Filibustering will continue

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leader of a Senate filibuster on natural gas pricing said today he's ready to continue blocking legislation to raise the national debt ceiling until the Senate rejects a proposal to free gas from price controls.

The move by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., threatens the government's ability to pay its bills. If the debt ceiling bill is not passed by Saturday morning, the beginning of the new fiscal year, the government will lose authority to borrow money to pay bills.

In holding the debt measure hostage to the natural gas bill, Abourezk hopes to force the Senate to reject an industry-supported plan to lift price controls from natural gas.

"This will mean government won't be able to write any more checks," Abourezk said. But he said he was prepared to continue to object to efforts to pass the debt-ceiling bill "until we're done with the natural gas issue."

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., called Abourezk's tactics "unconscionable."

Baker and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, meanwhile, reported little progress in efforts to resolve the stalemate that has stalled Senate action on the natural gas portion of President Carter's energy program for 10 days.

Baker said there is only a "fifty-fifty chance" that competing sides in the issue will be able to even agree to set a time to vote on various alternatives. A Saturday Senate session was scheduled and Baker said it might be another week before the issue is finally resolved.

Meanwhile, in a quick shuffle almost unnoticed by Senate leaders, the Senate today actually voted approval of a compromise proposal by Byrd and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to allow gas prices to rise more than the President wants but without lifting the price controls.

It was by a quick voice vote engineered by Abourezk when few senators were on the floor. Had the action stood, the gaspricing dispute would have been over and the industry deregulation plan rejected.

But Senate leaders, when they realized what had occurred, obtained another voice vote overturning the action — and the impasse continued.

The development involving the debt ceiling came shortly before the Senate adjourned late Thursday night after efforts to reach agreement on the natural gas legislation fell through.

Abourezk objected when Byrd asked to temporarily set aside the energy bill for a vote on the debt ceiling legislation. Terms under which the Senate is debating the gas bill prohibit interruptions for action on any other legislation without unanimous consent.

"We won't let it come up. It's a form of leverage," Abourezk said.

And he said he plans to continue to block a vote on the debt ceiling unless the Senate dumps the proposal to free natural gas prices from federal control in favor of a compromise proposed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. The compromise has the support of the Democratic leadership.

Jackson's proposal would allow gas prices to rise more than President Carter wants but it would not remove price controls as Republicans and oilstate Democrats advocate.

Sen. Howard H. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who had joined Abourezk in waging the filibuster against the gas deregulation effort, supported Abourezk's move to hold the debt ceiling bill hostage.

The House voted on Wednesday to set a debt ceiling of $773 billion through next September and the Senate Finance Committee approved the figure of $754 billion through next April 30.

Efforts to reach agreement on a natural gas compromise collapsed Thursday in a parliamentary tangle, leaving the Senate almost as deeply divided over this portion of the President's energy program as when debate began nearly two weeks ago.

Despite Carter's exhortation Thursday in a nationally televised news conference that inaction invites crisis, the Senate is stymied by the two competing proposals. Support appears to be almost evenly divided between the two plans and those on both sides were chasing after the votes of wavering senators.

Welfare earners get minimum

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee agreed today to require that the federal minimum wage be paid under state programs designed to force welfare recipients to earn their benefits.

provision Thursday on an 8-3 vote, the committee had agreed to allow either the local prevailing wage or the state minimum wage, whichever is higher.

But Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the panel, proposed today that the federal minimum wage be paid. Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., objected, contending that state officials who operate the welfare job programs are not inhuman.

"Well, I don't like to be called inhuman myself," Long replied, and the committee approved his proposed change.

The committee approved the welfare or "work-off" project as part of a package of changes in the welfare laws.

Under that proposal, state or local welfare officials would be allowed to require adults receiving aid under the huge Aid to Families with Dependent Children program to pay for their benefits by working at a variety of jobs. These could range from cleaning up parks and public facilities to helping in public child-care centers.

All such jobs would have to meet health and safety standards, the provision says, and would have to serve a useful purpose.

Localities could not use welfare recipients in jobs that would displace other workers doing jobs at normal wages, according to the welfare provision.

The AFDC program provides money to support mothers and, in some cases, unemployed fathers, of dependent children.

Backers of the "work-off" proposal estimate there could be as many as two million recipient adults who could be put to work by the provision if every state were to adopt it.

Backers of the proposal say the idea of the plan is to get welfare recipients into the habit of working.

But the provision was sharply criticized by welfare organizations and is opposed by the Carter administration, which blocked an effort to tie the package to a measure aimed at bailing out the financially troubled Social Security system.

Leonard Lesser of the Center for Community Change said welfare recipients shouldn't be forced to take such jobs.

"Just because they happen to be poor, they shouldn't be treated like second-class citizens. They should be given jobs at the same wage as anyone else," he said.

The administration opposes the provision partly because of fears the jobs offered to AFDC recipients would be of little lasting value and because the plan contains no provisions for meaningful job training.

Ex-marshall convicted

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Former Castroville town marshal Frank Hayes faces a life prison sentence after being convicted late Thursday night of violating the civil rights of a Mexican-American prisoner gunned down while in his custody.

A federal jury deliberated about three hours before returning the guilty verdict.

Hayes' wife, Dorothy, and his sister-in-law Alice Baldwin were also convicted for their part in concealing the body of laborer Richard Morales. The two women face lesser penalties.

U.S. District Court Judge Adrian Spears set sentencing for Oct. 28 at 10 a.m. in San Antonio.

Hayes, 54, who said he accidentally killed Morales in 1975 during a struggle, was convicted last year in state court of aggravated assault and sentenced to two to ten years in prison in connection with the shotgun slaying.

Morales, a 27-year-old theft suspect, was killed Sept. 14, 1975 on a lonely road near the South Texas town of Castroville.

Mrs. Hayes and Mrs. Baldwin, testimony showed, transported Morales' body to the Hayes family farm in East Texas and left it in a shallow grave. It was unearthed two days after the shooting.

"I'm very happy, but it took two years to do it," said attorney Ruben Sandoval, who represents the Morales family and was instrumental in securing the federal civil rights indictment against Hayes.

Hayes' attorneys indicated they would appeal the conviction.

Earlier Thursday, Texas Ranger Joaquin Jackson testified that Hayes was "a very scared man" when he was questioned the day after the slaying.

Jackson said he asked Hayes where Morales' body was and Hayes responded: "There is no body."

The Ranger testified that Hayes told him he fired a shot over the theft suspect's head and Morales had fled.

The defense rested its case at noon Thursday after its final witness, Mrs. Baldwin, testified she did not know there was a body in the trunk of the Hayes' car until they were well on their way to the Panola County burial site.

Feud over hair continues to grow

By THOM MARSHALL

Two Skellytown boys who are students at White Deer High School have again been threatened with expulsion from school if they do not get hair cuts.

Roy Noble and Darwin Musick both said they were told by Wayland Snipes, principal, that they had until Monday to comply with the school's hair code.

The principal reportedly gave each of the boys a sealed envelope and instructed them not to open it until it had been delivered to their parents at school.

Mrs. Noble said she was a bit confused because the note instructed her that her son had been expelled Thursday and not that he would be expelled on Monday if he did not at that time meet the code.

However, both boys reportedly attended classes this morning.

Young Noble was expelled on Sept. 15 because he did not comply with the hair code which requires that boys wear their hair off their shirt collars in back, out of their eyes in front, and no longer than the ear lobes on the side.

About a half dozen other boys reportedly had been threatened a few days earlier with expulsion, due to non-compliance with the hair code, but Noble was the only one actually suspended for his hair length.

Noble said that he only missed one day of school after his last expulsion. He had his mother curl his hair under in back so it would not hang over a collar.

said of Snipe's inspection when the student returned to school.

But when he was called to the principal's office on Thursday, Noble reported that Snipes told him he'd had his eyes closed for quite a while and that he was getting sick and tired of it and he was going to open them. He said, "And I'm sick and tired of this Channel 7 and the Pampa newspaper and all this gigning involved in it."

In recent broadcasts the Amarillo television station Snipes referred to has reported on hair code complaints from White Deer, Perryton and Sanford-Fritch School Districts.

An investigation into the hair code at the three districts reportedly is underway by the Civil Rights section of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare offices in Dallas.

The News attempted to contact an HEW official there this morning, but all were reportedly in a meeting with HEW Secretary Joseph Califano who was in Dallas today.

Contacted by The News and asked about the recent developments in the White Deer hair code feud, Snipes would only answer "No comment" to all questions on the matter.

Mrs. Noble reported that she had been contacted by an official with a civil rights organization who offered her help in fighting the issue in the courts.

Asked if she intended to fight the hair code, Mrs. Noble said, "You'd better believe it."

Thursday was Roy Noble's 15th birthday.

Retiring Charlie Burton recalls

17 years as a court bailiff

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Memories of two women fighting, clothes and hair flying, in the middle of the Gray County District Courtroom are among the many incidents Charlie Burton recalls from his 17 years as Gray County Court bailiff.

Burton retires today — and he knows he'll miss those juries that he never could predict, the others who came and went, his friends at the courthouse.

A Gray County notorious rape case came up soon after Burton assumed duties. He went to work on Monday — and 12 male jurors (only men were allowed to serve then) were chosen and Burton stayed with the sequestered group day and night from Monday through Saturday.

"We ate, slept and stayed together in the old dormitory on the fourth floor of the courthouse," he said.

"Oh, we had a good time," Burton remembers. "The jurors chose where we would eat, we walked often for fresh air — had two long-legged guys who inevitably were out front and I'd have said them down. Had one or two who said jokingly each time we passed a beer joint, 'Let's have a beer before we eat.'"

He remembered a case of hairpulling in the courtroom. It came as a result of a divorce. Each of the parties had remarried. One had custody of the children.

"The other came and asked for custody, and the two women began arguing. Hair and clothing began to fly and I immediately grabbed the one who started it and kept them apart until they left the courthouse," Burton added.

As bailiff Burton has sat through cases "with three sides — everything ranging from disputes among people to trouble between big firms."

"I'm an old hand at predicting a jury. When I first went in I had an argument thinking the jury would be in with a verdict in not more than 1½ hours. Eight hours later the jurors returned 'a hung jury' report."

Predicting a jury's decision is like predicting an election — unpredictable. Burton emphasized. The outcome is unknown until the last vote is counted, he added.

Burton took a vacation last summer and decided he was needed at home more than on the job. His wife, Edith C., is an invalid.

"We've been married 60 years in January," he said.

Burton was born under the railroad track in Sidney, Neb. on Aug. 2, 1895.

The Burlington Railroad was surveyed just under our house," he explained. The family migrated to Texas in 1927.

Burton became territorial supervisor in charge of men, stocks and equipment for Marland Refining Co. in Amarillo. He came to Pampa in 1928, and bought a retail service station.

His wife, the former Edith C. Howard of Fairfield, Iowa, moved to a neighborhood east of Inola, Okla., and attended school with Burton.

"It was love at first sight," Burton said. "It must have been that was 60 years ago."

The Burtons have two daughters, Mrs. Jim (Dorothy) Chase of Pampa, and Mrs. James M. (Margaret) Carlisle of Stillwater, Okla. They have three grandchildren.

Their two great-grandchildren, Alysha and James William, ages 4 and 2, respectively, who live in Dallas, are "pretty important," he said.

Sheriff's deputies have filled out the blank spaces on the calendar on Charlie's desk for this week.

"On Tuesday, it read, 'The Day Before,' while Wednesday says 'The Day Before the Day Before the Last.' Thursday's words were 'Next to Last Day Charlie please don't forget,' and Friday says, 'Last Day, Charlie Adios!'"

And as the page should turn to Oct. 1 comes the question "Has Goodbye Charlie got the blues?"

Burton said the calendar is priceless and he plans to frame it.

He has enough hobbies to keep him busy, including rock cutting, yard and garden work.

"But there'll be a vacancy I've been associated with fine people ... I won't be able to forget," Burton said.

Burton was to be honored with a reception today in the courthouse basement with Mrs. Rufe Jordan as hostess.

Ever been hungry, wanted to eat, yet nothing in the larder had any appeal? The appetite was there but you couldn't think of anything to satisfy it.

Something similar happens to me from time to time when I get the urge to sit down at the typewriter. Now, for example, I am hungry for something rather light and frivolous — dessert-like. I guess. But I haven't been able to locate a suitable delicacy in my mental cupboard.

There are some heavier, main course items in there, but they don't fit the current craving, won't satisfy the special appetite of the moment.

I want to cook up something that will not only provide myself an ample portion but will also hit a similar spot with those who share these lines with me.

That's extra difficult because I never know at any given time what it is you readers are hungry for. It's a kind of one-sided thing, this business where I open up my mind, divulge my thoughts, write my words, and don't get a chance to look into the mind of the reader, get a glimpse of your thoughts or study your words.

True, there's the feedback of an occasional letter to the editor or a phone call, but that's a rarity and not the rule.

Television folks have a similar problem with their one-way cameras. They have no way of tuning into the minds that are receiving what they put out.

Surveys are conducted for that purpose, and one who knows his business can learn much from analyzing the results of a properly conducted study.

But surveys are expensive and they are not all inclusive. They can't reveal all the unsatisfied appetites among TV watchers or newspaper readers.

I am aware, of course, that there are many who peruse my lines who don't agree with very much they read in them.

Sometimes, that bothers me because I'm afraid that people will judge my future words on the basis of their dislike of my past ones.

I know, I know. You can't please all of the people all of the time.

But another part of that old bromide is that "You can please all of the people some of the time."

Now pleasing people is not generally my concern when I put together a column. I've written some that I suspected might stir up some folks. I've even written a few because I wanted to stir up certain folks. I don't think that's ever been any secret. I readily admit it.

But sometimes I get hungry for something that I can serve here that everyone will find tasty — something that all readers can enjoy whether or not they agree with me on other subjects.

It can be pretty darned frustrating when I can't come up with the proper dish. It's what happened to me when I sat down at the typewriter this time.

But since I took it on myself to cook up something to put here, I did. And late. But it wasn't what I wanted and I'm getting up from the table with the spare filed yet the hunger unsatisfied.

When is an escalator like an airplane?

By JIM FITZGERALD
The Lapeer (Mich.) County Bank & Trust Co. recently installed an escalator. In light of Bert Lance's troubles, it is only natural to wonder if the president of the Lapeer bank is allowed to use the escalator for non-business purposes, such as going to football games.

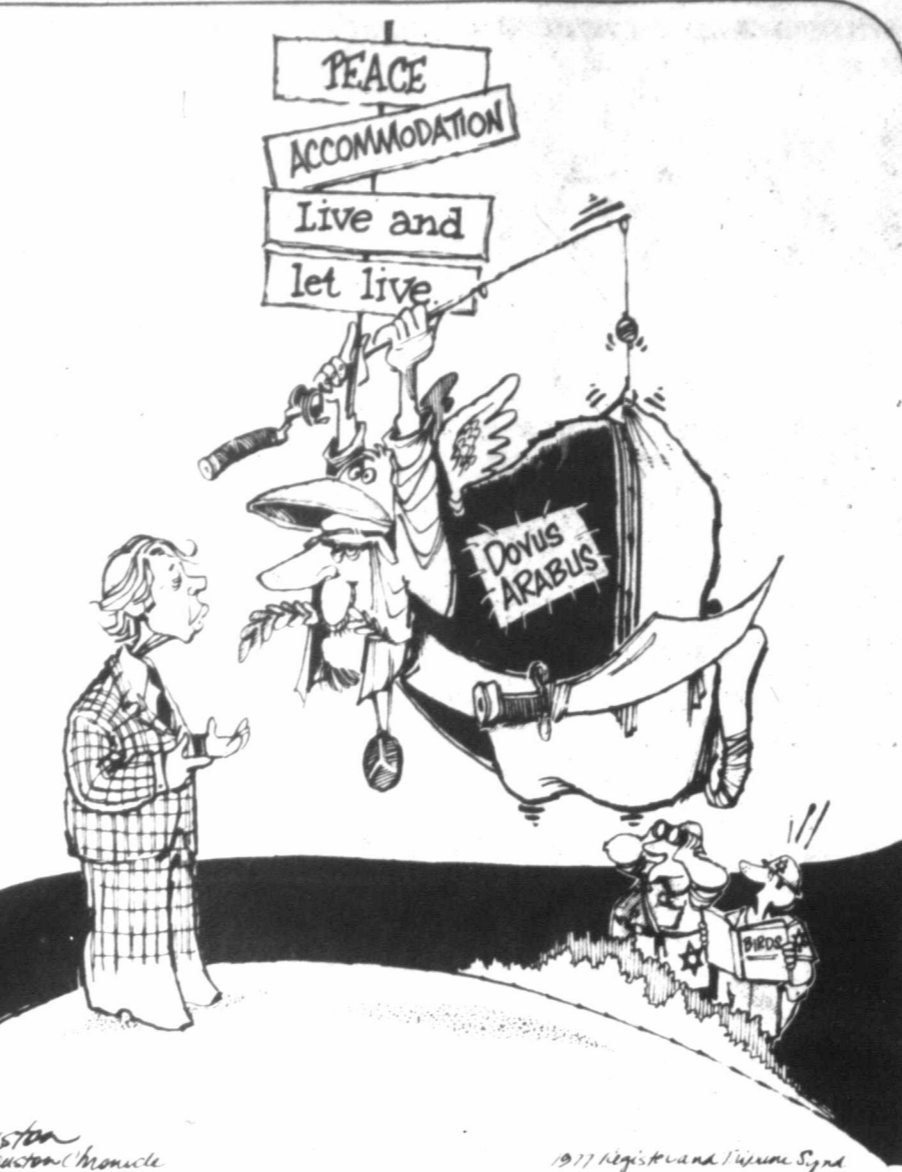

While president of a Georgia bank, Lance used the bank's airplane frequently. In testimony before a U.S. Senate committee, he conceded that many of the trips were to such pleasurable destinations as college football games. Lance said he saw no reason why the bank shouldn't pay for these trips because he felt he always was on bank business while traveling, no matter where he went.

Rod Parsch is president of the Lapeer County Bank & Trust Co. The Lapeer bank does not own an airplane, which would be a little much. Townspeople were awed enough by the escalator, the only one in the county.

Nevertheless, several parallels can be drawn between the two banks, and the two bank presidents. I will now draw those parallels, and if I should overdraw, wouldn't that be ironical?

Calhoun, Ga., and Lapeer, Mich., are both small towns, with populations between 5,000 and 7,000. Lance started at the Calhoun bank as a messenger. Parsch started at the Lapeer bank as a janitor. Both men rose to become presidents of their banks, and more.

Lance became Jimmy Carter's buddy and was appointed director of the Office of Management and Budget. Parsch played

A bit of 'Panagate' humor

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

U.S. Rep. Floyd Spence of South Carolina has come up with a tongue-in-cheek solution to the Panama Canal and welfare "reform" problems. His humorous linking of the two controversial proposals brings important facts to light.

Congressman Spence, who said he was making his remarks only half in jest, told the House of Representatives:

"I note that a host of New York banking interests have made substantial loans to the Republic of Panama in recent years, and I suspect that a large part of the price we are paying Panama for giving our canal to them is nothing more than a ruse for bailing out these New York banking interests who find they are not otherwise going to be able to recover their investment. It is a laundering of taxpayer dollars — from the Carter administration to the New York banks through Panama. A Panama scandal, if you will."

"Secondly, I note that under our current welfare programs, 70 per cent of the families of Puerto Rico are receiving food stamps. Approximately 1-12th of the total cost of the present food stamp program goes to Puerto Rico. And, of course, although Puerto Rico is a Commonwealth under United States jurisdiction, it pays no federal taxes.

"It occurs to me, therefore, that, instead of giving the Panama Canal away to Panama, we should instead grant independence to Puerto Rico and give the canal to them. This would accomplish the following results:

"1) From the profits of the canal, Puerto Rico could improve the quality of life for her people, thus taking them off the welfare rolls. This should make the Puerto Ricans happy.

"2) In return for the money we would pay the Puerto Ricans to take the canal off our hands, they would assume the Panamanian debts to the New York banks and pay them off. That should make the banks happy.

"3) The Panamanians would then be out from under their current financial obligations and they would no longer have the imperialist Big Brother to the north looking down their necks. This should make the Panamanians happy.

"4) Puerto Rico, grateful to us for granting independence and showering her with largess, should become a staunch ally, thereby insuring the security of the Canal from the clutches of the Marxist Torrijos regime in Panama. This should make the conservatives and the defense establishment happy.

"5) With 1-12th of the Food Stamp program monies freed, welfare benefits to citizens of the fifty states could be substantially increased. This should make the liberals and the welfare establishment happy.

"6) This arrangement would obviate the need for the President's welfare reform plan — or at least reduce its cost. It could therefore save the American taxpayers between $6 billion and $25 billion (the administration's estimate and mine, respectively, of the additional cost of the President's welfare proposal.) This should make the taxpayers happy."

Mennonite community gets extension $100,000 bond set for armed robbery suspect

WASHINGTON (AP) — An eleventh hour reprieve by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has allowed the 500 Mennonites now living in West Texas four more months to secure permanent visas. The spartan-like religious group was due for deportation this Saturday. The new deadline, however, is now Jan. 31. The Mennonites came to the arid Seminole area of Texas from Canada and Mexico and bought 6,400 acres for $2.6 million.

people' had visited members of the sect in Mexico about moving to Texas.

tain the four-month delay is designed to give those being deported time to settle their business affairs, it also gives Texas legislators time to shove through special legislation that would allow the group to stay in the country.

Bond for Lloyd Franklin Mays, 37, of Pampa, charged with armed robbery in connection with attempt to rob Emory Crockett, owner of the Western Motel Wednesday night, was set at $100,000 Thursday afternoon.

Mays was arrested shortly before 11 p.m. Wednesday after Crockett grabbed a brown paper bag with a gun in it from Mays, who fled immediately.

He was apprehended about 10 minutes later near the motel hiding in tall weeds.

Police Chief Richard Mills said Mays is on parole following conviction of burglary in 1971.

Abortion deal being studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the House are studying a Senate compromise that would expand the use of tax money for abortions while dropping a controversial "medical necessity" provision.

A House-Senate conference committee trying to settle the question of when the federal government should pay for abortions set another meeting next Monday after failing to reach agreement in a three-hour session Thursday.

The committee members were freed, however, from any concern that their delays would halt checks for welfare recipients and — at least for the time being — for hundreds of thousands of federal workers.

House members of the panel asked for time to consider the compromise proposed by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, the chief Senate negotiator.

Under his plan, the government would pay for abortions when a woman's line was in danger, in cases of rape or incest or if the woman or the fetus would suffer serious, permanent health damage.

This language would replace the Senate's insistence on paying for abortions when "medically necessary," a provision House critics say is too liberal. The House has backed the present law providing federal money only when a woman's life would be threatened by a full-term pregnancy. The dispute is holding up $60.2 billion to run the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare for the fiscal year that begins Saturday.

The impasse — now in its third month — means the agencies must curtail grants, contracts, travel and administrative expenses, says Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, head of the Senate conferees.

But officials say unemployment benefits plus Medicare, Medicaid and Supplemental Security Income payments won't end because final approval of the appropriation is anticipated.

Nor will the 240,000 employees of the two departments be immediately affected. Paychecks that begin going to those workers Tuesday will be for two weeks' work in mid-September.

But the next round of checks, due Oct. 18, for the last week of September and the first week of October, would be for only one week if a compromise on the abortion measure isn't reached by then.

Social Security payments, which come from a separate trust fund, are not affected by the impasse.

Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., sponsor of the language adopted by the full Senate, said he had reservations about the plan and wanted time to study it.

Rep. Daniel Flood, the head of the House conferees, said it was "opening up the door again." The Pennsylvania Democrat found fault with each of the Senate conferees' proposals, saying they were too lenient.

Medicaid paid for about 300,000 abortions last year — most for poor women — at a cost of $500 million.

Judge denies Robinson

HOUSTON (AP) — A motion for an instructed verdict in favor of oil millionaire Ash Robinson has been denied by a state judge in a $7.6 million wrongful death damage suit resulting from the 1972 death of a Houston plastic surgeon.

State District Court Judge Arthur C. Lesher denied the motion by attorneys for Robinson Thursday after lawyers representing the family of Dr. John Hill rested their case in the nearly six-week trial.

The family of the slain plastic surgeon is suing Robinson, alleging Robinson masterminded the shooting death of Hill to avenge the death of Robinson's daughter.

When he was shot to death at his fashionable River Oaks home, Hill was awaiting a second trial on charges he killed his first wife, Joan Robinson Hill, through medical neglect in 1969. A first trial ended in a mistrial.

No criminal charges have been filed against Robinson and he denies the allegations by Robert Hill, 17, Connie Hill, 37, and Myra Hill, 75, the son, widow and mother of the slain doctor.

Robinson, 79, has testified he wanted Hill to stand trial and if found guilty to be punished.

Two witnesses testified Thursday they saw Joan Robinson Hill sign a 1968 will leaving her estate to her father, Douglas Diboll of Morgan City, La., and John D. Nix of Houston, each said they saw Mrs. Hill sign the document in the home of Robinson.

They said she appeared healthy at the time and told them what the will said was what she wanted. In the will Mrs. Hill allegedly typed and signed Nov. 2, 1968, she wrote out her son, Robert, writing in the document that she thought Robinson, her father, would take care of him.

Three persons were charged in the Hill slaying: Bobby Wayne Vandiver, the accused triggerman, was shot to death by a policeman before he was brought to trial. Two women are serving prison terms after being convicted as accomplices.

Better roads win

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A $33 million program to improve farm-to-market roads has been approved by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission.

The program includes work on 378.1 miles of roads in all sections of the state, the commission said Thursday.

New-road mileage in the program totals 199.1. The commission also approved $1.5 million for 31 projects to make railroad crossings safer.

Syndicated columnist Jack Anderson will begin a new television interview show, "The Truth — With Jack Anderson." Guests will agree in advance to a lie detector test, truth serum, voice analysis or other means to get the truth, said producer Ralph Andrews.

Japanese gathers $6 million

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Hijackers holding a Japan Air Lines DC8 jet released four more hostages today as Japanese officials rounded up prisoners in Japan and $6 million to meet the terrorists' ransom demands.

Bangladesh Foreign Secretary Dobraki Hussain said negotiations were going well. But other officials said the five gunmen were growing irritable and short-tempered in the third day of the siege and were communicating less with the outside.

These officials also said the terrorists had not been told that one of their demands would not be fully met — three of the nine prisoners in Japanese jails whose freedom the hijackers demanded have refused the offer to leave.

Japanese officials said the ransom flight Saturday would arrive here more than seven hours after the hijackers' latest deadline and would carry no more than six of the prisoners.

The Bangladesh officials said it was not known whether the hijackers, said to be members of the ultraleftist Japanese Red Army, were willing to extend their deadline once again.

The latest hostage release brought to nine the number of passengers freed since the plane was seized Wednesday. All four passengers freed today — a Japanese woman, an Indonesian woman and an Egyptian couple — were ill.

While the standoff continued here, a lone white hijacker said to be armed with a grenade and pistol commandeered a domestic French airliner and forced it to land at Paris' Orly Airport, where he reportedly demanded to broadcast a message on European radio. There was no indication of a link between the hijackings.

The five masked terrorists, who hijacked the Japan Air Lines DC8 jet Wednesday, have repeatedly threatened to kill the hostages unless their demands are met but have twice extended their deadline.

There were indications the hijackers wanted to leave Dacca after the prisoners and money arrive.

Tokyo's Asahi Evening News, in an unattributed report, said the hijackers indicated plans to free all women, children and Indian and Pakistani men among the 132 passengers and 14 crew members in exchange for the ransom and keep the others — including nine American men — until arriving at their final destination. An American woman is also aboard. Most of the hostages are Japanese.

Sources here said Japanese officials were contacting other governments in search of a country willing to accept the hijackers.

North Korea and Libya allowed Red Army members to land hijacked Japan Air Lines jets in 1970 and 1973. Captured members of the terrorist group, which vows to foment revolution in Japan, have told authorities they received training in Yemen and Lebanon.

Wielding pistols and grenades, the hijackers took over the four-engine jet after it left Bombay on a flight from Paris to Tokyo and forced it to land here. They forced the hostages to keep their hands behind their heads and for 24 hours refused to let them eat or use the toilet.

They became more lenient after negotiations began and allowed Japan to miss midnight Wednesday and midnight Thursday deadlines for meeting their demands. Two Americans and an Indian family of three were released from the plane Thursday after Japan agreed to deliver the money and nine prisoners.

However, officials in Tokyo said today that three of the nine inmates did not want to leave prison, five had agreed to do so and one was undecided. The three who refused and four who agreed to go are Red Army members.

An official spokesman in Tokyo said Japanese officials had to round up the ransom money in New York because hijackers were demanding 60,000 U.S. $100 bills.

The American hostages are banker John Gabriel and his wife of Montebello, Calif.; former California Assemblyman Walter Karabian of Monterey Park and these others not further identified: Eric Weiss, Mr. J. Caldwell, Mr. Alterejos, Mr. G. Sands, Mr. T. Phalen, Mr. J. Chunce and Mr. W. McLean.

Karabian's wife, former Hollywood actress Carole Wells Karabian, and an American named K. Krueger were released Thursday.

Briscoe to speak at Panhandle

PANHANDLE — Items from a sunken Spanish treasure ship recently located in the Gulf of Mexico near Padre Island are among displays to be featured at the 12th annual Museum Day Saturday in Panhandle's Square House Museum.

The event coincides with the 20th annual Pioneer Day.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe will speak in a program beginning at 2:30 p.m. "Texas — Yesterday. Today. Tomorrow" is the subject of his talk.

Sharing the program with the governor will be the Pride of the Panhandle Band.

The artifacts recovered from the ship which went down about four centuries ago are on loan to the museum from the Texas Antiquities Committee.

Three navigational astrolabes in the collection are the oldest dated such articles known to exist. Two are dated 1550 and the other 1545.

Coins included in the exhibit are thought to have been minted in Mexico City. Historians speculate that they were being shipped to Spanish merchants as payment for imported goods, or to the king in payment of taxes, or both.

Silver ingots in the collection are mostly irregular discs, like pancakes, small to large size. They were formed by pouring molten silver into shallow molds. It provided a simple method of preparing silver for packing, storing and shipping.

Other items from the ship in the exhibit include a gold crucifix, a silver thimble, and samples of the ship's armament.

A photography exhibit by Edward S. Curtis — "Indians of the Plains" — will be on display in Freedom Hall at the museum from 9 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. The 75 pictures in the exhibit are on loan from the University of Oklahoma Art Museum.

Art works by Marlin Adams of Amarillo also will be exhibited.

Adams, who holds a Master of Fine Arts Degree from Brigham Young University, currently is working for the museum under a one-year CETA program arrangement.

The annual fund-raising barbecue will be from 5 to 7:30 p.m.

Anita to sing in Pampa

Anita Bryant, former Miss Oklahoma and author, will perform and share her personal faith at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 17 in Pampa's M.K. Brown Auditorium. Appearing with her will be the Good twins, Russ Martin and Cecil Todd, director of Revival Fires Ministries of Joplin, Mo. The appearance is part of a Revive America Crusade Rally in 15 cities for Revival Fires. Miss Bryant said that her appearance in Pampa is not an anti-homosexual campaign but a "anti-all-sin" rally. The singer recently made national headlines when she worked to have a law repealed that allowed practicing homosexuals to teach in private religious schools in Dade County, Fla.

Judge says no mistrial for Davis

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — State District Court Judge George Dowlen told jurors today to disregard a remark made Thursday that triggered a defense motion for mistrial in the death of his young stepdaughter. Twelve-year-old Andrea Wilborn was the first to die in the shooting spree at Davis' Fort Worth mansion on Aug. 2, 1976.

The defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla, 36, was wounded, her lover Stan Farr, 30, was slain and a mansion visitor, Gus Gavrel, 22, was left partially paralyzed by a gunshot wound.

Thursday's stormy episode unfolded moments after defense attorney Richard "Rabbit" Haynes completed cross-examination of Miller, a member of Fort Worth's Crime Unit. Haynes, quoting frequently from a police manual not in evidence, spent almost three days attempting to show that officers did a haphazard job of collecting evidence from the Davis mansion.

Prosecutor Joe Shannon requested access to the manual, contending the state was entitled to see it although he had successfully opposed its admission as evidence.

"You can't have your cake and eat it too," Haynes said, refusing to surrender the document.

With the jury present, Shannon told the court the prosecutors "have reason to believe it's been altered."

"How can they claim something they haven't seen has been altered?" demanded defense lawyer Phil Burleson.

At that point, Judge Dowlen decided to send the jurors back to their motel. As the jury disappeared down the hall, Burleson told the judge he considered Shannon's accusation "an insult" and raised the mistrial issue.

"The motion for mistrial is denied," Judge Dowlen responded with a frown. Shannon argued then that he should be permitted to look at the manual because Haynes had used it to "leave an unfair impression with the jury that Officer Miller had deviated from accepted search procedures."

Furthermore, said Shannon, he had reason to believe a key portion of the manual had been "xeroxed out."

"That's a spurious allegation and he's taken liberties with the truth, if the court please," Haynes declared.

Judge Dowlen ordered both sides to furnish him with their respective copies of the manual and said he would determine what, if anything, the defense had altered.

Rig tools stolen

An estimated $10,000 theft of drilling rig tools taken from a Curtis Well Service rig on the Shafer Lease in Gray County is being investigated extensively in the Odessa-Andrews area, according to Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan.

The sheriff said someone took a pair of air powered tongs, valued at about $8,000 and a pair of Guebersons slips which cost $2,500.

Thefts from drilling rigs in nearby locations were also reported that same night.

Sheriff's Deputies Doug Davis and Ken Kieth, assisted by Texas Ranger Bill Bates, made the initial investigation.

"And this is the first since," he said.

He emphasized that the investigation will continue.

Police report
A subject was arrested shortly after midnight on charges of driving while intoxicated following a call to the Pampa Police Department reporting a hit and run accident. En route to the scene the officer saw a car with damages to the right front.

In other reports on the police blotter, officers were called to the emergency room of Highland General Hospital Thursday night where a man said he was struck about three times with a crow bar while in Central Park.

However, he refused to file charges. The injured man was treated and released.

A motorcycle was reportedly taken from 2728 Navajo.

Texas weather
By The Associated Press
Relief (it's spelled c-o-l-d f-r-o-n-t) was in sight today from the heat wave that has left Texans sweltering in summer-like temperatures with October just around the corner.

The National Weather Service said a cold front is expected to enter the Panhandle sometime during the night and will cross most of the rest of the state Saturday.

But at least one more day of the record-breaking heat was on tap as forecasters said temperatures will reach into the 90s and possibly approach the 100-degree mark today.

The state was practically cloud-free during the pre-dawn hours except for a few patches of low clouds in the San Antonio-Austin area. There has been no rainfall since noon Thursday anywhere in the state.

Early morning temperature were mostly in the 70s except in the Panhandle where they dipped as low as the lower 60s and upper 50s.

National weather
By The Associated Press
A developing storm system is bringing cool, showery weather to the northern intermountain region today.

Showers and a few thunderstorms were scattered through the Great Basin through the northern Rockies, with some snow at the higher elevations.

Thunderstorms developed in advance of the cooler air over parts of the central and northern Plains. Large hail fell Thursday night in southwestern Nebraska.

Elsewhere in the nation, scattered thundershowers were across the eastern Gulf Coast and a few showers dotted northern Arkansas, southern New York State and northern New England.

Clouds continued to cover much of the nation early today except for clear skies in the Southwest. Fog again developed in the central Plains.

Temperatures around the nation early today ranged from 34 at Glens Falls, N.Y., to 85 at Fort Worth, Tex.

The 100-unit apartment complex planned for the elderly citizens of Pampa has been given a go-ahead by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Ron Friedman of Friedman and Associates of Houston, said that HUD has approved his company's preliminary proposal on the complex that will cover eight acres of land near the Pampa Nursing Center.

There will be 14 buildings of varying sizes with six to ten apartment units in each building, Friedman said. Actual construction is expected to begin soon after Jan. 1, 1978 with six to eight months construction time required for completion of the project.

Facilities will include a community building for games and visiting, a management area, a maintenance department, and a coin-operated laundry.

There will be an emergency communications system installed in the complex that will enable a resident to summon emergency assistance by the push of a button.

HUD approval of the project means that qualifying elderly persons may reside in the apartments at a cost to them not exceeding a fourth of their monthly income.

Friedman has asked that elderly citizens interested in living in the complex obtain a copy of a housing survey from the Senior Citizens Center or the Chamber of Commerce office. The survey will aid the company in planning the complex, Friedman said.

Registration for the apartments will not begin until after construction is underway, he said.

Dock strike expected

NEW YORK (AP) — Leaders of the International Longshoremen's Association say they will call 50,000 of their members out on strike at midnight tonight unless a contract with shippers is agreed upon by then.

Such a strike would cripple deep sea cargo shipping along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts because dock workers would refuse to service containerships which carry cargo in trailer-size boxes that make up two-thirds of the ocean freight moving through major northern ports.

Adding to the potential impact on the U.S. economy is a mutual aid pact between the ILA and the independent 60,000-member International Longshoremen's Union on the West Coast. That agreement calls for ILWU workers to honor ILA picket lines set up in Pacific ports.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor has formally donated her eyes to the International Eye Foundation.

Miss Taylor's agent confirmed Thursday that Miss Taylor, famous for her violet eyes, made the decision during a mid-September Eye Ball in Washington for which she served as honorary chairperson.

She and husband John Warner were seated with the foundation's medical director, Dr. John Harry King, the spokesman said. Miss Taylor handed a piece of paper across the table to King giving written permission for her eyes to be deposited in the Eye Bank after her death.

"She just felt that it was very important," said her spokesman John Springer. "She does a lot of things like that that people don't know about."

Her husband responded in kind, donating his eyes also, Springer added.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bert Lance, former director of the Office of Management and Budget, says he has no regrets about the past and is optimistic about the future.

Lance told reporters Thursday that he was still thinking about what he would do and had made no final decision. But he said he had "no regrets" about serving in the Carter administration and would not rule out the possibility of public service at some future time.

Lance resigned Sept. 21 as budget director. He came here to speak to the 26th annual meeting of the Investment Association of New York.

Asked about his personal finances, Lance said, "One thing I don't have to talk about is the state of my finances."

MOSCOW (AP) — Yuri Lyubimov, one of the Soviet Union's most innovative directors, has received an award for his staging of a play that just four months ago drew official criticism.

Lyubimov, director of the Taganka Theater, received the Red Banner of Labor award on his 60th birthday Thursday and "for his services in the development of Soviet theatrical art," the official Tass news agency reported.

It cited his work on four plays, including "The Master and Margarita," a production that had been attacked by the Communist Party newspaper Pravda.

The play, based on Russian writer Mikhail Bulgakov's once-banned 1938 novel, satirized Soviet life, used religious symbolism and even brought a nude on stage. But it was the hit of the 1977 theater season.

When the play was not closed, Soviet theaters began predicting more experimental drama in Moscow.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When I first dated my wife she was 16. On our third date, when she asked me to buy her a pack of cigarettes, I told her I thought girls who smoked looked like tramps, and that was the last time I'd take her out.

Three months later she called and told me she'd quit smoking, so I started dating her again. We dated for three years during which time she never smoked in my presence, so with a solemn promise that she'd never smoke again, we were married.

She kept her promise for three years. Then I started to find evidence that she was smoking again. When I confronted her, she denied it.

For the last 10 years, she's been smoking openly and I detest it. What can I do? I've told her it was useless for her to spend a fortune on expensive clothes because when she lights a cigarette, she looks like a $20 hooker.

I have nothing against hookers. In fact, if I could find one who didn't smoke I could use her services because my wife's tobacco habit has certainly put a crimp in our love life.

DETESTS CIGARETTES

DEAR DETESTS: What can you do? Love her or leave her. But don't nag her, or she'll increase her smoking as an excuse to calm her frazzled nerves.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 48 and my fiance is 55. I've been divorced 15 years, and his wife died five years ago. We've been going together for two years and plan to marry soon.

He always compliments me on the way I look. I do dress nicely and am always perfectly groomed. Now for my problem:

When I was in my teens, I was very ill and all my hair fell out. I have no eyelashes, eyebrows, and not a hair on my head. I am completely hairless.

I wear false eyelashes and a wig, and I paint my eyebrows on.

I'm a very honest person, and don't like to keep this from him, but I'm afraid of how he'll react. I've started to tell him several times, but couldn't get the words out.

My mother says I should wait until after we're married to tell him. My father says I should tell him now.

Do you think it would change his feelings for me? He says he loves me, and I know I love him. Please help me.

WIGGED OUT

DEAR WIGGED: Tell him. If it changes his feelings for you, you're better off knowing it now. If he really loves you, it won't matter. (Many women marry bald MEN.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had dinner with my parents, my brother and sister-in-law, and their 14-month-old baby.

For two and one-half hours, we talked either about or to the baby, who was allowed to toddle around the dinner table the entire time. We all had to watch our food and coffee every minute.

There was absolutely no chance to visit. All the conversation was centered around the baby. At first I was just annoyed, but then I became bored stiff and, finally, angry. Am I intolerant?

Abby, please say something about parents who monopolize the conversation with talk about their children and permit the child to be the center of attention for an entire evening.

BORED IN LONG BEACH

DEAR BORED: Your complaint is neither uncommon nor unjustified. Parents, please note.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am ashamed to complain about what is routinely a painless, quick and easy process of drawing blood, but it isn't true in my case.

Twice a year for six years I have endured painful and always futile efforts of two supposedly trained technicians trying to get blood for thyroid and potassium tests. Finally, the doctor has to do it himself, using veins other than those inside my elbows. By that time I am a nervous wreck.

It never gets any better. Is there a solution for me?

DEAR READER — Veins that have been used frequently often scar or undergo so much thickening and inflammation that they are no longer useful. In the course of time the inflammation subsides and some of them open again, but some never do. When a vein undergoes these changes blood has to be drawn from some other location. In severe problems when drawing blood or inserting a needle to supply fluids or medicine is essential it may be necessary to do a "cut down," meaning cutting the skin and surgically exposing the vein to be used.

The pain of a needle puncture can be minimized or abolished by spraying the skin with one of the coolants that evaporate on the skin and deadens the sensation momentarily in that area. The veins can be made more prominent by using a blood pressure cuff around the upper arm rather than just a piece of rubber tubing. The pressure on the cuff can be adjusted high enough to impede flow through the veins, causing them to stand out but not high enough to block the arterial flow into the arm. Warm soaks over the skin also

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY— This is such a nice bright day that I washed this morning and then hung the clothes on an outside line to dry. They dried beautifully, as usual, but there is always that problem of bugs, flies, etc. sticking to the drying clothes. A few always stick like glue even when they are brushed or shaken off. I discovered that the easiest way to get rid of them is to bring the clothes in and put in the dryer on "fluff" for eight or 10 minutes. You not only get rid of the insects but end up with fluffy towels, sheets, etc. — MRS. W.E.

DEAR POLLY— I take so many flowers to the church, to the hospital and to shut-ins that I ran out of containers for them. I came up with the idea of cutting a gallon-size plastic milk jug in two parts. I cut around the center of the jug with scissors and then punch holes in the top half. The top half is pushed into the bottom half, that is filled with water, and the flowers are stuck in the holes. —MRS. H.

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Plants in the Home...

How to prolong summer in the garden

If you garden in a climate where killing frost is inevitable in the near future, now is the time to gather in your harvest. Last week, I wrote about bringing in house plants and now I'd like to concentrate on things to eat.

Tomatoes come first to mind, partly because there is really no substitute for home-grown ones and partly because there are so many ways to prolong their season.

For example, plants laden with ripening fruit can sometimes be saved from early light frosts by draping large sheets of plastic over them at night. In areas where Indian summer is a common occurrence, this practice can prolong the growing season by several weeks.

If you have been growing tomatoes in containers, it may be feasible to move some of them indoors when frost threatens, but not if you detect any signs of white flies. I have been particularly successful with the small-fruited cherry and pear types as well as the newer hybrids bred specifically for patios.

Indoors, tomatoes need the sunniest window possible and temperatures between 60 and 80F. Keep the soil evenly moist and provide fresh air circulation, but protect from chills. If new flowers fail to set tomatoes, use a mall camel's hair brush to pollinate future blossoms, or spray them with a special fruit-setting hormone available for this purpose.

Another way to get the most from tomato plants that have a heavy set of fruit in various stages of ripeness is to pull the vines from the garden and hang them upside down in a cool basement or frost-free garage on the day freezing is expected. Neighbors of mine who did this in early October last year were able to pick tomatoes, literally vine-ripened, until mid-December.

If you want to save only the tomatoes and not the vines at the time frost is expected, I suggest these guidelines:

—Fruits that show some color at the blossom end at the time of picking can best be ripened at 60 to 70F., in moderate light. Space them apart in a single layer to assure air circulation; avoid temperatures below 55F. and hot, direct sun.

—Green-hard tomatoes can't be expected to ripen off the vine. Use them to make relish, or cut the larger ones into quarter-inch slices, dip in flour, beaten egg and seasoned bread crumbs, then fry in oil, about three minutes on each side.

To get as much harvest as possible from other vegetables, I recommend the following procedures:

—Sweet and hot peppers and eggplant respond to essentially the same treatment as the tomato, to which they are related.

—Pick all cucumbers, summer squash, okra and ripe or nearly-ripe melons before frost. Large pieces of plastic draped over the plants at night may save them, from being killed before Indian summer, during which time the natural ripening process can continue and thus stretch the harvest season.

—Root crops such as carrot, horseradish, Jerusalem artichoke, leek, onion, parsnip, rutabaga and turnip can be left in the garden, but given a deep straw mulch to keep the ground from freezing. This way you'll be able to continue harvesting them as needed through most of the winter. In really cold climates these may be dug before winter freezeup and stored in damp sand in a frost-free place.

—Cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli and Brussels sprouts all withstand early frosts. To save from severe cold lift plants with some roots and set in moist soil in a deep coldframe or sun-heated pit.

—Light frost actually improves the flavor of kale and collards. However, before hard freezing mulch with straw, then you'll be able to pick from them all winter.

—Before frost dig Chinese cabbage of the Wong Bok type and plant in moist sand in a frost-free place. It will last for up to three months.

—You can prolong the harvest from a bed of everbearing strawberries by rigging up a plastic cover on a simple wood or wire frame. Large plastic bleach bottles filled with water and placed inside will collect the sun's heat by day and give off warmth at night.

—Bring pots of tender perennial herbs (sweet bay, rosemary, marjoram, lemon verbena) indoors before frost.

—Old plants of annual herbs (basil, dill, chervil, summer savory, borage) are best left to be frosted. If you want to grow these indoors, pot up volunteer seedlings from the garden or start from seed packets.

—To grow hardy perennial herbs (mint, thyme, oregano, tarragon, parsley, chives, sage, winter savory) indoors in winter, pot up and trim back the plants before frost. Leave them

ELVIN McDONALD

To freeze outdoors for a few weeks, then bring to a cool, sunny window or light garden.

—For a late fall and winter harvest of leaf lettuce, chard, spinach, mustard greens and radishes, sow the seeds now in a protected coldframe or hotbed, a sun-heated pit or greenhouse kept only warm enough to prevent freezing. In severe weather you can supplement heat in any of these environments by using light bulbs at night, soil heating cables, or lots of waterfilled bleach bottles which collect daytime heat from the sun.

A DAILY INCIDENT!

Hardly a day passes without the newspapers reporting an automobile accident. Lives are lost and bodies maimed due to careless driving on our streets and highways.

Another daily incident which the newspapers often do not report, and to which others are indifferent, is the ruining of lives and character in the wretched, uneducated, and poverty-ridden parts of the great cities in our land. There are those who despair of ever getting out of their situation and so despondency sets in and a lack of desire to strive for worthy goals enters the spirit.

A loving God would have us aware of these whose lives, self-respect and character could be saved — if we were interested enough.

God often impresses the needs of His children upon those who attend His church. It is His will that we should show forth the love of God for mankind by helping all who are suffering.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

The evil behind all other evils

Sylvia Porter

(Fifth of five columns)
Expansion in the U.S. economy has been steadily winding down from the sizzling 7 1/2 per cent growth rate which '77 started with. Fears are widespread that we are into a phase of "pause" similar to that which characterized late '76 and '75, and that this slowdown will slide into downturn next.

But there also are abundant reasons for confidence that '78 will be a third year of "real" upturn (growth in dollars with the impact of inflation eliminated). While the expansion is middle-aged at 2 1/2 years, it hasn't yet reached even the average duration for previous post-World War II expansions. The U.S. government has a wide range of unused anti-slump weapons in its economic arsenal.

Admittedly, the so-called leading indicators — which in the past have telegraphed in advance turns in the business cycle — have declined for three months in a row. The stock market has been a year-long area of distress. Auto sales have been zipping along but much retail trade has been hesitant. Responsible world authorities have been issuing gloomy assessments of economic conditions in nations around the globe.

A slowdown, though, is not a stall. A continuing U.S. expansion at a real pace in the 5 per cent range wouldn't be powerful enough to slash joblessness but it would be healthily sustainable, and our most disturbing structural unemployment demands special attacks.

Meanwhile, a strong rise in business spending on new plants and equipment is still to play its traditional role in propping our economy. And there are heartening signs this type of spending is perking up and will be a new source of strength to offset less exuberant consumer spending.

Despite frightening talk of a worldwide depression set off by our patchwork international monetary system and debt burdens, the system is functioning; the Western nations are working together to reconcile their differences, develop a more stable monetary order, revive their economies, curb inflation, avert a return to destructive trade barriers.

But no healthy economic expansion in the U.S. can long be sustained with 1977's "underlying" inflation rate of 5 1/2 to 6 1/2 per cent. Even if we could manage to survive with this rate compounded year after year, it would be mere survival with precious non-essentials beyond our capacity to buy.

And so steep an inflation rate would keep interest rates intolerably high too, be disastrous for stock prices, hold out a constant invitation to another economic crack-up.

We simply cannot delay an all-out battle against this most fundamental of all evils. Why can't we:

- Cooperate to raise our rate of productivity (efficiency per worker per workhour) so that more goods and services can be produced per hour, wages can be hiked without forcing price increases and we can curb today's destructive cost-push inflation?
- Improve relationships between business and labor and between private enterprise and government so that price-pay hikes which are clearly against the public interest can be monitored and modified? Accept voluntary policing of economic actions we all recognize as harmful to us, as individuals, and our nation?
- Eliminate government regulations which not only fail to fulfill their purposes but which also add to prices?
- Restore our tax system to a means of raising funds and providing incentives and stop distorting it into a form of punishment for the most productive?
- Deliberately build up stockpiles of critical raw materials and commodities — ranging from food to oil — to protect us from inflationary shortages and bottlenecks?

On top of inflation itself (the "cruellest tax" of all) is today's inflation psychology. This too is profoundly dangerous because when so many believe the prophecies of inflation, they take steps that make the prophecies self-fulfilling.

We have outgrown the economic theories of Lord John Maynard Keynes, the great British economist whose ideas have played so overwhelming a role in world prosperity since the 1930s. Now we MUST become bold enough to embrace rather than shrink from new ideas. As Keynes himself once said:

"The ideas of economists and philosophers ... are more powerful than is commonly understood. Indeed the world is ruled by little else."

WHY CAN'T WE at least experiment with new ideas?

Shell study indicates ECH as cancer risk

HOUSTON (AP) — Shell Chemical Co. says higher than normal rates of cancer deaths have been found among workers heavily exposed to a chemical called epichlorohydrin (ECH) at the company's plants in suburban Deer Park and Norco, La.

However, a mortality study showed a larger group, including workers with lower exposures to ECH, had fewer cancer deaths than the general population.

Shell commissioned the study by Dr. Phillip E. Enterline, professor of biostatistics at the University of Pittsburgh, after ECH produced cancer in test animals.

Although the study statistics are inconclusive, Enterline said, the results, along with the animal tests, are "suggestive of a carcinogenic risk to humans."

Dr. Roy Joyner, Shell's corporate medical director, said further studies will be conducted to "allow us to draw definite conclusions."

Shell said the initial study covered 864 workers who handled or produced ECH at the two Shell plants for at least six months between 1948 and 1965.

Joyner said the worker exposure in those years was "substantially higher" than the present workplace levels of less than one part per million during normal operations.

"In our opinion, neither this study nor past information establishes that a carcinogenic risk exists at such levels," Joyner said.

ECH is an intermediate chemical used in making epoxy resins and other chemicals. Shell said it was advising employees, government agencies, ECH customers and distributors and Dow Chemical Co., the other U.S. manufacturer of ECH, of the study results.

Urges inmate fire drills

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The chairman of the Commission on Jail Standards doesn't want Texas jails making headlines. Recent headlines in other states have told of fire deaths.

Chairman James Greenwood III of Houston recommended Wednesday that more attention, including fire drills, should be given to making jails safe from fire "to avert the tragedies we have read about in other states."

As a preface to the commission meeting, executive director Guy Van Cleave had noted: "Recent tragedies in incarceration facilities in Tennessee, Connecticut, Florida and Indiana have emphasized the vulnerability of these institutions to fire with its subsequent smoke and fumes."

The commission discussed the padding in cells for "violent" prisoners as a possible fire hazard.

Van Cleave said he was paying $850 to test a new material that "won't support combustion," but he added that he had rejected another material after finding out it would burn.

"We don't have to test it," he said. "I set it afire in my office and it burned very well."

Greenwood stated that more than 70 per cent of Texas county jails do not have adequate firefighting equipment and more than 80 per cent do not have proper equipment for removing smoke and fumes.

Van Cleave said, "There is nothing quite like a jail. It is so confining that a little smoke goes a long way."

"Maybe the bottom line," Greenwood said, "is to take the padding out of the padded cells."

Wayne Smith of the state fire marshal's office said the National Fire Protection Association had concentrated on prison safety and would not address fire safety standards for jails until 1979 — "only about 50 years too late."

Greenwood said the commission would send letters to Texas jail officials of the critical importance of fire safety, including "rehearsals" with guards and prisoners.

Gem murder stirs unrest in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Murder and the disappearance of up to $1 million in gems has left Manhattan's bustling diamond district uneasy as police seek the killer of 25-year-old gem broker.

Detectives sifted evidence taken from the tiny office of diamond cutter Shlomo Tal, 31, who led police to Pinchos Jaroslawicz' body on Wednesday. Tal recounted a bizarre tale of robbery, kidnap and murder by two shadowy male intruders.

Tal, who has not been charged, was being held as a material witness in the case, and was set to appear Thursday at a hearing in state Supreme Court, New York's trial court.

The material witness status enabled authorities to keep the solidly-built, shaggy-haired Tal available for further questioning without charging him with any part in the crime.

Steven Hyman, one of Tal's two attorneys, said his client was cooperating with police, but was not happy that Tal was being held as a material witness.

Tal, described as a high-living business acquaintance of the slain man, had been missing for three days. He told police that two men entered his office Sept. 20 and beat Jaroslawicz, 25, to death.

He said he continued doing business for five days while Jaroslawicz' body lay stuffed in plastic bags in the office. Tal said he was afraid "for his life and the safety of his wife and children."

Tal said he later was abducted by the same men, who forced him to drive them around for three days. He said he was drugged by the men and left in his car, where he was found Wednesday with about $30,000 in jewels under the car's front seat.

Authorities said Jaroslawicz had been beaten and suffocated.

Elvis' body being moved to his estate

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Elvis Presley is going home to Graceland Mansion one last time.

The family of the singer received approval Wednesday to move his body and the body of his mother, Gladys Smith Presley, to the grounds of the 13 1/2-acre, wooded estate he bought in 1957 for $100,000.

"We just want to bring Elvis home," D. Beecher Smith II, attorney for the estate, told the Memphis and Shelby County Board of Adjustment, which voted unanimously to approve the transfer application.

Presley and his mother are to be moved from a white marble mausoleum at Forest Hill Cemetery to a site called Meditation Garden.

Smith said the bodies would be buried in a grassy area between a fountain and a crescent-shaped stone wall containing four stained glass windows depicting religious scenes.

Smith refused to say when the bodies would be transferred to the estate, which overlooks Elvis Presley Boulevard.

Smith filed the application Sept. 7 at the request of the singer's father, Vernon Presley, the executor of the estate.

Smith said it was a hardship on the estate to maintain the Presley graves at Forest Hill. He also cited what he called an attempted theft of Presley's body and the expense of security.

The Presley family placed around-the-clock security at the crypt at a cost of $200 a day after the Aug. 29 arrest of three men near the mausoleum on trespassing charges, Smith said.

One of the men was later identified as an informant who tipped authorities of a purported plot to steal Presley's body and hold it for ransom. Police Director E. Winslow Chapman later called the matter a hoax.

Police arrest scout leader

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Police arrested a 21-year-old Cub Scout leader Wednesday after scouts alleged he forced them to perform homosexual acts.

The comment of one scout, who said he didn't want to attend a meeting because "I don't like to play nasty," aroused his mother's suspicion and led her to contact police.

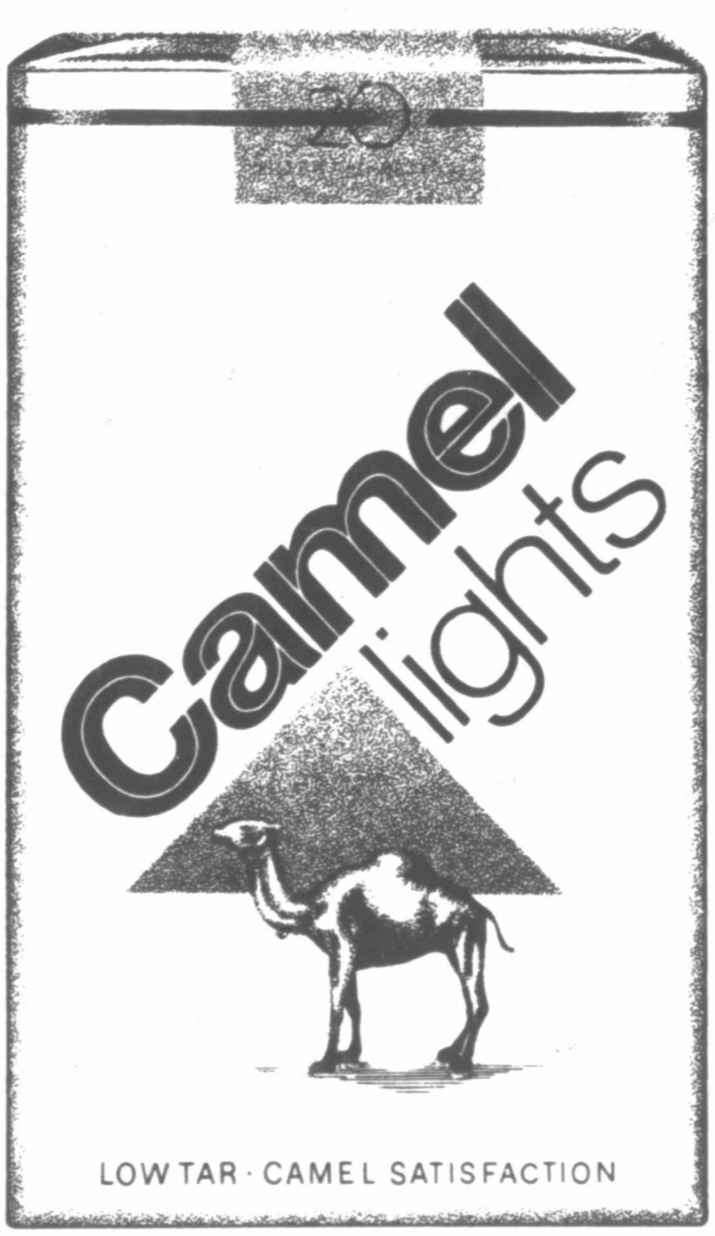

Upon further questioning, the boy said his pack leader forced him and others to take part in homosexual activities.

Police said three scouts were questioned and their stories matched.

The man arrested is a former security guard.

N. Carolina fights for gas

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An administrative law judge decided it wasn't done deliberately: Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line and its suppliers just couldn't produce all the natural gas their customers needed — but the State of North Carolina isn't satisfied.

On Sept. 16, the state, entirely dependent on Transco for its natural gas, asked the Federal Power Commission to listen to its objections to the judge's decision and to take action to improve Transco's troubled gas supply.

The commission, with one holdover member, two new ones, two vacancies and facing reorganization the first of the month, has not yet responded.

Its decision could eventually close the two-year-old Transco case or revive it and plunge the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the reorganized agency that takes over Saturday, into a sticky debate about the legal responsibilities of natural gas producers and pipelines.

Its gas supplies curtailed heavily by Transco in recent winters, and with no immediate relief in sight, North Carolina thinks the commission should order the pipeline to deliver its contracted amounts of gas or pay the extra cost of emergency gas purchases.

North Carolina also wants the commission to place legal obligations on producers to develop gas supplies and to allocate new gas sales to the highest-priority customers.

The FPC's staff, dissatisfied with the decision of Administrative Law Judge Curtis L. Wagner, wants the commission to spell out standards by which natural gas producers should decide where, when and how to spend their money on gas development and production.

Almost lost among these demands is the specific problems that touched off the Transco case late in 1974.

In September of that year Transco — a major pipeline serving Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia — had predicted a gas shortage of about 20 per cent for the 1974-1975 winter.

Then, only two weeks later, Transco suddenly reduced its gas supply expectations by about 9 billion cubic feet. By the end of December, Transco's shortage predictions had grown another 24 billion cubic feet and its deliveries were quickly curtailed to avoid worse cutbacks later.

Within days, on Jan. 8, 1975.

Fed stats show crime rise down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Serious crime in the United States rose by less than 1 per cent last year, showing major improvement over the 10 per cent increase of 1975, federal crime statistics show.

The FBI said Tuesday there was an 8 per cent decrease in murders in 1976 and a 10 per cent drop in robberies, reducing the country's incidence of violent crime by 4 per cent.

It was when the FBI combined the violent crime figures with statistics for nonviolent crimes, such as auto theft, that the agency arrived at the overall 1976 crime increase of less than 1 per cent.

Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell said the statistics are "encouraging news, particularly when preliminary reports show a 9 per cent decline in reported serious crime for the first three months of 1977."

The FBI statistics, assembled from information supplied by some 130 law enforcement agencies, showed an average of one murder every 28 minutes last year, one rape every nine minutes and a robbery every 75 seconds. A car was stolen every 33 seconds.

But the 18,780 murders, two-thirds of them committed with firearms, represented an 8 per cent drop from 1975. And murder was down 1 per cent that year from 1974.

the five-member FPC ordered an investigation of "the circumstances of the increased curtailment" and the following July 1 it broadened its investigation, asking whether Transco really had to curtail service so much, and why, and what it was doing to improve the gas supply.

After 11 months of investigation, an FPC technical team reported there was no evidence that natural gas supplies were deliberately held back from Transco by producers and that further investigation of production activities in the field were not likely to turn up "any effort or conspiracy ... to withhold or conceal" available gas supplies.

The case went on another 18 months, accumulating 4,015 pages of testimony and 112 exhibits in 32 days of public hearings.

Finally, last June 21, Judge Wagner issued his "initial decision," subject to commission review.

The investigation had delved not only into Transco's efforts to contract for new gas supplies, but also into the actual operation of gas wells by Transco suppliers, including Cities Service Oil Co., Mitchell Energy and Development Co., Atlantic Richfield, Kerr-McGee, Mobil, Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co., Shell Oil and Union Oil Co. of California. "There is a complete void of any evidence in this record indicating any willful withholding of natural gas by the various producers from the interstate market whatsoever," Wagner concluded.

"Each producer involved in this hearing satisfactorily accounted for its failure to meet or satisfy its contract requirements."

As for Transco, Wagner said, "There is no evidence in this case of any attempt to manipulate or distort the need for curtailment in any manner whatsoever."

Wagner proposed an order to end the investigation.

But the commission's staff and North Carolina disputed Wagner's findings.

Wagner's decision, while it found no "wrongdoing," did suggest that "it may be true that Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp. may not have been as diligent as it should have been in its efforts to improve its gas supply in past years." The judge said Transco was reversing that trend under new management.

And Wagner cited "some bad management decisions on the timing of offshore repairs" by gas producers. He particularly noted "the inopportune timing of Cities Service Oil Co.'s reworking of its Brazos Block gas well during the height of the winter season."

But Wagner admitted that no findings could be made "with regard to the propriety" of Cities Service's gas-well workovers because he had been ordered in mid-1975 to stop investigating Cities Service to avoid conflict with a Justice Department investigation.

And the FPC technical staff report of December 1975, which found no evidence of a gas-withholding conspiracy in the gas-field records, noted that if there were a conspiracy, "the evidence of this would lie solely within the domain of the upper echelons of corporate management ..."

Wagner's decision left lingering doubts in the minds of the lawyers representing North Carolina and the FPC staff.

Because of this, the state of North Carolina and its Public Utilities Commission urged FPC members to listen to oral arguments on the case "at as early a date as the commission's schedule permits."

Child care can't be automated

(Fifth in a series)
By Dorothy V. Whipple, M.D.
ARLINGTON, Va. — (NEA) — A revolution is taking place in the American family. The time is now past when it can be assumed that the husband is the only breadwinner, and the wife stays at home, keeps the house and rears the children. The latest figures show that 60 per cent of mothers with children under 18 are working, and that 40 per cent of these mothers have children under six years of age. This adds up to a total of 27 million children under 18, including six million children under six, who live in families where both mother and father go out to work every day. American women have always worked. But in the past the chores at home were the essential job, and only those women at the bottom of the economic ladder went out to work.

Dr. Whipple is clinical professor of pediatrics at Georgetown University. This article is one of a series written in cooperation with the Council on Family Health, a public service group funded by the manufacturers of medicine.

Now women at all economic levels have jobs outside the home. In fact, to enjoy the standard of living a family might like today, a wife often needs to replace no-longer-existing home duties with a paid job. As one little girl put it: "In our house Daddy makes the bread and butter and Mommy makes the jelly."

The problems of women at work increase dramatically when there are children involved. Despite the wonders of technology, disposable diapers and prepared foods, caring for a young child cannot be automated. It is a human job — 24 hours a day.

Even if a young mother decides to stay at home to care for her child, she may find herself ill-equipped for the sudden change of pace in the home job. She finds herself isolated in her own home with an enormous amount of work and without the freedom and added income of her before-children job. Loneliness, as well as the 24-hour vigil, may get many a young mother down.

To cope adequately with an infant and a young toddler, a woman needs inner peace. Without it she is apt to take out her frustrations in irritation with her child, which makes matters worse. A jumpy, nervous woman creates a jumpy, irritable child.

A woman who finds herself in this state of mind should take the problem seriously. It is advisable for her to talk the matter over with her husband, with the pediatrician, with her own physician or with a trusted friend, in order to find a solution that will fit her needs.

This might entail some regular babysitting that would give her regular free time, or perhaps sharing more of the child care responsibilities with her husband, or an earlier return to part or full-time employment, or, if necessary, personal counseling to allay her own anxieties about being a mother. Life with a young child can be a beautiful experience, one that ought to be fully enjoyed, not simply endured.

Probably the most important question facing a mother who decides to work is adequate child care. Public day care centers exist in many areas of the country. There are approximately 21,000 such centers with places for about three-quarter million children. There are, however, six million children under the age of six in need of care, and many millions of older children as well.

Some of these centers are excellent, but many are hardly more than parking places for children. It is the responsibility of each mother and father to find adequate care for their child. This may be done in many different ways. Once in a while, a grandmother or other family member is available. More often it is a woman with children of her own who will take on an extra child or two.

When good care can be found, children thrive. A child can accept care from someone besides its own parents if that person is warm, loving and competent. We know that children accepted the care of various members of the extended family — including grandmothers, aunts, cousins — that was typical in households before modern times. In fact, children are probably better off with horizons and emotional attachments that extend beyond their own homes. Although the vast majority of working mothers still carry the major responsibility for home and children, a small but growing number of men now share in this job.

To successfully handle both work and family chores, there are three requirements:

1. A strong constitution. A working mother and father need vim and vigor in the evenings to enjoy their children, to feed them, talk to them, play with them. It is the quality, not quantity, of time spent with a child that is important.

2. Extra income. Hopefully, with two working parents, a family can afford to hire some housekeeping help, so that parents do not use previous time and energy cleaning or doing laundry.

3. Mutual understanding. The husband of a working woman needs to respect his wife's job. A man who feels denigrated because "his wife works" is likely to belittle her efforts and undermine her self-esteem. Both husband and wife must support each other's efforts in this mutual endeavor, keeping in mind that theirs is something of a pioneering effort.

College pigskin picks

From the "where are they now" department: Pampa graduate Rik Moore was named "Lobo Player of the Week" by the NEW MEXICO DAILY LOBO last week for his performance in the University of New Mexico freshmen team's 19-9 win over Fort Lewis College Sept. 16 at UNM Stadium.

Moore, a 6-0, 206-pound running back scored on runs of 30, 25 and 12 yards during his Wolfpup debut.

Despite the team's woes, several Harvester players are making their mark on the district 3-AAAA statistics. Gary Dumas and Ricky Bunton share the district pass reception lead with nine catches apiece.

Dumas is averaging 17.6 yards per catch, while Bunton has a 14.1 average. Steve Young is listed as the third leading passer with 18 completions in 48 attempts for 290 yards.

Young's yardage total leads the district, but he is rated third because of his low completion percentage and district-leading eight interceptions. Tascosa's Harold Cliver (14 of 25 for 257 yards) is the No. 1 passer.

Rudy Roland moved up a notch to sixth of district rushers. Roland's average of 6.8 yards per carry is second among the top 10 rushers. Aubrey Polley of Palo Duro overtook Caprock's Bobby Short for the top spot with 420 yards.

Paul Tiffany of Tascosa nudged out Pampa's David Green for the No. 1 district punter with a 37.2 average. Green dropped from 39.6 to 37.0 after the Borger game.

The Harvesters are still rated fourth in offense and fifth in defense, but have moved up to be the least penalized district 3-AAAA team.

I was within three ticks of the Ohio Stadium clock of batting a thousand in my college picks last week. But those who know me realize I would have traded that mistake for all the other correct picks.

I will have to say that the OU victory over Ohio State was one of the most exciting games ever.

and it is a shame that the next regular season meeting between the two is 1983 in Norman. Oh well, can't fret over spilled milk (or lost fumbles), so on with the calls.

For the second week in a row there is a game scheduled which may determine the national champion. Texas A&M will find out the feeling of playing before 100,000 people when the Aggies come out of the Michigan Stadium locker room.

Michigan narrowly defeated Navy, 14-7, Saturday, but I suspect Schembechler was saving everything for this week. The Aggies should be somewhat drained after beating rival Texas Tech. Also George Woodard will find his bulk (200) is more of a disadvantage against the quick and aggressive Michigan defense.

My call: Michigan 23, Texas A&M 17.

Texas Tech lost leader, inspiration and miracle worker Rodney Allison and should be emotionally destroyed. There's an upset lurking in Chapel Hill: North Carolina 28, Texas Tech 24.

West Texas State 28, UT at Arlington 10 - UTA is favored by most writers, but I'll give the "Yung" Buffaloes a welcoming victory after a long, long road trip.

Arkansas 37, TCU 17 - Chalk up another one for the Frogs.

Baylor 21, Houston 17 - The Bears are due for a win, and the Cougars are going to feel the loss of quarterback Danny Davis.

Oklahoma 38, Kansas 18 - The Sooners are sky high, and the Jayhawks haven't gotten off the ground.

Ohio State 36, SMU 10 - Could be a closer game if SMU wasn't so inexperienced.

Texas 52, Rice 3 - The Owls allowed 125 points in their last two games. Might as well stay consistent.

Other calls: Alabama 31, Georgia 14; Notre Dame 24, Michigan State 14; Penn State 31, Kentucky 12; Nebraska 46, Indiana 20; Colorado 52, Army 26; Southern California 35, Washington State 24.

Last week's calls: 10-1

Season's tally: 36-4 - 91 per cent.

Shockers beat Canyon, 34-6

CANYON - The Shockers dominated the Canyon JV both offensively and defensively to post a 34-6 victory here Thursday.

The Pampa JV made 26 first downs to six for Canyon. Canyon was held to only two penetrations.

The Shockers were bolstered by the addition of juniors who have played on the varsity. The Harvesters have an open date tonight.

Doug Smith ran 65 yards on the second play from scrimmage for the first Shocker score. Richard Wuest ran in the conversion.

Then Rick Dougherty passed 30 yards to Terry Bunton to give Pampa a 14-0 lead.

The final three Shocker scores were tallied by Wuest (50-yard run), Smith (34-yard run) and Dougherty (4-yard run).

Defensive standouts included Jeff Copeland, Ricky Knight, Mike Crippen and Greg Koch.

Sophs blank Dumas

DUMAS - The Pampa Sophomores tallied both of the game's touchdowns in the fourth quarter to blank the Dumas Sophomores 14-0 here Thursday.

Brian Williams scored the first touchdown from 10 yards out, and Joe Jeffers ran in the conversion.

Then after Dumas fumbled away the ball on their 30, Doug "Moose" Kennedy scampered 15 yards to pay dirt. A pass for the conversion failed.

Jeffers kept Dumas in poor field position with five punts for 40 yards, three of which landed within the Demon five yard line.

Linebacker Mark Jennings and tackle Randy Carpenter were cited as defensive stalwarts by coaches Scott Dunnam and Mike Brent.

Aging Ali decisions Shavers

By JOHN NELSON

AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The way it looked on national television, it was all over after the 12th round. As many as 50 million people in the TV audience knew Earnie Shavers would lose. Muhammad Ali said he knew it.

Then, why didn't Shavers know it?

"I thought I was ahead. My corner told me I was ahead," Shavers said after losing his only shot at the world heavyweight title in a 15-round decision to Ali Thursday night at Madison Square Garden.

"I threw a couple of pretty good shots, but I didn't hit him real hard. I was trying to save myself," said Shavers. "I didn't go after him because I thought he might have been faking it."

The simple fact of the matter was that after the 12th, the TV audience had been informed by NBC - which was revealing the referee's and judges' decision round-by-round - that Ali had eight check-marks on his side of the card. Shavers' only chance was a knockout.

Over on Ali's side of the ring, they were keeping track. Trainer Angelo Dundee had arranged with Eddie Hrica, a Baltimore-area fight promoter, to shuttle between the dressing room TV set and ringside to keep tabs on how things were going.

No such arrangements had been made on Shavers' side of the ring, and no one in the Garden audience of 14,613 was aware of the cards. After some discussion, John F.X. Condon, head of Garden publicity, said it was decided not to transmit the NBC information to the live audience or to reporters. The New York State Athletic Commission had recommended against it as being possibly disruptive, Condon said.

"But we didn't tell Ali," Dundee said. "We didn't want him to know. He might have let up, and you can't do that against a guy like Shavers."

Ali, however, said he had been told at one point during the fight that he was ahead, and that he would have thought so anyway. He looked like a fighter trying to hang onto his lead in the 13th and 14th rounds, which went to Shavers on the cards of the two judges and the referee, Johnny Lo-

Bianco.

"I took some punches that would have knocked any man out," said Ali, his face swollen from the beating he had taken from Shavers, considered one of boxing's all-time hardest hitters.

"Hurt me? Yeah, he hurt me a couple of times," Ali said. "I was almost knocked out two or three times. I was out on my feet. But the experts told you right. I can take a punch. I knew I had it won. I am the greatest fighter of all time."

After the 12th round, the two judges' cards had Ali ahead 8-4, and LoBianco had it 8-3 with one even. That's when Shavers, who had never gone past 10 rounds in his career, came on strong.

Shavers won the 13th on four solid rights to Ali's head, while the champion danced, covered up and hardly threw a punch. The 14th went to Shavers in a more spectacular fashion.

Shavers came out swinging those lumberjack fists that have scored 19 first-round knockouts in 54 victories (52 knockouts in all). He caught Ali in the corner and a mighty right landed.

Ali's feet went out from under him, and the count on the auditorium loudspeaker went to "two" before LoBianco waved off the count, saying it was a slip. But Ali was in trouble.

Shavers continued to press, and he caught the champion with another right as Ali lay against the ropes.

"My corner told me I was three rounds ahead on points," said Shavers. "I knew Ali was hurt, but I couldn't tell whether he was faking it. He's good at that. He always fakes it when you hit him."

The 15th round - by which time Shavers was expected to have been showered, dressed and on his way back home to the farm in Warren, Ohio - was a slugfest. Not since Ali-Joe Frazier in Manila was there such a round in heavyweight boxing.

Both judges - Tony Castellano and Mrs. Eva Shan; the first woman ever to judge a heavyweight title fight - scored it 9-6. LoBianco had it 9-5 with the ninth round even. The Associated Press scored it 10-5.

Ali has a record of 55-2 with 37 knockouts (he hasn't knocked out an opponent since he stopped Richard Dunn in the fifth round in May, 1976). The 33-year-old Shavers, 21½", has a record of 54-6-1.

Junior High wins three of four

Pampa's junior high teams won three of four games yesterday.

The ninth grade "A" team defeated previously unbeaten Borger 44-6 at Harvester Field.

Clifford Anderson paced the Patriots with 101 yards rushing while scoring three touchdowns and two conversions.

Halfback Arthur Williams, Derick Young and Sam Edwards tallied one touchdown apiece. Young's TD was a 45-yard trap up the middle in the third quarter.

The Patriots had 298 yards total offense, while a hard-nosed defense allowed Borger only 89 total yards. The ninth "A" team is now 3-0 for the season.

The ninth grade "B" team defeated Bushland 14-6 at Shocker Field. Pampa TDs were scored by Rick Hagerman on a 20-yard run, Greg Greenhouse on a 50-yard pass from Clay Coffee, and Kevin Bertinetti on a run.

In other AL games Thursday night, the Kansas City Royals defeated the California Angels 6-3 and the Seattle Mariners nipped the Texas Rangers 2-1.

Yankee celebration delayed

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees are in a holding position ... and Earl Weaver is in a hoping position.

"People can still say Billy Martin hasn't won two championships in a row," says the manager of the Baltimore Orioles.

Girls golf begins Sat.

The girls golf season gets underway Saturday morning when Pampa competes with Caprock and Borger duels Amarillo High in Borger.

The Pampa team will be lean on experience with only Beth Hill returning with significant varsity experience. The girls are under the tutelage of first-year coach Beth Bowman, a physical education teacher at Travis elementary.

Fighting for a berth on the five-member team are: Suzy Hill, so.; Terri Edwards, jr.; Hill, jr.; Ann Jeffrey, so.; Marilyn Shapely, so.; Charlotte Treat, so.; Penny Weiser, so.

Weaver's reference is an obvious needle aimed at the New York Yankees manager, who has laid claim to the American League East title, when in truth it is not officially his yet.

The Yankees lost a chance to lock it up Thursday night, dropping a 4-1 decision to the Cleveland Indians while Weaver's Orioles and the Boston Red Sox stayed mathematically alive by winning their games. The Red Sox defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 7-3 while the Orioles stopped the Detroit Tigers 6-3.

Spikers sweep

HEREFORD - The Pampa girls volleyball teams had an easy time in sweeping matches with the Whitefaces here Thursday night.

The varsity defeated Hereford 15-3, 15-0 to improve its record to 16-1. The JV team beat the Hereford JV 15-0, 15-5 for a 7-0 season mark.

Pampa coach Lynn Wolfe said the varsity did not miss a serve in either game. Demetria Simmons slammed down six spikes which were not returned to pace the varsity.

"That was a funny quote," said Weaver, referring to a statement by Martin that is getting more notoriety by the day. After the Yankees clinched a tie for the East title with a victory over Cleveland Wednesday night, the New York manager said that he could now be credited with two consecutive division titles in the same city. The Yankees won the AL East last year and Martin had won two others, with Minnesota and Detroit.

The Orioles open a three-game series with the Red Sox tonight. Each team must hope for a sweep, and for the Yankees to lose their three-game set with Detroit, otherwise Martin's premature announcement will be a reality before the weekend is over.

In other AL games Thursday night, the Kansas City Royals defeated the California Angels 6-3 and the Seattle Mariners nipped the Texas Rangers 2-1.

Alexander bid spoiled

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) - Although he'd already proved a large point - that he could win consistently if placed in a starting rotation and left there - the Texas Rangers' Doyle Alexander was more than a little unhappy about dropping his final decision of the year Thursday night.

Alexander, who finished at 17-11, his best year ever by four victories, saw his bid for No. 18 fade in the night as Seattle collected three straight singles - by Bob Stinson, Craig Reynolds and Julio Cruz - to pull out a 2-1 victory.

It was the hit by Reynolds that left Alexander mumbling and blaming Bump Wills. He thought the rookie second baseman could have handled the ball, but his claim "I thought I was out of the inning" seemed far-fetched.

Wills failed to come up with the ball, a grounder between first and second, but it appeared he would have had a play only at first base.

Earlier in the year, Alexander Billy Hunter claiming he was "pulled faster than Gaylord Perry or Bert Blyleven."

At first he jumped on Wills hard, then backed down.

"We should have stayed home and given them this one," Alexander protested. "It's a shame to lose because one guy won't play."

But in the next breath, he said "But he's done a good job this year. I'm not knocking him. I made some good pitches and some bad ones, so I guess I deserve it."

Wills agreed that "I should have had it. I thought the ball would come up, but that's beside the point."

Rats search homes for drink

ORINDA, Calif. (AP) — Thirsty rats and ants are slipping into many San Francisco Bay area homes looking for water made scarce during California's two-year drought.

"We've had more calls about rats, and they've been looking for water, definitely," said Peter Davidson, service manager for Corky's Pest Control here.

Homes in the bay area have been under orders to ration water for about a year.

Exterminators say calls to rid homes of rats and ants have gone up by as much as 40 percent in the past three or four months.

Davidson said the pests have prompted calls from homeowners who never had problems before. Many of them have creeks near their homes that have dried up, he said.

"And they've stopped watering their lawns, so there was no water out there the rats could get and no puddles, either," Davidson said.

"They're looking for dripping faucets, anything like that," he said. "And the calls aren't from slum areas, but from nice neighborhoods like Walnut Creek, Concord and Moraga," all suburbs east of Oakland.

There has been no indication from health officials as to whether the pests pose a health hazard.

Bill Wallace, chief deputy agricultural commissioner of Contra Costa County, said reports of the pest invasion are "not horror stories, exactly, but it's really something of a nuisance this year."

Top of the line dolls

There are dolls and dolls, but among collectors such as Kay Spindel these are regarded as the Tiffany of the line. They are French bisque Jumeau, named for a 19th-century Frenchman who employed talented artists and real hair to create beautifully modeled dolls. They are among rare and unusual examples on display at the 14th annual National Arts and Antiques Festival in New York starting Oct. 8.

By DAN McDONALD
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Some of the dolls at a Dallas toy show may never be cuddled by little girls playing mother.

The reason is simple. The elegantly dressed figures cost too much.

There is a distinct and growing interest in quality dolls," said Duke Travis, owner of Travis Associates, whose firm handles porcelain reproductions of antique dolls.

Unarmed boy shot by cops

HOUSTON (AP) — Asst. Police Chief Tommy Mitchell says the case of the fatal shooting of an unarmed 16-year old boy by police during a burglary investigation will be turned over to a grand jury.

Michael Lozano was shot to death late Tuesday night by a policeman who answered a burglary alarm at a liquor store.

Investigators said Officer J. H. Powell said he fired at a boy who jumped at him when he opened the door of a small bathroom.

Police said a 14-year old boy who was apprehended at the scene told investigators "the officer walked in and shot Michael" as the boys were "hiding" from the officers by standing motionless together against the bathroom wall.

Mitchell said he believed the shooting was justified because the officer had good reason to be "in fear of his life."

These dolls aren't to be cuddled

Travis' dolls retail for up to $250 each.

They are manufactured by Kendall's of Los Angeles whose owner, Aletha Kendall, said her creations are not toys.

"I don't think even one in a 100 is even touched by a little girl," said Mrs. Kendall from Los Angeles.

But Travis said the reception of the expensive dolls has been "wonderful."

"One store in West Texas bought 18 in one week," he said. "But I'll have to admit that I asked myself at the beginning if I was doing the right thing by getting into these dolls."

The Kendall creations are modeled after European dolls that were famous 60 to 80 years ago. Some of the originals are now worth over $3,000, Mrs. Kendall said.

The current models are hand-painted bisque, dressed in hand-made costumes. And Mrs. Kendall adds a signature and a date to many models in an effort to increase their value over the years.

Down the hall from Travis at the Dallas World Trade Center where the show is being held this week, Mary McManemin of Mary McManemin Associates said she is delighted that so many more people are interested in quality dolls.

Mrs. McManemin's firm handles dolls by Kathie Kruse of Germany, Gama of France and Zanneni-Zambelli of Italy. Retail prices can reach $200 each.

"If someone buys one of these dolls, then they're doing it as a collector," Mrs. McManemin said. "Even if they buy it for a child, they're collecting."

Mrs. McManemin said collecting expensive dolls is fairly widespread today.

"Collecting is more popular in academic, military and medical communities because those people tend to be the ones who have done extensive traveling and have the financial resources necessary for collecting," she said.

But the expensive dolls are not the only ones getting attention.

Gary Hedrick said he started his doll-manufacturing firm, Boutique Traveler Inc., in the basement of his Florida home in 1970. He is now building a factory to create his dolls clad in frilly lace and topped with fancy hats.

His assembly line created dolls probably won't become collector's items because, Hedrick said, "I try to make dolls people can afford."

His dolls wholesale for between $4.25 and $16 each.

"Dolls are one of the fastest growing items in the toy industry," Hedrick said. "I like to think of it as a return to simpler ways."

Gets immunity authority

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is giving a committee broad authority to grant immunity against prosecution to witnesses who may be able to shed some light on the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

not risk prosecution by telling what they know.

His reference to soldiers of fortune seemed to confirm a report that an appearance by soldier-of-fortune Loran Hall was postponed this month so that he could be given immunity.

On a vote of 292 to 112, the House on Wednesday approved the assassination committee's plea for authority to get court immunity for as many as 150 witnesses.

The move apparently is aimed at giving new impetus to House investigators' months-long probe of the two assassinations.

Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, chairman of the committee, told House colleagues there is a possibility his panel will need immunity for more than 100 witnesses in the Kennedy assassination investigation alone.

Stokes said the only way the committee can get testimony from organized crime figures and soldiers of fortune is to ensure that such witnesses will
