

Two can't judge as cheaply as one County's district court costs climb

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Keeping Gray County residents supplied with justice at the district court level is going to cost much more in 1977 than it did in 1976.

Last year there was but one court serving the five counties in the 31st District. Gray was the most populous of them and paid 65 per cent of the costs involved. The Gray County bill for 1976 came to $21,810.00, according to records in the county auditor's office.

The 223rd District Court, created earlier this year by the state legislature, is expected to cost Gray County, which it serves exclusively, more than $40,000.

The new court did not replace the old in Gray County. Judge Grainger McIlhany of the 31st retains his jurisdiction as before. And Gray County retains its 31st district financial obligations

District court costs paid by the county do not include the judges' salaries which are paid by the state.

And Judge McIlhany said that the more than $2,000 per month shown as 31st District expenses in county records is misleading. He said that his secretary works in the district clerk's office and eliminates the necessity of another employee there.

In speaking of the expenses of the 31st to Gray County residents Judge McIlhany said, "In real cost it's costing them about $300 a month."

County records show the following monthly expenses of the 31st District Court:

—District judge — $100 for serving on the juvenile board, $7 for retirement, $19.52 for health insurance.
—Secretary — $669.5 salary, $46.87 retirement, $39.17 social security, $4.36 life insurance.

—Court reporter — $786.50 salary, $55.06 retirement, $46.01 social security, $19.52 health insurance.

The monthly breakdown of Judge Don Cain's 223rd District Court expenses includes:

—District judge — $100 for serving on the juvenile board, $7 retirement, $19.52 health insurance, $130.80 life insurance.

—Secretary — $669.5 salary, $46.87 retirement, $39.17 social security, $19.52 health insurance, $4.36 life insurance.

—Court reporter — $1,211.16 salary, $84.78 retirement, $70.85 social security, $19.52 health insurance.

—Assistant district attorney — $800 salary, $56 retirement, $46.80 social security, $19.52 health insurance, $4.36 life insurance.

The district attorney is paid by the state as is the new criminal investigator who was scheduled to begin work today.

The DA's secretary, however, is paid by Gray County. Monthly expenses for that office include $618.93 for salary, $36.21 social security, $43.33 retirement, $19.52 health insurance, $4.36 life insurance.

Since the district attorney serves both districts, the cost of his secretary is not included in either of the individual breakdowns of district expenses.

Other expenses incurred by the 223rd District Court this year, to be paid by the county, include a new IBM typewriter, $747, and costs for forms, telephone service and assorted office items.

Judge Cain said that the furniture in his county courthouse office is his personal property.

Asked why the county needs to be served by two district courts, Judge Cain said he would prefer it if The News contacted Judge McIlhany for an answer.

Judge McIlhany explained that a district court for "about 25,000 people is standard over the state. This district (31st) had grown to about twice the size of the standard."

He said he "wouldn't have resisted" a legislative plan that would have taken Gray County out of the 31st District to be served exclusively by the 223rd.

He also said that before the creation of the 223rd he "wasn't having any particular docket problem" in the 31st. "I've worked at my docket harder than most judges," he added, and said "other judges have been taking summer vacations and I haven't for about 11 years."

Commenting on the current two-court arrangement in Gray County, Judge McIlhany said, "Where two people are working the court's more available."

He said that he continues to "work every day just like I did before," and said that he is "grateful" that he no longer hears Gray County's domestic cases. Those go before Judge Cain.

While Judge Cain was serving as Gray County judge, before he was appointed to the bench of the new district court, he had expressed an intention to lower the county tax rate from $1.25 to $1.20 when budget time came.

On Wednesday, however, the Gray County Commissioners Court, under the leadership of Judge Don Hinton, rejected the proposal to lower the tax rate.

Among reasons given for keeping the current rate was that of additional court costs.

Judge Yarbrough quits

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough's lawyer said Yarbrough would submit his resignation to the governor today.

The announcement followed the refusal of the House and Senate to postpone a removal hearing for at least 30 days.

The House vote was 82-62 against, and the Senate vote was 14-13 for, but under the joint rules a motion must be passed by both houses.

The joint hearing continued. Each house met as a committee of the whole to consider a resolution that would compel the governor to unseat Yarbrough.

Carr said Yarbrough could no longer pay his minimum expenses, including his attorney fees.

"I have been told by my friends, including members of the legislature that my removal is assured," Yarbrough said in a statement read by Carr.

The 36-year-old justice said he "accepted this as a fact of life, but I do not accept it as fair or equitable."

Yarbrough said he had come to the conclusion not to subject his family or his friends to a continuation of the fight.

"Therefore, I shall today deliver to the governor my resignation as associate justice of the Supreme Court of Texas," he said.

The committees of the whole voted to recess until 1:30 p.m., apparently to wait and see if Yarbrough indeed filed the resignation.

The resolution alleges Yarbrough committed perjury, forgery and solicitation to murder.

Yarbrough was invited to attend and make whatever presentation in his defense he chose to make.

More than three hours of secretly recorded taped conversations that allegedly prove the charges were available to be played for the legislators.

U. S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Tom Gee, sitting as a federal district judge, refused Thursday to delay the proceeding even though Yarbrough's lawyer argued they got their earliest notice of it on July 6.

Gee said the proceeding already is under way and it will be allowed to continue. He cited several cases to support his decision.

Waggoner Carr, Yarbrough's attorney, had argued that the legislature is not giving Yarbrough fair play, much less constitutional treatment.

Carr said two witnesses that he must have are "in hiding."

A Travis County grand jury has indicted Yarbrough on charges of perjury and forgery.

House passes new school funds

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A school finance bill spending $945.4 million in new state funds over the next two years won final House passage today.

Senators faced a decision whether to accept the House bill, which is a substitute for the considerably different measure they passed Tuesday, or send it to a conference committee.

The final House vote was 119-24 for the bill and took place in a House chamber that had been rearranged for the removal proceedings against Justice Don Yarbrough of the Texas Supreme Court.

Sen. Oscar Maury, D-Dallas, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said he would vote against accepting the House bill but acknowledged "there is sentiment by some of the members to concur."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe's chief lobbyist,

Howard Richards, was working to persuade senators to accept the House version of the school finance bill — a decision that could come this afternoon.

Senate concurrence would dispose of the sole issue now before the special session, other than the Yarbrough case, unless Briscoe opens it to other subjects.

House members planned to meet at 8 a.m. and the Senate scheduled an 8:30 a.m. session to act on the bill before starting removal proceedings against Justice Don Yarbrough of the Texas Supreme Court.

The House tentatively approved the bill, 120-22, Thursday night after nearly 12 hours of debate.

Pushed hard by Speaker Bill Clayton, the bill weathered all attempts to change its major features.

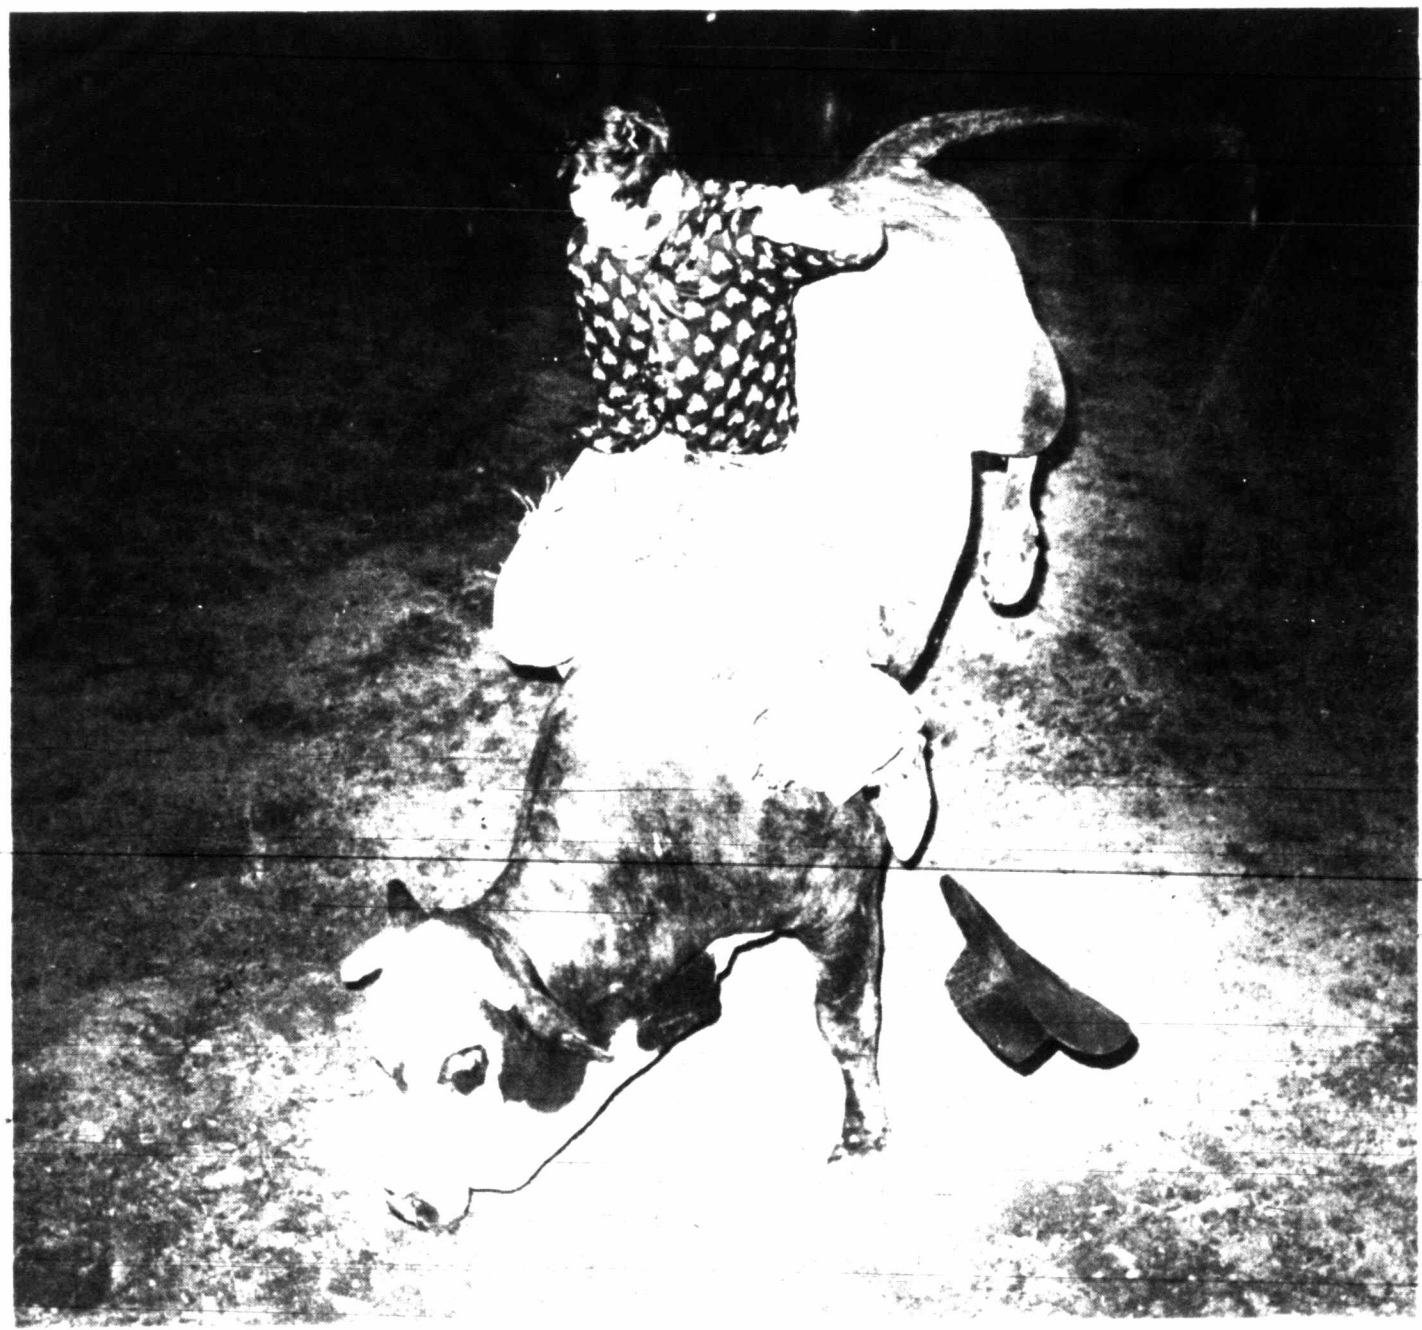

Representatives tabled 95-46 a substitute by Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, that would have provided $318 million to help equalize spending between rich and poor districts. Clayton's bill provides only $142 million, while the Senate bill would spend $210 million on equalization.

It is not right that we should continue to fund richer districts at a higher rate than poor ones," Coleman said. He warned that inequities would breed court suits challenging the Texas school finance system.

Clayton's bill is more generous in reducing local costs — or local fund assignments (LFA) — for the Foundation School Program. It spends $341 million toward that end, compared with Coleman's $168 million and the Senate's $233 million.

The speaker's forces, in league with local school superintendents, whipped back an attempt to force the districts to return about $60 million of the LFA cuts directly to taxpayers.

Bulls take rodeo lead

Billy Schmidt of Greeley, Colo., was one of eight cowboys who were bucked off by rank Beutler and Son bulls at the Top o' Texas Rodeo Thursday night. After two performances of professional rodeo here, the score stands at cowboys, 2, and bulls, 15. For results of Thursday's performance, see Page 13.

Rodeoers, families live on the road

To C.R. Boucher, rodeo is more than a contest. It's a livelihood.

(Pampa News photo by Ron Ennis)

By JEANNE GRIMES
Pampa News Staff

C.R. Marilyn and Chris Boucher rodeo on the family plan.

It helps make the logistics of being on the road a little easier to live with.

"They've tried to turn rodeos competized like everything else," Boucher said. "So when my wife (Marilyn) and I both enter a rodeo we can be up at the same times."

The Fairfax, Okla., family's rodeo season starts near the first of each year with the early rodeos, Boucher said. But, he added, the pressures of travel are not as great on his family as on others.

"We don't try to make two or three rodeos a week like some do," Boucher said. "Boucher, a rodeo veteran with 27 years on the pro circuit, has worked for Beutler and Son, rodeo stock contractors from Elk City, Okla., since 1959. He was world champion steer wrestler in 1964."

He works as a pickup man in the arena during riding contests and he competes in steer wrestling. Mrs. Boucher and Chris compete in barrel racing.

Chris, who will be 13 next week, has been competing since she was six years old. She has a younger sister, J, who may follow in her footsteps.

Mrs. Boucher said she rode when she was younger, before her parents moved to town and she lost interest in horses.

When she married Boucher, that interest was rekindled.

"I guess once I started really going on the road, I got interested in competing," she said.

Mrs. Boucher trains the barrel horses she and her daughter ride and she competes in steer undecorating at all-girl rodeos when she has the time. Steer undecorating is similar to steer wrestling, but the rider must remove a ribbon from the steer's back instead of wrestling it to the ground.

Boucher hazes for his wife and she hazes for him at jackpot steer wrestling contests. The Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association rules prohibit women from hazing at PRCA-sanctioned rodeos.

"I really like it (rodeoing)," Mrs. Boucher said. "There's not really anything else I want to do. If there was, I guess I'd do it."

The family members work as a team and help one another get ready to compete.

"If I don't have time to get on my horse and work him before a contest, Chris does it for me," Mrs. Boucher said. Much of her time, she added, is devoted to seeing to the needs of others in the family.

"I've got to think of my kids before I can think of running barrels," she said.

The Bouchers, like other rodeo families, live in a camper when they're on the road. In addition to obvious travel expenses like gasoline, the horses they haul add to the costs of living away from home.

The expenses of being on the road are bad for anyone to contend with, Boucher said, but some rodeo cowboys have it easier than others.

"The riding eventers don't have the expenses the timed eventers do," he said. "Expenses are bad, especially if you don't win."

Sonny Victor, calf roper from Valliant, Okla., estimated his expenses average $100-125 at every rodeo he enters.

Victor, like Boucher, doesn't depend strictly on rodeo winnings to support his family. He works for the state and his wife teaches school.

In the past, Victor said, he has kept his rodeoing down to "about 40" rodeos a year. But he's on a hot streak now and he wants to qualify for the National Finals Rodeo and other top invitational ropings. So this year, he's trying to compete in 80-85 rodeos and at $125 per rodeo, that puts his expenses in the $10,000-plus range.

During April, May and June, Victor rodeos from his home, but starting the first of July he and his family hit the road for a month or more.

Since the first week of June, Victor estimated he has won "a little over $5,000." This is, he said, the best streak he's been on in the past three years.

"I had a young horse last year and it just about starved me to death," Victor said.

Now he's riding a new horse — one "the good Lord messed around and found for me" — and everything has changed.

"I got a horse now that'll let me win on a good one and I've been drawing good calves that didn't kick," Victor said.

"When you're winning, you don't feel the pressure and when you're needing to win, that's when the pressure will bother you," he said. "But when you remove the pressure, it can work against you."

Victor, who turned in the second fastest time in calf roping at the Top o' Texas Rodeo Thursday, said competition in roping is getting so tough "it's the little bit things that make you win or not win."

And, he said, he's going to run his good streak for everything he can get out of it. "It's a chickens one week and feathers the next," he said.

Computing the future

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Co-Editor

I am easily amazed. I suppose, when it comes to modern technology it seems somewhat miraculous to me how radio, television, the telephone work. And now for something like ten bucks, a person can buy a calculator about the size of a package of cigarettes. It simply boggles my imagination. If such commonplace things boggle, imagine what shape I'm in after reading about how a home computer unit now is available for those who are willing to pay in the neighborhood of $3,000 for one. And, like the pocket calculator and television, prices for home computers are expected to drop as American know-how improves and develops and competes.

article in the July issue of Popular Mechanics magazine. The technology for space conflicts between satellites exists now and the capability is just around the corner, according to PM's military writer, Edward Hymoff.

Here's one more: Scientists have developed a handy little neutron bomb that neatly kills everyone around by use of deadly rays without damaging buildings and other non-organic items of value.

So what does it all mean? What if all these and the countless other modern-day mind boggling items are tossed into a blender and mixed together?

Maybe sometime a few years from now your home computer unit will get a military draft notice in the mail and will be required to channel all its problem-solving energies into coming up with defense and attack plans for a war carried on between satellites out in space.

Maybe scientists will follow the neutron bomb with a bomb that does not destroy or kill anything or anyone, but the governments of countries which profit by being enemies of one another can work out a point system whereby the one that delivers the most bombs to the most strategic spots is the winner.

Then all of us making up the masses can be notified over television which government won. The winner, of course, gets all our income taxes for the year to spend in support of its various agencies, bureaus, plans and programs—including aid to the defeated government so they can get ready for the next war.

Sounds pretty far-fetched, but remember it is coming out of a bogged mind that remembers when it didn't believe man could ever walk on the moon.

The future's going to be interesting, whatever else may be said of it, and I hope that we get to stay around to observe our allotted portion of it.

The 'doomsday men'

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
Concern about the environment is legitimate. Unfortunately, this concern can pass the legitimate stage and become hysterical in character.

We see this hysteria manifested in the fevered campaigns against the construction of nuclear power plants, the building of oil refineries, and the opening of new surface coal mines—all essential for a modern society that requires large amounts of energy.

Out of the hysteria, anti-technology campaigns have emerged what Paul Johnson, the British writer, describes as a new breed of "Doomsday Men." In a recent essay in the London "Daily Telegraph," Mr. Johnson says that the "middle class pseudo-intellectuals" are subject to intense emotion on ecological issues. He points out that the decline of traditional beliefs "has left a yawning emotional gap in the lives of the Western-educated bourgeoisie."

For some, Mr. Johnson adds, the gap has been filled by the varieties of Marxism, a crude secular religion. "Such people," Mr. Johnson observes, "infest our drab new universities, as professors, as lecturers and such like. But for others, for whom radical politics are distasteful, the new religion is ecology. They really believe the world is about to be destroyed by industrial progress."

Mr. Johnson's words are very timely in view of the current effort by the anti-nuclear movement to prevent the construction of nuclear reactors. This spring, the state of New Hampshire was confronted with mass civil disobedience by a protest group that styled itself the "Clamshell Alliance." Similar lawless demonstrations are likely to take place at other nuclear power plant sites around the country. An announcement of a nuclear power plant construction project invariably results in what Mr. Johnson refers to as a rush of blood to ecological heads.

We see in the anti-nuclear campaign, for example, a new type of flat earth movement—an element that responds with shocked fury to a scientific advance. The types who, in Mr. Johnson's words, want everyone to live off marinated seaweed, are bigots on the subject of technological progress. He rightly says that the "ecological lobby, in its paranoia, is likely to do great, possibly incalculable harm, by restricting healthy economic growth."

The scientists who developed nuclear power systems have a very real and healthy respect for genuine ecological considerations. They are determined that nuclear power installations be as safe as human ingenuity can make them. But they recognize the danger in excessive alarm, the menace in hysteria that rejects the test of reason. They recognize that the hysterical ecological elements that oppose the operation of the Concorde supersonic jet, for example, on the basis of flimsy allegations that travelers on the aircraft will be exposed to unacceptable levels of cosmic radiation.

The modern world can't afford such alarmists, or those who organize sit-ins at nuclear power plant sites. Indeed, a healthy, progressive society can't afford "Doomsday Men."

Inside Washington

Speaking of human rights...

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
President Carter's fervent championing of human rights appears to be somewhat myopic.

While insistently declaiming against transgressors of human rights, the President is curiously saying nothing about one of the most notorious of all right under his nose.

This is the United Nations—now maliciously, vindictively and sordidly ruled by the Soviet-Arab-African bloc.

Despite persistent flagrant violation of human rights, the viciously high-handed clique, many of whose members are in arrears in UN payments, has escaped any condemnation by the President. In fact, any comment by him.

Striking illustration of this remarkable myopia is the President's silence about the latest malevolent transgression perpetrated by the bloc.

At the behest of the Organization of African Unity, the bloc staged a so-called commemorative meeting on the anniversary of the shooting of student rioters in South Africa. The official invitations to this affair were sent by the OAU to all UN members—with one glaring exception.

Israel was deliberately and pointedly excluded—with the active connivance of the bloc.

South Africa also was omitted but this was not exceptional. It was the target of this racially prompted denunciatory session and could hardly be expected to be asked to attend.

But the gross snubbing of Israel was outright spite and bias.

As one outraged European ambassador exclaimed, "This is another infamous instance of the racist Arab states autocratically imposing their will on the United Nations. If ever there was a debasement of human rights, this is it."

Silent Partners
UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, who turned up as a speaker at the unusual affair, later unctuously claimed he knew nothing about Israel's exclusion.

But he carefully did not mention it.

Also strikingly silent was Ambassador Andrew Young. He has yet to utter a word about it, and it's a safe bet he won't—notwithstanding his incessant rhetoric about human rights.

James Leonard, U.S. delegate, pointedly slighted the meeting.

"Afterwards," he told bloc members Africans must realize that if they want U.S. aid in combating racism, they will have to conduct themselves as worthy of such support.

A number of the 48 member countries of the Organization of African Unity are in arrears in their UN payments. Also many are in arrears in debts to the U.S.

Costly Affliction
At the very time this crass infamy was transpiring in the UN Congress was concluding the enactment of a $462 million budget for the UN.

This approximate one-half billion dollar outlay was part of the $1.6 billion foreign aid program—which despite all the White House and congressional rhetoric about economizing and budget balancing is some $300 million more than appropriated last year.

Further, only the day before, Congress completed passage of a $5.2 billion authorization bill for the World Bank and five related giveaway agencies.

Sen. Harry Byrd, Ind.-Va., in a futile effort to cut UN and foreign aid spending, caustically noted that in a matter of a few days the Senate had voted a total of more than $10 billion in foreign aid of various kinds.

"In these times of inflation and deficit financing," said the veteran legislator, "Congress must get its financial house in order. Foreign aid should be reduced, not increased. How many members of Congress justify voting to take more and more out of the pockets of working people to increase foreign aid programs at a time when we already have 10 to 11 percent inflation?"

spending by Congress that is the major cause of inflation. These smashing deficits are what is behind the steady upward spiraling of inflation."

Scornfully, Byrd derided the loudly professed accomplishments of the immense foreign aid programs.

"We are told by advocates of this spending," the Virginian declared, "that it feeds starving children and helps to better the lives of millions of people. Can any member of Congress assure taxpayers that the dollars they work so hard for have reduced appreciably the level of poverty in the third world?"

"Can any member of Congress assure taxpayers that their dollars have not been wasted, not mismanaged, that they are not lying in a Swiss bank account of some dishonest politician? I doubt very much whether any member of Congress can give such assurances."

Byrd's challenge went unanswered. (All Rights Reserved)

If it Fitz

Rood opts for integrity

By JIM FITZGERALD
The tie is broken. Dave Rood wins. He is my newest hero because he told his boss to go jump in a vat of yellow ink.

Until recently Rood was editor of the Escanaba Daily Press. Then he was ordered to publish an article claiming President Carter is grooming his wife to become vice-president of the United States.

Rood was also ordered to print a story which claimed Carter thinks it is fine for his male staffers to sex around with lots of women.

Last Wednesday Rood's newspaper reported he had "left his post."

"Geez, it sounded like I'd gone AWOL," Rood told me Monday. "I didn't quit. They wanted me to quit but I refused to do it. I was fired."

He was fired because he refused to publish the two cruddy articles about Jimmy Carter. Rood said the articles were "full of half-truths, insinuations and every other innuendo you can think of... I wouldn't run a goddamned word of it."

The Escanaba newspaper is owned by Panax Corp., which also owns six other dailies and 40 weeklies scattered through several states. Panax President is John McGoff of Williamston, Mich. He's the guy who says he offered $25 million for the Washington Star in 1975 but says he was turned down.

The two Carter articles were written by George Bernard, chief of the Panax bureau in New York. They were distributed by all Panax newspapers along with a front-office memo labeling them "explosive" and urging that they be run on the front page.

Both stories were published in the Macomb Daily, the largest Panax newspaper in Michigan. The first story appeared June 9 and the first paragraph said:

"President James Earl Carter condones promiscuity—affairs with other women—for the male staffers who work for him."

Bernard based this claim on a "leak" from Peter Bourne, who, according to Bernard, is a "psychiatrist who is on the administration's payroll to make Jimmy Carter look good."

The second story, which appeared June 10, quoted a New York psychologist as saying Carter is giving his wife "inordinate power" and "has in mind a hidden objective."

The psychologist, William Van Precht, was also quoted as saying "... My careful analysis says that Jimmy Carter is grooming wife Rosalynn for the vice-presidency in 1984. And... if Walter Mondale's health does not hold out through the ominous year of 'Big Brother,' Mr. Carter will push his bride to become the President of the United States."

Happily, Rood was not the only Panax editor to recognize crap when he smelled it. Bob Skuggen, editor of the Marquette Mining Journal, also balked. When he was ordered to print the stuff or else, he resigned. Subsequently, three other Mining Journal employees also quit in support of Skuggen. But Rood insisted upon being fired—in writing.

"I objected to the hypocrisy of resigning," Rood explained. "That is the way they always handle it when someone is canned. They announce they have accepted his resignation with deep regret, which hushes the whole thing up and no one ever knows why the person was fired. That's a lot of bullpup and I wasn't having any."

A lot of people now know why Rood was fired. A detailed account of his hassle with Panax was published in Sunday's New York Times. For Rood and Skuggen to gain exposure in the nation's most sophisticated newspaper must have really bugged Frank Shephard, Panax executive vice-president, who apparently things Rood and Skuggen are a couple of Hicks.

Shephard said the whole flap was a result of the two ex-editors' "provincial attitudes from the Upper Peninsula."

Dave Rood is 51 years old. He has a wife and two children, one just beginning college. Believe me, he has no independent income. And now he has no job. To him, integrity is more important than all other considerations. All newsmen should be so provincial.

Rood did I have been exchanging insults for many years. In the opening paragraph I said a tie had been broken. A while back Rood and I tied for first place in a statewide writing contest. I always claimed the best man, meaning me, had been gyped.

Now I know who is really the best man.

President still plans withdrawal in Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has no plans to re-evaluate the planned withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea despite the downing of a U.S. Army helicopter by North Koreans in the first potential military crisis of his administration.

The North Koreans have been relatively restrained in their references to the incident, a mood which has not escaped the White House.

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, noted Thursday evening that "both they and we have remained reasonably calm in our statements compared with past situations."

He said that by Thursday afternoon, the situation room at the White House, "which the night before was bustling with activity with the secretary of defense, the secretary of state, the vice president and the national security adviser and all the sophisticated communications equipment, was calm and quiet with its normal complement of men."

The North Koreans, rejecting a request from the United Nations Command to meet for a discussion of the incident Thursday or early today, said they would attend a session at 11 a.m. Saturday (10 p.m. EDT today).

The U.S.-led U.N. Command announced in Seoul it was accepting the offer and asked the communists to return the surviving crewmen and the three bodies at that time.

There was no indication whether the request would be met.

The North Koreans said today the helicopter crew ignored "repeated warnings" before the craft was brought down.

Powell said earlier at his daily news briefing that Carter's plan to withdraw over the next four to five years the 33,000 U.S. ground troops in South Korea was based on the ability of the South Koreans to defend themselves.

He said he knew of nothing related to the helicopter incident that would change the administration's plans.

The North Koreans opened fire on the helicopter, a CH47 Chinook, Thursday after it strayed north over the demilitarized zone separating North and South Korea. Three crew members were killed. A fourth was wounded and captured.

The Defense Department identified the four as Sgt. Robert C. Haynes, 28, Anniston, Ala.; Sgt. Ron Wells, 22, El Paso, Tx.; CWO Glenn M. Schwanke, 28, Spring Green, Wis. and CWO Joseph A. Miles, 26, Washington, Ind.

Pentagon officials said they did not know which of the men had been killed.

Fire damages county tractor

A tractor fire 10 miles northeast of Pampa was reported to the Pampa Fire Department Thursday, according to Kirby King, fireman.

Damage in the blaze was restricted to the tractor's wiring and a garage. The tractor was the property of Roberts County.

A hot motor on a washing machine was cited as the cause of smoke at 2405 Navajo. Damage was limited to the motor. Owner of the property is Otto Mangold.

Battie, 19, set to die for shooting

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A state district court judge has ordered that Billy Joe Battie, 19, die in the electric chair on Aug. 8 for the shooting death of Peggy Hester during the holdup of a grocery store.

Judge Gordon Gray set the execution date Thursday and ordered that Battie be returned to Death Row at the Huntsville State Prison.

The execution date was set after the Court of Criminal Appeals ruled that Battie received a fair trial when he was convicted of capital murder.

Battie had been charged with the shotgun slaying of Miss Hester during the holdup of a grocery store in Fort Worth on Jan. 13, 1975. She was one of two persons slain during the robbery.

"If the job is offered me and if I accept it this would allow me to take the job," Sherman told newsmen.

Sherman said he was meeting this afternoon with the board of WTSU in Canyon concerning the presidency. He said it has not been offered him so far.

If he takes the job he will resign from the Senate before the change is effective.

worked closely with WT problems.

"I worked hard on appropriations matters," he said.

Lovell said the regents are aware of Sherman's qualifications, but added, "The regents are not of one mind."

Other possible contenders for the Sherman post should be vacated on Sept. 1—the date set for a new WT president to assume duties—include Bob Close, Republican State Representative from Perryton; Daisy Moore of Dalhart, who opposed Close in the last election; Representatives Phil Cates of Shamrock and Danny Hill of Amarillo; Mary Simpson of Pampa, a Carter national delegate; Tim Haigood of Pampa, president of the Top O' Texas Democratic Club; Mel Phillips of Amarillo, Senator Lloyd Bentsen's campaign coordinator in the last election; and Bob Lemon of Perryton, a Democrat.

The WT president position pays $37,500 a year plus a $12,000 annual housing allowance.

Fellow senators cleared the way today for Sen. Max Sherman, D-Amarillo, to take the presidency of West Texas State University if it is offered him.

The Senate approved 24-0 and sent to the House a bill that would remove a raise approved for the president of WTSU the next two years.

Several lineup for Sherman seat

By ANNA BURCHELL, Pampa News Staff and Associated Press

If Texas Senator Max Sherman of Amarillo is named president of West Texas State University, former U.S. Congressman Bob Price may be a candidate on the Republican ticket to fill the unexpired term.

"If I have my way we will have someone (for WT president) tomorrow," James R. Lovell of Dumas, chairman of the board of WTSU regents, told The News this morning. He said Sherman will fly into Amarillo today to meet with the regents. He has been in Austin attending the special session of the Texas Legislature.

If Sherman is named to the top WT post, a special election must be called by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to allow voters to choose a successor to the senate seat.

Price could not be reached for comment this morning. His wife, Marty, said she did not know his political intentions.

Joe Curtis, 31st District

Republican Committeeman, said it "has not been determined" if Price would run for the seat if it becomes available.

"While we think Max Sherman will get the job at WT, it would be presumptuous on our part to announce any candidate but you can be sure the Republican party has some plans in the event he does. I wouldn't want to make any announcement, but in the event there is a vacancy you can rest assured we (the Republican party) will field a candidate," Curtis said.

Lovell said a committee is meeting today to review about 30 additional applications which came in this week.

Asked what Sherman's chances of being named WT president are, Lovell said, "Right now 50-50."

Sherman was elected to the Texas Senate seven years ago and was recently named one of the Senate's "best" members by Texas Monthly magazine.

Sherman said during his tenure in the legislature he has

Names in the news

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Queen Silvia has given birth to a princess, a joyous occasion for Swedes but one that left open the question of who will succeed to the throne. The centuries-old monarchy does not allow female succession.

Doctors at the Karolinska Hospital reported that both the baby girl and the 33-year old German-born queen were doing well.

King Carl XVI Gustaf, who was present during the delivery on Thursday, is the first Swedish monarch in 199 years to become a father during his reign. It was also the first royal birth in a public hospital.

The king, 31, married the former Silvia Renate Sommerlath, a West German commoner, last June in a wedding that drew worldwide attention. It was Sweden's first royal wedding in 179 years.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Meredith, the ex-Dallas Cowboys quarterback, will leave his post as an NBC sports commentator and return to ABC TV in the fall to again provide color commentary on ABC's Monday Night football.

Meredith, who played for Dallas for nine seasons, joined NBC in 1974 as a sports commentator and actor after four years at ABC.

An ABC spokesman said Thursday that Meredith signed a "multi-year" contract with the network but declined to say how much the joke-cracking 39-year-old Texan will earn.

The network said the contract primarily calls for Meredith to rejoin Howard Cosell and Frank Gifford as a commentator, but also allows him to appear in TV series, TV movies and various specials.

Alex Karras, the ex-Detroit Lions linebacker who worked with Gifford and Cosell on the football telecast the last two seasons, won't be on the program next fall, the spokesman said.

He said Karras' contract was not renewed and that Karras had decided to concentrate on his acting career.

PARIS (AP) — President and Mrs. Valéry Giscard d'Estaing helped guide 10,000 French citizens through the Elysee Palace as it was opened to the public for the first time to mark Bastille Day, the French national holiday.

A line of people half a mile long stretched between the presidential palace and the Place de la Concorde Thursday, waiting to visit the elegant mansion and its grounds. In the first hour Giscard d'Estaing and his wife shook 2,000 hands as two bands in the courtyard alternated playing patriotic tunes.

During the tour, d'Estaing quipped, "This isn't a very big house," then added as he walked along, "This is where I received (Soviet leader Leonid) Brezhnev."

At one point, he stopped in the middle of a group and asked questions such as, "What time did you get here?" "What do you have in this bag?" "Did you bring your food?" He also told visitors to stop for a while on the sprawling back lawn before leaving.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's energy program is ready for consideration in a special House committee largely as he wanted it with the defeat of a proposal to deregulate natural gas.

After days of fierce lobbying on both sides of the natural gas issue, the House Commerce Committee voted 23-20 on Thursday against a compromise deregulation proposal.

The compromise included a windfall profits tax on natural gas producers, a move to blunt White House charges that deregulation amounted to a $70 billion ripoff of consumers.

Committee members had a choice between two arguments: The natural gas industry and its allies contend there would be an ample supply of gas if producers were free of federal controls and could strike the best deal possible for natural gas. Potential profits would encourage exploration for new gas fields, they said.

But the Carter administration said controls should be continued, allowing a slight rise in price. The increase should be sufficient incentive for producers to look for and pump more gas, administration forces said.

Proponents of deregulation warned of further shortages and job layoffs unless controls were removed. But Rep. Charles Carney, D-Ohio, cautioned, "You'll have all the gas you want, but you can't afford to use it."

The committee earlier had given Carter much of what he wanted on most of the non-tax aspects of his national energy plan. The panel approved: —Voluntary standards for home insulation to conserve energy.

—A grant program for improving school and hospital energy conservation.

—Standards for more efficient major home appliances.

—Revisions in electricity rate pricing.

—Broad administration authority to prod utilities and industry to switch from oil and natural gas fuels to coal.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which completed work earlier on other portions of Carter's energy package, approved several provisions the President sought.

The panel passed a gas-guzzler tax, a new crude oil tax with rebates to homeowners who heat their residences with oil, tax credits for persons who install insulation and a carrot-and-stick mechanism to encourage a dramatic insulation shift from oil and gas to coal.

But the committee rejected the President's proposal for a standby gasoline tax and a rebate for small car buyers.

The new energy committee, a special panel established by the House leadership to examine the energy plan in its entirety, plans to merge the work of the other panels into final legislative form.

The full House hopes to begin work on the package Aug. 1 and complete it within a week.

Man sentenced in Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Stacy Albert Carter, 26, of Olivia, N. C., one of two men charged in the slaying of Motley County Sheriff J. Lamar (Jinks) Wilson, was sentenced to 40 years in prison.

The sentence was pronounced Thursday by State District Court Judge George Miller. Carter had been charged originally with capital murder, but after the case was moved here on a change of venue, he agreed to plead guilty to a murder charge in exchange for testimony in the trial of his companion, Larry Fortenberry, 28, of Mount Hermon, Ia.

Fortenberry is to be tried on capital murder charges next Monday in Plainview.

The two men had escaped from a Louisiana prison on Oct. 12 when he and a companion, John Rogers, ran into two men apparently tampering with Roger's car by the side of a road. Rogers was wounded during the shooting.

A statement by Carter, read before Judge Miller, said Wilson informed the two men he was the county sheriff and started asking them questions. At that time, the statement said, Fortenberry said, "you are asking too damn many questions" and grabbed a sawed off shotgun from his car and fired at the sheriff.

"I saw blood and the sheriff started a g e e e d back," Carter's statement said. "At this time I shot across the car in the direction of the sheriff. I don't know if I hit the sheriff or not."

But the diplomats said Russians leaving the country either on leave or at the end of their tour of duty are not being replaced.

The diplomatic sources said it was not clear whether the setback was initiated by the Soviets or demanded by the leftist regime of Somali President Siad Barre.

Diplomats speculate that Barre has already decided to radically reduce his ties with the Soviets in return for pledges of support from conservative Arab states concerned over Soviet influence in Somalia and the rest of the strategic Horn of Africa.

Particularly troubling to the Somalis, the sources said, is the fact that some withdrawn advisers, including a few Cubans, have been transferred to neighboring Ethiopia.

Soviet advisers leave Somalia

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The number of Soviet advisers in neighboring Somalia is gradually being cut back, diplomats here say. The move could signify either a Soviet "tilt" toward Somalia's archenemy, Ethiopia, or a Somali decision to lean more on the Arab world for support.

The diplomats said the extent of the reduction in the Soviet presence is not known. Most of the 5,000 to 6,000 Soviet advisers working in Somalia are military specialists.

Between the Indian Ocean and the Gulf of Aden at the southern entrance to the Red Sea.

Barre returned Thursday from a visit to Saudi Arabia, where a Somali spokesman said he consulted with other members of the Arab League as well as with the Saudis. The president would not discuss his mission with Western reporters.

In return for its aid in the past the Soviet Union has been given facilities for its ships and planes in Somalia.

They have such facilities at the port of Berbera port near the mouth of the Red Sea and at Kismayu in southern Somalia on the Indian Ocean.

Hill attacks Briscoe for 'spending spree'

ALICE, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has led the state on a "spending spree for the last five years" at taxpayers' expense, Texas Atty Gen John Hill, an announced gubernatorial candidate said Thursday.

Hill told a gathering of about 25 supporters "The governor hasn't added any new taxes, he's just increased the old ones."

He also attended similar meetings in Corpus Christi and the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

"The property taxes have accelerated $1 billion over the last four years," he said. "That has to stop. We need to show some restraint on the amount of property taxes paid by our citizens."

The state treasury, Hill said, was swelled by $4.5 billion in surplus funds during the last four years due to "a good happenstance that came about as a result of the rise in oil and gas prices."

"The bureaucracy has gotten off with most of that money," he charged. "Because the governor has allowed the bureaucracy to set its own spending spree and set its own spending appetite."

Hill also said if he were in a position to monitor state spending, "education would be my number one priority. That's the best investment dollar you can

Amarillo death to be studied

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Justice of the Peace Cliff Roberts said the transcript of an inquest into the death of a 85-year-old nursing home resident will be turned over to the Potter County district attorney.

Roberts held a formal inquest Thursday into the death of Willie Homer Homyer. He said 12 witnesses testified.

Roberts, who withheld an immediate ruling in the death, said "It needs to be studied closely. Some strong accusations were made."

"We were called to the scene on June 13," Ferguson said. "We escorted a mental patient from the nursing home to the psychiatric detention pavilion. On the way to the pavilion he explained he had been in a fight with his roommate. The assault was not reported by the victim or the nursing home."

The justice of the peace said authorities need to investigate further to determine if any effort was made to cover up the actual cause of death.

A preliminary report said Homyer's body was exhumed Wednesday for an autopsy that indicated he had suffered four which would kill people with radiation while minimizing damage to buildings and surroundings. He says it should be one of the options available to the United States.

Carter also said that his position on that weapon did not alter the campaign pledge he repeated in his inaugural address: "We will move this year a step toward our ultimate goal — the elimination of all nuclear weapons from this earth."

The President said the neutron bomb shouldn't affect strategic arms limitation efforts because it is designed as a tactical weapon, for battlefield use. He also said it isn't a new weapon.

But Carter the campaigner seemed to have a different view of such nuclear weapons refinements. He told a United Nations conference that arms limitation talks should address not only the quantity but the quality of nuclear weapons, so as to halt the arms race in technology as well as in numbers. Carter was talking about strategic weapons, but in terms

'My name is Jimmy Carter' A year in front of nation

By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year ago tonight, Jimmy Carter introduced himself to the nation. He began with just a touch of irony, by recalling the obscurity of his first campaign days.

"My name is Jimmy Carter and I'm running for president," he said, as he had on countless street corners in two years of campaigning.

There are other ironic echoes on the anniversary of the Democratic National Convention that sent Carter on his way to the White House.

For items that were relatively simple and certain when the Democrats were celebrating at Madison Square Garden now have yielded to the incredible complexities of the presidency.

Thus Carter, who seeks the ultimate elimination of nuclear weapons from all the world's arsenals, has decided tentatively that the United States should have a new variety in its arsenal.

And while Carter once spoke of U.S. arms sales as an unswerving, cynical business, his administration concedes the difficulties of drastically cutting the traffic Carter has instituted a policy of restraint, but it seems to leave more room for the weapons trade than did his campaign statements on the same point.

"I think one of the concepts that must be avoided is an exact description ahead of time of what I, as president, would do under every conceivable circumstance," he said Tuesday, avoiding the question of how and when the United States might use nuclear weapons in the event of war in Europe.

That has been the position of his predecessors and it will almost surely be the position of his successors on matters of defense, the one man who can make the decisions must not tell the world what they would be.

So Carter favors an appropriation to go ahead with production of the neutron bomb, delegation to come to the national conference with no blacks."

Dr. Mildred Jefferson, president of the national Right to Life Committee and an assistant clinical professor of surgery at Boston University School of Medicine, recorded a statement and told The Associated Press

"The willingness of some women to insist on abortion creates a new role for such women. These women become special terrorists who are now using the unborn as hostages to extract demands from society, which may be detrimental to the interests of women in general and the human family in particular."

"It is said there is no worse master than a former slave. The shocking example of cruel and abusive treatment of some delegates to the IWY regional meetings by other delegates, could suggest there is truth in that observation."

FULL TIME, PART TIME

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Temporary employment is not just a sometimes thing for nearly 3.5 million persons, representing about 3 per cent of the total U.S. labor force, who do part time work on a full-time basis, says Manpower, Inc.

Some 67 per cent of these temporary workers who devote a few hours each day to their jobs are women, who have raised and educated their children and wish to fill spare time or contribute to the family income, the firm reports.

Ms. Abzug said those protesting the national conference "is a highly organized minority, representing many groups led by men from questionable groups such as the Ku Klux Klan and the American Nazi party."

The former congresswoman said, "If those women want to participate, then let them join in the debate. Those who come to destroy are lawbreakers, because the IWY was created by congressional action."

She also said the IWY commission is considering challenges to some delegates elected for the national conference.

Ms. Abzug pointed to the Mississippi delegation "which is all white and we cannot permit a

Baby carriers protest Houston IYW convention

HOUSTON (AP) — Former congresswoman Bella Abzug and Judy Carter, the president's daughter-in-law, talked Thursday of the aims and hopes of a national women's conference this November, while about 100 females carried signs and babies in their arms to protest the planned meeting.

The speeches by supporters of the International Women's Year (IYW) convention, and the protests by their opponents indicated a clash this fall when the convention opens in Houston.

Mrs. Carter, wife of the president's son Jack, said she was involved in the movement because of her stand for the Equal Rights Amendment and because "I am a wife and a mother and I like it this way."

"The majority of the American citizens support the amendment. Polls indicate there was never more than 35 per cent against. I think the problem has been that a few on both sides of the issue have been noisy while the majority of Americans want the ERA but are not so vocal," she said.

Ms. Abzug, once a New York congresswoman and now a candidate for the mayor of New York City, said the conference will be "the first time women can really speak their minds, pass resolutions and be assured these will be read by the president, the congress and the state legislatures."

"This will link women with each other. It will be a conference that represents the diversity of women," she said.

Standing shoulder to shoulder in the hall of the downtown hotel where the news conference was conducted, were the women protesters, including those who oppose legal abortion, those against the rights for homosexuals and those who said the conference was rigged in favor of the feminists.

Shortly after the first news conference, another was conducted two rooms away where several speakers claimed the IWY was using $5 million in federal funds to promote such political causes as the ERA and legal abortion.

Rosemary Thornton of Morton, Ill., said the IWY "is a front for those narrow viewpoints, a virtual Who's

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked you if a 13-year-old boy could get a girl pregnant, and I'm glad you said yes because I am living proof of it.

Five months ago I got a 15-year-old girl pregnant. Her parents and mine raised a terrible fuss and sent threats back and forth. The girl finally got an abortion, and we aren't allowed to see each other again.

Might I add that my puberty started when I was 11. THIRTEEN AND OLD ENOUGH

DEAR THIRTEEN: And might I add that you aren't the only 13-year-old boy who wrote to confirm that fact? I also heard from several girls stating that they had become pregnant at the age of 12. (Readers: If you find that shocking, consider this: In 1975, 12,642 babies were born in the U.S. to girls between the ages of 10 and 14.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a fourth grade teacher employed in a suburb of Minneapolis, Minn. During the past few years I have found that most of my students seem to appreciate physical contact.

In early December my building principal called me into his office and told me that a parent had called the superintendent and expressed concern that my actions were, if not morally improper, certainly "weird" and abnormal.

After my initial shock I asked who complained, and what specifically was the nature of their complaint. I never was told who, but I was told that each of the following actions was cause for alarm.

1. I had allowed some of my students to occasionally sit on my lap.
2. I had occasionally given a student a back rub.
3. I had occasionally given a student a hug.

For many months thereafter I have been continually impressed how a paranoid, bigoted, uniformed minority could make a life miserable and influence school politics.

I deeply regret that an all too influential element of my community finds it impossible to accept a MALE teacher who is physically affectionate to his students but has no intention of sexual exploitation.

How can I possibly continue to meet the human needs of my students when I am expected to respond like a cold-blooded computer?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: I fail to see what being male has to do with the criticism. I'm sure a female teacher would be criticized for giving her students back rubs, allowing them to sit on her lap and hugging them.

While your motives may have been beyond reproach, the kind of physical contact you engaged in might easily be mistaken for intimacy beyond acceptable limits. Kindergarten and possibly first graders, yes—but fourth graders, no.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — As a serious dieter I understand it takes 3500 extra calories to add one pound of body weight. But how long does it take for food to transform into neutral body weight? If I eat a one-pound can of spinach, for example, the scales reflect a one pound gain, even though the caloric count is very low. Please explain.

DEAR READER — The point is that pounds on the scale are not pounds of body fat. A pound is a pound — even of water. You really mean that 3500 extra calories will produce one pound of body fat.

The spinach weighs a pound, so if you stick it in your stomach it will increase your body weight one pound. The scales would register an extra pound if you held the spinach in your hand. That weight is from indigestible fiber, water and a few calories. The water, and indigestible material will be eliminated from the body.

The few calories that are left and that have been absorbed after digestion will then be used by your body for energy or if they are extra calories, more than your body needs, they will be stored as fat.

I am surprised how many people do not understand the difference between calories of energy in a food and the weight of a food. A pound of lean round steak with all the fat removed is almost 75 percent water. The true food value of any food in terms of energy is expressed as its caloric content, not its weight.

Your question indicates you need help so I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I was interested in Christine's Pointer concerning the use of coffee to remove the odor of smoke from cupboards and your mention of that being a rather expensive cure considering the present price of coffee. My mother used to sprinkle coffee grounds on the hot lid of the coal stove to remove offensive odors. I have also done that but with the present price of coffee one can use used grounds. Place some in a heavy skillet for a few minutes. Did you ever notice how strong the scent of coffee is when the grounds are removed from the basket in a percolator? I would try placing used hot grounds in a cupboard or wherever an odor was. — IRENE.

DEAR POLLY — To get coffee stains out of a glass coffee pot put a few ice cubes in the pot and jiggle them around. The stains will soon disappear. — MRS. E. H.

DEAR POLLY — When you want to paint your woodwork but have wall to wall carpeting, cover the carpet with newspapers for protection. Next take an old metal automobile license plate and bend the edge along the length of the plate to make a slight curve and as you paint hold the bent edge firmly over the edge of the carpet next to the baseboard. You will have to wipe the metal plate off each time it is moved but this does a neat and fast job. — MRS. V. J.

DEAR POLLY — I use a toilet cleaning brush with good strong bristles for cleaning the floor in the car. There is not much room in our garage and it is hard to get the vacuum in. A broom is too big and the bristles always break off of a whisk broom and have to be picked up so this brush works well as it is easy to get in and around and it flips the dirt out quite well. — MRS. P. H.

DEAR POLLY — To extend the use of a bar of soap I remove the wrapper before storing it on a shelf and it becomes hard milled. — MARIAN.

Dream house built in circles

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

All of us have an idea of what our dream house might look like. Few of us ever get to buy it or have it built.

On the west coast of Florida, on Charlotte Harbor north of Ft. Myers, there is such a dream house, created for "someone" who might have imagined it "in his wildest dreams or wildest desires." It exemplifies great imagination, diversity, materials and construction techniques.

Most houses are a series of rectangles or square patterns placed together to form units. This house has no boxes and no squares. It is designed as a series of angles, arches and circles, with everything radiating from a common point. Called "The House of the Waterfall," because of a 13-foot waterfall that cascades down a rock wall into a swimming pool, it has a multiplicity of dramatic views. Every window looks out on water in some form — either a bubbling fountain, a placid pool, a swimming pool, a waterway or the waterfall after which it is named. The bathrooms are constructed on a circular motif, with the door of the master bath opening on a small plunge deck at the deep end of the pool. On the way to the door leading to the pool are a dual shower with a skylight, a sunken tub and double shower heads. For the wine connoisseur, there is a thermostatically-controlled wine "cellar" adjacent to the kitchen.

The structure is concrete block utilizing, in many cases, a double thickness of walls to give mass appearance to wood and other structural materials and techniques used. The foyer and the hobby room are covered with authentic Mexican tile, while the interior of the sauna room is sealed with western red cedar left in its natural state. Luxurious touches are everywhere, including tinted glass, bubble windows, huge closets, open areas, a solar water heater, a ceramic-tiled bar top, massive wood shelves suspended by chains, and Mexican fabrics applied to the walls as part of the interior decorating scheme.

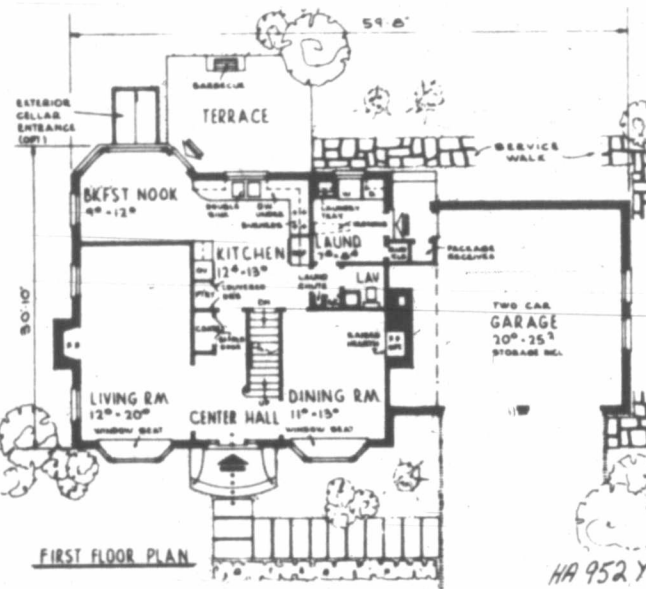

How did this all come about? Wayne Goff, vice president of Building for Punta Gorda Isles, wanted an unusual home that would be a unique attraction in the community. After making a basic design, Goff turned the plan over to Martin Fishback Jr., an architect from St. Petersburg, with instructions to "create a house that someone might want to build in his wildest dreams or wildest desires". Fishback didn't spare the horses — or the car. Even the garage, 28 feet by 28 feet, is completely carpeted. The dimensions of the garage are in line with the generous sizes of the rooms, even though the house is only a two-bedroomer. Those bedrooms are 28 feet by 22 feet, and 24 feet by 13 feet.

The living room is 30 feet by 34 feet, the dining room 22 by 15. What does a dream house cost? It depends on what kind of dream you have. If it includes a house like this, it's $225,000 — not including the cost of the land.

Bricks, mortar stack up as backyard built-ins

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Built-in furniture is popular indoors, why not outdoors? Anyway, it's a thought for do-it-yourselfers.

For example, instead of buying new outdoor furniture every few years, why not build lounging or dining pieces of brick. These fixtures will stay in place, you need not worry about moving them when you mow the grass and they don't need to be stored. You merely remove cushions, backrests and table tops in bad weather.

Do-it-yourself brick work has become so popular, the Brick Institute of America has been motivated to suggest outdoor projects that also may be done by women and men who are inexperienced in brick laying. Some projects may be done without mortar and if you get bored with the thing you build, you can use the bricks for something else. If mortar is used, remember your project may be permanent.

There are lots of spin-offs from single projects. For example, build an entire entertainment center or patio that would have a one-time cost. Such a center could have a barbecue, built-in tables, chairs, lounges.

A brick and mortar couch requires about five rows of bricks — three rows in the area that would form a base for a pad or cushion — and two extra rows which would form ends. For a table, a base of bricks can be topped with glass or board which could be stored easily. A brick cube could be built to a certain height and size and be topped by cushions. A series of such brick stacks could be placed about a long brick base with a top made of redwood or other boards to make an attractive dining table.

A substantial barbecue unit can be built without mortar, providing the site you select is absolutely level, brick experts advise. A concrete slab is best for a base. Purchase metal cooking racks first so the barbecue opening can be adjusted to the construction of a unit. One barbecue suggested used 236 solid bricks, 3/4 by 2 1/4 by 8 inches, the standard size. Or make it smaller. Put a layout of your idea on graph paper, and that applies to any project.

A standard brick covers about 30 square inches, a pallet (500 bricks) placed on sand will cover about 110 square feet — a 10-by-10-foot patio. With 1/2-inch mortar joints, the same quantity of bricks will make a larger patio, 10 feet by 12 feet.

Patios, walkways and edgings do not need mortar for permanence if ground is level and you put down 2 inches of sand. The brick can be laid quickly. If the ground heaves because of bad weather a few bricks may be removed and the sand leveled and the brick replaced.

To make mortar for a project, mix a small quantity at a time so that it will not dry before you are ready to use it, these experts advise.

The sun is gaseous throughout, even in its center.

Recording artist at Lamar crusade

Walt Mills, ordained minister and recording artist for Word Records, will participate in a crusade July 17-21 at the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, 1200 S. Sumner. Sunday services will be at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. Services will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday nights. Pastor Gene Allen invites the public to the services.

Pastor fills in

The Rev. Smiley Johnson, former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Canadian, will fill the pulpit Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church, 525 N. Gray St., at the 10:45 a.m. worship hour. Scripture lessons are from Isaiah 66:10-14 and Galatians 5:22-6:6. Assisting Rev. Johnson in the pulpit will be Elder Curt Beck. During the service, Mrs. Louise Biggerstaff will be installed as a Ruling Elder.

Special music Sunday will be a solo by Sally Green. She will sing "Come to the Water" by Marsha Stevens, accompanied on the organ by Doris Good.

The Wednesday prayer group will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the West Room.

Church school begins at 9:30 a.m. for all ages, and grades 1-6 will have a songfest under the leadership of Sally Green. Nursery facilities are available during church school and worship service.

Conference treasurer will speak Saturday

The Rev. Otis Garrison will present a revival beginning Wednesday at Hiland Pentecostal Holiness Church, 18th and Banks.

Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will run through Saturday, July 16.

THE BIBLE TEACHES

The Bible teaches that "by grace have ye been saved through faith" (Eph. 2:8). Some suppose that this statement excludes any act of obedience on man's part to obtain salvation. This could not be so for Jesus said, "When ye shall have done all the things that are commanded you, say, we are unprofitable servants; we have done that which it was our duty to do" (Luke 17:10). Thus we see that not only one command but all the commandments of God may be kept and we are still unprofitable servants. Our salvation is by God's grace.

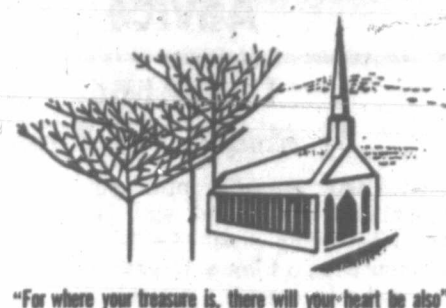

Although our salvation is by grace and is a gift of God, yet in order to receive this grace obedience is required. Consider an example of this in Bible history. God gave the Israelites a gift. When these people came to the city of Jericho, God said, "See, I have given into thy hand, Jericho (Joshua 6:2). Yet, God commanded them to do certain things, marching around the walls of the city a certain number of times on certain days. When the people had obeyed ALL God's commandments in this matter, Joshua said to the people, "Shout, for God hath given you the city" (Joshua 6:16). It is apparent to even a casual reader, that the gift of the city was conditioned upon the obedience of Israel.

So it is with our salvation. It is by the grace of God but we do not receive this grace or this salvation until we obey His will. Jesus said, "Not everyone that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 7:21). Christ has become "the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him" (Hebrews 5:9). Being saved by grace; the receiving of the gift of salvation from God, does NOT exclude, but rather requires, obedience on the part of the sinner.

Why not have faith in God and what the Bible teaches. Then obey his commandments that you might be saved by His grace.

"I DON'T SEE ANYTHING"

THERE IS ONLY ONE WAY TO SEE THROUGH A CAMERA

Did you ever try to look through a camera from the front side? Yes, most of us have . . . out of curiosity . . . but we would not even consider trying to take a picture in such a manner. There are many though, who go through life never giving themselves a chance to really see God. In order to see God, one must look at him through faith. Attend church regularly, seek God where others can help direct you in your search for God.

"So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

FPC probes New York blackout

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Pulsing again with the rush of trains and traffic, New York City went back to work today as federal officials opened their investigation into why the lights went out — and why they stayed out for so long.

Today's Federal Power Commission hearing in Manhattan, requested Thursday by President Carter, was the first by governmental agencies trying to fix blame for the blackout that shut down the nation's biggest city for an entire day. Carter ordered an FPC report in two weeks.

Two other investigations were in the works.

One probe was ordered by Gov. Hugh Carey and one by Mayor Abraham Beame, who declined an early morning news conference Thursday to declare the city's state of emergency at an end "until we are firmly convinced and get reports from Con Edison that the situation is in hand."

With most of 10 million customers of Consolidated Edison Co. still without refrigeration, elevators and mass transportation, Beame on Thursday appointed a board of inquiry whose chairman had harsh words for federal and state regulatory agencies.

Carey directed the regulatory State Public Service Commission to analyze why the power was lost at 9:34 Wednesday night during an electrical storm and why it took Con Ed 25 hours to restore it fully.

As the utility gradually brought back power to a sweating city, there was a sharp drop in the abnormally high numbers of fires and arrests, mostly for looting.

More than 3,300 persons were being dealt swift justice by casually-garbed judges working overtime to arraign six times the usual number of defendants arrested in a day.

Coated with the shards of broken windows and the debris of looted shops, streets in neighborhoods that poverty already had broken were virtually free of looters once again.

Nearly half of the 25,000-member police force was on patrol at any time, with 426 of them reportedly injured, 18 of them seriously.

But at nightfall, the city returned to a spectacle of lights that shone silvery.

Tireless, sleepless and wearing shirtsleeves at a post-midnight news conference, the haggard mayor warned commuters to expect slower service. Asked how he felt, the 71-year-old Beame, who is running for reelection, replied:

"I wouldn't want any public official to go through the trying period all of us have gone through."

Earlier he had accused Con Ed of "gross negligence," implying the possibility of damage suit.

"We have been needlessly subjected to a night of terror in many communities that have been looted and burned," Beame declared. "We cannot tolerate in this age of modern technology a power system that can shut down the nation's largest city."

Blaming the blackout on lightning strikes on a transformer and feeder cables, Chairman Charles Luce of the utility company said the mayor was wrong about negligence and added that he expected a number of lawsuits.

No one came up with a sound figure for the cost of the blackout and its effects, but the estimate of losses during a similarly disrupting subway and bus strike in 1966 was $1 billion a day.

Carey asked for federal disaster relief from the Small Business Administration to help merchants repair damaged property.

In Washington, the chief of the SBA's disaster unit, J.B. Alexander, said he expected that relief would be granted. He would not, however, estimate how soon or how much.

But a spokesman for the governor said the White House had assured Carey that "the request will be reviewed promptly and a decision will be made as soon as possible."

Chairman Ira Millstein of the mayor's board of inquiry said Thursday night that he was beginning his work by appointing a staff and by attending today's hearing.

"All these regulatory agencies have been involved for a long time and they didn't prevent this from happening," the 50-year-old lawyer said, adding that "we're not out to get anyone — we want to get the facts."

Replied Public Service Commissioner Charles Zielinski, "Our investigation and report will respond to the assertion and we'll see whether it's correct or not in light of the report."

Lester Stuzin, head of the PSC's five-member task force in charge of the investigation, said the unit would concentrate on the hour before the blackout and the time it took to restore full power.

Stuzin, who investigated the 1965 power failure that shrouded the northeast, said it should not have taken more than a few hours.

"We're going to look very closely as to why it took so long to put back the system," he said.

A Con Ed spokesman dodged the question.

"That's going to be the subject of a number of investigations," he said.

The federal investigation will try to determine whether an "act of God" or mechanical problems caused the blackout.

Returned from cheerleader camp

Seadock members scurry to salvage project

HOUSTON (AP) — The withdrawal by Exxon from the Gulf Coast superport project has sent the remaining six members scurrying to find new investors and sparked efforts to salvage the project or initiate a similar one.

There is the possibility that state funding may be sought and President Carter has been asked by three Gulf Coast-area mayors to intervene in the superport project.

Exxon was to hold 22 per cent ownership in the proposed Seadock port 26 miles off the Houston Gulf coast, is still the best site.

"I doubt it would be moved. Studies are underway concerning environmental impact of the port and other considerations," Schwartz said, adding that it would take too long to start similar studies at a new site.

Quick reaction to the Exxon withdrawal also came from the mayors of three Gulf Coast-area cities. Lake Jackson Mayor Vic Akers said the death of the project would be a "tremendous loss energy-wise" to the state.

His sentiments were echoed by Clute Mayor Benny Childs and Freeport Mayor Tobey Davenport.

The loss of the project could cost as many as 100,000 jobs nationwide and up to 30 per cent of the nation's crude oil supply, Davenport said.

A bill previously sponsored by State Sen. A.R. (Babe) Schwartz of Galveston would have allowed the state to build the superport through a financing plan similar to that which paid for the state's ports and harbors.

Schwartz said Thursday "It looks like the state will have to get into the offshore port business." He also said the area sought for use in the Seadock project, 26 miles off the Houston Gulf coast, is still the best site.

The proposed Harbor Island project is now in greater demand, according to Duaine Orr, director of industrial development for the Port of Corpus Christi.

Irving doctor charged

IRVING, Tex. (AP) — An Irving physician is free on $30,000 bond following his arrest on a charge of attempting to hire a patient to kill one of his associates.

Named in the charge of criminal solicitation of capital murder was Dr. Bobby Mack Via, 40, who was arrested late Tuesday.

He was released on bond following an arraignment before

Judge Tom Naylor.

He is accused of attempting to hire patient Lloyd Scalf to kill Dr. George Berryman, Via's office partner.

Police said Scalf told Dr. Berryman of the plot and later told officers Dr. Via gave him a $500 down payment. Scalf said he was also asked to kill Dr. Mark Kardum, another Irving doctor.

Eight killed in two-car crash

STRINGTOWN, Okla. — Eight persons, including five members of an Oklahoma family, were killed and six others injured in a two-vehicle accident Thursday afternoon on a rural road four miles north of here in this southeastern Oklahoma.

Six persons in a 1972 Ford auto died and two riding in a motor home were killed, police said, when the car apparently swerved into the left lane during a rainstorm and was hit broadside by the mobile home. There were six other passengers in the motor home, which was registered in Fredericksburg, Va., police said.

The dead were taken to Atoka Memorial Hospital and four of the injured were treated and dismissed at McAlester General West Hospital.

The dead were identified as Linda D. Groberson, 29, Wilburton, Okla.; her husband, Boyce Joe Roberson, age not determined; their daughters Melanie, 3 and Amy, 8; Mrs. Roberson's mother, Ester Mae McCabe, 51; and Carrie Kirkman, 12, daughter of Mrs. McCabe. In the mobile home, the driver, Robert Burton Robey, 41, of Fredericksburg, Va., and his daughter, Michelle Janis Robey, 12, were killed.

A witness said the car was lying on its side and the Mita Mobile Home was smashed in the front. One occupant of the camper was reported thrown 50 feet into a field.

A Highway Patrol dispatcher in Durant said the accident was reported by a Katy Railroad switchman whose engine was passing by.

A dozen state troopers and several local police units were sent to the scene, as well as ambulances from Atoka and Coalgate.

Traffic was blocked for nearly an hour. The rural stretch of two-lane highway is heavily traveled this time of year since it is the only major road between Atoka and McAlester.

The injured, all of whom were riding in the motor home, were identified as: Margaret Jenkins, 62, listed in critical condition at an Ada, Okla., hospital; Tammy Robey, 5, in good condition with broken right leg; Brenda J. Robey, 31, good condition with lacerations of both legs; Robin Robey, 9, good condition with lacerations of body; Veola Jenkins, 55, of Whetson, Md., good condition with head and body injuries; Gerald Markers, Fredericksburg, Va., good condition with broken jaw and head cuts.

Import cars sell will in US

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — After four years of frustrating break-downs and expensive repair bills, John Vrazo decided to trade in his 1973 Chevrolet Vega this spring for a new car.

The 27-year-old Detroit resident looked at a Chevette, but wasn't impressed, and when two Chevy dealers refused to take his Vega in trade, he went elsewhere. He wound up buying a Toyota Corolla with radial tires, AM-FM radio and "a nice interior" — for just $3,455.

That pattern is being repeated by record numbers of car buyers across the nation this year, and it's providing a bonanza for makers of small foreign cars.

During the first half of 1977, Americans bought 1,078,000 imports, 54 per cent more than in 1976. Sales for the full year could hit two million for the first time.

Since the spring, imports have been accounting for one of every five new cars sold in the country. In March they hit 188,000 to top a four-year old single-month record. In April, they jumped to 206,000. Amazed U.S. auto men said it couldn't happen again. Then in May, sales rose to 220,000. That was 2,500 more cars than sold by Ford, the nation's No. 2 auto maker.

U.S. and foreign car executives say the tremendous demand for imports — mostly small, inexpensive and fuel-sipping models from Japan — is a temporary, brief hysterical reaction to President Carter's call for energy conservation.

Noting the same thing happened immediately after the Arab oil embargo started in the fall of 1973, industry analysts pointed to the imports' sales in June, when volume fell to 198,000 units, still a record for the month but well below May's pace.

Some importers, though, said their volume was hurt by low stocks rather than declining consumer interest.

didn't want an American one," said Vrazo, whose father works for General Motors. "I came to the conclusion that foreign cars are better made."

Detroit concedes the Japanese have a price edge. But they bristle at surveys showing people believe foreign cars are built better.

"Price is the imports' only real advantage," said a Ford market analyst. "There is just no way we can come within $250 car for car with the Japanese. The Europeans can't come within $500 of them."

Why? Japanese labor costs are lower than here. On top of that, the Japanese boast of a better technology and workers who are more productive than their American counterparts.

But U.S. executives claim Japan is circumventing U.S. laws against "dumping" — selling a product here for less than at home — even though the Treasury Department exonerated the two largest importers, Toyota and Datsun, in a broad dumping probe last year.

Imports are strongest on the two coasts, where they account for up to a third of the new car market. They are weakest in the Midwest, the home of the domestic industry. In Michigan, imports account for less than 6 per cent of the market, the national low.

Some industry executives attribute that pattern to the fact that shipping charges for imports are lowest on the coasts and highest in the Midwest.

"Everything ultimately comes down to price," the Ford analyst said. "In the 1960s, when the VW was cheap and sales were 60,000 a month, everyone said it was the best car around. No one talked about price, that it was hundreds of dollars less than anything we made."

Then the price shot up $1,000 and sales fell apart. There went another myth about import quality.

But while Ford decries the myth of import superiority, it plans to exploit that myth this summer when it debuts its Fiesta minicar — an imported car built by Ford in Germany.

Richard L. Mugg, a vice president for VW of America, says there's no myth. "We design a small car from scratch. We pay a lot of attention to detail. Detroit's small car tends to be a big car made small."

Mugg believes people who want an inexpensive small car buy a Japanese model; those who want a well built small car and don't care as much about price, buy European. "Detroit's problem is that its small cars are neither very good nor very cheap," he said. "It's that horrible area in between which Detroit has chosen to occupy."

Sales of European cars remain down from the early 1970s due to high prices caused by inflation at home and unfavorable money exchanges.

But Japanese imports are soaring. Sales are up 73 per cent from 1976 to a record 740,000 cars through June. That's a 13 per cent share of the market — almost equal to Chrysler and American Motors combined.

A decade ago, the Japanese were making a second bid to establish themselves here. Several years before, they began exporting cars with a manufacturing technology still in its infancy. The cars were poorly made and sales were dismal.

Since then, they have worked out the bugs and undergone an image metamorphosis. Detroit concedes cars from Japan are made as well as here. The Japanese say they're made better.

There is a conception whether real or imagined that imports seem to have more reliability and durability than domestic small cars," said Robert L. Link, president of the U.S. distributor for Datsun.

The importers are not alone in that view. A GM executive noted, "I shouldn't say this, but the imports build a damn good car at very competitive prices. They have the cheapest entry into the market."

United Auto Workers head Douglas Fraser has rapped Detroit for "sitting on its behind" and not making a small car as good as an import.

And, a Chevy dealer in Detroit who called the Vega "a sour pill" complained "our small cars just don't compare to theirs (imports)."

Industry critics charge Detroit never wanted to build small cars because the bulk of the market is big-car oriented, and that's where the big profit dollars are.

Similarly, dealers and salesmen would just as soon push big cars with their bigger mark-up and sales commissions.

Detroit executives argue it didn't make sense to invest a great deal of money in small cars which couldn't compete with low-priced European imports in the 1960s and Japanese imports in the 1970s.

But to protect itself in the growing small-car segment, Detroit brought out inexpensive versions of its compact cars in 1969-70 and called them subcompacts.

Times have rapidly changed, though. The energy crisis has triggered a permanent swing toward smaller cars, and Detroit is responding with a new generation of cars which it hopes will lay to rest doubts about its ability to design good cars in small packages.

GM and Ford are going the same route, with plans to introduce small European style cars with front-wheel-drive by 1980.

The state of Maine is one-tenth water.

An AP energy report

no way we can come within $250 car for car with the Japanese. The Europeans can't come within $500 of them."

Why? Japanese labor costs are lower than here. On top of that, the Japanese boast of a better technology and workers who are more productive than their American counterparts.

But U.S. executives claim Japan is circumventing U.S. laws against "dumping" — selling a product here for less than at home — even though the Treasury Department exonerated the two largest importers, Toyota and Datsun, in a broad dumping probe last year.

For euphoria, it's second best

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
HILLSBORO, Ore. (AP) —
Life's a drag. There's no ad-

Scale a canyon? Tame a lion?
Ho Hum.
Anyone who has flown in an den cockpit over the Oregon countryside with a mere slip of a girl at the controls, and looped the loop and rolled the barrel and generally cavorted upside down in the sky, knows that no other damn foolishness exists.

"There's nothing like aerobatics and no way to describe the exhilaration, the euphoria," said Patti Johnson. "Some people think it's better than sex. I don't, but it sure is second best."

Patti Johnson is one of fewer than a dozen women among the nation's small group of pilots, about 150, who are serious aerobats.

She is 24, stands 5-4 and weighs 110. When she tucks her short brown hair into a leather helmet and pulls big goggles over her skyblue eyes and climbs into her tiny biplane she is Amelia Earhart reincarnate, freckles and all.

For all the kicks her daily life provides, though, Patti Johnson is in no way frivolous about aerobatics.

"We resent being called daredevils, or stunt flyers. Those words have a ring of carelessness to them. Aerobatics is an art, a combination of a science and an art."

"You work on your airplane until you know exactly how it will perform best for you, mechanically. That's the science. Then you fly your maneuvers precisely in an imaginative, flowing sequence. That's the art."

"We're judged in competition sort of the way figure skaters are judged. We do required maneuvers - loops, rolls, spins, stunts, and endless variations of them. It's how you put them together and perform them that matters."

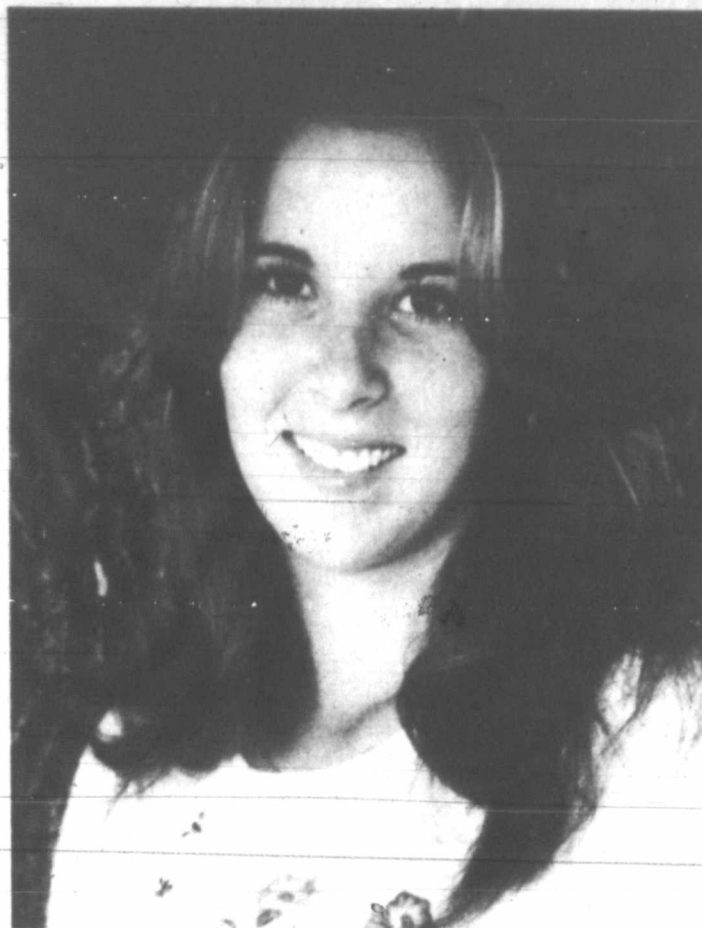

The way Patti Johnson performs them has ranked her among the nation's top one-third in the advanced category, a cut below the elite unlimited class.

She figures, that when she gets her airplane balanced and tuned to her satisfaction she will take on the 15 or 20 flyers in the unlimited division. Aerobats compete in two events a year, one at Fond du Lac, Wis., the other at Sherman, Texas.

Average the scores at both events and you get a national champion, currently a pilot with an aerobatic performance as flowing as his name, Leo Loudenslager, of Sussex, N.J.

She took up flying as a hobby when she was 17, quickly became good at it and quit work as a registered nurse to become a flying instructor. To qualify, she had to practice spins and went up in an aerobatic plane to learn.

"From then on, I was hooked. I thought it was the greatest thing in the world. I still do," she said.

Perryton senior eyes pageant

Lacey Easley of Perryton will compete in the Miss Top of Texas Pageant July 23 in the M.K. Brown Auditorium. Miss Easley enjoys swimming, snow skiing, dancing, tennis and football and she received a superior rating in twirling contests. She is active in the International Theatrical Society and Future Homemakers of America and has competed in speech contests. The 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Easley of Perryton will be a senior at Perryton High School. She owns and directs a dance studio and would like to combine dancing with a career as a lawyer. Her entry in the talent competition will be a ballet dance. Miss Easley is sponsored by the Ochiltree County Chamber of Commerce.

Bell's voice is same everywhere

CLEVELAND (AP) — When Ohio Bell Telephone Co. workers walked off the job for a few days last year, one woman's voice worked on, handling thousands of calls 24 hours a day, answering each with the same impeccable voice.

"The number you have called has been changed. The new number is . . . Please make note of it." Or one of a score of other messages, coupled with precise, instantaneous information on the number you dialed.

If you are a normal telephone user in a Bell Telephone system almost anywhere, the same voice speaks to you regularly, when you dial nonworking numbers.

Audichron Co., Atlanta, Ga., makes the recordings for telephone and other systems. The firm says the same voice talks to more people in one day than any other human in the world.

She is Jane Barbe, an Atlanta housewife, and when you talk to her on the telephone she has the same charming manner that comes through on Ohio Bell's Automated Intercept System — AIS — or the "time at the tone" message used by hundreds of telephone exchanges around the country.

In addition to making AIS recordings "in bits and pieces that the computer puts together," she said, she does time and temperature recordings, commercial and service information recordings for other agencies, including one for television.

For the AIS system put together by Western Electric, the Bell system's technical arm, Mrs. Barbe records individual numerals, one to zero, plus a series of message fragments such as "in the 614 area," "in the Canton area," and so forth.

These are recorded on electronic chips mounted in two 20-inch computer drums.

Martin Svensen, who watches over the AIS in the Ohio Bell equipment center in Cleveland, plugged a phone in one of the chips.

"One, one, one, one, one . . . Jane's voice says over and over. He switches in another chip which says "one, one, one," but with a dropping inflection — used when the numeral is at the end of a phrase.

The heart of AIS is housed in a cabinet the size of a household refrigerator. Svensen says the memory in the system has about 600,000 telephone numbers in the northeast Ohio area which require information from the intercept system.

Before the system was installed six years ago — the third to go in around the country — the job was handled by operators. Now, when you call a discontinued or changed number, your call is switched automatically into AIS. It finds the number and keys in the magnetic chips in the proper sequence faster than you can say, "look in the book."

And it does it so smoothly, it almost sounds as though Mrs. Barbe is on the phone talking to you. The only thing missing is the Southern accent, which she doesn't let creep into recordings.

Ohio Bell public relations executive Charles Day said Mrs. Barbe's voice provides all the information a live operator could.

"If you stay on the line, a live operator will come in," he said, "but all she can do is look in the records and give you the same information that's in the AIS memory."

"You know," Day observed, "they say if the telephone companies hadn't changed from cord boards to dial phones there wouldn't be enough women in the country to handle all the boards."

The spread of AIS — eliminating hundreds of intercept operators — can be measured by the amount of work Mrs. Barbe does at Audichron.

"I'm recording messages for new installations constantly," she said.

Svensen said recordings in the AIS drum here have been revised only once since they were installed in 1971.

Mrs. Barbe and her husband have two children, David, 13, and Susan, 15. What do they think about hearing her voice so many places?

"They kid me about it," she said. "Somebody'll come in and say, 'What time is it?' And they say, 'Don't anybody ask Mom, or she'll do a number for us.'"

Oklahoma could lose water

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma must "get off the fence" in the struggle for water rights or it will lose to surrounding states, a water study group says.

Oklahoma Water Inc., a group promoting development of the state's water resources, gave the warning in a report this week on the study of a plan to transport water from Arkansas to Texas.

"Oklahoma must get off the fence and hasten the completion and adoption of a state-wide comprehensive water plan, and initiate the actions required to bring such a cooperative venture about," the report said.

"It's time that we initiated some actions instead of reacting to what Texas and others have already done."

"If Oklahoma fails to do this, she may be left on the sidelines while other states put waters which otherwise would legally belong to Oklahoma to work for themselves."

The issue is over water which leaves the state of Oklahoma and flows in to Arkansas and Texas.

"At first glance, there appears to be enough water for everyone," the report said.

Estimates, according to the report, are that the annual outflow from Arkansas is about 76.5 million acre-feet and after allowances for that state's needs by the year 2020, it would be reduced to 43 million acre-feet.

"When compared with the projected need of the Texas High Plains of about six million acre-feet per year, the issue seems hardly worth a squabble. Closer scrutiny of the report, however, reveals additional facts and leads to several questions," the report said.

Questions raised, according to Oklahoma Water, Inc., include future use of surface water in Oklahoma, allowances for navigation, high and low flows, consumptive demand and other requirements and the demand in Texas.

The Oklahoma group said the Arkansas-Texas study would allow the six million acre-feet for maintenance of present High Plains irrigation levels in Texas. There are more than 13 million acres in the area suitable for irrigation, more than doubling the current amount, it said.

"No mention is made of the need for municipal and industrial water for the High Plains in the report. One could reasonably speculate that Midland, Odessa, Lubbock, Amarillo and other smaller cities in the region, will require additional water supplies as the agricultural economy expands (with import water), precipitating growth."

The report said that western Oklahoma must also soon have import water.

Skeleton was abducted girl

HOUSTON (AP) — An autopsy has confirmed that the skeletal remains of a child found in a wooded area near here belonged to Andrea Denise Johnson, 6, who reportedly was abducted from her mother's car June 2.

The autopsy performed Wednesday also showed the child had a fractured skull, medical examiners said.

The remains were found Tuesday by a neighborhood resident riding a horse.

Nancy Catalon, 34, mother of the child, identified scraps of clothing found at the scene, police said.

The child reportedly was taken from her mother's car while it was parked outside a department store. One of the girl's two brothers who also were in the car told police a man offered her candy before taking her off.

Calhoun captures lead

By JEANNE GRIMES
Pampa News Staff
Amarillo cowboy Landon Carter lost his lead in the bareback bronc competition to Ben Calhoun of Stephenville during the Top O' Texas Rodeo Thursday.

Calhoun turned in a 72 point ride, bucking out on Fifty Grand, a Beutler and Son horse, to pass Carter in the point race. Carter had ridden a horse named Hot Licks for 70 points Wednesday.

John Gass of Wilson, Tex., took a commanding lead in the saddle bronc average when he won his second straight go-round on a horse named Benefit. Gass' 64 point effort Thursday boosted his total points on two horses to 133.

Only two other saddle bronc contestants have ridden both horses to remain in the average. Darryl Jones, a Lubbock competitor, rode Ugly Stick for 62 points, giving him a total of 118 points on two horses. Bill Beatty's total on two horses is 117 points. He turned in a 60 point ride Thursday on Nite Hawk.

Two saddle bronc riders were awarded re-rides by the judges Thursday. The re-rides will be tonight.

The second night competition thinned the ranks among steer wrestlers when three of Wednesday's leaders missed their steers. Bad luck plagued Dale Huff of Clayton, N.M., C.R. Boucher of Fairfax, Okla., and Glen Spillers of Amarillo.

Jim Robinette, steer wrestler from Lamar, Colo., got his steer down in 5.9 seconds giving him 11.2 seconds on two head. Claremore, Okla., cowboy, Bruce Hough, raced the clock for 4.9 seconds Thursday. His time on two head is 11.6 seconds. Sitting in third place with 18.3 seconds on two head is John Kamp. He shaved 5 second off his Wednesday time as he brought his steer to the ground in 8.9 seconds Thursday.

Calf ropers at the remaining two rodeo performances tonight and Saturday will face some fast times to beat.

Crowd favorite Lee Cockrell of Panhandle had an 11.3 second run Thursday to take the lead from Mike Stouffer of Aledo who turned in a 12.9 second run Wednesday.

Trailing Cockrell's time by tenths of a second was Sonny Victor of Valliant, Okla. with a time of 11.7 seconds and another Oklahoma calf roper, Gary Johnson of Henryetta, was 11.8.

Not one of the eight bull riders made it to the whistle Thursday as the rugged Beutler and Son bulls sent the cowboys scrambling.

The same slate of bull riders will be up tonight.

Cheryl Burk of Duncan, Okla., turned in the fastest barrel racing time of the 1977 Top O' Texas Rodeo, but a five-second penalty for knocking over a barrel pushed her down in the standings.

The barrel racing penalties plagued several of the girls Thursday with half of the contestants failing to leave the pattern intact.

A 17-second run put Lee Stine of Mooreland, Okla., into a tie for first place with Cindy Shipman of Duncan, Okla.

Results from Thursday's performance are listed below:

BAREBACK BRONC RIDING: 1. Ben Calhoun, Stephenville, 72; 2. Bill Beatty, Austin, 65; 3. Darryl Jones, Lubbock, 62; 4. John Gass, Wilson, 64; 5. Darryl Jones, Lubbock, 62; 6. Houston ace outduels Sutton

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros pitcher Joquin Andujar's dream season may have turned into a nightmare with only one out to go on Thursday night's 4-3 victory over the National League Western Division leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

Andujar, who was within one out of completing the game against the Dodgers, suffered a hamstring pull and may miss next week's All-Star game, although he vows he'll be ready if Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson should need him.

After a shakey start through the first three innings, Andujar, 10-4, held the Dodgers to one hit through the final five innings until he suffered the injury in the ninth inning.

"It's a pretty good hamstring pull," Astros team physician Dr. Harold Brelsford said. "It's hard to tell about hamstring injuries. He may be all right tomorrow and then again he may not be able to go to the All-Star game. No two hamstrings are alike."

If Andujar's determination is any factor, he'll be present for next week's All-Star game.

"I am going to pitch in the All-Star game," said Andujar, who came to Houston from Cin-

At Midland tourney NCAA champion in quarterfinals

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) — NCAA champion Scott Simpson of San Diego, Calif., takes on Mel Callender of San Marcos, Tex., today in the 74th annual Trans-Mississippi amateur golf tournament at Midland Country Club.

Simpson beat Mark Mattingly of San Angelo, Tex., 3 and 2 Thursday to advance to the quarterfinal round.

Other quarterfinalists include Oklahoma State University standout Lindy Miller of Fort Worth, Tex., John Grace, also of Fort Worth, medalist John Fought of Portland, Ore., Rod Nuckolls of Wichita, Kan., Scott Watkins of Scottsdale, Ariz., David Rasco of Metairie, La., and Mel Callender of San Marcos, Tex.

Watkins was a surprise winner Thursday over Dave Edwards.

the OSU golfer who tied with Fought for medalist honors in qualifying play earlier in the week. Watkins beat Edwards 3 and 2.

Nuckolls upset NCAA runner-up Lee Mikels of Arizona State University 1-up in a sudden-death playoff.

Callender, who had to engage in a playoff with 18 other golfers Monday just to earn one of the last three spots in the 64-man playing field, upended Blaine McCallister of Ft. Stockton, Tex., 4 and 3.

In other quarterfinal matches, Grace takes on Miller, Fought faces Nuckolls, Watkins tangles with Rasco and Simpson meets Callender. The tournament continues through Sunday at the 7,400-yard, par-72 MCC course.

Cubs are for real

NEW YORK (AP) — In the six seasons Bill Buckner spent with the Los Angeles Dodgers, playing against the Chicago Cubs was something special.

"It was," says Buckner with a wicked grin, "a chance to build up our average."

Buckner is on the Cubs' side of the fence now... make that the Amazin' Cubs, the first-place Cubs, who haven't finished in the National League East's first division since 1972 but led by four games as they begin an important four-game weekend series with the runner-up Phillies in Philadelphia tonight.

Picked in most quarters to finish fifth or sixth, the Cubs are amazin' everyone except themselves.

"This is a different team," says right fielder Bobby Murcer, a first-year Cub who is one of the major reasons for the improvement. "It has better defense and more punch than last year's team. We're just playing good, steady baseball offensively and defensively and we're getting good pitching."

Murcer, who spent the last two seasons with the San Francisco Giants after a six-year hitch with the New York Yankees, sees a similarity with the one-time Yankee dynasty.

"DeJesus, Ontiveros, it's the same as the old Yankee teams which had guys sitting on the bench who could play elsewhere but never got the chance," he says.

Shortstop Ivan DeJesus was up briefly with Los Angeles the last three seasons, but the Dodgers were committed to Bill Russell. So last Jan. 11 they shipped DeJesus, Buckner and Jeff Albert to the Cubs for Rick Monday and Mike Garman.

A steal for the Dodgers, the experts said.

Third baseman Steve Ontiveros came to the major leagues with the Giants during the 1973 season but shifted between third base, first base and the outfield and never played an entire campaign as a regular. On Feb. 11, the Cubs acquired Murcer, Ontiveros and Andy Muhlstock for two-time National League batting champ Bill Madlock and Rob Sperring.

A steal for the Giants, the experts said.

"The experts have been wrong before," says relief ace Bruce Sutter, who leads the majors with 23 saves in addition to a 5-1 record and 1.15 earned run average.

Senior Ruth all-stars face Lubbock squad

All-stars from the Panhandle - Caprock Senior Babe Ruth League are matched up against the Lubbock all-stars Monday night in the opening game of the senior Babe Ruth district tourney at Graham.

Manager James Davis' squad swept a pair from Top-O-Texas in Perryton to reach the district playoffs. Joe Davis of Pampa and Stinnett's Tommy Watson of Borger Fish were the winning pitchers in the 7-6 and 3-2 verdicts over Top-O-Texas.

The Graham tournament will be played under a double-elimination format. A game between host Graham and Plainview will follow the Pampa - Lubbock contest. Uvalde drew a first-round bye.

Pampa women win tourney

Pampa women were victorious in the Panhandle Playday Golf Tournament held at the Pampa Country Club Thursday.

Ava Warren shot a sparkling 81 to win low gross honors in the field of 106 lady golfers. Linda Stevenson, also of Pampa, won low net with a 64.

The Pampa team of the four best low net scores: Linda Stevenson, 64, Ava Warren, 65, Sue Winborne, 66, and Joan Terrell, 67, took top honors over teams from Tascosa, Huber, Ross Rogers, and Phillips.

Pampa also leads the series with a total of 547, with Tascosa trailing by nine strokes.

The next Playday tournament will be held July 28 at Huber.

Campsites open at Palo Duro

By J.D. PEER
Texas Park & Wildlife
CANYON — Reservations will be accepted on weekends for campsites at 17 state parks starting June 26 and running through September 4, 1977.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Commissioners on June 24 approved a plan for the reservation of 1,624 campsites at Palo Duro State Park and 16 other state parks scattered across Texas.

A total of 91 campsites will be available at Palo Duro according to Elton Baker, park superintendent, and for a $2 non-refundable reservation fee, park visitors will have a guaranteed place to camp. The reservation fee is in addition to the usual entrance and facility fees.

"The reservation system is experimental and generally includes those parks with heavy demands for campsites on summer weekends," Baker continued.

"Such a reservation system has become necessary because of increased visitation in state parks during the summer. Many visitors to parks drive long distances only to find no campsites available to them when they arrive. A reservation system could prevent them from being turned away and also keep visitation within capacities of the park."

A potential park visitor can either go to the park and make reservations or it can be done by mail or phone. Telephone requests for campsite reservations must be made at least seven days in advance of the first day of occupancy. If the fee has not been received within five days, the campsite will be removed from the "reserve" list. Reservations for camping after September 4, 1977 or any succeeding calendar year will not be accepted.

Campsite reservations may be made at the designated parks daily during the hours between 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. All the campsites at the 17 State Parks participating in the 1977 reservation system are available for reservation. However, those campsites which have not been reserved on any particular day, reserved campsites for which cancellations have been received, and those reserved campsites which are not claimed by 6:00 p.m. will be available on a first-come, first-served basis to campers arriving at these parks without advance reservations.

If a one day's user fee has been paid in advance, the site will be held until 2:00 p.m. the following day.

Those areas open to reservations at Palo Duro State park include Hackberry, Mesquite, Juniper, and Sunflower.

Campsites at all other State parks not participating in the reservation system are available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Additional information on state parks and other camping facilities in the Texas State Park System is available by calling Palo Duro State Park 806-488-3622 or by writing the park Route 2, P.O. Box 114, Canyon, Tx. 79015.

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — A 30-minute scrimmage produced no scoring Thursday as the defense dominated at the Dallas Cowboys training camp.

Free agent Keith Ponder, a rookie defensive back from Northern Michigan, flattened tight end Don Wardlow, an 11th round draft choice from Washington, so hard that the ball flew loose, drawing a loud reaction from players on the sideline.

Bailing off the hard way

Pampa cowboy Keith French added some gymnastics to his ride at the Top of Texas Rodeo Wednesday. Although it was a most unusual way to dismount, the judges were more concerned with how well French rode the Beutler and Son horse, Blue Yonder. He scored 54 points for the eight-second ride. (Pampa News photo by Ron Ennis)

When tent is home...

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

For many families the house takes off in the summer. The second home might be a camper or perhaps a tent. It's a great way to change the scenery on a small budget.

Tent living can be fun, but if you haven't given it a whirl before, rent the equipment. You may not like tent city or a member of the family might prove to be allergic to plants or it might be that children become a worry in woods or near water.

Some campgrounds rent equipment, and there are campsites that are set up with the number of cots you need, barbecues and picnic table. Inquiries to state agencies may reveal many kinds of choices. The U.S. Department of Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation has booklets that provide information on parks, rivers and other aspects of outdoor recreation.

There may be a limit to the number of days that can be spent in state parks, and you must apply yearly to get a place. If you don't connect with that kind of campsite, you will need to look for your own.

Before you decide on a certain campsite, you should find out whether your pets are welcome. Even so you may need to keep your dog on a leash of a certain length during your stay. You can understand that requirement when you are a camper yourself, but you may not want your pet tied up.

Remote areas exist where family and animals may not be within eye shot of other campers. But it is rugged living and you may not connect with water, electricity, sanitary facilities, laundry units. Be prepared to cope. An exceptional family without complainers might even enjoy its first experience roughing it in primitive fashion.

Plans can go awry. A man may visualize sitting about a great open fire spinning yarns for the family, only to find that such fires are banned in the camping area of his choice. The use of lanterns may be regulated. There may be restrictions on using trees to anchor ropes or wires. Dishwashing is prohibited at many water spots.

Many camps limit the size of trailers and the number of cars at campsites. It is worth checking out before you go, whether you go to a planned campsite or search for one on your own.

At some camps, bicycles and rowboats can be rented, but footpower is a good source of exercise for the average person. As for baggage, you should include rain clothes, warm sweaters, more blankets than you think you will need, flashlights, ice chest, bottle opener, bug resistor, first aid kit, fire extinguisher, vacuum bottle, cord, scissors, portable stove or charcoal grill and biodegradable soap.

If you choose a remote place to camp, be sure you have the name of a responsible contact nearby and that you know where the nearest telephone is located. In case of an accident you may need to find help quickly. If you are alone, you should tell someone where you are so that you might be checked out after a certain length of time.

The phrase "a red-letter day" comes from those Christian calendars in which feast days connected with the life of Christ or dedicated to Saints were usually printed in red ink.

Charismatic Renewal set

The People of Prayer and Praise, the Charismatic Prayer Fellowship of St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church, has received notice that advanced registrations have been urgently requested by the Directors of the 1977 Conference on Charismatic Renewal in the Christian Churches which will be in Kansas City, Mo. July 20 to 24.

An attendance of more than 100,000 persons is expected for the conference sessions in Arrowhead Stadium which will be the most complex convocation of its kind ever held in this country. Focusing on the dynamic renewal in the Holy Spirit being experienced by Christians of all denominations over the world during the last decade, the conference will host simultaneously the 1977 National Charismatic Conferences of the Southern Baptist, American Baptist, Catholic, Episcopal, Lutheran, Methodist, United Methodist, Presbyterian, Denominational Pentecostals, Messianic Jews, and non-denominational Independent Churches.

Ants bring Nevadan to his knees

By GARY PEDERSEN
Associated Press Writer
RENO, Nev. (AP) — George Wheeler has spent most of the last half-century on his hands and knees, the last 30 alongside his wife.

The Wheelers are myrmecologists — people who study ants. In fact they are two of only a dozen or so in America who study nothing but the tiny crawling creatures.

At 80, Wheeler still is going strong. He spends more time in the lab than he used to, and more time at the typewriter, as he and his wife put together yet another book on their speciality.

"I just fell into all this," said Wheeler. "I had a sixth-grade teacher interested in nature study. Later I attended Harvard and worked with a professor involved in ant study. He eventually turned over his work to me."

Since 1921, Wheeler has covered much of the United States and parts of Central America in search of the little devils. It makes no difference to him if they sting.

"I have to be careful with my knees. After all these years they have become sensitive from all this crawling around. It's not old age, it's just a hazard of the occupation," he said.

There are as many as 7,000 species of ants in the world, said Wheeler, 500 of them in the United States and 180 in Nevada.

"When people can name five species we think that's pretty good," he said. "But when we tell them there are 180 in Nevada, they are speechless."

Wheeler taught for many years at the University of North Dakota. He married his wife, Jeanette, once a student in one of his classes.

About 10 years ago when he retired, she got a job with the Desert Research Institute of Nevada and they moved to Reno. They have a lab with glass cases full of observation nests and extensive files.

And they have students to do some of their work.

"We send our students into the higher elevations to find samples. We are getting too old for that. But in the summer-time we still manage to get out to study ant nests," said Wheeler.

The couple is working on a book to document the ants of Nevada. That work is interrupted at times by other specialists asking for help on the Wheeler specialty — ant larvae.
