

Briscoe seeks $300 million for teachers

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe recommended a $100 million decrease today in the amount local school districts pay for educating 2½ million public school children.

In an address to the special session he called on public school finance, Briscoe also recommended a $300 million salary increase for teachers and the doubling of state equalization money for schools — from $100 million to $200 million.

Also, he said, the legislature must authorize an in-depth study of better ways of determining how much local districts should put into public education.

The local fund assignment now totals $500 million, he said, and this should be lowered to $400 million by the special session.

He said Texans "expect swift action" on an education bill.

Briscoe said he has had more than 500 requests to open the 30-day session to other subjects, but he will not do so "until the matter of public school financing is resolved."

The Senate agreed to meet with the House on Friday to hear complaints against Associate Justice Don Yarborough of the Texas Supreme Court — complaints that could lead to his removal.

It also scheduled an afternoon hearing on school financing and elected Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, as assistant presiding officer for the special session.

Beaumont lawyer Tanner Hunt Jr. was chosen as Senate parliamentarian for the special session.

The session, limited to 30 days, could be important to Briscoe's re-election bid.

Briscoe — who controls what the legislature may consider in special session — says 210 topics were proposed for the session, but he set aside all but school finance.

He told a news conference Friday he wanted the "entire focus" and "effort" of the legislature centered on that subject.

After that has been handled, he indicated, he might submit other topics for debate.

Atty. Gen. John Hill, the governor's probable opponent in the 1978 Democratic Party primary, said Saturday he was "hopeful" that Briscoe will let lawmakers consider a proposed constitutional amendment providing property tax relief on agricultural land, as well as for homeowners.

Hill will be watching the session closely to see if Briscoe makes mistakes that Hill can use in a possible campaign against the two-term governor.

Briscoe called legislators back to town after they failed in the 140-day session ending May 30 to enact a school finance bill that included teacher pay raises.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock estimates the legislature has $958.8 million to spend, which apparently is enough to cover any of the school proposals being prepared.

Under the state's "pay-as-you-go" provision, the legislature cannot spend more than the comptroller estimates will be available in the treasury, except by a four-fifths vote of the lawmakers.

On Friday, a joint House-Senate session will consider resolutions to remove Yarborough as associate justice, a job he has held for only 6½ months.

A House resolution cites three counts against Yarborough: forgery, perjury and plotting to commit murder.

The state Judicial Qualifications Commission is to meet Saturday to hear evidence in the case.

Yarborough, 36, was indicted by a Travis County grand jury last month for forgery and aggravated perjury. He is thought to be the first justice ever indicted for a crime while in office.

Harris County Dist. Atty. Carol Vance also said Yarborough's former business associate, John William Rothkopf, secretly taped 3½ hours of meetings with Yarborough in which Yarborough said he wanted two men "wiped away."

Former Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr — who defended himself and was acquitted in two criminal trials growing out of the Sharpstown banking scandal — has agreed to represent Yarborough at the legislative hearing.

Briscoe said he has been advised that if two-thirds of the Senate and House approve the resolutions directing him to remove Yarborough from office, he has no choice but to do so.

Soviet jet hijacked

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Two hijackers who seized a Soviet jetliner on a domestic flight released 49 of their hostages in Helsinki today and then were reported to have taken off in a light plane.

The hijackers seized an Aeroflot jet with 79 passengers and crew aboard Sunday evening and demanded that they be flown to Stockholm. But the plane landed in Helsinki, apparently because it had insufficient fuel.

Airport police in Stockholm said the hijackers left Helsinki aboard a Cessna, but their destination was not immediately known. Finnish authorities would not confirm the report.

The report gave no indication whether the hijackers took any hostages on the small plane. Security at the Stockholm international airport was tight because oil ministers were arriving for a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Sweden had earlier said it would not let the hijackers into the country. Finnish officials said the pair then demanded to be flown to "some other country" and threatened to blow up the plane unless it was refused.

The hijackers of the Soviet plane commandeered the Aeroflot jetliner with 79 persons aboard during a 175-mile flight from Petrozavodsk, the capital of Soviet Karelia, to Leningrad Sunday night. Neither the identity of the hijackers nor their motive was immediately known.

The pilot radioed Stockholm, Sweden, for permission to land there but instead came down at Helsinki airport apparently because the plane did not have enough fuel to reach Sweden, 250 miles away.

The hijackers apparently wanted to continue on to Stockholm. Finland has an agreement with the Soviet Union for the automatic extradition of hijackers.

The Finnish government, which was in emergency session most of the night, took a tough stance and demanded that the hijackers surrender and release all their prisoners.

Police surrounded the twin jet TU134 and it was towed to a remote part of the airport. Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Stepanov and three Finnish cabinet members went to the airport to negotiate with the hijackers, and a spokesman said the talks were continuing non-stop.

The Interior Ministry said the hijackers released seven crew members Sunday night. This morning they freed a woman and her infant child, and 2½ hours later they released 20 women and children. Shortly after noon they released 20 more women, leaving 30 passengers aboard.

None of the hostages were reported hurt.

Officials said the Swedish government has not been asked for permission to let the hijacked jet land at Sweden's international Arlanda airport.

In Stockholm, a government official said Sweden's prime concern was the safety of delegates arriving at Arlanda throughout the day for the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) meeting.

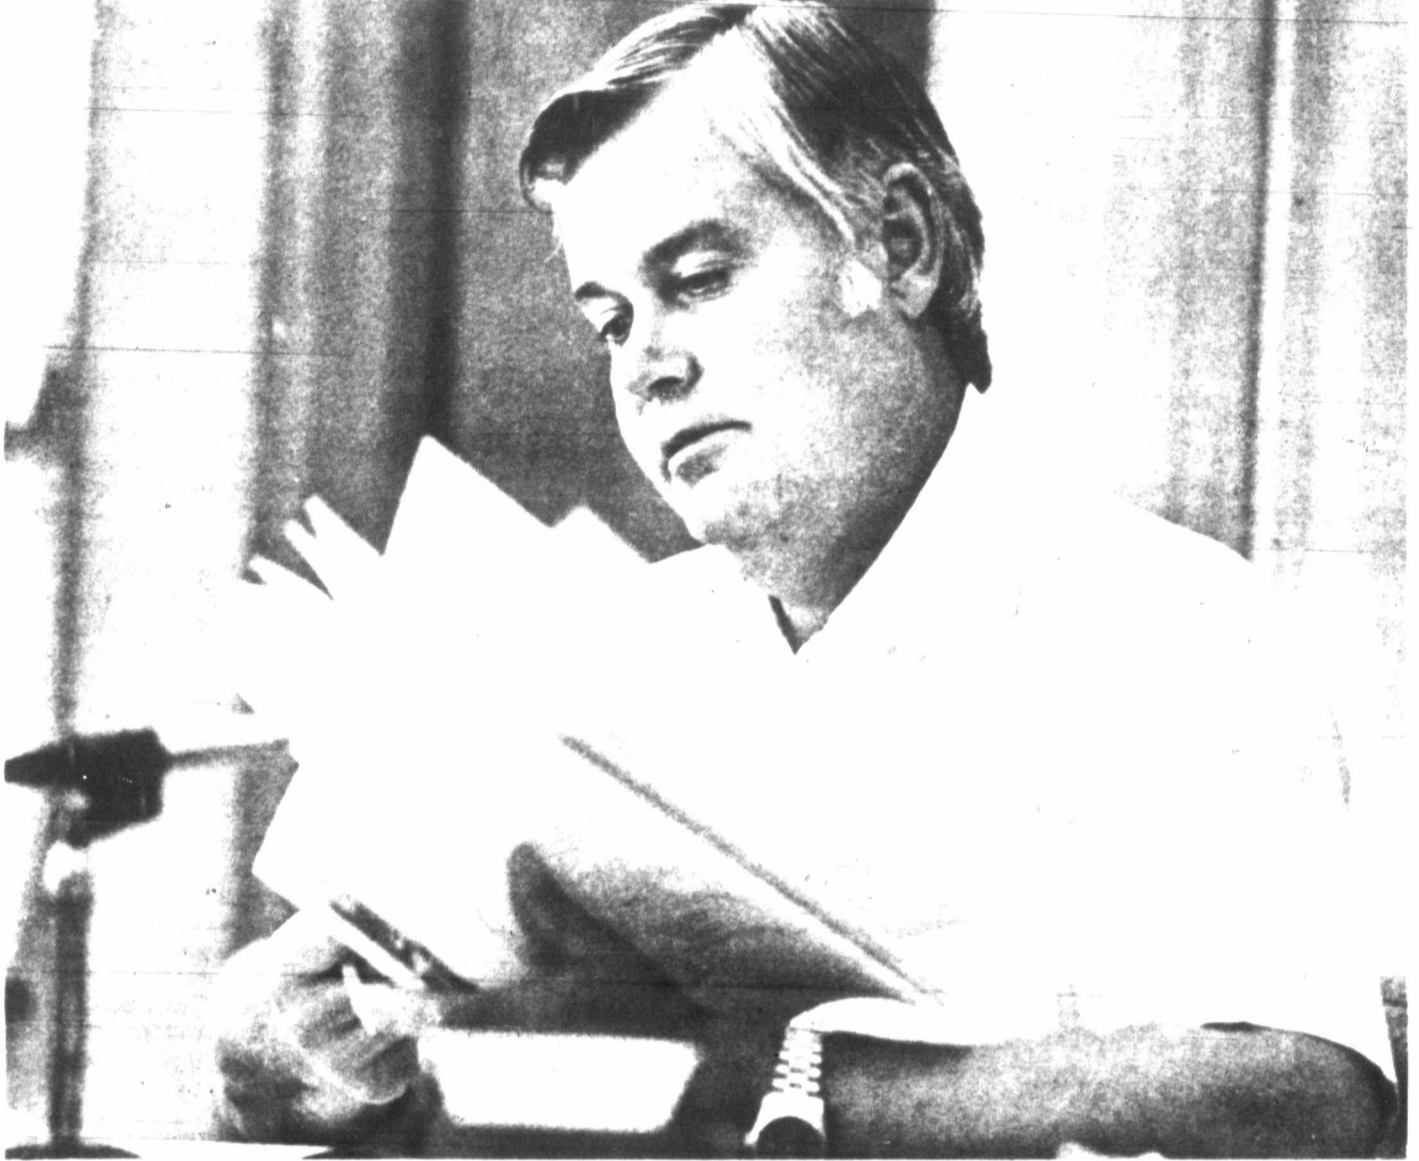

It was the second hijacking of a Soviet airliner in six weeks. A 37-year-old mechanic named Vasily Sosnovsky took over a twin-engine Aeroflot AN24 on May 26 and forced the pilot to fly him to Stockholm. After he applied for asylum, the Swedish government refused to extradite him and said it would put him on trial.

The Soviet airliner was seized about eight hours after five Palestinian hijackers turned on their leader and forced him to surrender with them to Syrian police who guaranteed them "absolute safety." Two Arab officials and five British crew members of the Kuwaiti Airlines airliner were freed unharmed.

Armed with a submachine gun and other weapons, the Palestinians took over the Boeing 707 jet Friday after it took off from Beirut for Kuwait with 55 persons aboard.

Calls infant 'last gift'

LONDON (AP) — Syndicated cartoonist Kim Casali called herself a "very, very lucky woman" after giving birth to a boy conceived by artificial insemination from her husband Roberto, who died of cancer 17 months ago.

Milo Roberto Andrea Casali was born Sunday to Mrs. Casali, 35, the originator of the "Love is..." cartoon strip. During her pregnancy, induced by her husband's frozen sperm, Mrs. Casali had said the infant would be her "last gift" from her husband.

The boy weighed 10 pounds 8 ounces at birth. A family friend said mother and son were doing well at a nursing home at Guildford, 30 miles southwest of London.

"The baby is just terrific. I had hoped for a girl, but really I don't mind a scrap. He is fit. He is quite beautiful and I am a very, very lucky woman," Mrs. Casali told the London Daily Mail.

"So far, Milo has been as good as gold. I reckon by the size of him he will be eating steak and chips by the time he reaches six months. It was the most fantastic and easy birth," the New Zealand-born Mrs. Casali told the paper.

British newspapers gave wide coverage to her pregnancy with what they called the "Miracle Baby" and the birth of Milo, pronounced mee-low.

The press accounts said Mrs. Casali, who lives in Weybridge, met Italian-born Roberto Casali in the United States in 1967.

During their 4½-year courtship, she sent him drawings tagged "Love is..." Some of the romantic messages were made famous by the cartoon strip.

Roberto, an engineer, developed cancer shortly after the two married. They had two sons, but wanted a larger family and feared the spreading cancer might make children impossible later.

The accounts said Mrs. Casali suggested a sperm bank, where sperm is frozen for use later, and that her husband agreed. He died at age 31.

During her pregnancy, Mrs. Casali wrote to a friend: "Love is — the baby I carry for my darling Roberto."

Before going into the nursing home, she said: "The baby will be Roberto's last gift to me. I shall be able to remember him by it forever."

Roberto and I were very anxious to provide a brother or sister for our two sons. And now it has been made possible for me to have another reminder of my wonderful husband."

Potted plants snatched

Drug education display materials nurtured for nearly two months by the Pampa Police Department were literally snatched out by their roots during the dark of the night.

Lt. J.J. Ryzman said this morning a thief or thieves liberated three small marijuana plants "from a pan of dirt sitting near a window."

The pan containing the plants was resting on a radiator next to the ground-level window on the east side of the Pampa City Hall.

Ryzman said the window had been left open to provide cross ventilation through the department. The screen had been cut and a criminal hand had reached through and removed every last leaf, stem and seedling.

Police acquired the plants in mid-May and had decided to grow them for use as a display in drug education and information programs. The plants, sickly at first, had recovered and were thriving under the care of law enforcement officers.

Ryzman said investigation into the theft is continuing.

The theft occurred between 11 p.m. Saturday and 7 a.m. Sunday.

"If sufficient evidence warrants it," the detective said, "we will prosecute to the fullest extent of the law."

Valuation hits record high

Gray County's 1977 assessed valuation will be an estimated $122 million, according to the announcement this morning during a Commissioners Court board of equalization meeting.

The proposed assessed valuation is an all time high — about $11 million above the 1976 figure of $111 million.

County Judge Don Hinton said he will recommend that the Commissioners Court cut taxes from $1.25 per $100 to $1.20 "to thank you for helping us."

J.W. Lee of the Thomas Y. Pickett appraisal firm in Dallas said "this is a pretty big jump."

The Pickett firm has been doing this type work for Gray County "at least 20 years."

"We've seen it grow from $57,519 in 1969... and this year we are proposing $122 million." He explained that the industrial rolls will be up more than $8 million and the local rolls will increase about $2 million.

The hike in the industrial rolls was attributed mostly to an increase in the price of oil. Gray County's total production decreased from 5,644,428 barrels in 1975, to 5,215,096 in 1976.

"Oil production dropped 429,332 barrels, but the price went up making the oil more valuable," Lee explained.

Oil is more than $13 per barrel as compared with about $11 in 1975, and it was only $3.50 per barrel six or seven years ago, according to Lee.

Gray County's assessed valuation is based on 23 per cent of the actual value.

L.R. Vaughn, president of Thomas Y. Pickett, said Celanese is the country's largest industrial tax payer, with Phillips Petroleum, second, and Texaco, third.

In his opening statements on the first of three day equalization sessions for the Commissioners court, Hinton said: "Six years ago when I became commissioner, we were in debt. We paid off our hospital and airport bonds a year ago."

The Commissioners Court will meet in regular session at 9 a.m. Wednesday. Hinton will propose to decrease the tax rate at that time. His proposal is expected to receive an unanimous vote from the Commissioners.

In concluding his statement to The News, Lee was asked if expected many complaints in regard to the proposed valuation increase. He said he didn't.

"Everybody complains about taxes, but we all have to live with them," he added.

School damage $77,000

By JANE P. MARSHALL, Pampa News Staff

The third time was lucky for Pampa school administrators this morning. The school board approved an attendance policy for Pampa High School after sending it back twice for changes.

Under the new policy, a student will be counted absent after being tardy more than 10 minutes. Previously, the time limit was 15 minutes.

A student also will be required to have a written excuse signed by a parent or guardian stating the reason for an absence. The administration had proposed that no excuses be required.

"Can these policies be effectively administered?" board president Bill Arrington asked Paul Payne, high school principal, at the 7 a.m. meeting

Whitaker, Baker, and Sue Campbell, Wilson.

Six teachers were hired: Betty Johnston, vocational homemaking; Steven Anderson, vocational ag.; Jean Abercrombie, English, PHS; Dennis McMeekin, health and trainer, PHS; Mary Ann Woosley, journalism and English, and John H. Randles, assistant basketball and health, PHS.

The board accepted for first reading the business and support services section of the policy manual.

Other items discussed by the board include:

1. Unemployment insurance. The school district will be forced Jan. 1 by federal law to join some type of program.
2. Football ticket sales. Board members asked about selling the tickets through local businesses and not the school business office.

3. Sale of school land. The board agreed to proceed on the sale of a tract of land southwest of Pampa which was purchased years ago as a possible site for a second junior high school.

"If we don't need it, we just as well get it back on the tax roll," Arrington said.

The board reserved the right to refuse all bids.

Superintendent Bob Phillips was in Austin working with the school finance bill in the special session of the legislature.

The board will meet at 7 a.m. July 25 in Carver Center.

Al Smith, board member, was absent. Those at the meeting were Arrington, Dr. Bob Lyle, Curt Beck, David Crossman, Buddy Epperson and Paul Simmons.

Panhandle Savings sets construction

Construction is expected to be completed in less than two months on the addition of offices and a conference room at Panhandle Savings and Loan Association, 520 Cook St.

Construction, by M.W. Hamilton Co., general contractor, began June 29. Doug Howard, vice president and manager of the Pampa branch of Panhandle Savings and Loan, said increased business in the community made the expansion necessary.

"The people of this area have given us a very warm welcome," Howard said, "and we are happy to find the need to expand our facilities."

The project calls for an additional 800 square feet of floor space. The facility will house a new conference room to be used for loan closing, an expanded vault to prepare for future service expansion, and an office for a second loan officer.

Panhandle Savings and Loan Association has operated with one loan officer since its opening here in 1973 but "a recent increase in loan demand in Pampa has created the need for a second loan officer at the branch," Howard said.

The new construction will be done in the same style and color scheme as the existing building.

Other Panhandle Savings offices are located in Amarillo and Canyon.

Citizen stamps face block

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's plan to give letter-writing Americans a respite from postal rate increases faces the first of two hurdles today.

The Postal Service Board of Governors was scheduled to vote on a proposed new "citizen rate" on stamps. As part of a proposed dual-rate plan, the special consumer rate would keep the 13-cent stamp for personal letters while raising the cost of a first-class business stamp three cents.

If the board approves the plan, the new rates will then go to the Postal Rate Commission. If the commission takes no action in 10 months, however, the rates would take effect automatically.

The board also planned to act today on a recommendation by Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar to discount postage for magazines and newspapers that are sorted by zip code before arriving at post offices.

The citizen rate was proposed by President Carter, who told Bailar in a letter that consumers need some relief from postal rate hikes. He said Carter's interest in the citizens postal rate "obviously was a matter of critical significance."

Bailar told the board last Wednesday that the discounted rate would affect about 20 per cent of first-class mail. He said he hoped holding personal letters to the 13-cent-an-ounce rate in effect for the last 18 months would lead to public acceptance of efforts by the Postal Service to cut costs.

Various cost-cutting proposals, including a call for ending Saturday deliveries, are aimed at adding $2 billion in revenues for the Postal Service and virtually erasing its annual operating deficit.

Under the citizen rate plan, individual letter-writers would have to meet the following requirements: either the return or delivery address must be handwritten, both must include zip codes, both places must be in the United States and the envelope must meet size, shape and height limits of mail-handling machines.

Meanwhile, the Postal Service has raised rates on magazines, books, newspapers and nonprofit mailings.

Under a rate structure approved last Wednesday, rates for second-class books, records and nonprofit items went up an average of 21 per cent. The cost of mailing an average weekly news magazine increased from 5.57 cents a copy to 6.8 cents. Rates also went up on third- and fourth-class items.

Carter abandons oil swap idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is abandoning a swap of Alaskan oil with Japan partly because he would have a tough time explaining such a move to American consumers long warned of an energy crisis.

James Schlesinger, the president's chief energy adviser, disclosed Sunday that Carter decided it would be wrong to send Alaskan oil to Japan in exchange for Japanese-bought oil shipped from the Persian Gulf to states on the Gulf Coast and the Eastern Seaboard.

The proposal was among several under consideration for handling the daily surplus of 500,000 barrels a day expected at West Coast refineries once oil starts flowing at full capacity through the newly opened trans-Alaska pipeline.

But, said Schlesinger, "We are unable to demonstrate clear-cut savings to the consumers." On balance, the President has reviewed the matter and he believes the swaps would be undesirable — partly for political reasons, partly for other technical reasons.

"The administration is believed to favor building pipelines to carry surplus Alaskan oil to markets in the Midwest," Schlesinger said. Carter's decision to keep Alaskan oil in the United States should encourage that development.

In Anchorage, trans-Alaska pipeline officials said Sunday they hoped to resume pumping oil within days. The flow was halted Friday night after a fire knocked out a pumping station near Fairbanks.

Meanwhile, House Republican Leader John Rhodes said Sunday he doesn't believe Congress is any mood to give the President broad standby authority to impose a gasoline rationing program.

He appeared on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

Rhodes renewed GOP criticism of the Carter energy program. He said a Republican plan to allow gas, oil and coal to find their own price levels in a free market makes greater sense than the administration's advocacy of more stringent controls on prices.

He noted that under the Republican plan, oil companies would have to pay taxes on any windfall profits.

Five die in collision

MARSHALL, Tex. (AP) — Five motorists died and two others suffered injuries in a highway collision about 12:15 a.m. today near here in North-east Texas.

State police said one car veered across the center stripe in the roadway and two vehicles crashed head-on. The accident occurred 5 1/2 miles south of the Avinger community in Marion County.

Officers listed the dead as Fred Brady Miller, 46, and Brady Fred Miller, 4, of Hughes Springs, Tex.; Anthony Woolfolk, 27, and Richard Woolfolk, 25, of Carthage and Emma Morris Walsh, 40, of Houston.

They identified the injured, both reported in critical condition at a Tyler hospital, as Brady Miller, 9, of Hughes Springs and Sammy Wicks of San Antonio.

More jurors questioned

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Attorneys in the capital murder trial of Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis began a third week of sifting through prospective jurors today.

Four jurors were impaneled in the first two weeks, although the fourth was dismissed last week for medical reasons.

Davis, a wealthy industrialist, is being tried in the shooting death last August of Andrea Wilborn, his 12-year-old stepdaughter.

He is also charged with capital murder in the shooting death of former Texas Christian University basketball player Stan Farr, his estranged wife's boyfriend. In addition, Davis faces charges in the wounding of his wife, Priscilla, and a family friend.

The charges stemmed from a pre-dawn shooting spree last August at Davis' lavish Fort Worth mansion.

Since proceedings opened here June 27, lawyers have gone through the names of 33 prospective jurors.

The trial was moved here from Fort Worth on a change of venue motion after a first attempt to try Davis there ended in a mistrial before jury selection was completed.

The mistrial was declared by then-presiding State District Court Judge Tom Cave after the judge ruled that a sequestered juror had made an unauthorized telephone call.

Lefebvre 'not against Pope'

DJICKINSON, Tex. (AP) — French Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre indicated Sunday that if his conflict with Pope Paul eventually led to excommunication he would continue his priestly duties and his efforts to return the Roman Catholic church to its traditional teachings.

The archbishop, in the small southeast Texas town of Dickinson, to consecrate a chapel and conduct a pontifical mass, said excommunication meant "you had committed a mortal sin. I have not committed a mortal sin. So I cannot consider excommunication."

He also said that within the next year or two a seminary may be opened in the United States for those who believe in the more traditional teachings of the Roman Catholic Church.

The archbishop's conflict with Pope Paul centers on his celebration of mass in Latin following the Tridentine rite as opposed to the new liturgy which calls for the mass to be celebrated in the language of the parishioners.

Recently the archbishop defied the Pope's order and ordained 14 priests at a seminary in Ecône, Switzerland. Vatican Radio said his actions had placed him outside the church. Pope Paul has barred the archbishop from performing priestly functions because of his militant campaign against the modernization of the church.

At an early morning news conference, Archbishop Lefebvre was asked why he stands alone in the fight to return to the Tridentine rite. He answered, "I know there are many, many others who think as we do. They realize the church is in a crisis. But they are afraid to speak publicly."

About 500 persons gathered at the Queen of Angels Chapel in this town not far from the Gulf of Mexico to hear the archbishop. Several had traveled more than 300 miles for the event.

Meanwhile, an estimated 1,000 Catholics gathered at the nearby Shrine of the True Cross, a church less than a mile away from where the archbishop appeared, to "pray" for the archbishop's followers.

"We did not gather in response to the archbishop's visit," said the Rt. Rev. Bobby Eugene Cargill, priest at the church. "We consider them to be our fellow Catholics who have just been led astray. We thought it was our duty to pray for them and we hope they come back into the fold."

It rained heavily shortly before the mass, but by the time for the consecration services, the skies had cleared.

The church, which seats about 400, was filled and others gathered on damp grass outside to hear the mass over loudspeakers.

The archbishop told the congregation that "this chapel may become the center for the true Catholic faith all over America. Perhaps in the near future we can have good relations with the Vatican. We have nothing in our heart against the Vatican, but we cannot accept the loss of the true Catholic faith."

After mass, Texas-style barbecue was served.

Archbishop Lefebvre said if there is a division in the Roman Catholic church today "it is not because of us but because of the Vatican."

"I am not against the Pope. I am for the Pope. But the attitude of the Vatican against us does not come from the Holy Ghost. It comes from a bad spirit. The orientation that began after the Second Vatican Council is making us protestant," he said.

The archbishop said the Tridentine "is a spiritual mass. The new mass is a meal, not a sacrifice. Mass should be a true sacrifice. We are not a movement within the church, and we are not a revolution. Remember, the Tridentine rite as used in all Catholic churches for centuries and centuries. It was good enough then, why is it not good now?"

If the Pope would permit the use of the Tridentine rite in those churches that so desired, the archbishop said, "This would be the first step to peace in the church. The church is in a crisis. We don't know where the church is going."

When asked if it were possible that his followers could be excommunicated, the archbishop said, "They do not follow me. They follow the true Catholic church. That puts all in the same boat."

"Many members of the church are asking for a return to tradition. We must return. This situation cannot continue."

The Rt. Rev. John Morokowski, bishop of the Galveston-Houston Diocese, said, "We are saddened by the actions of this group and by the conflict of Archbishop Lefebvre with the Holy Father and the Catholic church."

The archbishop, who earlier had planned a visit to Mexico, said Sunday he has not made a definite decision on further travel plans.

Deaths include murders

By The Associated Press

Accidents on streets and highways caused the greatest number of violent deaths in Texas as usual during the weekend.

The Associated Press tabulated reports of 16 fatalities between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday, including 11 in traffic, three homicides and two drownings. Four of the traffic deaths occurred in a single accident near Houston.

These were among the victims:

Mrs. Gordon Deldin of Shreveport, La., died Sunday night of injuries in a collision of a tank truck and a car south of Carthage on U.S. 79.

Officers reported Gary W.

Bethard, 19, of Wells was killed early Sunday when the pickup he was driving hit a curb and rolled three times on Highway 69 near Lufkin.

Ladruce Naylor Hesper, 18, of Arlington died Saturday when he was struck by a vehicle as he walked on an Arlington street. Police arrested a Fort Worth man.

Leroy Smith, 26, of Dallas, died early Saturday in a stabbing.

A two-vehicle accident in Fort Bend County a few miles from Houston Saturday claimed the lives of four Houston residents. They were Daniel R. Remling, 33, Mary Francis Remling, 26, Milton Stanley Diggs, 22, and Robert Lewis Grice, 20.

A family fishing trip at a cliche pit near Amarillo ended in tragedy Saturday when a small boy and his father drowned. Witnesses said the boy, 9-year-old Eugene Burns, waded into the small lake and vanished. Edward Rainwater, 26, the father, went after him and also drowned.

Mrs. Marie Carter, 65, of Amarillo died late Saturday in a two-vehicle accident on U.S. 287 in Amarillo.

Leslie Stewart, 20, of Wichita Falls died early Saturday when the motorcycle on which he was riding left a roadway at Wichita Falls and flew through a barbed wire fence.

A one-car accident on U.S. 289 about three miles north of Gunter in North Texas Saturday night claimed the life of a Dallas man. Officers said an automobile driven by Dean Alan Wesley, 20, struck a railroad overpass.

An argument was blamed for the shooting death Saturday of a Dallas man. Officers said Hobart Allen Jr., 38, was shot as he stood in the front yard of another man's home.

Donald Ray Davis, 18, of Dallas, was found shot to death on a Dallas residential street. Officers said the shooting occurred while Davis and another man were scuffling.

Miss Texas 'disciplined'

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The new Miss Texas, Lori Ann Smith, credits self-discipline as the difference between winning this year and finishing second runner-up in 1976.

"A year of self-discipline has made the difference," said Miss Smith, 20, who represented the Haltom-Richland area. She said she has exercised and lifted weights daily at a health spa in the months following the 1976 pageant.

The ash blonde Miss Smith was crowned Miss Texas Saturday night. She will represent Texas in the annual Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N.J., in September.

"I am excited and honored," she told a Sunday news conference.

She had won the preliminary swimsuit competition Thursday night and sang to win the preliminary talent event on Wednesday.

The new Miss Texas, who lives in North Richland Hills, is 5-8, 118-pounds and measures 35-23-35. She has transferred from Southern Methodist University to North Texas State University, where she will be a junior.

Last year's Miss Texas Pageant was her first attempt at winning the crown.

The first runner-up selected

Saturday night was Miss Irving, Margie Lynn Hooper, 22.

The second runner-up was Miss West Texas, Kristi Lynn Keys, 20, of Pecos, Miss East Texas, Marta Christine Szaran of Center, was the third runner-up and Miss Dallas County, Holly Wynette Walker, 21, of Tyler was selected as fourth runner-up.

Miss Smith, who won a one-year scholarship at North Texas with the Miss Texas title, got her letter of acceptance from the school only Friday.

She is majoring in media art, but said she wants to be a professional singer.

Modeling hopeful enters pageant

Trinidee Acker, Pampa High School senior, will be one of 15 girls on stage in the M.K. Brown Auditorium July 23 for the judging of the Miss Top of Texas Pageant. Miss Acker lists her interests as modeling, farming, water skiing, horseback riding, cycling and volleyball. She is active in the Gray County 4-H program and is interested in a career in modeling and dress designing. She enjoys caring for children. Miss Acker, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Acker, is being sponsored by Kyle's Shoe Place.

Train collides with trailer, children die

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Two children were killed and three other members of a Texas family were injured Sunday when a Southern Railroad train and a trailer-pulling van collided, authorities said.

The Muscogee County coroner said Brit Andre Barker, 6, and his sister Brandi Ann Barker, 5, of Arlington, Tex., died in the crash that injured the children's parents, William Glenn Ashley, 31, and Pamela Ashley, 25, and the Ashley's infant daughter, one-year-old Angela. They were being treated at the Columbus Medical Center.

Cars of the train were separated when the camper's butane tanks exploded, authorities said. The accident occurred about 7:30 p.m. at the intersection of Garrett and Macon roads, just outside Columbus.

Witnesses at Lake Pines camp ground where the Ashleys had been staying said Sunday was 5-year-old Brandi's birthday and Ashley had been graduated from reserve training at Ft. Benning during the weekend.

The cause of the accident is unknown, authorities said.

sworn to nonviolence.

University officials were expected to seek a court order to day calling for students and other protesters to vacate Blanket Hill, the knoll where four students were shot and killed by National Guard bullets during a Vietnam-era protest.

The students say they will have to be carried off, that there will be no surrender of the site they consider sacred. The university says it has $6 million tied up in a planned gymnasium annex at the foot of the hill.

Outgoing University President Glenn Olds says he allowed the hill to be occupied in deference to the students' rights to peaceful protest. Students have lived in tents on the hill since May 12. But now that construction workers are ready to begin excavation for the 120,000-square-foot building, he says the demonstrators have become trespassers.

Students in the May Fourth Coalition — named for the date in 1970 when the four students were killed — and nine others were wounded — say they have a moral right to occupy the ground.

Roseann Canora, 27, a demonstration leader, rejected as spurious the university's claim that the location of the annex was determined solely because it would be close to the existing gymnasium.

"This is a coverup," she said. "They want us to forget that four students were murdered on May 4, 1970. This hill is the most significant symbol of what happened to them."

Olds, hired six years ago to calm the strife-torn campus, denies the charge. He acknowledges that there is still a great deal of frustration and bitterness over the Kent State killings. And, he adds, "There has been no final or adequate fixing of responsibility."

No public agency has been able to fix the blame for the Kent State shootings. Parents of the dead students and others involved in the case have lost a suit against Ohio officials and are appealing the decision in a Cincinnati federal appeals court.

At the end of this week Olds will turn his post over to Dr. Barge Golding. Olds will become president of Alaska Methodist University. "Golding is coming from San Diego State University where he was president.

Olds announced his resignation last November, citing continuing campus protests, the rise of a teachers union and other difficulties as his reasons for leaving.

During his tenure here, Olds helped establish a Center for Peaceful Change to teach courses in nonviolent change. He cites that as one of many examples of how the university can become a "living memorial" to the slain Kent State protesters. He reasons that the existence of such a memorial makes the preservation of that hill unnecessary.

Eavesdropping concerns Pres

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, concerned about Soviet eavesdropping on telephone calls in the United States, will soon be given several proposals to preserve the secrecy of classified communications.

The President is expected to decide by the end of the summer how to protect such calls, one source said Sunday.

The problem stems from the relative ease with which the Soviet Union is reportedly listening in electronically, from properties it owns in Washington and elsewhere in the United States, on telephone calls transmitted through the air by microwave.

The advent of advanced computers has simplified the process considerably because the equipment can quickly sort through the various calls, selecting particular information.

"It is a problem and we're trying to figure out what to do about it," one White House official said. "But when you start to talk about it, you tell the other people how much you know about what they are doing."

A former U.S. government official, asked about the study now being done for the President by a government task force, said only that it involved classified material and was "not something we should talk about on the telephone."

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., concerned about the same problem, said the Carter administration should demand that the Russians stop the eavesdropping.

Carter has been briefed on the problem by Zbigniew Brzezinski, his national security adviser, and by Stansfield Turner, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The task force report is being drafted, one source said. Another said the study involved "every government agency interested in intercepting messages or in not being intercepted." But he would not identify the agencies involved.

Texas weather

Rain heavy enough to cause a flash flood warning for the area around Nacogdoches fell early today as showers and thunderstorms lasted past midnight in parts of East Texas.

There was no report of serious trouble and the National Weather Service wrote the moisture off as generally insignificant. Skies were clear in other sections as a July heat wave stayed firmly in control.

Gusty south winds blew across northern Texas at 10 to 20 miles per hour while breezes hitting less than 10 m.p.h.

National weather

A dozen tornadoes were reported overnight in South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas. No injuries were reported.

Heavy rains prompted flood watches in parts of North Dakota and Kentucky.

Isolated showers and thunderstorms occurred over Arizona and New Mexico, along the Gulf Coast, in southern Illinois and in the middle Atlantic coast states.

Clear skies and cool temperatures prevailed across the western and northeastern parts of the nation but the southeast continued warm and humid.

Thunderstorms were predicted today from North Dakota, across the Mississippi and Ohio valleys and the lower Great Lakes to the south and central Appalachians. Scattered showers and thundershowers were expected over the south and mid Atlantic coastal states, in South Texas and over the south and central plains.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 93 degrees in Needles, Calif. to 43 degrees in Lewistown, Mont.

Liberals keep majority

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda's Liberal Democratic party (LDP) today managed to retain its majority in the upper house of parliament by enlisting three independents who won seats in Sunday's election.

On its own, the ruling party secured 63 seats with four races still undecided. The Liberal Democrats needed to win 65 of the 126 seats at stake in the House of Councillors to hold on to its majority.

The election had been viewed as a key test of the LDP's strength after a major rebuff in elections for the more powerful lower house last December. The conservative Liberal Democrats have ruled in Japan for 29 years.

Sunday's election was to pick new members for half the seats in the 252-seat upper house. The LDP went into the elections holding 126 seats.

Reacting to the Lockheed payoff scandal and the involvement in it of former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and other leading Liberal Democrats, the conservative party lost 16 seats then. It patched together a three-seat majority by enlisting the support of eight independents but has been forced to make extensive compromises with the opposition for the first time.

Now it must maneuver to avoid defeat in the House of Councillors also since it no longer has the two-thirds majority in the House of Representatives needed to override an adverse vote in the upper house.

Though all parties played down Lockheed in this campaign, it was apparent that resentment over the scandal and the strong influence of big business on the conservative party is still strong. Foreign policy was not an issue in the campaign, and the once controversial security treaty with the United States was virtually ignored.

However, the swing was not to the Socialists or Communists. As in December, the voters moved toward the moderate center represented by the Buddhist Komeito (Clean Government party), the Democratic Socialists and the New Liberal Club, a reform group that broke off from the Liberal Democrats.

The computers predicted the Socialists, although still the second-largest party, would lose four to six of their 61 seats, the Communists would drop two and Komeito would pick up four.

Half the upper house is elected every three years for six-year terms.

The Liberal Democrats got off to an encouraging start as returns came in first from traditionally conservative rural areas. But the count for the opposition parties improved in the returns from the big cities.

By midafternoon, with 20 seats undecided, the Liberal Democrats had won 59 seats, giving them a total of 120. The Socialists had 21 for a total of 50.

Republican revival draws Reagan to Ohio

NAPOLEON, Ohio (AP) — Republicans should stop "factionalizing and giving each other political saliva tests," former California Gov. Ronald Reagan has told a meeting of 3,000 GOP faithful at the Henry County fairgrounds.

Reagan, whose presidential campaign trail through Ohio last year has hardly cooled, appeared at what was billed as a "Republican Revivalism" rally with GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes and other state party leaders.

Exuding optimism, despite his party's setbacks in Ohio and across the nation in 1976 — Reagan lost the Ohio primary to Gerald Ford although he won about 46 per cent of the votes — the conservative Californian said Republicans have an excellent chance to rebuild.

Among other things, the 67-year-old former movie actor said at the Saturday the GOP should welcome ethnic and minority groups, giving them leadership positions in a party that represents only about 25 per cent of the voters.

"We must stop factionalizing and giving each other political saliva tests," he declared. Republicans would do well to rebuild for a party that espouses the principles of the 1976 GOP national platform, he asserted. Much of that document was written by the Reagan campaign forces.

At a news conference earlier, he said it was too early to say whether he might try again for president in 1980. "I don't rule anything in and I don't rule anything out," he said, adding that there may be "a whole new cast on stage by then."

He listed as GOP principles such things as equal opportunity with the "opportunity to become unequal," compassion for those unable to care for themselves, and work on public projects for the abled bodied who are on welfare.

Names in the news

DETROIT (AP) — South African heart surgeon Dr. Christian Barnard will retire in a year or two because his hands are severely crippled by arthritis, according to the Detroit News.

In an interview appearing in Sunday's editions, Barnard said his hands are almost useless in the delicate human heart transplants he pioneered on Dec. 3, 1967.

"I can't continue much longer. This arthritis is causing excruciating pain in both hands," he said.

Barnard, 54, said he has had arthritis for 20 years. "Professionally, I've done about as much as I can, gone about as far as I can go. There are so many other things I'd still like to do yet. I have a young family and I'd like to have enough time and energy left to see them grow up."

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt enjoyed a day at a lake in the Wisconsin woods and was surprised at the room for population expansion, says his host, Philip Hanft.

Hanft, a second cousin to Schmidt, said the chancellor had requested that they find time to motor to Hanft's cottage on Whitefish Lake, near Gordon, Wis., and about 50 miles from Duluth.

"He was intrigued by the fact there was so much vacant land, areas of woods without anything," Hanft told a reporter.

Schmidt arrived at Duluth by plane from Canada Saturday evening and was welcomed by a military honor guard from the nearby U.S. Air Force Base, although the chancellor has described this as a family visit and he did not want any fuss.

The German leader is scheduled to arrive in Washington, D.C., Wednesday for consultations with President Carter.

NAPOLEON, Ohio (AP) — Republicans should stop "factionalizing and giving each other political saliva tests," says former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Reagan appeared Saturday at what was billed as a "Republican Revivalism" rally with Gov. James Rhodes and other state party leaders. The rally drew about 3,000 persons.

Reagan told the crowd the GOP should welcome ethnic and minority groups, giving them leadership positions.

He said polls show most people now believe in the tenets of the GOP as enunciated in its platform, and he said the party should provide a home for independents and disenfranchised Democrats.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Empress Farah of Iran is visiting the capital city for a round of informal visits, including lunch with the first lady, Rosalynn Carter.

Saturday she was entertained by former Vice President and Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller at their country estate in Pocantico Hills north of New York City and later attended a dinner party at the Waldorf Towers.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I was disturbed by your approval of boy babysitters. They may be all right for little boys, but not for little girls. Maybe I'm overly cautious, but as the mother of three daughters I would never leave my children with a teenage boy babysitter. The reason, I think, is obvious. And no, I don't have an evil mind.
CONSCIENTIOUS MOM

DEAR MOM: Please read on for another view:

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for saying it wasn't "sissy" for a boy to babysit. I'm a young woman who did a lot of babysitting during my high school years. When I was asked to babysit, and had a date, I'd recommend my brother who was two years younger than me. He soon ended up getting more jobs than I. The word got around that he was very entertaining, and the kids always behaved perfectly with him.

Now my brother is married and has a 2-year-old daughter. He's an exceptional father, and I feel it was because of all the time he spent around children. I have no children yet, but when I do, I hope I can raise them as well as my brother is raising his.
BONNIE

DEAR ABBY: Recently you had a letter from a young man whose fiancée's father told him he hoped he would get some "experience" before marrying his daughter. You answered in your usual witty way: "Do fish have to be taught to swim?"

Unfortunately, Abby, fish don't swim for pleasure, but husband and wife do. The bride's father was concerned about his daughter, and felt that "experience" was the answer.

Later you wrote, "There are no 'frigid-dears'—only clumsy men." I'm sure the father felt the same way, and was hoping for something better for his daughter.

What a shame you didn't tell the young man there are some excellent books that could tell him all he needs to know.

I married a man who like myself had had no previous sexual experience, but, thank God, he could read.
MISSING NOTHING

DEAR MISSING: I hope you didn't miss the column in which I recommended premarital counseling as well as getting some good books on the subject.

DEAR ABBY: This may come under the heading of etiquette, but what does a woman say when a man says, "Thank you," after having intimate relations?

Last week this happened to me and I was dumbfounded. Should I have said, "You're welcome"? Or should I have thanked HIM in return? After all, I got as much out of it as he did. What should I say if this comes up again?
SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: If it comes up again, say, "Don't mention it."

CONFIDENTIAL TO READERS: For a fascinating novel get Abigail McCarthy's "Circles: A Washington Story." You won't be able to put it down. It's published by Doubleday, and available in bookstores.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a student and in a year I will be a registered nurse. I am also a mother and am 33 years old.

I have a problem with edema. Under normal circumstances this doesn't happen. But when I diet — I am going to Weight Watchers for the second time in my life — after about the third week on the diet I start waking up all puffy. My eyes are puffy. My fingers are like overstuffed sausages.

Last year this distressed me so much that I gave up the diet with only 13 pounds to go.

No matter what I eat or drink it happens apparently as a result of the diet. I have tried cutting out all extra sodium but nothing works. As the diet progresses I become more and more troubled with edema every day.

I also had swelling with my pregnancy but no increase in blood pressure or other problems. This problem makes me feel and look sluggish and I'd love to have it end so I can lose some weight and have done with it. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER — Your reaction is apparently more extreme than seen in most people, but retention of fluid while losing weight is fairly common. As the fat tissue is used for energy its breakdown liberates water and carbon dioxide. The water may be retained. Such an individual may not see much change in weight on the scales because of the retention of water. Then suddenly there will be a sudden increase in elimination and the person may even feel washed out and will lose several pounds at once. The cycle may repeat itself again, causing the person to lose weight in plateaus.

If you had persisted past the three week period you may have had such a wash-out reaction and had a sudden weight loss.

Since you seem to have an unusual amount of fluid I would suggest that you simply take a diuretic about once a week to help you rid yourself of the accumulating fluid. Don't be upset about the fluid accumulation. It is a sign that you are losing fat and that is what you want to do. Once you have lost your weight the condition will stop as you stabilize at your new weight.

For some tips on dieting I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is there any effective exercise or method to get rid of a double chin? I'm full faced and have always had this problem. I'm 26 years old.

DEAR READER — Staying lean all over helps prevent a double chin. Some people just have an extra large fat pad under the chin. It is often a family characteristic. There are more fat cells there in these people. Even after having reduced to a sensible level the fat pad stays.

There is no exercise that will change it and you can't accomplish anything with chin straps or other devices.

If it is really bothersome, you can have a plastic surgeon make a small incision underneath the chin, usually along the jaw bone, and remove the fat pad. When done well the scar is hidden under the jaw bone and is barely visible.

Polly's pointers
By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — My daughter has a white blouse (65 per cent polyester and 35 per cent cotton excluding ornamentation and elastic) and the collar and cuffs are a lace design. The blouse was accidentally bleached and the collar and cuffs turned yellow. I hope someone can tell us how to remedy this.

Also I would like to know how to get mustard stains off of a cotton tablecloth. — PATRICIA

DEAR PATRICIA — To remove the mustard stains work slightly warm glycerine into the spots, scrub, pretreat with detergent and then launder as usual. Should the stain remain, sponge on a mixture of one part alcohol and two parts water. This can be used on acetates and colors.

As for the blouse you may have a bit more of a problem. Launder frequently using a detergent that contains special brighteners. Work this into the dampened collar and cuffs by hand squeezing to thoroughly distribute it. Let soak this way for about 20 minutes. This should work but there is certainly no guarantee. — POLLY.

stationery, everything for them." Then the fabric people called, home furnishings, etc., and last year, she finally opened her own line of dresses which is no more.

"We had enormous production problems. I'd get to a store to show the clothes and they'd arrive with the zipper in the wrong place, that kind of thing."

"But it's not a personal defeat," she says. "I had nothing to do with the manufacturing end."

And she has her blouses now which are "wonderfully creative. A woman can wear them in so many different ways and put together a look she likes and feels her best self in, which is really what fashion is all about anyway."

She, personally, feels her best with a frame around her face, which is how she began wearing Pierrot collars 10 years ago. "I have a long neck and I like the way I look in Pierrot collars which I started doing with Adolpho when we worked together. I like light around the face and something up close to frame it, too. When I wear a V-neck dress, I wear a high choker or scarf, again to frame the face."

Her personal art, the collages and acrylic paintings she exhibits — "I hope to have another art show in a year" — call on resources which are different but not alien to what she needs when she designs.

"If I weren't a painter, I wouldn't be a designer. My painting really feeds me and, in fact, I started designing after I'd had a very successful show of acrylic paintings. I've always found it hard to start working again after a show; it's like being bereft, they're all gone. So I was trying to paint in my studio, doing a head of an Alsatian girl with a very elaborate headdress. Suddenly I related it to a paper lace doily I had there, and when I put the doily around the girl's neck as a collar, I got very excited. It was like a whole other dimension, and that's how I started doing collages."

A year later, after some of her collages appeared on the Tonight Show, she got a call from Hallmark. "They asked if I'd be interested in designing for them and I said yes. For two years I did puzzles, greeting cards, candles, blouses is her own inner vision of beauty, she says.

"That's what people who respond to my work respond to. Beauty is absolutely the thing."

It was from the first when, a four generation Vanderbilt, she was growing up in New York surrounded by the name and circumstances which have not been a handicap. "If you had asked me at certain points, I probably would have said yes, but not in the long run. I did have to be damned talented to succeed, though."

"I've been painting since I was five," she goes on. "Picasso said everyone is an artist until 12 and then it usually stops. With me, it didn't. I've always loved pure color and been inspired by it."

Seven hours a day, three days a week, she seals herself off in her studio and gives herself up to the painter's eye and the process she can't explain but finds exhilarating, absorbing, independent of herself and painful.

"I know my work is joyous," she says, "but it all comes out of terrible pain. In a sense, my work is an an-

"I'm always desperate for something to read. Now I'm reading a biography of Flo Ziegfeld and, of course, Liv Ullmann's book. She's extraordinary. I'm always attracted to vulnerability,

And now, from this vantage point, she doesn't at all regret dropping out of high school at 17. "I'm glad it happened that way. It was a personal situation at home which was difficult for me to cope with at the time and it seemed like the best thing. I used to regret dropping out, but not now. I've educated myself."

Solomon whips Stockton at Austin tournament

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Harold Solomon called his defeated opponent, Dick Stockton, "gutsy" and "classy" for playing a Tournament of Champions semi-final match while his wife was having labor pains.

Stockton's wife, Sue, seven months pregnant, began having the pains at 11 a.m. Sunday, only three hours before the scheduled match at nearby Lakeway. She gave birth to a 4-pound, 1-ounce girl Sunday night.

Tournament officials delayed the start two hours, and Stockton left the Austin hospital, 26 miles from Lakeway, only after a doctor assured him the baby would not be born before 9 p.m.

Solomon defeated him, 6-4, 6-4, to advance to the finals in New York City's Madison Square Garden Sept. 10. There he will play Ken Rosewall, who won his section of the split 16-man tournament in March.

First prize is $50,000, so Solomon assured himself at least of the $30,000 second prize-money, with a chance to double it. Stockton won $15,000.

"I thought it was a gutsy effort for him to come out and play," Solomon told reporters afterward. "He's a classy guy. Unlike some people we know, he met his obligation."

Three players, claiming injuries, withdrew before the second leg of the tournament got under way. A substitute for one of them also withdrew for that reason. And Jimmy Connors, after winning one match, said he aggravated the injury to his right thumb in a Friday practice session and departed.

Solomon said he thought Stockton's concentration faltered.

Stockton said, "I tried my best. I really concentrated pretty well—a couple of times my mind may have wandered, but not as bad as I expected."

With the possibility the baby might not come until Monday or later, Stockton decided he had better go ahead and play the match before he had to stay up all night.

They had not decided upon names for the baby, he said. "I guess we'll have to get busy and do that."

Solomon, 5-foot-6 and 130 pounds, won the match on an uncharacteristic shot. One of the world's best baseline players, who hates to rush the net, Solomon bounded to the net on a short stroke-by Stockton at deuce.

Solomon, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., is a former Southwest Conference champion from Rice. He won the title in 1971.

Stockton, of Dallas, broke Solomon's serve only one time. He fell behind four games to love in the second set, held his serve and then broke Solomon's.

Solomon broke Stockton's serve three times.

Stockton's soft touch around the net deserted him time after time.

Stockton also lost several close line calls, and the crowd, perhaps rooting for Stockton, whistled to show its displeasure.

Board hires trainer and basketball coach

The school board hired John Randles as PHS assistant basketball coach and Dennis McMeekin as trainer at the board meeting this morning.

Randles, presently working for Amaco Corp. in Okeene, Okla., is a former head basketball coach at high schools in Hardesty and Turpin, Okla., where he compiled a 111-30 record. The 29-year-old Randles was recommended to Athletic Director Ed Lehnick by incoming Head Basketball Coach Gary Abercrombie.

McMeekin, 25, recently received a masters degree in education from the University of Missouri at Marysville. The Beatrice, Neb. native has an undergraduate degree from the University of Nebraska. He is a certified athletic trainer.

Both Randles and McMeekin will begin duties on August 15.

Cowboy camp opens today

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Physical examinations and agility drills were on the agenda here today for 73 players, including Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett, as the Dallas Cowboys opened their pre-season training camp.

Dorsett, the University of Pittsburgh running back who was the second player chosen in this year's draft, was among 64 draft choices and rookie free agents who checked into camp Sunday.

Nine young veterans also reported to camp early.

Ellis paces Rangers

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas Ranger fans would have given a kingdom for a clutch hit in countless crucial situations this season and finally the team's bats are responding.

The Rangers' disappointing first half was built on a failure to connect with runners on base, but five consecutive victories at home have shown a reversal of this trend.

Sunday night's eight-hit performance by the Rangers was modest, but it netted enough runs for a 4-2 victory over the California Angels. The fifth straight triumph is Texas' longest victory streak of the season.

John Ellis and Mike Hargrove supplied clutch hits that scored three of the runs, while Berty Blyleven and two relievers held the Angels at bay.

Ellis' double in the fifth inning knocked in Texas' last two runs and was the eventual winning margin. His opposite-field line drive hit the rightfield chalk mark.

"I was going to right field because of the situation," the Rangers' substitute catcher said. "Ken Brett had been pitching me outside, and the umpire was giving him the outside pitch. He struck me out on a 3-2 pitch outside the last time up, so I decided I would give him anything inside and go to right with the outside pitch. I guess I was lucky it hit fair."

The winning touch

Jim Fatheree slams home a winner to enable he and partner Eugene Laycock to win the mens championship doubles match, 5-7, 6-3, 7-6, over the team of Barry Kain - Bob Adcock at the high school courts yesterday. Dot Stowers - Lynn Robinson defeated Jeannete Gikas - Dixie Douglass, 6-4, 6-3, for the women's crown. Consolation winners were Curt Krause - Warren Fatheree over Lee Waters - Fred Venel, 6-4, 6-0, and Cheryl Kessel - Susan Lane over Pam Turek - Sharon Brock, 6-0, 7-5.

Morley wins Quad Cities

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — Mike Morley was the most promising young golfer in Minot, N.D. 10 years ago. He won the North Dakota Amateur and was a college All-American.

Then he joined the pro tour in 1970 and got his comeuppance. He made a career of finishing second—including the Greater Milwaukee Open last week.

Now he's looking forward to the Masters, Tournament of Champions and maybe the World Series of Golf, all because of a come-from-behind victory Sunday in the $125,000 Quad Cities Open golf tournament.

"This is definitely the highlight of my golfing career," said Morley. "I kind of got to thinking I'd never win."

Morley started out unrespectably over the 6,620-yard, par-71 Oakwood Country Club course. He was at 137 after 36 holes, only four strokes better than the one-under-par cutoff. But he improved as the week wore on.

"I'm a fairly streaky player," he said. "When I get it going, I keep it going."

Par on the short Oakwood course took a beating all week. Morley's opening 68, three under par, was good only for an eight-way tie for 25th place. His second-round 69 moved him up slightly to a nine-way tie for 21st. But a 64 Saturday made him a contender, tied for fourth with two other players.

A 66 Sunday, keyed by four straight birdies on the back nine, gave him his first championship and $25,000.

Bradley takes LPGA tourney

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Pat Bradley said she didn't relax until she was safely on the 18th green and knew she had a two-stroke edge on JoAnne Carner.

Then the 26-year-old from Westford, Mass., two-putted for par and walked off with an $11,000 check for her victory Sunday in the $75,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament here.

She also kept her cool at the 17th where she birdied the par-five, 450-yarder while Mrs. Carner, playing ahead of her, was bogeying the 18th.

Miss Bradley turned in a three-under-par 70 for a 54-hole total of 213, six below par. Mrs. Carner, with a finishing 71, had a 215 to share second place with Carol Mann, 73, and Kathy Whitworth, 70.

Judy Rankin, the LPGA's top money-winner, was next with 72-216, followed by Jane Blalock, 74, Mary Bea Porter, 73, and Donna Caponi Young, 76, each with a 218 total. Sally Little's 74 gave her an even par 219.

On Friday, Miss Bradley discarded her Arnold Palmer model putter for a heavier Bull's Eye type and shot a 68 to trail the co-leaders after the second round, Miss Mann, JoAnn Washam and Mrs. Young.

Gold Sox routed

By The Associated Press

El Paso's Steve Strouther, Jay Peters and Pat Kelly rifled home runs Sunday night as the streaking Diablos routed Amarillo 12-4 for their seventh Texas League victory in their last eight games.

In other Texas League action, Tulsa edged Arkansas 10-9 to slice the Travelers' second half lead in the East Division to 1 1/2 games, and San Antonio stopped Midland 6-3. Jackson at Shreveport was postponed by rain.

The victory by the Diablos preserved their 2 1/2 game lead over San Antonio in the West Division. El Paso starter Bob Ferris, 7-3, got the decision and Greg Wilkes, 4-3, was the loser.

Amarillo manager Dave Campbell, 33, who had not played in three years, made an eighth-inning relief pitching appearance for the embattled Gold Sox, giving up only Kelly's homer. He had also played two innings at third base in Saturday night's El Paso-Amarillo game.

Tony Castillo led Amarillo with a solo homer in the fourth inning.

Tulsa's Dan Duran drilled a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth to win the contest for the Drillers. Mike Arrington, 6-3, took the win for Arkansas.

Energy plan to occupy Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rigorous examination of President Carter's energy plan will occupy much of Congress' time this week, but at the top of today's Senate agenda is a vote on giving Congress the final say in adding the neutron bomb to the nation's nuclear arsenal.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., had earlier failed in an attempt to persuade the Senate to ban outright any deployment of the neutron bomb. A compromise he is sponsoring would permit either the House or Senate to veto a decision by Carter to go ahead with the weapon.

A proposal requiring both houses to veto the bomb was given a better chance of approval, however.

The neutron bomb, which relies on controlled radiation to kill enemy soldiers rather than the huge explosive power of other nuclear weapons, has been criticized as an addition to the arms race.

Proponents say it provides a needed weapon for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, whose European forces are outnumbered by Soviet and Eastern European forces.

As it returns from its 10-day Independence Day break, Congress has less than a month to work on a heavy legislative load before leaving town for the traditional August recess.

The Senate is due to vote this week on Carter's proposal to halt a controversial reactor project that would produce more plutonium than it consumes.

The President said earlier this year he wants to end U.S. development of such nuclear breeder reactors, such as the one planned for the Clinch River nuclear power plant, now under construction in Tennessee.

Carter said such facilities would produce more plutonium than it consumes.

Environmentalists say the plants are vulnerable to nuclear accidents.

Supporters of the reactor say Japan, the Soviet Union and western European nations are proceeding with their own programs whether or not the United States cancels the Tennessee plant and a plutonium recycling facility at Barnwell, S.C.

Carter's ally in the Senate debate will be Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who plans an amendment to an Energy Research and Development Administration appropriations bill to allot $33 million to phase out the Clinch River plant.

Other senators will urge spending the full $150 million for further construction.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, a supporter of eventual plutonium development, is expected to urge a compromise $75 million authorization with a year's construction delay to give Carter time to dissuade other countries from proceeding with their plans.

While the full House has few issues of broad public interest scheduled this week, its committees will be busy.

There are House-Senate committee meetings scheduled on the President's proposed Energy Department, with major differences to be ironed out between the two versions over how much control the White House will have in setting natural gas prices.

Other conference committees are to attack differences in legislation setting auto exhaust standards.

A House Commerce subcommittee has before it a proposal for an 18-month moratorium on the Food and Drug Administration's plan to ban saccharin, the artificial sweetener which tests have linked to cancer in rats and humans.

Three congressional committees will spend most of the week working on the Carter energy package. A critical test will come in the House Commerce Committee when it votes for a second time on whether to deregulate natural gas or to agree to a $1.75 ceiling for each thousand cubic feet of gas, as proposed in the administration energy plan.

At the same time, the House Ad Hoc Energy Committee will begin Wednesday to draw together the work of the established House panels, making recommendations to the full House.

The House committee is considered generally friendly to Carter, who may face a tougher test in the Senate Energy Committee, whose members begin their own first votes on the energy plan this week.

Hearings on gifts from Koreans set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee's five-month-old investigation into alleged South Korean influence-buying on Capitol Hill is tentatively planning to hold public hearings in September.

One congressional source, noting plans for Congress to adjourn in October, said he doubts there will be substantial new data developed and made public in the short time before the House quits for the year.

The panel is seeking to determine if South Korean agents dispensed cash and gifts to buy support in Congress for South Korean programs.

Committee chairman Rep. John J. Flynn Jr., D-Ga., says the slow and cautious pace of the committee staff is warranted.

To conduct public hearings prematurely would result in unwarranted injury to reputations of individuals whose names have been mentioned in allegations, he said.

A lawyer familiar with the work of the committee says he believes the special staff hired to probe the allegations has hit a stone wall. "I think they are floundering," he said.

In a status report June 30, Flynn said, "As the committee noted in its first report, much of the investigative work remains to be done."

Meanwhile, there are impatient members of Congress who believe that until the House provides a full airing of the matter, all its members will be suspect.

The Senate has passed a bill creating a mechanism for ap-

Prof believes Nazi papers could solve energy problem

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A chemistry professor planned to tell the Interstate Oil Compact Commission (IOCC) conference today about Nazi documents which he feels may hold a partial answer to U.S. energy problems.

The 42-year-old oil and natural gas conservation organization is composed of 36 states that produce, or have the potential of producing, oil and natural gas.

Dr. Richard Wainerdi, a Texas A&M University chemical engineering professor, planned to discuss the Nazi documents, which include ways scientists used synthetic fuels to keep factories open during World War II when petroleum products were in short supply in Germany.

For years Wainerdi and a 10-member team have been gathering Nazi documents from around the world in hopes of discovering major new energy processes and sources.

The professor and his team have uncovered a 6,000-page Nazi energy plan far more elaborate than President Carter's, IOCC officials claim.

During the three-day meeting, the IOCC members are expected to suggest alternatives to President Carter's national energy program, which the IOCC has criticized.

Since 1954, when interstate gas prices became federally regulated, the IOCC has advocated a free-market pricing of natural gas—a stance currently contrary to Carter's.

Among those slated to discuss Carter's energy plan is C.H. Keplinger of Tulsa, Okla., board chairman of an oil and gas consulting firm.

D.B. Hurd, petroleum supervisor for the Canadian Ministry of Natural Resources, will tell of problems his nation had in natural gas exploration in Lake Erie.

Canada has drilled 900 wells in Lake Erie in search of natural gas and about 300 of them now account for an annual production of 6 billion cubic feet.

The United States has not drilled any wells in the lake, with three of the lake's bordering states, New York, Ohio, and Michigan, prohibiting drilling. Pennsylvania, the other bordering state, recently lifted its ban on exploration.

Member states are Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, West Virginia, and Wyoming.

Associate members are Georgia, Idaho, North Carolina, Oregon, South Carolina and Washington.

Economic slowdown? no, says Bert Lance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Is the nation's economy headed for another major slowdown in the second half of 1977, similar to what happened last year? Budget Director Bert Lance doesn't think so, but he admits there are similarities.

"It is a coincidence. No doubt about it," Lance said in an interview.

Among the coincidences: —Unemployment rose suddenly in June of both years after months of decline. The jobless rate was 7.1 per cent in June of this year, up from 6.9 per cent in May. In June 1976, it rose to 7.6 per cent, from May's 7.3 per cent.

—The economy grew much more rapidly in the first half of 1977 than was expected. The same thing happened in 1976.

—Retail sales slowed in the second quarter of this year, just as they did in 1976.

—The federal government is underspending its budget by as much as $10 billion so far this year. Government underspending of about the same amount last year was blamed by many economists as a major cause of the sharp slowdown in economic activity after mid-year.

Prof believes Nazi papers could solve energy problem

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A chemistry professor planned to tell the Interstate Oil Compact Commission (IOCC) conference today about Nazi documents which he feels may hold a partial answer to U.S. energy problems.

The 42-year-old oil and natural gas conservation organization is composed of 36 states that produce, or have the potential of producing, oil and natural gas.

Dr. Richard Wainerdi, a Texas A&M University chemical engineering professor, planned to discuss the Nazi documents, which include ways scientists used synthetic fuels to keep factories open during World War II when petroleum products were in short supply in Germany.

For years Wainerdi and a 10-member team have been gathering Nazi documents from around the world in hopes of discovering major new energy processes and sources.

The professor and his team have uncovered a 6,000-page Nazi energy plan far more elaborate than President Carter's, IOCC officials claim.

'Some colleges must go'

POINT CLEAR, Ala. (AP) — Texas' commissioner of higher education said today state legislatures may be forced to kill off some colleges for the public good.

Some graduates already "can't find jobs, and the pipelines are full of more of the same coming out," Dr. Kenneth Ashworth told the 14-state Southern Regional Education Board.

"Students are becoming scarce," Ashworth said, which has led to the lowering of "admissions standards to find new clientele. Then they have to inflate grades and drop performance standards to keep the students in school."

"New entrepreneurial charlatans have found a market for selling degrees under the guise of innovation. If students can't be enticed to the campuses, schools take the courses to them. Eureka! the portable university."

Research shows, he said, that there will be 15 per cent fewer students in science and engineering in 1985 than in 1970, and students in the physical sciences will drop by 55 per cent.

If southern lawmakers are hesitant to resort to "mercy killings" of colleges, Ashworth said, "at least we will see the tubes and plugs pulled as we discontinue the 'heroics' to keep the hopelessly ill alive."

"Higher education ought to be helping other institutions adjust to no growth and the changes required," he said, "but many colleges seem incapable of helping themselves."
