Lewis, Classiest Boxer, Hopes He'll Outspeed, Outpoint Louis

By DILLON GRAHAM AP Feature Service Writer

SUMMIT, N. J.—Joseph Louis Barrow is extravagantly fond of his slumbers and he is unlikely that his slumbers have been disturbed by the news that John Henry Lewis comes from a family that produced the first American challenger for the world heavyweight championship.

A less-tranquil individual might find his slumbers interrupted in the dead of night by the horrendous prospect of encountering a gladiator who sprung from the same family tree as Tom Molineaux. But not Joseph.

It is unlikely that John Henry had any scheme of frightening Joseph by tracing his ancestry back to Molineaux the other day while training at Madame Bey's camp. John Henry meets Joseph in a 15-round bout for the heavyweight title in Madison Square Garden January 25.

Uncle Tom's Record "Molineaux was my great-great-uncle," Lewis disclosed. "He was a slave in Virginia who won his freedom by beating a slave bully from another plantation. Then he went to England and fought Tom Cribb, in 1810, for the title."

John Henry started professionally in 1930 as a lightweight. He spent few hours in actual fighting but many hours in the gym practicing. And all the while he was growing rapidly.

Lewis Beat Braddock He beat Jim Braddock and other good boys as far back as 1932 but it wasn't until 1935 that he really came into prominence after winning the light-heavyweight title from Bob Olin.

Barrow New Dictator Of Yank Champs

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—Edward G. Barrow, 71 years old and a powerful character in every way, is the new president and absolute dictator of the world champion New York Yankees.

As a fitting reward for nearly 20 years of service with the club as its secretary and business manager, Barrow was unanimously named to fill the vacancy created by the death last Friday of Colonel Jacob Ruppert, whose wealth combined with Barrow's baseball wisdom to create the Yankee empire.

Though he left no explicit instructions in the matter, the colonel doubtless would be happy to know that the men he placed in charge of the Yankees at his death had passed on complete power to his old lieutenant. The colonel's brother, George Ruppert, declined the presidential post at the meeting of the estate's directors and assured the election of Barrow.

An active figure in baseball for more than 40 years and acknowledged to possess one of the shrewdest brains in the business, Barrow is the proper man to carry on the Yankees tradition of victory. Only the most important matters, like for instance the sale of a Yankee property, will be consulted with his three fellow trustees—George Ruppert, Frederick Grant and H. Garrison Silleck Jr.

Meade Riding Winners Again

MIAMI, Jan. 18 (AP)—Once the roughest, toughest jockey in the business, a winner but by no means more subdued Don Meade is riding winners again—with the philosophic conviction his enforced layoff of two and a half years was the best thing that ever happened to him.

"It made me stop and think," Meade said today at Hialeah Park, where he has booted home a dozen winners in six days. "I was throwing money away like it was water; I wasn't saving anything. When I think of what a fool I was." He sighed and shook his head.

Apparently at the height of his career, with a victory in virtually every major stakes race behind him, Meade was ruled off the turf for betting on horses other than those he rode.

Entries in the Golden Gloves boxing tournament are coming in thick and fast but there is room for another 20 or 25 boys. Nearby Panhandle cities are planning to send strong teams and every coach is confident his boys will cop the honors and get the free trip to Fort Worth to the State tournament.

Are there any endurance bowlers wanting to test their stamina? If there are, they might contact Roy Lynch and Dee Ford who were still going strong at last reports this morning after starting to roll at 8 o'clock last night. After 12 hours the two appeared to be fresh as daisies and decided to carry on.

Getting back to Golden Gloves. Some boys have wondered where to enter, but according to information received here, they should enter in the city conducting a tournament closest to their home. For instance, Panhandle, Borger, Stinnett, Perryton, Spearman, etc., are closer to Pampa than any other tournament center, therefore, the Pampa tournament is considered their tourney.

Borger Wins Second In Lakeview Cage Tourney

BORGER, Jan. 18—Borger Bulldogs cagers, who played basketball like Big Ten collegians the past weekend, face another heavy week topped off by a pair of conference tilts on foreign courts.

On Wednesday night Coach "Catfish" Smith's quintet, which won three out of four hard games in two days over the week-end, take a short jaunt south where they meet Jack Atkins' Panhandle Panthers. On Thursday night the Cats will return the visit here.

On Friday night the Bulldogs open a week-end road trip by playing Lubbock on the Westerners court. Saturday night they meet Plainview there in a return game. The Borgans defeated the South Plains Bulldogs here last Friday night, 22-16, in a contest featured by the locals' brilliant defensive performance, especially in the second half when Coach Mickey Pool's boys were throttled to two long field goals.

To prove that their victory over Plainview Friday wasn't just a flash in the pan the Bulldogs breezed on down to Lakeview and came within a hair's width of bringing home the beautiful first prize trophy. As it turned out, however, they did capture a very attractive second place silver trophy which now shines in their front hall case.

After winning their first two games the Bulldogs lost the final tilt to the second of two Lakeview clubs, 18-16, in the last twenty seconds. Just as the game threatened to go into an extra period, Lakeview scored and the game was over. The Bulldogs had fought an uphill struggle to tie the score at 16-16.

The close score reflects the highly improved caliber of the Bulldogs' squad because the Lakeview squad that beat them was an outfit thickly populated with veterans, it was composed of the best of Coach Bob Clark's two squads, and Lakeview has beaten Carey, always a power in that hot basketball section.

The Bulldogs opened on Saturday morning by defeating one Lakeview team, 31-16, and that afternoon trounced Quail, 25-13. Over the two days, in four games the Bulldogs scored 97 points to their opponents' 53.

Nearest to her score of 156 was Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., with a 79-81-160. Kathryn Hempel of Columbus, S. C., and Mrs. Helen Hicks Harb of Little Rock, Ark., were in a third place tie with 162.

Patty Berg Leads In Augusta Meet

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 18 (AP)—Patty Berg of Minneapolis enjoyed a four-stroke lead in the Augusta titlist's golf tournament here today, after cracking out a 78 yesterday, to duplicate her medal-winning performance of the opening round.

Two steady players throughout the campaign were Roswell Rober, center, and Hubert Allen. Both were named on the all-tourney five. This is Rober's first year at center, and it is Allen's first year of varsity playing. He played on the "B" team last year. Another boy who played a lot at Lakeview was Dale Drake, who fights at basketball as hard as he did at football this fall.

Coach Smith was glowing in his praise of his boys and said: "You really should have been down there and watched them go. They were hot."

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 18 (AP)—Donald Budge, former world's amateur tennis champion, stepped out two matches ahead of Ellsworth Vines last night, taking just 40 minutes to blast the world's professional champion, 6-3, 6-3, in the tenth chapter of their cross-continental tour. It was Budge's sixth triumph.

Vines, erratic in dropping his second successive match, found only his service working.

Bruce Barnes of Texas defeated Dick Sken of Hollywood, 6-2, 6-3, in the preliminary. Budge and Vines trimmed Barnes and Sken in the doubles, 6-1, 6-2.

SERIAL STORY

NO TIME TO MARRY

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

Yesterday, presenting her huge stock of brides' dresses to her sister, Janet, advised that Wall Street has been jittery. Suddenly she wonders about her investments!

CHAPTER X

JANET left Mr. Bryant's office, hardly able to grasp the dimensions of the disaster that had overtaken her. This quarter, it seemed, the A and S stock her father had left her, for years considered among the most reliable in the financial world, instead of paying the generous dividend on which she had learned to depend, had declared only a small fraction of it.

"Of course, it's bound to come back," Mr. Bryant reassured Janet. "When the general business picture clears up. But all that may take time; and it is even possible that the next dividend may be passed entirely."

In the meantime, it appeared, there was enough money in an emergency fund to pay Janet's immediate bills; and there were enough government bonds and other safe securities to furnish her with that Mr. Bryant playfully called "pin money" until matters adjusted themselves.

"How ever," Mr. Bryant said as she got up to go, "it isn't so serious a calamity as it might be. You are marrying a successful young man. I am sure that Mr. Barstow is resourceful enough to be able to arrange some way of financing your house."

"Of course," Janet said stoutly. "It was all my idea in the first place—my making the payments, I mean."

"But she was thinking, 'How am I ever going to tell Lance?' THE luncheon at Sylvia Grant's was an utter nightmare. There was a vacant chair where Cynthia was to have sat. Sylvia explained that Cynthia had telephoned that morning to say that she and Mr. Benton were taking the noon plane to New York, and of course she couldn't come.

When Janet went in, Leslie Pugh was saying, "Well, Cynthia doesn't let any grass grow under her feet. She's hardly known Timothy Benton a month. I suppose she just couldn't bear to see Cousin Janet—oh, hello, Janet. How sweet you're looking!" Sylvia, seeing that Janet had heard, put in lightly, "For that matter, Janet isn't so slow, herself. Look at the way she grabbed Lance off right under Cynthia's nose."

"The way I—what?" Janet gasped. "Do you mean to say you never heard that Lance and Cyn were thicker than thieves when you came home and walked off with him?" Leslie demanded.

Janet said, "Don't be funny!" And then stood for a moment, very still with the memory of Cynthia's stormy eyes when she had cried last night, "Why you little fool, you don't imagine it was Barney I wanted, do you?"

Some one asked, "And what about Barney McKnight?" "Oh, Barney just happened to be in the way and caught Cyn on the bounce. You can't tell me that either of them took that very seriously," Sylvia said.

Leslie Pugh observed, fitting a cigarette into a jade holder, "Well, if you ask me, Cynthia's done the smart thing. Here Timothy Benton's been back in circulation for over a year, and it never occurred to any of the rest of us that he was to be had. At least, Cynthia'll have a roof this winter."

Then they were talking about some one—Janet didn't hear who—who had "lost his shirt" in the stock market that week; and she remembered again that she would have to tell Lance about the payments on the house at supper that evening.

SHE had not intended to tell him until after they had eaten; but he opened the subject of the house almost immediately. When she had told him everything—even about Aunt Mary's trust fund, he said, his face very white, "But, Janet, I don't understand. I always thought your money was—that is, do you mean, darling, that you have—nothing left?"

"Practically, Lance—in comparison with what we counted on." "That man Bryant ought to be prosecuted." "It isn't Mr. Bryant's fault, Lance. Father bought that stock. Every one has always supposed it was fool-proof. . . . And this sort of thing has been happening to people all around us lately."

"Don't I know it? We lost two big contracts today for that very reason—customers playing the market. But there should have been some way to avoid this."

"Eat your dinner, Lance. Your steak will be ruined." "I—somehow I don't feel very hungry."

In some indefinite way he was making her feel as if that were all her fault. . . . Janet wasn't very hungry, either, but she said with a laugh, "Nevertheless, you're short-sighted to waste such a good flat. If this sort of thing keeps on, we may wake up some day and find ourselves glad to dine on sinkers and coffee."

In a moment now Lance would be laughing, too—his usual whimsical, humorous self. You could always depend on Lance's sense of humor. . . . But he burst out irritably, "For God's sake, Janet, don't talk like that!"

"Why not? I think it's rather stimulating to toy with the idea that we might be worse off."

WHEN he did not speak, but continued to sit, brooding over his untouched dinner, Janet went on, hesitating a little, "Lance, on the way down I thought of something that might solve the difficulty for awhile. Aunt Mary isn't so hard hit as I am. All she needs, really, is a little help to be able to stay at the Breckenridge. What I have left will be practically enough for that. We had planned to go to the hotel till the house was finished, anyhow. Why can't we just take my room and Cynthia's and split expenses with Aunt Mary? We'd save a lot that way. Then you could go on paying for the house just as you planned before you got your cut."

He was looking at her as if he hardly heard her—as if, deep within himself, he was busy with his own rapid thoughts.

In a moment, however, he roused himself. "And where would that leave us when the house was finished?" he demanded impatiently. "Exactly where we are now."

"But I thought—well, I thought that then Aunt Mary might come with us."

Aunt Mary would, she knew, however hardly she had protested the day before if she knew her doing so would help. "There are those two big guest rooms and bath—of course I couldn't have her crowded, Lance; she loves her things about her."

"But, Janet darling—be was obviously trying to control himself now, to be patient with her—"you know we'll have to do a lot of entertaining. I don't want to work for Halliwell and Benton forever. When the right kind of people see that house—live in the guest rooms over week-ends—they're going to see that they just have to have something like it."

You don't understand these things, darling, but an architect has to advertise if he ever expects to get anywhere on his own."

"Advertise?" Janet echoed faintly. . . . Was that why Lance had planned the white house with such loving care—as an advertisement? She had thought it was for her.

Lance was going on, his eyes carefully following a pattern he was tracing with a fork, "There's something I haven't told you yet, Janet."

Cooperation among newspapers, Chambers of Commerce and residents of a community because all are aiming at the same goal—a better community in which to live—was urged by Deskins Wells, editor of the Wellington Leader and president of the Texas Press Association, in addressing the monthly Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting here yesterday afternoon.

The speaker commended the narrowness of the United States Chamber of Commerce and lauded the work of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. He declared that the U. S. Chamber of Commerce has been guilty of catering to one section of the nation and forgetting the rest.

"Back your newspaper editor to the limit when he is right and call his hand when he is wrong," Wells urged. "Show me such a paper and I'll show you a community that is on the up-grade. Show me a paper where pressure is brought to bear to stifle expression of opposition and I'll show you a community on the downgrade."

Children's Curfew Works In Reverse

Instead of taking children off the streets it brought more on. "You'd think they had plotted the whole thing," said a puzzled blue-coat. "Right on the dot of 9:30 the streets are suddenly filled with boys in short pants and little girls in pig tails."

A brother officer thought enforcement was hopeless. "Might as well try to round up a flock of jack-rabbits," he grumbled. "They scoot around the corner and give you the razzberry. You chase 'em in the front door and they run out the back."

shop Lucey Scores Neutrality and Favors Aiding Spanish Rebels if Necessary, He says Over Radio

Declaring that "neutrality is immoral and isolation a myth," Bishop R. E. Lucey of the Amarillo diocese of the Roman Catholic church stated in an address recently over station KPDD that "we (the United States) should also be prepared actually to aid the rebels (Insurgents in Spain) if circumstances required intervention."

The text of Bishop Lucey's address which has evoked a great deal of comment among people of opposing beliefs in this section is published by special request. Persons who both agreed and disagreed with him asked that the address be published in full.

The text of the speech follows: The United States cannot go on forever without a foreign policy. We must soon decide whether we shall follow the President who believes that our country belongs to the family of nations or whether we shall follow those members of Congress who believe that we should stand alone and let the rest of the world stew in its own juice. Our choice lies between international cooperation and the so-called neutrality of isolation. A careful analysis of international relations today brings us to the conclusion that cooperation is a duty, neutrality is a crime and isolation does not exist.

U. S. 'Can't Be Neutral'. Let us dispose of the last two first. Why is alleged neutrality a crime? Because international relations are human relations and fundamentally moral. The commerce between nations may be cultural, scientific, economic or political but every human relationship is subject to the moral law and in our day that moral code is made a mockery. Some nations have decided to take what they want by force; others are using the threat of force; others are using the bribe of the triumph of might over right. It is unjust aggression; it is a return to barbarism; it is international crime; and in the face of such injustice the American people cannot be neutral; they are not neutral for they instinctively depise and condemn international murder and blackmail. The pretense of neutrality in the presence of crime is a denial of the moral order. It is the same as saying that we see no difference between right and wrong; between aggression and defense. Such an attitude accelerates a disintegration of international law. We must condemn unjust aggression for what it is—a crime against God and humanity.

Isolation a 'Myth'. But someone may offer this objection. The American people are inwardly opposed to aggression but outwardly we must remain neutral because these quarrels are not ours. We must cling to our isolation. The answer is obvious. We are no longer isolated because transportation and communication have conquered time and space. But even if we were isolated, since when has our country discarded her membership in the family of nations? We cannot resign as members of the human family any more than a father or a brother can throw off his membership in the domestic family. A brother may desert his family; he may even desert them; but he does not cease to be a brother. America has more power and more prestige than any nation in the world. We cannot escape from brotherhood. We have a heavier obligation than any other people to speak out in defense of the moral law which today is flagrantly violated by warlike governments. To attempt to refuse into the silence of neutrality would be to abandon the moral law to its fate in the hands of gangster governments. Ours is the right and the duty to prevent injustice if we can and to condemn it if it comes.

Sanctions Approved. Since neutrality is immoral and isolation a myth, what sort of cooperation should be given to peace loving nations? We should first of all make it clear to the world that in the event if unjust aggression the sympathies of the American people will be with the victims of aggression. That alone will give militaristic governments something to think about and will go a long way toward cooling their ardor for war. Secondly, in concert with other peace loving nations we should agree to invoke sanctions against unjust aggressors. If we had done this in 1930 the horror that has come to China would have been averted. Japan must sell us silk and buy our raw materials to effect the rape of China. The mere announcement of concerted action short of war would have been a preventive measure and decisive.

Cites Dictators. Some people sincerely believe that sanctions lead to war. But if we cannot establish sanctions against aggressors what is the alternative? Shall we leave the peace of the world in the hands of gangster governments? Shall we do nothing positively to keep the peace? Shall we allow Japan, Germany and Italy to prey upon their neighbors until in desperation the victims turn upon the tyrants in armed conflict? War in any part of the world is a disorder in human society. We ought to prevent it if we can but silence, neutrality and isolation are counsels of futility. The dictators hope that we will continue in our stupidity. The threat of sanctions will sober them.

Are sanctions really a warlike measure? If they are they have no place in a peace program and yet they form a conspicuous part of the papal peace plan of Benedict XV, the Pope of peace and Vicar of the Prince of Peace. On August 1, 1917, the Pontiff transmitted to the heads of the belligerent nations his program for a just and permanent peace. It was the third year of the devastating World War. The Holy Father wanted to end the carnage and make future wars, if not impossible, at least more remote.

Papal Peace Plan. The essence of the Papal Peace program is the establishing of an international tribunal for compulsory arbitration of differences among the nations and the application of sanctions upon any nation refusing to arbitrate or rejecting the decision of the court of arbitration. Here are the Pontiff's words. He proposes "in the place of arms the establishment of arbitration with its exalted pacifying function on lines to be concerted and with sanctions to be settled against any state that should refuse either to submit questions to arbitration or to accept its award."

The Secretary of State to His Holiness, Pope Benedict XV, was Cardinal Gasparri. In order to clarify the idea of sanctions proposed by the Pontiff, Cardinal Gasparri explained that the court should be endowed with effective power of "boycotting morally, economically, industrially and financially all countries manifesting a militaristic spirit."

Pope Benedict and Cardinal Gasparri were realists. They knew that international problems must be settled by reason or by violence. They advocated reason and rejected violence. But they also knew that militaristic nations prefer force to reason and the moral law. They knew that dictators and tyrants would flout the law of nations unless some preventive control were established that would make war difficult, unprofitable and unpopular. That preventive is sanctions.

Flays Land Seizures. Someone may offer the objection that no nation or group of nations should constitute themselves judges in questions of aggression and defense. It is sometimes difficult, if not impossible, to pick out the unjust aggressor. Granting that a conflict might arise with a background so involved that naming the aggressor would be difficult we can only say that the greatest care and the utmost charity must be exercised in all such matters. But on the other hand justice is often obvious. The conscience of the world cannot be called impotent in the field of human relations. Informed public opinion can be a gauge of international morality. A decent mind can still tell the difference between right and wrong. Citizens in every country of the world have stood aghast at the rape of Ethiopia, the massacre of China, the shotgun marriage of Austria to Germany and the forceful seizure of Sudetenland.

The Spanish Situation. Another objection may be posed as follows: Since you think that neutrality in the presence of injustice is criminal what about our neutral attitude toward Spain. Let me answer this by pointing out first of all that the Spanish conflict is essentially a civil war in spite of the fact that Russia and France, Germany and Italy have injected themselves into the scene. But regardless of all that even a civil war has moral implications and we must take our stand on the side of justice and civilization. In the Spanish conflict a people revolted against intolerable tyranny. The so-called government either perpetrated, permitted or was unable to control the most atrocious outrages against religion, life and property. The law of natural morality and the law of christianity would oblige us to support the rebels if they could not by themselves overcome the rampant anarchy and restore order in a reasonable time. But such is not the case. Generalissimo Franco is steadily winning back the territory occupied by the Reds and is establishing a government that grants religious, political and economic liberties to the people. Our intervention does not seem to be required. On the other hand to give aid to the forces of communism in Spain would be immoral. To sum up, therefore, I would urge that the Spaniards war our sympathies as christians must be with those who are fighting for christian standards of government. We would also be prepared actually to aid the rebels if circumstances required intervention. It should be noted, however, that what we should do morally and what we can do politically are quite different. Owing to the clever propaganda of the communists many of our citizens do not know the truth about Spain.

May I in closing call upon our citizens to take an intelligent interest in the tremendous events now being enacted on the stage of international relations. May I urge you in particular to remember that while ours is a glorious country and a well loved land we are not the only people on earth. The nationals of every country are our brothers whom we ought to help them when we can. Strangely enough by helping them we shall help ourselves and thus give promise of peace and security to all the children of men.

Five Charged With Murder Acquitted

AUSTIN, Jan. 18 (AP)—Five Starr County residents charged with murdering three men last March 6 were acquitted here today.

The defendants were Amado Vera Jr., Martin Solis, Elias Solis, Benigno Ramirez, and Zenito Saenz. They were charged in connection with the slaying of Estelito Elizondo, Jose Cantu, and Ramon de la Cruz near Rio Grande City, Starr county seat. Tried here last October on the indictment, the jury failed to agree.

The second trial jury received the case early Tuesday night.

Vera, who accepted full responsibility for the roadside slaying, and the other four defendants were members of a rival political faction of Sheriff G. A. Guerra of Starr County.

Elizondo and Cantu were former Starr County deputy sheriffs, and de la Cruz was a deputy sheriff of Starr County at the time of the slaying. Elizondo and Cantu were under indictment for murder when they were slain.

Vera and his companions were special deputy constables commissioned by the justice of the peace at La Grulla, Starr County community, to arrest Elizondo on a justice court warrant when the roadside gun battle took place.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO YOU IF A TIRE BLEW OUT AT 60?

YOU'D BE SAFER WITH HUDSON'S EXCLUSIVE AUTO-POISE CONTROL

WHY? Because this revolutionary mechanical invention (patent applied for) automatically helps to keep wheels on their course—on rough roads, in heavy side winds, even when a tire blows. The operation of AUTO-POISE CONTROL does not require special tires, tubes or extra equipment of any kind. It is standard at no extra cost on all 1939 Hudson passenger cars; NO OTHER CAR HAS ANYTHING LIKE IT.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO YOU IF HYDRAULICS SUDDENLY FAILED?

YOU'D BE SAFER WITH HUDSON'S EXCLUSIVE DOUBLE-SAFE BRAKES

WHY? Because, even if hydraulics should suddenly fail through accident or service neglect, the driver of a Hudson just pushes farther on the same foot pedal and STOPS. Thanks to Hudson's exclusive Double-Safe Brakes—two braking systems (finest Bendix Hydraulics and a separate reserve mechanical system) working automatically from the same foot pedal. Many letters in our files tell of accidents prevented by Double-Safe Brakes, standard in all 1939 Hudsons.
