Huck Finns of Christine Street

The three youngsters admitted that they were "just playing like it's bait" as they tied tiny rocks to their homemade fishing poles and tried their luck after the Thursday afternoon rain gathered on their street. The trio, Nathan Sprinkle, 6, Amy Sprinkle, 8, and Jimmy Barton, 9, knew they wouldn't catch a catfish or a Loch Ness monster. But they hoped some of the leaves would bite.

Three found guilty in murder trial here

By TIM PALMER
Pampa News Staff

A seven-man, five-woman jury found Duane Chapman, 24, Ruben Garza, 20, and Donald Kuykendall, 22, guilty of felony murder this morning in 31st District Court.

Chapman and Garza will appear before Judge Grainger McIlhenny to be sentenced. The jury began deliberating the sentence of Kuykendall at about 11:30 a.m. today.

Judge McIlhenny also will sentence Cheryl Fisher, 18, who pleaded guilty to the same charge last week. District Attorney Harold Comer said the state would recommend probation for Miss Fisher in return for testimony she delivered during the trial.

Deliberations began at 9 a.m. this morning. The jury returned the verdicts shortly after 11 a.m.

The three young Pampans were convicted of the murder of Jerry Bowers Oliver the night of Sept. 15, 1976.

Following the jury's verdict, Comer requested that the judge increase Chapman's bond from $10,000 to $20,000. He cited two previous convictions and said Chapman attempted to elude arrest when he knew officers had a warrant for him.

Judge McIlhenny increased the bond to $15,000.

Chapman told the court he needed time to "put his house in order" in the event he should be required to serve jail time.

The charges for the three were almost identical, except that the charges against Kuykendall and Garza included a clause that states that intoxication is not an adequate defense.

Testimony in the week-long trial indicated that both Garza and Kuykendall were intoxicated the night of the shooting.

District Attorney Comer based the state's case on the contention that the three defendants and Miss Fisher went to the Oliver home at 1072 Prairie Drive to rob him.

In closing statements to the jury Thursday evening, Comer said that "the theory of the state in this case is that these defendants were in the commission of a felony. It makes no difference whether it was an accident or not, it's still murder."

The defense rested their cases Thursday morning and concluding remarks lasted until 6 p.m.

Defense attorneys Bill Kolus, Kenneth Fields and Phil Vanderpool painted a picture of four "kids" out for a good time whose actions led to what Vanderpool termed a "tragic event."

According to testimony, the four drove to the Oliver home to buy marijuana. Kuykendall testified that he had a debt to collect from Oliver and as he approached the house he held a shotgun at his side.

What defense attorneys and the defendants termed "whiskey talk" and "a big joke" was, according to Comer, a discussion of robbery plans. It may have begun as "whiskey talk," Comer said to the jury, "but this thing began to snowball, it began to grow."

Comer concluded that "they're not kids — kids that deserve some pity because of their innocence or their naivete."

According to testimony, Kuykendall was alone in the room with Oliver. Kuykendall contended he did not plan to hold Oliver at gun point. Oliver allegedly grabbed the gun and it fired accidentally.

Chapman's testimony claimed that he did not think the discussion of "ripping Jerry off" was serious, but still he discouraged it. He believed there were guns in the car because he and Kuykendall planned to go hunting that night.

Carter blasts steel hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, disappointed by a new U.S. Steel Corp. price increase, is concerned that the hike could undermine the administration's anti-inflation program, his chief economic adviser says.

"The government can't do it alone. There has to be some general restraint shown by others," Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said of the anti-inflation effort.

Schultze, who asked reporters to his office Thursday evening, criticized U.S. Steel shortly after the nation's largest steelmaker announced price increases of 6 per cent on structural steel and 7 per cent on tin mill steel.

"The administration believes such action is clearly inconsistent with efforts to control the inflation rate," Schultze said. He said Carter had "expressed his sharp disappointment with this development."

Structural steel is used in construction, while tin mill steel is used in food and beverage cans.

Although U.S. Steel said the increase is needed to offset higher labor charges and other costs, Schultze said the steel industry has raised its prices in recent months much faster than the average increase for all American industry.

"We've got to let the public know about it," he said, when asked what the criticism would accomplish. "We have to look at it in terms of what's been happening."

If other steelmakers follow U.S. Steel's lead, he said, overall steel prices will be 12.5 per cent higher than they were in September. The latest increase is the fifth significant hike in 10 months, he added.

The steel price increase and the Carter administration's criticism of it came on the same day that the government issued another unfavorable report on inflation, showing the struggle to contain rising prices has a long way to go.

The Labor Department said consumer prices rose six-tenths of 1 per cent in June, the same as in May, and were up 4.4 per cent for the first six months of the year. Prices rose only 4.8 per cent in all of 1976.

Some administration officials had indicated they expected a much better price performance in June after recent improvements in wholesale prices, including a decline of six-tenths of 1 per cent in June. The administration took heart from another key economic report that showed the economy grew at a healthy 6.4 per cent annual rate in the second quarter of the year as measured by the gross national product. The same report revised upward the first quarter growth to 7.5 per cent from the 6.9 per cent reported previously.

Whittenburg to run

Candidates for the seat now held by State Senator Max Sherman of Amarillo are beginning to line up with the first formal announcement issued today by Burk Whittenburg, 27, an Amarillo attorney.

Sherman, D-Amarillo, newly named president of West Texas State University in Canyon, is expected to resign by Sept. 1 to assume duties in his new post.

Whittenburg is a journalism graduate of Texas Tech and graduate of the University of Texas Law School. He has been a partner in the Whittenburg Law Firm since 1972.

Whittenburg said he lives south of Amarillo in Randall County.

Republican and Democratic executive committees composed of representatives from the 26 county region, are expected to name contenders from each party in the near future.

46 dead in wake of Johnstown flood

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Refugees and a volunteer army battling mud and fatigue have found 46 dead in this flood-ravaged city. Dozens are missing, and damage is put at more than $200 million.

On Thursday, bodies were pulled from bashed houses and twisted rubble littering the scarred seven-county flood area in southwestern Pennsylvania.

"We're expecting more bodies," said deputy Cambria County coroner Arthur Keiper from his makeshift morgue in the East Hills Elementary School near here. Officials said they had no way yet to accurately guess how many might be dead.

Scattered looting was reported throughout the area, and some residents armed themselves to protect what little they had left. Police arrested three men ransacking a Johnstown bar Thursday night.

Half an inch of fresh rain belted this devastated city of 41,000 Thursday afternoon, briefly raising fears of another deluge, before tapering off to a steady drizzle.

"Oh, my God, were people concerned," said county Civil Defense director Elmer Shenk. "It looked like a major storm, and that's all we would have needed."

The city was evacuated shortly before the storm, which set off mudslides in several areas. Winds up to 65 miles an hour whipped up caked mud, cutting visibility to 100 yards.

The National Weather Service forecast good weather for the weekend, however, giving cleanup crews hope that they would be able to resume work in earnest.

"There is hardly anything that creates the mess a flood creates," said Jack Minnotte, chief of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' engineering division assigned here.

The Corps said damage in Johnstown alone would exceed $117 million.

"Had we not built the flood control project in Johnstown after the 1936 flood, those damages today would be $465 million," said Herman Lardner, a flood plan management expert.

President Carter declared the region a federal disaster area on Thursday and dispatched special assistant Greg Schneider to serve, as Schneiders described it, as the President's "eyes and ears."

Richard Sanderson, staff director from the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, was assigned to coordinate federal relief efforts.

He told reporters he plans to set up one-stop relief centers where victims can take care of all their flood-related problems at one time.

An estimated 50,000 persons were displaced when torrential rains pushed mountain rivers and streams over their banks along a 70-mile stretch of the Conemaugh River valley.

College dormitories and school buildings were converted to makeshift shelters, but many survivors simply packed what few belongings they could find and pulled out.

"The family won't be able to come back, not with the stunk," said George Finley, 55, a welfare father of five, whose trailer home in nearby Huff was washed away.

"What are you supposed to do when you lose everything and you didn't have nothing to start with?" asked his wife Alberta as she packed the children in an old blue station wagon for the ride to a friend's home.

While some people packed, state troopers used billy clubs to poke for bodies in waist-high mud the consistency of pudding in nearby Seward where water washed away as many as 50 mobile homes.

A relief center in Armagh listed two dozen persons missing in Seward and the list was growing.

"We just can't keep up with it," said one volunteer.

Another 25 persons were reported missing in West Taylor Township where an earthen dam burst and washed away at least 10 homes as neighbors watched in horror.

"I was in the Second World War, in Korea and in Nam," said Bethlehem Steel Corp. machinist Rudy Dragovich, 52, as he looked over the small shattered town below broken Laurel Run Dam.

"But watching my friends die, that seemed like the worst war of all."

Miss ToT to be crowned

Frankie Watt, Miss Top of Texas, relinquishes her reign Saturday night.

Frankie Watt, 1976 Miss Top of Texas, will give up her crown Saturday night in the M.K. Brown Auditorium to one of 15 girls vying for the 1977 title.

The 1977 pageant is the first to be designated a Miss America Preliminary Pageant and the program will start at 7:30 p.m. Saturday with the Miss Top of Texas Fanfare and the evening gown competition.

Following the introduction of pageant judges, the girls will participate in the talent competition.

Pageant entrants will return to the stage for swimsuit competition following an intermission and Lori Ann Smith, Miss Texas, will present "Everybody Can't Be a Winner."

Former Miss Top of Texas title holders will be on stage. They include Jan Autry, 1968; Mary Beth Johnson, 1969; Pam Martin, 1970; Jan Eddins, 1971; Rhonda Alexander, 1972; Sheila Mayben, 1973; Dee Ann Flowers, 1974; Tamara Payton, 1975; and Miss Watt, 1976.

After the judges pare the field to the semi-finalists, Miss Congeniality will be named and the 1977 Miss Top of Texas will receive her crown.

Special guests at the pageant will be Miss Smith and Donna Axum, Miss American of 1964. Judges will be Ken Nelson, member of the board of directors for the Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant Corp. and business manager for Lori Ann Smith; Jean Johnson, manager and chaperone of the Miss Haltom-Richland area and executive director of the Haltom-Richland Scholarship Pageant; Tom Varner, judge of numerous Miss Texas Pageants; Gary Jordan, associate director of the Miss Texas Pageant; and June Phillips, member of the board of trustees of the Miss Texas Pageant.

Vying for the 1977 title and the opportunity to compete for Miss Texas 1978 will be Trinitide Acker, Rhonda Bailey, Linda Bowman, Penny Bright, Angela Day, Lacey Easley, Kelly Grove, Janis Johnson, Anne Kadingo, Dana Kent, Kim Landram, Kris Richardson, Cindy Stork, Thane VanZandt and Gail Wilkins.

Sterilization now rivals the pill

NEW YORK (AP) — Sterilization of both sexes has become so popular a method of birth control that it now rivals the pill and is the most commonly used method of birth control among couples married 10 years or more, according to a study.

A study of 3,403 married white men and women indicated that about 6.8 million couples had chosen surgical sterilization to prevent unwanted birth, compared to 7.1 million wives using the pill. An additional 11 million persons were sterilized for medical reasons.

The survey, conducted in 1975, is the fourth in a series of National Fertility Studies conducted at Princeton University. It was released Thursday.

per cent in 1965, to 16 per cent in 1970 and to 31.3 per cent in 1975, the survey said.

The survey indicated that the pill was still predominant among the young and newly married, while sterilization was more prevalent among those married 10 years or more as well as among couples who have had all the children they intend to have.

The use of condoms dropped by half between 1965 and 1975 and the use of diaphragms declined slightly, the survey said.

Intrauterine devices, or IUDs, gained in popularity between 1965 and 1973, but declined in use in the following two years. The researchers suggested that publicity about the hazards of the Dalkon shield IUD may have frightened women about IUDs in general.

The survey indicated that female sterilization has been increasing a bit more rapidly than male sterilization, but the percentage of marriages where the male was sterilized was about the same as where the female was sterilized.

The study was conducted by Princeton University professors Charles F. Westoff, who is director of the institution's Office of Population Research, and by Norman B. Ryder, faculty research associate in the office. It was funded by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

The analysis, appearing in the current issue of Perspectives magazine, a publication of Planned Parenthood Federation of America, was done by Westoff and by research assistant Elise F. Jones.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

You Know It Isn't True

Once in a while an angry reader phones in to question our judgment in having published a controversial charge — made, typically, at a public meeting — which "you know is not true."

No, we don't "know it isn't true," but what he is complaining about, basically, is often correct. It happens frequently. His accusation, however, is too broad. We may believe the charge is untrue; we may have serious doubts about its accuracy; but that is not the same as "knowing" it is "not true," and in any case, it is newsworthy, and should be reported.

A Federal court in New York has recently handed down a ruling concerning that situation, and we are pleased to learn that the judge declared: "We do not believe that the press may be required under the First Amendment to suppress newsworthy statements merely because it has serious doubts regarding their truth."

The federal court reversed a decision in a libel case which held the New York Times responsible for publishing a controversial charge which, apparently, was not true. The point is, the Times did not make the charge.

Imagine the kind of watered down reporting a newspaper would be forced to turn out if it were, in fact, held responsible for the truth of every statement made by those making the news

Public statements and questioning would cease to exist so far as newspaper readers were concerned, or else we would be required to say so any time we had doubts about the truth of newsworthy statement; which, as a matter of protection, we might very well throw in automatically, any time anyone made a newsworthy statement. In other words, we wouldn't — as a matter of protective policy — believe anything anybody said. That should get us into more trouble.

The Judge took that into consideration when he wrote, as part of his decision, "Nor must the press take up cudgels against dubious charges in order to punish them without fear of liability for defamation."

Reporting is neutral — or should be — and the judge also had something to say on that subject: "A publisher... who deliberately distorts these statements to launch a personal attack of his own... cannot rely on a privilege of neutral reporting."

The federal judge, we believe, put things in their proper perspective. A newspaper is responsible for the accurate reporting of what was said, but not for the accuracy of the statement itself.

Your Move, Jimmy

President Carter has given himself until 1981 to fulfill a pledge to balance the federal budget, but he must recognize the wisdom of an old Chinese proverb — a journey of a thousand miles begins with the first step.

The first step is to resist "excessive spending" right now. That's the message in his warning to Congress — conveyed via a recent news conference — that he is willing to veto bills that carry too high a price tag.

Carter seems to be taking his announced commitment to a balanced budget quite seriously. We think he should. Congress left to its own devices always has been able to rationalize its way around promises to control federal spending.

Two issues have emerged already as potential veto confrontations. One is a farm price support bill approved by the Senate which would cost $4 billion — almost twice what the administration proposed. The other is the bill for water projects running $3.5 billion more than what the administration advocated, and including all but one of the projects Carter wants to suspend.

Both of these issues are sensitive politically for members of Congress, including those from the Midwestern farm belt and those from states with pending water projects. Each senator or representative apparently regards "excessive spending" as federal dollars going into someone else's state or district.

But the politics of holding down the federal deficit are on Carter's side. Federal deficits of the size we're facing are extremely bad medicine for the country as a whole.

Carter would be right to conclude the public will be on his side if push comes to shove in a battle with Congress over excessive spending.

Water Water Everywhere But Nary A Drop For U.S.

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

It turns out that President Carter is of two minds on the turbulently controversial question of water projects.

In the U.S., he's sternly against them; abroad he's strongly for them.

The administration's sky-high $6.7 billion foreign aid appropriation bill (passed by the House and pending in the Senate) is studded with costly water projects around the globe to be financed by U.S. taxpayers.

Foremost among them is a $50 million project for the drought-ravaged Sahel region in West Africa. This payment is in the nature of an initial grant on a program under which the U.S. is expected to put up from $1 to $1.5 billion over a 10-year period.

Other expensive water projects U.S. taxpayers will be tapped for under this measure are:

- Egypt — agricultural drainage; Kenya — water supply and hydropower; Morocco — irrigation and hydropower; India — irrigation; Indonesia — irrigation; Philippines — irrigation; Syria — water supply; Thailand — water supply; Greece — irrigation; Rumania — irrigation and hydropower; Yugoslavia — water supply; Bolivia — hydropower; Mexico — water supply; Panama — water supply and sewage.

Bitterly says Rep. John Ashbrook, Ohio, ranking Republican member of the Education and Labor Committee:

"Many Western and Midwestern states are enduring one of the worst droughts in recorded history. Farmers are hard-hit, some to the point of being forced out of business. Yet here we are, not talking about how to help Americans but how to bail out African and other countries at a cost of billions."

Singling out the Sahel project, Rep. C.W. Young, Fla., ranking Republican on the foreign operations appropriations subcommittee, sardonically observed:

"I have an idea that ten years from now, when we look back on this program and ask what we got for it and what the people of the Sahel got for it, we'll be scratching our heads and searching for answers."

Down The Drain

The two veteran legislators, with Rep. Robert Bauman, Md., ranking Republican on the energy and environment subcommittee, spearheaded a strenuous battle to strip the multi-billion-dollar appropriation measure of these and other foreign water projects.

During the course of the tense effort, it was disclosed:

"This is the largest foreign aid bill since 1952, when reconstruction was widely underway following World War II."

"Not only is it the largest measure in more than 25 years, but the biggest part of the increase over last year is for 'international financial institutions' — World Bank and related lending agencies. Under the bill, they get $2.123 billion. Caustically pointed out Rep. Delbert Latta, Ohio, senior Republican on the Budget Committee, "When Congress votes these billions to these institutions, we practically lose control of how the money is spent."

As a stark illustration of that, Latta cited the record of the International Development Association, the so-called "soft loan" branch of the World Bank, in allocating 40 per cent of its funds in low-interest, long-term loans to India.

"This money, that came mostly from the U.S.," declared Latta, "was used by India for domestic programs while they used their own money to buy weapons from Russia and to develop a nuclear weapons capability."

More of the Same

The numerous water projects previously listed are only part, declared Bauman, of those that will be financed through the Carter administration's $6.7 billion foreign aid appropriation bill.

Big Cheese "The Mammoth Cheese," weighing 1,450 pounds, was presented to President Thomas Jefferson in the White House on New Year's Day, 1802. This cheese was made by Elder John Leland of Cheshire, Mass., from milk contributed by his neighbors on July 20, 1802.

Thumbing Their Nose Stressing this lack of congressional control, Rep. Bauman noted that these banking institutions had flatly refused to appear before Congress or to submit audits.

"They would not even let Rep. Young," charged Bauman, "attend one of their meetings."

This accusation was fully confirmed by Young.

"We have not been able to obtain any audits on any loans made by these banks to any country or to any business interest," declared the Floridaian. "We could not get an audit, although we asked for them repeatedly. We were offered so-called 'financial evaluations' of certain loans, provided we promised we would not reveal the contents of these reports to anybody outside of the subcommittee."

Also disclosed by Young was the high-handed attitude of World Bank president Robert McNamara — who as Defense Secretary in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations was aggressively censorious of the reluctance of military leaders to permit prying into their affairs.

Young related, "I invited myself" to attend a meeting of the governors of the World Bank when they were considering foreign loan applications.

"I wanted to learn," he said, "how American dollars were being used. But I never got there. I received a very pointed letter from Mr. McNamara flatly turning me down. The letter in effect said, 'Nothing doing; you can't come.' Here I am — ranking minority member of the subcommittee handling this legislation, yet I cannot go to a meeting of the directors of the World Bank when they are talking about spending the tens of millions of dollars given them by U.S. taxpayers. I contend that is not the proper recognition of our obligation to answer to the American people for the dollars we appropriate."

No citizen complaints?

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Carter's legal staff is quietly but aggressively working to kill plans to authorize citizen-initiated complaints against federal officials believed to be violating the government's proposed new ethics law. If the White House is successful in its effort, it will have eliminated the only formal procedure available to an individual citizen seeking to present evidence of misconduct, conflict of interest or breach of public trust on the part of a government employee.

With considerable fanfare, Carter unveiled his proposed Ethics in Government Act on May 3. But legislation with far more specific, stringent and comprehensive provisions was introduced in the Senate more than three months earlier, on Feb. 1.

The Senate bill, the Public Officials Integrity Act, became the focus of attention when the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee began "markup" meetings to perfect the legislation, one week after Carter's announcement.

Both the White House and Senate bills called for the establishment, within the Civil Service Commission, of a new Office of Government Ethics, to administer and monitor the tough new government-wide ethical standards.

But the Senate bill also included specific language establishing a procedure under which a citizen complaint, required to be sworn and in writing, would be referred to the agency for which the accused individual worked.

A preliminary inquiry would be discreetly conducted, with the results reported back to the Office of Government Ethics. That initial inquiry would serve to either screen out frivolous and unwarranted complaints or lead to a fullscale investigation.

Despite those built-in safeguards, Robert J. Lipshutz, Counsel to the President, wrote on May 11 to Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., chairman of the Senate committee, with a strong objection to the citizen complaint procedure.

"The draft procedure could be a serious burden for the Director (of the Office of Government Ethics) as well as an instrument for harassment by personal adversaries and busy bodies."

The following day, May 12, Lipshutz again wrote Ribicoff, specifically calling for elimination of the citizen complaint procedure on the grounds that "the Office of Government Ethics could easily be swamped with allegations of conflicts of interest having little basis in fact and which become a vehicle for the harassment of one individual by another."

According to Ribicoff's staff, the committee planned to retain the citizen complaint provision but it was inadvertently eliminated in the haste of preparing the bill for the full Senate, where it was approved — without the provision — just before the July 4 recess.

Common Cause, which intends to fight for restoration of the provision when the bill is considered in the House, has noted that both the House and the Federal Election Commission have used a similar procedure for several years without overburdening their staffs or encouraging unwarranted complaints.

But perhaps the best argument for restoring the citizen complaint procedure was articulated in a Dec. 1974 speech at the National Press Club here.

"For too long political leaders have been isolated from the people. They have made decisions from an ivory tower," said the speaker that day. "Now it is time for this chasm between the people and government to be bridged and for American citizens to join in shaping our nation's future."

He added, "The root of the problem is not so much that our people have lost confidence in government, but that government has demonstrated time and again its lack of confidence in the people."

That stirring rhetoric on behalf of citizen participation came from a then-obscure politician named Jimmy Carter. The occasion was his declaration of candidacy for the presidency.

"Do not show your wounded finger, for everything will knock up against it," Baltasar Gracian

Blue Cross costs escaping containment.

McCabe is a gracious man. He politely defended his "troops" against my caustic comments. He doesn't like to see his employees unfairly abused, he said, but he doesn't care what is said about him personally. This was as close as he came to referring to my wise-guy remark that McCabe has the only key to the cost-containment room, for use whenever he can't contain himself from asking for another pay raise.

McCabe was recently hiked from $65,000 to $110,000 annually. I am in no position to judge whether he is worth that much. I offer sympathy but not agreement to those people who tell me that a man making so much money cannot possibly understand bread-and-rent problems that a raise in health insurance costs can cause retirees on fixed incomes.

But I confess I have always been intrigued by the tremendous salaries paid to top business executives. Obviously, they are contributing something special to their companies. I can understand that this executive is smarter than that clerk. But can a $600,000 man really be that much smarter than his $25,000 employee?

Actually, McCabe's salary is modest compared to that paid to the top men in other industries. If I really wanted to research the subject, I should have breakfast with the president of General Motors. But still, I think that when McCabe and I descended into his basement cafeteria, he inadvertently gave me a clue as to how a man gets ahead in the world.

He walked down the escalator steps. He practically ran.

I never walk on an escalator; I ride. The steps always move fast enough for me. I thought only little kids and escaping criminals ran on escalators.

But I boarded the escalator one step behind McCabe and got off 15 behind as he was disappearing down a corridor. He was polite enough to stop and wait for me. But the world won't wait for those who hope to conquer it.

I think I just made a moral. Anyway, it was a nice breakfast.

...Seen any good movies lately? I saw "Exorcist II: The Heretic." The next day, I read Warner Brothers is disappointed at audience reaction to the ending of the movie. A new ending is being filmed and will be rushed to theaters as soon as possible. That leaves only two problems: the beginning and the middle.

I also saw "A Bridge Too Far," which is about World War II and stars every male actor in the world. The movie lasts almost as long as the war. For me, it was a nostalgic trip. As a participant, I slept through as much of that war as possible. I did the same thing at the movie.

Finally, I saw "For the Love of Benji" for the love of my granddaughter. Greater love hath no grandfather. I also hath a healthy fear of the child's grandmother who said it would do me good to see a movie with no dirty words. It didn't.

Benji is a dog who knows one trick — how to run. That's all he does, for 90 minutes, with replays in slow motion. Even four-year-old Melissa kept asking when the movie would be over. She kept waking me up to ask me. There were some dirty words at that movie, but I mumbled and only Grandmother heard me.

Port okayed; lawmakers adjourn

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — An 11-day special legislative session that probably will be remembered most for prompting the resignation of a supreme court justice has adjourned.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe planned to sign today the session's major product, a bill increasing state school aid by $945.4 million over the next two years.

Before shutting down late Thursday afternoon, lawmakers passed and sent to Briscoe bills tightening state supervision of nursing homes and allowing Texas government to build a deepwater port for super-tankers if oil companies fail to do the job.

They also sent the governor a bill wiping away a technicality that would have made citizens of 39 flood-prone counties ineligible for federal flood insurance.

True to his well-known distaste for special sessions, Briscoe submitted only emergency matters, although some doubted the nursing home situation was bad enough to warrant a new state law.

Reports in the Lufkin News that patients in some nursing homes were underfed, improperly medicated and even beaten prompted Briscoe to ask lawmakers for action.

Skeptics, however, saw the move as a device to draw attention away from a task force investigation launched by Atty. Gen. John Hill, a likely opponent of Briscoe in next year's elections.

The House passed the nursing home bill 130-1, and senators accepted the measure, 22-1.

The measure ends divided regulation of the 950 nursing homes by both the welfare and health departments, centralizing it in the health department.

Other key provisions: —Provide possible two-to-10-year prison sentences and fines of up to $5,000 for nursing home employees convicted of physically harming patients.

—Require the health department to make at least one unannounced inspection of each nursing home annually and set standards for administration of medicines.

—Enable the department to shut down all or part of a nursing home if necessary to prevent loss of life or health.

—Impose penalties of up to a year in jail and a $2,000 fine for failure to report abuse or an old person to the welfare department.

—Establish a grading system or nursing homes and require homes to post their grades for public viewing.

The deepwater port bill was prompted by the decision of oil companies holding a 52 per cent interest to pull out of the petroleum industry's Seadock project.

It says that if the Seadock consortium fails to come up with the funds to build the port, the state would issue revenue bonds for the construction.

Oil companies using the port would buy the bonds, which would be repaid from port revenues.

"For me it's simple. I want to see Texas get this oil. I don't want it to go to Louisiana," said House sponsor Pike Powers, D-Beaumont.

Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, said, however, that the bill amounted to "socialism."

House members passed the port bill 111-26, and senators accepted the representatives' version, 23-3.

Also sent to Briscoe was a bill enabling Texans to get federal flood insurance even though their counties missed a 1970 state deadline for adopting flood plain management standards. Thirty-nine of the 55 counties qualifying for the program missed the deadline.

Hill issued an opinion recently that said a county was not covered by the program if it did not adopt its standards on time.

Briscoe called the session mainly because lawmakers failed in the 140-day regular session to agree on a school finance bill. Many school districts were faced with raising taxes if forced to continue under existing law. And they have mid-August budget deadline.

Stolen art in Dallas law office

DUNCANVILLE, Tex. (AP) — An estimated $1.5 million in stolen paintings, including pieces probably done by Goya, Picasso and Matisse, have been recovered in the offices of a Dallas attorney, police and federal agents announced Thursday.

Duncanville Police Chief D.H. McElroy and FBI spokesman Lloyd Harrell refused to identify the attorney, but Harrell said no charges would be filed against the attorney.

He also indicated that the lawyer was acting on behalf of another unidentified party who knew the whereabouts of the art.

The paintings were stolen from the Duncanville home of Ben McLemore Feb. 15. McLemore said he was keeping them for a wealthy Mexican merchant, Juan Abusaid of Torreon, Coahuila, Mexico.

Authorities have asked two local art experts to perform tests on the paintings to determine if they are genuine.

"There's every indication that the paintings are real," said the FBI's special agent in charge Ted Gunderson. "but we're going to be checking the rest of today to know for sure."

On Feb. 23, police arrested three men and charged them with burglary of a habitation. Elfunzell Penagrich, 23, and Robert Maloy, 23, both of Dallas, were released on $25,000 bonds. Elfunzell Penagrich Sr., 43, remained Thursday in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Cousins split with Lutherans

By TOM DeCOLA
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — When the cousins were attending Decorah College in Iowa, J.A.O. Preus was the scholar and David Preus was the athlete. Today they're still on opposite wavelengths.

The Rev. Dr. J.A.O. Preus (rhymes with choice) is president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and the Rev. Dr. David Preus is president of the American Lutheran Church (ALC).

A gap widened between the two churches this week when the Missouri Synod voted to continue fellowship with the ALC "under protest." Most observers are convinced that the two groups will split entirely by 1979.

The first cousins are part of a large family that has produced between 30 and 40 Lutheran ministers, and the two men who lead some six million Lutherans between them remain friendly despite the growing schism between the churches.

Their family life was close, although the 57-year-old J.A.O. and the 55-year-old David now live miles and poles apart. They met again at the Missouri Synod convention this week in Dallas.

"He was the student and the politician," David said of his cousin. "And his father was the president of the college," said J.A.O. "That's how he got in."

The two churches entered fellowship in 1969. J.A.O. was already president of the Missouri Synod, but David was not to take the reins of the ALC until 1973. Fellowship within the Lutheran Church is a general sharing of endeavor, including intercommunion.

"It (the problem) was known in 1969," J.A.O. said (the Missouri Synod vote for fellowship was a scant 54 per cent for and 46 per cent against). "I think the ALC was anxious for fellowship. I have always regretted that they seemed to be determined to push ahead on ordination of women when we were barely getting acquainted. Timing was at the root of the problem. I'm not saying that all our actions were delightful."

Both denied speculation that the Missouri Synod would use the next two years to recruit members from the ALC. Lutheran membership has been declining, but each man said that the trend has bottomed out and stabilized.

They said that the matter of ordination of women is a matter of the Biblical "order of creation."

"It's not a matter of interpretation," J.A.O. said. "It's a different approach to Scriptures."

David said the ALC believes Scriptures are not specific on whether ordination of women is proper, and that the determination is properly made within his church. "The LCA is just willing to go further faster," he said.

David wondered if his cousin saw the protest vote as a "clear signal" that a split is inevitable. J.A.O. said he did not see that.

In turn, J.A.O. asked if David felt there was any reasonable hope to look into a repair of relations "seriously and earnestly." David said he feels there is such hope.

"We must be extremely careful in the way we speak... We have to treat this with great care," J.A.O. said.

Neither man would call the situation a crisis, but both said many hopes would be dashed by a total split.

As they walked down a darkened driveway in a state where Lutherans are somewhat of a rarity, J.A.O. mentioned that he had a daughter in Dallas who was expecting a child. "Oh," David exclaimed with sincere interest. "And did she marry a Lutheran minister?"

"Now," J.A.O. said. "She married a Baptist."

Presidential primary fails

AUSTIN, Tex. AP — A presidential primary for Texas in 1980 came close but not close enough in the special legislative session, just as it did in the regular session.

Although backers of the measure has signatures showing 76 House members wanted the bill debated, along with 15 senators, the issue was never cleared for consideration before final adjournment Thursday.

In the regular session the bill passed the House but died in the Senate on the final day in the face of a threatened filibuster by Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston.

The failure of either session to act, leaves the question to the 1979 Legislature.

"It seems clear to me that the voters of Texas want to continue to take a direct part in choosing our presidential candidates," Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said in a statement. "It also seems clear that the time to pass a new presidential primary bill is now."

Arabs try to defuse battle

CAIRO (AP) — Arab leaders worked today to defuse an Egyptian-Libyan border confrontation that erupted into a desert air and armor battle. A senior Egyptian official said he expects the crisis to "peter out."

Egypt and Libya accused each other of provoking Thursday's border clash. There were no reports of any new fighting today, the Moslem Sabbath.

Mahmoud Riad, secretary-general of the Arab League, reportedly was seeking to convene an emergency meeting of Arab foreign ministers to resolve the dispute. Riad issued a statement deploring the "terrible incidents along the border" and urging the two sides not to escalate the conflict.

The Egyptian official, who asked not to be identified, said Palestine Liberation Organization — PLO — leader Yasir Arafat also was attempting to intervene.

Arafat flew to Libya Thursday night immediately after a 90-minute meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The official said Arafat "is coming back today and maybe we'll know more after his return." Arafat has tried before to cool the increasingly bitter dispute between Tripoli and Cairo.

"I think the whole thing will peter out," the official added.

Sadat was expected to express his government's position in the dispute in a speech scheduled for later today.

Egypt's state-controlled newspapers called on the Libyan people and the army to overthrow Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafi.

The daily Al Akhbar labeled Khadafi the "new Hitler," and said, "He thought he could invade Egypt by force and become its ruler. We do not doubt for a single minute that the Libyan army will refuse to carry out his orders after he has become an instrument and agent of the Soviet Union."

The semi-official newspaper Al Ahran said, "The fate of Khadafi, the Egyptian people and the Egyptian soldiers are in the hands of the faithful Libyan army and people whom, we are sure, will not remain silent over the adventures of the Libyan dictator."

In reporting the battle, Cairo said Libyan forces had invaded Egypt from the west and were repelled. The Libyans said Egyptian troops had attacked a Libyan village, killing women and children.

The fighting near the Mediterranean Sea at the northern end of the Egyptian-Libyan frontier was the fourth border clash reported in the past month between the two feuding neighbors, which once planned to merge into one nation.

"There has been fighting but we have not declared war," an Egyptian military spokesman said after Thursday's battle.

Libya's official Arab Revolution News Agency (ARNA) carried a 1,500-word statement from an "official spokesman," naming Egypt as the aggressor and accusing Cairo of pursuing an "imperialistic policy."

Cairo radio said the Egyptian air force shot down two Libyan planes and that ground forces "destroyed 40 tanks and 30 Libyan army trucks, and took 12 military prisoners from the 9th Libyan armored division as well as 30 saboteurs." Cairo said no Egyptian soldiers were killed, but several were wounded and one truck was lost.

Tripoli gave no account of its casualties. The Libyan news agency said the fighting followed attempts by the Libyan army earlier this week to chase Egyptian troops out of positions they took up inside Libyan territory a few months ago.

Cairo Radio said the worst previous border clash took place two days ago. It said the crews of 20 Libyan military vehicles were killed, and the vehicles destroyed, and nine Egyptians were killed.

The Libyan statement said Palestinian guerrilla chieftain Yasir Arafat tried unsuccessfully Tuesday to mediate between Cairo and Tripoli.

Oil-rich Libya and its economically troubled neighbor to east announced plans for a union in August 1972. The proposed merger soon fell apart and relations between the two nations have soured steadily.

Libya's staunchly religious leader, Moammar Khadafi, accused Egypt of adopting corrupt Western ways in violation of the Koran, Islam's book of scriptures.

Hobby says ruling on school tax 'no crisis'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — It will be school as usual this fall despite a federal judge's finding that the way Texas distributes state money for education is unconstitutional, say two legislative leaders.

"There's no big crisis about the thing," Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Thursday, the final day of an 11-day special legislative session on school finance.

"We will proceed with distribution of school funds for the rest of the year," said education commissioner M.L. Brockette.

U.S. District Court Judge Jack Roberts rejected applications Wednesday by the Leander and San Augustine school districts, which challenged the school finance system.

Roberts stated in his order that the districts would not suffer "irreparable injury" if he refused their requests for preliminary injunctions.

He said, however, that relying totally on real estate — and ignoring intangible property, such as stocks and bonds — discriminates against rural school districts in favor of urban districts.

Leander and San Augustine, he added, have a good chance of proving that Texas' school finance system violates the U.S. Constitution and Texas law if a trial is held on the merits of their plea.

"We're very favorably impressed by the judge's order," said Adrian Overstreet, lawyer for the Leander district.

"We've believed that all along," N.T. Bennett of San Augustine said of the ruling.

Rep. Tom Massey, chairman of the House Public Education Committee, said the order adds importance to a school finance study commission created by the special session and given $200,000 for its work.

The commission "was put in there in anticipation of something like this," said Massey, D-San Antonio.

In approving a $945.4 million school finance bill last Friday, the legislature also created a board to determine the market value of all property — "real and personal, tangible and intangible, in each school district."

A Senate committee approved a proposal to ease the controversy by removing from the Texas Constitution a requirement that intangible property be taxed. The proposal was left hanging, however, in legislators' eagerness to quit and go home.

Hobby said, "No responsible judge is going to suspend the operation of government."

Asked if Roberts' finding posed a "potential crisis," Hobby replied, "The legislature meets every two years — that's what it's here for."

For the future, Massey said, "One alternative is to increase the Foundation School Program so that we assure an adequate education for our students and fund it completely by the state from some broad-based source."

Another possibility, he said, is the use of the income of a school district's residents as the measurement of ability to pay, rather than the value of their property.

Teng restored to power

TOKYO (AP) — China announced today that Teng Hsiao-ping has been restored to all his old posts — vice premier, Communist party vice chairman and chief of the army general staff.

Announcement of the 73-year-old Teng's return to the forefront of the political scene was made by the official Chinese news agency, Hsinhua.

In a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, Hsinhua said the action was taken by the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist party in a meeting that was held in Peking July 16-21.

Earlier this week, wall posters had gone up in Peking supporting the return of Teng to power after months of rumors that the survivor of previous purges was making another comeback.

The Hsinhua announcement also made official earlier reports that the "Gang of Four" had been expelled from the Chinese Communist party. They are former Chairman Mao Tse-tung's widow, Chiang Ching, and her supporters who once held highest rank, Wang Hung-wen, Chang Chun-chiao and Yao Wen-yuan. The broadcast said they were expelled from the party "once and for all" and dismissed "from all posts both inside and outside the party."

There has been speculation that the rehabilitation of Teng could be the first step toward his eventual promotion to premier, the post now held by Chairman Hua Kuo-feng.

Teng had been expected to move into the premier's job after Chou En-lai died in 1976, but he was purged after riots broke out in Peking at memorial services for Chou. Teng was blamed for the disturbances and subjected to a campaign of vilification led by the so-called Gang of Four.

Teng earlier had been purged

To negotiate withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown is flying to South Korea to discuss the withdrawal of America's 33,000 ground combat troops and to negotiate transfer of U.S. weapons and equipment to the Seoul government.

Brown, leaving Washington today, will arrive in Korea Saturday evening and spend Sunday visiting U.S. and Korean troops in the field.

Talks with President Park Chung-hee and top South Korean defense officials are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday.

President Carter has announced plans to pull out all U.S. ground troops stationed in Korea over the next four to five years, while reinforcing the Asian nation's ability to defend itself. He has promised to keep U.S. air power in Korea indefinitely.

The administration reaffirmed its decision to withdraw the troops after an unarmed U.S. Army helicopter was shot down last week over North Korean territory.

Three U.S. soldiers were killed and a fourth captured in the incident. The North Koreans have returned the bodies of the three men killed and released the survivor.

A Pentagon task force has concluded that South Korea will need up to $8 billion worth of additional equipment to offset the task force. Korea probably will need about 250 jet fighters, including F16s, plus hundreds of helicopters and observation planes, missiles and guns.

One of the topics in Brown's talks will be how much equipment the Koreans will have to buy and how much will be provided free.

The Pentagon says the administration has a general idea of what weapons and equipment might be involved in sales and transfers. But Brown is going into the talks with "a considerable mandate to consult and negotiate," a Pentagon spokesman said.

An earlier round of talks on the withdrawal was conducted in May when Philip C. Habib, undersecretary of state for political affairs, and Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, visited Seoul. Habib returned to Korea on July 10 for more discussions.

The Carter administration says the withdrawal will risk war only if the North Koreans are irrational.

Despite assurances about the plan, doubt exists within the military.

A warning earlier this year that the withdrawal would lead to war cost Army Gen. John K. Singlaub his job as the third-ranking U.S. officer in Korea.

In addition, Gen. Bernard W. Rogers, Army chief of staff, told Congress last week that Carter rejected a Joint Chiefs of Staff recommendation to withdraw only 7,000 troops over five years. Although Carter's plan is not what the generals wanted, Rogers said, the joint chiefs endorse the President's decision and are carrying it out.

Jaworski gets free hand

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, undertaking the investigation of alleged influence-buying of congressmen by a South Korean businessman, said Thursday he would issue subpoenas without the approval of the House Ethics Committee.

Jaworski said if any "roadblocks are put in my way for a complete investigation, I will resign and let the public know why."

The 71-year-old Houston attorney told newsmen "I insisted on the right to issue subpoenas without the approval of the Ethics Committee. I don't want someone saying to me 'Don't subpoena this person because he doesn't know anything or don't subpoena that person because he is a friend of mine."

From the first, Jaworski has demanded a free hand in the investigation and received that Thursday when House Ethics Committee voted 10-0 to give him "full and complete authority." The committee also agreed to issue any subpoenas sought by the new chief investigator.

Jaworski said he wouldn't pull any punches in the investigation and didn't care "if those involved are Republicans or Democrats. If a crook is involved in this thing, I want to bring him out and I want the public to know about it. I don't like crooks."

In answer to a question, Jaworski said neither he nor his law firm have any dealings with South Korean businessman Tongson Park, who allegedly gave cash gifts to congressmen to ensure favorable treatment of the South Korean government.

Jaworski said some questions have been raised about the possible involvement of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., and House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Tex., in the Korean affair.

"I want to say now and the public should know that if it had not been for Speaker O'Neill and Rep. Wright, I doubt if I would have accepted the job. Both of these men put their efforts together to convince me to accept."

Jaworski said he had been promised by O'Neill and Wright "full sway in the investigation."

"I have never had more complete assurance that I would have a free hand."

And, Jaworski said, if the probe turns up "evidence of wrongdoings, I wouldn't hesitate one minute to recommend prosecution. I am sure the U.S. Justice Department would prosecute those cases."

Names in the news

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — One day not too far down the road a fellow named Knievel is going to go barreling up a ramp in a racy little car and go sailing off towards another ramp — or at least that's the plan.

But it's not Evel Knievel who plans to do the jumping, it's his younger brother Nic.

Nic, 37, lives here in this southern Willamette Valley university town as president of an imported car dealership.

And now Nic has decided to leap into the limelight by establishing a record leap — if all goes well, in August — with the family-built race car.

The mark he's after is the unofficial record of stunt driver Joey Chitwood. That 111-foot bound was done in a sedan, not a racer.

New Jersey — Although the Essex County Democrat began his law practice in 1938, a spokesman said he had not practiced actively since the late 1960s.

A delinquent lawyer is sent three notices of non-payment before the state Supreme Court bars him from practicing in the state.

ATLANTA (AP) — Vivian Malone Jones, the first black student to be graduated from the University of Alabama, will take over as executive director of the Voter Education Project on Aug. 1.

Mrs. Jones was graduated from the university in 1965, two years after Gov. George Wallace's "stand in the schoolhouse door."

"This is a somewhat new area to me," Mrs. Jones said. "But the area of civil rights is not new to me at all."

Mrs. Jones, the first woman named to head the nonpartisan voter registration organization, currently is a master fellow in the Environmental Protection Agency's planning and management office.

She succeeds John Lewis, who left the VEP to make an unsuccessful bid for the congressional seat vacated by United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young.

The VEP, organized in 1962, has registered more than 2 million voters.

Woman leader defeated

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — The opposition United National party scored a stunning election landslide today to oust Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike, the world's only woman chief of government.

In a midday radio broadcast, President William Gopallawa called on 70-year-old opposition chief Junius Richard Jayewardene to form a new government for this island nation just south of India.

The latest results of Thursday's vote announced by the state radio gave Jayewardene's party 128 of the parliament's 168 seats, far exceeding his expectations. The outcome continued a Sri Lankan tradition of unseating incumbents.

Mrs. Bandaranaike's Sri Lanka Freedom party managed to win only four seats.

The 6-year-old prime minister won re-election to parliament from her own district 40 miles northeast of Colombo, but her nephew and finance minister, Felix Bandaranaike, was defeated, as were all but one of her cabinet ministers.

A minority ethnic separatist party won about 20 seats and the rest were scattered among other minor parties.

At a news conference, Jayewardene said the big majority was "very satisfactory," but he expressed concern at the dilution of opposition in parliament.

"A very onerous responsibility has been cast on us," the weary-looking victor said. "Debate and discussion are a very important part of the parliamentary system. In this situation, who is going to discuss legislation or show defects in a bill?"

Jayewardene, who reached the top after four decades near the center of power, said he would lift all curbs on press freedom and political activity as soon as possible. And he said local elections that Mrs. Bandaranaike had postponed for seven years would be held soon.

He also said he intends to continue Sri Lanka's foreign policy of nonalignment and that he emphatically supports President Carter's human rights stand.

The austere Jayewardene had blended capitalist economics with social welfare policies in his campaign to produce the winning political formula. It was Sri Lanka's eighth parliamentary election since gaining independence from Britain in 1948.

The island's National Security Council mapped strategy for a smooth transition of power. Thursday's voting was peaceful. During the campaign, 13 persons were reported killed in political violence in this nation of 14 million.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Rowdy thunderstorms brought cooling rain and in some cases appreciable moisture scattered all across Texas during the night.
Much of the turbulence died down and then another round of thundershowers broke out this morning from the South Plains into West Central Texas. Warnings of possible flooding in low areas went out in several counties as radar spotted downpours at rates up to two inches per hour in the plains section.
Moisture amounts before the renewal of storm activity ranged up to 1.73 inches at Winters in the Abilene-San Angelo area.
Partly cloudy skies with more scattered thundershowers were predicted in other sections.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 14 years. I love my husband but I'm thinking seriously of having an affair. It's been years now since he's said, "I love you." He can go three or four weeks without making love to me, then it's only because I've suggested it, and I don't really enjoy it when I have to beg for it.

He gets off work at 4 p.m., goes to a bar with his buddies and doesn't come home until 6 or 7. He eats, and then falls asleep in front of the TV before 8. Then he gets up around 10 p.m. and goes to bed.

He's a good father and a good provider, but I can't take it anymore. I need love and attention.

A friend of ours asked me to have an affair with him. I had never even thought of anything like that. Now I can't think of anything else. I haven't made up my mind yet, but if you print this, maybe my husband (or other husbands) will see it and change before it's too late. I really love him and I've tried to get him to a doctor but he refuses. He says he's only 35 and there's nothing wrong with him. Well, I'm only 31 and I need love.

I don't really want to have an affair, but I'm slipping.
HUNGRY FOR LOVE

DEAR HUNGRY: Here's your letter. I hope your husband (and other men who can identify with the above routine) see this and wake up before it's too late.

DEAR ABBY: Our dog will be going to doggy heaven any day now. Frisky is 90 in human years and he's in awfully bad shape. He's nearly blind and he's so weak he keeps falling down.

We can't bear the thought of putting him to sleep, but want to know where to bury him when the time comes.

We can't afford a plot in the pet cemetery, and he's meant too much to our family to just put him out with the trash. The children want to bury him in our backyard, but I hear there's a law against that. Can you help us?
FRISKY'S FAMILY

DEAR FAMILY: When Frisky dies, phone your local animal shelter. They will come and pick him up. Under no circumstances should you put an animal's remains in a trash can that you intend to use again. And in most areas there are laws against burying an animal in a residential section.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend doesn't shave under her arms or even use a deodorant, and she just plain smells bad! I can't understand how she can go around offending people that way, and then blaming them because she doesn't get invited places.

She's a very sensitive person (all except for her nose), that's why I can't tell her what I have just told you.
Any advice?
OFFENDED

DEAR OFFENDED: You can and must tell her how she smells. It's the friendliest thing you can do.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — It seems very hard to get some information about emphysema. I am afflicted with it and want to learn all about it and what I can do to help myself. I have been to three physicians, but only when I needed to see a doctor because I had become congested and needed an antibiotic shot.

They'd say exercise just enough, not too much or too little, but what is too much or too little?

After a shot of penicillin I feel just great for about a week. I've been told that I shouldn't get it too often as I'd build up an immunity to it. Is that right?

Whatever you can tell me about emphysema would be appreciated, not only by myself but I know by many others who are afflicted and would like to learn more about it.

DEAR READER — Emphysema is a chronic form of lung disease. It is characterized by constriction of the small air passages inside the lungs.

Think of the air sacs that are filled with air as little balloons. At the opening of the balloons is a muscular band and it constricts to narrow the opening of the balloon. As a result it is hard to squeeze all the air out of the balloon. The tiny air sacs remain over-distended with stale air because it is hard to force all the air out.

To give you a better picture of how the lungs work I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-4, Keeping Your Lungs Fit. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR POLLY — I would like to know if there is some way I can make knitted shawls and baby blankets look like new and clean and lustrous after they are washed.

DEAR JUANITA — Perhaps you are using too strong a detergent for the washing. I would certainly wash any such knitted wool things in that liquid made for cold water washing of wools. Also there could be a chance that they have not been rinsed sufficiently.

DEAR POLLY — Take a four-pronged drapery hook and bend the two outside prongs back for legs and then bend the two middle hooks forward to make an easel for a mini-picture. When moving from a home to smaller quarters one usually has too many household linens but some of the table and lunch cloths can be used to make pillowcases, aprons, place mats, dish towels, napkins, ironing board covers and even kitchen curtains if the design is appropriate.

In Norway, individualism comes first

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

HAMMERFEST, Norway (AP) — The jail in this Arctic town that bills itself as the "Northernmost in the World" has no beds, and the temperature in the cells is kept at a cozy 95 degrees (F). Guests sleep on the floor.

"That way, the drunks dry out quicker," observed Police Lt. Ralph Amundsen, driving between the high snow banks left by the rotary plow to point out a few other oddities about this tiny, modern town.

There was the old folks home where old sailors were given the big windowed rooms at the front so they'd never be out of sight of the sea, and the high school with three bullseye targets painted on the gymnasium wall so the kids would aim their snowballs away from the classroom windows.

On the bleak mountain, Amundsen indicated the floodlit ski run where the townfolk could frolic during the "Moerketid," the dark time from Nov. 21 to Jan. 21 when the sun never shows its face. Beyond the frozen lake were Lapp pasture lands, where 12,000 reindeer migrate each spring to get away from the mosquitoes inland.

Norwegians pride themselves on their individuality. Like not joining the Common Market and only partially participating in NATO. Their scattered towns in an age of urbanization and centralization are a reflection of this independent spirit. The small communities above the Arctic Circle are their particular joy.

Hammerfest, 250 miles above the Arctic Circle, was incorporated on July 17, 1780, when Washington, D.C., was just a swamp with a few scattered villages of Powhatan Indians. Its latitude, as every tourist poster proclaims, is 70 degrees, 30 minutes, 48 seconds, the same as the northern tip of Alaska.

"We were the first town in Europe to have all our streets lit by electricity," said town engineer Olav Boe, citing an early example of Hammerfest's individuality. "Two of my predecessors brought the idea home from the Paris Exposition in 1889," the same one that featured Alexandre Eiffel's tower.

Now a town of 8,000, with the largest fish factory in the world employing some 800 young women, Hammerfest shows few signs of its proud antiquity, mainly because the Germans burned it to the ground, right down to the last telegraph pole, when they retreated from the Russians in 1944.

"They left only the little Lutheran Church standing because some of their dead lay buried in the graveyard," said Amundsen.

Reservations are now being accepted for a 14-day chartered bus trip through Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky and North Carolina Sept. 12-25.

Organizer of the junket is Arleigh Hoobler of Canadian and highlights of the trip will include the Passion Play in Eureka Springs, Ark., Silver Dollar City and the Shepherd of the Hills play in Branson, Mo., Grand Opera in Nashville, Tenn., and the Biltmore home and gardens in Asheville, N.C.

Also included on the agenda is a trip to the top of Lookout Mountain, a river boat cruise and a tour of the Oak Ridge Museum of Atomic Energy.

Interested persons should contact Hoobler at 323-8514 as soon as possible.

conquers nature — is the town motto proudly enshrined on the new town hall, but with typical Norwegian perversity the people have repudiated it.

"Now their main concern is protecting, not conquering, nature," says Stein Arne Bokken, a reporter of the Pinnark Dagblad, the daily newspaper. He points to a student demonstration outside the town hall with signs that read in Norwegian: "No oil exploration above the 32 degree line."

"Test borings are about to begin," said Bakken. "People know oil development will bring more jobs, maybe prosperity, but they are afraid of the effect it will have on the fishing, on the environment, on the town itself when a lot of new people come in."

Polar bear pelts and stuffed bears adorn the town hall, but perversely the basement of the building is headquarters for the Royal and Ancient Polar Bear Society, dedicated to preserving the species.

The citizens of Hammerfest took great interest in the blizzards that buried Buffalo and other upstate New York communities this past winter. "The snow here begins in October and sometimes lasts till late May," said Boe. "We were fascinated with the plight of a city paralyzed by snow. I suppose we're always organized for it around here. We build up our roads and streets so the wind will blow the snow away, and we keep our plows running day and night."

Despite 60-mile-an-hour winds pling drifts 35 feet high, Hammerfest spends less than three percent of its $5 million annual budget on snow removal. The town prides itself on keeping its airport and its 30 miles of streets and roads open all winter.

"People around here see the snow plows more often than our two police cars," said Amundsen.

Near noon the sun appeared over the mountain that the townfolk call "The Thief," because it steals the precious sun for a few hours even in summer.

With the days lengthening and hurrying toward the promise of the midnight sun, which begins May 17 and lasts until July 28, the downtown streets were crowded with shoppers pushing wooden-runner sleds called "Sparks." A few Lapp families promenaded proudly in their bright-red, multi-layered tulip hats, and some drunken fishermen off a trawler that docked during the night called excitedly in a language that might have been Polish or Latvian to the girls coming out of the fish factory.

"Lots of foreign trawlers put in here," the lieutenant said, "but there are girls enough to go around so there aren't many fights."

The drug problem among school children has just hit Hammerfest, imported by the fishing fleets and the 100,000 tourists who come every summer to bask in the midday sun.

"Surprisingly they have a hard drug problem at Soerver, an isolated fishing village of 300 people on the other side of the fjord," said journalist Bakken.

Norway, with 154 newspapers, ranks with Japan as one of the most literate countries in the world, and nowhere do people send more time writing to the editor.

Detroit riot some stayed put

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Nathaniel Smith stood in the middle of 12th Street ten years ago and watched his cleaning establishment burn.

His store was adjacent to a white-owned bicycle shop and a white-owned grocery store. "To get to the two whites, they got to get me," the black businessman recalls.

Smith managed to reopen, but most businessmen fled. Today, he's one of only a handful of shopkeepers still operating along the strip where on July 23, 1967, the most destructive civil disorder in modern American history erupted.

By the time it ended five days later, 43 persons were dead, 657 injured, 7,231 under arrest and thousands left homeless. More than $50 million in property was destroyed. The U.S. Army patrolled the streets.

It had begun with a routine police clean-up at an after-hours bar. Instead of finding a few docile drunks, the vice squad stumbled into a resentful crowd of more than 80 patrons.

Residents of 12th Street hurried off their porches and out of hot apartments to watch. Rumors spun through the crowd that police had used excessive force in making arrests.

By 8 a.m. that steamy Sunday, the crowd had grown to 3,000. Liquor stores and bars were looted. "Everyone was drunk before noon," recalls one city official.

Police, overwhelmed by the chaos, stood powerless. Thousands joined the mob. Free television sets. Free clothing. Free jewelry.

White-owned businesses were the targets of fires. Firemen, hampered by high winds and pelted with debris, abandoned 100 blocks to the rioters.

In the succeeding 10 years, Detroit has become a textbook example of urban decay. The city's population is down by 200,000. Once-thriving commercial strips crumble. Nearly 2,000 retail businesses are gone.

The police department, focus of much of the rioters' wrath in 1967, has undergone several top-level shakeups. An affirmative action program in hiring and promotion has put more black officers on the street but has left many veteran cops bitter.

But 1977 is an election year and aides to the city's incumbent black mayor, Coleman Young, are optimistic.

Auto magnate Henry Ford II and the private sector have built a $337 million Renaissance Center, a riverfront hotel-office complex seen as the focal point for a rejuvenated downtown. Crime and unemployment are on the downswing. A friendly administration in Washington may help some of the city's deteriorating neighborhoods.

Police were astonished last month when the homicide rate in the town dubbed "Murder City" dipped below one a day. Drug addiction is said to be declining.

Civic leaders are confident the city's residents won't explode in anger as they did 10 years ago.

To retire from highway department

Gordon S. Taylor, 1112 E. Kingmill, will retire from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation on July 31. Taylor has been Gray County maintenance superintendent since April, 1961. He started work for the Texas Highway Department in 1947. A native of Martha, Okla., Taylor attended public schools in Chickasha, Okla., and graduated from Wheeler County Vocational School. He is a veteran of the US Army Air Force. He and his wife, Opal, have three children and three grandchildren.

SPACIOUS STUDIOS

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The motion picture studios at Brigham Young University sit on 22 acres of woods and contain two sound stages, a Western street, shops and a home.

There are 16 full-time and five part-time employees in film production in the studios.

Athlete protests fine

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Olympic shotputter Brian Oldfield did not understand the legal proceedings against him when he was convicted and fined a total of $600 on a simple assault charge here Monday, according to his lawyer.

Lawyer Allen Rountree said Wednesday Oldfield was "totally unaware of what was happening" in municipal court when he was found guilty and fined $300 on each of three charges resulting from a weekend incident at a Galveston night club.

Rountree said he is considering appealing the case although Oldfield has paid the fines.

Municipal Judge Tom Youngblood said testimony showed the 6-5, 280-pound Oldfield had slapped the night club manager after being told he could not enter the premises wearing athletic shoes.

Youngblood said Oldfield was also found guilty of assaulting two policemen.

Police reports indicated that one of the officers struck Oldfield with a baton.

Oldfield laughed and said "that didn't even hurt," according to the reports. The report also said the officer then drew his gun and Oldfield asked "You going to shoot the nation's shotput record holder?"

A fourth charge, accusing Oldfield of intrusion into the club, was dismissed, Youngblood said.

Lefebvre searches for supporters

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A silver-haired archbishop, now touring South America to line up support against Vatican attempts to modernize the Roman Catholic Church, is posing the most serious threat of church schism in a century.

French Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre, leader of a traditionalist movement claiming followers throughout the world, has been personally admonished by Pope Paul VI in public speeches and private letters, suspended from his priestly functions and threatened with the ultimate penalty of excommunication.

Why is the Pope so worried about a 71-year-old bishop who says a 19th-century Mass now banned by the Vatican?

Those who view the church as too restrictive in its sexual codes, too conservative in its social views or too regal in its hierarchical structure often wind up "dropping out" in a kind of personal schism.

But Archbishop Lefebvre and his followers, though probably less numerous than liberal dropouts, pose a threat of formal group schism.

The attention the archbishop has attracted has helped him win a large base of support in France and Switzerland, but evidence of more widespread sympathy can be seen in the success of his trips recently to the United States, South America and Rome itself.

He has set up an international seminary in Ecône, Switzerland, where he trains his own priests to preach the traditionalist line in their homelands. This led the Pope to suspend him from his priestly functions last year.

Besides ordaining priests, the maverick prelate, as an archbishop, can consecrate other bishops, raising the threat of an ecclesiastical hierarchy outside Rome's. His followers might even draft Archbishop Lefebvre as an antipope. At that point, excommunication would be a mere formality and the schism would be a reality.

It was the Second Vatican Council of 1962-65 that pushed Archbishop Lefebvre into rebellion.

Initiated by the late Pope John XXIII to modernize the church, the council-approved reforms in the way the church views itself, in the way it worships and in its relations with non-Catholics and the secular world.

Archbishop Lefebvre accuses the council false compromises with liberalism, modernism and communism. He extends his criticism to personal attacks on Pope Paul's leadership.

"What is indeed at issue is the question — which must truly be called fundamental — of your cleoclaimed refusal to recognize, in its whole, the authority of the Second Vatican Council and that of the Pope," the letter said.

Religious roundup

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — The Lutheran World Federation, representing most of the Lutherans around the world, has urged its white member churches in southern Africa to work for universal suffrage in South Africa, and "publicly and unequivocally reject the existing apartheid system."

At its assembly, the inter-Lutheran body also sharply protested the "continuing threat to human dignity and the manifold violations of human rights by the white minority in South Africa, Namibia and Zimbabwe (Rhodesia)."

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — The Very Rev. Francis B. Sayre Jr., dean of the Washington Cathedral of the Episcopal church for a quarter century, has announced his resignation, effective next Jan. 17.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Church of the Brethren has decided to hold its general board meetings for the next few years only in states that have ratified the Equal Rights Amendment.

The policy affects meetings, three of them annually, between now and March 1979 or until ERA becomes part of the U.S. Constitution. Three more states need to ratify the amendment before the March 1979 deadline.

College group to present gospel music

Servants of Love, a group of students from Southwestern Assemblies of God College in Waxahachie, will present a concert of Southern and contemporary gospel music at 7:30 tonight at the Bethel Assembly of God.

The group is touring the region during the summer, said the Rev. Paul DeWolfe, pastor. The public is invited to tonight's performance at Hamilton and Worrell Streets.

Chaplain to preach here Sunday

Chaplain Steven Schroeder of Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo will preach at the First Presbyterian Sunday at the 10:45 a.m. Worship Hour.

Chaplain Schroeder will speak on "Emanuel: Incarnation as a Present Reality." Schroeder grew up at Boys Ranch and works under the Pastoral Care Program of the Amarillo Hospital District.

In the fall he will go to Austin, where he is a student at the Episcopal Theological Seminary of the Southwest.

Assisting the chaplain in the pulpit will be Elder Mrs. Cranz Nichols. Special music will be a solo, "When Jesus Walked on Galilee," sung by Elaine Whitsell. Guest organist will be Jana Hogan.

A joint meeting of the Session and Diaconate will be at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the West Room. There will be no Sunday meeting of the Worship and Sacrament Committee.

The First Presbyterian Church is at 525 Gray St.

An investment in Your Future ...ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

"I DON'T SEE ANYTHING"

THERE IS ONLY ONE WAY TO SEE THROUGH A CAMERA

Did you ever try to look through a camera from the front side? Yes, most of us have... out of curiosity... but we would not even consider trying to take a picture in such a manner. There are many though, who go through life never giving themselves a chance to really see God. In order to see God, one must look at him through faith. Attend church regularly, seek God where others can help direct you in your search for God.

"So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK
I am absolutely paranoid about the commercial where the interviewer stops a housewife in a supermarket and asks if her husband would prefer potatoes or dressing with his dinner. You know the one I mean. It's where the wife smiles and says, "Potatoes. My husband would definitely prefer potatoes." They place a call to her husband and this turkey says, "Dressing. Definitely. I would prefer dressing."
When the interviewer presses for an answer on why they never have dressing, he spits out the grabber, "She never asks me."
I don't know of a woman alive who has not begged her husband for suggestions for dinner. I don't know of a man alive who hasn't consistently ordered, "I don't care."

"Would you like beef stew this week?"
"I don't care."
"We haven't had stroganoff in awhile. How about that?"
"I don't care."
"On second thought I think I'll have yak breasts with goose liver sauce."
"I don't care."
It seems incongruous to me that my husband wants in on all the big decisions like, "You paid how much for a gallon of gas?" to "We're not upping the milk until those kids drink what's left in the cereal bowls" to "If we saved all those rubber bands from newspapers, we'd never have to buy another rubber band in our lifetime."
However, when we're buying for 1,002 meals a year and spending just under $4,000 annually, he "doesn't care."

The other night he came to the table and surveyed it. "What is all this stuff?" he asked.
"It's what you order for dinner. 'I Don't Care.' Here's the menu:
APPETIZER: Apathetic Celery
ENTREE: Pluckless Chicken
VEGETABLES: Indifferent Peas, Sluggish Sauce, Uncommitted Beets
ROLLS (Served cold and uncommunicative)
SALAD: Lethargic lettuce with disinterested dressing
DESSERT: Phlegmatic Prunes
"That's not funny," he said. I had been waiting to use this line for 20 years. "I don't care."

Poage, sugar lobby probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whether he knew it or not, Rep. W. R. Poage accepted financial favors from South African sugar producers who needed his good will to share in the U.S. market, the Justice Department says.
Poage's relationship with South African lobbyists was described in a government lawsuit Wednesday, and the Texas Democrat confirmed parts of the account.
The situation may raise fresh questions about the close relationships between special interest groups and members of Congress with influence over legislation affecting them.
A Justice Department source said there is no possibility of criminal charges in the Poage case because the statute of limitations has expired. That rule requires campaign finance violations to be prosecuted within three years after they occur, and most other federal offenses must be prosecuted within five years.
Poage is the key figure in the story. At 77, the crusty Texan is the oldest member of the House. As chairman of the agriculture committee for more than a decade, he made important decisions about the government's farm policies. He lost the chairmanship in 1974 in a fight with the Democratic "young Turks" in the House but continues as the committee vice chairman.
Players on the South African side include two New York lawyers, John R. Mahoney and Philip R. McKnight, registered as lobbyists for the South African Sugar Association, an organization of sugar producers.

The South Africa Foundation, which is based in Durban, South Africa, and maintains a Washington office, is another major figure.
According to the Justice Department, the association is financed by South African business leaders and its purpose is to promote a favorable South African image.
In the civil suit filed in U.S. District Court, the department accused the foundation and the two lawyers of submitting "false and misleading" statements about their lobbying activities.
"They failed to disclose that the sugar producers put up the money for favors to Poage, to Rep. William Wampler of Virginia, the ranking Republican on the agriculture panel, and two other committee members, the suit said. Government lawyers declined to identify those two.
With the lawyer-lobbyists smoothing the way, the sugar association provided Poage and the two unidentified congressmen with "a private executive jet in November 1970 to travel (from South Africa) to Rhodesia and back to South Africa," the suit said.
Mahoney and McKnight knew this "would create a conflict of interest situation" because the congressmen were influential in determining South Africa's allotment of the U.S. market under the sugar quota system then in effect, the government said.

So they arranged "to make it appear outwardly" that the foundation paid for the jet, the government alleged. The same arrangement was used in May 1972 to hide the sugar association money paying for a Rhodesia-to-South Africa flight by Poage and his administrative assistant, Dale Henington, the government said.

Labor secretary backs collective bargaining

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Collective bargaining is not a pro-union issue, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall has told the AFL-CIO state convention.
"I don't look on it that way. I think collective bargaining is in the national interest. Actually, this does nothing for the unions. It is designed to help the American worker. There's nothing in here (proposed federal legislation) that will put a nickel in the unions," Marshall said.
"I believe very strongly in collective bargaining. I don't believe you can have a democratic society without it," he said.
Marshall told the convention Wednesday the federal government should not contract with employers who habitually break the law by denying workers the right to bargain collectively.
"A determined employer can deny these rights," Marshall told the AFL-CIO state convention. "Some of these cases have been in the courts for 20 years."
He said penalties should be increased for "those employers who are determined to violate the law and those employers who are habitual violators of the law. We think it is unconscionable for the government to contract with lawbreakers."
The labor leaders applauded vigorously.
Marshall said several administration bills were introduced in Congress Tuesday that would improve pay and working conditions in this country.
One would increase the minimum wage to $2.65 an hour, then in 1980 make it a percentage of the manufacturing index so that it would go up with inflation.
"The minimum wage that we have proposed will not cause inflation. There is an erroneous assumption that inflation originates in the labor market. There is no evidence of that," he said.

Energy, food and medical costs cause inflation, he said.

Vaccaro wed in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Actress Brenda Vaccaro says she has found the "right man" at last. Wednesday evening, she announced to a small group of family and friends "Let's get it over with" and married 36-year-old attorney William Bishop.
The bride, 37, did not have far to travel. She is currently on location in Lawton, Okla. where she is making a film called "Moonbeam Rider."
The ceremony was in keeping with the kind of image the bride projects on the screen—total informality. The groom sported dashing blue corduroys and a red plaid shirt. The bride was dressed in a grey pants outfit.
Traditional vows were exchanged with one exception.

"Hold on a minute," Ms. Vaccaro interrupted. "Let's take out this 'til death do us part' and 'as long as we both shall live' stuff. Nothing lasts forever."
PLAKA PRESERVED
NEW YORK (AP) — Four sections of the Plaka, the part of Athens which lies at the foot of the Acropolis, have become "preserved areas," reports the Greek National Tourist Organization.
The organization said that motor traffic will be banned in the designated sections, as well as all tavernas, shops and noisy nightclubs.
The Greek government will give long term, low rate loans for the restoration and preservation of all buildings over 200 years old.

Tennessee mom wants to swap care of sons

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A Tennessee woman wants to take over the care and feeding of some other woman's son if the other woman will reciprocate.

Mrs. John Guinn of Memphis, Tenn., lives near Millington Naval Air Station, but her son is stationed at Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth. She says her son, 19-year-old John Guinn Jr., doesn't get home very often, so she's looking for a Fort Worth mother who has a son stationed at Millington.

The plan is simple. Mrs. Guinn would "mother" the Fort Worth woman's son and the Fort Worth woman would keep an eye out for John Jr.

"I promise home-cooked meals, a dog to pat, four kids to fight with, a father to be smarter than, lots of love, many 'please drive carefully's' from a worried mom and grandmothers, even," the Memphis telephone operator said in a letter to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Airman Guinn said he was surprised at his mother's proposal but "it'd be fine with me."

"Especially after eating at the chow hall. I think they can burn water there," he said.

Young Guinn admits that he's finally getting used to being away from home. He has three more years to serve and says he hopes to spend them in Fort Worth.

The airman said it would be nice to occasionally have something else to do other than drink beer with his friends.

What he doesn't miss is being told to drive carefully.

"I can drive any way I want to now. All I got to do is watch out for getting in trouble with the man," he said.

Mrs. Guinn, at home with John's four younger brothers and sisters, said she got the idea for the swap last week on the airman's birthday.

"I was at the shopping center and saw a group of boys around the pinball machines. It doesn't seem like they have a place to go," she said.

The woman said she has had two or three phone calls from Fort Worth regarding her ad, not necessarily from other parents of servicemen but just folks "offering to kind of baby my son."

Asked how she arrived at the idea, she replied simply, "I'm a mother. That's all. I miss my son."

YAZOO CITY, Miss. (AP) — President Carter, in a demonstration of his administration's interest in oil production, is heading for an oil rig perched on the edge of the Continental Shelf.

After fielding questions from sweltering Missisippians at a nationally broadcast public meeting Thursday night, Carter today was to visit a huge drilling platform that stands in 500 feet of water in the Gulf of Mexico off the Louisiana coast.

"It's a good way to illustrate the fact that, contrary to the full-page ads the oil companies are running in newspapers, there is a considerable interest and emphasis on production in this administration's national energy policy, to the tune of billions of dollars," said White House press secretary Jody Powell.

Powell said, for example, that under the administration energy plan oil companies would have $15 billion worth of additional incentives over a five-year period to explore for fresh supplies of natural gas because of the administration's proposal to raise prices.

Powell's reference to oil company advertising apparently was aimed at Mobil Oil, which had full-page ads in some newspapers today. Those ads were sharply critical of the administration's energy plan.

At Yazoo City, Carter told his audience at a steamy high school that he believes present federal programs can be continued, if not expanded, and taxes cut with the federal budget in balance by 1981.

He said this could be done "under normal economic circumstances" if the bureaucracy is reorganized and properly managed.

Reviewing his first six months in office, the President said continued high unemployment was a disappointment.

But he said one part of a welfare revision program he will unveil next month would "encompass an additional one million new jobs."

Before going to Mississippi, Carter stopped at Charleston, S.C., to address the annual Southern Legislative Conference.

There, he discussed relations with the Soviet Union, saying his administration seeks cooperation and a "genuine accommodation."

The President took note, however, of "some negative comments from the Soviet side" about American positions.

"If these comments are based on a misconception about our motives, we will redouble our efforts to make them clear," he said. "But if they are merely designed as propaganda to put pressure on us, let me say that we will persevere."

He said part of the Soviet attitude "may be due to their apparent — and incorrect — belief that our concern for human rights is aimed specifically at them or is an attack on their vital interests."

He said his policy is "exactly what it appears to be, the positive and sincere expression of our deepest beliefs as a people."

There were several questions at Yazoo City on human rights. Carter said he was "not trying to make anybody angry" or to resurrect the Cold War or interfere in internal affairs of others. He continued:

"But I will say this: as long as the American people back me on the subject, we will never stay quiet on the subject of human rights."

The President said he believes that public discussion of the issue has "a cumulative effect" and pointed to the recent release of political prisoners in Argentina and South Korea.

"I think it is accurate to say that the trend is toward an enhancement of human rights," he declared.

Questioned about his intent to produce the neutron bomb pending a decision on whether to deploy it, Carter said, "I don't believe that the neutron bomb is more wicked or immoral than the present Sovietists have as well."

While saying that "the whole thing is very horrible to everybody who has studied the question" Carter said that a projectile with a neutron warhead would produce "about the same radiation" as present nuclear-tipped projectiles, but with "much less blast or flames."

In 1941, Josef Stalin succeeded V.M. Molotov as Soviet premier.

'There are people screaming for help'

Boulders, houses washed down street

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL, Associated Press Writer
JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — When the rains began, Richard Stantz was drinking Black Velvet and Mountain Dew with the boys.

His fiancée, Rita Jo Searle, had been swimming at Ideal Park with her three young sons and her mother.

Richard's brother, Ray, was minding their three children, while his wife, Deborah, played bingo at the Knights of Columbus — recreation on her day off from the maid's job at the Enterprise Motel.

The two Stantz families lived in separate apartments, two buildings apart, in the Solomon Homes project, along Solomon Run Creek in Johnstown.

Rita got home at 10:30 and put the kids to bed. Rich arrived at 11:30.

"It was already pouring rain so bad I felt like a fish," he said.

Deborah, meanwhile, stopped off at a bar. As she prepared to leave, water already was coursing through the street, car-bumper high. At 12:45 a.m. her girl friend Marian phoned to say if she was going home, now was the time.

While Richard and Rita watched television the power went off. Their clock stopped at 11:52. Rita switched her radio to battery power.

Deborah arrived home at 1:30 to an apartment lit only with candles. They invited Marian, who had no candles, to come over with her five children.

Lightning stabbed at the darkened city.

"Marian looked out the window and said, 'Oh, my God, the bridge over Solomon Run just washed away,'" said Deborah.

The lawn outside their apartment building, three feet above sidewalk level, was under water.

By now the radio station was warning motorists to stay off roads. But nothing more.

Then the saga of Solomon Run began.

"I said, 'My God, look at the cars floating down Solomon Street. There are people screaming for help,'" Richard recalled. "They were going so swift, no one could help them."

Rita: "I was stunned, it was too unbelievable to know water was deep enough to carry cars."

By 12:30, cars were tumbling down Solomon Street, a slight incline.

Through the lightning flashes, Rita saw half of the office building that serves the housing project being washed away. On nearby Widman street, she could see a fire truck evacuating people.

About that time, Ray and Deborah joined neighbors outside to see what help they could give.

They woke an elderly woman in a first-floor apartment and Ray carried her to a higher building.

Across Solomon Street, water swept away a house. A father and son went with it.

"We couldn't get across the street," Ray said. "Boulders were rolling down the river and Solomon Street. The water was washing telephone poles and trees down. After one boulder the size of a house came down, half the highway collapsed."

Pennsylvania Route 56 is beside Solomon Run, curving S-like past the housing development.

"When the highway collapsed, the water changed course and started washing other buildings out," Ray said. "It began coursing between the buildings, smashing cars against them. Some of the foundations began collapsing."

All the while there was continuous rain and unearthly noise.

At 2:30 a.m. Deborah heard people shouting for help in the Glenn Graham house across Solomon Street. The occupants were on the second floor, because the ground level was under water.

"We made several attempts to help them," Ray said, shaking his head at the memory.

Somehow the six members of the family made it 10 feet across the roof to Margie's Bar, next door. Minutes later the house washed away.

The people in the bar then put a ladder to the roof of the Mack bungalow on the other side, Ray said. Just as Mack and his wife got down, their home was swept off.

At 4:30 a.m. Ray and his wife were in another building. "I had a flashlight and saw something moving," he said. He reached down and pulled two women and a baby from waist deep water, miraculously alive.

Over the rain and the thunder they heard gunshots from the nearby MA Lounge, a tavern that seats about 50 people.

"They were trying to signal for help," Ray said. "People couldn't get to them. I don't know how many died there."

Richard and Rita, meanwhile, stayed in their apartment on higher ground.

With the first light of day, they walked outside.

"It was a lot worse at daybreak," Richard said, "because you could look out and see the lines hanging from light poles, the busted cars, the crashed buildings, the ripped off pavement with gas pipes on top."

Helicopter pilots told them to go to a road at the top of a steep hillside in back of the apartment complex to be picked up by army trucks. Ray

Mother of Korea victim feels no bitterness

By GEORGE SMITH, The Anniston Star
ANNISTON, Ala. (AP) — The house is a small one, modest by most any standards. It sits on the side of a hill back just far enough from the highway that passing traffic gets no more than a quick glance.

From the living room where Darlene Haynes waited for her son to come home today for the last time, the sound of that passing traffic is barely audible.

It is a quiet place and somehow seems to fit well the waiting patience of an Irish-English-German mother out of west Kansas whose son is a new victim of an old, old war, one that ended 25 years ago at a place called Panmunjom in a country called Korea.

Spec. 5 Robert Haynes died July 14 with two of his buddies when their Chinook helicopter strayed into North Korea air space and was shot down.

Mrs. Haynes read a telegram: "The remains of your son have been consigned..." and she let the words trail away.

"They said we'd be getting a bunch of telegrams, but I didn't expect this one," she said.

There was a note of bewilderment. It was, next to a mother's grief, perhaps her strongest emotion as she waited.

She groped for words to tell a stranger how she felt.

"It's terrible. Let me tell you it's terrible. You just feel so helpless... It all seems so unreal..."

A daughter-in-law, wife of Haynes' brother, brought in the mail and handed an ordinary white envelope to Mrs. Haynes.

Inside, on a plain piece of white paper, was a simple message: "Dear Mrs. Haynes and family: We are so very, very sorry about your son. Respectfully, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Styles."

The envelope was post-marked Huntsville, Ala. "Isn't that nice?" said Mrs. Haynes. "I don't even know these people."

It was an international incident that has bewildered and touched many. But there was no bitterness in Darlene Haynes.

"No, I'm not bitter at all, not one bit," she said. "He was happy. He was doing what he wanted to do."

That was to fly, even if he was not a pilot.

"Look at this," she said, handing over a tattered post card. On one side is a color picture of a Chinook helicopter hovering close to the ground. The card is to Robert's brother, Steve, 19, and closes with, "I promised you I'd send some more cards. This is what I hope to be flying in a couple of months."

The year was 1967 and it was written shortly after Robert Haynes finally got into the service.

Crew leaves burning ship

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Fire broke out in the engine room of an oil tanker in the Mississippi River close to an oil refinery today, and an explosion buckled a bulkhead shortly after the 34 crewmen abandoned ship, the Coast Guard said.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the 679-foot Dauntless Colontris was en route to the Tenneco refinery dock at Chalmette, about five miles downstream from here, when the blaze erupted.

All crewmen except one were reported safe on the dock, the spokesman said. One was taken to a hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation.

A fireboat sprayed the tanker with water.

IN CHRIST

The expression "in Christ" or its equivalent, appears about thirty times in Paul's letter to the church at Ephesus. "In Christ" is, then, a Bible theme. It is important. Consider some things the Bible teaches on this subject.

First, we should learn what it means to be "in Christ" and how one can be said to be "in Christ". The word teaches, "For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body" (1 Cor. 12:13). It also teaches, "Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death" (Romans 6:3)? Thus the Bible teaches that one is not only baptized into one body, one is also baptized into Christ. Therefore to be in the body is to be in Christ. The only way one can be in Christ is to be in his body, the church (Eph. 1:22-23). This is accomplished in baptism.

However, the Bible does not teach that baptism alone puts one into Christ. To be baptized according to the teaching of the word, one must believe in Jesus Christ as the Son of God (Acts 16:31); one must repent of sin (Acts 17:30). Upon that one's confession of his faith (Acts 8:37), he can be baptized for the remission of sin (Acts 2:38) and into Christ (Gal. 3:27). Such a one has been translated out of the kingdom of darkness into the kingdom of God's dear Son (Col. 1:13).

In (Ephesians 1:3), Paul uses the expression "in Christ". "God...hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ." Notice that ALL spiritual blessings are "IN CHRIST". They are not "out of Christ" or "out of his body". In order for one to obtain and enjoy spiritual blessings, (forgiveness of sin is one of them) one must be in Christ. Only in Christ are these blessings available to man.

"In whom (Christ) we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sin" (Eph. 1:7. Such a one is not his own, he has been bought with a price. Jesus purchased the church with his blood (Acts 20:28). This is the price He paid for man's redemption. Mankind, dead in sin, can be quickened or made alive, in Christ. This is the reason Paul said in (2 Cor. 5:17.) "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature." But this spiritual life is in Christ. It is not available to us elsewhere. Are YOU in Christ?

Trevino 'putts' 67 to lead Canadian

OAKVILLE, Ont. (AP) — Lee Trevino was the first to predict that his first-round lead in the $225,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship would not stand up.

"It's like my little boy said," Trevino quoted. "There's two things that won't last: a dog that chases cars and a pro that misses greens."

Trevino missed more than his share of greens Thursday, but he saved things with what he called "the best putting round I've ever had."

"In all the years I've played golf, and I've played golf for a lot of years in a lot of tournaments, that's the best putting round I've ever had."

"I didn't shoot 67. I putted 67. From where I hit the ball, I should have had about a 72. And it would have been a good 72, not an easy one."

"I've got to start hitting the ball better if I hope to do anything."

Trevino, trying to rebuild his game following major back surgery last winter, one-putted 11 times and once holed a 45-footer to save par on his way to the five-under-par effort that put him one stroke in front of nine players tied at 68.

Heading that group was Jack Nicklaus, designed of the tough, hilly, leg-straining 7,000-yard Glen Abbey Golf Club course that is being played for the first time and will be a permanent site for this national championship.

Nicklaus, who has yet to win the Canadian title, shared the No. 2 spot with Bruce Lietzke and Tom Purtzer, each of whom had two eagles on his back nine, George Archer, Tom Kite, Mike Morley, George Cade, Jimmy Wittenberg and rookie Jeff Mitchell.

Tom Weiskopf, winner of two of the last four Canadian national titles, was at 69. Al Griberger at 70 and defending champion Jerry Pate at 71.

In a large group at 72 were Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Ray Floyd. Ben Crenshaw blew to an 80.

Trevino, whose rags-to-riches saga includes five major championships and a blitz of the American, British and Canadian national titles in 1971, has had to restructure his game following the surgery. And he hasn't won in more than a year.

All-stars eliminated

BROWNFIELD — The High Plains 13-year-old Babe Ruth all-stars, representing the Skellytown-White Deer area, were eliminated Thursday, 20-10, by Plainview, in the district tournament here.

On Tuesday night, High Plains was blanked by Del Rio, 14-0.

Coach Bill Daves said his players were a little nervous, and could not get used to playing on the Brownville field.

"The field conditions weren't nearly as good as Pampa's. It was a super fast field that was uneven in places, and we made 16 errors on Tuesday night and 18 against Plainview," Daves said.

Kevin Scheller started the first game, while Mike Strawn and Joe Gillispie pitched Thursday for High Plains. Hitting stars for High Plains included James Witt and David Norwood.

Hollis likes pasture

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — The Hazeltine National Golf Club was dubbed a "cow pasture" several years ago during the U.S. Men's Open, but their female counterparts say it's a rather nice place to play.

"It's really a nice course," said Hollis Stacy after her opening-day 70 which stood up for the first-round lead in the 1977 U.S. Women's Open Golf Tournament.

"I didn't see any cows out there," continued Miss Stacy, the lone competitor to break par Thursday. "I came here thinking this place would be wide open and flat, but it's rolling and tight."

Jan Stephenson, who joined Jane Blalock, Joyce Kazmieraki and Amy Alcott in a four-way tie for second at 72, described the 6,313-yard course as "tough, but fair."

Miss Stacy dipped below par with a birdie on No. 11, which was set up by a beautiful wedge shot that died six feet from the hole, and a birdie on 13 preceded five consecutive pars as she grabbed a two-stroke advantage.

Miss Stacy, playing in her eighth Open, appears to be hitting her stride on the LPGA tour. The 23-year-old brunette posted her first tournament victory two months ago winning the Lady Tara Classic at Atlanta and she is 10th on the LPGA earnings list with nearly $35,000 in earnings this season.

Miss Kazmieraki appeared enroute to a share of the lead, but suffered a double-bogey 5 on the 198-yard, par-3 18th hole.

Sandra Post and 19-year-old Nancy Lopez of Roswell, N.M., who is making her LPGA debut at the open, were tied at 73 while defending champion JoAnne Carner and four others were deadlocked at 74.

Seniors lose

The Panhandle-Caprock Senior Babe Ruth League all-stars were eliminated by Plainview, 8-1, at the district tournament in Graham Wednesday night. Bobby Enzor of White Deer - Skellytown was the losing pitcher in a game marred by numerous Panhandle-Caprock errors.

My dad always taught me not to take things for nothing," Goff said. "A lot of people think I'm crazy to give that much money back. But I didn't go there looking for something free. I didn't do anything to earn a $1,000."

So now he is back in Moultrie—with a gas station he and a friend opened this week—and planning to help coach the Georgia football teams this year.

Controversy irks Yankee slugger

NEW YORK (AP) — It isn't easy being Reggie Jackson. Good looking, intelligent, articulate and rich, Jackson should have the key to this city. Instead he is being locked out. The fans boo him, his teammates don't understand him and his manager wants to punch him.

Robinson was not accepted by many players and fans because he was the first black, in some circles, color has a bearing on why Jackson's fan club does not need a big room for its meetings. But for the average fan who looks at statistics rather than skin, the criticism goes deeper. Jackson is not playing or acting like a $2.9 million player.

It is that simple. "Nine out of 10 guys would love his statistics," said Sal Bando of Milwaukee, Jackson's friend dating back to their championship days in Oakland. "I wouldn't sell him short. With all the pressure he's under, I think he's having an outstanding year."

Bando, a free agent, signed in mellow Milwaukee, the center of middle America. Expectations run lower there, and Bando, who signed a $1.4 million contract for five years, says he has not been booed at home—even though he has had his troubles at the plate.

Jackson, batting .286 with 16 home runs, 50 runs batted in and a team-leading nine game-winning hits, was the only Yankee booed in Thursday night's doubleheader with the Brewers. He has now come to accept negativity from the fans. The low point may have been Tuesday night. Boed in his own ballpark in the All-Star Game, Jackson tried winning over the fans—as he often does—by signing autographs late into the night. Weary and mentally drained, Jackson excused himself from the autograph session.

Jackson, who was with his parents and girl friend, then was subjected to a stream of profanities from some of the kids. Jackson couldn't take it anymore. He chased one 13-year-old, but never caught him, he said.

The teen-ager claimed he was roughed up by Jackson, a charge that has been refuted by several eyewitnesses. A good deed by Jackson had turned into another nightmare.

But Jackson hasn't been entirely blameless. In his first season with the American League champions, Jackson was quoted in Sport magazine as saying only he could be the team leader, not Thurman Munson, last year's Most Valuable Player in the AL and the team captain.

"The Munson article was out of bounds," Jackson now admits. "Everything else I have done, I would do the same."

That apparently includes the time he hit a home run and refused to shake his teammates' hands.

Bonus returned by free agent

MOULTRIE, Ga. (AP) — Talk not of money hungry athletes when discussing former University of Georgia quarterback Ray Goff.

Goff gave the Denver Broncos a $1,000 refund when it became apparent that he was not going to make the National Football League team.

"My dad always taught me not to take things for nothing," Goff said. "A lot of people think I'm crazy to give that much money back. But I didn't go there looking for something free. I didn't do anything to earn a $1,000."

So now he is back in Moultrie—with a gas station he and a friend opened this week—and planning to help coach the Georgia football teams this year.

Jury deliberates Noll case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A six-person federal court jury was expected to start deliberation today of George Atkinson's $2 million slander suit against the Pittsburgh Steelers and their coach, Chuck Noll.

On Thursday, the jury was told there was no doubt Noll was trying to damage Atkinson when he linked the Oakland Raiders' veteran defensive back to a "criminal element" in professional football.

"Mr. Noll is nobody's dummy," attorney Willie Brown said in final arguments. "He knew what he was saying. There is no question he had in mind doing serious damage to Mr. Atkinson's reputation. He showed absolute reckless disregard as to what might happen to Mr. Atkinson in his career."

James MacInnis, the Steelers' attorney, said Noll's explanation of what he meant by "criminal element" — those who wantonly break the rules — shows that his words were "aptly applied and correctly used."

Atkinson is seeking a million dollars each from the Steelers and Noll because of remarks the Steelers' coach made following a Steeler-Raider game last September.

Richard outdueled

ST. LOUIS (AP) — J. R. Richard's version of summer heat restricted the St. Louis Cardinals to four hits Thursday night, but each one counted.

In fact, on one of the few occasions Richard elected to ease throttle the Cards' Keith Hernandez proved ready and dented the Houston Astros right-hander for a home run.

"I was standing there with the bat on my shoulder thinking, 'This time of J.R. is going to change up,'" said an impish Hernandez in joking tones.

"That fouled up the book a little," mused Hernandez, a fast ball hitter whose drive in the second inning triggered a 4-0 St. Louis victory.

Hernandez' blow, his first homer since June 21, helped decide a pitching duel between the 6-foot-8 Richard, 5-7, and Cards right-hander Bob Forsch, 12-4, who walked five but permitted only three Astros hits.

"I don't know what it was. Sometimes I was standing out there and I just didn't feel good," said Forsch. "I guess I just wasn't concentrating. I wanted to keep them off the bases, because they're a pretty good running team."

Forsch, relying on a lively fast ball, held Houston hitless until former teammate Jose Cruz sliced a double with two out in the fourth inning.

Meanwhile Hernandez' blast represented the only St. Louis hit until Garry Templeton singled, stole second base and scored on two grounders in the Cards' fourth.

Forsch became Richard's sixth strikeout victim to start the sixth but Jerry Humphrey followed with a single and also swiped second.

Templeton then picked on a 3-1 Richard delivery and hammered a triple to left-center for his second hit and afterward scored the final run on Ted Simmons' second RBI ground-er.

"I was happy to get them," conceded Simmons of the RBI, which boosted his season's total to 61. "J.R. was throwing everything."

The shutout was the seventh of his career for Forsch, who also permitted singles by Cruz and Enos Cabell in the sixth and eighth innings en route to his fifth complete game.

"Both of them pitched good," said Astros Manager Bill Virdon is evaluating the performances of Richard, who entered the game with a streak of 22 1-3 scoreless innings, and Forsch.

"Forsch pitched better, I guess," said Virdon. "He was better than at any time before we've seen him."

Testing horsemanship skills

Gray County 4-Hers qualified to compete in the State 4-H Horse Show July 26-30 in Houston during the District I 4-H Horse Show in Amarillo last month. Sue Smith, above, won the all-around honors at the district level, placing fifth in aged geldings, second in showmanship and western pleasure and first in western horsemanship. Other Gray County winners on the district level were LaJonna Taylor, first in pole bending and fourth in barrel race; Kelly Moore, first in barrels; Christel Atchley, first in grade mares and sixth in pole bending; Linda Stovall, fifth in junior registered geldings; Lena Stewart, 10th in barrels, and Lesa Stewart, second in breakaway roping and sixth in tie down calf roping. Layton Barton, Gray County Extension agent, said Smith, Taylor and Moore qualified for the statewide show, but he added Taylor will be unable to attend. Atchley was selected a fourth alternate to the show.

The bomber that will never die

Evil-looking B52 built in SA

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The Air Force's B52 bomber, like an old soldier, may just fade away slowly, but its mothball days in the Arizona desert are still a long way off.

"It's the bomber that never dies," said a worker at Kelly Air Force Base here, the prime maintenance depot for the big war birds.

The face-lifting of B52s has been centered here for nearly a quarter century.

Boeing Aircraft Corp. began delivering the huge bombers to the Air Force in 1954 and production ended in 1962 after 744 of the planes were built at an average cost of $6 million each.

About 400 B52s are still flying today, most for the Air Force's Strategic Air Command (SAC). Some of the planes have been returned, a few have crashed and some were shot down during the Vietnam War.

The youngest B52s are now 15 years old. Some of the planes have been around for 20 years and logged as many as 13,000 hours on their frames.

Now, with President Carter's decision to stop production of the $100 million per copy B1 bomber, the B52 will see many more years of service before retirement.

"Obsolescence is a frame of mind," says Col. Gerald Waltman, Kelly AFB's director of maintenance and the man who oversees the ongoing maintenance and modification of the B52 fleet.

How long can the B52 survive as a meaningful weapon in the nation's arsenal?

"We will make it last as long as the country needs it," said Waltman. "We'll bang on it, pray for it and put it back together as long as we need it."

A few steps from his office, Waltman can stand on a balcony and look out over the huge, 1 million-square-foot hangar where as many as 14 B52s can be housed at one time under the same roof.

On the floor of the hangar, nearly 1,000 civilian workers are busy on a half dozen B52s and several gigantic C5 transports.

Waltman explained that the B52-150 feet long, 41 feet high and with a wingspan of 185 feet—has undergone constant modification and improvement since its introduction as America's primary, long-range strategic nuclear bomber. It can fly 10,000 miles at nearly 600 mph.

Previous modifications have strengthened the airplane's structure and wings. Modern electronic equipment has given it the ability to fly close to the ground and avoid enemy radar detection.

A "quick start" modification permits all eight jet engines to be started simultaneously, rather than one at a time. The plane can taxi for takeoff almost as soon as its six-man crew is aboard.

Its self-defense mechanisms—Electronic Counter Measures—are the most sophisticated. Its weaponry also has been updated.

Its once gleaming silver skin is covered now with a camouflage paint job.

The B52 looks more evil than ever.

The modification process begins with intelligence data about the enemy's capabilities, Waltman said.

"It comes down that the enemy has this or that and if we want to counter it we need to do this or that. It's a counter-ing process to stay a step ahead."

The ongoing facelift has not been cheap and it will become more expensive before the B52s' days are ended.

The government estimates it has about $15 million now in each B52, an amount that includes an average of $6 million in modification to each one.

Currently, as each of the bombers comes through for its periodic scheduled maintenance, Kelly workers are adding a 40-inch fuselage section into the tail of the planes.

The additional room will allow new electronic equipment to be crammed inside the plane.

The B52 is an extremely flexible plane," said Waltman. "It's a good, solid, stable, versatile airplane."

With the B1 out of production now, the B52 is expected to be modified soon to carry the newest cruise missiles and more complicated electronic equipment.

Millions of dollars more will be spent on each of the planes in coming years, the Pentagon says.

The effectiveness of the modifications was noted by former Air Force Secretary Thomas Reed, who said that during the 1972 Air Force Secretary Thomas as Reed, who said that during the 1972 air raids on Hanoi, "against the most concentrated ground defense environment ever assembled." B52 attrition rates were only 2 per cent.

The current Secretary of Defense, Harold Brown, says he is "reasonably sure that it (the B52) will last and be able to penetrate the Soviet Union as a low-altitude penetrator into the next decade."

"And I don't say it won't be able to do it after that," Brown added recently. "I'm just saying that I can't see further ahead than that."

PRODUCTIVE POSTAL WORKER

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — "Since the U.S. Postal Service became fully operational in 1972, the American postal worker has become the most productive in the world," says Fred T. Allen, chairman of Pitney Bowes, a manufacturer of mail handling systems and equipment.

The average U.S. Postal Service employee, in fact, handles more than 127,000 pieces of mail a year. That's 11 per cent more than the Canadian postal worker — his nearest competitor. Compared to postal workers in such countries as Great Britain and West Germany, the U.S. postal worker is as much as two-and-a-half times more productive, Allen notes.

Carter finds reorganization hard

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Carter unveiled his first reorganization plan, he declared, "We are starting off with perhaps the most difficult one of all for me."

The plan, sent to Congress just a week ago, will revamp the Executive Office of the President and the White House staff, the latter a part of the larger EOP.

"It is difficult," Carter said, "because of the closeness of myself to the people involved."

No one in Washington would pretend that it is easy to reorganize any part of the federal bureaucracy. Even the official board of tea tasters emerged with a vocal constituency when the first proposal was made, at least two administrations ago, that it be abolished.

It is well, however, that Carter spoke of EOP reorganization as "perhaps" the most difficult in a series of such plans that are proposed for the months and years ahead. The qualification took some of the edge off what otherwise would have been an excursion into the realm of obvious hyperbole.

For one thing, Carter's suggestion that proximity to the people being reorganized at EOP made the task more difficult is susceptible to skeptical examination. The plain fact is that no one with close and long-standing ties to the President is being reorganized out of a job, shorn of power or even faced with significant inconvenience.

As a matter of fact, even those who hold the 252 EOP jobs that are getting the ax need not fear for their livelihood. About a third of the jobs simply are being transferred to other parts of the bureaucracy and those who hold the rest will continue to draw federal paychecks. In numerical terms, eliminated jobs will be dispensed with through normal attrition: deaths, retirements and resignations.

The same situation will apply to promised cuts in the White House staff — only more so.

Carter, who once said he would cut the White House staff by 30 per cent, announced that reorganization will see the full-time staff reduced to 351 from 485, seemingly an impressive reduction of 28 per cent.

"I think it carries out his (Carter's) commitment," said Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget.

A second glance reveals, however, that just over half of the cutback — 70 jobs out of 134 — represents a paper transaction. The 70 jobholders, who do administrative work, aren't even leaving the premises. They are being transferred from the White House staff to a new central administrative unit within the EOP.

With difficult and controversial reorganization plans yet to emerge from the Oval Office, Carter presumably wanted to get the lengthy and sure-to-be contentious process off to a flying start.

This is important, at least psychologically, because Congress has made it clear it wants to be heard during the reorganization process. Carter can propose but Congress can dispose, by disapproval of any plan by either the Senate or House within 60 days after it is unveiled.

The communications system, run by the General Services Administration, receives messages from agencies' terminals and sends them to their proper designations.

For instance, a claim for Supplemental Security Income, federal welfare for the aged, is filed at a local Social Security office. The request for payment would be typed on a terminal and transmitted to the computer system, which in turn would send it to the Social Security computer in Baltimore.

But the system cannot tell which terminal is sending a message. A deliberate attempt to disguise a terminal's identity can succeed.

The auditors used a terminal in Washington, but not a Social Security terminal, to test the system with requests for Supplemental Security Income claims directed at the main Social Security computer.

"We found that the SSA computer rejected the messages when the sending terminal's (codes) were used. However, when the (codes) of an SSA field office were used, the message was accepted and the claim was established and processed for payment," the audit said.

The audit, released by Reps. John Moss, D-Calif., and Charles R. Stenholm, D-N.C., did not say fraudulent claims had been entered in this manner, only that it could be done.

The Social Security Administration said it is trying to plug the holes in the system.

But the system cannot tell which terminal is sending a message. A deliberate attempt to disguise a terminal's identity can succeed.

The auditors used a terminal in Washington, but not a Social Security terminal, to test the system with requests for Supplemental Security Income claims directed at the main Social Security computer.

"We found that the SSA computer rejected the messages when the sending terminal's (codes) were used. However, when the (codes) of an SSA field office were used, the message was accepted and the claim was established and processed for payment," the audit said.

The audit, released by Reps. John Moss, D-Calif., and Charles R. Stenholm, D-N.C., did not say fraudulent claims had been entered in this manner, only that it could be done.

The Social Security Administration said it is trying to plug the holes in the system.

Lions queen vies for crown

Janis Johnson, Lions Club sweetheart and 1977 queen of the Pampa Noon Lions Club, will try to win the Miss Top o' Texas crown during judging July 23 in the M.K. Brown Auditorium. Miss Johnson, 1977 Pampa High School graduate, was active in student council, Keywanettes, Future Teachers of America and Vocational Industrial Clubs of America. She is a former Altrusa girl of the month and has worked for Dr. Jim Alexander as a dental assistant for two years. The 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.J. Johnson of Pampa will play the piano for the talent competition and she said she wants a career as an elementary teacher or dental hygienist. Her hobbies include tennis, swimming, bike riding and snow and water skiing. Miss Johnson's sponsor is the First National Bank.

City sales tax rebate triples

Pampa's city sales tax rebate for July this year was almost three times the amount the city received in July 1976 — $60,265.34 as compared with $22,980.10.

"That's more than a 50 per cent increase over July last year," S.M. Chittenden, director of finance, reported this morning following a release from State Comptroller Bob Bullock who said Texas tax rebates this year are running "a healthy 20.3 per cent ahead of last year."

The City of Pampa has received $380,107 for the first seven months of 1977, while during the same period in 1976 it had received $320,092.

Chittenden said the total rebates for the year are about 15 per cent ahead of last year.

He credited the increase to better collections, economy boosts and inflation.

"These rebates are just another sign of the strength of the Texas economy," Bullock said.

Bullock said his office mailed rebate checks Friday totaling $23.6 million to 868 Texas cities for their July share of the one per cent city sales tax.

The July checks boost to $190.7 million the total that has been rebated to Texas cities for the first seven months. This compared to $158.6 million for the same period last year.

Bullock said sales tax collections in Texas are registering a bigger percentage than any other state.

Area cities receiving sales tax rebates in July include McLean, $1,004.49; Panhandle, $2,023.85; White Deer, $664 and Miami, $628.79.

Bullock said the City of Houston was mailed a July sales tax rebate check for $4.7 million, and Dallas and San Antonio received $3.2 million and $1.3 million, respectively.

Priceless guns missing

VICTORIA, Tex. (AP) — The Buffalo Bill Historical Center in Cody, Wyo., recently made a first-ever loan of a large antique gun collection to a museum here. It might be a long time — if ever — before it is loaned again.

The collection, said by historians to be priceless, was discovered missing from the Nave Museum Wednesday.

Officers said the museum had been burglarized sometime between Sunday night and Wednesday morning because the museum had been closed since Sunday night.

Insured value of the collection was estimated at $60,000. The guns—including a U.S. Harper's Ferry 1803 model rifle, one of only two known to exist—were to have been moved to the Witte Museum in San Antonio in mid-August on a nationwide tour.

Included in the collection were nine flintlock rifles, 15 percussion Civil War period guns, 16 early cartridge guns and 18 western guns of the 1875-1900 era. Out of the collection, 17 were pistol and 41 were shoulder arms, according to museum officials.

Police and museum officials said another rare gun in the collection was a first model Colt-Patterson revolving cylinder rifle, one of only about 200 manufactured.

Many of the other weapons were priceless as far as historical value is concerned, museum officials said.

The burglars entered through a window, officers said. A cleanup crew discovered the burglary early Wednesday.
