Lance violated loan agreement clause

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN and RICHARD E. MEYER

Associated Press Writers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bert Lance pledged stock dividends as part of the collateral for a $2,625,000 loan from a New York bank, then broke the agreement by putting up the same stock dividends as collateral for a loan from another bank.

A spokesman for Lance, now director of the Office of Management and Budget, acknowledged that Lance violated the terms of a clause in the loan agreement he signed June 30, 1975, with Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. But the spokesman repeatedly emphasized that the bank was not concerned enough to call in the loan.

The Senate Government Operations Committee, which handled Lance's confirmation hearing, will broaden its current investigation of his financial affairs to include the loan transactions, a committee source said.

"We're looking at every question raised in the press about Lance," the source said. "Obviously this is a part of that."

The transactions are disclosed in bank records of Lance's personal loans, made public by federal banking investigators. Government officials interviewed Thursday said they saw no violation of federal law.

But Robert A. Baer Jr., special assistant to the U.S. comptroller of the currency, said "Lance may have violated a contract he had with Manufacturers Hanover." An official with the Federal Reserve, which regulates the banks involved, called Lance's action an apparent breach of contract.

"It's very clear that both banks expected the stock," a House investigator said. "Bert Lance clearly gave the impression to both banks that they would get the shares."

Lance's spokesman, Robert W. Dietsch, was asked "You don't dispute that up until the end of the documentary record of the loan, Manufacturers thought they were going to get the stock dividends, they didn't get them and the language that Lance signed indicated that he would in fact send them any such dividends?"

"That's all true," Dietsch replied. "It's all there and it's all in the written record. It's also true that the loan was not called. It's also I think true that there were additional discussions about what was adequate collateral on the terms of the loan."

And I think, too, that the written documents have to be taken in the context of all the circumstances that took place between the time the loan was put on and the time the loan was paid off."

Asked if the written document ever was revised, Dietsch replied, "Obviously not. At least not what we have in this file. I have no reason to believe there is anything else in writing I don't know."

Dietsch was asked "You're not denying that the loan agreement language was in fact broken? Your point is that the bank wasn't enough concerned about that to call the loan?"

He replied, "That's correct. The language in the note form is there."

Three Manufacturers documents, two of them letters to Lance, show that from June 2, 1976, through Nov. 5, 1976, the bank sought the stock dividends from Lance. James Hamblen, a Manufacturers vice president, said Thursday in a telephone interview that his bank wanted the stock dividends but never got them before the loan was paid off in January 1977.

Despite this, Hamblen said there was never any concern at Manufacturers that the loan was uncollectible. "The shares should have been there," he said. "But it wasn't a critical item in the total picture."

However, he also indicated that Manufacturers never knew that seven days before its first letter to Lance seeking the stock dividends, Lance had pledged them as collateral in May 1976, on a $150,000 loan from the Chemical Bank in New York City.

Both Lance and his wife, LaBelle, signed the loan agreement with Manufacturers Hanover Trust. They got $2,625,000 with which to buy stock in the National Bank of Georgia, of which Lance was then president. As collateral, they pledged 148,118 shares of stock in the National Bank of Georgia (NBG) and 8,375 shares of stock in the Calhoun (Cal) First National Bank, which Lance had formerly headed.

The agreement they signed also pledged them to deliver any stock dividends on those shares to Manufacturers as additional collateral. The agreement said the signers would deliver the dividends "in the exact form received, to be held by Bank as Collateral Security."

Such stock dividends were declared on Dec. 31, 1975, and Lance received 14,811 additional shares of NBG stock. According to Manufacturers' Nov. 5, 1976, letter to Lance asking him for the dividends, NBG stock then had a book value of $17.72 per share.

That meant the 14,811 shares had a total book value of $262,450.92.

However, instead of turning them over to Manufacturers as his loan agreement stipulated, Lance sent them to Chemical Bank as collateral on a loan he requested less than a month after the stock dividend was issued.

Lance requested the Chemical loan in a handwritten note to corporate banking vice president George C. Ross. "Dear George," Lance wrote. "Was good to visit on the phone. Sorry I missed seeing you Thursday. I need to borrow $265,000.

Chemical loaned him $150,000. A Chemical document dated May 27, 1976, confirmed the bank's receipt of the 14,811 shares as collateral on the loan.

At this time, Lance had been discussing with Manufacturers the collateral position of his loan there.

"But the bottom line is if Manufacturers Hanover Trust had felt insecure they would have called the loan and they didn't," Dietsch added.

School board okays raise

Rena Bell Anderson, county school superintendent, served strawberry and whipped cream pie to the county school board Thursday after they handed her and her assistant, Charlene Blalock, 10 per cent raises in salary.

Three of the five-member board met at 3 p.m. in the courthouse annex. Present were W.A. Rankin, chairman, L.K. Davis and M.M. Finney. Bill C. Crisp and Arlie Carpenter were absent.

The total budget for the county school superintendent's office will be $21,288.88 for the 1977-78 school year.

Items include salaries, $1,080 for office and travel expense, and $240 to pay county board trustees $6 a meeting.

Five spectators attended the county board meeting.

"Why can't this board be incorporated into Pampa?" Is there any reason?" asked Marilyn Jones.

"Yes, many," Davis answered. "People want their schools, they feel they're as well off or better." Rankin said. He added that taxes in such areas as Grandview, Hopkins and Alameda might be higher if the schools were merged into other school districts.

The county board governs no school district since each school in the county is under the jurisdiction of an independent school district.

Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Troy Teel questioned the board about its duties and those of the superintendent.

"There's plenty to do in that office. We keep two sets of books, ours and Grandview Hopkins, and that takes hours and hours," Mrs. Anderson said.

Davis added that the board approved all bus routes in the county.

Mrs. Anderson said she spent the summer looking for teachers for five schools in the county.

"SOME THINK I sit and do nothing but I don't. I think anyone that will tell the truth will tell you," she added.

"Our biggest job is to carry out laws of the state," said Finney.

One in the audience asked about the 10 per cent salary hike. "What TEA says is to raise everybody's salaries 10 per cent," Mrs. Anderson said.

Rankin said, "We don't have to give a 10 per cent raise." He called the raise "permissible by the state."

"We've just been taxed on every corner," Mrs. Teel said.

Mrs. Jones added, "I can't spend my money unnecessarily personally and I don't want to give it to anyone else to spend unnecessarily. What is going to happen to our economy if we don't call it a halt? Let's stay where we are instead of going up and up and up. We shouldn't just okay everything that comes along."

Four factors make up Mrs. Anderson's pay. The county board controls only one, called "amount allowed over minimum." This amount for the new budget is $666.33 a month.

Other factors are controlled by the state. They are minimum monthly base salary, $180; experience increment, $6 for each year of teaching experience, $102 ($40 above the maximum allowed by the state); population increment, $60.

According to Mrs. Anderson, the budget will now be submitted to the Texas Education Agency, Division of State Funding, which will send the funds to her office.

During the meeting, Mrs. Anderson served three kinds of cookies, tea and coffee to the trustees. After the budget was approved but before the meeting adjourned, she dished up the pie which she stressed that she paid for herself.

The men also approved office and travel expenses for June 30 to Aug. 25. They were $88.02 for telephone, $23.74 for postage, $7.70 for office supplies, $20.48 for mileage, and $2.90 for meal.

Strike traps travelers

LONDON (AP) — Travelers flying to and from Britain and within the island faced long delays or flight cancellations for the next four days as assistant air traffic controllers began a weekend strike for higher pay.

Airport officials said they hoped to keep 60 per cent of the scheduled traffic in the air. But the strikers' union claimed 75 per cent of all traffic through British air space would be halted, up to 5,000 flights.

Flight operations continued at the seven struck British airports because the senior controllers who direct operations belong to another union and were not on strike. But flights were delayed or canceled because the 850 striking assistants were not on hand to make out flight plans, compile logs and perform other such tasks.

British Airways (BA), the national airline, was hit hardest by the strike, which began at midnight Thursday, and by a 10-day slowdown at London's Heathrow and Gatwick airports that preceded the walkout. The line canceled 30 per cent of its flights Thursday and today and waited to see if more cuts were necessary.

"Other airlines have refused to share the cancellations," said a BA spokesman. "They said it was a British row and nothing to do with them."

A TWA spokesman said his line planned no cancellations, but he predicted some delays. Pan American, the other major U.S. international carrier, did not announce any cancellations.

Today was the start of the four-day Bank Holiday weekend in Britain, and travelers jammed the airports Thursday to beat the strike. The slowdown by the assistant controllers, who were refusing to use computers and doing their work by hand, delayed departures from Heathrow and Gatwick an average of three to five hours during the day and caused cancellation of 160 flights in and out.

The strikers, who now earn up to $4,250 a year, are demanding that the government give them a 20 per cent pay increase agreed to in 1975 but postponed by the Labor government because of its anti-inflation ceiling of 10 per cent on wage increases.

The dispute has developed into a major test of the government's attempts to block a wage explosion following the end of formal pay restraints July 31.

Carter urges passage of ERA

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today the proposed Equal Rights Amendment is at a crucial point and he urged everyone to press for its ratification.

"Equal rights for women are an inseparable part of human rights for all," Carter told leaders of thousands of women planning to march down Pennsylvania Avenue to emphasize their demands for equal rights. When women tried a similar march 84 years, they were met with jeers and heckling. This time their leaders were invited to the White House for Carter's signing of a Women's Equality Day proclamation.

"This is a crucial point in the struggle to achieve full equality for women under the law," Carter told more than 100 women and men in a Rose Garden ceremony.

The proposed amendment has been approved by 35 states. It must win endorsement from 38 by early 1979 to become law. Three states have asked to rescind their ratification but this is subject to legal challenge.

Carter also announced he was ordering all federal agencies to re-examine their personnel policies and laws to root out discrimination against women. He noted that the Civil Rights Commission recently said that more than 3,000 government laws contain some discriminatory concepts that hurt women.

Virginia Allen, former deputy assistant secretary of state, asked Carter to lend his political force to the ERA battle.

She noted that the crusade against the ERA seems stalemated and said unless the amendment passes, not only women but men will be prevented full equality in coming generations.

City may remove abandoned cars

The need to implement an ordinance giving the City of Pampa authority to remove abandoned vehicles on public or private property was under study this morning by City Manager Mack Wofford.

A survey about four years ago revealed that there were an estimated 700 such vehicles in the city at that time, Wofford said. He has no later estimates.

In 1973 the Texas Legislature enacted legislation to allow both city and county governmental agencies to remove abandoned vehicles.

Removal of abandoned vehicles from the city would not only improve the appearance but eliminate places for insects to harbor, Wofford said.

A vacant lot with several abandoned vehicles encourages weed growth since it is difficult to mow, he added.

"This is a sizeable piece of legislation," Wofford said as he looked through pages of detail describing what must be done to enact it in the city.

No date has been set for the study to be presented to the City Commission.

Pedal plane plucks prize

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Co-Editor
Applause for Bryan Allen of Bakersfield, Calif., who certainly suffers from no personal energy shortage and who apparently is on the Wright track toward solving fuel problems for airplanes. The 24-year-old bicyclist flew a pedal-driven plane over a 14 mile course at Shafter, Calif., recently and picked up $85,000 in prize money offered by the London Royal Aeronautic Society for the first sustained man-powered flight. The distance was considerably farther than that covered 74 years ago at Kitty Hawk, N.C., by those bicycle-making Wright Brothers in the first successes of a motor-driven heavier-than-air machine. In the longest of four flights that day Wilbur managed to fly only 852 feet while staying airborne only 59 seconds. It was the same kind of old-fashioned American ingenuity coupled with products of modern technology that made Allen's flight possible. His pedal-powered plane, designed by Paul McCready, owner of Aeroenvironment Inc., of Pasadena, has a wingspan of 97 feet, which is wider than that of a DC9. But it weighs less than 70 pounds. Materials used in making the machine consisted mostly of Mylar, a strong plastic, ribbed with aluminum tubing and bordered by light plastic. The pilot pedals a bicycle chain that turns a propeller behind the cockpit. The cockpit hangs cocoon-like from the center of the wing. Maneuvering of the plane is accomplished with a handle that elevates a small frontal wing. The course that Allen had to cover, in order to satisfy requirements set down by the London Royal Aeronautic Society, was a figure eight marked by pylons a half mile apart. He had to cover the distance without touching the ground between takeoff and landing. Allen didn't taste success on his first go at the course. He had, in fact, tried for weeks to steer and pedal the plane as required. But finally he did it. And now maybe we can look for refinements and improvements in pedal-powered aircrafts. Maybe McCready will manufacture and market them in mass and a new pastime will be unleashed. Those fellows who were quick to grab big kites and climb into the sky behind ski boats will find the notion appealing, along with that daring contingent that took so readily to the challenges and dangers of hang gliding. But don't expect to be pedaling from home to work anytime soon because that 97-foot wingspan would be difficult to keep clear of trees and wires and such. And few places of employment would have sufficient space for the kind of bike rack hangar required to accommodate several of the craft. But think of the potential in long-distance passenger flights. Talk about low ticket prices. None of the current airlines would be able to compete in a fare way. Developers do face a difficult task, however; how will they keep those carry-on bags from becoming entangled in the set of pedals under each seat?

'Something tells me the opportunity for rational debate is diminishing fast'

Changing with the times

By NEA's London Economic News Service
NEW YORK — (LENS) — Faced with declining circulation and advertising, New York's newspapers have taken different approaches to meet the competition. The New York Times has undergone transformation in the past year. It now features a series of "service" sections devoted to entertainment, the home and "lifestyles", and is expanding its coverage of suburban news with special Sunday supplements. This effort to provide a "total" newspaper, which has upset many habitual readers accustomed to its diet of news and analyses, appears to be paying off. The Times last month reported a sharp boost in profits for the first half of 1977 that stemmed from increased circulation and more advertising revenue, largely from stores. Despite the disgruntlement of some of its readers, as well as of its staff, the new Times still offers a full diet of national and international coverage. Its emphasis on features may sometimes have led to misjudgment recently, and its business and financial coverage, although much expanded, is not yet as good as it could (and doubtless will be). The News, which once was sprightly and sensational, has also changed, perhaps more in substance than in style. Michael O'Neill, its editor, also believes it necessary to concentrate on comprehensive reporting of the New York region. He has expanded its suburban coverage, adding new columnists who provide colorful and often incisive commentary on local developments without losing the paper's breezy irreverence. The News had the best local coverage of New York City's financial crisis, and was alert to the dramatic appeal of the random killing by "Son of Sam", the city's latest sensation, long before its rivals. It even boasts of having more readers with incomes of over $25,000 than the Times. Rupert Murdoch has strengthened the Post, which was floundering under its previous owner, with expanded business, entertainment and sports coverage. He has also increased circulation, mainly by buying the subscriptions of the Long Island Press, a local paper that went bankrupt. But as an afternoon paper, the Post cannot compete for the suburban market. It has instead to establish an identity as the city's paper, which calls for much more extensive and solid coverage of city news. At times the Post has made such an attempt, it had particularly good coverage of the power failure. A common problem for all three papers is improving distribution. Long hampered by union resistance to technological change, the Times and the News have recently won acquiescence for computerized typesetting. But they still face problems in increasing their distribution in the suburbs. Such problems still plague papers. The Wall Street Journal, for example, which is already fully automated, is unable to get its final edition distributed in the suburbs. Both the Times and the News are investing heavily in new equipment that will in time enable them to achieve rapid suburban distribution of editions with full coverage of strictly local news. But improved technology is also threatening to increase competition in the city. The Trib, a "serious" tabloid that is backed by a former treasury secretary, William Simon and former Senator James Buckley, intends to compete against the Times and the News. In addition, John Shaheen, an oilman, has invested an estimated $25 million in a newspaper plant but has yet to produce the Press, which was first promised in 1975. The Trib is definitely scheduled to begin operations late this year with a press run of 200,000-300,000. It has distributed a pilot issue, the content of which appeared more like a newsmagazine than a daily paper. Its plans call for wholly automated printing, with a contract printer, rather than the paper itself, responsible for the actual production. The Trib's editors insist that it will take a balanced political approach, and appear certain that the paper will counter the Times's liberalism and the News's "lack of depth." Now only the reading public remains to be convinced.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, Aug. 25, the 237th day of 1977. There are 128 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1944, in World War Two, Allied troops liberated Paris. On this date: In 1680, Iroquois Indians attacked Montreal and killed its 200 inhabitants. In 1718, French immigrants founded New Orleans. In 1883, a volcanic eruption in the Dutch East Indies created tidal waves that took about 36,000 lives. In 1921, the World War One peace treaty between the United States and Germany was signed in Berlin. In 1941, British and Soviet troops invaded Iran in the Second World War.

In 1965, a massive avalanche roared down from a glacier in the Swiss Alps, burying 103 people at a hydroelectric construction project. Ten years ago: The leader of the American Nazi Party, George Lincoln Rockwell, was shot and killed in Arlington, Va. One year ago: French Prime Minister Jacques Chirac resigned, and Raymond Barre was named to the post.

Five years ago: Communist China cast its first veto in the U.N. Security Council, barring United Nations membership for Bangladesh.

How to prepare to die if you know about it
By JIM FITZGERALD
A few years ago, a fellow columnist told his readers he had terminal cancer and would soon die. And he soon did. I was reminded of my deceased friend last Tuesday while watching one of those rare TV shows which didn't require me to reach for my TV throw-up pot. It was called "Griffin and Phoenix: A Love Story," starring Peter Falk and the marvelous Jill Clayburgh. This made-for-TV movie ran for two hours and there was not one car chase, not one gunshot and not one nude cop. Also there was no Laverne and no Shirley. Amazing. Peter and Jill were both dying of cancer before living 40 years. They met at one of those university classes which teach people how to die gracefully. They fell in love and didn't die gracefully. They were damn angry about their lousy fate, and they rolled against it until the end. But there were some splendid moments when the two lovers did some crazy things they'd always wanted to do but never had the nerve until they learned they had only a few months to live. A doomed person doesn't worry about anything else. Peter wanted to hop a freight car and sneak through a theater exit. Jill wanted to paint her name high on the top of a water tower. So they did. There is one life-long dream I've never had enough guts to fulfill. If you ever hear I parachuted out of an airplane that wasn't crashing, you'll know the doctor told me my liver condition was terminal, and I probably wouldn't live long enough to hit the ground anyway. The question I can't answer is whether I would follow the lead of my friend who wrote a column for an Indiana newspaper. Outside of being born, the most important thing that happens to a person is dying. If I had advance notice of my funeral date, would it be fair to withhold the news from constant readers (Mother and Aunt Madeline)? Let's say the doctor gave me six months. I could probably write 96 goody columns before finally leaving. My friendly mortician would wear out his tongue licking his chops. And I could write more than soggy farewells. I could tell everyone off in fine fashion. I could prick balloons and name names and expose all sorts of foul hypocrisies. I could finally write without fear of a punch in the nose because no one would punch a doomed man. I would walk with a limp to make sure. I could also make it clear what I want done with my body. I want the doctors and scientists to help themselves. The eyes should go to the blind girl so that I might finally see what women see in clothes like Engelbert Humperdinck and Mick Jagger. My heart should be transplanted into anyone living in San Francisco. Then the bank will always know what to play when I walk into a nightclub in heaven. The doctors can decide the distribution of any other parts that might be in demand at the time. The unclaimed remains should be cremated and stored on a shelf along with my wife's jams and jellies. This will help her to remember me thoughtfully every morning just before she spreads her toast. These are all persuasive reasons for announcing my death in advance, if I should ever get the chance. But the best reason was supplied by a co-worker. "Is it fair to force readers to react to my death before I die?" I asked him. "Should I print my obituary months in advance?" "Sure," he answered. "That way you can go to all the parties."

And readers write

To the editor of The Pampa News and the taxpayers of the City of Pampa:
Do you think it's fair for us to keep paying our taxes while many, many people have lived here for years and never pay one cent of taxes? If the city would force the people that own property here to pay their back taxes and have the people that don't own their homes — the ones that has children in school — to at least pay school taxes, we might even get a rebate. Why should the home owners that do not have children in school have to keep getting their taxes raised? These people with children in school, if they can buy new cars and trucks they surely should pay school taxes. I brought this home from the owner that had lived here for 14 years and had not paid one cent in taxes. I had to pay all those back taxes. And this is just one among many that no taxes are being paid on and there is many vacant lots and many being used and no taxes is being paid on them. And why can't the city take those lots and develop them and that would bring in a lot of tax dollars. The solution to all those tax raises are more action and less waste and see that everyone pays their taxes, not just a minor few. I've decided to take my tax money and put it in the bank and let it draw interest and if I decide to sell I'll pay the back taxes, or let the person buying it pay them like I did. If the people that lived here didn't have to pay taxes for 14 years, why should I have to pay? Sure we need better schools and if all the back taxes were collected, and the money not wasted, we would have better schools, and we would not have needed the first tax raise, much less this one. So let's see that our tax dollars are spent wisely and not wastefully.

Judge's remarks become public

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Feminists say release of a transcript from a juvenile rape hearing will help their recall campaign against a judge whose remarks they branded as outrageous sexism.

But Dane County Judge Archie Simonson said he was "overjoyed and very happy" Thursday with the transcript and said he would use the text in speeches during his campaign for next month's recall election.

Simonson had said the full context of his remarks from the bench — including comments on sexual permissiveness in Madison — would exonerate him from a storm of criticism.

News accounts after the hearing reported Simonson had implied it was "normal" for a 15-year-old boy to assault a 16-year-old girl in reaction to scanty women's clothing and permissive attitudes.

Opponents managed to obtain 35,000 signatures, forcing a recall election Sept. 7 in which Simonson and five challengers will seek his judicial post.

The 52-year-old Simonson, elected to the bench in 1972 after practicing law in Madison for 20 years, had been scheduled to go up for re-election in April 1978.

"How could Judge Simonson have thought release of transcript would have a chilling effect on his recall when it merely elaborates the sexism already reported?" Anne Gaylor, a leader in the recall petition drive and a member of the National Organization for Women (NOW), asked Thursday.

The transcript was released Thursday by Circuit Judge William Sachtjen over the objections of attorneys for the teenagers involved.

"This community is well known to be sexually permissive," Simonson said in the transcript. "Look at the newspapers, look at the sex clubs, the advertisements of sex, the availability of it through your escort services, the prostitutes, they are being picked up daily."

"Go down State Street and the university area. I used to see girls clothed like that and I had to pay a lot of money to go into the south side of Chicago to view what I see down on State Street today."

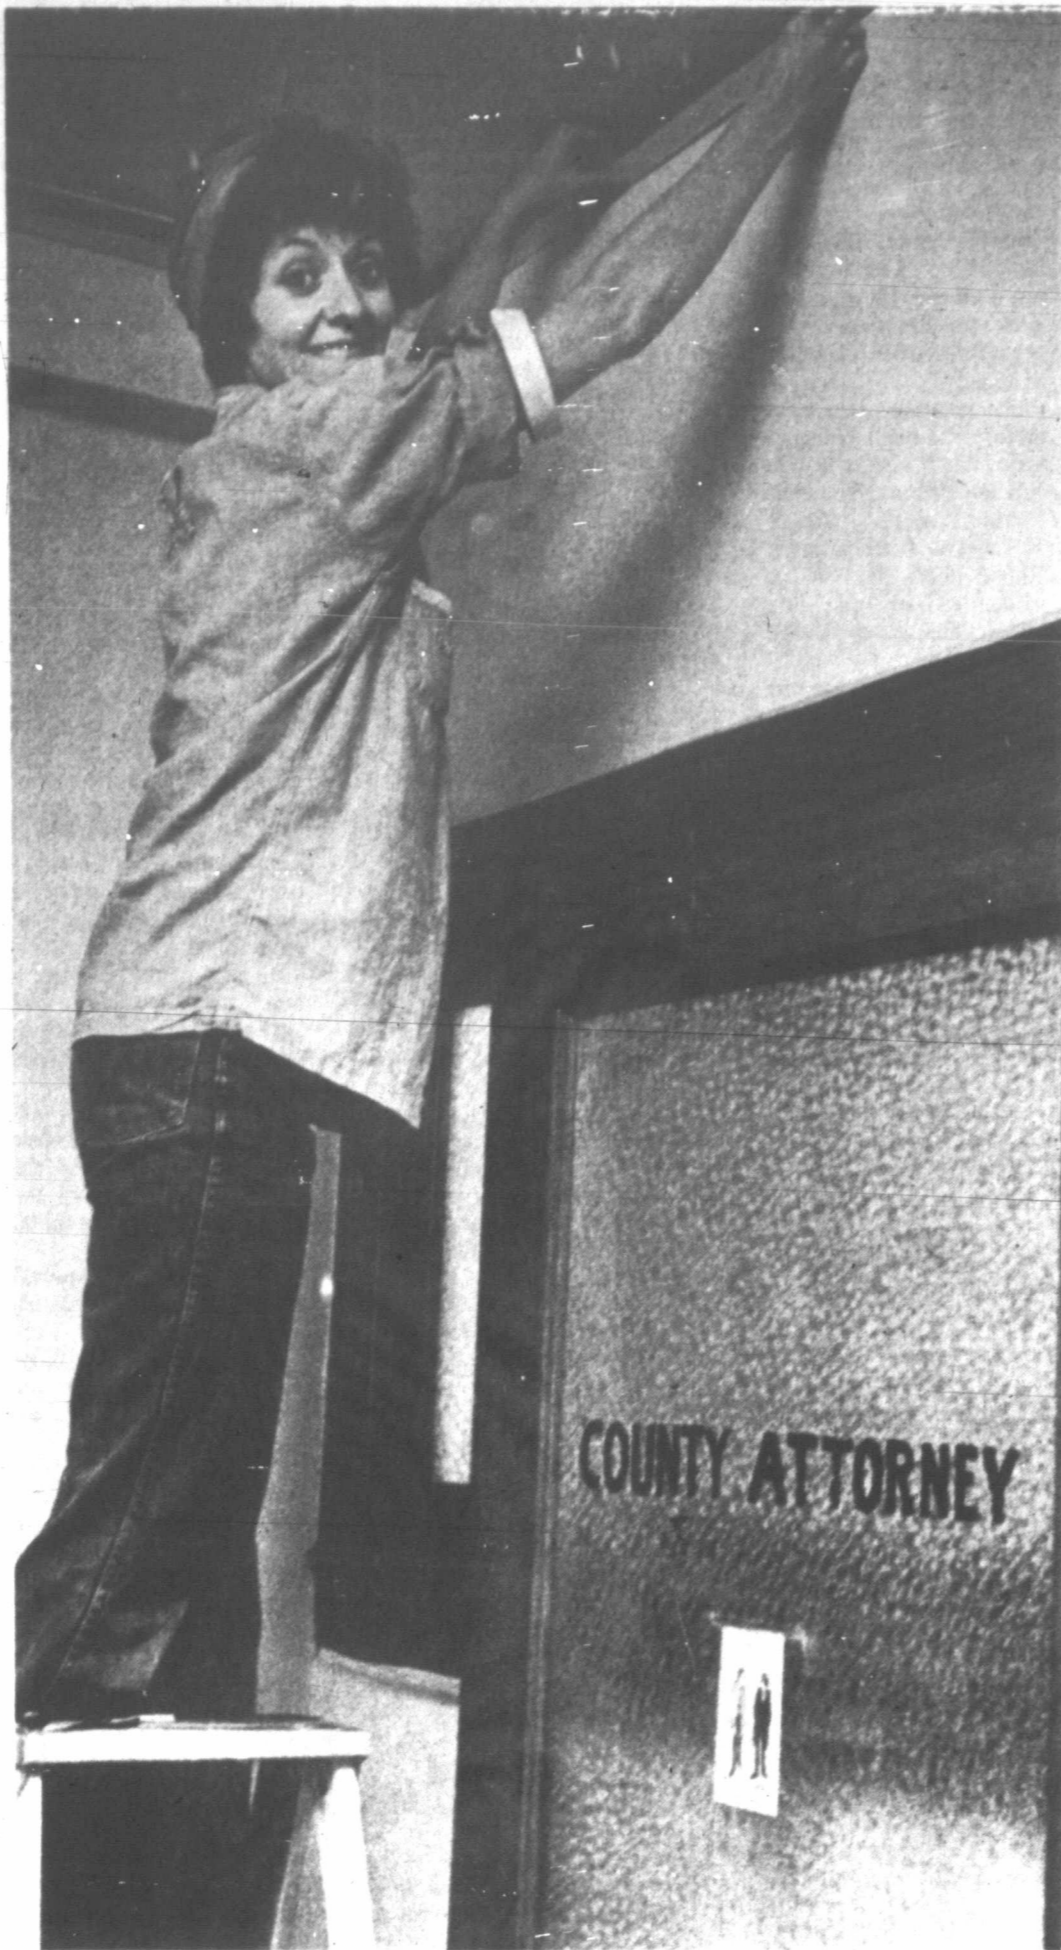

"Even in the open court we have people appearing — women appearing without bras and with the nipples fully exposed and they think it is smart and they sit here on the witness stand with their dresses up over the cheeks of their butts and we have this type of thing in the schools," Simonson said in the transcript.

The girl involved in the school assault case had been wearing blue jeans, sneakers and a blouse over a turtle-neck sweater.

"So is that the attitude of the community?" Simonson continued in the transcript. "Are we supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that persons severely because they react to it normally?"

It was the idea that assault might be a normal reaction to permissiveness that created the uproar.

Simonson followed recommendations of social workers and sentenced the youth, who pleaded no contest to delinquency for second degree sexual assault, to one year in his parents' custody under court supervision.

Painting county office

Sherry Jones, secretary in the office of Gray County Attorney David Martindale, tired of looking at the dingy walls in her office, so she asked County Judge Don Hinton if she could paint them herself. He consented, and Mrs. Jones donned her jeans, climbed a ladder with a paint brush and sheathed the walls Arabian beige in addition to tending office duties.

FBI probes 'rest home'

HOUSTON (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation has begun an investigation into the case of an unlicensed "rest home" near Wharton where 13 mentally disabled persons were found.

Investigators said the three-bedroom brick home in the Spanish Camp Community was really a prison for the "patients". They said the 13 were living in filth and that they were undernourished.

Robert Franck, Houston agent in charge of the FBI, said Thursday the agency has begun a preliminary probe of the matter.

Franck said the department is trying to determine if the civil rights of the patients have been violated.

Two persons were charged following a raid on the home by state and Wharton County officers Sunday.

Elmer Tompkins and Lillian Gobert, both of Van Nuys, Calif., were charged with false imprisonment.

Tompkins remained in Wharton County jail late Thursday under $60,000 bond. Mrs. Gobert had not been arrested.

Investigators alleged the patients were held prisoner in the home while Mrs. Gobert administered their disability and pension checks.

Charged in destroying posts

Rickey Paul Sanford, 22, of Canyon, has been charged with destroying government property at the Rosita Area of Lake Meredith Recreation Area.

The property being destroyed were fence posts which had been erected in preparation to fencing the federal property from private land. Trial is set for September.

"Long range plans call for the entire boundary of Lake Meredith Recreation Area to be fenced in order to more effectively administer and protect the resource," stated

Chief Ranger Larry Nielson. He also stated that additional patrols are being initiated to discourage further vandalism.

Mother sues for death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five-day-old Isis Sarai's father was shot to death by a police officer before she was born. Her mother is asking the city for $2.25 million to pay for the child's upbringing.

Ronald Burkholder, a 35-year-old biochemist and the common-law husband of Maria Herbst, was shot to death on the sidewalk outside his laboratory Aug. 4, just 17 days before his daughter was born.

Some of the facts surrounding the shooting are in dispute, but two things are clear: He was shot six times and he was naked at the time.

"We plan to make the city of Los Angeles and the police pay for the upbringing of this child," attorney Stanley Arnold, who represents Miss Herbst, said in filing the claim Thursday.

He said he would file formal lawsuits if the city does not respond to the claim, which asks $1 million for Miss Herbst and $1.25 million for the baby.

Sgt. Kurt Barz, a 10-year veteran of the police force, claimed that he fired in self-defense after Burkholder had assumed a "martial arts" stance and "lunged" at him. Barz was removed from field duty pending an investigation.

Burkholder's friends challenged Barz' account, saying Burkholder was a proponent of nonviolence and was not trained in martial arts. Toxicology tests showed no evidence that Burkholder had been taking any drugs that would have caused him to act in an unusual manner.

Miss Herbst's attorney said an autopsy showed a 4½-inch-deep wound in Burkholder's shoulder. He speculated that Burkholder may have wounded himself in the lab and run outside unclothed, seeking help. Broken glass from lab instruments and a candelabra were found inside the lab, and a trail of blood led to the outside phone Burkholder regularly used, Arnold said. He said bloodied clothing which the biochemist may have shed after the accident was also found.

Burkholder was the 27th person killed by city police so far this year, three fewer than the total killed in either 1975 or 1976. Police officials are at a loss to explain the increase.

A special investigation of the incident was ordered by the district attorney last week after 70 friends and relatives of Burkholder protested outside a police station.

"At this point," Arnold said, "the district attorney is running an investigation and we're hoping they'll come up with information and will want to settle."

Teen charged in death

DALLAS (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Lucinda Stout of Dallas, who will stand trial as an adult in the stabbing death of her mother, was to be arraigned today on murder charges.

Juvenile Court Judge Craig Penfold certified Miss Stout as an adult after a two-day hearing Thursday. It was the first time Penfold has certified a youth to stand trial as an adult since he assumed the bench nine months ago.

The father of girl, Harry Stout, said, "I felt she should not remain in society."

Stout testified during the hearings that his daughter stabbed his 34-year-old wife, Sharon, with a butcher knife and then shot him twice at their home on June 11.

County to seek janitors

The Gray County Commissioners Court met in special session this morning and authorized the county judge to advertise for bids on janitorial services for the courthouse.

The bids will be opened at 9 a.m. Sept. 14. Two county employees now are doing the janitorial work at the courthouse.

This will be the first time the county has advertised for janitorial bids for cleaning the courthouse.

The commissioners will meet in regular session at 9 a.m. Thursday.

Holiday halts trial

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — A state holiday interrupted the capital murder trial of Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis today and provided a welcome breather for the defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla.

The prosecution's star witness returns to the stand for the fifth day Saturday morning to face still another round of relentless cross-examination by the defense.

The striking blonde socialite, 36, identified Davis on Tuesday as the gunman in black who terrorized her lavish Fort Worth mansion last summer, killing two and wounding two, including Mrs. Davis.

Since Tuesday, she has been under constant attack from the defense, which must discredit her testimony if it hopes to save Davis from conviction and a possible death penalty.

The state contends Davis killed his 12-year-old stepdaughter Andrea Wilborn in the shooting spree and then ambushed Mrs. Davis and her boyfriend Stan Farr when they returned to the mansion from dinner and drinks.

Farr, 30, died at the scene. Mrs. Davis and a young visitor to the mansion were critically wounded.

Defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes succeeded Thursday in linking Mrs. Davis romantically with W.T. Rufner, a shadowy figure in the case, and elicited an admission that she "probably" is addicted to the prescription pain killer, Percodan.

However, Haynes failed again to win admissibility of a suggestive color photograph of Mrs. Davis and Rufner, with whom she testified she shared her bedroom at one time.

In the photo, Rufner, who is on probation from a drug conviction, is wearing only a strategically-placed red and white Christmas stocking.

A smiling Mrs. Davis, beverage in hand, is clad in a revealing halter top and pants and her purse is slung over Rufner's shoulder.

Mrs. Davis said the relationship with Rufner, an Arlington electrician, was social rather than personal until after she and Davis separated July 31, 1974.

After first testifying that she was not an habitual user of Percodan, Mrs. Davis told Haynes she has taken as many as 200 pills a week and "probably" was addicted.

She said she took the pills for relief from a variety of ills, including ulcers, arthritis, a fractured leg, breast tumors and injuries related to the bullet wound last year.

In an attempt to keep "inflammatory and prejudicial" questions from jurors, State District Court Judge George Dowlen sent them from the courtroom while attorneys debated several controversial topics.

With the jury out, Mrs. Davis denied ever taking such drugs as cocaine, LSD and heroin and said she last tried marijuana "as a teenager."

Haynes questioned Mrs. Davis at length about her contacts with Rufner, both before and after her separation from Davis, but she did not waver from her previous testimony.

She said she was aware only that Rufner had been arrested in March 1974 for "possession of a controlled substance" and that she knew nothing of any cocaine.

Mrs. Davis steadfastly insisted she could not recall where or when the photograph was taken and an irate Haynes once asked:

"It would indicate you and W.T. Rufner were more than just good friends at the time the picture was taken?"

The judge sustained a state objection and she did not answer the question.

Outside the courtroom, defendant Davis said Wednesday the picture was taken prior to the time that he and Mrs.

Davis separated.

At one point, Haynes asked how she could fail to remember an occasion in which Rufner was "running around naked as a jay bird with you-know-what in a sock."

She said she could not recall, adding: "I don't recognize the sock."

When the laughter subsided, Haynes asked: "You're not saying you have not seen W.T. Rufner when he has had his clothes off, are you?"

"No sir," she replied. "I have."

"The only thing you don't remember about W.T. Rufner is the sock," he continued.

"I don't remember sir," she insisted.

"Your honor, I'm having difficulty in my mind conceiving that somebody could see W.T. Rufner in that attire and not remember it," Haynes grumbled.

He did succeed in introducing a photograph of Mrs. Davis stepping from a camper in which she, Rufner and others rode to the "Willie Nelson Picnic" July 4, 1974.

However, Dowlen blocked introduction of two other photos taken during the trip because Mrs. Davis testified they were too "blurry" to identify the contents.

Underground coal produces gas

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — In a novel experiment on the Texas A&M campus here, petroleum engineers produced gas from a vein of lignite 300 feet underground Thursday.

They said the experiment can cut costs and reduce ecological damage if low-grade coal becomes widely used as an energy source.

"However, the fuel is lower quality than natural gas and would need a special burner," said Dr. James Jennings, who is in charge of the Texas A&M experiment.

"Probably, at least at first, it would be used commercially for heating boilers and generating electricity," he added.

During the first public demonstration Thursday, gas was produced for a time but mechanical problems delayed further testing until next week.

The seam being worked is part of a lignite field encompassing an area from Austin to Waco to Texarkana, south to Conroe and back to Austin, a total distance of nearly 700 miles.

"Less than one-tenth of the lignite in the state is mineable; that is, at a depth of less than 200 feet," Dr. Jennings said. "But with the gasification process, it's estimated we can produce gas at $1.50 to $2 per billion BTU's."

He added that "since 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas produces one million BTU's and already sells for $2, the economics of the project look favorable."

Initially, the process consists of drilling two wells about 60 feet apart. They are linked with a back burn caused by air being pumped into one of the wells, then ignited in the seam which causes the lignite to burn.

The gases are then taken out through the other well until the burn connects the two wells via a tunnel.

"After they are linked, an even more intense forward burn is conducted which would produce methane, carbon monoxide and hydrogen gases with the equivalent energy of one-quarter million cubic feet of natural gas per day," Jennings said.

"A total of about 450 tons of coal should be gasified during this phase of the experiment," he said.

At this point, he said, a pear-shaped cavern will appear in the lignite seam at which point the two wells become unproductive.

Then, he said, a third well is drilled, becoming the air injection well while the injection well becomes the exhaust well and the initial hole is capped.

While no environmental problems are anticipated, Texas A&M said that additional wells will be drilled to make sure the process doesn't pollute ground water.

The $275,000 project is financed by the university's Texas Engineering Experiment station and a consortium of energy related industries.

Women march for ERA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once again, thousands of women demanding equal rights gathered here today to march down Pennsylvania Avenue.

When they tried it 64 years ago, they were met with jeers and heckling. This time their leaders were invited to meet with the President.

President Carter, reiterating his support for the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, arranged a morning ceremony to sign a Women's Equality Day proclamation.

In addition, congressional sources said Carter would name his daughter-in-law, Judy Carter, his personal emissary for the ERA.

Meanwhile, more than 70 groups organized a parade to coincide with the 57th anniversary of women's suffrage. March sponsors said they hoped to dramatize support for ERA from labor, women's, civil rights and church groups.

The proposed amendment, approved by 35 states, must win endorsement from three more by early 1979 if it is to become law.

On the eve of the march, 76 groups said they planned to send up to 50 persons each, many wearing white and carrying banners with the slogans that suffragettes hoisted while marching up Pennsylvania Avenue in marches in 1913 and 1917.

The ERA march is starting at the spot where the 1913 march was disrupted by hecklers and continuing to the White House. Then, across Pennsylvania Avenue, a rally is being held in Lafayette Park.

An antique trolley was provided for the frail suffragettes who marched decades ago, and at least one feminist mother, former White House counsel Barbara Kilberg, planned to pull her two young tots in a toy wagon.

Odessa Komer, vice president of the United Auto Workers, said the march was partly to "tell the President that as a man from the South, he certainly could pull in three more states."

She said the march is a reminder to Carter that thousands of women voted for him because of his pledge to do all he can to win ERA ratification.

"It's kicking off the last campaign of the ERA," said Eleanor Smeal, head of the National Organization for Women. "This shows the overwhelming support for it from a tremendous diversity of groups," she said.

The original sponsors of the march today were NOW, the National Women's Party, the League of Women Voters and the Federation of Business and Professional Women.

Suzi Thomson denies buying Congress pals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Suzi Thomson says she gave parties for her friends in Congress and got help washing dishes from her guests. But she denies knowing about alleged South Korean attempts to buy influence in Congress.

The Korean-born Ms. Thomson said Thursday she naturally associated with people who are the focus of a House influence-buying investigation. She said she hosted parties for congressmen and U.S. and Korean officials, including a reputed Korean Central Intelligence Agency station chief, Gen. Kim Yung Hwan.

Speaking with reporters after a closed session with House ethics committee investigators, the former secretary to retired House Speaker Carl Albert said she did not know the Korean general was with the KCIA. She said she never was involved with the KCIA, and said she invited the general to parties only "because I liked him."

"You exaggerate my parties," she said. "I cooked and my guests washed dishes."

However, she and her lawyer, Philip Hirschkop, said she did give five large parties as well as the small ones.

Ms. Thomson answered questions from House investigators for nearly five hours under threat of contempt of Congress action.

She had insisted twice before on answering questions only in public, saying she was afraid her closed-door answers would be leaked and distorted against her. But the committee threatened her with the contempt action on Wednesday.

Mrs. Thomson said she gave parties entirely on her own, not at the urging of any South Koreans, and said no South Koreans paid for them.

She said she knew both Korean rice dealer Tongson Park, a central figure in the investigation, and former Korean Ambassador Kim Dong Jo. But she denied knowing about cash contributions to present and former congressmen have acknowledged getting from them.

Her lawyer said Ms. Thomson's relationship with Park was "arm's length" — she went to three of his large parties but no small ones — and that she sometimes helped the ambassador's wife entertain.

Carter rushes gas rationing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Carter Administration is rushing to finish a standby gasoline rationing plan which could include the distribution of ration stamps at the nation's 30,000 post offices, the Los Angeles Times reported in today's editions.

The Times said it had learned the plan would take effect 15 days after any major interruption of supplies, such as the Arab oil embargo.

Plans for the rationing are being drawn up by the Federal Energy Administration with help from Price Waterhouse & Co., a major accounting firm operating under government contract, the paper said.

A 1975 law requires that the government prepare emergency rationing procedures.

The United States imported more automobiles and automotive components from Canada than any other country in 1974. There were 817,500 new Canadian-built passenger cars that year, compared with 791,791 from Japan and 619,757 from Germany, says the Motor Vehicles Manufacturers Association.

Vance to brief Japanese leader

TOKYO (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance flew from Peking to Tokyo today to brief Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda on his visit with China's new leaders and relay President Carter's concern over a nuclear plant Japan is planning.

Vance and Fukuda first met in the presence of their aides, and then huddled alone for 40 minutes, Japanese spokesmen said. Details of the talks were not disclosed, but Japanese sources said they included discussion of Japan's plans to build a nuclear reprocessing plant 60 miles northeast of Tokyo.

Vance handed Fukuda a message from Carter, his aides said. Carter's special nuclear nonproliferation negotiator, Gerard C. Smith, was expected to arrive here Saturday for further talks on the reprocessing plant.

Japanese sources said Fukuda also raised the question of U.S.-Japan trade. The U.S. government is known to be critical of Japan's $5 billion trade surplus.

Vance ended his four-day visit to Peking "better informed" about the policies of the new Chinese regime, he said, but he made no claims that any progress had been made toward establishing diplomatic relations between the United States and China.

Following his 80-minute meeting Thursday with Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, it was clear Mao Tse-tung's successor did not soften the demand that the United States cut its diplomatic and military ties with the Nationalist regime on Taiwan.

"The Chinese position on a number of matters relating to Taiwan has been expressed publicly," Vance told reporters.

Pony's hooves grow deformed

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — Veterinarians are laboring to repair the deformed hooves of the animal because of distress over the incident in the town of about 5,000 persons.

They fear that publicity might prompt some "over-zealous animal lover to take some rash action against the woman." The SPCA now owns the pony.

Mrs. Reed has been charged with cruelty to animals. In New Hampshire the charge is a misdemeanor which could result in a sentence of one year in jail, a $500 fine or both.

"We only go to court when we know we'll win. It was blatant cruelty," Saunders said.

Judo was developed in the 1800s by Jigoro Kano, a Japanese professor. It evolved from Jujitsu, an ancient method of unarmed combat, and is said not to be intended to be a crippling form of fighting.

Julian Key resigns post with GOP

Dr. Julian Key, Gray County Republican chairman for the past seven years, submitted his resignation during an executive committee meeting Thursday night in the Key home.

His successor is Mrs. Scott (Bobby) Nisbett, who has served as vice chairman during Dr. Key's entire tenure.

During the session possible Republican candidates for the state senator's race to elect someone to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Max Sherman, D-Amarillo, was discussed.

The discussion also included possible Republican candidates for future local offices, including state representative.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Lynn Redgrave says that because she's not an American citizen, Actors Equity Union makes her turn over five per cent of her earnings to the union and she says that's discrimination.

John Clark, Miss Redgrave's husband and manager, said the actress, a British citizen who lives and works in the United States, will ask the National Labor Relations Board today to stop the practice. He said the union doesn't take the fee from American actors.

Clark said that Equity had said they were trying to "discourage aliens from working here" and Miss Redgrave considered that "anti-theater, anti-art, (and) discrimination."

Clark noted that Equity has sued Miss Redgrave for the alien dues in New York Civil Court.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey, the senate's "Happy Warrior," has begun eating soft foods as he continues to recuperate from surgery that uncovered terminal cancer throughout his pelvis.

"Everything's fine, no problems," Dr. John S. Najarian, chief surgeon at University of Minnesota Hospitals, said Thursday after intravenous feeding was discontinued.

A hospital spokesman said Humphrey had a visit from Sen. Wendell Anderson, D-Minn.

Najarian has said Humphrey will be released "when he is ready."

Tentative plans call for him to resume chemotherapy treatments next week — in an effort to curb the spread of the cancerous tumor — and to return to Washington sometime after Labor Day.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I work at a store with a girl I'll call "Sue." She's a nice girl and very efficient, but she never smiles. When she says, "Thank you," she sounds like a recording. No sincerity, no cheerfulness, just a long face and about as much personality as a robot.

I always smile when I wait on customers. I think that's the way to get them to come back. Sue says the customers don't care whether you smile or not. They come in to buy, she says, and if they're satisfied, they'll come back, regardless.

What's your opinion?

BETTENDORF, IOWA

DEAR BETT: What customers want more than anything else are efficiency and courtesy—not smiles. The salesperson who is too busy chatting with another salesperson to notice when a customer is waiting, or the clerk who can't make change or write up a sales slip efficiently will never compensate with a smile.

But the salesperson who is courteous, efficient, ready to serve and smiles, too—ah, her price is above rubies, her paycheck shall runneth over, and her boss will rise up and call her "buyer."

DEAR ABBY: I'm a guy, age 18. Last night I dated a 17-year-old girl because I liked her looks and wanted to get to know her better.

Like most guys, I tried to see how far I could get with her. After one wrong move, she hauled off and slapped my face really hard.

Abby, I never knew a slap could feel that good. I wanted to thank her for slapping me!

I wish you'd advise more girls to use that technique. I sure have a lot of respect for that girl now. Just because a guy puts up a little fight doesn't mean he wants to win.

ST. JOE SHMO

DEAR SHMO: Thanks for your honesty. Too many girls think if they don't let a guy go as far as he wants, they'll never see him again.

DEAR ABBY: I recently saw a documentary on television that made me sick. I couldn't get it out of my mind for days.

It was about 13- and 14-year-old girls—just kids themselves—who are expecting babies! They were being interviewed, and one 14-year-old said she got pregnant because she wanted someone to love!

What happens when she discovers that this bundle of love needs more than just the love she can give it?

Who takes care of it?

SICK IN CLEVELAND

DEAR SICK: Either the girl's parents or the taxpayers. One of the reasons I am such a true believer in Planned Parenthood is their stand on sex education, and their motto: "Every child a wanted child."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb
By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has inner ear problems. The doctor has diagnosed it as Meniere's disease. He is on Antivert and Hygroton.

We would like to know if the medicine he is taking would have any effect on him because we would like to have another baby. Does this medicine have any effect on the sperm?

DEAR READER — That is a good question. There is surprisingly little information on the effects of various medicines on men as potential fathers. There is quite a bit more information on women. There is nothing to indicate either medicine would have any adverse effect in this regard on your husband.

Antivert should NOT be used by a woman who is pregnant or who may become pregnant. It has been shown to cause birth defects in pregnant rats. Several of the antihistamines such as Antivert that are used to prevent motion sickness or dizziness should not be used in these women. The changes, if any, would occur during the development process and there are no studies that implicate the use of such medications in men as a factor in birth defects.

Hygroton is a diuretic used to flush out salt and water. Diuretics should not be used in pregnant women unless there is a good medical indication. The drug does pass through the placenta and affects the baby. This may not be as a birth defect but rather as a disturbance in chemical balance, jaundice of the baby and possibly some changes in blood clotting mechanisms.

Diuretics also appear in the mother's milk. A nursing mother should not take diuretics. If she has to take them for a medical reason she should stop nursing the baby.

Polly's pointers
By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I hope you or some of the readers can tell me how to remove yellow spots from a pair of white cloth sandals. Every time I wash them these yellow spots appear all over the front and I have had no luck with the many things I have tried — even white shoe polish. Please help me. —LILLIE.

DEAR LILLIE — Sorry you did not say what kind of cloth was used to make your sandals. If it is a sturdy cotton you might try using a weak solution of bleach water. It will take some experimenting and if all goes well the strength might be increased. There is also the possibility that color remover could be used. If the shoes were mine I would take them back to the store where they were purchased and show them the spots. Are you sure the fabric was made to be washed? —POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — I am a cook so you know how important it is that I have clean white uniforms. After trying all kinds of sprays to remove cooking grease from my uniforms I finally found a solution to my problem. I tried adding one-third cup washing soda and some regular bleach and my favorite detergent to a wash tub of water and this has worked so well that I want to pass it on to the other readers. (Test on your fabric before throwing a load of uniforms in the washing machine.) —AGNES.

Traveling on Wisconsin's Sugar Trail

NEW GLARUS, Wis. (AP) — There's a different kind of traveler on the rights of way where steam locomotives once chugged through the rolling green countryside of southern Wisconsin.

Bicyclists, young and not so young, are riding the 25-mile Sugar River Trail that connects the little towns of New Glarus, Monticello, Albany and Brodhead.

The trail, developed and maintained by the state's Department of Natural Resources over the abandoned roadbed of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad, is one of four in Wisconsin. The state considers itself a leader in giving bicyclists safe, scenic and level places to ride.

Trails in the state using old railroad lines now total 91 miles.

"There are thousands of miles of rights of way up for abandonment nationwide and we get lots of requests for information from other states about our program," said Dave Weizenicker, deputy director of the DNR's Bureau of Parks and Recreation. "We've been a stimulator."

Weizenicker says after the state buys the abandoned lines, the tracks and ties are torn up and replaced with fine-ground gravel, five to six inches deep.

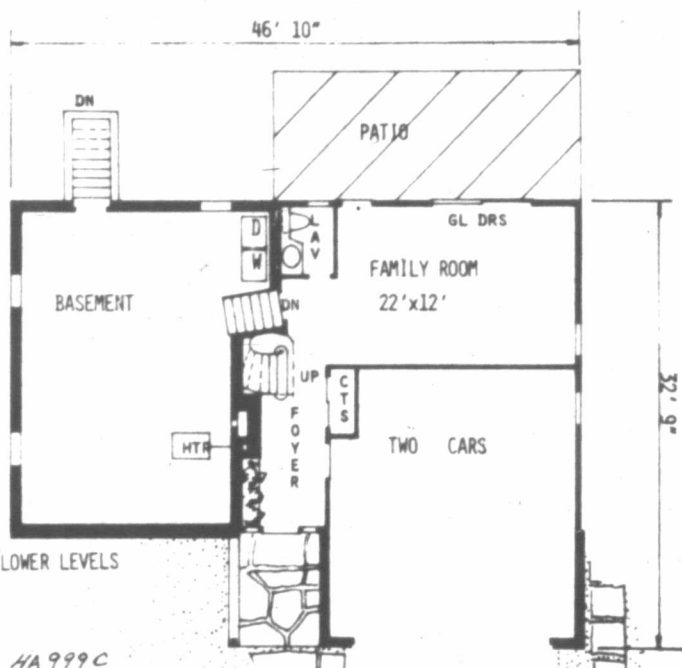

Between Elroy and Sparta in western Wisconsin there is the 32-mile line which the Northwestern Railway sold the state in 1965 for $12,000. Bicyclists riding the full length travel through three tunnels and over 33 trestles. The Milwaukee Road property, purchased eight years later, cost the state $150,000.

Northeastern Wisconsin has the 15-mile Ahnapee Trail, using a former roadbed of the Ahnapee and Western Railroad. Far northern Wisconsin has the newly opened Heafford Junction Trail, 19 miles long.

Captain rescues Viets, takes them to Corpus

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Fulfilling the role of a seabound, modern-day Samaritan, Capt. Charles T. Wilcox delivered his cargo of 15 Vietnamese refugees to this South Texas city ending a 61-day journey to freedom for three families from their Communist-controlled homeland.

"When we picked them up, they didn't have any food or water," said the captain of the Cavendish, a British tanker. "They couldn't have made it much longer."

Chung Van Xom, a 42-year-old former major in the South Vietnamese army and the only English-speaking member of the group, said he was "ready to jump into the sea" before being plucked from the South China Sea by Cavendish crewmen.

"Fifty-one other ships had gone by us," Xom told the platoon of newmen on Oil Dock No. 11. "The Cavendish picked us up. We took seven days supply of food and water with us. We had been on the sea for 15 days."

Xom and 14 others left South Vietnam on June 25 in a 33-foot boat. They were rescued by the Cavendish on July 9 after displaying for several days a sign that read, "No food. No water. Seven children."

One of the ships that passed the struggling band was a U.S. aircraft carrier, said Xom. "But it was about 10 miles away... it might not have been able to see us." Lo Van Hai, an eight-year-old sporting a shy smile and a pair of oversized tennis shoes given to him by a crew member, was the first to leave the ship after U.S. Customs and Immigration officials met with the refugees.

U.S. Catholic Conference officials from Washington and representatives from the local Catholic Diocese greeted Hai and the others with smiles, hugs and promises of help in relocating in a strange country.

When asked to describe life in the homeland he escaped two months ago, Xom's relieved smile was replaced with a contemptuous stare.

"Life is terrible... very, very terrible," he said. "And what do most Vietnamese think of the Communist regime?"

"Hate them," he said strongly. "We know the real face of the Communists. They trick the people."

The refugees—ranging in age from six to 52—were whisked from the dock in a yellow school bus and taken to a local Catholic boys' academy where, officials said, they will stay until efforts to locate sponsor families are successful.

Bob Van Horn of the Catholic group from Washington, said thousands of refugees attempt to escape Vietnam in boats but "very few are successful. Very few of them are picked up on the high seas. These people are very, very lucky."

An investment in Your Future

...ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

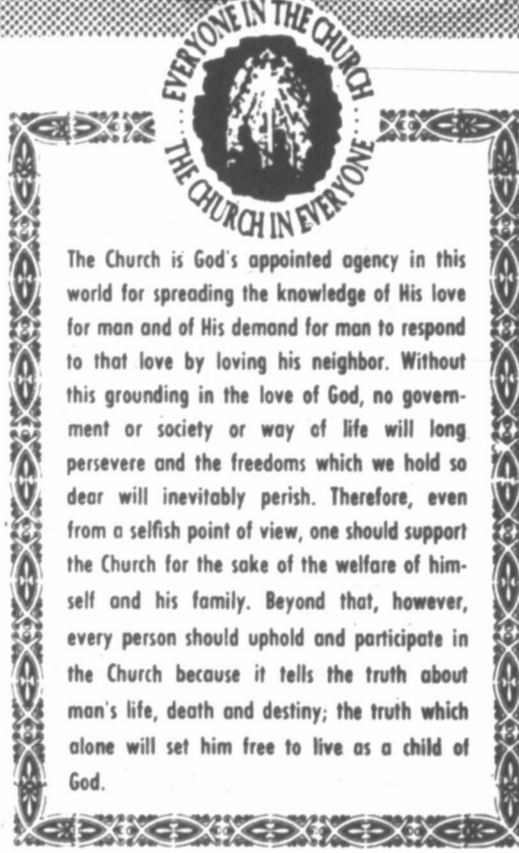

IN MOTHER'S FOOTSTEPS

What joy in life is seen in those eyes. That smile is given freely to everyone. Now look at them both. Which one am I talking about? Aren't they both the same? No, she's not an exact, carbon copy, of her mother—for when you look again, you see that there is a generation between them. She wears the bright colors in her dress with the cute designs. Her dreams are different than her mothers. She is more outgoing. Yet in the mother you can see a quiet humor and in her closeness to her daughter, a gentle protectiveness. Her mother's dreams are sometimes too ambitious, but in the "Encouragement Department" she works just fine.

There is one dream and ambition they both have, however; and that is to be like our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and to be of service to the church. Their goodness is of God.

"For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil." 1 Peter 3:12.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Skelton says friends turned into pirates

By PATRICK CONNOLLY
Associated Press Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — Red Skelton, who brought Freddie the Freeloader and Clem Kadiddlehopper into the homes of millions, travels alone these days, shunning associates he claims used him and trusting only "God, my wife and myself."
The rubber-faced funnyman says those old business associates have profited while he has lost $6 million in bad business deals over the years.
Fans who spot him on the street win quick waves, giggling greetings and coy one-liners. But off-stage, Skelton speaks harshly of those associates, television, and his public.
"I trust God, my wife and myself," Skelton declared in an interview this week. "People take kindness for weakness, and generosity has the form of a sucker."
Skelton, 64, left television after 20 years. And although he's seen less these days, he still plays to sell-out audiences. He said he has an engagement every three days through next year.

"I don't have anybody around me. When someone makes a mistake now, it's either my wife, myself or my granddaughter, Sabrina. She's only 7," Skelton wisecracked, "so she can't hurt me too much."
He was divorced from his first wife, Georgia, known as "Little Red," in 1973. She has since died. His only son died 19 years ago of leukemia at the age of 9. His daughter, Valentina, 30, lives in California with her husband and Sabrina.
Skelton writes daily love letters to his new wife, Lothian, 36.
"When I write my autobiography, they'll see a love story like they never knew before."
Love doesn't come easy to comedians, he said. "If you tell a woman she is beautiful, she thinks it's part of the routine and waits for a joke," he said. "You sense it right away, so you don't follow through. I could never walk up to anyone and be rejected in any way, because if I was, then inside I die."

The late Groucho Marx was a respected friend. "He was the first man to tear down the dignity of man and then let it stand," Skelton said.
Skelton, at 6-feet-3 and 196 pounds, says he is in good health, but "the only exercise I get is acting as pallbearer for my friends who exercise a lot."
"I don't let it bother me. I don't know enough about life to worry about death."
Skelton criticized the medium that made him famous.
"Television gets worse every year — and it's 10 years ahead of its time," he said. "If they can create fear with violence, you'll stay home and watch the commercials and television will sell more products."

Mohawks return to nature

MOSSLAKE, N.Y. (AP) — A band of Indians that seized hundreds of acres of lush forestland in the Adirondacks is moving its community north by rail after surviving three winters in handmade cabins and the hostility of their white neighbors.
The Indians — about 30 families of the Mohawk tribe — are trying to be self-sufficient and live off the land. They lived in the cabins reportedly without electricity or plumbing.
"What brings us here is that we don't see any healthy future for our children if they remain in the reservation and in the urban areas. There are great dangers out there," said the group's spokesman, Kakwirakeron, a former Brooklyn ironworker. "Our culture is on the verge of extinction and we must look seven generations ahead."

group said they still are not giving up their original claim to almost 12.5 million acres of land in northern New York and Vermont.
Mohawk Chief Joseph Brant sold the land to New York State in 1797 for $1,000. The Indians claim the purchase violated a 1794 treaty that prohibited sale of the land.
They are part of the growing movement among Indians to force the government to honor treaties with their forefathers.
In May 1974, the Mohawks took over an abandoned girls' camp owned by the state near here to push recognition for their claim.
Tensions ran high a few months after the Mohawks occupied the abandoned campground. Two whites were wounded by gunfire as they drove past the encampment. The Indians claimed they had been fired on first and refused to allow investigators onto their property.

Since then, they have been living here in virtual seclusion. No white man is allowed on the settlement.
The Mohawks have assumed traditional Indian names although their dress consists mainly of T-shirts and jeans. They grow their own food and fish and hunt. Many gave up good jobs and homes, according to Kakwirakeron.

Nixon files probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time since Richard M. Nixon resigned the presidency rather than face impeachment three years ago, the government has broad authority to scrutinize his files.
Over Nixon's protests, U.S. District Court Judge Aubrey E. Robinson ruled Wednesday that federal officials may search hundreds of boxes of the former president's materials for clues to the whereabouts of some expensive foreign gifts which may be missing.
Up to now officials have been barred from rummaging through the Nixon records except in cases where searches were authorized for items connected to national security or legal proceedings.

Nixon had lost his battle for custody of the materials in June, when the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that seizure of the items by the Congress was constitutional. The materials were turned over to the General Services Administration.
Unless there is an appeal from Robinson's ruling, investigators will begin opening hundreds of file boxes next week under the supervision of a Nixon representative.
U.S. law requires officials, including presidents, to turn over to the State Department's gift unit any foreign gifts worth more than $50.

Now, after long negotiations with the state, the Mohawks have agreed to relocate in Clinton County, about 100 miles to the northeast. They will be settling on an estimated 2,400 acres of public land with fishing and hunting rights on additional land.

Under terms of the agreement with the state, the Indians will rent farming, fishing and camping rights by establishing a model Indian village for public viewing.
But a spokesman for the Wolf attacks child

IRVING (AP) — A four-month-old baby was in critical condition in a Dallas hospital after he was mauled by what officials believe was a wolf-like pet.

not knowing the infant was in there.
A nurse at a nearby clinic where the infant was first treated said the boy was in serious condition when they treated him.

Douglas Aaron Workings of Euleas was attacked Wednesday morning at the Farm Car Fish Market where his mother works. Authorities ordered blood tests to determine whether the animal is a full-blooded wolf or part dog.

"We couldn't raise any vital signs. We started immediate emergency procedures. We could see he was breathing but that was all," the nurse said.
Groth would not talk to reporters about the incident.

The infant is in critical condition at Children's Medical Center in Dallas with extensive bites and lacerations on the head, face and neck.

Chris Pledger, Irving city health director, said city codes prohibit keeping a wild animal. Pledger also said Carlo Narvaez, owner of the cub, failed to receive city permission to keep the pet.

The cub was being kept by fish market owner Ron Groth for a friend and police reported Groth was cleaning the area where he keeps the cub and his two German Shepherds. Groth put the cub in a backroom —

Pledger said the city now had "no alternative but to keep the wolf" until the investigation is completed. After that the animal will be given to a zoo or destroyed, he said.

Employee details affair with top Bell executive

By RICK SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. employe says she carried on an affair with the company's top Texas executive until his suicide in 1974.

Verna Taylor, a $22,000-a-year Bell employe in Lubbock, said she met T. O. Gravit at a business meeting in Lubbock and later spent the night with him in motels in Midland, Corpus Christi and Austin.

Gravit killed himself Oct. 17, 1974, at his home in Dallas during an internal investigation which Bell officials say was touched off by rumors of sexual irregularities among San Antonio-area employes.

Mrs. Taylor, a tall blond, told of her relationship with Gravit during testimony Thursday in a $29 million damage suit filed against Southwestern Bell by the Gravit family and fired Bell executive James Ashley of San Antonio.

The suit claims the nature of the probe drove Gravit to suicide and resulted in the wrongful firing of Ashley. It claims the questions asked by the company destroyed the reputations of both men.

Mrs. Taylor was one of six women sent to the witness stand to testify for Bell before a packed audience in the state district courtroom.

The company, which began its defense on Wednesday, is trying to show the basis for its investigation, which led to Ashley's suspension from his $55,000-a-year job Oct. 9, 1974. He was fired 22 days later, after Gravit's death.

Bell claims Gravit was never a target of the probe.

Some of the women testified that Ashley had a reputation among female Bell employes as a "party man" and "dirty old man."

There was extensive testimony from three women who said they attended, at Ashley's request, a three-day party at a San Antonio hotel at which there was music, liquor, dancing and sex.

Bell contends Ashley organized the party.

At the party, one woman testified, Ashley took her into the hotel suite bedroom, pulled her onto the bed and tried to lift her blouse. She said she refused to have sex with Ashley.

She also said that Gravit had tried to get her into bed at a San Antonio apartment.

Another woman said she had sex with Ashley on numerous occasions because if she didn't "I would get on his s—list." To be on the list meant no change for promotions in the company, she said.

She said Ashley made it clear to her she was obligated to him because he got her the job with the company. She said she had to get drunk before having sex with Ashley. She said she also attended the hotel party.

FBI choice to have surgery

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., President Carter's choice for FBI director, is scheduled to undergo surgery today at Houston's Methodist Hospital for a suspected aneurism.

Performing the surgery is noted heart specialist Dr. Michael DeBakey, according to Johnson's sister-in-law, Mrs. Jimmy Johnson.

Mrs. Johnson confirmed Thursday that Johnson, 58, entered the hospital in Houston earlier that day for treatment of what physicians at Birmingham's University Hospital suspect is an aneurism.

Johnson, 58, was referred to Methodist Hospital after he underwent an examination at University Hospital earlier this week, said Mrs. Johnson.

She said her husband accompanied the judge to Houston where she said he is expected to remain in an intensive care unit "for several days" following today's surgery.

According to Mrs. Johnson, Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell knew of Johnson's health problem when he announced last Wednesday that Johnson was President Carter's choice to succeed retiring FBI Director Clarence Kelley.

Bell "still wants F.M. (Johnson) to take the job," said Mrs. Johnson.

She said Johnson has been aware of the "small knot" in his lower stomach for "some time," but it didn't bother him until a recent fishing trip with his brother.

Aware that the FBI would require a "clean bill of health," Johnson went to his Montgomery physician, Dr. J.J. Kirschenfeld, for consultation, said Mrs. Johnson.

Kirschenfeld, she added, then referred the judge to University Hospital where doctors suspected the knot was an aneurism, a dilation of a blood vessel filled with fluid or clotted blood, usually forming a pulsating tumor, and resulting from disease of the vessel wall.

"We expect complete recovery," said Mrs. Johnson. "We have confidence that everything is going to be all right."

Johnson was appointed to his federal judgeship in 1965 by then President Eisenhower.

Inspector compliments county jail

Twenty-one drilling bits, valued at about $1,000, were taken from Gulf Oil Production Co., 513 S. West, this week, according to a report received by the Gray County Sheriff's Office.

The 21 bits of various name brands were valued at about $400 each, he added.

"They were holed in but not missed until Sunday," the sheriff explained. "It looked like they backed up, loaded them and left."

The investigation is still underway by the Gray County Sheriff's office.

"We are doing some checking locally in addition to the area," Sheriff Jordan said.

Saturday mail may be cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, which seemed ready to end Saturday mail deliveries a few months ago, is taking another look at whether the public would accept the cutback.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar said Thursday that before any decision is made to reduce service, "We intend to do a comprehensive study of what the public wishes."

The Postal Service still is considering the cutback, but will delay its decision until a new public opinion survey is completed, Bailar said.

Last spring, the Commission on Postal Service recommended that Saturday service be eliminated, saving the financially troubled Postal Service an estimated $400 million a year.

Bailar praised the study group at the time and said the service was considering the move.

Then, in late June, the agency put the proposal on its agenda for a July meeting of the Postal Service's governing board. — But when the meeting was held, the item was passed over.

Bailar's speech to a convention of the National League of Postmasters in San Juan, Puerto Rico, was the first public explanation of the delay.

A survey conducted by the A.C. Nielsen polling organization for the study commission found 79 per cent of the public would be willing to forego the sixth delivery day if it would help hold down postal rates.

But now the Postal Service is having second thoughts about that study.

"The results of subsequent surveys ... have differed enough with the Nielsen figures to make us want to more thoroughly analyze the public's acceptance of this move," Bailar said Thursday.

A spokesman, explaining the "subsequent surveys," said results from a new poll commissioned by the Postal Service are confusing.

That survey found 81 per cent of the public "couldn't think of any reason they would have to receive mail on Saturday," the spokesman said.

"This would seem to confirm the Nielsen results," he said.

But, in answering a second survey question, only 45 per cent said they approved of eliminating Saturday deliveries, he added.

Now, he said, "We are trying to find the discrepancy." Before deliveries could be reduced, the Postal Service would have to submit its plan to the independent Postal Rate Commission, which would then hold public hearings on the issue.

O'Hair regrets debates

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — She is sorry she agreed to a series of debates with a fundamentalist evangelist, says Altheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair. Because, she says, evangelist Bob Harrington has "no substance at all" and the audiences act like high schoolers.

The woman who successfully sued to ban prayer in public schools said she entered the debates because she met Harrington on a television talk show and he seemed to have a sense of humor.

"Boy, am I sorry I did that," she said in an interview Wednesday. "Because he has no substance at all."

She said ... he has been challenged to debates by many figures in the religious world, including evangelist Oral Roberts. "These people are religious illiterates," she commented. "They don't know anything about the Bible, religious history or theology."

The seventh of the debates will be held Friday night at Rock Valley College. In the first debate outside the South, Harrington and Mrs. O'Hair will debate such issues as prayer in public schools, tax exemptions for churches and whether the words "In God We Trust" should be printed on U.S. coins.

Citing several graduate degrees, Mrs. O'Hair said that when she tried "an intellectual

Drilling bits stolen here

Inspector Gene Martin of Plainview inspected the Gray County jail Wednesday for the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

"He had few remarks," Sheriff Rufe Jordan commented. An analysis of his investigation and findings will be reported to the Texas Commission by mid-September and forwarded to Gray County.

"He did make mention of the fact we have a very clean jail — better than the average facility," Sheriff Jordan said. The sheriff expects Martin to recommend 12 to 15 changes in the jail, including a padded cell.

Bullock lost suit to open Hill's files

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock has lost his suit for a Texas Supreme Court order commanding Atty. Gen. John Hill to open his files on delinquent tax cases to Bullock's staff.

The high court denied Bullock's application without a hearing and without giving reasons, the usual procedure in such cases.

"I'm very disappointed about it, just real disappointed," Bullock said. "I really feel it's going to be a setback — at least as far as this office is concerned — in tax administration."

To the charge that his criticism of Hill is politically motivated — since each has said he wants to be governor — Bullock said such speculation might be more believable if the issue involved anything besides tax collection.

"I think I pretty well established my reputation in tax collection. The political angle would be the natural thing for a person in Hill's position to bring up. I'll let my record of tax collection — of dollars put in the bank — speak for itself."

Bullock contended he had the same right as any citizen to see Hill's files under the Texas Open Records Act.

Lunch at the White House—tasty, boozeless

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — As restaurants go, the decor isn't much. But the service is fast, the food is inexpensive but good and the address is the best in town: 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

The White House mess may be the most exclusive luncheon spot in Washington, a city where membership in a small club counts a great deal.

The man at the salad bar may be Vice President Walter F. Mondale. Or he may be a Cabinet member or a top presidential assistant. On a rare day, President Carter stops by for a bite to eat.

Picture it: red carpeting, fresh carnations, nautical paintings and a ship's clock. Lunch is served on white china embossed with the presidential seal. It's available to a select 180 persons and an occasional lucky guest. The bite-sized home fries are cooked just right, crisped to a golden brown. The salad, topped with bacon bits, bean sprouts, egg, crouton and peppers, is nearly a meal in itself. But the tender lobster tails, even though succulent, are a bit on the cool side.

Mom might have sold her soul to lay claim to the apple pie, topped with vanilla ice cream so rich it has a sheen like meringue.

A little chilled white wine with the meal would make it perfect, but Carter has ordered everything stronger than iced tea off the menu.

In other days, it was different. Richard Nixon permitted beer and Margaritas at least once a week, part of a Thursday Mexican special. LBJ went all the way with daily cocktails. The White House notes with pride that it has increased the mess membership from 150 to include more aides. The list of honorary members has been trimmed to 30 or so. These days, the list includes

Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns; Keri-Curtis of the Democratic National Committee; CIA Director Adm. Stansfield Turner, William Scranton, a member of the Intelligence Oversight Board; Charles Kirbo, an Atlanta lawyer and Carter's longtime friend and several less familiar names like Henry Owen of the Brookings Institution.

Harvesters to scrimmage Canyon

By TOM KENSLE
Pampa News Sports Editor
The Harvesters will get to execute all the blackboard X's and O's tonight when they tangle with Canyon in a 7 p.m. scrimmage at Buffalo Bowl.
Although admitting that scrimmage games are not to be played with the intensity of a district game, Pampa Head Coach John Welborn does not discount the importance of the Harvesters' first contest.
"There are still some positions open, and who gets to start in the Hereford game will depend a lot on this scrimmage," Welborn said.

"We are going to experiment some both on offense and defense to get a look at the total offense and defense setups. We expect good hitting on defense and hope for some good execution on offense.
Welborn has been very impressed with the offensive skill positions led by quarterbacks Rick Dougherty and Steve Young, running backs Rudy Roland and Todd Chumbley, and receivers Ricky Buntun and Gary Dumas.
"The backs have taken to the veer (Houston) offense real well. The mistakes that they are making are things like fumbles which you get with any offense."
Being one of the smallest Pampa teams in years, Welborn warns that the Harvesters will not be able to make many mistakes and must go for the big play on both offense and defense.
"Our offense will be much more balanced than in past years. I feel that we have real good passers and receivers, and we'll use them quite a bit.
"On defense we're going to have to hide some of our weaknesses with different types of sets, so we'll be moving around," he said.
The scrimmage will be important, Welborn said, in dictating next week's preparation for the season opener against Hereford. "We should get an idea of our weaknesses," he said.
The varsity game will be preceded by a 5:30 contest between the Pampa and Canyon junior varsity squads.
Listed below are the probable Harvesters starters for tonight's scrimmage.

ATLANTA FALCONS PROSPECTUS

Still another regime takes over the destiny of the Falcons. This time it finds little Eddie LeBaron, long out of football, heading the front office and Leeman Bennett, an assistant from the Rams, plotting the field strategy. The Falcons may have helped themselves in the draft with a covey of big linemen. Considering their immediate past, they can use help.

OFFENSE

Quarterback: Falcons went down for the count in '76 when Steve Bartkowski was sidelined one month into the season. The big blond showed as rookie in '75 that he's the man to lead the Falcons' revival. Rating—B
Receiving: Highly touted John Gilliam was a disappointment in his return to home territory, but slim Alfred Jenkins emerged as "big play" threat. Good rookie in Shelton Diggs. Jim Mitchell's unhappiness could alter situation at tight end. Rating—B Running: Last year was devoted to rookie development. Bubba Bean started fast. Sonny Collins finished strong. Together they've got to carry the load because Haskell Stanback developed fumbleitis. Rocky Esposito can help out. Billy Ray Pritchett, too. Rating—B Offensive Line: They should find room immediately for Warren Bryant, top draftee, 6-6, 270-pound hunk of mobility. Would be nice if he can play guard because tackles Brent Adams, Len Goltsch are OK. Rookie R.C. Thielmann another prospect. Rating—B

DEFENSE

Defensive Line: Claude Humphrey, who came back strong from knee injury, has been rumbering about wanting to be traded, would disrupt end corps. And Mike Tilleman's retiring at tackle. That means immediate employment for touted newcomer Wilson Faumina. Rating—C Linebackers: The Nobis era is over. Last of Falcon originals retired, leaving big gap in middle, to be filled by Ralph Ortega. Outside spots suspect since Greg Brezina, Fulton Kuykendall are coming off injuries. And no help in sight. Rating—C Secondary: The most stable part of the defense but thin in case anything happens to the starters. Ray Brown and Ray Easterling at safeties; Rolland Lawrence and Frank Reed on corners. Also a secondary suffers if rush up front diminishes. Rating—B
Kicking, Special Teams: Couple of off years by Nick Mike-Mayer caused Falcons to draft Allan Levitt for place-kicking competition. John James was leading NFC punter, so that's in good shape. Rolland Lawrence is premier kick returner. Rating—B

PREDICTION

The few stars the Falcons had are beginning to fade out, through retirement or sheer unhappiness. Organization has been in need of revamping, from the top. It's doubtful that the new guys can come in and do much immediately. Spot them fourth in NFC West.

Pampa fastpitch AL stars win; tourney slated

The American League all-stars scored two or more runs in four consecutive innings and held on for a 13-11 victory over the National League in the Pampa Industrial Softball League All-Stars game Thursday night in Lions Club Park.
The AL struck quickly with three in the top of the first on a double by Kenny Cloud, a triple by Wade Archibald, and a single by Gary Harper.
But the NL evened the score in the second when Dwight Rice lined a double down the third base line to knock in Rick Foster and Chuck Albus.

Harper regained the lead for his AL squad with a booming inside-the-park homerun in the third for two runs.
It looked as though the AL had the game under control until the seventh when the National stars came up with five runs to pull within two, at 12-10. Three of the runs scampared home when AL fielder Dale Emmons dropped a David White liner.
Each team scored once in the ninth for the remaining runs.
The game marked the end of the regular season for the league, although there will be three playoff games on Tuesday to determine the second-place team. Champion Hudson-Ohio, with a 14-4 record, was followed by Harold Barrett, Pupco, Hardin-Roth, and National Auto each with a 12-6 mark.
Hudson-Ohio's players include player-coach Larry Knutson, Benny Wyant, Jody Johnson, David White and Kory Gamblin.
An invitational tournament, including five teams from Pampa, three squads from Amarillo, and a team from Borger, will begin tonight and run through Sunday afternoon in the Lions Club Park.

NFL trench battles resume

Sometimes there's nothing more exciting in a pro football game than the action in "the pit," where behemoths collide on every play. And when two behemoths go at each other are trying to win jobs, it makes the collisions even more fearsome.
Which is why, when you're not watching Fran Tarkenton, Bob Griese or the rest of the more obvious players on Minnesota and Miami in tonight's National Football League game on ABC, you might glance in the trenches. Vikings defensive tackle Joe Jackson and Dolphins offensive tackle Wally Psetit will be raising some dust.
The long weekend of exhibitions moves into high gear Saturday night with Baltimore at Dallas, Los Angeles at Kansas City, Cincinnati at St. Louis, San Diego at Oakland, Detroit at Seattle, Washington at Green Bay, the New York

Fishing report

Lake Greenbelt - Fishing for channel catfish is very good with fish up to 10 pounds being caught. The catfish are being taken in all areas of the lake. Bass fishing is fair with a few good strings coming in. Two bass in the 5 pound class were caught during the period. White bass fishing is coming up. Large schools of "mudminnows" have been seen on the surface recently. One good string of percher caught a 41 pound flathead catfish on a trotline in North Canyon. The walleye fishing has slackened off from earlier in the summer but good strings are still being taken by fishing deep off of rocky points. Fishing for bass and crappie is slow.
Lake McChesnut - Fishing for channel catfish and bullheads is very good as muskies and worms. Several channel catfish in the 2 to 6 pound class have been caught over the weekend. A few small bass have been taken recently and crappie fishing seems to be picking up some.
Lake Rita Blanca - The lake has a fishing tournament underway which will run Labor Day. Minimum weights for entry are: largemouth bass - 3 pounds, channel catfish - 3 pounds, and trout - 11 inches. A variety of fishing equipment will be awarded to the winner on Labor Day.
Lake Marlin - Fishing has been good for catfish to 4 1/2 pounds, small bass, and snout. Lake Baylor - Fishing for bass has been spotty. Ellis Knight of Pampa has caught a 6 1/2 pound bass and the Pampa bass club has a good tournament here with several bass in the 5-7 pound class being caught. Channel catfishing has been good at night for fish up to 11 pounds. The lake is low.
Lake Marlin - Bass fishing has been excellent with several limit catches reported. Most of the fish are in the 2 and 3 pound class and are taking black topwater baits early in the morning and late in the evening. Some nice channel catfish have been caught and fishing for snoutfish is still pretty good.
Copper Breaks State Park Lake - Fishing for most species is poor with a few small bass and catfish being caught. One tiger muskie was caught which was 23 inches long.
Lake Pauline - Fishing has been slow with mostly small fish being caught. The water temperature is almost 80 degrees F. Fishing for larger bass should pick up as the waters cool this fall.
Lake Theo - Fishing has been slow over the period with muskies being the only species which have been consistently caught.
Lake McChesnut - Fishing for catfish has been very good for both channels and flatheads. Several fish over 5 pounds were caught over the period. After the recent cold front fishing for small bass in the coves was excellent. Snoutfish are biting very well but crappie and walleye are slow. The water temperature is 78 degrees F. at 6 feet.

Red Sox snap loss string

BOSTON (AP) - The pitching and defense could have been better, but the Boston Red Sox didn't care. They broke out of a prolonged batting slump with 16 hits and ended a late season winless streak.
"Maybe now we'll pick up a little momentum and get going," veteran Carl Yastrzemski said Thursday night after the Red Sox snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 9-6 victory over the Texas Rangers before

Sophs win

The Pampa sophomore "A" team played even with the Miami varsity, and the sophomore "B" team defeated the Miami junior varsity, 1-0, in controlled scrimmages at the Shocker Field Thursday.
In 40 possessions, the A team gained 157 yards rushing and 40 yards through the airways, but scored only once.
Miami, which fumbled four of their first five carries, also tallied one score.
Coach John Welborn was pleased at the opening performance of the sophomores. "I thought we might move the ball a little better, but we played pretty good defense. It looks like a good sophomore class," he said.
Outstanding players, as determined by the coaches were: Dwayne Avery, DE; Tony Tolison, LB; Greg Quarles, DB; Brian Williams, FB; Doug Smith, TB; Mickey Bynum, C; Keenan Henderson, FL; Brent Rogers, SE; and Joe Jeffers, QB.

Aggies look to offense regulars returning this season — linebacker Kevin Monk, cornerback Mike Williams and safety Carl Grulich — the glory days of the Aggie defense may be fading.

"Nobody can stay on top forever," Robertson said.
But if the Aggies' high-powered offense, directed by quarterback David Walker and carried by mammoth fullback George Woodard, can perform to expectations, A&M could match last season's 10-2 record that included a victory over Florida in the Sun Bowl.
"For the past few years we've had to dominate people on defense to get going," Robertson said. "We don't have the firepower to do that right off this year. But we've got an offense that can move the ball."
"That should allow us to get by with a little bit younger bunch on defense. If the offense can score a few points, that will allow us to do a few things."
"We're not unarmed. It's just a little green that's all but we'll take care of that the first three weeks of the season. They're a very aggressive bunch. They've been letting us know there's not going to be that much of a drop off."
Robertson hopes the Aggies' heavy offensive weaponry will stand up early in the season and allow the young defensive timber time to season.
"I'd like to have the best offense in the country with us sitting on the bench all the time," Robertson said.

Being a smart shopper Part II

$17-food for a week

EDITOR'S NOTE: To Heinz Biesdorf, life is one big bargain. A consumer economist, Biesdorf contends that a smart shopper can save thousands of dollars and the professor is a living example of how his theories work.

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — 3:25 p.m. Heinz Biesdorf enters the supermarket.

With the instinct of a homing pigeon, he heads straight for the first bargain of the day — 10 pounds of potatoes for $1.19.

He ignores displays that would tempt a less-determined shopper.

Forty-five minutes and three supermarkets later, Biesdorf has finished this week's shopping for himself and his wife. He has spent $16.82. Everything he bought was on sale.

Biesdorf, a consumer economist and Cornell University professor who came to this country from West Germany in 1950, is a super shopper, the kind of person who is known in the grocery business as a "cherry picker." He buys only the specials.

The slender, balding educator believes that professionalism in shopping can save consumers thousands of dollars. He looks on shopping and buying as a challenge. A tour of his house — "I bought it at half price" — is accompanied by a running commentary on prices and discounts for products ranging from appliances to clothing.

"That's a $199 typewriter. I picked it up hardly used, three or four years old, for about $60. My eyes are always going."

Biesdorf never skips an opportunity to hunt for a bargain. Waiting for a visitor whose plane was delayed, he drove to a nearby shopping center — just to see what was available.

"I said, 'Look, what have you got?'" Biesdorf recalls. He was told there were $10 shirts on sale at three for $10. "I said, 'Hey, that's interesting. Let me see.' I probably have 30, 40, 50 shirts at home. I wear out a lot of shirts. And I'm never going to pay $10 for a $10 shirt. Why should I? So I bought two — $3.33 for a $10 shirt. Half of the stuff in my house was bought just that way."

Biesdorf concedes that most people would not want that many shirts, but he argues that the principle is important. It is a principle which forms one of his basic rules for shopping: Buy when the price is right. And when the price is right, buy a lot.

Biesdorf, along with two colleagues at Cornell, has turned his principles into a kit, "Besa Better Shopper — Buying in Supermarkets," first published by the New York State Extension Service nine years ago and recently issued in a revised edition.

The tour of his house includes a look at what he calls

"my own supermarket in my own home." He has a separate room for storing groceries — five 26-ounce containers of salt, bought at a nickel each instead of the regular 23-cent price; cases of canned peaches, nine pounds of spaghetti, vinegar by the gallon, noodles.

This supply is the reason that Biesdorf spent less than $17 on groceries this week. He bought only the bargains. Anything else he needs, he will draw from his storeroom, replacing items only when the price is right.

Biesdorf and his wife, who is studying for a degree in social work, share the shopping chores, depending on who has more time. He starts his shopping each week by going through the newspapers to check the specials advertised by each store. He circles items that are of interest.

Biesdorf's savings come mainly on products such as canned goods and nonfood products which can be stored. Perishables like meat and fresh produce are replaced weekly, with menus planned by his wife around the specials. He did not own a freezer until late last year.

Biesdorf estimates he spends about $22 a week on food for himself and his wife, including spot expenditures and items from storage. That's about the same amount as the U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates it takes to feed two people on a bare-bones thrift plan. "But I eat two people," he says.

He scans the newspaper specials. Lemon juice at 5 cents a quart. The regular price is 89 cents. "I will buy six. I save $1.80." Other "interesting" items include carrots at 19 cents a pound, cantaloupe at 39 cents. He rejects canned tomato paste at four cans for $1. "I have 20 cans...at 13 cents each."

What if you don't like the brand of lemon juice on sale? "Food is cheap and taste is expensive," Biesdorf says. Besides, he contends that most people cannot tell the difference between store brands and the better-known items. "Most stores have two or three different qualities of house brands. It's not quite fair to compare their lowest quality house brand with the national brand. You compare the best quality house brand with the regular brand."

"If you do discern, with the wrapper off, that one product is consistently more tasteful to you and it happens to be also more expensive, then all I can say is you get your money's worth for two reasons: one, you like it, and two, you know what you're doing. There is nothing wrong with anyone spending anything they have any way they want if there is no alternative and they know what they're doing."

Knowing what you are doing is a key to Biesdorf's spending. He contends that most people do not know where their money has gone over the years.

Setting out for the supermarket in his Volkswagen — purchased at the lowest possible price just before the new models arrived — Biesdorf continues pointing out possible savings. He has never purchased a national brand of gas, for example.

In the first supermarket, he buys only the potatoes and a box of crackers for 39 cents. He is out of the store in 10 minutes.

He never loads his cart with items after item. He is buying even less than usual this Thursday afternoon because he has meat at home in the freezer and because he is taking a three-month sabbatical later in the year and does not need to keep his home storeroom fully stocked.

His 3:40 p.m. — 15 minutes after the shopping expedition started, Biesdorf enters the second supermarket, drapes the newspaper ads for that store over the handle of his shopping cart and sets off. Chopped chuck is available at a good price, but he doesn't like the look of the meat. He laughs as he passes potatoes at 10 pounds for $1.99. Cheddar, not advertised, but a good price. "That lasts pretty well," he says, picking up low packages. They advertised carrots, three heads of lettuce at 29 cents each, peaches and cantaloupes are added to the shopping cart. The bill is $5.28. At 3:50 p.m., he is heading for the parking lot.

For his third stop, Biesdorf has a choice of two stores both with tempting specials. A good price for salami puts one supermarket "over the top."

He is in the third store at 3:55 p.m., conceding that he is lucky to have so many supermarkets clustered in a relatively small area of Ithaca. He looks briefly at a display of dented cans and boxes, day-old produce and other less-than-perfect items offered at low prices. "It doesn't hurt to look briefly," Biesdorf says, but finds nothing tempting. "They want to sell me an old lettuce at 39 cents. I have a much better one at 29 cents."

He buys a salami — "Who makes it?" he asks the clerk after making sure that the price and weight are carefully marked on the tag. A jar of peanut butter, a container of cottage cheese and a case of beer complete his purchases. The beer is a special. It is not his favorite brand, but he has never tried it and says it doesn't matter anyway. To a German, none of the American beers is really satisfactory. He leaves the third store at 4:10 p.m.

Biesdorf admits that he sometimes makes mistakes. He did not foresee the surge in coffee prices and rejected $2-a-pound coffee as too expensive. He has too much jam and jelly in his storeroom. "We wanted to get a whole bunch of varieties, they were on sale...and I figured, well, I'll just drag 'em home. Somebody will eat them eventually...but there's no need having $12 worth of jam and jellies sitting around."

Haldeman's private life in jail

By Murray Olderman

LOMPOC, Calif. — (NEA) — I visited H.R. Haldeman in prison. Well, actually, we just stood next to each other in the men's lavatory of the low-slung visitors' building on the road leading into the Federal Prison Camp, Lompoc.

This is home for at least the next two and a half years of the man who, before Watergate, was the second most powerful figure in the government of the world's strongest nation.

Harry R. Haldeman, as he's carried in the prison ledger, is now officially No. 01489-163-B.

He wore a navy blue polo shirt, baggy khaki pants and sand-colored soft-soled shoes. His hair, dark brown with touches of gray at the sideburns, was no longer crew cut but tapered over the ears.

The seedlings of a scraggly black mustache flopped over his upper lip and tapered down at the corners of his mouth.

We didn't talk. That was his choice.

When Bob Haldeman arrived at 1:55 p.m. June 21, 1977, to begin serving a 2 1/2 to 8 year sentence for conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury, he made it clear to Warden Lawrence G. Grossman he wanted no interviews and refused to have his picture taken by outside photographers.

So I drove a half mile further down the road, past a prisoners' block which looks more like a university dormitory quadrangle, to see the warden. A horseshoe drive, strewn with an island of flowers, approaches a phalanx of grim, squat and square concrete buildings, bars crisscrossing the windows, behind two sets of high barbed wire fences separated by a moat of rubble. A high glassed-in tower dominates the entrance.

A sign halfway up the road admonished me to stop and shut off the motor of the car. A speaker tucked in among the flowers blared out, "Identify yourself." Then it blared out, "Park the car in the left lot and come to the lobby."

A guard in the watch tower manipulated two sets of sliding gates to let me in. A final buzzer permitted entrance to the front door of the central building and a guard at the desk said, "Good morning, FCI."

side the gates. This is an entirely different facility. There are no barriers. There are no guards in uniform. There is nothing ostensibly to keep H.R. Haldeman from taking a hike if he has the whim.

It's the one minimum security camp in California and comes closest to simulating normal living. Donald Segretti, Herbert Kalmbach and Dwight Chapin — other Watergate scandal figures — did time here before Haldeman.

"I spent three minutes with Haldeman after he arrived," recalled Grossman, "and asked if he had any questions or problems. He seemed to be pretty well briefed on what to expect. I haven't seen him since. It's my understanding he's well accepted."

The Federal Prison Camp, where Haldeman lives, was once troop barracks for the barbed-wire prison, which was a military discipline center during World War II. It's a place where they put men who are serving short sentences, up to three years, or are completing longer terms and are on the verge of getting out. They are no longer judged security risks, either to themselves, their fellow inmates or the community.

There is a 24-hour accountability for inmates' movements and periodic checks by unobtrusive guards, whose clothes blend in the denims or khakis and colored polo shirts (they can buy them at the commissary) worn by prisoners.

Haldeman is assigned, at his request, to the sewage disposal plant office, where he does general lab and clerical work. His first job was general maintenance on the grounds around the power house.

On an average day, he gets up at 6 a.m., has breakfast at 6:15, works from 8 to 11, breaks for lunch and goes back out at 12:30, finishing his work day at 3:30. Dinner is at 4:45, and then he is free for leisure activities. There are TV rooms, tennis courts outside and a jogging track.

Haldeman lives in a small cubicle, one of 30 in an open dormitory, separated by six-foot high partitions. Each has a bed, a desk, a reading light and a place to store clothes. The partitions are often decorated with centerfolds from "Hustler" and "Penthouse" magazines. In a few months he may graduate to a room that houses four men.

Until he's eligible to apply for parole, in-late November 1979, he'll be just another one of 408 numbers in this camp, which lies a pleasant 30-mile drive northwest of Santa Barbara on Highway 1, over the San Rafael mountains, down to the bed of the flower-strewn Lompoc (lahm-pohk) valley, famed for cultivating seeds. Town, which is accessible to minimum security prisoners like Haldeman for special personal business, isn't much — a Winchell's Donuts, a Round Table Pizza, Sambo's, a Christian Science Reading Room.

But if you've got to serve time, this is the way to do it. "Still," pointed out Gary Aldinger of the prison staff, tapping the concrete-block wall in the corridor outside Haldeman's cubicle, "it's prison."

50,000 aliens rounded up

WASHINGTON (AP) — One day last week, a Border Patrol agent in Laredo, Tex., was hailed by four Mexicans. Stopping his car, the agent was told the four wanted to turn themselves in, claim their amnesty and get work permits. Instead, they became U.S. government statistics.

They are among 50,705 illegal aliens reported rounded up and deported along the Mexican border since President Carter announced his amnesty plan on Aug. 4.

Officials said Wednesday a survey of Border Patrol stations along the Mexican border found that the number of aliens captured and deported for the first three weeks of this month is 51 per cent higher than last year's figure of 33,485.

Government experts admit they have no way of knowing exactly how many aliens entered the country escaped capture during the same period. The Border Patrol usually estimates that two-thirds of the alien who cross the border get away.

That would mean that 100,000 aliens have sneaked into the country from Mexico without being caught since the amnesty proposals.

say interviews with the captured aliens indicate that the amnesty proposals, as well as worsening Mexican economic problems, are the reasons for the increased flow of aliens.

But aliens who enter the country now are misinformed if they think that Carter's proposals will help them. First, they must be approved by Congress to become law.

Carter's plan would only apply to aliens who arrived before 1977. Aliens who could prove they arrived before 1970 would be eligible for permanent resident status under the Carter plan. Aliens who came between 1970 and 1977 would be eligible for a five-year temporary resident status.

But apparently, many Mexicans, like the four arrested in Laredo, do not understand the details of the proposal. "A lot of the ones we've caught mention the amnesty when we ask them why they came," said chief agent Roger Stout of Laredo.

Big house blues

Trouble brews at Quentin

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Burly "Big George" Sumner, warden of San Quentin Prison, glared across the shiny conference table and spit out the words like they were tough meat. "We will be in control!"

Despite all the authority the 6-foot-3, 250-pound prison boss put into the statement, it remains more hope than fact. For San Quentin, in the 125th anniversary of its tempestuous existence on a sunny hook of land jutting into San Francisco Bay, is a prison in crisis.

In July, gang-inspired racial battles left three convicts dead. Now, nearly a third of the cons are "locked down" in the east block — 600 men penned in their cells all day under maximum security.

Another 100, hardened gang leaders and members, are isolated under the gun in the north block with little likelihood of ever returning to the main population. The rest go about their business within the walls in an uneasy peace Sumner prays will stick. Officers scan this last group for "underground" gang members who face the north block if found.

"I don't have any reason to believe the same thing would not happen again," Sumner admitted ruefully of the day of violence.

His main complaint is one shared in varying degrees by most of the men who have held the warden's post at one of the world's most notorious penitentiaries.

In short, trouble brews when hard cases are mixed with peaceful inmates who are unable to defend themselves against hate-filled crazies whose solution to disputes is sudden death at the end of a filed-down spoon.

"I think the great, great majority of inmates want to have a peaceful, tranquil place," he said in an interview. "But we've been at the mercy of gangs for some time. We were controlled."

"If they decided they wanted to kill somebody, we weren't in a position to do a heck of a lot about it."

On July 12, the decision came. Sumner said it was little consolation that the bloody explosions were the result of a "mistake" that pitted the normally peaceful Black Muslims against the Nazi-type whites of the American National Socialists and Satan's Few motorcycleists.

As Sumner told it, the whites mistakenly killed a Muslim in the morning, thinking he was a member of the Black Guerrilla Family. The Muslims, who profess to be law-abiding and aloof from the troublemakers, backed up a standing threat to retaliate when one of their members is hurt.

Nine hours later, the warring factions clashed with clubs and knives, turning prison corridors into a bloody battlefield. When it was over another two inmates, whites, were dead, including a man who was hurled from a third-story tier.

Within a few percentage points, the racial mix at 2,200-inmate San Quentin is fairly representative of the statewide prison population: White, 41.9 per cent; black, 39.7; Mexican-American, 16.7; other, 1.7. The average age at Q is about 30.

Sumner says there are signs peace may return to the old bastille now that the gangs are isolated from the mainline. The warden guesses the "really hopeless bad guys" make up no more than 2 or 3 per cent of all inmates, and "the guys that belong to the gangs and have to do what the gangs decide at between 15 and 20 per cent at most."

Their segregation, says Sumner, has brought hope to the peaceful inmates who could not stand up to the killers.

"Now that most of the gang guys are out of the population, the peaceful prisoners are expressing opinions that it's a good thing," he said. "It's my intention to keep the gang guys completely separate from the rest of the prison."

In the same vein, Sumner plans to create a number of small "prisons within a prison," in the face of the legislature's rejection this year of an administration proposal for $92 million to build at least two new flexible-security prisons in California.

"I'm trying to divide San Quentin up into small sections. It's impossible to work with masses of people," Sumner said.

Even in the hard-bitten north block, swarming with hostility, Sumner entertains hopes of spiritual reconstruction.

"I think some of the gangs can be dissolved, if we can work with these people as individuals and (have them) make individual decisions." Then Sumner sets his jaw again.

"As far as the gangs go, we have to be in control — and I'm going to do so. And they know it."

He admits to much anxiety about the crowded east block, calling it a "large, unmanageable situation," and the inmates there "600 question marks." He adds wistfully:

"It's hard to really know inmates. It's difficult to determine when to let them out. I don't have any reason to believe the same thing (repeat violence) would not happen."

Sumner is unhappy with the lockdown because "it's unfair. When lockdowns occur, many who aren't guilty of anything are locked up with the bad ones."

He noted with profound disappointment that feeling guided his release of a lockdown prior to the July killings.

He said he had met with gang leaders "and impressed on them my intention of having a peaceful prison here. They assured me they would work together in harmony. They made truces with each other... then they went out and broke them."

'No women' says VFW

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — With a warning to President Carter to mind his own "damn business," the Veterans of Foreign Wars has refused to for the eighth consecutive year to admit military women as members.

The vote was overwhelming despite the approval of a by-laws amendment by VFW leaders and urging for women's admission from the federal government. In fact, the federal push may have influenced some votes against women.

"I wouldn't mind letting them in, but we're not going to be forced into it," said Floyd Fowler of the Michigan delegation.

"We don't want them forced down our throats."

Rockpile scene changes

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The old prison rockpile ain't what it used to be. The arduous chore of making little rocks out of big ones, once a form of inmate punishment, is being done by paid volunteers at the state prison here.

"I had to ask them for a month before they would let me go out there," says Aleck Raby, one of 18 inmates assigned to the job of chipping away at sandstone in an old quarry used in years past for disciplining convicts.

"It's something to do instead of sitting around all the time," he says. "There just aren't that many jobs around here. It's only four hours a day or so and it keeps you in shape."

pounds of excess weight and hopes to take off another 10 pounds or so.

Charles Wolff Jr., the prison's warden, says the rockpile was once "the least desirable work available," a form of punishment which had disappeared from prisons for years.

"But we revived it as an organized activity which gets inmates out of their cells and maybe will even give them a sense of accomplishment. It beats doing nothing," he says.

The problem at the aging Maximum Security Prison here is that it was set up for about 300 inmates and now has 470. The legislature has provided $8 million to improve the prison system, but work on new facilities is still in progress.

Many of the inmates on the rock crew had been kept idle in lockup after a prison disturbance last year. There weren't enough jobs available to keep them busy.

"Max" Supt. Boyd Marsing says the inmates were asked about six months ago whether they wanted to work in the old quarry, to chip rock for a decorative wall around a proposed visitor's park.

About 30 inmates volunteered, but gradually the crew was thinned down to 18, including a half-dozen who pound rocks daily, another six who do the work often, and others who "work when they feel like it," Raby says.

The pay is $10 a month for the full-time crew, below the average of $15 monthly for other prison jobs.

The men work bars into cracks and fissures in a rock cliff to break loose sandstone blocks, and then split the rocks with single jacks and sledge hammers — the standard method for old-time hardrock miners. Sledges and chisels are then used to roughly square the blocks. No dynamite is allowed.

"It's not as hard as you might think," says Raby. "We work at our own pace. I'm used to working hard anyway, so there's nothing to it for me."
