ROLLING STONES SINGER, GUITARIST

Rock Group Members Arrested After Scuffle

BOSTON (AP) — Mick Jagger and Keith Richards, the leader and lead guitarist of the Rolling Stones, have been arrested in connection with a brawl with police. But they still made it to Boston Garden early today where thousands of fans had waited 5 1/2 hours in sweltering heat to hear the British rock group.

The delay in the concert occurred when Jagger, 29, Richards, 29, and three other members of their traveling party were arrested in Warwick, R. I., Tuesday night on charges stemming from a scuffle when a photographer tried to take a picture of the group.

Their plane had been diverted to Green International Airport at Warwick when fog socked in Logan International Airport here.

"I called and I got them out and they're on their way," Mayor Kevin White told a capacity crowd of 15,509 persons who had packed the Garden for the scheduled 8 p.m. concert.

Despite the delay the crowd generally remained orderly.

White, who appeared before the crowd at 11:10 p.m., had interceded with authorities at Warwick in behalf of the Stones.

Authorities used many ploys to keep the crowd occupied, including at one point passing out small, rubber footballs, which the fans tossed around the Garden for several minutes.

When the Stones arrived on stage at 12:50 a.m., they were greeted by a long, loud ovation.

Earlier, Jagger, Richards and the three others arrested appeared before Justice of the Peace Perry Bernstein in a special session of Rhode Island District Court at Warwick police headquarters. They were arraigned on charges stemming from the airport scuffle. All pleaded innocent, were released on bail and sent under police escort for the 60-mile drive to Boston.

They were ordered to appear Aug. 23 in District Court for a hearing.

Police were sent to the Warwick airport after Andy Dickerman, a photographer for the Providence Journal, called and complained that he had been assaulted by a member of the group in a fire shed where they were awaiting their baggage.

When police attempted to put Richard in a police car, Ricci said, Jagger and two other members of the party, Marshall Chess, 30, of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Robert Frank, 46, of Zurich, became involved in a scuffle with police.

Jagger and Chess were charged with obstruction of a police officer. Moore and Richards were charged with assault. Those charges are misdemeanors. Frank was charged with assault on a uniformed police officer, a felony.

Action Delayed On Wage Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The minimum wage bill has bogged down in the Senate amid charges by some sponsors that presidential politics are to blame for the delay.

The Democratic-sponsored bill would boost the wage floor from $1.60 to $2.20 an hour and make other changes in the law. It is of particular importance to the AFL-CIO.

The bill was brought up in the Senate Monday, but Republicans quickly countered with a substitute pushed by President Nixon that would put the minimum at $2 and eliminate many provisions of the Democratic proposal.

The substitute is strongly opposed by the AFL-CIO. Senate Democrats said they hope to defeat it.

They said they were particularly anxious to demonstrate their commitment to labor on the issue because of the unhappiness of some AFL-CIO leaders over the Democratic national ticket.

After a series of cloakroom huddles, agreement was reached among Senate leaders to vote Thursday on the key issue of the GOP substitute.

The agreement also provides that a vote on final passage of the measure will take place before Thursday night.

Some Democrats charged privately that the Republicans did not want to vote until after the AFL-CIO executive council meeting today to discuss the question of a presidential endorsement.

The Democrats said Republicans felt that pushing the $2 substitute in advance of the council session might hurt them with labor.

Connally Wants Active Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally would like to play a leading role in international economic policy if he returns to public life in a second Nixon administration, some of his associates say.

There's no question about it. He's fascinated by the whole area of international economics. He has definite ideas about it and would like to put his stamp on U.S. policy," said one associate.

That means, according to these sources, that Connally would probably prefer the job of secretary of state over vice president.

They say the former Texas governor is too restless and dynamic to be vice president, wanting instead to take on a more challenging task if he returns to Washington.

Although Connally has said he doesn't think he'll be offered the secretary of state post if Nixon is re-elected, he has never ruled out the possibility that he would take it if offered.

Connally developed a strong interest in international economics soon after Nixon stunned the nation by naming him treasury secretary in late 1970.

He was instrumental in the first devaluation of the dollar since 1934, spoke bluntly to U.S. allies of a new day in economic relations in which America would have to look more after its own interests, and negotiated a new system of currency exchange rates.

But Connally felt the job was unfinished, his associates said, particularly since many trade barriers to American products remained in foreign countries. And then, there is still the uncompleted job of structuring a new world monetary system.

The theme of the trip was economic," said one official.

Connally stressed one idea in his visit. He said the United States could no longer continue the kind of massive aid to countries that it did after World War II. It is time for other nations to recognize this reality, he said.

Kissinger In Paris

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today that Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's security affairs aide, was holding secret, Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Kissinger, who flew to Paris Tuesday, was meeting with Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy, North Vietnamese negotiators. Ziegler said Kissinger would return to Washington late Wednesday.

Until Ziegler talked to newsmen today there had been a veil of secrecy over Kissinger's whereabouts.

Kissinger did not return to Washington with President Nixon from the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., Tuesday.

US Skeptical Of Soviet Withdrawal From Egypt

Large Pull-Out Not Evidenced

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials are keeping close watch on Soviet deployment in Egypt amid some skepticism here over how many Russians actually will pull out.

President Anwar Sadat's surprise announcement of an end to "the mission of Soviet military advisers and experts" underlined the most serious Moscow-Cairo dispute since Russian military personnel were invited into Egypt two years ago.

Sadat also said that "all the military equipment and installations set up within Egyptian territory" are to be the exclusive property of the Arab Republic of Egypt and under the administration of our armed forces.

But the Cairo announcement gave no figures on how many of an estimated 15,000 Russians in Egypt were supposed to leave.

While Sadat was quoted as saying the move was "actually implemented in full" Monday, there was no independent word here yet of any large scale Russian withdrawal.

The authoritative Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said today that the pull-out will not apply to Soviet military men who are training Egyptian forces.

Of the 15,000, approximately half are rated here as "advisers and experts" and the rest are believed to be in Soviet units assigned to the Mediterranean and to Egypt's air defense.

Cairo's wording about "military equipment and installations" some experts suggest, may be ambiguous enough to be carried out by only a symbolic Egyptian takeover while continuing to permit Russian use of bases.

Nonetheless, Sadat made plain Egypt's disagreement with the Soviet Union, her big power supporter and supplier of billions of dollars worth of arms aid.

He said the two remain friends. But he complained of Soviet failure to deliver promised arms in 1971, the year he said was to have been "decisive" against Israel. And he indicated Moscow turned him down further this year on weaponry for an offensive against Israel.

How far the Kremlin and Sadat will go to patch up this still-in-the-family dispute is going to be of prime interest to Washington strategists.

Meany Doesn't Answer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although AFL-CIO President George Meany wasn't accepting calls from the Democratic vice presidential nominee, some labor leaders held out hope today that the full effect of Meany's unhappiness with the party's presidential ticket could be averted.

The 35-man AFL-CIO executive council met to decide whether to endorse Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern and his running mate, Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri.

One measure suggested by some labor leaders provided that the federation make no endorsement of a presidential candidate for the first time in its 17-year history, instead leaving it up to each of the 117 member unions to decide whether to endorse a ticket.

The AFL-CIO always has backed Democratic presidential candidates in the past but Meany is very unhappy with the choice of McGovern.

Eagleton said Tuesday he had been unable to reach Meany on the telephone though he tried for two days.

However, he said he talked with nine other labor leaders and received encouragement or outright endorsements from officials of the Machinists Union, the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, the State, County and Municipal Employees Union and the International Association of Meat Cutters.

Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers Union, met with Eagleton Tuesday and said he would work for the Democratic ticket and expected the union to endorse it.

Woodcock at one time was under consideration for the spot Eagleton has on the ticket. Eagleton said he will make no further contacts with other union officials because he doesn't want to leave the impression he is "intermeddling in union affairs."

The 2 million-member Teamsters Union, which has not been a part of the AFL-CIO since 1957, has endorsed President Nixon.

High Level Of Cadmium In Children

HOUSTON (AP) — Tests have found above normal levels of the metal cadmium in the blood of Amarillo children who attend school near a polluting zinc smelter, the Houston Post reported today in a news story from Austin.

Dr. Dean Wolbach said the closer the schools were to the smelter, the more cadmium his blood samplers found in the children.

Wolbach, a chemist with the Texas Air Control Board, said the medical significance of cadmium levels in the children were outside his field.

There is little published data, he said, on what level of cadmium in the blood represents a health danger.

Charles R. Barden, air board executive secretary, said he would try to get an expert medical evaluation of the Amarillo findings in time for the next air board meeting July 27.

Barden declined to blame the levels directly on the American Smelting & Refining Co. plant but added, "I don't know what else could be causing it."

Wolbach said the firm conducted a separate blood sampling of employees and their families, and reported finding cadmium levels in some cases about 10 times as high as those detected by the state in the school children.

Wolbach headed an investigating team which took blood samples from 180 school children all 11 years old, at five schools in the Amarillo area.

The team was sent to take soil, air and blood samples after 35 children in El Paso were hospitalized with lead poisoning, blamed on a lead smelter there owned by the same firm.

Cadmium is a highly toxic metal which has been blamed in Japan for causing bone deformities and agonizing deaths. The exposure levels in the Japanese cases, however, apparently were far higher than those in Amarillo. American Smelting maintains that its Amarillo emissions have never harmed anyone.

Wolbach said the levels found in the Amarillo children ranged from .05 to 2.8 micrograms per 100 milliliters of blood. The high samples taken from the smelter employees were around 12 to 14 micrograms, he said.

LEARNING HOW — Although Pernie Fallon, 17, learned to walk a long time ago, she finds that walking and turning while being judged in a beauty contest is another matter. Mrs. David McDaniel, right, 1615 Williston entrant chairman for the Miss Top O' Texas Beauty Pageant, gave instruction in walking, turning and make-up to Miss Fallon and other contestants at a pool party at the Pampa Country Club Tuesday evening. The event, slated for Aug. 12 at the M. K. Brown auditorium, is being sponsored by Pampa's Chamber of Commerce. Miss Fallon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben D. Fallon, 2236 Charles. North Vietnamese Operating Truck Shuttle For Supplies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnamese apparently have cut a small path through the U.S. air and naval barrier by running a truck shuttle to the Chinese border.

Pentagon sources estimate the North Vietnamese receive between 10 per cent and 20 per cent of the 220,000 tons of supplies they formerly received from the outside.

The main routes of the truck shuttle run roughly parallel to the often-severed main rail lines connecting Hanoi with southeast China.

Freight trains from China reportedly unload at Dong Dang, a North Vietnamese town so close to the border that U.S. war planes avoid bombing it.

At Dong Dang, North Vietnamese trucks pick up the war supplies and drive back along roads leading to the battlefield in the South.

An Air Force general, trying to convey the difficulties in shutting off this kind of traffic entirely, described the road network as "like the veins on the back of your hands."

Despite a heavy concentration of surface to air missiles in this region, Pentagon officials claim more than 30 important bridges have been disabled there.

This has paralyzed train movements inside North Vietnam, but the North Vietnamese have managed to keep some trucks rolling by improvising pontoon bridges and ferries. Most of the trucks drive at night.

The ingenious North Vietnamese are said to be putting flanged wheels on some of their trucks so these vehicles can ride train rails and transport cargo between breaks blasted by U.S. bombs.

Intelligence analysts were unable to say specifically what kind of supplies are coming into North Vietnam from China but there have been recent reports of new types of Chinese weapons appearing on the battlefields in South Vietnam.

Despite persistent reports that China has sent engineer troops or laborers into North Vietnam to repair shattered railroads and shattered bridges, military authorities deny there is any hard evidence of this.

Chess Game Ends in Draw

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Boris Spassky was stony-faced and Bobby Fischer smiled and waved after their fourth game in the world chess championship ended in a draw Tuesday night.

The standoff came after five hours of what many in the crowd of about 1,200 felt was the most exciting match thus far.

At the 45th move Fischer extended his hand to Spassky and the Russian accepted.

With each player picking up half a point on the draw, the score is 2 1/2-1 1/2 in the Russian's favor. The fifth match in the 24-game series is Thursday at 1 p.m. EDT.

Fischer had the white pieces Tuesday and with them the first move and led off with his favorite Sozin attack, P-K4.

The Russian pulled a surprise by counter-attacking aggressively and sacrificing a pawn to open up useful lines of attack.

City Technicians Study Lake Water Distribution

City Manager Mack Wofford said today no date is yet in sight for turning Lake Meredith water into the Pampa distribution system.

Water department technicians still are working to "get the bugs out" of the chemical mixture system at the city's new water treatment plant.

"The chemical metering device is not operating the way we want it to operate for exact distribution of chemicals into the lake water," Wofford said.

The city manager indicated the possibility exists that the current metering system may have to be replaced.

"We're not certain yet," he said, "but we will not turn the water into city mains until everything is working perfectly."

Wofford said Borger had similar difficulty before Lake Meredith water was distributed there.

Two More Killed In Belfast Fighting

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Gunmen killed two more men in Belfast Tuesday night, but the level of fighting in Northern Ireland eased to scattered skirmishes. An IRA leader said the guerrilla command wants to "shift to using political persuasion."

The peace overture came from David O'Connell, the second in command of the Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing. He told the Dublin Evening Herald that his group had put out feelers to restore the cease-fire that collapsed 10 days ago. He said young IRA commanders in Londonderry were backing the peace moves.

One of those killed during the night was a British soldier, the 100th to die in Ulster's three years of religious warfare. A sniper cut him down at an army post in a Catholic area.

The other man to die was a factory watchman found riddled by bullets. They raised the death toll in Northern Ireland to at least 446 since August 1969, and at least 238 this year.

Terrorists attacked an army post in a lumber yard early today with gasoline bombs under the cover of sniper fire. The soldiers fought the fire, the flames spread to nearby Catholic homes. Then the guerrillas intercepted two fire engines racing to the fire and held the firemen hostage until the government agreed to rehouse the Catholic families who were burned out.

Priests and housing officials found quarters for the displaced families, but the gunmen kept on shooting at the troops and the fire fighters. However, no casualties were reported.

Harold Wilson, the leader of the British Labor party, disclosed that he had met for five hours in London with leaders of the IRA Provisionals in an attempt to get a new cease-fire. He refused to give details of the talk, but a Dublin organization that speaks for the Provos, the Irish Publicity Bureau, said the IRA men did not come up with anything they have not said before.

Detectives Hunt Clues In Murder

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Claiming they now have "some suspects" in the torch-gun slaying of a young Massachusetts couple, detective began narrowing their search today for more clues in the case.

Both of the young victims were positively identified Tuesday. Based on dental records flown here from Massachusetts, the young man was identified as Thomas Matzilevich, 21, while the other charred body was identified by fingerprints as his wife, Kathleen Connor Matzilevich, 18.

Police showed jewelry taken from the dead woman to her parents, School Supt. and Mrs. John Connor of Worcester, Mass. After a day of consultation with authorities, Mr. and Mrs. Connor were unable to make a positive identification of the charred remains. A fingerprint comparison was later able to provide conclusive evidence of the young woman's identity.

The young couple was from Massachusetts and had been living in Fort Worth, where Matzilevich was attending Texas Christian University.

"We have got some suspects," said police Lt. Colon Jordan.

The slaying was discovered about 8:15 a.m. Sunday by a caretaker at City Park, about 13 miles from here on Lake Austin. A man, charred beyond recognition and shot three times, was found partially beneath the driver's side of a burning 1968 model sedan. A young woman, nude from the waist down, was found just outside the passenger's door. She had been shot four times. Both had been doused with gasoline and set afire.

An autopsy report showed the young woman probably was alive when doused with gasoline and set afire. The report said there was preliminary evidence of carbon monoxide inhalation, and "with all the shots received, she was still alive and breathing when set afire."

The man had been shot three times, the woman four times, the report showed.

Local House Is Vandalized

Pampa police investigated a report of vandalism at 1049 Cinderella where some $200 in damages were done to a house.

Loss included three wooden doors, two screen doors, most of the glass and the back-yard gates.

Persons interviewed in the neighborhood could offer little other than a number of small children had been playing the area.

Officers made arrangements to have a quick call made if anyone is seen at the house in the future, according to the official report.

The complaint was lodged by the realtor in charge of the property.

Sinatra Denies Ties With Mafia

WASHINGTON (AP) — An angry Frank Sinatra accused the House Select Crime Committee of character assassination as the panel prepared today to hear from New England gangster Raymond Patriarca about Mafia ties to a racetrack.

Committee investigators said they did not know whether Patriarca would answer questions on his alleged interests in the now-defunct Berkshire Downs Racetrack near Hancock, Mass. or stand on the Fifth Amendment. Patriarca, who was transported from federal prison to testify, is serving a ten-year sentence in Atlanta, Ga., for murder conspiracy. He was identified by the Justice Department in 1969 as boss of the New England La Cosa Nostra family.

Sinatra told the committee Tuesday he invested $55,000 in the track in August, 1962 and never knew who his other investors were.

The retired singer and his lawyer said they had no hint gangster money was in the track. Sinatra said he pulled out after he was elected a track vice president and director without notice.

"I didn't know it until I read it on the sports pages," he testified.

Sinatra denied any knowledge of the alleged Berkshire Downs La Cosa Nostra money with confidence, short answers after stalking into the crowded House hearing room and accusing the committee of irresponsibly listening to charges of another alleged tie with racketeers.

He said the committee should have immediately and publicly refuted testimony by Joseph (The Baron) Barboza that Sinatra fronted for Patriarca and other La Cosa Nostra money in the Fontainebleau hotel in Miami Beach and Sands Hotels in Las Vegas.

"This bum went running off at the mouth and I resent it and I won't have it," Sinatra told the congressmen. "I'm not a second class citizen. Let's make that clear."

Teacher Convicted Of Rape

DALLAS (AP) — A former high school teacher was given a 25-year prison term Tuesday after being convicted of last autumn's rape of a Dallas legal secretary.

Willard Bishop Jackson, 29, had testified he was out of town at the time of the attack in which the 23-year-old white woman was raped and shot in the nose at her apartment. Her roommate was also forced to undress and she was shot in the throat and stabbed.

The rape victim testified she saw Jackson at a night club later and had him arrested.

Detective D. E. McElroy testified that Jackson, a Negro, had admitted being at the woman's apartment the night of the assault.

Fezzed Shriners Dance Through Dallas Streets

DALLAS (AP) — Crimson-fezzed Shriners on foot and riding all sorts of conveyances marched, danced and sang through Dallas streets in what some acclaimed as the longest parade in the city's history.

The eight-mile-long procession, lasting five and one-half hours, was staged Tuesday as part of a weeklong 100th birthday celebration which has brought 90,000 Shriners here for the 98th Imperial Council Session of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

They marched to 1,000 drums in 40 bands and rode in patrols of motorcycles, kiddie cycles, Model T. Fords, fire engines, cabooses and mounted horses.

One of those taking part was Probate Judge Gardner Wilson Jr., 80, who donned his colorful costume of the Aleppo Temple First Arab Patrol for his 49th such parade.

"You know, we're all just little boys at heart," Wilson said. "We just grew up physically—that's all."

Their first business session followed the Shriners' parade, and then they proceeded to Texas Stadium in suburban Irving for a giant show called "Shrineganza." It featured comedian Bob Hope and song writer Meredith Wilson on the same bill with a high-wire motorcyclist and a woman diver who leaped 50 feet from a hot air balloon to land on a cushion.

Composer Wilson conducted the 40 Shrine bands in a massed concert playing his Shrine centennial march, written specially for the occasion.

Government Program Aims To Aid Determination Of Careers

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH
AP Education Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Americans could work toward finding or changing their careers from a few years beyond the cradle to just short of the grave under a program being put together by some states and the federal government.

If all works out well, it means that school children will have a fairly good idea of what they want to do in life by the time they're in their teens.

It also means that young adults, people automated out of their current job or the retired will be able to return to an educational institution, perhaps to change their entire direction in the world of work.

U.S. Education Commission Sidney P. Marland Jr. said career education would eliminate the artificial separation between things academic and things vocational.

"The student," said Marland, "would be equipped occupationally, academically and emotionally to spin off from the system at whatever age he chooses—whether at age 16 as a craftsman-apprentice or age 30 as a surgeon or age 60 as a newly trained practical nurse."

Career education should not, officials say, be confused with vocational education, which is not as broad.

Under the career education program, children entering kindergarten will be exposed to the world of work under a "career awareness" program that would continue through the sixth grade.

The government has broken 20,000 jobs into 15 job clusters, each under a general heading such as the "world of manufacturing" or the "world of construction."

During those first years of school, each student should find something in two or three clusters that interests him or her. In junior high, grades 7 through 9, they will explore these careers in depth.

For instance, a child might be interested in the "world of construction" — but deciding whether to be an architect, engineer or skilled craftsman would involve more investigation, including field trips to talk to people on the job.

Students planning professional careers would follow a high school curriculum that would prepare them for college but which also would give them some work experience. Student planning to work after high school would receive additional work experience while in school.

All students would still get preparation in the basic subjects: English, mathematics, science and the fine arts, sometimes taught in a way helpful for their particular careers.

Excitement over the career education concept, said one federal official, is the greatest he has ever witnessed.

"I've never seen so little federal money trigger so much response," said Dr. Sidney C. High, who supervises the U.S. Office of Education mini-model career education programs in 50 states.

A spokesman said that the federal government spent $114 million in Fiscal 1972 under the general heading of career education and expenditures of $168 million are projected in Fiscal 1973.

The federal program is broken up into small model projects, which High administers, and four major career models: School-based, Employer-based, Home-based and Residential.

These models cost a little over $20 million in Fiscal 1972 and are designed to develop a solution to the problem of 2.5 million students leaving formal education systems each year without adequate job preparation. The Center for Vocational and Technical Education of Ohio State University is administering the school-based model, with help from six school districts across the country. Each district is developing material for 15 job clusters. The Ohio State facility received $7.5 million during the past year for administering the program.

The other models: Employer based: Financed at $2 million, it will establish an employer-operated education model for students aged 13-18. It will integrate academic, general and vocational curricula. Educational regional laboratories in Philadelphia and Berkeley, Calif., have been funded.

Home based: To develop home or designated community facilities as learning centers.

The three targets of the Education Development Corp., Newton, Mass., will be 18-25 year olds still unemployed and in need of careers; 25-55 year old housewives going back into the labor pool; and persons 55 or older looking for a second career.

Residential: Funded at $4 million it is to provide career education with supportive services for the rural disadvantaged. The experiment will be conducted at Glasgow, Mont., on a former Strategic Air Command base. Twelve families already have been moved to the base, and eventually there will be 200. As the family head is trained for a career over a period of six to 18 months, wives and children also are given training.

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

The State of Texas has begun a massive attack against venereal disease.

Dr. James E. Peavy, Texas Commissioner of Health, announced the State Health Department has launched a gonorrhea and syphilis control program aimed at halting the ever-increasing incidence of VD in Texas. VD is said to be of epidemic proportions throughout the United States.

The State Health Department has received an initial grant of $1.17 million in federal money that will be used to bolster the state's VD control effort and to assist local communities in carrying out community VD control programs of their own. A supplemental grant will become available in July.

"Texas has made great strides in VD control by significantly decreasing the incidence of early infectious syphilis," said Dr. Peavy, "but lack of funds has prevented the launching of a really effective attack against gonorrhea. Texas is only one of many states receiving federal funds as part of a massive, nationwide-VD control effort, aimed heavily at bringing gonorrhea under control."

Incidence of gonorrhea has been rising in Texas since 1957. The past five years have seen a 75 per cent jump in reported occurrence of this disease, and a 31 per cent rise has occurred over the past two years.

Health officials estimate that only one of every five cases of the disease is actually reported. Gonorrhea is currently the number one problem among all communicable diseases in Texas.

"During the next five years, the State Health Department will conduct an intensified statewide campaign designed to reverse this upward trend and to reduce the prevalence of infectious gonorrhea to a controllable level," said Dr. Peavy.

"Many of the efforts will be centered in the five major metropolitan areas where 72 per cent of all VD-infected individuals live. Control efforts will be initiated in all 24 standard metropolitan areas, which account for 91 per cent of all venereal diseases."

During 1971, 50,193 cases of gonorrhea were officially reported to the State Health Department. However, health officials believe the actual incidence of gonorrhea in Texas may well have been in excess of 180,000 cases last year.

At the present time, the brunt of the state's gonorrhea epidemic is striking the young. Although gonorrhea knows no racial or economic boundaries, the heaviest concentration is among the economically disadvantaged.

Of those Texans reported as infected with gonorrhea last year, 23 per cent were in age group 15-19, 65 per cent in group 15-24, and 81 per cent in the 15-29 year age group.

Gonorrhea is a disease which incubates rapidly after contact—some three days—and therefore is spread rapidly. But by finding and eliminating the disease in asymptomatic women, it is hoped that the gonorrhea epidemic can be brought under control.

CIVIL MARRIAGE AN ISSUE

Religious Discord In Israel Threatens Coalition Group

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Religious discord in Israel is shaking Golda Meir's coalition government of Socialists, Liberals and rabbis and prompting talk of an early national election.

While war with the Arabs has served to cement the coalition, religion—the basis for Israel's creation—now threatens to topple the leadership.

The problem is not new. In 24 years, the Socialists have always held the upper hand but have failed to win an outright parliamentary majority. Traditionally, the only suitable partners for a coalition have been members of the National Religious Party, dedicated to rooting the Jewish state in the Bible.

Socialism and the Bible don't always jibe, but the system has somehow worked, although its critics say democracy suffers.

Many nonreligious Jews—by far the majority in Israel—object to religious restrictions: no buses or movies on the Sabbath, no marriage except by a rabbi, segregated swimming on some beaches and other strictures.

Now two heated religious issues have combined to push the government into one of the worst crises it has known. The Independent Liberals, minor partners in the coalition, have proposed a bill to allow civil marriages for Jews barred by religious law from being wed by the rabbinate.

The bill defies a coalition agreement to leave the thorny marriage question alone, so the Liberals face possible expulsion from the government.

But there is widespread support for civil marriage. It could solve the plight of some 40,000 Israelis who want to marry non-Jews, or who have already done so—thus rendering their children non-Jewish—or who can't have a rabbinical wedding for other reasons.

An important segment of Mrs. Meir's Socialist Labor party wants to vote for the Liberal bill. Such defiance of Mrs. Meir's policy would make a mockery of the coalition platform worked out after the last election in 1969.

Coupled with civil marriage, which has not yet faced a vote, has come an attempt by the extremist religious faction Agudat Yisrael to tighten the "who-is-a-Jew" laws of the Bible. This bill threatened to plant obstacles in the path of much-needed immigrants from America and Russia, many of whom are wedded to non-Jews or were not married by rabbis.

The bill was voted down 57-19, but not before it almost brought down the coalition. The National Religious party, after a stormy caucus, overrode demands by young radical members to vote in favor of the bill against Mrs. Meir's orders. The party abstained in the vote, fearing expulsion from the Cabinet.

Political observers now wonder whether the 74-year-old premier can paper over the cracks and retain public confidence in the coalition until the next election in November 1973.

Many think not. Hence the growing support for an election this year, which could give the government a chance to bargain for a more liberal fusion of church and state.

The Laborites also have in mind Mrs. Meir's pledge not to seek office again in 1973. Party bosses would much prefer to go before the voters now, with Mrs. Meir as the candidate, than face elections next year with a new nominee.

The most likely candidate to succeed Mrs. Meir is Pinhas Sapir, finance minister and one of the most powerful men in the party. Moshe Dayan's chances seem slim. Labor party leaders have never forgiven the defense minister for splitting Socialist ranks in 1965.

VERY TIRED is this 375-ton load, riding on 128 soft aircraft tires to keep from cracking Virginia's secondary roads on its five-day, 65-mile trek from Walkerton to Mineral. It's a steam generator for a nuclear power plant. The moving rig is 145 feet long.

Only A Tortoise Missing

NEW YORK (AP) — The tortoise, the motive and the watchdog were the last remaining questions Tuesday in the great Coney Island zoo robbery.

An anonymous tip Monday led police to a battered Brooklyn stable seven miles from the Astroland amusement park where the entire children's zoo was stolen early Sunday.

Detectives found the six Shetland ponies, 11 sheep, 11 goats, a llama, a miniature white bull and a coop of chickens suffering from heat prostration. But only a South American tortoise was missing.

Police arrested Toby Espo-sito, 19, on charges of possession of stolen property and cruelty to animals. But they said the motive for the robbery remained unclear.

Meanwhile back at the zoo, the operator was wondering what his trained guard dog was doing while the thieves smashed several padlocks, tore down a fence and loaded the menagerie on a trailer for the getaway.

"The dog wasn't harmed at all, just left there," said a puzzled Elizabeth Hammond. "It's very strange."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: The late Winston Churchill had the perfect squelch for idiots who approached him with, "I'll bet you don't remember me, do you?" Churchill would look them squarely in the eye and ask, "Why SHOULD I?" FRANK IN WESTMINSTER, CAL.

DEAR FRANK: Sir Winston could probably get away with it, but I wouldn't recommend it for the ordinary Joe. He might promptly get something to remember the "idiot" by.

DEAR ABBY: I have had a problem bottled up inside of me for the last two years and I am so ashamed of it, I just have to tell someone.

I just HATE babies! I don't know why, but I want to hurt them. Isn't that ridiculous? I want to overcome this terrible fault, but I can't.

I kept a neighbor's baby today and abused her so badly I was disgusted with myself. I hit her and pinched her, and knocked her around, and just let her cry. I didn't want to feed her either. She's not the only baby I have treated this way. Afterwards I feel so bad, I just sit and cry.

Abby, what's wrong with me? Could it be that someone treated me that way once when I was a baby? If so, I can't remember.

I have a six-year-old child of my own and I swear to you when she was small I never mistreated her once. So why am I this way to other people's babies?

I am so afraid that as a punishment God will take my precious child away from me. Please help me, Abby. I am a 28-year-old, healthy, educated married woman.

TREMBLING

DEAR TREMBLING: You need to talk this problem out with a professional counselor. The fact that you recognize the problem and are seeking a solution, proves that you are a good person. Talk to your doctor about it, and he will recommend the proper counseling for you. And in the meantime, please stay away from babies! God bless and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a friend who accepted an expensive wedding present, then wrote to say, "The wedding has been called off for the time being," because I had some second thoughts—but the gift you gave me looks great in my apartment! And since I'm still dating the guy, we might still get married later."

She closed with, "I don't know what the etiquette books say in cases like this, but if you know, please tell me."

PUZZLED IN N. Y.

DEAR PUZZLED: Tell her the etiquette books say that when the wedding has been called off, the wedding gifts should be returned.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning "A COUPLE OF CHUMPS" who had made a home for an aged and ailing parent for many years while their brothers and sisters who were better able financially contributed nothing, and looked out the window. The old gentleman didn't pay one red cent for his keep, although he had plenty of money. Finally, when he died and his will was read it was, "Share and share alike."

Please advise the "Chumps" that they need not be chumps. If they promptly submit a bill for the old gentleman's care, they will be fully reimbursed out of his estate.

This is exactly what happened to me, and after I was reimbursed for keeping my invalid father for seven years, there was practically nothing left for the brothers and sisters who also looked out the window. NO CHUMP

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Intellectual pursuits should prevail over physical activity. Expect friends and social situations to interrupt your work.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Pursue contacts with people of great influence. Bring in associates only if you know from experience they're willing to cooperate.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Help comes mainly from outside your local scene, and you have to repay promptly. This day tests your determination and fortitude.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Looking back to see where you erred shows you a chance to make corrections—and a place for a completely fresh start.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Spread out a welcome for all newcomers today—and mean it. Close friends have good ideas, some of which might work.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Simple explanations open official doors for you. No detail is small enough to be skipped—just establish sensible priorities.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Using today's benefits means persistent effort and cooperation. A gala atmosphere in the evening is good for social activity.

The Pageboy Is Back!

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Girls are shedding the shag in favor of the sleek one-layered look of the pageboy. New for the current generation, the pageboy dates back to the 1940s when such screen personalities as Ginger Rogers, Katharine Hepburn and Rosalind Russell made it famous—especially when they played roles of successful career women.

There were 51 members present at Thursday's meeting of the Senior Citizens' Center in Lovett Library.

Door prizes were awarded to Mrs. Jewel Laramore and O.L. Lester. A floral arrangement, in memory of Mrs. Margaret Conley, decorated the serving table.

Members of the Order of the Eastern Star, Top O' Texas Chapter No. 1064, serving as hostesses were Mrs. Geneva Dalton, chairman, and Mrs. Mary Wilson, Hugh Shotwell, Florence Rife, Marie Goodnight, Cora Coffey, Ruth Casey, Ina Reading, Leona Willis, Mary Alice Palmer and Laverne Coombes.

Mrs. Nellie Darling will be with us again.

O.L. Lester was welcomed as a new member.

R.W. Tucker is in Worley Hospital. Center members wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. L.A. Brackeen of Dallas were weekend guests in the home of his sister, Mrs. J.T. Baldwin.

Mrs. Lucy Herlacher has returned from Groom where she visited her sister, Mrs. Rosa B. Fields.

W.L. Morrison and Mrs. Edith Lawrence visited their neighbor, Anna Dickerson, who is in St. Anne's home in Panhandle.

Mrs. Leona Kevlchen and Mrs. Amelia Schwoppe visited with relatives in Fort Worth. While there, they went to Six Flags Over Texas and Seven Seas.

The pageboy actually began making inroads last year as part of the '40s revival. But now it has really taken off because women want a complete change after the disheveled look of the shag for several years. Fashion designers, too, are stressing smooth hairstyles in both the European and American collections.

If you want to switch to this classic look but are caught with short or long layered hair, you can still do what you want to do: The synthetic wig manufacturer have come to your aid with an abundance. There has never been such a prepon-

East sputtered. "You've claimed. Now you can't finesse."

"I don't intend to finesse," said Eddy. "Watch and try to discard."

Then Eddy discarded the nine of diamonds from dummy and led a spade to dummy's king. The king of diamonds was led and East had to unguard the spade queen in order to keep the club ace. "See," said Eddy. "No finesses at all."

Oscar de la Renta calls the pageboy in his new Kanekalon wig collection the "Ming." It is a chin-length, center-parted, one-layered look with the merest trace of wave. According to the famous couturier, it's his favorite and he's a man who should know an important trend when he sees one.

Whether you wait until your ends are even or go with a wig, the "pageboy" is the look to wear this season.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Called "Ming," this "pageboy" is featured in Oscar de la Renta's new wig collection. The 100 per cent modacrylic was selected because of its lack of plastic-gloss and its real-life look. The style is a short bob, cut on an angle with the merest trace of wave. The one-layered synthetic hair swirls into the back neckline pageboy style and then vertically onto the side cheekbones. There is just a suggestion of a center part.

NASA Will Launch Resources Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) — A complex satellite to be launched next Friday may help keep track of cities' growth, prepare crop forecasts, make better maps and spot good fishing spots, the national space agency says.

ERTS—A, the first earth resources technology satellite, is scheduled to be launched from the Western Test Range at Lompoc, Calif. The 1,965-pound spacecraft will orbit the earth 14 times a day at an altitude of 570 miles.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the satellite may help the Bureau of the Census keep track of urban sprawl, the Agriculture Department prepare more accurate crop forecasts, the Geological Survey produce more useful and up-to-the-moment maps.

It may also enable the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to help the fisheries industry locate troubled waters and those areas where the catches will be good.

ERTS—A is a complex project, with about 300 investigators from 43 states and 31 foreign countries involved.

At a NASA briefing, James Wray, Geological Survey senior geologist for the satellite program, told how ERTS data can contribute to the Census Cities project by providing photographs of week-to-week, month-to-month urban changes.

Scientists will study ERTS data on the nine-county area around San Francisco in esti-imating water use requirements in California and in mapping of open spaces for county planning, Wray said.

A real estate firm plans to use ERTS data in looking at the San Francisco area with an eye to new town development, he said.

Urban growth changes in more than two dozen other city areas, including New Orleans, Washington, D.C., Cedar Rapids, Iowa, New Haven, Conn., and Boston, also will be studied.

Dr. Bruce Kelly, director of standards and research for the Department of Agriculture, said, "ERTS coverage will be very broad and very rapid. We are most enthusiastic, and expect that in the area of crop surveys it will provide a most valuable supplement to the information we gather from other sources."

William Stevenson of NOAA said the satellite would be used by his agency to study a little-known but important industrial fish in one area, but he added the knowledge obtained will be applicable to fisheries in other areas.

The study will deal with menhaden, a small fish common in the Gulf of Mexico and on the Atlantic seaboard, and widely used as a poultry feed-additive, Stevenson said.

In the Mississippi Sound area from New Orleans to Mobile Bay and including the Barrier Islands 10 miles offshore, the satellite will study water and ground quality.

Teamsters To Support Nixon

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon returned to Washington yesterday with the endorsement of the leadership of the 2-million-member Teamsters Union.

The union's executive committee after it endorsed the Republican President's re-election bid Monday.

The Teamster president did not disclose whether there was any split in the committee vote, but a source said it was almost unanimous.

Fitzsimmons blasted Democratic candidate George McGovern and termed the break from big labor's backing of "Democratic" presidential hopefuls "unprecedented."

But a Teamsters historian later said that although the union had supported Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and other Democrats dating back to Depression days, it backed Nixon's losing campaign in 1960 against John F. Kennedy.

Winning Cowgirl Began Pro Career At Pampa

World Champion Donna Patterson learned the pressures of rodeo competition at an early age.

Daughter of longtime Rodeo Cowboys Association roper Lewis Kinhead, Donna grew up on the family New Mexico ranch, and remembers regularly attending the rodeos in the southwest where he had competed. It was natural that she has ridden "always."

Three times Donna won the New Mexico state high school all-around cowgirl title, then moved to Eastern New Mexico University at Portales. In 1967 and again in 1968 she won the Intercollegiate Rodeo Finals barrel racing, and the latter year was also named the colleges' all-around cowgirl.

That same season she turned pro, joining the Girls Rodeo Association to compete at the Pampa, Tex., rodeo. An instant success, she qualified for the National Finals in that first pro season.

Despite a strong winning pattern throughout 1971, which included a fast start with a $1,072 win at Denver in January, Donna had to clinch her championship in a thrilling race at the National Finals. When rodeo's playoffs began, four girls were blanketed within a $463 spread, Donna in front.

Showing the coolness that is the mark of a true pro, Donna went through the 10 Finals rounds without knocking over a barrel, one of but three girls who did so.

At one point Jeana Day of Oklahoma had narrowed the lead to $64. Had Donna tipped a barrel in her last run the championship season would have dissolved. As it was, she snared the title by $151 with a season total of $11,952.

Married to R.C.A. calf roper Kenny Patterson, himself a Finals veteran, Donna, born March 11, 1946, holds a teacher's degree in Physical Education and is a faithful reader of Psycho-Cybernetics.

When not on the rodeo trail, the Pattersons live at Tecumseh, Okla.

U.S. Firm Approaches Red China

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — An international oil exploration company is investigating possible drilling in China.

Robert L. Parker, president of Parker Drilling Co., said Monday his firm has approached the Chinese government and received a reply.

"They informed us they were interested and would contact us in a short time," Parker said in an interview.

"It is such a vast country that there is bound to be oil there. It could well be a great new frontier."

The most likely areas, he said, are along the coast and possibly in a basin near Russia.

Parker Drilling has 14 rigs that could be transported even into remote areas. The firm has several rigs on the North Slope of Alaska, has several drilling deep holes in the deep Anadarko Basin of Oklahoma and West Texas and three in the Uinta Basin of Utah.

NATURAL GAS — A Natural for U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade

- 1 Natural gas piped from Siberia to western or southern Soviet ports.
- 2 There it is liquefied (LNG) to 1/600th of its volume.
- 3 The gas would be chilled to -260° in spheres constructed as huge thermos jugs. Specially designed ships would transport the LNG to the U.S. where demand for gas outstrips supply.
- 4 Gas vented as it warms would be used as fuel to drive the ships.
- 5 Newport News shipyards have a concept of unloading ships into stainless steel tank systems.
- 6 12 LNG ships now exist. Another 27 are being constructed. None are under U.S. flag.

AP Seeks News Exchange With China

NEW YORK (AP) — Discussions are going forward between the Associated Press and Hsinhua, the Chinese News Agency, on an agreement for the exchange of news and photos.

Wes Gallagher, president of The Associated Press, is on his way to Peking for the talks, which followed several months of preliminary negotiations in New York.

Also going to Peking is Paul Miller, chairman of The AP, and chairman and chief executive officer of the Gannett newspapers.

The party includes Henry Hartzenbusch, chief of AP's Asian services in Tokyo, and Horst Faas, Pulitzer prize-winning AP photographer.

Miller and Gallagher, accompanied by their wives, left New York for the Far East on July 12. The group was invited for a two-week visit to Communist China. The visit is expected to start today.

An exchange agreement between the two agencies would mark the first time in 22 years that an American news organization had established a regular news and photo channel with the mainland.

Direct news links ended Dec. 25, 1949, with the departure of the last AP correspondent there, Fred Hampson.

One of the first American newsmen to be admitted, on a temporary basis, was another AP correspondent who had once served in China, John Roderick, now based in Tokyo, returned last spring to cover the visit of the U.S. table tennis team, which presaged the general increase in contacts.

Siberian Fields Intrigue West

MOSCOW (AP) — Siberian fields have intrigued the Western world's oilmen ever since Soviet authorities began hinting about five years ago that they might welcome help in exploiting them.

Available figures on gas and oil reserves, particularly in the rich Tyumen district of western Siberia, are staggering and are quickly outdated by new discoveries. In 1969 alone, the Soviets reported reserves had increased by two million million—correct—cubic meters of natural gas and hundreds of millions of tons of oil.

Total figures are not available but for 1970 the Soviet Ministry of the Petroleum Industry reported 16 big gas deposits in Tyumen with a total reserve of 11 million million—correct—cubic meters, over half the known reserves of the country.

Considerable additional production could be achieved with foreign help in providing the necessary investment, pipelines and equipment.

An agreement was announced today by Occidental Petroleum Co. for scientific and technical cooperation with the Soviet government.

Sources in London, where the agreement was announced, predicted that the deal would amount to about $3 billion, the biggest ever signed by a U.S. corporation with the Soviet Union.

The development problems match the deposits in size. While there is no doubt that the oil and gas are there, it is in one of the world's most inaccessible places.

Vast swamps and mosquito-infested woodland, permafrost and remoteness are obstacles the developers must overcome.

A pipeline from western Siberia to the cities of European Russia has been started. It will run 2,856 miles, 1,862 of them through swamp and rough woodland. Another pipeline from the same fields will run 3,724 miles to the far eastern port of Nakhodka.

The Soviet Union has 2,500 geological and geophysical teams continuously prospecting for oil and gas, and about 2,000 exploratory wells are drilled each year.

MEDIAEVAL TRADITION survives in the 20th-century ceremonies of the Vatican. A new member of the Swiss Guards, the Pope's personal guard since 1506, is sworn in at colorful rites in the St. Damascene Courtyard. Members, recruited from Roman Catholic cantons in Switzerland, wear orange, blue and red uniforms designed by Michelangelo.

It Happens Every Summer

when too casually dressed visitors run afoul of clothing restrictions at the great churches on the European tourist beat. Right, a girl, turned away at St. Peter's in Rome because of her too-mini skirt, takes out her disappointment in tears. Below, a Vatican guard spots and stops a pair of hot pants. Below right, others improvise, turning sweaters and jackets into makeshift but respectable-length skirts before entering the church.

Oil-Soaked Seagull Walks Into Hospital

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Seemingly knowing what it was doing, a floppy, oil-soaked seagull sneaked into the emergency room of the Utah Valley Hospital Monday for first aid treatment.

Showing an apparent lack of fear, the bird waddled through open doors before being grabbed by attendants who washed most of the ooze off.

Following its bath, the seagull was placed in a box and fed a meal suggested only for seagulls—cricket under glass.

Hospital attendants said they didn't know where the bird picked up the oil coating.

The seagull was kept in a box and was taken to Salt Lake City by a member of the Humane Society.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

Amy's tragedy could have been avoided if high schoolers were exposed to a semester of "Medical Horse Sense." Hundreds die annually because laymen are kept in ignorance of the simple 60-second medical technique that could have saved Amy!

CASE U-538: Amy G., aged 11 months, died en route to the hospital.

"She had a bad cold," her mother tearfully explained. "So I gave her an aspirin tablet."

"But she choked on it and turned purple."

"I called the fire department, who took her to the hospital in an ambulance, but she died on the way."

"Oh, Dr. Crane, I feel as if I had killed my own child. How can I ever get over this awful remorse?"

This is one of the reasons for a perforating ulcer that causes blood to spurt into the stomach.

Besides, aspirin is medically NOT the remedy for "flu" or the common cold!

"But, Dr. Crane," you may exclaim, "don't the TV commercials urge the use of aspirin and other aspirin compounds to reduce fever?"

Yes, but that is a sad medical error, for fever is your body's great ally!

Unless it approaches 105 degrees Fahrenheit, be grateful for the fever and don't try to lower it by artificial means. For fever speeds up the development of your white blood corpuscles, which are the "medics" floating around in your blood.

Meanwhile, fever slows down the rate of multiplication of germs! So fever aids your defensive forces and hampers the invading enemy!

Aspirin reduces pain, but pain is usually not severe in "flu" and a hot water bottle can speed up your recovery faster than aspirin!

High schools thus need to have a semester course on "Medical Horse Sense."

Then, as in Amy's crisis, laymen in 60 seconds could open the windpipe and restore breathing to the hundreds who choke to death every year on meat, buttons, and even aspirin tablets!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Hopkins Bldg., Melliott, Indiana, 47948 enclosing a long, stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Now! Travel Guide For Back-Pack Set

By ERNESTINE GUGLIELMO

TRAVEL TIPS—"Making It Abroad" is a travel book written primarily for travelers on low budgets who'll probably be back-packing their way around. Mark Altschuler, who wrote the book, is 26 years old and has traveled in more than 50 countries. Besides the standard information about food and lodgings, Altschuler tells about some of the political and social aspects of countries.

He talks about "the suppress-the-hippie movement" which exists in many countries. Some countries won't admit people who have long hair and beards and keep them out by warnings saying "no hippies allowed." This is both to discourage travelers who won't be spending much money and a fear of illicit drug traffic associated with hippies.

"Making It Abroad" also deals with customs information, drug laws and black market dealing in foreign countries.

Altschuler also talks about con games, beggars and the "wanna buy a watch" snares to avoid "anywhere from Times Square to Tokyo."

MOTHER NATURE'S SON—John Denver has a new album out called "Mother Nature's Son." He has also been signed to star in "Big Horn," a one-hour TV special about the big horn sheep, and has composed three songs about ecology called "Rocky Mountain Suite."

A GREAT VOICE—Al Green, one of the most exciting singers in the business, is finally getting the recognition he deserves.

He was number three in Soul Magazine's music poll and now Al Green was awarded Outstanding Male Vocalist Award of 1971 at the Memphis Music Awards.

His current album, "Let's Stay Together," has already sold a million copies and he's following it up with a single called "I'm Still in Love With You." Green is making an extensive tour of the states during the summer. Don't miss him if he's in your area, he's even more exciting live.

FIRST JAN, NOW DEAN—The famous team of Jan and Dean are getting back into the music business, but not together.

Jan Berry has the single, "Mother Earth," out, which he wrote, produced and arranged.

And now Dean Torrance, who has been busy designing album covers (and winning awards for his designs) is rumored to be joining with Bruce Johnston (formerly of the Beach Boys) and Terry Melcher to form a brand new group.

THE KING—Elvis Presley's latest album is "Elvis, As Recorded at Madison Square Garden," his very first New York appearance.

Deputy Sheriff Killed

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A deputy sheriff was killed and a Department of Public Safety officer wounded when gunfire broke out as the officers escorted three prisoners to the diagnostic unit of the state penitentiary here Tuesday.

Deputy Rayburn Shipp, 61, from the Hunt County Sheriff's Department in Greenville was fatally shot in the back of the head. Highway Patrolman Gale McMullen was rushed to Huntsville Memorial Hospital, where he later was reported in satisfactory condition by the Department of Public Safety.

The three prisoners, who did not escape, were identified as Bruce Alan Benke, 18, of Greenville; Don Marshall Pettit, 18, of Greenville; and Jodie Thurman Adair, 37, of Commerce.

Pettit was serving a 25-year sentence for arson. Pettit five years for theft over $50, and Adair five years for murder with malice.

Dr. George Beto, director of the Texas Department of Corrections, said the shooting took place outside the diagnostic unit.

First indications were that the prisoners got hold of the officers' guns.

Director Orders Tavern Fires Probe

By Associated Press

The director of the Texas Vending Commission said Tuesday he would order an "in depth" investigation to see if the juke box industry and a series of fires in Texas taverns and night clubs.

Ivan Williams made the statement after Odessa Fire Marshal Kenneth Cable said he thought there "could be a tie-in."

"It is our duty—we are going to go into this thing in depth, and I am going to get a full report on it to find out if these fires are related to any violation of the laws we enforce," Williams said in Austin.

Until The Associated Press reported the Odessa fire marshal's remarks, Williams said he had heard nothing about any kind of a power struggle in the coin-operated juke box and amusement machine industry which his agency regulates.

"I haven't had any come to my attention, and I am sure it would be," Williams said. "No licensee has complained to this agency of threats to burn him out or anything of that nature. There have been no complaints from anybody out there (in West Texas) of any action we should take."

He said he was aware that some lounges had been burned out, but was limited in his authority to ascertain whether there were violations of state laws regulating vending machines. Williams said his agency has no subpoena power.

The vending commission has records showing what juke box companies' machines are in which taverns, but Williams said the files are confidential by law. He said he intended to find out whether there was any correlation between the fires and any particular company's machines.

Cable is investigating two lounge fires in Odessa last month, both ruled arson cases.

He said his investigation has not turned up enough conclusive evidence to point a finger at any sort of power struggle among juke box owners.

"But I was told by one of them there is a war going on," Cable said. "I can't tie it in, but they come right out and say there is something going on."

Other clubs which have burned during the past year include night spots in Dallas, Amarillo, Houston and Galveston—plus three in Lubbock clubs burned since last December, two of them more than once.

Lubbock Fire Chief A. C. Black said a five-gallon gasoline can was found at each of the five night club fires in his city. He said there is an unconfirmed report that at least one of the blazes was a "paid job."

Black said one man is being sought in connection with the fires but "we don't have any evidence we could present in court."

The vending machine and jukebox industry has attracted attention since 1968 when a legislative inquiry was made into the business. Buster Loicano, Fort Worth machine company owner, testified he lost machines worth $20,000 in a fire at a bowling alley two days after his machines were installed.

Of the night club fires, these in the Lubbock area have caused the most damage.

BATTING AVERAGES

We must gain solace by realizing that even when we do the best we know how, the batting averages occasionally go against us.

A baseball manager in the ninth inning, with the bases loaded, could win the game if the pinch hitter he sends to the plate will make a base hit.

So the manager will lift the pitcher (usually a poor batter) and try to insert a 300 hitter. Alas, even that 300 hitter misses two times out of three! So he probably fails to score a run.

And that pitcher just MIGHT have slugged a home run. But the manager obviously must play the batting averages, for we human beings are not omniscient.

Same goes with being a good parent. Even when we do the best we know how, things sometimes foul up our plans for our children.

A drunken driver may thus smash into a school bus and kill six or eight innocent kiddies.

Good parents should also read this and other educational newspaper features to alert themselves to many specific dangers in their homes.

Several times I have warned you against taking a whole aspirin tablet into your mouth! Instead, pulverize the tablet first! For a whole tablet may occasionally produce choking, as in Amy's tragic example.

But it also may land on a raw spot of the stomach wall and then erode into a flood vessel.

Du Fresne and some of his crew were killed in the Bay of Islands for infringing sacred Maori rites and undermining the power of local chiefs.

Brundage Defends Stand On Purity Of Olympics

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — "Nobody has a right to get into the Olympics," Avery Brundage said, leaning back in his red leather swivel chair and letting his eyes gaze out over the Pacific. "It's not a right—it's a privilege."

"The Olympics are not just a competition to see who can run the fastest or throw the farthest. They're not a world championship. They're unique. They're an ideal. They can't be changed by anybody."

At 84, scarred by a thousand battles and preparing after 20 years to step out as president of the International Olympic Committee, the crusty Chicago millionaire is still unbending in his defense of the purity of sports and the sacredness of the unsold amateur.

"There are two kinds of competitors," he added, "those who are interested in sports for sports' sake and the ones interested for financial reasons. Why should the pros want a medal? Let them hold their own world championship if they wish. The Olympics will always remain amateur."

Years of vilification have stiffened rather than softened this crochety, controversial Colossus of Olympic idealism. Painted as a tyrant, an unrealistic old man still living in the Middle Ages, he has been pilloried in a dozen languages.

"My legacy is a clear conscience and a thick skin," Brundage said in a recent interview.

He was sitting in a sparsely furnished first-floor office of the Montecito Country Club, one of the few properties he has retained.

Brundage lives alone in a newly-constructed penthouse atop the club. His wife, Elizabeth, died a year ago. They had no children. The penthouse is barren, not fully decorated, with Avery's papers and Olympic effects strewn all over the place.

The shelves of a huge cabinet, which once strained under the weight of priceless jade and other Oriental art treasures, were empty.

Over the years, Brundage amassed one of the world's biggest collections of Chinese art. He gave the entire collection—valued at between $30 million and $40 million—to San Francisco.

His U.S. headquarters is atop Chicago's LaSalle Hotel, which he recently sold for $10 million. There he maintains two shifts of secretaries, one reporting at 9 p.m., to handle his voluminous correspondence.

He also has an office in Lausanne, Switzerland, the IOC base, but much of his work is done in the first-class lounge of trans-continental 747s. He is constantly on the move, averaging three trips around the world a year.

"I can only sleep three hours at a time," Brundage said. "Some of my best work is done in the middle of the night. I usually go to bed at around 1 a.m. and I'm up at 7."

For a man 20 years beyond the normal retirement age, Brundage is a remarkable figure. Straight as a poker, he walks with a brisk step. He seems to have an inexhaustible source of energy and vitality. He expressed his viewpoints in strong, ringing tones.

A six-footer, balding, with horn-rimmed glasses perched on a bulbous nose, he has a thick, 17-inch neck, powerful shoulders and hands that reflect the days when he pushed a wheel barrow and mixed concrete.

He has retained the athletic build of younger days when he was America's best all-around athlete and a frustrated nonmedalist in the decathlon and pentathlon events in the 1912 Olympics at Stockholm.

"The all-around was a category at the time," he explained. "It was 10 events in one day with a five-minute rest in between. Sometimes you were on the field as long as seven hours."

"It was tough, requiring endurance. I wasn't exceptional in any particular sport but was fair in all of them and I had endurance. I worked 10 hours a day on my job and trained at night and on Saturdays and Sundays."

"I thought I was going to break every record at once. The coach told me I was working too hard. He was right. When I got to the Olympics, I was stale."

Brundage, born in Detroit, moved to Chicago at the age of six after his mother and father had separated. He was reared by aunts and uncles. He studied engineering at the University of Illinois, and upon graduation, became a construction superintendent, building skyscrapers before starting a business of his own.

His fortune escalated. He prospered in real estate, hotel ownership and investments, lost almost everything in the 1929 stock market crash but rebuilt during the depression by buying stock in depressed companies at a few cents on the dollar.

He succeeded Gen. Douglas MacArthur as president of the U.S. Olympic Committee in 1928 and in 1952 became head of the IOC. Throughout, he has remained a staunch defender of the ideals of Baron de Coubertin, who established the Modern Olympics in 1896.

"The Olympics are important everywhere except the United States," he said gloomily. "Over here, everything is commercial, we are interested only in professional sports. We are becoming a nation of spectators."

Brundage said colleges are little more than incubators for the pros, producing halfbacks, pitchers and basket-stuffers. "It's hypocritical and dishonest."

Dressed in a dark suit, white shirt and narrow tie, Brundage continued the discussion as he moved from his office to the dining room where he ordered melon, a fish dish and a bottle of white wine. He turned his coffee cup upside down.

He disdains hard liquor, doesn't smoke or drink. He prides himself on his knowledge of wines.

Asked what he regarded as the highlight of his 20-year tenure as IOC president, Brundage quickly responded: "The growth—the massive growth of the movement. We have grown in importance and magnitude. We are almost too big."

He said he would like to see the elimination of the Winter Games and of certain team sports such as soccer, basketball and ice hockey.

"De Coubertin was opposed to Winter Games because he thought there should be only one Olympics," Brundage said. "I agree with him."

Besides, he added, Alpine skiing has become so commercial that it now is a contest of manufacturers instead of sportsmen.

Brundage insisted that such team sports as football, basketball and ice hockey are so heavily pro-indoctrinated that they have become businesses instead of sports and "cause us a lot of trouble."

Brundage bristled when asked about the move in some quarters to dilute the authority of the IOC and democratize the Games, giving athletes a voice in the conduct of the movement.

"Who else would take the time or spend the money?" demanded the construction tycoon, who reportedly spends $50,000 a year of his personal money in Olympic work. "This is an idealistic enterprise."

"It was conceived by de Coubertin and the movement was willed to the committee. It's not like the United Nations. We are not delegates. We are ambassadors. I don't represent the United States. I represent the movement."

"Maybe we are self-perpetuating, as they say. Maybe we're autocratic. That's the way it is. That's the way it has to be."

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

65—Think Follow-through First

Too many average golfers fail to lower their handicaps because they swing at the ball instead of through it. They treat that little white object as though it were a 16-pound shot put and they were afraid of breaking their wrists hitting it.

The ball should merely get in the way of your swing. You should be accelerating the club head through the ball, not choking off your swing speed.

A good way to develop a fuller down swing is to envision at address—at the outset—about a good follow-through position, with the hands nice and high and your weight on your left side.

Then have only that thought in mind as you swing. Forget the ball. Oh, you'll be obsessed by it. Swing right on through it and whip it out there. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

PAMPA, TEXAS 66th YEAR WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1972

It's Palmer Against All Of The Young Lions

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — It will be Arnold Palmer vs. the Young Lions when the newlook, $150,000 American Golf Classic gets underway Thursday on the vast and sprawling Firestone Country Club course.

With the exception of the 42-year-old Palmer, most of the game's great stars are taking time off to recuperate from the pressure-cooker finish of last week's British Open.

Among the missing, most of whom still are in Europe, are Lee Trevino, the Super Mex who won a second consecutive British Open title, Jack Nicklaus, the man he beat by a single stroke; England's Tony Jacklin, the third-place finisher; fourth-place Doug Sanders; Gary Player of South Africa and veteran Billy Casper.

Their absences put Palmer, a non-winner this season but often a threat, in a dominant position on the 7,180-yard, par 70

Firestone layout, a course that Trevino says is just too long for him but one that Palmer plays exceptionally well.

He's a two-time champion here and has finished 10th or better nine of the 11 times he's played.

He heads a field that is made up of 144 players for the first time. Previously this had been an invitational event with the field restricted to about 100 players, often fewer. This year it has gone to an open classification—local newspapers have criticized the move as making it "just another tournament"—and a full field made eligible.

Thomas Reports To Cowboy Camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — A composed Duane Thomas, hinting at a new relationship with both pro football and the press, has made his peace—at least for the moment—with the Dallas Cowboys. The talented but unpredictable running back made his second appearance of the year at the Cowboys' training camp here Tuesday night.

After talking in private for nearly three hours, Thomas and Coach Tom Landry emerged to tell reporters that the player would take his physical exam and begin workouts today.

Thomas, smiling and apparently relaxed during a brief news conference, wouldn't say why he walked out of camp last Wednesday night, referring only to "personal reasons."

asked if he was happy with the Cowboys, he answered, "If I wasn't happy I wouldn't have come here."

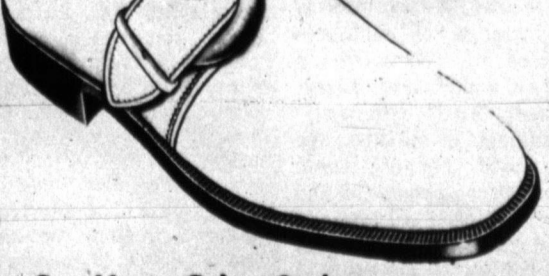

Reminded of his statements last year criticizing Landry and the team's front office, Thomas said, "You're talking about the past. Wait a few more weeks and I'll give you something else to go on." He also said he would end his much-publicized silence and talk about football to reporters this year "if I have time."

Elsewhere, Los Angeles Rams quarterback Roman Gabril was reported making satisfactory recovery from the lung collapse he suffered Monday.

Hunter, Bobick Lead Olympic Boxing Hopefuls

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A flyweight who may be another Willie Pep and a heavyweight considered the finest amateur in the world weighed in today for tonight's start of the U.S. Olympic Boxing Trials.

The flyweight is Bobby Lee Hunter, who is serving a 20-year manslaughter sentence in South Carolina.

The heavyweight is Navy quartermaster third class Duane Bobick, the 1972 National Golden Gloves king and 1971 gold medal winner in the Pan American games.

The tournament brings together the national champions of the four armed services, Golden Gloves, AAU and East and West Division qualifying championships.

The winners of the trials and carefully selected challengers—not necessarily the runners-up—in each of the 11 weight divisions will go to training camp near Bear Mountain, N.Y. for additional competition.

Ray Satterfield, a Manning Correctional Institute prison guard, moved into a dormitory room with Hunter on the Texas Christian campus, site of the trials.

"He's getting ready mentally," Satterfield said. "He doesn't want to talk to the press or anybody. Nobody's got pressure on em like he has. And nobody in the world wants to win more."

"Jimmy Perrin, a nationally ranked pro who fought Willie Pep and other good ones, says Bobby is better than Pep at this stage. He's (Hunter) a beautiful left-handed boxer, one of the few who can knock out a man with a jab. He's done it twice."

Hunter was the 1971-72 National AAU champion and a bronze medalist in the 1971 Pan American Games.

Others rated No. 1 in the poll who will be fighting in the four-day tournament in Daniel Meyer Coliseum include:

United Nations Interferes In Domestic Busing Issue

It was suggested recently that the matter of a death penalty should be decided by the people instead of the court, and we enlarged the suggestion to cover some other points on which the people have never heard—notably on busing.

It is difficult to find just who the heck favors busing. It is far easier to find those who oppose it, from the President on down to the individual parent who finds the busing of children to be as expensive as it is unnecessary. It is obviously a super expense drawn from funds that should be used for education. However, when we suggested that it should be brought to the people for a decision, we did know that the matter is already beyond a decision by the people of America. Busing is part of a package mandated by the United Nations in 1963, and accepted by Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. Ambassador, in 1966.

The idea of forced busing is included in United Nations General Assembly Resolution 1904. "The United Nations Declaration on the Elimination of all Forms of Racial Discrimination." The decree, humanitarian on the surface and filled with disarming language, calls for the building of a world society free from all forms of racial segregation and discrimination. All member states shall take effective measures to revise governmental and other public policies and to rescind laws and other regulations which have the effect of creating and perpetuating racial discrimination wherever it still exists. Obviously, this resolution involves the elimination of races and cultures, and the creating of a vapid, spineless, complacent "United Nations Man."

In all probability, the resolution, when understood by all races and cultures, will generate opposition from all who have ethnic or national pride, but the important point is that when the resolution was adopted by the 119-nation body, it took the effect of universal world law, and superseded domestic law in every member-nation. In effect, this resolution mandates genocide, in direct conflict with another proposed U.N. law that would outlaw genocide. This resolution of cultures and ethnic groups, pouring all mankind into a mixing pot with the idea of creating a new single race. Thus, it goes much farther than mere busing—but enforced busing is certainly a part of it.

McGovern's Formula Too Far To Left

By DON OAKLEY
NEA Staff Writer

Sen. George McGovern's amazing three-year journey from political obscurity to national prominence is far from completed.

It is one thing—although no small feat—to have snatched the leadership of the Democratic party out of the hands of the old pros and to have apparently begun a fundamental reshaping of the party into a broad coalition of youths and minorities and war opponents and assorted new and old leftists.

It will be quite another thing, however, to translate the superb organization and hard work and enthusiasm of his supporters, which enabled him to win primary after primary this spring, into a winning formula that will gain the coveted grand prize on Nov. 7.

It remains to be seen whether George McGovern is correct in believing, as he stated in a Life magazine interview, that "I am moving with an advance guard that the majority of American people are ready to rally around."

For one thing, despite his meteoric rise, McGovern remains an unknown quantity in the minds of that majority he hopes to rally. (This is even more true in the case of his "Spiro who?" running mate, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri.)

The latest poll by the Harris organization found McGovern trailing President Nixon by a 12-point margin in a three-way race (45 to 33 per cent) and by 16 points in a two-way race (54 to 38 per cent).

More significantly, it was also found that McGovern had slipped surprisingly in certain areas. For instance, the number of voters who gave him credit for being an early opponent of the Vietnam war and who considered him a fighter for tax reform was smaller than it had been in May.

But the most striking reversal was that more voters—not fewer—than in May now think McGovern has "too extreme, liberal views."

Much of this, of course, may be due not to things McGovern himself has said but what others have said he has said or has said in his name.

Actually, it is not George McGovern who is the worrisome unknown quantity to many people (after all, how far out can the soft-spoken son of a minister from South Dakota be?). It is the ideological company he keeps—or rather, the company that seems to have been attracted to him.

It was, for example, not an inspiring sight when a crowd of youths, demanding a clarification of a statement by him on Vietnam, forced a confrontation with him in his Miami Beach hotel headquarters and drowned him out with shouts of "Abortion! Amnesty! Shurijana!"

Such emotion-charged words could be as fatal to McGovern as the slogan "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" was to Republican candidate James G. Blaine in 1884.

Yet strangely, McGovern's acceptance speech, his first opportunity to address the American public as the presidential nominee of the Democratic party as well as to begin the healing process of the rifts within that party, was delivered in the wee hours when most of America was asleep.

This may be remembered as the first blunder by a candidate in the 1972 campaign.

Nevertheless, those who blithely predict a Nixon walk-away in November may be in for some surprises. Much of the percentage-point difference between him and McGovern is simply a recognition gap and is bound to shrink.

Not only that, but any man who has shown himself to be a fighter like George McGovern has probably can be counted on to make a real race of it.

The New Balance of Power

BRUCE BLOSSAT McGovern More Symbol than Man

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON — The 1972 Democratic convention had a lot of new things about it. What it did not have was electricity and excitement and a truly unifying spirit.

I have more to compare it with than do most observers, since I have seen all the conventions in both parties from 1940 on. This was, by all odds, one of the dullest.

Sen. George McGovern was the clear choice of the delegates, but their cheers for him were frail compared to the sounds that filled other halls in other times for Franklin Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie and Dwight Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy.

One delegate who was for McGovern all the way tried to put his finger on the missing quality. As he sees it, affection for him as a man is not the dominant thing. He is perceived as an instrument of protest, a vehicle bearing their concerns over the issues.

The view makes sense. It would help to explain why the cheers usually had a disembodied air about them, and why, for all its McGovern-dictated discipline, the assemblage here always seemed less like a convention than just a collection of people—a kind of political Woodstock.

Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who can mix sharp observation with his flip indifference, forecast:

"This convention is not going to end. It is just going to be gone."

And so it was, having consumed prime television time for four straight days to parade its dreariest events and put on its relatively more interesting happenings from near midnight to the small hours of the morning.

It can be argued that we observers simply were disappointed because our predictions of chaos here never came to pass. There may be something to that. Yet the alternative to chaos need not be smothering dullness.

Good things ought not to be unexciting and, as indicated at the outset, there were good things.

Weeks ago, a McGovern aide told me that the senator and his managers were not going to pull too tight a rein on his hundreds of delegates. They were judged to be uniquely individual and independent, and the feeling was it would be wrong to clamp down. It would violate the whole spirit of openness fostered by the Democratic party's reforms—reforms which helped nominate McGovern.

In actual fact, however, the discipline applied by him was very tough. It was used with

Your Health

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

This Exercise Can Be Done

Dear Dr. Lamb—In one of your recent columns you recommended an exercise to strengthen the lower abdominal muscles. You suggested putting your feet on the couch and then doing sit-up exercises. Did you ever try this? I have tried it and I find it impossible.

Dear Reader—It is impossible for some people. But in specific answer to your question, yes. Not only have I tried it, I do it every morning. The reason for putting the feet up is literally to bend the thighs at the hips so that you won't be using the thigh muscles for sit-up exercises. In this way the principal load will be put on the abdominal muscles and strengthen them. This exercise is particularly good for the upper abdomen and not so effective for the lower abdomen.

Some people have trouble doing this exercise because their abdominal muscles are so weak that they are not strong enough to lift the body. For individuals with this problem I would suggest that they start with the legs stretched out on the floor with the legs extended. This means they will be using the hip muscles some for an assist, but after all their abdominal muscles are too weak to do much else. Individuals who can't do sit-ups with their feet up on the couch are the very ones who need abdominal exercises the most.

Another exercise that will help with the abdominal muscles for individuals who have very weak stomach muscles is merely to lie flat and lift the head up touching the chin to the chest. The lifting of the head will put a mild strain on the upper abdominal muscles. It is not a vigorous exercise either, but these people need to start with very light exercises if they are going to do anything about the problem.

Still another exercise that everybody can do is simply to voluntarily tense or contract the abdominal muscles as tight as they can and hold the muscle in for a few seconds and then relax them. This can be done either while lying, sitting, or standing. The holding of the abdominal muscles and the seat muscles in a tense position for a few seconds and then relaxing and then repeating this helps to strengthen these muscles appreciably.

By the way, sucking in the abdominal muscles and tensing the lower abdominal muscles in this position as firmly as possible for a few seconds daily will help a number of people with the problem of the lower abdominal pot.

After these types of exercises have been done long enough, most people can do sit-ups with their feet on the couch, unless, of course, they have arthritis or some deformity in their spine that limits the amount of movement they have.

Inside Washington

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

MIAMI BEACH — The McGovern faction, once securely in control of the Democratic convention last week, immediately put into operation what amounted to a rule-or-ruin policy.

Anything they couldn't dominate or manipulate was promptly scuttled or sidetracked.

A graphic example is what happened to a ballyhooed youth conference.

It was deliberately sabotaged when the McGovernites discovered that embarrassing questions would be raised by young delegates from labor ranks.

The get-together was called by the Democratic National Committee as one of the measures to iron out differences between discordant elements and thus help unify the reform-wracked party structure. The youth conference was deemed particularly important in this effort because two distinct and widely divergent youth groups are represented among the delegates.

One, college-oriented, is militantly McGovernite. Loud, brash and often arrogantly high-handed, these affluent youths are a major element of the South Dakota radical's electioneering apparatus. He is counting on their playing a key role in his fall drive for the White House.

The other youth group is from labor ranks—hard-hat, construction industries, factories, mills, technicians, and other blue-collar workers. They constitute a considerable proportion of the approximate 600 unitite delegates—and are decidedly not pro-McGovern. Most of them favor Sens. Humphrey, Jackson and Muskie.

Each youth group has its own informal overall organization. The McGovernites are spearheaded by what is called the "National Youth Caucus." The worker youths function under the banner of "Youth Coalition '72."

The National Youth Caucus was set up by wealthy 44-year-old former Rep. Allard Lowenstein, head of the New Left-dominated Americans for Democratic Action, who was defeated last month in an attempt to stage a Congressional comeback. Last winter he started out as a Muskie supporter but hastily switched to McGovern when the Maine "front-runner's" campaign flopped.

Lowenstein assayed the role of youth kingmaker and spokesman to promote his ambition to run for mayor of New York next year. As money angel of the Youth Caucus, he persuaded Stewart Rawlings Mott, 34-year-old bachelor heir of an $800 million General Motors fortune, to ante up $25,000.

Youth Coalition '72 was organized at a Washington conference last spring to provide labor youths with a forum and instrumentality to counter the lobbying and propaganda operations of the college-oriented leftist McGovernite youths.

Wielding the Ax
At the appointed hour for the youth conference, the worker delegates were on hand in force.

They were ready and waiting for the college-oriented McGovernite youths.

But the latter were nowhere to be seen. They were prominently noticeable by their absence.

After a long wait, a few did straggle in—obviously in the nature of scouts to look over the situation and report back to the McGovern headquarters. They didn't stay long and never returned.

This deliberate shunning "did in" the conference.

The worker youths had no chance to ask their highly moot questions—why McGovern balked at promising to support the convention's nominee if someone other than he was selected; why he favored unlimited busing to achieve "racial balance;" why he withdrew complete U.S. withdrawal from South Vietnam without a prior commitment from the Communists for the release of U.S. POW's; McGovern's long record of opposition to labor measures in Congress.

Disappointed and angered by the curt brush-off, the worker youths were baffled as to how and why it was done. Later, they found out.

In the hotel lobbies and other congregating places, they found obviously hastily hand-lettered signs reading: "Youth conference cancelled." The posters bore no indication of their source. But their purpose was obvious—to scuttle the meeting.

The worker youths also learned that the McGovernites had gotten wind of their intention to do some plain talking that could be embarrassing—with newsmen and broadcasters on hand to record what happened.

So the word went out to torpedo the conference. The McGovernite youths were strictly enjoined to stay away and they obeyed orders. A lot of them had no alternative: they had to.

Their convention expenses were paid by the McGovernites.

Leaders of the worker delegates who were on hand at the aborted conference were Robert E.B. Allen, president, Young Democratic Clubs of America; Edward Lamont, president, Young Trade Unionists No. 1, Baltimore; Josh Muravchik, co-chairman, Youth Committee for Peace and Democracy in the Middle East; Anthony Ortiz, president, UAW Local No. 163, Detroit; Candice Brown, Montana Frontlash; Michael Bowen Mitchell, Maryland NAACP.

Where Your Liberty Lies

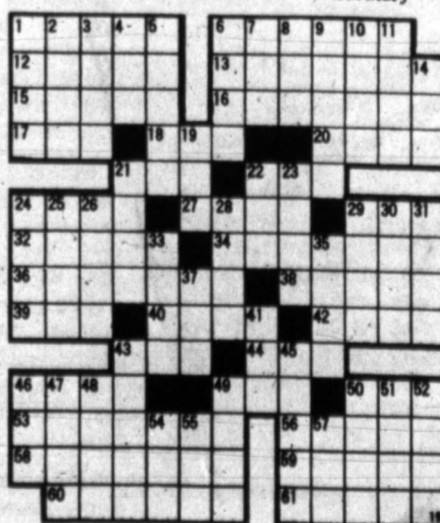

I often wonder whether we do not rest our hopes too much upon constitutions, upon laws and upon courts. These are false hopes, believe me, these are false hopes. Liberty lies in the hearts of men and women; when it dies there, no constitution, no law, no court can save it; no constitution, no law, no court can even do much to help it. While it lies there it needs no constitution, no law, no court to save it.

USSR Budgets Two Crafts For Joint Venture

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Soviet Union is budgeting two space craft, in contrast to one planned by the United States, for a joint Russian-American rendezvous and docking space mission in 1975, officials said recently.

The announcement came at the conclusion of two weeks of talks between American space experts and a 22-member team of Russians.

Boris N. Petrov, president of the Counsel of Intercosmos and head of the Soviet delegation, and Christopher C. Kraft, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center, said the groups completed a basic technical outline for the mission, to be called the Apollo Soyuz Test Project, and design work will start immediately on the needed hardware.

Glynn S. Lunney, U.S. ASTP technical director who will outline the mission plan, said the Soviets will start the joint project by launching a Soyuz spacecraft with two men aboard.

About seven and one-half hours later, he said, an American Apollo spacecraft with three men aboard will be launched.

If the Apollo launch is delayed beyond the mission lifetime of about 12 days but the Soviet craft, because of on-board supplies, can stay in space only about half that time.

Agreements reached during the meetings here, Petrov said through an interpreter, "can hardly be overestimated in importance."

"It opens up the creation of a joint mission and gives greater security for men who fly into space as well as opens the chance for joint experiments in space," he said.

and then return to the Apollo for a rest period.

On the following day, two astronauts again will visit the Soyuz. One American will remain in the Soviet craft and the other will escort a Soviet cosmonaut into the Apollo.

After about 48 hours of orbiting the earth together, the two ships will separate.

Lunney said the American spacecraft has a mission lifetime of about 12 days but the Soviet craft, because of on-board supplies, can stay in space only about half that time.

Agreements reached during the meetings here, Petrov said through an interpreter, "can hardly be overestimated in importance."

"It opens up the creation of a joint mission and gives greater security for men who fly into space as well as opens the chance for joint experiments in space," he said.

reached here will enable North American Rockwell, which has a contract for the docking module, to begin design work immediately.

WASN'T TIMBER WOLF SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Jay Cordray thought he killed a timber wolf but he was unsure, so he sent photographs of the animal to the Illinois State Museum for identification.

John R. Paul, museum curator of zoology, said the creature was "not a wolf in the sense of a timber wolf."

The animal, instead, is probably "pure coyote, possibly with a little dog breeding in its background," Paul said.

Timber wolves have been absent from northern Illinois where the animal was killed for at least 50 and probably closer to 100 or more years, Paul said.

The American and Soviet ASTP engineering teams will meet again in Moscow next fall, officials said.

FAIR FIOLA WINS DRAMMEN, Norway (AP) — Crown Prince Harald's 4-year-old favorite cow, Fiola, won first prize at the country show, scoring 129.5 points here.

The 35-year-old heir to the Norwegian throne has a 150-acre farm at his residence, "skaugum," 15 miles west of Oslo.

The crown prince was unable to attend the show because he took part in pre-Olympic yachting qualifications at Kiel, West Germany.
