Locals disagree on plan for pot

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

President Carter's proposal to decriminalize marijuana drew criticism from local law enforcement officers, approval from some teenagers, mixed reactions from Pampa mothers.

A school official said, "We need to fight marijuana every way in the world."

The Pampa News this week questioned Pampans about Carter's plan. Some compared it to the days of prohibition.

"If they want it they are going to get it. That's way it was with liquor. Bootleggers got rich," commented one who declined to be named.

The President issued a detailed seven-page declaration Tuesday, making it clear he wants federal agencies to concentrate on large-scale dealers and not on the casual marijuana user.

"Of course I don't think possession of marijuana should be decriminalized," Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan emphasized. "It is very detrimental to the health of people. I'm not for it. I think it is destructive to the mind if used for any length of time. I've observed a change in personalities where marijuana has been used over a period of time. I think it should remain a violation. I can't see it any other way."

A 28-year-old Pampa father and businessman said he personally would not want his child to use marijuana.

"I think any change in the use should be the court's business. I think Carter sticks his neck out in far too many things," he said.

Mrs. Roy Taylor said she is not for legalizing marijuana, but isn't surprised that "the President is sympathetic toward it."

However, one woman said she favors legalizing it.

"I think it is like prohibition. When you take away the fun and games, the fun will be gone — and I don't think use of marijuana leads to hard drugs," she said.

Harold Comer, district attorney, said he is opposed to the use of marijuana because it reduces one's inhibitions so that he or she might commit an offense that otherwise would not have been committed.

"And it could lead to the use of hard drugs," Comer added.

Jason Youngman, 18, says marijuana should be legalized.

"They are still going to smoke it whether it is legal or not," he added.

Terry Trimble, who is almost 17 years of age, said it would be better to go ahead and legalize marijuana.

"They are going to do it anyway to help cancer," he commented.

Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills said his personal feelings are that once it is decriminalized "you can never go back and make it a criminal offense."

"Although all users do not go into hard drugs it is an enticement for harder drugs," Mills said.

He explained that marijuana is a drug which causes hallucinations.

Paul Payne, Pampa High School principal, said the public needs to "fight marijuana every way in the world."

"I'm against leniency in regard to marijuana. They say it isn't harmful, but I've seen too many kids ruined by it," Payne added.

He had no comment in regard to the president's proposal saying he had not studied it.

Don Orth also compared marijuana use to the days of prohibition.

"I just don't know," he commented.

Many who declined to be named were outraged by the president's proposal.

"I've shed a lot of tears over my children and marijuana," a mother said. "No way will I ever favor decriminalization."

"I remember when they first started using marijuana and the courts were harder on those kids. I don't understand why the judges let up," another mother said.

Employment hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate fell to 6.9 per cent in July, resuming its downward course after rising the previous month, the government reported today.

Unemployment had risen from 6.9 per cent in May to 7.1 per cent in June after declining from a 1976 high of 8 per cent last November.

Labor Department analysts said that with the rate hovering close to the 7 per cent level for the past several months, the growth in the economy appears to have slowed temporarily following the sharp expansion earlier this year.

Some economists were expecting another rise in the jobless rate last month, but a sharp decline in the civilian labor force brought the rate down in July.

Civilian labor force, which includes those working and looking for work, declined by 340,000 last month with nearly all of the reduction occurring among teen-agers. The government said it was likely that the reduction in the labor force was due to the lateness of the survey week when the June figures were gathered.

"Thus, some youths who otherwise would have been recorded as July entrants were counted in June," the government said.

There was little growth in the number of Americans with jobs last month, as total employment, at 90.6 million, was little changed from June after advancing for eight consecutive months.

Over the past year employment had grown by 2.8 million, with a 2.9 million increase in nonagricultural industries and a 140,000 decline in agriculture.

With the jobless rate falling back to 6.9 per cent last month, the total number of unemployed declined by 220,000 to 6.7 million.

Most of the drop occurred among teen-agers and adult women.

The Labor Department said the teen-age jobless rate fell from 18.6 per cent to 17.4 per cent last month, its lowest point since October, 1974. However it was only white youths that benefited, as the rate for black teen-agers remained "extremely high" at 40.7 per cent, the government said.

Among other major groups in the labor force, the government gave the following breakdown:

—The jobless rate for adult men increased to 5.1 per cent in July from 5 per cent in June.

—The rate for adult women declined to 6.9 per cent last month from 7.2 per cent.

—Among whites, the unemployment rate dropped from 6.3 per cent to 6.1 per cent.

—Unemployment among blacks and other minorities was unchanged at 13.2 per cent.

Nonfarm payrolls rose by 255,000 last month to a total of $2.4 million.

Nearly three-fourths of the increase occurred in the service-producing industries. But there was also a 70,000-job increase in manufacturing employment which has grown by a total of 750,000 since last October.

Employment in the construction industry increased by 35,000 last month, about half of the gain resulting from strike settlements. But there was a decline of 35,000 in mining employment, largely because of strike activity, the government said.

The average work week for nonfarm production workers edged down a tenth of an hour for the second consecutive month to 36.1 hours in July. Manufacturing overtime also edged down one-tenth of an hour after holding at 3.4 hours for three months. Both of these measures indicate slowed economic growth.

Average hourly earnings were $5.23 in July, up 2 cents from June and 37 cents from a year earlier. Average weekly earnings total $190.90, an increase of $1.26 over the month and $13.02 from the level in July 1976.

The administration has forecast a jobless rate of about 6.5 per cent by the end of the year.

Thomas shipped home

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's proposal to allow millions of illegal aliens to stay in the United States came too late to help a 23-year-old El Salvadorian named Tomas.

By the time Carter announced his proposal Thursday, Tomas was back in El Salvador, the victim of bad luck and too much to drink. But millions of other illegal aliens in this country may get to stay without fear of deportation if Congress approves Carter's plans.

Carter asked that illegal aliens who can prove they were in the United States before 1970 be made legal residents, eventually able to apply for citizenship.

Those who slipped into the country between Jan. 1, 1970, and Dec. 31, 1976, would be eligible for what Carter called "temporary resident" status. By registering, they could stay in the United States for five years and hold jobs. They would not be able to get welfare benefits or bring their families into the country to join them.

Tomas is a short, slender man with curly black hair and a wispy goatee. While awaiting his deportation hearing, he told his story.

He said he had nine years of schooling in El Salvador, where he learned meat-cutting and drafting. But because his country has a massive unemployment problem, he said he found work only once, in a rice factory at $2.80 per day. Soon, that ended.

Tomas came north in a bus through Mexico. He says he walked across the border at San Ysidro, Calif., and eventually got a job as a meat-cutter in the kitchen of an Arlington restaurant.

He was paid $3.25 an hour. From his earnings, he saved $2,000 and bought a house in San Salvador. He said another year in America would have enabled him to open a butcher shop there.

If Tomas had been able to stay out of the law's clutches, he would have been able to qualify for the new, temporary resident status.

But he was arrested for public drunkenness at a party in the Washington suburb of Arlington last weekend. Police discovered that he had a phony Social Security card for identification. They turned him over to the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Hiring Tomas was a benefit to his employer, a restaurant that immigration officials say has hired aliens before. According to local union officials, the restaurant paid Tomas at least $1-per-hour less than it would have had to pay a union meat cutter.

Atty Gen. Griffin Bell said the new program will help determine how many aliens are in the country illegally and what kinds of jobs they hold. At the end of the five years, the government would then have to determine what to do with those who registered. Aliens who arrived this year would still be subject to deportation if caught.

In addition, Carter asked for 2,000 more border patrol agents

Two sentenced to prison terms

Two persons were sentenced to lengthy terms in the Texas Department of Corrections this morning and two were granted probation terms following conviction of felony murder in 31st District Court on July 21st.

The felony murder convictions were in connection with the Jerry Bowers Oliver on Sept. 15, 1976.

Donald Wayne Kuykendall, 22, was sentenced to serve 10 years in the penitentiary after Judge Grainger Melhany over-ruled a motion for a new trial.

A 31st District Court recommended the 10 year term on July 22 following two hours deliberation.

Duane Chapman, 24, who had two previous convictions on his record, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

Ruben Garza, 20, received a 10-year probation term, and Cheryl Fisher, 19, was given eight years probation.

The three men pleaded innocent and the jury heard evidence for almost a week before deliberations began. Miss Fisher pleaded guilty before the judge, and cooperated with the state in testifying before the jury.

Garza and Chapman chose to have the judge instead of the jury assess punishment in the case.

Harold Comer, district attorney, told the court that he would recommend a lengthy probation term for Miss Fisher.

"We feel that she was not primarily responsible for the death of Jerry Oliver, but was a party," Comer said.

Comer recommended the five year penitentiary term for Chapman due to his previous convictions.

In discussing probation with Garza, Judge Melhany said: "You've been found guilty by assisting in taking away a person's life. My inclination would be to send you to prison. What's on your mind?"

"Like you said I can't ever bring back Mr. Oliver. He was a real good friend of mine. I didn't know it was going to happen. I never wanted to kill a man," Garza said.

"Do you feel deeply about this?" Judge Melhany asked.

"Yes sir I do," Garza answered.

Iguanas, crocodiles, deadly snakes smuggled

US zoos accepted hot rare reptiles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Zoo officials "were just looking the other way" as an international smuggling ring brought more than 600 rare contraband reptiles into the United States, a federal prosecutor says.

"I think the mentality among the zoos in this country when this investigation started was, 'If you can get an animal, get it,'" U.S. Atty David Marston said Thursday after a federal grand jury here indicted 12 persons in a two and one-half year investigation that ranged from the United States to France, Switzerland, Africa and Australia.

Eight of the nation's most prestigious zoos were identified as having received the contraband animals. The zoos are: the National Zoological Park in Washington, D.C., a branch of the Smithsonian Institution; the Philadelphia Zoological Garden; St. Louis Zoological Park; Dallas Zoo; Knoxville (Tenn.) Zoo;

Sacramento (Calif.) Zoo; Seneca Park Zoo in Rochester, N.Y.; and Overton Park Zoo in Memphis.

Although no zoo officials were named in the indictments, Marston said the U.S. Interior Department would seek civil penalties against institutions and curators that received the rare snakes, lizards, crocodiles and other cold-blooded animals.

Zoo officials denied any complicity in the alleged smuggling.

"We did not smuggle any snakes," said Charles Hoessle, deputy director of the St. Louis Zoo. "We bought the animals in good faith. The animals were in the country at the time we negotiated for them. If the animals were contraband, we weren't aware of it."

He declined further comment, saying federal authorities had asked zoo officials not to discuss the case.

In Memphis, Tenn., zoo director Charles Wilson said he believed the two Fiji iguanas at his zoo were not listed as endangered when they were purchased.

"To my knowledge, those iguanas were bought before the Fiji Islands declared they were endangered and we believed we were buying them from a reputable dealer," he said.

"The thing that shocks me is that if they were illegal, then why blame us," he said. "We didn't import the animals and did not know they were illegal, if that is the case."

Wilson said he has not been contacted by Customs officials, who conducted the investigation, but said Charles Beck, the zoo's curator of aquaria and reptiles, had testified twice before the grand jury.

Ronald T. Reuther, president of the Philadelphia Zoological Garden, said last February when the investigation was announced that "these animals came in with permits we thought were proper."

A Customs official said the investigation showed that more than 600 reptiles were illegally brought into this country.

About 300 of the reptiles died shortly after being "clandestinely brought into the United States on one expedition in late 1974," the official said. The resale value of the 300 surviving snakes and other reptiles was estimated at $35,000.

Among the rare species of snakes alleged to have been illegally imported were Australian and New Guinea pythons, poisonous "death adders" and deadly "Taipan" snakes. Other reptiles cited were Johnston's crocodiles, Nile crocodiles, and Fiji iguanas.

Marston said the indictments were the first ever under the Endangered Species Act of 1973. He said the penalty for conviction of illegally importing animals is $5,000 for each offense.

The 12 individuals were charged with violating Customs laws, federal fish and wildlife laws and the Lacey Act, which makes it illegal to take wildlife from other nations in violation of their laws.

Americans indicted by the grand jury were Henry A. Molt Jr., a reptile dealer from Will Grove, Pa.; Alvin H. Weinberg, a Kings Park, N.Y., reptile dealer; Steven N. Levy, a student from Pittsburgh, Pa.; Edward B. Allen Jr., a Delaware County, Pa., businessman; David Christensen, an amateur herpetologist from Trenton, N.J.; and Rudolf Komarek, a New Jersey reptile dealer.

Foreign nationals indicted were Jonathan Leakey of Kenya, Africa; Y. L.

Koh and Christopher Wee, both described as Singapore animal dealers; Maurice Van Dehague, a wildlife dealer from France; and Walter Zinniker, a wildlife dealer from Switzerland.

GOP tries to junk energy plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives, working through the last sections of President Carter's national energy program, is adhering to White House wishes except for the issue of a higher gasoline tax.

With House leaders hoping to complete work on the bill today before Congress begins a month-long recess, the main votes remaining are on a Republican effort to junk the President's energy plan in favor of their own.

Meanwhile, James Schlesinger, Carter's nominee to head the new Department of Energy, was scheduled to be sworn in today in a White House ceremony.

Schlesinger won Senate confirmation in the post on Thursday, hours after Carter signed legislation setting up the first new cabinet position in 11 years.

Generally, the GOP alternative energy plan calls for less regulation of the oil industry. Backers of the proposal say it would assure ample fuel supplies and prevent a repetition of last winter's shortages and plant closings.

The Republican blueprint has virtually no chance of approval by the Democratic House, and Republicans are so confident that Carter's program won't work that they already have announced plans to campaign against it in next year's congressional elections.

In debate Thursday, lawmakers handed the President one of his few setbacks on the bill, rejecting a plan he supported to hike the federal gasoline tax by a nickel a gallon. The vote was 339-82 against increasing the current tax of four cents a gallon.

A proposed tax hike of four cents also was defeated, 370-52.

The House took these other actions:

—Rejected by voice vote a proposed four-cent increase to 11 cents in the tax on gasoline for private aircraft.

—Killed, 228-190, a proposal to earmark crude oil tax revenues for support of Social Security benefit payments.

—Voted, 223-198, against a proposed return, or "plow-back," of some of the tax revenue to certain oil companies as an incentive for exploration.

The plowback amendment was managed by Reps. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., and James R. Jones, D-Okl. They argued that some oil companies lack the money needed for aggressive exploratory drilling.

They said their proposal was carefully tailored to exclude the large oil companies. Instead, some $80 million in revenue would be divided among small independent companies in the first year, they said.

Opponents, including administration officials, noted drilling activity is at its highest level in 17 years and said trying to decide which companies should receive funds and how much would present overwhelming bureaucratic problems.

The plowback amendment was an example of Democratic leaders and the White House working together to push through the Carter program, designed to check America's ravenous energy appetite by encouraging conservation and increased use of coal by industry.

Basically honest Mao

In Family Weekly somebody asked Julie Nixon Eisenhower about the people she most admires. The question stunts nicely with Mrs. Eisenhower's new role as author. She has put together a coffee-table volume about the Famous People she met during her happier times at the White House. Such as "rockie" (') Golda Meir. She is greatly impressed with Prince Charles — a wonderful person, not a royal robot — because he makes you feel at ease and self-important in his presence. Why that is impressive — a patriotic Briton would assure you that the prince's manners come naturally — escapes us. But it does not defy our understanding as much as her third most admired profile in Nixonian history. Yes, Mao Tse-tung — a basically honest man whose biggest disappointment was the young he found them too soft and easygoing. Now it is a universal principle of totalitarianism that they always find their subjects too soft and easygoing. By definition a totalitarian is one who exacts hard living and excruciatingly disciplined behavior from ordinary human beings. Further despots are almost always puny and it is part of their nature to be suspicious of the younger generation. Several Chinese members of which are at least muscular enough to swim the choppy waters to Hong Kong, dodging Mao Tse-tung's machine gun bullets along the way. Chairman Mao, once he rose to the top, did in fact experience moments of candor. He could admit in his dotage that he did in fact slaughter a fraction of the 60 million people that he did in fact slaughter. But is such candor your basic honesty? More is it an admirable basic honesty to stage as the greatest butcher since Genghis Khan, those infamous mass people's trials with which Mao purged, on false charges, the missionaries and political opponents of his absolutist state? What is distressing is the feeling that Julie Nixon Eisenhower actually means it, that she's not even damping with faint praise. That such a mushy judgment of character could reflect the thinking of the White House, indeed does still, is not only distressing. It grossly offends the humanity of the American people, whose spiritual ballast will be absolutely necessary if we ever stop our plunge into the dark age.

Despite scorn from Texans and Mexicans

Kickapoos cling to their freedom

By Tom Tiede

EAGLE PASS, Texas — (NEA) — The Apaches are tourism entrepreneurs, the Crow lease land to coal companies, the Sioux are heavy into politics. But there is one Indian tribe that has refused to go the way of the 20th century. The Kickapoo, perhaps the most traditional and independent Native Americans left on the continent.

Kickapoos? Fictionalized by cartoonist Al Capp as drunken bums with a crazed eye for the ladies of "Li Abner," the tribe in fact lives in a Dogpatoch of sorts. The Indians are migrant workers who camp here during the harvest months in a cardboard shantytown under the international bridge. Moonbeam McSwine would love the filth.

Yet if their campsite is soiled, their heritage isn't. The Kickapoo have constituted a sovereign nation since before the birth of the United States. Even now they're not recognized as U.S. citizens, nor are they subjects of Mexico, where they spend much of their time. They're autonomous self-governing "free" as they put it.

MANY EAGLE PASS residents deplore the annual immigration of the Kickapoos. They point with contempt to the tribe's cluttered, substandard campsite, and residents periodically petition authorities to have it leveled.

The freedom did not come easily. Though the Kickapoo began as Algonquian stock in the area of America's Great Lakes, wars and aggression forced them into a nomadic life. Tribal historians say many of the aggressors were frontier white men: at the time of the American Revolution, Kickapoos were so disgusted with settlers they sided with the British.

Defeated by greater numbers, the Kickapoo tried to put permanent roots in Oklahoma of a century ago. But they did not meld with other Indians who were forsaking the past as a conciliatory move to suspicious whites. The Kickapoo say they were told to change their primitive religious beliefs, instead, they found their way to Mexico.

It was a raw time in Mexico then. The Texas revolution had just ended, the government changed virtually with the bed sheets, and the northern plains were wild and unprotected. Thus the Kickapoo formed a contract with the fonctionarios, in return for 9,000 acres of land in the state of Coahuila, they would guard against U.S. raiding parties.

Not everyone appreciates the annual coming of the Kickapoo. Eagle Pass merchants belittle them as nature. "Religion permeates their lives. Even when they build a house their religion tells them when to do it, how to do it, and where: the specifics of it, however, are known only to them."

The Kickapoo keep their secrets for good reason. Chief George Whitewater says the tribe would deteriorate if it advertised. So all ceremonies are off limits to non-Indians actually, whites may not visit Kickapoo camps at anytime without permission; also, mixed marriage is forbidden. Kickapoos must be at least 75 per cent pure.

The Kickapoo are not absolutely opposed to modernization. They own vehicles, some wear sunglasses, and if electricity were available the tribe would no doubt be watching television. As for Chief Whitewater, he is not a chief but a retired Air Force sergeant from Kansas whose title is given in recognition of his formal education.

And too, the Kickapoo may be about to undergo additional updating. The state legislature has recently recognized the Indians as the "Traditional Kickapoo Tribe of Texas," which means money will now be appropriated for their seasonal welfare. Some observers fear that regular aid will spoil the independence of the obscure people.

But for now, particularly in matters of the spirit, the Kickapoo remain remarkably like their fathers. Most speak only Indian dialect, the tribe has an official shaman, and the old ways are iron law. Also, says Chief Whitewater, the white man is kept at bay, because "if they get close, we will be absorbed, and if we become like them we'll be lost."

Hex Signs
Many of the native homes on the Dutch Caribbean island of Aruba are colorfully decorated with hex signs. The signs are a vestige of the time in which the early inhabitants of the island believed they would ward off evil spirits.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, August 5, the 217th day of 1977. There are 148 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1963, the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union signed a treaty outlawing nuclear tests in the atmosphere, in space, and under water.
On this date:
In 1826, the first trans Atlantic cable was completed.
In 1861, the U.S. government levied an income tax for the first time.
In 1884, the corner stone of the Statue of Liberty was laid at the entrance to New York harbor.
In 1949, an earthquake in Ecuador killed 6,000 people.
In 1964, the U.N. Command in Korea began an exchange of prisoners with North Korea and Communist China.
In 1962, the movie star Marilyn Monroe was found dead in her Los Angeles home.
Ten years ago, former President Dwight Eisenhower was admitted to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington for treatment of an intestinal ailment.
Five years ago, Democratic Presidential nominee George McGovern picked former Peace Corps Director Sargant Shriver for his running mate after Senator Thomas Eagleton of Missouri withdrew from the Vice Presidential race.

So there I was, minding my own business, when suddenly this vile creature leaped up and consumed my hand!

August 5, 1977
New personal ambitions could be awakened in you this coming year. That is admirable. You must be careful not to get so involved you don't take time to smell the roses.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Pride goes before a fall and you could take a mighty tumble if you place too much stress on your image today, rather than on whether you're paying your dues.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You lay faith in your ideas today and consequently put too much stock in criticism. As a result you will accomplish little.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Beware of people who are maneuvering into a position to do you down. If you feel obligated, if this occurs, it could ruin a friendship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Should your opinion conflict with that of the majority today, keep it to yourself. You'll only make waves. Nothing constructive will result.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't take on a task today that you feel uneasy about before you begin. The job you do won't be a credit to you or to the project at hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A heap of problems will develop if you try unasked to manage someone else's affairs today. Don't butt-in where you're not invited.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your mate may be a trifle testy today. The best course for you could be to keep quiet and stay out of range.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Tap up to people today. Don't look down on anyone. This even applies to those who, for your own reasons, you might not consider to be worth the effort.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Before you join that friendly poker game with your pals today, be sure it's of the penny-ante variety, or you could take a bath.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try not to magnify family problems today. You could create a major issue that would distress all in your household.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Usually you're the one in the crowd who can spot a silver lining first. Not so today — you see more dark clouds than bright ones.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Handle your money frugally today, or a bad case of spender's remorse could set in to put a damper on some things you're looking forward to.

Dr. Bill Campaigne, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Campaigne of Pampa, has earned an unusual title: He's a wild cow milking champ.

The Seguin veterinarian, along with a group of fellow Kiwanians in Guadalupe County, was named winner of the event recently at the Lockhart rodeo.

Retirement soon will be a choice rather than a requirement for Maine public employees. They will be able to stay on the job as long as they are capable of working.

The new law is called "a bill of rights for the elderly." Maine's governor had vetoed the measure, worried that it could jeopardize pension plans and decrease job opportunities for the young.

But the lawmakers disagreed. Retirement should be a voluntary decision, they maintained. They said it is unjust to push out a person willing to and capable of work because he or she reaches an arbitrarily chosen age.

Bill Clayton, speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, wrote to school board members throughout the state urging them to lower school taxes.

I believe that the vast majority of the school districts will be able to adjust their tax rates and ratios so that relief can be provided to the state's tax payers," he wrote, pointing out that the legislation passed in July gave $945 million to the schools. Of that $341 is for reduction of the local share of funding the foundation school program.

Because the Legislature believes in local control of our public schools, no mandated tax relief was included in the bill. Nonetheless, it is the intent of the Legislature that school boards carefully examine the new budgets being prepared and determine whether tax reductions are possible," he wrote.

While Donna Axum, Miss America of 1963, was in Pampa for the Miss Top of Texas pageant she discovered a birthday party at the Pampa Country Club.

She stopped to wish birthday greetings and the 12-year-old girl was thrilled. "I've never seen a Miss America eat before," she said.

The former Miss America, used to the celebrity treatment and awe-inspiring power which goes with the title, laughed. "And do you know how we do it?" she teased. "One bite at a time."

Incidentally, The News, in an interview with Donna Axum, mentioned her book "The Outer You and the Inner You." The book is slated to be published later this year in Waco.

In fact, she brought the last chapter to Pampa with her to rework again before it goes to the publisher.

A former Texan deposited $300.40 in his Dallas bank last August but the teller rang up a $30,000.00 deposit.

So the man wrote a check for $29,400, converted it into cashier's checks and left town. He headed for California in the new Corvette he had bought with his sudden fortune. But was caught, returned for trial and was found guilty.

In drought-stricken northern California, water was rationed to each house. If a homeowner went over his allotment, according to one report a zero was added to his monthly payment.

So a $40 water bill could become a $400 water bill. Or even a $4,000 water bill if water use exceeded another limit.

Baths became scarce and public restrooms were unheard of.

During a heart attack, about four minutes stand between biological death and clinical death. Between the time a person's breathing and heartbeat stop and the time irreparable brain damage results from lack of oxygen.

A person who knows CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) and who can act within two minutes of a victim's unconsciousness has a 50 per cent chance of saving the life of a heart attack or drowning victim.

The Gray County Heart Association has, for several years, made a valiant effort to teach CPR to area residents.

Their work and conviction, too often ignored, save lives of our friends and neighbors.

Farm roundup Reports say Soviet wheat crop small

WASHINGTON (AP) — A three-person Agriculture Department team just back from the Soviet Union says Russia's spring wheat crop will be smaller than last year's but total production still should exceed 1976 levels.

The team reported Tuesday after visiting the five U.S.S.R. regions with 25 per cent of the spring-wheat acreage that it expects the spring-wheat yields to run close to the 10-year average.

Last year's harvest of 52.6 million metric tons was above average. Spring wheat normally accounts for about 60 per cent of total Soviet wheat production.

Poor Russian crops five and three years ago brought that government into the U.S. market to make heavy and at first secret purchases, contributing in 1972 and 1973 to soaring food-price inflation.

But last year, operating under a minimum-purchase agreement the Russians grew almost 100 million tons of winter and spring wheat and didn't actually need all the grain it bought under the commitment.

The team's report indicated that could be the case this year, a prediction already made by USDA.

The Russians' winter wheat is in excellent condition, the three men said.

USDA plans to release its third official forecast of the Soviet grain supply on Aug. 10, as harvest begins in the main producing areas east of the Ural Mountains and just before the next update on U.S. crop production.

The acreage planted to spring wheat below the norm and also less than last year's figure, the team said. Russian officials told them the weather conditions have been generally good.

The team's preliminary report noted, however, that high temperatures and below-normal rainfall early in the growing season probably hurt the crops in some regions.

Both temperatures and rainfall were above average during their 20-day trip, team members said.

The three were Keith Severin of USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service here, Lyle A. Derscheid of the Extension Service office in Brookings, S.D., and Wesley O. Tossett, a wheatgrower from Landsford, N.D.

WASHINGTON (AP) — As expected, the 1977 target price for rice is $8.25 per 100 pounds and the price-support loan rate is $6.19 per hundredweight — the same as last year.

The Agriculture Department announced the supports Wednesday. Top officials long had made it clear they did not want to increase the loan rate and jeopardize foreign markets by boosting the price.

The target level is set by a formula in farm program statutes. Increases in production costs that normally would have triggered a boost in the target were offset by changes in the three-year average of market prices, which also must be considered by law.

USDA pays growers who hold rice allotments the difference between the target and the average market price early in the season if that average is lower, down to the loan rate.

Under the loan program, farmers can borrow from USDA to finance planting or marketing, using their crop as collateral until they sell it in the marketplace and redeem the loan.

Since 1971, only four hurricanes have reached the continental United States, but their damage was great, reports the Insurance Information Institute.

Amnesty plans prompt crossings

By The Associated Press
Rumors that President Carter plans to grant amnesty to illegal aliens have helped prompt record numbers of Mexicans to illegally cross the Rio Grande into Texas, say U.S. Border Patrol officials.

"We do feel that part of it is rumors of amnesty. We have had some questions about it," said Roger Brandemuehl, deputy chief agent in El Paso, where the U.S. Border Patrol said it eclipsed all previous records during July by apprehending 15,258 illegal aliens.

That total compared with 12,459 arrests in July 1976. The Carter Administration unveiled its plan Thursday to recommend leniency for persons who entered the country illegally several years ago. The proposal, however, speaks only to those who entered the country before 1970.

U.S. Border Patrol officials say many of the aliens told them they had heard that President Carter was planning to grant amnesty to those who could make it into the country. Officials also cited poor economic conditions in Mexico as a major reason for the influx.

"It is amnesty and the devaluations of the peso," said William Sabin, chief patrol agent in the Laredo zone, where 2,953 illegal aliens were picked up in July, compared with only 1,478 during the same month a year ago.

In Del Rio, 4,702 illegal aliens were arrested during July, compared with 2,079 during the same month last year.

Near the southern tip of Texas, the McAllen Border Patrol apprehended about 3,800 during July, compared with some 2,100 during July 1976.

Brandemuehl said the population is expanding in Mexican towns along the border and everyone "looks to the almighty dollar, leading them to Texas."

Hugh Williams, who heads the Border Patrol office in Del Rio, also said many aliens indicate they came to Texas because of economic conditions in Mexico.

"Some have said they had heard something about amnesty," he said, "but it is kind of nebulous."

"We have had one thing which could contribute to it," said Thomas Ball, who runs the McAllen office. "We had good weather in July while July of 1976 the weather was wet. That always cuts down on the illegal entries."

The patrol says the largest number of arrests are made along the border. They also runs traffic checks along various highways, city patrols and checks of buses and freight.

Patrolling the largest segment of border between the U.S. and Mexico, the El Paso office covers 341 miles and a land area totaling 84,795 square miles.

The Laredo office covers 168 miles along the Rio Grande River.

Policies confusing insists Connally

HOUSTON (AP)—Former Texas Gov. John Connally says President Carter is trying to handle foreign affairs on the basis of public opinion polls and "our policies are confusing and inconsistent."

During a news conference Thursday, the former U.S. treasury secretary said the United States should make known its belief in human rights, "but when you use human rights as a bargaining agent in foreign affairs it is wrong."

Connally, who earlier spoke at a workshop for law professors, said neither the Arabs or the Israelis trust the President.

"The President first said the Palestinians deserved a homeland, and then he retreated on that. Then he said Israel should have defensible borders, then he retreated on that."

Connally also said the President "sends United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young traveling all over the world taking positions that put him deeply into the internal affairs of other nations.

"Then Secretary of State Cyrus Vance goes to Italy and France to stress that the United States will not become involved in any internal affairs."

"This is inconsistent, confusing, and no nation really knows where we stand," he said.

Connally, who served in the cabinet during the Nixon administration, also had a few harsh words for Congress, saying, "They cannot dictate and implement foreign policy. It must be done by the president and his advisors. Congress made a mistake by stepping in to the Angola situation."

Connally also came to the defense of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). He said, "We need a counter-intelligence force. The CIA should not be condemned."

Texas couple slain

DOVER, Del. (AP) — A Texas couple was fatally wounded Thursday night in the parking lot of the Dover Sheraton Inn by an assailant who sped away in their car, police said.

Dover City homicide detectives identified the victims as Robert Graham, 36, and his wife Marie, of Pharr, Texas.

Mrs. Graham was pronounced dead on arrival at Kent General Hospital of a bullet wound in the neck, according to a hospital spokeswoman. She said the woman was believed in her mid-30s.

Graham was shot three times in the chest and back, according to the hospital spokeswoman. He was unconscious when he was brought to the hospital, she said, adding he died shortly after admittance.

Witnesses told police the assailant shot the couple as they stepped from their car. The woman collapsed in the parking lot, while her husband staggered into the motel lobby, where he collapsed, police said.

The Senate affirmed its stand 60-33.

Abortion vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., and John Tower, R-Tex., voted Thursday to affirm its stand favoring federal funds for abortions where a woman's life would be endangered and in cases of rape, incest or medical necessity.

The Senate affirmed its stand 60-33.

FM road 750 to be widened

The state has appropriated more than half a million dollars for reconstruction of Farm to Market Road 750 south of Pampa.

FM 750 will be widened from State Highway 273 to 2.2 miles west of U.S. Highway 60 at a cost of $594,000.

Funds provided by the 65th Texas Legislature have been approved by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission. The state program is entitled the 1978 Special Rehabilitation and State Highway Safety and Betterment and Farm to Market Road Improvement Program.

The City of Pampa and/or Gray County will adjust utilities and provide funds for construction of necessary curbs and gutters, storm sewers, driveways and sidewalks.

Construction costs for other Panhandle roads will total $11.5 million. Statewide costs will be approximately $222 million.

Gray 4-Hers to go camping in Palo Duro

The two-day Gray County 4-H Camp will be Aug. 15-16 at the Ceta Glen Christian Camp south of Palo Duro Canyon, according to Marilyn Tate, assistant Gray County Extension agent.

"All Gray County 4-Hers, parents and leaders are invited to attend," Mrs. Tate said. "Camp activities will include games, crafts, group recreation and swimming."

Cost of the camp is $13 per person and included in the fee are four meals, lodging and transportation. The campers will leave from the Gray County Court House Annex at 9 a.m. Aug. 15 and will return at 4 p.m. Aug. 16.

Mrs. Tate said anyone interested in attending the camp should contact the Extension office at 689-7429 as soon as possible.

Congress says no abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, which has helped pay for more than one million abortions for poor women in recent years, is finished paying unless a woman's life is endangered by her pregnancy.

While arguments continue in court and Congress remains deadlocked on the abortion issue, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. ordered enforcement Thursday of a year-old legal provision that was prevented from taking effect for months by a court challenge.

The provision was enacted last year to bar the use of federal money for any abortion

"except where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

But it wasn't put into effect because U.S. District Court Judge John F. Dooling Jr. in Brooklyn declared it unconstitutional.

On Thursday, at the instruction of the Supreme Court, Dooling lifted his order.

Less than an hour later, Califano, who personally opposes abortion, made this announcement:

"The department will provide federal financial participation in the cost of abortions only where the attending physician, on the basis of his or her professional judgment, has certified that the abortion is necessary because the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

Califano said victims of rape or incest who receive pregnancy-preventing treatment before they know whether they are pregnant will not be affected by the announcement. Nor will the government stop financing treatment of ectopic pregnancies, in which the fertilized egg develops outside the uterus and cannot grow to term, he said.

Reaction to Califano's announcement was predictable.

A spokeswoman for the National Right to Life Committee called it "one small step toward our goal of a human life" constitutional amendment to outlaw abortions.

The National Abortion Rights Action League said it would press Congress for legislation "to protect the lives and health of poor women who need the medical service of abortion."

Medicaid had paid for nearly one third of the 1.1 million legal abortions performed annually in the United States since the Supreme Court ruled in 1973 that a woman has the right to decide with her physician whether to have an abortion.

Individual states may decide to pay the full cost of Medicaid abortions themselves rather than terminate all but the life-saving procedures, but a spot check indicates only seven states, Alaska, Hawaii, Maryland, Massachusetts, Nevada, Oregon and Washington, plan to do so.

Police report
 Pampa police investigated three thefts, two criminal mischief complaints and three non-injury accidents Thursday.

A man told police he was with two women in a local lounge when he noticed $175 was missing from his wallet.

Officers reported a woman told them she left her purse containing $130 unattended for 30 minutes while she visited her invalid mother at Leisure Lodge. When she checked the purse later, the woman reported the money was gone.

Two girls took two six-packs of beer from a convenience store at 850 E. Frederic and left without paying.

A man told officers he was being harassed by two juveniles who threw a potato through a glass in his door and then set off firecrackers in his mailbox.

Someone broke a window at Ford's Boys Wear at 110 E. Francis, causing $150 damage.

Texas weather

Texas. Most of the state, however, could expect fair skies and more hot temperatures with highs approaching near 100 in some areas.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s and lower 80s with extremes ranging from a cool 57 at Marfa in Southwest Texas to 82 at Palacios on the Gulf coast.

A look at early morning weather conditions around the state included Amarillo, 70 clear, Wichita Falls, 72 clear, Texarkana, 75 clear, San Antonio, 77 partly cloudy, Houston, 73 clear, Corpus Christi, 78 partly cloudy, Brownsville, 79 clear, San Angelo, 78 clear, El Paso, 73 clear, Lubbock, 71 clear, and Dalhart, 69 clear.

National weather

Thunderstorms were reported over the southeast, central and Pacific Northwest portions of the nation today and the National Weather Service said rain could be expected over a wide area of the nation.

A large area of scattered thunderstorms stretched from Missouri to the Texas Panhandle, while in the southeast storms ranged in an area from central Tennessee southeast through Georgia. Other storms were reported from Indiana to Lake Erie.

West of the Rockies a few showers and thunderstorms were reported over the interior from northern Idaho to the northern Arizona and New Mexico. But there was no precipitation for drought-plagued California.

Skies were mostly clear over New England and the middle Atlantic states southwest through most of Texas.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 45 at Lewistown, Mont. to 100 at Needles, Calif.

The weather service said showers and thundershowers will extend from the Missouri Valley and upper half of the Rockies through the mid-Mississippi Valley and over the north half of the Ohio Valley. Showers and thundershowers were expected in the west portions of New England, across the Appalachians, over the east half of the Gulf coast states and the southern Atlantic coast.

Temperatures will be cool over much of Montana but mild from the north half of the Rockies through the north half of the Plains. Elsewhere temperatures will be warm to hot.

Here are some early morning temperatures and conditions from around the nation:

Eastern U.S.:
 Atlanta 71 partly cloudy, Boston 72 hazy, Chicago 71 hazy, Cincinnati 75 partly cloudy, Cleveland 75 cloudy, Detroit 69 thundershowers, Indianapolis 76 hazy, Louisville 78 clear, Miami 82 clear, Nashville 73 clear, New Orleans 76 clear, New York 72 hazy.

Syria rejects meeting

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, his Middle East peace mission set back by Syria's rejection of a U.S.-based meeting of Mideast foreign ministers, pledged today to build the "necessary consensus" for an Arab-Israeli settlement.

Arriving in Jordan for talks with King Hussein, Vance said the search for a "just and lasting peace remains at the top of the list in terms of our foreign policy priorities in the United States."

"We shall continue to work with other countries in the Middle East seeking to build the necessary consensus which will enable us to go to Geneva to negotiate a settlement," he said.

Vance flew in from Damascus, where President Hafez Assad turned down an Egyptian-American proposal for a conference of foreign ministers in the United States by the end of the year.

The proposed ministerial meeting would exclude the Palestinians.

The proposal had been the one solid result to surface from Vance's latest tour of Middle East capitals. U.S. officials privately claimed other negotiating accomplishments but refused to elaborate.

After meeting with Vance Thursday, Assad said it was "better to concentrate at this stage" on preparations for resuming the Mideast peace conference in Geneva.

Vance was criticized today by the newspaper of Syria's ruling Baath Socialist party. Al Baath said Vance "came to us with so-called ideas for peace, accompanied by continuing occupation of Arab territory. He also came empty-handed of any idea on the rights of the Palestinian people."

Egypt had suggested the gathering of foreign ministers from Israel and its Arab neighbors in New York or Washington next month. Vance and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin endorsed the idea.

American sources said such a conference still could be held if Jordan agrees to the plan, but it would have little impact without Syrian participation.

Assad told a news conference after his talks with Vance: "Our brothers in Egypt perhaps saw certain benefits (in the plan) which so far we have not seen."

Considered the region's principal defender of the Palestinian cause, the Syrian leader voiced concern that the Egyptian-proposed meeting might be viewed as a "competitor" to a resumed Geneva conference.

The preliminary foreign ministers meeting would exclude the Palestinians, and thereby might enable the Arab and Israeli envoys to iron out less difficult issues under U.S. auspices. But Assad insists that the Palestinians be represented at peace talks, and he indicated Thursday he is interested only in a full-fledged Geneva conference.

"It's better if we concentrate at this stage on the Geneva conference, prepare for it well, and then to reconvene it at the proper time," he said.

Israel, with U.S. backing, adamantly refuses to recognize or negotiate with the PLO as long as the Palestinian group advocates the destruction of the Jewish state.

Cairo newspapers reported today that PLO leader Yasir Arafat, in a meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, did not back the proposal for a preliminary ministerial meeting. Sadat and Vance developed the plan in a meeting earlier this week in Alexandria, Egypt.

One man's tragedy

By GEORGE ESPER
 Associated Press Writer

PROSPECT, Conn. (AP) — Fred Beaudoin has a terrifying image fixed in his mind of a man beating his wife and seven children to death.

"I wake up once in a while," the big man cries openly. "I just can't sleep. I see these kids walking toward him with their arms open and he beating them."

Two weeks ago, while Beaudoin was working the midnight shift at a nearby aircraft factory, his wife, Cheryl, 29, their seven children and a young friend were found murdered in the Beaudoin's burned out home. The children ranged in age from 4 to 11. The medical examiner said they died of head injuries and smoke inhalation.

Beaudoin's foster brother, Lorne Acquin, 27, has been charged with the murders and with arson. He is in prison awaiting grand jury action on Sept. 7.

Beaudoin talked to a reporter Thursday in his mother's home for the first time since the tragedy. Wearing dungarees, he rocked silently in a chair, his brown eyes transfixed. Occasionally, he paced the room and sobbed.

Since the murders, Beaudoin has lost 15 pounds from his 185-pound frame.

He said he can never go back to the home where the children's toys are still in the yard and Cheryl's vegetable garden still grows. He has visited the graves a few times.

"I'm not doing much," he said. "I'm just hanging around the house. I started to leave and then I ended up turning around and coming back. I was going to go away just to be alone for a while but I'd rather be lonely with my friends."

The 33-year-old Beaudoin was asked if he thought he would be able to rebuild his life.

"I hadn't really thought about doing anything yet," he said. "It's just too soon. It's not so bad now, but that first week was terrible. We're getting back into shape, I guess, slowly."

His mother, Marion, said: "He is strong enough in his mind that he can do it, but it's going to take him a long time."

His days are preoccupied with thoughts of his wife and children.

"All I do is think about them," he said. "I just remember all the good things."

"I just can't imagine," he said in reference to a motive for the slayings.

"You have to appreciate this fact. Nobody didn't like Cheryl. She was the type of person, she could walk into a room and you knew she just had to know everybody. She made everybody feel so at ease."

"I just can't imagine..." he said, not finishing the sentence.

Carter gives youth jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today signed legislation to put 200,000 young Americans to work under a $1 billion program that includes park and forestry jobs like those in the depression-era Civilian Conservation Corps.

At a ceremony in the White House Rose Garden, Carter put his signature on the bill, intended to complement his economic stimulus plan. The program includes training, and part of it is aimed at cutting the rate of high school dropouts.

The President set aside time for the signing before meeting for the third time in two days with President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said the two leaders are turning to efforts to improve relations between Tanzania and the United States after discussing the possibilities of bringing back majority rule to Rhodesia without "an escalation to massive bloodshed and civil war."

After his session with Nyerere, Carter is witnessing an oath-taking ceremony for James R. Schlesinger, the nation's first secretary of energy. The Senate confirmed Schlesinger's nomination Thursday a few hours after Carter signed into being the Department of Energy which Schlesinger will head.

Later today, the President and Mrs. Carter planned to fly home to Plains, Ga., where they will return to the Methodist church in which they were married to be guests at the wedding tonight of Mrs. Carter's brother, Murray Smith.

Carter will announce his welfare program Saturday at a news conference in a small, one-story agricultural experiment station near Plains.

The meeting with reporters will be available for live radio and television coverage.

The President and Mrs. Carter are expected to attend services Sunday at the Methodist church. The Plains Baptist Church, where they used to attend services, is bitterly divided over the proposed membership of blacks.

Afterward, the Carters, including daughter Amy, will spend a few days vacationing. The President will spend most of the time relaxing at home and going over proposals for his tax program.

The Carters are expected to return to Washington about midweek.

Carter asked Congress for the youth jobs program to attack persistent high rates of unemployment among the nation's 23 million young workers. In recent years, the unemployment rate for persons between 16 and 24 years old has hovered around 15 per cent.

Teen-age unemployment is even higher. For blacks and other minorities, it ranges from 35 to 40 per cent. The national unemployment rate is 7.1 per cent, which means about seven million persons are out of work.

The new program, funded in May with $1 billion, provides: —A Young Adult Conservation Corps, patterned after the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC), established during the Depression.

The program will put 35,000 persons between the ages of 16 and 23 to work stocking streams, planting trees and repairing trails in national parks and forests. The jobs will last a year each and pay at least the minimum wage. About a third of the money for the jobs will be earmarked for work in state and local parks and forests.

—30,000 jobs in local communities for people 16 to 19 years old.

These jobs will provide 20 hours of work a week during school and 40 hours a week during the summer if the workers stay in school. Each community can determine jobs to be handled by the workers, from weatherizing homes of the elderly to building and maintaining parks.

—130,000 jobs and work training positions for people 16 to 21 years old from low income families.

These jobs will prepare workers for careers.

Mexico gas line would benefit

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A plan to pipe almost $2 billion worth of Mexican natural gas annually to the United States would benefit both countries, easing U.S. winter energy shortages and helping the Mexican government pay off its $20.3 billion foreign debt.

An estimated 2 billion cubic feet a day — about 3 per cent of the projected U.S. demand — would reach American markets in 1980, when Mexico plans to begin full-scale transmission from a newly discovered giant gas field through an 821-mile pipeline.

The Mexican state oil monopoly Petroleos Mexicanos, or Pemex, and a consortium of six U.S. interstate pipeline companies announced Thursday they had signed a "memorandum of intention" outlining the proposed sale.

A full agreement is to be signed within a few months, once the Federal Power Commission and other U.S. regulatory agencies give their approval.

Asked whether any problems were anticipated in winning federal approval, a spokesman for one of the U.S. firms, Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., said: "We sure don't. We didn't enter into this thing thinking it wouldn't fly."

Industry sources say the deal is "especially timely" because it coincides with the Canadian government's announcement this week that it is considering delaying by two years or more construction of a pipeline to carry natural gas to the lower 48 states from Alaska's North Slope.

The government of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau is expected to announce a decision Monday on whether to open negotiations with Washington about building the proposed $10 billion pipeline.

A Canadian study recommended delaying the start of pipeline construction from 1979 to 1981, primarily to allow time for settling Indian land claims.

Delivery of Mexican gas is expected to begin at a rate of about 50 million cubic feet a day this year through existing lines, eventually reaching about three-quarters of its capacity of 2.7 billion cubic feet a day.

The new pipeline, to be built by Mexico, would carry Pemex gas from the newly discovered Reforma fields near Cardenas on the Gulf Coast's Bay of Campeche north to a U.S. pipeline terminal at McAllen, Tex., and from there to markets in the southern United States from Florida to California.

Washington (AP) — Cancer victims, emotionally vulnerable to hucksters, are "exploited skillfully" by promoters of Laetrile, the Food and Drug Administration maintains in its strongest statement yet on the underground cancer treatment.

In a 268-page report filed Thursday with a federal judge in Oklahoma, the FDA said an exhaustive review of clinical research and of Laetrile proponents' arguments has failed to sway the agency's conviction that Laetrile is a hoax.

The report was ordered by the judge, who is hearing a case filed by a cancer victim who wants Laetrile. While revealing no new evidence, the report marshals previous arguments against the substance, then characterizes Laetrile promoters as charlatans and Laetrile users as victims.

"Cancer engenders fear... Cancer victims' families feel both sympathy and guilt at being unable to relieve the victim's suffering," FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy said in the report.

"These feelings are exploited skillfully by the purveyors of false cures. Cancer victims and their families are extremely vulnerable to the kind of persuasion so skillfully used by Laetrile's promoters..." he said.

"Promoters play upon the victim's frustration with a medical establishment that cannot offer the certainty of a cure, and build upon the cancer patient's fear of legitimate cancer therapies," Kennedy said.

The commissioner said the FDA made an objective review of Laetrile supporters' arguments, but found them unacceptable.

Kennedy said case histories cited in a book by one prominent Laetrile proponent "not only do not provide the kinds of adequate and well-controlled studies needed to show the effectiveness of a drug, it is not even on its face a particularly credible recounting of medical case histories."

Five join Lefors staff

Five new teachers will join the Lefors Public Schools faculty when in-service training begins Aug. 22.

New teachers are Allen Jenkins, high school principal; Bobby Turner, head football coach; Mrs. Bobby Turner, first grade; Don Parsons, junior high coach and physical education; and Mrs. Don Parsons, high school history and math.

Positions still open are band director and sixth grade teacher.

All Lefors students should register Aug. 25. Students in elementary school (kindergarten through grade eight) should report to homeroom. Upper classmen report to the auditorium.

Late registration will be Aug. 29, the first day of classes.

Aug. 29 will be a full school day. Buses will run and the cafeteria will serve lunch.

President of the Student Council this year is Floyd Cotham. High School cheerleaders will be Karen Brownfield, Debra Humphrey, Brenda Holland, Melody Thacker and Lendi Livingston.

Home football games will be played Sept. 2, Sept. 9, Sept. 23 and October 7.

Fireman answer false alarm

Fire trucks were sent to Highland General Hospital on a false alarm Thursday when someone in the hospital pulled the emergency fire alarm by mistake, J.D. Ray, driver with the Pampa Fire Department said today.

The firefighters were also called to the city landfill to extinguish a grass fire and a car fire in the 400 block of W. Atchison was put out by firemen.

Cause of the blaze was a flooded carburetor and the vehicle, owned by Billy Hale, sustained light damage.

Names in the news

ATLANTA (AP) — President Carter's mother says she has never smoked marijuana, but if her son's proposal to lift federal criminal penalties for possession of up to one ounce becomes law she hopes she'll see some.

"No I've never smoked it," Miss Lillian, as she is known, told reporters attending the Atlanta Press Club's Peanut Roast of Carter aides Thursday night.

"You know I've never even seen any," she said. "If it ever gets legal, I hope maybe I'll just see one little cigarette."

Carter asked Congress on Tuesday to eliminate all federal criminal penalties for the possession of up to one ounce of marijuana, while calling for a crackdown on those selling drugs.

Miss Lillian declined comment on the President's proposal.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Movie director Roman Polanski, charged with drugging and raping a 13-year-old girl, has agreed to plead either guilty or no contest to one of six charges.

Polanski, 43, had been scheduled to stand trial next Tuesday, the eighth anniversary of the murder of his wife, actress Sharon Tate, by followers of the Charles Manson family.

The Los Angeles district attorney's office announced Thursday that a plea bargain had been reached through Polanski's attorney. Details were kept secret until a formal hearing is held Monday.

Polanski, director of such films as "Rosemary's Baby," and "Chinatown," was arrested March 11 after a complaint was filed by the mother of the teenage girl.

SKOWHEGAN, Maine (AP) — Five years ago this rural Maine mill town voted to retire its native daughter, Margaret Chase Smith, from the U.S. Senate. But now it has honored her as its own first lady.

Small children presented her with long-stemmed red roses Thursday, her trademark in the Senate, and a rose garden was dedicated to her.

"I started crying this morning when the first roses came in, and I may continue to do so throughout the day," Mrs. Smith said.

Skowhegan, located in a traditional Republican area, cast 1,130 votes for Mrs. Smith and 1,993 for her Democratic challenger, William D. Hathaway, who unseated her in 1972.

Mrs. Smith, the first woman ever to serve in both houses of Congress, said in an interview with a television station that she was disappointed with Skowhegan's vote, but that it had not diminished her love for her home town.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Television star Lee Majors, featured in the program "Six Million Dollar Man," has donated a real astronaut suit for a new episode being filmed at the Kennedy Space Center.

Majors and Jenny Agutter were wearing the space suits Thursday during filming of a two-segment installment entitled "Enemies in Space."

Majors wore the Skylab training suit of Jack Louisa, one of the largest astronauts and a crewmember on the second Skylab mission.

Miss Agutter wore the training suit of Pate Conrad, one of the smallest astronauts and commander of the first Skylab mission.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last week I returned from caring for my ailing mother for the last five weeks. She has a terminal illness and lives 300 miles from here.

Yesterday a friend of mine called on me and I am still in shock. She begged me to give my husband a divorce! It seems they saw a lot of each other while I was out of town. She said they were "in love," and he claimed I won't give him a divorce. She said my husband said we were "separated" and I had left him!

We've been married for 17 years and there never was any mention of divorce. In fact, I thought we had a good marriage. I am stunned, hurt and dizzy trying to figure this out.

Can you help me?

STILL IN SHOCK

DEAR STILL: What's to figure out? Tell your husband about your visitor, and let HIM explain it to you.

DEAR ABBY: I have a rather delicate problem. My husband comes from a large family, and I get along very well with all of them, but naturally I like some of his sisters and brothers better than others. My question: When I entertain, isn't it O.K. for me to invite, say, a few of my husband's sisters and brothers, and leave out some?

I was called on the carpet by my husband's grandmother who said if I couldn't invite ALL of the brothers and sisters, I shouldn't invite any of them. Abby, that would make 18 people every time. I don't expect to be invited every place MY sisters and brothers are. I'd like to add that I invite the whole tribe occasionally, so it's not like I'm snubbing anyone.

BIG FAMILY

DEAR BIG: I don't know who is calling the signals in your family, but she's out of bounds. If you "invite the whole tribe occasionally," no one should feel offended. Invite whom you wish.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. I am a 66-year-old woman who is engaged to a 69-year-old man. He has been a widower for 11 years. He has asked me to go with him to visit his family. It would be a 900-mile trip by automobile.

My children feel that it would be "proper" for me to go with him if we flew, but "improper" if we drove. I have known this gentleman since childhood and see nothing "improper" about making the trip with him regardless of how we went. Will you kindly advise me, Abby.

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: I see nothing "improper" here, except possibly that which exists in the minds of your children. Go along with your fiance and have a wonderful time.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a person who is constantly correcting others in public about the pronunciation of words and their use? All involved in this situation are adults.

Thank you.

CRITICIZED

DEAR CRITICIZED: The constant corrector is showing his ignorance. It is infinitely more important to be KIND than to be correct.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son has been a diabetic for 15 years, beginning at age 27. There is no family history of diabetes and he has never been overweight. He takes a daily injection of insulin.

In the early years of his diabetes, he occasionally suffered insulin shock. In later years, this has happened only infrequently.

At times, such as at parties or when with friends, he drinks freely of alcoholic beverages, but never to the point of being intoxicated. He says that the consumption of alcoholic beverages is not harmful to his diabetic condition.

He exercises regularly by jogging, riding a bicycle, playing basketball and other vigorous activities. He is in good physical condition, but recently has mentioned that he occasionally feels numbness in his extremities.

My wife and I are concerned about his frequent use of alcoholic beverages. We think that it may cause some complications or worsen his diabetic condition. We would like your opinion on this matter.

DEAR READER — In my opinion alcohol and diabetes do not mix. Alcohol affects the way the liver controls blood sugar. A person who has had too much alcohol often has a low blood sugar as a consequence of this action. Obviously then a person taking a regulated amount of insulin may have some changes in insulin requirements when he uses alcohol.

A diabetic taking insulin must regulate his life. That includes food habits, drinking habits and exercise habits. The amount of insulin required depends upon these habits as well as periods of psychic stress or any infectious illness.

In addition, a diabetic may develop disease of the liver.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — My husband was given about 20 pairs of nearly new wash and wear slacks but they are about two inches too short for him. There is plenty of material to let the hems down to make them long enough but I do not know how to remove the crease that is left when they are lengthened. Steam pressing did not help so I hope you have some ideas. — MRS. W.E.

DEAR POLLY — When the hem of a garment is let down, the crease line can be very difficult to remove. I turn such a garment to the wrong side and slip over the ironing board. I then mix two teaspoons of white vinegar and a teaspoon of water and saturate a cloth with this mixture. I dot it along two or three inches of the crease at a time and then press with a medium hot iron. — GLADYS.

DEAR MRS. W.E. — Gladys' method has never failed to work for me. I do find it easier to make a bit more of the mixture and wring a cloth out of it and use as a pressing cloth over the crease. I have even used full strength WHITE vinegar on stubborn creases but test on a hidden spot first. — POLLY.

Sheets brighten bedroom decor

Sheets continue to be one of the best decorating investments anyone can make. They are pretty, they are practical and they have brought about a whole new decorating style.

One approach, for example, a decorator uses Dan River's Marimekko sheets to create a total one-room environment for a young career couple in which to work, entertain, sleep and eat.

The fabric, of Fortrel and cotton, is crisp, bright, durable and washable. Three designs are combined to create a strong, coordinated decorating statement. A small geometric floral, Kukka, is used with a clean stripe, Lato, for the bed and eating areas.

The large floral, Onni, is framed and hung over the mirrored fireplace as a decorating concept. The flame-and-white combination is used in this room. Other colors in the Finnish-designed collection are a wet-sand greige and a larkspur blue. The three colors, as well as three designs, coordinate beautifully.

An old continental concept is brought up to date with the "continental quilt." A simple puff, covered in plain Fortrel-cotton and filled with Fortrel polyester fiberfill, is given a button-on cover of sheeting. This actually is made with tiny buttons and buttonholes, which is very much in the old European featherbed style. However, you can use self-adhering dots or snaps if you prefer.

Now that sheets are so pretty, a new look in bed decor is emerging. The bedspread is disappearing. Instead, the undressed-bed look is in, with sheets, comforter, and perhaps a dust ruffle all combined for a casual, unstructured look.

This is a wonderful concept for kids, who seldom make beds anyway. If you are making curtains of sheets, or any other fairly lightweight material, try a new and simplified technique for applying stiffening to the curtain top before making the pleats.

Cut curtain and lining panels as usual, being sure that fabric is perfectly on-grain. Cut the lining narrower than the curtain panels by double the width of the side hems (8 inches narrower for 2 inches side hems), and shorter by the lower hem allowance of the drapery plus one-half inch.

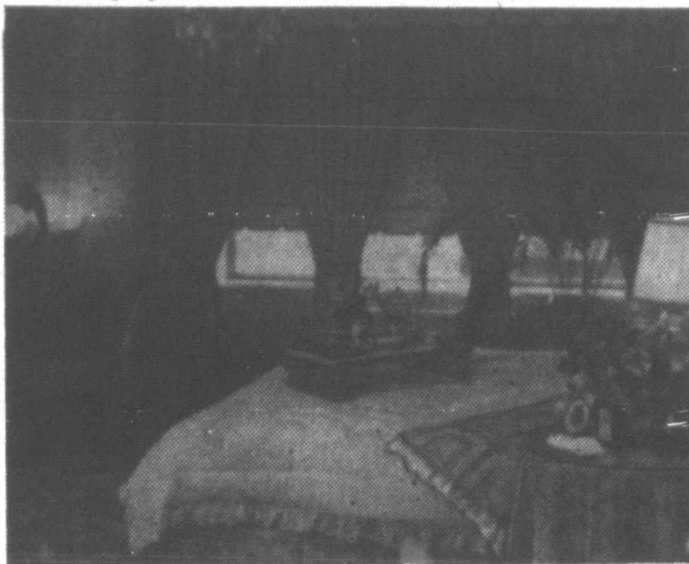

After measuring and cutting, clip all selvages. Turn, press and stitch hems in drapery material and in lining. Lay hemmed lining panel on top of hemmed drapery panel, right sides together, matching tops and right sides.

Pin sides together and stitch, taking one-half inch seam allowance, ending and backstitching at lining hem. Repeat for other side.

Center lining and smooth side hems. Unit is still wrong side out. Cut stiffener to finished drapery width. Pin to tops of panels so most of stiffener extends above the drapery unit and bottom of stiffener overlaps top of drapery unit by one-half inch. Stitch across bottom edge of stiffener.

Lining and drapery are now stitched together at top and sides, with stiffener extending from top. Turn the whole unit inside out, like a pillowcase, and press. Stiffener is completely concealed and drapery is ready to pleat.

2207 N. SUMNER

Sheet-decor creates a total - environment room. The Dan River Marimekko collection, of Fortrel and cotton, is offered in three coordinating patterns and colors to cover the bed, bench and eating - study area.

Shades-of-blue sheeting designed by Billy Baldwin is available by the yard in 72-inch width.

'Christian Sons' to perform

Van, Dan and Wendell Christenson compose "The Christian Sons," a gospel music group from Paonia, Colo. The group will perform at the 7 p.m. service Sunday at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, 1200 S. Sumner. The Rev. Gene Allen, pastor, invites the public. There will be no admission charge.

Gospel due to sing

Ric and Cherie Gordon, a husband and wife gospel music duo, will perform today, Saturday and Sunday at Bethel Assembly of God, 1541 Hamilton.

Outdoor concert set Aug. 13

An outdoor concert of gospel music will be from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Aug. 13 in Central Park.

The concert will feature the Christian Sons, a trio from Western Colorado. Van, Dan and Wendell Christenson, aged 16 to 20 years, have appeared nationally in concerts, youth camps, conventions and on television.

There will be no admission charge to the informal concert. The public is invited.

The Christian Sons are appearing here at 7 p.m. Sunday at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly.

Rev. McKemy to be here

"The Gospel According to You," is the title of a sermon to be delivered by the Rev. Carter McKemy at 10:45 a.m. Sunday in the First Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. McKemy is from Denison, Tex. He attended Austin College and San Francisco Theological Seminary. He has served churches in Texas, Louisiana and Kansas. He is retired and living in Spearman.

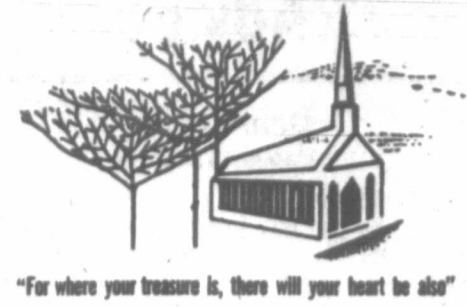

Revival set Saturday

A "soul-saving" revival at the Johnson Temple Church of God in Christ will begin Saturday night.

M.B. Ellison, evangelist from Paris, Tex., will lead the services which will start at 8 p.m. daily.

The Elder Allen Johnson is pastor of the church which is located at 505 W. Wilks.

An investment in Your Future
...ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

for a Better Tomorrow

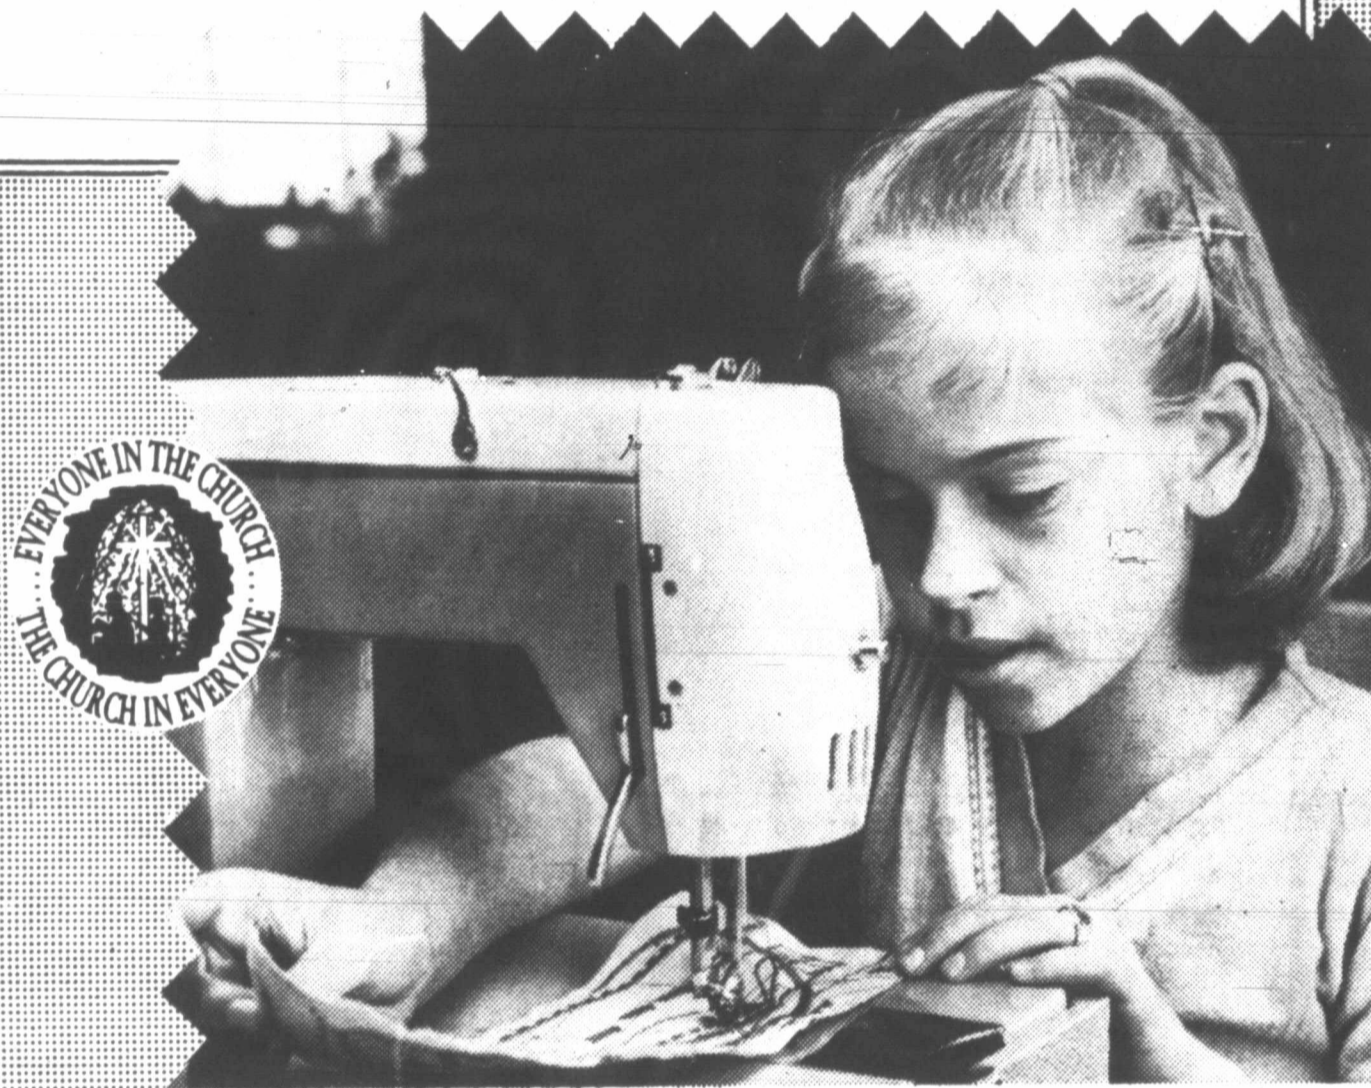

Working, learning to sew... Now, something simple is being prepared and soon her own dresses, and in the future, clothing for her own family. Training is important in the lives of our children.

Spiritual training is a must in the lives of our young ones.

"Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

He chose cheese as alternative

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
MOHLER, Ore. (AP) — Everybody should have an alternative road, Pat McCoy said, sipping contentedly, almost smugly. Everybody should have a turnoff route in case life's superhighway develops a rut.

Pat McCoy, a jolly good fellow with a face like a toby mug and the proper girth to match, discovered his alternative road while reading a book on his favorite subject. Its title: "Cheeses and Wines of France and England with Notes on Irish Whiskey."

What more could a man ask of life, he mused, than to be winemaker — a winemaker in a cheese factory?

That was it. He put aside his order pad and his artificial smile, he let his shoes go unshined, and he set upon a search. He traveled the Oregon coast, where he knew that cheese factories once proliferated. At Nehalem Bay, tucked in a hillside, he found one, abandoned. Perfect.

Today that former cheese factory is the Nehalem Bay Winery.

"I couldn't be happier. The wine is good. The profits are not bad. The scenery is excellent."

Pat McCoy will get no argument about the scenery. Nehalem Bay is an azure inlet among the timbered hills and crags of one of the most spectacular coastlines on the continent.

Whether those hills will produce grapes is yet to be seen, but their production of violet foxglove and crimson elderberry and a riot of other wild and beautiful, growing things is astounding.

Meanwhile, Pat McCoy buys his grapes from Oregon's Hood River country, an equally scenic piece of northwestern geography sprinkled with roadside fruit stands which are impossible to pass up and never disappointing.

"I know of grapevines right here on the coast, though, and next spring I'm going to plant some. Right now I'm looking for just the right southwest slope. Won't that be pretty, a vineyard on a hillside? I want one just to look at.

"The climate is marginal, I realize. But for the truly great wines, the grape needs to struggle. We're at latitude 46. That's the same as Medoc. I wouldn't be surprised to see Oregon become the new France."

Easter falls on the Sunday following the first full moon that occurs on or after March 11, the traditional date for the Vernal Equinox.

Pat McCoy, at 46, is nothing if not an optimist. But he is also a practical person. His choosing an old cheese house for a winery, for example, was logical as well as romantic.

Rev. Pipes visits here

The Rev. Charles E. Pipes, a Presbyterian minister from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., will deliver the sermon at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Church of the Brethren, 600 N. Frost St.

The Rev. Pipes, his wife Martha and daughter Bettie are in Pampa to visit his mother, Mrs. Violet Pipes, 200 W. Craver St.

The couples' two other daughters are Cindy and Lori Pipes.

"How do you make cheese? You take a liquid, ferment it, package it and age it. How do you make wine? Same way. I figured a cheese factory would be designed just right for a winery. At one time there were 21 small cheese factories in this county. When better roads were built they consolidated into one, down at Tillamook.

"By the way, do you realize that in one 23-mile stretch of this coast you find wine, cheese, some of the best seafood on earth and also a sausage plant? Do you know of another place with such a variety of native treats concentrated in so small an area?"

"That's another reason I chose this area. I like good food and drink. I knew that if I looked at enough of those abandoned cheese plants I would find just the right one, and I did."

Pentecostals welcome all

The public is welcome at four weekly services at United Pentecostal Church, said the Rev. H.M. Veach, pastor.

Sunday services include the morning worship at 10, evening prayer at 6 and evening worship at 8:30.

Wednesday Bible Study is at 7:30 p.m.

Sunday school classes are available for all ages.

"I don't dare ask... a peace offering for WHAT?"

Elder's 64 leads Hartford Open

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Lee Elder parlayed a putting tip from his wife and "a little change in my swing" into a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $210,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament.

"Now I've got the lead, the other fellows have to catch me. And if I can just go out and do again what I did today, I ought to be able to run and hide from them a little bit," said Elder, who scored 10 "3's" on his way to a gaudy, seven-under-par 64 Thursday.

Reminded he'd almost won twice in this tournament, once finishing third and once losing in a playoff, Elder grinned and said: "I just want to get rid of the 'almost' and go ahead and win it."

He credited a putting tip from wife Rose, delivered last week in Vail, Colo. while he was playing in a pro-am event that also included former President Ford, with a major assist.

"She noticed I was taking the club back outside the line," Elder said. He corrected the fault and had nine one-putt greens on the friendly 6,588-yard Wetherfield Country Club course that, as usual, gave up some of the lowest scores of the year.

Six men—Curtis Strange, Kermit Zarley, Dick Mast, George Burns, Jim Simons and Terry Diehl, the first-round leader a week ago in Philadelphia—were locked at 65, only one stroke off the pace.

Lee Trevino, a front-running winner in the Canadian Open in his last start, topped another group at 67, only two shots back in the chase for a $42,000 first prize.

PGA champ Dave Stockton had a 67, U.S. Open title-holder Hubert Green 68, Johnny Miller 70 and defending champ Rick Massengale matched par 71.

More than half the field of 156 broke par in the ideal playing conditions, mild temperatures with just a hint of breeze, and more than four dozen players had scores in the 60s.

The scores were so low Massengale faces the need for a score better than par in the second round if he is to survive the cut when the field is trimmed for the last 36 holes.

"It's a frustrating course," said Diehl, who didn't make a bogey and didn't have a "3" on his card. "You may be playing pretty good, then look up at the leader board and see somebody 100 under par and then you miss a couple of little putts and it's pretty frustrating."

Elder, who has won two tour titles and gained international attention as the first black to play in the Masters, avoided those frustrations, however. The change in his game helped, he said.

"For a while I'd been trying to cut the ball. Finally, I decided to go back to the draw, the shot that I won a lot of money with. I feel a lot more comfortable with it," he said.

He played the front nine three under par, then swept into the lead alone with birdies on four of five holes starting on the 11th. He capped it off with a 15-foot birdie putt, his longest of the day, on the 15th.

Dorsett to play half

DALLAS (AP) — Three former Heisman Trophy winners will get the ball Saturday night in a National Football League exhibition match between the Dallas Cowboys and the San Diego Chargers in Texas Stadium.

Some 55,000 Dallas fans were scheduled to watch the debut of Tony Dorsett, who became collegiate football's all-time ground-gainer in a star-spangled All-America career at Pittsburgh.

Dorsett was signed as a No. 1 draft choice by the Cowboys for $1.2 million. He was obtained in a trade with the expansion Seattle Seahawks which caused shockwaves among the power elite in the NFL.

The speedy Dorsett has yet to break through in the Cowboy training camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif. because of a knee bruise which is expected to be healed by the 8 p.m. CDT kickoff. He'll log second half duty.

The other former Heisman winners are making their first NFL appearances, are Johnny Rodgers, of the Chargers, and the oldest of the Cowboys, quarterback Roger Staubach.

Also to play is Joe Washington, San Diego's No. 1 draft choice a year ago, who missed the 1976 season with a knee injury. He's a running back who former Texas Coach Darrell Royal once described "as so agile he could jump through a key hole."

Washington was runnerup for the Heisman.

The stadium seats 65,000 fans and the Cowboys drew $4,567 for the charity game last year.

Texas Favored in 40th Oil Bowl

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Coaches for the 40th annual Oil Bowl football game agree on at least one thing—both the Texas and Oklahoma all-stars have the makings for scathing aerial attacks.

That comparable offensive strength makes pass defense the key for Saturday night's game between the state's high school stars, which begins at 8 p.m. at Coyote Stadium.

"I think we'll move the football," said Texas defensive Coach Jim Thomason of Gainesville. "But we'll just have to stop Oklahoma from moving it."

"One of our biggest strengths is that we have an excellent quarterback in Shepard (University of Houston-bound Darrell Shepard of Odessa)," he added.

Thomason also praised tailback David Overstreet of Big Sandy, who will be behind Shepard in the wing-T attack, and split receiver Eric Herring of Houston Yates.

"We have the size in the line for the backs to run through," Thomason said. "And if Shepard can get it to Herring we should be able to move the ball in the air."

Umps 'jobbed' Rangers cries Hunter after loss

CHICAGO (AP) — "I don't mind if we get beat, that's one thing," said Manager Billy Hunter of the Texas Rangers. "We didn't get beat, we got robbed. It's a crime, it's like stealing."

Two plays cost the Rangers a chance of sweeping their four-game series from the Chicago White Sox. Instead, they dropped a 5-4 decision Thursday night which snapped their five-game winning streak and halted Chicago's losing streak at four games.

Trailing 5-1 going into the seventh inning, the Rangers pushed across one run and had the bases loaded when Kurt Bevacqua slammed a line drive into the left-field corner, where a fan touched the ball.

It was ruled a ground-rule double. Bevacqua was forced to go back to second and Toby Harrah, who had scored what would have been the tying run, back to third.

"There's no doubt in my mind that Kurt would have reached third and he might even have had scored," said Hunter. "It's the job of the home-plate umpire to place the

Bum recalls Culp waivers

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (AP) — Middle guard Curley Culp was recalled from waivers and Houston Oilers Head Coach O. A. "Bum" Phillips says there will be no attempt to trade him.

Phillips confirmed that Culp's name was placed on the waiver wire Wednesday but was removed Thursday. Phillips said this is a fairly common practice in the National Football League.

"Being on the waiver wire doesn't mean anything," Phillips said. "He was put on the wire to see how much interest there was in him."

"There's a big difference between being on the wire and being waived. I can assure you we won't waive Curley Culp."

There were reports Thursday that Culp had asked to be waived and he would neither confirm nor deny them.

"I have nothing to say," he said. "Ask Bum the questions."

Winning isn't everything—and if you're a holdover from last year's Philadelphia Eagles, it isn't anything.

During the National Football League's 1976 exhibition season, the Eagles played six games and won exactly none of them. That didn't get them off on the right foot when the games counted. They wound up 4-10.

So for Dick Vermeil, starting his second year as Philadelphia's head coach, tonight's game against the New York Jets signals a fresh start. And although he doesn't consider victories absolutely essential, he admits they could do wonders for the Eagles' hopes.

"Winning a few is always important for any team like ours that's been down for many years," says Vermeil, who figures to start former Los Angeles Rams quarterback Ron Jaworski.

"If you've been losing all the time you almost play in fear of losing or expect to lose. I think that we've really really erased about 80 per cent of that kind of thinking and to play well enough to win a few preseason games would be nice—but we're not going to base how we play through the season on how we do in the preseason."

In tonight's other game it's Baltimore at Denver. On Saturday it's Minnesota at Los Angeles, Miami at Tampa Bay, Atlanta at St. Louis, New Orleans at Chicago, San Diego at Dallas, New England at the New York Giants, Buffalo at Pittsburgh, Kansas City at Detroit and Cincinnati at Green Bay. On Sunday it's Seattle at San Francisco and on Monday night it's Houston at Oakland and Washington at Cleveland.

It's not as much of a fresh start as it is an attempt at rebounding for the Jets. They got their exhibition season started a week earlier with a 20-6 loss to the Chicago Bears in last Saturday's Hall of Fame game.

"No way I'm going to get discouraged, no way," Jets Coach Walt Michaels said. "Sure I was disappointed in the turnovers (six of them), but I was satisfied with the rest."

Denver should have a nice free-for-all ming for a while over the starting quarterback job with the departure of Steve Ramsey to the Giants. Craig Morton, who came to the Broncos in that swap, Craig Penrose, Steve Spurrier and Norris Weese will all be trying to show their stuff against the Colts.

Election judge denies LBJ stole votes

By MAX B. SKELTON
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — A former South Texas precinct election judge has dismissed questions about his report the 1948 U.S. Senate election was "stolen" for Lyndon B. Johnson and again said Johnson was in San Diego, Tex., three days after the election.

Luis Salas, 76, said Thursday it is not surprising Johnson's associates can find no record of the San Diego trip.

"I don't think Lyndon Johnson was foolish to have had something like that in his records," Salas said.

"What I said Sunday, I say now, I say tomorrow or the day after tomorrow because I am telling the truth."

Salas, who had returned from a trip to New York, cast off questions raised by Texas State

Comptroller Bob Bullock and by an unsigned, undated statement found in the LBJ Library in Austin.

Salas also rejected statements by three former Johnson associates that they doubt Johnson went to San Diego three days after the Aug. 28 election to confer with George B. Parr, then a South Texas political power.

Salas said in an exclusive interview with The Associated Press that he certified 200 false votes for Box 13 in Alice, across the county line from San Diego.

The votes, according to Salas, were added after Johnson, in Parr's office Aug. 31, told him, Parr and Ed Lloyd, a Jim Wells County Democratic committeeman, he needed 200 more votes to win the contest against Coke Stevenson, a three-time Texas governor.

Johnson later was certified as the statewide winner by 87 votes.

"I don't know how Johnson got to San Diego because he was already there when I got to Parr's office," Salas said. "He was by himself in the office but some of his people could have been outside because people were out there and there were always a bunch of cars around Parr's office."

Following the meeting with Johnson, Salas said, he and Parr went to an Alice building where two men he did not identify added the ballots by taking from the poll tax list in alphabetical order the names of individuals who had not voted on election day.

Salas said he had told Parr he would not add the ballots but would certify them after they had been added.

At Austin Bullock said three names mentioned by Salas did not appear on the poll tax list Jim Wells County officials sent to the comptroller's office in 1948.

"We don't know that this is the same list that was used in the 1948 election," a spokesman for Bullock said.

Salas said he did not know either.

"The names used for the 200 ballots were taken from the poll list, people who had not voted," he said. "I don't know about the list in Bullock's office but the two guys who added the ballots went by the names on the poll tax list we used election day."

He said it was logical the comptroller's list of persons who paid $1.75 for a poll tax might not agree with the list used at the Box 13 precinct level.

"We gave people their poll tax receipts," Salas said. "They never paid anything. They were given the poll tax free and if they voted wrong I counted them the other way."

Salas said the meeting in Parr's office marked the second time he had seen Johnson.

"During the campaign, I was sick and he came to my house," he said. Ed Loyd brought him to me. It was just a courtesy call."

T. Kellis Dibrell, a former FBI agent and San Antonio lawyer investigating alleged Box 13 irregularities, said "I don't know if they (the additional names) had a poll tax or not and I don't give a damn. Their names were on the list."

Dibrell said he found the names of seven person named on the voting list but had testified shortly after the election they had never voted.

"Eugenio Solis was the last legitimate vote cast at 7 P. M. that evening," Dibrell said. "A Juan Garza said he was present when Solis voted and was a witness."

"The other names on the list were Mrs. Enrique Acero, Hector Cerda, Tomas Garcia, Juan Martinez, Luis Salinas and Manuel Sanchez. All of them testified at a hearing later in Fort Worth they they had not voted. All of them testified but Sanchez. He was dead when his name was put on the list."

According to Bullock's office, the official 1948 list did not include the names of Mr. and Mrs. Miguel Acero and Hector Cerda.

Acero's name might not have been used, Salas said, but that he was positive about Mrs. Acero and Cerda.

"There is no question about them because they were subpoenaed to testify at the investigation," Salas said.

After the Sunday story, LBJ Library officials permitted newsmen to inspect material in eight boxes containing material pertaining to the 1948 election.

The unsigned, undated statement, apparently was written by Johnson or drafted for his possible use.

Walter Jenkins, Johnson's top administrative aide at the time, said in Austin he did not remember if Johnson "dictated the paper or if it was prepared for him." Jenkins also said he did not know if the statement was ever publicly released.

"I am without knowledge concerning the ballots in either Duval, Jim Wells or Zapata Counties, or any of the other counties in Texas, except what I have seen in the press," the statement said in part.

"I have not been in any of those counties and have not conferred with the officials in those counties."

Salas disagreed and said the statement "talks about investigations."

"There wasn't any investigation under way when he was in San Diego," Salas said. "We had never even thought about being investigated. The statement sounds to me as though he is saying he had not been in the counties during the investigations. He was in San Diego before there was any thought about investigations."

Nuclear fuel reported missing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of both houses of Congress are calling for investigations following a government report that nuclear fuel plants cannot account for thousands of pounds of weapons-grade nuclear material.

Officials of two federal agencies, releasing previously classified information, on Thursday conceded that the plants are unable to trace 8,437 pounds of uranium and plutonium that has disappeared since World War II.

The missing uranium and plutonium was part of the government's supply of nuclear material to be used for construction of atomic weapons. But federal officials insisted there is no evidence of theft of the materials or of a black market.

One official said the amount of material missing from government plants or private facilities under federal contract was sufficient to construct hundreds of atomic bombs.

Despite concern expressed in the past that a terrorist group might be able to assemble enough nuclear material to construct a bomb, government officials labeled the disappearance "inventory differences" and "materials unaccounted for," which the government refers to as "MUFs."

Even with the assurances of the federal agencies that there is no evidence of theft or a black market involved in the unaccounted for materials, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., has announced plans for a House subcommittee inquiry into the missing atomic material and Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, is planning Senate hearings.

Dingell said he would seek testimony beginning Monday from officials of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Energy Research and Development Administration and National Security Council.

A spokesman for Glenn said the senator was likely to call subcommittee hearings next month, after Congress returns from a recess.

Glenn said he was especially interested in learning about the 381 pounds of plutonium reported unaccounted for at a single plant at Apollo, Pa., before 1965.

ERDA and the NRC said the 8,437 pounds of nuclear materials unaccounted for include about 3,400 pounds of plutonium and slightly over 5,000 pounds of highly enriched uranium. One NRC official said it requires about 20 pounds of plutonium or 40 pounds of highly enriched uranium to construct a single atomic bomb.

"We believe the missing plutonium and uranium can be traced to overestimates, machining and scrap losses and unmeasurable amounts bound up in equipment and pipes," said Gen. Edward B. Giller, deputy assistant administrator at ERDA, the government agency that owns more than 40 plants where enriched uranium or plutonium are in storage.

Clifford V. Smith, an NRC official, added that "inventory differences are not unexpected.... Even the most modern measurement instruments are not totally accurate."

More than 90 per cent of the missing plutonium was from production plants operated by ERDA at Richland, Wash. and Aiken, S.C.

The statement among Johnson's personal papers has been made public by the LBJ Library in Austin, Tex.

The statement said: "I am without knowledge concerning the ballots in either Duval, Jim Wells or Zapata counties, or any of the other counties in

LBJ may have denied vote fraud

DALLAS (AP) — In an unsigned, undated statement believed to have been written by former President Lyndon Johnson, it appears Johnson denied any knowledge of or involvement in an alleged fraud in connection with his 1948 senatorial race.

The statement among Johnson's personal papers has been made public by the LBJ Library in Austin, Tex.

The statement said: "I am without knowledge concerning the ballots in either Duval, Jim Wells or Zapata counties, or any of the other counties in Texas except what I have seen in the press."

It was unclear, however, whether Johnson meant he was unaware of any challenges to the election, or whether he had any first hand knowledge about the allegations.

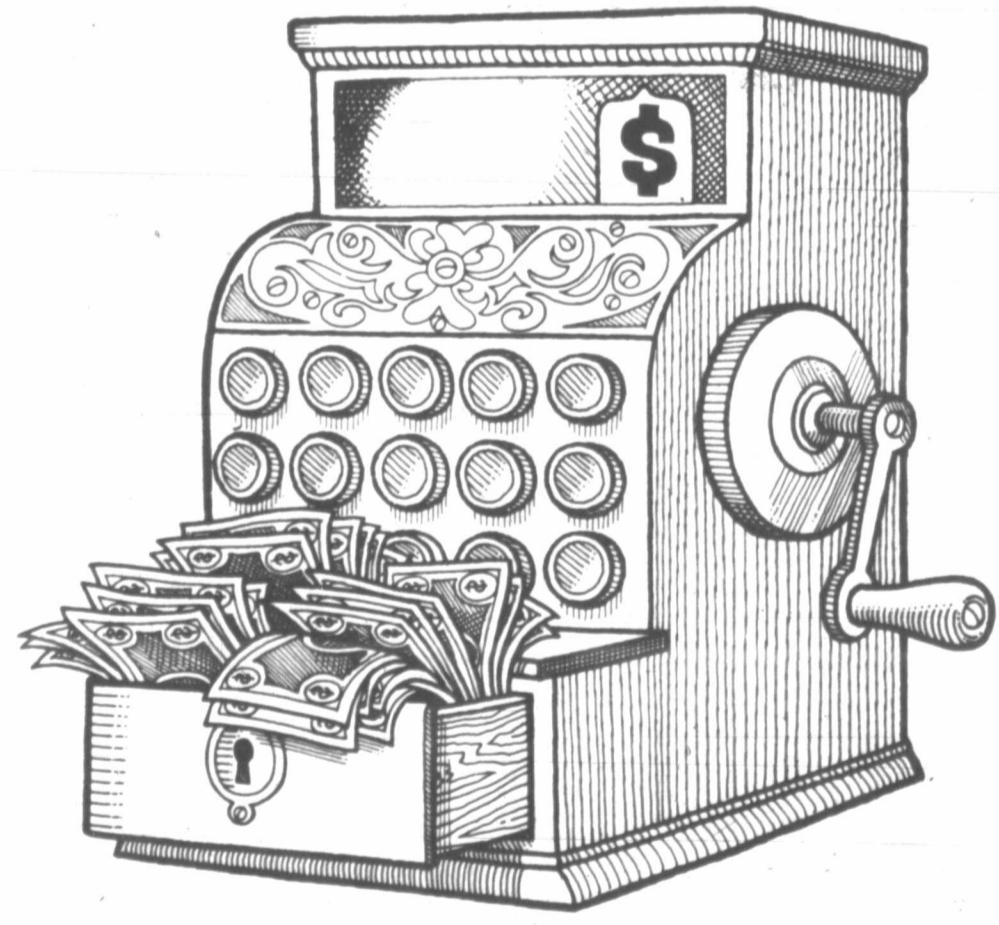

Johnson nonetheless sought and obtained Sept. 10, 1948 — just days after the controversial election — an injunction to prohibit a canvass of the vote. It had the effect of halting an investigation by Texas Ranger Frank Harmer and former FBI agent Kellis Dibrell.

Johnson's injunction, which he filed personally in Austin, was granted after a brief hearing in chambers by District Court Judge Roy Archer. It claimed Stevenson and others had entered a conspiracy to deprive Johnson of the Box 13 vote on grounds of irregularities.

The injunction was procured without notice and after a brief hearing, a device Johnson critics have said was employed because of the time element. Had it been delayed even an hour it was possible the Jim Wells County Committee might have had a new vote certification.

Aliens could get amnesty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, after months of soul-searching, is seeking to stop the flow of illegal aliens into the United States while granting amnesty to those who have been in the country for several years.

The White House was scheduled to send a package of proposals to Congress, outlining its ideas for dealing with a flood of illegal aliens across U.S. borders in recent years.

The government estimates that traffickers in illegal aliens, primary targets of the proposed crackdown, have escorted from 4 million to 12 million illegal workers into the country.

Congressional sources, who were briefed on the proposals this week, said they would include:

—An amnesty for aliens who arrived before 1970 and have clean records since then. This would allow them to claim legal resident alien status and eventually become naturalized citizens.

—A new "non-deportable" status for aliens who arrived before this year but have not been in the country long enough to qualify for the amnesty. The new status would allow them to stay and work in the United States. It would not allow them to partake of social services like welfare or to bring their families into the country.

The administration hopes the non-deportable status will prompt aliens who now live underground to report themselves and be counted. Now, the only way to estimate the number of illegals in the country is to interpolate from the number caught, which was 876,000 last year.

—A civil penalty of up to $1,000 per alien for employers who "knowingly" hire illegal aliens. The sources said the White House has not made clear how its plan would expect employers to distinguish between legal aliens and illegal aliens, who often have forged identification.

The administration some time ago rejected suggestions that a national identification system be established under which every citizen and legal alien would have to carry a counterfeit-proof identification card.

—Criminal penalties for those who help smuggle aliens across the border or act as brokers for employers.

—An addition of 2,000 men for the Border Patrol, which now has about 5,000 men trying to catch the illegal aliens.

The sources said the White House has not yet decided what to do about expanding programs that allow employers to temporarily import foreign laborers. Currently, those programs are strictly limited.

But large farmers who have become dependent on foreign labor are pressing for some provision to allow it. One advocate of an expanded program is Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., who, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, will have jurisdiction over the administration proposals in the Senate. Eastland is a plantation owner in Mississippi.

Sheriff wants reward held

PRYOR, Okla. (AP) — Mayes County Sheriff Pete Weaver says he doesn't want a special reward fund aimed at the arrest of triple-murder suspect Gene Leroy Hart to be raised past its current level of $5,000.

Hart has been charged with the murders of three Girl Scouts near Locust Grove in June.

"I don't want it (the reward fund) to grow at all," Weaver said Wednesday. "It is staying at $5,000. I insist on it. I don't want someone waiting around holding back information for that reward fund to get bigger."

Weaver commented after it had been learned that a $3,000 donation from the town of Leesburg, Fla., won't be used to add to the arrest fund as had been discussed last week.

The Florida contribution instead will be used to reimburse about $2,500 in personal loans that board members of Mayes County Drug Awareness, Inc., took out to raise the fund to $5,000.

Another reward fund has been established totaling about $18,000, but it requires the arrest and conviction of the killer of three Girl Scouts before the money is paid.

Residents of Leesburg raised the $3,000 by selling peanuts, seeking cash contributions and holding an auction.

Ron Palmer, a Leesburg grocer who spearheaded the fund-raising drive in the central Florida town, said the arrangement to keep the reward fund at $5,000 was satisfactory.

"We just want the money to go where it will do the most good," Palmer said. "If it means making it so the Drug Awareness members won't be personally in debt for the reward fund... then all right."

Nearly half of the $18,000 reward fund might have to be returned to donors because of an agreement that the money would be returned if there had been no arrests by July 31.

Ginny Young, spokeswoman for the Magic Empire Council of Girl Scouts in Tulsa, said that questionnaires were going out to donors to ask if they wanted their money to remain in the fund despite the deadline agreement.

"I think they will," she said. "Several people sent message with the donations saying they didn't want the money back. I think this will be the general feeling of all the people."
