McNamara, Taylor Continue Investigations

Nature Of Church Topic Of Debate

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Officers of the Ecumenical Council opened the second session of their historic Vatican gathering today with debate on a document defining the nature of the church and their own authority.

They found it generally acceptable, although a number of changes were proposed.

The first working session of the reconvened council was devoted to general discussion of a draft document entitled "de ecclesia" — "about the church."

The contents of the draft — one of 17 awaiting council action — still are secret.

It is understood that the document enhances the authority and prestige of local bishops as partners of the Pope in the government of the Roman Catholic Church. It also assigns a more important role to the Catholic laity in church life and contemplates the raising of deacons to an ecclesiastical rank.

One passage which may have an important bearing on Christian unity recognizes that all baptized Christians are in some way related to the mystical body of Christ even though not members of the Catholic church.

At a press briefing following the closed session in St. Peter's Basilica, a spokesman said the "general consensus" of the council fathers who spoke today was that the document is "acceptable as a whole and can be proceeded with as a vehicle for debate."

He said a formal vote on the general acceptability will be taken Tuesday. Then the council will proceed with a chapter by chapter debate on details of the document.

The spokesman said that most of the speakers today took the position that the new draft or "schema" is "a good foundation on which to build" and that it will be "helpful to the ecumenical movement."

The Pope in his opening address invited them to make that role larger and more important than it has been in the past. He said he would welcome "more help and support, a more effective and responsible collaboration" from his "brother bishops."

The Pope made clear there is no question of repealing the dogma of papal infallibility formulated by the last Ecumenical Council in 1870. But he said the "time has now come" to spell out the relationship of the bishops to the Pope, and the way in which they share his authority as successors to the apostles.

The 1870 council was supposed to do this, but its work was interrupted by the arrival of Italian troops in Rome. Thus for more than 90 years, Catholic doctrine about the church and the powers of the Pope has stood in what many theologians regard as a one-sided or unfinished condition.

In an oblique reference to the fact that papal supremacy is a major bone of contention between Catholics and non-Catholics, Pope Paul voiced hope that a redefinition of the Catholic position by the council "may make the path towards common agreement easier."

He said this task will be "the principal concern of this session of the council," which is scheduled to continue through Dec. 4.

Maxwell Taylor listens to briefing at Vietnamese training camp somewhere near Plei Mrong, South Viet Nam. It was part of their questioning tour of American and Vietnamese officers in the field.

Military Leaders Confer With Diem

By NEIL SHEEHAN

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor postponed their departure for 24 hours today and continued their investigation of South Viet Nam's military and political situation.

McNamara and Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of staff, conferred Sunday with President Ngo Dinh Diem, but no details of the talks were made public.

Arthur Sylvester, Defense Department spokesman, said the two military leaders spent more than five hours with Diem. They conferred with him privately for three hours, then attended a two-hour black-tie dinner with the president.

Informed sources said Diem told McNamara and Taylor the war against the Communist Viet Cong is going well, and that political dissension was not hampering the war effort.

Needs American Support

These sources also said Diem insisted anything less than continued all-out American support for the war would be a mistake.

Sylvester refused to disclose the subject matter of the meeting. He said McNamara and Taylor would not see Diem's brother Ngo Dinh Nhu, during their visit. Nhu is Diem's chief advisor, and the husband of the sharp-tongued Mme. Nhu.

Today, Taylor went to Ben Cat, a district capital 28 miles north of Saigon, where he heard Viet Nam's chief of staff predict victory over the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas by next year.

McNamara stayed in Saigon for talks with other members of the eight-man mission sent there by President Kennedy to assess the prospects of winning the guerrilla war and whether Diem's crackdown on the Buddhists has harmed these prospects.

Hadj Rejects Government Edict

ALGIERS (UPI) — The dissident commander of the Algerian 7th Military District in the opposition stronghold of Tizi-Ouzou today rejected a government edict dismissing him and ordered his battle-hardened troops on general alert.

Col. Mohand Ou El Hadj, known as "the old-man" — to the men he led in Algeria's 7½ year war of independence from France, announced through a spokesman he will not bow to the order issued by President Ben Bella's government.

He vowed to continue his command in the rugged Grand Kabylia region east of Algiers where opposition leaders, backed by regional civilian and military authorities launched a movement against the "illegal" government of Ben Bella in a mass rally Sunday.

Armored cars and field gendarmerie units in battle dress sealed off Tizi-Ouzou, capital of the troubled region and headquarters of the 7th Military District, for the second straight day. The troops manning roadblocks refused to say on whose side they stood and turned back all road traffic and newsmen.

Begin Decisive Fight

Dissident Berber leader Hocine Ait Ahmed led the demonstration of some 3,500 adherents in Tizi-Ouzou, 60 miles east of Algiers, and exhorted "all militants to begin a decisive fight" against the one-party Ben Bella regime.

Tension mounted today between the two-week-old strong man government headed by Ben Bella and the clandestine "Front of Socialist Forces" which is headed by Ait Ahmed and of which El Hadj is a member. A test of strength appeared inevitable.

Ait Ahmed told newsmen that compromise with Ben Bella now would be "very difficult." He demanded formation of a new government.

The Berber leader, one of Ben Bella's former lieutenants, took part in demonstrations against the president Sunday in the Kabylia city of Tizi-Ouzou, a center of opposition. But he stressed that the Berbers who live in Kabylia's mountains do not seek to establish a breakaway or rebel government.

Territory Is Rebelling

"It is not a question of seceding," he said. "It is not a territory that is rebelling. It is a part of the Algerian population that is resuming the revolutionary movement that was broken by last summer's crisis."

He referred to the brief civil war a year ago in which Ben Bella grabbed power.

He said that other regions of Algeria now would "take up a stand" against the president.

He urged the calling of a congress to choose a committee "which would not be controlled by the government" in order to set up a new regime "which would be able to create a new climate."

He said the opposition movement would do nothing to endanger the lives or property of foreigners and that there is "no problem" with France. Ben Bella has been nationalizing French holdings in recent weeks, provoking threats of aid cuts from Paris.

Kennedy Speaks To Monetary Experts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy told an international gathering of monetary experts today that this country's effort to stop the outflow of gold is not only the U. S. interest but "the interest of all who place their faith in the dollar."

Kennedy told the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund that the United States is determined to protect the dollar as convertible currency at its present rate fixed to gold at $35 an ounce. He also used the occasion of his speech to the monetary gathering to plug again for his tax cut bill pending in the U. S. Senate.

The President, speaking only two hours after his return from a 10,000-mile swing to the Far West, said tax reduction would help improve the long-run position of the United States in world business and monetary affairs.

Speaking of the bill, he said: "It should help attract capital investment, improve our ability to sell goods and services in world markets, stimulate the growth of our economy and the employment of our people, give greater freedom to monetary policy and play a vital supporting role in our determination to achieve equal rights and opportunities for all of our citizens."

The President's return to Washington today ended a week-long tour, billed as "non-political" by White House staffers, in which the Chief Executive covered 10,000 miles and spoke 14 times in 11 states, on conservation and development of natural resources.

But increasingly the Chief Executive devoted time at his public appearances to plugging leading local Democrats and to reminding his audiences of the benefits they had received under his and previous Democratic administrations.

By the end of the long, fast journey leading Republicans were openly scornful of the "non-political" label.

According to Kennedy intimates, the President was well pleased with the 11-state trip. He carried only three western states in 1960 and one obvious purpose of the jaunt was to generate an atmosphere which would enhance his second term campaign next year.

Year-Round Session Is Possible

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress wound up the first nine months of 1963 today with many of President Kennedy's top legislative proposals far from enactment.

Faced with prospects of their first year-round session since World War II, members of both Senate and House prepared for a burst of activity in the final quarter of the year.

The President's two priority requests — civil rights and a tax cut — still have not been enacted and some lawmakers predict that one or the other may not get through this year.

Despite its record of little activity on these and other Kennedy proposals, Congress has written into law a number of measures during the first three-quarters of 1963.

Among these are extension of the draft law, feed grains legislation, extension of corporate and excise tax rates, an increase in the national debt limit, emergency legislation to avert a railroad strike and aid to medical schools.

The Senate also gave the President a major victory by ratifying the nuclear test ban treaty and the House is expected to complete action this week on a military pay raise bill.

From the administration standpoint, however, these accomplishments are offset by lack of action on civil rights and a tax cut, a lag on the President's foreign aid program, and the apparent sidetracking of Medicare for the aged and parts of the Kennedy education program.

In doubt also are such items on the President's legislative list as continued aid to areas of chronic unemployment, cotton legislation and measures to deal with dairy surpluses.

Ike Has No 'Favorites' In 1964 Race

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said Sunday he had no favorites for the GOP presidential nomination and stressed that the party had a "wealth of men" from which to choose a candidate.

At the same time Eisenhower, in a copyrighted dispatch in the New York Herald Tribune, denied reports that he opposed Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., for the nomination.

However, Eisenhower said he was "unclear on precisely" what Goldwater's present views are. He said that only when candidates mentioned for the nomination "are on record with their current views will the party be in a position to make the most intelligent choice."

Others he mentioned as possibilities for the nomination were New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller (See IKE, Page 3)

Crime 'Bosses' Command Loyalty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Underworld turncoat Joseph Valachi was reported today to have told Senate investigators that the way to break up the Cosa Nostra crime syndicate is to jail its bosses.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., quoted Valachi as saying that respected bosses in the Cosa Nostra hierarchy commanded a loyalty from the rank and file "soldiers" of crime which was not paid to lower echelon lieutenants.

Mundt said in an interview that Valachi told the Senate investigations subcommittee at a closed session that "locking up the bosses" would destroy the crime organization.

Valachi, the vengeance-bent Cosa Nostra alumnus, is expected to expand on the point when he resumes his testimony at a public hearing Tuesday. He testified Friday that the Cosa Nostra bosses had been "very bad to the soldiers," and that this was one reason he was determined to tell his story to authorities.

In his public testimony Valachi also said he hoped Congress would pass a law making it a crime to belong to an organization such as Cosa Nostra. Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., who has made a similar proposal, stressed that the suggestions were made independently.

McClellan said today the subcommittee would accept the offer of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy to work on constitutional problems involved in forbidding membership in any "conspiracy" bound by a formal oath to violate and obstruct the law.

The chairman said he believed such a law would make it possible to act directly against members of Cosa Nostra. He said he found out who they were because he thought it would be possible to "there will always be squealers."

McClellan has pledged his support to Kennedy's drive for two new weapons against organized crime: A broader federal wiretap law and a provision authorizing the granting of immunity in certain criminal cases.

Rusk, Home To Discuss Sticky Problems Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Lord Home have some sticky problems to discuss at a breakfast meeting being held today in the British foreign secretary's hotel suite.

Among issues troubling the historic Allies are:

—Differences over the value of the proposed NATO nuclear fleet, which Britain so far has refused to join.

—What to do about Indonesian President Sukarno's vow to "destroy" the newly-created Commonwealth nation of Malaysia; and —French President Charles de Gaulle's steadily increasing isolation from the rest of the Western alliance.

Rusk and Home also were expected to assess the results of their polite but apparently inconclusive meeting Saturday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, which consisted principally of a general disarmament discussion.

Officials said, however, it was not certain just how many of these items the British and U. S. ministers could get through in the course of the talk.

Rusk still hoped, diplomatic sources said, that Britain would agree to participate in forthcoming talks on creation of the NATO Polaris fleet without insisting that discussion be reopened on "alternatives." If London continues to attach this condition, the United States and four other Allies already committed to the plan — West Germany, Italy, Turkey and Greece — will go ahead without the British at detailed talks beginning Oct. 7 in Washington.

Takes Back Seat

LONDON (UPI) — Edward Bailey, 29, was sentenced to six months in jail Saturday for setting fire to a car owned by his former fiancée, Anne Serra, 18. He admitted he started the fire because he was jealous of the car.

"He became madly jealous," Miss Serra said later, "and accused me of thinking more of the car than of him. Then came the final row — when I told him I did."

Two Men Are Arrested In Church Bombing

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama state police today jailed two white men, one a blond and the other with close-cropped gray hair, in connection with a church bombing that killed four Negro girls two weeks ago.

The suspects were lodged in the city jail on an open charge this morning after night-long questioning by state investigators.

Col. Al Lingo, head of the state police, refused to identify the suspects, but city jail Warden L. A. Holcombe said the jail contained two men arrested by the state whom he identified as R. E. Chambliss and Charles Cagle.

A woman who answered the telephone at the home of Chambliss said Mrs. Chambliss was under sedation and asleep. The woman, who said she was a friend of Mrs. Chambliss, would say nothing more.

Lingo, who was in on the interrogation of the suspects at state trooper district headquarters just outside Birmingham, said a number of suspects had been arrested at various times Sunday night. He had said "more than two" men were being questioned.

But when Lingo emerged from the city jail after turning the suspects over to the city, he indicated that those were the only two being held. Asked about his (See BOMBING, Page 3)

The Spirit, Not The Expensive Props Make A Birthday Party Fun

By KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

No excuse dreamed up by a busy mother has yet been convincing enough to quiet a child clamoring for a birthday party.

After a certain age, and this seems to vary from family to family, the party aspect dwindles to inviting a friend for dinner or to a movie. But 4-to-7-year-olds seem to demand parties as their due. If you are a working mother or an extra busy clubwoman, fitting a party into the week's schedule is a challenge. But fit it in you must. I've learned the simplest approach is to plan a supper occasion, usually after school on Friday which leaves Saturday for cleaning up. The simplest supper usually is the favorite — hamburgers, or fish sticks, vegetable sticks, milk, with ice cream and cake for the finale.

With the wealth of bright specialized paper plates and cups to choose from, there is really no need to wash a load of dishes. If you're caught short, use plain paper plates and invite the birthday girl to draw borders with crayons to decorate them.

For a centerpiece, try the balloon trick — easy, quick and inexpensive. Blow up balloons, tie ribbon or string to each and tie the other end to a small favor bought from the dime store. Set the favor on a chocolate bar or little sack of candies which will double as dessert.

Have ready a few games suited to the age — relay races with a feather on a stick or musical chairs. If you keep the guest list fairly limited, games will be easier to manage.

When you telephone the invitations, be sure to make the hours of the party clear, also the transportation. If parents drop their children at your home, it may be easier and you can be sure the party will end on time if you agree to take them home.

BLEND IT

Put the bacon in, instead of on or with, your favorite buckwheat waffles. Cook until crisp 2 strips of bacon for each serving. Crumble and fold into batter made from your favorite mix or recipe and bake as directed on package or in recipe. Serve with whipped honey butter.

It's the spirit, not expensive props, that makes a birthday party a success for an eager youngster. Galas are easy with such inexpensive props as balloons, small toys and candy bar favors.

Dear Abby... Don't Climb Mountains With Her!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: When I married "M" nine years ago, his mother stood right there at the wedding and cried as though a judge had just sentenced her son to hang. I should have known then that she would never "love me like a daughter"; although she used that phrase often enough. Fortunately my husband's boss transferred us out of town soon after we were married. His mother came to visit us, but up until this year we never went to visit her. When we did, she put our two young sons in a large double bed, while my husband and I were given two Army cots placed at a 90-degree angle in a room with no door! Any advice?

"LIKE A DAUGHTER" DEAR LIFE: Yes, don't go mountain-climbing with her.

DEAR ABBY: When a man offers a lady a cigarette, what is the proper procedure for lighting it? Does the man light his cigarette first and then offer the lady a light? Or does he light hers first? I have seen so many men light their own cigarettes first and have wondered why "Ladies First" does not apply here. Someone said a man should light his own cigarette first so that the lady doesn't get the first fumes of the match. Is that so?

CURIOUS DEAR CURIOUS: "Ladies First" applies here as it does in other instances. I would let the match burn off the "first fumes," then light the lady's cigarette first! Besides, if it's cancer she wants, what's the hurry?

DEAR ABBY: Please print this and make a lot of guys happy: "Dear Lost Some Blood:

"PACIFIC VETERAN" DEAR ABBY: I want to let you know that I don't think you are an old fogey for not approving of affection - showing in public. I am 15 and am going to have a baby in March. I wish my mother had been more strict with me in public and maybe I wouldn't have done so much in private.

Review of Laundry Rules

By KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

When school starts, the character of the homemaker's laundry changes. The better dresses supplant the beat-up-blue jeans and shorts. And more boys' T-shirts and tops show a variety of stains fresh from the football field.

I haven't the answer yet to why ink leaks more on white blouses than on blue or black ones, but it does. Nor can I tell you why the school lunch drips on the dress instead of the paper napkin packed for the purpose.

Perhaps a review of some of the basic laundry rules will speed us through wash day. It will help, too, to know how to handle the variety of fabrics and blends that confuse the issue.

Certain fibers do tend to hold stains or to stain easily. Frank Lindsay (of the Maytag company) in repeated tests has showed that the polyesters have an affinity for oily soil and nylon tends to pick up colors from items that have been washed with it.

His advice? Pretreat oily stains or soils with a liquid general purpose cleaner or a liquid dishwashing detergent. Then launder as usual. A chlorine-based bleach will help remove oily materials, too. The polyesters will withstand bleaching better than cotton, so the only limitations will be those present even when bleaching cotton — consider color fastness and special finishes. White nylons should be laundered separately as a group. Bleach them occasionally or use specialty products designed to maintain the whiteness.

To treat ink stains, force cold water through the stain to remove as much pigment as possible. Squeeze water from the fabric and then pour denatured alcohol through the stain. Follow by pretreating with detergent and laundry in warm or cold water to which ammonia has been added.

I have also discovered that the mysterious stains of no known origin often yield to pretreating with a liquid general cleaner and then washing as usual.

Puzzles to me are the foam-laminated fabrics. Some can be washed and dryer dried; others are supposed to be dry cleaned.

When school starts, laundry room problems take on a new hue—more grass stains from the football field.

If you didn't save the manufacturer's instructions, talk to the buyer at the store where you purchased the garment.

If a young artist slops finger-paint all over her dress, wash it or at least put it to soak as quickly as you can. I have learned that not all children's paints are "washable" and the sooner a stain is treated the easier it will be to remove. A cotton smock is, of course, the answer to keeping clothes clean in art class.

Grass and tanbark stains should be soaked in cold water, pretreated with detergent and laundered — again the sooner the better.

Don't launder school athletic uniforms unless you pretreat for color fastness first. I saw a red and white tumbling team uniform emerge from the washer a pretty pastel pink.

Cattleman's Round-Up For Crippled Children Sets New World's Record

ABILENE (Sp1) — The fourth annual Cattleman's Round-up for Crippled Children, largest benefit stock auction in the world, set a new record here Saturday afternoon but total receipts will not be known until after the sheep and goat sale in Coleman today.

Last year, the sale netted $50,000 for the West Texas Rehabilitation Center. The 10-year-old rehabilitation center here is financed solely by contributions and — like the ranchers — refuses to accept any tax subsidies. This year, the Saturday sale attracted more than 300 animals, including many head of top stock from Panhandle counties.

Registered cattle and horses, shetland ponies and ranch horses, feeder and stocker calves, a Paint Jenny and a French Poodle — plus many ranch-use items — were auctioned off here Saturday at the Abilene Livestock Commission Ring. The top animal in the sale was a registered two-year-old Charolais Bull given by the AT ranches in Weslaco and Georgetown. The 1635-pound bull brought $1,500.

A registered Polled Hereford, donated by Dr. E. J. Hawkins, Hamlin, sold seven times for a total of $1,160.

The tiny Gray and White Jenny, which opened with a $5 bid, eventually sold for $385 after going through the bidding seven times. She should have been sold more times, probably, but one man bought her twice and decided to keep her the second time. She was given by Lloyd Woodley of Alexander Hamilton Institute, Inc. says the outlook for the market appears good. ### Home Damaged By 'Pickup'

Douglas H. Luedecke's home, 931 E. Francis, received about $1500 damage at 11 p.m. Saturday when a pickup went out of control, jumped the curb and ran across the driveway into the southeast corner of the house.

According to Police Chief Jim Conner, no one was injured, but the pickup tore a wall out on the south side of the house, ran into the house and stopped in the dining room. Dining room furniture in the east room was pushed toward the wall.

"The pickup was driven by Benjamin W. Nichols Jr., 19, of 1418 E. Francis," Chief Conner said. "He was going east on Francis when he lost control of the pickup and ran it into the side of the house. He was given a ticket for speeding. The pickup belonged to Bob Miller, 721 E. Browning and received about $350 damage.

Nichols told investigating patrolman C. L. Wallace that he was blinded by car lights and swerved the car into the house.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
 United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Among those absent from Sunday night's debut of the Judy Garland show on CBS-TV was Miss Judy Henske, a folksinger who first sang professionally at the Zen Coffee House and Motorcycle Repair Shop in San Diego. She originally was to be a weekly regular.

Also, not present Sunday night was Mickey Rooney, Miss Garland's former "Andy Hardy" sidekick, who was to have been the premiere guest. Other absentees included George Schlatter, the original producer, and three of his writers — none of them now connected with the hour series.

As you may surmise, CBS, which paid Miss Garland five million green ones to do a weekly show, had its problems getting things under way. It also, however, had Miss Garland, whose extraordinary intimacy with an audience helped make the premiere a generally amiable, if sometimes uneven, occasion. I don't know of any other performer who fuses so completely with a stage. That born-in-a-trunk stuff can get pretty wearing in the legend, but it rings like a truism when she's at it.

The opening minutes were pretty rocky Sunday night, especially when Jerry Van Dyke, the only other regular, spoofed Miss Garland's serious singing. I kept thinking of the story about Cecil B. DeMille bawling out Gary Cooper for doing a satire on Westerns — reminding him that if he didn't take his work seriously, how could he expect anyone else to? That may not be a sophisticated approach, but it has its solid points.

Miss Garland's early singing seemed a bit rocky too, and a production number, "Sing You Sinners," by the eternally pleasant Donald O'Connor, though efficient, didn't seem to add to any general direction. Things picked up when Van Dyke did a funny, nostalgic burlesque of how the Lone Ranger came into being — mouthing all the recorded parts himself.

Then, almost imperceptibly, in her singing, hoofing and clowning with O'Connor, Miss Garland gradually wove the atmosphere of intimacy and qualified nostalgia that eventually hooks her audiences — who, once hooked, are in the palm of her hand. I don't mean to say the show had anywhere near the impact of her stage concerts; it didn't. It is geared to longevity, and the usual heights of the special performance were missing. But the fine informality of the latter part of the show — the funny-remiscing with O'Connor, and the spoof of some bad old songs — was also geared perfectly to longevity. And of course her solo singing.

The best thing was watching Miss Garland remind us again that she is a beautifully natural actress, humorous, fast and warm — and that you better not try to upstage her. Those old MGM musicals weren't so bad.

GOOD TENSION
 CHICAGO HEIGHTS, Ill. (UPI) — Tension may be the bane of modern corporate life, but it's the stock in trade of one manufacturing plant here.

Alco Products Inc., exporter of diesel-electric locomotives, has a facility here that produces springs ranging in weight from less than an ounce to more than 900 pounds. They come in lots of sizes but they all have one common denominator: They're designed to bear burdens way out of proportion to their size and keep bouncing back.

The smallest springs the company makes are inch-long models for storm windows. The big ones, which stand five feet high, support missiles in their silos to cushion them from the effects of possible nuclear blasts, so that they'll stay vertical and on target.

Soviet Collective Farmers Are Under-Fire

By NEIL A. MARTIN
 United Press International
MOSCOW (UPI) — "They squeezed blood out of the customers for green onions, lettuce, radishes, cucumbers and tomatoes. And the price lists, hidden away from the buyer, are still doing no good."

A Soviet tirade against a capitalist economy? No, it's just another in a series of blasts at Soviet collective farmers which have appeared in the Russian press during the past few months.

Some Soviet farmers, it seems, are guilty of a serious economic crime — speculation. They are said to be buying up large quantities of farm produce, trucking it hundreds of miles to big city markets and selling it at handsome profits.

Pravda, Izvestia, Ekonomicheskaya Gazeta and other publications have publicized the mushrooming activities of these speculators with stories and pictures. The press coverage has coincided with government drive to curb the illegal dealings of such Soviet economic entrepreneurs.

In the Soviet Union, speculation, black market dealings, embezzlement, hoarding and bribery are economic crimes punished by heavy fines, imprisonment or even death before a firing squad. Several farmers were arrested this summer in Siberia where they were caught selling tons of citrus fruits at extravagant prices. The fruits were brought from the distant Georgian republic by plane to northern Soviet cities.

Practice on Increase
 Speculation is an old problem for the Soviet Union. But since the death of Stalin in 1953, collective farmers have been playing their quick-money schemes with alarming regularity. And Soviet officials appear unable or unwilling to crack down on the speculators.

Under the collective farm system, Soviet farmers share in the surplus produce of the farm and are permitted to cultivate their own private gardens. It is also legal for them to sell any excess farm or garden goods on the

Washington Window

By LYLE C. WILSON
 United Press International
 The U.S. taxpayer put up the scratch that paid for the elaborate public relations trimmings to President Kennedy's "non-political" swing to the West Coast. The taxpayer doesn't know it, but he paid.

There were pamphlets, booklets, maps, movies and still pictures. One securely strapped container hand-delivered to UPI's Washington, D.C., bureau contained 16 mm movie film, sufficient for a 30-minute show. An accompanying letter said those were film sequences of "projects and other installations which President Kennedy will either visit, fly over or (fly) NEAR during his western trip."

An eight by ten pamphlet bound in slick brown paper turned out to be an 18-page, glossy stock copy of Kennedy's March 1, 1962, message to Congress on conservation. This was a great improvement on the roughly mimeographed text UPI received last March. The glossy version had several pages of pictures showing the recreation and other delights and advantages to be enjoyed by the people if Congress would create the new parks proposed by the President.

All of this material was printed by the Government Printing Office. The Departments of Agriculture and Interior cooperated in preparing some or all of the material. It came to the news media with the compliments of Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall.

UPI was informed at the Interior Department that most of the 16 mm film footage was documentary material from the Reclamation Bureau's film library, but that some film was shot especially for the Kennedy trip. Four prints of the film were distributed. The department "roughly estimated" the cost of the film project at $1,500 but emphasized that this was not precise.

An elaborately illustrated glossy booklet entitled "The Trip of the President" was especially produced for Kennedy's western swing. About 500 copies were run off on Interior Department offset facilities. No costs estimates were available.

The non-political, speech-making swing through politically significant states is a political gimmick, almost a political tradition. It is a phony, of course, because a President no more can divorce his journeys from the political realities than he can deny his membership in a political party.

 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The problem of uncontrolled population growth emerges as one of the most critical issues of our time since it influences the welfare and happiness of all the world's citizens, says Frederick Seitz, president of the National Academy of Sciences.

"It commands the attention of every nation and society; the problem is no less grave for the technically advanced nations than for the less developed," he added, in a statement published by the Population Reference Bureau.

TREE EATERS
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Animals in the Northwest are eating many Americans out of house and home, says American Forest Products Industries (AFPI).

Quoting the Northwest Pest Action Council, AFPI said each year animals in the area kill young trees that would have grown enough wood to build 20,000 homes. These same trees, if left to grow on tree farms and other forest lands, would have supplied jobs for 2,560 persons, according to the Council.

Spahn Closes Season, Musial Closes Career

By MARTIN LADER
UPI Sports Writer
Warren Spahn won one for the road and Stan Musial came to the end of it.

The two 42-year-old stars, who have dominated National League headlines for the last two decades, were back in their familiar roles Sunday to help close the regular major league season.

Spahn equalled his career high of 23 victories in a season when he pitched the Milwaukee Braves to a 3-0 decision over the Chicago Cubs. It was the 35th victory of Spahn's career, his 62nd lifetime shutout and his six game strikeouts enabled him to surpass 100 whiffs for the 17th consecutive year.

For Spahn, who has as little trouble beating time as he does other ball clubs, it truly appears that there's still a long road to come.

Musial has made his reputation at the other end of the pitcher's mound and he also has created a living legend. Stan The Man played his last ball game Sunday, ending an active career that started in 1933, and he went out with a run-producing single in the sixth inning. His Cardinal teammates added, the finishing touch to a memorable day by squeezing out a 3-2 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds in 14 innings.

Houston-Miss Top Feature

By United Press International
The Houston Cougars, who have failed to scratch against Auburn and Baylor in their first two outings, take on Mississippi Rebels in the feature game of this week's football schedule involving Texas' independent schools.

Although Ole Miss was held to a scoreless tie by Memphis State in its opener, the Cougars appear no match for the Southeastern Conference powerhouse which bounced back to bury Kentucky 21-7 last week while Houston lost to Baylor 37-0.

West Texas State, boasting the only unblemished record among the non-affiliated schools, also may be in for trouble when the Buffs host North Texas at Canyon, North Texas, humiliated 34-7 in its opener by Texas Western, roared back to trim Louisville 26-4. West Texas beat University of Pacific 32-8 last week.

Horned Frogs Test Battered Hoggies

By ED FITE
UPI Sports Writer
The deflated Arkansas Razorbacks' backbone gets a severe test this week when the muscular Texas Christian Horned Frogs hop into the Ozarks for the two rivals' Southwest Conference title play opener.

Stunned followers of the Razorbacks, led to believe by press clippings that this year's crop of Porkers may be as good or better than their predecessors despite the loss of a backfield galaxy, were on the doubtful side after the Hogs were jolted 7-6 by Missouri.

ern Methodist tries to solve the mistakes uncovered in a 27-16 opening loss to Michigan, against Texas Air Force at Dallas, and Texas A&M and Texas Tech meet at Lubbock.

Aggies Have No Offense
The Aggies, apparently still unable to uncork any offense, fell to Ohio State 17-0 last week for their second loss of the young season.

Arkansas has opened its last four successful conference seasons with victories, 3-0, 7-8, 23-3 and 42-14 over TCU, but Coach Abe Martins' Frogs appear capable of putting a halt to that domination this time unless the Razorbacks can pick up the pieces.

Wichita Falls Vs. Big Spring Top High School Tilt

By United Press International
Unbeaten teams get together on a half dozen or so fronts throughout Texas schoolboy football's Class AAAA and AAA ranks this week.

Perennial contender Wichita Falls, for example, travels to Big Spring in one of four such games in the AAAA ranks.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Directors of the Pacific Coast League voted to keep a 10-team circuit for 1964.

LA JOLLA, Calif. — Mickey Wright carded a 222 for 34 holes to win the Mickey Wright Invitational Golf Tournament.

NEW YORK — Sam Mele, who led Minnesota to a third place finish in the American League this year, was signed to manage the Twins again next season.

Leaves Many Records

Musial is retiring with a score of records, many of which inevitably will be broken, but he is leaving a tradition that will be hard to surpass. He had a .331 lifetime batting average, higher than the mark that led either league this year.

In other National League games on the final day of the season, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-1, and spoiled Don Drysdale's bid for his 20th victory of the season; the San Francisco Giants defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-2, on the strength of Felipe Alou's three-run homer; and the Houston Colts trounced the New York Mets, 13-4.

TCU Looks Solid

TCU, which boasts 10-4 and 13-0 victories over such solid foes as Kansas and Florida State, should provide the answer in the conference's spotlight game next Saturday.

All other league members, including front-running defending champion Texas, will be in action over the week end, but the most impact will be felt at Fayetteville.

Texas, a 49-7 conqueror of Texas Tech in its loop inaugural game, hosts Oklahoma State under the lights at Austin. Rice, a surprisingly easy 21-12 victor over Louisiana State, carries the league banner into the East Penn State, and Baylor, likewise a surprise performer with the one-sidedness of its 27-4 victory over Houston, goes in the opposite direction to play Oregon State at Portland.

Monsters of Midway Return to NFL Life

By NORMAN MILLER
UPI Sports Writer
The ghosts of George Halas' old "Monsters of the Midway" hover over the National Football League.

And the real, live modern-day Chicago Bears are frightening the daylight out of a lot of people around the NFL, too.

The Bears, rated only far-out chance of winning this year's Western Division championship, clobbered the Detroit Lions, 27-21, Sunday for their third consecutive victory.

Harvesters Tried Hard, Reports Coach Holladay

"Regardless of how it looked in the press box or anyplace else, those kids made a real good effort against Palo Duro Friday night... they tried."

So said coach Otis Holladay Monday morning, reviewing the Harvester's 26-8 loss to Palo Duro in the opening district 3-AAAA game.

Holladay, down over the weekend with a touch of flu, has been unable to view the film and give a detailed report, but said "they put as much into it as they have in any game. It hurt them to lose that game... they actually cried."

"I don't know what it was," said the hoarse-voiced coach, "they just weren't blocking... but frankly, Palo Duro was much, much better than they were rated. They had good size and good movement. We really tried, but we couldn't pull it out."

Assistant coach Ray Howard, who rated the film over the weekend during Holladay's illness, said "Overall it didn't look too good, but when you break down the film, you find some fine performances. If any one boy should be credited with Palo Duro's victory, it was their big right tackle, Mike Sullivan. He was great. We couldn't stop his size and he was crashing the line and catching runners for losses on defense, and he was opening big holes for the runners on offense. Jerry Garrison did a fine job trying to stop him, but you can't expect a 160-pounder to hold a 215-pounder."

"Although it appeared as if the runners weren't getting any blocking, the film shows that they were, but they weren't following their blockers. The rush that Sullivan put on kept them from cutting in time in some cases, but they were getting blocks. Ricky Goodwin and Garrison were downfield consistently blocking, and so was Jocko Neslage. Larry Watson had a minor injury and we didn't want to aggravate it, so Neslage took his place... he showed more hustle than any boy trying to get downfield."

proving steadily, was tremendous on defense, being in on 15 tackles. Billy Quarles is another boy who is improving steadily.

"We had three new starters and they all did well. Jim Arthur also had a touch of the flu and wasn't at full strength, so we used Trigger Evans on defense. James Williamson took over for another flu case, Carl Johnson, and Neslage replaced Watson and they all did well. Hank Henry came in in the fourth quarter and had three unassisted tackles." San Williams played a good game, and Phil Kleamer made his best effort of the season. Garrison tried hard and Rick Stewart played his usual fine game.

"Our pass defense wasn't as bad as it looked, as a matter of fact, it's improving. Our short pass defense was good, and we made two bad mistakes on long defense, but that was far better than against Phillips. We have juniors back there and they have to learn, but they are learning and getting better each game."

The Chargers rode Tobin Rote's three touchdown passes to a 24-10 victory over the defending champion Kansas City Chiefs Sunday to win their showdown battle and wind up the only AFL team with a perfect (3-0) record.

'We Pay It To Ourselves'

Let's get right down to basics about the government and the government debt. There's an old story, started by proponents of inflation and "elastic currency," that government debts don't matter because we only "owe it to ourselves."

Canadian Wheat Deal with USSR Contains Gimmick That Could Disrupt U.S. Trade, Dollar Balance

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — It's almost impossible to overestimate the tremendous impact that Canada's $500 million wheat deal with Russia will have on future U.S.-Canadian relations.

When the full details of this giant wheat agreement are made public, they will show that Moscow has been given a powerful economic weapon to meddle in Western trade and diplomatic affairs.

The fine print in this three-year trade agreement, which U.S. authorities are now carefully studying, reveals that Moscow retains the exclusive right to cancel the wheat deal at any time if it thinks Ottawa is discriminating against Russian goods.

By winning this unprecedented right, the Kremlin obtained the power to force Canada at any time to accept Soviet goods rather than U.S. or face the politically explosive cancellation of the highly publicized wheat agreement.

This powerful Soviet lever on Canada's trade with the U.S. could prod this country's most serious economic problem — the outflow of U.S. dollars — to the brink.

In recent years U.S. officials have counted heavily on this country's favorable balance of trade ($200 million) with Canada, our best foreign customer, to cut down the flow of dollars from the U.S.

If Russia is permitted to drastically increase its sales to Canada at the expense of the U.S., this unhealthy trade development could cause the U.S. to cut back on purchases from Canada — igniting a small trade war similar to the one now developing between the U.S. and France.

Already, the Soviet-Canadian wheat deal is being privately blamed by U.S. officials as a contributing factor in Prime Minister Lester Pearson's unexpected decision to reduce Canada's import of automobile spare parts from the U.S.

Under Pearson's new program, the spare parts will be made in plants in Canada and England. The latter spare parts will be paid for by Soviet goods sold to the British in exchange for Canadian wheat.

MAJOR CONCESSION — According to an estimate made by the Central Intelligence Agency, the granting of this wheat contract cancellation right to Russia was a major trade concession that the Canadians had refused to give the Soviets in past wheat agreements.

The concession was ordered written into the wheat accord by Prime Minister Pearson after S. A. Borisov, the Soviet First Deputy Minister for Foreign Trade, threatened to seek the wheat from other countries, including the U.S.

Borisov, who acted as Russia's chief trade negotiator, frankly told Pearson that Russia expects Canada to give his country priority over the U.S. whenever a conflict in trade develops.

A GROTESQUE PHRASE By Rosalie M. Gordon Editor, America's Future True Definition

As discussion waxed hotter between those in and out of political life who call themselves conservatives and liberals, a grotesque phrase begins to appear more and more often in the public prints.

Under the terms of the wheat agreement, Canada will ship to Russia 227.5 million bushels of wheat, 29.5 million bushels of which will be in the form of flour by July 31, 1965.

TRUTH FORUM Little Change Seen In W. German Policies

At the time this is written the political situation in West Germany is static. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is at his retreat in Italy. He may not return until shortly before he steps down as chancellor, to be followed by Ludwig Erhard, presently the Minister of Economics.

There have been lengthy conferences between Adenauer and Erhard in Italy, followed by meetings of certain cabinet members with Erhard on his return. The usual jockeying for cabinet posts, here as in the United States, provides speculative news items for the press, but for the most part they are just that and nothing more.

Little change in government policy is expected when the new chancellor assumes office. Especially is this true as regards foreign policy. When President Kennedy was in Germany recently he had conferences with Erhard, knowing that he will be the man with whom Washington must deal in the immediate future.

When President Kennedy was in Germany recently he had conferences with Erhard, knowing that he will be the man with whom Washington must deal in the immediate future.

The view here is that Erhard will shape his course in line with that of Britain and the United States. Although the parliament of the Federal Republic ratified the pact of mutual defense and friendship with France, which had long been the desire of both Adenauer and President de Gaulle of France, a sampling of opinion here indicates that Erhard will not let that lessen the relations with the United States and Britain.

It is a matter of record that Erhard opposed the stand taken by De Gaulle which prevented Britain's entry into the European Common Market group of nations. Henri Spaak of Belgium is another who strongly favors Britain's membership in the ECM but there appears to be little hope of that unless and until De Gaulle's obstinate stand is changed which may not be for a long time.

Erhard's policy toward Moscow and the Soviet colony of East Germany — misnamed the German Democratic Republic, probably will be little different if any, from the positive stand of Adenauer against the slightest gesture which could be construed as officially recognizing the outlaw communist regime which the Soviet has established on German soil.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hospitals have failed to explain their rising cost problem to a public weary of the inflationary cycle of health care costs, a public relations executive told the 65th annual meeting of the American Hospital Association.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Notes from the Foreign News Cables:

No Boat-Rocking:

The British Labor party is confident it already has won the next election and now doesn't want to rock the boat. Therefore, its annual conference this week at Scarborough is expected to be devoid of fireworks unless party mavericks decide to press for clear-cut statements on controversial nuclear and nationalization issues. Strong elements within the party would like to declare Britain neutral and to abolish altogether Britain's nuclear weapons. These same elements would push nationalization of industry much further than the present leadership wishes to go.

British Elections:

Political prognosticators in Britain now do not expect British elections until next June. They must be held no later than October and June is about the latest date to allow for campaigning and such intangibles as a dip in employment or the national economy — both of which would work against Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's Conservatives. By June the economy could be expected to pick up again after any winter recession.

Love Match:

After the recent meeting between Soviet Premier Khrushchev and Yugoslav President Tito, West German diplomatic observers expect increasing contacts between Yugoslavia and Warsaw Pact nations. They think a first step may be a visit of a Yugoslav military mission to Moscow. Poland already has invited Tito to visit Warsaw. Best bet for the next visit seems to be Hungary.

Ecumenical:

Despite steps taken by Pope Paul to liberalize the Roman Curia, governing central body of the Roman Catholic Church, sources close to the Vatican say conservatives within the church cannot be written off. The conservatives still make up more than one third of the church hierarchy and are in a position to block approval on specific subjects as they come up for a vote. Thus they are in a strong position to tone down what they don't like in the way of liberalization and to force compromises. Pope Paul is moving to decentralize the authority of the curia, which now is made up mostly of Italians, and delegate greater authority to bishops in their own territories.

Silent Partner:

Japanese Premier Hayato Ikeda dismayed many Japanese officials when he offered to mediate the dispute over Malaysia and as a result has been playing it down ever since. Both the Philippines and Indonesia have refused to recognize the new federation, and Indonesia has said it actively will train guerrilla fighters opposed to it. Since World War II, Japan has tried to steer clear of Asian disputes and Ikeda's offer seemed to violate a traditional role.

"At this point I am neither against nor specifically for any candidate but do wish them all well. I shall not participate in a move to stop any one candidate."

CARACAS — Venezuelan President Romulo Betancourt, assuring Americans that terrorist activities have not disrupted his nation's economy or democratic political processes:

"There have been no strikes in the last six months, and people are going about their work. Theaters and restaurants are full, and you can see for yourself it is not necessary to wear bullet-proof vests."

BIRMINGHAM — Negro leaders A. G. Gaston and Arthur Shores, urging Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., not to bring another demonstration to this racially disturbed city:

Emotions and a Wish for Status Rule Many in Buying Funerals

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the second of three dispatches on the high cost of dying.)
By CHARLES H. WILSON JR.
United Press International

In the eyes of morticians, the modern funeral service ranks with the flag, motherhood and free enterprise as "unassailable institutions in American life."

This, at least, is the impression one gets from reading the attacks made by morticians' trade magazines on critics of rising funeral costs. "A threat to religion itself" and "weasels sucking away at the life blood of our basic economy" are two of the epithets that have been used against such critics.

But the fact remains that the cost of burying its dead is one of the three or four major single expenses that every family in the United States faces. According to the National Funeral Directors Association, the "regular adult funeral" cost $755 in the United States last year, and that does not include what must be spent for burial.

These statistics beg the question of why funeral costs are high and why the cost of dying is increasing at a faster rate than the cost of living.

Morticians, when confronted with the cold statistics of high costs, have a common reply. Americans, exercising their traditional freedom of choice, are simply choosing to spend more today to pay final tribute to their loved ones.

A more plausible explanation for rising funeral costs can be found in a combination of these two factors:

—The funeral purchase is made during a time of emotional distress and with few standards available for judging the relative value of goods and services offered.

—The funeral is considered by many persons today to be status symbol.

Prof. Byron D. Sher, writing in the May, 1963, issue of the Stanford Law Review, describes how the elegance of grief reduces the bargaining position of a widow "whose emotional condition may preclude investigation of available funeral services and prices and the making of a rational choice among them."

Brownlee Shirek, executive secretary of the Bay Area Funeral Society in Berkeley Calif., and an outspoken critic of high funeral costs, uses blunter words: "The buyer doesn't have much of a bargaining position. He MUST buy a funeral."

Both men criticize morticians for placing undue sales pressure on survivors during their period of emotional distress and thus forcing them to buy a service they cannot afford.

Some morticians answer this charge by pointing out they permit survivors to enter the casket selection room alone and make their purchase free of any such pressure.

But the average person has no concept of the fair market price of the goods and services offered. Is a polished mahogany casket worth $500? Should embalming cost $50? Additionally, the survivor generally must make an on-the-spot decision without "shopping around."

Quite different is the bargaining position of an individual about to purchase a car who has the benefit of consumer indexes and the counsel of his friends.

There are cases on record of funeral directors taking unfair advantage of the emotional distress of survivors. A government investigation into the costs of burying the 111 men killed in the 1947 Centralia, Ill., coal mine disaster revealed that charges for identical caskets and services varied by several hundred dollars.

Shirek said he knew personally of a widow who was sold an expensive bronze casket for transporting her husband's body to a crematorium. Because the bronze could not be consumed by the fire, the crematorium was forced to destroy the casket with a sledge hammer.
