

Celanese celebrates 25th year in Pampa

The Celanese Chemical Company will commemorate 25 years of operation in Pampa tonight with a banquet for employees and spouses at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

There currently are 46 employees at the Pampa plant with 25 years or more of service with the company. 27 of them have worked only at the Pampa Plant. Those with 25 or more years of service will be honored at the banquet.

When the plant opened in 1952, there were 154 employees. Currently there are 351 employees at the Pampa facility.

The first products were shipped from the plant in October of 1952 and the Celanese facility in Pampa later became the world's largest single producer of acetic acid. After several expansions over the past 25 years the plant still ranks among the top acetic acid producers in the world.

Development of the plant facilities continues with work currently underway to convert from natural gas to coal as a major source of boiler fuel. The project is expected to be completed in mid 1979 at a cost of more than 50 million dollars, said C.E. Steel plant manager.

When completed, the new facilities will generate steam and electricity for the plant, conserving natural gas for higher priority uses other than boiler fuel.

The central process used at the Pampa plant is a liquid phase oxidation (LPO) process developed by the Celanese Technical Center in Corpus Christi.

The LPO process, an oxidation reaction of butane to produce acetic acid, its derivatives and co-products, had not been commercially tested before the Pampa plant opened.

Chemicals now produced at the facility include acetic acid, acetic anhydride, butyric acid, acetone, ethyl acetate, ethyl acrylate, 2-ethyl hexyl acrylate, formic acid, methanol, methyl acrylate, methyl ethyl ketone, methyl formate, propionic acid, and multi-functional acrylates used in many paint and coating applications.

Celanese officials expected for the banquet include R.L. Mitchell, executive vice president of the chemicals, plastics, and polymer specialties group; and H.B. Bartley Jr., president of Celanese Chemical Company.

There have been only four plant managers at the Pampa facility in its 25-year history. Three of them will be present at the banquet — J.H. Frick, manager 1952-56; J.J. Fritsch, 1967-72; and Steel, 1972 to present.

H.V. Wilks served as plant manager from 1956 to 1967. His widow lives in Pampa.

Frick retired from Celanese on Sept. 30. At that time he was plant manager of the Bishop plant. He served with Celanese for 31 years.

Other company executives expected in Pampa for the festivities include J.C. Martin, vice president employee relations;

John H. Frick was the Pampa plant's first manager in 1951.

The late Mr. Herschel Wilks served from 1967 to 1967.

John Fritsch was manager until 1972.

Gene Steel provides leadership today.

Dr. E.N. Wheeler, vice president research, development and planning; Dr. H.D. Medley, vice president marketing; Dr.

D.W. Lodge, vice president controller; D.W. Dawson, manager manufacturing services; R.D. Damron, director administration at Corpus Christi; and M.E. Webb, vice president planning and venture management.

Hospitals may borrow to meet October bills

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

The county's two hospitals continue to have problems in staying on top of financial waters and reportedly will have to float a loan for about $162,000 in order to meet Oct. 15 accounts payable and repay $45,000 borrowed earlier this year from the First National Bank of Pampa.

The amount of money actually needed for the payment of Oct. 15 bills will depend upon the cash flow at the hospital officials said.

The Gray County Hospital Board heard the financial report Tuesday during a meeting in the hospital conference room with Commissioner O.L. Presley and County Judge Don Hinton in attendance.

Presley suggested that the subject of needed money for the hospital's financial operations be added to the Commissioners Court 9 a.m. Friday agenda.

Both Highland General and McLean General have been operating in the red. The total deficit through September is more than $264,000 which includes $216,145 for Highland and $48,276 for McLean.

The hospital board approved the proposed budget of $3,897,790 for 1978 which is projected at $7,549 net income for the year, depending on the patient census.

The projections include a hike in room rates at both hospitals. The effective date for rate hike has not been announced.

The break-even figure for Highland General is 75 patients per day. The 126-bed hospital has been operating with an average of 59 patients per day. McLean's average occupancy is 29.3.

The number of employees at the hospitals has dropped from 329 to 268 during the past year.

Guy Hazlett, administrator, said if more employees were cut it would endanger patient care.

Presley emphasized that more private rooms are needed.

"There are just not enough," he said. Miss Verne Meador, director of nursing service, said several positions are not currently filled and added that those who have been laid off earlier have not re-applied.

"I can understand that," responded Royce Gee, board member.

R.W. Sidwell, board president, complimented Hazlett and his staff for preparation of the proposed budget to be presented to the Commissioners Court for approval on Nov. 1.

"I want to compliment Mr. Hazlett and his staff for this realistic budget," it follows closely an earlier plan directed by the board. It is the desire of the board to operate both hospitals on as near a break-even basis as possible. With the addition of doctors we hope this improves the occupancy. A lot of work went into this budget. I think you are doing a good job," Sidwell said.

Dr. Wilber R. Whitsett Jr., chief of staff, said the medical staff has approved Dr. Adolph Orina, a specialist in internal medicine, for staff privileges here. He will be moving to Pampa soon from Wichita Falls. He formerly practiced at Lubbock. He plans to open a clinic here by Nov. 1. The board approved the new physician as requested by Dr. Whitsett.

In other business approval was given to turn $9,937 in delinquent accounts, at least 18 months old, to an agency for collection for the hospital.

Sidwell said he thought the administration is making headway in collections.

Records show that McLean General lost $8,657 last month with a 22.2 percent occupancy and Highland General lost $14,000 with a 49 percent occupancy.

Board members present included Sidwell, Royce Gee, John Haynes, and Joel Plunk. Bill Tidwell and Susie Wilkinson were absent.

New bill to pay rent

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today signed a bill providing $14.7 billion for housing the needy and revitalizing the cities, calling it "a giant step forward" in improving living conditions for low-income, elderly and handicapped families.

The measure includes $1.2 billion to help the families pay their rent.

Recalling his visit last week to the South Bronx slums in New York, Carter said he saw living conditions that are "a disgrace to our great country — enough to shake our confidence in the structure that we've evolved."

While there are no instant solutions to such housing problems, the President said, "this bill takes a giant step forward."

Sitting at a small brown table in the White House Rose Garden, Carter put his signature on the measure with two green pens, then shook hands with members of Congress attending the ceremony.

"In general, this is a very excellent piece of legislation," Carter told them. But he said one part of it, removing restraints on building homes in flood plains, caused him concern.

The President said he would determine whether to reinstate the restraints with corrective legislation next year or try to deal with the matter administratively.

The signing ceremony followed Carter's weekly breakfast with congressional leaders.

After the ceremony Carter arranged to meet for the third time in two days with Lt. Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo, the Nigerian chief of state. The President conferred with him Tuesday and honored him at a White House dinner Tuesday night.

At the same time, the White House says, the bill will provide a half million jobs in construction and related industries where unemployment rates are the highest.

Farmers to rally

Farmers from all over the nation are expected in Amarillo Friday for a rally organized by the recently formed protest group American Agriculture.

One of the organizers of the local American Agriculture chapter, Mrs. Sheridan Hamly, said today that invitations to the event have been extended to several government officials and candidates.

Regan Brown, Texas commissioner of agriculture, is expected and candidates for the state senate seat recently vacated by Max Sherman have accepted invitations.

A parade through downtown Amarillo is set to begin at 1 p.m., originating at the Civic Center.

Several caravans of tractors and other farm machinery are expected from Iowa, Colorado, Kansas and various points in the Texas Panhandle.

Mrs. Hamly said that 200 people from Nebraska are expected to fly into Amarillo Airport where they will be met by area farmers in trucks to take them to the parade.

Following the parade will be a 2 p.m. meeting in the Fair Park Coliseum featuring speakers representing the various agriculture commodities.

Asked how many farmers are expected in Amarillo for the event, Mrs. Hamly said "We have no idea — thousands."

The farmers are meeting to protest the low prices they receive for their products. The members of American Agriculture are demanding 100 per cent parity for their crops.

Parity has been simply defined by officials of the organization as "the price of production plus a fair profit."

Persons interested in additional information about the rally or about American Agriculture may contact the organization's local office at 1945 N. Hobart, 665-3302, or Mrs. Henry Hamly at home, evenings.

Another local organizer of the protest movement, Freddy Vanderburg Jr., is scheduled to appear Thursday morning on the Good Morning America television program. The show, which originates in ABC's New York studios, is seen locally on channel 7 at 7 a.m.

Appearing with Vanderburg on the show will be two American Agriculture organizers from Colorado.

The three men also are to meet with representatives of the press at a luncheon while in New York.

Vanderburg is expected back in the area in time to attend the Friday rally in Amarillo.

City election may be Dec. 3

A special election to fill two vacancies on the Pampa City Commission will be Dec. 3, providing Gov. Dolph Briscoe grants a petition sent to him today by the depleted commission ranks.

Because the state's election laws designate only certain days of the year for elections, and because the laws also require public notice of any election 31 days prior to its being held, and finally because the next "designated" election day is Nov. 8 (just 27 days away), the city commission decided at Tuesday's meeting to seek the governor's permission to hold the election Dec. 3.

The commission took the action as an alternative to waiting for the next "designated" election day, which is Saturday, Jan. 21, more than three months off.

Should the petition be denied, the commissioners will undoubtedly experience some difficulties in passing any ordinances, since all must be approved by three commissioners to become legal. The absence of any of the three remaining commissioners would prevent a quorum at commission meetings, and the opposition of any one of them to any new ordinance would also effectively block approval.

The petition was prepared by City Attorney Don Lane, signed by Mayor R.D. Wilkerson, commissioners Joe Curtis, Butch Shepherd and Rex McAnelly (whose resignation does not become effective until Nov. 1) and sent via registered mail to the governor's office.

City Manager Mack Wofford told The News this morning that an official in the secretary of state's office in Austin advised him that it would probably take a week before Pampa would learn the Governor's decision.

Yemen president assassinated

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Western diplomats in North Yemen's capital predicted today that the assassination of President Ibrahim al-Hamdi would not result in any significant change in the policy of the Yemeni government, including its ties with Saudi Arabia and the United States.

The diplomats, reached by telephone, said the three-man military council Radio San'a announced Tuesday had taken control of the government were all three members of the presidential council which al-Hamdi had headed since he took over in a bloodless coup in 1974.

The broadcast by the Yemeni government radio said the council now was headed by the commander in chief of the army, Maj. Ahmed Hussein al-Ghamshi, one of al-Hamdi's closest associates.

The sources said San'a, the Yemeni capital, was calm and no extra security precautions were evident. Their reports contradicted a dispatch from the official Iraqi news agency which said angry crowds filled the streets demanding revenge for the killings.

Radio San'a reported that al-Hamdi and his brother, Col. Abdullah Mohammed al-Hamdi, were slain Tuesday. It gave no details of how they died and did not identify the assassins.

However, the government radio described the 34-year-old president as a "martyr," indicating he was not the victim of a coup by his associates on the presidential council. One diplomat in San'a said there was speculation the assassination was the result of a tribal feud.

The two other members of the ruling council are Maj. Abdul Aziz Ghani and Maj. Abdullah Abdul Aalein, Radio San'a reported.

"It seems to be a continuation of Hamdi's rule," one diplomat said.

Al-Hamdi's foreign policy was based on alliance with North Yemen's powerful and politically conservative north-ern neighbor, Saudi Arabia, and increasing cooperation with the United States.

However, the government radio in Marxist-run South Yemen said the assassination was "part of the imperialist plot designed to crush the struggle of the Yemeni people." Al-Hamdi, who had improved his country's sometimes warring relations with South Yemen, had been scheduled to visit Aden Thursday for national anniversary celebrations. The South Yemenis canceled the celebrations.

In a radio statement, the North Yemeni council called on the 5.5 million people of the desert country, one of the Arab world's least developed nations, to "exercise prudence and self-control" during the crisis.

We know they are there— advanced beyond our imagination.

Arch supports?

Shadows, cast by the stairway alongside huge storage silos at the Tenneco Chemicals plant in Pasadena, make a pattern of "arches" which seem to be supporting the workman's walkway. They are decidedly not structural but certainly geometric.

Army lost $168 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is moving to correct inventory problems after discovering it has lost track of $118.5 million in food and clothing.

Soldiers will have to repay the government for equipment lost through negligence, the Army said Tuesday. A new task force will recommend ways to prevent future shortages.

Lt. Gen. Marvin D. Fuller, the Army's inspector general, estimated that about 5 per cent of the missing material was stolen.

Tools, parts and clothing comprised most of the items. No weapons were found unaccounted for in the four-month investigation, Fuller said.

Blaming sloppy inventory procedures, he said the investigation also turned up $89 million in equipment that Army units didn't know they had.

No estimate was given for the time period when the missing material disappeared.

Mondale best dressed

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Walter Mondale made it onto the Custom Tailors Guild of America's Best Dressed List. His boss won't get there until he stops being "indifferent and careless" in his sartorial habits.

"Although he has considerably improved his dress habits since becoming president, Jimmy Carter is a far cry from being a well-dressed man," the Guild said in releasing its list.

"The nation's tailors are concerned that his indifferent and careless fashion attitudes may adversely affect his image among other world leaders and, at the same time, encourage similar sloppiness by American men generally."

The men who won a spot on the list are hardly a consistent field of blue serge. Vess Duro, president of the Guild, noted that they range from "the conservative, dignified tastes of Vice President Mondale to the flamboyancy and contemporary elegance of Joe Namath."

The Guild's Top Ten: Mondale, in politics; Namath, in sports; Burt Reynolds, in motion pictures; Don Rickles, in television; Percy Foreman, Houston, Tex., attorney; in Law; Monty Hall, in philanthropy; singer John Denver, in music; comedian Frank Gorshin, in the nightclub career; Mel Boldt, head of the Chicago industrial design firm of Mel Boldt & Associates, in industry; Vito Pasquci, president of Leblanc Corp., Kenosha, Wis., in business.

Longshoremen refuse to unload

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 90 ocean-going vessels are sitting strikebound on three American coasts, filled with cargo that dock workers refuse to unload because it is in containers.

The shipping of cargo in steel containers the size of trucking vans has eliminated loading and unloading by hand and has wiped out 70 per cent of the longshoremen's jobs here in the nation's largest port, and has cost many jobs elsewhere.

The 50,000 members of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA), now in the 12th day of a selective strike, are trying to force shippers to accept an all ports job security plan. Without such a scheme, they say, they will refuse to unload ships with containerized cargo and will possibly expand the selective strike to a total walkout. Meanwhile, no talks to resolve the dispute are proceeding.

On Tuesday, the Maritime Administration reported that the strike had left 48 foreign and two American flag ships tied up on the Gulf Coast, most of them in the New Orleans area.

On the Atlantic Coast, there were 21 American and five foreign vessels strikebound.

On the Pacific Coast, ILA

picketlines, honored by the 60,000-member International Longshoremen's Union because of a mutual aid pact, stranded nine foreign and five U.S. merchant ships.

The Waterfront Commission here reported only 3,542 longshoremen working here Tuesday, much less than half the usual number, moving cargo on 19 conventional 19 "breakbulk" ships while other vessels lay stranded.

The dock workers in recent contracts accepted automation in return for job guarantees. But factions of the shipping industry, especially the southern shipping associations, have balked at the enormous cost of the guarantees.

Not yet involved in containerization, southern shippers have profited from not having to pay for as many idle employees. They are resisting the loss of this advantage and are refusing to go along with a nationwide agreement.

The job security agreement the ILA wants across the country would mean shippers pay the ILA a fee for each ton of containerized cargo. The payment would compensate for dock jobs lost due to automation.

Such an over-all contract proposal would shift a larger share of the cost for Atlantic port "job security" to Gulf Coast ports.

In New Orleans, the longshoremen and shippers say they may work out a local settlement without waiting for resolution of the national issues, according to Paul Guillory, vice president of ILA Local 1419.

W. J. Amoss, president of Lykes Brothers Steamship Co. and of the New Orleans Steamship Association, said he would prefer such an agreement, tailored to New Orleans-style shipping.

ILA contracts are normally negotiated in New York with other ports adding their own local issues. But only 25 per cent of the cargo here travels in containers, compared to 60 per cent in New York. Some longshoremen contend that a national settlement dealing with such cargo would mainly benefit New York and Atlantic Coast longshoremen.

An estimated four and a half million cubic miles of salt are contained in the world's oceans.

Texas industry gains jobs; north loses

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Texas gained 130,000 manufacturing jobs in a recent seven-year span while northern industrial states lost 565,000 jobs, according to Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Bullock, speaking to the West Texas Conference on State Affairs here, said, "Texas likes business and industry and business and industry likes Texas."

He told the conference that the influx of industry has helped keep Texas per capita tax burden the second lowest in the nation.

"Our state tax burden per capita is 273 dollars. Only tiny New Hampshire has a smaller per capita burden," Bullock said, adding that the national average is $408 per capita and New Yorkers pay an average of $513.

"We've had no new taxes in six years while the sales tax collections have increased 15 to 20 per cent during that time," he said at Angelo State University.

During a question and answer session Bullock said he does not know why northern states are not searching for energy alternatives and the comptroller added, "I don't even like Yankees."

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 40, and have been married for 20 years. For some unknown reason my husband has lost all interest in sex. I told him in a very nice way that I missed his loving, and he just laughed and said, "Oh come on, we're both too old for that kind of stuff" (He's 42.) We get along fine, but it's like living with my brother.

He always come right home after work and never goes anywhere without me, so I'm sure there's no other woman. I can't understand his indifference. I keep myself neat and clean and I never nag him.

Our four children will all be gone and on their own soon, and if this is any sample of what my life will be like when they're gone, it won't be worth living. Sign me...
UNDERLOVED

DEAR UNDER: Please read the following letter:

DEAR ABBY: How do you convince your husband that you still love him, but you aren't as young as you used to be—if you get what I mean?

After 20 years and five children, shouldn't there be more to marriage than sex? If I don't feel like making love every night, he pouts and says I don't "love" him anymore. Am I abnormal or is he? I always thought a man got less passionate after 40. Mine is unbelievable.

Please help me, Abby. I do love him, but I think he is expecting too much from a 40-year-old woman.
PAID MY DUES

DEAR UNDERLOVED AND PAID MY DUES: I don't know what's "normal" and neither does anyone else. Each person has his own emotional temperature, and what is "normal" for one could break someone else's thermometer.

Both of you should insist that your husbands be examined by physicians to rule out the possibility of physical deficiencies.

Then I suggest you consider seeing a qualified sex therapist. (If your physician can't recommend one, inquire at the Medical Department of your nearest university.)

Pity PAID MY DUES isn't married to UNDERLOVED'S husband and vice versa. But that's just another of life's inequities.

DEAR ABBY: Never in my wildest dreams did I think I'd be writing to Dear Abby, but I have a problem I heard you might be able to help me with.

I am a middle-aged woman whose problem seems to get worse with age. I love to wear pantsuits, but I have practically no rear, so consequently all my pants are baggy in the seat.

Gaining weight is not the answer. I never gain there. I heard that you once mentioned a place that sold false fannies. If that's true, where is it?
FLAT IN BACK

DEAR FLAT: Never in my wildest dreams did I think I'd be plugging Frederick's of Hollywood, but that's the place. If you write to them, perhaps they'll send you a catalogue.

Ask Dr. Lamb
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 28-year-old male, 6 feet and 180 pounds. My blood pressure is 160. My doctor told me it was a little high but I did not need to take pills.

He put me on a diet to lower it. What is your opinion? Will a diet lower blood pressure? Is my pressure too high?

DEAR READER — Yes, your pressure is too high. However, pressure fluctuates and you need several determinations at different times when you are calm to determine if you have persistently elevated blood pressure.

Diet will help lower moderately elevated blood pressure. Your doctor is starting out right. The two things that help the most are eliminating any excess body fat you can and decreasing or eliminating salt intake.

At your age your pressure should not be over 135 and in young men in good physical condition it is often much lower. Usually the lower it is — within the normal range — the less chance you have of developing heart or vascular disease in later life.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure, to give you more information on what controls blood pressure and the normal ranges. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I often have problems with a corn on my foot. I would like to know what causes it to grow, how to prevent it if possible and how to get rid of it in a better way.

Polly's pointers
Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY and E.F. — My mother solved the problem for me of a mattress left with an odor after bed wetting. I would like to share it. She cut out the top of the mattress cover where the accident had happened, removed the affected filling below this hole and repacked it with foam rubber. One could use old rags, cotton, nylon hose or whatever. She bought a piece of ticking and patched the cut out part. This solution was so simple and certainly better than having to buy a new mattress. — MRS. B.T.B.

DEAR POLLY — I never throw away old jeans or dungarees if parts of them can be used for something else. My daughter had two pairs that were too short which I cut off to make shorts. I saved the cut-off pieces for patches or rags but found a much better use for them. I remembered how many plastic shopping bags she went through last year as the weight of her school books caused them to rip at the bottom, so I proceeded to make her a much stronger one. I cut the seam open to each pants leg and trimmed the heavy stitched seams off. The bottom hem of the pants was used for the top of the bag and then the three remaining sides of the two pieces were sewn together on the sewing machine. A handle was made out of the trimmed seams I had cut off. She got quite a kick out of this bag and even sewed on some patches she had acquired during vacation trips. — MRS. E.Z.

DEAR POLLY — I had so many tube socks with elastic that had no more stretch due to much washing and bleaching. I also had some old knee high nylon with good elastic. I cut off the elastic tops and slip them inside the loose tops of the tube socks. I put a sock over a one pint peanut butter jar, wrong side out, so the elastic can be sewn on evenly and so it holds to the right size. — MRS. R.K.R.

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Pevee or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Capsule reviews prepared by the American Library Assn.

By Carol Felsenthal

George Carrington walks his dog along the East River, captivated by the sight of a ship bound for open waters. "He raised his head and sniffed, hoping for a breath of the sea, and smelled gasoline fumes instead."

Ray and Ellen Ormsby, touring the French countryside, take the long road back to Paris. They are on a pilgrimage to Perigueux in search of a restaurant passionately praised by American friends. The "elegant salle a manger" described by their friends and by the "Guide Gastronomique" turns out to "look like a hotel coffee shop. There weren't even any tablecloths. The food is good, but not nearly as good as they'd expected."

Dorothy and John Reynolds, also touring the French countryside, return to a hotel they'd visited and loved 18 years earlier. The lovely little hotel now has a new addition, built in the "style" of an American motel. A giant parking lot, packed with cars and sightseeing buses, now blocks the view of the medieval Mont-Saint-Michel Abby. To satiate and stimulate the tourists' hunger for abby asstrays and paper weights, souvenir shops have obliterated exquisite 500-year-old walled gardens.

Characters like these — optimists and innocents stunned, saddened and finally just shattered hopes, and by unexpected evil — populate "Over By the River," novelist William Maxwell's first collection of short stories. Spanning three decades of his work, most of these stories were published in the "New Yorker," where Maxwell spent forty years as an editor.

Their focus is on families — on the rough and sometimes impassable road to understanding that father and son, husband and wife, brother and sister stumble along. Maxwell's families are all affluent. They live in Manhattan highrises where they're plagued by disagreeable and domineering servants; in the "perfect" Murray Hill brownstone where they're unhappy amid a clutter of culture and antiques; in middle-class comfort in Draperville, Ill.; on estates in what were once small towns but are now suburbs of New York, with all modern inconveniences transported via the Merritt Parkway.

In fact, the stories share such similar settings, themes and characters that the collection reads like a loosely-plotted novel. Occasionally characters in one story reappear, several years older.

Five students into society

Oland Butler, pastor of St. Paul and Lefors United Methodist Churches, announced today that several of their young members have been inducted into the Society of Distinguished American High School Students.

Students from this area are Ken Daugherty, Melissa Daugherty, Kathy Brown, Bonnie Feese and Lea Vincent. The society, which is one of the nation's foremost high school honoraries, inducted the students because of their excellence and leadership in church and civic achievements.

In the title story "Over by the River," the secure shell that envelops the Carrington family starts to crack. A neighbor's cook, who used to gaily wave to the girls on their walk to school, jumps to her death in the river. The youngest girl is tormented by dreams that she's being stalked by a vicious lion. While walking the dog, her father sees a woman lying in a doorway. Later, he's awakened by someone crying "Help!" outside his window. He's horrified but catatonic.

Maxwell writes tightly, with rarely a wasted word or incident. He also creates a dramatic tension, remarkable in stories that mainly deal with rather conventional characters and situations. Maxwell's world is inhabited by people who embark on gastronomic, not spiritual, pilgrimages, and who are afflicted not by murder, madness or grave malady, but by disappointments, doubts and defeats. He rarely swerves from the domestic, but the pleasures and horrors he describes are rarely slight.

Although the physical distance between Maxwell's Manhattan and Paul Theroux's Malaysia is mammoth, the psychic distance is minute. The characters in both short story collections wrestle with the feeling of being out of joint with the time.

Theroux's cast of characters includes a motley lot of aging expatriate Americans and British living in Ayer Hitam (Black Water), a Malaysian town at jungle's and civilization's edge. Relics of another age, they have outlived and outstayed their countries' colonial glory, clinging now to memories and a tacky white man's club.

An American diplomat, who narrates all the stories, has been dispatched to Ayer Hitam to dismantle the U.S. consulate — also a relic of another age when Americans owned thriving rubber plantations there. The stories are stuffed with vividly drawn natives, but three of the most colorful characters are American women: a free-loading travel writer, an anthropologist who marries an aborigine chief, a "plump, graceless" English teacher, with a behind only a Chinese upholsterer could have admired. Dubbed the "Flower of Malaysia," she is soon deflowered by Orang Minyak (the oil man), who literally slips from the grasp of those trying to catch him.

Massachusetts-born Theroux continues to prove himself the most acute and amusing Western observer of Far Eastern culture writing today. Anyone who read and reveled in "Saint Jack" (a novel also set in post-colonial Malaysia) and "The Great Railway Bazaar" (a true account of the author's tumultuous travels by train through Asia) will find Theroux in top form.

Aid from federal sources

Sylvia Porter

(Fifth of six columns) A vast amount of financial aid for college costs, no matter what its source, is awarded through colleges. So the financial aid director at the school you want to attend is probably the best single source of information about available aid and application requirements.

Start by asking the college aid administration about the application process. You'll find vital basic facts in 'The College Handbook,' a directory of over 2,000 two- and four-year colleges, available for $8.95 from the College Board Publication Orders, Box 2815, Princeton, New Jersey, 08540.

Major federal government programs — largest and broadest aid programs of all, offering more than $3 billion in aid in 1977 alone — are outlined in a fact sheet, called 'Five Federal Financial Aid Programs.' It's free from the U.S. Office of Education, Room 1069, 400 Maryland Ave., S.W., Washington, D.C. 20202.

(1) Basic Educational Opportunity Grants (BEOG): A full $1.7 billion will be available to more than a million students under BEOG this year. A Basic Grant is awarded directly to your child for use at any college. Eligibility depends on your family's financial circumstances, but what you receive depends on the cost of the college (chosen with grants averaging $900 and running as high as $1,600 a year, or half the total cost of attendance, whichever is less).

Freshmen to seniors who are half or full-time college students are eligible and students at private vocational and technical schools or who have high school equivalencies are eligible, too.

You're almost sure to qualify if your family's before-tax income is less than $13,000 a year, but apply even if it's somewhat higher, especially if yours is a large family. You can now use a single form to determine your eligibility for this and other forms of aid. When you fill out the Financial Aid Form (FAF) as part of your application, check the appropriate "yes" box for a Basic Grant. Call toll free (800) 638-6700 for more facts about Basic Grants.

(2) Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (SEOG): This program has $250 million this year for needy students. Awards range from $200 to $1,500 a year up to $4,000 for a four-year and $5,000 for a five-year program. The grant may not exceed one-half the total cost of college, nor one-half the aid provided. Colleges match the SEOG amount with grants from their own funds, loans and/or jobs. Get more details from the college financial aid director.

(3) College Work Study: This program provides summer and part-time jobs for students as part of the aid package. By working 15 hours a week while attending classes, or more during breaks and summer, your child can earn about $600 a year.

(4) National Direct Student Loans: Although administered at colleges, 90 per cent of NDSL money comes from the U.S. government. Financial aid directors determine who is eligible and amounts to be loaned up to a maximum of $2,500 for students in the first two years and a total of $5,000 for a B.A. degree. Graduate professional students can borrow up to $10,000. Students enrolled at least half-time can qualify; repayment and interest (3 per cent per year) don't begin until nine months after you stop your studies. All or part of your loan may be cancelled if you enter certain fields or the military.

(5) Guaranteed Student Loan Programs (GSLP) and Federally Insured Student Loans (FISL): The U.S. government guarantees loans to students attending college at least half-time. Some states demand students attend full-time to be eligible for state loan guarantees.

Students at vocational, trade, etc., schools also are eligible. The money, up to $2,500 a year or $7,500 total for undergraduates is loaned by private lending institutions. If you need to borrow more than $2,000 or if your family's adjusted income is more than $25,000, your need must be verified by the college financial aid director. Your repayment at a maximum 7 per cent loan interest begins nine to 12 months after you leave school. Repayment can be deferred if you join the Peace Corps, the military, or continue your studies.

In addition, you can qualify for Social Security benefits if your parents are deceased, disabled or retired, and if you are unmarried, a full-time student, and under 22. Last year, 800,000 students did qualify. Get details from your nearest Social Security office.

And finally, the GI Bill, although terminated in 1976, is still providing veterans with limited benefits to go to school. Contact your local Veterans Administration office.

Tomorrow, State, college and private grants and loans.

Associated Press Writer

PEKING (AP) — Wherever visitors go today in China — newspaper office, middle school, factory, commune, university, fishing village — the one thing they are certain to hear is an attack on the "Gang of Four."

It is a national preoccupation. In a 16-day visit, a group of Associated Press executives and directors heard the purged radical leaders blamed for almost every conceivable setback China suffered in recent years, but particularly in the 13 months since the death of Chairman Mao Tse-tung. The format soon became familiar. Our host — perhaps the leader of a factory — would outline briefly what the factory makes, how large it is and so on. Then, quickly, a reference to how the workers are "deepening the criticism" of the radicals and trying to repair the damage done by their supporters.

The Gang of Four, now apparently under a form of house arrest, were Chiang Ching, Mao's widow; Wang Hung-wen, former party vice chairman; Yao Wen-yuan, a former Politburo member, and former Vice Premier Chang Chun-chiao.

These are a few of the things we heard them blamed for — Excessive earthquake damage last year, because their interference retarded research into earthquake prediction.

—Curtailed output at the Peking Arts and Crafts Factory, where they convinced some workers that making vases and other traditional objects was a waste of time.

—Poisoning the minds of workers and students with the idea that there was no need to learn trades or work hard and that all they needed to do was to study Mao.

It is difficult to envision an American counterpart to this aspect of the Chinese experience.

It had been reported in the Western press that Mao's successor, Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, and the 11th Party Congress in August ordered the criticism campaign.

But the scope of it, and the intensity with which China's leaders are pressing it, come clear only when one hears it day after day at stop after stop through the length of China.

Immediately after Mao's death in September 1976, the radicals apparently made their move to succeed him. Reports from the limited number of Western correspondents in China, and even reports carried by the controlled Chinese media, told of armed clashes in some of China's cities between Hua's supporters and those of the Gang of Four.

The nature of the dispute between them is complex. Mao's widow and her allies claimed to be following Mao's true line.

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.
DEAR DR. BLAKER — I seemed to be incapable of saying no. It's not just to friends who ask favors of me, but to everyone, even sales people. I'm always getting talked into doing things I don't really want to do, at times that are inconvenient for me. Or I'll buy things I can't afford, don't really like or need. What's my problem?
DEAR READER — Your problem is that you can't say YES — yes to the people you want to see, yes to the things you want to do. The question is how you lost the sensitivity to your needs and desires and established a pattern of giving that control to others.
 It was probably a pattern that was rewarded in your family when you were young. Were you the most "lovable" when you were sensitive to others, ignoring your own needs and desires? This pattern could have begun to cause you problems when you started making close friends outside your family.
 Many people have unfavorable reactions to someone who is as "other-oriented" as you describe yourself. People may wonder if you are desperate for friends. Why else would someone be so nice in order to keep friends around? People may also feel so much in debt to you (with all your giving and sensitivity) that they have to withdraw from you. You make them feel inadequate.
 And did you even consider that always putting the other person before oneself might be selfish? It looks opposite but it isn't really fair to always be on top of the situation by denying others the pleasure of giving to you, before you do them a favor.
 You indicate that you can't decide what you want to buy for yourself. This is probably a result of having let others define who you are as a person. You can avoid anger from others by making yourself in their image, but you lose any clear picture of yourself.
 Begin to gain more knowledge about yourself. Of the people you see, who do you really like? Why? What do you really like to do?
 These questions will be difficult to answer at first. But YOU will emerge. Some people will like you; others will not. But you'll like yourself!
 Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York NY 10019. Due to volume of mail she cannot reply personally, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Lefors trustees set meeting on new budget
 The Lefors Independent School District Board of Trustees will consider adoption of the 1977-78 budget during its 7 p.m. Thursday session.
 The agenda calls for a discussion of the future of drill team by Mrs. Don Parson.
 The trustees will consider making application for foundation funds since Lefors school is no longer a budget balance school.
 A discussion of unemployment compensation as it applies to schools will be held, and a progress report on the first six weeks will be presented.
 Bids and repair of plumbing school in the cafeteria and gymnasium will also be considered.

IRS to probe politicians from Texas
 AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A former Internal Revenue Service official says at least 164 Texas politicians were scrutinized during a misguided investigation in 1972.
 R. L. Phinney of Austin, who retired in 1973 as IRS director of the Southern Texas district, said Sunday the investigation was pushed by a Dallas IRS official.
 "He was long on suspicion and short on judgment," Phinney said.
 Called "Southwest Project," the probe included at least 164 audits, Phinney said, but he declined to identify the targets.
 "I can't comment on that, even though I'm retired," he said.
 U. S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio charged Friday that the IRS investigation was "clearly a political operation."

Lefties baffle Dodgers in round one

LA vows rebound with Burt Hooten

By KEN RAPPAPORT
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees got in the first blow of the World Series, but Mike Garman thinks the Los Angeles Dodgers have a counter-punch coming.

from Don Sutton Tuesday night and belted the ball into the left field seats for New York's second run.

"It was a fastball right-up here," said Sutton, indicating a high pitch with his right hand. "It was in a perfect location but I didn't have a lot on it."

If Sutton would like to have that ball back, Steve Garvey would appreciate the same on a slide he made in the sixth inning. Attempting to score from first on a single to right by Glenn Burke, Garvey was called out at home on a close play.

"There's no doubt in my mind I was safe on that play," Garvey said. "Thurman Munson tagged me high on the thigh and that meant that my foot was into the base."

The play turned out to be the most crucial of the game for the Dodgers, because it would have been their eventual winning run in regulation time.

"We're a great comeback team," said Hooten. "We go out and play good baseball all the time and don't give away runs. You have to earn them against us."

Hooten, though, shows great respect for the American League champions, especially the hitting talents of Thurman Munson.

"Munson looks like the toughest hitter in their lineup," Hooten noted. "He hits the ball to all fields, and consistently gets a piece of the ball. He's definitely their toughest out."

One of the things that Hooten will try not to do is pitch Willie Randolph high and tight. The slender Yankee second baseman adjusted to that pitch team, coaches' offices and dressing rooms at the stadium—unless permission is obtained from Switzer.

The policy will not be in effect on game day, the spokesman said.

The spokesman could not elaborate further on the policy and Switzer was unavailable for additional comment.

NEW YORK (AP) — Two left-handers, one who can pitch ever day and one whose season was supposed to be over, provided the hurling heroics, while a defensive specialist and a Punch 'n' Judy hitter provided the important offense as the New York Yankees finally won their 100th World Series game.

It took 13 years and 12 action-packed innings Tuesday night before the Yankees reached the century mark, outlasting the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3.

The difference between the playoffs and tonight was that I was throwing the ball 10 or 15 miles an hour faster," said Gullett, who was given a pain-killing cortisone shot after his poor performance a week ago.

Lyle didn't have to pitch all night because Paul Blair, a brilliant outfielder inserted for Reggie Jackson in the ninth inning, stroked a two-strike single past short in the 12th, scoring the fleet Willie Randolph with the winning run.

Blair, a beanball victim earlier in his career, still carries the psychological scars and ducks away from right-handed pitchers. But his clutch single in the 12th came off right-handed reliever Rick Rhoden, the fifth Los Angeles pitcher. He also singled off Kansas City right-hander Dennis Leonard Sunday, launching the Yankees ninth-inning, pennant-winning rally.

Blair's game-winner came after he had failed to lay down successful sacrifice bunts in the 10th and 11th innings. "I was disappointed that I didn't get the bat down really good when I was trying to bunt," Blair said.

had turned from speedster to power hitter, socking his first home run since July 12 (274 at bats) to tie the game at 2-2.

tra-base blasts in the series, the homer to left in the sixth and the double to right leading off the 12th inning.

Orienteering--Finding its own way

Modern-day Louises and Clarks scurrying through the wilds in all directions armed with maps and compasses.

Major William (Dan) Telfair, an ROTC instructor at West Texas State, was in Pampa Friday to discuss the activity with physical education teachers during the Pampa schools' in-service training meetings.

Each participant starts out at the same point and gets his map stamped at "control points" before returning "home."

isn't expensive," Telfair added. He estimated the cost of setting up a program in a junior or senior high school would be $500. Making the maps and purchasing the compasses are the biggest expenses.

Maj. William (Dan) Telfair (Pampa News photo)

The map and compass are used (while running) to find the quickest way to the next checkpoint. Because of the terrain, the quickest route is rarely the shortest distance.

Caprock and Amarillo High schools have orienteering clubs which will compete in the Panhandle Orienteering Meet Nov. 5. Teams are made up of four runners, with the top three finishers determining the team score.

Mustangs strengthen No. 1 ranking

By The Associated Press
Port Neches-Groves, which retains its top billing this week in Class 4A of The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll, has an enviable first half record—it has allowed a mere three first downs in the first half against four district opponents.

The highest-ranked team to tumble was No. 5 ranked Silsbee in 3A. Silsbee dropped from the top 10 and was replaced by defending 3A champion Beaumont Hebert, 5-0 as the No. 10 team. Bridge City edged Silsbee 13-12.

Seventh ranked Blooming Grove and Farwell, tied for 10th last week, were losers in A. Blooming Grove dipped into 10th place and Farwell disappeared from the list.

Nobel boosts Amnesty group

MOSCOW (AP) — The leader of the Moscow chapter of Amnesty International says the award of the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize to the parent organization has heartened his small group of human-rights activists. But he is quitting the country on Friday because he says life as a Soviet dissident has become unbearable.

"The term of life of a dissident is rather limited here," said Valentin Turchin. "It is somewhat surprising that during four years I have managed to be organizationally active."

Turchin spoke in an interview Tuesday, the day after the Nobel prize was announced, in his half-empty apartment on the edge of Moscow, open suitcases around him.

A doctor of physical-mathematical sciences, he is emigrating with his wife and two sons to teach at New York's Columbia University.

Four years ago, he and 10 other dissidents formed a group that later was accredited as a chapter of Amnesty International, the organization that focuses international attention on the plight of people imprisoned throughout the world for their racial, religious or political beliefs.

Five of the Moscow group's members have been jailed. Three have been allowed to leave the country. One has been expelled from the union that allowed him to work, and one has quit the group because of official pressure.

Turchin says he has been interrogated 13 times in the past 30 months.

"They have exhausted all measures of pressure against me short of arrest — searches, interrogations, stopping me in the street, formal warnings," he said. "You know that if you are an active dissident either you are arrested sooner or later or you have to leave."

He said Amnesty International's headquarters in London knows of "several hundred" political prisoners in the Soviet Union "through chains of acquaintances in the labor camps."

But "we don't know how many thousands there are outside these chains of acquaintances," he said.

Since the signing of the 1975 Helsinki accords, in which the Soviet government and the other signers pledged to observe human rights and fundamental freedoms, the situation of Soviet political prisoners has grown worse, Turchin said.

"This is the result of the beginning of a struggle by these prisoners for their rights," he said. "Since Helsinki, they demand a special status apart from other prisoners. They demand more close observation of the Soviet law. And they protest against violence and arbitrary treatment in the camps."

As a result, "prison officials have grown stricter and more tough. And they have tried to stop the flow of information in and out of the camps."

Despite the pressures against the Moscow branch of Amnesty, new members have joined, and Turchin says there are now eight active members.

Citizens could sue policemen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Rights Commission voted unanimously Tuesday to hold hearings in several cities on alleged police abuse.

The commission's general counsel, Richard Baca, said the project could lead to recommendations to President Carter and Congress that federal law be changed to allow citizens to sue in federal courts to halt habitual violations of constitutional rights by police.

He said it was also probable that the commission would recommend that the U.S. Justice Department be allowed to cut off financial aid to police departments that fail to make strong efforts to halt police abuse.

"For us, this is unlike any other civil rights problem," Baca said. "That's because the authority to deal with it stops at the city line, sometimes at the state border. The federal role is slight. We're looking for a handle."

In Philadelphia, one of the cities that is likely to be targeted for a hearing, more than 60 policemen are under investigation by federal authorities for alleged abuse. Twelve officers have been indicted by a federal grand jury impaneled to gather evidence in the case.

The commission staff also is investigating reports of police misconduct in Los Angeles, Denver, Chicago and Houston. The commission's public hearings next spring are expected to be held in two or three of the cities.

Anthony Jackson, director of the federally funded project of the Philadelphia Public Interest Law Center, urged the civil rights panel Tuesday to begin hearings in his city immediately to "defuse" a tense and "critical" situation.

He said citizens are afraid to report crimes to police because of reports of alleged abuse and ministers in black neighborhoods are telling their parishioners to "be careful of police."

Jackson blamed Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo, himself a former police commissioner, and the current police commissioner, Joseph O'Neill, for failing to make police accountable to the public.

Crude oil being pumped into Texas salt dome

FREEPORT, Tex. (AP) — Engineers have begun transplanting crude oil from beneath the North Sea into a South Texas salt dome serving as the nation's second underground oil piggybank against future shortages.

Texas Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace turned a valve Tuesday to clear the way for the Bryan Mound Salt Dome to begin filling with the North Sea crude oil.

Federal energy department official Thomas E. Noel then pressed a button that started the oil flowing into the dome near this coastal city at a rate of about 50,000 barrels per day.

"The storage of this crude in Texas is part of our national lifeline," Wallace said. "We are here today because the United States can't produce enough oil within its borders to protect it in the event of a national crisis."

The dome can hold 63 million barrels of crude. The nation's first salt dome oil storage project at West Hackberry, La., can store 63 million barrels of oil.

Noel said the salt dome project is the product of cooperation between the government and private industry.

"A lot of folks were involved in this. The only way it could come off was with the willing cooperation of the people involved. The private and public sector had to get together or it would have been impossible," he said.

By Oct. 17 some 275,000 barrels will be stored in the dome.

Norman Davis, a Federal Energy Administration engineer in Freeport, said the underground storage technique is one-sixth as expensive as above ground storage.

The first oil pumped into the Bryan Mound dome was purchased from the New York oil brokerage firm of Derby and Co. The crude — delivered to a Freeport dock — cost $15.17 a barrel.

From the dock the oil flows through a four-mile pipeline to two pumps at the site.

When the oil is pumped into the ground the brine is forced out of the dome into a pit, Davis said. The brine is used by Dow Chemical in its petrochemical process.

"The dome is always full," said Davis, "with either water, oil or salt brine."

Davis added that the salt under pressure has a "plastic effect." "If any sort of fracture occurs, salt would flow right in and heal itself," the engineer said.

When the dome is fully operational in the early 1980s, he said, one million barrels a day of oil may be removed.

Davis said the Texas Gulf coast has several salt formations that could be used for oil storage.

Woman accused of aiding Vernon McManus' flight

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman accused of helping Vernon McManus' flight from prosecution last April has admitted loaning him her car but did not believe she was violating the law, according to a tape recorded phone conversation.

The tape recording was played for a jury Tuesday in the trial of Betty Plaskett, 46.

Mrs. Plaskett is accused of helping McManus leave the state on the weekend before the start of his capital murder trial. He was later tried and convicted in the deaths of Baytown contractor Paul Cantrell and his wife and assessed the death penalty. Paula Cantrell Dereese, a daughter of the Cantrells, pleaded guilty to murder and was assessed a life sentence.

Dinah Strapps, a former waitress who said she recorded the phone conversation with Mrs. Plaskett, spent the day in State District Judge I. D. McMaster's court testifying about it.

At one point in the recording, Mrs. Plaskett said, "I really didn't think letting him have my car was breaking the law. I felt I could loan my car to anyone."

Miss Strapps, who said "I love him" admitted her involvement in the former football coach's flight but said she had been promised there will be no charge filed against her if she cooperates with authorities.

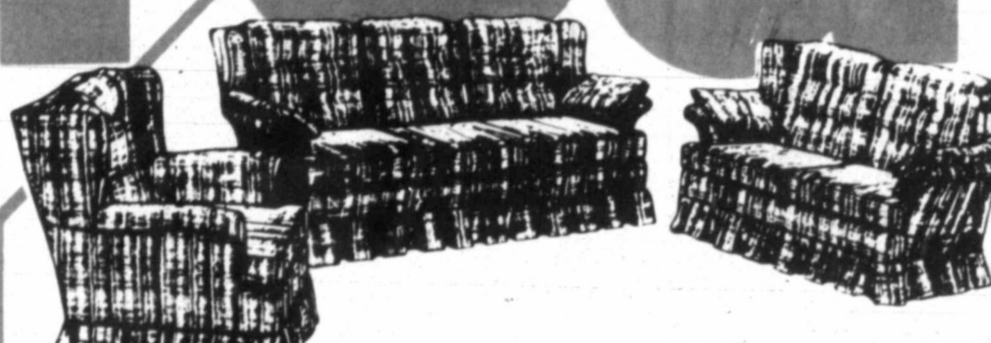

She said here heard after McManus' conviction there was contract out on her life and she contacted Assistant District Attorney Mike Hinton who suggested they record a conversation with Mrs. Plaskett.

McManus' flight delayed his trial by two weeks before officers located him in Jacksonville, Fla.

Later they charged Mrs. Plaskett and Lester Beckworth with helping him get away. Beckworth is scheduled to be tried next month.
