U.S. Heads Back Into Peace Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States heads back into the Vietnam peace talks Thursday amid only modest predictions here about prospects for a settlement any time soon.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, due in late today from a round-the-world trip, said before leaving Rome that he is generally hopeful the reopening Paris parley might bring some movement by a Hanoi negotiator toward ending the war.

Assistant Secretary Marshall Green, the State Department's top Far East expert, returned from an East Asian tour affirming that the United States will work hard for a settlement.

"But I think we are dealing, quite realistically," Green said, "with pretty hard-bitten, intransigent, struggle-minded leaders in Hanoi."

President Nixon's security affairs adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, told newsmen over the weekend that "at least we have some reason to believe that maybe there will be a new approach" by North Vietnam.

"But we cannot guarantee it," he said, "because it will not be certain until we have heard it from them."

Washington analysts have spotted no particular shift in North Vietnam's position in the public remarks of Hanoi negotiator Xuan Thuy upon his arrival in Paris Monday.

They say Hanoi's terms would mean, in effect, a Communist takeover of South Vietnam.

However, Le Duc Tho, the Hanoi Politburo member who has met secretly with Kissinger in the past, is reported on his way to Paris and what he says privately may—or may not—diverge from their public stance.

Nixon announced June 29th that he was resuming the long-stalemate Paris meetings, suspended May 4, "on the assumption that the North Vietnamese are prepared to negotiate in a constructive and serious way."

The administration's main stated reasons for some optimism is because of North Vietnam's circumstances now. Rogers noted that Hanoi's spring offensive has failed. U.S. bombing of the North is highly successful. Nixon's Moscow and Peking trips have strengthened the world climate for peace, and continuing the war serves nobody's interests.

Connally May Back President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, back home after a 17-nation mission for President Nixon, says he may campaign actively for the chief executive's re-election this fall but expects no offer to be Nixon's running mate.

He also said he has no idea what new assignment Nixon may have in mind for him, although the President mentioned recently that Connally may take on some other special duties.

Connally told newsmen that he's made no decision on his campaign role, but said he doesn't consider Democratic Sen. George McGovern the most attractive presidential candidate and sides with Nixon on most major issues.

"I think it would be a mistake to assume that I'll sit this one out," said Connally, who resigned in May as Treasury secretary amid speculation that Nixon might choose him to replace Spiro T. Agnew on the GOP ticket in November.

"It's conceivable that I could be fairly active" for Nixon, he said, but he turned aside questions suggesting that the President sent him on the five-week worldwide trip to groom him for vice president.

"I would anticipate that I wouldn't" be offered the post, he said. "As I read the tea leaves, that's not in my future." Besides, he said, reporters should ask Nixon that question.

Connally said he is still a Democrat. But, asked if he missed attending the Democratic National Convention at Miami Beach, he said, "I miss it, kind of like a man misses a sore thumb."

As for McGovern, he said, "in light of some of his policies, he's not the most attractive candidate in the country, as far as I can see."

Connally, former Texas governor who has been active in several Democratic national conventions, said he will talk to Nixon later this week at the Western White House before making a public report on his trip. But that's not all that will be discussed, he said.

ToT Rodeo Scheduled Aug. 2-5

The 26th annual Top O' Texas Rodeo is scheduled in Pampa Aug. 2-5 in an all new grandstand and pens built recently following a tornado of two years ago.

Pampa has not had a rodeo for the past two years due to the tornado in 1970 and the VEE quarantine of last year, which made necessary the cancellation for two years in a row.

Directors of the Association report all plans finalized and an all-time record number of entries are expected for the rodeo, which has been in operation here since 1945.

A street parade is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 2, at 4 p.m. to get the rodeo underway, with nightly performances at 8 p.m.

Tommy and Beverly Steiner of Austin will produce this year's rodeo, featuring some of the top specialty acts on the rodeo circuit, including the Kajun Kid, popular rodeo clown.

Helen Taylor and her all-girl show band direct from Las Vegas will be featured at all rodeo performances and will play for dancing in the National Guard Armory Wednesday through Saturday nights.

All of the regular RCA events will be included, with cowboys and cowgirls competing for an estimated purse of $10,000. An amateur bareback riding contest, with a purse of $200 plus entry fees, is scheduled in order that all amateurs in this area may participate.

Tom Hadley of Kerrville will be the announcer. Hadley has gained a national reputation as a rodeo announcer and has worked with Steiner for many years. He has had extensive experience in the national finals and national televised rodeos.

Holly Gray, president of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association, said that ample free parking will be available.

Ticket reservations may be secured by writing the Top O' Texas Rodeo Office, P. O. Box 1942, Pampa, Texas 79065.

The Kid Pony Show, which is a miniature rodeo for ages 5 through 15, will be held Tuesday, Aug. 1, with both afternoon and evening performances. Practice nights will be July 26 and 28.

CONTEST BEAUTY—Colleen McCloud, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McCloud, Sr., Skellytown, is the latest entry in the Top O' Texas Beauty Pageant, slated Aug. 12. A senior at White Deer High School, her hobbies are reading, swimming, outdoor sports, bike riding, cooking and piano. Her sponsor is the Skellytown Lions Club.

Pageant Contest Aug. 12

Only three days remain before the deadline for entrants in the Miss Top O' Texas Beauty Pageant, scheduled here for Aug. 12.

Entries are still coming in as officials begin preparations for the event to be held in the new M. K. Brown Memorial Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Any single girl between the ages of 16 and 21 with good reputation and character, properly sponsored by a club or business firm, is eligible for the contest.

Only one contestant is allowed from each neighboring town wanting to sponsor a candidate for the Pageant honors.

Local sponsors indicating they would enter contestants include First National Bank, Citizens Bank and Trust Co., Kyle's Shoes, Marie Foundations, Cabot Corp., Hi-land Fashions, Montgomery Ward, Dunlap's, Fatheree Insurance.

Also, Skelly Oil Co., Pampa College of Hairdressing, Steele Art & Frame Shop, Brown-Freeman Men's Wear, House of Venus, Sarah's, Coronado Men's Wear, Addington's Western Wear and Behrman's.

Pair With Guns Nabbed Outside McGovern Hotel

34 Texas Demos Back McGovern

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Texas Democrats got ready today to vote for the party's nominee for president with the sentiment still running about 3-to-1 against the likely winner, Sen. George McGovern.

A last minute caucus was scheduled just before the crucial vote at the National Democratic Convention tonight, but McGovern leaders held little hope of getting more than the 34 delegates awarded them at the state convention.

Alabama Gov. George Wallace held firm control over at least 46 Texas delegates votes.

A final effort, involving delegation leader Dolph Briscoe, was being made to sway the estimated 50 votes that Sen. Hubert Humphrey released Tuesday into the camp of Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash. Terry Sanford, Duke University president and former Northern Carolina governor, was given a chance at several votes.

"I have opposed McGovern from the start and I will oppose him until we vote," Briscoe said Tuesday.

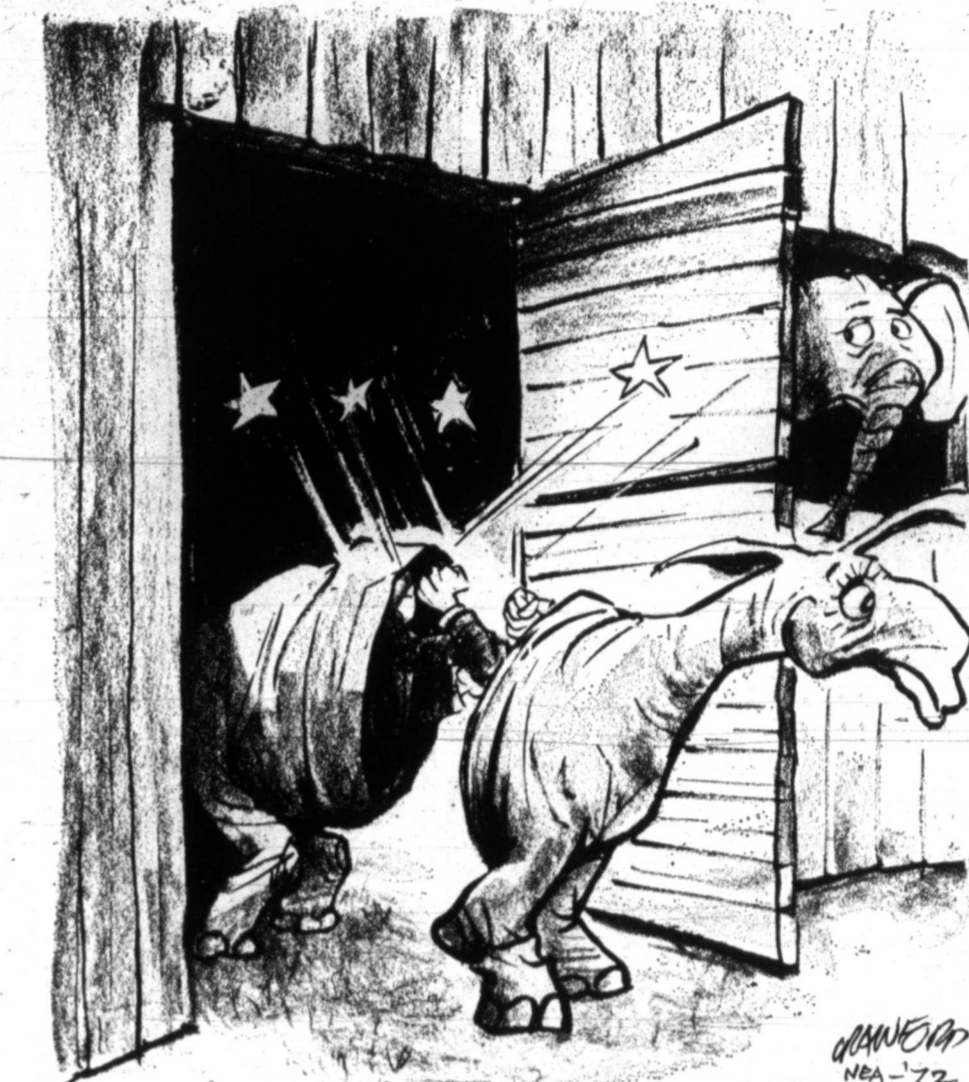

Shortly afterward he signed a petition to insure that Jackson's name would be placed in nomination.

Carlos Moore of Fort Worth and Durwood Johnson of Houston, both former Humphrey delegates, led the Jackson push.

"I find no opposition so far among the former Humphrey supporters to shift to Jackson, except maybe among the blacks," Moore said.

Hall Timanus, state coordinator for Wallace, said there was no danger of any shift in the Wallace delegates, even after the first ballot. "We're set," he said.

Timanus will give a second speech tonight tonight to the nomination of Wallace.

Frontrunner Considering Veep List

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two men were taken into custody today by Secret Service agents and the FBI outside Sen. George McGovern's hotel.

Two pistols were taken from their car.

Both men were black and wore jeans. They were taken into custody shortly after McGovern concluded a meeting on the 17th floor in the penthouse suite of the Doral Beach Hotel with six Democratic governors.

The men apparently arrived in a small sports car with Michigan license plates. The weapons were taken from their vehicle when authorities searched it, a man who identified himself as an FBI agent said.

Their names were not immediately available.

Inside the car were several scraps of note paper and printed literature dealing with black nationalism.

At least one of the two men was found inside the hotel. It was not immediately clear whether the second man was first seized inside or outside of the building.

With the presidential nomination within his grasp, George McGovern remained out of public view today, writing an acceptance speech and studying a small list of vice presidential possibilities headed by Edward M. Kennedy.

But the Massachusetts senator has disavowed any interest in running on the national ticket this year and if he does reject the expected offer, McGovern will turn to a list believed to contain no more than five names, including a labor leader, a governor and at least two senators.

Kennedy "will be given first chance to refuse," one McGovern aide said Tuesday. McGovern himself has repeatedly said Kennedy would be among the first people he would contact to discuss the matter.

Kennedy has never been removed from speculation about the post despite his public disavowal of interest. He is vacationing in Hyannis Port, Mass., with his family. There are widespread reports he will fly to Miami Beach Thursday in a show of party unity, but only after someone else has been named by McGovern for the second spot on the Democratic ticket.

However, the Massachusetts senator, who lost two brothers to political assassins, has never said absolutely that he would not accept the No. 2 spot on the ticket. He said he would consider a run if convinced that was the only way President Nixon could be beaten.

United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock is believed by many to be McGovern's second choice for the vice presidency. Woodcock, supporters of that theory say, would help attract rank-and-file union members, despite the expected opposition from many other labor leaders.

Others believed on McGovern's prime list of possibilities:

—Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri, 42, a first-term senator who originally endorsed Edmund S. Muskie of Maine for the Democratic presidential nomination. Eagleton increased his favor with McGovern when he went against Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, chairman of the Missouri convention delegation, and supported McGovern on the California credential challenge.

Wallace Wins Cheers As He Makes Plea At Convention

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Crippled Gov. George C. Wallace received a foot-stomping, cheering ovation from thousands at the Democratic National Convention Tuesday night.

Wallace delegates in the Texas and other state delegations waved posters as their candidate for president was lifted in his wheelchair to a box behind the podium.

Wallace, only four days out of the hospital, spoke quietly and firmly from notes. He had no prepared text.

Wallace came to the convention to urge the adoption of his platform proposals on busing, Vietnam, prayers in public schools and tax reform.

The great hall, packed with 13,400 delegates and visitors, and thousands of newsmen, was quieter than it had been since the opening day Monday.

It was Wallace's first appearance before a large crowd since he was shot in a Laurel, Md., shopping center May 15, the eve of Maryland and Michigan primaries—two of six that he won.

The Alabama governor looked fit and alert as he leaned into the podium. Viewers on television could not tell that he was sitting in a wheelchair, but they saw pictures of him being lifted onto the podium boxes.

The governor's wife, Cornelia, his three daughters and his mother sat in a box to the far right of Wallace. Mrs. Wallace told reporters, "He's very excited about speaking. I think he's very pleased that he can be there."

Mrs. Wallace appeared tense when her husband was brought into the hall.

The convention had already seen unprecedented security measures—searches of handbags and briefcases, repeated stops by hundreds of security men.

Chess Match Resumes Today

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Defending champion Boris Spassky was favored by the experts to beat American challenger Bobby Fischer in the opening game of the world chess match when play resumes this afternoon.

The opener of the richest chess competition in history adjourned Tuesday night after 4 hours and 34 minutes of play and 40 moves by each player.

The game was to resume at 5 p.m.—1 p.m. EDT.

Referee Lothar Schmid of West Germany will make Spassky's 41st move. The Russian wrote it on a slip of paper and handed it to him in a sealed envelope at the adjournment.

Officials To Meet On Meat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary George Shultz and other government officials meet today with representatives of 12 meat-exporting countries to emphasize the American need for more meat.

They will be told that, "The American market for meat is now wide open and we will take all you can send," a spokesman said.

Besides Shultz, other U.S. officials at the meeting will include representatives of the Department of Agriculture, the Cost of Living Council, the President's Council of Economic Advisers and the office of the special assistant to the President for consumer affairs.

County Board Discusses Oil, Gas Valuation, Names Election Judges

By RAY BAXTER

In a marathon session with representatives of their tax consultant firm, members of the Gray County Commissioners Court learned there would be a loss of $1-million in oil and gas valuation this year.

The recommendation of the tax firm was to place taxable valuation at 25 per cent of total value.

The panel was meeting as a board of equalization prior to sitting as commissioners court to transact routine business.

The session with the men from the firm of Thomas Y. Pickett, Dallas, was to be oriented for July 25-26 when they meet with representatives of petroleum and other industries of Gray County as a board of equalization.

In August other taxpayers will have opportunity to meet with the equalization board regarding revaluation.

Since the tax discussion was for briefing and no action there was no official decision on the 25 per cent issue. Gray County Judge Don Cain said, following the day's session, that he opposed the move and felt the consensus of the court concurred.

Judge Cain pointed out that the county would gain no effective addition in revenues by the move which would only put an added burden on the taxpayers of the county while the state benefited.

In the tax year involved, the state gets 27 per cent or 27 cents of every dollar collected for ad valorem taxes. Thus, the appreciable amount of the increase would accrue to the state.

As the panel of commissioners they approved the request of General Telephone to place a line under a county road; approved reports and payment of bills and appointed election judges and their assistants for the November balloting.

Judges, with their assistants, for 1972-73 are:

Precinct 1, Community Center, Walter Elliott, presiding judge, H.L. McCauley, assistant; Precinct 2, Baker School, Mrs. Leon Brown, presiding judge, Mrs. Harold Engle, assistant; Precinct 3, Grandview School, Gordon Ruthardt, presiding judge, Fred Vanderburg, Jr., assistant; Precinct 4, Alanreed School, Marvin Hall, presiding judge, L.E. MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Women delegates and alternates to the Democratic National Convention caucus in a hotel today to hear the presidential candidates.

The candidates will address the caucus briefly and then answer questions from the floor, a convention spokesman said.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Mississippi newspaper editor Hodding Carter III is scheduled to place the name of former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford in nomination for president at tonight's session of the Democratic National Convention, according to Sanford campaign aides.

Carter, 36, is editor of the Greenville Delta Democrat-Times and vice chairman of the Credentials Committee.

He is a well-known figure in Southern civil rights movements.

Records Show Solon-Owned Agency Fails To Obey Audit Requirement

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The State Insurance Department has licensed a title insurance agency owned by Rep. W. S. Healy of Paducah each year since 1968, although records show Healy has never obeyed an audit requirement designed to keep agents honest. Healy claims the audit is not mandatory — an assertion disputed by insurance department officials.

Until March 27, Healy was chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, which holds a big stick over the department's budget.

He also is a member of the House Insurance Committee. Only Healy — of the 547 title agents in Texas — has been permitted to skip the annual audit required by law of all title insurance agents, acknowledged Ira Goodrich, head of the insurance department's title section. Insurance commissioner Clay Cotten took the blame for the latest relicensing of Healy's Jones and Reinrow, Abstracters, firm. Failure to submit the audit is grounds for license revocation, after notice and hearing.

"We always try to be very courteous, very gentle and very polite with members of the Legislature . . . I don't really feel like it was special treatment," Cotten said with a smile.

But he added: "As a matter of principle, I guess it does become a problem."

Purcell Calls For Removal Of Roadblocks On Wheat Use

DUMAS—"Work is needed now to remove the roadblocks which have held back our use of wheat and wheat products," U.S. Rep. Graham Purcell, Wichita Falls Democrat, told the board of directors of the Texas Wheat Producers Association at a noon luncheon today.

Purcell, chairman of the House Livestock and Grains Subcommittee and author of a comprehensive wheat research and marketing promotion bill, told the group. "We have far better knowledge of animal and poultry nutrition than we do of human nutrition."

"In spite of this knowledge gap, federal and state authorities still spend $60-80 million annually on animal nutrition, while only $4-6 million are spent on human nutrition research," he continued.

"From the best information available, it appears that nutrition research on wheat specifically may amount to only about $75,000," Purcell said.

Purcell, who said his bill will be brought before the full House Agriculture Committee upon Congress' return to legislative

PRPC Signs Contract With Consulting Firm

The Panhandle Regional Planning Commission signed a contract Monday with a Houston consulting firm for design of a law enforcement communications network, which should see officers in Gray and 24 other Texas Panhandle counties using the new equipment within the year.

Judge C.L. Abernathy, Texas Criminal Justice Council advisor for the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, said contract for construction of the equipment will be let the week of Nov. 20 and delivery should be made within 90 to 180 days.

Ernest Clark represented PRPC at the ratification of the planning contract with Bernard Johnson Inc., Houston. The firm had executed the preliminary plans delivered to PRPC in February.

Such plans call for the use of high frequency equipment because of the crowding of the lower frequencies. The system would have a minimum of four channels and would greatly facilitate faster communications with the Department of Public Safety, FBI and the law enforcement agencies of surrounding states as well as the area counties involved. Gray County is a member of PRPC.

The project will wear an $800,000 price tag. Seventy five per cent of this will be born by a grant from the National Criminal Justice Council. The remainder would be made up at the state and local levels. At the state range, costs would come out of the Criminal Justice Council's fund. The remainder would come from added court costs of $10, $5 and $2.50 in district, county and municipal courts respectively.

Current equipment would not be a total loss, according to Judge Abernathy. Plans are to have it placed in use by such local departments as fire, water and sewer and animal control.

Car Hits Fence

A Pampa woman was arrested for intoxication after police responded to a call in the 800 Block of W. Kingsmill, where a car had hit a pipe fence.

AWOL Taken Into Custody

Charles Richard Thomas, 18, was taken into custody after he admitted to the investigating officer that he was "AWOL" from his military post.

According to the official report, the investigating officer became suspicious and asked for identification. The man's admission grew out of the questioning.

Thomas is AWOL from the medical training center at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Motorbikes On Walk

Two Pampa boys, age 10 and 12 years, were given a "talking to" by the investigating officer after police received a complaint of the boys riding a motorcycle on the sidewalk in the 1100 block of Sierra.

According to the official report, the boys were fearful both of receiving a citation and of their parents finding out what had happened.

The account said the youngsters agreed not to ride on sidewalks again if the officer would forego a citation this time.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace has told a state prosecution aide that he will not appear at the trial of Arthur H. Bremer, charged with shooting him.

Wallace, one of 46 persons subpoenaed for the state case scheduled to begin July 12, received a summons and a letter Monday at his Holy Cross Hospital room in Silver Spring, Md.

The letter, from Arthur H. Marshall, Prince Georges County state's attorney, said Wallace's appearance at the trial was not mandatory if for health or other reasons he was not able to attend.

Elvin Stanton, a public relations assistant in the state's attorney's office, said he read the subpoena and letter to Wallace in his hospital room Monday, was thanked and told by Wallace that he would not be able to appear.

BLACK FILM—PART II

Movie Image Of Sidney Poitier Criticized

EDITOR'S NOTE — Black audiences are flocking to the movies to see films made by blacks for blacks about the "black experience." But is it just a gimmick which will vanish soon, or the real thing to become a basic part of the nation's film culture? Following is the second of two articles on the subject.

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Is Shaft only James Bond in blackface?

Can Sidney Poitier do his own thing in the West, or is he merely a black John Wayne?

Critics have raised the question of whether the "new" black movie is really new or strictly the tried and true film formula played with darker coloring.

"Some of the films do reflect the black experience," said Ivan Dixon, who recently completed his first film as a director, "Trouble Man." "But many of them merely reflect what the white producer mistakes the black experience to be. There is no way that he can understand the wellsprings of black existence."

"Producers have discovered a formula that they think works for them. They figure all they have to do is provide a lot of sex, a lot of blood and—very important—at least one scene of a black beating up whites."

Actor Jim Brown agreed: "The companies are now making pictures about what they think the black experience is. Under this kind of thinking, every picture has to be located in Harlem, and every picture has to deal with narcotics and pimps."

"Sure, these pictures sell and they provide jobs for blacks. They also provide entertainment the blacks can enjoy. But they should be recognized for what they are."

Gordon Parks, who created a superhero with "Shaft" and its sequel, remarks: "I will never apologize for 'Shaft.' I think the black kid is entitled to a black hero, and I would rather have any kid-admire Shaft rather than James Bond. Shaft can be accepted as a guy, a marvelous guy."

"What endeared Shaft to the black audience was that for the first time on screen, they saw a black man winning. No matter how fictional, that's important."

"The studios have been remiss in not providing black heroes. Now that they see black audiences accept such films, perhaps they will take another step and present black heroes that are more true to life. We needed a 'Shaft' before any studio would make a film about Frederick Douglass."

The movie image of Sidney Poitier has been criticized as being the white concept of what a black should be like. Actor-director Dixon expressed this view:

"Sidney was the kind of 'nigger' that white audiences could like. He was a big hit in 'Lilies of the Field' because he proved to be faithful, docile, intelligent, well spoken and whatever other qualities whites admired. The guy has been doing it ever since."

Poitier doesn't defend his screen portrayals.

4 lessons to learn from an unfaithful boy friend

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: The names are fictitious but I am telling it like it is: My name is Debbie. I have been dating a fellow named John. I mentioned to John that Linda, a good friend of mine, is fantastically well put together. John calls Linda and asks her for a date. Linda accepts. She then tells Carol (who is also a friend of mine) about her date with John. Carol tells me. Naturally I am humiliated and angry. I contend that when John called Linda, she should have refused him immediately saying she and I were good friends, and then hung up the phone. Furthermore, Linda shouldn't have told Carol or anyone else about her date with John because it made me look like a fool.

My friends contend that everything worked out for the best and I am lucky to have found out that John was bad news. What is your opinion?

DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: Your friends are right. But there are several lessons to be learned here:

- [1] Never "mention" to a boy friend that another girl is "fantastically well put together." [He may not be able to resist the challenge to "take her apart."]
- [2] If a man is interesting, few girls, out of loyalty to a girl friend, will pass up a chance to date him.
- [3] Your friend Linda talks too much.
- [4] So does Carol.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, 65 years old, and have no family. Do you think I am too old to learn to drive an automobile? Some of my friends laughed at me when I mentioned learning to drive at my age.

If I could drive I wouldn't have to wait for friends to take me shopping and to church and other places I might want to go.

Have any of your readers learned to drive at my age? If you think I'm too old, I'll sell the practically new car I have had in my garage ever since my husband died nearly a year ago. Thank you for any help you can give me.

MINNESOTA WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: There is no age limit for learning to drive in your state. You will need a learning permit, however, which can be obtained by taking a written test. [Inquire at your Motor Vehicle Department.]

If you obtain the permit, driving lessons are available at the AAA and driver education schools, listed in your phone book. You will then be given a driver's test to determine whether you can become a licensed driver. Sixty-five is NOT old, my dear lady. Not if you have your health and good vision.

DEAR ABBY: My husband died nearly two years ago. My family has been wonderful to me. My immediate neighbors were very considerate the day of the funeral. They came with food, etc., but from that day until this I have not heard a word from any of them. [I am not complaining. I kept myself very busy, and didn't brood about my loss.]

Four weeks ago I slipped off and quietly married a very nice gentleman I had known for years. I had intended to invite my neighbors in and introduce him, but I guess I wasn't quick enough because I just got a call from a friend of mine telling me that I had better hurry up and announce my marriage because my neighbors were "talking."

It seems they just found out I had a man living with me and they think we are living in sin. I think it's rather funny. What are your thoughts on this, and what should I do?

LEGALLY MARRIED "SINNER"

DEAR "SINNER": Don't tell them anything. Let them "find out" you're married, just like they found out you had a man living with you.

DEAR ABBY: When an unmarried woman is asked by a rude and insensitive woman, "How come a gal like you isn't married?" tell her to come back with, "How come a gal like you IS married?"

Philip Hal Sims may well have been the most colorful bridge player of all time as well as one of the best. One of his favorite expressions was, "We gave them the full treatment."

In today's hand, he and his favorite partner, the late Willard S. Karn, really gave South the full treatment.

Most Souths got to play and make four spades. A couple were set one trick at five. Hal not only doubled five spades, but he and Willard found the defense to beat the contract two tricks.

It actually wasn't too difficult. Hal's king of clubs lead was normal enough. South won the trick, drew trumps with three leads, led the nine of hearts and let it ride to Karn's king.

Karn led back the deuce of clubs. Hal won the trick and underled his ace of diamonds. Willard won with the king and cashed the jack of clubs to complete the full Sims-Karn treatment.

South wanted to know why Willard had the nerve to try to cash a club. "Suppose I had started with just one club?" questioned South. "In that case, we were not going to beat five spades," replied Willard. "Furthermore, if you held just one club, you would have so many red cards that Hal's diamond trick would keep."

The real big play was when Hal underled the diamond ace. Anyone else would have been happy with plus-200.

Instead of rebidding one heart, your partner went to two clubs after your diamond response. What do you do now?

Safe Use Of Ammonia In Household Cleaning

COLLEGE STATION—Household ammonia can spell trouble if used incorrectly.

Ammonia, the basic ingredient of many common household products, is a very effective cleaning aid. But it's caustic to the eyes and skin. Since it's poisonous, care must be exercised when using it, according to Texas Agricultural Extension home management specialist Mrs. Doris Myers.

"Ammonia is caustic to the eyes and skin," she said. "If some should splash into your eyes when doing your household cleaning, wash your eyes with clean water and seek medical attention immediately to prevent serious eye injury or blindness."

The Texas A&M University employee warned that if ammonia accidentally spills on the skin, the area should be flooded with water, then washed with vinegar or lemon juice.

The cleaning product should be stored along with other household products out of reach of children in its original, tightly closed container," Mrs. Myers said.

Ammonia is an alkaline gas dissolved in water. As sold for household use, ammonia varies from five to 10 per cent in strength. Mrs. Myers said that chemically pure 10 per cent ammonia from a drug store works best for stain removal.

Since ammonia concentrates of five per cent or more are highly toxic, extreme care should be taken to avoid spilling or splashing," she said. "Just one tiny splash in the eye could cause damage."

To make windows, mirrors and glassware really sparkle, the specialist suggested washing them with four tablespoons of household ammonia mixed with one quart warm water.

"To make oven cleaning easier, pour one-fourth cup of ammonia in a small bowl in a cool oven, shut the door and leave four hours or overnight. As the ammonia evaporates, fumes from it will loosen oven grease and simplify cleaning. Add what's left of the bowl of ammonia to your wash water to clean your oven."

Two tablespoons of household ammonia added to one quart of water with two tablespoons of liquid detergent will make general household cleaning easier.

"Ammonia cuts grease," Mrs. Myers said, "so it's effective to use in cleaning."

She reminded consumers to follow directions carefully when using ammonia.

It should not be mixed with other cleaning agents that contain chlorine because the combination of these two ingredients forms a very toxic gas.

Also, if too much ammonia is used in cleaning woodwork, it tends to soften paint."

Double-Ring Ceremony Unites Corally Ridge and Rickey Carroll

Miss Corally Ridge and Rickey Craig Carroll, both of Premont, Texas, exchanged wedding vows in a candlelight ceremony in the First Baptist Church of Premont on Saturday, July 1, 1972. Rev. Sam Swartz of the United Mennonite Church officiated in the double-ring ceremony.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clyde W. Ridge of Premont. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Carroll of Oklahoma City, Okla. and formerly of Pampa.

Hurricane lamps featuring greenery and tied with blue ribbon lighted the aisles of the church. Tapered candelabra flanked a single arrangement of white gladioli and blue carnations that formed the background for the ceremony.

Miss Brenda Gordon of Premont sang "Close to You" and "We've Only Just Begun," accompanied by Mrs. John Dittrich, who also provided the traditional wedding music at the organ.

BRIDE

Entering on the arm of her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white frosted organza over satin featuring an Empire waistline. Scallops of Chantilly lace bordered the A-line skirt and formed a lace bib at the high neckline. Motifs of the lace accented the long pointed organza sleeves and bodice, then extended down either side of the skirt front.

Her lace-bordered floor-length mantilla and bouffant veil were held in place by a band of pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations centered with a blue cymbidium orchid and accented with streamers.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Susan Dee Richards of Premont was maid of honor. Mrs. Clay Ross of Galveston was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Henry Kahane of Spring, Tex., sister of the bridegroom, and Miss LaVerne Wostal of Premont. They wore identical formal gowns of royal blue chamiskin styled with an Empire waistline. The neckline rose high around the back and sides, but curved to a deep slit at the front, ending with three white pearl buttons. The layered butterfly sleeves of sparkling organza were edged with light blue braid trim. Their light blue headpieces featured small flowers dangling to the front and scattered on streamers at the back. They carried bouquets of summer flowers tied with blue.

Karen Kahane of Spring, neice of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a floor-length gown of royal blue chamiskin featuring an Empire

Some Information On Postage Stamp Sizes
DEAR POLLY—I am afraid philatelists would not agree with Mrs. C. R. who objects to the size and subject matter of the many commemorative stamps. For her information, regular-issue stamps (like eight-cent Eisenhower and flag ones) are always available at the post office in sheets, booklets and coils. They are the convenient size Mrs. C. R. prefers.

I believe the commemoratives more than pay their way in the number of sheets or plate blocks that are purchased to be preserved unused. Postage rates do go up, as do prices for other services, but so that our postal employees may receive a decent wage.—RUTH

DEAR READERS—I do hope this clears the air a bit concerning commemorative stamps. On checking Ruth's statement that she believed they paid their own way, I learned from a knowledgeable post office official that they do indeed make a profit. However he stressed the fact they were not just made for the profit and the satisfaction of collectors but have educational value as they teach or inspire the seeking of knowledge concerning our history by children and others and are also great U.S. informational tools when sent abroad on letters as they portray pride in our own history.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When I combed my little girl's hair into pigtails the yarn or ribbon bow always slipped off until I finally found the solution. Now I make several turns with a rubber band around the end of the pigtail, slip the ribbon through the last loop and then tie in a bow as usual.—MARY LOU

Pretty Protection

Cloche hats, pinned with bold-colored flowers, are a fashion favorite for summer. But besides showing off a pretty head, the hat will protect your hair from the sun.

waistline and a sweetheart neckline. The organza sleeves were like those of the bride's attendants, as was her headpiece. She carried a white straw basket filled with white rose petals which she scattered in the path of the bride.

Best man was Roger Hellums of Premont. Groomsmen were S-Sgt. Dave Carroll of Fort Worth, brother of the bridegroom, and Jacky Hellums and Forrest Lanmon, both of Premont. Ushers were Bill Ridge, brother of the bride, Henry Kahane of Spring, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Richard Smith of Premont, and Tim Boerjan of Alpine.

MOTHERS

Mrs. Ridge, mother of the bride, chose a dress of sky blue sparkle crepe. Beige lace accented the V yoke and extended in a line down the center front and was repeated around the long fitted sleeves. Bone shoes and gloves completed her ensemble. She wore a cymbidium orchid tied in blue.

Mrs. Carroll, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a rosy pink knit dress fashioned with a cowl neckline and cape sleeves. A silver buckle accented the wide belt. She wore white gloves and beige shoes. Her corsage was a cymbidium orchid tied in white.

RECEPTION

A reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church followed the ceremony. The table was laid with a white embroidered cloth. The centerpiece was an arrangement of the bride's bouquet and those of the bridesmaids. The three tiers of the cake, separated by columns, were iced in white with royal blue flowers and were topped with a bride and bridegroom. Strawberry punch was served from a crystal bowl. Other appointments were silver.

Members of the houseparty were Mrs. Dave Carroll of Fort Worth, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Miss Jan Doby and Miss Brenda Myers, both of Premont. Dina Barber of

MRS. RICKEY CRAIG CARROLL
...nee Miss Corally Ridge

Premont distributed rice bags. The bride is a graduate of Premont High School. The bridegroom graduated from Pampa High School and attended Texas A&I University at Kingsville. He is employed by Sun Oil Company at Premont, where the couple will reside.

For their wedding trip the bride chose a two-piece suit of polyester sateen print on a royal blue background with a flared jacket and skirt. Accents of black polyester sateen were found in the dog-ear collar, the cuffs of the long fitted sleeves, and in the covered buttons. Black patent shoes completed her ensemble. Her corsage was a blue cymbidium orchid.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the Sun Recreation Hall on Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Carroll, parents of the bridegroom, as hosts. Members of the wedding party and relatives were present.

TO THE PARENT

You are the mirror and your child will reflect what he sees in you.

If you speak harshly to your child, he will surely return it some day.

If you cheat, and are less than absolutely honest, your child will learn dishonesty.

If you nag and complain when things go wrong, your child will also become grouchy.

If you lose your temper, your child will not consider it wrong to do the same.

If you show respect towards ministers and teachers, your child will be willing to respect them also (and to obey them).

If you are quick to share your goods with others, your child will learn unselfishness.

If you are not ashamed of humble surroundings and patched clothing, your child will learn contentment.

If you do not laugh or rejoice at another's misfortune, he will have compassion towards others.

If you swear or use by-words, your child will do the same.

If you misuse others, your child will do so also (and it may be you).

If you abuse your animals, he will consider it the thing to do.

If you misuse the Lord's Day, your child will know no better.

If you tease him, he will tease and provoke others.

If you yell at your child, he will learn to be loud.

If you have pity for the poor, he will learn mercifulness.

If you criticize others, he will learn to hate.

If you love your neighbor, he will learn to love.

If you live with fear and suspicion, your child will lack faith.

If you are cheerful in trials, he will learn to trust.

If you are not quick to scold, he will have confidence in you.

If you live in disunity, the child will learn to disrespect his parents.

If you are friendly towards all people, your child will have friends.

Why Pay More—

Crenshaw, Coe Are In Trans-Miss Spotlight

DALLAS (AP) — Three-time champion Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City and NCAA co-champion Ben Crenshaw of Austin, Tex., were in the spotlight today as the opening round of match play got underway in the 69th Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament.

Coe met Harold Gardner of Lawton, Okla., while Crenshaw played Terry O'Toole of Oklahoma City.

Some of the 36-hole qualifying casualties Tuesday included former Trans-Miss champion Herb Durham of Dallas, and former Walker Cup players Dr. Ed Updegraff of Tucson, Ariz., John Farquhar of Amarillo and Jim Vickers of Wichita, Kan.

Mike Houpe of St. Edwards University in Austin won the qualifying medal with rounds of 72-68—two under par. Houpe, the Big State Conference champion, plays Wally Payne of Fort Worth in a first round match.

All matches were scheduled over the Par 71 Brook Hollow Country Club which stretches some 6,686 yards. Single rounds will be played today and Thursday with a double round Friday lowering the field to the four semifinalists who will meet Saturday.

A 36-hole championship match will be played Sunday.

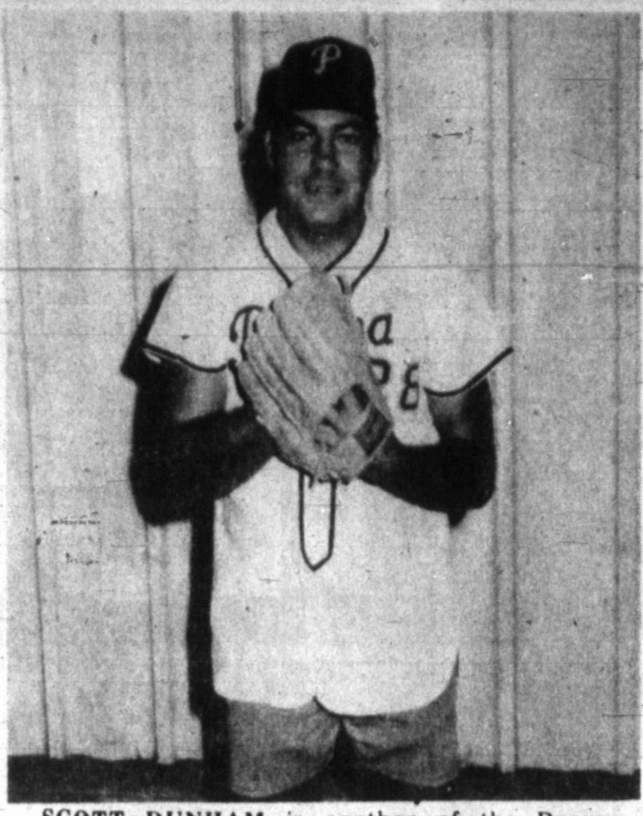

Crenshaw, the odds-on favorite, said the Brook Hollow course is "The best golf course in Texas. The greens are fairly small and you have to hit your driver straight. Personally, I feel a little restricted. More wide open courses are more suited for me."

He said match play is much harder for him than medal play.

"You've got to be on your game the whole time," he said. "There's a lot of psychology involved, too."

He added "My biggest goal this year is to win the U.S. Amateur but this is a big tournament, too. I enjoy all kinds of tournaments and I need all the experience I can get. I'm going to stay in school four years before I turn pro."

SCOTT DUNHAM is another of the Pampa coaches who will play against the Legion team Thursday to benefit the Pampa Booster Club. This will be Dunham's first year at Pampa after spending five successful years at Lefors. A graduate of Panhandle State University, he is married and has a four-year-old daughter, Lysa. Dunham will coach the defensive secondary for the Harvesters.

In Britain It Is Simply The Open

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Only in the United States is it called the British Open. Elsewhere in the world it is simply The Open.

This is The Open. The others carry a demeaning prefix. Like the United States Open. Or the Canadian Open. Or the Tasmanian Open.

This is particularly true in Britain, where they blithely ignore the existence of any other open golf championship. It's more particularly true in Scotland. It's most particularly true around Muirfield, which has some considerable claims to being the birthplace of the game.

It was in this area, some 16 miles southeast of Edinburgh Castle which crouches on a hill-top in Scotland's capital, in 1744 that golf's first organization was formed, the honorable Company of Edinburgh Golfers. The company, which still conducts the affairs of Muirfield, was organized to play a four-hole course not far from the present site hard by the Firth of Forth on the East coast of Scotland.

And they drew up the game's first set of rules, 13 of them.

The first rule was: "The tee shall be not more than one club length from the hole."

The second rule was: "The tee shall be on the ground."

Joe Dey, a noted historian, former head of the USGA and now commissioner of the Tournament Players Division of the PGA, explained about rule No. 1.

"This, of course, was before there were wooden tees. The player would reach into the hole to get a handful of sand and pour it on the ground to form a tee. Now, there was no rule covering uniformity of the size of the hole. So as the day went on and more players went through, the hole got bigger and bigger."

"But, teeing it up one club length from the hole, can you imagine what the putting green looked like?"

Jack Nicklaus' drive for a Grand Slam has attracted world wide interest in the British Open, the third of four titles needed for the unprecedented sweep.

A total of 392 writers, reporters and photographers—excluding television personnel—were accredited for the 101st championship, the most ever.

Galleries in excess of 7,000 watched practice rounds Monday and Tuesday and officials expected record crowds for the tournament proper.

"I should think the total crowd for the tournament should be around 100,000," press officer George Simms said, and smiled, "If the weather and Jack Nicklaus both continue to be good."

A full-grown elephant has no natural enemies except man.

'Poke Vets Report To Thousands Oaks

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — All Dallas Cowboy veterans were expected to report to the World Champion's training camp today but there was speculation whether moody running back Duane Thomas would show.

Thomas, on the last year of a three-year contract with the Cowboys, was supposed to renegotiate the contract in the off-season but never got around to concrete talks. Thomas is currently on probation after pleading guilty to a marijuana possession charge.

Cowboy veteran quarterbacks and receivers arrived last Sunday to begin work for the July 28 game with the College All-Stars in Chicago.

Rookie linebackers Nixon Robinson of Georgia, Tim Kearney of Northern Michigan and Chuck Zapiec of Penn State drew praise from the coaches in a one-hour scrimmage Tuesday.

Four rookies were cut from the team, including sixth-round draft choice, defensive back Charles Bolden of Iowa.

Other players released by the National Football League tilters were kicker Max Arreguin of Kansas State; linebacker Dennis Maupin of Bowling Green, and kicker Stan Watts of Murray State.

Great Moments In Golf

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"In a National Open, if you have a chance to win and don't do it, you won't get the chance again—and you'll never win it at all," Gary Player says.

"Look at Sam Snead," he continued. "I'd like to argue he's the greatest player who ever lived. And he never won the U.S. Open after he blew his first chance."

And it's for that reason, the little South African said, that a more or less routine five iron shot may be the most important he's stroked in his career.

"It was in the 1965 U.S. Open at Bellevue in St. Louis," Player said. "I had a three stroke lead over Kel Nagle with three holes to play."

"On the 16th, a very long hole, I hit it in a bunker and then three-putted for a double bogey. Nagle was playing ahead of me and I heard a yell from the gallery. I found out he'd made birdie on the 17th.

"Now, from a three-shot lead, I was back to even. The momentum was going the other way and I was faced with making par on the last hole to save a tie and force a playoff."

"I drove the fairway and had a five iron to the green. I hit it 18 feet from the pin to make it an easy par. That may be the most important one."

Player went on to beat Nagle in an 18-hole playoff for the title the next day, completing his sweep of all the world's major championships. He was only the third man to do so.

"I've hit many better shots, but none more important," he said. "It was so important because I was going for the grand slam. And if I'd missed, I may have never gotten another chance."

Arnie Says He Just Keeps On Keeping On

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — "I keep on trying to make something happen—but it just doesn't."

Arnold Palmer, perhaps the most popular player golf has ever known and the man generally acknowledged to be the driving force behind the enormous growth of the game, was talking about his failure to win this season.

"I've had a chance to win three times, real good chances," Palmer said, a slight, puzzled frown creasing one of the world's most-photographed faces.

"But every time I got in position to win, every time I thought I had something going, something always happened. I think I just wanted to win too much and got too anxious."

The 42-year-old master who put the word "charge" in golf's lexicon was making one of his fabled runs at the leaders in the final round of the Bob Hope Desert Classic—then hit one out of bounds.

Again, at Dallas, in the Byron Nelson Classic he mounted a last round challenge. The word went out: "Arnie's charging. The King is making his move."

His always huge gallery swelled to massive proportions as the faithful stampeded to his side to witness another miracle. Instead they viewed consecutive three-putt bogeys that killed it all.

At Greensboro, he held a two-stroke lead going to the par three 16th hole on the final day. America's television audience watched in dismay and disbelief as he hit into a shallow stream at the bottom of a ditch, elected to play it out and took a lead-destroying, confidence-shattering triple bogey six that cost him the title.

"I've had trouble with my concentration," he mused before a practice round for the British Open, which begins Wednesday. "My mind wanders. All of a sudden I'm not there. I'm off in a cloud or something somewhere else."

But even with the glasses, and advancing years, and increasing girth, and greying, thinning hair, and the lack of victories, Palmer still exerts a magic effect on galleries all over the world.

Scales Of Justice Tilt

It was a white man, Yale University president Kingman Brewster, who averred that a black man cannot get a fair trial in the United States.

The statement was made shortly before Black Panther Bobby Seale was found innocent of the murder of fellow Panther, Alex Rackley (who remains one black man in American still waiting for justice).

It was a black man, Ohio Supreme Court Justice Lloyd O. Brown, who charged that equal protection under the law doesn't apply to black people. Despite all the platitudes to the contrary, the judge told delegates to a conference of the all-black National Bar Association, the law is the black man's enemy in the United States.

The charge was made the day before a nonblack jury found black militant and avowed Communist Angela Davis innocent of all counts of kidnaping, murder and conspiracy in the April 7, 1970, courtroom breakout attempt in Marin County, Calif., in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three convicts abducting him were killed.

If intelligent men like a university professor and a state supreme court justice can believe such things, we can hardly expect any better from the ideological idiots who constantly rant about racist and fascist America. Even Miss Davis herself said her opinion about the American system of justice was unchanged.

The fact that I was acquitted doesn't mean I had a fair trial," she said after the verdict. "A fair trial would have been no trial at all."

But if innocence can be instantly determined, then so can guilt. Indeed, that is precisely the kind of justice we could look for in this country if the form of government Angela Davis advocates were to be instituted—administered, of course, by those with the proper revolutionary consciousness.

Just for the record, however, consider some of the events associated with this case:

Angela Davis was granted a change of venue and a succession of judges who had known the slain Judge Haley disqualified themselves.

The black businessman arrested with Miss Davis in a New York City motel was acquitted of the charge of harboring a fugitive.

The "Soledad brothers," on whose behalf the courtroom abduction had been staged, were acquitted of charges of killing a San Quentin prison guard.

Angela Davis was released on bail after the California Supreme Court voided the state's death penalty, though the court later ruled that the absence of a death penalty did not prohibit the denial of bail in capital cases.

Angela Davis was permitted to address the jury directly under the guise of "co-counsel," but because she did not take the stand to testify she could not be cross-examined.

Finally, of course, a jury which included only one minority group member, a Mexican-American, found after only 13 hours' deliberation that the state's web of circumstantial evidence around Angela Davis was simply not strong enough to support a guilty verdict.

It would be just as foolish to claim that the American system of justice is absolutely perfect because Angela Davis was acquitted as it would have been to damn it totally had she been convicted.

But while defendant and jury members were embracing each other and judge, attorneys and spectators were exchanging congratulations, it would have been nice if somebody had had a kind word to say about the country in which it all took place.

Like the roses for your girl, though, it's the thought that counts.

The United States now pays 31.5 per cent of the main U.N. budget; the House measure would reduce the U.S. payment to 25 per cent.

It's not much, but it's trying.

We Could Profit By Russ Snags

By KAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)—President Nixon's aides count on the unfortunate results of Leonid Brezhnev's latest economic experiments to push the Soviet Union into greater accommodation with the United States these next five years.

If these current boggles become increasingly serious, and Nixon's experts predict they will, Brezhnev's economic problems could be a strong force for an effective follow-on agreement covering all major strategic arms and hopefully calling for cutbacks as well as ceilings.

Brezhnev's immediate problems began as the result of a decision he made about two years ago, in part to solidify his position as first secretary through increasing party control over the economy and in part to remedy the growing productivity problems that plague Soviet industry, agriculture and mining.

The Communist party has always been supreme in overall economic direction—setting quotas, prices and priorities. This has been bad enough for economic efficiency. Brezhnev has gone a step further, given the party committees in each local factory strong direct say in day-to-day operations.

The word now coming out of the Soviet Union is that this shift is not working well. Factory managers complain their authority is being undermined. They strenuously object to party interference in the selection of foremen, superintendents and department heads, in work assignments and in training methods. Party workers in each plant find themselves required to police their superiors on technical matters outside their competence. Party interference, even when it succeeds in forcing an inefficient manager to resign or to change his methods, has had unsettling effects among the workers.

Professional relationships have been destroyed. Production is suffering. Each side blames the other.

Despite all this, local party committees are reported working on ways to intensify their supervision.

Nixon's economic analysts see a basic unsolvable conflict here. They are certain that these difficulties will deepen and that increasing party interference in the details of local factory production will lead to greater inefficiencies, regardless of what brilliant technological breakthroughs Soviet scientists achieve.

This will make the Russians increasingly conscious of their arms burden and (if analysis here is correct) of their need for U.S. management and development skills.

Growing dependence on the United States should make the Soviet Union more cooperative if U.S. negotiators are hard nosed, the theory here runs. But the Soviet representatives are going to be tough bargainers, whether talking about arms, economics or political settlements in such places as the Middle East and Asia.

The theory here is that the growing Soviet economic problems will not make Russian diplomats easier to negotiate with. Talks that should take two years may take five.

The fact that the people of this Asian country, so long plagued by communist neighbors, were holding free elections at all is an encouraging message to a troubled world. The communists and ardent adherents of the left-wing can't say this one was a one-man race either. Several candidates sought the presidency.

If people want government by decree they can get and eventually suffer the consequences, as the people of Cuba learned. If they want a government of the people, they can have that, too. It doesn't always work to perfection but the machinery is good. It is human failure that causes it to bog down at times. By the same token, other men correct the wrongs and the system goes on working with the majority prevailing. We of the United States have found the democratic processes of a Republic good. The Republic offers freedom.

We wish that all Cambodia was clear of enemy troops so that all residents could exercise the privilege of the ballot. The fact that the election is being held holds hope for the future of this now-troubled land and it should be a turning point in strengthening the country, regardless of who is elected. The enslaved millions of the communist world should take notice.

Much Misapprehension Left In Wake Of Fuss

By PAUL HARVEY
In a capitalist country, government minds its own business and keeps altogether out of yours.

What'll you bet? When the SST—the supersonic transport plane—was under consideration in our Congress—the subject, as they say, generated much more heat than light.

So Uncle Sam, pioneer airplane builder and supplier for the world, ends up sitting on a nest of stale eggs—while industry worldwide prepares to purchase its next generation airplanes from Britain—or France—or Russia.

And overlooked in the rhubarb was the fact that it cost the United States $578 million to terminate the program where it would have cost only $478 million to complete it.

Airplanes have helped us win hot wars and survive the economic cold war—up to now. When we sell some other country one Boeing 747, in the export-import balance that one plane equals 12,000 Volkswagens.

This discourse is not just for the purpose of rehashing the SST thing. What's distressing and potentially even more damaging to our interests is the misapprehension left in the wake of that fuss.

For example, some members of Congress protested that taxpayers must not finance industrial research, that we should not take government money to help private industry develop new products.

Research and development is a major activity of all industry—collectively we've put $25 billion into R&D in recent years—and most of that money was "government money," not private capital.

In 1971, almost three-fifths of our nation's total expenditure for the purpose was paid for by federal government.

Federal government performs as well as finances research. During 1971, 15 per cent of all research and development was performed directly by federal agencies.

Indirectly, it is almost impossible to guesstimate the degree to which federal monies contribute to the search for new knowledge.

Yet, when inflation is taken into consideration, our government has been spending less each recent year for research and development. Also nonfederal spending for R&D has declined the past two years.

The goose that laid all those golden eggs is threatened with starvation while our nation is under unremitting pressure to earmark more of each budget for "social services."

Where military spending increased 97 per cent in 10 years, welfare spending increased 944 per cent!

President Nixon, for fiscal 1973, dares to propose an 8 per cent increase in federal money for R&D without which our technology, in atrophy, is no match for the world's manpower.

Your Health

By Lawrence E. Lamb

He's High Risk For Heart Attack

Dr. Dr. Lamb—About a year ago, my husband and I saw a TV special concerning cholesterol and triglycerides and the effect they have on people's hearts. They showed a chart classifying possible heart-attack victims in the high-risk group because of a strong family history of heart disease and personal factors. He bottles up his problems and has already had two-thirds of his stomach removed because of ulcers. He had a blood test done and his cholesterol was normal but the triglycerides were too high. The doctor prescribed Atromid S (clofibrate). He has been taking it a year without any apparent difficulty.

We have read your comments about some medicines and we would like to know if this medicine can cause him any harm. Since dieting alone kept his cholesterol level down, does he really need it?

Dear Reader—One way to find out if a person can tolerate a medicine is to give it. Your husband has tolerated his medicine for a year without difficulty.

It is difficult to know for certain what you mean by normal cholesterol, since normal means different things to different physicians. Risk factors can never be applied directly to the individual, since some people can have high blood cholesterol levels and live for years without any significant difficulty. The cholesterol measurement is an index of the amount of fat particles in the blood stream. The fatty particle is a combination of cholesterol, the triglyceride fat and a blood protein.

Many people can significantly lower their blood-fat levels (both the cholesterol and triglycerides measurement) by proper dietary control. This means limiting calories sufficiently to eliminate or prevent even minimal amounts of obesity. Dietary failure often is the result of failure to carry it to its conclusion. If a person needs to lose 50 pounds, losing five won't help a great deal.

Clofibrate has been around for several years now and many authorities think it is quite good. It should certainly be tried in individuals whose blood-fat levels cannot be controlled by a good diet and exercise program. There have been some recent enthusiastic reports about this medicine. In the main, they claim that individuals taking this medicine are less likely to have heart attacks than individuals who do not, even if it doesn't lower the cholesterol level.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Does all the talk about cholesterol disturb you? If so, you'll want to read Dr. Lamb's booklet in which he answers your questions about this subject. Send 50 cents to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for "Cholesterol" booklet.

Inside Washington

McGovern's Pro-Israel Stand Put to Test by Sen. Jackson

By Robert S. Allen

MIAMI BEACH— Sen. McGovern's recent hastily acquired devotion to Israel faces a revealing test when the Democratic convention acts on the party's platform.

Delegates of Sen. Henry Jackson, leading Congressional champion of Israel, are set to demand a showdown on a plank strongly opposed by McGovern supporters during the Platform Committee's deliberations in Washington last week. Instead, the McGovernites put over a watered down version of the pro-Israel declaration.

Thereupon, the Jackson forces succeeded in forcing the issue directly before the convention as a whole for final determination.

They did this by securing the required 10 per cent sponsorship of the 150 Platform Committee members. The Jacksonites got more than 20 signatures on their petition, thus ensuring that the pro-Israel provision will be considered by the convention as a whole. It is as follows:

"The Democratic party pledges to maintain in Europe and at sea in the Mediterranean ample forces to deter the Soviet Union from putting unbearable pressure on Israel."

Sen. Jackson and his delegates will vigorously urge that this declaration be added to the Middle East plank approved by the Platform Committee. As watered down by the McGovernites, it reads:

"Maintain a political commitment and military force in the area ample to deter the Soviet Union from using military force in the area."

Sen. Jackson holds this as "mealy-mouth" and "unacceptable."

All the inside indications are that the plain-talking Washington State Senator and his convention supporters are determined to wage a tough fight to rewrite the innocuous plank.

Such a bare-knuckle scrap could bring into the open the charges which played an important role in last month's California and New York primaries that McGovern has an equivocal record on Israel. This accusation—questionably cost him heavily—Jewish centers.

Illustration: Instead of carrying California by a resounding 20 point margin as was widely predicted, McGovern topped Sen. Humphrey only 44 to 39 per cent. Similarly, in New York, three ultra-left Congressional candidates—strongly endorsed by McGovern—were defeated in Jewish districts.

Running for Cover
Apparently belatedly aware of his vulnerability on the Israeli issue, Sen. McGovern has run for cover.

He has made a number of public avowals of his "love and devotion" for Israel, and a few days before Congress recessed for the Democratic convention, he made a speech on the Senate floor proclaiming what he melliflously characterized as a "New Foundation for an American Policy Towards Israel."

This declaration, to a virtually empty Senate chamber, contained utterly nothing new in the way of a "policy" or anything else. The rhetoric was wholly political and consisted of a series of statements on how sincere McGovern is in favoring Israel. It was purely a self-serving spiel aimed at the important and disturbingly uncertain Jewish vote.

Reason for the underlying skepticism among Jewish voters is that in the 13 years McGovern has been in Congress not only has he been distinctly indifferent about seeking military and other aid for Israel, but on occasion has actually voted against it.

The record on that is clearcut, as follows:

In 1970, McGovern voted for an amendment to the military procurement act sponsored by Sen. Jackson, to provide open-ended extension of funds for Israel. But on the final vote on the entire measure, McGovern turned completely around and was one of five Senators who voted against the act—thus wholly voiding his vote for the Jackson amendment.

The South Dakota radical pulled the same thing in 1971.

That time he voted for another Jackson amendment (to the foreign aid bill) authorizing $300 million in military credits and $50 million in supporting aid for Israel. Then as happened—the year before, McGovern flip-flopped and voted against the measure as a whole—thus once again flatly contradicting his vote for the amendment.

In both instances, he nominally was on record for aid to Israel. But on the crucial final votes, he was flatly against it.

In other words, the South Dakotan pursued a devious and demagogic course.

On one hand, he put himself in position to claim he supported aid for Israel. On the other hand, he adhered to his basic isolationist-leftist views and voted against U.S. defense and other military funds—including aid for Israel.

It is this tortuous record that is the reason for his recent hastily proclaimed devotion to Israel. So far, this belated conversion has had indifferent results.

It will undergo a new test when Sen. Jackson and his delegates press their pro-Israel plank before the convention as a whole. McGovern's stand in this showdown will be highly revealing—and could have far-reaching consequence in the fall election.

Significantly, the same people saying responsible law-abiding Americans can't be trusted with guns, would trust the Soviets with superior missile power.

Environmentalists Blamed For Energy Crisis

LONGVIEW, Tex. (AP) — Texas Railroad Commission chairman Byron Tunnell asserted Tuesday that environmentalists are partly to blame for what he called national energy crisis.

Tunnell told a civic club that many people do not understand how important oil and gas are. For example, he said, a woman told him at a party she didn't worry about running out of oil and gas because "we'd switch to electricity."

"She didn't know, of course, that 97 per cent of all electric power generated in Texas comes from burning natural gas, or that more than four-fifths of the nation's electricity is from the fossil fuels—coal, oil and gas," Tunnell said.

"America's energy needs will nearly double by 1975, yet work on approximately 100 nuclear plants has been "delayed by increased costs, slow deliveries of equipment and environmentalists blocking construction," he said.

The federal government has cut the oil depletion allowance and "arbitrarily" fixed the price of natural gas so low that exploration has decreased and reserves have dropped, he said.

"Then we put every stumbling block that an environmentalist group could think up in front of those who wanted to find oil and develop it off shore in Alaska. Now the federal government is tinkering with the automobiles and the formula of gasoline so it will require more crude oil to make a less powerful gasoline to run a less efficient automobile," he said.

More federal control of the industry is threatened, he said.

"If it were not for the leadership of some in Congress, the federal water quality law now in conference committee would have a provision that would give the Environmental Protection Agency virtual control over the East Texas oil field through regulations for injection wells."

People In The News

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — The state trial of Arthur Bremer on charges stemming from the attempted assassination of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace has been postponed until July 31.

The trial had been scheduled to begin Wednesday. Judge Ralph Powers of Prince Georges County Circuit Court granted a defense motion Monday for a continuance. The defense argued it needed more time to prepare its case.

TOKYO (AP) — Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann, his wife and his French government delegation have met in Peking with Chinese leaders, including Premier Chou En-lai. The New China News Agency, in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, called the Monday meeting a "friendly conversation." The broadcast did not say what was discussed.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A group of celebrities headed by Bob Hope and organized by the comedian will conduct a telethon July 22 to benefit victims of recent floods.

WBAL-TV announced the telethon Monday and said it will be shown on the station in Baltimore and over a network of stations in other areas involved in the floods.

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz predicts that American grain sales to the Soviet Union may total $1 billion before the end of the three-year, $750 million export agreement recently announced by President Nixon.

Scientists Study Skulls, Bones Of 'Very Early' Type Of Man

ELY, Minn. (AP) — Human skulls, bones and artifacts found in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area four years ago and kept secret until recently could be those of a prehistoric type of man never before found anywhere, scientists studying them say.

The skulls are under study at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. and if Dr. T. Dale Stewart determines the skulls are unique enough to warrant further investigation, a Carbon-14 age test will be made.

The test requires burning one gram of bone material, and University of Minnesota scientists have been reluctant to destroy any of the material.

A copyrighted article in the Duluth News-Tribune Sunday told of the find and a report by Dr. Elden Johnson, Minnesota state archaeologist.

Norman Saari, Tofte Lake resort owner, discovered the bones Sept. 6, 1968 in an eroding gravel bank used as a canoe landing for a campsite. The exact location is being kept secret.

The skulls have extremely low foreheads and prominent brow ridges. Johnson said the combination suggests the skulls are typical examples of what must have been a very early type of man or an inbred population.

"The skulls... may well represent a pre-Indian type of man that is more closely related to Neanderthal man than any previously found."
