I-40 wants land but Hill won't budge

By STEVE WILLIAMS
Pampa News Staff

Jimmy Hill is 72 years old. He's owned the Phillips 66 gas station in Alanreed for almost 26 years, and for the last 12 has been involved in a running dispute with the Texas Department of Highways and Transportation (DHT) over what his station and the land it's on is worth.

Hill is one of a number of people along the proposed new route of Interstate 40 whose land either partially or wholly falls within the road right-of-way.

When the DHT originally announced its intentions to re-route and upgrade I-40 and began acquiring right-of-way, Hill was offered $10,650 for his station.

He rejected the offer and the case has been in the court for the past several years. The state's maximum offer to this point is $18,650, but Hill says the station is worth a lot more than that, almost $27,000 more, in fact.

"I've made my living off this gas station for 26 years, and if they don't pay me what it's worth to me, I ain't leavin'," Hill avows.

Hill says the people he's dealt with from the state are "the biggest bunch of crooks I've ever seen."

The State of Texas obviously doesn't feel that way.

Joe D. Jarrald, Jr., an assistant in the State Attorney General's office in Austin, said his job was to "see that the landowners are justly compensated for the taking of private property for public use."

He was very reluctant to discuss any of his actions regarding prosecution in condemnation proceedings, and at one point told the News, "I wouldn't want you to take this as a threat, but I would advise you to use extreme caution in quoting me."

Raymond Smith of McLean is another landowner who's been having his difficulties with DHT, only his are a bit different.

In Smith's case, the state is taking 22.5 acres right out of the middle of a 40-acre wheatfield Smith has owned since 1942 and had intended retiring on. He'd built a three-bedroom house on the property, had a well, corral, barn and a couple of small buildings on it. All but the barn and well and a corral where he keeps a few horses have been removed by Smith.

"They're just going to ruin the whole place," Smith says with a rueful look on his face.

But the problem is worse than that.

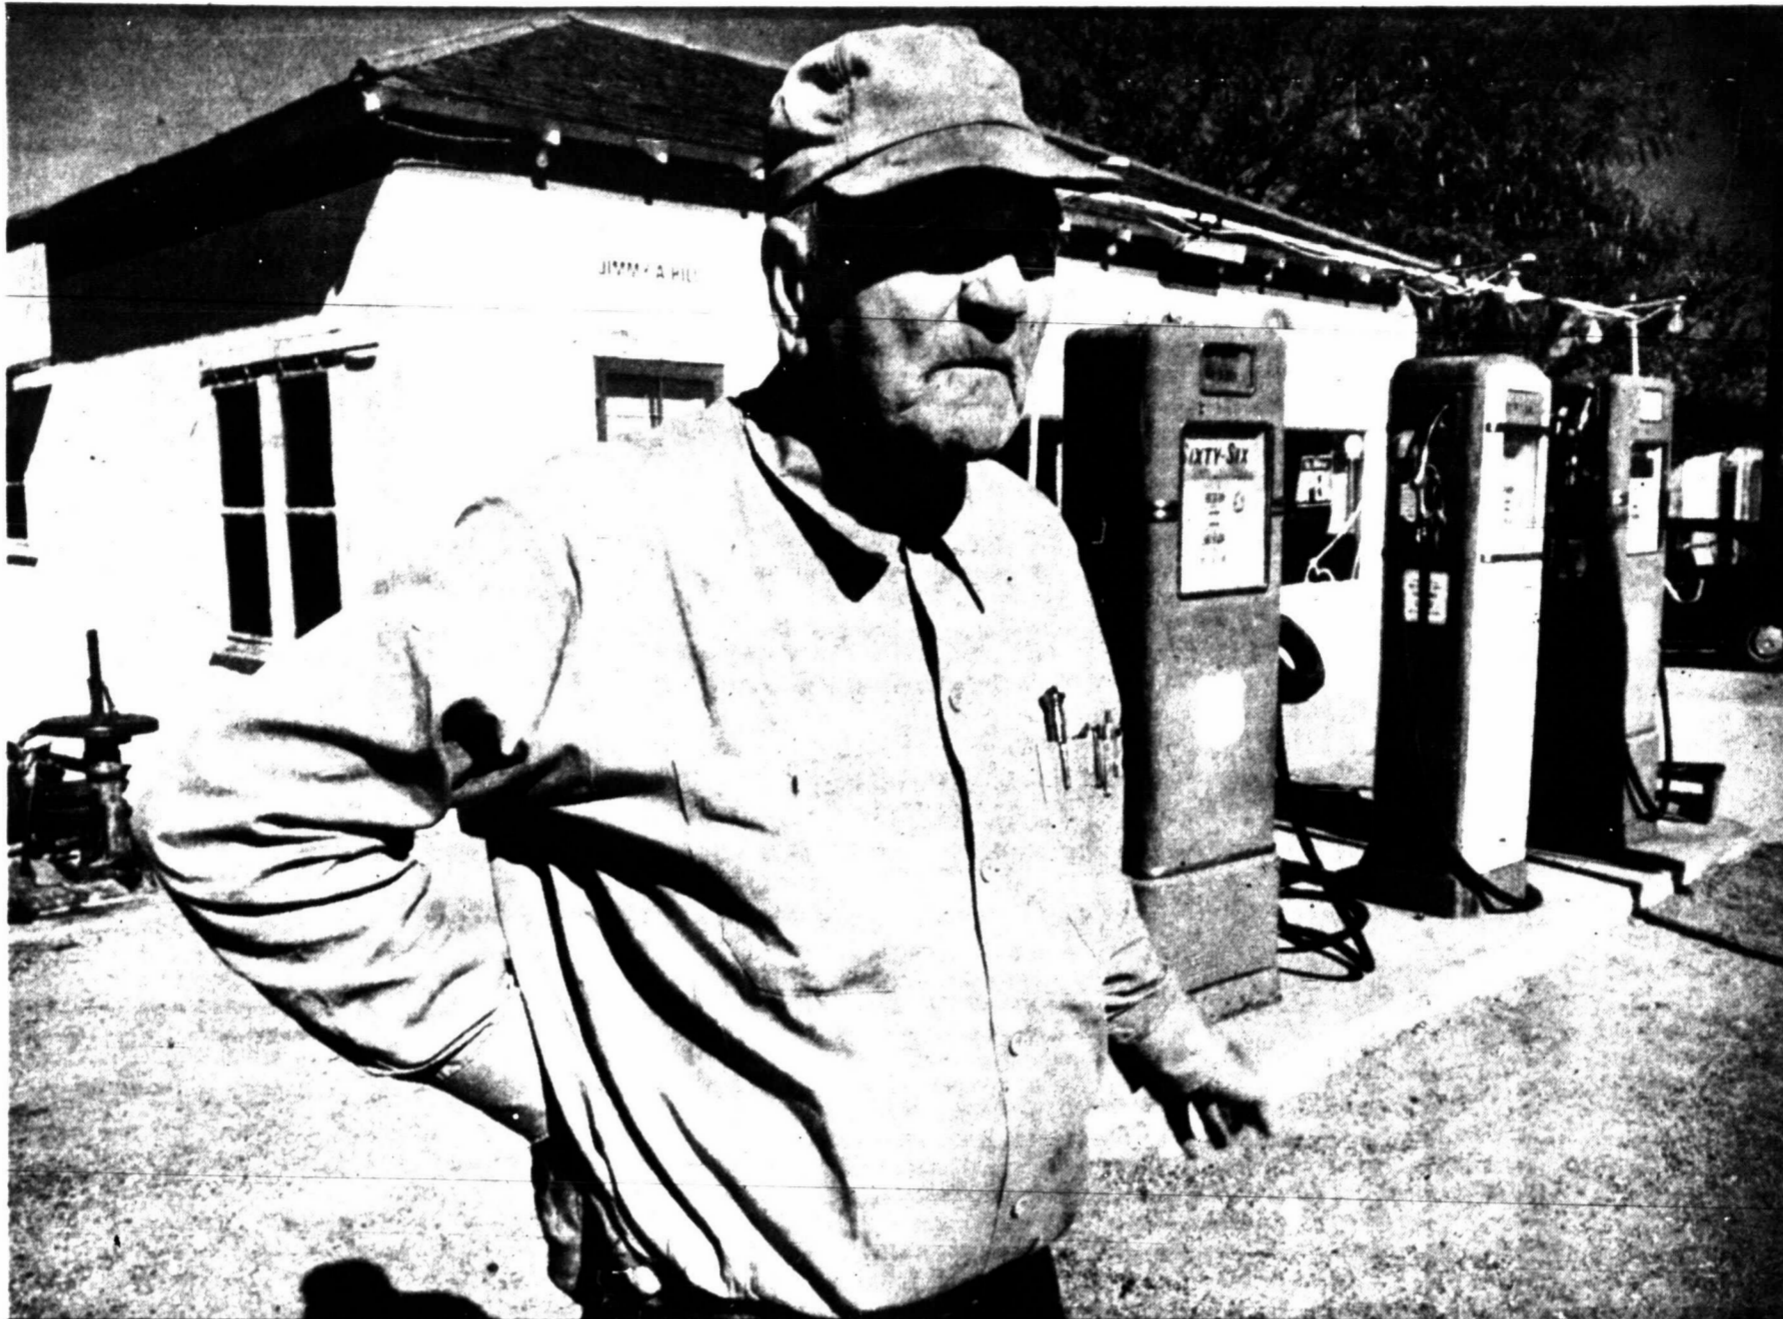

Smith told the state he wanted 30,000 for the land, and the state offered $15,000. After a lot of back-and-forth argument he was paid $22,700, not a great price for something Smith didn't want to sell in the first place.

But that, apparently, still isn't the end of the story. According to Smith, the state has informed him the price was too much, and had indicated there will be another trial in which they'll try to get some of the $22,700 back.

Creed Lamb, a McLean mortician, also disputed what the state was offering for a small piece of land he owned which fell within the right-of-way just outside McLean. The state's first offer was $172, and the second, in 1975, was for $225. After a jury trial which took place Nov. 8 in Gray County District 31 court, the state settled for $1,900.

All three men have been represented over the years by Robert Templeton, an attorney associated with the Kolander, Templeton & Hamilton firm of Amarillo.

Templeton places the blame for the wide disparity between what the state offers and what the landowners are asking on appraisers, whom he termed "unrealistic." Templeton said he'd been involved over the

"I ain't leavin," says Jimmy Hill of Alanreed, and he says he won't close his Phillips 66 station until the state pays him what he thinks it's worth. The Texas Department of Highways and Transportation wants the land for right-of-way on Interstate 40.

years in some 60 lawsuits involving land along right-of-ways, and in his words, "I've never lost one, or rather I've never had one of my clients have to settle for the state's original offer."

The 12-mile section of Interstate 40 on which Smith, Hill and Lamb own land will probably be the last section of the highway from the New Mexico to the Oklahoma border to be completed. The only other section still incomplete is about nine miles running east towards Alanreed from the intersection of State Highway 70 with I-40.

Until Jan. 14, 1975, the DHT had been acquiring right-of-way along the route, but all work stopped that day when the Federal Highway Administration deplored an environmental impact study for the 12-mile section, instituting a moratorium until the study could be completed.

The study took 34 months, and the moratorium will be lifted

Nov. 22. After that date the DHT will have the go-ahead to resume land acquisition.

But according to Assistant District Engineer Richard Crandell of the Amarillo office of the DHT, the section probably won't be open to traffic until 1985. He said adjustment of utilities, acquisition of all right-of-way (when the moratorium was called, the state already had acquired 84 percent of the right-of-way, and the remaining 16 percent will be sought beginning Nov. 22), planning and then approval by the Federal Highway Department must be completed before actual construction could begin, and that will take at least two or three years. Then we'll be able to start moving dirt."

In the meantime Jimmy Hill is still operating his gas station. Raymond Smith is wondering if he'll have to pay back any of the $22,700, and Creed Lamb has washed his hands of the whole thing.

Wife casts doubts on mansion mystery man story

Defense rests case in Davis murder trial

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A rebuttal witness in the Cullen Davis murder trial raised serious doubts concerning testimony that a mysterious intruder was seen at the Davis mansion the night of a 1976 shooting spree.

Two persons died and two were wounded in the shooting and the Fort Worth millionaire is on trial for the slaying of his young stepdaughter.

The defense rested its case earlier Saturday.

Mrs. Paige Polk, 22, a rebuttal witness called by the state, provided testimony which conflicted in part with story her estranged husband told the jury on Friday.

Uewayne Polk, 33, testified he saw an unidentified man inside the mansion at about 11:30 p.m. and that it was not Davis.

Polk told the jury he glanced at his watch the night of Aug. 2, 1976 and it was 11:11 p.m. and he said that was the same day he visited the mansion in an attempt to collect payment for some plants purchased by the defendant's estranged wife Priscilla.

He said Mrs. Davis refused to see him and he left the bill pinned to a bulletin board.

The dark-haired Mrs. Polk testified her husband's watch was inoperative on Aug. 2 because he had fallen into a lake two months earlier and the timepiece "was not waterproof."

She said the digital watch was giving "weird time figures."

She also said she and her husband had abandoned attempts to collect the money from Mrs. Davis prior to the time of the shootings. And she said the day Polk pinned the bill to the bulletin board occurred before Aug. 2.

Mrs. Polk said she had not heard before Friday his account of what he purportedly saw at the mansion that night. She said he telephoned her after his courtroom appearance and that she asked him if he was going to get in trouble because of it.

"It's so open and shut nobody could do anything about it," she quoted him as saying.

She said he told her, "Financially it's not worth it."

"Why are you doing it," she said she asked.

"You know Priscilla," she said he replied.

"Personally I'd like to see Priscilla hanged," she recalled saying.

In a sworn statement Mrs. Polk gave investigators Friday she said her husband had gone to the mansion several nights before the shootings.

"On the morning of Aug. 3, 1976," she said in the statement, "I heard about the murders at the mansion on the radio. I saw Uewayne later on that day and told him that I was glad he didn't go up there last night. He said nothing."

The jury was not provided that information.

The defense wrapped up three weeks of bombastic and bizarre testimony and rested its case at 10:43 a.m.

It was three volatile weeks, punctuated with tales of drugs and sex and capped by the startling courtroom revelation by Polk.

"Incredible," muttered trial judge George Dowden at one point. "Just incredible."

Immediately after the defense rested the state began calling its rebuttal witnesses in its exhaustive effort prove the millionaire defendant killed his 12-year-old stepdaughter Andrea.

She and Stan Farr, 30, her mother's lover, were slain on a sultry summer night in 1976, shot down by the "man in black" who invaded Davis' $6 million Fort Worth mansion.

The defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla, 36, was wounded in the midnight gunfire that crippled a young mansion visitor, Gus Gavrel Jr., 22.

The state's case revolves on the credibility of the two wounded survivors and Gavrel's girlfriend, Beverly Bass, 19. Each identified Davis as the gunman.

The Texas drama took its most unusual twist Friday when the defense produced a surprise witness whose testimony could provide the basis for a television script.

Uewayne Polk, 33, an obscure Fort Worth nurseryman, surfaced to tell the jury he saw an unidentified man inside the mansion within minutes of the shootings.

"Was the man you saw Cullen Davis?" Haynes asked the bearded witness.

"Definitely not," Polk replied.

On cross-examination, prosecutor Joe Shannon, upset and bristling, angrily asked Polk, "How much money have you been paid to come up here and tell that cock-and-bull story?"

Before Haynes could object,

Polk shot back "Not a red penny."

Haynes told newsmen later he had never laid eyes on Polk until last Wednesday when he was flown to Amarillo to discuss the episode with Davis' million-dollar defense team.

"We were very skeptical," attorney Steve Sumner said. "We attempted for two days and nights to poke holes in his story and we could not do it. We were not going to put a bombshell witness on the stand until we determined he was telling the truth."

Haynes disclosed that he and his colleagues used the code name "dynamite" to refer to the witness during the time they debated his credibility.

Polk's story was mind-boggling.

His testimony indicated his mission at the mansion that night was a furtive one.

Earlier that day, he said, he had gone there to collect a $667 payment for some plants he said Mrs. Davis had purchased. However, no payment was made.

Polk said he unlocked a sliding glass door through which he intended to return that night and recover his plants. His encounter with the unidentified man prevented him from doing so, he said.

It was 11:11 p.m. when he said he glanced at his digital watch while lurking under a tree outside the mansion.

"Four aces," he recalled thinking. "I thought this was going to be my lucky night."

It was then, he said, that he spotted a figure moving across the estate. Polk said he thought it was a "hobo or a wino" and that he followed him up to the mansion.

He said the man was carrying a bag and that he once stopped and put something on his head. Mrs. Davis had testified earlier that Farr's killer wore a woman's black wig.

At one point, Polk said the man disappeared. But he said he saw him again through a window or glass door and thought the intruder detected him. He said he turned and ran.

Polk said he told no one of the incident at the time "out of fear."

"Fear for my business," he said. "Fear of the man who really did it. Fear of Priscilla Davis' friends. Just fear."

Polk said it was last month, Oct. 17, that he told his attorneys of the incident. Haynes man prevented him from doing so, he said.

Cabot machinery to stay in Pampa

"We're Going To Do It In Pampa" is the theme of a new program of the Machinery Division of Cabot Corp., and the first step in the new program is an across-the-board wage increase of 18 percent for the division's 500 production workers.

The increase was effective Nov. 7.

Vic Raymond, vice president and general manager of the Machinery Division, announced the wage increase and noted that it will pump more than $2 million a year into Pampa's economy. It also virtually assures expansion of the division's operation here and not outside the Pampa area.

Raymond termed the size of the increase "extraordinary," adding that the increase after a good year would normally be between seven and nine percent. He said the remaining 9 to 11 percent increase represents "an adjustment and investment in our production team, which has been so instrumental to our success in the oilfield equipment and quality alloy steel forgings markets."

Cabot is the largest producer of mobile oilfield drilling and servicing rigs in the world, and also maintains a reputation as the highest quality producer of alloy steel forgings for specialty applications.

It has been rumored for some time that Cabot was seeking manufacturing capabilities outside the Pampa area, and Raymond confirmed that the firm had investigated the possibility of expanding into the Abilene, Houston or Gulf Coast areas. He said those investigations included everything from building or buying a satellite manufacturing facility to acquiring a going business with a product line complementary to Cabot's.

"We presently subcontract several thousand hours a month with job shops all over the Southwest," Raymond said, "but the decision to substantially increase work force wages means that we expect to bring most of the work back to Pampa as we stabilize and add to our work force here."

Asked if the move meant a future expansion of the Machinery Division's facility here, Raymond responded that "if we can demonstrate to our top corporate management that we are able to add the good people necessary to meet our production needs, I'm confident they will approve the necessary expenditures to make necessary plant improvements and additions."

He called the decision to keep the entire Machinery Division operation in Pampa "a gamble," but said "if we are to meet the challenge of the great demand for our products and to continue our transition away from total dependency on government contracts" it's the proper move.

Raymond said the investment applies primarily to hourly people, "but reflects our ongoing program of evaluating the many skills and talents throughout our entire 750-member organization and attempting to maintain a compensation program which both reflects the health of the business within the Machinery Division and the availability of good people to meet the challenges we constantly face."

Cauthorn enters race

There will be three candidates vying for two seats in the Dec. 10 special election called to replace E.J. Tarbox and Rex McAnelly on the city commission, but one is a virtual shoo-in unless a strong write-in campaign develops in Ward 3.

The shoo-in is Charles Cauthorn, 720 E. Frederick, who filed as a candidate Wednesday. Cauthorn is running unopposed for the seat vacated by Tarbox last fall. In fact, Cauthorn is attempting to fill Tarbox's shoes in more ways than one, having purchased the Ranchhouse Motel from Tarbox in September.

The two candidates seeking McAnelly's Ward 1 seat are O.M. Prigmore, 1308 Charles, and Levetta Brockbank, 1030 N. Wells.

The special election will cost the city about $1,000, according to S.M. Chittenden, city secretary.

Put together wheels, energy and cub scouts and you have a pushmobile derby. Pampa News photographer Ron Ennis captured the race last week in Pampa on Gallery, p. 13.

Medical quicksand

...forgive them, they know not what they do... A pollster who advises the president announces that the American public is willing to have its taxes raised for a program of national health care. If he is correct, which we doubt, the above quote is in order.

Patrick H. Caddell says his poll reveals an increase of from 46 percent in 1975 to a present percentage of 51 favoring increased taxes for health care.

Caddell says the citizens perceive health care as the only exception to their view that government is not working well. He said, "National health care is perceived by the public as the last great initiative on the social agenda."

This presidential adviser went on to state, "Sixteen percent want to keep the present health care system; 26 percent want the federal government to pay insurance premiums for the poor; 34 percent want a national health care program that guarantees medical treatment for all and 18 percent want a totally nationalized medical system. The rest of those questioned were undecided."

According to Caddell there is only six percent undecided and not any who do not want the government in the health care business. His poll figures are highly suspicious for it is obvious that there are many people who would like to see the government get out of health care. It may not be a high percentage but it is not a zero percentage.

Going back to his figures, all those not in the 18 percent who favor complete nationalized health care had better watch out. For if the president follows this adviser, and can persuade Congress, they will be soon joining the minority of 18 to become saddled with total governmental health care.

President Carter has promised the people to preserve the patient's freedom of choice in selecting physicians and treatment centers in whatever programs are adopted. But then he has made many other promises.

It may be too late but we would advise the president to pick an adviser in the health field who has had a large input of information from the ordinary people of Great Britain and the Netherlands.

We do not need to plow the field for a national health care program. It has been plowed, planted and cultivated in other countries and the crop has been shown to be a terrible failure.

With our own bureaucracies track record, junking the health care private enterprise system, only to have it join postal, Amtrak, Conrail and TVA could be the greatest mistake of this generation.

We doubt that the president will follow this adviser down the primrose path. But he and the Congress have their feet in some quicksands which can lead to the point of no return.

National health insurance is just the path which could lead to that satanic quicksand.

Carter's desperation

President Carter showed some of the ugly side of his character when he scapegoated the oil companies and tried to fix blame on the American people for his troubles with his energy program. He tried in fact to blame everybody for energy problems except the party most culpable the U.S. government.

The president obviously is unhappy with the way his energy program has been treated in Congress, and so he now threatens to impose gas rationing and to break up the oil companies if things don't start going his way. This is the mark of desperation, and it is dangerous for the wellbeing of the nation.

Falling into populist demagoguery, President Carter attempted to frighten Americans with the lie that they will be "robbed" by the oil companies if his legislation does not pass. He talked in terms of billions of dollars, the "biggest ripoff in history," he cried.

Some necessary distinction - making is in order. In the first place, consumers voluntarily pay gasoline prices. They may be unhappy with the prices, but they are not in any way being "robbed." When the government imposes taxes, however, as the president's plan calls for with a vengeance, money is being taken from them involuntarily, and that is legalized theft.

The most conservative estimates hold that President Carter's energy program, over the next ten years, will cost every American family approximately $10,000. The bill that just passed the House of Representatives, lower than the president's own wishes, will cost taxpayers $112 billion. Taxes on oil will come to, at minimum, $5.1 billion, on natural gas, $4.2 billion; auto efficiency taxes, $10 billion; coal taxes, $1.8 billion. According to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, all this will "represent the most significant increase in the middle-class tax burden our nation's history."

So the question is now, Shall we pay higher costs? as the president intimated, but, When? and, To whom? If the money goes to the government, it will feed a gargantuan bureaucracy which will use it to dictate our uses of energy, robbing us of our freedom thereby. If it goes to the oil companies, it will go into the hands of people whose job is to find, refine and carry energy to consumers.

The coming ascendancy of silver

Gold and silver both qualify as a medium for real money. Both are readily acceptable in trade worldwide and both retain their store of value. For those who do not remember, currency only met the criteria of good money when it was redeemable in one of the two precious metals.

Although the speculative view of the two metals keeps them closely related, the economics present a far different aspect. The price of gold on national and international markets has been moving up as indications of inflation continue to extend. Silver usually follows the lead of the price movement of gold.

At some future point, silver is going to break its bond to gold and take out on its own with an accelerated rate of price increase. There are strong economic reasons for this to take place.

For more than a decade, the industrial and other uses for silver have been much greater than production of new silver throughout the world. This aboveground store of silver which is available to the market is being depleted each year. At the time the use of silver began to outrun production, there was a tremendous store of the metal in coins and in bullion set aside for coinage. The amount now left to satisfy market demands is difficult to estimate.

It is not a question of whether demand for silver will exceed supply, but when will this take place. These factors are not the imperative in the basic economics of gold.

Both metals are being purchased by many people as a hedge against runaway inflation and/or collapse of a paper money system. But silver has a better chance of attaining and holding a greater increase in value because of its eventual supply-demand position.

Most of the industrial uses of silver fall in the category of a minor part of the total product cost. And, most of the uses cannot be duplicated by the substitution of any other metal.

To a large extent, silver today is in a similar position as was platinum before the first world war. Although rare, this metal had little or no industrial uses and was not desired for jewelry. It jumped in price by about one hundred times in only a few decades when demand exceeded supply and discovery of platinum bearing ores.

Discovery of silver has been much greater than was platinum so it is not reasonable to expect silver to jump in price so far and so fast. It can be expected that economic factors will, in the long run, cause this white precious metal to far exceed the price ratio increase of gold.

Within our memory there was a price ratio noted which related silver and gold price to a 16-to-one ratio. At this writing the ratio is about 33-to-one. If the old "rule" applied now, silver would be twice its present price.

It is more than a possibility that at some time in the near future silver may exceed even an amount double its present price.

Down through the ages, both metals have met the requirements for true money. They have always been accepted and have held a store of value. Money controlled by governments has been debased many times through the ages. Whenever fiat money fails, the precious metals have been used to restore economic order.

Within this limit, whatever it is (and some experts think it may already have reached it), there are innumerable ways to juggle the figures. And juggling the figures is often what tax "reform" comes down to.

The game is not an easy one to play, even for the most dedicated and conscientious. There are tradeoffs everywhere. Here are just a few examples:

-Simplifying the language. Sounds like a good idea. But a tax code that is easier for the layman to understand may also be less precise. And the lack of precision may make tax evasion easier for the sharpies.

-Ending "loopholes" that mostly "benefit the rich." Charitable contributions and tax free state and municipal bonds are usually included in this category. Trouble is, they benefit a lot of people, not just the rich. The local governments and the charities need the money. If they don't get it from "the rich," they will have to get it from you.

-Taxing capital gains as ordinary income. Capital is the money that makes money. Taxing it away is like taxing the cow's feed rather than her milk.

What kind of reform would I favor? First - and above all - it's time for an across-the-board tax cut. Such a move would help businesses and individuals to save a buck. From these savings would come the capital to invest in new or expanded enterprises. And from that investment would come more jobs, increased productivity (which is anti-inflationary), and ultimately, higher tax revenues from a bigger economy.

There are several other changes that would promote savings and investment. A more liberal depreciation allowance and a 12 percent investment tax credit would encourage business to modernize and expand. Elimination of the double tax on corporate dividends would help, too.

Some of these suggestions are rumored to be included in the Carter Administration's "tax reform" package. To that extent, I can support it.

But there are other rumors about what's in the package that sound dangerous, petty, inequitable, or a combination of all three. One of these is the proposal to put a ceiling on the deduction for mortgage interest and other interest on personal loans. The ceiling would be a high one at first. That's the sugar coating on the pill. But don't think it won't affect you eventually. If housing prices continue to rise at the current rate (thanks to inflation and other causes), it won't be long before the "high" ceiling becomes uncomfortably low for most people.

Then there's the plan to withhold taxes from the interest on savings accounts and dividends, at the rate of 20 percent. This would be a severe blow to retired people who need the income from their savings to live on. Even if they owed no tax, they would have to wait until the end of the year to get their money back.

Finally, there are the proposals to tax health insurance and other "fringe benefits." Can you believe it? The very same people who fret about the high cost of health care want to make it still more expensive for you!

How will it all come out? It's too early to tell. But there's one thing you can count on: Don't expect much tax relief if you're in that broad "middle income" range. That's where the money is, in this country. And the tax "reformers" know it. There's only one route to a significant, lasting tax cut: Cut government spending.

Getting the oil out

For nearly half a century the vast oil shale areas in the West have popped into the news as development seemed near at hand. The illusive method wherein the oil could be extracted at a cost which would be competitive seemed always to move out of reach.

Just as improved means of extraction and higher oil prices gave prospect of success, environmental factors started increasing costs. There are now at least eight companies working on oil shale projects. They are at various stages of development and none are close to large scale production.

Several years ago attention was focused on seeming breakthroughs in recovery methods and it appeared that success was near at hand. Environmentalists were quick to storm in with solutions before any problems existed.

As hopes for major production faded, the "clean air and water purity bunch" lost interest and turned to more interesting fields. With this in mind the development of oil shale and now going slow in predicting production schedules.

There are many uncertainties in the oil shale industry and yet there is a new optimistic attitude showing among those interested. Lessees of two Colorado tracts have filed new development plans, and a number of private ventures are gearing up for production.

It seems that the industry is betting that oil shale has finally become economical. The major impetus behind the increased activity is Occidental Petroleum's new processing design called the "modified in-situ method."

Robert Loucks, of Occidental, claims the method not only solves the water and waste disposal problems of other methods, but can produce four times more oil at less than half the capital cost of what was originally planned for the tract.

The remodeled plans a wait approval from Washington on final review. Loucks says he is confident of approval and wants to start production. He is expecting commercial production of 57,000 barrels a day to start in 1982.

Others in the field put the date of commercial production near 1987. Gulf Oil and Standard of Indiana which share the lease on the tract have also adopted the in-situ method. They, too, have filed amended development plans.

No one seems quite sure of the operating costs of a full scale commercial project but it now appears that $13 to $15 oil is near for shale production. If costs keep the price above $13 doubts will be raised as to the economic feasibility.

Then, too, the environmentalists drifted away when the last round of optimism dimmed. But we can be sure that they will be back in force whenever this industry appears to be getting off the ground.

These oil shale projects have been subjected to more than their share of harassment.

Farewell, Li'l Abner, Dogpatch

EDITOR'S NOTE — A whole town is disappearing today. It was built by imagination, populated by the mind and was full of social commentary. But in recent years, what it had to say drew more anger than laughter. So Al Capp, cartoonist, is turning cartographer. Scratching Dogpatch from some of the most widely-read maps, comic pages around the world.

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Still wide-eyed and wildly ignorant after 43 years of preposterous catastrophe, Li'l Abner is being retired by the outrageous wit who created him. This handsome hick dimwit says goodbye to the funny papers today, Nov. 13. He takes with him, among others, the gentle Shmoos, boldly bosomy Daisy Mae and pipe smoking Mammy Yokum.

They're citizens of the comic strip hamlet of Dogpatch. And they peopled the imagination of Al Capp, a man who tickled and infuriated millions with the social comment he wove into the adventures of hillbilly hayseeds.

But now Capp is crippled by emphysema, and at age 68, he cannot go on. "I could see my stuff didn't have the joy it used to have," he said.

At the end of a long sentence, Capp's bullfrog voice fades into a rusty whisper, and the face that used to look like Li'l Abner's crumples with painful coughs. "I wasn't having fun with it any more. It was becoming a chore."

At its peak in the 1950s, Li'l Abner was a roaring, foot-stomping success.

Readers of 900 newspapers around the world followed the daily mishaps of Li'l Abner as he wandered innocently among the forces of greed and evil, duped and abused by politicians and tycoons.

Capp sought out smugness and hypocrisy. He satirized lawyers, psychiatrists, policemen, gangsters, salesmen and doctors. He made fun of marriage, fads, politics, love and even comic strips.

In the 1940s and '50s, liberals considered Capp to be one of their own.

Politicians and greedy businessmen regularly buffooned their way across the page. There was, for instance, Sen.

Jack S. Phogbound, the pompous, baby-kissing right-winger who embodied the Cappian view of Southern politics.

"In his prime, he was one of the two or three greatest cartoonists this country ever produced," says David Manning White, a Virginia Commonwealth University professor who is one of the few scholars of the funnies. "What made him unique was his ability to develop characters that were modern fairy tales."

As the times changed, so did Capp. With the growth of welfare and the antiwar movement, Capp shifted to new targets. To the horror of liberals, he was suddenly attacking them.

Instead of characters like Henry Cabbage Cod, who might have borne a resemblance to Henry Cabot Lodge, Capp's tales became populated by such zanies as Joanie Phonnie, a Joan Baez-like folk singer who ate caviar and crooned about poverty and protest.

Capp seems to revel in the uproar.

"A humorist has one duty — to be funny," he says. "Some are funny about kids, some about dogs, some about mothers. I chose fraud. Whatever was fraudulent, I attacked. "For myself, I never did anything as well as I hoped," Capp says. "Maybe no artist does. John Steinbeck once wrote that the Nobel Prize should go to Li'l Abner. He was, I am sure, shocked and disappointed when they gave it to him instead."

There was one eye-popping exception to Capp's repulsive characters. The women. He made some of them staggeringly curvaceous, sinfully seductive.

Capp's most popular creatures perhaps were the Shmoos, "luv'li lil' critters" that joyfully rolled over and died when anyone wanted to eat them.

Capp wrote all his life about mythical hill folk, but he did it from the perspective of a city boy. He was born, Dogpatch poor, with the name Alfred Gerald Caplin in New Haven, Conn., in 1908.

When he was nine, he fell from an ice truck and was run over by a streetcar. His left leg had to be amputated.

Texas economy 'healthy'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas has an outstanding economic climate in the nation because record state government expenditures are being matched by record tax revenue totals, Comptroller Bob Bullock says.

Bullock reported to Gov. Dolph Briscoe, in the comptroller's annual financial report, for the state's fiscal year, ending Aug. 31, 1977. "Revenues and an opening cash balance of $9 billion supported expenditures of $7.02 billion, leaving a net cash balance of $1.98 billion," Bullock said.

"This cash balance, also a record figure, was $336 million more than the cash balance at the beginning of the fiscal year (Sept. 1, 1976)."

Bullock said the record cash balance was made possible by record revenues from all major sources, including $4.42 billion in tax collections, $1.85 billion in federal funds, $372 million in licenses and fees, $279 million in investments of state funds, and $341 million in income from state owned land.

Bullock commented in his report that Texas' favorable economic environment came from a number of sources.

Coal strike wouldn't cripple

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It wasn't many years ago that the prospect of a nationwide coal strike by the legendary John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers union sent shudders through the economy.

The nation again faces the possibility of a strike when the union's contract expires Dec. 6. But with Lewis dead and the once-mighty union no longer the force it once was, the prospect of a strike isn't nearly so fearsome.

"It would be serious and unfortunate if we had a strike, but it wouldn't be a national emergency," says Labor Secretary Ray Marshall.

Contract negotiations between the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association have been underway here since Oct. 6. However, it wasn't until last Tuesday that they got down to serious bargaining.

To avert a walkout, a tentative agreement will have to be reached by about Nov. 25 to allow time for the union's 130,000 miners to approve it before the Dec. 6 strike deadline.

A strike was deemed likely even before the talks began, and the tough stand taken by the industry in the initial bargaining has made the outlook even more bleak.

The coal companies are determined to curb the wildcat strikes that have cost them nearly 22 million tons of production in just the first eight months of this year. They are proposing a system of penalties against miners who join in illegal strikes and incentives for increased production.

UMW President Arnold Miller also agrees that something has to be done to bring stability to the coalfields, but is insisting on a limited "right-to-strike" over local grievances. He contends such a provision in the contract would limit disputes to the mine involved.

Just how this will be resolved remains to be worked out.

In the meantime, Marshall says the Carter administration is watching the situation closely. But even in the event of a strike, the administration will stay out of the dispute unless it causes "a serious national problem," the labor secretary says.

Industry analysts and government experts say a strike would have to last at least three months before it has a major impact on the nation's energy supplies, although some hardship could occur sooner in states heavily dependent on coal, such as Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Electric utilities and the steel industry — coal's biggest customers — are expected to have a 90-day supply on hand in December to weather a strike, according to government estimates.

Despite rising coal production, UMW mines now produce only about half the nation's coal, down from nearly 70 percent just three years ago when the current contract was signed. Labor problems in the East and the growth of western coal, much of it non-union, are largely to blame.

Last summer's 10-week wildcat strike over cutbacks in miners' medical benefits had little effect outside the Appalachian coalfields — underscoring the loss of the union's traditional dominance of the nation's coal supplies.

Anti-feminist book ousted

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A high school clerical text that feminists said teaches young women "crawling subservience" to the male was rejected Saturday by the State Board of Education, 9-6.

Also turned down were two books for high school elective courses in "free enterprise" and an advanced biology text that a majority of the board felt was too explicit about contraception.

In general, the 82 texts adopted in 23 subjects, with a first year cost estimated at about $16 million, leaned toward a back-to-basics approach.

The board voted to strike South-Western Publishing Co.'s "Clerical Office Procedures," which the National Organization of Women (NOW) had made one of its top targets.

Board member Virginia Currey of Arlington voiced the NOW position in moving to drop the book from the list.

She said the book portrayed the female office worker as a "dizzy dumb broad." A woman clerk in a cartoon tells her boss, "The reason we have so many drawers marked 'L' is because we have so many letters."

Traditionalists were particularly delighted with Harcourt-Brae's "Adventures for Readers," an eighth grade literature book that contains Oliver Wendell Holmes' poem "Old Ironsides," selections from Virgil's "Aeneid" and the story, "How Horatio Held the Bridge."

Four out of five high school grammar texts stress traditional methods, including sentence diagramming, spelling, hard-and-fast rules and exercises that require more writing by the student.

A "compromise" on free enterprise books gave local districts only two works to choose between instead of the four recommended by the State Textbook Committee — South-Western's "Consumer Economic Problems" and Addison-Wesley's "Fundamentals of the American Free Enterprise System."

The free enterprise texts were adopted for only two years, however. Some board members said they hoped more satisfactory works — from their standpoint — would be available by then.

Last year, the board could not agree on any books for the course, and eight conservative members indicated in a preliminary vote they didn't like any of this year's offerings either.

One book that was rejected, court's "Free Enterprise in America" was the most frequently protested at a board hearing Thursday.

Board member Ruben Hinojosa of Mercedes supported a successful motion by W. H. Fetter of La Marque to strike the Harcourt book and Sadler-Oxford's "American Economy: Freedom's Way."

"We are really not giving our students the side of the business," if you vote against the option, you would be giving only the view of organized labor, and that would be a great disservice to the students," Hinojosa said.

Board member Mary Ann Leverage of East Bernard said she didn't think any of the free enterprise books "truly meet the intent of the legislature... In my opinion, there is considerable bias in all four books. The two books in Mr. Fetter's motion are the better of the four."

Fetter's motion carried, 9-8.

Mrs. Currey, a political science teacher at Southern Methodist University, moved but got only her own vote to strike Ginn & Co.'s "Introduction to Literature" for seventh graders and "The Study of Literature" for grade eight.

She said she was "aghast" at the portrayal of females in the books, which she said reach students in "the crucial social crippling years of young American women."

The message of the books' selections was for women to accept "stoically their fate and oppression like caged birds who are yet supposed to sing."

In a voice edged with sarcasm, she said the books "generously sensitize" young men to "appreciate our self-sacrificing women. Wonderful. One may be sure these young male readers will one day not forget to call mama on Mother's Day, or to pat wife appreciatively on the behind as she does the dishes."

The board stuck with its decision as a whole committee Friday and deleted "Introduction to Biology," published by John Wiley & Sons, a book for high schoolers who want a second year of biology.

Fetter said that committee meeting he was shocked at its descriptions of various methods of contraception.

Solar energy to be topic for chamber

Lloyd Russell of Buyers Service will present a program on "Solar Energy and how the general public can make use of it" at Tuesday's Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

Reservations for the luncheon, scheduled for the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Two drawings will also be held at the luncheon, including one for $50 for everyone present, and another for chamber members only, also for $50.

The "members only" drawing will be from a fishbowl containing all chamber members names, and if the winner isn't present, the $50 prize will be carried over to the next meeting.

Pampa man gets 50 years for assault

STINNETT — Earl Edward Kerr Jr., 27, of Pampa, was found guilty of deadly assault on a police officer with a firearm by a jury here Saturday.

Kerr was later assessed a 50-year sentence by the six-man, six-woman jury. Sentencing will take place at 10 a.m. Nov. 28.

Kerr was involved in a shootout with police near National Guard Armory in Borger on Dec. 31, 1975.

The case, in which Kerr was specifically charged with deadly assault on Lt. John O'Brien of the Borger police department, went to the jury at 12:45 p.m. Saturday, and the guilty verdict was returned at 3 p.m. The jury then deliberated four hours before assessing the 50-year sentence.

Diesel exhaust, cancer studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is launching a major research program to determine if the exhaust fumes from the nation's diesel burning trucks and buses can cause cancer.

The EPA, in announcing its plans for the investigation, said preliminary findings indicate diesel exhausts cause genetic changes in bacteria and that the mutated bacteria could have cancer-causing capabilities.

Most large trucks, buses and some private automobiles use diesel fuel, but the EPA said it was not issuing a health warning to drivers or passengers.

"At this time we do not have sufficient data to make any reasonable assessment of the public health risk, if any, that might be associated with emissions from diesel-powered vehicles presently operating on the road," said Dr. Delbert Barth, the EPA's deputy assistant administrator for health and ecological effects.

But Barth recommended that anyone who works with diesel exhausts take precautions to minimize contact and said the exhausts should be considered "potentially hazardous materials."

The decision to conduct further research follows studies showing diesel exhausts possess "significant mutagenic properties" which cause genetic changes in bacteria.

Burns leader in battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns is winning his battles with the White House and there is a growing possibility that President Carter will reappoint him to head the reserve board.

Despite a long-running dispute between Burns and the Carter administration, White House officials suddenly were agreeing last week that there was no dispute.

"It seems to me he wins all the arguments," said an exasperated Sen. William Proxmire, after repeatedly failing to get Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal to admit to even the slightest disagreement with the 73-year-old Burns.

That was on Friday. Two days earlier, Burns spent a good part of a three-hour appearance before Proxmire's Senate Banking Committee criticizing Carter administration policies on taxes, inflation and the value of the dollar.

Proxmire admitted to being "perplexed, puzzled and disappointed" that Blumenthal was now endorsing the Federal Reserve Board policies, which the senator said would drive up interest rates and slow the nation's economic growth.

Just two weeks earlier, White House officials were criticizing Federal Reserve policies, both in public and private.

A bigger test for Burns than winning Blumenthal's endorsement of his policies lies ahead, however. Carter must decide by the end of January whether to reappoint Burns to the powerful position as chairman of the money-managing Federal

Sadat stirs summit

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Arab foreign ministers, opening a summit meeting here Saturday keyed toward cementing Arab solidarity, were quickly embroiled in a procedural dispute over Israeli-Palestinian clashes in South Lebanon.

The flareup came as Egyptian President Anwar Sadat proposed in Cairo that an Arab-American professor of Palestinian origin represent the Palestinians at a reconvened Arab-Israeli peace conference in Geneva.

Conference sources said Farouk Kaddoumi, chief foreign policy spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization, demanded the ministers discuss what he called "the dangerous situation" in southern Lebanon.

Lebanese Foreign Minister Fouad Boutros opposed the re-

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Fair skies and afternoon temperatures in the mid 60s ranged across the state Saturday as Mother Nature provided almost perfect weather for any outdoor activities.

Winds were light and variable across the eastern half of Texas at 10-15 miles per hour. The only gusts reported occurred in San Angelo where winds were clocked at 25 mph. Early afternoon readings showed a cross-section of partly cloudy to clear conditions statewide. Abilene was partly cloudy at 60 degrees. Amarillo was fair with the same reading. Wichita Falls was partly cloudy and 62. Farther south, the Beaumont-Port Arthur area enjoyed 69-degree temperatures under clear skies.

The National Weather Service was predicting another crisp morning and mild afternoon for Sunday.

Defense

Judge Dowlen's chambers questioning potential witnesses. Asked once what was being said, Dowlen quipped: "It would gag a maggot."

The defense sought through its witnesses to show that Mrs. Davis and her friends existed in a sub-culture of drugs and booze, and that sex was loose and expensive.

W.T. Rufner, 38, a rowdy and roughish ex-boyfriend of the twice-divorced blonde, said he and Mrs. Davis were intimate before she and Davis separated in early 1974.

Haynes endeavored to convince the jury that Rufner or a slain Fort Worth friend of Farr and Priscilla, Horace Copeland, would have a motive for killing Farr.

The defense insists Farr was the killer's primary target and the others were secondary victims.

Haynes chiseled away at the credibility of the three eye-witnesses, pointing out that each stood to profit financially by naming Davis as the gunman.

Mrs. Davis is involved in a multi-million dollar divorce action with Davis. And Gavrel has filed a $13 million civil suit against him.

Haynes produced testimony to indicate Mrs. Davis' reliance on the pain-killing drug Percodan could effect her memory and her ability to accurately relate the events of Aug. 2, 1976.

The crafty Houston lawyer, a figure in the current best seller, "Blood and Money," a story of another sensational murder case, added insult to injury at one point.

He called a Fort Worth teenager who testified that she was intimate with Farr while the ex-college basketball star was living at the mansion.

President vetoes rabbit inspection

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says a government rabbit meat inspection program he vetoed would have served only a small number of Americans.

But the rabbit meat industry takes the matter more seriously, saying consumers will be harmed in the end.

Carter, in a 400-word veto message Thursday, called the measure "a special interest bill."

He said its passage could even strain U.S. relations with China since the Chinese export rabbit meat to the United States.

The industry already has available a voluntary inspection program for which it must pay, and Carter indicated the taxpayer should not be required to assume the bill.

Fourth terrorist dies in cell

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — Ingrid Schubert, one of 11 jailed terrorists whose release was demanded by the kidnap-killers of a West German industrialist and the hijackers of a Lufthansa jetliner, was found dead in her cell Saturday, officials said.

A spokesman for the Munich prison refused to give further details, but the newspaper Welt Am Sonntag reported that the 32-year-old Miss Schubert was found hanged.

Miss Schubert, sentenced to a total of 19 years imprisonment for various crimes including attempted murder and bank robbery, became the fourth terrorist on the kidnapers' list to die in custody.

Three others, Andreas Baader, Gudrun Ensslin and Jan-Carl Raspe, were found dead or dying in their cells at the Stammheim prison near Stuttgart on Oct. 18.

Stock market breaks slump

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, suddenly infused with optimism, burst out of a 10-month slump this past week and ran up its sharpest gain in more than a year and a half.

Trading volume accelerated to its fastest pace since mid-summer on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials leaped 35.96 points, posting its strongest weekly showing since it gained 52.42 points Jan. 5-9 of last year.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was up 4.40 at 95.98, and the NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks tacked on 2.43 to 52.70.

Big Board volume averaged 25.81 million shares a day, peaking on Friday at 35.26 million — the seventh largest total in exchange history.

The story was the same at the American Stock Exchange, where the market value index surged 5.45 points to 118.33.

It remained to be seen, of course, whether stock prices had reached a final turning point after the long dismal spell that set in at the start of 1977.

But analysts said a number of factors appeared to be working in the market's favor.

The most dramatic of these came at President Carter's press conference when he dismissed as "completely erroneous" the impression many observers had gotten that he was at odds with Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board over the Fed's credit policy.

Less than a month ago, the market had slumped after the White House issued a statement implicitly criticizing the central bank for exerting upward pressure on interest rates in its effort to curb inflation by reining in the growth of the money supply.

But on Thursday the president said he had never had any disagreement with Burns, whose conservative economic views are shared by many Wall

Streeters, on economic policy matters.

And the market responded enthusiastically to what it evidently took as a conciliatory gesture from the president.

To add a touch of irony, the market also got a boost from a spreading belief that there wasn't likely to be much more credit-tightening by the Fed in the immediate future.

Those hopes were buttressed by the latest Fed statistics, which showed a substantial drop in the money supply.

"The monetary policy cloud over the market is much less foreboding than it was four weeks ago," concluded William Gibson at Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co. in his weekly review of the outlook for interest rates and fixed-income securities.

"While the Fed has gone out of its way to stress its independence and tough stand on inflation, we estimate that it will welcome the chance to stabilize or reduce slightly the level of short term interest rates."

At the same time, the recession worries that beset the market for much of the summer and early fall evidently were fading — and on that subject, too, Burns played a role.

In the course of a defense of the Fed's recent policies before the Senate Banking Committee on Wednesday, he said:

"The dominant view within the Federal Reserve is that economic expansion will persist well into 1978, probably at a pace sufficiently strong to result in some further reduction in the unemployment rate."

That view was echoed by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, the nation's largest brokerage firm, which declared: "Next year's economic outlook may be better than generally believed."

"Merrill Lynch Economics is encouraged by recent inflation statistics and does not see 1978 as a recession year."

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos said Saturday he will resign if U.S. senators feel he is an obstacle to ratification of the Panama Canal treaty and promised to halt human rights violations in his country.

"If the Senate were to say that for the ratification of the treaty they needed that I go, I would leave," Torrijos said through an interpreter after a hastily organized and unscripted meeting with six U.S. senators.

The Panamanian general also vowed to take immediate steps to end human rights violations in his country.

Torrijos said he would move immediately to abolish martial law provisions that have been in effect since 1969 and lift provisions that allow his government to hold political prisoners without trial for up to 15 years.

"One of the things I have to be grateful to the senators is that they very decently, very properly made this observation" — that holding political prisoners without trial is "not right."

Torrijos made the pledges in a meeting called as the senators were preparing to return home at the conclusion of a four-day tour of Panama and the Canal Zone.

Torrijos' statements, witnessed by reporters from Panama and the United States, brought immediate praise from members of the Senate delegation, led by Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said he had been persuaded to support ratification of the treaty. Two others, Sens. Don Riegle, D-Mich., and Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., offered their qualified support.

Byrd and Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., said they would reserve judgment until they obtain more information.

Sen. Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, already had gone on record as favoring the pact, and Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., had returned home before the tour ended.

Earlier, the senators had said their fact-finding mission gave them a "new perspective" on the treaty.

The group left for Washington on Saturday. The trip included meetings with American and Panamanian officials and citizens, an inspection of the canal and a flying tour with Torrijos.

The general apparently made the biggest impression by offering to abolish human rights violations and to step down if the Senate decided his regime is an obstacle to ratification of the treaty.

"The interests of the country are ahead of the interests of General Torrijos," he said.

Torrijos said he hoped steps aimed at improving the human rights of Panamanians would improve chances for approval of the treaty, which has aroused considerable conservative opposition in the United States.

He appealed to senators for swift ratification of the pact in exchange for his willingness to act on human rights problems. Torrijos said Senate approval of the treaty would permit Panama to improve its international economic position.

He also told the senators he would ease press censorship, grant permission for some 60 political exiles to return to Panama and open up the Panamanian political process for possible free elections.

The senators apparently reached one apparent consensus: Although Torrijos is a military strongman, the Panamanian leader is not the would-be communist that right-wing treaty foes claim he is. They also concluded it was doubtful that Torrijos is plotting to remake Panama in Cuba's image.

In separate interviews, members of the group said they considered the communism issue to be a phony one. They said the issue has been exaggerated by U.S. conservatives who insist the treaty is a giveaway that will spread Castroism and Soviet influence in the Caribbean.

"If any issue has been overblown, it's that one," said Huddleston.

The senator said several Panamanians told him the country "would not last 10 days under communism." And he quoted Torrijos as telling the senators: "If Panama went communist, I would leave. If I tried to make it go communist, I would be forced to leave."

Teacher loses appeal, job

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Corpus Christi teacher fired for not accounting properly for school property lost his appeal to the State Board of Education on Saturday.

The board voted 10-2 to uphold the dismissal of Joe Butler, who lost his job on May 17, 1976, after a hearing before the local school board.

Butler was transferred out of Moody High School at the end of the 1974-75 school year. He was found to have a typewriter and cassette tape recorder belonging to the high school in his home three months later.

"At no time has the district suggested that petitioner intended to steal these items," observed State Education Commissioner Marlin Bröckette.

He said it appeared that Butler owned a similar typewriter and mistakenly returned his own rather than the school's. Butler said he apparently mistook the recorder for one of his own as well.

Bröckette and school district lawyer J. W. Gary said the real issue was negligence in performing inventories of school property when Butler left Moody.

"He was primarily a teacher, not a person who is particularly careful about inventories," said Butler's lawyer, Sam A. Westergren Jr.

Westergren said, "The only thing he is guilty of is being an overzealous teacher working extra hours after school and at home on extracurricular activities."

He said the school district had no written policy concerning inventories, but apparently was trying to establish one by "running rampant over one teacher and firing him to make an example so as to have some sort of deterrent effect."

In other action, the board declared that any appeal from investigative findings of the education commissioner concerning compliance with the statewide school desegregation order would have to go to U. S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler, not to the board.

—Voted to seek $55,000 in federal funds to help start a pilot program for gifted and talented students.

Hughes' will hearing Monday

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — For many years, Howard Hughes, the eccentric recluse, was a mystery man to the world. After his death in April, 1976, the distribution of his wealth has become so entangled that on Monday three court hearings are scheduled in an effort to find a solution to who gets how much of the millions, perhaps billions, of the estate.

Two of the hearings are set in Houston, where the body of Hughes lies in a cemetery where each evening the shadows of the downtown buildings slip across his simply-marked grave.

A trial also is underway in Las Vegas, Nev.

The Nevada trial is to determine the legalist of the so-called Mormon will, allegedly written by Hughes. Six jurors have been selected.

Hughes' relatives are challenging the purported will, claiming it is a forgery.

Los Angeles attorney Harold Rhoden, representing former Hughes aide Noah Dietrich, is the chief proponent of the document. The Mormon will names Dietrich as the executor of the vast Hughes estate.

In Houston, two hearings are scheduled on the same day, one before Harris County Probate Judge Pat Gregory, and the other before a state court of civil appeals. Gregory will hear another motion to delay the Houston trial where two major issues are to be settled—the validity of the Mormon will and whether Hughes was a legal resident of Texas.

Should the jury rule that Hughes was a resident of Texas the state could collect more than $100 million in inheritance taxes.

Gregory earlier turned down a motion to delay the Houston trial and will hear a similar motion Monday morning.

At the same time, the 14th Court of Civil Appeals will hear arguments from attorneys for the Mormon Church and Rice University to postpone the trial. The university could receive

Three die in crash
PETERSBURG, Texas (AP) — Three people, including a husband and wife, were killed Friday night in a wreck on a rural road in this Panhandle community.

Authorities identified the victims as James Harris, 37, his wife, Edna, 33, and Mary G. Lopez. All were from the nearby town of Lockney.

Police said four vehicles were involved in the crash that left a fourth person, Velma Alaniz, 21, also of Lockney, in critical condition at a local hospital.

more than $20 million if the Mormon will is declared valid.

Rice attorney Tom Eubank said he is not taking a position that the document is genuine, only that a fair trial could not be held while necessary witnesses and the purported will are in Las Vegas.

A spokesman for Texas Attorney General John Hill said the state has compiled 50,000 documents and flown 100,000 miles in the United States, Mexico and Canada in an effort to prove the domicile side of the case.

The spokesman said the investigation thus far has cost an estimated $250,000.

Hill, along with five other attorneys, three law clerks and three secretaries, will present the Texas case before Gregory.

Consumer safeguards lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent revisions in the federal consumer credit law could open the door for discrimination by merchants and credit card operations, the Federal Trade Commission says.

The FTC and Sen. William Proxmire, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, are asking that the revisions be withdrawn. The changes were drafted quietly earlier this year by staff members of the Federal Reserve Board.

"The Fed is undermining credit protection by opening the door to immense loopholes," said one FTC staffer. Proxmire complained the revisions, written as interpretations of the law, "misconstrue legislative intent" in passing the credit protection act.

One revision allows merchants to inquire about such things as race, sex or religion as a means of designing sales strategies.

A second would allow a merchant to refuse to take a credit card without explaining the reason for the denial.

Prior to the first revision, which already is in effect, it was illegal for merchants to seek information which could be used to discriminate in granting credit.

The second revision replaces a current regulation requiring an explanation of the reason for denying credit unless the customer fails to present a credit card or proper identification.

Proxmire, in a letter to Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, said the first revision "sweeps aside" previous anti-discrimination protections and turns the enforcement process upside down.

"Rather than prohibiting conduct which gives business an opportunity to discriminate, the board would place the burden on the enforcement agencies to ferret out discriminatory behavior," the Wisconsin Democrat complained.

The FTC said the credit card interpretation "provides creditors with a ready-made vehicle for discrimination."

"Instead of denying troublesome applications for credit outright, a creditor could issue an account ... and cut off the applicant's access to credit at the point of sale," said Lewis Goldfarb, an acting assistant director at the FTC.

"The consumer would never be told the reason why a charge authorization was denied, and the creditor's discriminatory practices could go unnoticed."

The Federal Reserve staff, not the board itself, quietly issued the interpretations last spring.

They apply to a 1975 law which bars credit discrimination based on sex, marital status, race, color, national origin, age or receipt of public assistance, such as welfare benefits.

No public comment on the proposals was taken in advance.

Mayborn honored in dedication

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Frank W. Mayborn Building was dedicated Thursday at the George Peabody College for teachers.

The building, formerly called the Industrial Arts Building, was renovated last year and named for Mayborn, a board of trustees member. Mayborn is a Temple, Tex., businessman and communications executive.

"This action was taken in recognition of the outstanding service and devotion of Frank W. Mayborn to the college as a member of the board of trustees and as a true friend of American education," John Dugworth, Peabody president, said.

The building houses the Peabody School of Library Science, the college's program for educators of youth, instructional media center, classrooms and faculty offices.

Horace G. Hill Jr., board chairman, called the dedication a double honor.

"This day is, of course, an honor for Frank Mayborn because we have chosen to name a building as a lasting memorial for him," Hill said.

"And it is doubly an honor because I believe that any college would consider it a distinction to have a building named for so eminent a person."

Mayor proclaims Pampa smokeout

Pampa Mayor R.D. Wilkerson has proclaimed Thursday as "A Day To Stop Smoking" in conjunction with the Great American Smokeout.

The event is a nationwide effort by the American Cancer Society to point out that more than 100,000 Americans will die of lung cancer this year.

Officials said prime focus of the smokeout is 53 million cigarette smokers in the United States.

The national goal is to reach 20 per cent of that number. The main purpose is to show smokers that breaking the habit comes one day at a time.

A free no-smoke clinic is scheduled in Pampa in late January.

Pledge cards for the event may be obtained at the First National Bank, Citizens Bank and Trust, Pampa Junior High, Pampa Senior High and Dunlaps.

Consumer safeguards lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent revisions in the federal consumer credit law could open the door for discrimination by merchants and credit card operations, the Federal Trade Commission says.

The FTC and Sen. William Proxmire, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, are asking that the revisions be withdrawn. The changes were drafted quietly earlier this year by staff members of the Federal Reserve Board.

"The Fed is undermining credit protection by opening the door to immense loopholes," said one FTC staffer. Proxmire complained the revisions, written as interpretations of the law, "misconstrue legislative intent" in passing the credit protection act.

One revision allows merchants to inquire about such things as race, sex or religion as a means of designing sales strategies.

A second would allow a merchant to refuse to take a credit card without explaining the reason for the denial.

Prior to the first revision, which already is in effect, it was illegal for merchants to seek information which could be used to discriminate in granting credit.

The second revision replaces a current regulation requiring an explanation of the reason for denying credit unless the customer fails to present a credit card or proper identification.

Proxmire, in a letter to Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns, said the first revision "sweeps aside" previous anti-discrimination protections and turns the enforcement process upside down.

"Rather than prohibiting conduct which gives business an opportunity to discriminate, the board would place the burden on the enforcement agencies to ferret out discriminatory behavior," the Wisconsin Democrat complained.

The FTC said the credit card interpretation "provides creditors with a ready-made vehicle for discrimination."

"Instead of denying troublesome applications for credit outright, a creditor could issue an account ... and cut off the applicant's access to credit at the point of sale," said Lewis Goldfarb, an acting assistant director at the FTC.

"The consumer would never be told the reason why a charge authorization was denied, and the creditor's discriminatory practices could go unnoticed."

The Federal Reserve staff, not the board itself, quietly issued the interpretations last spring.

They apply to a 1975 law which bars credit discrimination based on sex, marital status, race, color, national origin, age or receipt of public assistance, such as welfare benefits.

No public comment on the proposals was taken in advance.

Mayor proclaims Pampa smokeout

Pampa Mayor R.D. Wilkerson has proclaimed Thursday as "A Day To Stop Smoking" in conjunction with the Great American Smokeout.

The event is a nationwide effort by the American Cancer Society to point out that more than 100,000 Americans will die of lung cancer this year.

Officials said prime focus of the smokeout is 53 million cigarette smokers in the United States.

The national goal is to reach 20 per cent of that number. The main purpose is to show smokers that breaking the habit comes one day at a time.

A free no-smoke clinic is scheduled in Pampa in late January.

Pledge cards for the event may be obtained at the First National Bank, Citizens Bank and Trust, Pampa Junior High, Pampa Senior High and Dunlaps.

Mayborn honored in dedication

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Frank W. Mayborn Building was dedicated Thursday at the George Peabody College for teachers.

The building, formerly called the Industrial Arts Building, was renovated last year and named for Mayborn, a board of trustees member. Mayborn is a Temple, Tex., businessman and communications executive.

"This action was taken in recognition of the outstanding service and devotion of Frank W. Mayborn to the college as a member of the board of trustees and as a true friend of American education," John Dunworth, Peabody president, said. The building houses the Peabody School of Library Science, the college's program for educators of youth, instructional media center, classrooms and faculty offices.

Horace G. Hill Jr., board chairman, called the dedication a double honor.

"This day is, of course, an honor for Frank Mayborn because we have chosen to name a building as a lasting memorial for him," Hill said.

"And it is doubly an honor because I believe that any college would consider it a distinction to have a building named for so eminent a person."

Amarillo stymies Harvesters, 34-14

End of the line

Harvester running back Richard Wuest (25) finds the going tough in Pampa's 34-14 loss to Amarillo High Friday night. Wuest led Pampa rushers with 42 yards on 11 carries.

(Pampa News photo by Ron Ennis)

By TOM KENSER
Pampa News Sports Editor
AMARILLO — Before the 50th renewal of the famed Pampa-Sandie rivalry, Amarillo head coach Larry Dippel was worried.

His scouts had seen the Harvesters destroy a talented, but unmotivated Palo Duro squad and feared his Sandies might follow the same fate. After all, Amarillo High's title hopes had been dashed a week earlier by Tascosa.

But Dippel's fears never materialized, and showing the pride expected of defending champions, the Sandies stormed through, over and around Pampa's green and gold for a 34-14 homecoming victory at Dick Bivins Stadium here Friday night.

The loss gave Pampa coach

John Welborn and his staff a disappointing 2-8 record. But the Harvesters were 2-2 in district play for third place behind champion Tascosa and Amarillo High.

The Sandies ended up 8-2 and 3-1 in loop play.

In retrospect, the game was a microcosm of Pampa's entire season. The Harvesters were outmanned in the lines, gave up some big plays, turned the ball over at crucial times, and failed to protect the quarterback in passing situations.

Bolestered by a Richard Wuest 14-yard burst and a roughing the punter penalty, Pampa moved into enemy territory after taking the opening kickoff.

But the drive stalled at the Sandie 48 when quarterback Rick Dougherty was sacked twice.

The quarter ended in a stalemate after each team punted once and committed a turnover.

Amarillo High scored on its second possession in quarter No. 2 when, after two first downs, wingback Mark Isaacson caught the Pampa defense leaning and sprinted home on a 35-yard counter reverse.

Five plays later, the Sandies regained possession as Jay Hightower intercepted a Dougherty aerial which sailed over the outstretched arms of Gary Dumas.

After Russell Allen missed on two passes, quarterback turned-halfback Bret Jordan decided to take things into his own hands. It took the 172-pound senior only three carries to run the 48 yards, with the final nine coming on a crack over left tackle.

Pampa's offense showed renewed spark, and Dougherty passed for 16 yards to Rudy Roland and 31 to the reliable Dumas gave the Harvesters first-and-goal on the Sandie seven with 19 seconds showing on the clock.

But Dougherty slipped down on a piece of loose turf at the 10 and, after an incomplete pass attempt to Chris Coffman, succumbed to a fierce Sandie rush for a two-yard loss as time ran out.

The third period was a standoff until Amarillo fullback Kym Fletcher broke free for an electrifying 78-yard touchdown gallop.

Doug Smith took the ensuing kickoff 31 yards to the Amarillo 47. But the chronic turnover bug bit Pampa again and Dougherty lost the ball to Sandie tackle Tim McMenamy.

Eight plays later, third-string quarterback Mike Munkres lofted a perfect strike to Jordan from the 32, and the Sandies had an insurmountable 27-0 lead as the quarter ran out.

Pampa marched back with a drive of its own, highlighted by three Roland sweeps around right end. But Smith fumbled on the Sandie 15 and the downcast Harvesters appeared ready to check out early.

However, Isaacson returned the favor with Steve Young coming up with the ball on the Amarillo 31.

A 24-yard Coffman grab set up a four-yard Roland score with 6:43 remaining. Pampa successfully executed an on-side kick, but lost the ball on downs after penetrating to the Sandie 43.

From there, Amarillo streamrolled down the field and Munkres wrapped up Sandie scoring with a three-yard keeper.

The Harvesters ended up on an exciting note as Roland took the kickoff at the 11 and raced untouched for the longest Pampa touchdown of 1977.

Fletcher led Sandie ballcarriers with 128 yards on 14 carries, while Jordan added 74 yards on 13 totes Wuest and Roland paced Pampa backs with 42 and 38 yards respectively.

Amarillo High now leads the series 39-14-3.

Raiders thrash SMU

DALLAS (AP) — Rodney Allison, with his injured leg heavily wrapped in foam padding, limped for one touchdown and threw for two others in a 29-point second quarter outburst Saturday to ignite Texas Tech to a 45-7 Southwest Conference thrashing of Southern Methodist.

The masterful Allison sandwiched a 6-yard touchdown run and a 37-yard scoring strike to Howie Lewis around Billy Taylor's 13-yard touchdown scamper as the 18th-ranked Raiders struck for three touchdowns in less than four and 1/2 minutes of the second period.

Allison, only recently returned to action after suffering a broken bone in his left leg on Sept. 24, then connected with Sammy Williams for an 18-yard touchdown pass just before halftime to give Texas Tech a 35-7 halftime bulge.

Taylor's touchdown run, his second of the half, came after SMU's Arthur Whittington caught up the ball on a kickoff and Texas Tech's Doug Streater recovered at the Mustangs' 14 yard line.

Taylor, who raced for 127 yards on 20 carries, knifed three yards in the first quarter to cap a game-opening 80-yard drive spiced by Allison's 22-point passing and Taylor's 22-yard gallop.

The Raiders raised their season record to 7-2 and their SWC mark to 4-2. While the Mustangs, who scored in the second quarter on a 3-yard touchdown plunge by Whittington, dropped to 4-6 for the season and 3-4 in the SWC.

Allison dissected the injury-riddled SMU secondary for 106 yards on five completions in seven attempts. He hit Williams on pass plays of 13 and 22 yards.

Pampa quarterback Rick Dougherty (10) tries to break loose from a Sandie grasp in Friday's season finale. A ferocious Amarillo rush held Dougherty to 70 yards

Cuban boxers outpoint US

HOUSTON (AP) — Slugger Angel Milan of Cuba lured Greg Page of the United States into his type of fight Saturday and outpointed the Louisville, Ky., native in the highlight event of the nationally televised boxing tournament between the United States and Cuba.

Irish squeak by Clemson

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Steady Joe Montana scored twice on short runs after an elastic Notre Dame defense caused key Clemson turnovers and the fifth-ranked Irish came from behind to win an inter-sectional college football game 21-17 Saturday.

The victory by Milan gave the heavily favored Cuban team a surprisingly close 6-4 victory over the U.S. team. An 11th bout on the card resulted in a forfeit for Cuba's Herman Baez when Ruben Aguirre, Norwalk, Cal., decided not to fight.

Cuba's Angel Herrera, a gold medalist in the 125-pound division, clinched the team title for Cuba with a decision over Rocky Lockridge, Tacoma, Wash.

Clinton Jackson, a Nashville, Tenn., deputy sheriff, upset 1976 Olympic bronze medal winner Luis Martinez of Cuba in the 156-pound class.

Jeffrey Stodemire, a Cleveland, Ohio, city employee, took a split decision from Cuba's Emilio Correa in an earlier 147-pound division fight.

Correa, the 1972 Olympic gold medalist in the 147-pound class, tirelessly pursued Stodemire throughout the three rounds but never could put the dancing American down.

Correa stalked Stodemire in the brutal final round and appeared to have Stodemire on the ropes. But Stodemire, now 55-14, came back in the final minute with several good exchanges that helped him win the decision.

Cuba's Adolfo Horta won a controversial decision over Chicago's Wayne Lynnurn.

Bears boil Rice, 24-14

WACO, Texas (AP) — Running backs Frank Pollard, Greg Hawthorne and Gary Blair each scored touchdowns as Baylor used a powerful ground game Saturday to whip Rice 24-14 in a Southwest Conference football game.

The Baylor defense kept Rice checked throughout most of the game and intercepted the Owls' freshman quarterback Randy Hestel four times.

The victory upped Baylor's season record to 4-5 and gave them a 2-4 conference mark. The hapless Rice squad fell to 1-9 overall and 0-7 in SWC play.

Baylor took a 10-0 halftime lead after Pollard ran 15 yards for a touchdown in the first period and Robert Bledsoe booted a 41-yard field goal. Bledsoe missed on three other field goal tries in the first half.

OU breezes

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma fullback Kenny King slammed through the middle of Colorado's defense for 121 yards as the third-ranked Sooners posted an easy 52-14 victory over the Buffaloes Saturday in Big Eight football action.

King gained 95 of his yards in the first half as the Sooners broke the nationally televised game open early and took a commanding 35-7 halftime lead. King carried only four times in the third quarter before he retired to the bench with the rest of the starters.

Oklahoma appeared capable of doing just about anything it wanted to do against the Buffs. Meanwhile, the Sooners' defense shut down the Colorado offense completely except for a lone 48-yard scoring drive late in the first half, and a scoring drive against the Oklahoma reserves with time running out in the game.

Lions trample Temple

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Quarterback Chuck Fusina threw three touchdown passes, two to flanker Jimmy Cefalo who also scored on a 9-yard run, as ninth-ranked Penn State beat Temple 44-7 Saturday and then sat back to await an almost certain major bowl bid.

Penn State built a 30-7 half-time lead in boosting its record to 9-1, with Pitt left on the schedule Nov. 26, a week after bowl invitations are issued.

Cowboys face 'big play' Cards

DALLAS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals, their big play offense in full bloom, run into the last of the National Football League's unbeaten teams Monday night in the streaking Dallas Cowboys, off to the best start in their 17-year history.

St. Louis Coach Don Coryell says "We have no dreams of catching the Cowboys in the National Conference Eastern Division... our goal is the wild card. That would make us happy."

The Cardinals are 5-3 behind the 8-0 Cowboys in the NFC East. Washington is 4-4.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry, 53, who recently signed a new five-year contract, says "Coach Coryell wasn't around in 1970 when we were three games down with five to play and made it to the Super Bowl. Anything can happen."

"I've seen a tremendous change in St. Louis since the first of the year. The Cardinals were playing well below their potential then, but they turned it around and have a lot of momentum going now."

St. Louis is fresh off a 27-7 victory over the New York Giants.

"We're better than we were the last time we met (Dallas won 30-24) but so is Dallas," says Coryell. "In order to have a chance we'll have to play our best game and maybe get a little lucky. We feel we have an average team and the only way for us to win is for everybody to play well."

Coryell said St. Louis hopes to keep the game close "then something might happen for us to be able to pull it out in the final minute or two. If we play hard, stay close, then we have a chance."

Quarterback Roger Staubach of the Cowboys may be at less than 100 per cent because of a sore hip and a sprained right thumb.

But Landry expects Staubach to play in the nationally televised game.

"The big problem is the thumb... it's swollen and painful," says Landry. "It will be sore but you forget about those things once you get into a game."

St. Louis has added a new dimension to its offense in second-year running back Wayne Morris of Southern Methodist. Morris gained 182 yards against Vikings, second highest in club history.

"He is very explosive and makes it hard on other teams who key on Terry Metcalf," says Coryell.

Dallas take the No. 1 passer in the NFL, Staubach, into the game and the No. 1 scorer, placekicker Efren Herrera. The Cowboy defense, now being tagged as Doomsday II, is tops in the National Conference.

The game is a sellout with some 65,000 fans expected.

Panthers romp

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Matt Cavanaugh threw his second and third touchdown passes of the game as 10th-ranked Pitt exploded for 31 points in the second period to crush Army 52-26 Saturday.

Cavanaugh, who capped a 93-yard drive by hurling a 38-yard scoring pass to Willie Taylor in the opening period, connected on tosses of 21 yards to Randy Reutershan and 19 to Taylor in the second quarter.

Those drives covered 47 and 76 yards, respectively, but took only 32 and 57 seconds. Earlier in the period, Elliott Walker ran 14 yards for a touchdown and Larry Sims dashed 7 for another tally on scoring strikes that lasted just 5 and 9 seconds.

Mark Schubert added a 24-yard field goal, sub-quarterback Rick Trocano flipped a 1-yard touchdown pass to Benji Pryor and Gordon Jones returned a kickoff 93 yards as the Panthers boosted their record to 8-1-1 following an opening-game loss to Notre Dame in which Cavanaugh suffered a disabling first-period injury.

Pushmobiles -- using cub scouts for fuel

Photography by Ron Ennis

Borger Pack 565 makes a smooth exchange of driver and pusher.

Streaking to the finish line...

Cheering fans seem to speed racers.

Pampa Troop 410 basks in division victory.

Little boys may be made of snips and snails and puppydog tails, but there are bound to be a few wheels and old sneakers in the concoction, too.

And an active imagination, a gregarious nature and endless energy.

Add a sunny Pampa sky, a Texas-sized parking lot and a roster of rooters. The perfect mixture for a field of cub scouts and the pushmobiles they created from lawn mowers, tractor seats and boxes.

Fifty-nine of them competed Sunday behind Coronado Center in Pampa's special version of the Indy 500.

Grand champions were the 9-year-olds from Guymon, Okla.

Winners of the 8-year-old division was Pack 410, Den 1 from Austin School. Cubs were Tracy Jones, Bill Baggett, Paul Budd, Kip Lester, Reagon Eddins, Scot Rogers, Bill Sands, Ricky Igua and Derrick Smith.

Advice

Dear Abby By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our church sent the following newsletter to all its members:

NO-COP-OUT SUNDAY

To make it possible for everybody to attend church next Sunday:

Cots will be placed in the back for those who say Sunday is the only day they can sleep.

Blankets will be provided for those who say the church is too cold.

Fans will be provided for those who say the church is too hot.

We will have hearing aids for those who say the minister talks too soft—and cotton for those who say he talks too loud—and alarm clocks for those who say he talks too long!

Calculators will be available for those who enjoy counting the hypocrites present.

Finally, the sanctuary will be decorated with both Christmas poinsettias and Easter lilies for those who have never seen a church without them.

YOUR MIAMI FAN

DEAR FAN: Thanks for a dandy day-brightener.

DEAR ABBY: You have helped so many minority groups by educating the public, will you please help another?

We are the blind who use white canes to travel, and by travel, I mean go to the mailbox, grocery store, pharmacy and to work.

Please tell the driving public that some states have a white cane law, which states: "When a person with a white cane steps off the curb, traffic in ALL DIRECTIONS must stop until that person regains a curb. Motorists who violate this law are guilty of a misdemeanor."

Even if it were not a law, compassion and courtesy should prevail.

Albany, N.Y., is a training center for the blind. They are trying to develop confidence in the sightless to go about alone, but some of the motorists here either don't know the law or choose to ignore it. Please use my letter, Abby, as I am afraid to go out alone.

SIGHTLESS IN ALBANY

DEAR SIGHTLESS: And speaking of consideration for the blind, orchids to Robert Meyer of the Yankee Silversmith Inn in Wallingford, Conn., for providing duplicate menus in BRAILLE!

DEAR ABBY: Recently you had a letter in your column from HEARTSICK GRANNY whose daughter wants to give one of a pair of twin infants away because she was born with a club foot and a cleft palate, which they couldn't afford to correct.

Abby, the Shriners maintain 22 hospitals for crippled children. Their services are FREE, regardless of color, creed or religion.

I hope it's not too late to get this information to that family.

K.O. BURLINGAME, CAL.

DEAR K.O.: Thank you and the hundreds of others who recommended the Shrine Hospitals. And don't forget the National Foundation-March of Dimes. Their thing is diagnosing, treating and preventing birth defects, as well as family planning and genetic counseling.

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Ask Dr. Lamb Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - The last three winters I have been experiencing very cold and white fingers to the first knuckle. I went to an internist last winter and he prescribed Basodilan, Reserpine and Stelazine. None of these gave me any relief. He tells me my problem is stress and called it Raynaud's phenomenon.

I was also examined by a vascular specialist who excused me by saying that winter was almost over and with the warm weather I should have no trouble but to report back in the fall.

This condition makes me very nervous and I don't know what to do next. My doctor and medical bills are excessive but I'm not getting any better. Please explain what this is and if anything can be done for me.

Is this a common ailment? So many people I have talked to have never heard of it.

DEAR READER - This is a rare disease. You could call it the white, blue and red disease. Why? Because those white fingers are caused by spasm of the blood vessels preventing blood flow into the fingers. The next phase of the attack may be opening of the capillaries, and blood rapidly loses all of its oxygen, turning blue and causing the fingers to be blue. After that stage, the small arteries open up excessively and surge into the fingers, making them red.

The attacks are commonly precipitated by exposure to cold. You need to bundle up real well during cold weather to keep your entire body warm, but you need to pay special attention to the hands. Keep them covered and don't expose them to cold. That includes cold water, ice cubes, a cold steering wheel, or anything that causes them to be cold.

Some people with this problem prefer to move to a warm climate. Even in warm areas you still need to protect the hands from cold objects and cold mornings.

The medicines you are taking are all used to prevent the constriction of the arteries, except the Stelazine which is to decrease your nervousness.

Also, you should not smoke. Tobacco seems to aggravate attacks. Sometimes Raynaud's phenomenon is a sign of other arterial disease, particularly those that are associated with sensitivity to tobacco.

The disease may be secondary to other diseases, but I gather other disease has been ruled out in your case. In other instances, it is the primary disease. The treatment is the same in either case.

This phenomenon is found in women more often than in men - about a five to one ratio - and it occurs most often in women between puberty and the menopause.

It is important to treat it properly because the repeated attacks, particularly if severe, can lead to damage of the tips of the fingers or parts involved. This is particularly true if there is associated artery disease.

One of the things you can do to help when you have an attack is to soak the hands in warm water. The warm water usually will stop the attack. You need to do this as soon as possible, during the initial white phase of arterial spasm.

Polly's pointers Polly Cramer

DEAR READERS—Doris and Mrs. G.W. both asked about cleaning furniture upholstered with velvet and my answer was that I had been advised by several authorities that velvet should be cleaned by a professional and in his own workshop where agents could be used that would not be safe to use at home. Several readers have written to tell us that they have done this with good results so we are passing them along but wanted to first remind you of our previous advice. — POLLY.

"PRAISE GATHERING"

with
Howard Conatser
Pastor of Beverly Hills Baptist Church
Dallas, Texas

In 1969 Mr. Conatser was contemplating leaving the ministry. In April of 1970, after six weeks of seriously seeking the face of God, he had a new experience with the Lord which changed his life and consequently that of his church.

Since that time he has seen God work in an unusual and mighty way. The church has seen a growth from 400 in its worship services to over 5,000. During this time many have been converted, healed and delivered by the power of God. Last year Beverly Hills was number two in baptisms in the Southern Baptist Convention. The church has established and built 4 churches in India and supported missionaries who have gone forth from the church in the past two years in ten countries. The church's mission gifts have increased through its regular channel of giving, the Southern Baptist Cooperative Program.

In July of 1972 Mr. Conatser suffered a major heart attack after preaching on "To Die Is Gain". During his speedy and miraculous recovery, the Lord assured him that He had given him his life back for one reason - "to make God real to the people". This is the greatest desire of his ministry. For the unusual blessings he has received since that time he is careful to give God the Glory.

Many good cooks like to use beef chuck rather than beef round for meatballs because chuck is a fattier cut than round and that factor benefits the flavor of the meatballs. If you have a food processor you can easily grind the meat at home.

For a quick and delicious peach ice cream, team fresh peaches with store-bought vanilla ice cream. Peel, pit and slice enough peaches to make a cup; crush thoroughly and fold into a pint of the ice cream freeze to have firm.

Auxiliary gives monitor to hospital

A new $3,000 cardiac monitor has been donated to Highland General Hospital by its auxiliary. The life saving equipment, which will be kept in the emergency room of the hospital, makes a visual record of the patient's heart action and also records it on tape for diagnosis. The auxiliary, according to director of volunteers Nancy Kotara, donates a scholarship to a nursing student, X-ray service, physical therapy, surgery, admitting and information, ICU and surgery waiting room. More volunteers are needed and any interested persons can come by Room 215 at the hospital. From left, demonstrating the life saving equipment is Ruth McKinney, emergency room supervisor, with Nova Mayo. Pat Richardson, on the table, pretends she is a patient.

Garden may be gold mine in Juneau

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A long-abandoned Alaskan mine may yield a commodity almost as precious here as the gold it once produced — a year-round supply of fresh fruits and vegetables.

A local corporation, Alaska Hydro Gardens, has asked the city Planning and Zoning Commission for permission to build a hydroponic farm in an decaying tunnel of the Alaska-Juneau Mine.

Hydroponics is the science of growing plants in trays with the use of liquid nutrients instead of soil. Lamps substitute for the sun.

The mine in Last Chance Basin once was the largest underground mine in the world. It produced $80 million in gold from its discovery in 1886 to its shutdown as a non-essential wartime activity in 1943.

If the city gives its approval to convert part of the mine to a garden, residents of isolated, chilly southeast Alaska would be the main beneficiaries.

Larry Chaplin, a public information officer with the state Department of Labor who is promoting the venture, says he and his friends could be producing fresh tomatoes, cucumbers, strawberries and melons in marketable quantities within two years.

"We might have miles of farms up here," Chaplin says. "Look at all those tunnels that could be put into production and the amount of produce that could come out of them."

Vegetables and fruits have not been produced commercially through hydroponics because of the expense involved in the nutrients and the electricity needed for heat and light.

But Chaplin believes the process can be profitable in southeastern Alaska because his firm would be competing with already high prices that include the cost of air and barge transportation — the only means of getting fruits and vegetables to this sea-locked region.

By ERMA BOMBECK

I was leafing a magazine the other day when my eyes fell upon a full-page ad of a potato with two eyes, a mouth, and two little gloved hands saying, "I AM NOT FATTENING."

I wanted to believe the little devil. He seemed so sincere. Besides, I never met a potato I didn't like. It occurred to me that lately a lot of foods have been fighting back at ugly publicity.

Health enthusiasts have made me uptight over milk products, paranoid over sugar, and a couple weeks ago I ate a glazed doughnut and felt so guilty I established a Weight Watchers Scholarship in my name.

If more carbohydrates would take a stand, it would certainly make it easier for those of us who are weak and motivated by your basic hunger.

I went to lunch the other week with my friend, Ellie, who gives me a royal pain with her dieting. When my hamburger came with a mound of French fries, I thought she'd break out into a rash.

"Ah ... ah ... ah ... naughty ... naughty!"

"You are wrong," I said. "Carbohydrates offer you important vitamins and minerals such as Vitamin C, B6 and Niacin."

"Where did you hear that?"

"On Merv Griffin's Salute To Starches night."

"You're lying. You do that all the time to get out of dieting."

"That's not true. I always buy dietary bread."

"And put gravy on it."

"I ate a carrot stick last week."

"With two pounds of dip on the end of it."

"Didn't I buy a whole box of caramel appetite killers?"

"And melted them to put over your ice cream."

"Why would a potato lie to you? What's in it for them?"

Addressing the potatoes I asked, "Have we ever met before?"

"I think you've popped your cork," said Ellie.

"No, I want to pursue this. Why would some strange potato single me out to deceive me?"

"I can see you are not motivated to being thin."

"That's all you know," I said opening my purse and sanctimoniously popping a small artificial sweetener pill into my cappuccino.

Hopefully the potato ad is a trend. I mean if you can't trust a chocolate éclair looking you in the eye and saying, "I am not a crook", whom can you trust?"

 Health Fair

Come to the Health Fair from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday in the Texas National Guard Armory, Pampa.

This is a free educational activity designed to show area residents the health resources available. It is a come and go activity for all ages. Exhibits, films and health information will be featured. Films will be shown throughout the day. There will be free screening for blood pressure, diabetes, T.B., glaucoma, amblyopia, height-weight and adult immunizations.

Free transportation for handicapped or over 60 will be provided by calling 669-7414. A van will make regular runs to provide transportation.

Health pamphlets and a Health Resource Guide will be available free. A concession stand will be available for those coming during lunch. The Health Fair is sponsored by the Gray County Program Building Committee - Texas Agriculture Extension Service.

Non-Cook Can Bake Turkey

Even the non-cook can bake a turkey with the help of an oven cooking bag. A turkey of any size, or turkey pieces, will bake to moist perfection in the confines of the bag. There's no basting, no stove grease to clean up, and the bird will come out of the oven a delicate golden color.

When you've chosen the turkey, choose the cooking bag - the right size for the bird. The roasting pan is also important. It should be at least two inches deep for all the liquid that cooks out of the bird. To cook an 8 to 10 pound turkey, shake 1 tablespoon flour in a 14"x20" oven cooking bag and place in roaster. Put 1 slice onion and 3 stalks chopped celery - with leaves - in the bag rinse thawed turkey in cold water and pat dry. Season cavity with salt and pepper. Stuff body and neck cavities lightly with your favorite dressing, allowing 1/2 cup stuffing for each pound of bird. Close body cavity with skewers.

Brush entire surface of turkey with melted butter or margarine and season with salt and pepper. Place turkey in bag. Close bag with twist tie and cut six 1/2 inch slits in top. Allow enough room in the oven so that the expanded bag will not touch the oven sides, walls or racks. Cook at 350 degrees F. for two to three hours or until thermometer reads 185 degrees F. Allow the turkey to "rest" for 20 to 30 minutes - it will cool some, the juices will "set" (that is, they will not be as free-flowing), and the bird will carve better.

This and That

The "desinewing" process improves ground beef. Removing the fiber (desinewing is taking out the connective tissues) means juicier, more tender hamburgers and the process increases the nutritive value of the beef, since more of the package is meat - with none of the connective tissue.

Soy flour completely replace all-purpose flour because it does not contain gluten. Gluten, a protein present in all-purpose flour, provides the structure for baked products.

Never merely "warm up" cooked meat. To prevent foodborne illness, thoroughly heat cooked meat to an internal temperature of at least 155 degrees F.

DECA offers courses

The bank's been her life for 50 years

It was 50 years ago this month when Leora Rose, a young girl just out of business school came to work at the First National Bank in Pampa. She has been there since.

"I think I've been here long enough," she says now. She plans to retire Jan. 1. "I think it is time."

Mrs. Rose can't believe it has been half a century since she went to work as a secretary in the tiny bank. She is now assistant vice president.

When first employed, she worked in cramped quarters as the new building was constructed, she said, they knew better days were ahead.

"That was fun. We looked forward to the new building," she emphasized.

"Can it possibly be? It seems like only a year or so ago I've loved it so."

For Mrs. Rose, the work has been fun. She sees the computer and the motor bank as major developments during her half century of work.

"Imagine me adjusting to all those changes. It hasn't been difficult," she added.

"I can't imagine the day when I get up and don't go to the bank," she said. She explained that her work has been so much fun that she has developed no hobbies.

B.E. Finley was president when Mrs. Rose joined First National. The bank had about eight employees compared with 56 today.

"We had those funny little teller windows with grill work all around," she said glancing at the modern facilities around her today.

"These people I work with are part of my family. That is it!" she said.

A native of Gray County, Mrs. Rose was born at McLean. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. M.H. Kinard.

Glancing back, she said she was "sorta happy go lucky" — never planned a career — just fell into banking.

As she discussed retirement, she took from her desk drawer a piece of paper yellowed with age, clipped from a comic strip, which said in retiring one makes way for the young. "That's how I feel," she said.

"I love life and people .... when I get up Jan. 2, I can't visualize me."

Husbands, housework don't always mix

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

A husband who put corn meal instead of soap powder in the washing machine? It was by mistake, but it has happened in the love, honor, obey and help-with-the-housework set.

It seems some wives have even been eager to drop the share-the-work idea. It is not only expensive, "but our house always looked as if it had been burglarized," said one 25-year-old.

Men simply don't have the knack of the fine art of house husbandry whatever it is supposed to be, say wives who discussed homemaking mix-ups.

"Sometimes I've been happy that I can get to a house job before he tries to help me," said one secretary, who aims to spare her husband's feelings.

"I never know what he is going to do next. For example, in absentmindedly cleaning out a wastebasket, he managed to discard a brand new blouse that was in a shopping bag that he used for the trash."

For one wife it was the end of her favorite dress. She had asked her husband to give her a little hand with the ironing and he used a very hot iron on her garment of manmade suede. "It almost seemed as if he didn't have common sense, and I guess he wasn't listening when I told him how to do it," she said.

Even so, most wives are in sympathy with their husbands. "He has a lot of things on his mind," one 27-year-old said of her husband, who is a certified public accountant. She had hoped he would help cut the house budget but so far he has increased it.

"He went to the market to buy Chinese cabbage and came back with endive and was surprised to find that it had cost $6

Another wife is sure her husband doesn't consider it demeaning to help with the housework; he just senses his own inferiority in that respect, she explained. When she returned from an emergency trip to her parents' house she was amazed that the kitchen floor hadn't been washed or the floor swept under chairs in two weeks. He just said that he was planning to get to it, she commented.

One wife has solved that problem: Only ask them to do big things — washing walls, waxing floors, hanging curtains — things a man feels a woman shouldn't do. Her husband is willing because she doesn't ask him to do the piddling things, she explained.

Women have a greater sense of obligation about housework, she feels, perhaps because they were conditioned to it by their mothers. In her house, the boys were rarely expected to help in the kitchen. That's why they hate small chores.

As for cooking, many working wives and husbands eat out more to take the strain off the kitchen chores, but lots of men enjoy cooking when they are given free rein.

60 million consumers face fuel problems

By MARTIN MERZER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Liquefied petroleum gas is used by 60 million consumers, storekeepers, farmers and industrialists in the United States. And increasing numbers of people are trying to get a share of the abundant and clean-burning fuel.

But industry officials say they face some serious problems.

Federal policies are creating a black market, there may be delivery problems in the near future and a trend has developed toward greater dependence on imports, industry spokesmen say.

Propane and butane are the two most common forms of liquefied petroleum gas (LP gas), with propane accounting for about two-thirds of the total. Propane long has been used in farms and rural homes for heat and power. It's also used in light industry as a boiler fuel, in forklift trucks and other small vehicles and for backyard barbecues in suburbia.

It is more costly than natural gas, but often less costly than electricity.

Propane and butane are produced from natural gas, and in some cases, crude oil. The major advantages offered by propane and butane are that they are delivered to a customer's location by truck and can be stored for any length of time — important factors for people in rural areas not served by natural gas pipelines.

But now, in many of the nation's industrial areas — especially the Midwest — thousands of plants are installing storage tanks and are buying quantities of propane for use during increasingly frequent natural gas curtailments.

Although this is good for the LP gas business in the short term, Donald G. Bunnell, president of the 3,900-member National LP-Gas Association, sees the development as the industry's most serious long-range problem.

"Propane can do a limited job in this regard, but it can't bail out the natural gas industry," he said. "The total domestic propane produced is less than one-third our total level of curtailed natural gas."

"If those (industry) tanks are filled in the fall and that is sufficient to carry them through the winter, there would be a minimum of effect," he added. "But if those industries are going to have to have repeated refills, in competition with our traditional market, there is going to be a problem."

Industry officials stress that there is more than enough propane in inventory for all customers this winter and for the next several years.

The potential problem, officials say, is in finding the equipment and workers to distribute the fuel to numerous new customers. The problem is complicated by the fact that when the fuel is in greatest demand, during severe cold weather, roads often are blocked by snow and ice.

In recognition of all this, the federal government has imposed an allocation system on propane distributors. Any large industrial firm that wants to use propane first must find a distributor willing to supply it. Then, federal energy officials must give their approval.

But industry sources say that a black market has been created in which many firms are getting propane without government approval. The estimates of how much propane is sold that way run as high as 10 per cent of annual sales.

The sources say that in some cases, the firms were forced to break the law by inconsistent federal policies on fuel use and inaction on their requests for permission to use propane.

A propane specialist in the Department of Energy, Bruce Starns, said federal officials are aware of some black-market dealings, but believe the problem is not as widespread as claimed by others.

"We're not adequately staffed to go out looking for it," he said. "We do go after those we know about."

Sales of propane have more than tripled in the past 20 years, with 1976 sales reaching around 13 billion gallons. But with domestic production of natural gas slipping, and with it, domestic production of propane, imports are expected to grow dramatically.

In 1976, imports amounted to about 7.5 percent of total supply in the United States. Industry and federal officials expect that percentage to skyrocket to 30 percent by 1980, and the Petroleum official predicted a doubling of Middle East production between now and 1979.

The trend runs counter to President Carter's goal of reducing the nation's reliance on foreign imports.

"We recognize the situation as not being as desirable as (propane produced) from domestic supplies," Bunnell said. "That's why we strongly urge the deregulation of natural gas for the maximum incentive for new gas supplies because from new gas supplies comes new propane."

In agriculture

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent

The second annual Golden Spread Agri-Business Seminar sponsored by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce will be 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Thursday at the Villa Inn, Amarillo. The theme for the seminar is "Who will control Agriculture in the future?"

The program includes the following speakers and their subjects: Harold Bremyer, The Future of Co-ops; Bill Helming, Crops and Livestock Outlook; Bobby Smith, Government in Agriculture; Reagan Brown, The Future of Family Farms; and Bennett Havenstein, Agriculture Financing.

Agriculture should have a certification program ready to be viewed in the near future. If you are going to need to receive this certification on the M-44 use, please call the office — 669-7429 so we will know who and how many need this type of assistance.

Also on the subject of certification as a private applicator (farmers), we have tentatively made plans to have another meeting at 7 p.m. Dec. 6, Courthouse Annex, Pampa. This meeting would be for farmers to receive the training necessary to become certified as a private applicator so they can purchase restricted use pesticides.

Health Fair

Everyone needs to remember the Health Fair to be 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday in Pampa at the National Guard Armory. There will be free screening for blood pressure, diabetes, T.B., glaucoma, amblyopia, height, weight and adult immunization.

This free education activity will include exhibits, films and health information for all ages.

Pesticide Certification

Cattlemen wanting to buy M-44 units and ammunition to control coyotes on their property have to receive a certification of train. These are similar to the old "coyote getters" but are a lot safer to use but, under new regulations, users of the M-44 units have to become "certified" in the safe operation of the M-44 before you can buy additional ammunition.

The Texas Department of

McCourt to speak to API

The Panhandle Chapter of American Petroleum Institute will meet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Pampa Country Club to hear George W. McCourt, staff director of International Affairs, Natural Resources Group, tell about the drilling of the Phillips Petroleum Company at Big River A No. 1 Wildcat, 550 miles southwest of Anchorage. A color film showing preparation for drilling the wildcat in Alaskan territory will accompany McCourt's talk. Plans for the Election of Officers Banquet on Dec. 3 are complete. Commissioner Mack Wallace, Texas Railroad Commission, Austin will be the guest speaker. Tickets may be obtained from John Rogers, Harold Lawley, Pete Blanda, Billy Millican, Martin Ludeman, Bob McKinley, in Pampa, or Russell Weston and Willis Phillips in Borger.

Oil problems 'multiplied'

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP)—Oil's largest trade group meets Monday to check the state of the industry at a time its president says the industry "is beset by perhaps the biggest peacetime crisis in its history."

About 2,000 oil executives are to attend the two-day annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute.

Frank N. Icard, president of the trade group that represents all segments of the domestic industry, recalls that the Institute last met in Houston during the Arab oil embargo.

"Since meeting in Houston in 1973, our problems seemingly have multiplied a hundredfold," Icard said.

"Since those embargo days, foreign imports have climbed to nearly 50 per cent of our total crude supplies and regulations, controls, and taxation have tightened their grip on the industry."

Icard, a former Texas congressman, said the meeting should help the industry focus on some of its problems.

"Foremost among our problems, of course, is that of convincing the public and our lawmakers of the necessity of producing more oil and natural gas from domestic sources so that we may take steps toward offsetting the vast inpouring of foreign oil — and outpouring of U. S. funds — in order to keep our economy on a strong and upward course," Icard said.

"Our responsibilities in working toward removing these shackles are evident. I believe we are equal to the task."

The Houston meeting will be in session as the Senate-House Conference Committee continues its efforts in Washington to resolve differences on national energy policy measures.

Icard and other officials of the Institute have reacted moderately to President Carter's criticism of the industry since he offered his National Energy Plan in April.

They have commended the administration's energy conservation objectives but have called for stronger incentives to bolster domestic explorations for new oil and gas reserves.

Unlike some individual oilmen, the Institute practically ignored Carter's October charges likening oil companies to war profiteers seeking "the biggest rip-off in history."

Carter, in a televised speech last Tuesday, said his proposals would boost the industry's gross income sharply but that "some oil companies want much more — tens of billions of dollars more."

Icard answered that the Institute agrees no one should be permitted to exploit the current energy crisis for their own self interest.

While agreeing oil imports should be reduced, Icard said the best way would be through increased domestic production of oil and natural gas. He added, however, that the House energy bill emphasizes taxation rather than additional production of domestic supplies.

"We strongly support prompt enactment of legislation which decreases our reliance on foreign oil, reduces excessive government regulation, promotes energy conservation, and makes it possible for us to produce more domestic energy resources, including oil and natural gas," he said.

Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger, who has joined Carter in sharply criticizing the petroleum industry, is to speak at Tuesday's concluding general session of the meeting.

After Carter's war profiteering charge, Schlesinger said the general tenor of the industry "is wholly unsatisfactory."

Schlesinger also has consistently argued that the Carter energy package contains sufficient incentives to encourage explorations for new domestic reserves.

Also speaking Tuesday will be the Institute's chairman, Maurice F. Granville, chairman and chief executive officer of Texaco Inc.

Icard presents his presidential report at a Monday afternoon session during which Katharine Graham, publisher of the Washington Post, and George Bush, former Texas congressman, ambassador and director of the CIA, also are to speak.

Corn may top record

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — This fall's corn harvest will be even larger than anticipated a month ago, more than enough to meet domestic and export demands in the coming year.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday that corn production is now estimated at a record of almost 6.37 billion bushels, up 1 percent from 6.3 billion forecast in October.

Last year's corn harvest, a record then, was 6.22 billion bushels and helped boost reserves of the important livestock feed grain to their highest level in five years.

By the time the 1977 crop was ready this fall, even with expected brisk export demand from the Soviet Union and other countries, the corn stockpile by next Oct. 1, is expected to rise further, probably to more than 1.23 billion bushels, up from 879 million this fall. That would be the most left over since 1964.

The department also estimated 1977 soybean production at a record of more than 1.68 billion bushels, a gain of 2 percent from the October forecast and 33 percent more than last year's crop.

Based on surveys Nov. 1, the department also estimated: —Sorghum grain production of 779 million bushels, up 1 percent from the October forecast and 8 percent more than the 1976 harvest.

—Total feed grain output, including oats and barley as well as corn and sorghum, at a record of 201 million metric tons, up 5 percent from 1976.

—Cotton production of 13.8 million bales, a gain of 4 percent from the October forecast and 31 percent more than last year's crop.

—Tobacco production at almost 1.92 billion pounds, an increase of 26 million pounds from October indications but 10 percent less than the 1976 crop.

The report said that the corn yield is expected to average 91.5 bushels an acre against 87.4 bushels last year.

Officials said that as of Nov. 1, the department's all crops production index averaged 128 percent of 1967 production used as a standard.

TV Dial-ogue

REALISM — Please settle a few questions in reference to the NBC movie entitled 'Just a Little Inconvenience,' which starred James Stacy and Lee Majors? James Stacy did a superlative job and actually looked like an amputee. My husband thinks it had to be a real amputee playing Stacy's double. If a double did the skiing, who is he and is he an amputee? If he is not, how did they make him appear to be one? Also, please give some vital statistics on Mr. Stacy, i.e. what series, if any, he has appeared in, age, etc. Thank you. Tommie Whitley, Williamsburg, Va.

Unfortunately, the authenticity of Stacy's performance stems from his actually being an amputee. The actor lost an arm and leg in a 1973 Los Angeles motorcycle accident, which also cost the life of a female companion. His bike was hit by a drunk driver. After the accident part of Stacy's rehabilitation was learning to ski with his handicap. (Jean-Claude Killy helped out), and so he did much of the skiing you saw on screen. Stacy is in his late 30s and starred some years back in the western series Lancer. Before that he guested on a number of TV series, including Gunsmoke, during which he met his second wife, Kim Darby. Prior to that he was married to Connie Stevens. After Lancer, he appeared in a few TV movies, most notably 'In the Heat of Anger,' with the late Susan Hayward, in which they were teamed as lawyers. After the accident, the first film Stacy starred in was Kirk Douglas's 'Posse,' in which he played a crusading newspaper editor, who happened to be an amputee. Obviously, the roles open to him now are limited.

LIGHT, PLEASE — Can you settle a family argument? The rest of my family feels that James Coburn is now in the Schlitz Light beer commercial as the cowboy. I feel differently. Could you tell me if it is him or not? J. Ahern, New Brunswick, N.J.

Being different is only worthwhile when you're right. In this case you'll have to bow to the consensus. Coburn is getting a lot of money to utter two words on the beer ad.

HURT AGAIN — I heard that Mark Hamill was killed in a car crash? Please say it isn't true. Cindy Waldheim, Albertville, Ala.

It isn't true. But Hamill, who has already had his face rearranged in one car wreck in recent years, broke four ribs during the filming of 'Stringray,' a film about drag racing. He's apparently safer in space than on the ground.

HEAVY BREATHING — I saw the TV special on Star Wars, but they didn't tell me everything I wanted to know about Darth Vader. Why does he wear that mask and breathe like he's in a respirator. Also, I know James Earl Jones provided his voice. Was he also inside the suit? Andy Gallagher, Fargo, N.D.

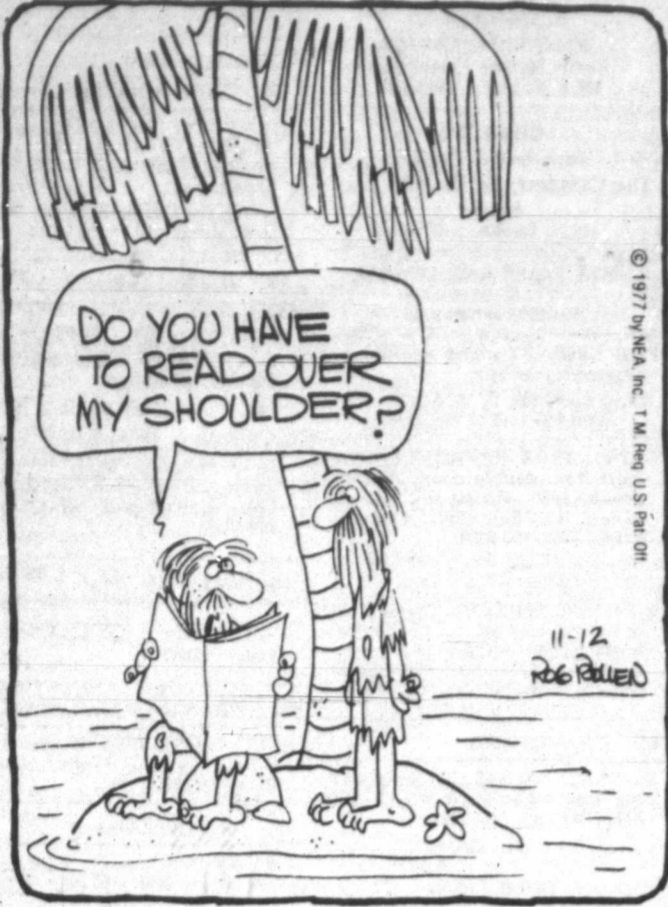

ACTOR James Stacy, as he appeared in a '72 TV movie, and a few weeks after the motorcycle accident which cost him an arm and a leg.

Cults seek to recruit Jews

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Aggressive "marketing" by religious cults seeking to recruit Jews may force Jewish leaders to begin missionary-type programs aimed at their own young people, according to a Chicago rabbi-psychotherapist.

"We may have to missionize — there's that word we hate," said Dr. Milton Kanter.

Dr. Kanter and another rabbi speaking to the Council of Jewish Federations here Thursday said breakdowns in the traditional Jewish family have left young American Jews open to the temptations of the cults.

"It does no good to speak of reason or rationality with these young people," Dr. Kanter said. "In all my work I've never found one of them who wasn't psychologically ill, demented or in need of psychotherapy."

Dr. Kanter warned that many Jews are "pitifully unaware" of the cults' recruiting techniques. He said the "missionizing" should include educational programs that would help quell the dilution of Jewish traditions in the United States.

He said the cults lure potential converts by offering something Judaism does not — "instant success without the investment of time or energy."

Rabbi Harold Schulweis of Los Angeles also said he has seen a de-emphasis of Jewish culture in the United States. He said Bar Mitzvahs — the ceremonies at which 13-year-olds traditionally enter adulthood — have lost much of their religious meaning.

"It's no longer a celebration of the spirituality of the child. It's a tribute to his public performance," he said.

Schulweis added that Jewish-American parents' over-emphasis on grades and material success has created a "tyranny of meritocracy."

"There's an eastern nursery that won't accept children unless they are college material. By 2000 I'm sure there will be pre-natal tests for entrance to our great schools," he said, adding that the emphasis on grades creates an atmosphere of "conditional love" for children.

"We say 'I'll love you if... It's a sure-fire formula for guilt and the formula for a failing marriage," he said.

Schulweis believes the dilution of Jewish traditions has

Pampa to enter FFA contest

The annual FFA Leadership Contest for the Top of Texas and Greenbelt FFA Districts is set to begin at 9 a.m. Monday at Clarendon College.

The leadership contest will be divided into two chapters — junior and senior within each district. FFA members will compete in several areas which include farm radio broadcasting, chapter conducting, and farm skills.

Participating in the Top of Texas Districts will be FFA members from Wheeler, Miami, Perryton, Spearman, Pampa, Follett, Booker, Shamrock, Canadian, Darrouzett, Briscoe, and Mobeetie.

Greenbelt district members are Lakeview, Wellington, Samnorwood, Memphis, Childress, Hedley, Estelline, Valley High, Paducah, and Clarendon.

The contest will be followed by an award ceremony in the Hamed Sisters Fine Arts Center of the college.

Chamber hosts major events

AMARILLO — The Amarillo Chamber of Commerce will sponsor two major events during November: the 1977 Old Time Ropers Finals Friday through Sunday in the Bill Cody Arena at the Tri-State Fairgrounds, and the sixth annual Arts in Action Exhibit will be Nov. 19-20 at the Amarillo Civic Center.

Both feature free public admission, according to Don H. Mason, chamber president.

Briscoe protests Carter energy plan

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe protested Friday that President Carter's energy policy would make Texas a colony — "a colony which is expected to produce its resources for the benefit of other regions with expectation of equality."

"That's one reason I oppose this plan so strongly," Briscoe told the annual meeting of the Texas Research League, a privately-financed, nonpartisan research group which specializes in studies of state and local government.

Earlier, James Estelle, executive director of the Texas Department of Corrections, revealed that the league had agreed to the TDC request for an in-depth study of the financial accounting and reporting procedures of the state prison system.

Briscoe stressed throughout his speech that Texas is economically strong, and growing stronger, because of the economic climate maintained during his six-year administration.

"The relationship between the fiscal policies of our state government and a strong economy is most certainly not coincidental," the governor said.

He noted that Texas, unlike other major industrial states, has neither a personal nor a corporate income tax. "Texas needs neither and as long as I am governor, Texas will have neither," he said.

He said the last Texas tax bill was passed in 1971, the year before he was elected governor.

"People are getting more from state government than ever before but at the same time they are keeping more of their hard-earned wages for their own use rather than paying increasingly higher taxes to state government," he said.

Briscoe said he was working hard to establish his State Commission on Texas in the Year 2000, which was announced several weeks ago.

"The farthest thing from my mind is to create a super-planning agency," he said. "I want this commission to look past our problems of the moment toward the opportunities of the future. I want a careful analysis of our long-range requirements and interests, a definition of the problems we are likely to confront over the next two decades."

The prison director stressed that the league study of the Department of Corrections would be of financial management not of prison programs and operations.

Merrill Lynch compensates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investors in a Texas computer company who say they were fraudulently lured into the investment by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc. will receive $1.6 million in compensation from the brokerage firm.

Merrill Lynch, while not admitting the allegations, agreed Thursday to settle a Securities and Exchange Commission civil complaint over the matter by making the payment and accepting a censure for the firm and some of its agents.

The SEC, after a four-year inquiry, said Merrill Lynch should have known better than to push the stock of Scientific Control Corp., a small Dallas-based computer company.

Before Scientific filed a petition for an arrangement under the Bankruptcy Act in late 1969, it never enjoyed a profitable year, the SEC said.

But in 1968 and early 1969, the commission said, Merrill Lynch promoted it intensely, rated it as "buy-hold," and described it as a "speculative" investment for customers looking for "growth."

The SEC did not contend that a stock firm is liable for losses by its customers. But it did maintain that a company should not promote a stock intensely unless it has done adequate research on it.

Traffic deaths run high

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas traffic deaths are running 11 percent ahead of last year, the Department of Public Safety reports.

DPS statistics show there have been 2,982 deaths on highways and streets so far this year compared to 2,697 for the same period in 1976.

The DPS said there have been 2,617 accidents in which deaths occurred, compared to 2,327 for last year, an increase of 12 percent.

Briscoe sets election dates

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe set runoff election dates Friday for the four legislative contests resulting from the Nov. 8 special elections.

Two will be Dec. 3 and two more on Dec. 10.

On Dec. 3 the vacancy created by the resignation of Rep. Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Dallas, will be filled either by C.B. Bunkley III or Lanell Cofer.

On the same day, El Paso area voters will decide between Republican S.L. Abbott and Democrat Othon Medina Jr. The vacancy in the five-county district was created by the resignation of Rep. James Kaster, D-El Paso.

Also on Dec. 10 will be the runoff for state representative between Mary Jane Bode, former top aide to Attorney General John Hill, and Austin attorney Lee Yeakee.

Republican of Pampa. The winner takes the place of Sen. Max Sherman, D-Amarillo, who resigned to become president of West Texas State University.

Also on Dec. 10 will be the runoff for state representative between Mary Jane Bode, former top aide to Attorney General John Hill, and Austin attorney Lee Yeakee.
