Movie Distributors Violated Anti-Trust Law, High Court Says

Labor Spying Denounced By Senate Group

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13. (AP)—The Senate civil liberties committee recommended legislation today to stop labor spying and restrict activities of company police.

The committee, headed by Senator La Follette (Ia., D.), was sharply critical of activities by police employed by the Republic Steel Corporation and the Harlan County, Ky., Coal Operators Association.

"The experiences in Harlan County, Ky., and in the industrial communities where Republic Steel Corporation operates," the committee said, "indicate clearly that where private police systems are used as instruments of anti-union policy, they:

- (a) Abridge and violate the civil liberties of workers and other individuals.
- (b) Violate the rights of labor guaranteed by federal statutes.
- (c) Result in riots and bloodshed, causing loss of life and injury to persons and property.
- (d) Endanger the public safety.

"On the economic front," the committee declared, "the use of private police systems as agents in employers' anti-union policy causes disorganization of markets and interruptions in the free flow of commerce.

"The ruthless and brutal activities of armed private guards to prevent union organization, to give unfair competitive advantage to those employers who oppress labor, create bitterness between labor and management, lead to strikes and cause interruptions in the flow of commerce.

"The use of private deputies in an anti-union campaign is inimical to the maintenance of orderly representative government."

"Millions used" the committee which will disband soon unless the Senate grants more funds, said use of private police as an agency of labor policy is an attempt "to impose upon labor."

Professor Benes Arrives in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13. (AP)—The Supreme Court decided today that a group of leading motion picture distributors and Texas exhibitors had violated the anti-trust law through film licensing agreements.

In a decision by Justice Stone, the tribunal affirmed a decree by the northern Texas federal district court enjoining further agreements.

It was a 5 to 3 decision. Justices Roberts, McReynolds and Butler dissented and Justice Frankfurter did not participate.

The Department of Justice, which instituted the proceedings, contended eight leading distributors violated the Sherman anti-trust law by agreeing with Interstate Circuit, Inc., which operates theaters in Texas, to place restrictions on the use of films licensed to the competitors of Interstate.

Under the agreement, the government said, films shown at "first run" theaters operated by Interstate Circuit could not be shown at "subsequent run" houses unless the latter charged a minimum admission price of 25 cents for lower floor seats at night. The "first run" theaters charged 40 cents or more.

Some of the competitors also were required, the government said, to agree not to show the films as part of "double features."

Motion picture distributors involved were Columbia, Fox, Metro, Paramount, RKO, United Artists, Universal and Vitaphone.

Arriving in the U. S. to lecture at the University of Chicago, Eduard Benes, ex-president of Czechoslovakia, declared that "war can always be avoided."

The noted exile and Mrs. Benes are shown debarking at New York.

What are the major projects to be undertaken by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce during 1939? What did the Pampa Chamber of Commerce accomplish during 1938? These questions will be answered tomorrow noon in the basement of the First Baptist church when the regular joint luncheon of the Pampa Junior and Senior Chambers of Commerce is held.

Farris Oden, newly elected president of the Board of City Development, will preside at tomorrow's meeting. He will call on at least six major committee chairmen to make brief reports on their plans for an even more active 1939.

Reports will be of interest to everyone, not only members of the BCD and merchants but the public in general. President Oden urges citizens other than business and professional men to attend the luncheon because the 1939 program will take the backing of everyone, not a few.

Thompson Again Put On Oil Compact Body

AUSTIN, Feb. 13. (AP)—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel today re-appointed Ernest O. Thompson as Texas representative on the Interstate Oil Compact Commission.

In a letter to Thompson, the governor said he believed Thompson's experience would enable him better to serve Texas' interests than any other familiar with the commission's problems; could do.

Although the appointment did not have to be made at this time, he said, he considered it desirable to announce it now in view of the fact, he asserted, some "politically-minded" people had started reports Thompson would not be reappointed.

The governor said he was not interested in "playing politics," but wanted to serve the best interests of the state.

"It will be necessary for the legislature to take action looking to the extension of the life of this commission," he said, "and as the oil industry is one of the great industries of this state I would have very much to lose if politics were to enter into the question."

When the governor made an unscheduled appearance at the opening of the national flower show here and spoke briefly over a state-wide radio hookup.

"When the mountain would not come to Mohammed," O'Daniel said, "Mohammed went to the mountain. Well, the flowers are not coming my way very fast in Austin, so I decided I had better come to the flowers—in Houston."

The governor said he hoped during his administration Texas would enjoy balanced progress in the arts and sciences. He would like to see greater development of flower growing activities in Texas, he said.

Major construction of the new Canadian high school building will be done by Pampa contractors who presented low bids at a Works Progress Administration letting in Canadian Friday, it was revealed today.

General construction of the large building will be done by O. L. Boyington of Pampa whose bid was $135,000. Plumbing and heating in the building will be installed by the Glen Ragsdale Plumbing Company of Pampa whose bid was $15,000.

The beautiful new school building will be 141 by 229 feet, two stories, of brick and tile. It will consist of 20 class rooms and a gymnasium, Mr. Boyington said.

Mr. Boyington was contractor on the Combey-Worley building the high school auditorium and several grade school buildings here. Mr. Ragsdale has had charge of plumbing and heating installation in many large buildings in the city.

O'Daniel Would Merge Four State Bureaus

O'Daniel Says Foes 'Out On Limb' Which He'll 'Saw Off' Soon

C-C Projects For 1939 To Be Discussed

AUSTIN, Feb. 13. (AP)—Opponents of Governor W. Lee O'Daniel's 1.6 per cent general transaction tax had a warning from him today that they "are way out on a limb" and he is "about ready to saw it off."

O'Daniel defended the tax again in his Sunday radio broadcast, calling arguments against it "preposterous and untrue."

The talk differed from those of the two preceding Sundays in that the chief executive devoted most of it to non-governmental matters. He did not mention the Senate's rejection of two of his most important appointments, something no other governor in recent history has experienced, nor did he indicate what he would do with the bill to meet the impending crisis in old age pension financing.

His only reference to his campaign to abolish capital punishment, which formed the main part of the broadcast a week earlier was a brief claim of victory in the controversy about his statement relieving a convicted Negro murderer. He said the capitalist he fired during the previous program silenced one of the "Big Berthas" of the opposition.

Transmission troubles interfered with the broadcast for the second time in three weeks. Radio station WBAP of Fort Worth said it lost approximately the last half because of a water hose failure on an amplifier. Officials of the Texas State Network, which has 27 stations, said they lost a few words because of a "blowout."

O'Daniel applied the labels "preposterous" and "untrue" to statements the transactions levy is a pyramid tax, a sales tax, an impost on poor people exclusively or will keep industries out of Texas.

He said he would wait a little while about sawing off the limb supporting enemies of his plan in order to see "how many more hirelings of the special interests want to identify themselves by getting out of the same limb with the rest of the bunch."

Legislators were puzzled by the following paragraph of the speech: "They (enemies of O'Daniel's program) have made some charges about the transactions tax and in so doing have placed themselves in the position of admitting one of the most severe indictments against the commercial interests of this state could be imagined—an indictment that the producers and consumers should resent and demand immediate change in our whole commercial structure."

O'Daniel said he would explain it "at the proper time."

New Economy Move Advised By Governor

Department Of Agriculture And Livestock Urged

AUSTIN, Feb. 13. (AP)—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel today proposed, in a special message to the legislature, consolidation of agriculture, livestock raising, fruit growing and conservation and reclamation of state lands under a new Department of Agriculture and Livestock in furtherance of his economy program.

The governor termed his proposal an emergency legislation and took cognizance of the fact arguments would arise over maintenance of the separate bureaus, but added: "I believe that sound business judgment indicates that the interest of the state would be served if the work of the State Board of Water Engineers, the state reclamation engineer, the livestock sanitary commission, the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission and the work being done by A. & M. college in inspecting feeds sold within the state, were all packed in one department to be known as the department of agriculture and livestock."

He cited that the federal government had found that conservation of game and fish could be handled under general direction of the department of agriculture and added that "certainly there is much argument in favor of the thought that the preservation and utilization of surface water as well as underground water of the state, is a problem vitally associated with livestock raising and agriculture."

O'Daniel, as on his transactions tax, emphasized that the legislature had the option of substituting a plan of its own if his suggestions did not meet with their favor.

"The legislature may, in its judgment," he said, "determine that some of the agencies which I have recommended be left as an independent agency, and, on the other hand, they may feel that further consolidation could be affected by the addition of other state services."

"I am not in any sense seeking to urge and at the same time accomplish by following exactly the pattern which I have suggested, but rather have I suggested this pattern as a basis upon which to begin work designed to effect economy in the operation of the state government and at the same time render a more efficient service to the citizenship of this state."

Control of the proposed new department would be vested in a board to be composed of 31 members, one member from each of the 31 senatorial districts. The members of the board could be elected by the people or appointed by the governor.

Duties of the board would be to serve as a general policy determining board, among other duties; it would be their responsibility to select the commissioner of agriculture. Board members would serve without pay, except of actual expenses.

BOSTON, Feb. 13. (AP)—Mayor William E. Kane of Woburn, who once threatened to parade his city's drunks in a lion's cage, suggested sit-down strike of taxpayers might force reduction of municipal budgets.

"What is there to lose?" he asked the Boston real estate owners and tenants board, "among other things, the property will be lost in any event by tax sale, but if the tax bill is held by the city and no one will pay the rent, what is the value of a tax sale? So long as taxes are paid into the treasury, so long will all unnecessary and increased personnel remain on the public payroll."

Next Pope?

Cardinal Pacelli

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, above, papal secretary of state, assumed leadership of the Roman Catholic church on the death of Pope Pius XI and has called a world conference of cardinals at Rome to elect a new pope. Cardinal Pacelli becomes interim ruler of the world's Catholics until a successor to Pius is named. Pacelli is believed by many to be a natural and probably successor to Pius. He will be 62 next March 2. Among objections voiced to his becoming pope is the state of his health. Pacelli has a weak chest and each year sojourns in Switzerland's mountains.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13. (AP)—The result of two months work by auditors of Cornell & Co. Amarillo, was shown to the Gray county commissioners at the regular meeting, when copies of the auditors report was formally submitted for the commission's acceptance.

There were five copies of the report, which is dated February 6, on Thursday and Friday the auditors report was a subject of grand jury consideration.

Only business transacted by the commissioners at their meeting this morning was the approval of the regular monthly bills and the hearing of reports of the Standard and Cities Service oil companies, who asked that the commissioners consider a lower county tax valuation this year, in view of the two-day oilfield shutdown each week and the decline in the average price of crude oil from 98 to 86 cents.

The commissioners completed the hearing and the approval on the bills at noon and reconvened after lunch.

JUNEAU, Alaska, Feb. 13. (AP)—A Marine Airways plane, with five persons aboard, which disappeared while fighting a storm on a flight from Ketchikan to Juneau, was sought today by land and air.

Last word from the plane, a Fairchild pontoon ship, was received at 4:15 p. m. (CST) yesterday, when Pilot Lon Cope radioed he had encountered a storm off Grand Island in Taku Inlet, only a few miles from his destination. The plane left Ketchikan at 11 a. m.

With Cope were John Chappell, insurance agent; E. E. Ek, Earl Clifford, and George Chamberlain, all traveling salesmen.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 13. (AP)—Cul Fulgencio Batista of Cuba sails homeward from Vera Cruz tonight after 12 days as guest of the Mexican government. Gray Auditors' Report Handed To Commission

Hull Warns U. S. Attack Possible

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13. (AP)—An assertion by Secretary Hull that America would meet any foreign challenge with "determined defense and resistance" served today as a prelude to the first Congressional debate over the $552,000,000 armament program.

Hull told a radio audience last night that as long as there was possibility of attack it was "the sacred duty of any government worthy of the name to maintain adequate defensive forces."

The definition of "adequate forces" will become an issue when the House takes up tomorrow a bill to authorize $300,000,000 for new army airplanes, $23,000,000 for Panama Canal defense, and $22,500,000 for civilian pilot training.

Although opponents admittedly held little hope for making important changes in the measure, Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, Republican floor leader, advocated spreading the army's purchase of 3,000 new planes over three years instead of two.

Lengthening the program, he said, would prevent possible over-stimulation of aircraft production. Furthermore, he declared, there is no immediate threat of war in which the United States may become involved.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13. (AP)—Trans-Atlantic air travel moved a step nearer today with formal application by Pan American Airways for permission to inaugurate regular passenger service to Europe on a 24-hour flying schedule.

It takes the fastest ocean vessels four days now to make a similar voyage.

Unofficially, however, it was predicted if permission follows quickly, the first flight—from Port Washington, N. Y., to Southampton, England, with stops at Botwood, Newfoundland, and at the mouth of the river Shannon, in the Irish Free State—will be made within two months.

Southern route, via the Azores and the Mediterranean, is contemplated for winter operations.

Tell Defeats Carey 44-35

CHILDRRESS, Feb. 13.—The Carey Cardinals' three-year domination in Childrens County basketball circles was ended Saturday night when Nolan Maxwell's Tell Tigers turned on the steam in the first half to pluck the Cards 44-35 in the finals of the county tournament at Kilkland.

The Tigers will now meet the Cardinals, who won the county round robin, in a playoff series for the county class B crown and the right to enter the district meet here this week.

The Tigers turned in their season's best performance Saturday night and marched to the front in the initial period. Leading 12-5 as the second session got underway, the Tigers kept moving and stretched their margin to 28-3 at the half.

During the final two periods, the Cardinal sharpshooters tried vainly to overcome the big lead, but never moved within range. The game was exceptionally rough, and Referee Vernon Johnson called a total of 33 personal fouls. Bill Murray of the Cards and Doodle Smith and Wayne Pistole of the Tigers were ousted for too many fouls.

Little Seth McFather of Carey paced the scoring with ten field goals and Smith of Tell came home with 18 points.

The playoff series will start with the Tigers visiting the Cardinals Monday night on the Redbirds' floor, and the Carey unit will return the visit Tuesday night when the two teams meet in the Tell gym. Admission will be 10 and 15 cents.

Cites Situation

The governor cited appropriations of the various agencies and said: "Certainly I do not believe the $2,000,000 which the legislature is appropriating each biennium for these separate agencies is accomplishing all that could be accomplished."

He called for a plan "which will provide for these basic industries of our state, agriculture, fruit-growing, and livestock raising—a more coordinated plan of effective development. I believe that if such a plan is to be made effective, it must be accomplished by bringing together the farmers, stockmen, fruit growers and those of our citizens who are especially interested in developing the game and fish supply of our state, to the end that each of these may recognize that it will require the cooperation of all if the job is effectively accomplished."

He said approach by all citizens in a cooperative spirit to the problem, and not in a spirit of seeking to maintain and defend each of these governmental agencies as a separate entity, would result in definite improvement.

State's Duty

Governor O'Daniel termed Texas A. and M. college's responsibility of inspecting and testing feed stuffs offered for sale within the state, "primarily a police duty of the state and should be performed by a state department rather than an educational institution."

He agreed to having the college do the laboratory work but urged actual inspection and execution of the law controlling sale of feeds should be within the department of agriculture.

The governor said he had made no intensive study of the matter, but stated "it would seem little progress has been made in restocking the farms of the state with game and in replenishing our streams and lakes with fish."

"It seems to me it would be definitely profitable for the state to do more than it is doing to restock farms with game and to increase the supply of fish in streams. I believe these purposes could be effectively forwarded if we had a closer working relationship between the game department and the farmers."

Vote On Sales Tax Predicted

AUSTIN, Feb. 13 (AP)—The Texas legislature reconvened today for a busy week which may reveal some indication as to what sort of new tax will be considered first on the floor of the House of Representatives.

Headlining the program is a hearing starting Wednesday on proposed additional taxes for bigger old age pensions and other social security undertakings. The first plan to be considered by the House constitutional amendments and revenue and taxation committees, which will meet jointly, is Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel's 1.6 per cent general transactions levy.

Some persons were of the opinion the lawmakers would junk the transactions levy and ask the people to vote on a retail sales tax of about 2 per cent.

The tax hearing is far from the only matter of interest on the schedule. Others include: Hearing tomorrow night before House state affairs committee on bill to legalize horse race betting under local option (some leading opponents of the proposal predict they will be beaten in committee but insist they will win by a wide margin on the House floor).

Possible decision by Gov. O'Daniel on his new appointments as highway commissioner and life insurance commissioner (his first choices for these posts were rejected by the Senate).

Chamberlain Hints Franco Recognition

LONDON, Feb. 13 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain hinted today before the House of Commons at early British and French recognition of the insurgent regime in Spain but said no decision had been made yet.

The Prime Minister said with the situation changing rapidly it was impossible for him to give assurance the British government did not contemplate recognizing insurgent authorities as the de facto or de jure government of Spain.

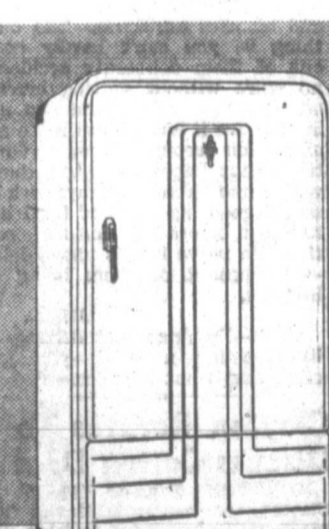

(A de facto government is one actually functioning, although not set up permanently or not yet recognized. A de jure government is a legal regime.)

Arthur Henderson, laborite, had asked assurance that recognition was not contemplated.

Answering another question by Henderson whether commons would be consulted "before any such fundamental change in policy is taken," the Prime Minister said amid Ministerial cheers: "The government must take the responsibility."

How to Be a Sweetheart...

..... Everyday

YOU don't have to wait until February 14 to express your love!

You were told before your marriage that the shortest way to a man's heart was thru his stomach. And were you told how to keep romance alive?

Moonlight and soft seductive breezes do their part in that make-believe-world we like to dream about, but, for 365 days out of the year to keep aflame those past sweet memories it is a problem that incorporates the every day routine things of life.

Don't think that it is such a difficult thing to do . . . No, all in all it is quite a simple formula. Based on the old saying: Men like to eat, and men like variety they like to be surprised. They want food that is tempting and different even more than they like low grocery bills. To your husband dinner time is, or should be, the high point of the day. It's the pivot about which his whole home life turns, and in the interests of his love and affection you just cannot afford to trifle with his appetite.

So, lady, if you want to be a "Sweetheart Everyday", cut loose and treat yourself to some luxury buying at the grocery! Hold on to the man you love! Feed him well!

Please Driver, Be Careful!

The following letter was penned and published by the editor of the Tebo Messenger in Oklahoma City. It might not be a bad idea for every automobile driver to consider this letter as carefully as if it had been addressed to him.

Dear Driver:

"Today my daughter, who is seven years old, started to school as usual. She wore a dark blue dress with a white collar. She had on black shoes and wore blue gloves. Her cocker-spaniel, whose name is 'Scout,' sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in the folly of education as she waved 'goodbye' and started off to the halls of learning.

"Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her—the girl with yellow curls—and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She told me about her teacher who has eyes in the back of her head—and about the trees in the school yard—and about the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus. We talked about a lot of things—tremendously vital, unimportant things—and then we studied spelling, reading and arithmetic, and then to bed. She's back there now—back in the nursery—sound asleep—with 'Princess Elizabeth' (that's a doll) cuddled in her right arm.

You guys wouldn't hurt her, would you? You see, I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut—or her head gets bumped, I can fix that—but when she starts to school—when she walks across the street—then she's in your hands. "She's a nice kid—she can run like a deer and dart about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time—I have to work to pay for her clothes and her education. So please help me look out for her. Please drive carefully—and please remember that children run from behind parked cars. "Please don't run over my little girl.

"Phil."

HUMAN NEED OR POLITICAL NEED? (Kansas City Times)

In his attack upon a House subcommittee for cutting down his request for the WPA, Mr. Roosevelt indicates that the committee members have put dollars above human needs.

Now if you will read "political needs" instead of "human needs" you will have the point. The danger to the administration in the committee's action is this: It comes at the virtual beginning of the session of congress. It is an extremely disturbing precedent. If allowed to go on it might become a signal for adverse congressional action on many appropriations and policies the White House desires.

Hence the alarming cry of human needs. But what are human needs in relation to the WPA? Who knows? Admitting without argument whatsoever that public aid should be given to the unemployed who have no other means of support, what does that have to do with maintaining 500,000 more or 500,000 less on the WPA?

Ever since the agency was started the WPA rolls have been juggled up and down, now off a million or so, now on—mainly as election time approached. The people who are made the victims of this kind of shifting are not under any illusions about its serving of human needs. Nor is the general public.

Here was the original formula of the WPA: It was to provide jobs for all the employables who were idle, leaving the states and local communities to provide by direct relief for all the unemployables. But the nation's jobless are estimated at 10 million or more, while the WPA has never employed more than 3 1/2 million, and that number for only a brief period. It has something more than 3 million on its rolls now. The subcommittee has cut 150 million dollars from the $75 million desired by Mr. Roosevelt to carry the WPA along at an average of about 2,800,000 on its rolls until the end of June.

But human needs can't be arbitrarily averaged in any such fashion as that. Furthermore, if it's human needs we're after, and if the WPA is the only way to meet them, then Mr. Roosevelt should be asking for double or more than double the amount of his request.

No, it's political needs—the need of defending the administration's prestige at the very outset of the session and the need of defending the most costly form of relief because it is an established administration policy.

We trust the subcommittee and the rest of congress get the point.

THE NEW JUDGE

Mr. T. Alan Goldsborough is a man of more than average vigor and enterprise. In his younger days he was counted one of the more aggressive lawyers of the eastern shore. But for two decades he has given the major part of his time and interest to politics and to his work in congress. And, as far as can be recalled, very few have ever attributed to him that quality known as judicial temperament—either in his active days at the bar or in his political career of the last twenty years.

In these circumstances it is natural that his appointment to the bench of the District of Columbia should serve to recall the very special loyalty to the President's political purposes which he showed during the attempted purge of Senator Tydings last summer. It is easier to think of Mr. Goldsborough's appointment to the bench in terms of personal favor—his back being scratched in return for his scratching of the President's back—than it is to think of it in terms of impersonal selection of the best judicial timber.

This is not strange, in view of Mr. Roosevelt's general attitude toward the bench. But it ought to be strange. It ought to be very strange that a President so vocally dedicated to the creation of a new heaven and a new earth should have regard for anything save peculiar fitness in training and temperament when he selects a man to administer exact and even justice between other men.

Sharing the Comforts Of Life ---

By R. C. Hoiles

HITLER'S WAGE IDEAS

With all the absurd things that Hitler has done, he realizes something that we do not seem to realize in the so-called democracy—that is, that the only possible way to increase wages and living standards is to have more production. Here in the United States, where we are governed by majority rule, we elect officers who pay people for restricting production, limiting the number of hours that people dare work, all on the belief that we can lift ourselves by our own bootstraps, spend ourselves rich or drink ourselves sober.

Until the so-called democracies realize that the standard of living is increased only by production and that those people who will not work at what others who are buying their services believe they are worth but insist on being paid what they themselves think they are worth, just so long as the so-called democracies believe in this principle, they will continue to get poorer and poorer. And the countries that know enough to tell men they will have to sell their services to the world's highest bidder and produce something, or submit to being conscripted in poor houses and compelled to produce what they can, will continue to grow and dominate those countries who contend that men do not have to work unless they get what they themselves think they are worth. So long as those who think their services worth more than anyone who has use for it thinks it is worth and can be supported by the fruits of others when they do not get what they themselves think they are worth, just so long will we have unemployment.

CONTROL OF MODERN ARMIES

As we see one country after another taken over by dictators and realize that nowadays, with the kind of machine guns the army has, as compared with the defenselessness of the private citizens, it makes one shudder as to how far a dictator or the voting majority can go in tyranny over men.

Before the day of the modern implements, in war, the citizens often had as good instruments of war as the government. It was much easier in the time of Paul Revere to overthrow a government than it is now, when the citizens have no machine guns and not even ordinary guns, while the army can mow them down with rapid fire machine guns.

The danger of an army deserting the dictator is now realized in Russia. It is reported that Stalin does out the ammunition to the army. Evidently he does not even have confidence in his army and probably he well might not have the way he treats his subjects. It is stated that this is the only place in history where the army has had its ammunition held in reserve from it.

It shows the state of fear of Stalin. Modern times, with modern warfare and modern ideas, make good government something worthy of infinite patience and application of every citizen.

ABSURDITY OF TAXING INDUSTRIAL PAYROLLS

If there is anything absurd in our taxing system, it is putting a tax on a man who is working in an industrial plant. This tax of necessity either raises the cost to the consumer or lowers the real wages of this worker. Especially is this an absurdity when it is remembered that there is no such tax on the worker who is doing work direct for the consumer, such as yard work or household work at the home. Invariably the man who hires help in his home to make it more comfortable should be willing to pay enough to give what is called security by the consumer. Especially is this true when the industrial production is obliged to pay for this so-called security for the industrial worker.

Of course any arbitrary tax is a form of state socialism that tends to make enterprisers and workers less courageous and less venturesome; and anything that makes people timid curtails their initiative and their willingness to take risks in the long run has a very bad effect on the morale of the people. It makes them more like animals and less like human beings. Man's progress came from trying new things, from being venturesome and from taking risks and not from seeking security.

Behind The News Of The Day

By BRUCE CATTON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—As little Peterkin remarked, it was a famous victory. The queer thing is that there is still a lot of argument over who won it.

Two years ago President Roosevelt called on Congress to enlarge and reorganize the Supreme Court. Congress argued, studied, and finally refused flatly to do any such thing. Today the famous court plan is dead. Not even the most ardent New Dealer talks of reviving it.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM VICTORY

Those who fought the plan say they did. The court is still the same size as it was before. It has been shown that a president who tries to alter or enlarge the court to get the kind of rulings he wants will get his fingers burned. The independence of the judiciary has been sustained.

But the other side remarks that somehow the court has been pretty kind to New Deal legislation since the fight began. Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana suggests that P. D. R. lost the battle and won the war, and asserts that the whole attitude of the court is different now. Congressman Wright Patman says briefly: "He unfossilized 'em."

Early in February two years ago the President made his proposal. In two nationally-broadcast speeches a month later he defended it. On March 10 the Senate judiciary committee opened hearings on the proposal.

Then—slightly more than a fortnight after the hearings opened—the Supreme Court upheld the Washington state minimum wage law. A couple of weeks later it upheld the Wagner Act. A month after that Justice Van Devanter announced his resignation—on the same day, incidentally, that the Senate committee returned an adverse report on the bill. A week after that the court upheld unemployment insurance and old age benefits.

A month or more of heated debate followed. Early polls had shown a majority of the senators in favor of the plan; now it was apparent that the tide was shifting. Senator Joe Robinson finally, on July 2, in-

Today's best story, if you haven't heard it is the one about Sidney Toler and his mother. . . . Sidney's mother is 91, but still spry. She sat in a studio projection room with her son while "Charlie Chan in Honolulu" was being unrolled on the screen. She was excited—it was a great big moment.

When it was done, she said, "Oh Sidney, that was wonderful! I enjoyed it so much. The quaint Chinese way you say things is very amusing. And just to think you're going to be famous all over the world!"

Outside the projection room Toler saw it was raining. "Wait here, mother," he said, "while I get the car." And she waited, calmly, promising, "I won't stray a step." . . . And that's all—unless you happen to look closely and see that the patient little lady was—totally blind. . . . For two years her sight had been failing. It went, completely, the week her father finished his first starring picture.

roduced a substitute proposal and debate got under way on that.

Then came the turning point. On July 14, 1937, Joe Robinson died suddenly.

Robinson had obtained pledges of support from a number of senators who at bottom did not care for the plan. Those senators looked on their pledges as personal matters between themselves and Senator Robinson, and on his death felt that they were released. President Roosevelt announced that the fight would go on, and go on it did; but the gimp had gone out of it, and by the end of July a vote to commit the bill—which meant the death of it—carried by a vote of 70 to 20.

There was scattered firing along the front for a while, but the plan stayed dead. In the spring of 1938 there was a brief flare-up, touched off when Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace took exception to the court's April ruling in the Kansas City stockyards case. The decision was interpreted as a reflection on the secretary, and he responded by suggesting that the court had been less interested in doing justice than in encouraging the lower courts

Add this to your list of 'cold-chill' tales:

A person in a certain Panhandle town says that his house is located next to an undertaking establishment. "Cats know when somebody is dead," said he. "Long about midnight, sometimes before I turn out the lights, the cats begin arriving in the alleys between my house and the undertaking parlor. Sometimes two arrive together. Sometimes only one is there at first, but as soon as one arrives it begins to meow and howl, and others arrive and set up a strange, long-drawn-out meowing. The meowing sounds more like whines and groans, and the cats just mill around under the windows yowling. It used to give me the creeps, and I'd try to run the cats off but they'd come back, and finally I got used to it, and it don't bother me any more. The cats come from every direction. . . . As I was saying, when cat's don't bother me any more, but I don't like cats and wouldn't have one—they'll suck your breath if they get a chance, and besides that they eat the mice beneath my window have an unearthly tone to their meowing. I could tell you a lot of tales about cats . . ."

How's Your Health?

DENTAL DECAY—I.

Why teeth decay is a problem of enormous scientific and practical significance. From the practical viewpoint, decay of the teeth is important because of the cost involved in repairing and reconstructing the "chewing mechanism," and because of the numerous other disease conditions that result from caries (or tooth decay).

From the scientific point of view, caries presents a baffling set of problems involving bacteriological, nutritional, and immunological (resistance to decay) factors. "The problem appears to be as old as medicine itself. Aristotle (384 to 322 B. C.) mentions the decay of the teeth, and asks a question which troubles the physicians and dentists of today.

"Why," wrote Aristotle, "do figs, when they are soft and sweet, produce damage to the teeth? Perhaps the viscous softness of the fig causes small particles to adhere to the gums and insinuate themselves into the dental interstices where they very easily become the cause of putrefactive processes." Substitute the word "fermentative" for "putrefactive" and the above statement may be taken as representative of the conviction of many of our leading students of the problem of dental caries, except that it should be valid for all sweet foods and not alone of figs.

In 1752 A. Tolver published "A Treatise on the Teeth," in which he said: "All kinds of sweetmeats and sugar contribute very much to the destruction of the teeth, because their juicy stick to the teeth; besides, sugars are of an acid, penetrant and corrosive nature. Those who love sugar and use it overmuch, rarely have good teeth."

The relation of sugars to dental decay was explained in 1890 by Dr. W. Miller on the following basis: "The presence of sugar in the mouth encourages the multiplication and activity of lactic acid. Lactic acid destroys tooth enamel and initiates tooth decay."

Mexican Government Buys Two Tankers

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 13 (AP)—The government oil distribution agency announced today it had acquired two tankers, one for Gulf service and the other for Pacific ports—a step toward eliminating one obstacle to sale of expropriated oil, lack of transport facilities.

A third tanker is under repair. "Three others are under construction in Italy, part of a barter agreement for Mexican oil.

to attack the government's quasi-judicial agencies. But after a brief interchange of compliments this fight died down, too.

When the court plan was first proposed, the supreme bench contained these justices: Chief Justice Hughes, and Justices Brandeis, Van Devanter, McReynolds, Sutherland, Roberts, Butler, Stone and Cardozo.

Today the line-up is: Chief Justice Hughes, and Justices Brandeis, Black, McReynolds, Reed, Roberts, Butler, Stone and Frankfurter. Three of these justices were appointed by Roosevelt.

The court is different than it was two years ago . . . in more ways than in the names of its personnel.

The court's new attitude toward legislation is no temporary change, destined to be abandoned as soon as the active fight for modification of the court died down. This was shown only a few days ago when the court threw out a public utility attack on the constitutionality of Roosevelt's pet TVA. Aptly enough, this decision was handed down on the very day on which Felix Frankfurter, third Roosevelt appointee to the bench took the oath of office.

These safety campaigns are directly responsible for the terrible increase in our population, on account of them saving so many lives here lately, that people are getting to live faster than they die, and if we ain't careful we're liable to find ourselves in the same predicament as Japan—too much population near here. The only thing is, you can't hardly have one of them deliberate accidents no more without getting arrested, and the only chance you got is to prove it was a legitimate accident, on account of you couldn't help what happened. And that's why some drivers always drinks several good big slugs of hard liker just before the accident, so's they kin prove it was unavoidable on account of them being so helpless.

SECOND PRIZE ESSAY (Editor's Note: The following is the second prize article in the senior group as to "What is A Reasonable Profit?")

What is a Reasonable Profit? In an economic system of free private enterprise any profit honestly and fairly earned is reasonable. Free enterprise is known as that type of economic system in which government confines its activity to the enforcement of business contracts and the suppression of fraud and violence.

Whether a profit is fair or reasonable depends not so much on the amount of the profit as on the manner in which it was earned. If the enterpriser has endeavored to restrain trade by monopolistic restrictions, or has resorted to unfair trade practices in order to gain an advantage over his competitors; or has indulged in misrepresentations and fraudulent devices to deceive customers, he has not earned his profits honestly and fairly. The problem for society here is not the size of the profit. The solution is not to reduce the profit, but to eliminate the unfair methods employed to achieve it.

To determine what constitutes a profit reasonable in amount for all industries is difficult, if not impossible. Large profits today may be compensation for large losses yesterday or tomorrow. Profits fluctuate widely in most industries from one year to another or from one series of years to another. During the World War many industries made high profits, but these were matched by corresponding losses before and after the war.

High profits frequently represent exceptional ability to forecast future consumer demands or future market conditions. This ability usually cannot be measured by any other yard stick than net profits. The enterpriser who can predict what should be produced, more effectively than his competitors is entitled to a higher compensation for his superior services. Greater efficiency of organization and management may be, and frequently is, responsible for a large net income on the books of a business enterprise. In business, as in competitive sports, a slight margin of superiority enables a competitor to capture many or most of the prizes. Under a management slightly more efficient than that of typical competitors land, labor, and capital are more productive than under management of ordinary ability. The difference in profits between the two may be due to efficiency alone.

To establish a rate of profit applying to all enterprises alike would be obviously unjust. Profits honestly and fairly earned in a free competitive system are compensation for risks assumed or superior services performed. Violation of this principle would not only stifle individual initiative but would choke free enterprise.

A tasty wrestling dish has been prepared by Promoter Cliff Chambers for tonight at the Pampa Athletic arena, beginning at 8 o'clock. He is throwing an ace in the hole at Tiger Billy McEwin, king of the roughsters. Name of the ace is Alan Plummer of Beaumont, former Texas Tech football star.

Mobeetie Favored To Enter Finals In District Meet

Hard to Stop

Dale Sears, Southern California center in white suit, made a desperate attempt to bat the ball down, but Bob Ogilvie, gigantic California pivot man, got up in the air just a little higher to dump in this one-hand push shot as the Bears beat the Trojans, 36-34, at Los Angeles.

Mobeetie's Hornets may be the lucky team of the district tournament which will be played here Friday and Saturday.

The Hornets Saturday night won the Wheeler county championship, and are the right to enter the district meet here. They defeated Wheeler by eight points and Shamrock by 2 points in the county tournament.

However, Mobeetie's luck may lie in the fact that the drawings placed the Hornets in the bottom bracket in which only four teams are entered. Because Mobeetie has already defeated the strongest teams in that bracket the Hornets are favored to go to the finals.

Mobeetie's first game will be with the Lipscomb county champions at 3 o'clock Friday. At 9 o'clock Saturday night the winner of the 3 o'clock game which should be Mobeetie will play the winner of the Gray-Hutchinson game. Either LeFors or McLellan will represent Gray county. The championship game will be played here tomorrow night. Phillips will represent Hutchinson county.

Borger for the first time will enter as a center unit, as Pampa's Harvesters have done since the district was organized.

Mobeetie has one of the strongest teams in the district and will be hard to take out. LeFors could become a menace to Mobeetie's supremacy in the lower bracket by beating McLean tomorrow night. LeFors started out with one of the best teams in this section, but slumped several times. However, they justified their early season appearance in their last game with McLean which they won by a big score. If LeFors is "on" they have a good chance to win tomorrow night, and if they win Mobeetie had better look out in the lower bracket, despite the fact that Mobeetie has defeated LeFors this year.

Outstanding teams of the tournament should be Spearman, Mobeetie, Borger, Pampa and the Carson county champions, either White Deer or Panhandle.

Tiger Football Captains Named

McLEAN, Feb. 13.—The announcement of the election of Tiger football captains for the coming year was made by Coach C. E. Christian at the annual football banquet of McLean high school Thursday evening in the basement of the Presbyterian church. They are John Bond and Randy Mantooth.

Jerry Malin, sports editor for the Amarillo Daily News, was the main speaker of the evening. Opal Thacker, president and a leader of the Tigerette pep squad, was toastmistress. Response was given by Supt. C. A. Crier.

"The Genius," pianologue, was given by Ermadell Floyd. A trio of Louelle Cobb, Naomi Hancock, and Evonne Floyd, with Ermadell Floyd as pianist, sang several selections.

The highlights of the 1938 football season were given by Coach Dunlap with the help of the Tigers and Coach Christian introduced the 1938 Tigers.

Introductions of the 1938 Tigerettes and officers, and 1939 officers were made by Miss Julia Slough, sponsor of the group, led by Leaders Naomi Gunn, Opal Thacker, and Velma Mann. By several pep songs and yells. In response, Miss Dale Smith, music instructor, led the entire party in singing "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

"That Good Old Tiger Line," the school song, was sung and the closing number and dedicated to the senior football boys.

Louelle Cobb and Evonne Floyd furnished music during the meal.

The banquet was sponsored by the football mothers of whom Mrs. C. S. Doolen was chairman.

SMU, Texas Tied For Cage Lead In Loop

By WILLIAM T. RIVES
Associated Press Staff
Whitney Bacus, young in years but wise in basketball experience, looked over the Southwest conference field a month ago and said a team could lose two games and still win the championship.

Which observation looked rather vacant at the time. How could his own team, a crew of seniors with a high scoring average, fail to haul down the flag with a minimum effort, which would not include losing two games?

How well Southern Methodist's coach, the conference's youngest mentor, had the situation doped out is shown by a glance at the standings.

The leading teams, Southern Methodist and Texas, have lost two games and the season is little more than half over. No less than five clubs of the seven-team cluster that forms the conference could win the title.

Southern Methodist, preponderant favorite at the season's beginning, collapsed last week, dropping its only two games, Texas, meanwhile, gobbled up three opponents on a wrecking road trip and now will finish the schedule on its home court.

Here's the jumbled situation, by teams, including last week's play:

Southern Methodist—won five, lost 2. Fell before Texas 33-27, then was floored in cruel fashion by fourth-place Baylor, 60-35. Faces two of its toughest opponents this week, Texas at Austin Wednesday and Rice at Houston Saturday. Meets A. and M. abroad and Baylor and T. C. U. at home, the next fortnight.

Texas—won five, lost two. Belted out S. M. U. Texas Christian, 62-28 and A. & M., 41-37 last week. Meets S. M. U. Wednesday and Baylor Saturday, then awaits the visits of T. C. U., Rice and A. & M., has shown probably the best team play of the conference.

Rice—won four, lost two. Idle last week, but mixes it with T. C. U. on Thursday and S. M. U. Saturday, both games at home. Sparked by high-scoring Frank Carswell, forward and Dumpt Bert Selman, guard, the Owls have the toughest row to hoe, with Baylor, Texas and Arkansas still ahead of them after this week.

Baylor—won five, lost three. Bumped S. M. U. in its only game of last week. Shown good form generally except for dropping a two-game series to improving Arkansas. The Bears also have tough sledding ahead, meeting A. and M. at Waco Tuesday, Texas at the University of Texas, and Rice and S. M. U. the next two times out.

Arkansas—won five, lost three. After a weak start, has punched out enemy with high-powered attack led by Long John Adams, sophomore center and Randy Mantooth, forward. Scored 70 points in a 77-57 victory over T. C. U. twice last week, 44-32 and 51-38. Is idle this week, but meets A. & M. at home in a two-game series the following week-end, and Rice at Houston in another series March 1 and 2.

A. and M. and Texas Christian—out of the running. A. & M. has lost five of its six games, including last week's clash with Texas, and T. C. U.'s pair of defeats at Arkansas' hands kept their losing streak intact. The Frogs haven't scratched out a win yet.

Football Player Deals Pending

CHICAGO, Feb. 13 (AP)—The National Pro Football league coaches and officials have gone, but the whispers linger on.

The circuit's annual winter meeting, closed yesterday with several player deals still pending and likely to be consummated within a few days.

Dutch Clark, Cleveland's new coach, sent Vic Markov, Giant tackle, to Brooklyn for Gene Moore, center of the University of Colorado eleven that starred Whizzer White. He also obtained Tackle Jack Hadden from the champion New York Giants for Fullback Carl Littlefield, and traded Tackle Dick Zoll to the Green Bay Packers for Dick Yerby, University of Oregon end obtained in the draft.

The pros took no cognizance of reports a rival money league was in the making, taking a stand against adding members to the present 10-team loop.

The league went along with the colleges in regulating forward pass play, especially pertaining to screened aerials; assured the Chicago Tribune of its cooperation in promoting the annual all-star game between college seniors and the league champion, and authorized physical instruction for officials.

A determined stand was taken against unregulated exhibition and post-season games.

Arkansas Boy Wins Texas Open Golf Tournament

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 13 (AP)—Leann E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, an amazing new character in the professional's winter golf swing, not only caressed some $3,600 in prize money today but also threatened to win the coveted Henry Vardon Memorial trophy as the outstanding competitive player.

The Arkansas boy quit caddying only a few years back to make more money playing the game. Yesterday he won the Texas open championship after dipping 13 strokes below par to score 21 spectacular 271 for 72 holes and beat the fastest field of the tour.

First figures on the P. G. A. Vardon Memorial trophy race show Harrison, also winner of the Bing Crosby Open and loser of the Oak-Haven in a playoff to Dick Metz, far in front.

Harrison, who threw in a couple of 66's in smashing the old Texas Open record by six strokes, headed for New Orleans and the $10,000 Crescent City Open, starting Thursday. His money winnings since Jan. 1 total $3,601.50—and only a few years back he was carrying bags around a Dallas course for $1 a round.

Harrison finished two shots in front of Sammy Burd of Philadelphia, former New York Yankee outfielder.

Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., blew his chances on the seventeenth hole when, one strike behind Harrison, he took a bad six on a par four hole. He finished third with 274.

Fourth was Jimmy Thompson, Shawnee, Okla., 275; fifth, National P. G. A. Champion Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., 276; tied for sixth, Ben Hogan, White Plains, N. Y., and Harold McSpaden, Boston, 277; seventh, Horton Smith, Chicago, 278; eighth, Clayton Hascup, Greensboro, N. C., 279; tied for ninth, John Barnum, Ellensburg, Texas, amateur, and Lawson Little, San Francisco, 280; tied for tenth, John Bulla, Chicago, and Ab. Espinosa, Chicago, 281; eleventh, Johnny Parell, Lake Tahoe, Calif., 282; tied for twelfth, Herb Picard, Houston, 283; Ralph Guldahl, Madison, N. J., Gene Sarazen, Brookfield Center, Conn., and Frank Walsh, Rumson, N. J., 283.

New World's Pole Vault Record Set

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (AP)—After a week-end which saw plenty of action and two new world's indoor records, Cornelius Warmerdam's pole vault of 14 feet 6 1/8 inches at Boston, and Barney Ewell's 5.1 seconds 50 yards at Philadelphia, the track world turned toward the second major metropolitan meet today. This is the New York Athletic club's 70th anniversary indoor meet Saturday night.

The results of the week-end's three meets, the Penn. A. C. and 7th Regiment affairs Friday night and the New York A. C. meeting Saturday, show that the athletes have hit top form.

Of prime interest to those who like to see seconds and fractions of seconds shaved from world standards are the mile and two-mile events of the New York A. C. meeting today. Glenn Cunningham, of course, will run in the Baxter mile. His field includes Chuck Penske and Archie San Roman.

Cunningham's two winning miles of the past week-end, 4:15.6 at Philadelphia Friday and 4:14.7 in the Hunter mile at Boston Saturday prove he is in top form for any competition.

The two-mile has a field equally as good. Leading the American contingent is Don Lash, former world record holder with 8:58. Other domestic runners are Tommy Deckard, the veteran Joe McCluskey, Forest Efav of Oklahoma, and George de George of the New York Athletic A. C. The foreign menace is Miklos Szabo, Hungarian, who holds the world's record of 8:58 and who is expected to show a fine performance here in the winter of 1937.

The Halpin half-mile has drawn John Borican, who was disappointing in his mile debut against the Rideout twins, Blaine and Wayne. Borican finished a poor third as Blaine slipped off a nail 147 rods in the flat 74th Regiment Army track, but he is good enough to beat his competition at this distance. Charles Beetham Ross Rush, and Sanford Goldberg are entered.

1938 Cage Leaders Still Going Strong This Season

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (AP)—The 1939 college basketball team is following much the same pattern in the major conferences and groups as it did in 1938.

The leaders and contenders are, in general, the same teams that were on top a year ago. Most of the exceptions come in those conferences where anything may happen before the close races are decided. And that kind of races are the rule in such circuits as the Big Ten, Big Six and Southwest conference.

The only really notable collapses so far are those of Temple, the best team in the East a year ago but now far behind in the eastern intercollegiate conference, and Stanford, which is running a bad third to California and Southern California in the Southern section of the Pacific Coast circuit.

Here are the 1938 champions and the current leaders (won and lost records in brackets):

Eastern League	1938	1939
Eastern Conference	Dartmouth (8-4)	Dartmouth (5-0)
Big Ten	Temple (9-1)	Georgetown & Carnegie (4-1)
Big Six	Purdue (10-2)	Indiana (5-1)
Missouri Valley	Kansas (9-1)	Oklahoma (4-2)
	Oklahoma A. & M. (13-1)	Oklahoma A. & M. (8-1)
Southwest	Arkansas (11-1)	Southern Methodist & Texas (5-2)
Big Seven	Colorado & Utah (10-2)	Colorado (8-1)
Pacific Coast (Southern)	Stanford (10-2)	California (5-1)
Pacific Coast (Northern)	Oregon (14-6)	Oregon (11-1)
Southern	(X)-Duke	Wake Forest (12-2)
Southeastern	(X)-Georgia Tech	Florida (4-1)
	(X)—Duke and Georgia Tech	won championships in tournament playoffs.

150 Six-Man Grid Teams Already Entered In Interscholastic League

AUSTIN, Feb. 13.—A year-old infant in State athletic annals, six-man football in Texas has moved to the front of the national picture. R. J. Kidd, athletic director of the University of Texas Interscholastic League, stated here today.

Expecting more entries before September, the league already counts 150 "half-pint" football teams in fifteen or more districts ready for next fall's competition.

Injury Gave Elden Auker His Style

LAKELAND, Fla., Feb. 13 (AP)—Elden Auker, the Boston Red Sox' new pitcher, figures the luckiest break of his career was a college football injury which makes him throw a baseball with an underhand delivery.

Leaking over the list of major league hurlers with sore arms, the tall right-hander was inclined today to be thankful for his unusual style.

"I believe I throw with less strain than nearly any pitcher in the league," he declared. "When you think about it, it's a lot more natural to throw underhand than overhand. If you don't believe it, just watch a kid when he gets his first ball. He uses an underhand swing."

M'Lean Quint Will Battle LeFors Team

Two visiting basketball teams will appear on the floor of the Pampa high school gymnasium tomorrow night when the LeFors Pirates and McLean Tigers battle for the Gray county championship and the right to enter the district tournament here Friday and Saturday. Game time will be 7:30 o'clock with admission 10 cents for students and 25 cents for adults.

The two teams are deadlocked in the race for the title. McLean defeated LeFors 30 to 23 in a game played at McLean. The LeFors Pirates evened the count in a game played at LeFors, 35 to 17. Neither team would play the deciding game on the other's floor, so coaches agreed to come to Pampa.

"We are delighted to allow the teams to use the gymnasium for their playoff game," Coach Odus Mitchell of the Harvesters said. "The teams, according to past performances, are very evenly matched. The winner will be a threat in the district playoff here."

Coach Francis Smith of the Pirates will start the game with Fite, Carruth, Lee, Ellington and Johnson in the lineup while Coach Cricket Christian of the Tigers will use Bond, Humphries, Carpenter, Lee, and Trimble.

Eleventh man on the floor for the playoff will be Garrison Rush, coach at Shamrock.

Meade Will Ask Another Chance In New York

By GAYLE TALBOT.
HIALEAH, Fla., Feb. 13 (AP)—New York racing commissioners are going to find it cruelly hard to say no to Don Meade when the little jockey stands before them in early April with his cap in his hand and asks them to restate his bid.

"I know, because we sat together for a long time out at Hialeah and he looked me in the eye and said he was going straight from here on, so help him."

"No, I won't blame them if they turn me down," he said, earnestly. "But I'll be terribly disappointed. I've come this far on the way back and I'd like to go the rest of the way."

It scarcely is necessary to recall that Meade was banished from all tracks nearly three years ago when he was caught betting against his own mounts. Nor that he was reinstated in Florida this season and has been riding like a maniac, winning 50 of his first 173 races.

When we met he just had hurried to the track from the bedside of his wife, who had undergone a serious operation the previous night.

"I've never denied any of the things they accused me of," he said. "I did it and I have no excuse, except that I was a tough kid and didn't know any better. But now I've learned my lesson and all I ask is a chance to go straight."

"If the New York commission will re-instate me for the Jamaica meeting I really think all the others will give me a chance, too."

Miami Doubles Finals

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 13 (AP)—The Miami doubles team of Gardner Mulloy and Charles Mattman seeks to upset the favored Los Angeles, Calif., combination of Gene Mako and Jack Tibbalt in the men's finals of the Everglades Tennis tournament today.

During his enforced idleness, Meade's weight increased from 102 to 108 pounds and he mostly attributes his sensational comeback to the additional strength in his arms.

O'Daniel Setbacks Due To Non-Political Connections

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL. AUSTIN, Feb. 11 (AP)—The next move in the business of filling important appointive offices of the state government is up to Governor W. Lee O'Daniel. The capital is wondering what it will be.

The Senate smashed precedent last week when it rejected the governor's appointment of Truett Smith of Tahoka as life insurance commissioner, because previously it had refused to confirm Carr P. Collins of Dallas as highway commissioner and two important nominations of a governor never before had failed of acceptance.

In addition to puzzling over whom Governor O'Daniel will next name to the life insurance and highway commissionerships, legislative circles have buzzed with discussions of circumstances surrounding and causes underlying the rejections.

A rejection always is unusual. The normal thing is quick confirmation. As a rule, there is little disposition in the Senate to oppose a governor's selections because the principle that he has a right to put the men he wants in appointive offices is recognized.

The consensus among legislators and experienced observers seems to be on these factors: 1. In the case Collins, his residence was in the wrong part of the state. The Senate did not want another highway commissioner from Dallas, Harry Hines already having part-time residence there.

In the case of Smith, a peculiar political situation in the Senate was involved. Smith is a former law partner and warm friend of Senator G. H. Nelson, who ran against Coke Stevenson for the lieutenant-governorship. In the first primary, Stevenson was high man, Pierce Brooks was second and Nelson was third.

Stevenson as lieutenant governor also is president of the senate and its presiding officer. He appoints committees, including the Senate's half of conference committees, and has other means of exercising influence. A lieutenant governor is a bad man for a senator to make an enemy of.

And, for that matter, nobody in the Senate is an enemy of Stevenson. He is extremely popular. Said the Wisecracks, the rejection of Smith was a Stevenson-Nelson issue, and a tribute to Stevenson, and in no way a slap at the governor.

3. Governor O'Daniel, who has said he knows nothing about politics, either did not know how to determine the extent of Senate opposition to Collins and Smith, or his calculations went awry. Governors usually are very careful to ascertain whether men they wish to appoint to important offices are acceptable to two-thirds of the Senate.

No Political Backers. If O'Daniel attempted to gauge Senate sentiment in advance, no one disputes he failed.

Conclave To Choose Pope Arriving Now

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 13. (AP)—Thousands more passed the pier in St. Peter's Cathedral for a last view of Pius XI today as the conclave of cardinals began formal preparations for their conclave which will choose a new pope.

Foreign cardinals who will participate in the election continued to arrive and today the congregation received the man charged with enforcing the secrecy of their gathering, Prince Don Ludovico Chigi-Albani.

Prince Chigi acted at the election of Pius. Members of his family—as marshals of the papal conclave—have had the responsibility continuously since 1712.

Those who came early stayed for the funeral mass, the second of nine successive daily services. Archbishop Pietro Piani, canon of the Basilica, celebrated the mass today.

An estimated 200,000 filed past the body of the pontiff in a last view of the sacrament Sunday. Flames of 24 tall candles lighted the pier.

The funeral couch was of red velvet. The body was dressed in rich red soutane with the lace edge of a white robe showing beneath. The feet were red-slipped and a cloth of gold mitre was the head dress.

Tomorrow at 4 p. m. the body of the pontiff will be taken from the open bier, placed in a triple coffin and entombed in a crypt of the great Basilica where Pius will be among scores of past popes, kings and prelates.

Achille Cardinal Lienart arrived from France and Michael Cardinal Von Faulhaber from Germany Sunday. Most of the Italian cardinals were here, and others, including the American prelates, were en route.

Upon the arrival of the Americans depended start of the election conclave which Vatican prelates said could be not earlier than Feb. 26 or later than March 1. Speculation increased on the choice of a successor and some diplomats thought there existed possibility of a long conclave.

Italians have been most prominently mentioned but should a deadlock develop among them, church informants said a compromise might result—election of one of the older cardinals more isolated than his younger colleagues from present world events.

SERIAL STORY

WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

BY LOUISE HOLMES

Yesterday: The fates begin to work in Harker's Department Store where a contest to make women beautiful is planned. Does it affect Susie?

CHAPTER VII
IT was late in September that Susie, still unaware that her cry had been heard and heeded, was gently guided toward her destiny. Afterward she remembered the date and called it her birthday because that was the day she began to live.

She was tending her waffle irons, not thinking, Susie seldom thought any more, when two girls entered the shop and sat at the counter near her. One of the girls, Susie had heard her called Dottie, was proudly initiating the other, obviously a newcomer, into the joys of the Waffle Shoppe.

"Susie's waffles simply melt in your mouth," Dottie said. And, to show her familiarity, added, "How do you make them, Susie? I'd like the recipe."

Susie had been asked a hundred times for the recipe and always she gave it, up to a certain point. There was a little trick about making waffles—that she had learned from her mother. The little trick meant money to Susie. She guarded her secret even from the manager. Taking a typewritten slip from the cupboard she handed it to Dottie.

"Don't grease the iron," she said mechanically. "Have it very hot." Her voice was dull, flat. Dottie thanked her and she and her friend chatted on. The girls did not know, nor did Susie, that the fates had chosen them for handmaidens, that they would move into the radius of Susie's life long enough to change it, then be gone forever, their usefulness ended.

After finishing their waffles the girls turned to scanning a Chicago paper, reading the football line-ups and schedules, looking for familiar names. As far as Susie was concerned they had already gone. She heard their conversation, but it drifted across her tired, discouraged mind without making any special impression.

TURNING the page Dottie glanced at the Harker smash advertisement, exclaiming over the smart, clever sketches. Suddenly she laughed, pointing to a boxed notice in the center of the layout. Dottie read, "Would you like to be beautiful?" Then both girls laughed. They were both beautiful swans and they knew it.

"We should show this to Florence," Dottie said. "She could certainly use a little beauty." "Just try it and see how quick your head comes off," her friend returned. Taking a compact from her purse she daintily touched her lips with crimson. "Wouldn't it be terrible to be homely?" she asked, looking complacently into the mirror.

"Terrible," Dottie agreed, without the slightest conception of how terrible it could be. They wandered out of the shop, leaving the paper behind them.

Straightening the counter Susie picked up the paper. About to toss it aside, she hesitated. There it was again, the fates at her elbow. Indifferently she scanned the paper. Several times her eyes passed over the Harker page, always coming back. Gradually the import made a dent in her consciousness and she read the notice through.

"Harker wants to prove that any woman can be beautiful, alluring, desirable. If you doubt us please write a letter telling us why. Tell us what it has meant to you to be unattractive. Without obligation or expense the writer of the best letter will be beautified by Harker's."

READING the advertisement, Susie's breathing quickened. Silly, of course. No one could make her beautiful, not even Harker's to prove their point. She guessed she'd write and tell them so. They didn't want a homely girl, they simply wanted to make a pretty girl prettier.

In spite of the argument Susie was a little excited. At last someone had noticed the unattractive girl. Beauty contests were old, this was—well, this was exciting. All afternoon a letter to Harker's ran through her mind, the idea of winning the contest did not occur to her. The letter was to be a flat denial of Harker's claims from one who knew.

Again and again she read the advertisement. The model, they called the girl a model just as in the beauty contests, was to be given advice and treatment by Harker's experienced cosmeticians. The gymnasium and a physical director would be at her disposal. When the miracle was wrought she would be gowned by Harker, hatted and booted by Harker. The letters were to be written to John Harker.

By 10 o'clock, when Susie went home, she had not only mentally written her letter, she had made up her mind that she must be the girl.

"No other girl needs it like I do," she thought desperately. "No other girl has suffered so from being homely."

She wrote her letter six times before being satisfied. Among other things she wrote, "You have a comforting theory, but it can't be done. If you could but see me you would know. I am one of those unfortunate individuals who was born an ugly duckling and must remain so." Then she added the line which was to touch John Harker's heart. "I once said that I would give my hope of heaven and all the rest of my life to be beautiful for one year. I meant it then and I mean it now."

SUSIE dispatched her letter. She had wild thoughts of going to Chicago, of seeing John Harker personally, begging him to try. One moment she was hopeful, the next mirthlessly amused at her own impertinence.

While Susie waited, thrilled in spite of herself, the letters rolled into John Harker's office, hundreds of them, thousands of them. The job of sorting and reading was turned over to Jeff Bowman and ten helpers.

After a strenuous week 100 letters were placed on John Harker's desk. He and Clifford Kane went through them. Three hours later 85 hopeful messages had been discarded, the other five applications were taken under advisement. Kane, none too enthusiastic over the scheme, suggested they choose one of the five blindly and go ahead. He was definitely opposed to Susie whom Harker favored.

Jeff Bowman, chancing into the office, settled the matter. "Why not do a little quiet investigating?" he inquired. "Let's look up all five, then we'll be sure."

"In my mind Susie is our girl," Harker insisted, holding her letter in his hand. "She'd give her hope of heaven to be beautiful for one year. Isn't that pathetic? Isn't that terrible? Women are supposed to be lovely, that's their chief function in life. This girl realizes that, she suffers—it's terrible, I tell you."

"Sure it's terrible, Chief," Jeff agreed, "but I still hold out for an investigation. Naturally, we can't fight deformities. Your friend Susie tells us nothing of her background, not even her age. You can't go at this thing blind, you can't send for Susie and then disappoint her."

Kane shrugged wearily, at the same time eyeing Jeff with animosity. The young fool had too much authority, too much influence over the Chief. One of these days he'd succeed in getting Jeff fired.

"Go see about tomorrow's copy, Jeff," he said curtly. "Mr. Harker and I can figure this out."

"Stay right where you are," Harker interposed as Jeff started for the door. "You're right about this thing. Do a little sleuthing in your own way and bring the report to me. After that we'll decide—on Susie." He laughed good-naturedly.

America Envisioned In Next World War By N. Y. Pastor

Goering assassinated, Trafalgar in ruins, the Queen Mary sunk. America in the next war, and paradoxically converted to Fascism in its fight against totalitarianism. Hitler a suicide and Mussolini a coward—these are the pictures of what may lie ahead for the world, painted today by John Haynes Haskins, pastor of the Community Church in New York.

The clergyman's "fables in pictures" pointed powerfully to the moral of war's futility. Supposedly written on Feb. 28, 1901, A. D., the pastor's history begins: "The Great War of 1914 came with a suddenness which reminded one of the outbreak of the World War in 1914."

The war is started by the assassination of Goering by a Pole. Hitler bombs Warsaw three days later, invades Czechoslovakia and the Ukraine, Germany, Italy, and Japan plunge into war with England, Russia and France. America holds a Preparedness Day parade. The great cities of Europe are wiped out by planes. The Queen Mary is sunk with 200 Americans on board. Although she also carried contraband, popular feeling forces America into the war in April, 1943. Liberals, pacifists, socialists and radicals opposing the war are placed in concentration camps.

Told in picture form in the magazine Look, the Reverend's story continues with the dispersal of the U. S. Supreme Court by troops at the command of the President in June, 1943. It never mentions again. Europe becomes a shambles, 200 million are dead, transportation is at a standstill. Hitler, in insane hysteria, commits suicide, Mussolini runs away and is reported slain as a coward by his own officers, and the conflict simply dies out, the dispersed Fascist armies becoming bands of roving brigands.

America survives, but her people live on a lower standard than czarist Russia, and a president-dictator maintains himself in office without elections, two, three and four terms.

an attempt to run down a "ring" behind a series of bombings attributed to the outlawed, king-hating Irish republican army.

Detectives assigned to the case proceeded on the theory the victim, 22-year-old Iris Mary Heath, had been killed some time Saturday night because she betrayed sabotage secrets of the I. R. A.

A mysterious telephone call to police disclosed the crime. She had been stabbed several times and there were bruises on the throat.

Police sought a man with whom she was seen Saturday, the day she attended an Irish-English rugby match in London.

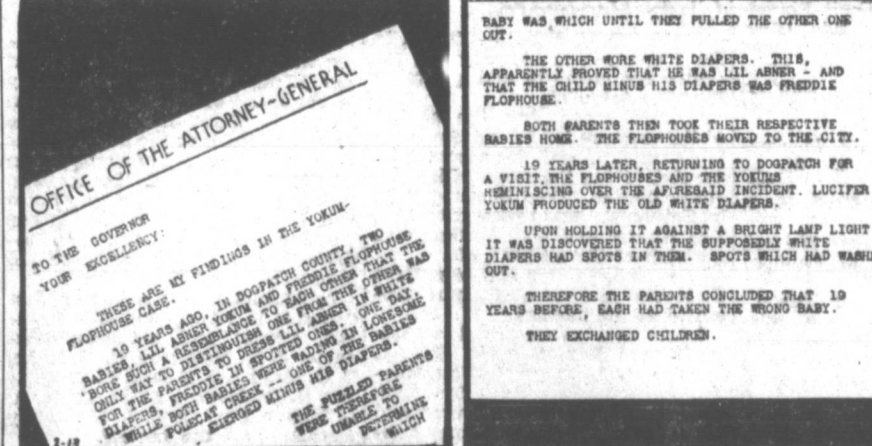

Because of fears of explosions at the game, detectives mingled with the crowds, on the lookout for suspicious parcels.

The girl's body lay face downward on the floor. She had rented the fashionable flat a fortnight ago.

A special court session was called at the Bow Street police station today to hear charges against 19 men and an 18-year-old girl accused of having explosives "in their possession or under their control" in connection with bombings which have occurred in various parts of England the past month.

NIGHT COUGHING CAN OFTEN BE PREVENTED

If your child often coughs at night because of even a slight cold—do this at bedtime: Thoroughly massage Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest, and back. VapoRub's poultice-vapor action tends to keep the air-passages clear, helping to maintain normal breathing through the nose, and so reducing mouth-breathing (the frequent cause of night coughing). Try it tonight—learn for yourself another reason why VapoRub is a family standby in more homes than all other medicinal preparations of its kind put together.
