

Flood leaves dead, valley ravaged

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Flood waters from swollen mountain creeks have receded, leaving at least 32 dead and a devastated landscape in the valleys around this southwestern Pennsylvania steel town. There were widespread reports of persons missing and presumed dead, but communications were almost completely broken down. Exhausted police and rescue crews worked through the night to establish command posts and communications into this city of 41,000 and other towns in the area. Rescue and cleanup crews were hindered by mud and debris clogging roads and covering wrecked autos and homes. Shortly after sunrise, two four-wheel drive vehicles were able to inch their way into

Johnstown from Cambria County Civil Defense headquarters at nearby Ebensburg. Seven counties were battered Wednesday when torrential rains overtopped small creeks and rivers along a 70-mile stretch of the Conemaugh River Valley.

Civil Defense officials estimated 2,000 persons were homeless in Cambria County alone. It was not known how many were dislodged elsewhere.

It was the third major flood in 88 years in Johnstown, whose name became synonymous with disaster after the Johnstown Flood of 1889 killed 2,200 people.

Then, as in this week's tragedy and in the flood of March 17, 1936, when 20 people died, the steep green valleys channeled mountain runoff into the Conemaugh River and Little Stony Creek and created sudden, killing thrushes of churning water.

In the 1889 flood, the earthen South Fork dam broke 14 miles upstream, and the water — with nowhere to go to vent its power — was still a raging wall of death when it arrived in Johnstown 57 minutes later.

"It all happened so fast, too fast, and then it seemed like it would never end," said pregnant Elaine Mitchell, who narrowly escaped the high water Wednesday.

A temporary morgue was set up at East Hills Elementary School just outside the city.

The flooding struck in Bedford, Cambria, Clearfield, Indiana, Jefferson, Somerset and Westmoreland counties. About 8.5 inches of rain fell between about 9 p.m. Tuesday and 4 a.m. Wednesday.

Crawford County, some 100 miles to the northwest of the Johnstown area, suffered flash flooding and heavy damage when it received about four inches of rain in the same period.

The Laurel Run Dam north of Johnstown broke and washed out 10 houses downstream. At least 25 persons were reported missing in West Taylor Township.

Carl Thomas, 50, an asphalt plant superintendent, said he had found the body of his brother-in-law, but his sister, brother and sister-in-law, their four children and a granddaughter were still missing.

Thomas' 80-year-old mother had a stroke prior to the flood. "We don't know how to tell her," he said.

Gov. Milton Shapp toured the area by helicopter with U.S. Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., and declared an extreme state of emergency.

Many victims spent Wednesday night in emergency centers set up in fire halls and college dormitories.

"We're putting people wherever we can find a place for them," said L.B. Towney, a member of the state Civil Defense Council.

The rain came from a storm that hung over the area as people slept.

"That thunderstorm didn't move last night. I watched it sit there on the radar for six or seven hours," said a spokesman for the National Weather Service.

By nightfall, the swollen streams had returned to their banks and cleanup operations appeared ready to begin.

Shapp and Heinz asked the White House for federal disaster relief.

"The damage is devastating," Heinz said. "It is easily in excess of $100 million with roads destroyed and trucks tossed around like matchsticks."

Two National Guard battalions were activated to help with the rescue and cleanup. One of their first missions was to stop looting in Johnstown.

"Some of the looters swam across streets to get to the merchandise first," said Mary Zallar, 31, a Johnstown Tribune-Democrat copy editor.

Authorities said the looting subsided after Mayor Herbert Pfuhl Jr. directed police to shoot looters if necessary.

Burger eatery progressing

Work is progressing on the Burger King under construction at Hobart and Francis as Larry Elledge with the 3-Bar-E Welding Shop in White Deer puts in some welding time on the structure. Another North Hobart location has been selected for a Taco Villa food franchise. A building permit for the $75,000 structure at 508 N. Hobart was issued this week by the City of Pampa. Contractor is Norman Blankenship of Amarillo and the Taco Villa building will include 2,268 square feet of space. (Pampa News photo by Ron Ennis)

Libya, Egypt clash at border

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Libyan and Egyptian armored and air forces engaged in a massive clash along the northern border today, resulting in the destruction of 40 Libyan tanks and two planes, Cairo radio reported.

Libya had no immediate comment on the reported fighting. Cairo radio quoted a military spokesman as saying that 30 Libyan army trucks were destroyed and 12 members of the 9th Libyan armored division were taken prisoner along with 30 saboteurs.

The Egyptian radio said no Egyptians were killed but several were wounded and one truck was destroyed. The report said fighting began in the morning near an Egyptian border village 350 miles west of Cairo.

Egypt said three Libyan "provocative and sabotage acts" had led up to Thursday morning's fighting.

The two countries have contended for influence in the Arab world, leading to confrontations over policy on Israel, Lebanon and the Sudan.

Since the 1973 Arab-Israeli war, they have quarreled over how to approach that conflict.

School property tax unconstitutional

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' system of distributing state education money based solely on the value of the district's real property is unconstitutional, a federal judge says in a ruling that could have far-reaching impact on state school financing.

U.S. District Court Judge Jack Roberts of Austin said taxing real property and automobiles while ignoring "intangibles" such as stocks and bank deposits, violates the U.S. Constitution as well as Texas law.

He refused, however, to halt

August state payments to local school districts, as requested by members of the Leander and San Augustine school boards, who filed the suit.

Several state officials, including Gov. Dolph Briscoe, said they are not alarmed by the ruling, stressing that it is not final. But others believed the ruling places the current school finance law in jeopardy.

The Leander and San Augustine district officials argued that the current system of financing schools based on real estate taxes puts an unfair burden on rural taxpayers with little untaxed wealth. Lawyers for the two districts estimated the untaxed wealth at as high as $75 billion.

Roberts said he agreed with the argument but stopped short of immediately scrapping the entire school finance plan now in effect.

"This system of distributing state funds to support public education violates the federal equal protection clause" of the U.S. Constitution, Roberts ruled.

"Texas' current system of distributing state aid to local school districts treats local districts and their taxpayers with the same amount of taxable property differently without any rational basis thus violating the equal protection clause," Roberts continued.

The ruling came after a preliminary hearing last week on the suit, but Roberts indicated the Leander and San Augustine officials had a strong chance of overthrowing the current taxing system when a full hearing is held.

"Plaintiffs have established a very substantial probability of success on the merits in proving that the state's actions have violated both the U.S. Constitution and the state constitution and statutes," the judge said.

The school finance bill passed recently by a special legislative session does not put a tax on the "intangible" property.

"I do not see any need for any immediate action," Briscoe said Wednesday night. He said school finance will not be opened up again during the current special session.

A spokesman for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Roberts' ruling "does not nullify the school bill that we just passed."

"The thing (bill) will be challenged in court and struck down," countered State Rep. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin.

Hobby's office estimated it will be a year and a half before Roberts' tentative ruling could have "much effect at all." An aide estimated it would take that long for the suit to wind its way through the appeals courts.

FBI nabs missile spies

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Two men accused of aiding Soviet bloc spies planned to use a cabin cruiser to smuggle components of the Top-secret U.S. cruise missile to Soviet agents in Cuba within the next two weeks, the FBI says.

Carl Weischenberg, 33, a West German who officials said is awaiting trial in his own country on charges of high treason, and Carl John Heiser, 32, of Highland Beach, Fla., were arrested Wednesday at the Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport. Officials said Weischenberg was preparing to board a plane for Freeport, in the Bahamas, where he has been living.

They were formally charged with "acting as agents of East Germany and the Soviet Union without prior notification to the secretary of state," a charge less severe than espionage because the government wants to expedite the case, a knowledgeable source said.

"When you have a foreign national leaving the country you want to act quickly," the source said.

Heiser and Weischenberg were ordered held without bond after a brief hearing before U.S. Magistrate Peter Palermo in Miami. Another hearing was scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday.

Weischenberg also has been known as Carl Lutz Weischenberg and Lutz Carl Weischenberg, the FBI said. Heiser is a native of Bridgeport, Conn., but spent most of his life in Houston, Tex., a small town near Spring.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Daniel Ennis of Miami said Weischenberg and 11 other persons were awaiting trial in West Germany on charges of high treason involving sale of West German data processing materials to Soviet bloc nations.

But in Frankfurt, West Germany, the state attorney general's office said today there are no charges pending against Weischenberg. The office, which uses the Wieschenberg spelling of his name, said he and 10 others were investigated in 1975 on suspicion of working with the Soviet bloc nations but that the allegations could not be proven and the inquiry was suspended.

Julius L. Mattson, special agent in charge of the FBI office in Miami, said today the FBI was standing by its statement in the affidavit on the German charges against Weischenberg.

"This is an ongoing investigation and we can't go into details behind the affidavit at this time," Mattson said.

The FBI said Weischenberg had offered Heiser $250,000 for components of the cruise missile, a pilotless weapon which can fly a pre-programmed route to its target at extremely low levels. It did not say how Heiser would have gotten such components.

President Carter has chosen the weapon as one of the United States' first-line offensive weapons of the future.

In a 14-page affidavit, the FBI said Weischenberg presented Heiser with "shopping lists" for materials, including IBM microfiche cards, manuals and tapes, Memorex computer programs, Bendix computer drive shafts and nuclear fuels. FBI officials did not say what the various computer cards, tapes and programs contained. IBM, Memorex and Bendix are major defense contractors.

The FBI affidavit detailed dozens of alleged meetings, telephone conversations and trips to Germany by Heiser and Weischenberg dating back to April 1976.

Among other things, the affidavit lists comments allegedly made to an FBI informant by Weischenberg that the Soviets wanted to purchase uranium oxide 206, thorium 230 and other nuclear fuels "in any quantity available."

The FBI said much of the affidavit's information came from confidential informants.

The affidavit also said Heiser kept meticulous records of his transactions with Weischenberg which allegedly included payments of between $150,000 and $200,000 in the past year and a half.

Weather

Cooler temperatures are on the way with a high today in the upper-80s and on Friday in the mid-80s. The overnight low is expected in the mid-60s. Partly cloudy conditions will prevail with a chance of thunder showers, some possibly locally severe tonight, through Friday.

Murder goes to jury

By TIM PALMER
Pampa News Staff

Final charges against three defendants allegedly connected with the Sept. 15 shooting death of Jerry Bowers Oliver will be read to the jury this afternoon in 31st district court.

Defense attorneys for Donald Wayne Kuykendall, 22; Duane Chapman, 24; and Ruben Garza, 20, rested their cases at about 11 a.m. today. The state rested Wednesday.

Judge Grainger McIlhenny recessed the jury until 2 p.m. this afternoon.

The last of the three defendants, Donald Kuykendall, testified this morning. Kuykendall admitted that he took a shotgun to the Oliver home at 1072 Prairie Drive and planned to ask Oliver for money.

Kuykendall said he had given Oliver $40 for some marijuana which Oliver never delivered. He said that on one occasion, when he tried to redeem the money, Oliver pointed a pistol at him and threatened to shoot him.

He testified that he planned to use the gun to get Oliver out of the house and the two would have a fist fight over the money. "Did you point the gun at Jerry Oliver?" district attorney Harold Comer asked.

"No, sir," Kuykendall replied, "I had it at my side." He demonstrated his position.

In explaining to defense attorney Phil Vanderpool what happened inside the Oliver home, Kuykendall said "I stepped into the house... and the only words I got out were 'Jerry, I...' and he lunged at me... everything happened so fast...

the first thing I remember was hurting my hand. Jerry said 'Oh, Lord,' and I said 'all I wanted was my money...' all I could think to do was pick up the pieces of the gun and go on."

Kuykendall said he had no intent of either robbing or shooting Jerry Oliver. He said he picked up the shotgun earlier that night from Bryan Campbell because he wanted to try it out coyote hunting.

In the car with defendant Garza, Cheryl Fisher and Donnie Barton, Kuykendall said "it was just a big bad joke that now we got this... gun, we ought to go get something from somebody."

After the shooting, Kuykendall said Garza accompanied him and Miss Fisher to Amarillo. The following morning the gun was wrapped and left in a ditch outside Pampa.

Kuykendall testified he hid the gun because "I was scared... I didn't want to get caught with anything."

He told Comer that he and Garza wiped the gun.

"You wanted to wipe the gun down so there wouldn't be any fingerprints?" Comer asked.

"Yes, sir," Kuykendall replied.

After the state rested its case early Wednesday afternoon, defense attorneys Bill Kollis, Kenneth Fields and Phil Vanderpool all requested Judge McIlhenny to instruct the jury to return not guilty verdicts on the grounds that the state had not proven its case.

his gun to the Oliver home with the understanding that he and defendant Donald Wayne Kuykendall would go hunting afterward.

Chapman said that in the presence of Cheryl Fisher he and Kuykendall made plans to hunt coyotes that night. Miss Fisher testified Wednesday that such a conversation possibly occurred but she did not remember it.

Chapman said he lied to Pampa police in his original statements to them. He testified that he was "shocked" to hear of Oliver's death, and after an unsuccessful attempt to evade the police he denied being at the Oliver home the night of the shooting.

In subsequent statement Chapman reportedly told police that Kuykendall went to the Oliver residence with the intent of armed robbery.

"I don't remember saying that," Chapman told Comer, "but if it's the first statement I ever made I lied... Donnie never said nothin' like that."

"Then you lied to the police," Comer said.

"Yes, sir," Chapman replied.

Chapman referred to any discussion of "ripping Jerry off" of his marijuana as "a big joke." Chapman admitted to Comer that he told the other occupants of the car that he could not be involved in armed robbery since at the time he was under questioning for another robbery.

"So you were aware that that (armed robbery) was their purpose?" Comer said.

Chapman denied he tried the sack on for size. "I just said it's too small and ripped it."

"At that point did you still think it was a joke?" Comer asked.

"Yes, sir."

Defendant Ruben Garza testified that he was intoxicated and half-asleep during the alleged discussion of robbing Jerry Oliver. He said that at the Oliver home Oliver promised Garza a lid of marijuana. At that point, Garza testified, Kuykendall approached the door with a shotgun.

The gun was pointed at him, Garza said, and "I flinched. I didn't know what to think at first. He (Kuykendall) told me to get the hell out of there."

Garza said he had no intent of either robbing or murdering Oliver, but he did not ask Chapman or Kuykendall why guns were in the car.

The three defendants are charged with connection with the death of Oliver and use of a loaded gun against him.

Cost of Congressman

President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

WASHINGTON — Did you know that you are generously providing your congressmen with free combs and brushes? Also free health care (excluding hospitalization, which is merely subsidized), free travel, free postage, free parking, free potted plants (cut flowers in season), free picture frames, free use of prints from the National Gallery, free massages, free steamer trunks — that's right, steamer trunks — and, for those who are no longer able to take advantage of the other free services, free funerals.

All this and much more goes with the territory, according to author Robert Shrum, a recent guest on one of our National Chamber radio programs.

What about those famous junkets abroad? Well, Congress puts the cost of such "fact finding missions" at $1.4 million for 1976 but "U.S. News & World Report" magazine says the true figure is one like $2.5 million.

That's just the trivial stuff, of course. To start with the basics, each senator and representative now receives an annual salary of $57,500 a year, following a 20 percent pay raise in February. The legislators cleverly contrived to give themselves the raise without having to vote on it. Subsequently embarrassed by the outcry, they pledged to vote on the next one. The way it works, they don't vote on the raises they do get, and do vote on those they don't get. Understand? A senator is allowed up to $900,000 to pay his staff, depending on the number of his constituents. For a representative, the top figure is $255,000. They also have sizable allowances for telephones, telegrams, newsletters, field office costs, and 26 round trips back home each year — plus six free trips for staff members. These allowances now average about $48,000 a year for a representative, and run from $30,000 to $75,000 for a senator.

Add up the costs directly attributable to one member of the House, say, and it amounts to more than $500,000 a year. (Last fall, I mentioned a pre-raise figure of $489,000 in another column, and I'm still getting calls asking for the details.)

But that's only the tip of the iceberg. There's a lot more to Congress than congressmen — and women. There are also the marble halls — more and more of them. The newest of the three House office buildings — the Rayburn Building — was at the time of its construction the most costly structure in history. The Senate is now building a third office building for itself. The House is making noises about a fourth. And the House Appropriations Committee has just approved a $55 million extension of the west front of the Capitol building, the side facing the Mall. You might say Congress has a monumental edifice complex.

In addition to the buildings, there are the thousands of employees who people them — "support troops" like printers, maintenance personnel, guards, elevator operators, food service employees, etc., as well as the highly paid professionals on the various committee staffs — none of whom is counted against a member's office staff allowance.

From 1965-1975, congressional employment grew 84 per cent. For comparison, during the same period the population grew 10 per cent, executive branch employment grew 12 per cent, and gross national product (adjusted for inflation) grew 29 per cent.

Add it all up and you find that it now costs almost a billion dollars a year to run Congress, a sum which was more than sufficient to run the entire Federal Government as recently as 1916. Per-member, that's over $1.5 million.

Enough? Well, no. On top of all those benefits, some members of Congress are after one more. They want the taxpayers to help finance their campaign costs.

To be fair, I should point out that not all members avail themselves of all of these free and subsidized services, nor do they all use 100 per cent of their staff allowances. A principled few wage a lonely war to cut back on the lavish life style.

Even the majority cannot be pictured as across-the-board spendthrifts. In some areas they watch costs very closely. House beauty shop operators, for example, get no pensions, no life insurance, no health insurance and no salary — they have to work on commission.

By CLARK R. MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C. —

Federal laws and regulations on commodity trading appear on the surface to be adequate to protect the public from the manipulations of dishonest brokers and commission houses.

Daily reports are required on the status of each customer's account. Reports also are made on a daily basis to the commodity exchange on daily settlement sheets on liquidated sales and on daily recapitulation sheets on unliquidated accounts.

In addition, commodity exchanges, such as the Chicago Board of Trade, must keep a running cash journal on these reports for reconstruction of trading to minimize the possibility of individual commodity traders being fleeced by the bookkeeping of a dishonest or careless commission house.

But, the long-pending case of veteran commodity trader Bernard Rosee demonstrates how the laws and regulations on record-keeping can be effectively nullified by official illegality and by foot-dragging inaction by federal officials as well as the Chicago Board of Trade.

For more than 15 years, Rosee, now 79 years old, has been frustrated in his efforts to get the Chicago Board of Trade and the Baggot and Morrison commission house to produce the records they are legally required to keep and retain.

He has received little or no help from the old Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA) or the more recently created reform agency — the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) — in his efforts to pry loose these basic records.

Chicago Board of Trade and officials of the CEA have resisted court orders to produce the records that were established to prevent the kind of record frauds that Rosee contends were used by the now defunct Baggot and Morrison firm in fleecing him of several hundred thousand dollars.

The dishonesty of the Baggot and Morrison operation is now established beyond question by the Agriculture Department, which found the commission house to be in violation of the law in its handling of certain customer accounts over a two-year period.

Although the Baggot and Morrison firm was put out of business for these and other unlawful practices, the members of that firm — James Baggot and Donald Morrison — have continued as members in good standing of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Board of Trade ousted Rosee from a seat on the Chicago Board on the complaint of Baggot and Morrison that he owed them approximately $28,000.

When the initial Baggot and Morrison claim was filed against him in 1959, Rosee was shocked because he believed the commission house through which he was trading owed him approximately $1 million.

Confident that the records required by law would prove his case, Rosee agreed to a hearing before the Chicago Board of Trade arbitration committee if he would be provided all of the required records.

But, Rosee's repeated demands for the records were rejected by the arbitration committee in its closed hearing. While Rosee was denied the services of a lawyer, and the right to subpoena the records and witnesses to try to establish his case, the arbitration committee gave the Baggot and Morrison commission house every advantage, including representation by a lawyer who was a member of the board of directors of the Chicago Board.

At the conclusion of the kangaroo court hearing, the arbitration committee ruled that Rosee owed Baggot and Morrison $28,000, ousted him from his seat on the board, and gave the money from the sale of Rosee's seat to Baggot and Morrison.

Since the CEA had conducted a two-year audit of the Baggot and Morrison firm and had found it to be in violation of law for being underfunded in its segregated accounts, Rosee sought access to their records to prove his case.

However, CEA officials contended that the records on their audit of Baggot and Morrison were "confidential" and would not make them available to Rosee or the lawyers he had now hired to pursue his case.

Rosee also filed an unsuccessful damage action in the federal court charging that the Chicago Board of Trade and CEA officials were in conspiracy with the Baggot and Morrison firm to block him from obtaining the records to prove his case.

Continuing his battle to obtain access to original trading cards and records kept by the Chicago Board of Trade, Rosee then went to the court of Illinois Circuit Judge Nathan Cohen, but refusal to produce records by Baggot and Morrison, the Chicago Board of Trade and the CEA delayed dispositions of that case by Judge Cohen until 1972.

Judge Cohen finally found that the arbitration commission hearing before the Chicago Board of Trade was devoid of proper due process and was a sham and a fraud, but that Rosee's evidence fell short of establishing a conspiracy by the Board of Trade and officials of the Agriculture Department.

Judge Cohen entered a $750,000 judgment for Rosee against the Baggot and Morrison firm and found the summary accepted by the Chicago Board's arbitration commission was not a correct representation of Rosee's dealing with Baggot and Morrison.

When the Baggot and Morrison firm could not or would not produce customer records required to be kept by the commodity law, Judge Cohen said he was entitled to draw the reasonable conclusion that the original records would not support the summary.

Despite that judgment for Rosee in 1972, the Chicago Board of Trade, the Baggot and Morrison firm, and officials of the CEA have continued to block new efforts by Rosee to force disclosure of the original records.

William Bagley, chairman of the newly created Commodity Futures Trading Commission, has said the KTC had the power to force the disclosure of all records in the Rosee case and would hold hearings and subpoena all documents in the hands of the government, the Chicago Board of Trade, and Baggot and Morrison.

However, faced with the opposition of lawyers for the Chicago Board of Trade, Chairman Bagley collapsed on his promise of a full public hearing on the Rosee case. He said he felt sorry for Rosee but the new CFTC was too busy to hold the hearing he had promised earlier. He declared he did not believe the CFTC could do anything to correct the injustices of fabricated records, perjury and lack of due process of law.

Meanwhile, the Illinois Appeals Court, disregarding the record of findings by lower courts on false and fabricated records, reversed Judge Cohen, and upheld the propriety and fairness of the Chicago Board of Trade arbitration hearing.

Judge Cohen, obviously rankled by the Illinois Appeal Court adoption of the arguments of lawyers for the Chicago Board of Trade, now has permitted Rosee to come into court with new motions to obtain the records of commodity trading required to be kept by federal law.

Although Rosee still has not been given access to original trading cards or the other reports that the law requires, he has established to the satisfaction of state and federal courts these gross injustices:

1. The arbitration hearing was "devoid" of due process of law and its finding was based on a summary document prepared by the Baggot and Morrison firm.
2. The Baggot and Morrison firm's summary of its trading with Rosee is contradicted by portions of records Rosee and his lawyers have managed to pry loose in the 15-year struggle.
3. A CEA report given to the federal court by federal government officials was a "fabricated" document of unknown origin, that in many respects was comparable to the self-serving summary used in the arbitration hearing.
4. The new CFTC, created for "reform" of the commodity markets, has shown no inclination to require the Chicago Board of Trade to produce the crucial records.

Even a casual look at the Rosee case demonstrates that the record-keeping requirements of the law are a sham if they are not honestly and aggressively administered. That record indicates that only a fool would have any faith that the CFTC or the Chicago Board of Trade would protect him against frauds by the commission houses that are members of the Chicago Board.

It is understandable that Congress would give the CFTC several months to try to get its house in order, but a depth probe of the regulation of the commodity markets that do business totaling more than $500 billion a year is way past due.

Success of Volunteers

A "conservative" southern senator has been going around complaining that the voluntary military, which got under way about five years ago, has not provided sufficient manpower — er, person-power — to insure our national defense. Elsewhere certain "liberal" politicians have been making noises about universal "service" to society, which means universal servitude on behalf of governmental enthusiasts.

Neither the alleged conservative nor the alleged liberals can produce a convincing case for conscripting young Americans into the regiments of government pawns. What explains their equivalent anxieties is the antiquated political impulse to coerce human beings, rob people of their individuality and catterprod them into the machinery of "public works."

Surely the "conservative" is not truly an adherent to American traditions. The American Revolution was fought and won by regulars — patriotic volunteers enlisted to combat further regimentation under the direction of King George. Conscriptation was introduced in the Civil War; it was introduced indelibly, we think, but at least it was introduced under the exceptional circumstance of war. A peacetime draft is not conservative, then.

Nor is there anything liberal about forcing people to give up a year or two of their lives to toil for the fruition of a popular political cause. Coercion is anti-liberal per se; that shouldn't have to be explained. Moreover, it is historically true that when political programs are addressed to the mitigation of social problems, the problems are only perpetuated, not solved.

With the new clamoring for some kind of involuntary servitude as a backdrop, it is useful to attend to Donald Rumsfeld's article in the current issue of The Journal of the Institute for Socioeconomic Studies. Rumsfeld was, of course, secretary of defense in the Ford administration.

"Contrary to the fears expressed when the draft ended in December of 1972," argues Rumsfeld, now president of an Illinois-based health care product manufacturer, "the military services, since that time, have successfully enlisted more than 400,000 qualified individuals annually, roughly the number determined to be necessary to meet United States defense requirements."

Rumsfeld continues: "In the past fiscal year, for example, the Army, Navy, Air Force and the Marine Corps together achieved 99 per cent of their strength targets. The figures for the first months of Fiscal Year 1977 show recruitment to be even stronger. In short, the AVF is statistically meeting the quantitative goals for active duty personnel — without the crutch of compulsion."

Whether that satisfies the anxious senator, we do not know.

"I give up dear, what has Spike found buried in our back yard?"

It will not be without limitations, but the coming year will be a satisfying one for you. You'll establish more meaningful ties and bonds with friends and associates and they will have an enduring quality.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Is there something you've wanted for your home, but couldn't afford? Check your sources today. There's a good chance you can obtain it with ease.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There is far more power in your words today than you may realize. Choose wisely what you say to others or how you advise the.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have thought you've sown your seeds to the wind, but it's not true. The sprouts now appear and they'll soon yield a bountiful harvest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Not much can catch you off-balance today. New situations are conquered on the basis of your past similar experience.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Continue to function as the power behind the throne today. Make your presence felt, but in ways obvious to only a few insiders.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't let important contacts go by the boards today just because they're at a distance. Drop them a line or, better yet, phone them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In career situations today, use all the weapons at your disposal. If you take advantage of your advantages, you'll score.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today, you have the knack of putting everyone completely at ease. You show no favoritism yet all go away feeling they got special attention.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will begin today a change affecting your basic lifestyle, but don't expect miracles overnight. Results will eventually be as you expect.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In evaluating situations and making decisions today, you are virtually without a peer. In addition, you fit well into the role of a peacemaker.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Financial aspects are especially promising for you today primarily where you can tie up all the loose ends.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Others find you intriguing today and want to communicate with you. This may trigger a phone call or a letter from long-silent friends.

Success of Volunteers

A "conservative" southern senator has been going around complaining that the voluntary military, which got under way about five years ago, has not provided sufficient manpower — er, person-power — to insure our national defense. Elsewhere certain "liberal" politicians have been making noises about universal "service" to society, which means universal servitude on behalf of governmental enthusiasts.

Beef referendum fails in Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Texas cattle and dairy producers have failed to approve a tax on themselves for a research and development program, prompting one official to remark, "It hurts. It damn sure does."

Texas cattlemen, the largest block of voters nationwide, fell about 1,600 votes short of the two-thirds majority needed to approve the plan, which would assess cattlemen across the nation 30 cents on each $100 received from sales.

The final national totals for the beef referendum were being tabulated in Washington and were expected to be released today.

Wilford Hott, chief of the production adjustment division of the Texas Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said the vote in Texas was 19,305 for and 12,045 against.

"It would have had to have been at least two thirds (20,910) of the total voting for it to pass," said Hott. "But even though Texas voted it down, it could pass in the other states and still pass nationally."

"It hurts. It damn sure does," said James Sartwell, chairman of the Texas Beef Development Tax Force. "When you think that that (1,600) is just seven votes per county in this great big state of our. That says something about those people who run around and say, 'Boy, my vote don't count anyway."

Jay Naman, president of the Texas Farmers Union, which opposed the assessment, said, "We are pleased that the cattle producers in Texas have voted to reject this program, not because we are against the cattle industry but because we do not think this program is the solution."

"Any promotional plan which spends millions of dollars from the pockets of producers must be accountable to those producers. The cattlemen of Texas have obviously affirmed the fact that they do not want this program as it is written."

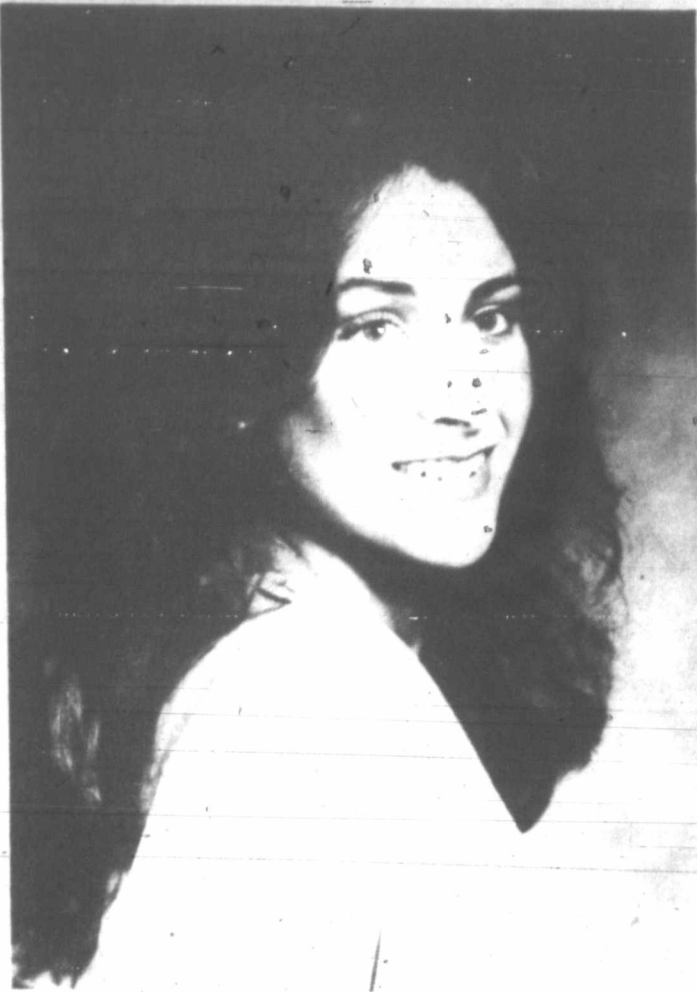

Sartwell said the Texas block comprised about 15 percent of the total vote. He was not overly optimistic about the national outcome.

"We will probably have another go at it, maybe in just Texas," he said. "But first, we'll want to look at the county returns before deciding."

"We were real tickled with the turnout," said Hott. "We had 42,694 registered back July 1 and the total number of votes was 31,350."

Dancer enters competition

Kris Richardson, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Richardson of Pampa, has selected a modern ballet for her entry in the talent competition of the Miss Top o' Texas Pageant July 23 in the M.K. Brown Auditorium. Miss Richardson, a 1977 Pampa High School graduate, was active in student council, Future Teachers of America, Future Homemakers of America, Keyettes and French Club. She was a cheerleader and was homecoming queen attendant and third runner up for Miss Irish Rose. She is active in the First United Methodist Church and has won several dance scholarships and she operates a dance studio in a neighboring town. Her hobbies include fishing, snow and water skiing, swimming, jewelry casting, sewing and sports. She is interested in a career as a dancer or model. Miss Richardson's sponsor is Dunlap's.

Hill family to sue Robinson

HOUSTON (AP) — The family of the late Dr. John Hill has hired Houston attorney Ray Bass to be lead counsel in a $7.6 million damage suit against oil millionaire Ash Robinson.

Mayo Davidson, who represents the surviving family of Dr. Hill, said the family had hoped to hire F. Lee Bailey to handle the case, but Bailey had other commitments.

Davidson said he hopes the civil case against Robinson will go on trial Aug. 22.

"We are confident our trial preparation is over and we don't have any other formal discovery," Davidson said. "We anticipate they (Robinson's attorneys) will make every attempt to delay the trial."

Davidson said attorneys for Robinson have set deposition hearings in New Orleans for July 28.

The Hill family alleged in the suit that Robinson masterminded the September 1972 shooting of Dr. Hill, a plastic surgeon, on the steps of his River Oaks home.

No criminal charges face Robinson in connection with the Hill slaying. Two women currently are serving prison sentences for their parts in the slaying. One of the women named Robinson as planning the slaying.

Robinson is the father of Joan Robinson, Hill's first wife. Hill faced charges of killing Joan Robinson at the time of his death.

The Houston firm of Haynes-Fullenweider was removed as lead counsel last week. Davidson said.

Connie Hill, the doctor's widow, wanted an outside attorney to handle the case because of her family's close relationship with Donn Fullenweider, who had been handling the case.

"I lost 53 pounds with NaturSlim ... and I feel like a new person!"
 — Susan Simpson

Since beginning the NaturSlim program I've gone from a size 19 to a size 13 1/2 and lost 53 pounds. My goal is to lose 60 pounds and drop to a size 12," says 16-year-old Susan Simpson, student at Narbonne High School and a resident of Lomita, California.

"I weighed 197 pounds and had tried many other diets, such as counting calories, Ayds, the orange a day diet, etc. but none produced the results that NaturSlim has."

"It is really nice to feel a part of living again... to be able to crawl out of my shell and stand on my own two feet. I used to wear a jacket everywhere I went because of my weight, but now I am proud and happy not to have to hike like that anymore. For the first time in eight years I'm looking forward to participating in summer activities such as swimming and going to the beach with my friends."

"I followed the recommended program, mixing NaturSlim with nonfat chocolate milk or unsweetened orange juice for breakfast and lunch, and I ate regular portions of meat, potatoes, vegetable and usually a salad for dinner. NaturSlim really tastes good and fills me up so I don't experience hunger pangs during the day. When I feel the urge for a snack I eat an apple or fresh carrots."

"One of the things that really helped was the support, encouragement and compliments from my friends and family. My social life is improving, too. I'm really looking forward to the Senior Prom. And since I've slimmed down, I've gotten a whole new wardrobe."

Susan's mother comments that "A lot of people don't even recognize Susan since her weight loss. Her father and I are really proud of Susan and her strong will and determination to stick with the program. Susan is like a new person... she is more outgoing and happy to be involved in activities with others. We are able to share much more together because she is not so shy and withdrawn. It is Susan's desire to reach out to those other teenage girls and adults who are overweight like she used to be... and to convey to them the message that the NaturSlim program really works!"

Pornography probed

HOUSTON (AP) — Twenty-five persons, including employees of adult book stores, have been subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury today, according to Harris County Asst. Dist. Atty. Bob Shultz.

Shultz declined to comment on the nature of the evidence he will take to the grand jury, but indicated it concerns the operation of adult book stores in the area.

"This is part of our ongoing investigation of pornography that has picked up a great deal of general interest since the Houston Post stories on the matter this past weekend," Shultz said.

The Post printed a series of articles dealing with child pornography in the Houston area.

Shultz said publicity about pornography and vice problems is useful in that the reaction to it serves as a yardstick in measuring community standards.

Shultz said his office is criticized for charging book store clerks and not the owners.

"If we find a guy with 75,000 genuinely obscene movies all we can get him on is a Class B misdemeanor," Shultz said.

Food, services costs still rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher costs for food and a broad range of services pushed June consumer prices up six-tenths of 1 per cent, matching the previous month's boost in prices, the government reported today.

The rise was a disappointment to government economists who had hoped some moderation in consumer prices would follow a slowdown in wholesale price hikes in May and a sharp wholesale price drop in June.

Retail food prices, which climbed seven-tenths of 1 per cent in May, rose by eight-tenths of 1 per cent in June and marked the sixth straight month of sharp increases in the cost of food.

The government planned to release a second report on the nation's economic health later today and it was expected to be more encouraging. A preliminary estimate from the Commerce Department indicated the economy had another strong quarter, with the Gross National Product growing in the April-June period at about the same rate as the first quarter's 6.9 per cent rate.

In another report, the government reported that real spendable earnings — after-tax earnings adjusted for inflation — increased 3.4 per cent in June, reflecting a change in tax deductions which lowered the withholding rates, beginning June 1. The increase marked the biggest monthly boost in real spendable earnings in two years.

Wholesale prices — a precursor of costs a consumer eventually faces — fell seven-tenths of a per cent in June after several months of steep increases. The drop was the first since last August and was largely the result of a 6.3 per cent decline in prices of farm products.

Changes in the wholesale food prices are usually reflected at

Jaworski says keepout to Hill on Korea probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski says he will tolerate no interference in an investigation of the alleged Korean influence-buying scandal on Capitol Hill. And he wants it in writing.

The House ethics committee is expected to accept Jaworski's terms today, handing him the job of chief investigator in the disorganized investigation of South Korean efforts to win congressional support applying lawmakers with money and gifts.

At a news conference Wednesday in Houston, where he has been in private practice since resigning as Watergate prosecutor, Jaworski said he plans to begin work on the investigation on Aug. 15.

"If there is the slightest effort to suppress the investigation, I would not only go to the leadership of the Congress, I would go to the public.

"I don't think it is the leadership of Congress that controls this. What controlled Watergate was the public reaction," said Jaworski.

Jaworski said the promises of independence in the new post would be made official in a congressional resolution before he "came out of the woodwork, so to speak" to take the new job.

Jaworski said the absence of a grand jury in the Korean investigation may make it difficult to obtain certain information. But he added, "I think I will get what I want."

Jaworski was the special Watergate prosecutor who forced public disclosure of so-called "smoking gun" tape that forced former President Richard M. Nixon to resign on Aug. 9, 1974.

On the tape Nixon was heard agreeing with aides that the FBI should be given a false story to steer it away from campaign contributions that were to prove the Watergate burglars were Nixon campaign workers.

Jaworski telephoned Rep. John Flynt, D-Ga., chairman of the House ethics committee to discuss arrangements for taking the new job. The wealthy lawyer said he would serve without pay.

He is replacing Philip A. Lacovara, a former deputy Watergate prosecutor who quit last week after a dispute with Flynt.

Sri Lankas vote today

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — This island nation's voters, in the habit of rejecting incumbent politicians, chose today between their woman prime minister and an opposition leader who favors a "grand coalition" government to fight the country's economic problems.

About 6.6 million citizens were eligible to vote in Sri Lanka's first national election in seven years. All 168 seats of the unicameral parliament were at stake.

Sirimavo Bandaranaike, the world's only incumbent woman head of government, has been prime minister since 1970, leading a leftist coalition. But political analysts said her Sri Lanka Freedom party might lose its parliamentary plurality in today's balloting.

The six-week campaign was marked by violence. Police reported that at least 10 persons were killed and about 90 injured in election-related incidents.

The chief opposition leader, Junius R. Jayawardene of the United National party, said Wednesday that as prime minister he would invite all other parties to join his cabinet, a move that would end the traditional see-saw of politics on this island, the former Ceylon, off India's southern tip.

Since independence in 1948 the United National party and the Freedom party have ruled alternately for 14 and 15 years, respectively.

In campaigning for re-election, Mrs. Bandaranaike, 61, hoped to avoid the fate of two other prominent incumbents in the Indian subcontinent this year.

In India, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was voted out of office in March after an 11-year rule.

churches, a seminary and the Jesuit-run university in this capital city after the military government of President Carlos Humberto Romero vowed to combat terrorism "from the right or the left."

The Jesuits, who also operate three high schools, said they would do their normal work routine today despite the threats. It was the first day of final exams for their 5,000 students.

"We are not afraid," said one priest. But for the past four days they have worn nondescript civilian clothes, having put away their black suits and Roman collars. And all Jesuits in San Salvador met in a secret location Wednesday night, presumably to discuss a common

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Sam Stratton, D-N.Y. is sending more than 200 nickels back to his constituents, under the franking privilege, on grounds they may be improperly trying to influence his vote on a consumer bill.

A spokesman for the Albany-area congressman said Wednesday that Stratton was returning the nickels, with a letter to each sender, saying it was a "highly improper way for anyone to lobby for legislation."

"Whether the cold cash is hundreds of five-cent pieces or a wad of $100 bills, the principle is still the same, and it's all bad," Stratton said.

The nickels are part of a campaign by Congress Watch, a Ralph Nader-inspired group, to win passage of a federal consumer protection agency. They urged persons to send nickels, claiming that was all the agency would cost each taxpayer per year.

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Retired U.S. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith on Wednesday became the first person in Maine history to have two bridges in the same town named after her.

Before signing the bill naming the new bridges in her hometown of Skowhegan, Gov. James B. Longley presented Mrs. Smith with a long-stemmed red rose. A rose was her trademark in the Senate, where she served from 1949 to 1973.

Longley also proclaimed Wednesday as Margaret Chase Smith Day.

Pantex explains March explosion

AMARILLO — A committee investigating the March 30 explosion at the Pantex Plant east of here in which three men died has outlined steps to prevent future explosions and deaths.

P.R. Wagner, area manager of the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration, said the five-member committee completed its investigation.

"The investigation revealed that two separate explosions actually occurred about 10 milliseconds apart," Wagner said in a press release. "One involved about 75 pounds of high explosive that detonated on a lathe used for machining operations and the other explosion of about 50 pounds occurred 15 feet away."

The explosions killed three employees of Mason and Hanger-Silas Mason Co., Inc., operating contractor at the facility. Extensive damage to the building has been set at $2.5 million.

"The committee concluded that the initial explosion most probably occurred on a lathe either during machining operations or while the operator was centering the explosive billet in preparation for machining," Wagner said.

... with regard to machining operations, the committee suggests the need for improved standards, establishment of a machining committee, re-evaluation of the amount of high explosives that should be in any bay in support of current

Lawmakers debate port

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The legislature begins what might be the final day of its special session today with the House debating a deep-water port bill that would authorize approximately $700 million in state revenue bonds without using state credit.

The House also takes up a bill strengthening regulation of nursing homes, especially through provision for prison terms for those who abuse patients.

The deep-water port bill cleared the House State Affairs Committee Wednesday, 8-0, after it had been amended to prohibit state liability for anything that happens at the port.

The bill is needed as a backup to efforts to finance the port privately.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Hot and muggy weather enveloped Texas in an oppressive cloak today.

As a nonstop heat wave blazed on, steamy air billowed across the state from the south and southeast.

At the same time occasionally heavy thunderstorms boomed near the Davis Mountains between Van Horn and Pecos, near San Angelo and from near Del Rio toward Rocksprings and Bracketville, all in western areas of the state, and between Dalhart and Channing in the northwest corner of the Texas Panhandle.

Overnight temperatures stayed as high as 81 degrees at Galveston, San Angelo, McAllen and Palacios. It was only a little cooler elsewhere near dawn except for readings near 60 in the West Texas mountains.

Top marks Wednesday afternoon soared as high as 100 at Brownsville, Midland and Mineral Wells; 101 at Fort Worth and Waco, and 102 at Dallas and Wichita Falls.

Sizzling heat was expected to linger and scattered thunderstorms were promised in most sections again late in the day.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband recently confessed to me that he and some of his friends went to a massage parlor after bowling one night.

He swore he had never done anything like that before and he doesn't plan to do it again. I forgave him, but I can't help feeling betrayed.

Abby, he is the last man on earth I would ever suspect of doing such a thing. We have a very satisfying sex life, and my husband has always been a very religious, churchgoing man.

What makes a happily married, religious man go to a place like that?

HURT WIFE

DEAR HURT: Curiosity. Lust. An itch for variety. The fear of missing something. Wanting to be "one of the boys." Being too chicken to refuse when one of his pals suggested it. Temporary insanity. I don't know which of the above applies to your husband, but I'll wager one of them does.

DEAR ABBY: I am 30 years old and in love with a man 29. We are talking about getting married, but we disagree on one important point. He wants children and I don't.

Since the death of my first husband, five years ago, I am more convinced than ever that I do not want children because they will infringe on my freedom. I don't want to share my husband's time with anyone else. The world's problems—crime, violence, famine, disease, pollution and the threat of overpopulation—are more than just a theory. Besides, I'm afraid that I am so set in my ways now I will not have the patience to raise a child properly.

I would appreciate your opinion.

NO CHILDREN

DEAR NO: I agree, you shouldn't have children, but for probably the most important reason of all. You don't really want any.

DEAR ABBY: You are in error when you say, "We all have roots in a foreign country unless we happen to be American Indians, that is."

May I point out that according to the anthropological data available today, the American Indian is also a foreigner, having migrated from Africa some 13,000 years ago? Please reverse yourself in the interest of accuracy.

ANTHROPOLOGY MAJOR

DEAR MAJOR: Aw, come on. I would hesitate to label a people "foreigners" knowing that their ancestors had been here for some 13,000 years. While technically they may not be "natives," they could hardly qualify for membership in the "Newcomers Club."

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 28 years old and have been taking birth control pills for five years. I quit taking the pill six months ago.

My husband and I would like to start a family but I have not had a period for six months and I would like to know if this is normal when getting off the pill. I do have a history of irregular periods before taking the pill. I skipped three to four months at a time.

Since I have stopped taking the pill I have experienced headaches, backaches, pains shooting from my upper thighs to my knees, depression and crying spells.

Is there any medication to start the menstrual flow again or does the effect of the pill have to run its course? Do you think I should go see a gynecologist and if so what type of medication might I expect?

DEAR READER — The trouble in evaluating the effect of the pill in delaying menstrual periods after it is stopped is that some women have difficulty ovulating anyway and would have had trouble without the pill. Nevertheless, the weight of opinion is that the pill can cause a delay in resuming normal ovulation.

Yes, you should see your doctor. If necessary he can try some medicines that stimulate the ovary — the fertility pills. However, this is not always successful. Delaying a family is sound in many cases but as a woman gets older she may have increasing difficulty getting pregnant. Biologically, sometimes younger is better.

DEAR DR. LAMB — The doctor has told me there are spurs at the back of my neck. I had a number of X rays taken. The spurs are pinching the nerves which cause me much pain in my arms, shoulders and neck. I had never heard of spurs except in the feet.

He prescribed medicine to take for one month but the tablets didn't seem to agree with me and burn my stomach.

I am wondering if I should continue to take these tablets. Please let me know more about these spurs. I thought perhaps I had a tumor but my doctor insists I have none.

DEAR READER — Bone spurs are fairly common. In many cases if the bone degenerates it tries to form new bone. This can occur in degenerative arthritis. The new bone formation does not follow the correct growth pattern and may form spurs. These can be of any of the vertebrae. Or you can develop bone spurs in an arthritic joint.

When a bone spur is located in such a position that it causes pressure on the roots of spinal nerves it can cause pain. Sometimes the degeneration of the vertebrae involved may also cause pressure that is a factor in causing the pain.

Any of the medicines used to decrease pain, including aspirin, may be helpful. They do not eliminate the spur of course. If the medicine your doctor gave you does not agree with you the wisest thing to do would be to return to him and tell him so. He can give you something else that may work for you without upsetting your stomach.

Readers who want information about arthritis can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 4-10, Osteoarthritis: Degenerative or Wear and Tear Arthritis. Send a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for mailing. Mail your request to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's Pointers

Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I have a few suggestions for prospective puppy owners. A child's old playpen is an ideal place to keep puppy when you first bring him home because you always know where he is. This is also a great help when house breaking the little dog as he is confined to one area.

We have found that a medium size plastic dish pan also makes a very satisfactory bed for a small puppy. Place an old towel or baby blanket in it as the pad and he will be very comfortable.

When one is not really prepared for puppy's arrival and does not have a dish for his food, the large size margarine containers make ideal dishes. One can be used for food and another for water. —MRS. E. J.

DEAR POLLY — The other day I laundered three full length sets of sheer curtains for my wife. I filled the laundry tub with cold water and that liquid for washing wools, soaked them for five minutes, squeezed out the excess water and hung them on the clothesline. I rinsed the curtains on the line, on both sides, with the garden hose and let them dry. This was much easier than rinsing them inside the house and the biodegradable soap is excellent for the lawn. —THOMAS.

DEAR POLLY — Dishwashing detergent is now so expensive. When the container seems to be empty, do not throw it away but remove the cap and put in a little tap water. Shake the bottle and pour some of this into your dish water and find you have enough for several more washes. —MRS. C.S.

Corn Country Kabobs

To prepare, start with two pounds beef tip cut in 1 1/4-inch cubes. Place beef cubes in plastic bag or bowl. Combine 1/4 cup catsup, 1/4 cup vinegar, 1/4 cup salad oil, 1/4 cup water, one tablespoon prepared mustard and 1 1/2 teaspoons salt and pour over beef. Seal bag securely or cover bowl and refrigerate overnight. Pour off and reserve marinade. Thread beef cubes on six 12 to 15-inch skewers alternately with 1 1/4-inch pieces of corn (18 pieces) and one large green pepper cut in 12 pieces. Brush with marinade. Place kabobs on grill so surface of meat is three to four inches from heat. Broil at moderate temperature, turning and brushing with marinade occasionally, to rare or medium, 18 to 22 minutes, depending upon degree of doneness desired. Makes six servings.

Take advantage of vegetables

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Are you taking advantage of the fresh vegetables of the season? Here are some different recipes for dishes to enjoy during this bountiful time.

CHILLED PICNIC RATATOUILLE
1/4 cup salad or olive oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 onion, sliced
1 green pepper, seeded and cut in strips
3 medium unpared zucchini, cut into 1/4-inch slices
1 medium eggplant, pared and cut in cubes
2 teaspoons dried leaf basil
1 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
3 tomatoes, peeled and cut in wedges

Heat oil in large skillet, add garlic, onion, green pepper and zucchini. Cook about 3 minutes or until onion is tender, stirring frequently. Add eggplant, basil, oregano, salt and pepper. Cover and cook over medium heat 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add tomatoes wedged, cover and cook 5 minutes longer or just until tomatoes are heated. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Pack in container with a tight lid to carry to picnic. Makes 6 servings.

(Note: to remove skins from tomatoes, plunge tomatoes one at a time in saucpan of boiling water for about 30 seconds. Remove.)

CORN OYSTERS
1 cup fresh corn cut from cob
2 eggs, separated
1/4 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/16 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon grated onion
Bacon fat or shortening

Mix corn and egg yolks in medium bowl. Mix flour with baking powder, salt and pepper. Stir into corn and egg yolks. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in. Drop from teaspoon onto a hot griddle greased with bacon fat or shortening. Cook until brown. Serve 4 corn oysters per serving. Makes 5 servings or 20 corn oysters.

SPICED SCALLOPED FRESH TOMATOES
1/4 cup butter or margarine, divided
1/4 cup chopped fresh onion
3 cups fresh bread cubes
3 tablespoons dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 plus 1/8 teaspoon ground cloves, divided
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
4 tomatoes, peeled and sliced

In large skillet melt 3 tablespoons butter, add onion and cook until tender, about 5 minutes. Add bread and toast to a light brown color. Stir in brown sugar, salt, one-fourth teaspoon cloves and cinnamon. In a greased 1-quart casserole place half of bread cube mixture, then a layer of tomatoes, repeat with remaining bread cubes and tomatoes. Dot with remaining 1 tablespoon butter and sprinkle with remaining one-eighth teaspoon cloves. Bake in 350-degree oven 30 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Apricots mix in trifle

There are many ways to make a decent Trifle. Some good recipes call for sponge cake layers, some for ladyfingers. Sometimes crumbled macarons or slivered almonds go in. Sometimes a jam, jelly or preserve is used. The Trifles we like best are made with fruit.

APRICOT BERRY TRIFLE
Two 3 1/2-ounce packages vanilla pudding mix
3 cups milk
1 cup heavy cream
4-ounce package ladyfingers

1/4 cup apricot preserves
2 pounds fresh apricots
1 pint strawberries
1/4 cup cream sherry
1/4 cup slivered blanched almonds

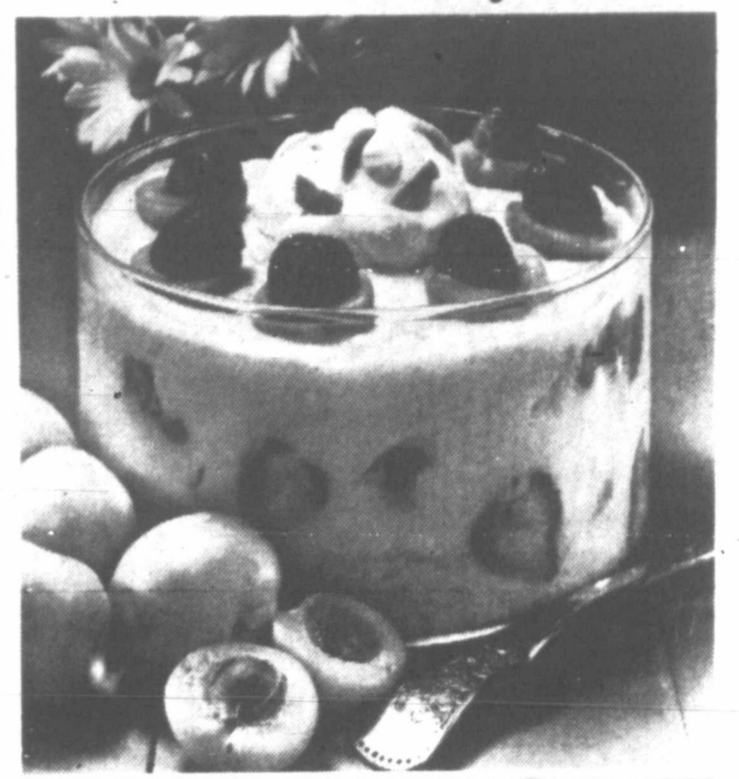

Cook the pudding mix according to package directions using the 3 cups of milk instead of the 4 cups the directions call for. Cool to room temperature, stirring often. Whip the cream until stiff; without washing the beater, beat the pudding until smooth; fold in cream; refrigerate while you attend to the next steps.

Sandwich each pair of ladyfingers together with the apricot preserves.

Dip the apricots into boiling water until the skins are loosened — 30 to 60 seconds. Remove the skins and pits and discard; slice the apricots. Rinse, hull and halve the strawberries.

Arrange half the ladyfingers in the bottom of a serving bowl (preferably glass and straight-sided) that is at least 2 1/2 quarts. Sprinkle with half the sherry. Top with half the apricots and strawberries. Sprinkle with half the almonds. Pour on half the pudding mixture. Repeat the layering. Chill at least 3 hours.

Garnish, if you like, with additional apricots, strawberries, whipped cream and almonds. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

NATURE'S seasoning blend and ginger make special summer salads.

Making summer salads something special

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Whether you're preparing for a picnic or just want to liven your taste buds with some special summer salads, you'll find jugged vegetables a perfect answer.

Although this may seem merely a summer item, you can combine fresh vegetables year round and marinate them in a cider or tarragon vinegar mixture using a special seasoning blend and ginger. Keep the jugged vegetables in a large glass-topped mason jar or plastic container and add fresh vegetables as you eat away at this tasty salad.

Another different salad makes use of fresh spinach, alfalfa sprouts, rice, avocado slices and cashews for a mineral and vitamin-rich treat. Use a yogurt-based dressing for this for a special tang. Again this is a picnic item that will become a year-round favorite.

vegetables. Chill in the refrigerator at least 6 hours or overnight. Shake or stir vegetables to distribute flavor evenly. An hour before serving, add Garnish. Makes about 6 servings.

Note: This recipe can be doubled. If only part of the marinated vegetables are used, others may be added. If refrigerated, this recipe will keep for 5 to 7 days. For a carry-along picnic, it is not necessary to pack this salad in the cooler.

HEARTY BROWN SALAD Dressing

- 1 cup (8 ounces) plain yogurt
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 2 teaspoons prepared yellow mustard
- 1 1/4 teaspoons Nature's Seasons seasoning blend

SALAD LAYERS

- 10 ounces fresh spinach or romaine
- 1 1/2 cups cooked brown rice, cooled
- 1-1/3 cups (about 4 ounces) alfalfa sprouts or fresh bean sprouts
- 1 avocado, sliced (optional)
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice (optional)
- 3/4 cup shredded carrots
- 2/3 cup roasted, salted cashews

JUGGED VEGETABLES

- 1 cup cider or tarragon vinegar
- 1 cup water
- 1 tablespoon Nature's Seasons seasoning blend
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 3/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 cup salad oil

VEGETABLES

- (Select 2, 3 or more)
- 1 (14-ounce) can artichokes or 1 (10-ounce) package frozen artichokes
- 1 pound green beans
- 1 medium stalk (about 1/2 pound) broccoli
- 1 pint (about 10-ounce) Brussels sprouts
- 1 medium head (about 1 1/4 pounds) cauliflower
- 6 large outer ribs celery
- 2 medium (about 3/4 pound) zucchini

GARNISH

- 1 bunch green onions, thinly sliced
- 1 (2-ounce) jar pimiento strips

To mix dressing, combine all dressing ingredients. Stir just until smooth and well blended. To assemble salad, wash spinach. Tear leaves into bite-size pieces. Discard tough stems. In salad bowl, make bottom layer with half the spinach. Layer other vegetables in bowl. Reserve a few vegetables for garnish on top. Dip avocado slices in lemon juice before adding to salad. Top salad with reserved vegetables. Pour Dressing over salad just before serving. Makes 8 servings.

Note: The dressing and salad can be made several hours ahead. Cover and refrigerate until serving time. For carry-along picnics, pack the dressing in a cooler. Salad is crispier if packed in cooler also but this is not essential.

HIS 'N' HERS MELONS Salad

- 1 small cantaloupe
- 1 small honeydew melon
- 1/2 teaspoon Nature's Seasons seasoning blend
- 1/3 cup rum (optional)
- 1 cup (about 6 ounces) ham, cut matchstick size

Dressing
2 medium (about 3/4 pound) avocados
3 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon Nature's Seasons seasoning blend

Make Marinade: In a large saucepan, combine vinegar, water, seasoning blend, sugar and ginger. Bring just to boiling. Stir. Reduce heat and simmer for 3 minutes. Remove from heat and cool.

Prepare selected vegetables. Drain artichokes (if using frozen, cook as directed on package, then drain.) Cut remaining vegetables into large bite-size pieces. Cook each vegetable separately in unsalted, boiling water just until tender-crisp. Drain well. Combine drained vegetables in large, wide-mouth jar or a glass or ceramic bowl. Mix cooled vinegar mixture with oil. Pour over

1/2 cup roasted salted almonds

Make Salad: Cut cantaloupe in half, crosswise. Scoop out seeds. With melon ball cutter, make melon balls from 1 half of cantaloupe. Slightly enlarge the cavity of other half of cantaloupe to make a "bowl." Repeat this process with the honeydew melon, making melon balls from 1 half and enlarging cavity of other half.

Sprinkle inside of each "bowl" melon with one-fourth teaspoon seasoning blend. Turn upside down on paper towel to drain.

Combine melon balls with rum. Let marinate for 15 to 30 minutes.

Make Dressing: Discard pits and peel avocados. Mash or chop in blender. Add lemon juice, mayonnaise and seasoning blend. Beat or blend just until smooth.

Assemble Salad: Cut off a thin slice from bottom of each melon "bowl" so it is steady. Spoon a small amount of dressing into each melon bowl. Add a layer of melon balls, then a layer of ham. Continue until "bowls" are filled. Cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate until serving time.

To serve, spoon Dressing over each salad. (Dressing may be reserved for dunking.) Top with almonds. Garnish with grapes. Makes 2 servings.

Note: For carry-along picnics, put wrapped salads in a cooler. Keep Dressing separate, but in cooler also.

APPLE TURNOVERS

Granny Smith apples are delicious used for the filling.
1/2 cup butter
4 ounces cream cheese
1 cup flour

Apple Filling, see below
Cream the butter and cream cheese; stir in the flour until blended, chill if necessary to have firm enough to roll out. On a prepared pastry cloth with a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out the dough to a 12-inch square, cut into four 6-inch squares. Spoon the Apple Filling over each square but not to edges; fold dough over so edges meet; moisten edges with water and seal well with fork tines, pressing down. Bake in a very shallow pan, well apart, in a preheated 425-degree oven until browned — about 25 minutes. (Pan may be foil-lined, if you like in case a little of the filling oozes out.) Loosen at once. Serve hot. Makes 4 pastry servings.

Apple Filling: Stir together 1/4 cup sugar, 1/2 tablespoon flour and a pinch each of salt and nutmeg, stir in 2 cups diced pared green apples and 2 tablespoons raisins.

TOMATO PEPPERS

A flavorful skillet-cooked combination.
2 or 3 tablespoons olive oil
1 large onion, sliced fairly thin and separated into rings
3 medium tomatoes, skinned and sliced into medium-wide wedges
3 medium green peppers, seeded and cut into medium-wide strips
Salt, pepper and ground allspice to taste

In a 10-inch skillet heat the oil, add the onion and cook gently, stirring, for several minutes. Add the remaining ingredients and cook just until the green-pepper strips are crisp-tender. Makes 4 servings.

CHERRY DESSERT SOUP

For fanciers of sour red cherries.
16-ounce can red tart pitted (water-pack) cherries
1/2 cup sugar
2 teaspoon cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup orange juice
1/2 cup dry red wine
Sour cream for garnish
Drain cherries, reserve liquid — there should be 2-3rds cup; chop cherries very fine. In a medium saucepan stir together the sugar, cornstarch, salt and cinnamon, gradually stir in the reserved cherry liquid and the orange juice, stirring constantly, until boiling, thickened and clear. Off heat, stir in the wine. Chill. Top each serving with a spoonful of sour cream. Makes 3 cups. Adapted from "The New Fruit Cookbook," by Cynthia and Jerome Rubin (Regnery).

CHICKEN ROLLS

A scant half-pound skinless and boneless chicken breast (2 halves)
1 1/2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon salad oil
8 drained canned water chestnuts, finely chopped
1/2 cup each finely chopped celery, scallion and mushrooms

Sauce Mixture, see below
Large outer leaves from iceberg lettuce
Dice the chicken into 1/2-inch pieces; mix with the soy sauce and let stand about 15 minutes. In a 10-inch skillet in the hot oil stir-fry the chicken fast until cooked through — a few minutes. Add the water chestnuts, celery, scallion, mushrooms and Sauce Mixture; stir-fry fast until excess liquid is reduced. Chill. Makes 1 1/2 to 2 cups. Eaters spoon portions of the chicken mixture into the lettuce leaves and roll up.

Sauce Mixture: Stir together 1/4 teaspoon each salt and dry mustard, 1/2 teaspoon chicken bouillon granules, 3/4 teaspoon cornstarch and 1 teaspoon chili powder; stir in 1/4 cup hot water, keeping smooth, and 3/4 teaspoon minced ginger root plus a tiny clove of garlic (minced).

LAMB HOT POT

4 shoulder lamb chops (each about 1/2 pound), excess fat removed Salt and pepper
3 medium onions (about 1 1/2 pounds), sliced fairly thin
4 medium potatoes (about 1 1/2 pounds), pared and sliced fairly thin
1/2 cup undiluted canned condensed beef broth (bouillon)
2 tablespoons butter, melted

Place chops in a single layer in a broiler-proof 10-inch square shallow baking dish (2-quart) or similar utensil. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Layer onions and potatoes alternately over chops, sprinkling with salt and pepper. Add broth. Cover tightly and bake in a preheated 325-degree oven for 1 hour. Brush top with butter and continue baking, uncovered, about 1/2 hour longer. Brown top under broiler. Makes 4 large servings.

Fish chemistry studied

By J.D. PEER
Texas Parks & Wildlife
LUBBOCK — The second phase of the management plans for Buffalo Springs lake near Lubbock and McClellan lake near McLean have just been completed by fisheries personnel of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Routine procedures were followed at both lakes as nets were strung across predetermined coves and a rotenone chemical was dispensed into the water.

All the fish were collected as the chemical affected their ability to breathe. Fisheries technicians using landing nets gathered all species of fish normally found in each lake. The remainder of the lakes and their fish populations were not affected by this operation as the chemical dissipated within hours.

Complete information pertaining to fish production, growth rates, and ratio of game fish to rough or forage fish will be determined after all the figures are compiled by the

P&WD.

These new facts about each lake will be compared with previous surveys completed over the last several years and trends of fish populations will be evident.

The next step for each lake will be the use of electro-fishing gear to collect fish samples not accessible to chemical or net operations. Plans for the final survey with the electro-fishing gear is planned for late July or early August.

LUBBOCK — Trying to find a place to hunt takes both tact and luck and successful sportsmen know they have to start looking well in advance of hunting season to beat the onrush of hunters heading for the fields.

Most hunters know it is nearly impossible to pull off the road and hunt without getting permission from the landowner as nearly all of the state is owned by someone.

Provisions of the Texas Penal Code makes it a crime to trespass for the purpose of hunting. Landowners don't condone trespassing, and often call the law to remove the reluctant hunter.

If you find that you want to hunt, ask the landowner. Tracking down the legal owner can be a real hunt itself but, someone in the area knows who owns the property and how to get in touch with him.

Most landowners want to manage wildlife on their property and past experience has taught them the most economical way is by hunting. Hunting has become a cash crop as grain and livestock prices fluctuate and both day and season leases are available to the hunter.

Since the landowner looks upon wildlife as a cash crop, hunters pay to try their luck at deer, turkey, and quail. Lease hunting has both disadvantages and advantages but, charging a fee to hunt is not always a one-sided proposition.

Most landowners catering to leasing hunting improve wildlife range with an eye toward better hunting. Lease hunters know who and how many hunters are on the property and landowners seldom overload a pasture with guns.

The hunting lease between the hunter and landowner can be for a day or the season. Seasonal leases allow the hunter to return for frequent hunts and a knowledge of the area increases his chances for success. Day hunting is more convenient for the hunter with limited time afield but, is usually less expensive.

The hunting lease between the landowner and sportsman should spell out the exact conditions of the hunt such as species to be hunted, areas open to hunting, and how many hunters will be allowed on each area.

All of these conditions written down before hunting season begins will eliminate a misunderstanding later in the season.

There are still landowners who will let you hunt without charging a fee but, they are becoming fewer and fewer as hunting pressure increases and habitat decreases across Texas.

Earthworm may solve solid waste problem

The first use of the earthworm for the consumption of trash and solid waste materials on a commercial basis, was officially launched amid generous television and news media coverage, in Seminole County, Fla., at a waste-disposal site located near the city of Orlando.

Forty-five tons of residential trash were fed to the insatiable appetites of more than 10,000,000 hungry worms to climax years of research by North American Bait Farms, Inc., of Ontario, Calif., in a process that the company has termed "Annelidic Consumption."

It is planned that this trash disposal facility will handle approximately 35 tons of residential trash per week, with the worms consuming

Fishing Report

Compiled by the Canyon Fisheries Lab, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department

Lake Greenhill — water temperature is 78 degrees and lake water level is 75 feet. Bass fishing is picking up and largemouth bass in the 2-pound class have been caught and channel catfish in the 3-pound class have been fair.

Lake McQueen — the lake is still murky but in clearing and the water level is 83 feet. Fishing is good in the coves and brush with channel catfish from 2 to 7 pounds being caught on waterlogs early and late in the day. Largemouth bass are slow with a 3 pounder caught last week.

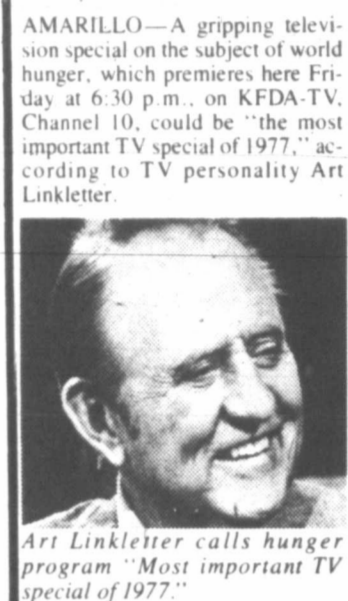

Lake Paducah — fishing is slow with the best success early and late in the day. Several channel catfish ranging from 4 to 8 pounds have been caught on grasshoppers. A few largemouth bass in the 3-to-4 pound class have been caught.

Caprock Park — the lake level is dropping with the best fishing early and late in the day. Channel catfish ranging from 8 to 9 pounds daily. Channel catfish and largemouth bass fishing is slow.

Copper River Park — the water level is dropping with best fishing from boats and floaters early and late in the day. Channel catfish in the 1-to-2 pound class have been biting on stink bait after dark. Hybrid muskies are biting on waterlogs and jugs near the dam. Largemouth bass fishing is real slow.

FRIDAY'S TOP TV RECOMMENDATION

THE CRY OF A HURTING WORLD... "I'M HUNGRY!"

Ari Linkletter calls hunger program "Most important TV special of 1977"

AMARILLO — A gripping television special on the subject of world hunger, which premieres here Friday at 6:30 p.m., on KFDA-TV, Channel 10, could be "the most important TV special of 1977," according to TV personality Ari Linkletter.

The program — THE CRY OF A HURTING WORLD... "I'M HUNGRY!" — is being sponsored by World Vision International, a worldwide Christian humanitarian organization.

Linkletter, who appears as a guest on the program, said: "This national TV special on world hunger will help viewers of all ages understand the meaning of hunger and malnutrition. I hope everyone will watch it."

In addition to Linkletter, other featured guests on the program include Julie Andrews, Steve Allen and Jayne Meadows, Vincent Price, Roger Staubach, Shirley Jones, Hank Aaron and Carol Lawrence.

Also appearing will be Billy Graham, Charles Colson, Andrea Crouch, Dean Jones, B. J.

Thomas, Dale Evans, The Muppets; Eric Torngvist, Pat Robertson and Dave Boyer.

Other outstanding guests are Art Simon of "Bread for the World," Dr. Roger Revelle from Harvard University, Brad Morse of the UN Development Program, Senator Mark Hatfield, chairman of the Senate Nutrition Committee, and nationally-recognized authorities on hunger and population.

The exhaustive program explores the hunger issue vividly and in explicit detail, taking the viewer into the homes of the Mia family in Bangladesh, the De Silva family in Brazil, and the Alam family in the Philippines. There are close-ups of the faces of hungry people in India, Kenya, Indonesia, and many other lands where parents and children together attempt to survive on the amount of food — a coffee American eats during a coffee break.

The telecast gives a clear and positive presentation of solutions and remedies for the hunger crisis, with documented stories of heroic and sacrificial work now being done by religious, charitable and government programs overseas.

THE CRY OF A HURTING WORLD... "I'M HUNGRY!" tells the story of needless suffering and death. At the same time, it focuses on men and women whose love-in-action is bringing hope and life itself to hungry people.

The program is hosted by Stan Mooneyham, president of World Vision International.

Lead poisoning: a fowl killer

Dr. Milton Friend, director of the National Wildlife Health Laboratory, Madison, Wis., announced that evidence amassed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) indicates that lead poisoning may be the most common disease in waterfowl across the country.

The man-made disease erupts after waterfowl ingest spent lead shot — deposited at the rate of 3,000 tons annually — which breaks down to lead salts in the bird's body and enters the bloodstream with lethal effects.

The FWS laboratory regularly samples specimens picked up throughout the United States. "Regardless of where we get the specimens from, a representative number of those dead birds will be positive for lead poisoning," Dr. Friend said.

In the field of veterinary medicine, lead poisoning is considered a "disease" problem. But Dr. Friend allowed that some biologists and naturalists use the reference (disease) in the concept of things infectious. However, he explains, "if you're going to take that position, then botulism isn't a disease."

of human activity keeps the birds moving, thus prohibiting normal bird use of areas being hunted.

Following the season, the birds ordinarily resume natural feeding habits, which involve a greater use of hunted areas. At this time they are exposed to lead shot at a much higher rate, Dr. Friend said.

A case in point: the die-off of approximately 4,000 Canada geese last winter in southern Illinois. The die-off was not associated with a water situation, however. The birds took on nourishment in winter wheat fields. "That's where the geese blundered, that's where the shooting occurred and the lead was deposited," he declared.

Friend says, "there's much more to it than lead pellets. A storm came in and covered the green vegetation with snow. The birds reverted to corn rations — about the worst diet you could put 'em on. The extended snow cover prevented access to green vegetation. Had the green vegetation been available, it might have saved the geese in spite of the lead pellets in their bodies."

He emphasized that weather is an extreme variable that has a lot to do with the eruption of lead poisoning on a given marsh. During spring drought cycles, one finds concentrations of waterfowl on very limited areas. These water areas tend to be the deeper areas of the marsh. The birds frequently focus on these areas — sites around which hunting generally occurs. Moreover, these sites contain the major deposition of lead pellets (from hunting).

Most waterfowl that are lost to lead poisoning die in the springtime, particularly during droughty spring conditions. Friend claims, "I've seen this in Nebraska the last couple of years in the Platte River drainage. In marshes that were 90 per cent dry, the 10 per cent water areas that were left were right out in front of the duck blinds. That's where the birds found feed ... and died. I'm talking about redheads, pintails, and so on."

Spring losses are particularly significant, he reasons, because the potential breeding population for the following year is removed after surviving hunting. "That's having a helluva big impact on population dynamics," he warned.

At Mattamuskeet National Wildlife Refuge in eastern North Carolina more than 6,000 whistling swans have been lost to lead poisoning in the last five years. These birds were not hunted. They simply picked up lead pellets which were deposited several years ago when waterfowl hunting for other species was permitted on the refuge.

Contrary to widespread opinion, the disease is not confined to wetlands. Arguments that weigh differences between hard and soft-bottom wetlands are often inconclusive in analyzing the total picture of lead poisoning. Weather, diet, health, and stress are important factors that figure in waterfowl's vulnerability to lead poisoning.

Dr. Friend is uncomfortable with the common viewpoint which suggests that lead shot disappears in a soft-bottom marsh and is not available to the birds. "I can cite a die-off we had at a marsh north of Aberdeen, South Dakota. It was a very soft and muddy area that had been shot over for years. A firing line situation had been set up and the area was closed to hunting and made into a state wildlife refuge.

"The species composition changed from puddle ducks to snow geese.

because of their feeding habits, would get out there in the soft mud and root through the muck like pigs. They actually rooted through the soft bottom and picked up lead shot. We lost about 2,500 snow geese to a problem that started out as lead poisoning but ended up as avian cholera, which is another area of concern to us."

Die-offs of lead-poisoned birds have been associated with other disease problems, according to the FWS. A chronic disease such as lead poisoning puts great stress on a bird. Stress is a mistress of other diseases. The start of the die-off may seem to be lead; however, suppression of immune response and other interactions can cause a bird that may be a carrier of avian cholera to start shedding the organism, which will subsequently cause a much more serious problem in terms of infectious disease if it takes hold in the flock. But the primer, the underlying factor in such a situation begins as lead shot in the bird, Dr. Friend explains.

Wetlands sought recreation. Nelson said 40 per cent of the McFaddin Marsh will be available to waterfowl hunting, which is the maximum allowed on lands purchased from Duck Stamp Funds.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will be submitting their application to the state in early August.

The laboratory director noted that his staff does not sample specimens strictly in terms of lead poisoning. "We run samples through a routine and look at all potential causes of death. We don't stop at the first thing we see. A sample of everything that comes into the lab will be run for lead."

Findings at the laboratory disclosed a high prevalence of lead in samples from California to Massachusetts, and from South Dakota to Texas.

Dr. Friend said lead poisoning is a chronic disease process. Victims experience oxygen depletion, wing droop, bile staining of the vent and other disorders that can be detected by trained diagnosticians. Ingested lead shot is dissolved by gastric juices and the grinding action of the duck's gizzard.

Lead poisoning is primarily a disease that occurs after the hunting season, a time when sportsmen are not on the marshes to observe the deaths. The major source of lead shot in birds is the annual deposition put down from hunting. During the hunting season, the pressure of human activity keeps the birds moving, thus prohibiting normal bird use of areas being hunted.

Following the season, the birds ordinarily resume natural feeding habits, which involve a greater use of hunted areas. At this time they are exposed to lead shot at a much higher rate, Dr. Friend said.

Pair builds friction-toy transmission

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The way Kent Bales and Dan McCoin see it, what America needs on the highway is an auto that runs like one of those toy cars—the kind with friction wheels.

Inventor McCoin and businessman Bales put their heads together to come up with a transmission that used the friction-toy principle, and they say the results cuts gasoline bills in half.

They haven't sold Detroit on the idea yet, but government energy agencies are taking a closer look at their offering and an Indiana firm wants to build 25 prototypes of the transmission.

The friction toy moves on its own after a few fast strokes on the floor set a weighty flywheel into motion.

McCoin's drive train follows the same idea, except his flywheel is revved by a combustion engine.

Transmission jargon is difficult to understand for laymen but the basic principle behind McCoin's prototype drive train is simple.

The 330-pound flywheel, six inches thick and 14 inches in diameter, "stores" energy. For example, when the auto pulls up to a stoplight, its flywheel remains in motion and powers the car to a new start without necessarily using power from the engine. Theoretically, a car using such a flywheel could get better gas mileage in town than on the highway because the engine would be working less.

McCoin's experimental power system is electronically controlled. Instead of driving the wheels directly, the engine merely revs the flywheel. When the flywheel slows to a certain speed, the engine is automatically engaged to rev it up again.

McCoin quickly admits that his idea isn't new. He received a letter from General Motors that stated his system is similar to one GM developed in the 1960's.

"Their idea worked, but it wasn't practical. Their problem was size, weight, cost and service life," McCoin said.

Bales made a test run in a 3,700 pound, 1961 Studebaker equipped with McCoin's power train last summer that averaged 53 miles per gallon during 10 miles of stop-and-go driving.

So far, Bales and McCoin have entered a preliminary agreement with Fairfield Manufacturing Co. of Lafayette, Ind., to produce the 25 prototypes of their drive train. Bales said the prototypes more than likely will be installed in delivery trucks and taxicabs.

If testing proves successful, the firm may produce 100 or more units, depending on demand. He said the prototypes should be available by Oct. 1.

McCoin isn't the only Texan who is working with what is known in trade jargon as a continuously variable transmission.

Jim Kraus, vice president and secretary of Excelematic in Austin, is working with a transmission he claims will improve gas mileage by 40 per cent.

The basic principle behind the two transmissions was used in several early automobiles. Two wheels mate perpendicularly so the edge of the driven wheel touches the sides of the driving wheel. The driven wheel rotates faster as it is moved to the rim of the driving wheel, increasing the speed of the car — without any pause for a shift of gears.

One of the "big three" U.S. auto manufacturers is buying an Excelematic transmission for evaluation, Kraus said.

The manufacturer wished to remain unidentified, but Kraus said he was told if the Excelematic transmission performs well in testing, "they might be very interested."

Meanwhile, the U.S. government is keeping an eye on developments. A National Science Foundation report on research by The Aerospace Corporation found that of several auto drivetrain options, "the continuously variable transmission would appear to provide the maximum benefit in terms of value of fuel saved per dollar of investment by the consumer."

The U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration is currently evaluating the Bales-McCoin transmission. "What ERDA wants to do is test an infinitely variable transmission," Bales said, "although we're not sure at this point whether it will be ours or not. But we're in the running."

It is easy enough to say a device will drastically improve mileage. But Kraus found it isn't easy to get auto manufacturers to bite.

The Excelematic transmission made the rounds of all U.S. auto manufacturers and several foreign manufacturers before the firm finally got a nibble from Detroit.

In fact, Kraus pointed out the basic design for the transmission because of the improved acceleration it offered.

But Detroit's reaction at that time was that they could match the acceleration improvement by modifying the engine, Kraus said.

Now that auto manufacturers are faced with mandatory mileage requirements, Kraus said he hopes interest will be rekindled in the continuously variable transmission.

County to sue to recover alien costs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — County supervisors voted Tuesday to try to recover some of the $50 million spent annually on health, welfare and justice services for illegal aliens by suing the federal government.

The Board of Supervisors instructed the county counsel to file the suit, which originally asked for $100 million, because it said federal authorities had not adequately controlled the border. The amount asked in the suit was later changed to an undesignated amount.

Supervisor Pete Schabarum said the total cost of providing just medical care to the approximately 600,000 illegal aliens in the county was $50.7 million a year. That figure is 10 per cent of the county's annual health services department budget of $489 million, he said.

Funding services for the aliens "is clearly the responsibility of the federal government, which is charged with policing the influx of aliens through the Justice Department's Immigration and Naturalization Service," Schabarum added. Los Angeles County residents, who pay 25 cents of their property taxes to finance the services, should not have to pick up the tab, he argued.

Schabarum said that about half of the 12,000 babies born in the Los Angeles County-University of Southern California Medical Center are to illegal aliens. The medical center provides $2 million in addition to in-patient treatment to the aliens, he said.

8,000 apply to be space shuttle crew

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 8,000 would-be astronauts have applied for berths on the crew of the Space Shuttle which is scheduled to begin orbiting the earth in the early 1980s.

Many last-minute entries still are being reviewed even though the deadline for applications expired at midnight June 30 after a year-long recruiting effort, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

The long list will be pared to about 150 finalists who will be given preliminary screening tests and physicals at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas.

The final list will be narrowed to 30 to 40 astronaut candidates who will be accepted for a two-year training and evaluation period at Johnson. NASA says the first 15 pilot and 15 mission specialists will be notified of their selection by December. Training will begin next year.

The 8,000 applicants logged in so far include 1,142 women, NASA said.

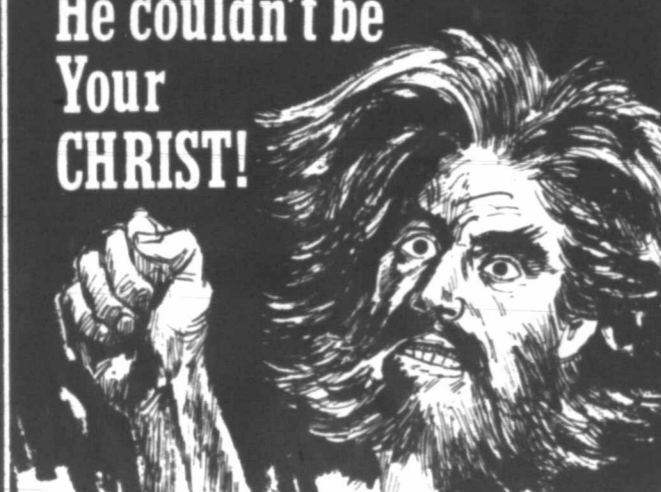

Airman gets murder term

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Rafael George Macias has pleaded guilty to the Feb. 24 mutilation slaying of a go-go dancer and was sentenced to 40 years in prison.

Macias, a 21-year-old airman stationed at Carswell AFB here, was accused of killing Julie Adams, 20. The young woman's severed body was found in a large packing crate at a local dump ground by two two suburban residents.

Tuesday, Macias, the son of a South Bend, Ind., heart specialist, was found competent to stand trial by State Dist. Court Judge J.E. Winters. At the time, the airman's attorneys had indicated their client would plead guilty and attempt to negotiate his sentence.

Grandson gets Groucho

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The ailing Groucho Marx has a new temporary conservator — his 27-year-old grandson, Andrew — but the court fight over the comedian's welfare is not over.

An expected resolution of the bitter litigation failed to materialize Tuesday, reportedly because of objections from Marx's longtime companion Erin Fleming.

Attorneys indicated that Miss Fleming wants time to evaluate Andrew Marx's performance as temporary conservator before she approves his permanent appointment.

The 36-year-old Miss Fleming was removed as Marx's conservator last April and vowed to fight in court to regain her power. But after long depositions from Miss Fleming and employees of the Marx household were revealed, attorneys hinted she would be willing to step aside in favor of Andrew Marx.

The depositions told of bizarre activities, including Miss Fleming's alleged abuse of the 86-year-old comic.

Superior Court Judge Edward Rafeedie conferred Tuesday with attorneys for Miss Fleming and Groucho's only son, Arthur, before announcing that the appointment of Andrew would not be permanent.

What's up in gas guzzlers

Now that Congress is considering legislation to increase taxes on domestic petroleum, and your gasoline bill promises to shoot up even higher, what will you do with those gas guzzling cars you bought last fall? Here are the models that, according to The World Almanac, had the worst gas mileage of all 1977 model cars sold in the U.S.:

Make & Model	City Mpg.	Highway Mpg.
AMC Matador	13	17
Chev. Malibu Wagon	13	17
Chrysler	10	16
Dodge Monaco	9	17
Ford	11	16
Plymouth Volare	11	17
Plymouth Fury	9	17
Cadillac Eldorado	11	18
Chrysler	12	18
Lincoln Continental	13	18
Mercury Cougar XR-7	13	18

On the whole, 1977 cars gave 34 per cent better mileage than the 1974 models. Volkswagen's Diesel Rabbit passed U.S. government tests with the highest marks — 39 mpg. in city driving, 52 mpg. on the road.

Evidence mounts in busnapping case

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Little by little, items from the 4,800 pieces of potential evidence collected in the Chowchilla busnapping case are coming to light. For more than a year, they remained a mystery.

But they are being discussed at the pre-trial hearings for three defendants in the July 15, 1976, kidnaping of 26 children and a school bus driver.

In testimony on Tuesday, Lt. Edward Volpe of the Alameda County Sheriff's Department said a $5 million ransom note was found in the bedroom of defendant Frederick Woods, 25.

Officers also found a kidnap plan and a list of victims in the bedroom. Volpe testified.

Documents seized at the Woods' family's 100-acre Portola Valley estate during a July 21, 1976, search outlined a well-planned crime, Volpe said. However, the list of victims appeared to have been hastily scrawled on a bag from a quick-food outlet, he added.

Among the items the state says it seized at the Woods estate were purchase documents for several vehicles, including vans the state contends were used to transport the kidnap victims to a rock quarry 100 miles north where they were embroiled in a buried moving van. They dug their way out 17 hours later.

The inventory of evidence seized at the Woods estate came to light despite the bitter objections of Woods' attorney, Herbert Yanowitz.

Ted Merrill, representing defendant Richard Schoenfeld, 24, asked that the prosecution state specifically what evidence it intends to offer at a trial.

Nixon promised Vietnam billions

WASHINGTON (AP)—North Vietnam wanted American negotiators to agree in 1973 to massive postwar aid and refused to believe that any such program would need the approval of Congress, says former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"Watching the general nature of congressmen in public, they could not believe Congress was anything but a docile instrument of the administration. They told us Congress was nothing but a rubber stamp and that this was a subterfuge," Kissinger said Tuesday.

To disabuse them of that notion, a 50-page document describing the U.S. constitutional process was provided to Hanoi officials. It explained that not only did Congress approve all spending, it "traditionally authorizes and appropriates considerably less than the amount which the President recommends and requests."

Quoting lawmakers' speeches, the paper also observed pointedly that "there has been growing resistance to foreign assistance in the Congress in recent years. Skepticism has been voiced over aid to Indochina by many of the most powerful members of Congress. The President has stated that he will make a major effort."

The document was made public as Kissinger appeared before a House subcommittee to tell how then-President Richard M. Nixon made Hanoi a multi-billion-dollar aid proposal but never told Congress about it.

The Paris peace accords signed in January 1973 contained provision for U.S. postwar aid, and Nixon told North Vietnam's Premier Pham Van Dong in a private letter that the United States would contribute reconstruction aid "without any political conditions."

The aid would "fall in the range of" $3.25 billion, with another $1 billion to $1.5 billion in other assistance possibly tacked on, Nixon said, but the actual amounts would be negotiated by a Joint Economic Committee and approved via the "constitutional process" of each country — meaning U.S. congressional sanction.

Whether the lesson in the U.S. political process made an impression on the North Vietnamese is unknown, but no aid deal was concluded.

The Paris accords for which Kissinger shared the Nobel Peace Prize began to break down. By late July, he said, Hanoi's violations became so regular "we concluded there was no basis for giving economic aid and so stopped the work of the Joint Economic Committee."

New Yorkers sharing salad supreme

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A swimming pool will be used as a salad bowl to showcase a promotion for New York State vegetables.

The salad will consist of at least 4,500 heads of shredded lettuce, 36,000 cherry tomatoes and 750 pounds of red onions, all grown in New York. The concoction will be topped with 600 pints of dressing from a New York recipe.

A spokesman for the state Department of Agriculture and Markets, which is participating in the promotion, said the ingredients may actually be increased if the salad looks skimpy in the "bowl". The portable pool selected is 24-feet in diameter and four feet deep.

The Guinness Book of World Records has said it will consider the salad as a record candidate, according to the Price Chopper food chain, which is participating in the promotion with the New York Lettuce Growers Association. The latest edition of the book does not list a record size salad.

The salad will be served to the public at no charge Thursday at the Empire State Plaza.

The salad is expected to contain about 12,000 portions.

There will also be a tent over the salad. Why?

"Ah, birds," a spokeswoman said.

Kensler calls 'em Hawk trouble, conditioning, and football predictions

by Tom Kensler, sports editor

If you are ever planning on playing golf at the Canyon Country Club, I suggest wearing a hard hat on the course. While playing in the Golden Spread Coaches Tournament last Friday, our foursome was attacked by two hawks on the seventh hole.

Twice the hawks dove so close that the gust of wind from their wings lifted up the golfer's hair. Nobody played well after that hole because we kept our eyes on the skies instead of the course.

When we returned to the clubhouse, other golfers, including WTSU Head Football Coach Bill Yung, said they had the same problem on No. 7. Guess we treaded on the hawks' territory.

Got into a discussion with Coach Yung about conditioning. He feels that schools in the southern part of the country have a tremendous advantage in conditioning football players because of the hot weather.

He said Baylor seemed to wear out Michigan in the last quarter when the Bears tied the Wolverines in Ann Arbor a couple of years ago.

While it may have been the case in that one game, I don't think one can generalize about the differences in football teams from different areas of the country.

There is probably an advantage to practicing in hot weather, but remember, August in the Great Lakes states is no picnic. It gets so humid up there you can cut the air with a knife. And if hot weather is the prime factor, why do the Southeastern Conference teams always get whipped in the Bowls by Northern teams such as Nebraska, Notre Dame, and Penn State?

More important, I think, are coaching philosophies and training methods. Time after time, the great teams like Oklahoma, Notre Dame, Ohio State, and Southern California clean up on opponents in the game's latter stages, and I'm sure it's more than just a coincidence.

The latest issue of Texas Football picks Pampa to finish second to Amarillo High in Dist. 3-AAAA competition this year.

The magazine predicts that Palo Duro, Tascosa, and Caprock will finish in order behind the Harvesters.

Spearman is picked to win Dist. 1-AA, with Dalhart, Panhandle, Canadian, River Road, and Boys Ranch to follow.

With only three starters returning from last year's 6-4 club, White Deer is picked to finish in the basement of Dist. 1-A. Sanford-Fritch gets the top nod, with Surray, Startford, Gruver, Phillips, Stinnett, and White Deer to follow.

Dave Campbell's magazine lists Texas A&M as the SWC favorite, ahead of Houston, Texas Tech, and Texas. Baylor, Arkansas, SMU, Rice and TCU round out the conference predictions.

The "Bible" of college football, Street & Smith's, sees the SWC to finish in exactly the same manner. S&S picks the Southwest Conference to be the best in the country, with three schools in the top 15: A&M (5), Tech (11), and Houston (12).

Notre Dame's Irish are picked for No. 1, with Michigan, Oklahoma, Ohio State, Texas A&M, Southern California, Pittsburgh, Mississippi State, UCLA, and Alabama rounding out the top 10.

Incidentally, although the Sooners are rated ahead of Ohio State, S&S picks the Buckeyes to beat Oklahoma on Sept. 24. I rate it as a toss-up.

Whale of a catch

L.D. Cox, of Pampa, displays a 15 1/2 pound pike which he pulled up at the southern end of Lake Greenbelt early Tuesday morning. Cox caught the lunker in shallow water with a three-hook throw line tied to a sage brush bush.

Senior circuit resumes wars

NEW YORK (AP) — Having disposed of the American League in another All-Star Game, all the National League stars get back today to the more important business of settling the divisional races.

"Nobody knows what the future holds," said Los Angeles Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda. But if the last 70 games are anything like the first 92, Lasorda won't have any complaints. In the only major league race that isn't close, the Dodgers hold a commanding 9 1/2-game lead over the two-time world champion Cincinnati Reds in the National League West.

"I'm hoping we can maintain it, but there's still a long way to go," said Lasorda, who has seen previous Dodgers teams succumb to the persistent patter of Cincinnati footsteps.

Since their blazing 22-4 start, however, the Dodgers have been merely a 37-29 team, a .561 pace. "We haven't hit recently and I've been unable to give Steve Garvey, Ron Cey, Bill Russell and Dusty Baker a rest due to the fact that some of our other guys have been hurt," Lasorda noted.

The Reds wouldn't mind seeing the Dodgers play .561 baseball the rest of the way.

Spurs sign "Dipper"

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs have announced the signing of second round pick Jeff Wilkins, their first choice in the recent pro draft.

Wilkins, a seven-foot center who specialized in blocked shots at Illinois State during his collegiate career, signed the "make-good" contract with the Spurs Wednesday.

The 37th pick overall in the pro draft, Wilkins is the highest draft choice ever signed by the franchise, which started as the Dallas Chaparrals in 1967.

The "Big Dipper" led Illinois State last year with 631 points, an average of 21.8 per game.

"I figure that if they play 600, we've got to play over 700," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson. "We've got to play like heck. I think we have to win 50 of our 73 games, and that's not an easy chore when you're only 48-41. We're capable of it, but I think that they're going to have to stagger a little for us to catch them."

Despite the recent addition of Tom Seaver, the Reds' pitching has to be the biggest disappointment, Anderson said.

In the NL East, the lead of the surprising Chicago Cubs has dwindled from 8 1/2 to two games over defending champion Philadelphia in the last few weeks.

"We haven't been playing too good," admitted pitcher Rick Reuschel, one of the NL's top winners with 12 victories. "But we're still in first place and that's a pretty good indication that if we can ride through this slump we should be okay."

"I think it will be as close as it was in the first half, all jumbled up. I still think four clubs will be in it pretty much," said Phillies Manager Danny Ozark, noting that the Pittsburgh Pirates were only five games off the pace with the St. Louis Cardinals eight back.

Grahame jumps WHA

HOUSTON (AP) — Ronnie Grahame, who had the best goals-against average in the World Hockey Association last season, is jumping from the Houston Aeros to the National Hockey League Boston Bruins.

Aeros Coach Bill Dineen says, "He called me this morning and yes, it does appear he is headed for Boston," Dineen said. "He has played well for us and naturally we would like to have him back. I guess he just feels the time is right for him to move on."

Grahame compiled a 27-10-2 record last season and had a 2.74 goals against average. Dineen said Grahame was offered a new contract several weeks ago.

"He told me at the time he wanted to take it with him and study it before making his decision," Dineen said. "He told me he has mixed emotions about not returning next season. But he said it was something he felt he had to do."

The Aeros have several options available with Grahame gone, Dineen said.

"I've heard from several goalies in the last few weeks," Dineen said. "Just today, in fact, the agents for the two we drafted this season called."

"We're not sure exactly which direction we will go yet, but both of them are available and so are two or three in the National League who have played out their contracts."

Rookies tangle

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — A routine rookie scrimmage between the Dallas Cowboys and San Diego Chargers was to become a Heisman Trophy showcase today.

Heisman winners Tony Dorsett of the Cowboys and Johnny Rodgers of the Chargers were making their first appearance in National Football League uniforms in the scrimmage on the campus of the University of California-Irvine.

A few young veterans as well as rookies will participate in the scrimmage.

Dorsett won college football's most prestigious award after last season when he led Pittsburgh to a national championship.

Rodgers won the Heisman Trophy at Nebraska after the 1971 football season, but this year will be his first in the National Football League after a stint in the Canadian Football League.

Also appearing in the scrimmage will be Joe Washington, former Oklahoma running back who missed all of last year with the Chargers following a preseason knee injury. Washington was second to Archie Griffin in Heisman voting two years ago.

Another name from the past who will participate in the scrimmage is former Dallas Cowboy backup quarterback Clint Longley, who will share San Diego signal calling duties with former Baylor star Neal Jeffrey and Mike Ernst.

Longley was traded to San Diego last year after he pun-hed Cowboy veteran quarterback Roger Staubach in a locker room incident.

Dallas quarterbacks in the scrimmage will be second round draft choice Glen Carano of Nevada-Las Vegas and 10th-round pick Steve Deberg of San Jose State.

Pate tires of questions

OAKVILLE, Ont. (AP) — Don't ask Jerry Pate about his neck injury.

"I'm sick of hearing about it," Pate said. "The problem is solved."

Pate, defending champion in the $225,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship that began today, was sidelined for a couple of months with back, hand and arm trouble that eventually was diagnosed as a pinched nerve in his neck.

"I'm tired of people asking me if I can ever come back," he said.

"Look, I had the best record as a rookie in a long time. I won the first tournament of the year this year."

"I'm only 23."

"Does that sound like I'm over the hill?"

The fact remains, however, that he has earned only $144 since his victory in the Phoenix Open that kicked off the lucrative 1977 golf tour.

Pate, who scored his first pro victory in the U.S. Open last year, capped his rookie season with the title in this national championship, compiling probably the finest first-year record since Jack Nicklaus in 1962.

His Phoenix triumph proved he was one of golf's best young players. Then the injury problems occurred.

"I'd like to win again, get in the World Series," he said. And, as the defending titleholder, he was among the favorites in the field of 156 chasing the $45,000 first prize over the new, permanent site for this national championship, the

Chisox manager sees close race

NEW YORK (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles and Chicago White Sox, overlooked in pre-season pennant predictions, will attempt to keep fooling the experts when the American League division races resumed today.

"I don't see anybody running off and hiding in either division," said Chicago Manager Bob Lemon whose White Sox led the defending champion Kansas City Royals by 2 1/2 games in the AL West, with the Minnesota Twins five games behind.

Third baseman George Brett of the Royals, for one, doesn't think the White Sox can hold on.

"I'd have to say we're favored even though we're 2 1/2 games back," said Brett, buoyed by a six-game winning streak which the Royals hoped to continue now that the All-Star break was over.

"I'd have to say we're coming. We've come a long way since the start of the season and we're playing the best baseball we have all year. It seems like when the trading deadline passed last month we started playing better."

"It was like we were waiting for the club to make some kind of move, and when they didn't, we realized we'd have to sink or swim with the players we had and we decided to all swim together."

Pitching apparently will be the decisive factor, in both the AL West and in the East, where the Orioles led the Boston Red Sox by one-half game and the New York Yankees by three games.

"Whoever gets the pitching will win," said Lemon, a Hall of Fame pitcher.

"No one in the West has had outstanding pitching," added Chicago outfielder Richie Zisk. "You can't expect us or Kansas City or Minnesota to go out and keep scoring five or six runs a game. You've got to win the 2-1 games."

Minnesota's Rod Carew agreed.

"There no sense scoring five and six runs a game if your pitching isn't going to hold the other team," said the Twins' first baseman, the major league's leading batter with a .394 average. "Our pitching has been a little slack. We have to be more consistent."

The Red Sox have relied thus far on the home run bats of George Scott, Jim Rice, Butch Hobson, Carl Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk. But Yastrzemski said: "If we get pitching like we had on our last road trip, good consistent pitching, we'll be okay. We got to play good solid, mistake-free baseball and we have a couple of real tough months coming up..."

Insurance board backs 7 per cent auto increase

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State Insurance Board experts today recommended a 7.3 per cent statewide average increase in private passenger car insurance rates.

Insurance companies requested an 11.3 per cent increase.

The board, which occasionally adopts rates lower than its staff recommends, is expected to put new rates into effect with policies written or renewed on Nov. 1.

Rates rose 7.1 per cent last October and 15.5 per cent the previous January.

A policyholder's premium probably will change by a different figure than the statewide average. Actual rates vary according to make and model of car, driving record, hometown, age of driver and the use to which an auto is put.

Board actuaries said accident figures indicate these average statewide rate changes, by category of coverage:

- Bodily injury liability, up 3.4 per cent.
- Property damage liability, up 2.8 per cent.
- No-fault Personal Injury Protection (PIP), down 5.7 per cent.
- Uninsured motorists, up 13.8 per cent.
- Full coverage comprehensive, up 22.6 per cent.
- $50-deductible comprehensive, the coverage held by most Texans, up 10.6 per cent.
- $250 deductible collision, the standard coverage unless a policyholder requests a lower deductible, up 13.5 per cent.
- Staff-recommended increases compare with the insurance companies' request for hikes of 8.3 per cent for bodily injury liability; 13.2 per cent for property damage liability; 9.8 per cent for $250-deductible collision; and 25 per cent for full comprehensive.

This probably will be the last auto hearing for board chairman Joe Christie, who is expected to resign within the next few months to run for U. S. senator.

During his four years on the board, Christie employed private consultants who came up with methods for keeping rate increases below what staff actuaries recommended.

Last year's device was the automatic $250 deductible for collision and $50 deductible for comprehensive, which held the increase far below the staff's recommended 19.3 per cent.

David Irons of Dallas, spokesman for the Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office, said increased auto repair costs mean rates should rise.

"For the most part it appears frequency (or the number of accidents) will be declining or stabilizing but severity (or the cost per accident), representing the dollar costs to repair and replace insured autos as well as pay for medical and hospital bills, is going almost straight up," Irons said.

Pampa News Staff

Pampa attorney Robert L. Finney was acquitted Wednesday on charges of wrongful use of his official position as a public servant with intent to harm William Martin and his wife, Naomi.

The trial was held in the Gray County courtroom here.

Acting Judge R.A. Wilson an Amarillo attorney, ruled that the state failed to prove Finney had any intentions of causing harm as alleged in a misdemeanor indictment returned in April against Finney in connection with alleged wrong doings at Highland General Hospital.

Finney was represented by his law partner, John Warner. The state was represented by Otis Shearer of Booker. David Martindale, county attorney, disqualified himself in the case.

The court found there is no evidence to support the allegation in the indictment that Finney's conduct constituted an unauthorized abuse of official power. He was the hospital's attorney at the time.

"The court finds no evidence that the defendant was acting in any type of official capacity at the time of the occasion in question ... finds the defendant not guilty and orders that he be discharged," the judgment reads.

Warner moved for an acquittal immediately after Shearer said the state had rested its case.

Shearer called Miss Vernell Meador, director of nursing service at Highland General Hospital, Horace Williams, personnel director when the alleged offense took place, and Helen Sprinkle, district clerk.

The defense had subpoenaed Bill Martin, but he was not called to testify.

Miss Meador testified that she was confronted in September 1976 by Finney, accompanied by Robert Monogue, then administrator.

She said Finney held an evaluation report she had written in regard to Mrs. Martin's work. Mrs. Martin, a registered nurse, was described as very competent, according to Miss Meador.

She testified that Finney asked what type employee Mrs. Martin was.

"I told him she was dependable and competent," Miss Meador said.

Finney also asked about her husband, she said.

Miss Meador said she told him that Martin was a "very outgoing person."

After the questioning, Miss Meador said she inquired if something was wrong.

"Mr. Finney said they were checking into some things," she said.

"How did you personally take this?" Shearer inquired.

"I felt confused and intimidated," she responded.

"... I was upset because the evaluation report was taken from the file."

She had earlier said those reports were confidential between the employee and supervisor.

The director of nursing service said she discussed it with Williams.

Williams testified that there was no written policy in regard to the confidentiality of personnel records.

"Did you recommend one?" Shearer asked. He said he did not because he never saw a need.

Warner brought out in cross examination that Monogue had access to the files at any time.

Mrs. Sprinkle testified as to when the names of the grand jurors became public information. Martin was a member of the grand jury which investigated the hospital.

After Warner moved for an acquittal, Wilson said he would give Shearer time to reopen some of testimony if he chose.

Court recessed for lunch and Shearer asked if Finney would testify when court resumed Wednesday afternoon.

"Obviously he has a right not to," Shearer said.

Warner objected to his client's testimony, and Finney was not called to the witness stand.

"I have given a lot of consideration to calling Bill Martin but decided against it. I've done the best I can. It is a real limitation in not being able to question Mr. Monogue," he said.

Monogue no longer lives here.

In a statement released to the press, Finney blasted the grand jury for indicting him, saying they did it because he refused to testify before them concerning Monogue, his client.

"I refuse to be intimidated by a grand jury..." the statement read.

"I was pleased that my fellow attorneys in Pampa who knew the background of this case and who know me best refused to have anything to do with its prosecution. They know that the freedom of us all would be in jeopardy if we permit a grand jury to intimidate attorneys in representing our clients and in investigating our cases," it continued.

Senate honors Sherman

AUSTIN — State Senator Max Sherman, who will resign his senatorial post by Sept. 1 to become West Texas State University president, was honored Wednesday by senate colleagues.

Sherman said there is no firm date set for his resignation.

"But I want to be in full swing of things at West Texas State University by Sept. 1," he added. He will become the university's fifth president.

Senate colleagues adopted a resolution commending Sherman for his 6½ years in the legislature.

A.M. Aiken, D-Paris, dean of the Senate, said, "The Senate doesn't need to lose Max Sherman; the Senate needs to get more Max Shermans."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe will call a special election immediately following Sherman's resignation.

Aides to the governor have said he will probably call the election Nov. 8, the date set for the statewide constitutional amendment election.

Bond set at $1 million

McALLEN, Tex. (AP) — A 25-year-old Fort Worth man who allegedly fired at a U.S. Customs agent, took four persons hostage, stole two cars and led officers on a three-hour chase, sits in the Hidalgo County jail under bonds totaling $1.1 million.

Constantino Vasquez Castoreno was charged with two counts of aggravated robbery in connection with the alleged car thefts, four counts of kidnapping and one count of assaulting a federal officer.

Family seeks $2 million from City of Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Famed defense attorney Percy Foreman has filed a $2.5 million claim against the City of Houston in behalf of the family of Joe Campos Torres, who allegedly died while in police custody.

The claim alleges that the city and police department failed to provide proper standards, safeguards and supervisors to prevent the death of Torres.

The body of Torres, 23, was found May 8 in Buffalo Bayou, only a few blocks from police headquarters where he had been taken the night of May 5 after his arrest during a disturbance at a bar.

Foreman's claim also alleged Torres was denied his constitutional guarantee of due process of law and that his civil rights were violated.

City Council referred the case to the city legal department. Such claims normally are the first step toward a lawsuit because the council, acting on the advice of the city legal department, usually denies all such claims.

Five policemen were fired during the investigation of the Torres case and two of them later were indicted on charges of murder and a third was indicted on charges of assault.

Investigators said attendants at the city jail refused to take Torres because he was injured and ordered the officers to take him to a hospital. Torres never reached the hospital.

Named in the murder indictments were Terry W. Denson, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21. Indicted on a charge of assault was J.J. Janisch, 22.

Two other officers who were fired, Glenn L. Brinkmeyer, 25, and Louis G. Kinney, 27, were granted immunity from state prosecution and appeared before the grand jury that returned the June 28 indictments.

Denson and Orlando last week were granted a change of venue to Huntsville where their joint trial begins Sept. 7.

FTC wants death on cigarette label

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warning to smokers: Cigarettes may kill you.

Warning to women: Prolonged use of estrogen, a sex hormone, may increase your risk of cancer.

Warning to food makers: Watch what you say about your low-calorie foods, and how you say it.

In separate announcements Wednesday, the federal government moved to give you protection and more information about products you use every day.

—The Federal Trade Commission asked Congress to approve a new warning label for cigarette packs. The agency says the old warning that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health understates the hazard.

—The Food and Drug Administration ordered manufacturers of estrogen to provide to every user of the hormone a brochure warning that prolonged use increases the risk of cancer of the uterus. The brochure also says there may be a relationship between the drug, used to treat menopausal problems, and other types of cancer.

—And the FDA proposed new rules on what foods can claim to be low calorie and restricting advertising that makes such claims.

In its annual report to Congress for 1976, the FTC asked lawmakers to consider two possible new warnings to replace the one used on cigarette packages since 1970.

"Warning: Cigarette Smoking is dangerous to Health, and May Cause Death from Cancer, Coronary Heart Disease, Chronic Bronchitis, Pulmonary Emphysema and Other Diseases," was one alternative.

FTC wants death on cigarette label

The second was: "Warning: Cigarette Smoking is a Major Health Hazard and May Result in Your Death."

The FTC also proposed that all cigarette packages and advertising contain information on tar and nicotine content.

In addition, it recommended that packages of small cigars include warnings that they also may pose health hazards "if smoked in the same quantities" as cigarettes and "if the smoke is inhaled."

In announcing the brochures for users of estrogen, the FDA said it wants the warnings printed in common language, so everyone can understand them. Distribution must start by Sept. 21.

Estrogen prescription drugs are used by about three million women to treat menopausal and post-menopausal symptoms. The agency said women using the drugs for a year or longer are multiplying their risk of uterine cancer by five to 10 times.

The agency proposed ordering a similar warning brochure for the hormone progestin, used primarily by women with menstrual problems.

In proposing strict rules on what foods can claim to be low calorie and recommending advertising restrictions, the FDA said it wanted to let weight-conscious consumers know which foods "may particularly help them attain and maintain their proper weight within a balanced and nutritious diet program."

Under the regulations, a food may claim to be low in calories only if a single serving contains no more than 40 calories, and a gram contains no more than four tenths of 1 per cent calories.

Escapee sentenced to live term

DALLAS (AP) — State District Court Judge Jerome V. Chamberlin has sentenced Tom Lester Pugh to a life prison term and a 10-year prison term after the Kentucky prison escapee pleaded guilty to charges of robbery and being a habitual criminal.

Pugh, who, along with Thomas Cawthon, escaped from a Kentucky prison in October 1976 and then allegedly conducted a series of burglaries from a Conroe, Tex., apartment, received a life sentence and a 10-year sentence.

The habitual criminal charge resulted from his alleged possession of a firearm at a time when he was a convicted felon. The robbery charge involved the theft of jewelry from a Dallas couple.

Pugh and Cawthon, who were hunted in Oklahoma and several states, have been in the Dallas County jail since their arrest by Irving police in May.

Secretariat foal stolen

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The FBI says it's looking for an itinerant "horse fancier" in connection with the theft last month of a $600,000 rare in foal to Triple Crown winner Secretariat.

An arrest warrant has been issued for William Michael McCandless, 36, charging him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. McCandless' last known address was Nashville, Tenn., said FBI spokesman Alen Whitaker.

The mare, 10-year-old Panfreuche, was stolen from Claiborne Farm near Paris, Ky., on June 25. The horse is owned by Jean-Louis Levesque of Canada.

Whitaker said McCandless was spotted recently in Texas and Tennessee, but added that there hasn't been any sign of the horse.

Secretariat foal stolen

"The thrust of our investigation is to get the horse to safety first and then bring the individual to justice," Whitaker said.

Panfreuche, the champion 3-year-old filly in North America and Canadian horse-of-the-year in 1970, already has produced a foal, L'Enjoleur, that has twice been named Canadian horse-of-the-year.

Dr. Walter Kaufman, a veterinarian, has said that Panfreuche, is "an habitual aborter" and needs a special drug to maintain the pregnancy.

The mare last received the drug June 23 and was scheduled to receive it again three weeks later. Kaufman said that without the drug there is a 90 per cent chance of abortion.

The mare had been in foal about two months when she disappeared.

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK
I have never considered George Washington the father of this country. Maybe I would have felt differently if he had had children.

Somehow, I've always associated this distinction with people like Tom Braden (author of "Eight Is Enough") or Jack Anderson or Harry Reasoner, who head large families.

You can get as sloppy as you want about a mother's love, a mother's tenderness, a mother's tear, but our kids would have been nothing without their father's checkbook.

It began at the birth of our first child. As she lay there in the crib her father said, "She's not only beautiful. She's absolutely perfect!"

"You really think so?" I said hesitantly. "She has an umbilical hernia."

"Can it be fixed?"

"Of course," I said. He got out his checkbook.

With the birth of our son, he said, "This one could whip the world with one hand tied behind his back."

"You really think so? Maybe someday, but for the moment, he needs minor surgery."

He whipped out the checkbook.

The next one toed in and not only needed braces at night, but orthopedic shoes during the day.

Then the fun really began. One had an overbite, the other an iron deficiency, then another was allergic to dust and mold.

They cracked their skulls open, broke bones, were allergic to bee stings, tore cartilage and required stitches.

The contracted rashes, astigmatisms, high fevers and stepped on rusty nails.

When their bodies were finally put together, he had to start supporting their basic psychological needs. "Daddy, I'm the only senior in North America who does not own a pair of earth shoes."

"Ride a bicycle to school! Are you still punishing me for being born Jan. 2 and blowing your $700 deduction for 1959?"

"I know the class ring costs $75, but honest, Daddy, I'll wear it until the day I die."

"Do you expect me to go to a college that is eight hours from the ski slopes? What kind of a degree would that be?"

"If you want a Father's Day present, you'd better give me an allowance."

"Sure, George Washington had to provide food and clothing for hundreds of needy troops at Valley Forge. He took office with a country with millions of dollars in debts which the Congress of the Articles of Confederation had been unable to pay. He worked from sunup to sundown managing his 8,000 acres at Mt. Vernon.

But next to today's fathers who have to deal with taffy in space maintainers and insurance on a 16-year-old male driver... that was a piece of cake.

Police find starving children
NEW YORK (AP) — Six naked and starving children — the youngest 4 weeks old, the oldest 6 years — have been found huddled in bed in a filthy apartment in the Canarsie section of Brooklyn.

The youngsters were suffering from dehydration and exposure, according to a spokesman at Kings County Hospital.

Police said some of the children told them their father died of a heart attack about two weeks ago, and their mother walked out a few days ago and never came back. They had not eaten since she left, police said.

Police say the mother, identified as Brenda Jordan, collected a $50 welfare payment shortly before she disappeared.

Police said they found the children Tuesday night after receiving a anonymous telephoned tip.

Tie-hackers not all gone from Montana

LIBBY, Mont. (AP) — Up toward the sky laden with threatening gray clouds, 70-year-old Jack Stevens raised the 10 pounds of worn wood and fine-honed steel. Then he whipped the ax down to bite into a western larch log.

Ten years ago, he hewed such a log into a 9-inch by 7-inch by 8-foot railroad tie in just three minutes at a logging contest in Eureka, Mont., where he now lives.

It takes him longer now. But Stevens is one of the few ex-professional "tie-hacks" who still can cut a railroad tie. He demonstrated his skill during Libby Logger Days here, a four-day, mid-July festival.

Railroad ties have been made in sawmills for years, and Stevens hadn't cut a tie since 1969.

Most of the tie-hacks are too old now they're afraid of heart attacks," he said.

Stevens' record, set during the Depression when he was 27 years old, was 45 ties in one day. Most men cut 20 ties a day, he said.

He was paid 20 cents a tie back then. That was good money, Stevens said — better than what loggers made. Stevens usually took home about $2 for an 8-hour day, six days a week.

Stevens wearing a dusty cowboy hat and suspended pants, said he started cutting ties when he was 8 years old. Jack Dempsey was his idol then, and Stevens said he almost took up professional boxing.

"I got married instead," he said smiling. "But I could come out of the woods and go six rounds. I was in great shape. Others could maybe go two rounds after working in the woods all day."

Stevens displayed his broad-ax and scoring ax, the tools he uses to cut a tie. The broad-ax, which he bought for $2.45 in 1931, has a 13-inch biting blade. It's flat on one side and beveled on the other.

He used the eight-pound scoring ax to mark the wood and split off the sides of the log with the broad-ax to form the tie, which then went to Libby's new Heritage Museum for future display.

Prison fire victims needn't have died

BOSTON (AP) — Sprinkler systems could have saved most if not all 68 persons killed in three major prison fires in the United States and Canada this summer, says an investigator for the National Fire Prevention Association.

"If sprinklers had been in there, we might have lost a couple of people, but I'm pretty sure that would have been it," said David Demers, a fire analyst and fire protection engineer who made an on-site inspection of each of the fires.
