Committee rejects gas guzzler tariff

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee, after approving President Carter's proposed tax credit for home insulation, today rejected his tax on gas-thirsty automobiles.

The surprise vote against the tax was 11 to 5. Several committee members said they voted against the Carter tax because the Senate already has voted to ban the manufacture of fuel-inefficient cars beginning in 1980.

Today's vote was even worse for Carter than it appeared on its face. There are growing indications that the committee will vote to kill the other two major taxes that make up the President's energy tax program.

Despite the committee's vote, the gas-guzzler tax is not dead. The full Senate will consider it next month, as will a House-Senate conference committee.

As passed by the House, the bill would impose a tax of up to $553 on any 1979 model car that gets less than 13 miles per gallon. In 1985, the maximum tax would climb to $3,856.

Whatever the fate of the tax, it will have no effect on an existing law which penalizes manufacturers if their fleet of cars fall below a minimum efficiency standard. For 1978 models that minimum is 18 mpg; in 1985 it rises to 27.5 mpg.

On a 9-7 vote the committee rejected a House provision that would have repealed the existing income tax deduction for state and local gasoline taxes. The repeal, supported by the Carter administration, would have cost consumers an additional $1.4 billion a year by 1985.

Votes on two other key proposals are likely later this week, with results also expected to be unfavorable for Carter's energy plan.

One panel member predicted that no more than four of 18 members would vote for a proposal to tax industrial use of natural gas and oil so heavily that utilities and factories would switch to coal.

Starland vocal band ... their voices make music

By CHARLIE BERMANT
Pampa News Staff

The Starland Vocal Band, which performed at the Tri-State Fair Arena in Amarillo Monday, establish an immediate musical and personal rapport with their audience through its pleasantly accessible music.

John Carroll, Margot Chapman, Bill Danoff, and Taffy Danoff have been playing together for about two years, and in that time what began as an experiment has developed into a successful and commercially viable sound. True to their name, the emphasis is on vocals with the instruments used only to color the sound.

Starland is easier to listen to than some instrumentally based music, perhaps because the human voice is a natural instrument. Their voices blend naturally, giving the impression that they couldn't sing off key if they wanted to.

The Starland Vocal Band (l. to r., John Carroll, Margot Chapman, Taffy Danoff, and Bill Danoff) perform to a small but enthusiastic crowd in Amarillo Monday.

School board considers wrestling

By JANE P. MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

To alleviate crowding problems in elementary schools, the Pampa Independent School District board of trustees Monday added a fourth grade teacher at Austin and a half-time kindergarten teacher at Wilson.

He also reported that school enrollment was down 27 students below last year. But enrollment in kindergarten through sixth grade was 111 pupils above last year's mark.

The board also discussed wrestling. Manny Holden wants wrestling in the Pampa school system and went before the board to explain his plan.

Wrestling is not recognized by Texas University Interscholastic League (UIL), but Holden told board members and an audience of nearly 30, most of them wrestling students and parents, that it soon will be.

Trustees asked for a recommendation from the athletic department and school administration, they indicated that they might call a special meeting to vote on the subject.

O'Neill praises Lance

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill gave Bert Lance a vote of confidence today, but said that the budget director's future in government would be settled by the President and Lance himself.

As long as the President has confidence in him, that's the main thing," O'Neill said. "I don't see any lack of confidence as far as members of the House are concerned."

The AP survey showed that nearly 38 per cent of those interviewed felt Lance should resign, while about 35 per cent said he should stay. Nearly 27 per cent expressed no opinion.

Asked what options would be discussed at that time, he noted that "I don't know what's going to intervene between now and then."

After adjourning the Senate committee's investigation of Lance on Monday, Rubicoff said he would call a closed-door meeting of the panel in two weeks or so to discuss what action, if any, should be taken.

Someone crying in mine shaft?

PICHER, Okla. (AP) — A dispute is raging in this small Northeast Oklahoma community over searching an abandoned mine for someone who may be in it.

Two Picher city officials claim they heard someone crying for help from the hole Sunday.

Cherokee County, Kan. Sheriff Chuck Sharp, who has control of the mine, spent Sunday night trying to hear voices but called off rescue attempts after failing to hear anything but echoes. He thinks the report of voices is a hoax.

The owner of the land is Naomi Poole, mayor of Picher. Despite threats, name-calling and harassment, Mrs. Poole will not allow anyone into the mine because her lawyer says she would be responsible if anyone was injured.

Storm damages barn

"Gray county crops and buildings received a lot of hail and wind damage on Thursday and Friday night," according to Joe VanZandt of the county extension office.

Most of the damage was to corn, soybeans, and sunflowers in the center of the farm strip, VanZandt estimates that there was a 75 per cent loss in crops involved in the center of the storm. He reported that he heard of four barns and a trailer that were downed by the storm. This barn belongs to Dave Richardson.

Gas mileage rates questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is planning to change the way it calculates the figures that tell buyers how much gasoline mileage to expect from their new cars because owners don't necessarily get the same results.

Douglas Costle, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, which furnishes annual auto mileage projections, acknowledged Monday that methods for calculating the figures have left some new car buyers angry and disgruntled.

The EPA's new ratings showed that the diesel-powered Volkswagen Rabbit gets the best mileage of 1978 model cars being offered for sale in the United States. The Rabbit posted 40 miles per gallon in city driving and 53 mpg in highway driving for a combined mileage of 45 mpg.

The mileage report, assessing the fuel efficiency of foreign imports as well as U.S. manufactured cars, is based on tests conducted under laboratory-controlled conditions by professional drivers. The results are broken down into three categories: city driving, highway driving and a combined figure.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Supplies down, prices up

Back during World War II, the government granted itself some unusual powers, based on the thesis that this was war and, in war, you fight with what you have and what you can get.

Since many things had gone out of production in favor of war materials, prices of those commodities tended to shoot up. The supply was not enough to meet demand.

One of those items was housing. The war effort virtually put a halt to home construction. Real estate prices and rental costs tended to escalate. The government said that was a no-no and clamped on "temporary" ceilings and rent controls.

That didn't seem to be such a bad idea back then. The war came and went, however, and the country needed all the housing it could get. The controls were largely lifted and the free enterprise system went to work. Houses were built by the millions, ditto apartments. The crisis faded away.

There were some people, however, who remembered how nice it was to have their rents remain constant. They felt that they needed some guarantee to hold rents down, so they called on governmental bodies to provide that guarantee. And along they came.

Many of the larger cities, including Washington and New York, slapped on controls that had no basis in blocking profiteering in times of national emergency. They were put into effect because some good-intentioned people figured that they could work to hold prices down by governmental order.

Alas, people in cities soon found out that the cure was worse than the disease. It wasn't long until impeccably maintained apartments were falling into disrepair because owners simply could not keep them up and pay the ever-increasing costs of operating them and higher taxes at the same time. Result: literally hundreds of thousands of apartments deteriorated into slums and ghettos.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton (D-Mo.), chairman of the Senate District of Columbia Committee (which reviews the actions of Washington's elected city government), recently conducted a wide-ranging investigation into rent control in the nation's capital.

Said he: "The facts that emerged have had a profound impact on my attitudes toward rent control. For the sad truth is that rent controls—enacted for the best of motives to protect middle- and low-income tenants—actually works against the very people they were designed to aid."

He said that Washington's rent-control program has driven apartment owners, large and small, out of business. For example, more than 60 renters lost their apartments when their building was converted into a more profitable home for the aged. Recently, a modern 170-unit apartment structure built less than 10 years ago—went on the market with advertising publicly warning that as a residential property it was not a sound investment.

In The Bronx, scene of the rioting and looting and burning during the recent blackout, hundreds of apartment buildings capable of housing 10 to 20 families, can be had for the price of a Volkswagen.

It is a tragedy, isn't it, that Americans in their vast halls of wisdom, are so glibly when it comes to promises of politicians.

"Let me control," saith the politician, "and I can save you money."
And the glibble taxpayer goeth running.

The retirement dilemma

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., says that "mandatory retirement is the last remaining legal form of discrimination in our society."

It may not be the last legal form, but it certainly is one of them. Unfortunately, the problem is how best to eliminate discrimination against the elderly without creating other injustices.

The solution proposed by Rep. Findley, Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., and 107 other sponsors of a bill in the House of Representatives would be a federal law to prohibit cities, states and private employers from regulating retirement before the age of 70. The retirement age for most federal employees would be raised from 65 to 70.

At the present time there are no laws mandating retirement in private industry. Full Social Security benefits at the age of 65 usually induce many to retire. Otherwise retirement policies are the product of management decisions or the collective bargaining system.

And even if congress passes the senior citizen retirement bill, private industry and unions could reach age 70 retirement agreements. What the law would do, however, is entrench more strongly the concept that the elderly should be put out to pasture at a certain age.

Uncertain about this, as well as the philosophical questions the measure has raised, congressmen appear to favor a go-slow approach so that a two-year study of retirement can be concluded. Congress also is faced with some very pragmatic pressure from Social Security officials. Social Security has unfunded liabilities as high as $4 trillion. Unless something is done, the program will require confiscatory taxes.

Most of the external political pressure for extending the retirement age is coming from senior citizen groups who understandably are angry that they are considered unproductive and useless.

We do believe that many senior citizens who have retired have a problem. At the same time we suggest to them that if forced retirement at age 65 is discriminatory, so is forced retirement at 70. To us, the best approach to the problem would be to have older people work as long as they want to or as long as they can make a meaningful contribution.

Since that determination can never be made by government because of the thousands of variables involved, it should be left to the private arena.

In its study, the government should look at how it can allow private institutions to address the problem.

And senior citizens could concentrate their efforts toward corporate management and the efforts toward collective bargaining agreements that occur in the United States.

FDA shooting at ice cream?

The Food and Drug Administration has proposed a regulation that would allow dairy products such as nonfat dry milk to be replaced by milk-derived ingredients, including an imported substance called caseinate. The regulation would affect ice cream, and for our part, we would like to believe what Rep. Charles Rose said in the House the other day: that the American public wants the real thing.

The problem is that the American public for some time now has been preferring the unreal thing, whether it be in hamburgers, tacos, or even ice cream. Americans already slurp down ice cream of varying degrees of unreality—including some made of caseinate—and so it is silly to say the public wants the real thing.

Of course, the public may want ice cream of less adulteration—that is, ice cream without substitutes for nonfat dry milk, but only those who buy ice cream can determine that, and should they have the choice, economics doubtless will enter in. If ice cream made of caseinate sells for less, it increasingly will find its way into the American diet.

For those who really do want the real thing—a shrinking minority with ice cream as with other commodities—to do it right, you have to do it yourself, with ice, salt and cream.

LEGAL PLUNDER

"But how is this legal plunder to be identified? Quite simply. See if the law takes from some persons what belongs to them, and gives it to other persons to whom it does not belong. See if the law benefits one citizen at the expense of another by doing what the citizen himself cannot do without committing a crime."—Frederic Bastiat, "The Law," 1850

Southern states lock horns feud

CHARLESTON, S.C. — (LENS) — President Carter's home state of Georgia and its neighbor, South Carolina, are locked in a boundary dispute so bitter that it has gone as far as the Supreme Court. On August 10, Georgia filed a lawsuit against South Carolina and asked the court to decide who owns 13,000 disputed acres of water and marshland. A decision on the case could take several years.

How the boundary line is ultimately drawn could mean millions of dollars to both states. At stake is their share of $1.2 billion in loans and grants from the federal government which are being made available to coastal states to help them cope with the dislocations and damage expected from production of offshore oil.

No one knows how much oil there is off the South Carolina and Georgia coasts. But preliminary studies indicate that there may be deposits of both oil and natural gas. Offshore oil drilling in the area is expected to begin later this summer or in the autumn. If the boundary ends up where Georgia wants it, South Carolina could lose millions of dollars in aid, because the amount of federal aid a state receives is linked to, among a number of other things, the amount of coastal area it has.

The dispute began almost two centuries ago when gold was found in the Savannah River which provided a natural boundary between the two states. Officials from both states met in 1787 at the Convention of Beaufort in "islands" in question are in fact no longer islands but are attached to the South Carolina mainland. Georgia is arguing that the attachment came about in a man-made fashion, by diking and filling work done by the Army Corps of Engineers to improve the Savannah River for navigation.

Since those changes were not natural, Georgia argues that the alterations have no legal standing. Thus the "islands" still belong to Georgia, according to the Supreme Court. If the seaward lateral boundary is drawn 200 miles out to sea from the point Georgia claims, the state would gain considerable territory at the expense of South Carolina.

Meanwhile a second battle has erupted over shrimping and fishing rights in the disputed area. South Carolina last month refused to extradite to Georgia a 30-year-old South Carolina shrimp-boat captain who had been accused of shrimping illegally in the waters claimed by Georgia. South Carolina officials believed that extraditing the captain, who insisted he had never left South Carolina waters, would weaken the state's position in the border dispute. Since then the disputed area has been closed altogether to shrimping by fishermen from either state.

South Carolina and agreed to split the river down the middle, with all islands going to Georgia. But squabbles have erupted several times since the 1700s. In 1971 the United States Geological Survey, after receiving $9 million from Georgia to defray the costs, drew a new topographical map giving Georgia three areas that South Carolina had long considered its territory, including Oyster Bed Island, Jones Island and Barnwell Island.

All official maps drawn before 1971 had shown the disputed territories to be in South Carolina. But the issue is legally complex. The three

Today in history

By The Associated Press Today is Tuesday, Sept. 20, the 263rd day of 1977. There are 102 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1938, a hurricane swept over parts of New Jersey, New York and New England, taking nearly 700 lives.

On this date: In 480 B.C., the Greeks defeated the Persians in the naval Battle of Salamis in the Aegean Sea.

In 1519, the Portuguese navigator, Ferdinand Magellan, set out from Spain on a voyage to find a western passage to the Indies, and one of his ships circled the world.

In 1850, Congress voted to ban slave trading in the District of Columbia.

In 1870, national unification of Italy was achieved.

In 1881, Chester Arthur took the oath as the 21st president of the United States after the death of President James Garfield.

In 1973, the British-French supersonic airliner, Concorde, made its first landing in the U.S. — at the dedication of the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Ten years ago: The British luxury liner, Queen Elizabeth 2, was launched.

Five years ago: A Federal judge allowed the Democratic Party to continue a $3 million damage suit in connection with the Watergate bugging, and to name as a defendant President Richard Nixon's chief fundraiser, Maurice Stans.

One year ago: President Carter promised sweeping tax reforms that he said would place the burden of government on the wealthy and big business rather than on the working class.

Today's birthdays: Actress Sophia Loren is 43 years old. Fashion designer James Galanos is 53.

Thought for today: No question is ever settled until it is settled right — Ella Wheeler Wilcox, American writer, 1855-1919.

Your Birthday

Sept. 21, 1977

Paths that you've trod before will lead you to the greatest gains this coming year. If you have to axe your way through the forest, it could be another story.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's a possibility today you'll repeat a bad financial move you made before in a similar situation. Check your memory bank.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Moderation, tact and logic are your traditional tools today. You could forget what spawned your successes and fail by using hard-nosed tactics.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's extremely important today to turn the other cheek. Even if someone wrongs you, don't be vindictive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're still in somewhat of a critical phase financially. Don't put out "seed money" on speculation without an assured return.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is not the day for you to champion unpopular causes. Though your motives may be honorable, results could cloud your reputation where it counts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 19-Feb. 19) You will treat people by what you remember of them, rather than how you feel today. They may understand what you do, but not why.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't send friends to a merchant you know little about. Your pals could get ripped off and you'll be red-faced.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful in matters affecting your reputation today. Someone who has a real or imagined grievance may seek revenge.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's a possibility you won't use your most logical judgment at work today. Hammering square pegs into round holes won't work.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Beware of sharpies and "blue sky" promoters today. What you have could quickly become theirs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An old and abrasive domestic issue should not be resurrected today. It will only cause chaos on the home front.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Look down your nose at no one today. Most people are not deserving of your disdain, and you'll only create unnecessary problems.

Houston police change injured prisoner rule

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Houston Police Chief Harry Caldwell has testified department rules have been changed so that injured prisoners are booked before being taken to a hospital for treatment. Caldwell testified Monday in the murder trial of two former Houston policemen charged with the drowning death of Joe Campos Torres in Houston's Buffalo Bayou. Terry Denson, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21, are charged with pushing Torres into the bayou after the prisoner was allegedly beaten by a group of officers. Torres was arrested in a bar disturbance May 5 and his body was recovered from the bayou May 8.

Caldwell was not permitted to say whether the department policy change came as a direct result of the Torres case. However, he did testify that prior to Torres' death, it was "quite common to find misdemeanor injured prisoners taken to Ben Taub (Hospital) and left to get away." "Policy now requires charges to be filed before going to Ben Taub," Caldwell said. Earlier testimony showed that Torres was a prisoner in Orlando's custody when he was refused admission to the jail and ordered taken to the hospital for treatment. Carless Elliott, a rookie policeman and Orlando's partner at the time, testified last week that instead of being taken to the hospital, Torres was taken to a parking lot and released to the bayou. Caldwell would not agree with defense attorney Bob Bennett that releasing an arrested prisoner before booking is anything but a violation of the department rules.

However, he did say that "almost every rule in the book is violated at one time or another." "Once an officer took a prisoner into custody," Caldwell testified, "it would exceed his discretionary powers to just take him somewhere and release him." Two other officers have testified that it is not unusual for an officer to remove an intoxicated person from a bar-room disturbance and release him without charges. "I wouldn't be shocked to find it happens," Caldwell said. Caldwell agreed that an officer might have trouble justifying an extended visit to the hospital, waiting hours while a prisoner gets minor treatment. The seven-woman, five-man jury also heard testimony from officer Mario Oropeza, who said he arrested Torres and turned him over to Orlando and Elliott for transport to the jail. Oropeza testified of a meeting with Orlando a few hours after Torres had been taken away.

South Carolina became the first state to secede from the nation when the Ordinance of Secession was passed Dec. 20, 1860. The state's Congressional delegation resigned en masse four days later, but their resignations were not accepted.

Denver, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Seattle, Memphis, Tenn. and Portland, Ore., launched campaigns here Monday during day-long hearings before the party's Site Selection Committee.

And the 10-member committee was expected to hear today from Honolulu, Cincinnati and Fort Worth, Tex.

In Monday's session, Western cities claimed they needed the issue-oriented conference to help keep Democrats in office.

Planned for early December 1978, the conference was mandated by the 1976 national convention as an opportunity for party members and elected officials to talk about issues and set policies midway through a presidential term.

After hearing from the biding cities, the committee will visit a few of the frontrunners and announce the site in mid-November, a staff member said.

Lance issue divides Americans

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — The American people, the jury that Bert Lance sought to judge his case, are sharply divided over whether Lance should keep his job as budget director in the Carter administration, an Associated Press public opinion poll shows.

The nationwide survey of 1,548 adults, taken Monday evening, also found President Carter's image had been dented by the Lance affair, particularly in regard to Carter's oft-repeated campaign pledge to enforce high moral standards in government.

The AP survey showed that nearly 38 per cent of those interviewed felt Lance should resign his position as director of the Office of Management and Budget, while about 35 per cent said he should stay. Nearly 27 per cent expressed no opinion, despite wide publicity about the case.

The AP survey followed Lance's vigorous self-defense during three days of nationally televised Senate committee hearings into his personal and business dealings.

The hearings before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee were intended to focus on allegations that Lance withheld personal financial information during his Senate confirmation hearings in January.

The impact of Lance's 20-plus hours of testimony last week before the Senate panel is difficult to measure, since the television audiences for the hearings were believed to be very small. National television ratings for last week are not yet available.

The survey provided some indication that Lance's television performance helped his standing with some Americans.

The telephone survey was conducted for The AP by Chilton Research Services of Radnor, Pa.

The 3 per cent difference between those favoring Lance's resignation and those opposing it is inconclusive because of the margin of possible statistical error.

Lance has repeatedly said that he would not resign and that he is innocent of any wrongdoing in his personal financial affairs.

Carter and Lance met privately Monday. White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said he had no information on what was discussed or who requested the session. Powell said if Carter has made a decision on whether to keep Lance as budget director "I'm certainly not aware of it."

As for Carter's promise to enforce high moral conduct in government, about 26 per cent of those interviewed said that their confidence in Carter's keeping that promise had decreased, while 8 per cent said their confidence had increased. More than half — 53 per cent — said their opinion of Carter's commitment was unaffected by the controversy.

This erosion of confidence in Carter also was reflected in an evaluation of his over-all job performance. About 22 per cent said their opinion of Carter's performance in office had decreased because of the Lance controversy. Slightly more than 9 per cent said their opinion of Carter's performance had risen with 59 per cent saying there had been no change.

Asked to rate Carter's overall performance, more than half of those interviewed gave Carter excellent or good marks. About 38 per cent gave him only a fair rating, with 9 per cent saying he has done a poor job.

This performance rating for Carter is somewhat lower than findings by other polls taken in early August, but factors such as differences in the wording of the questions could account for this.

The almost even split on the question of whether Lance should resign may indicate an improvement in Lance's position. A special Gallup Organization survey of 501 adults commissioned by Time Magazine found late last week during the hearings that 67 per cent of those questioned thought Lance should resign. Twenty-one per cent said he should not resign.

That poll and The AP survey cannot be directly compared with accuracy because of variations in the interviewing methods, sample selection and timing.

The AP poll figures represent the exact outcome of the interviews with the panel of adults across the continental United States. But conclusions about the opinions of all adult Americans, drawn from the poll results, could be affected by statistical variations.

With 1,548 persons in the sample, one can say with 95 per cent confidence that the error due solely to possible variations in the sample is about 2.5 per cent up or down for the major findings of the study.

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the turn of the decade, during an age of student protest, three young men participated in an anti-Vietnam war demonstration in a small college town near Washington.

This week, uprooted from otherwise typical middle class lives, they went to jail for their part in that protest of seven years ago.

McClung appealed. A federal district court decided their right to free speech had been violated. But the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned that decision, saying First Amendment rights of students on campus are not as broad as those of a citizen in public places, Lowe said.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: For three years, I've been involved in a very painful love triangle. The man I love says he loves both me and the other woman.

I know the other woman. We finally got together and compared notes and found out that he had been lying to both of us!

Here's the unbelievable part: Knowing that he's a no-good liar who has been using both of us, I just can't say goodby to him and make it stick. The other woman feels the same way about him. He has us under some kind of spell.

Abby, why would a woman who knows a man is no good and will only hurt her keep going back for more? What kind of fool am I?

Sign me . . .

WEAK

DEAR WEAK: You obviously have a neurotic need to punish yourself. (You either enjoy pain in a perverse sort of way, or you think you deserve it.) The fact that you've written to me shows that you're tired of leading with your chin. Get into therapy and find out why you set yourself up repeatedly for that kind of punishment. And when you do, you'll know what kind of fool you were.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law keeps bringing her friends over for a guided tour of her son's new house. I wouldn't mind so much, but she never gives me any warning, and it's embarrassing when I haven't had time to tidy up the place.

And while I'm complaining about my mother-in-law, she always refers to our children as "my son's children." And she calls this house, "my son's house." Everything is her son's . . . as though he had no wife.

Even though I'm sure this won't make your column, it's such a relief to get it off my chest.

Thanks, Abby. I had to tell somebody. I'd never complain to my husband because he's a sweet guy who's had to put up with his mother a lot longer than I have.

OFF MY CHEST IN CHELSEA

DEAR OFF: You're wise to get it off your chest without putting it on your husband's shoulders. My mail tells me that few things irritate husbands more than a wife who complains about his mother.

DEAR ABBY: May I say a word for the medical secretaries who are ready to scream? Crowded waiting rooms are no fun for anybody, especially if you're sick and can't find a place to sit.

Waiting rooms are always crowded because people who have appointments insist on bringing their children for the "ride," or their friends, cousins—you name it—for "company."

Children get restless and cranky. They cry and run all over the office. Then when Mommy sees the doctor the kids are left unattended, and I have to watch them and pick up the mess when they leave. Sometimes Daddy or Grandma comes along to keep an eye on the children, but if they can watch them here, why not at home?

Please, Abby, remind people that there is just so much space in a doctor's (or dentist's) office, and if patients must have company, to limit it to just one person.

MEDICAL SECRETARY

DEAR SECRETARY: Consider it done.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have become quite concerned about the new things I have been hearing about eggs and how they contribute to cholesterol in the blood stream.

I am largely responsible for cooking for my family. I want to prevent any possible heart trouble for as long as possible. I would like to know how many eggs I can safely serve each day or week? I mean eggs included in other foods such as in custards, puddings, cookies, cakes and what have you.

I understand that heart attacks do give warnings, sometimes several hours before they strike. I hear that if you have had any chest pain or pain in the left shoulder or left side of the neck followed by excessive tiredness you should get to a doctor as fast as you can.

I'd appreciate full information on these topics. I do not think we are having any trouble in this area, but I want to be prepared as much as possible since we do not have a doctor in this city.

DEAR READER — The American Heart Assn. recommends that the total consumption of egg yolks should not exceed three yolks a week including all of those used in cooking of any sort.

The dietary program you need to follow is much more complicated than that though. If you don't restrict your calories from any source to the point of preventing or eliminating obesity, your dietary program may not be very helpful.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis, which will give you the general guidelines you need. Others

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — "Throwaways" have many uses and one of them is to save bits of a leftover soap bar to use for picking up small pieces of broken glass. I simply rub a piece of soap over the area covered with such glass and all the pieces are picked up safely and in a jiffy and the soap thrown away. — LINDA

DEAR POLLY — Today as I was trying to peel a tomato just after it came out of the refrigerator I thought of something much easier than putting it in a pan of boiling water. I put it in my microwave oven set on "Defrost" for about 20 seconds and presto, it peeled much easier. — THERESA H.

DEAR POLLY — To keep your pictures hanging straight, wrap masking tape, wrong side out, around the middle of a rounded toothpick and put at the bottom near the corners of the back of the picture and it will always hang straight.

An old metal shoe rack can be nailed to the garage door or wall to make a great holder for garden tools.

When one does not have drawer space for storing extra pillows hang them on pants hangers in a closet.

An old broom with frayed and spreading bristles can be renewed by soaking the bristles in water for a few minutes and then putting a strong rubber band around the bristles just below the stitching. When bristles are dry remove the rubber band. —NORA

Plants in the Home...

Succulents indoors and out

ELVIN McDONALD

About a month ago, you may recall, I wrote about taking a strolling tour of the plant shops in New York City's Greenwich Village. Jeannene, my 13-year-old, accompanied me and at some point asked, "How can you tell the difference between a cactus and a succulent?"

It's a good question, and a timely one, considering all the new plants arriving these days in local shops. The ground rule is this: All cacti are succulents, but not all succulents are cacti. Some succulents have thorns or spines, others, including some members of the cactus family itself, do not. But all succulents have the ability to store up a certain amount of moisture in their bodies, leaves, stems, or roots.

And, because succulents have this ability to fend for themselves in time of drought, they make ideal choices for anyone who is forgetful about watering or is attempting to garden in an arid climate. Indoors, the chief requirement for growing succulents is to give them at least a half-day of sun, or placement directly beneath the tubes in a fluorescent-light garden.

Outdoors, in climates where freezing occurs, the chief consideration is whether or not the succulent is cold-hardy; if not, it will have to be grown in a container and moved to a frost-free location during cold weather.

Whether succulents are grown indoors or out, in containers or directly in the ground, they need a growing medium that rapidly drains excess moisture. The mix I use for them is two parts sharp sand to one each of all-purpose potting soil and sphagnum peat moss; to each quart or five-inch pot of this I add a heaping tablespoon of ground limestone.

So far as watering is concerned, most succulents need a fair amount of moisture in the spring and summer, but in the cooler, shorter days of fall and winter they can be kept on the dry side — meaning only enough watering to keep the leaves or bodies firm and plump. I fertilize them lightly but regularly from about mid-February until the end of August. Now the fun begins. In order to more fully answer Jeannene's question, I have been helping her assemble a collection of succulents. Since she already had a number of cacti, we have been concentrating on other plant families. Specifically, we have made the following choices, all of which I recommend for growing indoors all year, or outdoors in warm weather.

Agave Family: Agave americana marginata for a fluorescent-light garden. A victoriaeaeana for a sunny window, and numerous species and varieties of Sansevieria, the old-fashioned snake plant, all of which do surprisingly well in bright light but not much direct sun.

Composite or Daisy Family: Senecio articulatus, sometimes called hot-dog cactus, for a sunny window.

Crassula Family: Species of Aeonium, Adromischus, Crassula, Echeveria, Kalanchoe, and Sedum, all for a sunny window or fluorescent-light garden. (Note, some forms of Sedum, as well as the related Sempervivum or hen-and-chicks, are cold-hardy in the North.) This family includes the common jade plant and burro-tail sedum, not to mention hundreds of other fascinating, easy-to-grow plants.

Euphorbia Family: Poinsettia and crown of thorns are the two best-known members of this family, but for Jeannene's collection we have selected Euphorbia bulepurifolia, a species that just naturally assumes the form of an aged bonsai.

Geranium Family: Surprising as it may seem, Pelargonium echinatum, a first cousin of the everyday bedding geranium, has thorny stems and is definitely a succulent. I recommend it for a sunny window. The beautiful flowers appear in the spring, following a cool, but frost-free winter, and soil kept on the dry side.

Lily Family: Species of Haworthia (shown in this week's illustration), Gasteria, and Ledebouria socialis (commonly known as Scilla violacea or silver squill) — all of these make superb house plants in a bright or sunny window, or near the tubes in a fluorescent-light garden.

Milkweed Family: Ceropegia woodii, best-known as rosary vine, to hang in a sunny east-facing window, and Stapelia variegata, a small-growing form of the starfish cactus, which grows well in natural or fluorescent light.

There are, of course, thousands of other succulents, but right now neither Jeannene nor I have a square inch of growing space available. In time, however, we hope to obtain succulent members of these families: Aizoid (including some living stones), Bromeliad, Gesneriad, Begonia, and Piper (cousins of the plant that gives us black pepper).

House Call
Q. You recommend giving hanging plants a quarter turn in the same direction every time they are watered so that all parts receive an equal amount of light. I'd like to follow your advice, but the hangers I use permit only half turns. Do I need a special kind of hanger?

A. Yes, a swivel hook (from your local hardware store), which turns a full circle. Use one for each hanging container.

Q. My standard-size African violets bloom constantly, but the miniatures never even set buds. All receive the same care: what's wrong?

A. I'm glad you asked because I am having the same trouble with my miniature African violets. Readers, help!

Article claims Oswalds planned to shoot Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Harvey Oswald planned to shoot Richard Nixon in Dallas seven months before the assassination of President John F. Kennedy but was stopped by his wife, Marina, according to an article in the current issue of Ladies Home Journal.

In a copyright excerpt from Priscilla Johnson McMillan's book "Marina and Lee," Marina Oswald Potter is quoted as saying Oswald was angered by a speech Nixon made in Washington on April 20, 1963, attacking Cuban leader Fidel Castro and calling for the ouster of the Soviets from Cuba.

After reading accounts of the speech the next day, she said, Oswald, who was slain by Jack Ruby in the basement of the Dallas police station after being arrested for Kennedy's killing, said a pistol in his pocket and put: "Nixon is coming to town. I am going to have a look."

Mrs. Lois M. Simon of 604 Jupiter, Pampa, and Mr. E.J. Simon of Germantown, Tenn. recently announced the engagement of their daughter, Cynthia Ann, to David Markham Clark of Amarillo. The wedding will take place at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Canyon Hills Church of Christ in Canyon.

Training program for CBers studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government advisory group is considering a standardized training program aimed at teen-agers that it hopes would improve Citizens Band radio communications.

The program would be designed for youths because they are more accessible, not because they are considered the most frequent violators of CB rules.

Although a CB license applicant must certify he has a copy of Federal Communications Commission regulations, no test of his knowledge is required.

Indeed, some CBers wonder whether the rules are even read.

But Arlan VanDoorn, deputy chief of the FCC's Safety and Special Radio Services Bureau, reports "a lot of demand for an official FCC educational package" including one that could be combined with high school driver education programs.

A task force of the FCC's Personal User Radio Advisory Committee — PURAC — has come up with just such a program, "designed, focused and directed toward teaching young people."

"These people, for the most part, do not have outside responsibilities and are attending school full time," says the task force report submitted PURAC consideration next month.

Therefore, if educational credits were offered for a CB training course, these people would be much more likely than their elders to take it.

If accepted by PURAC, the report, would be submitted for FCC consideration.

The report says older persons, "trying to make a living and/or raise a family ... have little time or incentive to attend classes for any type of CB course."

"We do not believe," it continues, "anyone or any organization can entice the general nonschool-going public to attend a school on any subject."

The average CBER already

"Single" is instant bestseller

Being alone is no tragedy

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Harriet Frank Jr. has not been single for 30 years. But her first novel, "Single," has been scooped up by a prestige publisher, book club and paperback house at prices that make a presold winner.

"I feel modern literature has slighted the single woman," says Ms. Frank, a top Hollywood screenwriter who turned to the novel for her 1970s story of women alone.

"There are books about weepers and waiters. I wanted to write a book about women who have a strong grasp on life." "Fear of Flying is fine," she says. "But what about the women who are doers and shakers?"

"Single," published this month with a first printing of 50,000, tells of four lone women playing out personal crises against the backdrop of a California seaside singles apartment complex.

"If you cast a wide net over any place where people live, you'd turn up an odd bunch of fish," Ms. Frank, who prefers that designation, declares.

Her women, she concedes, are not everyday girls-next-door. They are:

— Nell, a successful doctor whose cool detachment makes her love affairs temporary.

— Stella, a slovenly alcoholic poet who curses her benefactors while proclaiming her own brilliance.

— Hortense, a tough, black schoolteacher whose acid tongue burns her pupils, friends and two-timing boyfriend.

— Eunice, a sexually promiscuous movie studio secretary who retains a childlike optimism through affairs, abortions and abandonments.

There are traces of Ms. Frank in her characters. "Like Hortense, I'm naturally acerbic," she says, then grins: "Like Stella, I'm full of myself."

Despite some leftover movie stereotypes — the blowsy-blonde-with-a-heart-of-gold — Ms. Frank says her novel, heavily spiced with sex, could not have been written 20 years ago.

"We're beginning to take a cooler look at women's place in society," she says. "Now women can make choices about careers and success ..."

"I'm trying to say that you can survive success if you have a strong sense of yourself. That doesn't necessarily require love and marriage."

"To be single," says the author, "is not to be a burden. It just means you're alone and it needn't be a tragedy to be alone."

However, in the next breath, Harriet Frank Jr., also known as Mrs. Irving Ravetch, cheerfully contradicts her own thesis.

"I've been happily married for 30 years," she says. "I think the married state is the best that life can offer. ... I think quite naturally women have a strong desire to love and be loved. ... I think the pairing instinct is a strong one, a good one."

"If you like yourself, you'll have good company and wind up with a man as well," she declares.

What about women's lib? "I believe in Women's lib," says Ms. Frank. "But I would wish there wasn't that faint edge of hostility toward men. I like men. We have a common cause. I don't want my near and dear left out in the cold."

Her own liberation arrived before the movement, Ms. Frank says, explaining: "I was born to a liberated woman."

Seated in the antique-filled living room of her hilltop home, she remembered her mother, Harriet Frank, story editor at MGM studios for many years.

"She raised her kids, ironed the shirts, did the cooking and sold Louis B. Mayer on the idea of making 'War and Peace,'" says Ms. Frank.

"My grandmother broke sod in South Dakota. They were tough women." As a result, she says, "I was goal-oriented all my life."

Born in Portland, Ore., and raised in Los Angeles, she graduated from UCLA and received her first MGM screenwriting job "through nepotism."

"I used clout, which I recommend to everyone. Once you're there you have to prove yourself, but when you have an opportunity, take it."

At MGM, she met her husband, Irving Ravetch. They became permanent collaborators on a series of successful screenplays: "The Long Hot Summer," "Dark At the Top of the Stairs," "Home From the Hill," "The Reivers," "Hud" and more.

Her first novel offered a chance to work solo. "I'm very fond of film. But it's a highly collaborative medium," she says. "In a book, you can create your own landscape, your own world."

"She has no doubts that 'Single' will succeed and is already planning to write the screenplay."

"I think the book has something to say to young women and middle-aged women," says Ms. Frank. "and the old are too wise to have anything said to them."

Utah home has lawn for roof

By BOB KUESTERMAN
Associated Press Writer

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Most people cover their lots, or portions of their lots, with their homes. Paul Isaacson covered his solar-powered home with a lot, along with two concentric plastic bubbles.

Isaacson, a draftsman with no experience in designing or building homes, decided several years ago he wanted to live underground.

Four and one-half years ago he completed the design, and after battling building inspectors, contractors and financing agencies who said it couldn't be done, he built it.

Isaacson, his wife and seven children have lived underground since March.

The inner dome is over a 20-foot-diameter solarium, the central part of the house. Between the domes will be a garden — with citrus trees and a dichondra lawn — and steps leading to living quarters below.

The underground solarium is encircled by six rooms: three bedrooms, living room, kitchen and bathroom. The entire structure underground is a circle 50 feet in diameter.

"This gets away from claustrophobia. From the master bedroom you can see a mountain ridge. The glass is tinted to keep the sun from dan-ging the carpet," Isaacson said.

The house, including the walls between the rooms, is steel-reinforced concrete, covered with cold tar. "I don't know how many tons of steel are in it. It took a lot to satisfy the inspectors," he said.

The solar collectors are cone-shaped devices mounted on the inside of the outer dome and pointed southward. Are they cone-shaped because that's the most efficient model for collecting heat?

"No, because they are cheap," Isaacson said. "They're just Dixie cups painted black, or they can be green or some other color."

"People get caught up in efficiency," he went on. "Most solar collection systems cost $7-$10 per square foot. Mine will be 200 square feet and cost about $2.50-$3 per square foot," he said.

A blower on his electric furnace will circulate air among the cones, then put the heated air into a hole filled with rocks. The rocks will store the heat up to five days, he said.

From the chamber of rocks the air goes into the furnace and out through seven ducts to the seven rooms.

The temperature in each room is monitored separately by a small computer, and each room is heated separately. The computer decides the best source for heating: dome, collector, rock chamber or — as a last resort — the furnace.

The temperature underground never falls below 57. Isaacson figures that even with-

What's up in ex-wallflowers

If you occasionally felt unhappy, unloved or otherwise unhappy during your teen years, you were in good company. According to the soon to be published Good Housekeeping Woman's Almanac, these seven successful women considered themselves adolescent wallflowers:

Sophia Loren, actress
Helen Gurley Brown, editor of Cosmopolitan magazine and author of "Sex and The Single Girl"

Lauren Hutton, model
Joan Baez, singer and anti-war activist

Betty Friedan, feminist and author of "The Feminine Mystique"

Joan Rivers, comedienne

Loren: ex-giraffe

Barbra Streisand, singer and actress.

The statuesque Loren, in fact, was so skinny at age 15 that she claims she looked like a giraffe. When she first met her future mentor-husband Carlo Ponti, he flatly predicted "she had no future in movies."

The Lighter Side

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — If the British royal family ever falls on hard times, maybe it can just drill an oil well in the back yard.

A geological consultant said Monday that Windsor Castle, historical summer home of English royalty, may be sitting on oil and gas reserves.

Allen P. Bennison visited the area recently and studied at the British Geological Museum. He based his assessment on surface geological studies.

But the 59-year-old scientist acknowledges that one just doesn't go around poking holes in the royal turf.

"Intrusion with a drilling rig in such a historic area is the obvious reason for not drilling the Windsor Dome," is the way he put it.

Bennison said, however, that a "slant-hole" could be drilled from the bank of the nearby Thames River that would not disturb the castle grounds.

FREMONT, Ohio (AP) — Like it or not, lawyer Henry G. Stahl and his son are in the garbage business for the next three years.

But Stahl says it beats shelling out $150,000 he pledged to guarantee the work of the regular garbage collection firm, which went broke because of labor problems.

"I tried to help a man out," Stahl said. "I bonded him because the city required it and he couldn't get a bond from anyone else."

"We've only gotten two (complaint) calls since we took over," said Stahl. "Out of about 5,000 people, that's pretty good."

The Stahls don't actually pick up the garbage themselves, but supervise a crew of men they hired.

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — The Associated Press incorrectly reported Saturday that Wilburn Wilkerson recently took the microphone during a devotional service to announce he was looking for a wife, and that when he asked for volunteers, Leona Galle light-heartedly raised her hand.

Mrs. Galle, 74, a senior aide at the West Gulfport Day Care Center for Elderly, and Wilkerson, 84, will be married there today. (Tuesday) Wilkerson has participated in the center program for several months.

Mrs. Galle said part of her responsibility as an aide is to visit with program participants, but "it was a week or more after he arrived before I had a chance to talk with him. Later we became friends and it was quite a while before he proposed."

DANIELSON, Conn. (AP) — "Sweet Pie," a local entertainer who sings off-color ballads while wearing a G-string, apparently hit a sour note with some of his audience. They had him arrested.

"Sweet Pie," whose real name is Paul A. Weiner, was charged with breaching the peace over the weekend after he jumped off the stage and directed some of his lewd lyrics at a table of patrons at AL's II. Trooper Donald Chandler said.

The patrons felt harassed and called police, who said they stopped "Sweet Pie's" act, made him change clothes and booked him.

Weiner, 33, of Andover Mass., was then released. He put his G-string back on and finished his act "the proper way... on a stage," Chandler said.

DENVER (AP) — Trans World Airlines has the go-ahead to begin nonstop flights between Denver and London, but there's a hitch — the wide-bodied Boeing 747 often used on such long flights can't make it from Denver to London.

The problem came to light after the Civil Aeronautics Board granted TWA the route last week.

A man who identified himself as a 747 flight crew member from a competing airline pointed out to reporters that a non-stop flight from Denver to London would be impossible for a 747.

Denver's mile-high atmosphere is too thin to permit a 747 loaded for an intercontinental flight to get off the ground.

TWA official Jerry Cosley, contacted about the report, admitted after some research that the caller's information was accurate. He said the 747 could fly from London to Denver with a full load, however.

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman serving a 10-year prison sentence says she will testify today in the trial of a $7.6 million civil lawsuit after earlier refusing to do so on three previous occasions.

Marcia McKittrick was sentenced to six months in jail Monday by State District Judge Arthur Leshar for refusal to answer questions in the suit resulting from the 1972 shooting death of prominent Houston plastic surgeon Dr. John Hill.

The son, widow and mother of the slain doctor are suing millionaire oilman Ash Robinson, alleging Robinson masterminded the slaying of Hill in revenge for the death of Robinson's daughter.

Hill was shot to death at his fashionable River Oaks home as he returned from a trip.

At the time of his death, Hill was awaiting trial on charges he killed his first wife, Joan Robinson Hill, through medical neglect in 1969.

No criminal charges have been filed against Robinson, 79, and he denies the allegations by Robert Hill, 17, Connie Hill, 37, and Myra Hill, 75.

Miss McKittrick did tell the seven-man, five-woman panel that the reason she would not testify was because she feared for her life and her 12-year-old son.

Leshar told Miss McKittrick, convicted of driving the getaway car in the Hill slaying, that if she did not testify he would add the contempt sentence to her regular prison term.

Later in an interview with the Houston Post, she said she would testify if called again.

Out of the presence of the jury she told Leshar she did not know what could be done to protect her son.

"They have me in protective custody (the county jail) yet I've been asked to testify against the man who I know has less concern for human life than I do for insects," she said.

Robinson sat across the courtroom, sober-faced and unmoved.

In the interview with the Post, Miss McKittrick said there was another person present who had an effect on her.

She said she was no longer afraid of what would happen to her.

"I've done over four calendar years," she said in the interview. "Do you really think six months does that much to me? I imagine they (prison officials) will put me in isolation for a year or a year and a half now for my protection, but I don't care. When I saw him (Robert) today I wanted to go ahead and testify but I was too emotionally upset to have undergone the questioning."

A court reporter read into the record of the trial last week testimony Miss McKittrick gave in the 1975 trial of Lilla Paulus, convicted as an accomplice in the Hill slaying and assessed a 35-year sentence.

At that time she testified she saw Mrs. Paulus at Robinson's home and that Mrs. Paulus told her Robinson wanted Hill dead. She also testified that Robinson paid Mrs. Paulus to hire someone to kill Hill.

Robinson has testified he never knew Miss McKittrick and knew Mrs. Paulus only casually.

A third person charged in the Hill slaying, Bobby Vandiver, the alleged triggerman, was shot to death by a policeman before going on trial.

Blanton vetoes death law

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee's Gov. Ray Blanton, who vetoed the state's death penalty law, has drawn the ire of some politicians and newspapers by promising to pardon a man convicted of double murder who works as a photographer for the state.

The focus of the controversy is Roger Humphreys, 30, son of the Democratic governor's patronage chief in Johnson City. Humphreys was convicted of second-degree murder for killing his ex-wife and her lover in 1973.

Blanton says Humphreys, a trusty serving 20 to 40 years in the state prison at Nashville, has been rehabilitated and Blanton has promised to pardon him before the end of his term as governor in 1979. Humphreys would be eligible for parole in 1984.

Humphreys works by day as a photographer for the state

Tourism Department at $100 a week, and spends his nights in a rehabilitation center at the main prison. He uses a state car for assignments, and last month the Secret Service, on the recommendation of Blanton's press secretary, cleared him to cover a visit by Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere.

Before winning trusty status, Humphreys spent about four years in prison, including 575 days in a Johnson City jail awaiting trial and the outcome of appeals.

Blanton's promise to pardon Humphreys came during a television interview Thursday night. "Everything I do is political," he said at the time.

The Jackson Sun has called for Blanton's impeachment. The Memphis Commercial Appeal has called the first-term governor, who under the state constitution is not permitted to succeed himself, "a hillbilly version of Richard Nixon."

Former Gov. Winfield Dunn, a Republican whom Blanton succeeded in the statehouse, said he thinks Blanton's promise of a pardon "has gone beyond the point of abuse."

'Mr. Eversharp' dies at 83

MCKINNEY, Tex. (AP) — Tom Emerson, who helped launch the ballpoint pen on its way to acceptance through advertising gimmicks in the 1940s, died Monday in this North Central Texas city. He was 83.

Emerson, a high school dropout, was national sales manager for Eversharp Co. when some of the first ball point pens were marketed.

He devised demonstrations of the pen's ability to write in any condition by showing that they would not leak even while being used in an airplane.

Emerson, who was nicknamed "Mr. Eversharp," was a native of McKinney.

Sons 'not grateful'

HOUSTON (AP) — Testimony read in probate court says two adopted sons of Candace Mossler showed no gratitude toward the late millionaire for adopting them.

Daniel Mossler, 26, and Christopher Mossler, 25, two adopted sons are contesting a 1975 amendment to Mrs. Mossler's will which disinherits them.

The testimony was included Monday in a sworn statement by Mrs. Mossler's natural son, Norman Johnson.

"They (the adopted sons) went to schools in Europe and Switzerland and traveled in Egypt and Greece... (she) did everything in the world for them and they turned around and spit in her face," the statement said.

Mrs. Mossler's 1968 will left her estate, estimated at $12 million to $15 million, equally divided among six children. The 1975 amendment disinherited three adopted children. Martha Mossler Meredith, another adopted child who was disinherited, did not contest the supplement.

The Perseids is a spectacular annual meteor shower that occurs each August. In 1921, observers saw up to 250 flashes per hour at the height of the shower, but 50 flashes is said to be average. The shower is named for the constellation Perseus, from which the meteors appear to originate.

Armstrong says time in space 'strange'

CINCINNATI (AP) — Former Astronaut Neil Armstrong has given an accountants convention a whimsical dissertation on science fiction and time theories.

The first man to walk on the moon told 2,000 delegates of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants of his lifelong fascination with science fiction.

Armstrong, now an aeronautics professor at the University of Cincinnati, said he was always fascinated with stories of time machines. Time, he said, was a bit of a problem on space flights.

"In the early days of space flights, we were a bit confused about the definition of a day," he said.

Flight around earth made for 45-minute days and 45-minute nights. Travel to the moon

"was even more strange" since daylight was constant for three days and nights. Time was told by looking back at Earth.

"So, as the earth turned, Houston would emerge into daylight and we knew it was dawn. When it went into darkness, we knew it was dusk. Bangkok, Thailand was the reference point on the opposite side," he said.

In an Apollo 11 experiment with mirrors, time was used to compute the distance from lunar station to points on Earth.

"My job was to place these mirrors on the lunar surface," he said, adding that 100 mirrors were supposed to reflect laser beams and determine distance within 11 inches.

Armstrong said the same principal could be used to determine shift of continents. He said the distance between the continents could be computed via the lunar mirrors. The test of the "continental drift theory" could be measured periodically and perhaps earthquakes might be predicted.

Armstrong discussed 19th century French novels about time and space and quoted Jonathan Swift about man being the only animal to challenge nature.

On May 31, 1880, a flood claimed the lives of 2,200 persons in Johnstown, Pa.

Dallas 4-Her places first in dress revue

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — Kyle Dundon of Dallas won first place in the statewide division of the 1977 state 4-H Dress Revue here last weekend.

Kim Diederichsen of Dumas was wool division winner and statewide runner-up.

Theresa Drabek of Crowell was wool division runner-up, and Beri Burleson of Hughes Springs was statewide third-place winner.

In the cotton division, Paula Wood of Belton won first place, and Carolyn Lindsey of Jacksboro was runner-up.

Miss Dundon, as the statewide winner, will represent Texas at the National Dress Revue in Chicago, during November.

She is a Tarleton State University sophomore.

To win this year's Dress Revue, she made an evening gown of chantilly lace.

Finalists in the statewide contest include: Kay Coffee of Wellington, Bari Davis of Victoria, Shanna Igo of Plainview, Donna Loden of Pearl, Velma Montalvo of Santa Elena and Betty Sue Vierus of Brenham.

Diabetes strikes national favorites

EDITOR'S NOTE — Diabetes knows no national boundaries, but a worldwide study about to reach fruition indicates that its frequency and its effects differ from country to country. The logical question the World Health Organization study hopes to answer is "why."

By GIL BROYLES
Associated Press Writer
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Why is there a higher incidence of diabetes among villagers in East Pakistan?

Why are Japanese spared some tragic complications of the disease?

Pursuing answers to these questions, and raising others, is the aim of a worldwide study which culminates its first phase Oct. 1 with a meeting in Geneva.

The multi-national endeavor is coordinated by the World Health Organization of the United Nations. Scientists will gather to review the results of a three year international study and plan further work on the disease which knows no national boundaries.

Dr. Kelly West, clinical professor of medicine at the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center, is a member of the planning panel of the study and planning chairman of the International Diabetes Federation.

"It could be that the standard diet of diabetes is not well conceived," he says. "Carbohydrates may not be bad for diabetics. But the study suggests that certain old truths will hold up well. For instance, fat diabetics should reduce their calories."

Diabetes, characterized by insulin deficiency and excess sugar in the blood, affects 10 million Americans and causes 300,000 deaths in this country each year, according to the American Diabetes Association (ADA).

The only U.S. group in the study is Oklahoma Indians, selected because of their high incidence of diabetes and because tribal rolls are available.

The study is focusing on diabetics' susceptibility to blindness, heart attack and other coronary disorders, kidney failure and gangrene of the foot leading to amputation.

"We are finding that differences among societies are greater than had been thought," West says.

For instance, studies show that the incidence of diabetes among some American Indian tribes is 20 times greater than that of the population in East Pakistan.

One goal of the multi-national effort is to resolve the old scientific argument of how much "genetic and environmental" influences lead to frequency of diabetes.

"If we could reduce amputations because of diabetes from 30,000 to 20,000 a year, that's 10,000 people who wouldn't have to have a leg cut off."

West says that international studies such as this usually are "bureaucratically cumbersome" and almost impossible to include both capitalistic and communist countries. But he says the WHO study is a "happy exception."

Among places where studies are underway are Havana, Moscow, Poland, East Berlin, New Delhi, London and Hong Kong.

West adds that he expects the study to be just a beginning, regardless of the results.

Beware: vet benefits

Sylvia Porter

(Second of three columns)
Since the Veterans Administration was established in 1930, our system of veterans assistance has expanded into the most comprehensive in the entire world. Millions of you, though, are in danger of forfeiting valuable rights that are irrevocable because you don't realize there is a benefits timetable and if you don't act to protect yourselves on time, you'll be out of luck.

You must count from the day of your discharge — and ACT!

— You have 60 days in which to appeal to a VA "statement of case" denying individual benefits. Your appeal should be made either to a regional VA office or VA headquarters in Washington.

— You have 90 days in which to apply to a former employer for reemployment.

— You have 120 days in which to apply to retain your insurance protection without examination by converting your servicemen's group life insurance to an individual policy.

— You have one year from the date of the latest VA decision that your disability was service-connected to obtain GI life insurance and one year in which to file for dental treatment provided by the VA. This time limit does not apply for veterans with dental disabilities resulting from combat wounds or service injuries.

— You have a limited time in which to file for unemployment compensation. Apply immediately after separation at your state employment office. Benefits and payment periods vary among states.

— You have three years in which to apply for adjustment of military records to correct an error or injustice; to appeal to the Board of Correction of Military Records with reference to a "bad paper" issued under sentence of a General Court Martial.

— You have nine years to complete vocational rehabilitation except in certain cases of serious disability or delay in establishing eligibility.

— You have 10 years to complete your education under the GI bill. You must start in time to finish within 10 years.

— You have 15 years in which to apply for review of a type of discharge.

There are no time limits on the following benefits:

— GI loans for purchase of a house, mobile home or condominium (see tomorrow's column).

— Disability compensation paid by VA. Payments are made from date of separation if you file your claim within one year from separation. Apply at any VA office.

— Medical care. The VA provides hospital care covering the full range of medical services. Outpatient treatment is available for all service-connected conditions. Drug treatment is available if you need this. Apply at any VA office or hospital.

— Employment assistance, in finding jobs in private industry, federal or local government.

— Nor is there any time limit to convert your term insurance and to apply for an exemplary rehabilitation certificate. You must, though, demonstrate a good record for at least three consecutive years from any date of release from active duty. You can get a valuable new pamphlet — "Out of the Service and Looking for a Job? Here's Help!" — prepared by the Labor Department's Employment & Training Administration and available at your state employment service. Look in your phone book under such entries as your state's Department of Labor, Employment Division.

Even though you are not a member, you can request information from any congressionally chartered veterans organization (American Legion, AMVETS, etc.) Also check with your state employment service and the nearest Veterans Administration, the Employment & Training Administration, U.S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20213; any of 10 offices of the Regional Administrators for Employment & Training.

Helpful booklets include: "Facts About Veterans" and "The Right Job: A Labor Department Guide for Returning Veterans," available from Labor - Management Services Administration, U.S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20216; "Jobs for Veterans with Disabilities" (R and D Monograph No. 41), available from the Employment & Training Administration, Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20213; "Merchandizing Your Job Talents" and "The Employment Service," also available from the Employment & Training Administration.

Tomorrow: Getting your veterans benefits.

Icebreaker drydocked

By LES BLUMENTHAL

Associated Press Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — Many joined the Coast Guard to see the world. Instead, the crew members of the $52 million icebreaker Polar Star have spent more than a year gazing at the backside of a warehouse while tied to a dock in Seattle.

"Clean or not clean, you clean it," said Seaman Craig Barnes, 21, of Eugene, Ore. "The whole ship has been repainted, some parts more than once."

The Polar Star, the United States' largest icebreaker, was tied to a dock from July 1976 until last week with propeller problems. The Star's sister ship, the Polar Sea, has been tied to the same dock since March with similar propeller problems.

Now in drydock, the Coast Guard hopes the Polar Star will be ready to weigh anchor and start cracking ice in November. All of the crew works on the ship during the day and at night one fourth of the crew is on board.

"A ship of this size and this complexity requires an elaborate maintenance and training program," said Capt. Robert Smith, who took command of the ship in June.

Hailed as the most powerful and sophisticated conventional icebreaker afloat, the Polar Star has suffered sinking fortunes since it was commissioned in January 1975. The vessel ran aground two days after commissioning and constant mechanical malfunctions allowed it to be at sea only six days out of the first three months in service.

Five months after commissioning, the Polar Star headed north for ice trials, during which the propeller problems were discovered. Two of the ship's driveshafts malfunctioned and it limped back to Seattle under escort.

With the shafts removed, the Polar Star has sat at dockside since July 1976.

"By no stretch of the imagination do we have a lemon," insists Smith. "Compared to past icebreakers, she's incredibly better. Up north, what she went through would have stopped another icebreaker cold."

Nevertheless some of the sailors have rented apartments, bought homes and set up all but permanent residence in Seattle with their families.

"It's almost like shore duty for most of them," said Chief Petty Officer Gary Moore, 28, of San Antonio, Tex. "It's kind of embarrassing sitting at the dock and hard to justify our jobs," he said.

Starts on new housing are expected to reach 2 million units in 1977, according to the Mortgage Bankers Association of America. This includes 1.5 million single-family homes.

Wolverines maintain top spot

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
Despite Coach Bo Schlemm's plea to newsmen to "do me a favor and vote us out of first place," the Michigan Wolverines are still college football's No. 1 team.

Michigan and Southern California held onto the top spots in Monday's Associated Press college football poll while Oklahoma and Ohio State, who tangled Saturday in Columbus, Ohio, moved into the 3-4 positions, replacing Notre Dame and Alabama.

than expected in beating Duke 21-9, evoking the following comment from Schlemm: "I hope you fellows do me a favor and vote us out of first place. I'd really appreciate that."

Nevertheless, the Wolverines received 42 of 64 first-place votes and 1,094 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Five first-place votes and 1,032 points went to Southern California, which beat Oregon State 17-10.

Oklahoma, the preseason leader, had dropped to fifth in the first regular-season poll last week by edging Vanderbilt 25-23 but jumped back to third with seven first-place votes and 955 points by crushing Utah 62-24. Meanwhile, Ohio State leaped from sixth to fourth with two first-place votes and 877 points by trouncing Minnesota 38-7.

Penn State, a 31-14 winner over Houston, jumped from 10th to fifth with five first-place ballots and 717 points while the losers slipped out of the Top Ten, from ninth to 19th.

In rising to fifth, Penn State edged past Texas A&M, which defeated Virginia Tech 27-6 and went from seventh to sixth with 708 points, and Texas Tech, up from eighth to seventh with two first-place votes and 631 points after trouncing New Mexico 49-14.

Colorado, which buried Kent State 42-0, joined the Top Ten, going from 12th to eighth with 435 points. Texas flattened Virginia 68-0 and also cracked the Top Ten, vaulting from 18th to ninth. The Longhorns earned the remaining first-place vote and 287 points.

Alabama sank from fourth to 10th by losing to Nebraska 31-24, but the triumph enabled the Cornhuskers to move back into the Top Twenty. They are in 14th place.

Notre Dame fell from third to 11th by losing to Mississippi 20-13. Completing the Second Ten behind the Irish are Mississippi

State, Florida, Nebraska, Washington State, Arkansas, West Virginia, UCLA, Houston and Brigham Young.

Steelers run past 49ers

By GARY MIHOCS
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The television viewers who saw Franco Harris outgain the whole San Francisco 49er offense had to include some of the guys who will be here next Sunday — the Oakland Raiders.

"Oakland is heralded to be the best football team in the NFL," Harris said Monday night after he and a totally dominant Pittsburgh Steeler defense combined to crush San Francisco 27-0.

"So here we are playing the best team in the NFL," Harris added.

"And I don't think we are second to anybody, so something has to give." The Steelers did little giving at all Monday night, yielding 101 net offensive yards — 82 by the run and 19 by the pass.

Harris, who scored a pair of Steeler touchdowns, rushed for 100 yards himself and added nine more on a pass reception.

"I've always scored points in my career, always," lamented 49er quarterback Jim Plunkett who hit three of 13 passes for 30 yards, all of which were erased by Steeler sacks for minus 30 yards.

"We couldn't pass. We couldn't rush," said new 49er Coach Ken Meyer, whose team scored just three points in its last three preseason games.

"But I don't think many people are going to move the ball up and down the field on Pittsburgh."

Oakland did just that against the Steelers in the AFC title game last season and the victory helped the Raiders to the Super Bowl title that belonged to Pittsburgh the previous two years.

Harris gave Pittsburgh all the punts they needed against San Francisco in the second period when he broke two arm tackles and ran 14 yards for a touchdown.

Roy Gerela added a 49-yard field goal to give the Steelers a 10-0 half time edge, and he added a 47-yard scoring kick that made it 13-0 in the third period.

In the last quarter, Harris ran seven yards for another touchdown and quarterback Terry Bradshaw hit John Stallworth with a 15-yard scoring pass.

"Their defense was tough and physical. They gave us a beating," Harris said after the best opening game of his career.

"But they just got let down by their offense," he added.

The 49ers did not cross midfield in the first half. They visited Steeler territory only three times in the second half, once via a Harris fumble.

Pampa's Rudy Roland

By TOM KENSLEY
Pampa News Sports Editor
Rudy Roland is getting tired of people talking about his size.

So what if the Pampa speedster is probably the smallest (5-5, 124) running back in Texas 4-A football. Like the commercial says, it's performance that counts. And perform he did. Against a touted Perryton team, Roland gained 84 yards in 13 carries, breaking one burst for 12 yards and the first Pampa touchdown in seven quarters.

His statistics were accumulated with a sore ankle which was bruised in the second quarter of the Hereford game. If his performance against the Rangers is any indication, the junior halfback may become another, in a long series of, outstanding Harvester rushers despite his diminutive size.

"I think my size is more of an asset," said Roland. "My size gives me quickness, and they've always needed my speed on the teams that I've played with."

Pampa coach John Welborn has no qualms about using Roland in tough situations.

"Of course you'd like to have a kid whose 6-2, 215, but you don't always have those kids."

"Rudy can hit the holes quicker than most backs, and can get through places that other people can't."

Unlike most small speed backs, Roland has been known to punish some defensive backs. Playing with the fortitude of backs 60 pounds heavier, Roland fights for extra yardage, and almost always falls forward when hit.

It may be hard for Welborn to convince opposing coaches that his compact ball carrier is a rugged runner, but he is firm in his conviction.

"Rudy is actually a tough runner," the Pampa coach said. "He doesn't mind trying to run over those defensive backs. And he's one of our better blockers."

Part of Roland's aggressiveness may come from his background as a cornerback. He played defense beginning in the Optimist Tiger League, and through eighth and ninth grade until being converted to offense as a sophomore.

He's never lost that love for the cornerback spot. "I would rather play defense, because I like it instead of always getting hit."

But unless coach Welborn can find another runner with that break-away speed and scoring potential, you'll probably see "the short kid" in the Harvester backfield for many games to come.

Booming Dodgers eye homerun mark

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers' pennant-clinching party has been moved to the visitors' clubhouse at Candlestick Park.

"It's inevitable," said third baseman Ron Cey as the Dodgers headed into tonight's game with the San Francisco Giants needing just one more victory — or a loss by the Cincinnati Reds — to clinch the National League's Western Division title.

They will be facing the Giants' Ed Halicki, 14-11, who is always tough on them. But they'll go with 18-game winner Tommy John in the opener of the two-game series at Candlestick, a ballpark which has been very good to them this season.

The Dodgers are unbeaten in seven games here. On the last visit, Cey totaled 11 hits and 10 runs batted in over four games. "It's a shame we couldn't win at home," Manager Tom Lasorda said after the Dodgers' 2-0 win at Atlanta Sunday.

There were 32,200 fans at Dodger Stadium hoping to help the team celebrate the clinching of the division crown. The fourth-place Giants had cooperated by beating the defending world champion Reds, who moved on to San Diego where they begin a series tonight 11½ games behind the leading Dodgers.

The Reds, despite the acquisition of pitcher Tom Seaver during the season, were never able to seriously challenge the Dgot off to a 17-3 start in April under their new manager and had few bad spells over the summer.

Bosox back in pennant race

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The Boston Red Sox may have gotten themselves back in the American League East pennant race with a 6-3 victory over the first-place Yankees. But few of the participants were dwelling on Monday's game.

"We've got to win tomorrow night," Boston catcher Carlton Fisk said after his three-run homer in the third inning powered the Red Sox within 3½ games of New York and into a tie for second place with Baltimore. "Pretty soon you run out of tomorrow's."

"If we win tomorrow night, it's going to be an interesting 11 days after that," added Boston manager Don Zimmer.

And Yankees manager Billy Martin chipped in by saying, "I'll be very satisfied if we win tomorrow night. A split is all we need here."

Reggie Cleveland hurled a seven-hitter and received support from Carl Yastrzemski, who smashed his 20th homer in the eighth inning after New York had moved within 4-3 on Dave Kingman's third home run in three games as a Yankee.

"I got a few breaks and there were some good plays behind me," said Cleveland, 10-8, who pitched eight shutout innings against New York last Wednesday before losing to Reggie Jackson's two-run homer. "I also made some good pitches when I needed them."

"The fifth inning was the key," added Cleveland, who got out of a jam after Craig Nettles and Lou Piniella opened the inning with singles. "In every game, there's a time when you get out of trouble in one inning and you're okay. The fifth was the inning for me."

Thurman Munson also homered for New York. Ed Figueroa, 15-10, took the loss

WHAT'S IN A NAME LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The only horse ever to defeat Native Dancer was Dark Star, the front-running winner of the 1963 Kentucky Derby, who beat The Dancer by a head. Like so many race horses, Dark Star got his name from both his sire and dam. The sire was Royal Gem II, which explains the Star. The dam was Isolde, in legend a beautiful girl. Her lover, Tristan, was wounded in battle and asked a messenger to go for Isolde. He was told to fly a white sail if successful, a dark sail if not. Tristan when told the sail was dark, died.

DON'T RAISE HOOP LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Wooden has been retired for a couple of years as head basketball coach at UCLA but he still has definite ideas about how college basketball should be played. The great coach was asked what he thought about raising the basket a foot or two to cut down on the advantage enjoyed by taller men over shorter ones. "I'm not really for it," he said. "I think taking away of fensive rebound baskets would achieve the same purpose. Raising the basket would only cut down shooting percentages and lead to stalling. Any team that got as much as ten points in front would think it had the game won and would simply go into a stalling act."

BEARS TOP HALL CANTON, Ohio (AP) — The Chicago Bears have not won a National Football League championship since 1963 but they still rule the roost numerically at the Pro Football Hall of Fame here. This year's inductee, running back Gale Sayers, is the 18th ex-Bear to make the Hall. The others, in alphabetical order, are: George Connor, Paddy Driscoll, Dan Fouts, Bill George, Red Grange, George Halas, Ed Healey, Bill Hewitt, Sid Luckman, Link Lyman, George McAfee, Bronko Nagurski, Joe Stydahar, George Trafton and Bulldog Turner.

JACK GATE STAR SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus is easily the top gate attraction in professional golf, a fact proven by the 1977 Pleasant Valley Classic. Ticket sales were well in excess of $50,000 over the 1976 renewal of the tournament. A few days before the tournament began, the phones were ringing non-stop inquiring about tickets and most of the callers asked if it was definite that Nicklaus would play Jack did and finished second to Ray Floyd, beaten one stroke.
