Carter proposes quickie tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fears that the nation's economy may start sinking again next year are behind administration proposals for a quick tax cut in mid-1978 before formal enactment of President Carter's tax reform plan.

That is evident from statements by a number of top government officials in recent weeks, including President Carter, who pledged the administration will take steps to deliver on its promise for vigorous non-inflationary growth in 1978. Concern that the economy may not hit the 5 per cent growth target without additional help has been widespread both in and out of government.

The proposal for a one-shot tax cut, which still only a proposal, was put forward by the Treasury Department with the concurrence of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Although tax cuts also will be a major feature of the President's comprehensive tax reform program, they would not be expected to take effect until Jan. 1, 1979, which could be too late to prevent an economic downturn and a rise in unemployment.

Administration officials are talking of over all tax reductions in the President's comprehensive program of between $15 billion to $20 billion, with about one-third for business and two-thirds for individuals.

The tax reform plan itself is still in the decision-making stage at the White House but the rough outline is now taking shape. The scheduled release date has been pushed back, until the third week in October.

Although final decisions aren't yet made, here is what is known about it so far. Taxes would be decreased for most families with incomes up to $100,000 above which they would be increased.

An example of the reductions would be a cut in the actual average tax rate from 15.9 per cent at present to 12.4 per cent for families with incomes between $20,000 and $30,000, a savings of about $175 for a typical family of four in that income category.

Cuts would be even greater proportionally for families with income under $20,000. From $15,000 to $20,000, the rate would be reduced from 11.2 per cent to 9.6 per cent.

The result of the tax reductions, coupled with the trimming and closing of some tax exemptions, would be to increase to 83 per cent the proportion of taxpayers who use the standard deduction on their tax returns. The percentage is now 75 per cent. — The current range in tax rates of 70 per cent on the highest incomes to 14 per cent on the lowest would be reduced to 50 per cent at the top and 12 per cent at the bottom. The new rates would be phased in over a three-year period.

The change in tax rates would effectively exempt a family of four with income below $9,500 from paying any taxes up from a cutoff of $7,600 now. The highest rates would apply to couples with taxable income above $80,000 and to single persons with incomes above $60,000.

— Taxpayers would get a $250 tax credit for each personal exemption they are now entitled to. This would replace the present $750 per person tax exemption and the general $35 per exemption tax credit. This would tend to reduce taxes for families with incomes below $20,000 and increase them for families above that level.

Tax credits are deducted directly from taxes owed. The exemptions are now deducted from gross income before taxes are figured and do not represent a dollar-for-dollar savings on a tax bill.

— A special deduction would be provided for one member of a working married couple to eliminate the so-called "marriage penalty" which can result in increased taxes for some married couples over what they would pay if they remained single.

— There would be a ceiling of $10,000 on the interest deductions that taxpayers can claim for mortgages, loans and consumer credit.

— Deductions for sales taxes, personal property taxes and gasoline taxes would be disallowed. — Currently allowed deductions for medical expenses, drugs and property damage would be rearranged and allowable only to the extent the cumulative total exceeded 10 per cent of a taxpayer's adjusted gross income.

— Deductions for business entertainment expenses of a recreational nature, such as sporting events, would be disallowed and only half of the cost of business meals could be claimed.

— There would be a phased lowering of the current 50 per cent exemption of profits on capital gains for individuals.

— The corporate tax rate would be dropped to 46 per cent from the present 48 1/2 per cent on profits above $50,000.

Energy filibuster continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd pledged Saturday the Senate will take a conclusive vote on natural gas pricing no matter how long it takes to end a filibuster on the issue.

As the Senate held its second consecutive Saturday session, Byrd conceded that supporters of lifting federal natural gas controls have the votes to win. But he predicted that federal controls still will be in effect when Congress completes work on the critical portion of President Carter's energy bill, although he said producers will be permitted to charge higher prices.

The Senate is tired of this filibuster, said Byrd, predicting that a conclusive vote is likely by Tuesday. He said the prediction, leaders of the filibuster refused again Saturday to agree to set a time for a vote to end a fight that is threatening to block passage of the President's entire energy package.

The Senate worked on the natural gas bill for six hours Saturday, then quit after a long series of parliamentary squabbles that did little to end the filibuster.

Some senators have urged that Byrd should withdraw the bill and move on to other matters because militant foes of deregulated natural gas prices appear determined to keep up their filibuster indefinitely. "I won't take the bill down," Byrd said heatedly during an informal weekly meeting with reporters. "You can forget that rumor. We have to have an energy bill."

Among other filibusters during his 19 years in the Senate, the West Virginia Democrat said, "This is the most difficult one I have experienced."

Meanwhile, on the Senate floor, filibuster leaders refused to concede defeat and continued to block a direct vote on the natural gas issue.

Despite a defeat on a key test vote Friday, Sens. Howard Metzenbaum (D-Ohio) and James Abourezk (D-S.D.) said they were prepared to keep the Senate tied up for two more weeks if necessary.

At issue in the protracted battle is whether Congress should end 23 years of price controls over a fuel source which the administration says is running out.

Backers of deregulation say only if producers are allowed to set prices will they earn high enough profits to provide enough incentive to find new reserves.

Deregulation opponents say that while higher price ceilings may be needed, an end to controls would raise home heating costs sharply and give the producers excessive profits. The Senate is considering a deregulation plan that would allow the ceiling to rise from its present $1.46 per thousand cubic feet to about $2.48 for two years, with the lid taken off thereafter.

The administration is supporting a plan for a $2.03 ceiling which would rise with inflation but remain as a cap nonetheless.

When the Senate decides one way or the other, the natural gas bill must go to a House-Senate conference committee. The House has voted a $1.75 lid as originally urged by Carter. Byrd said that while the figure in the final House-Senate bill will be higher than $1.75, deregulation will be rejected.

As he has for the 12 days since the Senate began the frequently emotional natural gas debate, Byrd held meetings off and on all day Saturday, seeking some way out of the parliamentary entanglement which showed no signs of ending.

Although the Senate has voted to shut off debate on the issue, Metzenbaum and Abourezk and their opponents have seized on other Senate rules to block votes on various natural gas options.

Metzenbaum and Abourezk had stacked up about 500 minor amendments which they use as ammunition for continued debate.

The Panama Canal treaty controversy

Case for the treaties

By SOL M. LINOWITZ

Written for The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two new Panama Canal treaties signed by President Carter on Sept. 7 represent the culmination of 13 years of effort. Four American presidents — Democratic and Republican alike — have recognized the seriousness of the Panama Canal issue and why it is in our highest national interest to resolve it in a truly mutually satisfactory way.

As we know all too well, the Panama Canal issue is one which can be emotional, divisive and characterized by misconceptions and misunderstandings. Let me start by pointing out three basic facts about the Panama Canal issue.

First, it is an issue which involves far more than the relationship between the United States and Panama. For it is an issue which affects all United States Latin American relations, since all of the countries of Latin America have joined with Panama in urging a new treaty with the United States.

In the eyes of our Latin American neighbors, the canal runs not just through the center of Panama, but through the center of the Western Hemisphere. And they have, therefore, made common cause on this issue — looking upon our position in the canal as the last vestige of a colonial past which evokes bitter memories and deep animosities.

This year, eight Latin American presidents wrote to President Carter personally, urging that a new treaty arrangement with Panama be concluded. The presence in Washington last month of 26 heads of state and other hemispheric leaders at the treaty signing ceremony bore dramatic witness to their commitment to the new treaty arrangements.

So, in going forward with these new treaties, the United States will find itself in a position to improve relations with virtually all the countries of this hemisphere. By the same token, failure to ratify the treaties would be a grave setback to our relations with all of Latin America.

Second, our primary interest in the canal is and always has been to assure that it remains free, open and neutral on a non-discriminatory basis. The greatest threat to that openness and security would be to try to insist upon retention of the present outmoded treaty of 1903 with its anachronistic provisions — terms which have triggered hostility and violence in the past and can so easily do so again in the future.

If we fail to go forward with the new treaties, we may well find ourselves in the position of having to defend the canal by force against a hostile population and in the face of widespread, if not universal, condemnation.

EDITOR'S NOTE — The debate and Senate decision on ratification of the agreement to yield U.S. control of the Panama Canal in the year 2000 looms as one of the great issues facing Congress.

To spell out the issues behind the struggle, The Associated Press has turned to two of the key men on opposing sides in the debate.

Sol M. Linowitz was co-negotiator of the two canal treaties.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., is a leader of Senate opposition to the treaties.

Third, in the light of these facts clearly the best way to preserve the canal's operation and to assure its permanent neutrality is to substitute for the present treaty one which will be perceived as mutually fair, which properly provides for Panama's just aspirations and which takes into full account our own national needs.

We believe that the new treaties meet this test and afford the most practical means for protecting the very interests we are trying to preserve in the canal — and in a manner which will advance our national security and further our hemispheric objectives.

Against this backdrop, let us now take a look at several of the arguments being advanced against the new treaties and the questions which are being most frequently raised.

One: Won't our defense and security interests be adversely affected?

(See For p. 8)

By SEN. PAUL LAXALT

Written for The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Panama Canal serves an indispensable role in the overall defense policy of the United States and plays a very large role in our economy. In my view, both would be jeopardized by the terms of the proposed canal treaties.

Today, 97 per cent of our naval vessels can transit the canal. Of all the 491 ships in our Navy, only 13 aircraft carriers cannot transit the canal. Since the size of our fleet is today only half as large as just 10 years ago, we need the mobility the canal provides now more than before.

Currently, our contingency plans in the event of a crisis in NATO calls for the movement of 60 Pacific Fleet ships to the Atlantic. We must maintain control of the canal to guarantee priority passage for such ships. In the years ahead, the canal will become more rather than less important as the Navy builds smaller, faster ships.

How important a function the canal provides was revealed during the Cuban missile crisis when 115 naval ships and one Marine division moved east through the canal to face down a Soviet threat. A hostile Panamanian government may inhibit such transit in the future.

As far as the U.S. economy is concerned, the important fact to bear in mind is that 70 per cent of all canal traffic has American ports as either the origin or destination. Moreover, other ships transiting the canal move goods for American subsidiaries overseas. In the future, with the prospect of Alaska oil going to the Gulf and east Coast states, 60,000-ton tankers will probably carry this through the canal.

The U.S. Department of Commerce has estimated that if the canal should close, it would raise the price of American exports by $32 million, probably closing off many of our agricultural markets in Asia, and raise the price of imports by $83 million.

The question of treaty guarantees of the security and neutrality of the canal gets to the core of the problem.

The language cited to substantiate some claim to an American right of intervention after the year 2000 is so ambiguous as to be meaningless. In both Articles I and IV of the treaty, which concern permanent neutrality, and in Articles I and II of the protocol to this treaty, there are allusions to permanent neutrality.

Article II states in its entirety: "The contracting parties agree to observe and respect the regime of permanent neutrality of the canal in time of war as in time of peace, and to ensure that at vessels of their registry strictly observe the applicable rules."

This hardly constitutes an endorsement of the American right to intervene in Panama. In fact, the chief Panamanian negotiator, Escobar Bethancourt, recently contended that no such right exists. In a speech to the National Assembly of Panama, he said that in the course of negotiations, differences arose in what they understood by neutrality and what we understood by neutrality.

Negotiations remained stalled, he said, "until the United States gave up the idea of its guaranteeing the canal's neutrality." Later on he flatly stated: "With the neutrality pact, we are not giving the United States the right of intervention."

Panama's leader, Gen. Omar Torrijos, has agreed with this interpretation. He said in a newspaper interview recently that after Dec. 31, 1990, "the duties and responsibilities will be assumed by our country solely and exclusively."

If the Panamanians do not believe that the United States has the right to intervene to protect the security of the canal and it is not explicitly stated in the treaty, then we

Rights belong to humans

Until not very many years ago — about 1950 to be more precise — it was not possible, because of constitutional restrictions, to do the kind of urban renewing so common today.

The U.S. Constitution forbade the forced sale of private property to a public agency for other than public use. The type of urban renewal program — in which the city purchases private property whether or not the owners want to sell it, for resale to private interests — would not have passed constitutional proscriptions for more than 150 years.

The general term for this protection of the individual's interests is "private property rights."

The rights continue to exist, whether or not the citizen is permitted to enjoy them. The Constitution has not changed, only the justices who interpret it.

In recent years much has been made of "human rights vs. property rights." It has been the rallying cry in San Francisco and elsewhere for those who have sought to prevent eviction of tenants in buildings scheduled to be torn down. After months of protest and court-ordered delay, the San Francisco eviction finally was carried out only a few days ago.

A San Francisco undersheriff who was one of the principals in carrying out the eviction said it presented a "moral dilemma" for him.

In a letter to the San Francisco Chronicle, a San Franciscan responded to the undersheriff's dilemma by analyzing the "property rights versus human rights" theme. That tired cliché, he wrote, "sets up an obviously false dichotomy."

"Of course," explained the writer, "only human beings can possess rights, no one ever asserted otherwise. Property rights is simply a term that refers to the right of every individual to control and dispose of his or her own property, regardless of whether it's a hotel or a home or a book or his own body. Either we have individual rights and control or we have the state monopoly control of fascism and communism."

Property rights, in other words, are human rights.

"The entire hotel caper was simply a case of squatters attempting to legally steal somebody else's hotel through the device of eminent domain, the same device, please note, that was used to destroy so much downtown housing (San Francisco's urban renewal program) in the first place."

"That San Franciscans have to rely on an undersheriff to protect their rights who apparently has moral qualms about doing so is a succinct comment on the state of today's political culture."

"That's telling it like it is, in our opinion. We would add that once the property rights of individual humans are shoved aside, as they have been in the urban renewal fad, the possibilities of anyone retaining his human rights to his property are diminished if not immediately imperiled."

'Phony' exhibit pushes bags

Having ordered installation of the controversial airbags in automobiles at the insistence of the likes of Ralph Nader, the federal government has now mounted a propaganda campaign calculated to convince the public that what "Big Brother" has already ordered will be good for them.

Part of the campaign is a traveling road show put together by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, a federal government agency, for the purpose of showing off the airbag system's good points and allaying public fears.

Congressman Bud Shuster of Pennsylvania, sponsor of a resolution to overturn the airbag order, has labeled the NHTSA road show a "phony" dispersing snake oil instead of facts.

"In an attempt to win public support for the airbag, Shuster charges, government 'zealots are deliberately misleading the public by using an airbag simulator that is substantially different from the airbag you would get in a car. The airbag in the demonstration vehicle inflates in four to five seconds, or about 20 times slower than it would inflate in a production vehicle. Therefore the noise level is also substantially lower, and the startling effect less pronounced than in a real crash situation."

Questioning the appropriateness of federal officials traveling around the country at taxpayer expense to promote a particular point of view,

Shuster went on to charge that the road show demonstration is replete with further distortions, "a phony from start to finish." For instance:

—The airbags the public will pay for in cars cannot be repacked as they are in the road show demonstration. The entire airbag system must be replaced at a cost 2½ to 3 times greater than the factory installation cost.

—The airbag simulator used in the demonstration deflates much slower than the real ones that will be installed in cars, indicating erroneously that protection might be extended for secondary impacts.

—Nitrogen tanks are used to inflate the simulator in the road show, this despite the fact that both the NHTSA and most airbag manufacturers have indicated that future airbags will be detonated with sodium azide, a highly toxic and explosive chemical compound.

Shuster, now joined by 161 other Members of the House in his resolution to overturn the federal airbag order, urges everyone who might see the federal road show "to keep in mind that what they see is not what they'll get if forced to buy an airbag. Rather, they'll get an unproven, costly, high-technology device which may or may not work."

That sounds like good advice to us.

Voice of business Cargo law could cost plenty

By RICHARD L. LESHNER
President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States
What does it take to get consumerists, Common Cause and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce — among others — on the same side of an issue? Well, in this case it takes a plan to subsidize a few American businesses and union members at the expense of the vast majority of American consumers and businesses.

The vehicle for this subsidy is known as the cargo preference bill, or HR 1037. It was launched in early August, by a 315 vote of the House Merchant Marine Committee, with official Carter Administration support.

The bill would require that at least 95 per cent of our oil imports be carried on American-built tankers with American crews. The arguments presented in favor of it are that it would create jobs in the shipping industry and improve our national security.

What's wrong with the idea? It costs more than twice as much to operate an American flag tanker as a foreign flag tanker. A big part of the reason is that an average American flag seaman earns over $24,000 a year, to which the U.S. taxpayer contributes generously in government subsidies.

If American petroleum importers are forced to use high-cost transportation for nearly 10 per cent of our imports, then obviously the price of the fuel derived therefrom will have to go up.

But that's not the end of it. Under the Carter energy plan, domestically produced petroleum would be taxed to bring its cost up to the level of imported petroleum. So, the cargo preference act would actually raise the cost of ALL of our petroleum-related energy and products.

Even the General Accounting Office — an arm of Congress — estimates this legislation would add $610 million a year to our energy costs. Other experts have put the price at well over $1 billion a year.

And for what? The "national security" argument stands up as well as a two-legged stool. (1) The tankers used to transport petroleum commercially are much too big for Defense Department use, as DOD has pointed out on a number of occasions. (2) Foreign flag tankers which are owned or controlled by U.S. companies (which is a lot of them) are still available to the U.S. in an emergency. (3) In case of war the greatest need would not be tankers, but rather, naval vessels to escort them.

Worse yet, a cargo preference law would actually be a threat to national security. It would violate more than 30 trade treaties with other countries and invite retaliation in kind.

Consider what would happen to our security if, for example, the members of the OPEC oil cartel bought their own tankers and insisted that ALL OPEC petroleum be shipped in them.

Consider what would happen to our farmers if the cargo preference concept were extended to our enormous food exports: The cost of our food to the buyer would rise, because of the increased cost of transportation, while the price paid to our farmers would remain the same. Buyers would therefore not buy as much as before — or buy from someone else — so the farmer would have smaller market and less income.

These fears of retaliation are not excessively hypothetical. According to the "Christian Science Monitor," the White House has already received a strong note of protest from 11 of our most important trading partners.

What about the job-creation argument? Somewhere between 2,000 to 3,000 jobs might be created by this bill, either building or operating ships. The Treasury figures the cost-per-job at about $110,000.

Readers with long memories may recall that cargo preference regulations were one of the biggest sources of friction between America and Britain, both before and immediately after the Revolution. Britain, following the Mercantilist economic philosophy of the day, insisted that all trade with the mother country and her colonies be carried in "British bottoms." It didn't work then, and it won't work now.

The word bolshevik comes from bolshevik meaning "members of the majority."

Your Birthday
Oct. 2, 1977
A trip of considerable distance is likely this coming year. It's something you've been hoping to do. The means and time should be available.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Attitude is all-important today, and it's imperative that you, be positive. Permitting self-doubts to creep in could turn you from a winner to a loser.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be generous today, but also be discerning enough to be able to recognize those who play on your sympathy for selfish purposes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In joint ventures it's probable today that your mate or partner will have the better slant on things. Let him be captain.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your greatest rewards today will come from something that appeared to hold the smallest promise. All that glitters is not gold.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll have more fun today participating in activities you're familiar with; rather than doing something untried and questionable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you're entertaining today, keep it simple and don't put on any extra airs. Save the good china for another time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In partnership arrangements today, be sure you pull as a team. If one tends to slack off, it will induce the other to do so as well.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Materially, conditions are a mixed bag today. Profit can be earned from the sweat of your brow, but not through blue-sky speculations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Control of matters personally important to you should not be allowed to slip through your capable hands today. Associates could steer you onto the rocks.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't diminish the luster of your charitable acts today by broadcasting your good deeds. It could embarrass the one you help.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be in a rather gregarious mood today. You'll need to be where the action is. Enjoy yourself, but don't damage your budget.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Strike while the iron is hot. If an opportunity arises today to further your ambitions or career, practical matters must take precedence.

Your Birthday
Oct. 3, 1977
You will make a friend this coming year, one who will be very valuable to you. This person will be older and very well respected in his field and the community at large.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Let what you've learned from past experience serve as your guide today. New methods can be better, but it ain't necessarily so.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're doing business today and things degenerate into too much small talk, find a way to bring them back into perspective.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is something important pending that you've been reluctant to make a final decision on. Procrastinate no longer. Act on it today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Things won't quite come together for you today. You're giving your best efforts, but your short attention span could hold you back.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Although you could be attracted to someone of the opposite sex today, it's a passing fancy. Don't jeopardize a good relationship through a momentary lapse.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Anything you do to beautify your home today should be along lines that you can live with indefinitely. Faddish improvements are boring.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're a bit of a dreamer today until it comes down to push and shove. Your good, old-fashioned horse sense will come to the fore.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't spoil young ones today by lavishing material things upon them. They may be upset if you deny them, but the lesson will be invaluable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If your mate takes a view of a family situation that is a little too Pollyannaish today, inject your realistic approach and straighten it out quickly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A person indebted to you may try to give you a song and dance routine to avoid paying. If you press, you can recover at least a portion today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A friend who is in a financial muddle may want some cash today. You'd be better off showing him how to end his own mess.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Shallow praise won't cut it with the boss today. Good, solid performance will.

Looting apologia

A footnote to the New York City blackout: Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold has released statistics showing that of the 176 looters so far indicted, 48 per cent were in government anti-poverty or educational programs and fewer than 10 per cent were on welfare.

Looting in Brooklyn apparently had little to do with hunger. The idea that destitute persons rob when given the opportunity is an easy fiction. And despite that thought's seeming solidarity with poor people, it in fact patronizes them.

In Brooklyn the poor were admirably well behaved the night the city went dark. In contradiction of Dostoevsky's Grand Inquisitor, they did not have to be fed first in order to be virtuous.

Salt--friend or foe?

EDITOR'S NOTE — It once was used to pay wages, buy slaves, win wars. Without the half-cup or so in his body, man could not survive. But with too much of it, he may not survive, either. Environmentalists say modern man abuses its use and thus threatens vegetation, beast and fowl. Others deny it. Therein lies the great salt controversy.

By JOE WING

For The Associated Press
NEW YORK (AP) — After talk with the president of the Salt Institute, one is apt to accept its assurance that salt is an unlimited natural resource.

Good thing, too. Without salt modern industry and modern man would collapse.

Yet too much salt on food can hurt people, and too much on highways can kill trees, foul water and rust cars. So, conservationists and industrialists have been exchanging a lot of salty words lately.

While describing anything as "unlimited" gives some the jitters, it's different with salt.

Oceans hold enough salt to cover the globe with a layer 112 feet thick, and U.S. reserves have been estimated at 60,000 billion tons — enough for 10 million years at current consumption rates.

But the great salt controversy goes on. Some of the facts:

—Some physicians blame the American salt tooth for causing and aggravating high blood pressure; others caution against self-prescribed salt-free diets.

—Salting the highway to an extent that many Americans unknowingly sop up additional salt; others say the danger of snow-blocked highways outweigh the hazards of salt.

—Proposals for storing oil in hollowed out Gulf Coast salt domes and stashing nuclear waste in old salt mines have resulted in warnings of environmental damage.

America produces and consumes more salt, but only about 5 per cent finds its way to the dinner table.

Early in this decade the practice of salting highways leveled off at around 9 million tons annually. But highway construction has leveled, too. In the last year or two, says William E. Dickenson, president of the Salt Institute in Arlington, Va., salt production has dipped to around 41 million tons, but it's still a third of the world's output.

Mankind exists in a personalized saline solution. If the half cup of salt a body contains were extracted, it is said, it would die in a matter of hours. In medieval times, criminals sometimes were sentenced to death by denial of salt.

Humans must replace salt lost in blood, sweat, tears and urine. They need only, about a thumbful daily, and get a lot of that in natural foods. But, a person with high blood pressure or kidney disease, may be told by a doctor to cut salt down or out.

Dr. Lot Page, chief of medicine at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital in Massachusetts, told an American Heart Association forum: "Salt alone is sufficient to initiate rising blood pressure."

If sodium intake were reduced ... to less than two grams a day beginning in early childhood, it is possible that this vast public health problem would be brought under control in a single generation.

But the Salt Institute says a healthy body maintains a stable saline level no matter how much salt is eaten, and unsupervised low-salt diets, if they really do reduce the salt reserve, may be fatal.

Meanwhile, some say highway salt is one of the cheapest, most effective de-icers available. Others object to its damage.

A consulting firm told the Environmental Protection Agency that the cost of buying and applying highway salt in 41 states comes to $200 million annually. Total costs of damage to autos, water supplies, highway structures, health, vegetation and utilities, comes to nearly $3 billion, the firm said.

That compares, the institute says, with the estimated $12.5 billion in lost wages and sales, and extra fuel needed because of blocked roads, that could result in 28 snowbelt states if no salt were used.

Connecticut has adopted a policy of reducing salt usage, and Massachusetts has promised to cut salt applications by a fifth. Both states center their attention on areas where water supplies might be contaminated.

The Salt Institute adds that Burlington, Vt., and Concord, Mass., rescinded bans on highway salt after trial periods.

Controversy aside, salt has had a fascinating history.

Early Central African tribesmen could buy a slave or a wife with it. Trade routes across deserts were dictated by salt. Cities were founded near salt sources — among them Syracuse, N.Y., where salt still is a major enterprise, and Lincoln, Neb., where the salt fizzled out.

The Biblical story of Lot's wife being turned into a pillar of salt for looking back on doomed Sodom is believed to be the first written reference.

Salt taxes were nearly universal in the ancient world, and India paid one to the British as recently as 1947.

There are salt mountains in the Near East and Africa, and the world's largest salt mine is at Wieliczka, Poland.

One Kansas salt mine has been used as a repository for records by 15,000 enterprises, including the city of Los Angeles. In World War II, the Nazis stored art treasures in salt mines.

Today there are proposals for salting away nuclear wastes in salt mines, but environmentalists protested that earthquakes might allow storage areas to leak.

And salt remains a center of controversy, but like any God-given thing on earth, it is not salt itself that is so good or bad, but the way man uses it.

Natural gas output may double

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP)—A new American Gas Association study indicates the world's potential natural gas resources are so tremendous production in the year 2020 will more than double current output.

Compared with an actual 1976 output of 50.3 exajoules, the study estimates the 2020 potential production capability in a range from 114.8 to 125 exajoules.

One exajoule equals 1.0885 trillion cubic feet.

The 2020 estimate, however, has world production on the decline.

From the 1976 level, the study projects that production could move to 76.8 exajoules, in 1985 and then peak at the 142.3-143.5 exajoules range about the year 2000.

"Even at an annual world natural gas production rate double the present rate, the estimated world remaining natural gas resource base would be sufficient to sustain production at or near this level at least another 50 years," the report said.

The Future for World Natural Gas Supply study was headed by W. T. McCormick Jr., vice president for planning and analysis for the trade association that headquarters in Arlington, Va.

The projections do not include potential production from such nonconventional sources as gas from coal beds, geopressed resources, shale, and biomass.

Such sources could, the study said, add significantly to world gas production after the year 2000. The potential for such additions to the resource base was said to range from several thousand to tens of thousands of exajoules.

Current proved natural gas reserves around the world were estimated at about 2,500 exajoules. Remaining undiscovered resources were estimated at 8,100 exajoules.

Cumulative worldwide conventional production of natural gas through 1975 was placed at 929 exajoules, a figure the study said is equivalent to about 40 per cent of presently estimated proved reserves but only 11 per cent of remaining undiscovered gas resources.

The study's projections made use of two gas pricing scenarios, one involving a natural gas price of $20 a barrel crude oil equivalent and the other a medium price of $14.

Under the $20 price, it was estimated world gas production could rise to about 77 exajoules by 1985 and to about 143 by the year 2000.

"At these production rates, 4.4 per cent per year through 2000, it is estimated production would peak shortly after the year 2000 and decline to about 125 exajoules by 2020," the study said.

"By that time, about 50 per cent of the presently estimated remaining gas would have been produced."

Key areas of the world where substantial gas was said to exist for greatly increasing production over the next decade include the OPEC groups and the Soviet Union.

Under a medium $14 gas pricing crude oil equivalent, production capability between now and 2020 was estimated to be lower than under the $20 scenario, although only slightly lower until after the year 2000.

"The small difference in production capability between the two scenarios until after the year 2000 is because prices in the range of $20 a barrel are, not yet expected to be required in order to produce the more easily recoverable resources," the study said.

Production capability is expected to peak in only two regions, North America and Western Europe, prior to the year 2000.

It was said the production capability of Western Europe could increase significantly into the early 1990s as a result of production from currently producing fields and new production from the developing North Sea fields.

"Continuing exploration in offshore areas, including the Irish Sea and Celtic Sea areas, gives rise to the expectation of significant new discoveries," the study said.

Russia and Eastern Europe were said to hold almost 30 per cent of the world's natural gas resource potential.

"Although production in this region may be less a function of price and more a function of plan, the increased production in recent years corresponding to the sudden rise in world energy prices, gives cause to believe production in the USSR will continue to respond to world energy price levels," the study said.

Schorr reports on Oswald

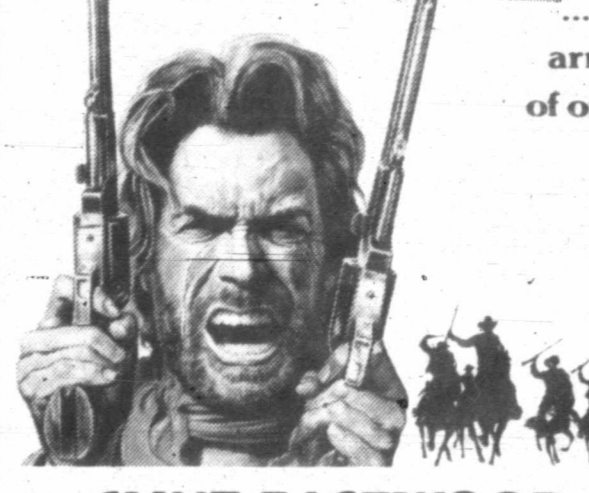

NEW YORK (AP) — Former CBS newsman Daniel Schorr says that during a visit to the Cuban embassy in Mexico City on Sept. 27, 1963, Lee Harvey Oswald threatened to assassinate President Kennedy but officials threw him out because they thought the threat was a "provocation."

Schorr also reports in the current issue of The New York Review of Books that the Warren Commission, which investigated the Kennedy killing, was told of Oswald's threat but did not follow it up.

The commission, Schorr said, did not "press the CIA for information about Oswald's Cuban association, this despite the fact — or perhaps because of the fact — that one of its members was former CIA director Allen Dulles."

"The possibility that Oswald acted on his own, inspired by Castro's statement, cannot today be proved, but it has the elements of the fortuitous and the lunatic that sometimes govern history," Schorr wrote.

Hijackers swap for 'comrades'

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Five heavily armed hijackers released 59 of their 140 hostages from a Japanese jetliner early Sunday in a step-by-step exchange for $6 million in ransom and six "comrades" freed from Japanese jails.

Shortly after the exchange was completed, heavy gunfire erupted three miles away in downtown Dacca, apparently unrelated to the hijacking. Radio Bangladesh said an armed revolution was in progress. By daybreak the shooting had died down.

The hijackers, members of the terrorist Japanese "Red Army," gave no indication what they planned to do next with their remaining 80 hostages. The Japan Air Lines DC8 was refueled and stood poised at the southern tip of an isolated runway, apparently ready to take off.

Officials in the Dacca control tower said the plane was expected to head east, but they did not elaborate. Earlier, Japanese Foreign Ministry sources said the terrorists wanted to go to a "revolutionary" state willing to accept them.

Early in the 90-hour siege, the hijackers had freed 10 passengers and on Saturday they released California banker John Gabriel, who officials said had been singled out for execution by the Japanese "Red Army" terrorists. He was reported seriously ill.

Under the negotiated exchange, the sixth and last Japanese prisoner emerged from the Dacca control tower at 4 a.m. Sunday (6 p.m. EDT Saturday). He was drawn to the plane by security personnel and turned over to the hijackers.

Then the final eight hostages to be freed left the plane, leaving behind 66 passengers and 14 crew members.

Air Vice Marshal Mahmood, who has led the negotiations from the airport tower since the plane landed at Dacca on Wednesday, pleaded with the terrorists for the freedom of the remaining hostages.

The hijackers answered with one word: "Negative."

Bangladesh officials said a message from the U.S. government expressing concern for the safety and welfare of the American passengers was relayed to the plane. It was not immediately known how many of the remaining hostages were American.

In Tokyo, the prime minister's office reported that two government officials now in Dacca, Vice-Transport Minister Hajime Ishii and Vice-Cabinet Secretary Kunihiko Doshu, had volunteered to trade themselves for the remaining 81 hostages.

Held captive since the JAL jet was commandeered Wednesday over India, the freed hostages walked around the airport lounge looking dazed but thankful. Some were taken to hospitals while other went to the embassies of their respective countries.

Many said they were praying for the safe release of their relatives and fellow passengers still on board the plane.

The mass release came after tense, last-minute negotiations to arrange the procedure. A Bangladesh radio report said final arrangements were made after Gabriel, a 60-year-old resident of Montebello, Calif., appealed to Bangladesh negotiators over the plane's radio system.

Gabriel was rushed by ambulance to Holy Family Hospital in Dacca. There was no immediate word on his condition or the nature of his illness.

The phased transfer began at 10 p.m. Saturday (noon EDT Saturday) and was completed in six rounds.

It was not immediately known whether Gabriel's wife, also a hostage, was among those to be freed.

State to inspect retarded schools

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The House General Investigating Committee, after two days of lurid testimony about beatings and homosexual attacks, says it will hold on-site hearings and inspections at state schools for the mentally retarded.

In Friday's session, a former teacher at Richmond State School accused her ex-colleagues of incompetence, apathy, cruelty and greed.

She claimed records were doctored on occasion to make the school look better.

"I've seen children sit in their waste and counselors standing there talking to each other while a child is dirty. I've seen child abuse. I've seen people hit kids," said Debra Spafford, now a teacher in the Houston Independent School District.

Ms. Spafford said there was a 20-year-old resident who "would eat T-shirts and eat sheets and nobody would work with him until he almost died. That's what they would do — not do anything till it became a tragedy."

On one occasion, she said, two male employees dragged a girl inmate down a hall and "rubbed her head in her own mess."

Ms. Spafford said she was a source for television reporter Marvin Zandler's investigative stories about the school — stories that members of the parents' association have branded as irresponsible.

"I think the staff is more interested in its personal gain than in the children," she said.

Committee chairman DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, said the committee would hold hearings and make on-site inspections at each school.

Rosalie Gilmore of Houston told the committee that her grandson had been beaten and subjected to homosexual abuse at the Richmond school.

She accused a male counselor of taking part in the abuse and said that as of a week ago he still was on the staff.

The counselor, she said, encouraged two older and larger boys to attack her grandson.

On three separate trips home, she said, the boy's genitals were discovered to be swollen and lacerated.

In a meeting with school officials, she said, the family was told, "We can't do anything about this. We can't fire the counselor."

"I told him (the assistant superintendent) if this counselor is not taken off the unit, this homosexual, and these boys are not taken off the unit, my boy's not coming back. Education doesn't mean that much."

US, Soviet urges Israel

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States joined with the Soviet Union on Saturday in urging Israel to recognize the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people and to grant a negotiating role at Middle East peace talks to their representatives.

The joint declaration, aimed at reconvening a Geneva peace conference on the Middle East before the end of this year, also called on Israel to withdraw from territory occupied during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

The Israeli government reacted with predictable dissatisfaction to the joint statement. In a strongly worded rebuttal, Israel said the U.S.-Soviet proposals would make the peacemaking process "more difficult" and would harden the Arab countries' negotiating position at a reconvened Geneva conference.

Bangladesh reports revolt

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Radio Bangladesh said Sunday an "armed revolution" was in progress in Bangladesh by the armed forces, students, peasants and workers.

In a brief broadcast at 5:50 a.m. — 8 p.m. EDT, the radio told its listeners to stand by for an "important message." It followed with the announcement of an "armed revolution."

The reports followed an outbreak of shooting in the Bangladesh capital. The gunfire had died down by daybreak.

There was no immediate indication as to the progress of the apparent coup attempt.

Constables get $768 monthly salary

The Gray County Commissioners Court approved a general 6 per cent wage hike for most of its 111 county employees Saturday.

However, the Gray County sheriff's deputies were approved for a $100 per month raise, was one of the "three county constables, whose salaries will be $768 per month, beginning Jan. 1."

Sheriff's deputies pay will be $883 monthly with the exception of the chief deputy who will be paid $937 per month, beginning Jan. 1, 1978.

The tax roll of $119 million assessed valuation was also approved following a presentation by Jack Back, tax assessor collector.

That compares with $111 million last year, and allows for the $3,000 homestead and over 65 exemptions.

State treasurer buried

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Eulogized as a man who "took stewardship of money as a sacred trust," State Treasurer Jesse James was buried Saturday in the oak-shaded State Cemetery.

James died of a heart attack Thursday, 12 days before his 73rd birthday. He had been treasurer since 1941.

One of the hundreds of mourners at James' funeral was Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who refused to answer questions about appointing a new treasurer because the moment was "inappropriate."

Briscoe has at least three options. He could appoint someone who wants the job on a long-term basis, giving a leg up to a candidate in next year's election. He could appoint a treasurer who would fill out James' term but not seek election to a four-year term of his own. Or he could do nothing and allow James' longtime deputy, Morris Stevens, to run for attorney general. Yet he refused to flatly write off accepting appointment as treasurer if Briscoe offers it.

Others include George Cowden, chairman of the Texas Public Utility Commission; Harry Ledbetter, a former aide to Comptroller Bob Bullock and U.S. Gov. Bill Hobby; Dallas County Treasurer Warren G. Harding; former Bexar County Auditor C. R. Sanderson; and Lowell Lebermann, former Austin city councilman who announced recently he had decided against running for treasurer.

Ledbetter and Sanderson already are in the 1978 treasurer's race, and Cowden and Harding had been mentioned as possible entries before James died.

The treasurer's body lay in a beige metal coffin, over which a large Texas flag was draped.

Pledge of Allegiance in Panhandle

Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe were guests at a giant-sized celebration in Panhandle Saturday which combined Pioneer Day and Museum Day. Max Sherman introduced the governor who spoke on "Texas — Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow." The day honored pioneer families and Panhandle graduates. Ralph Randel was master of ceremonies. Other activities included a barbecue, Edward Curtis photographs exhibit and showing of artifacts from a spanish galleon. (Pampa News photo by Ron Ennis)

US borrowing power cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department suspended sales of U.S. Savings Bonds and turned to emergency cash reserves Saturday following the expiration of its power to borrow money.

With the Senate entangled in a filibuster over natural gas prices, Congress let the Friday midnight deadline slip by without passing final legislation to raise the debt ceiling.

Hours before the debt ceiling expired and the government's new fiscal year began, the Treasury borrowed $2.5 billion from the Federal Reserve System, increasing its cash holdings to more than $18 billion.

There won't be an immediate problem in paying bills, a Treasury spokesman said. "If all goes well it is reasonable to expect the government will be able to pay its bills for about three weeks."

New debt ceiling legislation is expected to be passed by Congress and signed by President Carter long before the money runs out.

But the spokesman said that because there is now no new debt limit law, the government lacks authority to issue new bonds and has told its 40,000 agents across the country to stop selling U.S. Savings Bonds in which it customarily invests receipts from federal trust funds.

The situation arose when leaders of the Senate filibuster threatened to prevent the debt ceiling bill from coming to a vote during consideration of the pending energy bill. Although they later relented, the House had adjourned for the weekend making final approval by both houses impossible before the deadline passed.

The House earlier had approved a new debt limit of $773 billion. The Senate version sets the limit at $752 billion. The bill must now go back to the House which can either accept the Senate total or call for the convening of a conference committee to reconcile the two figures.

Because the government spends more than it takes in in taxes and other income, the Treasury needs authority to borrow to cover the deficit and to refinance earlier loans as they come in.

US, Britain renew hope for Rhodesian settlement

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
AP Diplomatic Correspondent
LONDON (AP) — The United States and Britain hope to organize a new conference in a neutral country on a final constitutional settlement for Rhodesia, according to senior diplomats here.

They said Saturday that the government of Mauritius in the Indian Ocean has offered facilities for such a parley.

The U.S.-British plan as reported by the diplomats is likely to mean rejection of a bid by Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia to have Britain's commissioner-designate and a special representative of United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim visit him in Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital.

Smith has said he wants to discuss key aspects of American-British proposals for a settlement with Field Marshal Lord Carver of Britain and Waldheim's envoy.

For Lord Carver, as the legal representative of Queen Elizabeth II, and for the U.N. envoy representing the international community to visit the pretender-premier of an illegal state is a totally unacceptable idea," one key official said.

The British and others consider Rhodesia's government illegal because it unilaterally declared itself independent from Britain in 1965.

are due to conduct these.

Meantime, sources said, Carver and Waldheim's nominees are likely to meet soon to discuss the formation of a U.N. peacekeeping force in Rhodesia pending agreement between the whites and blacks on molding their military forces into a single army.

If and when these preliminaries reach the point of broad agreement it will be time, the sources said, for a new constitution-writing conference to be held in neutral territory to establish the new black-dominated transitional government.

The Americans and British say they anticipate difficulties before Smith finally yields power. To insure against this, they have, with backing from 34 Commonwealth states, already charted plans to tighten sanctions against Rhodesia, even to attempting to block its oil supply via South Africa.

A Commonwealth committee charged with examining the oil sanctions issue concluded a secret report last week by saying it would "see no alternative to seeking from the Security Council a decision to impose a mandatory form an embargo on the supply of crude oil and petroleum products to South Africa itself" if it refuses to guarantee a cutoff of the oil flow to Rhodesia.

Fire report

Units from Pampa, Lefors and McLean responded to a fire call about 2 p.m. Friday when two three sections of land, owned by Bill Davis were burned near Lefors. Cause of the fire is not known, according to a spokesman at the Pampa Fire Department.

Police report

Criminal mischief, theft and burglary of an automobile were among the reports on the Pampa Police Department blotter over Friday night and Saturday.

A man from Warner-Robins, Ga., reported that while his car was parked at the Coronado Inn someone tried to remove a tape deck from the vehicle. The deck was reportedly damaged, but was not taken.

Entry was gained through a window.

An employee at a convenience store at 1106 Alcock said a man driving a late model car entered the store and paid for $3 in gas, but he owed $4.61 and left without the remaining $1.61 being paid.

Police also received a report that a car was broken into while parked in the yard at 1719 Dogwood and a Citizens Band radio taken.

Another reportedly left his car at the Pizza Inn from 10:30 p.m. to 11:15 p.m. He returned to find it had been broken into and two boxes of 8-track tapes had been removed.

Dave R. Nicholson reported that he parked his pickup at 608 Reid St. and left the keys in it. He said he returned to find it was gone. The incident was under investigation Saturday.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
A cold front plodded south across Texas Saturday afternoon, dropping temperatures into the comfortable 70s and 80s and taking aim on southerly winds likely to spark thunderstorms when they collide with the cold.

Forecasters expected thunderstorms Saturday night in East and Southeast Texas when the front bumped into southerly air flow in those areas.

Temperatures were expected to be cooler across the state Saturday night and Sunday.

National weather

By The Associated Press
Parts of the Midwest braced Saturday for more damaging weather, as residents of some areas cleaned up in the wake of heavy thunderstorms and tornadoes in the hours before dawn.

A severe thunderstorm, apparently carrying a tornado with it, battered suburban Cincinnati early Saturday, causing an estimated $12 million damage, injuring at least a dozen and, wiping out 12 homes.

Natural gas shut off in poor Crystal City

Where every meal's a cookout

By RICK SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
CRYSTAL CITY, Tex. (AP) — Jesuita Martinez clutched a stick in her wrinkled hand and stooped over to adjust the burning coals of the fire in her back yard.

On a grate in the fire, meat simmered in a covered skillet. The rich aroma, carried by a slight breeze, wafted lazily across the 74-year-old woman's yard.

Next door, neighbors prepared their noon meal on a barbecue grill, heated by charcoal.

The sight is not uncommon across this impoverished, isolated South Texas town of 8,000 people that had its natural gas supply shut off Sept. 23 in a dispute over unpaid charges levied by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co.

"I start my fire about 8 o'clock every morning," Mrs. Martinez said in Spanish, the primary language of many of the town's residents. Most who live here, about 120 miles southwest of San Antonio, are Mexican-Americans and many are migrant farm workers.

City officials say 67 per cent of the residents live below the federal poverty level.

Mrs. Martinez adds wood from a nearby pile to keep the fire going all day. She cut some of the wood from the trees in the yard. And she sits just a short distance away, keeping an eye on her young grandchildren who always seem drawn to the flames.

Three meals each day are cooked in this fashion. The gas stove in Mrs. Martinez' house is collecting dust. Gas appliances aren't worth much these days in Crystal City.

Two of Mrs. Martinez' grandsons are pitching in to buy her a tank of butane to fuel her stove and water heater in the coming winter months. The conversion to butane costs about $200.

Mrs. Martinez receives about $150 per month from social security and other government relief programs.

"The cooking out is good, though," said Arturo Gonzalez, a former mayor of the town. "People are meeting their neighbors and the whole situation has brought us closer together."

The people, mostly, are taking the gas shutoff real good, but everyone wonders what's going to happen in November when it starts getting cold," Gonzalez said.

Many of the shacks inhabited by poor migrant workers just can't be heated adequately anyway. They have no window glass and there are holes in the roofs, he said.

It was 90 degrees the day the gas supply was terminated. Residents didn't seem overly concerned. Most knew the shutoff was coming because the city-owned utility refused to pay fuel-adjustment pass-through costs to Lo-Vaca.

The municipal utility continued to pay Lo-Vaca the contracted price of 36 cents per thousand cubic feet of gas, but the price climbed to about $2 per thousand cubic feet and the state approved the higher price.

When the cutoff came, the town owed about $800,000 and many residents had already purchased some electrical appliances to use for cooking. A drug store quickly sold out of electric hot plates and skillets.

"Many, however, couldn't afford such purchases, nor can they now pay for the conversion to alternative fuels, such as butane.

A lot of residents believed on Sept. 23 that the gas wouldn't be shut off for very long. And the promise of a federal grant to make a down payment on the $800,000 back gas bill lifted hopes last week.

But neighboring towns, many of them hit equally hard by the rising gas costs, protested the federal government should not bail out Crystal City unless it bailed out everyone else.

On Friday, federal officials notified Mayor Francisco Benavides, himself a part-time migrant worker, that the town could not use $160,000 of the $310,000 grant to pay Lo-Vaca.

The town, however, will probably still receive all of the money from the federal Community Services Administration. The $160,000 may be earmarked to find an alternate source of energy such as butane or solar power.

A final decision is due Monday from the CSA.

The other $150,000 will be used to help residents purchase small electrical appliances to cook with.

"This is just terrible," said Benavides when told by federal officials Friday the money could not be used to get the town's gas service restored.

Crystal City sits in the middle of one of Texas' rich oil and gas areas. Surrounding Zavala County produced about 5 billion cubic feet of gas last year, state figures show.

The cutoff has hit some businessmen hard.

Paco Galvan, owner of a restaurant, said using electricity is much more expensive than using gas and electricity takes twice as long to cook a meal as gas.

Max Sherman, new president of West Texas State University, acted Friday to abolish three vice president positions at the school.

"Our general administrative expense is far too high," Sherman said in a monthly general faculty meeting where the cuts were announced.

One of the offices abolished had been vacant since Sept. 15, when Hermas Miller resigned as vice president of financial affairs to accept a similar position at North Texas State University in Denton.

Two other vice presidents now are left with the choice of moving on or returning to classrooms at a considerable drop in salary.

T. Paige Carruth, vice president for student affairs, and Ray Malzahn, vice president for academic affairs will lose their current positions and current $39,636 annual salaries on Dec. 31.

If they remain with WTSU as classroom professors, their salaries will drop to the range of $20,000.

Sherman created an executive vice president's office, naming Gail Shannon as acting executive vice president. Shannon, dean of the college of education, served as interim president of the university from June 7, when Lloyd I. Watkins resigned, until Sherman took over early in September.

Replacing Shannon at the head of the college of education will be Dan White, named acting dean.

Regents will formally act on the changes made by Sherman when they meet in December.

McLean hospital gets top grade

A representative from the Texas Department of Health Resources has informed the administrator of Highland General Hospital and McLean that a recent survey of the McLean hospital found it "exceptionally clean and well maintained."

The letter was written by Ernest E. Jones, supervising engineer, hospital licensing division and addressed to Guy Hazlett, administrator.

Hazlett said to his knowledge "this is the first time in several years that such an excellent report of inspection has been acquired from the Texas Department of Health Resources regarding the condition of McLean General Hospital."

The report reads: "It is not the policy of this office to deliberately find things wrong with hospitals. We would much rather find hospitals such as

Wants rules for Davis

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Prosecutors asked the court Saturday to impose new restrictions on Cullen Davis after the millionaire defendant, perhaps by accident, spoke with a relative of a juror.

The incident occurred Saturday morning when the mother of juror Marilyn K. Haissly entered the courtroom where Davis is on trial for the 1976 slaying of his young stepdaughter.

Dist. Court Judge George Dowlen confirmed that prosecutors, in a closed-door session, urged him to restrict Davis' freedom of movement in and out of the courtroom.

And he said he intended to do so.

"It's a legitimate concern," Dowlen said. "I don't think this situation will come up again."

The meeting in his chambers came after a member of the prosecution reportedly spotted

Davis talking with the woman before the morning session was under way.

Attorneys for both sides were bound by the court not to discuss the incident.

A courtroom bailiff said he understood that Davis was introduced to the juror's mother. There was no indication or implication that the defendant made an improper remark.

Davis has had almost total freedom to move about the courthouse and does so daily, talking with friends, spectators, newsmen and anyone who wanders in off the street.

"The overall problem is that we're so cramped up here there is no place for even the defendant to talk to his lawyers," Dowlen said.

"But we have to take steps to see that there isn't any kind of (improper) conversation with anyone. That applies not only to the defendant but the attorneys as well."

"It's a situation that needs to be eliminated," he said, confirming he intends to prepare a set of guidelines, "and they will be followed."

Chief defense counsel Richard "Racehorse" Haynes said the problem is there is no room available to allow private conferences with the defendant.

"But I believe the restriction will work in his favor," he said.

Haynes said it is "more likely than not" that Davis would accidentally make an offhand remark that would be harmful rather than self-serving.

"And if that somehow is transmitted to a juror it can cut your throat," he said.

Meanwhile, Haynes resumed cross-examination of a crime scene search officer who participated in the investigation after two were slain and two wounded at Davis' Fort Worth mansion.

Officer Benny Thompson earlier identified evidence recovered from the basement utility room where investigators found the body of Davis' stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, 12.

Prosecutors called Thompson in their first effort to show conclusively that the child was killed in the basement rather than some other area of the blood-splattered mansion.

Although a bullet was recovered from the room, investigators thought at one time the child was killed elsewhere and her body dragged downstairs to the basement.

Photographs of an indentation in the wall and a sliver of wood nicked from it were introduced into evidence.

The iceberg cometh

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — As scientists ponder the use of icebergs at a conference in Iowa next week, they will be watching their subject melt in their cocktail glasses.

Wet-suited divers planned to slip into the icy waters of a lake at the foot of Alaska's Portage Glacier south of here today to commandeer a 2,500-pound ice slab from a floating glacial iceberg.

The ice will be used at the First International Conference on Iceberg Utilization at Iowa State University Sunday through Thursday. Representatives of 18 nations are expected to attend.

After the divers wrap a three-cubic-meter hunk of ice in nets, the chilly package will be slung from a helicopter and flown to Anchorage International Airport. From there, a commercial airliner will fly it to Minneapolis, and then it will be trucked the last leg of its journey to Ames, Iowa.

"They're using ice from up here because it's the most available freshwater ice," said Ed Cronick of Anchorage, coordinator of the operation. "It does make the best cocktail ice."

Glaciers winding up in salt water tend to be porous and the salt tang could be an unwelcome addition to some drinks, he said.

He said Portage Glacier is a relatively small, young glacier, with ice in the small lake at its foot about 200 years old. Ice from larger glaciers is thousands of years old, he said.

The $7,500 cost of the conference's centerpiece is being underwritten by Youssef Elakel of Saudi Arabia, according to conference spokesman William Berkland of Iowa State.

Berkland noted for the record that Iowa is "about as far from a glacier as you can get."

Some 200 guests are expected from Saudi Arabia, the Arab Emirates, Australia, Canada, Chile, Egypt, England, France, Germany, Greece, Holland, Italy, Libya, Mexico, Monaco, Sweden, Switzerland and the United States.

Urges state school probe

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The chairman of a committee that investigated alleged abuses at the Mexia State School has urged House members to bear down on its review of the school and to expand its probe to other state schools for the mentally retarded.

In testimony prepared for the House General Investigating Committee, Bernadette Jenney recommended that the committee impanel a group of "nationally known experts" to review Mexia and other schools.

She is chairwoman of an investigating committee created by the Texas Association for Retarded Citizens. It reported earlier that it was apparent that "there is a pattern and practice of abuse of residents" at Mexia.

Mexia was converted from a prisoner of war camp in 1946 into the state's largest state school for the mentally retarded, with more than 2,000 residents. "One parent in particular," she told the House committee, "was told that the state school was no country club and if she didn't like it she could take her home."

The mother of a severely retarded young man testified Thursday it will take professionals outside the state system to restore "human dignity" to residents of Texas' mental institutions.

Gene Karaffa of Waco, past president of the association for retarded citizens, said she received the "sickening, frightening news" May 4, 1976, that her son had been the victim of homosexual abuse at the Mexia school.

Mrs. Karaffa said she was later informed that her son probably had been abused again and it may have happened a third time. She said she and her husband visited the school every 10 days and had yet to find a dormitory fully staffed.

She said her son — who can speak only three words — had walked to school in shirtsleeves in 38-degree weather.

To illustrate what she said was poor planning at the school, Mrs. Karaffa said her son gets his "weekly treat," a hamburger and soft drink, at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday.

She said she refused to let her son take part in weekend recreation after another mental patient fell off a ferris wheel and, according to the patient's mother, "broke nearly every bone in his body."

The only way to restore "human dignity" and "take away the degradation," she said, is through outside professional help.

Asked to name specific abuses, Mrs. Karaffa refused, saying it would "betray confidences."

CRYSTAL CITY, Tex. (AP) — Federal money, originally meant to aid gasless Crystal City, might find its way into neighboring towns also suffering from high fuel bills, says U.S. Rep. Abraham Kazen.

On Thursday, evaluators from the Texas Department of Community Affairs went into Crystal City, which had its natural gas supply cut off by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. last week, to look into possible health problems caused by the gas cutoff.

Ben McDonald, executive director of the agency, said the evaluators will try to determine the extent of "critical human needs" in the impoverished, South Texas town of 8,000.

"They will work on a house-by-house basis to check on possible health or hunger problems as well as the inconvenience," McDonald said.

The gas supply was shut off because the town has refused to pay $800,000 in back bills. Several courts upheld Lo-Vaca's right to turn the valve on the city.

McDonald sent in the evaluators after the federal Community Services Administration announced earlier in the week that the city may receive $150,000 to help the residents purchase electrical appliances. Another $160,000 may be available to help the town make a down payment on the bill that has amassed since city officials refused to pay Lo-Vaca's increasing rates.

Kazen, a Democrat from Laredo, said the federal Community Services Administration will consider extending financial aid to the other cities, which were miffed at what they felt was special treatment for Crystal City.

Officials from neighboring Carrizo Springs were scheduled to meet today with CSA officials to discuss funding for that South Texas town, Kazen said.

Jeff Wise, a state coordinator for CSA, said the funds for Others may get fed gas aid

Crystal City may be allocated under a system similar to the one used in the department's weatherization program.

Under that program, aimed at helping people to weather-proof their homes, a committee is appointed to determine where the money should be spent. Wise said at least half the committee would be local residents.

U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., was the first to suggest that CSA attempt to help Crystal City.

The proposal has drawn fire from officials in neighboring cities that have been collecting the increased rates and holding the money in escrow accounts pending court rulings.

Carrizo Springs, however, paid much of its overdue bill last Friday. City Mgr. A.C. Gonzales said the payment was not spurred by the Crystal City cutoff.

Gonzales joined officials from Uvalde and Del Rio in denouncing the CSA grants. He called the action "shocking" but said it was "hopeful" in that it may

Neutron bomb gets House nod

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is giving President Carter approval to produce the neutron bomb, a new atomic weapon that opponents fear will greatly increase the risk of all-out nuclear war.

The House of Representatives has approved an authorization bill to enable the President to spend money for the neutron bomb if he chooses to do so. The Senate previously approved a similar bill.

The neutron bomb is a small warhead that would be placed on Lance missiles and artillery shells. It produces twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but less than a tenth as much explosive power, heat and fallout. This means the bomb can kill people while causing little damage to buildings.

The warhead is designed to replace the approximately 7,000 nuclear warheads now deployed in Europe.

Carter has not announced whether he intends to approve production of the controversial weapon, but he did ask for the authorization that both houses have now granted.

The key House vote came on an amendment by Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y. The amendment would have blocked Energy Research and Development Administration money from being used for the neutron bomb. But the amendment was defeated 297 to 109.

Weiss and his supporters said the neutron bomb would "lower the threshold" to nuclear war. They said military leaders might feel less inhibited about using the neutron bomb since it has less destructive power than large-scale nuclear weapons.

That could make it easier to introduce nuclear weapons into an altercation that could touch off a nuclear holocaust, opponents said.

Flower show focuses on cultural pursuits

Roses, chrysanthemums, marigolds, evergreens, potted plants and arrangements in artistic designs inspired by fabric, nature and music will be exhibited and judged Saturday at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

The Pampa Garden Club Standard Flower Show, sponsored annually with the Top of Texas, Arts and Crafts Festival, will be open from noon to 8 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 9.

Festival of Floral Art is the title. It focuses attention on a wide variety of cultural pursuits including music, literature, painting and the dance. We have endeavored to portray these arts in flowers," explained Mrs. Carlton Freeman, show chairman.

Classes include woodworker's art, the play's the thing, art is drawing, on toe, the glassmaker's art, the weaver's art, art is nature, the sound of music and the potter's art.

Junior divisions include curling up with a book, distant lands and horticulture.

The show is open to all amateurs wishing to exhibit, and is not restricted to members of the Pampa Garden Club. Entries will be accepted from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday and from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. on Saturday. No entries will be accepted after 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

All entries must be correctly and legibly named. Unnamed exhibits will not be accepted. All cut specimens in horticulture must be brought in bottles with water furnished by the exhibitor.

In horticulture, the winners will receive Awards of Horticultural Excellence, Awards of Merit, Arboreal Awards, and a Sweepstakes Award will be given to the person winning the largest amount of blue ribbons. In case of a tie, red ribbons will be counted.

The Artistic Awards are divided into advanced, novice and intermediate sub-classes. A novice is one who has never won a blue ribbon; an intermediate has earned less than five blue ribbons, and an advanced more than five. There will be a blue ribbon given for the finest in the entire design section, and a sweepstakes Award will be given.

There will be a sales table with a selection of plants. A large dried flower arrangement will be given away.

Mrs. Joe Curtis serves as co-chairman. Among others involved are Mrs. Rue Hestand, Mrs. C.C. Matheny, Mrs. John Gattis, Mrs. Holly Gray, Mrs.

A.B. Cross, Mrs. Elmo Wright, Mrs. Bill Campaign, Mrs. Marion Brown, and Mrs. Wallace Birkes.

Dow finds no ECH-caused cancer

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — Contradicting a finding by another manufacturer, Dow Chemical Co. says it has not discovered a high incidence of cancer among workers heavily exposed to a chemical called ECH.

Dow officials issued the statement Thursday after Shell Chemical Co. reported it found higher than normal cancer rates among workers heavily exposed to the same chemical, epichlorohydrin.

Shell and Dow are the only two U.S. manufacturers of ECH, an intermediate-chemical used in making resins and other chemicals.

Dow officials said Shell not-fied them four weeks ago of Shell's findings among ECH employees at two Shell plants in suburban Deer Park near Houston and Norco, La.

Shell said the study covered 864 workers who handled or produced ECH at the two Shell plants for at least six months between 1948 and 1965.

Dr. Roy Joyner, Shell's corporate medical director, said the worker exposure in those years was "substantially higher" than the present workplace levels of less than one part per million during normal operations.

Shell said a mortality study showed a larger group, including workers with low ex-posure to ECH, had fewer cancer deaths than the general public.

The Midland firm said about 600 workers at its Texas division have worked for several years "with no apparent problem at the lower exposure levels we maintain in our plants."

"This does not rule out the possibility that some of our workers did not die of cancer in the past few years," said a Dow official. "What we do say is that no such deaths have been traced to ECH."

Dow officials said the Texas installation showed about one part per million of ECH over varying lengths of exposure, well below the five parts per million that federal standards permit.

Dow said its preliminary report to the National Institute of Occupational Health and Safety (NIOSH) in April 1976 said there were no medical abnormalities among workers at the ECH plant.

Graham says he's legal

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Billy Graham says his evangelistic association has nothing to hide, has done nothing illegal or immoral and will begin issuing annual reports disclosing how it spends up to $25 million in yearly contributions.

Graham, whose organization is headquartered in Minneapolis, told a news conference Thursday that the question of disclosure for religious organizations had not really come up until this year.

"And no churches or church-related organizations are required by law to do so," Graham said. "But the mood of the country is moving in that direction, and I think we will gladly conform to it."

The Graham organization recently has been criticized by the Better Business Bureau for failing to provide prospective contributors with information on how money is spent.

"At the proper time, we will be fully cooperative," Graham said at the news conference.

"My job is to do the spiritual ministry," Graham added. "I give myself to preaching and writing."

He said the association's board and executive committee have handled financial details and the board will decide, at a weekend meeting, what to disclose. A Graham aide said an announcement is expected next week.

"When people give to our association, they trust that it's being handled properly and wisely and invested for the advancement of the Kingdom of God, which all of it is," Graham said.

He added that "the Gospel is free but the bucket you carry the Gospel in costs money."

Graham broadcasts on hundreds of radio and television stations, publishes a three-million circulation magazine, circulates 100 films and has eight evangelistic teams which have carried crusades to all continents. The association employs 500 people, 400 of them in the Minneapolis headquarters.

Graham also tried to clear up suggestions that his organization had kept secret a $23 million World Evangelism and Christian Education Fund.

He said the secrecy was caused by the news media's inattention, not his design.

"That fund has been as public as we could make it, but nobody's been willing to print anything about it until now," he said. "There's nothing illegal, immoral or unethical about that fund — in fact, we're proud of it." Recently, Graham said the fund had been first revealed in 1971 but that he had not publicized its growth to $23 million for fear it would bring a flood of requests for grants.

By improving the thermal integrity of the structure itself; by adding insulation, installing double glazed windows, reducing hot and cold air infiltration.

By installing efficient energy-saving systems and appliances.

By adopting wise use habits.

EFFICIENT USE OF FUEL RESOURCES.

The heat pump uses electricity efficiently because it can deliver as much as two units of heat for every one heat unit of electricity it uses during the heating season. The heat pump makes efficient use of fuel resources because it uses electricity for heating and cooling, and thus allows use of the nation's more plentiful fuels like coal. Southwestern Public Service is now reducing its dependence on natural gas as a fuel and is building plants that use coal to make electricity. Using fuels like coal preserves the nation's scarce petroleum resources for other uses. The heat pump saves electricity . . . and saves you money.

"I lost 53 pounds with NaturSlim ...and I feel like a new person!"

-Susan Simpson

"Since beginning the NaturSlim program I've gone from a size 19 to a size 13/14 and lost 53 pounds. My goal is to lose 60 pounds and drop to a size 12," says 16 year old Susan Simpson, student at Narbonne High School and a resident of Lomita, California.

"I weighed 197 pounds and had tried many other diets, such as counting calories, Ayds, the orange a day diet, etc., but none produced the results that NaturSlim has.

"It is really nice to feel a part of living again . . . to be able to crawl out of my shell and stand on my own two feet. I used to wear a jacket everywhere I went because of my weight, but now I am proud and happy not to have to hide like that anymore. For the first time in eight years I'm looking forward to participating in summer activities, such as swimming and going to the beach with my friends.

"I followed the recommended program, mixing NaturSlim with nonfat chocolate milk or unsweetened orange juice for breakfast and lunch, and I ate regular portions of meat, potatoes, vegetable and usually a salad for dinner. NaturSlim really tastes good and fills me up so I don't experience hunger pangs during the day. When I feel the urge for a snack I eat an apple or fresh carrots.

"One of the things that really helped was the support, encouragement and compliments from my friends and family. My social life is improving, too. I'm really looking forward to the Senior Prom. And since I've slimmed down, I've gotten a whole new wardrobe!"

Susan's mother comments that "A lot of people don't even recognize Susan since her weight loss. Her father and I are really proud of Susan and her strong will and determination to stick with the program. Susan is like a new person . . . she is more outgoing and happy to be involved in activities with others. We are able to share much more together because she is not so shy and withdrawn. It is Susan's desire to reach out to those other teenage girls and adults who are overweight like she used to be . . . and to convey to them the message that the NaturSlim program really works!"

Throughout these negotiations we have worked closely with the Department of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff. While it is true that larger warships and merchant tankers are unable to pass through the canal, it nonetheless remains an important defense asset.

The terms and conditions which have been worked out in the new treaties will, according to our defense authorities, not only preserve but enhance our national security interests. Under the new Panama Canal treaty, the United States will have primary responsibility for the defense of the canal until the year 2000. This will permit us to retain whatever bases and troops we may require for such defense.

After the year 2000, a separate neutrality treaty, to take effect simultaneously with the new Panama Canal treaty, will assure that the United States is able to take such action as we may deem necessary to preserve the canal's permanent neutrality against any threat or attack — and there is no limitation in the treaty on our ability to respond as we may think necessary.

The precise response will, of course, depend on political, military, legal, economic and other factors involved in a particular situation. But the simple fact is that the United States can make its own determination as to how to respond and how to defend our rights.

The neutrality treaty also has a provision assuring that United States warships will be able to transit the canal expeditiously in both peace and war without being subject to any restriction as to means of propulsion, armament or cargo.

In short, the neutrality treaty provides a firm foundation for assuring that our long-term interest in the maintenance of an open, accessible, secure, efficient canal is preserved.

Two: How will the new Panama Canal treaty affect our commercial interests?

The answer is it offers the best way to protect them since under the new economic terms agreed upon Panama will have a very substantial economic stake in the canal's efficient operation. While the canal is still commercially important, only about 7 per cent of our international maritime trade passes through the canal.

But in the next few years, it is likely that sizable quantities of Alaska oil will be transported through the canal for the East Coast. It is important to note that under the new treaties, we will be in a position to negotiate with Panama in a favorable political climate for the construction of a sealevel canal that can accommodate our aircraft carriers and supertankers if such a project should prove feasible.

Three: Can we rely on Panama to run the canal efficiently?

Under the new treaty, the United States will be responsible for the operation and maintenance of the canal until the end of the century. Panamanians will participate in increasing numbers — they are already 74 per cent of the work force — and will be trained to do as competent a job as our Panama Canal Co. has done in the past.

For the next 23 years Panama will, with our cooperation, be able to prepare to run the canal and to run it well — recognizing that the canal is Panama's most valuable resource.

certainly should not abandon our present rights for this new agreement.

As indicated above, the Panamanians deny any American right of intervention. They contend that a joint declaration of the neutrality of the canal, was rejected by their country and this is why in Article I only the Republic of Panama is mentioned as declaring that "the canal shall be permanently neutral."

If they alone declare the neutrality, then it would seem reasonable to assume that they alone would have to declare that the neutrality is threatened.

In fact, under the treaty, we do not even have the right to preferential passage through the canal. If American naval vessels are needed to meet a crisis, they must be able to move through the canal as quickly as possible.

But under the treaty our negotiators had to withdraw the term "preferential passage" and accept the Panamanian proposal of only "expeditious passage." Escobar has now stated that neutrality of the canal means that American warships have no special rights.

If the United States does not even have special rights to get our ships through in a crisis, we certainly cannot expect to have the unilateral right of determining when the canal's neutrality is threatened.

I have often heard the argument that Senate rejection of the treaties would lead to violence and perhaps sabotage of the canal, but I cannot believe that treaty proponents really propose to make U.S. foreign policy on the basis of knuckling under to threats of violence. History furnishes too many examples of nations backing into conflicts by failing to stand up for their rights.

The issue of potential violence is very real, but we need to inquire as to its origins. The expectations of Panamanian extremists have certainly been raised by the prospect of taking over the canal.

But treaty proponents need to ask themselves whether those expectations will be satisfied by asking extremists to wait 22 years; or whether violence and sabotage are now likely irrespective of Senate ratification simply because of the atmosphere of heightened expectations which the treaties create without really satisfying.

In view of this tinder-box situation, Senate refusal to ratify would provide at least some deterrence to violence by demonstrating that the power of the United States remains behind its legitimate interests. Ratification of a half-way-house treaty would be a signal to potential rioters and saboteurs that they need not wait 22 years.

All they need do is push just a little harder, because the United States would have clearly demonstrated its willingness to succumb to violence. It would then be open season for extremists to attack not only the canal but the property and persons of U.S. nationals throughout Latin America.

The Panama Canal treaty has a raft of weaknesses, many of which have been discussed above. Perhaps the most glaring problems with the whole issue of relinquishing control over the waterway, however, are those which cannot be dealt with by the treaty.

For instance, Panama has a history of political instability — 52 chief executives in 74 years. This unstable political environment continues today and will tomorrow — treaty or no treaty. If radical factions within the country who are dissatisfied with the document foment violence in protest as they did on the day the treaty was signed, this would seriously threaten the smooth operation of the canal.

Our presence now offers a deterrent to this violence; our absence would only work the other way.

Another factor the treaty cannot control is the repressive character of the current Panamanian regime. The goal of the negotiations has been to hand over, lock, stock and barrel, control of this international waterway to the country of Panama.

This includes control over the Panama Canal Zone, where Americans reside. Bear in mind that these Americans provide most of the technical know-how which keeps the facility running so effectively. With totalitarianism spread into the zone, chances are very high they won't remain there.

With this exit would go the expertise for operating the canal. Then, only drastically lowered standards could allow extremely inexperienced Panamanians into positions quickly enough to take over. Accidents are likely to follow and passage through the canal would be blocked.

Judge to rule on past brutality

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — State District Court Judge James "Bud" Warren, who already has ruled against jurors hearing testimony about Joe Campos Torres' violent past, will rule Monday whether the jury can hear about alleged brutality by a former policeman accused of killing Torres.

Terry Denson and Stephen Orlando are charged with murder in connection with the drowning of Torres in Buffalo Bayou. Torres' body was recovered May 18. Witnesses have testified they saw Denson push Torres off a 17-foot embankment into the bayou.

Former policeman Glenn Brinkney, who received immunity from state prosecution in return for his testimony, testified Friday about alleged past brutality incidents involving Denson.

Brinkney, who testified with the jury outside the room, said he saw Denson slap around subdued prisoners 10 or 15 times during the five years they rode as partners.

Brinkney also said he saw Denson slap a burglary suspect and then "choke him for a little while" at the scene of an arrest. He choked him with his hands and the burglar gasped, Brinkney said.

Last week, Warren ruled the jury could not hear testimony concerning alleged past acts of violence by Torres.

Donald Myers, Torres' Army sergeant, said Torres was discharged last November because he was "unsuitable" and was receiving treatment for alcohol use.

Myers also said Torres "tried to pull his karate stuff" on a group of Fayetteville, N.C., policemen who had to forcibly subdue him. He kicked one of them pretty bad, Myers said.

Defense attorneys claimed Warren's refusal devastated their case.

The ruling takes issues away from the jurors and determines for them what inferences to draw from testimony and which witnesses to believe, defense attorney Mike Ramsey said.

Ramsey and defense attorney Bob Bennett contend Torres' "propensity for violence" shows that the two officers did not intend to beat Torres.

The state contends that Brinkney should be allowed to tell jurors about Denson's past because Denson testified he had never slapped other prisoners.

Denson also denied telling Brinkney about throwing a wine into a ravine.

Accompanying Denson on this incident, Brinkney testified, was officer Joseph Janish, now facing trial on a misdemeanor assault charge in the Torres death.

Powerful bondsman convicted

FREDERICKSBURG, Tex. (AP) — Frank H. Smith, once a powerful Austin courthouse figure with a multi-million bail bond business, was convicted Friday of plotting an armed robbery in which a gunman was killed.

Smith, who had two previous felony convictions, automatically received a life sentence under the state's habitual criminal law.

The jury, which received the case on a change of venue from Austin, had heard testimony that Smith had plotted the robbery 11 months ago of the Isaac Rabb auto salvage yard.

Just after Smith, also in the salvage business, left $15,000 in cash with Rabb for some junked cars, a gunman burst into Rabb's office but was felled with a blast from Rabb's shotgun.

Underworld witnesses told the jury that Smith set up the robbery and earlier had hired men to burn out the Rabb business. Rabb and Smith had been at odds over junked car dealings, witnesses said.

There also was testimony that Smith was a social friend of Sheriff Raymond Frank, who personally went to Oklahoma to bring back a witness against Smith.

Mediators enter strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Hours after Atlantic and Gulf coast dockworkers struck Saturday, the top federal mediator strove for a solution to the problem of automation — central to the dispute.

Some 50,000 members of the International Longshoremen's Association struck at 12:01 a.m. to back demands for a new job security plan that has divided waterfront employers.

While the strike was directed at container operators, blamed by the ILA for loss of thousands of dockworker jobs, it was extended to conventional freighters by local action in New Orleans, biggest port on the Gulf.

Wayne L. Horvitz, national director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, resumed separate meetings with ILA President Thomas W. Teddy Gleason and chief shipper negotiator James J. Dickran.

Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall meanwhile issued a statement ruling out for the present a Taft Hartley action that could force a return to work during an 80-day cooling off period.

"I want to make it clear that the federal government does not intend to intervene in this dispute at this time," he said in Washington. "If federal intervention is expected this expectation will only jeopardize collective bargaining.

A national emergency situation required for such intervention appeared unlikely to develop in the near future if the scope of the strike remained limited.

Meanwhile, Postal Service officials imposed an embargo on surface mail destined for Europe, Africa and South America and letters addressed to those areas will not be accepted at post offices, unless the items are to be sent by air.

The mail embargo areas also include the Soviet Union, Greenland, Iceland, the Middle East and Caribbean islands, including Puerto Rico.

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph Frank, author of "Dostoevsky: The Seeds of Revolt, 1821-1849," has been awarded the James Russell Lowell Prize for his biography of the Russian author, the Modern Language Association has announced.

The book by Frank, professor of comparative literature at Princeton University, is part of a projected four-volume work on the life of Dostoevsky.

Frank was given a $1,000 cash award.

TEXAS TALK
By Qoyg Howard

The risk of using pesticides versus the risk of not using them to assure optimum production and safety of food is the ultimate evaluation where the food system's welfare is concerned. One scientist described recently what the future without pesticides might hold:

- Total output of crops and livestock combined would be reduced immediately by at least 30%.
- The price of farm products would increase by 50 to 75%.
- Farm exports would be eliminated.
- The number of agricultural workers currently on farms would have to be doubled.
- Instead of spending 17% of the family income on food, we would spend 30-40% and more to provide for current food needs.
- Without increasing the amount of land in farm crops, we could not provide food for more than 40% of our current population.

Can world survive growth?

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
THE WOODLANDS, Tex. (AP) — A group of scientists, educators, researchers, and politicians, will spend the next three days discussing whether the world will survive or collapse under the strain of a population growth and a demand for more and more services.

The conference, called "Alternatives to Growth '77", will bring to this new city on the fringe of Houston speakers from seven nations to probe the problems of business, energy, sociology, labor, technology, ecology and agriculture.

The second of five scheduled biennial international conferences begins Sunday night with speeches by U.S. House Speaker Thomas (Tip) O'Neill, D-Mass., and Ivor Richard, British ambassador to the United Nations.

The sessions are being co-sponsored by The Club of Rome, the University of Houston and the Mitchell Energy and Development Corp. of Houston.

On the agenda is a report by three scientists who have developed a new statistical policy analysis tool that can look into the future and predict the needs for food, the success or failure of various energy programs, and global growth.

The new statistical tool was developed by Dr. Mihajlo Mesarovic and Dr. Barry Hughes, both of Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, and Dr. Eduard Pestel of Hannover University, West Germany.

With use of the computer system, the scientists already have predicted that the world will experience great famines by the year 2000 and steep increases in the price of food.

The scientists said the system will be used to offer world leaders an alternative to policy making decisions which often are based on limited knowledge and personal intuition.

Bodies of 21 Viet victims returned home

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — In the glare and sweltering heat of Vietnam's afternoon sun American soldiers and sailors Friday lifted the remains of 21 American servicemen and a civilian into the belly of a military cargo plane that would take them home for the last time.

The servicemen had died during the Vietnam war that ended in April 1975 and their remains were being turned over to the United States after long negotiation by the Vietnamese Communists.

After the brief ceremony, Vu Hoang of the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry said: "We have cooperated closely on these humanitarian matters. We need to settle the past perfectly, so we can have good and sound basis for establishing normal relations between the two countries."

The joint mission of the U.S. Defense and State departments was the fifth to Hanoi to accept the remains of Americans killed in the Indochina war.

Sixteen of the small, black metal boxes loaded aboard the U.S. Air Force C-141 Starlifter contained remains identified by the Vietnamese as members of the U.S. armed forces.

Five others had U.S. servicemen not yet identified.

Frank Sieverts, coordinator for prisoner-of-war and missing-in-action affairs for the State Department, said the names will be released only when the army's Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii confirms the identities.

The 22nd body was that of Tucker Gougelman, whose family lives in New York. Gougelman, a civilian, reportedly died in Saigon in June, 1976, a year after the former South Vietnam capital fell to Communist-led forces.

PISD studies gift proposal

The Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees will consider a Colorado resident's offer to give the district royalty interest in her Gray County property during a 7 a.m. meeting Wednesday.

Genevieve M. Baker of Estes Park, Colo. said she would like to give a .000260 royalty interest in her property to the school. She received $16.91 from it last year. Dwain Walker, business manager, said the school attorney, is investigating the matter and will advise the board at the meeting.

Other items on the agenda include a review of the wrestling program for the school district, and repair of tennis courts.

An executive session to discuss personnel matters is also on the agenda.

Good for six points

Wheeler Mustang Marvin Grimes was brought down, but on the payoff side of the goal line. Grimes crossed the line three times Friday night — twice for touchdowns and once for a conversion. He ran for a total of 218 yards in 28 carries. Wheeler whipped Groom, 27-7.

After the first quarter of play at Nicholson Stadium it looked as if No. 5-ranked Groom was going to lower the boom on the No. 1-ranked Wheeler Mustangs once again.

In the second stanza though, Wheeler Head Coach Preston Smith unleashed his horses and the Mustangs were off and running to a 27-7 class B win over the Tigers.

A crowd of more than 2,000 watched one of the biggest victories in Wheeler history as junior tailback Marvin Grimes assaulted the Tiger defense two times for 218 yards and two touchdowns.

The Mustangs showed versatility as senior signal caller Bobby Guthrie hit Myron Jolley with a 47-yard TD strike. Wheeler racked up 389 yards in total offense.

Taking advantage of their first possession of the game, the Mustangs marched flawlessly 58 yards in eight plays for what turned out to be their only score of the contest.

Groom's multi-purpose running back John Krizan took a handoff from Tiger quarterback Kris Black and bolted nine yards for the touchdown. Neil Weiberg added the extra point and with 5:51 left in the first quarter, the Tigers had the lead and the momentum.

According to Groom Head Coach Russell Roberts, "We felt we could throw on them; but that first interception in the second quarter was the play that turned the whole game around."

Two plays later Marvin Grimes weaved 31 yards for a touchdown. Although the Mustangs were unable to convert the point after, one could almost sense the Wheeler side of the scoreboard had just gotten warmed up.

Later in the second quarter, the Mustangs came up with another interception. This time instead of playing ball control, Mustang quarterback Bobby Guthrie threaded the needle and found junior split end Myron Jolley in the open on a post pattern for 47 yards and six points.

Taking no chances the Mustangs went for two. Man of the hour Marvin Grimes ran in the conversion and at half time the Mustangs owned a 14-7 lead.

After the intermission the Mustangs took up where they had left off and fashioned a 70-yard drive in just five plays with Grimes adding his second touchdown of the game on a nine-yard run. Once again the point after attempt was no good, but the Mustangs had opened up a 20-7 advantage with four minutes left in the third quarter.

Then, just when it looked like the Tigers were down and out, they started a last ditch effort from their own 24 and journeyed toward Mustang paydirt. The big play in the drive was a 42-yard pass completion from quarterback Kris Black to running back Neil Weiberg, and in no time at all the Tigers were knocking on the door with first down and goal to go on the Wheeler one yard line.

The Tigers had four cracks at a touchdown but were denied by a tremendous goal line stand. On fourth down Black bootlegged left but was smothered by a host of Mustangs and Wheeler took over the ball and the game at the 10 yard line.

According to Wheeler Head Coach Preston Smith the entire defense played super, but both Mike Lee and Brett Mosley were fantastic.

The Mustangs put the icing on the cake with a 16-play drive that covered 90 yards as junior running back Kent Vise scored from the seven. Tim Patterson then kicked the extra point, and the final score went on the board — Wheeler 27 and Groom 7.

Friday night's win over Groom was Wheeler's first win over the Tigers since 1971, and according to Wheeler head coach Preston Smith, "we won cause they beat us last year."

Wheeler will remain in the No. 1 spot in the rankings, and the Mustangs may play far beyond their regular season schedule this year.

Shula prefers dreams to facing Oilers today

MIAMI (AP) — "Nightmares?" Don Shula gazed serenely at the horizon. He had been asked if disturbing memories lingered from the last time the Miami Dolphins met the Houston Oilers and suffered a costly defeat.

"I'd rather be dreaming of the future," said Shula.

But the Dolphins' coach conceded Sunday afternoon's National Football League meeting in the Orange Bowl won't be serene. "Houston is tough, defensively," he said. "Their front seven is really tough."

It's a matchup of 2-0 teams. Houston has beaten the New York Jets and Green Bay while Miami defeated Buffalo and San Francisco.

Shula said the Dolphins may have to do without the big play offense displayed last week as bespectacled quarterback Bob Griese hit Nat Moore with scoring passes of 32 and 73 yards in a 19-15 victory over San Francisco.

Moore also took a flanker reverse on a third-and-inches play and raced 19 yards for another touchdown.

"We don't expect to get it in bunches against Houston," said Shula. "But we hope to get it when we need it."

The last regular season meeting, in 1975, seemed a sure-thing victory as Charlie Babb intercepted a pass to halt a late Houston drive. But a penalty allowed Houston to retain the ball, and Ronnie Coleman ran seven yards to score with 1:11 remaining.

The conversion was good and Houston won 20-19. Earlier in the game, two conversion attempts by Dolphin kicker Garo Yepremian were blocked by Bubba Smith.

The defeat eventually cost Miami a playoff spot.

Smith is no longer with the Oilers. And Yepremian may not be with the Dolphins for Sunday's game. He has been bothered by a pulled hamstring since the start of training camp and missed workouts this week.

Hookie Mike Michel is the probable Miami kicker.

Veteran offensive guard Larry Little was hospitalized Wednesday with a stiff neck. He was out of the hospital and attended practice Friday, but did not work out. A Dolphin spokesman said Little planned to work out today and would likely start Sunday.

After a preseason when Houston gave up 11 interceptions and lost four of eight fumbles, Oilers coaches went to work on stopping the giveaways.

Follett falls to Miami

MIAMI — A balanced running attack led by fullback Randy Stone and halfbacks Curtis Cowan and Barton Bean helped the Warriors to a 32-19 district victory over Follett here Friday night.

Stone scored on two-yard runs in each of the first two quarters. The 212-pounder totaled 88 yards in 19 attempts for the game.

Follett got on the board in the second quarter when Evan Wiley recovered a Miami fumbled punt in the end zone. Wiley kicked the extra point to pull the visitors within nine at 16-7.

But Barton Bean ran three yards in the closing minutes of the quarter to give Miami a 24-7 halftime lead.

Follett's Colin Kellen tallied a pair of scores in the third period.

but Curtis Cowan ran in from the five to tie the fourth to tie the game for Miami.

"Aiding Stone in the rushing department were Cowan with 87 yards in 17 carries, and Bean with 81 yards in 18 totes."

Miami, now 3-1 in the district and 4-1 overall, will play at McLean this Friday.

Record kicked

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — University of Texas kicker Russell Erxleben set a major college football record Saturday when he kicked on a 67-yard field goal in a 72-15 rout of Rice.

The third quarter kick broke the record set last year when Texas A&M's Tony Franklin blasted a 65-yarder.

Erxleben's kick, however, was two yards short of the NAIA mark. Abilene Christian's Ove Johansson booted a 69-yard field goal last season against East Texas State.

The Longhorns were leading 54-7 when Erxleben set the record. The Horns' kicker was the nation's leading punter last season.

Sunray blisters White Deer

SUNRAY — Sunray exploded for seven first-half touchdowns and breezed to a 55-6 district victory over White Deer here Friday night.

Sunray, now 4-1, and 1-0 in district 1-A play, has outscored opponents 114-6 in the last two games.

Brent McCallie paced Sunray with touchdowns runs of one and seven yards, and was seven-for-seven in kicking extra points.

Bruce Broxson scored twice on runs of 28 and 14 yards. Sunray scored on every possession in the first half.

The Bucks finally got on the board when Tim Simpson knifed

Archer up by four

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — George Archer, unrattled by a three-putt bogey on the first hole, came back with 10 birdies and tied the course record with a 63 Saturday which gave him a four-stroke lead after three golf tournaments.

The tall Californian's nine-under-par round gave him a 54-hole total of 201, a whopping 15 strokes under par. He started the day, his 38th birthday, two strokes off the lead.

Archer's 63 tied the record for Silverado Country Club's 6,870-yard North course set last year by Johnny Miller, a two-time winner of the event who failed to make the cut in this year's tournament on his hothe course.

Mac McLendon, co-leader with Grier Jones after 36 holes, was three under par with a 69

Tie game may cost Sherman

By The Associated Press

In a hotly protested game, Plano tied top-ranked Sherman 14-14 on a last-minute touchdown by quarterback Steve Ulmer Friday night.

But conflicting reports gave Plano the edge on first downs because of a tie in penetrations and Sherman an edge on penetrations — and Sherman Coach Tommy Hudspeth said he'll protest the game before the district committee. If Plano and Sherman were to tie in District 13-4A, the favored Bearcats would lose out on their bid for the state championship.

Elsewhere around the state, six teams ranked in The Associated Press schoolboy poll were defeated. Four lost to district foes.

Wheeler in Class B, thrashed Godley 60-20 in a game that was delayed 45 minutes after a Godley player was injured. Offensive back Jason Matthews was taken to a Cleburne hospital with neck injuries after he ran into a wire fence off the sidelines after a tackle.

In a Class 4A upset, ninth-ranked San Antonio MacArthur took a 14-12 district loss to Seguin. Another District 32-4A team, No. 10-rated San Antonio Churchill, beat Schertz Clemens 27-10.

No. 2-ranked Port Neches-Groves remained unbeaten with a 35-14 victory over Nederland and No. 3 Temple blanked Cog-roe 10-0.

Class 3A favorite Gregory-Portland, in its first week atop the AP rankings, blasted 55-15 while previous leader Mount Pleasant, now rated No. 2, beat Liberty-Eylau 34-14. Third-ranked Humble shut out Vidor 28-0 and No. 4 Brownwood edged Burkburnet 24-21.

Ninth-ranked Sonora was the only Class 2A ranked squad to lose. Brady beat Sonora 34-10.

Top-ranked Bellville beat Boling 36-0 in a 2A game. Jacksboro, rated second, trimmed Bowie 7-6, and No. 3 Spearman defeated Shamrock 49-13.

Second-ranked Farwell suffered a 29-26 upset loss to Shallowater to shuffle the Class A ranks.

In Class B, top-rated Wheeler defeated No. 6-ranked Groom 27-7 in a district game. Celeste also lost its Class B district game to Prosper, 28-7.

Kensler calls 'em

Welborn to scratch two-platooning?

Friday night, Pampa fans could see some familiar faces in some unfamiliar positions. The Kensler coaching staff has used the extra week of practice (due to last Friday's open date) to experiment with some personnel changes.

To shore up some weak points, Pampa coach John Welborn is thinking of ditching his two-platoon system so that six top seniors can play both ways.

Welborn's divorce from two-platoon football will not be an easy one. Welborn playing people both ways is like Woody Hayes throwing on third and two, or Barry Switzer running out of the I formation. It's like separating Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy.

But the Pampa mentor realizes the Harvesters' chances of winning are slim when the opposition scores 30 points each time out, and the Pampa quarterbacks are continually forced to scramble out of trouble.

"We've got to change something, and the only thing left to do is play our best athletes both on offense and defense where they can help us the most," Welborn said.

"We don't have enough players who will get after it. Too many just stand up and wait for people to come at them, and by that time it's too late. We're hoping the seniors can take over and give us more aggressive play," Welborn said.

During the past week, quarterback Steve Young has been working in the defensive secondary, and receivers Gary Dumas and David Green have practiced with the defensive ends and linebackers.

Young would add speed to a secondary which has been burned for four touchdowns over 20 yards. Green and Dumas would give the Harvesters Class 4A-sized linebackers for the first time this season.

Pampa's lack of size is also woefully evident in the offensive line, and don't be surprised to see Marvin Oliver and Charles Copeland knockin' heads with the Monterey defenders. Oliver and Copeland are two of the strongest players on the team and probably the most aggressive.

Welborn has been searching for a big fullback ever since David Caldwell played his last game and he may have finally discovered one in Tommy Albus. The 6-3, 190-pound defensive end hasn't played offense since junior high but has shown promise in his new role.

The Pampa coaches dream of Albus making the tough yardage or throwing a key block springing Rudy Roland to a big gain.

There is always the danger the six seniors won't have the stamina to play 48 minutes, but Welborn has no choice. After all, the Harvesters have been defeated by four teams which have two-way players.

The hard, cold fact is that a change had to be made. Pampa coaches were hoping the Harvesters would chalk up a couple of early wins for confidence boosters.

But that didn't happen.

The Pampa offense has moved the ball well in spurts, but turnovers have killed most scoring opportunities. The defense has for the most part been pushed up and down the field, allowing four touchdowns per game and giving the offense poor field position on exchanges.

But the coaching staff will tell you the team's difficulty is not due to a lack of effort.

It comes down to the three m's: meat, muscle and movement.

The Harvesters are smaller and have less speed than previous Pampa teams, and the opposition has capitalized handsomely on that weakness.

Likewise, the Pampa coaches want to give Monterey, Plainview and the district teams their best shot.

OU bops Kansas in Big Eight play

By J. LEE CARRIER
AP Sports Writer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Quarterback Thomas Lott scored three times as Oklahoma ground out a methodical 24-9 football victory over Kansas here Saturday to open Big Eight conference play for the No. 1 ranked Sooners.

Oklahoma was content to keep the ball on the ground and inside most of the time. Lott tried just two passes the first half, and both were incomplete.

The Sooners rolled up 176 yards rushing in the first half while holding Kansas to just 71 yards total offense.

Oklahoma, which has been plagued with turnovers, fumbled only once in the opening half, but that killed a scoring drive at the Kansas two-yard line. However, it didn't matter, as the Sooners continued to move the ball and got on the scoreboard with Lott's eight-yard keeper late in the second period.

Oklahoma broke the game open in the third quarter on two more touchdowns by Lott, a nine-yard run and a four-yard run, and Uwe von Schamann's 35-yard field goal.

The Jayhawks got their scores late in the fourth quarter when Von Schamann was tackled in the end zone while trying to punt and when Mark Vicencze hit Bobby Battle with a scoring toss with 11 seconds left in the game.

Michigan shows off 41, A&M 3

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—What was expected to be a showdown between two of the nation's college football super powers Saturday wound up being an opportunity for third-ranked Michigan to show off on national television.

The Wolverines, who struggled to victories over Duke and Navy the previous two weeks while rated No. 1, surprised many by overwhelming fifth-ranked Texas A&M, 41-3.

"They beat us in every area of football: offense, defense and kicking," said A&M Coach Emory Bellard. "They did a thoroughly complete job on us."

In the opposite dressing room, Coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan insisted: "The final score is not indicative of the strengths of the two teams. Texas A&M is a lot better than it showed today."

Despite the lopsided score before a crowd of 104,802 — third largest in Michigan Stadium's 50-year history — Schembechler said the Wolverines can't dwell on the triumph.

"We're not going to savor this victory, however," he said. "I've got to get my boys to remember next week we're back in the (Big Ten) conference race."

Next Saturday Michigan plays arch-rival Michigan State at East Lansing.

Fullback Russell Davis was the spearhead of the Wolverine attack, scoring a pair of touchdowns.

The fifth-ranked Aggies got a 24-yard field goal from Tony Franklin in the first quarter, five plays after Mike Williams recovered a Davis fumble at the Michigan 27. But it was the Wolverines' game the rest of the way in the 50th anniversary game at Michigan Stadium before a crowd of 104,802 and a regional television audience.

Davis wound up with 110 yards rushing in 19 carries, his touchdowns coming on a four-yard run in the second quarter and a one-yard plunge in the third as the Wolverines took a 13-3 lead.

Michigan's defense, led by Dwight Hicks, Jim Pickens, Mike Jolly, Ron Simpkins and Dom Tedesco, stifled the touted A&M offense led by massive fullback George Woodard and halfback Curtis Dickey.

Davis' touchdowns followed fumble recoveries. Michigan's other touchdowns were a 35-yard pass from Rick Leach to Curt Stephenson, an eight-yard run by Harlan Huckleby, a recovered punt in the end zone by Pickens and a 50-yard interception return by Jolly.

Stephenson's touchdown catch over the head of defensive back Jimmy Hamilton broke the game open in the third period and started Michigan comfortably toward its fourth victory without a loss, dropping the Aggies to 3-1.

It was the first touchdown in Stephenson's college career. He is a senior who was a walk-on as a freshman.

Aggie quarterback David Walker tried to get A&M back in the game through the air, but Hicks ruined that idea with an interception at the A&M 30. Four plays later, Huckleby swept the right side on a pitch from Leach for his eight-yard

TD, 31 seconds into the fourth quarter.

Two minutes later linebacker Simpkins, a sophomore from Detroit, blocked David Appleby's punt and defensive back Pickens recovered in the A&M end zone.

Tedesco ruined another Aggie possession by recovering a gickey fumble at the Michigan 49.

Walker completed just one of nine passes for three yards and his backup, Mike Mosley, threw one pass and that's the one Jolly returned for the touchdown interception.

However, the Aggies did manage to move the ball on the ground, mostly on the work of 6-foot, 270-pound fullback Woodard. He huffed the ball 39 times for 153 of A&M's 208 yards rushing.

Walker's quarterback counterpart, Leach, wasn't very accurate through the air himself. He completed just six of 18 passes, but for 106 yards.

Simpkins, far and away Michigan's leading tackler this season, topped the Wolverines with 10 solo tackles and four assists and was named the defensive player of the game by ABC — which telecast the game as its primary college

Tech takes N. Carolina

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Reserve sophomore quarterback Mark Johnson, in his first varsity game, led the 13th-ranked Texas Tech to a come-from-behind 10-7 college football victory over North Carolina Saturday afternoon. Johnson, spurred in for 3 yards for the Red Raiders first touchdown early in the third quarter, and a 35-yard field goal by Bill Adams with 3:44 left sealed the win.

The victory gives Texas Tech a 3-1 record while North Carolina fell to a 2-2 mark. Both teams played without their star quarterbacks. Tech's Rodney Allison suffered a broken leg last week while North Carolina starter Matt Kupec was out with a sprained knee and ankle. Johnson's score was on the opening drive of the second half, a dazzling 80-yard drive that was highlighted by a 38-yard run by fullback Billy Taylor and gains of 12 and 17 yards by Johnson.

His 3-yard scoring came after he broke a tackle in the backfield and dashed around right end and squeezed into the end zone corner as two Tar Heel defenders hauled him down.

A sellout crowd of 48,000 watched as North Carolina got on the scoreboard first with a 7-0 lead with 5 minutes left in the first half. The Red Raiders had been bottled up inside their 20, and on a fourth-and-16 their punters Mike Mock bobbled the pass from center, then fell on the ball, giving Carolina possession on the 6.

On the first play, reserve Tar Heel quarterback Clyde Christensen handed off to tailback Phil Farris who swept around left end for the score.

On Tech's first possession, the Red Raiders opened with a 9-yard pass play, but then were unable to advance the ball. Adams was called in, and his attempted 54-yard field goal fell just short of the cross bar.

After Tech's winning score, the Tar Heels on a desperation fourth-and-one failed when Christensen was thrown for a 13-yard loss, and the Red Raiders took over on the Carolina 16.

Orioles' win puts Yankees in BOSTON (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles boosted the New York Yankees into the American League East championship by defeating the Boston Red Sox 8-7 Saturday on a barrage of six homers, including two by rookie Eddie Murray.

While the Yankees sat in their New York clubhouse during a rain-delayed game with Detroit, the Orioles unloaded their big guns in burying Boston's final hopes on the next-to-last day of the regular season.

Dave Skaggs, Lee May, Rich Dauer and Doug DeCinces also homered for the Orioles, who were eliminated from the AL East race by the Red Sox Friday night.

Veteran right-hander Rick Wise, making his first start since Aug. 19, was bombed for four runs on three homers in three innings as the Orioles came back to a 4-1 deficit.

SWCD board sets election for Tuesday

An election for a director to serve in Zone 4 on the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District Board is scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Courthouse Annex meeting room, announced Jim Allison, chairman of the board.

A program will be presented on the Story of Soil and Water Conservation Districts in Texas.

State law decrees that to be eligible to vote in a soil and water conservation district director's election, a person must own agricultural land within the subdivision for which the election is being held. The person must also live in a county all or any part of which is in the district and the voter must be 21 years old.

Legal qualifications state that a candidate for the office of soil and water conservation district director must own land in the zone he represents, be 21 years of age and be actively engaged in farming or ranching. He must also live in a county all or part of which is in the district.

Zone 4 of the district includes an area from a line beginning at North - East corner of Gray Co. and taking in the following area: 7 1/4 miles south along Gray - Wheeler county line, then west along the section lines 12 1/4 miles, south 1 mile - west 3 miles, then North 8 1/4 miles to the Gray - Roberts county line - then east 15 1/4 miles to the northeast corner of Gray County. This area is currently served by Director Ralph McLaughlin of Laketon. Ralph was elected to serve as Director on Gray County SWCD Board in October 1972, currently he is vice - chairman of the Board.

Current directors are Allison, Curtis Schaffer, secretary, Grandview; Milton Carpenter, North McLean; Robert Sailor, Pampa.

New city rates begin Oct. 15

New rates assessed by the City of Pampa during its last Commission session will become effective on the first billing date after Oct. 15.

Mack Wofford, city manager, in explaining the change said the sewer charge will be based on the contribution the user makes - except for those who have the minimum consumption. Their rates will be hiked 20 cents.

However, the user will be billed according to the amount of water consumed - the minimum or actual consumption which ever is greater.

"These regulations are required by the federal government due to grant money used by the City in construction of the waste water treatment plant," Wofford said.

The rates for residential consumers will be based on the amount used last November and December, 1976 and January 1977.

This will not affect many residential consumers, Wofford said.

The commercial change will be based on the actual monthly usage he added.

Wofford stressed that big users will be the ones who see a major change in rates.

Pampa artists work with plants, clay

Permelia Stubbe makes dried plants come alive

Per Stubbe's art is seasonal. She gathers plants: "It depends on the season and the weather. Nature makes everything different each year; different colors or different sizes."

She weaves them into dried arrangements: "My house isn't always this full; only before the Christmas season and before shows."

Mrs. Stubbe is one of 86 exhibitors who will display their arts and crafts Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 9, in M.K. Brown Auditorium in Pampa. She has been involved in dried arrangements for 25 years, has been showing in galleries for 10 years and exhibited in the Top of Texas Arts and Crafts Festival last year. So her husband Martin has learned to stop by the side of the road when there's something I want." And they habitually carry two pairs of pruning shears in the car for clipping weeds and grasses which are carried gingerly in the car trunk to Mrs. Stubbe's workroom to be dried and stored.

Her collection of materials at 2118 Christine ranges from elegant pheasant feathers to birds nests, from devil's claws to corn.

She dries artichokes, grows okra, paints maize and cattails. She gathers sweet gumballs, strawberry popcorn and broomflowers.

She finds pinon cones in New Mexico, Chinese lanterns in Massachusetts, wild grasses by their lake near Shamrock.

She learned from her mother, from Garden Club work, and from asking questions. "Some plants I can't find the name of so I give them names of my own," she said.

Mrs. Stubbe intensified interest in her hobby, one she inherited from her mother, when high blood pressure forced her to quit teaching speech and English at Pampa Junior High School.

Working with arrangements is good for her, she believes. It's relaxing. She can work at her own pace. She gets outdoors.

Once a mountain man requested $5 to teach Mrs. Stubbe how to find desert spoons. The root of the plant forms a spoon-like dipper when dried. Mrs. Stubbe uses them lovingly in her bouquets.

Sometimes her plants spark the inspiration which creates each design. Sometimes it's the container. And Mrs. Stubbe loves containers!

Old kitchen scales, old sewing machine drawers, old baskets, new baskets, Indian pottery, Mexican pottery, brass pitchers, copper chafing dish, ceramic sea shell. "Nearly anything I can get my hands on I put an arrangement in," she laughed.

She'll cherish each and turn it into a work of art.

Other creations by Camelia, the name she used on her arrangements, include braided hospitality wreaths, silk arrangements and Christmas wreaths.

The Conquistador Gallery in Taos and Steele's Art and Frame Shop in Pampa carry lasting arrangements by Camelia.

A fun hobby that never bores ...

For Mary Mattenbrink, opening the kiln is like Christmas

Be careful if you sit on Mary Mattenbrink's sofa. Sometimes she keeps a ceramic pillow there.

And sometimes her husband protests she keeps it elsewhere. Still, the pillow, hand built from clay, is one of her most prized creations.

"I don't think people will be beating my door down for ceramic pillows," the petite brunette laughed. "But I wanted to see if I could do it ... there is no end to the things you can try."

Mary is beginning to discover how broad her hobby can be. She got into ceramics four years ago when she and her husband, Harlan, lived in Nebraska where she grew up.

She studied merchandising and design at the University of Nebraska and taught home economics for three years in Iowa.

She now divides her time between her two sons, Pat who is 3 and 10-month-old Eric, and pottery.

When Natural Gas Pipeline Co. transferred Mattenbrink to Pampa, they packed their furniture, their sons, Mary's electric kiln and her assortment of creative tools which include ears of corn, straws and weed pods, and headed west.

Now she creates a wide array of pottery from her laundry room work bench: honey pots, weed holders, boxes.

The novel boxes, decorated with earth-type scenes which look like a mixture of Jolly Green Giant country and Middle Earth, are one of Mary's specialties.

She molds swirls on the sides into hills, pokes in trees and fields and glazes them in earth colors which she mixes herself.

"The hardest part is the glazes," she said. "I don't have the technical knowledge for the glazes."

She admitted that she's learned through lots of trial and error since she hasn't always been where she could learn from expert potters.

Each piece she forms from a slab of clay. It's called hand built in contrast to the turned pottery which artists build on a potter's wheel.

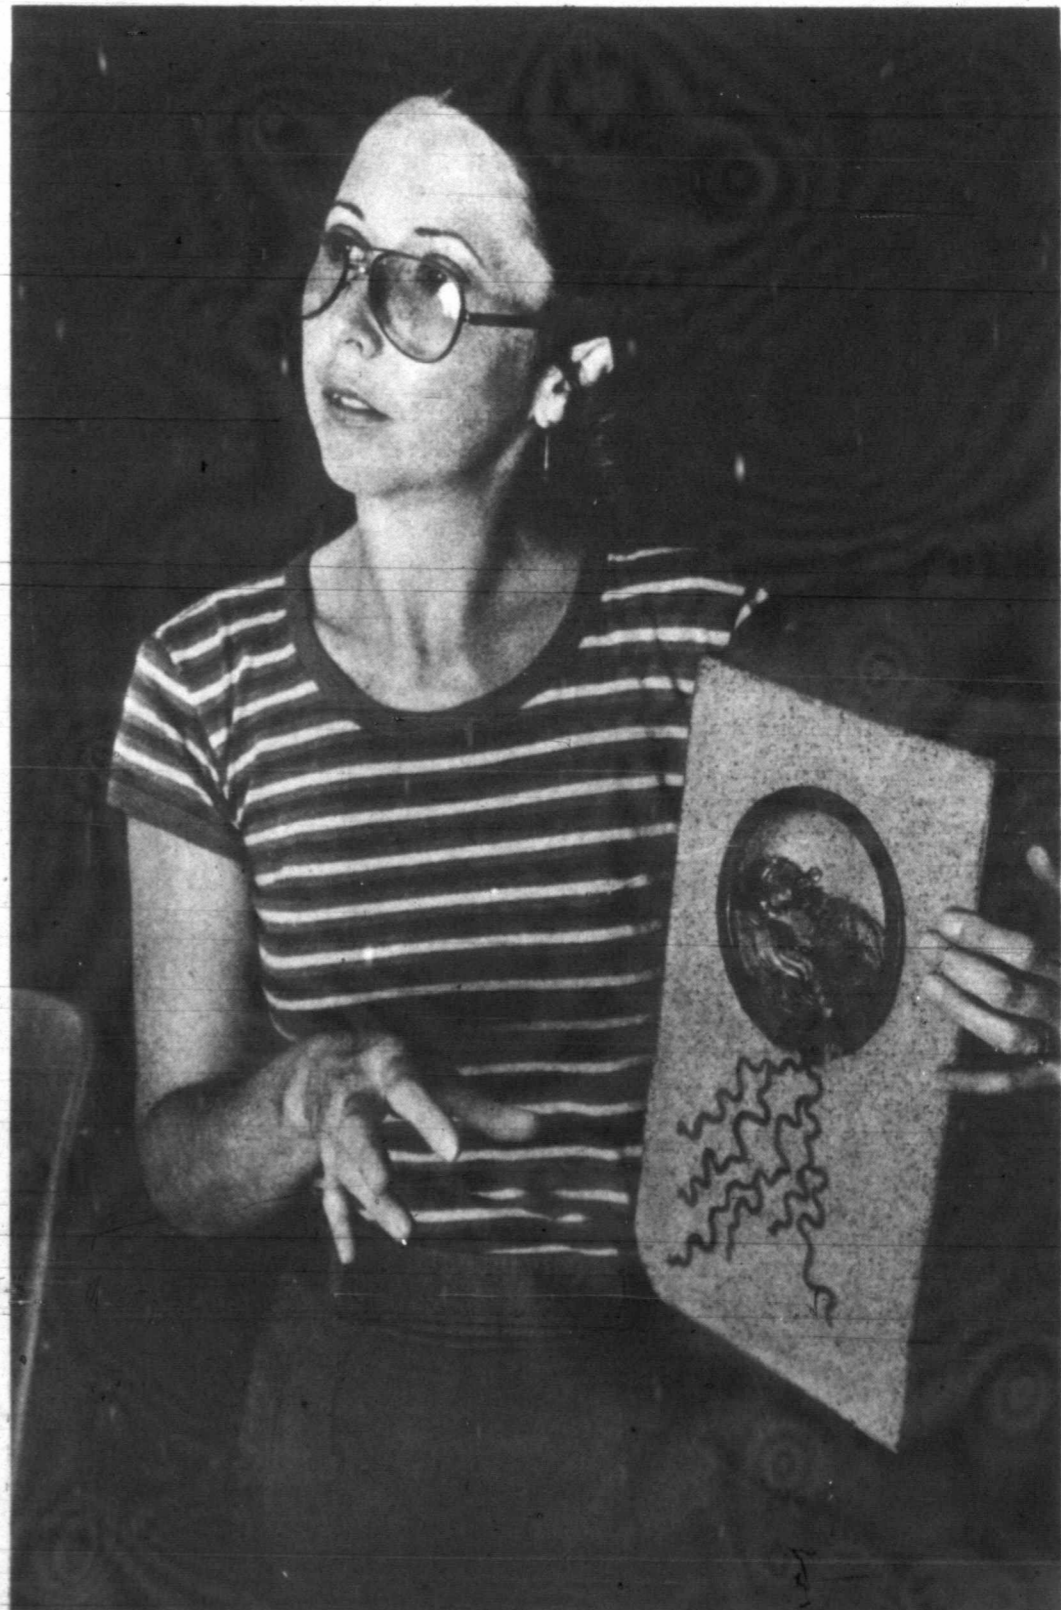

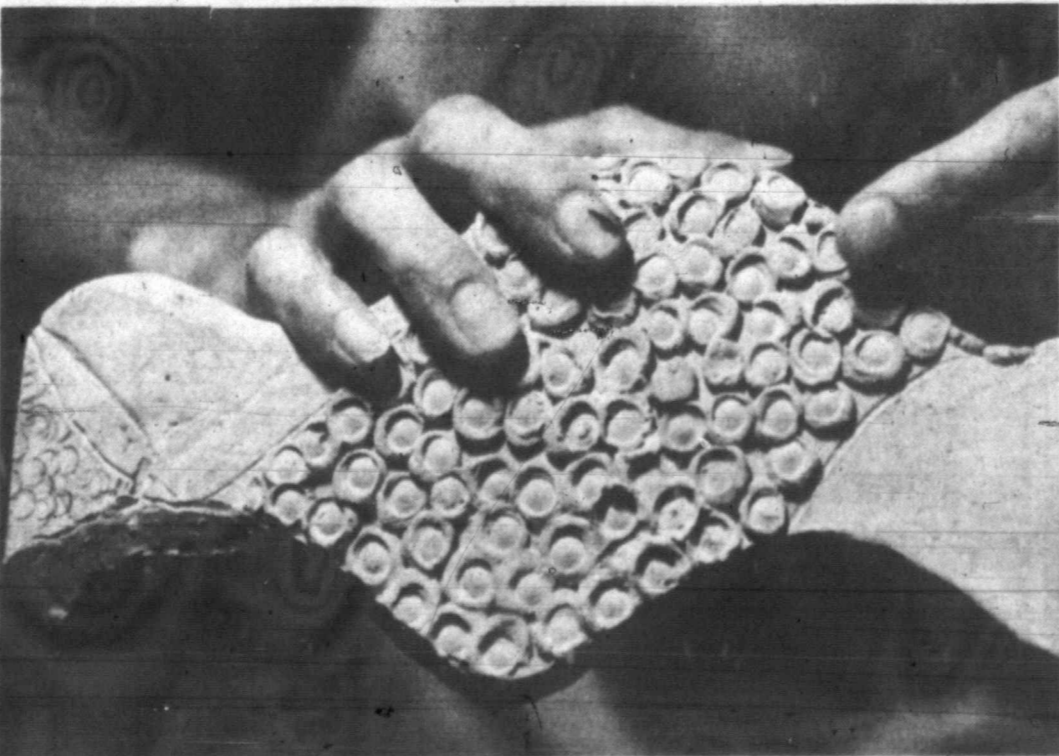

Mary doesn't have a wheel and so she hasn't learned that phase of her chosen avocation yet. But she hopes to now that she has a garage which is big enough to house a wheel and her kiln.

The energetic young woman calls herself an experimenter who loves to try different things in her craft.

She'd like to learn about wheel work so she can combine the two methods.

Meanwhile, she continues to experiment with hand built items. "Hand building is not as limiting ... you can make more imaginative things," she said.

Mary will be one of 86 exhibitors at the Top of Texas Arts and Crafts Festival slated for 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and 11 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 9.

"I don't like to have a pot entirely covered by glaze. I think it can't breathe or something." Mary Mattenbrink

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm a respectable middle-aged woman who never thought I'd be writing a Dear Abby letter, but I am.

While driving home alone from a meeting at about 11 p.m. last evening, I developed car trouble. Fortunately, I was in a residential neighborhood, so I rang the doorbell of a home, hoping to get someone to help me.

A man yelled through the locked door, "Who is it?" I told him of my plight, and he said, "Sorry, I don't open my door to strangers." I was shocked. I rang another doorbell. This time an elderly lady pulled her curtain aside to look at me, then she disappeared without even asking me what I wanted.

Then I tried to flag down a motorist. About 30 cars passed me before a young hippie-looking kid in a beat up old van stopped and gave me a ride to a gas station. One man was inside and he signaled he was closed and couldn't help me!

I finally found a pay phone and called AAA, which sent someone out to help me.

My question: Are we living in such a sick, selfish, paranoid society in which people care so little for each other that they won't open the door to a stranger? I could have been on my way to a hospital with a dying child for all those people cared. I welcome your comments.

BOILING

DEAR BOILING: In light of the widely publicized police directives cautioning us against opening one's door to strangers, I cannot fault those who refused to let you in. However, they could have made a phone call for you.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a dude who can't keep his eyes off other girls. What he does when he isn't with me can't hurt me because I don't see it, but when we're together and he stares at other girls, I'm hurt. He says blondes are his weakness.

I offered to bleach my hair blonde, but he says he likes me the way I am. Do you think he will change after we're married? He says he will, but I don't know whether to believe him. Any suggestions? Sign me,
JEANNIE WITH THE LIGHT BROWN HAIR

DEAR JEANNIE: Don't marry a man hoping he'll "change" for the better after marriage. He may change for the worse—or not at all.

DEAR ABBY: When I was a young boy, I lost the thumb and first two fingers of my right hand in a farming accident. I learned to write with my left hand, but I have another problem. People are always wanting to shake hands with me, and it's embarrassing when they realize that I have some fingers missing.

I have tried extending my left hand to shake hands, but it's very awkward, and only calls attention to the fact that something must be wrong with my right hand. If you can solve this one, you'll be my friend for life.
SOUTHPAW

DEAR SOUTHPAW: Ask your doctor to arrange an appointment with someone who specializes in "prosthesis" (artificial limbs, fingers, thumbs, etc.). Some "artificial parts" are so well made they look (and feel) like the real thing.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have no medical background. My concern is to keep my family healthy and happy, but when I read articles pertaining to health care, I am sometimes confused. Please help!

Is it true that taking zinc as a supplement tends to decrease the symptoms of arthritis? If arthritis is neglected will it lead to bone cancer?

With all the controversy over estrogen and uterine cancer, can vitamin E be taken, not as a substitute, but at least to alleviate menopausal symptoms?

Does a high protein diet add cholesterol to the body? I take gelatin capsules to solve the nail splitting but do not want to risk another problem.

DEAR READER — There is a lot of misinformation in print, particularly by those hawk vitamins, minerals and food supplements for pay and quasi health magazines that depend upon revenues from advertisements from firms marketing such items. I am not surprised that you are confused.

Zinc in limited quantities is important to the body and a deficiency in zinc can be responsible for the loss of taste and smell. There are some inconclusive studies of its use in arthritis. The place to get proper guidance for the treatment of arthritis is from your doctor or a rheumatoid specialist. Wasting time and money on highly advertised so-called arthritis cures may delay or even decrease your opportunity for getting proper treatment.

Incidentally, we know that people feel better if they take almost anything and think it will help. This is true even with a serious disease. Hence, unscientific testimonials prove absolutely nothing.

Arthritis will not become bone cancer. The reason to treat arthritis is to eliminate pain and maintain function. Vitamin E has no value at all in alleviating the symptoms of the menopause. Any so-called results are simply the faith healing response. If a person had faith in sugar pills they would do just as well.

A high protein diet alone will not increase your cholesterol unless that means taking in more calories than your body needs. The problem is that many so-called high protein foods also contain a lot of fat such as some cuts of meat, whole milk (about 50 per cent of its calories are fat and a high percentage is saturated fat).

Gelatin will not hurt you. You can get better protein out of lean beef with all the fat removed or from lean fish, such as flounder or sole or from the lean pieces of chicken, such as breast meat with the fat and skin removed. Some women find that nail polish or polish remover is a factor in causing nail problems.

The best thing you can do for your family is to give them a balanced diet. To help you I am sending you The Health Letter number 46, Balanced Diet, Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA). Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

Women in the childbearing years often need extra iron and a single all purpose vitamin tablet a day with iron will not hurt you.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — Do not throw away that empty pump-style hair spray bottle. Wash it out, fill with water and use it to mist the leaves of your house plants. Such a bottle could be painted or decorated in an attractive way and placed near your plants.

— MRS. G.
DEAR POLLY — and Laura — Yes, something can be done about that static electricity from rugs. I had the same problem and used those paper strips that I buy for my dryer to cut down the static in clothes. I also had my daughter and niece, who were bothered most, put a strip on the bottom of each shoe and they also rubbed their hands with a piece occasionally. This all worked beautifully. — MRS. R.S.

DEAR POLLY — When baking pies or cakes I am short of racks to cool them on. I use the grates from the top of my stove. They are high enough so the air can circulate under them and in a pinch they could even be used as trivets on a table. Just make sure they are not too hot to handle or have any grease on them. — MRS. T.J.M.

The Rev. Marvin Brewer officiated at the wedding ceremony. Special music was presented by Miss Melinda Marble, pianist, and Mrs. Pat Young, soloist.

Other bridal attendants were Miss Diana Sangster of Skellytown, maid of honor; Mesdames Keith Malone and Mrs. Jim McLarty, both of Amarillo.

The bridegroom's attendants included Pat Sloan, Jim Saye and Jim McLarty, all of Amarillo.

The reception took place in the West Amarillo Christian Church with Mrs. Jim Hutchinson and Mrs. Roy Jenkins assisting.

The couple departed for a wedding trip to San Antonio and will live in Seymour.

She is a 1977 graduate of Northwest Texas Hospital School of Nursing, and is now employed as a registered nurse at the Seymour Hospital Authority. Her husband was graduated from West Texas Barber College, and is self-employed at Windbreaker Barber Styling Center in Seymour.

WT opens arts center

At West Texas State University the Mary Moody Northern Hall, the new fine arts center, will open with the "Galaxy 77" ball to be in the center from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. on Saturday. It is sponsored by the Friends of the Fine Arts and the Advisory Council on Campus Enhancement of WTSU.

The formal dedication ceremony for the facility will be 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 9, the following day, in the Recital Hall. The public is invited to both events. For tickets, write to "Galaxy 77," Box 238, WT Station, Canyon, 79016.

The dancing will be to the music of the Schnozz Dunn Orchestra. At 8:45 and again at 10:15, "Soleil," a laser light concert, will be presented in the Recital Hall.

This show has traveled all over the United States and has been brought to WTSU by the Student Activities Council. An original sound track will be playing as the marble-textured, three-dimensional forms appear in the air as red, blue and green laser beams move above the heads of the audience. At the same time two-dimensional images appear and disappear on the walls and ceiling during the laser music spectacle.

A faculty trio will be performing Beethoven pieces. There will be student and faculty demonstrations throughout the building, including organ recitals, metal smithing, sculpture, ballet, pottery, music therapy, electronic music demonstrations, oil painting, graphics, drawing and textiles.

George Eason and Company will be playing easy-listening jazz out on the patio.

The tickets to the ball are only $7.50 each.

If you are putting beef for stew that has been tenderized with papain — a derivative of papaya — into the slow cooker, try using the high setting and cook it four hours. Use fairly large chunks of the meat.

Community profile: Leonard Cash

'Pampa changes but the people don't'

By CHARLIE BERMANT
Pampa News Staff

Leonard's Shine Parlor on West Foster has a homey and relaxed atmosphere missing at many newer and larger businesses.

But while it features a diverse selection of magazines, paperbacks and souvenirs, the most interesting aspect of Leonard's Shine Parlor is Leonard himself.

Leonard Cash was born in Pittsburgh, Tex. 62 years ago. He previously lived on a ranch, and came to Pampa in 1939 because it was a place where he thought he could earn a living and raise his family. His seven children now grown and scattered around the country. He worked at a soda fountain and a tire company in Pampa before opening his shine parlor.

He can tell you how the town has changed physically in 35 years, how there used to be only one building past the cemetery.

"The people haven't changed," he said. "There has been good people here since I moved in. The finest people I've ever known. You meet someone on the street and they're courteous, and that's not something you find everywhere."

Cash also has observed changes in racial attitudes from the days of segregated schools and the times where "you had to go into the back door, of a restaurant to get something to eat." Currently, Cash feels no racial tension in Pampa.

Cash knows many of his customers by name, and people are in and out of the store which Cash runs with his wife Mildred all day for magazines, candy, or a shoeshine.

He stays busy all day shining shoes, which he does at a meticulous and relaxed pace. It would be hard to imagine anyone shining a shoe more thoroughly.

Of his job Cash said, "I like to see the change — making an old dirty looking shoe clean and nice. Any shoe that I work on helps the look of them."

"I shine shoes because I like to shine shoes. If a person is doing something he likes it's easy, but if he doesn't like the job he has he won't get along very well with it."

Like most Pampa merchants, Cash implores his customers to "come back." But, unlike many others, he is not only saying this from habit, his enthusiasm makes you think he really means it.

Zeroid newest on toy shelves

DALLAS (AP) — Thanks to the smash movie "Star Wars," Christmas trees this year will have stars on top and star toys underneath — if toymakers get their holiday wish.

Between the annual Spring toy show here, at which manufacturers unveil their Christmas offerings, and the Fall show, which opened this week, something has happened to change the direction of toy merchandising.

"Star Wars" The movie has become a national phenomenon and the toy industry has been quick to cash in on the boom.

Many manufacturers have dusted off battery-powered robots, and some companies that have offered space-age items on "Star Trek" or "Buck Rogers" themes are busy trying to meet buyer demand.

But the genuine article, toys based on "Star Wars," will come only from Kenner Products, which scooped up the license for what Kenner President Bernie Loomis called, "a considerable investment." And the toymaker is trying valiantly to make the investment pay off, by coming up with a unique marketing idea: gift certificates.

"It takes several months to go into production on an item, so we don't even have one to show the buyers," Gerry Daugherty, a Kenner salesman said.

"But we are offering a gift package that includes a Star Wars display stand, stickers, club membership card and postage-paid mail-order card for a set of four plastic action figures from the movie — Luke Skywalker, Princess Leia Organa, Chewbacca the Wookiee and the robot R2-D2, registered under the trademark "Artoo Detoo."

The hitch, though, is the mail-order part. Buyers are uncertain about the problems parents might encounter when they find out they'll have to wait several months before getting the toys.

"We'll have advertising stressing the early-bird certificate," Daugherty said, "so children will know what they are getting and won't be disappointed. Then they'll be able to get the whole set later. Darth Vader, See Threeipo, Ben (Obi-Wan) Kenobi and other characters from the movie." But one toy store owner was not convinced.

FOLK ART

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — The Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Collection has put on display a 19th-century fireboard with a landscape called "The Castle of Montgomery." Fireboards were used until the mid-19th century to cover hearth openings when the fireplace was not in use, but well-documented Southern examples such as this one are rare. The subject of the landscape is believed to have been derived from a print or book illustration.

The painting was given to the museum in 1974 by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Moore of Spartanburg, S.C.

Kenner told me my allotment was 60," said a dealer from Beaumont, Tex. "I took 12."

The shop owner then visited the Ideal Toy Corp. display which offered a "Star Train" line and promising immediate delivery of action figures including "The dastardly Knight of Darkness," "Robot Zeroid" and "Zem 21."

"I'd rather have something for my kids to play with right away," said a Dallas mother. "Can you imagine their faces on Christmas morning when they unwrap an envelope? They'd be madder than a Wookiee!"

Women can help doctor with cure

(Sixth in a series)
By Louis Lasagna, M.D.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — (NEA) — Public attitudes toward medicines often resemble a roller-coaster. We careen wildly from premature peaks of overly optimistic expectations to the depths of despair over the potentially dangerous side effects.

Neither extreme is justified nor a healthy social attitude. Medicines cannot solve all our problems, but by the same token, they are not so dangerous as to justify public panic or widespread suspicion.

It is indeed a shame when unjustified negative publicity or misunderstanding of possible side effects inhibits people from taking a medicine that might be very beneficial to them with, at most, minimal and controllable risks.

Women have their own special relationship to the use of medicines due to the popularity of oral contraceptives, of drugs for the relief of menstrual discomfort and menopause problems, of drugs for dieting, as well as the fact that women generally supervise the taking of medicine by children.

Medicine usage is an important question. In 1975, it was estimated that Americans spent some $10 billion on drugs, from the simplest preparations to the most potent prescriptions. Yet, the watchword for drugs is simple: use them as you would drive a car, carefully and reasonably.

First and foremost, you must read the labels on medicines. The label — whether for prescription or proprietary medicines — contains important information. It tells you the proper dosage, how often to take the drug, and sometimes health conditions for which a drug might produce a harmful effect. No matter how excellent, medicines cannot help you if you don't take them correctly. Too small a dose or too large a dose can make a safe drug ineffective or even dangerous. Self-medication for minor problems such as a sore throat, sunburn or poison ivy is a necessary part of our health care system. If everyone with the smallest ailment consulted a physician, the entire system would collapse. But if the proper use of mild medication does not bring results fairly quickly, then by all means consult your physician. This is especially important with young children.

If it may happen that your doctor has prescribed medication, but despite careful following of the directions the condition does not clear up, or other symptoms start to develop. In this case, call your doctor. Perhaps the medicine is not right for you, or the ailment has developed a new complication.

There is a trend toward viewing medical treatment as a cooperative effort between doctor and patient. Only if you let the physician know what is happening can he or she best assist you in a cure.

Medicines can be powerful, especially prescription medicines, and they do not always mix. Excellent and safe individually, two or more drugs may be harmful if taken at the same time. If you are taking medicines, make certain that your physician knows about all the medicines you are taking, even if it's "only aspirin."

Sometimes nonmedical drugs like alcohol may also influence the effect of another drug. Discuss your eating and drinking habits with your doctor before embarking on a cure involving medicines to make certain that you avoid these complications as well.

Women should remember that the first few weeks of pregnancy are a crucial time for the health of the developing child. As soon as you suspect you are pregnant, do not take any medication, no matter how minor, until you have consulted your physician.

At home, especially if there are young children, you can help prevent accidental poisonings and assure the safe use of medicines by keeping the contents of the family medicine cabinet neat and up-to-date. Here are five steps to safety:

1. Empty the entire contents of the cabinet once or twice each year.
2. Carefully check all items and discard prescription drugs no longer being taken under a doctor's advice as well as any medication with a change in color or odor.
3. Discard medicines no longer in their original containers, in containers without complete label directions and in containers with labels that cannot be fully and clearly read.

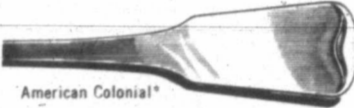

contents into sink or toilet and rise containers with water before placing in trash.

Coin find doubted

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A University of Texas anthropologist has cast doubt on the significance of the discovery of an ancient Roman coin that was dug from an Indian burial mound near Round Rock.

The presence of the coin in the mound gave rise to speculation that somehow, Roman sailors reached the Texas coast in ancient times.

"It's just possible that the coin was found in the mound. But as archeologists, we know that things get tossed around in those mounds," Prof. Jeremiah Epstein said in a speech Wednesday night.

He said the coin, whose discovery in 1963 made belated headlines this year, "was indeed found in an Indian context and on the original ground."

But he noted that the coin dates to around 300 A.D. and everything else excavated from the Indian mound is much older.

"There's always a chance that the coin may have worked its way down but chances are more likely that it was in the top of the mound," and that would date the coin's arrival in the site at "about 1960," he said.

Epstein observed that since such coins are of little value, it might have been handled carelessly by a modern-day Texan who was visiting the mound.

In agriculture

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent
Livestock Hedging Forum
The Chicago Mercantile Exchange in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will have a forum on livestock hedging Tuesday at the Amarillo Hilton Inn from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. All interested livestock producers are invited and encouraged to attend. A very outstanding program has been arranged and there will be no charge to those attending. If you want more information give me a call.

Fruit Growers Conference
The 1977 Texas Fruit Growers Conference will be held at the Rudder Tower on the campus of Texas A&M University on Tuesday and Wednesday. This conference is sponsored by the Texas Peach and Plum Growers Association and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Dr. Jarvis Miller will be inaugurated as the 18th President of Texas A&M University at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday. For this reason the Fruit Conference program will start at 1:30 on the 4th. Registration for our conference will be set for 10 a.m. until noon on Oct. 4 and then again starting at 1 p.m. The program will conclude at 4 p.m. on Wednesday.

Topics to be covered in the program include research results on peach insect, disease, variety, bloom delay, and herbicides, apples, grapes and plums.

Tree Problems
Mrs. D. Glaxner called several days back about a black walnut tree that was sick with a lot of yellowing leaves. The tree has a severe scorch which was probably caused by a bacterial blight. This disease is not common to West Texas but has been found occasionally. Periodic applications of copper fungicide in the early spring may prove beneficial. Three applications at ten day intervals when new leaves have developed should help.

Harold Cota had a question about his Mimosa tree that seemed to be dying on the northeast part of the tree. Dr. Robert Berry, area Extension plant pathologist, could find no symptoms of any disease on some specimens I sent him. We both agreed that the tree had suffered heavy hail damage last summer and the decline of the tree was probably caused by the hail.

Homeowners that had trees receiving hail damage need to consider a borax prevention program. Tree borers are more likely to invade trees suffering a lot of hail damage to the bark. Trees may be protected for 3 to 6 months by use of chemicals. The main trunk should be covered thoroughly up to 8 feet above ground with BHC or lindane spray applied in early spring and in early fall. Homeowners need to consider the early fall spray now as a preventative measure.

Fish for Ponds
In the past, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has provided fish for stocking private ponds at no charge to the pond owner. Due to present economic conditions and a change in the law, the Department will no longer provide this service free of charge.

This year, the Texas Legislature passed legislation allowing the Department to charge for fish delivered to private waters. The rates are designed to reimburse the Department only for cost of providing this service. The Parks and Wildlife commission has adopted the following charges to apply to fish delivered in 1978: Bass - $2.00 per acre, Catfish - $4.00 per acre, Sunfish - $5.00 per acre, and an application charge of $2.00. Ponds 75 acres or larger that require on-site delivery will be charged 25 cents per mile round trip from the hatchery.

The Department will also discontinue the practice of delivering fish to every county seat. Such deliveries are very costly and increase the price of the fish. It will be necessary for you to pick up the fish at a central distribution site for your area; or if you prefer, you can pick them up at the hatchery. As soon as distribution sites are announced, we will be notified in the Extension office.

To apply for fish, please write: Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Tx. 78744. Applications for fish at the above prices will be accepted until November 1, 1977.

New Garden Tool
A Texas man, Jim Lang, has developed a hand-held, spring-loaded lawn aerator that bounces up and down on the lawn, punching four-inch deep holes each time it goes down. The springs force the aerator to bounce back up again.

Lang calls his item the "Pogo Soil Aerator." He says it will cut water and fertilizer costs sharply.

Bergland orders foreclosure halt

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has issued orders to the Farmers Home Administration to take all steps possible to halt real estate foreclosures on low-income farm families for the remainder of this year.

The FmHA is the Agriculture Department's main lending agency to help low-income people buy or enlarge farms. It also handles other programs, including loans and grants, to help other rural people buy or improve homes, start small businesses and carry out community development projects.

Although not officially announced, sources said Thursday that directives are expected to be sent soon to state and local offices of the nationwide agency. One said that Bergland "gave a direct order" to FmHA to take all possible steps to head off farm loan foreclosures at least through the remainder of 1977.

An aide to Bergland confirmed that the order had been passed to the agency but said that FmHA "will not necessarily issue a blanket" halt to all foreclosures. Flagrant cases still may involve foreclosures, he said.

According to the sources, Bergland is alarmed that the current low prices of many farm commodities and a precipitous drop in net farm income from the record levels of a few years ago could have a disastrous effect on many of the low-income families who are buying farms through FmHA financing.

Farm roundup

Loans are made by FmHA only to those who cannot get credit from regular commercial sources. Most loans for real estate currently are financed directly by the agency, as opposed to "guaranteed" loans made by private lending institutions. In those, the FmHA guarantees the lender up to 90 per cent of the loan but the lender must assume the remainder of the risk.

Agency officials said that there has not been a sudden increase in FmHA foreclosures but that since money is so tight among farmers the possibility of this happening exists. Bergland was reported to want to head off further foreclosure developments until he can review the overall farm credit situation.

Meanwhile, one official of FmHA said that "people who are making a good effort to pay off their loans will get all the consideration we can give them."

The FmHA makes about 11,

000 farm ownership loans a year and has a budget for 1977-78 of $550 million.

As of last March 31, the agency had real estate loans outstanding of about $3 billion to 136,981 farm borrowers. Foreclosures average between 500 and 600 a year, a spokesman said.

Prune, mulch, plant lilies this month

(Editor's Note: The column by Lois Boynton, one of Pampa's top authorities on gardening, appears in The Pampa News on the first of each month. She reports on gardening tips for the month.)

By LOIS BOYNTON
Special to The News
The Moon will be decreasing: 1-12: 27-31. The Moon will be increasing: 13-26.
The Fruitful Signs are: 4-6 until 3 p.m. (Cancer); 13-14 (Scorpio); 22-23 (Pisces); 31 after 11:19 a.m. (Cancer).
The Semi-fruitful Signs are: 11-12 (Libra); 17 after 11:50-19 until 1:35 p.m. (Capricorn); 26 after 10:44 a.m. (Taurus).
The Barren Signs are: 1-3 (Gemini); 7-8 (Leo); 15-16 (Sagittarius); 20-21 (Aquarius).

29-30 (Gemini). Remember the Barren Signs are the day signs and the Fruitful Signs are the wet signs. The Fixed Signs are Taurus, Leo, Scorpio, and Aquarius. The Moveable Signs are Cancer, Gemini, Libra and Pisces.

This is the month when Jack Frost is wielding his paint brush across the fields and canyons. Frost really has nothing to do with the fall colors. It is the shortening of the days and the cool nights, and the warm sunny days that make the trees begin setting down for winter. The process of photosynthesis is causing the green chlorophyll to gradually disappear from the leaves.

Perhaps you are planning to go on a foliage tour to admire the brilliance of autumn colors. Jot down the names of cultivars that appeal to you, and add some of them next year to your own garden.

Do you have access to pine needles? A friend brought us boxes and boxes of them last fall and by spring they were pretty well dry and we covered our strawberry bed with them about 3 inches deep. They kept down the weeds and kept the moisture in; they are acid and strawberries, which need a little acid in their soil, never looked better.

It is time to take inventory, decide what should be dug up and discarded from your beds and what should stay.

Finish pruning. New growth may have already started, this will make it easier to prune all but the most vigorous suckers. New hedges should be clipped to a foot or less to assure a thick growth for a denser screen.

Many of the broadleaf, as well as the conifers, suffered damage this past winter and spring. They should be cut back to vigorous growth, even though the plant may be misshapen; it will soon fill in and be a better plant. As the leaves fall from the fruit trees, it is well to prune them cutting out all the dead, weak, crossing branches. Pruning fruit trees is a very important part of its productivity. It is well to study and know just how they should be pruned. There are a number of good books on the market today that can be very helpful. One we like and use is Plant Pruning in Pictures by Montague Free.

Plant some hybrid lilies, they are the true lily (Lilium) and are a part of the large family called Liliaceae, which includes tulips, hyacinths, red-hot poker and even asparagus. There are some called lilies which are really not, such as daylilies, plantain lilies, water-lilies and Lily-of-the-Nile. The true lilies are quite hardy and easy to grow. The best time to plant them is in the fall. If you provide their few needs, they should come up and bloom the following spring. Once established they will behave like perennials, and some will multiply freely. They must have good drainage; they like a cool and slightly acid soil. An old adage about lilies says "Plant their feet in the shade and their heads in the sun."

The acid soil can be provided with lots of leaf mold. We suggested piling your leaves last month. We hope you will be doing this. If they are shredded before piling them, this will shorten the decomposition time. This can be done by piling them and running your power mower back and forth over the pile.

If you plan to grow lilies you will need leaf mold as it is a wonderful soil conditioner. Where you plan to grow lilies, you should dig the soil deeply at least two feet. They are deep root feeders. Plant the bulbs as soon as you get them laying them slightly on their side to prevent rotting. They should be fertilized again in the spring. Bone meal is good for lilies, put a cup full around each plant, working it into the top two inches of soil.

You can also grow lilies from seed. We have beautiful regal lilies growing six feet tall and blooming every year. Have had them for many years. They were given to us by a friend, his hobby was raising lilies. From seed they will bloom in two or three years after planting. George Park Seed Company, Greenwood, S.C. 29647, offers varieties of lily seed that can be relied on to flower, may even bloom the first year.

Dig peanuts and sweet potatoes the 2nd, 3rd, 7th or 8th. If freeze strikes and darkens the leaves before you get them dug, cut the tops from the roots of the potatoes early in the day to prevent the bitter juices from going back into the tubers. Give dahlias the same treatment as the potatoes, cutting the stalks within two inches of the ground. Dig the roots with care leaving the soil that clings to the clump as is, until they have completely dried, then without separating them, which should be done in the spring before planting, store them in boxes filled with vermiculite, where they will not freeze.

If we do not have rains this month, water evergreens and shrubs well before the ground freezes.

Go over your evergreens and pick off any dried bags of bag worms. Only one bag left on a large evergreen will completely infest the plant next June. These dried bags are filled with eggs.

If you will take soil with the plant and not disturb the roots too much, chrysanthemums can be moved while in full bloom, which gives you a good chance to arrange your color combination; shade the plants the first few days. Or you may wish to pot up the plant and take inside to enjoy its bloom for several weeks. This should be done the 5th or 13th.

It is time to order pansies and violas. They are a little expensive, but they do give so much pleasure in the early spring, when there isn't anything else blooming. We order from the Alton Plant Farms, Box 366, Jenks, Okla. 74037.

Don't be in a hurry to retire the lawn mower, you will probably have to mow again next month.

There is plenty to do as you well know, but at this delightful time of the year, there is less stress.

Boots for Fall

Step into boots this fall — in fashion and with warm, dry feet. Boots lend the finishing touch to any costume — skirts, dresses, gauchos or pants. Boots are usually expensive, so consider them an investment and choose style, height, fabric and color with PURPOSE in mind. To wear from season to season, select a classic style and a basic or neutral (earth-tone) color. For fashion wear, style is probably the first consideration, and for functional boots, look for quality — in both construction and fabric.

While suede or leather boots may be the most comfortable — because natural fibers "breathe" — boots made of rubber or vinyl are more water resistant, especially those that are molded without seams. However, suede and leather can be treated — at the factory or at home — to repel water. Special sprays will shed light rain and snow (but heavy rain and snow will generally still soak through). For greater warmth and dryness, seams should be securely stitched, sturdily made, and lined.

Smooth trikot linings make a boot easy to pull on and off and may provide adequate warmth for mild winter weather. Pile linings provide greater warmth; the denser the pile, the greater the warmth. Pile may be wool or synthetic. Synthetic linings may be more durable, but are not as absorbent as wool, often leaving feet with a clammy feeling. Boots with ridged or skid resistant soles, whether leather or synthetic, are safer on ice and snow. Avoid smooth soles.

To assure fit, try on both boots. Sizes vary from brand to brand. Be sure that boot tops provide adequate width for your calves, whether pull-on or zip-up style. Pile-lined boots may fit more snugly; you may need a slightly larger size. Also remember in selecting boots:

- trim and ornaments should be firmly attached.
- back seam should be centered and firmly stitched
- zipper closure should work smoothly and have a protective placket underneath.
- inside should be free of rough spots, wrinkles, bulky seams or loose threads.

Recipe Substitutions

1 cup milk with 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar equals 1 cup sour milk

1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted cake flour equals 1 cup sifted all purpose flour

3 tablespoons butter plus ¼ cup milk equals 1 cup thin sour cream one-third cup butter plus two-thirds cup milk equals 1 cup heavy sour cream

10 miniature marshmallows equals 1 large marshmallow

Pears
Pears are a delicious and tasty fruit. They are plentiful now. They are rich in fruit sugar and contain minerals and vitamins A, B, and C needed for health.

Pears are one of the few fruits that develop finer flavor and smoother texture when gathered at their peak of maturity and allowed to ripen off the tree. Some varieties never get mellow. These are used in cooking, canning, and preserving. The softer varieties are best for eating fresh and for dishes such as salads.

Try some of these recipes

Fresh Pear Coffee Cake

- 2 pears
- 1½ cups all purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- ¼ teaspoon baking soda
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- 1 egg
- ½ cup buttermilk
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- ½ cup shortening

Sift together flour, sugar, baking soda, baking powder and salt. Cut in the shortening until pieces are very small. Beat eggs into buttermilk and add to dry ingredients. Mix only until all moisture is absorbed. The dough will be fairly stiff. Press lightly into an 8-inch pan. Peel and core fresh pears and slice in ½-inch sections. Cover top of coffee cake with pear slices. Crumble together brown sugar, cinnamon and butter and sprinkle over the pears. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 35 minutes.

TV Star Scene

James Coburn has been prepping for his directorial debut by gathering helpful hints from Sam Peckinpah. Now NBC has announced that he'll call the shots on an upcoming episode of the Rockford Files. Says Coburn, "This is my first directing assignment — an ambition I've had for a long time. In fact, when I first got into the business, I intended to be a director, but got sidetracked when I theorized that I better know something about acting before trying to direct."

Here's an interesting guest line-up for a future Police Woman: composer-singer Paul Williams, Michael Burns, comedians Foster Brooks and Louis Nye and sportscaster Chick Hearn. . . . Oscar-winner Bette Davis has signed to do the kind of horror-thriller she specialized in some years ago, only this time it's for TV. She'll play a mysterious widow with supernatural powers in "Harvest Home," the best-selling novel by Tom Tryon. . . . Two of the screen's greatest character actors, Strother Martin and Jack Elam have been signed to play the hapless kidnappers in a new ABC production of "The Ransom of Red Chief," the classic O'Henry tale.

The woes and joys of parenthood continue on ABC, as Carol Lynley, Wayne Rogers, Paula Prentiss, Cliff Gorman, Tony Bill and Susan Sullivan create another baby boom in "Having Babies, II." . . . After 25 years, the big moment is finally coming for Charlie Brown — he'll meet the little red-haired girl. CBS will present "It's Your First Kiss Charlie Brown" on Oct. 24. Producer Lee Mendelson said that after much debate, Peanuts creator Charles Schultz said "the time has come." I hope it works out well for ol' Chuck, but with his track record. . . . TV Dialogue

NEAR NEIGHBORS—I was so glad to read how Robert Conrad was able to keep his show on the air for one more season. He sounds like the sort of person who would be from Ohio. I should know, I married an Ohioan Conrad. Please let me know if he was born in Ohio and how long ago? Patricia Conrad, Blotxi, Miss.

Conrad was born a couple of states to the west, in Chicago, Ill., in 1935. But I wouldn't let a little thing like Indiana come between you. By the way, the show won't air until another NBC entry is cancelled, so it'll be a month or so before the Black Sheep are in and on the air.

DOWN THE DRAIN—I don't know why there was such a fuss about Soap. I think it's pretty good, and certainly not offensive. Anyway, is Robert Ulrich going to be a regular as the tennis pro? I've always been a fan of his. Susan Sylvester, Lawton, Okla.

I agree that the only thing shocking about Soap is the furor it created. Too bad it isn't a little funnier, though. Unfortunately, Ulrich will be bowing out of the show after a few months. The 12th episode will be his last.

DOG DAYS—Why did they kill off the cute little dog on Little House on the Prairie? Mrs. S. Johnson, Fargo, N.D.

Jack was a terrific dog, but he didn't have enough tricks up his fur to suit Michael Landon, who opted for hiring a new dog, Bandit, who is really named Jeffery, was formerly with the animal show at Universal Studios and makes a good replacement.

EMERGENCY—What's the story with my favorite series, Emergency. Why isn't it on any more. Before it's too late, where can I write to Randy Mantooth and Kevin Tighe? Penny Fleicher, Tampa, Fla.

Can the siren. Emergency is still on, only it will not air weekly. Instead NBC will air occasional two-hour segments over-birthing with enough disasters to make your head spin. They're doing the same thing with Police Story. So, you can still write your favorite paramedics at Universal Studios, Universal City, CA. 91608

HORRORS—I used to love to go to the movies and see a double bill of horror movies. It's a shame they don't make them any more. My favorites are the American International quickies, but my question is a bit more high class. How many movie versions of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde were there?

It's always nice to hear from a ghoulish gourmet (is that a poorly chosen word? I'd hate to accuse you of actually engaging in a bit of your own blood-curdling sport). Anyway, there are more versions of the classic Stevenson thriller than even probably you imagined. Selig Polyscope produced one in 1908. There was a Danish production in 1910, another American version, with James Cruz, in 1912, and a British version made in 1913. Then The U.S. again countered in 1913 with King Baggot starring in yet another production. In 1920, Louis Mayer produced a version for Pioneer Films with Sheldon Lewis starring, while over at Paramount John Barrymore was messin' about the lab. Paramount did a re-make in 1932 with Frederic March, which has been on TV. Then Spencer Tracy took over the honors in '41 for MGM, which is probably the version most people today have seen.
