WASHINGTON, April 10 (AP)—Alarmed by unsettled conditions in Europe, Congressional leaders turned to President Roosevelt today for help in drafting a new neutrality policy.

They decided to lay the controversial problem before the chief executive as soon as he arrived from a vacation at Warm Springs, Ga., where he told a crowd at the railroad station yesterday:

"I'll be back in the fall if we don't have a war."

Administration lieutenants decided there was a need for a new neutrality law before they expire May 1.

There was wide divergence of congressional opinion, however, over a permanent neutrality course, ranging from a ban on all arms shipments to broad authority for the President in regulating commerce with warring nations.

The House foreign affairs committee will begin neutrality hearings tomorrow, and Acting Chairman Bloom (D-NY) invited Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to present his views when he reaches the United States late this week.

Bloom sent a radiogram to the aviator who sailed from France unexpectedly Saturday. Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex.) of the Senate military committee also was considering asking Lindbergh to testify before his group.

The decision of Senate leaders to amend the "cash and carry" clause of the neutrality act was reached after they gave up hope of putting set for later in the day. No communiqué was issued.

In between the meetings, Chamberlain arranged to see Clement R. Attlee, leader of the opposition in the House of Commons. It was believed they would discuss the question of recalling parliament from its Easter recess.

Informed sources said the cabinet considered:

1. Guaranteeing independence of Greece and Turkey along the lines of the British defense alliance with Poland.

2. Denouncing the British-Italian accord of last April 16 on grounds Premier Mussolini had broken his promise to preserve the status quo in the Mediterranean area.

3. Summoning parliament from its holiday recess Wednesday or Thursday to hear an important new statement of policy by the prime minister.

Without debate the roll call began and the Senate secretary announced the result was 20 to 10, required for final passage.

The amendment, if approved by the electorate in July, would provide a 2 per cent levy on retail sales, an impost of equal amount on many services including automobile parking, hotel room rent, gas light and

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, April 10 (AP)—Without any appreciable change for the better in either the European or domestic business picture, traders shifted to the resolute side today's stock market and pushed up ledgers fractions to more than 2 points.

Brokers credited the upward reversal mainly to theory last week's selling, heaviest in many months, may have been swayed even if war fears turn out to be justified. Some speculative forces that were unloading Saturday were said to have brought back, because nothing especially startling happened abroad over the week-end.

Shelving of impaired margin accounts accounted for part of the early irregularity in stock quotations. More than balancing these offerings, it was thought, were stable buying orders from overseas.

Stocks were still ahead the greater part of the time in the face of an officially estimate drop in this week's mill operations of 2.6 points to 82.2 per cent of capacity. It was the largest week-to-week decline this year.

Prominent shares on the upward recovery included Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, U. S. Rubber, International Harvester, American Telephone, Du Pont, Westinghouse, John-Manville, East Great Northern and Standard Oil of N. J.

American Telephone was an exception, hovering behind a minus sign the greater part of the day.

LEWIS

thrombosis. Mrs. Lewis, his only immediate survivor, was with him.

"He was one of the most brilliant and colorful men ever to occupy the stage of public life in America," said Senate Leader Barkley, democrat, Ky., who had been aided by Lewis in the latter's capacity of demagogue.

While he had served both the states of Washington and Illinois in congress, Lewis was a Virginian by birth. He never told his age, but there were varying reports he was 72 to 75 years old when he died.

He was elected to the senate from Illinois in 1912, but was defeated for a second term. In 1930, however, he "came back" then was re-elected in 1936.

As a member of the foreign relations committee he kept in close touch with international affairs and repeatedly criticized European nations for defaulting on their war debts.

Speculation arose in political quarters as to Lewis' successor, who will be appointed by Governor Horner of Illinois, also a democrat.

return, arguing that as commander-in-chief of the army the President is empowered to dismiss the proceedings of the court martial that convicted him.

Bergdoll, whose exploits as an aviator and automobile racer earned him youthful fame in sporting circles, failed to respond when his draft number was called in 1917. For two years he dodged arrest, but finally was captured by federal authorities in New York City. March 17, 1920, he was convicted and sentenced to five years imprisonment.

Two months later he received permission to visit his mother in Philadelphia and en route escaped from his military guards. He then made his way to Germany.

A diplomatic incident developed subsequently when attempts by Americans in Germany to capture him led to the arrest and imprisonment of one of the Americans.

The alien property custodian holds considerable cash, securities, mortgages and real estate seized at the time of Bergdoll's conviction.

Duster Drifts In And Spends Itself

A heavy duster of the dirt-sprinkler variety drifted in from the north last night about 10:30 o'clock. It was at its worst about 12:30 o'clock. Yesterday was an exceptionally clear and warm day. Today is almost like it with the exception of a north wind and scattered clouds. This morning the sky was clear again. Not many people knew there was a duster until they discovered dust in their houses.

SERIAL STORY BORDER ADVENTURE

BY OREN ARNOLD
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday the officers learn that the old woman in jail was Betty Mary. Later, she tells them of that smuggling is planned that night. As they rush to the scene, Sheridan reveals he has already asked Betty for a date.

CHAPTER III

MISS ELIZABETH MARY JORDAN, of Washington, D. C., out of her bath and in pajamas now, stepped onto the hotel bathroom scales to see if three days of train food and loafing and one day of west Texas had added anything to her weight.

They hadn't. The needle wiggled around gaily and finally settled on 108 pounds, causing her to mutter, "Oh darn." If ever she reached 110, Betty Mary often promised herself, she would throw a rip-roaring celebration; she had kind of hoped it could be done here in El Paso.

"But it doesn't matter," she assured herself, "because I don't know anybody here except Hope Kildare and Sheridan Starr."

She came out and stooped to bury her face again in the flowers Mr. Starr had sent that night. They had been waiting when she came back to her room. "May I take you to dinner on Saturday?" the note with them had said.

She hadn't answered, but she knew she would say yes. Too much of glamor and interest was already attached to him, to both the young Border Patrol inspectors on whom she had paid an official call. She had come from Washington expecting to find them stodgy unimaginative men, perhaps the plodding type of officers.

But Inspectors Starr and Kildare had, surprisingly, looked and talked like big overgrown boys, handsome and highly capable but likely to make a few blunders in life. Betty Mary had felt instantly drawn to them.

"I think it would be unfair to recommend that they be discharged," she was confiding presently, in a letter to her girl friend back east. "I think this Luis Barro has just been lucky. He has just been slipping by two good men. I was sent out because, as you know, Washington wanted an inside report by somebody who could speak Spanish and knew about border conditions. I've been handling all the Border Patrol correspondence, and a few other investigations, and luckily I was born in Texas, too."

"And guess what, Sue! The thrilling thing! Remember how we make up and change characters and all, in the Little Theater plays? Well, I was able to do that here today and get the officers a valuable inside tip. Really! I have the most to tell you when I get home. Even as I write this they are out in the San Felipe hills somewhere. This is much rougher country than around San Antonio, where I was reared. But the Mexicans look the same. I am going to sketch some faces."

"Sheridan has asked me for a date already! Aren't you jealous? They are big and they move gracefully and have quick dark eyes and Hope—that's the other one—has a small scar on football, and they both act so serious you'd think they were—"

She had a great deal more to tell Sue but she stopped writing soon and went to bed.

"I want to buy a good pistol," she told the young clerk firmly. "And some ammunition and a cartridge belt."

SHE didn't sleep well, though. Things were on her mind. At 3 a. m. she telephoned the hotel clerk to know if any calls had come for her. None had. Still nobody had called at dawn; and at 7 a. m. she was reading a morning paper but she found no mention of any Border Patrol excitement.

Breakfast was uninteresting; the morning dragged. Three times she telephoned Border Patrol headquarters, only to be told each time that Messrs. Starr and Kildare were not in. At 3 p. m. she visited the chief of police again and heard once more what she already knew—that Border Patrol work was always dangerous, likely to include shooting any time.

At 4:15 p. m. she went to a stationery store and purchased a large "Map of the Border Country" with accurate scaling and topographic features, took it to her room and studied it minutely for nearly an hour. Next she sat for a few minutes staring out of her hotel window across the Rio Grande at the mountains of old Mexico, tapping her pretty teeth with a pencil, and thinking. Then, suddenly, she made up her mind. Recalling a sporting goods store she had seen earlier two blocks from the hotel, she set out quickly for it.

"I want to buy a good pistol," she told the clerk, firmly. "And some ammunition and a cartridge belt."

MAZATLAN is a highly picturesque little city in the Mexican state of Sinaloa, which is lapped by the Pacific Ocean. Many boats stop there, and strange are the people who may be seen on the pier. Sometimes a few of the people disembark.

Two weeks before Betty Mary started west, 20 men and nine women, all of very definite Asiatic ancestry and all speaking some dialect of the Asiatic languages, arrived in Mazatlan, disembarking from a passing vessel at night. They had not been sure of their welcome, but they met with no difficulty. In fact their spokesman, who was an excellent linguist, was elated at the ease with which Mazatlan "absorbed" these travelers.

"But it is not here that we need expect trouble," he informed them

Full Cotton Quota To Be Planted Soon

By L. C. SLOAN
Associated Press Staff

Texas farmers will plant their full AAA cotton allotments this spring but they are raising feed and fencing fields to pasture livestock which they hope will bring in extra cash.

Planting preparations in general were normal and conditions fair to good, reports from county agents in widely scattered sections of the state indicated Saturday.

Lack of moisture delayed planting in central West Texas while excessive rains hampered work in northern East Texas. Snow last week in the Panhandle-Plains region added sufficient moisture for good planting conditions.

While most areas reported a continued trend toward more feeding of livestock on home grown grains, this was the most pronounced in the coastal bend region around Corpus Christi.

Nueces county herds were increased 100 per cent in the last year and there are more cattle there than when that was strictly a cattle-raising district. This area, said reports, was preparing to feed and finish livestock for market on a scale rivaling the corn belt states of Missouri and Kansas.

"I fear that in two or three years livestock will be cheap as cotton is today and the packers will be flooded," said J. E. McDonald, state commissioner of agriculture.

Cotton was up to a good stand along the coastal bend. A move toward improved staple with one-variety cotton blocks organized in many communities was noted. Insect infestation was expected to be at a minimum because of an extensive clean-up campaign which destroyed hibernation last fall. Moisture conditions were good for cotton but feedstuff needed rain.

Thousands of coastal acres were planted in Sudan grass, corn, Rhodes grass, red top cane, hogri and other feeds. Sudan pastures will be ready for stock within 30 days. Ranch lands from Bee and Live Oak counties southward needed rain.

Small Grains Up

Northward, in East Texas, corn and small grains were up with prospects above average. Cotton planting was getting into full swing.

Weevil damage was feared in McLennan and Smith counties because infestation was heavy last year and the winter mild.

Only slight increased livestock raising was noted in McLennan but Navarro and Smith counties reported a pronounced trend toward more livestock and diversification.

G. F. Orms, district agent of the A. & M. College, extension department, said after a tour of Navarro, Kaufman, Grayson, Cook, Denton and Tarrant counties he found a gradual change toward more and better livestock.

In Northeast Texas, recent excessive rains delayed cotton planting from seven to 15 days.

In Lamar county, the majority of

Texas-Born Communications Chief Went To Caribbean With FDR But Didn't See President During Trip

WASHINGTON, April 8. (AP)—Dewey Long of Iola, Kas., new acting communications chief at the White House, accompanied President Roosevelt to Miami, Fla., when the chief executive made his recent Caribbean cruise, but he didn't see the President during the trip.

It was Long's first journey with the President as communications chief. He succeeds E. W. Smithers, who died Jan. 29 after 40 years service.

"I didn't see the President at all during the trip," Long said. "It was an uneventful journey. In line with my duties I had made arrangements for train and boat schedules and for communication facilities. Everything went off exactly as scheduled."

"All the way down to Miami, Fla., I was busy checking the train schedules to see they were followed. I had equipment in my car to send telegraph messages directly to the White House at any time. The messages were brought in by the President's secretaries and I transmitted them."

"At Miami the telephone and telegraph companies had set up our lines and installed our equipment in a hotel room when we reached there."

"With newspaper men, some presidential secretaries and my staff of four communications men from the White House, I stayed at Miami while the President was on his cruise."

The President's messages were radioed from his ship to the naval destroyer, Bagley, at Miami. We picked them up from the Bagley's radio operators and transmitted them from Miami to the White House or to others to whom they were addressed. I personally handled all confidential communications."

Shortly before the President's boat reached Charleston, Long and his staff went there, Long meanwhile completing communication and transportation facilities from that point.

"I like this job better than any I've ever had," Long said. "I suppose from now on I may be in personal contact with the President occasionally. He is very nice to his employees."

Long is a boyish-looking 40-year-old telegrapher who was "borrowed" from the department of agriculture

Paper Festival To Celebrate Dr. Herty's Dream Come True

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 10. (AP)—Pine pulp manufacturing, culling forests long cropped only for naval stores and lumber, has come of age in the south.

Paper making archives a festival debut in a four-day exposition of entertainment and education opening here Sunday, April 16.

In a region where cotton, tobacco, peach and citrus festivals abound in season—combining aspects of mart and mardi gras—inauguration of the "first annual southern paper festival" is significant.

Commercial, civic and government agencies are back of it, welcoming the industry as another diversion from the cotton economy.

Influenced by experiments of a southern scientist, southern pine pulp plants have grown to represent investments estimated by Festival D. G. Moon at $200,000,000.

Dr. Charles H. Herty was the scientist. He died last July 27.

With trees growing quickly to maturity, from red clay hills to coastal lowlands, foresters forecast an endless supply under proper conservation methods for bags, boxes, wrapping paper and news print, without denudation.

Moon reported 13 new paper mills, representing an investment of more than $100,000,000 had been located in the southeast since 1935.

He estimated the new mills and 31 older ones in the section provided employment for 40,000 men. There are 90,000,000 acres of pine in eight southern states.

One carload of logs will produce about 20 tons of news print.

Herty pioneered project.

Dr. Herty, engaged in forestry research since 1892, established his own laboratory here in 1931. He demonstrated newsprint could be manufactured from southern slash pine at a cost of about $32 a ton, a saving of approximately $10 a ton over the price for Canadian paper. In addition, the Herty laboratory produced rayon from semi-hardwoods and discovered a cheap, easy way of extracting fats from pine trees which offered two new by-product industries.

Extraction of the fat made it possible for the first time to make fine grades of bond and book paper from southern trees. The fat was found to be useful for making soap and paint.

Dr. Herty was honored as a principal factor in development of the southern paper industry at ceremonies opening a $9,000,000 kraft paper mill in Fernandina, Fla., early in 1938.

Erection of a $6,000,000 news print manufacturing plant was started at Lufkin, Tex., this year by the Southland Paper Mills, Inc., with production expected to begin by Jan. 1, 1940. Southern newspaper publishers contracted for the first five years' output.

The festival program includes industrial exhibitions depicting various uses of paper products, pageants based upon the 2,000-year history of paper, costume parades with floats, military and naval reviews and sporting events.

A meeting of the Southern Paper Trades Association will be part of the program, Monday, April 17. That evening the "King and Queen of Papyrus" will be ceremoniously crowned before a court of a dozen "royal princesses" selected by southern youths.

Technical problems of the industry will be dealt with at a meeting of the Southern States Pulp and Paper Club.

the corn was drowned out and must be replanted. Farmers in that area have added livestock and poultry to their cotton operations.

Some Dallas county farmers will be unable to plant for a week because of wet ground.

In Denton and Grayson counties, corn was up to a good stand, land well prepared for cotton and moisture abundant.

Out in central West Texas, around San Angelo, Abilene and Big Spring, lack of moisture curtailed planting. Cotton was not due to go into the ground before late in April.

Oats grazing was contemplated in Tom Green county but rain was needed to make a crop. Wheat prospects were poor. A 20 per cent increase in stock raising was forecast.

Animals In Demand

In Taylor county and surrounding territory lack of moisture had virtually voided the small grain crop and not all allotted wheat acreage was to be planted because lack of fall rains prevented.

Practically all farmers of that section were in the livestock business and the demand for purebred animals was the greatest in history.

Scattered areas were in Sudan grass and some corn was up in Howard county where only about one-fourth of the crop land had sufficient seeding. Grasshopper damage was feared again this year.

In the south plains, around Lubbock, land mostly was ready for planting which normally begins late in April with half the grain sorghums going in followed by the cotton-crop and the balance of the grain sorghums.

Last fall ten to 20 per cent of wheat planted in that area was blown out or planted dry and failed to come up. Much barley, rye and oats were put in this acreage. Cattle feeders did well, averaging $10 to $30 a head increase on weight. Much feeding was predicted there next fall.

Northward from Plainview to Pampa in the Panhandle moisture presaged the best conditions in years for cotton planting.

Hale county reported more livestock being fed but no increase in stock raising on farms.

A slight increase in livestock production and more interest in feeding was reported in Gray county.

The Elephant Towers at the Golden Gate Exposition are as high as a 12-story skyscraper, and equal in area at the base to a full city block.
