Son of Sam caught

NEW YORK (AP) — A $35 ticket for parking too near a fire hydrant led police to a reclusive postal worker they said was "Son of Sam," the night stalker who killed six young persons and wounded seven with his .44-caliber revolver.

The arrest came as David Berkowitz, 24, left his apartment house Wednesday night in suburban Yonkers and encountered police, who had stalked out the building.

Police said that as Berkowitz stepped into his car, they asked him who he was, and Berkowitz replied: "I'm Son of Sam. Okay, you've got me." He offered no resistance, police said. "We have him," a police spokesman for 1st Deputy Police Commissioner James Taylor told reporters later.

Berkowitz was formally booked today at the 94th Precinct in Brooklyn on charges of second-degree murder, attempted murder, assault and possession of a deadly weapon in the murder of Stacy Moskowitz, 20, the killer's latest victim. Her date, Robert Violante, 20, was wounded and may never see again.

Wearing wornout blue jeans, a light blue and white striped shirt and light brown suede shoes, Berkowitz smiled at reporters as a cordon of police moved him out of the precinct house and took him to a nearby criminal court for arraignment later in the day.

Police said the most serious charge was second-degree murder because New York State law permits first-degree murder charges only in cases where the death penalty is allowed, as in the slaying of a police officer.

Neighbors in Yonkers, a city of 150,000 on the northern border of New York City, described Berkowitz as "a nice guy" who kept to himself.

Police said they seized two shotguns in his seventh-floor apartment and a .44-caliber Charter Arms Bulldog revolver Berkowitz carried with him as he entered his cream-colored Ford Galaxie sedan outside his apartment house. They said he also carried a brown bag with two dozen bullets and a poem.

Ballistics tests early today confirmed the revolver was the same one which was used in the killing of Miss Moskowitz, police said.

The poem described the death of a young woman — "And huge drops of lead poured down upon her head until she was dead."

Police said they found a sub-machine gun in a gunny sack in Berkowitz' car and also found several notes in his car and apartment, one of which warned that Son of Sam would kill again.

"I want to see the animal's face that took my baby's life,"

Miss Moskowitz' mother, Neysa, said today. "And I want him to see me."

A newspaper, a television station and columnist Jimmy Breslin said today that police had told them that Berkowitz, a night superintendent at a post office in the Bronx, said he planned to strike next in Suffolk County, on the far end of Long Island. They said he allegedly planned to use the sub-machine gun in a discotheque or night club.

Police said previously that the same .44-caliber gun had been used in all eight attacks by the Son of Sam. Five women and one man died, three men and four women were wounded.

The latest shooting was the only one in Brooklyn. The seven previous shootings were in Queens and the Bronx. Any charges related to those crimes would have to come from authorities in those two New York boroughs.

One of the detectives who arrested Berkowitz, John Longo, said, "We were just lucky we were there. We got the right assignment."

Police were led to Berkowitz by a ticket written for parking too near a fire hydrant. The ticket was issued the night Miss Moskowitz and Violante were shot, in the neighborhood of the shooting.

Police said they found a note addressed to them in Berkowitz' car. The contents of the note, printed in the same style used in earlier notes to the police and newspaper columnist Jimmy Bealin, were chilling:

"Because Craig is Craig
"So must the streets
"Be filled with Craig (death)
"And huge drops of lead
"Poured down upon her head
"Until she was dead
"Yet, the cats still come out at night to mate

"And the sparrows still sing in the morning."

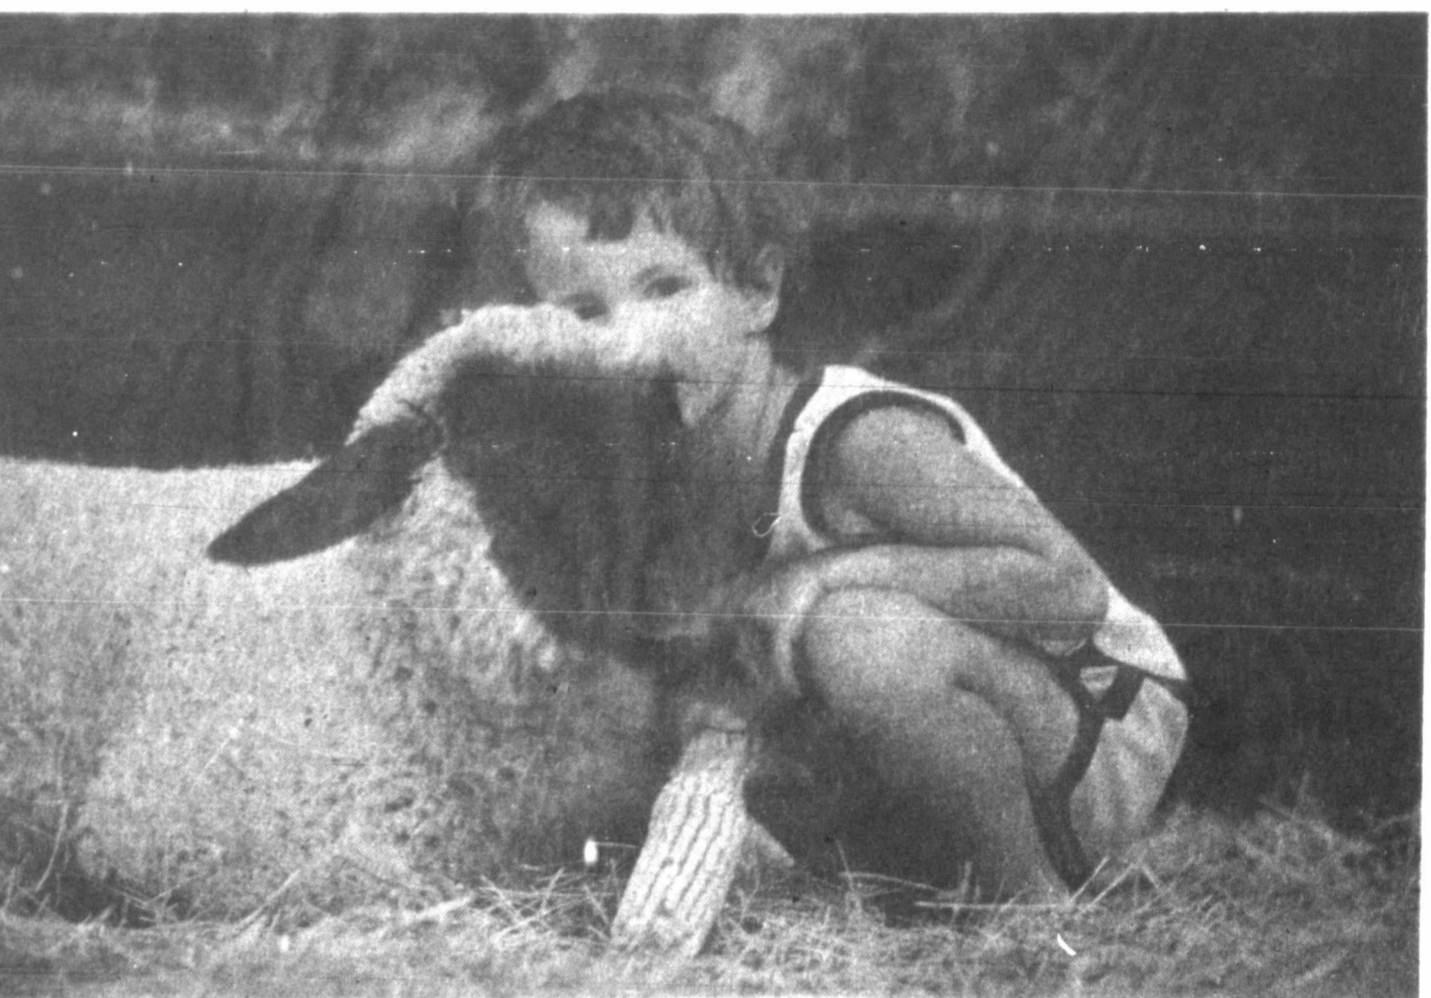

Police said Craig was a deputy sheriff in Westchester County, where Yonkers is located. They said he lived in the apartment below Berkowitz.

There were conflicting reports as to the origin of the name "Son of Sam."

Police said Berkowitz, whose mother is dead and whose father, Nat, reportedly lives in Miami, told them Son of Sam was a 6,000-year-old voice which had spoken to him over the years. They said he told them he communicated with Sam through a dog.

The ticket was issued to Berkowitz' car near Shore Road along the Brooklyn waterfront, where it was illegally parked, police said.

The connection between the ticket and the shootings of Miss Moskowitz and Violante came from a middle-aged woman walking her dog, police said. She apparently came face to face with the killer.

New drug battles virus

WASHINGTON (AP) — Development of the first drug capable of treating virus-caused diseases is a "major advance," comparable to the discovery of penicillin nearly 50 years ago, health officials say.

Scientists with the National Institutes of Health announced Wednesday a new experimental drug, adenine arabinoside, has been used successfully to treat a rare virus-caused brain disease.

Manufactured by the Parke-Davis pharmaceutical company of Detroit, the unpatented drug, also known as ara-A, was administered to 20 hospital patients suffering from herpes encephalitis, a disease that destroys brain cells.

Dr. Charles A. Alfred Jr. of the University of Alabama, who coordinated the NIH-sponsored tests at 15 medical centers, said they showed that ara-A reduced herpes encephalitis mortality from 70 per cent to 28 per cent.

The virus that causes the disease is a member of the same herpesfamily that causes chickenpox, shingles, fever blisters and the venereal disease, genital herpes.

The many infectious diseases that attack humans are caused mainly by two kinds of germs: bacteria and viruses. The discovery of penicillin in 1928 led to the development of antibiotics that have been used successfully to treat most bacterial-related diseases.

But viruses have remained resistant to these and other drugs. Until the development of ara-A doctors have been able to treat only the symptoms of viral diseases, not the diseases themselves, and had to hope the body would successfully resist the virus on its own.

If ara-A can be used successfully in the treatment of herpes encephalitis, there is reason to believe it can fight off numerous other virus-caused diseases, such as the common cold and influenza, scientists said.

Herpes encephalitis, which is difficult to diagnose, is believed to strike thousands of Americans each year, with only one in 10 victims making a full recovery. Most survivors suffer serious brain damage, and many remain incapacitated for life.

"This is exciting news," said Dr. Richard Krause of the NIH's National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases of the new test results.

"It is the first successful treatment of a serious and life-threatening virus disease. It opens up an avenue to a new form of therapy for this class of infections."

Alfred said the drug also has been used successfully in controlled tests to fight chickenpox and shingles in cancer patients and is being used by physicians in treating runaway herpes infections in cancer and transplant patients whose normal resistance to disease has been weakened by drug therapy.

But he cautioned that it is too early to predict successful use of ara-A against herpes diseases or other viral infections on which it has not yet been tested.

At present, ara-A is effective against serious diseases only when administered intravenously and must be given in a hospital. As a result, the drug is not likely to be used for some time to treat non-life threatening infections such as genital herpes and fever blisters in otherwise normal patients, officials say.

Carter briefed on Canal treaty

By RICHARD E. MEYER

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is getting a personal report from his negotiators on their historic agreement to relinquish control of the Panama Canal by the year 2,000. The pact crowns efforts for a new treaty that began with bloodshed 13 years ago.

U.S. Ambassadors Sol Linowitz and Ellsworth Bunker said they were returning from Panama today to meet with Carter.

The President, at the White House for his first full day of work after a five-day vacation in his hometown of Plains, Ga., will receive a copy of the treaty once the principles of the agreement are drafted into treaty language.

"He wants the treaty in his hands," White House Press Secretary Jody Powell told reporters before leaving Georgia. "He wants to go over it word for word, line by line. And he wants the National Security Council and the Cabinet to go over it, too."

The agreement reached late Wednesday is known to call for turning the canal and adjacent Canal Zone over to Panama by the end of this century. It also makes a big increase in U.S. payments for use of the canal.

The pact provides Panama with hundreds of millions of dollars in aid for the life of the treaty and guarantees unrestricted transit through the canal.

"From the point of view of the United States, we are confident that this treaty will not only protect but strengthen our national security interests," said Linowitz and Bunker in a statement Wednesday night in Panama City.

"It will also be a strongly positive element in our overall relationship with our Latin American neighbors..." they said.

U.S. officials in Panama City said, meanwhile, they expect Carter to make a public address soon to rally support for the terms of the treaty. They said he might go to Panama to sign it.

Panamanian officials said there were plans to invite Latin American chiefs of state to a treaty-signing celebration in Panama City.

Panamanians took the day off to celebrate the new accord after their leader, Gen. Omar Torrijos, decreed as national holiday.

Power companies claim Carter plan costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Power company representatives are telling Congress that the Carter administration's energy proposals could cost consumers an extra $60 billion.

The Senate Finance Committee, continuing hearings on the President's plan despite a congressional recess, is hearing today from the utility officials.

The $60-billion estimate comes from the Edison Electric Institute, an organization representing private, investor-owned utilities. The institute based its estimate on what it says companies would have to spend on coal-burning equipment, the taxes they would have to pay for continuing to use oil and natural gas and the cost of installing new types of meters.

The House-passed version of the President's program, now before the tax-writing Senate committee, is intended to change how electricity is used while cutting the amount of oil and natural gas utilities consume.

Backers of the program say they don't know how much it would cost consumers. They say the proposed changes have never been tried all at once and add that local conditions would affect the program's price tag.

Under the plan, all utilities would be required to interconnect transmission lines to shift surplus power where it is needed.

Utilities would also be banned from offering discounts to large industrial users. Power to all customers would be priced the same, with rate cuts allowed only to low-income households.

Power used during periods of peak demand, such as late afternoon, would be more costly as an incentive to spread the use of power throughout the day and to make home insulation more practical. Meters would be installed to record when and how much electricity is used.

The administration and managers of the House-passed bill say an electricity network and the revised billing procedures would reduce individual power companies' needs to build more plants to handle peak demands that last only a few hours a day. The costs of new plants is frequently a big factor in utility company arguments for higher rates.

In testimony before the panel Wednesday, representatives of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler opposed taxes on gas guzzling cars, saying these models are the mainstay of low- and middle-income families that have only one car.

The automakers said other federal fuel economy standards scheduled to go into effect in 1981 were more realistic and would lead to greater fuel conservation.

GI Forum opposes alien plan

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — What to do with Mexicans living in the United States illegally is a central issue at the national GI Forum convention.

And leaders of the group aren't happy with President Carter's plan.

They say the proposal would turn all Hispano-Americans into the only card-carrying Americans, forced to prove their citizenship on a daily basis.

"The part of Carter's plan that is not acceptable is some type of identification to identify the Spanish-speaking," said Pedro Jimenez, chairman of the New Mexico GI Forum.

"Carter suggests that the employer be fined for hiring illegals, so what develops there is the individual must have some sort of identification."

"It would set our group apart," Jimenez said Wednesday.

He said beefing up the border patrol wouldn't solve the problem if the beefing up was done only on the United States side.

"I believe it should be an open border," he said, "but if a border guard is used as a solution to the problem, both countries will have to participate."

Economic aid and trade agreements between Mexico and the United States would be the best first step toward solving the illegal alien problem, Jimenez said.

"Perhaps the solution would be providing economic assistance to Mexico—a sort of Marshall Plan to the country," he said. "Economic assistance to Mexico would allow the country to make its own jobs and develop its own resources."

Mexico's representative to the convention echoed Jimenez' sentiments in a press conference earlier Wednesday.

"We are a country of 65 million, and we don't have enough jobs," Raul Roel Martinez said through an interpreter.

"We are not ashamed to accept that we are poor," Martinez continued. "But the solution doesn't only belong with Mexico."

Martinez said his country recognizes that illegal aliens are a problem in the United States, but said Americans must remember that during World War I and World War II, while Americans were fighting, Mexicans were taking care of the fields and industries in the United States.

City sets budget hearing

By ANNA BURCHELL

Pampa News Staff
The Pampa City Commission this morning set a public hearing on the city's proposed $3,583,983 operating budget for fiscal 1977-78 for 9:30 a.m. Aug. 23, and authorized the city's participation in a lawsuit contesting unemployment insurance.

Cities and other governmental agencies come under the unemployment insurance act for the first time in 1978. It will cost the city of Pampa about $10,000 annually.

The Texas Municipal League suit is seeking to block cities from being included in the federal unemployment tax plan.

Mack Wofford, city manager, said it will cost the city about $1,000 to participate in the lawsuit.

"The League feels this could have far-reaching effects on future legislation, and will seek a temporary restraining order to prevent the order from going into effect. It could take three years to process the case," Wofford explained.

He added that both Amarillo and Borger are participating in the suit.

In discussing the public hearing on the proposed budget, Wofford said it is up 9.8 per cent or $320,000 over a year ago. It calls for an 18-cent tax hike from $1.95 per $100 valuation to $2.13 — a 9.25 per cent raise.

The needed revenue will be derived from hikes in all city services from water rates to sanitation. And for the first time in history, a fee for use of the city landfill.

In other action the commission approved on first reading an ordinance to allow the location of mobile homes on Lafferty, Love and Llano streets in the southwest area of Pampa.

Approval was given on the second and final reading of an ordinance to allow erection of 12 stop signs and six yield signs in various areas of the city.

The Commission accepted street paving in the North Crest Addition as recommended by Merriman & Barber, consulting engineers.

The breakdown shows the projected cost of completed work on Sirocco and Cinderella, in which the city shares as a property owner, at $36,966.26 for contractor services, and $2,896.63 for engineering fees. Total frontage is 2,270.75 feet.

Students wear nothing; State can do nothing

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — As long as it teaches good citizenship, a new nudist private elementary school in a "clothes optional" apartment complex can operate without trouble from the law.

That's the word from the Texas Education Agency. "Function" — the school's name — will meet four hours on most days in the New Manor Apartments.

The apartment complex is "clothes optional" and has been the scene of such media events as a visit this spring from Miss Nude America, who splashed about in the pool's icy waters for delighted photographers.

Joy Galino, 38, the school's supervisor, said exceptions to four hours a day of school, will be "busy days when the kids don't have time for it, or when I don't have time for it."

Teacher and children alike are generally naked when attending class.

The supervisor said, "I would look weird if I came to school with clothes on. The kids would wonder if I was going someplace. It's like when your mother used to put on lipstick and makeup."

State authorities say they can't touch the unorthodox school.

The Texas Education Agency has no rules or regulations about the establishment of a private school. However, when the school wants accreditation, they'll have to meet our standards," said Mel Gonzales, a consultant in the TEA's division of school accreditation.

Karen Johnson, a TEA lawyer, said pupils are exempt from truancy laws if they attend any private school that teaches "good citizenship."

"When you come to private schools, you're coming to an area that the education code doesn't speak to," she said.

The State Welfare Department regulates child care institutions, but those with fewer than seven children, who stay four hours or less per day, are exempt.

"Function" has three enrollees, plus the director's three children.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Coercion versus order

"When freedom destroys order," Eric Hoffer wrote, "the yearning for order will destroy freedom."

Confusing freedom with license, Hoffer would lead us to suppose that freedom and order are at war, that one prevails only at the expense of the other. This statement of the relationship between two desired goals catches Americans in a dilemma. Many people are induced to think they must work out a compromise between antagonistic principles. So begins the battle of d'ruthers; one group d'ruther has this while the other d'ruther have that. Neither is likely to see that it has been tied into an intellectual tug-of-war in which neither can possibly win its true objective — a tolerable, harmonious, yet open social environment.

Moreover, Hoffer's depiction of freedom and order as opposites bent on destruction — at first blush — seems to be in accord with the observed evidence. For certainly, there is a conflict in the civil forum, in the academic halls, even in the streets. And the struggle is between those who espouse liberty and others who proclaim as primary the necessity for order. The question arises not as to the effects, but as to the cause.

Does the threat to a peaceful life originate from that very latitude for thought and action that makes life enjoyable?

Not according to what we believe. What we see is this:

The conflict in society begins when some men trespass upon the freedom of others. Occasionally, the trespass is committed by criminals. More usually it is committed in the name of society itself.

For example, some men who wield governmental power declare that others shall not be able to buy artificial sweeteners such as cyclamates or saccharin. That is a transparent invasion of personal choice and not by masked men.

Even when President Carter was prattling about human rights in some far-off land, his attorney general was lobbying Congress to permit the IRS to continue its police-state tactics against those in his own land with impunity. That's another example. The exhibits would fill a library.

Obviously disturbances also arise from man-made lawlessness as well as from man-made laws, though usually in smaller degree. In such a situation, the principle of freedom declares the maddened.

R.C. Hoiles, late founder of Freedom Newspapers, often defined freedom as "100 per cent control of your own property and zero control over the property of others." He conceived that property includes not merely material possessions, but an individual's time, ideas, skills and action.

Thus freedom is self-governing by definition. When one individual trespasses upon another, at that moment he ceases to act under the authority of freedom and instead becomes an aggressor. Whether he intervenes by law or by gun is only a difference of means.

So it is not freedom that wars against order; it is coercion.

Welfare Gifts

A person from the welfare department telephoned one of our editors with an inquiry about the stock pages. Wanting to be of assistance, the editor asked for more specifics.

"It's for one of my clients," the welfare person responded. "She invests in a number of companies, one of which is the company she works for."

Not quite incredulous (we hear everything), the editor wanted to hear again that this stock investor was indeed a welfare recipient. Affirmative.

Not only that, but the welfare person said that anybody can do that if they qualify below the poverty line. The editor thought aloud that that might include her.

"Why don't you check it out?" came the welfare voice. "You just might qualify."

"I probably do," the editor stopped her. "The only thing is, I wouldn't take that money."

The welfare worker abruptly hung up the telephone.

In a recent column in the Washington Star, Michael Novak writes of the reasons people distrust government. "Larger and larger segments of the population are busy learning 'angels,' searching legitimate ways to rip off the government — honestly, according to the rules, but in a way that cheapens all who take part."

Novak discerns from this a general law: "The more one is dependent on government, the more one loathes it. Those totally dependent on it loathe it most."

Watergate had much less to do with the much publicized distrust of government than some commentators suppose. The trouble is, we know the corrupt — and corrupting — influence of government only too well.

Nation's press

Can business survive government intervention?

(Wall Street Journal) Whether private business can survive an ever-expanding intervention in its affairs by government would seem to be one of the burning questions of our time.

A Conference Board study says intervention has reached a "danger point" in many parts of the world. Chicago banker A. Robert Abboud cites government estimates that regulation is costing U.S. consumers $130 billion a year.

William H. Manly of Southern Co. Services likens running a pension fund today under the 1974 ERISA law to driving a car with the Labor Department foot on the gas pedal, the Treasury's hand on the emergency brake, etc. Businessmen are storming to their Congressmen about OSHA and EPA rules. Economists demonstrate how the combination of regulation and inflation is seriously distorting capital investment decisions in favor of short-term gains that do not square with the economy's real needs.

There is a great temptation, particularly among businessmen themselves, to attribute these problems to the tendencies of politicians and bureaucrats to grasp for more power. There also are counsels of despair that argue that the world is gripped by an inexorable drift towards socialism because of its seductive promises to take wealth from the relatively small numbers of haves and distribute it to the great masses of have-nots.

Both assertions are disturbingly plausible, but both are simplistic and not very useful to anyone who would prefer to seek positive solutions. It should be kept in mind, for example, that government's goals — worker safety, a clean environment, reliable pensions, etc. — are often worthy ones, however clumsy the execution. And the inevitability of socialism is by no means a certain outcome of the pursuit by a democratically elected government of worthy goals.

But it is true that there are dynamics at work in the business-government relationship that could lead towards more ineffectual and demoralizing government market intervention if they are not somehow reversed. Separate insights into those dynamics were offered by Henry Kissinger and the Fed's Henry C. Wallich in a seminar at Georgetown's Center for Strategic and International Studies last week.

Dr. Kissinger, in remarks that did not endear him to his largely business audience — perhaps because they had the sting of truth — accused businessmen of too often running to government for help when they get into trouble. He was referring to his own experiences as Secretary of State with businessmen operating abroad, but he might have included all the different ways that happens at home as well — the steel industry's current demands for import protections, for example.

Dr. Wallich offered a somewhat more sophisticated analysis, largely devoid of any suggestion that businessmen, on the one hand, are more shortsighted or venal than anyone else, or on the other hand that politicians and bureaucrats are necessarily power-hungry. He described a cycle in which perceptions of an economic problem (quite possibly seen by government and business in the same light) leads to government intervention in the market process. The resulting interference with the market's natural capacities to bring about adaptation leads to further complications and economic inefficiencies, which in turn lead to demands for yet more government intervention, etc., etc.

We have seen Dr. Wallich's cycle working with a vengeance in the "energy crisis." Government interventions dating back many years have finally led to the prospect of a permanent federal bureaucracy taking over the job, once handled efficiently by millions of market participants, of trying to make decisions on prices, logistics, capital investments and research and development in a vital economic resource. Implicated in this effort are not a few businessmen who see their companies as beneficiaries of the decisions to be made through this artificial and inefficient process.

Can this trend be reversed? The question would seem to be best directed at businessmen themselves. Despite the blows they have suffered in the political arena they still have the capacity to be highly influential in the political sphere. But they will not bring about such a reversal unless they are able to put aside short-term concepts of gain in favor of those longer-term considerations Dr. Kissinger was talking about.

We may be reaching the point where American businessmen will have to decide whether they really believe in the market system. If they don't, it is hard to see who will muster the political forces to defend it against its very real and often intensely committed enemies.

Expanding worker rights

By H.C. GORDON
Should American workers be compelled to join labor unions? This question has been a wellspring of controversy for over forty years.

In 1935, Congress made the union shop the law of the land. Then, with the passage of the Taft-Hartley Act a dozen years later, it allowed the states to exempt themselves from this rule by enacting so-called "right-to-work" laws. These laws simply state that no worker may be compelled to join a union as a condition of employment.

Since that time, twenty states have enacted such laws and public support for the right-to-work principle has grown steadily. A recent poll by the Opinion Research Corporation reveals that 75 per cent of the American people feel that a worker should be able to "hold a job whether or not he belongs to a union." This figure represents a 15 per cent gain over the past decade. Significantly, 56 per cent of members of union families agreed with this view.

There are a number of reasons for this increased support. Public distrust of big labor is doubtless one of them, but the principal reasons are grounded in fairness and common sense.

In a free society, the right of a worker to join a union presupposes the right of that same worker to abstain from membership. The justice of this position was acknowledged even by Samuel Gompers, founder and long-time president of the American Federation of Labor, who firmly maintained that union membership should be voluntary.

Fairness aside, right-to-work laws bring enormous practical benefits to all concerned. Statistics prove that right-to-work states have consistently lower unemployment rates, and consistently higher rates of capital investment and job creation than non-right-to-work states.

In recognition of these facts, and the strong public sentiment on this issue, Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah has introduced a bill to create a national right-to-work law.

The Hatch bill, S. 1830, would amend the present National Labor Relations Act to eliminate the union shop. The right of workers to organize and engage in collective bargaining would remain unchanged, but the corresponding right to refrain from "any and all" such activities would be added to the existing law.

The bill also demolishes the "free rider" argument that union leaders have long urged against right-to-work laws. Present law provides that once a majority of the workers in an appropriate bargaining unit elect to have a union represent them, that union becomes the exclusive bargaining representative for all the workers in that unit. Hence, it is claimed, workers in that unit who do not belong to the union receive the benefits of union representation for nothing.

This argument was always a cynical one at best, since the unions themselves pressured Congress to write exclusive representation into our labor laws in the first place. The Hatch bill makes short work of it by providing that unions need bargain only for their own members.

Our labor laws are long overdue for such reform. The special powers and privileges accorded labor unions during the New Deal period have given rise to all forms of corruption and abuse. The Hatch bill offers an opportunity to correct this situation while retaining the right to engage in legitimate union activities. Its passage would be an exercise in wisdom and simple decency.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, Aug. 11, the 222nd day of 1977. There are 142 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1964, a formal peace announcement in Indochina ended more than seven years of fighting between the French and the Communist Vietnam.

On this date: In 1857, the first Atlantic cable broke after 335 miles had been laid, and work was halted until the next year.

In 1900, Victor Emmanuel became King of Italy.

In 1928, Herbert Hoover accepted the Republican nomination for president.

In 1935, Nazi storm troopers staged mass demonstrations against Jews in Germany.

In 1945, as the Pacific war was nearing an end, the Allies informed Japan that a Japanese surrender offer was acceptable.

In 1965, rioting and looting broke out in the predominantly black Watts section of Los Angeles. One year ago: Seventeen blacks were killed and 50 injured in racial disturbances on the outskirts of Cape Town, South Africa.

"We all went to Cannes expecting the usual symphony and what we ended up with was string quartets. That says a lot about our film business now. We're seeing intimate, warm little films, not bonanzas. We simply don't know where we are anymore with the world in so much crisis and these stories are the only ones that seem to work."

—Peter Ustinov, in an interview while filming in Rome.

"We had the law to ourselves there. We had iron control. If a man was opposed to us, we'd put him out of business. We could tell an election judge: 'Give us 80 per cent of the vote, the other guy 20 per cent.' We had it made in every election."

"Large numbers of women, more than men, tend to see risk, such as in transition to middle management, in negative connotations. On the other hand, men tend to think, 'I might fail but I might also win.' Too often, women's bosses confirm the women's impression."

—Margaret Henning and Anne Jardim, co-authors of "The Managerial Woman."

"One must always be in direct contact with the outside world. People demand of a courtesier to feel inside everything that passes and everything that will pass, and to translate it. I have made my rope with which to hang by. I would like to, but I am tied up by my commercial empire."

—Yves St. Laurent, designer.

"I could have been making $100,000 a year, but my body said to get out there and run around and play ball."

—Jim Bouton, who turned down an offer to return to TV sportscasting, on why he's making another comeback attempt, pitching in the minor leagues for $400 a month.

"Don't get married: You will be constantly in a state of fear that you're boring your wife, if she's not already boring you."

—Lord Carnarvon, son of the man who financed the expedition which discovered and unearthed King Tut's tomb.

"People can cry much easier than they can change, a rule of psychology people like me picked up as kids on the street."

—James Baldwin, in a recent interview.

"I don't know who's in charge of what anymore, but I'm playing a quality woman in this film, and I simply don't want to be seen or shot in a way that will ruin that image."

—Jacqueline Bisset, female lead in "The Greek Tycoon," explaining why she ordered a set closed while she filmed a scene in which she wore a one-piece tank suit.

Firefighters all alike--all tired

BIG SUR, Calif. (AP) — Thousands of them have come from almost every one of the 48 mainland states. They are the firefighters.

They range from swaggering rookies lured by adventure to a hard-bitten veteran who grew up in the Los Padres National Forest, now ravaged by the two-week-old Marble-Cone fire.

In their race against the 80,000-acre inferno, the firefighters share only two traits: they want to protect the forest and they are tired, so tired.

R.A. Jones, 24, is an Arizona State University sociology major in his first season as a firefighter. He struts about the fire line with a slug of chewing tobacco lodged in his lower lip, two canteens on his lowslung belt and two bandanas sticking out of his silver helmet.

"I like going for it," Jones said. "That and the bucks. It's manly and it's fun. People say, 'Hey, wow, you're a firefighter.' That's cool."

Short, blond and bandy-legged, Jones speaks with awe of flames shooting 200 feet into the air and emitting a roar which can be heard for eight miles.

"At first it scared the hell out of me," he said between squirts of tobacco. "But now I'm getting used to it."

Wayne Mangum, a shy, 35-year-old foreman, tells of his 18-year career with the U.S. Forest Service while keeping an eye on his young crew manning a fresh fire line.

"When I first started, we either walked into them or rode a horse," said Mangum, who lives in Alpine, Ariz. Mangum's wife and child know summer means Dad could be gone for months at a time. This year he's already fought fires in five states.

"Some years I am gone a lot and some years I'm not," he said with a slight twang. "When we leave we don't know when we'll be back. It's hard work, but I enjoy it. I've always liked the outdoors."

Tommy Tomlinson of Cheweelah, Wash., is a "hot shot," one of the firefighting elite who, unlike the khaki-trousered, yellow-shirted regulars, dress with scruffy flair. They are the troubleshooters who execute special maneuvers in the battles.

"We're all crazy," the 28-year-old Tomlinson said with a devilish grin. A firefighter for six years and a hotshot for two, he says he is happiest in the midst of a big blaze like the one near Big Sur.

"That's where it's at," he said. "It's an incredible rush. I couldn't work in an office."

Tomlinson modestly said his job "is not really that dangerous. I don't feel my life is in danger at all. And it's a good feeling knowing you're doing something good for the land."

Fritz Cahill is the man reporters turn to when questions crop up about the natural history of the Los Padres Forest.

A big man in his mid-50s with a weather-worn, friendly face, Cahill grew up in the Los Padres and can rattle off facts about wildlife and vegetation in the vast wilderness.

He knows, for example, that in the 1940-41 rainy season, 161 inches fell on the coast ridge just a few miles west of the Marble-Cone fire.

Cahill began as a temporary firefighter in 1948. He is now a Forest Service supervisor.

Historian urges Connally to sing

DALLAS (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally "could render his greatest service to this country" by revealing what he knows about the Box 13 scandal in Lyndon Johnson's senatorial election 29 years ago, says a Texas historian.

"I doubt if any man alive now knows more about that Box 13 than John Connally," said J. Evetts Haley, who 13 years ago wrote "A Texan Looks at Lyndon: A Study in Illegitimate Power."

Johnson defeated Coke R. Stevenson in the 1938 Texas

Democratic primary runoff, springing Johnson on a career that led to the presidency.

Connally was Johnson's campaign manager and was active in promoting his candidacy to the public.

Connally, asked about the Box 13 episode recently in Houston, said at that time, "I know nothing that would add to the clarification of the situation, nor do I know anything that would contribute to the confusion of the story. I'll have nothing to say about it."

Luis Salas, a former Texas voting official, recently told The Associated Press, however, that he certified enough votes to steal that election for Johnson.

At a news conference here Wednesday, Haley said that Connally "was up to his neck in the incident after the returns were in. I don't know what he did."

A self-described "cowpuncher by profession" and now 75, Haley confirmed the part that Salas had in the alleged fraudulent returns.

"I think that my account is accurate," he added. "Mr. Johnson was in constant touch and he didn't need to go to Jim Wells County."

"Unfortunately for the moral tone of the country, the major figures and chief beneficiaries of this criminal conspiracy themselves resisted all promptings of conscience to admit their guilt, assuming they ever had any."

Haley said, "I refer particularly to such leading principals as the notorious criminal George Parr, Justice Hugo Black of the Supreme Court and Lyndon Johnson."

Regarding Box 13, he said he would not reveal his sources and added that "to the best of my ability it is based upon fact and I have never been challenged."

PISD enrollment begins

Registration of students new to the Pampa Independent School District will be 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Aug. 25 at their respective school offices.

To enroll in first grade a child must be six years old on or before Sept. 1. Parents of younger children have the option of sending them to kindergarten classes at Pampa's elementary schools.

Children aged five years and one month to five years and six months on or before Sept. 1 will be eligible to attend the morning kindergarten session from 8:45-11:30 a.m. Those aged five years and seven months to five years and 11 months will attend the afternoon session from 12:55-3:40 p.m.

Bob Phillips, Pampa ISD superintendent said if an imbalance in class size or transportation problem is determined after enrollments are complete, the principles will have authority to make adjustments.

Parents must present birth certificates and medical records to enroll their children in Pampa schools. These requirements also apply to kindergarten students, Phillips said.

Children who have attended schools other than in Pampa must also present their report cards.

Seventh graders new to the district will register at Houston Middle School, 900 N. Frost, and all seventh graders should report to the school cafeteria at 8:30 a.m. Aug. 26 to pick up their schedule cards.

Eighth and ninth graders will attend Pampa Junior High School and they should report to the school auditorium Aug. 26 to pick up their schedules.

Phillips said school buses will run on each route at the regular time to pick up students on Aug. 26. The buses will begin taking students home at 11 a.m. and classes will start Aug. 29.

The superintendent added that all kindergarten students riding buses will attend the morning session kindergarten.

"The district reserves the right to determine bus-receiving schools," he said.

Registration of new students at Pampa High School started Monday and will continue through August 25.

Farmers set park picnic for Friday

A picnic and ice cream supper will begin at 8:30 p.m. Friday in Central Park for area farmers and persons interested in the recent protests over prices.

Ice cream will be served but participants must provide their own picnic meals.

A spokesman for the protesting farmers said that future plans will be discussed at the picnic.

Anthony opens Monday

A new larger C.R. Anthony store will open at 9 a.m. Monday in the Coronado Shopping Center.

The announcement was made by Ken Shearer, manager of the new store.

"We are very pleased to have this new larger store in Pampa," Guy M. Anthony, company president, commented. "We will continue to be a part of the community."

He pointed out that the Anthony firm employs local personnel, with the exception of a store manager.

Directory delivery set

Distribution of the 1977 telephone directories for Pampa, Skellytown and Lefors customers is scheduled to begin within a few days.

The directory will include a new telephone number for repair service in Skellytown and Lefors. The new number, 1-954-3111, may be dialed without charge.

Gary Stevens, manager for Southwestern Bell, said delivery of the new directory will require about two weeks.

"Initially, almost 14,000 books will be delivered out of the 20,000 total printing," Stevens said.

The new book has 73 alphabetical pages and 172 yellow pages.

"The cover of the new directory was painted by Texas Hill Country artist Warren Martin of Ingram," Stevens said. "The painting, titled 'Royal Family,' depicts the majestic beauty surrounding the birth of a golden eagle."

Martin, who was born in San Antonio in 1932, grew up on the N.J. Hans ranch at the head of the Guadalupe and Sabinal rivers.

"Most residential subscribers will receive one directory," Stevens said. "Business customers will receive their directories according to usage."

Customers needing more directories may call the telephone business office after August 24 when initial delivery is completed.

ENERGY-SAVING HOMES

NEW YORK (AP) — Builders of energy-conserving homes report their houses are "selling well," accented by Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.

Seven hundred energy-conserving home builders in 50 states were sampled and responses to a detailed questionnaire were received from 238 builders in 42 states, each of whom built an average of 37 homes a year.

Eighty-nine per cent of the respondents, whose energy-conserving homes were completed and had been on the market long enough to evaluate market acceptance, said their homes were "selling well."

Brazos Valley Biscuit Loaf

1/2 cup raisins or currants
Boiling water
2 cups biscuit mix
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons Imperial Granulated Sugar
1 egg, beaten
1/2 cup tea (made from 1/2 teaspoon instant tea and 1/2 cup cool water)
2 tablespoons heavy cream
2 tablespoons Imperial Granulated Sugar

Cover raisins or currants with boiling water and let stand for 5 minutes. Drain and cool. Combine biscuit mix, spices and 2 tablespoons Imperial Granulated Sugar. Combine beaten egg and tea with raisins or currants and stir into biscuit mix. Put 1 teaspoon butter or margarine into 9" square baking pan and heat about a minute in pre-heated 450°F oven. When pan is very hot, pour biscuit batter into pan. Bake about 10 minutes. Whip cream with fork; add 2 tablespoons Imperial Granulated Sugar and brush over top of biscuit loaf. Put under broiler to brown and glaze. Makes 9 squares. Best when hot and freshly baked. Re-heat or toast leftover squares. Serving suggestion: Delicious served warm with whipped cream and orange marmalade along with a cup of hot tea.

Farm prices lower wholesale index

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices declined for the second month in row in July as farm and processed food prices kept dropping, the Labor Department said today.

The decline of one-tenth of a per cent in the wholesale price index was not so big as the seven-tenths decrease the month before. But it marked the first two-month drop since winter, 1975.

Wholesale price changes usually show up at the consumer level eventually, but so far grocery store food prices have continued going up. They rose eight-tenths of a per cent in the latest consumer report in June.

The price of raw farm products declined in July 1.8 per cent after a 6.8 per cent decline the month before. In the last three months, farm prices have dropped 10.6 per cent, on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Contributing more to the July decline, however, were processed foods and feeds, such as vegetable oils, animal fats and sugar. They dropped 2.4 per cent after a 1.7 per cent decline the month before.

Prices of industrial commodities went up one-half of a per cent after seasonal adjustment, after a rise of three-tenths of a per cent in June.

The two-month decline in the over-all index followed nine consecutive months of price increases. The last back-to-back decline in prices was a two-tenths of a per cent drop in February 1975 and a four-tenths per cent drop the following month.

The July report was good news for administration economists, who are counting on inflation to slow a bit in the second half of the year. However, farm prices are volatile, and most other categories showed slight increases.

The price indexes for lumber and wood products and for machinery and equipment rose more than in June. Prices also turned up for metals, hides, skins and textiles after declines the previous month. Wholesale prices declined for chemicals, furniture and household goods after increasing in June.

The biggest contributor to a 1 per cent rise in metals prices was steel and aluminum purchases. Many industries bought steel before July anticipating the price increases announced by the steel industry.

Among farm products, hay, hayseeds and oilseeds dropped the most in July, falling in price by 25.8 per cent. Other big drops were shown by grains, 3.6 per cent; live poultry, 5.5 per cent; and fibers, 2 per cent.

Leading the processed foods decline are crude vegetable oil, which plunged 31.2 per cent in price; animal fats and oils, 17.8 per cent; and animal feeds, 15 per cent.

Fuel prices rose two-tenths of a per cent while chemical products were down three-tenths of a per cent and rubber and plastic products were unchanged. Lumber and wood products rose 4.2 per cent, led by the 6 per cent increase in lumber and a 6.4 per cent jump in plywood.

Over-all, the wholesale price index stood at 194.8, meaning that goods bought at wholesale for $100 in 1967 now cost $194.80.

A White House spokesman said after the June wholesale report that price increases during the second half of the year are likely to be more moderate than the first half.

He said the farm price decline "should be affecting consumer food prices in the months ahead and this will bring welcome relief for consumer food budgets."

Retail prices rose at a 10 per cent annual rate the first four months of the year, but the administration says they should decline to a rate of 6 per cent near the end of the year.

In another government report Wednesday, the Commerce Department said consumers increased their spending at retail stores by 1 per cent in July after slight reductions the previous two months. Total retail sales for the month were estimated at $88.7 billion after adjustment for seasonal and daily variations but not for price changes.

Bringing down the house

Any secrets of the weathered, white frame house at 601 W. Foster soon will be safe forever. The O.E. Hexts are dismantling the structure. They intend to use the north rooms of the house for a home for their son at another location. Mrs. Hext wants the bay window area put to use when she turns her garage into a crafts room. Mrs. Hext, who calls disassembling the 14-room house "more fun, but the hardest work," said she thinks the house is about 70 years old. She found a report card dated 1921 in the attic. The grades upon it belonged to a student named Price Chapman. Mrs. Hext has been unable to learn anything about Chapman. Also in the attic were an old mattress and discarded whiskey bottles. The old house once was attached to an old hotel in the next lot. The hotel was at one time one of Pampa's favorite night spots. The house also once served as a chiropractor's office. Former owners include Luther E. Long, Grant Albright, W.C. Whetstone, Forst B. Odell, Forest B. Chandler, Gladene F. Hartzog and current owner C.L. Farmer.

MRS. PAULINE REILLY
Graveside services for Mrs. Pauline Reilly, 82, of Richardson will be at 10:30 a.m. Friday at Fairview Cemetery with the Rev. Francis J. Hynes of St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church officiating.

Mrs. Reilly, a former Pampa resident and clerk in the Pampa Post Office for many years, died at 4 p.m. Sunday in Dallas. She was born Dec. 17, 1894 in Joplin, Mo. She left Pampa in 1951 and moved to Richardson 11 months ago from Beaumont. Her husband, W.P. Reilly, died Oct. 20, 1971.

Mrs. Reilly was a member of the Catholic church. Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Jo Abbot of Boerne; a grandson, Lawrence McMurry of Richardson, and three great-grandchildren.

The rosary will be said at 8 p.m. today at Carmichael-Whitley Colonial Chapel.

ROBERT V. (BOB) BURNS
Funeral services are pending with Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors for Robert V. (Bob) Burns, 68, of 345 Miami Rd. in Pampa, who died at 9:35 p.m. Wednesday at Highland General Hospital.

Mr. Burns was born in 1909 in Wheeler and had been a resident of Pampa since 1936. He retired from Mobile Oil Company in 1968 after 33 years service as a lease operator.

He was a member of the Barrett Baptist Church and the Pampa Masonic Lodge 908. Mr. Burns is survived by the widow, Florene Doom, whom he married in Nov. 11, 1935 at Sayre, Okla. Also surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Bill Alexander of Baton Rouge, La.; one brother, L.W. Burns of Stinnett; two sisters, Mrs. Elwood Wooten of Vallejo, Calif., and Mrs. Wade Shaw of La Juanta, Colo.; and two grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be made to favorite charities.

OSCAR L. HOLMES
AMARILLO — Funeral services for Oscar L. Holmes, 90, of 1104 Duncan in Pampa, will be 2 p.m. today in the Boxwell Brothers Ivy Chapel with the Rev. David Heidtke, pastor of the Beautiful Savior Lutheran Church here, officiating. Burial will be in Llano Cemetery.

Mr. Holmes died Sunday in an Amarillo nursing home. He was born in 1886 in Sweden and he came to the United States in 1902. He worked as a machinist and was later a farmer and he had moved to Amarillo in June. He was a Lutheran.

Surviving are the widow, Esther of Amarillo; one daughter, Clara Hoover of Rockwood, Pa.; one stepson, Ralph Holm of Amarillo; four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Police report

Pampa police investigated two burglaries, a shoplifting, two thefts and two non-injury accidents Wednesday.

A woman told police someone broke into 814 N. Frost and took a purse containing credit cards and personal papers, house and car keys, a .22 caliber revolver and several pieces of jewelry. Also taken was a CB radio from a car.

Burglars broke into Dr. Anthony Harwell's office at 710 W. Francis and took several capsules of a mild sedative, two cups of orthodontic cement in capsule form, and other orthodontic supplies.

A Pampa woman, Cheryl Lynn Williams, 22, posted a $52.50 bond in Municipal Court on charges that she took a pair of tennis shoes from White's Auto Store without paying for them.

A convenience store clerk reported the theft of $10.25 worth of gasoline from the self-service pump and four mag wheels and tires valued at $300 were taken from a car at Pampa Chrysler-Dodge, 811 W. Wilks.

Queen appeals to fighting Irish

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II today appealed to feuding Protestants and Roman Catholics in Northern Ireland to "forgive and forget" their centuries-old hatreds and end eight years of sectarian bloodshed.

The monarch said in a short speech at the New University of Ulster at Coleraine, in the north of the war-torn province, that there are hopeful signs of reconciliation. She declared:

"Those with different beliefs and aspirations understand that if this community is to survive and prosper they must live and work together in friendship and forgiveness.

"There is no place here for old fears and attitudes born of history, no place for blame for what is past."

The queen delivered her speech a few hours after flying by helicopter to the campus on the second and final day of a controversial silver jubilee visit to Northern Ireland.

Irish Republican Army guerrillas warned earlier they had "breached security" at the university and hinted they had planted a bomb there.

The queen refused to cancel her eight-hour visit to the heavily guarded 300-acre university complex. Troops searched the campus but found no bombs, and no terrorist action had been reported by mid-afternoon.

The IRA issued a strongly worded warning to authorities and to the queen: "Clear the university buildings of all civilians. Clear the grounds of children.

"Any bomb fatalities or serious casualties will be your responsibility Elizabeth, your day to remember. This is no hoax."

"Eliza-brit" is a derogatory IRA epithet for the queen.

"We've had no specific information that there's anything to it," a police spokesman said of the warning. A bomb exploded on the campus just two days ago.

The queen, wearing a floral hat and dress, looked nervous as she stepped from the red, twin-engine Wessex helicopter onto the lawns at the 300-acre university complex. But she soon smiled as more than 1,800 children cheered her.

Sharpshooters manned rooftops, helicopters buzzed over the surrounding countryside and army patrols combed the brushland around the complex.

The royal couple arrived in Northern Ireland early Wednesday and were scheduled to sail for western Scotland tonight.

The 51-year-old monarch has not yet personally witnessed any violence during her two-day visit, but her presence aggravated the bitter sectarian hostilities behind a rash of bombings and street clashes Wednesday.

Traveling by helicopter instead of motorcade as a security precaution, the queen was to attend a round of functions at the university, situated in Coleraine, on the northern tip of the province.

On Tuesday, a small one-pound bomb, believed placed by Irish Republican Army (IRA) sympathizers, exploded on the university's campus despite massive security checks in the area.

An unexploded bomb had been discovered at the university 11 days ago.

Hundreds of Roman Catholic extremists parading behind a banner calling Elizabeth the "Queen of Death" battled troops in violence-prone Belfast Wednesday.

Security forces blocked the illegal march and tried to disperse the crowds, but protesters responded by hurling bricks and bottles at the police and troops. At least 15 persons were injured and 20 or more demonstrators were arrested.

PD sponsors benefit

The Pampa Police Department is sponsoring a benefit garage and bake sale through Saturday at the old Pampa Hotel.

Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills said today all proceeds from the sale will go to Lt. Robert Scott and his family to help defray medical expenses.

Lt. Scott, suffering a lengthy illness, was hospitalized here last spring. He is now a patient in the intensive care unit of Scott-White Hospital in Temple.

The sale, which started Wednesday, is open at 9 a.m. each day and stays open as long as there are customers. Persons wanting to donate items for the sale may contact the Pampa Police Department.

Bureau fires Bullock

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Bullock, an economic statistician whose outspoken criticism of Census Bureau data led to the belated correction last December of a $50 billion understatement in an economic study, has been fired.

Bullock, 30, said he was accused of "coercion to seek advancement" after he found more errors in another Census Bureau study and threatened "to go public" unless permitted to organize an effort to correct the figures.

The dismissal followed two letters of reprimand, one for what he said was alleged to be a "malicious, vicious insult" to a superior, and another for insulting his wife's superior.

Robert Hagan, bureau director, said he was not free to discuss the bureau's action but said the details were spelled out in a letter to the former employee.

Bullock termed the coercion charge a fabrication resulting from his insistence that he be permitted to correct the additional errors, a job that apparently would have required a rating higher than his GS-12.

He said he was asked by Shirley Kallek, his superior, to put his demands in writing, which he did, and that the dismissal followed.

At issue, he said, are figures making up the basic annual economic data base of the bureau, which are released separately for individual states, followed by publication of a national survey.

Included in such studies are figures for the number of businesses of all kinds, the number of jobs and the size of payrolls in all the nation's counties. Bullock claims the figures are biased by 25 to 30 per cent.

The latest accusations by Bullock follow a personal, four-year fight to correct problems in another survey, that for the level of unfilled orders at the nation's factories.

The bureau at first minimized the extent of the unfilled orders miscalculation. Bullock said that instead of adjusting the figures or issuing a caveat, he was threatened with insubordination by Miss Kallek, who devised the methodology.

Following a special study, rushed to completion last December, the bureau conceded the understatement in the level of orders to be, in some years, close to 40 per cent, and to total roughly $50 billion a year.

Asked then — in December 1976 — why a caveat hadn't been issued, in keeping with the published policy of the bureau in regard to questionable statistics, Milton Eisen, chief of the industry division, said "We were slow in accepting anything he (Bullock) said."

Vets hunt for Hart

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — Six armed men — Vietnam war veterans and members of the National Guard — are trying to capture Gene Leroy Hart, the prison escapee charged with murdering three Girl Scouts near here in June.

Group members, who call themselves the "Spooks," made their first patrol from 9 p.m. Tuesday to 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

They plan on returning again. "Mr. Hart is going to be found," said Tom Kite, 32, an Oklahoma City lawyer who heads the squad. "He might as well give up now because I'm going to find him."

Mayes County Sheriff Pete Weaver said he allowed the group into the heavily-wooded area near where the murders took place.

The searchers wear military fatigues and black berets. They carry their own firearms, Kite said.

Kite, a captain with the Oklahoma National Guard, said his group is not connected with the military.

Authorities believe Hart, an experienced woodsman, is still hiding in this area.

Monsoon season hits

Gray County farmers were all smiles this morning as the rains fell in amounts ranging from 1.5 to four inches throughout the county.

One farmer said he was on strike today.

"It is so wonderful, I'm still in bed," he joked.

At 6:15 a.m. today a total of 1.35 inches had fallen in Pampa, according to Darrell Sehorn, official weather observer. However, it had continued to rain after that leaving an estimated two inches or more by 9 a.m.

Sehorn said the early morning report brought the total for August to three inches.

Nolan Cole, who lives two miles south of Pampa, reported 2.75 inches this morning in addition to .50 Monday and .10 Tuesday.

"This will be good for next year's crops; good for dryland maize, and save irrigation expenses," Cole said.

Cole said 1977 has been a "real wet year," but he was hailed out in June.

The largest amount of rain today, four inches, was reported at the Leon Daugherty farm, five miles north of Pampa.

"I can't believe it," Daugherty said. He had received a total of .75 Monday and Tuesday.

"This will put us in good shape for wheat planting and will help the milo. We may not have to water it anymore. Didn't need quite this much," he said.

Henry Urbanczyk, whose farm is located southwest of Pampa, estimated about an inch had fallen there early this morning. "It is a pretty good rain," he added.

Hal Brown, who lives 17 miles north of Pampa, said it started raining about 2:15 a.m. and was "still going strong at 8:30 a.m."

Mrs. Dean Burger, who lives 20 miles south of Pampa estimated two inches today in addition to about .50 earlier in the week.

Joe Burton of 13 miles east said the rains would help the milo. He said about two inches fell in that area.

Elmer McLaughlin of Laketon said 1.03 had fallen at his place by early morning in addition to .25 earlier in the week.

Mrs. Curtis Schaffer, who lives south of Pampa said she had received about 1.50 inches rainfall.

"We received two inches and it sure is wonderful," Mrs. Fred Haiduk of 18 miles southwest of Pampa said this morning.

Reports in Lefors ranged from 1.80 upward.

Showers and thunderstorms, including some locally heavy storms, roamed the Texas Panhandle during the night and early morning hours.

Amarillo got .52 of an inch of rainfall during the night.

A few light showers were reported in the El Paso area during the night, but elsewhere skies were mostly clear and temperatures remained quite warm.

A cool front moved southward into the Panhandle during

National weather

By The Associated Press
A cold front moving south from Canada brought cool temperatures for much of the midwest today, with daytime temperatures expected to dip into the 60s and 70s.

The front brought relief from summer temperatures to an area reaching from the northern Rockies to the Great Lakes and southward into the central Plains and the mid Mississippi Valley. Daytime temperatures are expected to range from the 60s and 70s in the north to the 70s and 80s further south.

Readings in the mid to high 90s were recorded Wednesday in the middle Atlantic states and the West Coast. There were record high temperatures set in one or two places in the East and West and very little, if any, relief is expected at least through Friday.

Showers and thunderstorms were reported over much of the eastern two-thirds of the nation late Wednesday and early today.

Accidents injures two

A 26-year-old Lefors man is in serious condition in Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo today after he was injured in a two-car collision on Texas 273 about 7:20 p.m. Wednesday.

Department of Public Safety Trooper Wayne Williams said a car driven by Durad Lee Gifford was traveling southeast when it collided with a northwest-bound car driven by 18-year-old Connie Graham Withers of Lefors.

Williams said Gifford apparently was passing in a no-passing zone and pulled into the extreme inside northwest-bound lane when the wreck occurred. Both cars were demolished.

Gifford's left arm was nearly severed in the wreck and he sustained a broken ankle. He was taken to Highland General Hospital by Metropolitan Ambulance and was later airlifted to Amarillo by an emergency helicopter.

A spokesman at Northwest Texas Hospital said this morning that Gifford underwent surgery on his arm.

Mrs. Withers received cuts on her hands in the wreck. Her husband, Henry Withers, 19 was not injured, Williams reported.

The trooper said Gifford was cited for passing in a no-passing zone.

The wreck occurred 3.6 miles northwest of Lefors.

Following another accident, a 14-year-old Pampa girl, Teresa Martin of 1123 S. Hobart, is in serious condition at Northwest Texas Hospital. She was struck by a car at Hobart and Crawford Wednesday afternoon.

Pampa police said the girl was walking north on Hobart when she was struck by a northbound car driven by Kenneth W. Weaver, 47, of 508 Doucette. The girl, who reportedly sustained lacerations and unknown head injuries, was taken to Highland General Hospital by Metropolitan Ambulance for treatment before she was transferred to Amarillo.

Weaver was not cited, police said.

The first seven presidents of the United States were born British subjects. Martin Van Buren was the first chief executive born an American citizen.

Bell exec knew cheats

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A high-ranking official of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. says he knew of expense account cheating by some company officials beneath him but never disciplined the offenders.

C. L. Todd, vice president and general manager for Southwestern Bell in San Antonio, gave the testimony Wednesday as a hostile witness for the plaintiffs in a $29 million damage suit against the telephone company.

The suit was filed by former Southwestern Bell executive James Ashley of San Antonio and the family of T. O. Gravitt, who was the company's top Texas executive when he committed suicide in Dallas on Oct. 17, 1974.

The suit alleges that Ashley was wrongfully fired and that Gravitt was hounded to his death as a result of an improper internal investigation by the company in 1974.

Todd testified that Bell security agents reported to him incidents where lower management employees made political contributions and then padded expense vouchers to recover the money.

At most, he said, an offender was "talked to" by his supervisor about the alleged cheating.

But Todd said he suspended 23-year Bell employee Ashley without warning in October 1974. Ashley at the time was making about $55,000 a year in his executive position.

"Ashley was a different case entirely," Todd said when asked why Ashley apparently was treated differently than other Bell employees accused of any wrongdoing.

Todd said he was "surprised that he (Ashley) showed no emotion" when informed of his suspension by Todd as the two men drove to a hotel where Ashley was quizzed by Bell security agents.

Todd said he never suggested to Ashley that the charges against him were serious or that he get a lawyer before talking to Bell investigators.

Todd denied he had wanted the promotion to Gravitt's job in Dallas both before and since Gravitt's suicide. He said he never plotted against Gravitt within the telephone company.

Dub McKendree retires

W.D. "Dub" McKendree of Pampa retired recently from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The announcement was made by A.L. McKee, Amarillo District engineer.

McKendree, of 612 Lefors, joined the Department in 1946 at Vega as a senior inspector. In 1949, he became an engineering technician at Pampa, a position at which he worked until his retirement.

A native of Vega, he attended public schools there and graduated from Vega High School in 1941. He attended West Texas State University in 1948, and Amarillo College in 1949. McKendree served in the U.S. Coast Guard from 1943-46. He was a seaman first class aboard the USS Cavalier, an assault transport that made landings on Sipan and Tinian in the Mariana Islands and at Leyte, Luzon and Subic Bay in the Philippines. He was awarded the Bronze Star for action in the invasion of the Philippines.

He is a member of the First Methodist Church of Pampa and is a former vice president of the Tri-State Chapter of the American Society of Certified Engineering Technicians. He has been a member of Pampa Lodge AF&AM 906 for 21 years and the American Legion for 30 years. In 1948, he married Mardell Mask in Amarillo.

Crosby on 'Road to Recovery'

By DOUG STONE
Associated Press Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bing Crosby's path to recovery from a major back injury taken him on a working trip to Europe. He will return to the stage in his first major endeavor since the injury when he travels to Oslo, Norway, for an Aug. 27 festival.

As Crosby wandered the Torrey Pines golf layout in San Diego's fashionable La Jolla, he seems to wonder aloud whether at 73 he is up to the rigors of a return to the entertainment world.

"We'll just see how it goes."

he said while playing golf recently. "If I can play as much golf as I do, I should be able to stand up for three hours on the stage. I don't work very hard anyway. But I'd hate to have to do any dancing."

Crosby was injured March 17 in Pasadena when he toppled 20 feet from a stage during the taping of a CBS special of the gala benefit marking his 50th anniversary in show business.

The injury, which Crosby admits has left his golf game ailing, has seemed to age the veteran trouper. His face is more drawn than usual.

"I'm doing pretty good now, but anything in the back is always slow to come around," said Crosby of the injury.

Crosby said he was not aware that a section of stage on which the orchestra had been sitting already had been lowered when he turned and walked into a void.

Crosby is hoping his health will allow some other European appearances after Oslo.

He hopes to spend some time in London doing a series of British television tapings and adds, "Then I'll possibly do some concerts in Germany and we'll come home at the end of September."

Despite his recent injury, Crosby seems to retain the melow philosophy that has been his trademark.

For instance, paramedics said he hummed a few songs from his stretcher in the ambulance that took him to the hospital.

Crosby these days is spending a great deal of time with his son, Nathaniel, 17, who is following in his dad's footsteps as an avid golfer.

As a tribute to Crosby's 73rd birthday, Nathaniel took his father to a San Francisco peninsula Chinese restaurant near their home. Crosby's wife, Kathryn, and their daughter, Mary Frances, were in Texas doing a stage show at the time.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After a two-year lapse, Michael Douglas has returned to acting in MGM's "Coma."

"I never said I was going to quit acting," said the son of Kirk Douglas. "I just wanted to leave 'The Streets of San Francisco.' The series was great for exposure and experience, but it wasn't so great for performing."

Meanwhile Douglas coproduced "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

Mental ruling not final

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The 3rd Court of Civil Appeals today rejected the Texas Youth Council's argument that its administrative determination that a delinquent child is mentally ill or feeble-minded is final.

The appeals court upheld a juvenile court order remanding Daniel Ramirez to the care, custody and control of the council.

The council contended that because its administrative decision was final, the juvenile court was without jurisdiction to consider whether Ramirez was feeble-minded.

The juvenile court of Travis County committed Ramirez to the council, but the council said he was feeble-minded and returned the youth to the court "for appropriate disposition."

medical examiner's ruling.

An autopsy revealed Judith Kamm, 34, was stabbed 17 times. Police said they are trying to determine if Miss Kamm's death is connected to the beating death of a 26-year-old Filipino nurse, who was found dead in her apartment Aug. 17, 1976.

Miss Kamm and Josefina Punelan both worked at Presbyterian Hospital. Police said Miss Punelan was not raped.

To date, neither nurse's killer has been arrested.

Nurse raped in Dallas sex slaying

DALLAS (AP) — The Australian nurse whose mutilated body was found Monday in her apartment here was also raped, according to police.

"It almost has to be strictly a sex killing," Det. Sgt. Gus Rose said Tuesday after the county found dead in her apartment Aug. 17, 1976.

Miss Kamm and Josefina Punelan both worked at Presbyterian Hospital. Police said Miss Punelan was not raped.

To date, neither nurse's killer has been arrested.

Beware: killer lurks in frozen, canned food

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

I tried to dry zucchini once. Pioneers, unequipped with deep freeze and canning jars, dried food for winter. Simple, I thought.

Each zucchini was sliced thin, put on a baking sheet to dry. But my sliced squash developed a rash... a fuzzy green rash and I refused to eat fuzzy green dampish zucchini.

I threw it away. So much for the pioneer spirit in my kitchen.

Now I freeze the zucchini my husband grows in his bountiful garden, or I turn it into pickles.

Pickling and drying were age-old methods of putting up food. Swiss lake dwellers dried fruits and berries and stored them in earthenware vessels. Early Egyptians salted and sun-dried fish and fruits; pre-Columbian Indians trampled the juice out of potatoes and dried them in the sun.

In the 18th century, Napoleon offered a 12,000-franc reward to anyone who could come up with a method of preserving food which would solve spoilage problems for his troops and yet allow the food to taste good.

In 1809, a French confectioner, culminated a 14-year study by preserving food in a bottle. He didn't understand why his method worked but it did.

The process of canning is relatively new. And preserving in the home has evolved into an essential — yet oftentimes dangerous — ritual in millions of American homes.

According to the US Department of Agriculture more than 700 deaths since 1925 can be traced to improper home canning.

The spoiler most feared in home-canned food is Clostridium botulinum which causes botulism.

Food spoilage can be prevented in 10 ways: asepsis (keeping out microorganisms), removal of microorganisms, maintaining an oxygen-free, sealed environment, use of high temperatures, use of low temperatures, drying, use of chemical preservatives, irradiation, mechanical destruction of microorganisms (by means of grinding or the use of pressure), combination of two or more of these methods.

Use of high temperatures in canning and use of low temperatures in freezing are most practical and common for home use.

But whichever methods used, beware: use aluminum, plastic, or ceramic bowls and containers when preserving foods. High-acid foods may react with the chemicals in galvanized metal pans and produce poison.

Everyone has eaten botulism spores on fresh fruits and vegetables; the spores are common in soil. But they pass harmlessly through the body.

But when the spores are stored on food in sealed jars, the bacteria can grow into poison.

High-acid foods include fruits, tomatoes and saurkraut retard growth of botulism toxin. They can be processed in water bath. Low acid foods are all other vegetables, meats, poultry and seafood.

Pressure canning is necessary. It takes more than just boiling temperatures to destroy botulism-causing organisms in these foods.

At 10 pounds of pressure, temperatures reach 240 degrees F., hot enough to destroy the spores.

Boiling-water bath canning will destroy yeasts and molds and is fine for processing fruits, tomatoes, rhubarb, pickles and relishes.

Open-kettle processing is recommended only for jams, jellies and preserves.

In their book "Keeping Food Safe," Hassell Bradley and Carole Sundberg list seven other reasons home-canned food spoils:

1. The food was not sterilized properly, either by insufficient heat during canning or the pressure was not maintained at 10 pounds.
2. The person failed to wipe the sealing edge of the jar clean before placing the lid on it.
3. The air was not sufficiently exhausted from the pressure canner before the regulator was placed over the vent.
4. Water in the water-bath canner was not kept at a full boil throughout the entire processing time, or the water level dropped down below the top of the jars.
5. In the open-kettle method, a number of jars were filled at one time, allowing the jars to cool and become contaminated before sealing.
6. The jars were nicked or cracked or had sharp sealing edges.
7. The methods recommended by the manufacturer for tightening or sealing individual jars, caps or lids were not followed.

When opening home-canned foods, inspect the contents to make sure there is no foaming, no spurting of liquids, no molds, murky appearance, off color or off odor.

If in doubt, throw it out. If the food develops an odor during cooking, discard it.

To insure safety in home-canned products, boil them for 20 minutes in an open kettle. This will destroy any botulism toxin.

The killer lurks in frozen produce, too. Freezing does not kill all food-spoilage organisms, it just stops their growth and multiplication. As soon as food is thawed, microorganisms begin to grow again.

Even successfully frozen food can be ruined by incorrect thawing.

"As the ice crystals melt, the liquid either is absorbed back into the tissues or leaks out of the food. If we thaw food slowly at cool temperatures, we'll be far more likely to have a better, more moist food," according to Bradley and Sundberg.

"Surviving enzymes will begin to be active again during thawing but, if we cook the food immediately, action is stopped."

When frozen food is thawed at room temperatures, dangerous spoilage can occur in three to four hours.

The authors list ways to avoid being poisoned by frozen dishes:

1. When heating combination dishes, take the container directly from the freezer and put it into a hot oven.
2. If it is necessary to partially thaw food, place the package in lukewarm water for a few minutes or let stand at room temperature for no more than 60 minutes.
3. If food must be completely thawed before heating, thaw in the refrigerator.
4. Always make sure any reheated frozen food is hot all the way through and is bubbling.
5. Always follow package directions on commercially frozen foods to insure safety. Should frozen foods which have thawed be refrozen? For fish, ice cream, casseroles or combination dishes — never. For partially thawed fruits and vegetables — only if they still contain ice crystals. For completely defrosted foods — never except with strong acid fruits.

Experts advise caution in selection of proper equipment and using proper methods for home canning. Musts include chip-free jars, dent-free lids, good-condition water bath for high-acid foods and pressure canner for low-acid foods.

Tips for successful canning

- There is no short cut to proper and safe food canning. Be sure all utensils, jars, lids and working surfaces are clean.
- Use the proper equipment and canning techniques: pressure canner for low acid foods and hot water bath for high acid foods.
- Home-canned foods can have essentially the same food value as fresh foods. Follow all directions that apply to whichever type of food you are canning. Prepare in advance to save time.
- Consider the size of your family and how much food is needed for each meal. Then select the right size, either pint, quart or larger container for the particular fruit or vegetable you plan to preserve.
- Boil for 10 to 15 minutes to sterilize jars.
- Each type of produce has its own processing time requirement. Be sure to follow directions.
- Store unused jars properly. A good quality glass jar will last about 10 years with proper care.
- When finished, test the seal on each jar. On self-sealing types with flat metal lids, test by tapping the center of the lid with a spoon. A clear ringing sound usually indicates a good seal.
- Canned food should always be kept in a dry and cool area. A cool basement room or pantry or corner shelves in the garage are okay. Temperatures between 45 degrees F. to 60 degrees F. are best.

Tips for successful freezing

- Plan and organize so that you can move produce from garden to freezer as quickly as possible.
- Use only the best quality fruits and vegetables. Younger and more tender fruits and vegetables will serve best.
- Seal frozen foods well. Use moisture and vapor-proof wrapping or containers to avoid moisture loss in the freezer.
- Label all packages with contents, freezing date, number of servings, quantity and weight. That may sound simple but lots of foods look alike inside a frozen food container.
- Freeze as soon as you can and at the capacity of the quick freezing section of your freezer. Store at 0 degrees F.
- Never freeze too many packages or containers at one time. That will "heat" the other areas of the freezer and let the undesirable larger ice crystals form.
- Keep a record of what you freeze and when. Be sure to use produce within its freezer storage life for the best quality.

Heart disease number one killer in Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Diseases of the cardiovascular system—including heart attacks and strokes—accounted for nearly half of all deaths in Texas last year, despite a declining heart attack rate.

Figures prepared by the State Health Department show that 47 per cent of the 100,000 deaths in 1976 were related to the cardiovascular system.

Cancer was the second leading killer, causing 19 per cent of all deaths. Accidents sent 6.43 per cent to their graves; homicides and suicides 1.62 per cent; infectious diseases 1.3 per cent; and "all other causes" 24.1 per cent.

Eight Texans died of diseases that can be prevented by vaccination, including four tetanus and two mumps.

The report noted that the death rate from acute myocardial infarction, or heart attack, declined for the third straight year, reaching 118 deaths per 100,000 population. It was 142 per 100,000 in 1973.

The department said, in effect, it could not explain the drop-off in heart attack deaths. Cancer mortality, however, continued its gradual rise, reaching 154 deaths per 100,000 population, compared with 141 in 1970.

The leukemia rate was down, though, from 6.8 per 100,000 in 1970 to 6.5 per cent last year. Cancer killed 550 more Texans in 1976 than in 1975.

Homicides took 13.1 lives per 100,000 population, down seven per cent from the 1975 rate. The suicide rate was 12.2 per 100,000, an 11 per cent decline.

"The two rates typically vary together, so that one's chances of becoming a victim of homicide or suicide are roughly equal and roughly rise and fall together," the report by Dr. Richard K. Donelson said. He is director of the department's epidemiology division.

Big, hairy monster attacks Oklahoma teen

STILWELL, Okla. (AP) — "We don't know what to call it. We don't know how to cope with it and we don't know what to do with it when we find it," Adair County Undersheriff Gary Fain said, referring to a reported mystery creature.

Authorities are investigating a report that a creature described as nine-foot tall, hairy, and having glowing red eyes clawed a 15-year-old boy here.

Several reports of killed and partially slaughtered goats and of missing calves in this area of eastern Oklahoma, near the Arkansas line, are being linked to the investigation, authorities said.

"We don't believe anyone is lying about this," Fain said.

Adair County civil defense officials notified the Sasquatch Investigation of Mid-American Tuesday, hoping to learn if the reported creature could be the legendary Big Foot.

Authorities have been investigating the report of a creature's attack since Saturday, but didn't disclose their investigation until Tuesday for fear of starting a panic.

Brian Jones, 15, told authorities he was attacked by the creature Friday night.

The boy told officials that he was grabbed and scratched, leaving claw marks on his back. The boy also said he was thrown to the ground when friends approached with flashlights.

The reported attack was said to have occurred when Jones went outside to investigate after one of his friends saw a pair of red eyes peering through the kitchen window.

Insurance companies claim fraud

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Missing Iowa Park grain dealer Robert Johnson faked his death in order to collect insurance benefits, according to an insurance company that issued $2.4 million in policies to Johnson. The Occidental Life Insurance Company of California has filed suit asking a state district court here to void the policies. American General Life Insurance recently filed a similar action asking the court to void a $1 million policy. State agriculture officials have determined that 400,000 bushels of grain are missing from Johnson's storage facilities.

Dinner theater moving to bigger location

AMARILLO — The Country Squire Dinner Theatre in Amarillo will open its fall season Oct. 4 in a new permanent home at I-40 and Grand.

The dinner theatre has leased 21,000 square feet of space previously occupied by the Convention Center in the western wing of Villa Inn and is converting the area into a Manor Hall theater and dining facility, planned for providing evenings of stage entertainment and gourmet dining.

The new Country Squire home will feature a Country English Manor motif. The tiered seating will provide space for 430 diners as compared with the 256 seating arrangement at the Squire's present location at the Hilton Inn.

In addition to the theater-dining area, the Squire will have the library and hunt room—two areas that will make available spaces for special group entertainments, committee meetings and conventions.

The comedy, "No Sex Please, We're British," will open the Squire's fall season.

"Take a Number, Darling," is now playing on stage at the Squire. The three-act comedy by Jack Sharkey is set in a Manhattan penthouse during a mild mid-November day.

Burleson calling it quits in '79

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Omar Burleson of Abilene, a product of a freshman congressional class that included John F. Kennedy, Richard Nixon and Carl Albert, says he'll call it quits in 1979 when his term ends.

The 71-year-old Democrat has been elected 16 times by voters in the 33 counties in West Central Texas' 17th congressional district.

Burleson's announcement Tuesday made him the second Texas congressman to announce his retirement. And two other veteran congressmen are not expected to run again.

Rep. George Mahon of the 19th District, has already announced his upcoming retirement after 22 terms. Reps. W.R. Poage, 11th District, and Olin Teague, 6th District, have not announced their plans but both are battling health problems and friends say they don't expect the veteran legislators to seek re-election.

And relative newcomer Rep. Bob Krueger, 21st District, has announced his candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

Burleson first entered Congress in 1947. In his Tuesday announcement, Burleson said he is concerned that fellow West Texas representatives are not seeking another term but added that his successor can be effective if he conducts himself properly.

Burleson said he made an early decision not to run in order to allow potential candidates enough time to meet the voters.

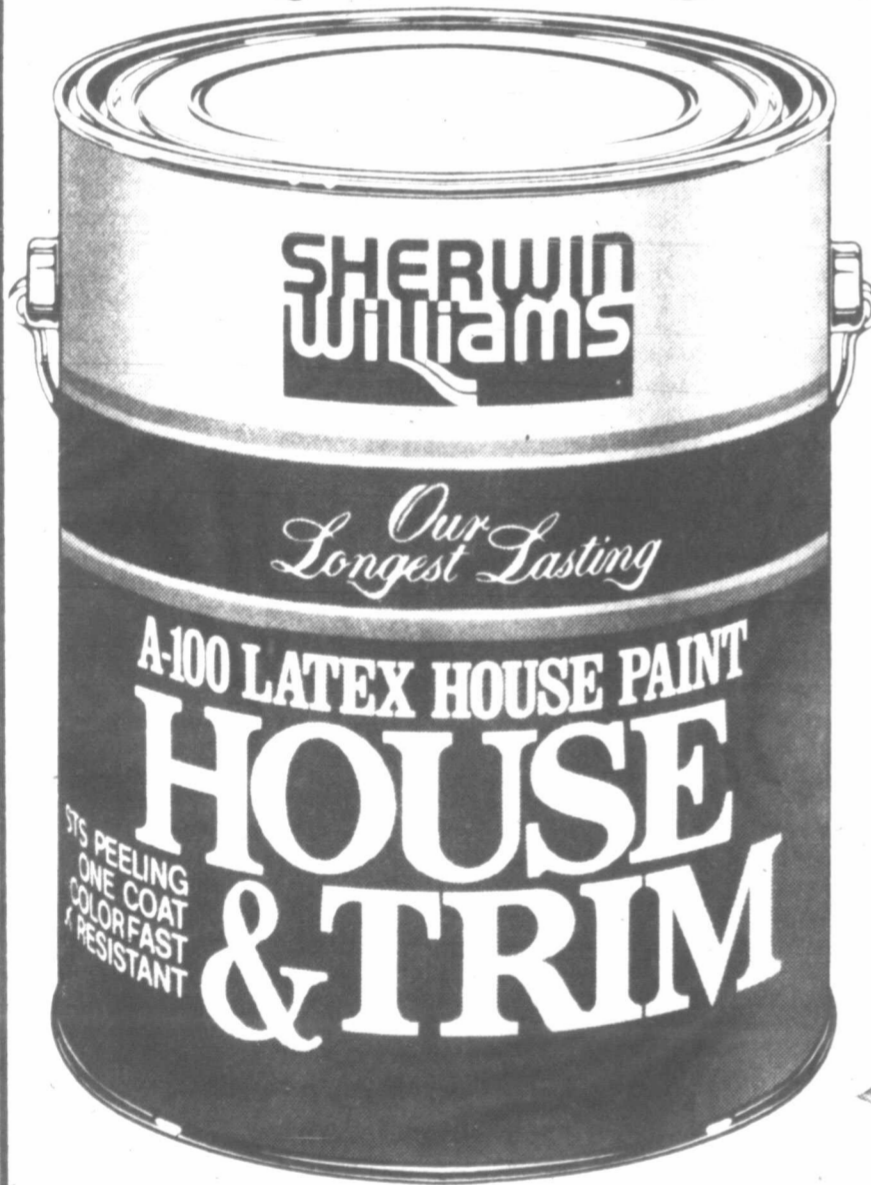

He said he has no retirement plans because, "I haven't used that word retirement. I don't have any as yet." Many retiring legislators "go back to Pocatello (a synonym for home)," Burleson said.

"Ruth (Mrs. Burleson) and I are coming back to Pocatello. Ruth wants to get out of Washington. But this time, we don't have any definite plans, but we plan to be active."

Burleson has held elective office most of his career since receiving his law degree in 1929. The 1930s were spent as Jones County Attorney and county judge. He resigned his judgeship in 1940 and joined the FBI.

Clinic set for victims of Myasthenia Gravis

The annual Melba Brandy Masters Clinic for Myasthenia Gravis patients in this area is scheduled Aug. 26 and 27 at the HI-Plains Hospital in Hale Center.

The clinic will be sponsored by the Northwest Texas Chapter of the Myasthenia Gravis Foundation.

The free clinic has been funded by a trust set up by the Masters families of Amarillo and Cotton Center. The fund is maintained through contributions enabling the free clinic to become the annual event.

The time set for the clinic will be from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. each day.

Dr. J.E. Tether of Indianapolis, Indiana will be in Hale Center to conduct the clinic, and will be assisted by the hospital's medical staff.

Myasthenia Gravis is a neuromuscular disease, characterized by varying weakness of the voluntary muscles of the body. It is aggravated by exertion, emotion, infection or stress. It is relieved in part by rest and anticholinesterase drugs.

Houston supe wants $298 million budget

HOUSTON (AP) — A record $298 million operating budget for Houston's public schools has been recommended by Supt. Billy Reagan.

The budget calls for the district's 17,000 employees to receive pay increases averaging 15 per cent over the next two years.

Reagan said the budget provides the "finest pay schedule in this part of the country or anywhere."

The largest increases approximating 20 per cent would go to the secretaries and clerks, with teachers following at 16 per cent and administrators at 13 per cent. Increases for maintenance workers would average 18.5 per cent.

The proposed budget is $43 million more than this year's, due primarily to about $25 million more in state aid.

The budget and a new pay schedule will be adopted, with any changes, when the school board meets Aug. 16.

Under the Reagan plan, new teachers with bachelor degrees would be paid $906 a month this year, compared with $830. The maximum for experienced teachers with bachelor degrees would increase from $1,330 to $1,750.

Feds push for agency consolidation on border

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Law enforcement on U.S. borders could become more efficient by consolidating the several often-competing agencies into a single superagency, says a preliminary White House planning document.

The Los Angeles Times disclosed existence of the document in Wednesday's editions.

A first step, says the report, could be to merge the Immigration and Naturalization Service and Customs Service into a new border management agency which could later be expanded to include agencies with secondary border functions such as the Fish and Wildlife Service or the Plant Health Inspection Service.

"Each of the border agencies is responsible for a specific part of border control and each agency pursues its own missions, sometimes in competition with the other federal border agencies and interests," the report says.

"When conflict between agencies appears, there is no effective mechanism to resolve the problem. Even through inter-agency agreements exist in writing, the operating problems continue."

The report, now reportedly under review by Cabinet departments, was prepared by the White House Office of Drug Abuse Policy in coordination

Guerrillas kill doctor, nun

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Black nationalist guerrillas forced their way into a mission in a remote region of Rhodesia and shot a German doctor and an Austrian nun dead, the national military command said Wednesday.

The woman physician, 50-year-old Dr. Johanna Decker, and the nun, Sister Ferdinanda, were reported to have been killed Tuesday at St. Paul's mission, in western Rhodesia 220 miles southwest of Salisbury.

The two white missionaries were shot in the back, according to a white nun who said she survived by hiding.

The survivor said today that the group of about 10 blacks spent several hours drinking at a local beer hall before arriving at the mission.

The surviving nun, whose name was withheld, said the blacks intimidated the mission staff and forced patients to leave their beds.

Sister Ferdinanda was a recent arrival in Rhodesia who had spent several years as a nursing sister at the Precious Blood hospital in Durban, South Africa.

Dr. Johanna Davies, who had been a university student with Dr. Decker, was told of the shootings and said: "Apparently the terrorists asked (Dr. Decker) for money and she offered them all she had in the cash box but they said that was not enough."

"She offered to get some more from the house and as she turned to go they shot her in the back," Dr. Davies said. "I believe the ... sister was also

Nixon moving date coincidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The removal of Richard M. Nixon's tapes and papers from the White House complex on the third anniversary of his resignation as president was just a coincidence, the national archivist says.

"We don't keep up with things like that," said Dr. James B. Rhoads, when asked about the government's transfer of the Nixon administration records from the Executive Office Building to the National Archives on Wednesday.

Recorded by Air Force patrol cars, three moving vans, making two trips each, transported the 1,800 boxes of documents and 1,166 reels of tape recordings to the National Archives, 10 blocks down Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

Included in the shipment were papers of Nixon and his senior advisers, Nixon's national security files and the tapes. Less sensitive Nixon materials — administrative files, public opinion mail, audio-visual records and gifts — were transferred to the General Services Administration's storage facility at Suitland, Md., more than a year ago.

The Nixon records had been packed up and prepared for removal from the basement of the Executive Office Building during the former president's last days in office. But the records remained undisturbed while the government and Nixon fought over their custody.

The Supreme Court ended the fight six weeks ago by upholding the legality of a law awarding custody of the records to the government. So, instead of being sent to Nixon in San Clemente, the materials were trucked to the National Archives.

Archivists will begin immediately to sort through the materials to determine which will be made public. Papers and tapes involving Watergate will be processed first.

Black Berets: low profile, discipline

By Tom Tiede
 FT. STEWART, Ga. — (NEA) — The conventional wisdom is that the Army isn't what it used to be; though pay and privileges are up, standards and discipline are down; washouts proliferate, so do minority members who can't get civilian jobs; as for esprit de corps it has gone the way of brown boots, rolling caissons and George S. Patton.

Yet here in the Georgian piney woods, tist Plains and the sea, there is at least one vestige of good old gung ho: the airborne Rangers. Heads shaved, uniforms crisp, every man from Krypton, the "Black Berets" are a mirror of what sentimentalists say the Army once was: the best trained and toughest fighting force on the globe.

Assuredly, the Rangers are tough. The physical program would weary an ox. Each man must be able to run 10 miles in 90 minutes, and march 100 miles carrying 100 pounds of gear. The commander of the Ft. Stewart hospital says physicians hate to schedule surgery for the men, because "we have to go through all that muscle."

And too, the Black Berets receive extraordinary training. They are as familiar with foreign weapons as they are their own. They are proficient in first aid, land survival, hand to hand combat, and must be prepared to fight on any terrain. In recent months Rangers have been in Panama jungles, Texas deserts and Alaskan tundra.

But principally the Rangers are set apart by their attitude. In a time of military change, they are stiff, obedient and patriotic. No Afros are permitted. On holidays 85 per cent of the force is working. Some Rangers refuse to take any leave. As for bearing, the Black Berets' motto is also old fashioned: "Cool, Calm and Hard."

In short, the Rangers are traditionalists, and of the best customs of the military experience. Conceived as British allies before the Revolution, they have since fought in every American conflict, including both sides in the war of the states. "We're proud of the history," says Ranger commander Ed Yaugo, "we've been around."

Presently, there are 1,000 Rangers around. Yaugo commands a 500 man battalion here, and a group of equal size is stationed in Washington state. The men wear jungle fatigues as regulation uniform. The black beret, of course, is a variation of a theme made popular by another elite unit, the Special Forces of the Vietnam era. Not incidentally, Col. Yaugo was quickly dismissed from the battalion. Marijuana is forbidden, disobedience is nearly a capital offense. "If a Ranger receives two citations for drunk driving," says Ed Yaugo, "we can't keep him."

This piety has its social consequence. For example, Rangers are not allowed to fight, partly because of their unfair advantage. Hence many of the men have given up going to bars and other public places. "I know it's strict," says Yaugo, "but we mind our manners; besides, really tough people don't have to go around proving it."

The colonel says Rangers save their muscle for their mission, which in peace and war is that of a strike force. Presently, the Black Berets constitute the nation's best hope in case of terrorist attack. If the secretary of state is kidnapped, or a nuclear power plant overrun, authorities would likely call on the Rangers for help. Yaugo says his unit is qualified for any eventuality. As modified by the late Gen. Creighton Abrams, the Rangers own no heavy equipment (Yaugo has only one vehicle: a jeep); instead of brute force, they rely on stealth and ingenuity. Primarily Rangers work at night, dropping silently by parachute, with supplies on their backs.

To date, the Ranger missions have been merely practice. Yaugo's group has rescued an "American consul" who was being held in a barbed wire compound. They also have extracted 30 actors who were being held "hostage" in an oil refinery. If the real thing happens, however, Col. Yaugo says his men can be ready in "minutes."

Until the real thing does happen, the Black Berets will continue to keep their noses clean, their waistlines trim, and the doors open at the commissary. Other troops may laugh at their white sidewalls and tailored fatigues, but, as Ed Yaugo puts it, "I would think most Americans are glad that folks like us still exist."

'Cool, calm and hard'
 That's the motto of the Black Berets. But, says Col. Ed Yaugo, the Rangers are also trying to cultivate a "gentlemanly" image. "Being tough is one thing," says Yaugo, "but being decent is more important."

Stockholder sues food company

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A Gerber products Co. stockholder is suing in U.S. District Court for damages stemming from a lowering of the bid price for Gerber shares by a Houston food conglomerate that wants to take over the company.

The suit, filed Tuesday for New Jersey shareholder Larry Berman by the New York law firm of Bagin & Silverman, sought $8 in damages for each share of common stock in the nation's biggest baby food maker.

The suit was filed as a class action on behalf of all stockholders except company officers named as defendants, who hold about one million shares. At $8 a share, damages of other stockholders would exceed $66 million.

The suit stems from Gerber officials' opposition to a takeover attempt by Anderson, Clayton & Co. of Houston.

Anderson, Clayton offered to buy Gerber's 8.1 million shares at $40 per share. Just prior to the mid-April tender offer by the Texas firm, Gerber shares sold for $32 per share.

A drop in Gerber first-quarter earnings resulted in a reduction of the bid by Anderson, Clayton to $37 per share.

Michael Yaudovin, an attorney for Bagin & Silverman, emphasized that the suit was based on the difference of the market price and the offer when it was first tendered.

According to federal court rules, a plaintiff gets the court's permission to turn the suit into a class action. Berman, who owns 60 shares, intends to ask for it, Yaudovin said.

Gerber, based in nearby Fremont, Mich., attempted to block the Anderson, Clayton offer by filing suit in federal court charging violations of the anti-trust laws.

That suit and a companion

state suit has put the takeover bid in limbo.

Anderson Clayton is barred by Michigan law from buying any more Gerber stock, until 60 days after the registration of its offer by the state Corporation and Securities Bureau, a registration not yet effective.

The Texas firm was required by the Michigan Court of Appeals to amend its registration statement to acknowledge payment of "inducements" to foreign officials. The firm is under a restraining order until New York Circuit Judge Harold Van Domelen and Hugh Makens, director of the securities bureau, are satisfied the registration statement has been amended fully.

Dallas hits parking tickets

DALLAS (AP) — City of Dallas officials are getting ready to issue warrants and send a posse after more than 100,000 lawbreakers — recipients of unpaid parking tickets.

Chief city warrant officer Paul Ford said the crackdown, scheduled for September, will guarantee a trip to jail for those failing to heed notices going out to the recipients of 135,000 unpaid tickets.

The city has previously declined to issue arrest warrants for parking tickets alone, Ford said.

The crackdown, Ford said, was planned after city personnel developed the necessary computer program to hunt down the lawbreakers.

A daily "pickup list" will be issued to traffic officers, who will impound any illegally parked car belonging to a person on the wanted list.

"Many of the violators are delivery companies and car rental firms whose drivers simply do not tell them about the tickets," said Ford.

The first works of fiction to be called novels were composed in Italy in the late 13th century.

That suit and a companion

are satisfied the registration statement has been amended fully.

Clinic set for victims of Myasthenia Gravis

The annual Melba Brandy Masters Clinic for Myasthenia Gravis patients in this area is scheduled Aug. 26 and 27 at the Hi-Plains Hospital in Hale Center.

The clinic will be sponsored by the Northwest Texas Chapter of the Myasthenia Gravis Foundation.

The free clinic has been funded by a trust set up by the Masters families of Amarillo and Cotton Center. The fund is maintained through contributions enabling the free clinic to become the annual event.

The time set for the clinic will be from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. each day.

Dr. J.E. Tether of Indianapolis, Indiana will be in Hale Center to conduct the clinic, and will be assisted by the hospital's medical staff.

Myasthenia Gravis is a neuromuscular disease, characterized by varying weakness of the voluntary muscles of the body. It is aggravated by exertion, emotion, infection or stress. It is relieved in part by rest and anticholinesterase drugs.

Houston supe wants $298 million budget

HOUSTON (AP) — A record $298 million operating budget for Houston's public schools has been recommended by Supt. Billy Reagan.

The budget calls for the district's 17,000 employees to receive pay increases averaging 15 per cent over the next two years.

Reagan said the budget provides the "finest pay schedule in this part of the country or anywhere."

The largest increases approximating 20 per cent would go to the secretaries and clerks, with teachers following at 16 per cent and administrators at 13 per cent. Increases for maintenance workers would average 18.5 per cent.

The proposed budget is $43 million more than this year's, due primarily to about $25 million more in state aid.

The budget and a new pay schedule will be adopted, with any changes, when the school board meets Aug. 16.

Under the Reagan plan, new teachers with bachelor degrees would be paid $906 a month this year, compared with $830. The maximum for experienced teachers with bachelor degrees would increase from $1,330 to $1,750.

Cheers

The Mobeetie High School cheerleaders were among the more than 100 students attending the National Cheerleader and Pom Pom Camp at Southwestern State University, Weatherford, Okla. ## Guerrillas kill doctor, nun

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Black nationalist guerrillas forced their way into a mission in a remote region of Rhodesia and shot a German doctor and an Austrian nun dead, the national military command said Wednesday.

The woman physician, 59-year-old Dr. Johanna Decker, and the nun, Sister Ferdinanda, were reported to have been killed Tuesday at St. Paul's mission, in western Rhodesia 220 miles southwest of Salisbury.

The two white missionaries were shot in the back, according to a white man who said she survived by hiding.

The survivor said today that the group of about 10 blacks spent several hours drinking at a local beer hall before arriving at the mission.

The surviving nun, whose name was withheld, said the blacks intimidated the mission staff and forced patients to leave their beds.

Sister Ferdinanda was a recent arrival in Rhodesia who had spent several years as a nursing sister at the Precious Blood hospital in Durban, South Africa.

Dr. Johanna Davies, who had been a university student with Dr. Decker, was told of the shootings and said: "Apparently the terrorists asked (Dr. Decker) for money and she offered them all she had in the cash box but they said that was not enough."

"She offered to get some more from the house and as she turned to go they shot her in the back," Dr. Davies said. "I believe the... sister was also shot in the same way because she couldn't provide enough money for the terrorists."

Security forces began a manhunt in the area, where the Regina Mundi mission was attacked Saturday and Austrian-born building contractor Rudi Kogler, 45, was killed. Kogler was gunned down after he drew a concealed pistol and shot a guerrilla dead.

Nixon moving date coincidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The removal of Richard M. Nixon's tapes and papers from the White House complex on the third anniversary of his resignation as president was just a coincidence, the national archivist says.

"We don't keep up with things like that," said Dr. James B. Rhoads, when asked about the government's transfer of the Nixon administration records from the Executive Office Building to the National Archives on Wednesday.

Escorted by Air Force patrol cars, three moving vans, making two trips each, transported the 1,800 boxes of documents and 1,146 reels of tape recordings to the National Archives, 10 blocks down Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House.

Included in the shipment were papers of Nixon and his senior advisers, Nixon's national security files and the tapes. Less sensitive Nixon materials — administrative files, public opinion mail, audio-visual records and gifts — were transferred to the General Services Administration's storage facility at Suitland, Md., more than a year ago.

The Nixon records had been packed up and prepared for removal from the basement of the Executive Office Building during the former president's last days in office. But the records remained undisturbed while the government and Nixon fought over their custody.

The Supreme Court ended the fight six weeks ago by upholding the legality of a law awarding custody of the records to the government. So, instead of being sent to Nixon in San Clemente, the materials were trucked to the National Archives.

Archivists will begin immediately to sort through the materials to determine which will be made public. Papers and tapes involving Watergate will be processed first.

Feds push for agency consolidation on border

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Law enforcement on U.S. borders could become more efficient by consolidating the several often-competing agencies into a single superagency, says a preliminary White House planning document.

The Los Angeles Times disclosed existence of the document in Wednesday's editions.

A first step, says the report, could be to merge the Immigration and Naturalization Service and Customs Service into a new border management agency which could later be expanded to include agencies with secondary border functions such as the Fish and Wildlife Service or the Plant Health Inspection Service.

"Each of the border agencies is responsible for a specific part of border control and each agency pursues its own missions, sometimes in competition with the other federal border agencies and interests," the report says.

"When conflict between agencies appears, there is no effective mechanism to resolve the problem. Even through interagency agreements exist in writing, the operating problems continue."

The report, now reportedly under review by Cabinet departments, was prepared by the White House Office of Drug Abuse Policy in coordination with the Office of Management and Budget. Representatives of several other departments served on the survey team which prepared the report.

The disadvantages of a proposed superagency, the report said, include "possible loss of effectiveness during reorganization" and the potential for personnel turbulence resulting among executives of various departments as they are consolidated.

Both agencies, the report notes, use similar methods as well as expensive and sophisticated equipment such as sensors and night-vision devices.

Black Berets: low profile, discipline

By Tom Tiede

FT. STEWART, Ga. — (NEA) — The conventional wisdom is that the Army isn't what it used to be: though pay and privileges are up, standards and discipline are down; washouts proliferate, so do minority members who can't get civilian jobs; as for esprit de corps it has gone the way of brown boots, rolling caissons and George S. Patton.

Yet here in the Georgian piney woods, tuxid Plains and the sea, there is at least one vestige of good old gung ho: the airborne Rangers. Heads shaved, uniforms crisp, every man from Krypton, the "Black Berets" are a mirror of what sentimentalists say the Army once was: the best trained and toughest fighting force on the globe.

Assuredly, the Rangers are tough. The physical program would weary an ox. Each man must be able to run 10 miles in 90 minutes, and march 100 miles carrying 100 pounds of gear. The commander of the Ft. Stewart hospital says physicians hate to schedule surgery for the men, because "we have to go through all that muscle."

And too, the Black Berets receive extraordinary training. They are as familiar with foreign weapons as they are their own. They are proficient in first aid, land survival, hand to hand combat, and must be prepared to fight on any terrain. In recent months Rangers have been in Panama jungles, Texas deserts and Alaskan tundra.

But principally the Rangers are set apart by their attitude. In a time of military change, they are stiff, obedient and patriotic. No Afros are permitted. On holidays 85 percent of the force is working. Some Rangers refuse to take

In short, the Rangers are traditionalists, and of the best customs of the military experience. Conceived as British allies before the Revolution, they have since fought in every American conflict, including both sides in the war of the states. "We're proud of the history," says Ranger commander Ed Yaugo, "we've been around."

Presently, there are 1,000 Rangers around. Yaugo commands a 500 man battalion here, and a group of equal size is stationed in Washington state. The men wear jungle fatigues as regulation uniform. The black beret, of course, is a variation of a theme made popular by another elite unit, the Special Forces of the Vietnam era.

Not incidentally, Col. Yaugo says the similarities between the Rangers and the Special Forces end with the cap. The Green Berets were the supermen who came a cropper in Southeast Asia. They were nearly devastated by excessive publicity, and now are fighting for existence in the Army structure. Yaugo insists Rangers will not follow in kind.

Unlike Special Forces, Yaugo says the Rangers are trying to cultivate a "gentlemanly" image: "We have it when our people open doors for the ladies at the commissary; very often we get notes from others saying how courteous and considerate our men are." Being tough, is one thing; Yaugo adds, "being decent is more important."

Ranger rules insist on rigid decency. Recently a trooper confessed to stealing nine weapons from a gun store; he was quickly dismissed from the battalion. Marijuana is forbidden, disobedience is nearly a capital offense. "If a Ranger receives two citations for drunk driving," says Ed Yaugo, "we can't keep him."

This piety has its social consequence. For example, Rangers are not allowed to fight, partly because of their unfair advantage. Hence many of the men have given up going to bars and other public places. "I know it's strict," says Yaugo, "but we mind our manners; besides, really tough people don't have to go around proving it."

The colonel says Rangers save their muscle for their mission, which in peace and war is that of a strike force. Presently, the Black Berets constitute the nation's best hope in case of terrorist attack. If the secretary of state is kidnapped, or a nuclear power plant overrun, authorities would likely call on the Rangers for help.

Yaugo says his unit is qualified for any eventuality. As modified by the late Gen. Creighton Abrams, the Rangers own no heavy equipment (Yaugo has only one vehicle: a jeep); instead of brute force, they rely on stealth and ingenuity. Primarily Rangers work at night, dropping silently by parachute, with resupplies on their backs.

To date, the Ranger missions have been merely practice. Yaugo's group has rescued an "American consul" who was being held in a barbed wire compound. They also have extracted 30 actors who were being held "hostage" in an oil refinery. If the real thing happens, however, Col. Yaugo says his men can be ready in "minutes."

Until the real thing does happen, the Black Berets will continue to keep their noses clean, their waistlines trim, and the doors open at the commissary. Other troops may laugh at their white sidewalls and tailored fatigues, but, as Ed Yaugo puts it, "I would think most Americans are glad that folks like us still exist."

'Cool, calm and hard'

Florida hybrid thrives as Texas "superbass"

By ROBERT L. HANEY

The "superbass" that has excited Texas fishermen in recent years is the result of the Florida strain of large-mouth bass crossing with the hardy native strain.

Both the resultant vigorous hybrid and the Florida bass are faster growing and tougher to land, according to Dr. Richard L. Noble, associate professor of wildlife and fisheries sciences with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Texas A&M University.

Fish populations and production in freshwater impoundments are being studied by a group of scientists under the direction of Noble.

One of the things they're seeking to determine is the factors which control production of game fish in inland waters of Texas.

Establishment of Florida bass in Trinidad Lake was a project started by this group in 1972 in cooperation with Texas Parks and Wildlife and Texas Power and Light Company.

The lake is a TP&L cooling lake in Henderson County. Annual plantings of Florida bass fingerlings from 1972-1975 resulted in the establishment of rapid growing bass, some weighing 7 1/2 pounds after four years.

Such rapid growth, Noble says, is caused by a combination of warm water temperatures created by the power plant and an abundance of natural fish food.

The bass preyed heavily on blue tilapia, a tropical brim-like fish native to northeast Africa and the Middle East. The tilapia got into Trinidad Lake in the late 1960's and rapidly increased until they reached densities of over 2,000 pounds per acre.

Although the tilapia provided food for predatory fish they still became so abundant they crowded out other species of fish.

In particular, largemouth bass spawning was prevented after 1972. Consequently, by the end of 1975, the bass population of the lake consisted mostly of stocked Florida bass and a minority of old native bass.

But during the winter of 1975-1976, a massive die-off of tilapia occurred when the power plant was shut down for maintenance. The tilapia, which must have temperatures above 50 degrees Fahrenheit to survive, were unable to tolerate water temperatures which fell below 40 degrees during a December norther.

Subsequent studies by Noble, sponsored by the Sport Fishing Research Foundation, indicate that apparently not a single tilapia survived the winter.

Bass spawning resumption was one of the results of the tilapia die-off. Sampling in 1976 and 1977 indicated that bass produced naturally in even greater numbers than those stocked in previous years.

Most of the young bass are neither Florida nor natives but rather a cross between the two.

"Although it is too early to evaluate whether growth of bass will be suppressed by the lack of tilapia as food," Noble says, "the high occurrence of hybrids is encouraging."

"It indicates that Florida largemouth can be stocked into existing populations with assurance that the additional benefit of hybrid production may be realized as they reach spawning size."

Further studies of the interactions of Florida and native bass are being conducted in smaller lakes and ponds to determine the extent of hybridization under more carefully controlled conditions.

Although bass reproduction was allowed to occur in the absence of tilapia, not all responses of the lake fish populations were desirable. In particular, carp and buffalo also spawned successfully for the first time in five years.

The long-term effect of the proliferation of rough fish is not yet known.

Hopefully, that negative response will be overshadowed by the beneficial effects of bass spawnings and hybridizing as well as other desirable results such as the successful reproduction of white crappies and increased growth of sunfishes.

Signs predict good game season

By J.D. PEER

Texas Parks & Wildlife LUBBOCK — There are various techniques that personnel of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department use to predict the upcoming hunting seasons but, nature has her own indicators including an abundance of certain species of wildlife.

"We are seeing an abundance of grasshoppers and rabbits this year and if sportsmen will recall, every year that these two species are numerous, the hunting is good," said Ted Wheelis, Lubbock regional law enforcement supervisor.

"There are very dry spots across the Panhandle and South Plains but some areas have had too much rain at one time," Wheelis continued.

An over-population of grasshoppers might be bad for farm crops and the family garden but for game birds, it is a summer feast. Every species of bird including quail and turkey are finding plenty of the juicy hoppers this summer and the insects will be around until the first hard frost.

Ample numbers of cottontail rabbits mean plenty of food for the predators such as coyote and bobcat and less trouble for the farmer and his chickens. Reports have been received concerning the rabbits and their destruction of gardens in some areas. A barking dog and a tight fence could be the only answer as fall approaches and vegetables ripen.

P&WD predictions using the conventional methods of survey lines and aerial counts will be forthcoming soon but if nature's predictions carry any weight, 1977 should be a good year for Texas sportsmen and wildlife.

Dentist, 75, runs 50 miles a week

KNOX, Ind. (AP) — Everett Amos has found his own prescription for staying healthy—running 50 miles a week even though he's 75 years old.

Amos, a dentist, didn't begin running until 1960 when he semi-retired from his practice. Last year, he ran and walked a 26-mile stretch for the first time. And this year, Amos completed the Boston Marathon in less than six hours.

"That was hard," admitted Amos, who may have been the oldest man ever to complete the event. "The race is a lot of hills, and when I was through, I could hardly make it up a flight of stairs. In fact, a couple of other runners had to help me pull my sweat pants over my shoes."

Amos said he began running after noticing some muscle deterioration when he was 48. "I decided I wasn't going to put up with this old age-business."

He began by running in place just one minute a day and later moved to a treadmill. After some prodding from his physician and a fellow runner, Dr. Howard Henry, Amos started running outside.

"I found out I had all kinds of pain," said Amos. "But I started being able to make three or four miles and kept going from there. I remember the first time I ran 11 miles—I thought I was going to die."

When the doctor ran his first marathon last year, his wife, Martha, immediately had Dr. Henry check his condition.

"You make sure there is nothing wrong with him," she said, greeting them with a stethoscope.

"I think that his running is wonderful now," said Mrs. Amos. "He was really falling apart before he started running. Now, look at him—look at that shine in his eyes."

The belief in staying in good physical shape has enabled Dr. Amos to stay active as a dentist.

"I work a day and take a day off. I don't overdo it. Martha and I also spend about four months of the year in Guadalajara, Mexico, where I keep up my running."

"You know, it's funny, I never was an athlete, had no interest in sports and don't consider myself an athlete now," he said.

Turtle status studied

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced it is undertaking a review of status of 11 species of turtles to determine whether they should be proposed for inclusion on the list of endangered or threatened wildlife and plants.

undisturbed rivers and larger creeks. Today, many of these rivers have been canalized or otherwise severely modified by man resulting in the loss of much available turtle habitat. The modification of habitat, coupled with a rather limited range for many of the species, appears to have caused a serious decline in the populations of these species.

Historically, most of the turtles in this review occur in the Southeastern United States where they lived in relatively

San Juan fishery saved

The National Wildlife Federation has won a federal court suit it filed to save "one of the ten best trout streams in the United States."

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas A. Flannery, in Washington, D.C., ordered the U.S. Department of the Interior to cease construction of a 23-megawatt power plant at Navajo Dam on the San Juan River in northwestern New Mexico because Interior proceeded "in violation of several acts of Congress and without proper authorization from Congress."

The court agreed with NWF's assertion that "Congress expressly disapproved such a power plant at Navajo Dam," which is part of the Navajo Indian Irrigation Project (NIIP). The conservationists supported all other features of the NIIP. They singled out the power plant because of its "unnecessarily drastic impacts" on the river.

Judge Flannery upheld NWF's argument that the projected water releases from the power plant would cause fluctuations in the relatively constant stream flow to the detriment of fish and wildlife downstream. Rapid hourly or daily river height fluctuations, according to state and federal fish and game officials, could destroy food sources and spawning areas for rainbow and brown trout and would periodically flood migratory waterfowl nesting sites.

The court also agreed with NWF's contention that the Secretary of the Interior and two other defendants failed to consider specific impacts and alternate sources of power prior to awarding a plant construction contract.

If the Interior Department meets the various National Environmental Protection Act and Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act requirements through administrative or Congressional action, the power plant could still be built.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has estimated that fishermen spend 50,000 man days a year in the Navajo Dam area, and the State of New Mexico Department of Fish and Game has estimated that the economic value to the state from year-round fishing in the dam area is at least $500,000 a year.

Area fishing report

Compiled by the Canyon Fisheries Lab of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department

Greenbelt Reservoir - Channel catfishing is very good with several large fish being caught. Fish in the 11 to 15 pound class have been caught. Bass fishing is slow with a few being caught. One 6 pound bass was caught last week. Panfish are biting well but fishing for walleye and crappie is slow. One 12 1/2 pound northern pike was caught over the period. The water temperature is 78 degrees and the lake depth is 72.3 feet.

Lake Meredith - Fishing for walleye has remained pretty good in water 45-56 feet deep. Several limit catches were reported over the period, mostly fish in the 2-4 pound size. One 8 pound walleye was caught. Channel catfishing is very good for fish from 3 to 18 pounds. Some nice flathead catfish in 18 pounds have also been caught. Crappie fishing has been slow. Most other fishing is slow. The water temperature at 5 feet is 76 degrees and the lake depth is 82.9 feet.

Lake McChesna - The water temperature is now 84 degrees and the lake is 16 inches below spillway level. Channel catfishing is good for fish up to 16 pounds. Bass fishing has been fair though mostly small fish have been caught. Fishing is slow for crappie.

Lake Macklede - A late season run on crappie appears to be developing. Several parties caught 3 or 4 crappie each which were 8-18 inches long. Bass in the 1-2 pound class are showing up pretty regularly, one individual caught a 9 inch fish. Channel catfishing is still good particularly on water dogs. The lake temperature is 78 degrees at 5 feet and the depth is 85.2 feet. The lake has cleared considerably since the heavy rains of early summer.

Lake Boyler - Fishing has slowed somewhat though a few good fish are still being caught. Some nice channel catfish in 11.5 pounds have been caught at night and numerous smaller fish also at night. Sunfishing is good but fishing for crappie is slow.

Lake Nerwin - Bass fishing has been very good on black topwater baits. Two fishermen caught a string of 22 bass last week, most of the bass are in the 1 to 3 1/2 pound range. Channel catfishing is pretty slow but bluegill fishing is very good for panfish.

Lake Pauline - Fishing for most species is slow though a few bass, channel catfish and crappie are being caught. Most of the bass and channel catfish are in the 1 1/2-3 pound range.

Copper Breeds State Park Lake - Bass and channel catfishing is generally slow with a few of each being caught. Most fish are small but one 3 pound bass was caught. One string of 9 bass was taken during the period. Fishing for hybrid sunfish is very good on small topwater baits. These sunfish weigh from 1/2 to 1 pound.

Lake Theo - Early and late fishing for channel catfish is good. Fishing for other species has been slow. Recent rains may improve the fishing for bass and crappie.

Lake Rita Blanca - The lake is rising again and the water temperature is 78 degrees. Fishing for bass has been very good for fish in the 1 1/2 to 3 1/2 pound range. Waterdogs and bass have been catching the fish. Channel catfishing has been good at night for fish weighing from 2 to 7 pounds. The lake has cleared some since the heavy runoff of earlier this year.

"You can take the good fresh flavor of Mrs Baird's Bread for granted. It's not going to change."

Pampans surviving The Dry Look

Two late-afternoon fixtures of the youth center weight room, former Harvester standouts Rick Leverich and Kelley Baker, are listed as second-string on TCU depth charts after moving up from the JV team.

But they'll tell you it hasn't been easy.

Leverich, a junior defensive back, and Baker, a sophomore defensive end, are working out under a running-weight lifting program devised by new TCU mentor F.A. Dry. The players are expected to lift weights three times a week, and be able to run two miles in 12 minutes.

But after experiencing initiation to "The Dry Look" during spring training, Leverich and Baker aren't taking any chances. They've been working out daily in preparation for fall camp under the former marine.

Dry jumped from Tulsa to rebuild the Frogs after TCU's football program reached new depths (8-11) under Jim Shofner, and evidently he believes the players lacked the strict discipline required for a winner.

During spring training, Dry put the Frogs through such rigorous drills that Leverich estimated 15 players quit the team, including two starters. "Shofner was lax in his rules and regulations," Leverich said. "We didn't have curfews or bedchecks. Shofner and his practices were a picnic compared to Dry's. Shofner had come from the NFL, and expected us to act like pros."

However, The Dry Look was a different story. "When we first lined up," Baker said, "He told us 'I'm going to push you to the breaking point and then push you some more.'"

Dry divided the squad into eight - man teams which competed against each other in the workouts. If a member of a team "messed up," the entire team was forced to repeat the drill. Exercises such as high stepping or duck walking backwards across the field at snail's pace caused a couple of players to pass out during a given workout, Baker said.

Unmercifully, the day's drills ended with a requirement of 20 100-yard dashes under 15 sec.

"The workouts were so tough that after a while your mind seemed to leave your body and you were just going on instinct," Leverich said. "It got to be a matter of survival."

Although Leverich and Baker undoubtedly cursed the TCU coaches under their breath during the workouts, the Pampa grads stand behind the new philosophy. "I give Dry credit for wanting to start fresh. He wanted to see who had guts, and who could play, and he gave everybody a chance," Leverich said.

"If we don't win under Coach Dry we'll never win," added Baker.

Obviously TCU lacks the talent of an A&M or Tech on paper, but out - conditioning the opposition might enable the Frogs to leap out of the SWC cellar. However, there is always the danger that the TCU players will be burned out before the season starts.

Max Patkin, The Clown Prince of Baseball, will perform at the Gold Sox - Midland game tonight in Amarillo. Patkin, who pitched in the minors for six seasons, is the only full - time baseball clown still active. He started his buffoonery as clown - coach in 1946 for the Cleveland Indians under the innovative Bill Vecek.

I caught Patkin's act at an Albuquerque Duke's (Dodger Triple A team) game a few years ago and he had me rolling. Even the non-baseball fan would find the trip to Memorial Stadium well worth the effort to witness a piece of baseball history.

The growing popularity of racquetball in the Panhandle is evidenced by the increasing quality of competition. Two years ago, George Smith, youth center director, won the B division of the Top - O - Texas Racquetball Tournament in Amarillo. But when he returned to defend his title last year, Smith failed to make the semifinals.

Beginning with an analysis of the Dallas Cowboys today, the Pampa News sports page will periodically include NFL team analyses by Murray Olderman of the Newspaper Enterprise Association.

Since all the analyses were completed prior to the final cuts, Olderman mentions several players who are no longer with a team. But, I feel his column has enough validity to warrant its publication although I do not necessarily agree with his predictions.

Royals cool hot Rangers

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — The defending American League West Division champion Kansas City Royals are making their move and to hear Manager Whitey Herzog tell it, there's not a tense soul on the club.

"Oh, everybody still goes out and gets drunk at night," Herzog joked Wednesday night after the Royals nipped Texas 4-3 and moved within 2 1/2 games of first-place Chicago.

"It's too early to get all revved up," said Herzog. "Of course, if a team gets hot and wins 15 games in a row, the last two weeks of the season won't mean a thing."

"But it (the race), should go to the wire."

Herzog said, "At this time last year, we were 8 1/2 games in front and then went into a slump on Aug. 26 when we quit hitting. That gives you an idea of how much time is left for teams to make their moves."

Herzog, saying he didn't want to make Chicago and Minnesota mad, put the finger on the Rangers as the toughest of the contenders.

"I think the Rangers are the team to beat," said Herzog. "They're a much better team than the last time I saw them. The catcher (Jim Sundberg) has just been going wild with the bat."

Kansas City has now won six of its last eight games, while Texas has won 10 of its last 13.

In the final game of the series tonight, Texas' Doyle Alexander, 11-7, was scheduled to meet Jim Colborn, 12-10.

Brett. Drive caromed a two-run line drive single off shortstop Bert Campaneris' glove in the third inning to put Kansas City ahead 4-2.

With runners on third and first and one out in the bottom of the eighth, Bump Willis hit a shoe-top high liner down the third base line that Brett gloved and then gunned down the Ranger runner at first for a double play.

Dennis Leonard, 12-9, lasted seven and one-third innings, but needed relief help from left-hander Larry Gura.

Gura earned his eighth save of the season, by pitching one and two-thirds innings of hitless ball.

Gaylord Perry, 10-9, was the victim despite striking out 13 Royals. Texas took a 2-0 lead in the second inning on a single by Dave May, an RBI double by Willis, and Sundberg's run-producing single.

Hal McRae hit a two-run homer to tie the game in the third inning.

"When the bottom half of your batting order gets hot, I can tell you right now you're going to win," said Herzog, "and that has starter to happen to us."

Kansas City has now won six of its last eight games, while Texas has won 10 of its last 13.

In the final game of the series tonight, Texas' Doyle Alexander, 11-7, was scheduled to meet Jim Colborn, 12-10.

Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers fanned ten or more men in a game 97 times.

Watson's clubs ruled illegal

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Tom Watson was using a different set of clubs today in his quest for a third major tournament title this year—the 58th PGA Championship.

Watson has won five 1977 tournaments, including the Masters and British Open, with a set of clubs declared illegal Wednesday because the grooves in the irons exceeded legal limits in width and spacing. He had voluntarily asked that they be inspected.

Watson and Ray Floyd and Gary Player, who also had several clubs disqualified, were among a handful of players in the field of 141 who had requested a ruling on their clubs by Clyde Mangum, deputy commissioner of the PGA tour, on the eve of the PGA Championship at the drought-stricken Pebble Beach Golf Links.

After the initial publicity, other players brought their bags to Mangum for an inspection and he found that at least five others were carrying clubs that did not meet the specifications.

Those players included Tom Weiskopf and Kermit Zarley, with illegal pitching wedges. Hale Irwin with illegal eight and nine-irons and John Lister and Floyd Thompson, each with several illegal clubs.

Mangum said the interest of the players was generated as a result of George Burns being disqualified after the second round a week ago at Hartford, Conn., after he had requested an official inspection of new clubs he was using. They were found to exceed the legal limits.

Mangum said the rules permit grooves to be no wider than 35-100ths of an inch across the entire groove and to be no closer together than three times the width.

"It's the nature of the sport that the players police themselves," said Mangum, who also noted that Watson had a similar set of clubs ruled illegal

a year ago in Houston after requesting an inspection.

Officials said Watson's previous victories would not be affected by the ruling.

Watson is using the same clubs with which he won the 1975 British Open, ones which have lighter shafts than the irons declared illegal.

His main regret is that the sand wedge in the set he has been using for the last 14 months also was considered to have grooves too deep.

"I can always get a set of irons," he said. "But the sand wedge I'm using is not mine to keep. I borrowed one from Leonard Thompson."

Watson said he didn't think the lighter shafts would affect his play.

"It will be a little different feel," he said. "I hope that I can adjust to it."

"Big Cat" -- duffer's delight

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The "Golden Bear" may be the undisputed king of tournament golf, but the envy of every duffer who tees the ball up with his weekend foursome is a man called "Big Cat."

Jack Nicklaus wins championships. Evan "Big Cat" Williams simply knocks the ball out of sight. He is the recognized Babe Ruth of the fairway set, winner for the second straight year of the PGA long-driving contest.

"I just relax, delay my hand release, give it some strong leg action and wham!—let'er rip," says the towering, 29-year-old slugger from Leonia, N.J.

Even such fabled hitters as Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf and Jim Dent look with awe—and a certain amount of concealed jealousy—when Big Cat throws his 6-foot-6, 205-pound frame into a tee shot and watches the ball fly more than 300 yards.

Ordinary mortals recognize that stringing up 63 tour victories and 16 major titles, as Nicklaus has done, defies their imagination. But anyone can walk up to a tee, and with one free swing and some luck, knock the cover off the ball. It warms the soul.

"I've been hitting the ball a long way since I was 18, but it wasn't until three years ago that I discovered that I might make a career out of long driving," Williams said.

Kensler calls 'em

by Tom Kensler, sports editor

Two late-afternoon fixtures of the youth center weight room, former Harvester standouts Rick Leverich and Kelley Baker, are listed as second-string on TCU depth charts after moving up from the JV team.

But they'll tell you it hasn't been easy.

Leverich, a junior defensive back, and Baker, a sophomore defensive end, are working out under a running-weight lifting program devised by new TCU mentor F.A. Dry. The players are expected to lift weights three times a week, and be able to run two miles in 12 minutes.

But after experiencing initiation to "The Dry Look" during spring training, Leverich and Baker aren't taking any chances. They've been working out daily in preparation for fall camp under the former marine.

Dry jumped from Tulsa to rebuild the Frogs after TCU's football program reached new depths (0-11) under Jim Shofner, and evidently he believes the players lacked the strict discipline required for a winner.

During spring training, Dry put the Frogs through such rigorous drills that Leverich estimated 15 players quit the team, including two starters. "Shofner was lax in his rules and regulations," Leverich said. "We didn't have curfews or bedchecks. Shofner and his practices were a picnic compared to Dry's. Shofner had come from the NFL, and expected us to act like pros."

However, The Dry Look was a different story. "When we first lined up," Baker said, "He told us 'I'm going to push you to the breaking point and then push you some more.'"

Dry divided the squad into eight-man teams which competed against each other in the workouts. If a member of a team "messed up," the entire team was forced to repeat the drill. Exercises such as high stepping or duck walking backwards across the field at snail's pace caused a couple of players to pass out during a given workout, Baker said.

Unmercifully, the day's drills ended with a requirement of 20 100-yard dashes under 15 sec.

"The workouts were so tough that after a while your mind seemed to leave your body and you were just going on instinct," Leverich said. "It got to be a matter of survival."

Pampans surviving The Dry Look

Although Leverich and Baker undoubtedly cursed the TCU coaches under their breath during the workouts, the Pampa grads stand behind the new philosophy. "I give Dry credit for wanting to start fresh. He wanted to see who had guts, and who could play, and he gave everybody a chance," Leverich said.

"If we don't win under Coach Dry we'll never win," added Baker.

Obviously TCU lacks the talent of an A&M or Tech on paper, but out-conditioning the opposition might enable the Frogs to leap out of the SWC cellar. However, there is always the danger that the TCU players will be burned out before the season starts.

Max Patkin, The Clown Prince of Baseball, will perform at the Gold Sox - Midland game tonight in Amarillo. Patkin, who pitched in the minors for six seasons, is the only full-time baseball clown still active. He started his buffoonery as clown-coach in 1946 for the Cleveland Indians under the innovative Bill Vecek.

and he had me rolling. Even the non-baseball fan would find the trip to Memorial Stadium well worth the effort to witness a piece of baseball history.

The growing popularity of racquetball in the Panhandle is evidenced by the increasing quality of competition. Two years ago, George Smith, youth center director, won the B division of the Top-O-Texas Racquetball Tournament in Amarillo. But when he returned to defend his title last year, Smith failed to make the semifinals.

Beginning with an analysis of the Dallas Cowboys today, the Pampa News sports page will periodically include NFL team analyses by Murray Olderman of the Newspaper Enterprise Association.

Since all the analyses were completed prior to the final cuts, Olderman mentions several players who are no longer with a team. But, I feel his column has enough validity to warrant its publication although I do not necessarily agree with his predictions.

Royals cool hot Rangers

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — The defending American League West Division champion Kansas City Royals are making their move and to hear Manager Whitey Herzog tell it, there's not a tense soul on the club.

"Oh, everybody still goes out and gets drunk at night," Herzog joked Wednesday night after the Royals nipped Texas 4-3 and moved within 2 1/2 games of first-place Chicago.

"It's too early to get all revved up," said Herzog. "Of course, if a team gets hot and wins 15 games in a row, the last two weeks of the season won't mean a thing."

"But it (the race), should go to the wire."

Herzog said, "At this time last year, we were 8 1/2 games in front and then went into a slump on Aug. 26 when we quit hitting. That gives you an idea of how much time is left for teams to make their moves."

Herzog, saying he didn't want to make Chicago and Minnesota mad, put the finger on the Rangers as the toughest of the contenders.

"I think the Rangers are the team to beat," said Herzog. "They're a much better team than the last time I saw them. The catcher (Jim Sundberg) has just been going wild with the bat."

Kansas City won the first game of the brief two-game series with the clutch hitting of Frank White and a brilliant defensive play in the eighth inning by third baseman George Brett. White caromed a two-run line drive single off shortstop Bert Campaneris' glove in the third inning to put Kansas City ahead 4-2.

With runners on third and first and one out in the bottom of the eighth, Bump Wills hit a shoe-top high liner down the third base line that Brett gloved and then gunned down the Ranger runner at first for a double play.

Gura earned his eighth save of the season, by pitching one and two-thirds innings of hitless ball.

Gaylord Perry, 10-9, was the victim despite striking out 13 Royals. Texas took a 2-0 lead in the second inning on a single by Dave May, an RBI double by Wills, and Sundberg's run-producing single.

Hal McRae hit a two-run homer to tie the game in the third inning.

"When the bottom half of your batting order gets hot, I can tell you right now you're going to win," said Herzog, "and that has started to happen to us."

Kansas City has now won six of its last eight games, while Texas has won 10 of its last 13.

In the final game of the series tonight, Texas' Doyle Alexander, 11-7, was scheduled to meet Jim Colborn, 12-10.

Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers fanned ten or more men in a game 97 times.

Watson's clubs ruled illegal

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Tom Watson was using a different set of clubs today in his quest for a third major tournament title this year—the 58th PGA Championship.

Watson has won five 1977 tournaments, including the Masters and British Open, with a set of clubs declared illegal Wednesday because the grooves in the irons exceeded legal limits in width and spacing. He had voluntarily asked that they be inspected.

Watson and Ray Floyd and Gary Player, who also had several clubs disqualified, were among a handful of players in the field of 141 who had requested a ruling on their clubs by Clyde Mangum, deputy commissioner of the PGA tour, on the eve of the PGA Championship at the drought-stricken Pebble Beach Golf Links.

After the initial publicity, other players brought their bags to Mangum for an inspection and he found that at least five others were carrying clubs that did not meet the specifications.

Those players included Tom Weiskopf and Kermit Zarley, with illegal pitching wedges. Hale Irwin with illegal eight and nine-irons and John Lister and Floyd Thomson, each with several illegal clubs.

Mangum said the interest of the players was generated as a result of George Burns being disqualified after the second round a week ago at Hartford, Conn., after he had requested an official inspection of new clubs he was using. They were found to exceed the legal limits.

Mangum said the rules permit grooves to be no wider than 35-100ths of an inch across the entire groove and to be no closer together than three times the width.

"It's the nature of the sport that the players police themselves," said Mangum, who also noted that Watson had a similar set of clubs ruled illegal

a year ago in Houston after requesting an inspection.

Officials said Watson's previous victories would not be affected by the ruling.

Watson is using the same clubs with which he won the 1975 British Open, ones which have lighter shafts than the irons declared illegal.

His main regret is that the sand wedge in the set he has been using for the last 14 months also was considered to have grooves too deep.

"I can always get a set of irons," he said. "But the sand wedge I'm using is not mine to keep. I borrowed one from Leonard Thompson."

Watson said he didn't think the lighter shafts would affect his play.

"It will be a little different feel," he said. "I hope that I can adjust to it."

"Big Cat" -- duffer's delight

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The "Golden Bear" may be the undisputed king of tournament golf, but the envy of every duffer who tees the ball up with his weekend foursome is a man called "Big Cat."

Jack Nicklaus wins championships. Evan "Big Cat" Williams simply knocks the ball out of sight. He is the recognized Babe Ruth of the fairway set, winner for the second straight year of the PGA long-driving contest.

"I just relax, delay my hand release, give it some strong leg action and wham!—let'er rip," says the towering, 29-year-old slugger from Leonia, N.J.

Even such fabled hitters as Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf and Jim Dent look with awe—and a certain amount of concealed jealousy—when Big Cat throws his 6-foot-6, 205-pound frame into a tee shot and watches the ball fly more than 300 yards.

Ordinary mortals recognize that stringing up 63 tour victories and 16 major titles, as Nicklaus has done, defies their imagination. But anyone can walk up to a tee, and with one free swing and some luck, knock the cover off the ball. It warms the soul.

"I've been hitting the ball a long way since I was 18, but it wasn't until three years ago that I discovered that I might make a career out of long driving," Williams said.

Seven Seas searches deepwater for oil

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. — Imagine yourself standing on top of a tall building and trying to pitch a penny through the hole of a doughnut lying on the ground. Better yet, imagine yourself trying to do this from a rowboat — with the doughnut lying at the bottom of the lake.

That illustration suggests one of the difficulties confronting the crew of the deep water drillship — Discoverer Seven Seas — now searching for oil beneath the ocean floor. In this case, their "penny" is a drill pipe, their "doughnut" a hole in the sea bed.

Seeking out the oil resources locked in ocean depths is increasingly important for the Western democracies, which have become more and more dependent in recent years on oil from the Middle East. Thus, the need for oil consuming nations to develop additional supplies is giving added impetus to the deepwater search.

W. A. Roberts, executive vice president of Phillips natural resources group, recently stated that even if the U.S. held its energy growth rate to two per cent per year through 1985, "there would be an increase in energy use of 24 per cent for the decade."

In the summer of 1975 the SEAGAP group, which includes Phillips Petroleum Company, Getty Oil Company (U.S.A.), AGIP, S.P.A. (Italy) and Hispanoil, S.A. (Spain) oil companies, leased Discoverer Seven Seas for worldwide oil exploration. Getty is the coordinator of the drillship operation. Offshore International, S.A., a subsidiary of the Offshore Company, owns and operates the ship. It is drilling in the Red Sea, in water 1,800 feet deep.

Discoverer Seven Seas uses a different type of technology than ships used for drilling in shallower water. The ship is equipped to drill in 4,500 feet of water, a depth far beyond the capacity of the previous generation of drillships. Allowing the ship to drill at such great depths is its capacity for "dynamic positioning." That is, in contrast to earlier exploratory ships, Discoverer Seven Seas doesn't rely on anchors to keep it steady. Instead, it uses six computer-controlled thrusters in combination with propellers on its hull to hold its position. It can go backwards, forward or sideways to correct any drift off its prescribed location.

Sonic beacons on the ocean floor mark the area where the ship has to stay. Signals from the beacons are picked up by sensing devices attached to the precise thruster combinations.

The computerized system allows the ship to drill in deeper water and more accurately than earlier models. This system, coupled with newly installed safety equipment, helps to protect the $14 million "riser," a sort of steel umbilical cord that ties the ship's drilling rig to equipment on the sea floor.

SEAGAP became active in deepwater exploration because of its belief that perhaps half of the oil produced in 1985 may come from offshore wells. And a significant portion of that offshore production will come from sea depths greater than 600 feet, where only deepwater ships are effective.

The price of finding such oil will be high. Discoverer Seven Seas, for example, costs in excess of $100,000 per day to operate and support, and to drill one well might take several months.

To illustrate the "shakedown well" drilled last winter off the Ivory Coast, found a small, non-commercial gas deposit. Drilling and mobilization costs were more than $19 million.

When it does find commercial oil and gas deposits, Discoverer Seven Seas will probably not be involved in production, since its function is exploratory. Permanent facilities would have to be built to produce an offshore field.

Backers of the ship hope that a commercial field will be found in the Red Sea. But whether it is or not, Discoverer Seven Seas will go on to explore the offshore waters of other countries.

In the meantime, there's plenty of work on board to keep crewmen busy, both drilling for oil and training crews for other "ships of the future."

During drilling operations, Discoverer Seven Seas becomes a miniature United Nations, reflecting the worldwide nature of the modern search for oil. At one point, in December, the regular crew and trainees comprised 28 Americans (mostly from Texas and Louisiana), 32 Britons, 50 Filipinos, 20 "Ivorians" (Ivory Coast) and seven from other lands. The supervising team is made up of representatives from the U.S., Italy and Spain.

Probably a crew's most exciting moments occur when they attempt to reinsert the drill pipe into the hole — to pitch the "penny" into the "doughnut". The activities are strikingly reminiscent of the space launches of the 1960s. Reinforcing this impression is the ship's radio contact with the ship's headquarters in Houston — "mission control" for this ship as well as for the space flights. "Mission control" in this case is a private industry facility.

In the words of one visitor to Discoverer Seven Seas, "It was a lot like a missile launch. There were technicians monitoring computers. And the guys in the control room were continually talking with the drilling crew wearing headsets out on the drilling platform. The drill string had a video camera in it, so the drilling supervisors could see their progress. When they got the drill back in the hole, some of them began shouting, 'Touchdown!' and 'Re-entry has been made!'"

Although there has been a dramatic slowdown in the number of manned space flights, Americans and others looking for oil are still exploring a new frontier, one at the bottom of the sea. On ships such as Discoverer Seven Seas highly trained crews are using tomorrow's technologies to meet today's growing need for oil and gas.

Looking at the light side

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — It's late at night and you're fiddling with the knobs on your ham radio. Suddenly, you tune in Henry Kissinger?

The accent on the airwaves belongs to Ed Bolton, unemployed night club entertainer, singing-dog trainer, short wave radio enthusiast and Kissinger impersonator.

Bolton's Kissinger is so convincing that ham operators around the country have called their local newspapers to say they've chatted with the former secretary of state.

"My Kissinger is better than Rich Little's. And he's a millionaire and I'm sitting here counting my change. There has got to be something wrong," Bolton lamented.

Besides mimicking world leaders (Adolf Hitler and Franklin D. Roosevelt included), he says he can impersonate the whole Amos 'n Andy cast, sing operatic solos and entertain "in the style of Robert Goulet."

The 46-year-old Bolton says he's trying to sell his Kissinger routine to the revived "Laugh-In" television show — as soon as he can raise the money for a flight to Hollywood.

The Real Inspector Hound
WAUKOMIS, Okla. (AP) — He stalks the town by night. Residents don't know his name or where he comes from. He can strike at any time and retreat quickly into the darkness. He's the undercover dog catcher.

Borrowing from the world of espionage to solve its canine woes, this town has hired a man whose identity is concealed from all but his employers.

The reason? Waukomis, a community of about 300 residents in north-central Oklahoma, has had trouble keeping dog catchers. One's life was threatened. City employees asked to fill the post have faced threats and abuse from neighbors.

The new dog catcher, in the spirit of a secret agent, volunteered.

"He called me up wanting to know what we're doing about the dog problem," said Mayor Joe Hampton, who is reluctant to discuss the situation for fear he'll lose the new recruit.

The new dog catcher works nights and weekends. His telephone number is unlisted and town officials will not reveal his name. Residents cannot call him with complaints. The only others who know who he is — the dogs — can't blow his cover. That's the way he likes it.

Lobbying: In California, It's Taxing

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The 700 professional lobbyists in the California Capitol might be better off today if they had hired a lobbyist of their own down at city hall.

It seems that while the lobbyists were looking out for the interests of their clients and employers with the state legislature, an ordinance was enacted by the City Council imposing a business tax on lobbyists.

The first notices, asking for annual fees of $12 to $120 each, arrived in the mail Tuesday.

"It's a ripoff," complained lobbyist Larry Tabor of the Cannery League of California.

What's worse for the lobbyists is that the proposal has been pending for three years, and none of them had noticed.

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) —

Americans asked for cheap Mexican labor in the past and now should respect the rights of illegal aliens in the United States, said Mexico's representative to the national GI Forum convention.

Raul Roel Martinez said today President Carter's proposal of amnesty for illegal aliens is a "good measure," but that the solution to the illegal alien problem must be based on hu-

Beckham may or may not know about JFK assassination plot

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Assassination theorists may now want to add the name of Thomas E. Beckham to their list of possibly knowledgeable sources in the killing of President Kennedy.

Then again they may not.

Members of the House Committee on Assassinations felt compelled to interview Beckham here last month, but it's uncertain what they learned from the self-proclaimed country music singer and accused flimflam artist.

The Mobile Press, which reported Tuesday that two House investigators made a trip to Mobile to talk with Beckham, said a member of the House assassination team refused to discuss the visit.

The interview occurred in the city jail here on July 29, the day after Beckham was acquitted on a federal fraud-by-way charge. He remained in custody awaiting transfer to Pine Bluff, Ark., where more fraud charges are pending.

Jeff Stein, a Mobile attorney who represented Beckham, said he was on hand during part of the questioning by the House investigators.

Stein said Beckham told the men that he knew Lee Harvey Oswald in New Orleans and that Kennedy was the victim of a conspiracy. Stein said Beckham professed to know the names of the alleged conspirators but did not provide them while Stein was present.

Stein also mentioned that Beckham has a 300-page manuscript that tells all about the Kennedy assassination.
