brain may be damaged.

Orihuela's 29-year-old wife, Linda, was arrested Monday afternoon and charged with illegally "practicing the art of healing." She is alleged to have assisted her husband in medical procedures only a licensed physician is allowed to perform, according to Hendley.

The woman was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Ed Sarabia late Monday and released on $1,500 personal recognition bond.

Hendley said drugs bearing Mexican manufacturers' labels were found with the pharmacy's regular stock along with items marked "for hospital use only" and materials dispensed by public health agencies.

Hijack attempt foiled

DOHA, Qatar (AP) — A man with two hand grenades hijacked a Gulf Air jetliner from London with 68 persons aboard but surrendered today after the plane landed in Qatar, on the south shore of the Persian Gulf, sources at the Doha airport reported.

The hijacker was believed to be an Arab. The sources said he demanded 500,000 riyals, the equivalent of $194,000, in exchange for the passengers and crew.

All occupants of the plane were reported safe.

The hijacker took over the VC10 airliner during a scheduled flight from London to Muscat, the capital of Oman, on the Arabian peninsula to the east of the entrance to the Persian Gulf.

Judge optimistic about selection of Davis jury

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — A feeling of optimism still pervaded the courtroom today as lawyers began the second day of selecting jurors in the capital murder trial of Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis.

The lawyers failed to seat any of the five prospective jurors questioned Tuesday, but District Court Judge George Dowlen continued to look on the bright side.

After Tuesday's fruitless session, Dowlen said, "It's been my experience that these things speed up the second and third days. At least I hope so."

Davis, 44, is charged with capital murder in the shooting death of his stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, 12. The trial was moved from Fort Worth on a change of venue.

Lawyers experienced difficulty in obtaining a jury in Fort Worth and managed to empanel only eight jurors after eight weary weeks of questioning before a mistrial was declared.

Dowlen and lawyers for both sides said they expect to be able to seat 12 jurors to hear the case in about half the time it took them to put eight in the Fort Worth jury box.

County school board to meet

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC News says anchorman John Chancellor has decided to stay on and sign a long-term contract, but Chancellor's lawyer says it isn't so. Chancellor himself isn't saying anything.

CBS News reportedly has been trying to interest Chancellor in a spot on its news team, perhaps succeeding the retiring Eric Sevareid as news commentator.

Chancellor's Nightly News has been the main ratings challenge to Walter Cronkite on CBS.

An NBC spokesman said Tuesday that Chancellor, who has spent 26 years with NBC, would sign a contract for "more than three years" within a few days.

Chancellor would only say, "Ask my lawyer."

The lawyer, Ralph Mann of International Creative Management, said, "We have no deal with NBC. If there is any agreement that has been made, Chancellor and I don't know about it."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Nixon has been asked to make a return appearance on "Laugh-In."

Nixon, who at the time was running for president, went on "Laugh-In" in 1967 when it was a weekly hit and said, "sock it to me."

The show is returning as a special in September, and producer George Schlatter said Tuesday that he wants Nixon to say, "Ten years ago I appeared on 'Laugh-In' and invited the American people to sock it to me. You can stop now."

Schlatter says he hasn't heard from Nixon.

He's also trying to get Cuban Premier Fidel Castro to issue a series of one-liners for the show.

Schlatter said Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and consumer activist Ralph Nader will appear on the special.

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford has scheduled a long summer stay at this Rocky Mountain resort, his first as a private citizen.

Ford and his wife Betty are expected to arrive Thursday. They own a condominium here, but will stay at the home of Texas oilman David Bass.

Ford has vacationed at Vail for many years, first as a congressman from Michigan and later as vice president and president.

The aide said Ford was looking forward to "a quiet vacation and work time."

Barrett said Ford probably would spend "considerable" time here working on a book and preparing material for a television program.

Ford has signed a five-year contract with NBC to do one television documentary a year.

Economic growth slows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today its index of economic indicators declined in May for the first time in four months, possibly indicating some slowing in the rate of economic growth in months ahead.

The Commerce Department said its so-called composite index of leading indicators decreased two-tenths of 1 per cent in May. While that was a small decline, it followed increases of five-tenths of 1 per cent in April, 2 per cent in March and nine-tenths of 1 per cent in February. The index, which is a composite of 12 individual economic statistics, is designed to foreshadow future trends in the economy.

The May decline, however, will not be taken too seriously by government and private economists since most feel it takes at least three months of upward or downward movements in the index to establish a trend.

There has been other evidence that the steady economic growth under way since late winter may be slowing somewhat. Steel producers have reported a decline of orders in recent weeks and retail sales by major department stores have been disappointing in June.

Six of the 10 individual statistics in the indicators index were negative in May. Contributing most to the decline was a drop in the money supply.

Also negative during the month were the job layoff rate, up to 1.1 per cent from 1 per cent in April; sales performance; changes in cash and other liquid assets; changes in sensitive prices, and stock prices.

Partially offsetting these declines were gains in the average work week to 40.4 hours from 40.2 hours in April; contracts and orders for plants and equipment; new orders for manufactured and consumer goods, and building permit.

The over-all index stood at 130.6 per cent of 1967 average of 100. The prerecession high for the index was 133.7 in June of 1973.

Police report

George Wayne Hendrick, 20, of 1015 E. Browning, was slated to be arraigned today on a charge of unlawfully carrying a weapon.

Police stopped Hendrick's car in the 700 block of W. Foster and said Hendrick walked to the patrol car to present his license. When officers later approached the car, they saw a .22 caliber revolver on the front seat.

Hendrick was arrested and charged with carrying an unlawful weapon.

Steven D. Brooks, 20, of Amarillo, was fined $52.50 in Municipal Court on charges of shoplifting $1.10 from the Ideal Food Store at 312 E. Brown. Another shoplifter, Mrs. Candie Shelton Newman, 17, of Mobeetie, was fined $52.50 in Municipal Court. She was charged with putting a carton of cigarettes in her purse and leaving the Ideal Food Store, 401 N. Ballard, without paying for them.

Police investigated the theft of an estimated $75 worth of plants from the porch at 1829 N. Zimmers.

There was one non-injury accident Tuesday.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Bristling thunderstorms swatted parts of far West Texas and the Panhandle-Plains sector during the night, dumping torrential rain in places and inflicting wind damage at some points.

By this morning most of the turbulence subsided and steamy heat held the state in a clammy grip.

As much as four inches of rain in one hour poured down at Terlingua, a Big Bend hamlet known as site of an annual chili cooking contest. Radar detected rainfall at rates of two to three inches elsewhere in that vicinity.

Winds gusted up to 60 miles per hour around El Paso. They smashed the windows of some homes just north of there at Camutillo and Anthony as the storms reached across the state line into New Mexico.

Another area of heavier storms ranged westward from near Snyder, Lubbock, Plainview and Childress.

Skies were partly cloudy to cloudy nearly everywhere in the state and forecasts promised little change. Another round of scattered thunderstorms was expected in West and North Texas by evening.

Tuesday's top temperatures hit 100 degrees at Fort Worth, 102 at Childress and 104 at El Paso and Presidio.

National weather

By The Associated Press
Some heavy rains fell in the Big Bend area of Texas. Rainfall rates of two to three inches an hour were estimated in some sections. And there was one report of over 4 inches of rain in one hour at Terlingua, Tex.

In the East, flash flood watch and warnings were cancelled in the Philadelphia vicinity as heavy rains diminished.

There were wind gusts up to 60 miles per hour in Flint, Michigan last night. And a tornado was reported north of Fort Wayne, Indiana. Tornadoes also were reported yesterday in Texas, Ohio and Kentucky. There were no major damage reports and no injuries were reported.

Showers were expected in New England with thunderstorms scattered over the remainder of the Atlantic coast states into the eastern part of the Ohio valley today.

Some early morning temperatures and conditions from around the nation:

Eastern U.S.: Atlanta 74, clear; Boston 67, cloudy; Chicago 68, clear; Cincinnati 68, cloudy; Cleveland 62, showers; Detroit 64, partly cloudy; Indianapolis 68, clear.

New York captures 'killer'

NEW YORK (AP) — "Son of Sam," the 44-caliber killer, has captured New York.

The police department added 10 detectives Tuesday to the 50 officers already working full-time to catch "Son of Sam." It has spent more than $1 million on what has become one of the biggest manhunts in the city's history, and is now canvassing some 2,000 agencies, clubs and businesses to try to track his weapon.

The New York Daily News offered a $10,000 reward Tuesday for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer.

The communities of Queens and the Bronx, where "Son of Sam" has struck seven times in 11 months are terrified despite beefed-up police patrols.

Eleven persons were shot in those attacks, the first on July 29, 1976, the latest last Sunday morning. Four women and one man died. One woman remains paralyzed.

In five incidents, "Son of Sam" came up on parked cars from the rear and fired through side windows. In four of the attacks, the victims had just been to a discotheque or movie.

The killer uses the same weapon — a 44-caliber Charter Arms Bulldog revolver. Only 28,000 such guns have been made, and police hope to track them all through their questionnaires. The revolver carries five bullets, but "Son of Sam" is believed to fire only four shots in his attacks; psychiatrists believe he saves the fifth bullet to take his own life if he is found.

The weapon is most commonly used by sky marshals — officers on commercial flights to prevent skyjackings — because its bullets don't have the velocity to pierce cabin walls.

Despite the similarity in the attacks, police are stymied.

"I think he's a very shrewd person, and he's not doing this just to tantalize us," said Chief of Detectives John Keenan.

"He's motivated by an inner force or tension, and when it explodes, he commits a crime. He's a carefully canny person, and he's taken careful precautions not to be caught."

Dolphins put shark fear in swimmers

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Swimmers and beachgoers along the Texas coast are so jumpy following the shark scare three weeks ago that any fin sticking out of the water creates excitement.

A report that another school of sharks had appeared off shore late Tuesday was dismissed today by the Coast Guard.

"They were dolphins," a Coast Guard spokesman said. Several thousand sharks moved into the area earlier this month and roamed up and down the coast for several days as close to the shoreline as 20 yards. Marine biologists said the sharks apparently were attracted by the abundant small fish and shrimp in the clear waters of the Gulf.

Theft suspects returned

Two men, charged with felony theft of more than $200 in accessories from a late model pickup parked at Marie Foundations in McLean Saturday, have been arrested in Sayre, Okla., on a Gray County warrant.

They waived extradition and were returned to Pampa Tuesday afternoon. Bonds were set at $3,500 each this morning for Bobby Lee Worrell, 23, of West Virginia and Arnold Lee Younger, also 23, of North Carolina by Justice of Peace Nat Lunsford.

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan said the two were driving a late model pickup when they saw the one owned by George Terry Electric where his son had left it.

They were traveling east and financially embarrassed so to speak and drove it onto a dirt road and took several parts including a Citizens Band radio," the sheriff said.

Deputy Sheriff Jimmy Shelton had Oklahoma officers arrest them, the sheriff said.

Burns testifies in suit on eye loss, concrete nail

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Testimony began Tuesday afternoon in 223rd District Court here on a four-year-old $1 million products liability case where a 30-year-old Pampa man allegedly lost an eye on June 29, 1971, while driving nails into concrete in laying outdoor carpet.

The case was filed by Dale C. Burns against Lewis Supply Co. on June 25, 1973.

John Warner is attorney for Burns, who says he lost his left eye when a nail flew up and hit him while in process of hammering it.

Warner told the jury that his client ordered concrete nails and was delivered masonry nails.

"We expect to show there is a difference... we are going to show that even though warnings were shown to Lewis, they didn't pass those warnings along... We say we should have received the nails we ordered. We will ask you to find Lewis Supply negligent."

Warner added that his client is totally blind in his left eye.

Dick Stokes of Amarillo, attorney for Lewis Supply, said the company's position is that "we didn't receive any warnings and didn't pass any along. We didn't feel it necessary."

Stokes said Burns had testified in a deposition taken earlier that he had safety goggles and if "he had been told to wear the goggles he wouldn't have."

Burns was the first to testify. He said he had lived in Pampa all 30 years of his life.

In examining his client from the witness stand, Warner asked if he had ever before been struck by a nail which "came back at a 180-degree angle."

He said he had driven two or three nails in the front end of the carpet.

"The last time I hit it (the nail) flew up and hit me in the eye... it was a great pain all of a sudden... and I felt some kind of fluid running out my eye. I ran into the house and my wife started screaming. She took me to the hospital. I saw Dr. (Julian) Key and he said, 'Boy you are going to Amarillo,'" Burns said.

He described his two-week hospital stay. Burns said he is now employed with Universal Erectors at $5 per hour.

"After six years are you in a position to tell the jury that regardless of what kind of instructions had been given you would have followed them?" Warner asked.

"I'm not saying word for word," Burns replied.

Stokes told Burns during the cross examination that there would be surprises.

"There will be no Perry Masons. I'm going to ask the same questions I asked in 1973 (when the deposition was taken)," Stokes said.

"He (the salesman) didn't give any instructions and you didn't ask for them?"

"No, sir," Burns responded.

"From past experience in driving nails you know some have a tendency to flip?" Stokes asked.

"Yes, sir," Burns said.

"So far you know nothing defective about that nail?" Stokes inquired. The answer was "no."

Stokes then asked if Burns could tell the jury what actually struck the eye.

"You don't know, do you?" the attorney asked. The answer was "no" again.

The second witness was Ed J. Lewis, president of the Lewis Supply Inc. He said the business was started by his father in 1917.

Lewis identified the nails as concrete or masonry nails.

"If there is any difference I don't know what it could be," he said. "I've been in business since 1927 and it is the first time I've had a complaint on nail... it is the first eye sight case I ever heard of. I certainly would hope no one else ever got an eye put out."

The testimony was to continue today with Judge Don Cain presiding.

Gray County commission to meet Friday

The Gray County Commissioners Court will meet at 9 a.m. Friday in the Commissioners Courtroom.

Only three items are on the agenda. The court will consider a resolution to restore election Precincts 6 and 4 (Laketown and McLean) and to restore boundaries as they were prior to Sept. 13, 1973.

County Judge Don Hinton said the court did this once, but it was at the wrong time. The first motion will be rescinded and another passed, he explained.

The two other items on the agenda include payment of salaries and bills as approved by the county auditor and consideration of time deposits and transfers of funds as may be recommended by the county auditor.

strategic arms negotiations with the Russians.

But Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., who sponsored the amendment to cut out the B1 money, argued that the plane immediately would be obsolete because it could not survive against weapons the Soviets can produce in the 1980s.

Addabbo called the B1 "the most expensive white elephant ever proposed."

The B1, at a cost of more than $100 million per plane, would be the most expensive combat plane in history.

The first play written by Pierre Corneille, the father of French tragedy, was "Medité," a comedy.

House supports B1 bomber

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives wants to see the controversial B1 bomber added to the U.S. arsenal, but it is President Carter who will make the final decision on the costly new plane.

Carter is expected to announce his decision at a Thursday news conference and aides say he could settle on anything from halting production of the plane to producing all 240 bombers the Air Force wants at an estimated cost of $34.8 billion.

During his campaign for the White House, Carter said he would stop construction of the B1, which he called wasteful.

The House rejected an effort Tuesday to chop all $1.4 billion in B1 production money out of a $110.6-billion defense appropriation bill, voting 243 to 178 to keep the bomber alive.

The $1.4 billion in the House bill would put five B1 bombers into production. Congress and former President Gerald R. Ford approved the three production planes last year.

Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, predicted to the House that Carter's decision will be to keep the B1 in production, partly to keep pressure on the Soviets to negotiate a new treaty to reduce such weapons.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., also said he favors keeping the B1 in production, partly because he sees it as a bargaining chip in

Cartoonist to be guest

Ace Reid, the cowboy's cartoonist, will be the featured guest at the Thursday quarterly meeting of the Southwestern T-Bone at the Amarillo Hilton Inn. Cattle feeders and producers, along with allied industry representatives from across the Panhandle area, are invited to attend, according to Rex McAnelly, T-Bone president from Pampa. Registration for the 6:30 p.m. get-together is $10.

Oil tax gets first okay

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key congressional panel has approved President Carter's proposed new oil tax, along with a provision that would divide the money it raises among all American adults.

Under the new crude oil tax-and-refund system approved Tuesday by the House Ways and Means Committee, each adult American would get about $22 next year as a share of the money to be raised by this levy.

Beginning in 1978, and ending Sept. 30, 1981, this tax would hike the government-controlled price of U.S.-produced crude oil, which now sells for from $5.25 to $11.28 per 42-gallon barrel, to the uncontrolled world market price currently averaging about $13.50 a barrel.

Government experts expect this to boost the price of a gallon of gasoline by three to five cents and the price of a gallon of home heating oil by three to four cents between 1978 and 1980.

But by making fuel more expensive, it is expected to produce savings of 200,000 barrels of oil daily by 1985. The United States currently uses 17.4 million barrels a day.

Earlier this month, the panel killed Carter's proposal of a special benefit, ultimately averaging about $80 annually, for people who heat their homes with oil. But the panel reversed itself Tuesday and resurrected and approved the plan, designed to ease the effect of the tax on home heating-oil buyers.

In an apparent concession to propane producers, the panel exempted home and farm use of the bottled gas from the tax.

OPEC cancels price hike

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A majority of members in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — OPEC — have decided to cancel plans for a 5 per cent increase in the price of crude oil July 1, the OPEC secretary general announced today.

The 13-member oil cartel has been split over prices since last December when 11 members called for a two-stage 15 per cent price hike for 1977. The other two members, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, opted for a 5 per cent increase for the whole year.

The 10 per cent increase imposed Jan. 1 by the cartel majority raised the price of their crude oil to $12.70 a barrel. The second stage of the increase was to have gone into effect July 1.

Beef import problems heard

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — United States policy on beef imports was expected to take a beating again today as 500 cattlemen, lawmakers and unions confronted International Trade Commission members with their problems.

Today's hearing is one in a series being conducted by the ITC to determine whether the nation's current policy on meat imports is hurting domestic producers. Once the hearings are completed, the testimony will be evaluated and ITC recommendations will be presented to President Carter.

Tuesday's one-sided testimony indicated Texas ranchers and farmers were less than happy with the situation.

Rep. Olin Teague, D-Tex., told commissioners George Moore and Catherine Bedell the Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I realize that the water shortage in my area has caused a great deal of inconvenience for some, but count us as a couple for whom it has been a real blessing. In an effort to conserve water, my husband and I decided to try bathing together, and all I can say is, "WOW!" It has opened up a whole new series of experiences for us. (He's 36 and I'm 35, we've been married for 14 years, and we have three children.)

To those who would scoff at this lovely kind of togetherness, if you haven't tried it, don't knock it.

JIM AND JANE IN MARIN

DEAR J AND J: Can it then be said that "the family who bathes together stays together"?

DEAR ABBY: My husband saves newspapers and magazines. We've been married nearly 12 years, and each year I have begged him to get rid of the two daily newspapers and the pile of magazines we get, but to no avail.

He keeps promising to go through them and cut out the articles he wants. He went through two years' worth about five years ago while he was out of work. But since he put all the clippings in one box at random, finding any one given article would be a major undertaking.

The crushing blow came this year when he had to store our lawn furniture in the family room because there wasn't room in the garage! (I refuse to let him store these magazines and newspapers in the house.)

I've threatened to throw the newspapers out or call the fire department, but he says I'm unreasonable because there's nothing wrong with saving newspapers and magazines.

Starting this year, I told him that if he doesn't cut out what he wants to save within a week of the time we receive the paper, I'd get rid of it. So far, it's been fairly successful, but it hasn't reduced the collection he's stored in our garage. Every time I go there, I feel like throwing a few newspapers away. He'd never miss them, but I've never deceived him and I don't want to start.

Any suggestions from you or others who have solved this problem will be greatly appreciated.

DESPERATE IN ANN ARBOR

DEAR DESPERATE: Tell him that he has until next fall to make room in the garage to store the lawn furniture because you will not store it in the family room another season. There's nothing wrong with saving newspapers and magazines, but when the accumulation becomes a nuisance and a fire hazard, it's time to lay down the law.

DEAR ABBY: You claim there's no such thing as a "frigid-dear"—only clumsy men.

As a former "clumsy" man, let me assure you that many men are conditioned through repetition to be clumsy. ("Not tonight, I have a headache," or "Well, okay, go ahead, but hurry up and get it over with.")

Thanks to Dr. Freud, I found someone to "untrain" me.

DAVE IN NEW MEXICO

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Some friends of mine have started taking vitamin E to relieve the pain of arthritis. So far they are pleased with the relief that they are getting from it. I have read that taking this vitamin can be dangerous. Will you kindly comment on it? If it is all right for them to take it, how much should they take and how often?

DEAR READER — There is no evidence that vitamin E helps in any form of arthritis at all. Many people with chronic disorders, such as arthritis, think they are getting benefits when they start any new treatment. We call this the placebo effect. Sugar pills that the patient has faith in will do just as much.

The danger in taking vitamins as a cure for such disorders as arthritis is that it may delay or prevent a person from getting needed and useful medical help. To give you more information on the limitations of the use of vitamin E, I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-12, Vitamin E: Miracle or Myth. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I don't think reasonable amounts of vitamin E will hurt a person but it is a fat soluble vitamin, like D and A, and there have not been enough studies of its prolonged use in large amounts to really pin point what damage that might cause, other than to your pocket book.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had two thyroid operations, the last in 1964 when I was 53. After the second operation I have had what is called a "throat spasm." One doctor called the spasm a nerve reaction, another an allergy. I can be sitting quietly and just swallow and get one. One doctor said to immediately drink hot water, and another said to drink cold water.

I have looked in several medical books and can't find throat spasm. Is it the same as spasm of the esophagus? I have about one attack a year, some severe, others moderate. I can't breathe and I have a strange noise in my throat which scares those around me as no one knows what to do for me. I keep drinking water until it stops. Often I have a severe headache following this, and the next day my chest is sore.

I have been told to relax when I get one, but it is very hard to relax when one is struggling to breathe. I am on thyroid. Is there anything you can recommend? Believe me any help to alleviate these spasms would be most welcomed and appreciated. Most doctors seem to dismiss it as unimportant.

DEAR READER — You can't locate it in books because it is called laryngospasm — spasm of your larynx. The muscles in the larynx contract vigorously, obstructing the air passage. The noise you hear is similar to the noise of "croup" and is caused by the movement of air through your narrowed airway. The soreness of your chest the next day is simple muscle soreness from the extra muscular effort you have had to make to breathe.

Laryngospasm is a symptom. It can be caused by several different things, including nervous tension. That is why you have gotten so many different answers. It is going to be hard to track down the real cause for your laryngospasm because they occur so infrequently. I think you should see a specialist in ear, nose and throat problems — otorhinolaryngologist. He may be able to help you. The treatment will depend a lot on what he is able to find as an underlying cause of the attacks.

(Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.)

Polly's Pointers

Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I find those thin pieces of unused soap cakes work wonders when put in different parts of the attic, in the storage boxes and Christmas decorations to keep the silverfish away. Try it. — BETTIE JO.

DEAR POLLY — My shag rug needed cleaning very badly but as I am on Welfare I could not afford to rent a shampooer. I could not stand to look at that rug so I mixed an all purpose household cleaner (powder) in hot water and went to work. I dipped the scrub brush in the solution and then brushed it in the rug going back and forth and then in a circular motion. Next I rubbed vigorously with a clean dry cloth. The shag pile was raised by the use of a rattling comb. When dry it was beautiful and several people thought I had used a shampooer.

DEAR CHARLOTTE — I would have used a clear rinse water to remove the cleanser but evidently not doing this did no harm to your rug. One should test first for effect on the rug's color. — POLLY.

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

capsule reviews prepared by the American Library Assn

by Barbara Elleman

"Bookmagic" is the perfect choice of themes for the 1976 Children's Book Week celebration (November 8-14). After all, it's the magic of a book — that indefinable spark between book and reader — that stimulates a child to read on.

Out of the nearly 2,500 children's books published annually in the United States, here's just a minute sample of those guaranteed to capture most kids' imaginations and interests.

Madeleine L'Engle has a well-deserved reputation as an able storyteller. In her newest book, "Dragons in the Waters," she creates a suspenseful tale featuring a cast of perceptive characters and a well-developed theme about the importance of caring.

On board the Venezuela-bound freighter Orion are Poly, Charles and their scientist father, Dr. O'Keefe. Also along are Simon Renier and his uncle, Forsyth Phair, who is reputedly delivering a famous family portrait to Caracas.

A suspicious dockside accident alerts Poly to treachery afoot. Meanwhile, Charles' visionary dreams start a chain of events that culminate in the portrait's theft and Phair's murder. Strange circumstances point to several of the travelers as possible suspects and the investigation intensifies when the victim is discovered to be an imposter.

The portrait seems to hold an important clue linking legends about the Phair-Renier family to the Quetzaco-tlans, a jungle tribe known to possess the gift of healing. A series of drama-charged twists and a climactic conclusion will keep the junior high schooler reading this one to the very end.

"Catch the Wind, A book of Windmills and Windpower" (grades five-nine) is a nonfiction book that entertains, informs and is, in its own way, magical. The natural force of wind, Dennis explains, has played an important role through history — as evidenced in the early windmill irrigation of Babylonia in the 20th century B.C., in the enormous 3,000-year-old sailed windmills of Mykonos, in powering the land drainage of Holland starting in the 15th century, in determining sea routes for early sailing ships, and in grinding wheat during America's colonial days.

Interspersed with the historical account are such fascinating tidbits of information as the fact that sails were used to carry messages and that millers were forced to pay a tax on the air they used.

Striking black-and-white photographs, art reproductions and early design sketches complement this absorbing text and make it marvelous browsing, as well as reading material.

Under the spell of author Jean Fritz's imagination, John Hancock is transformed from a famous signature into a very real and likeable person. In "Will You Sign Here, John Hancock?" (grades three-five), the author presents Hancock as a young man who relished wearing fine clothes, giving grand parties and being liked by everyone. In fact, when England repealed the Stamp Act in 1766, the Bostonian "festooned his house with flags, piled his tables high with food, lighted up his windows (all 54 of them), rolled out a 126-gallon cask of Madeira wine, and then set off fireworks. It was one of the grandest parties Boston ever had."

But King George III disliked this man who refused to pay taxes and put him on a list of "Dangerous Americans." And when Hancock, who had long practiced signing his name with an abundance of curls and in various styles, affixed his signature to the Declaration of Independence, King George had no trouble noticing it.

The ambition, vanities, humor and charm of an important figure in American history come alive in the text and in the witty, deftly-drawn illustrations by Trina Schart Hyman.

I'D DO IT ALL OVER AGAIN By Igor Cassini with Jeanne Moll. Putnam 266 Pages $8.95

What do you do if you're no longer "Cholly Knickerbocker," longtime gossip columnist for the Hearst chain, but still have a lot of famous names to drop?

Well, if you're Igor Cassini you write, with Jeanne Moll, your memoirs.

Igor and his brother, Oleg, were born into an aristocratic Russian family — their grandfather was Czarist ambassador to Washington — but fled the revolution and grew up in Italy, where they were both tennis champs.

Arriving in the United States, the two young Counts Cassini made names for themselves in different fields. Oleg, who was for a time married to film star Gene Tierney, became a designer, eventually creating clothes for First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy.

Igor was married four times.

to women well known and well heeled in varying degree. He made friends and enemies as a chronicler of the "jet set," a term he originated. However, his days of hobnobbing with and writing about the beautiful people came to an end in the early 60s when he extended his public relations activities to involvement with Trujillo's Dominican Republic, and was fined $10,000 as an unregistered lobbyist.

The book is full of inside stories of the famous and notorious but it's sometimes difficult to keep track of who was married to whom — when. So many names are dropped, in fact, that the index covers 10 pages.

It's one long gossip column between hard covers, but it's worth reading, if only to get it straight once and for all, which Cassini is Oleg and which one is Igor.

At Wimbledon

McEnroe in semifinals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — "I'm not shy," says John McEnroe, 18-year-old tennis sensation from Douglaston, N.Y., in the understatement of Wimbledon's centenary tournament.

McEnroe, son of a lawyer, came here primarily to play in Wimbledon's junior tournament. He's scratched himself from that. He's got far more important things to do, like playing Jimmy Connors in the men's singles semifinal.

McEnroe reached the last four — the youngest in Wimbledon's history to do so — by knocking out Phil Dent, the Australian seeded 13th, 6-4, 8-9, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 in the quarter-finals Tuesday. In the previous round he effectively disposed of the very experienced Sandy Mayer of Mendham, N.J.

In the semifinals Thursday, he's due to meet Connors, the No. 1 seed and hot favorite.

He's taking the prospect coolly. "I don't know I've even met him," he said.

McEnroe's passage to the last four hasn't been a quiet one. He's already drawn one rebuke for his language. And he threw a temper tantrum once or twice in his match against Dent when calls went against him.

"I'm very intense," he explained afterward, "but I've controlled myself here. Wimbledon is a great tournament, but I'm not letting it intimidate me. That way, you lose matches."

The prospect of playing Connors doesn't seem to bother him. But what to do with the prize money does. Even if he loses his semifinal, he'll have netted himself $6,000.

As an amateur, he won't be eligible for any prize money. "I don't know what happens," he said. "I think they give it to me and I have to give it up to someone else. We'll find out about that later."

McEnroe's victory over Dent was one of two shocks in the men's quarter-finals Tuesday. The other was the almost clinical elimination of Ilie Nastase from the singles by Bjorn Borg, the champion who beat Nastase in the final last year.

Borg's score Tuesday was 6-0, 8-6, 6-3 and he ran the wily but temperamental Romanian right off court with some of the best pinpoint passing shots seen on the center court this year.

During the match Nastase collected a couple more warnings to add to the one he'd already been given in an earlier round. They were for time-wasting and using bad language, and after the match the Romanian stormed out of the courts and said he was flying straight back to Los Angeles.

With Connors having beaten Byron Bertram, the South African, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2 and Vitas Gerulaitis of Howard Beach, N.Y., beating Billy Martin of Palos Verdes, Calif., 6-2, 8-9, 6-2, 6-2, the semifinals Thursday will be Connors vs. McEnroe and Gerulaitis vs. Borg.

Today's women's semifinals find Britain's Virginia Wade meeting Chris Evert and Sue Barker, also of Britain, playing Betty Stove of the Netherlands.

It took 20 innings—count 'em—for San Antonio to trim El Paso 4-3 in a Texas League marathon Tuesday night.

Two seven-inning double headers were scheduled but the second game had to be canceled for obvious reasons.

The Dodgers were ahead 3-2 going into the seventh inning when El Paso's Tommy Smith hit a homerun to tie it up. After that, neither side did much until the bottom of the 20th when Charlie Meyers led off with a single.

Meyers was sacrificed to second and went to third on an error that put Mark Hance on first. Meyer was thrown out at the plate but Hance moved to second on the play and was brought home by Rick Olliar's single up the middle.

The two teams played 17 innings Sunday night before San Antonio won.

The Arkansas Travelers were busy Tuesday night rapping Jackson for 15 hits and a 14-5 victory.

The Travs broke the game open with six runs in the sixth inning and added four in the seventh. The Mets got all of their runs in the explosive seventh as well.

Ivan Murrell proved to be the hero for Amarillo with a two-run homer in the ninth inning for a 13-10 slugfest victory over the Midland Cubs. It was Murrell's second four-bagger of the night and his seventh of the year. Also, his sixth against Midland.

Ernie Young provided the power for Shreveport with bases loaded single in the third inning that helped Shreveport to a 6-4 squeaker over the Tulsa Drillers.

Shreveport had four starters sidelined with injuries so manager Tim Murtaugh cut up his roster and plucked his starting lineup out of a hat.

Don Cain resigns

Don Cain, assistant basketball coach at PHS, resigned yesterday to become the head basketball coach and athletic director of a private academy in Dallas.

"It's a great opportunity for him and I don't blame him a bit," said Athletic Director Ed Lehnick.

Cain, who joined the Pampa staff during the middle of the 1976-77 basketball season, also taught history at Pampa Junior High School.

Lehnick said he will begin reviewing some recommendations from incoming head coach Gary Abercrombie to fill the vacancy.

A's nip Rangers

OAKLAND (AP) — Billy Hunter's last move in his first game as Texas Rangers manager was to bring left-handed reliever Darold Knowles in to face left-handed batter Willie Crawford of the Oakland A's.

It didn't work. Crawford lined a one-out single to right field, scoring Wayne Gross from second base with the A's second run in the ninth inning, beating the Rangers 6-5.

"I didn't consider using a right-handed pinch hitter. Willie has 10 years of experience," said A's Manager Bobby Winkles.

Besides, the A's best known right-handed batter, Dick Allen, was somewhere other than the Oakland Coliseum.

"I don't know where he is," Winkles said half an hour before game time when it was clear that Allen, whose one-week suspension had ended, would not be in uniform.

A's owner Charles O. Finley, who suspended Allen after seeing the player taking a shower during a game in Chicago, said after learning of his failure to return, "I'm not surprised."

Finley, also unaware of Allen's whereabouts, added that the first baseman will remain on the A's disqualified list — drawing no pay — until he reappears and is ready to play.

And it's anyone's guess whether Allen will ever play another major league baseball game.

Chase wins Farm title

Led by standout pitcher-third baseman Brad Clay and catcher Alvin Murgai, Chase Oil Field Service swept through the season-ending tournament to win the Pampa Farm League baseball championship which concluded Monday night.

Chase, coached by Kenneth Nunn, ended the regular season with a 7-1 mark, and then disposed of McCarthy Hill (6-0) and Thompson (9-6 and 13-2) for the title.

Thompson finished second and McCarthy third in the tourney.

Final regular-season standings:

Team	W	L
Chase	7	1
Pioneer	5	3
Thompson	4	4
Hinkle	3	5
McCarthy	2	6

Astro ace snubs classic

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros pitcher Joaquin Andujar frequently talks to the baseball before a pitch ("not like Mark Fidrych, like Joaquin Andujar") and doesn't want to pitch in the All-Star game.

"I don't want to pitch in the All-Star game and I don't want to be a super star," Andujar said Tuesday night after five-hitting the Astros to a 5-1 victory over the San Diego Padres. "I just want to pitch good for the Houston Astros."

Andujar may be forced into super star status and the All-Star game if he continues his current performance. Andujar's victory boosted his record to 9-4 and marked his seventh win in eight starts.

"I look at the ball sometime and I say 'Okay, come on, let's go,'" Andujar said.

With a little help from Enos Cabell and Bob Watson, who drove in four of Houston's five runs, Andujar's conversations with the baseball were sufficient to subdue the Padres for the second straight night.

Houston took a 3-1 lead through the first five and one-half innings on a groundout by Watson and a sacrifice fly by Jose Cruz in the first inning and Watson's double in the fifth.

News media can't broadcast act

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has ruled that the news media has no constitutional protection from damage suits if they broadcast an entertainer's entire act without his consent.

Splitting 5 to 4, the court said states may grant entertainers a "right of publicity" through their own laws without violating the First Amendment guarantee of freedom of the press.

Dissenting Justice Lewis F. Powell called the majority ruling disturbing and said "it could lead to a degree of media self-censorship."

Writing for the majority, Justice Byron White stressed that states are under no obligation to authorize such damage suits. In fact, the majority said a state may take the opposite tack and make the news media immune from such suits.

But the First Amendment, as applied to the states by the 14th Amendment, requires neither course, the court said.

The decision came in a case involving Hugo Zacchini, a self-described "human cannonball" who performed his act at a county fair in Huron, Ohio in 1972.

Despite Zacchini's objections, a reporter for the Scripps Howard Broadcasting Co. filmed the act.

The company operates WEWS-TV. The station broadcast the 15-second film of Zacchini's entire act on a news program. In the act, Zacchini is shot from a cannon into a net about 200 feet away.

Filing suit for damages, Zacchini claimed Ohio law gave him a right to control the publicity about his performance and the station should compensate him because it broadcast the entire act without his permission.

The Ohio Supreme Court held that the First Amendment protects the news media from such suits as long as the media does not intend to injure the performer and is not using material from his act for some private purpose.

The Supreme Court noted that Zacchini did not contend that the TV station could report nothing about his performance.

His complaint is that (the station) filmed his entire act and displayed that film on television for the public to see and enjoy," White wrote.

"The broadcast of a film of (Zacchini's) entire act poses a substantial threat to the economic value of that performance," the majority said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter appointed a commission Monday to study the effectiveness of the volunteer Army and to propose military pay, benefits and pensions fair to taxpayers and to members of the armed forces.

In a Rose Garden ceremony at the White House, Carter predicted that the study will be "very time consuming and, as you can imagine, very controversial." He said he hopes one result will be to encourage long enlistments.

Carter said 60 percent of the military budget is spent on personnel. "I'm not saying it's too much," he stated, but added that he wants the money well spent.

The commission's work will include "a renewed analysis of the effectiveness of our military recruitment program," Carter said. But he gave no hint he plans to scrap it. Under the old draft, the President said, "poor people who couldn't go to college were the ones who had to go to war."

Members of the commission, which Carter instructed to review previous studies of the military pay system, include Charles J. Zwick, a former director of the Bureau of the Budget, and Lt. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis, the highest ranking black in the military when he retired in 1970.

Carter designated Zwick as chairman of the commission.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Americas: The Decorative Arts in Latin America in the Era of the Revolution," exhibited last year as part of the Bicentennial celebration at the Renwick Gallery in Washington, is on display at the Center for Inter-American Relations' Gallery through August 7.

The exhibition of over 150 pieces of 18th-century Latin American decorative art reflects the Spanish and Portuguese tradition combined, in some cases, with pre-Hispanic tastes.

Yarbrough witness secluded

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The man who says Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough plotted to kill a grand jury witness and forged an automobile title as part of a payoff is being kept in seclusion by the Harris County district attorney's office.

Bill Rothkopf was whisked from the grand jury room here Tuesday hiding his face from newsmen under a paper sack. In a copyrighted Saturday story, the Houston Post quoted Rothkopf as saying Yarbrough plotted to kill Victoria banker Bill Kemp because Kemp could testify to Yarbrough's complicity in another alleged forgery of a $200,000 letter of credit.

Harris County authorities said Rothkopf's story, as he related it to them, is being investigated. Since the alleged title forgery took place in an Austin motel room, a Travis County grand jury is listening to the testimony. Rothkopf preceded Yarbrough to the witness stand behind closed doors. Spokesmen for both the Harris and Travis County district attorneys' offices said immunity has not been offered to Rothkopf in return for his testimony.

Yarbrough, whose November election to the state's highest court has been clouded by a disbarment suit, told reporters after testifying that allegations about his forging the car title are part of a pattern of persecution against him. "I think we've pretty well explained to the grand jury certain facts that put that tale in its proper perspective," Yarbrough said.

Asked what the proper perspective was, Yarbrough said, "It doesn't exist."

He also was asked about Rothkopf's published allegation that he plotted the killing of a Victoria banker.

"People who know me know

I've never entertained the possibility of killing anybody except maybe a newsmen once or twice," Yarbrough said.

He said that the 1974 Chevrolet in question in the alleged title forgery actually was sold to Rothkopf in late April 1975. He said the car was used in his law firm but no longer was needed. "One thing you don't need is an extra car hanging around, so I sold it to Mr. Rothkopf," Yarbrough said.

He said the allegations against him were "orchestrated by persons with ulterior motives....the general acceleration of adverse publicity—that ought to be quite a message to those people who are thinking people...what has happened to me should be of great concern to every person who treasures his liberty."

Yarbrough predicted he would survive his "ordeal," including disbarment proceedings and various allegations against him.

City behind in gas bill

CRYSTAL CITY, Tex. (AP) Residents of this small South Texas community are more than $600,000 behind in their gas payments and their only hope against an apparently very cold winter is a favorable ruling by the Texas Supreme Court.

After receiving yet another letter from LoVaca Gathering Co., the town's gas supplier, Mayor Francisco Benavides shrugged his shoulders and said, "There is no way we can pay it. All we can do is wait for the Supreme Court's decision."

The city's 1,300 gas meters will keep turning at least until the state supreme court renders its decision, which is expected before the end of July. The court is considering the city's claim that it does not have to pay the higher rates asked by the gas company.

Crystal City has already lost its case at the district and appellate court levels.

The problem arose in 1975 when LoVaca obtained permission from the Texas Railroad Commission for the new rates that eventually peaked at $2 per thousand cubic feet.

Before the ruling, Crystal City had been paying 35 cents per thousand cubic feet based on a 20-year contract signed in 1972.

"After the Railroad Commission's decision, we tried to charge the new rates," Benavides said. "We tried it for five months but the people just couldn't pay them. So we went back to the old rates. We decided it was better to have people pay the old rates than no rates at all. Some of the bills under the new rates came to $60 a month."

Two cops charged in murder

HOUSTON (AP) — Two former Houston policemen have been indicted by a Harris County grand jury on charges of murder in the death of Joe Campos Torres Jr. and a third former officer has been indicted on charges of misdemeanor assault.

Indicted on charges of murder Tuesday were Terry W. Denson, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21. Joseph James Janish, 22, was indicted on assault charges.

Harris County Dist. Atty. Carrol Vance recommended the indictments in connection with the death of Torres, whose body was found May 8 in Buffalo Bayou, three days after he had been arrested during a disturbance at a bar.

The grand jury in Dist. Judge William M. Hatten's court indicted Denson and Orlando on charges of pushing Torres off a downtown dock into the bayou and causing his death. Janish was accused of causing bodily injury to the former Army Ranger, a karate expert.

Denson's and Orlando's bond was set at $10,000 each and Janish's at $1,000.

Denson and Orlando, if convicted, could face prison sentences of five to 99 years and Janich could be sentenced to as much as one year in jail and be fined $2,000.

Year-long fire of sloth dung burns out

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. (AP) — Park rangers say that the year-long fire fed by dung from the extinct Shasta ground sloth in a Grand Canyon cave has burned itself out.

The fire, discovered smoldering in the remote Rampart Cave last July 14, threatened to destroy the last known source of information on the Shasta sloth, which disappeared about 11,000 years ago.

Dr. Paul Martin, a University of Arizona paleoecologist, accompanied four park rangers and two federal mine safety inspectors to the cave Monday.

They arrived at the cave about 2 p.m. and found no smoke or heat and the fire had been extinguished. A park ranger reported

Youth sent to TYC center

A 15-year-old Pampa boy was committed Monday to the Texas Youth Council's reception center at Brownwood following a hearing in 223rd District Court.

Judge Don Cain found the youth had engaged in delinquent conduct which stemmed from a Pizza Hut theft.
