PITTSBURGH TRAFFIC 'INFORMERS' ARE CUTTING THE ACCIDENT TOLL

By NEA Service.

PITTSBURGH, April 7.—No matter where or when you violate a traffic regulation in Pittsburgh, you can never be sure that you are getting away with it.

There may be no police car in sight. But there is a good chance that you are being noted by one of 600 "traffic observers."

The system of volunteer "observers" who report violations to a central bureau seen to be working. Since it was introduced in 1930 by the Better Traffic Committee, a city-subsidized agency, records show that its activities have run parallel to a constantly falling accident toll.

Traffic Spies. The committee invites citizens to become observers. Accepting, he or she is assigned a number by the committee, and given a credential card. Form cards on which to report observed violations are then provided.

Names of the observers are not made public, and are known only to the traffic committee, which identifies the reports by the number of the observer.

When such an observer sees a car weaving wildly in traffic, passing a standing street-car, speeding, pulling out from the curb without a driver's signal, crashing a light, or cutting across traffic lanes in a dangerous manner, he notes the license number.

Then, on a printed report card he records the number, the offense, makes any additional remarks, jots down his own number as observer, and mails the card to the committee.

Police Request. The committee checks the number of the offending car and mails a polite form letter to the owner, asking his co-operation in making Pittsburgh traffic safer.

Then the report is noted on a card, which is kept for each car. It carries on one side the reports from observers, and on the other a listing from police records of any accidents in which the driver may have been involved.

Six thousand such warning letters go out each year to owners whose cars have been reported as offending. Less than one per cent yield replies from owners who are angry at having been "spied on."

Many return answers saying that they themselves had not been driving their cars at the time reported, and that they had warned chauffeurs, wives, sons, or daughters who were. Most replies indicate that the

them a choice between a polite warning, top, and a summons to court, lower.

warning is effective, promising more care in the future.

When a letter is returned containing a reasonable excuse, the committee usually does not mark the offense on the record.

Index Evidence.

In a great file are cards on 50,000 drivers who have been reported since the organization began work. These "accident proneness" cards have been used as evidence against the drivers in traffic court.

Magistrates sometimes mete out heavier sentences against drivers charged with a traffic offense if his Better Traffic Committee card shows that he has been reported by observers in the past.

Many unfit drivers have been weeded out. When a driver has been repeatedly reported by observers, police make him undergo a physical examination. Cases of bad eyesight and physical disabilities have been uncovered, and either treatment or revocation of licenses followed.

The system has been so successful that it is being constantly broadened.

Observers also are given cards on which to report observed cases of outstanding courtesy, and the committee then mails out a form letter of praise, winning a new friend and ally in the safety campaign.

The magnificent pompadors of the Gibson Girl era were possible by the use of "rats" made from cat's hair and the tails and manes of wild horses.

THERE are a lot of things about this Buick any wide-awake-to-value buyer ought to know, but one especially important point is this: Many an item you'll pay extra for elsewhere is included in Buick's eye-opening prices!

No other car, for instance, gives you the Flash-Way direction signal for signaling turns by a mere touch of a switch.

Few have locks on both front doors—or a light in the luggage compartment—or automatic electric lighters in the dash—or ash receivers as numerous and as handy.

And where else may you have your choice of wide running boards or narrow—or get a gas-saving economy gear just for the asking?

gives you the extra silkiness of the Dynaflex valve-in-head straight-eight engine—none has quite the comfort of the BuickCoil "full float" ride.

Naturally, it's the smart white-tie look of this Buick, its agile stepping and wide-paned outlook that are causing most of the talk.

But look into the good news about "extras"—and you'd spot this honey as the car and the value of the year even without its beauty and its brilliance!

So why not ask your dealer now to quote current prices? They're lower than a year ago, lower than you'd expect, lower even than on some sixes!

Housekeeping Aide Project House Improved

Improvements have been made during the past week on the house-keeping aide project house, 111 East A. st., in line with making the residence the model structure it is to be.

The front yard has been landscaped, a spot selected for the planting of flowers, and another for the location of a garden. The latter will have a cold frame and be sub-irrigated, in accordance with suggestions made in a recent lecture to project workers by Mrs. Julia E. Kelley, Gray county home demonstration agent.

For the house itself, it is planned to convert the room now used for a sewing room into a nursery, remodel the bedroom, construct a bed, remake chairs, decide on a definite color scheme. Rugs may be dyed to match other furnishings.

At the center day program, held Thursday, the project members worked on their uniforms, reviewed the first aid course in which they had been instructed by Tom Ekerd, Pampa assistant fire chief, and studied cooking.

The center day programs are given weekly. These programs, the women learn facts on cooking, sewing, general housework, home improvement, repairs to chairs, screens and steps, health and child care-training.

In cooking, the women learn to use what they have on hand to eliminate the necessity of extra expense. At the center day session last week, the women learned how to prepare a venal pot pie and to make a salad from grapefruit. The grapefruit was from the commodity warehouse and was already on hand at the project center.

For the period March 17-April 17, the women employed on the project sided 115 families. These families totaled 946 persons.

A summary of the total number of hours spent by the project workers, from October last year up to the present, shows the following: housework, 4,397; care of infants and small children, 635; cooking for all members of families, but especially for convalescents and children, 370; washing and ironing, 391; renovating, clothing, 457; care of sick, 1,092; repairing and construction of furniture, 65 hours.

This work was done for 676 families containing a total of 2,339 persons. Aides worked in homes a total of 4,896 hours, and spent 3,812 hours in travel, according to figures compiled by Ruby Lee Springer, project superintendent. There are 12 women and one man employed on the project. The man serves as carpenter and gardener.

Lamesan Killed And 4 Others Injured

BIG SPRING, April 22 (AP)—W. C. Lamesan, 79, of Lamesa was fatally injured and four members of his family received injuries when the car in which they were riding collided with a truck on the highway eight miles north of here today.

Mr. Lamesan, sixth traffic victim in Howard county this year, succumbed in a local hospital a few hours after the mishap.

Under treatment in the hospital were his wife, Mrs. W. C. Lamesan; Johnny Lane, a son, gin manager and business manager of the Lamesa baseball club of the West Texas-New Mexico baseball league; Mrs. Lee Burger, a daughter, and Marvin Lane, a grandson and son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lane of Lamesa.

None was believed critically hurt, although Mrs. Burger remained in a semi-conscious condition. Paul Milan and Eugene Long, occupants of the truck, escaped with minor injuries.

The Lanes were en route from Lamesa to Big Spring, to pick up another relative, and proceed to Kerens, where they planned to attend a church anniversary celebration.

Nearly all the horse hair used in mattresses and furniture upholstery is obtained from the tails and manes of wild and semi-wild horses in South America.

Endeavor To Present Program This Evening

"Rubbing Elbows" is the program topic to be discussed at the meeting of young people's Endeavor of First Christian church this evening with Marjorie Whipple as leader.

Taking part on the program will be Dorothy Southard, Avis Heiskell, Cassie Lee Cheaser, and Walter Haynes.

The group will have open house at the church on Monday evening at 7:45 o'clock and a man on the street broadcast will be featured. At a meeting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Madeira last week, plans were made for a banquet to be given May 2 in the basement and the devotional was given on "Examining Ourselves" by the hostess.

In a recent session new officers were named for the Endeavor. They are: Wayne Hutchins, president; and Sylvia Goodwin, secretary and treasurer.

Refreshments were served to Fern Black, Dorothy Southard, Marjorie Whipple, Cassie Lee Cheaser, Avis Heiskell, Lorene Golden, Anita Summers, Sylvia Goodwin, Valerie Pointer, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy John, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tinsley, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lamb, Bob Wentworth, and C. T. Hightower.

Baker Students Win in Picture Memory Contest

Pupils of B. M. Baker school scored an average of 96.5 per cent to take first place in the ward school picture memory contest, held Thursday at Woodrow Wilson school.

Horace Mann scored second with 94.2 per cent; Woodrow Wilson, third, 93.4, and Sam Houston, fourth, with 92.5 per cent.

In individual scoring, Donald Up-ton of Baker was high with a grade of 99, and Elva Jean Anderson, also of Baker, second with 96. Tied for third place were Novida Kellough, Leon Crump, and Bonnie Roberts, all of Baker, and Helen Massey of Horace Mann.

All of the teams were from the fourth and fifth grades and were tested on the names of 30 pictures, their painters, and their nationalities.

Baker, Horace Mann, and Sam Houston each had 10 on their teams, while Woodrow Wilson's team numbered nine.

Teachers assisting in the contest were Maxine McKinney, Woodrow Wilson; Hazel Wilson, Sam Houston; Mrs. Bob Curry, Horace Mann; Bernice Larsh, and Leisora Giles, Baker.

Pampa Kiwanis Captures Award Over 30 Cities

The Pampa Kiwanis club was notified Saturday that it is the winner of the 1938 Achievement Award in competition with 30 other cities in the Silver Division of the Texas-Oklahoma Kiwanis International district.

Announcement of the award was contained in a letter from G. Curtis Clark, of Corpus Christi, governor of the Texas-Oklahoma district.

The distinction given to the Pampa Kiwanis club is for the best-balanced all-around Kiwanis program during the year of 1938.

Particular congratulations for the honor were given to James B. Massa who served as president in 1938 and to the officers and committeemen who served under him for the year.

The club program for the year included activities in boys and girls work, public affairs, scouting, safety, religious education, schools, civic and various other activities.

At the same time announcement was made that the Amarillo Kiwanis club had won the high award in the Gold Division which brings both top honors of the Texas-Oklahoma Kiwanis district to the Texas Panhandle in the same year.

At Friday's regular weekly luncheon of the civic club the program was given in an inter-club session by members of the Tulsa Kiwanis club, T. M. Nichols and Sam Harris engaged in a debate on the merits of a sales tax, and Henry Tubel spoke on diversified agriculture.

Others in the Tulsa delegation were John F. Nichols, and Sam Harris. Visitors at the luncheon included four Amarillo Kiwanians, L. M. Grow, J. W. Barr, Al Williams, and Milton Cox; Jack Davis, Oklahoma City; Dan Gribbon, Sherman; White, Rev. Charles A. Knapp, Robert Miller, and G. D. Ferguson, all of Pampa.

GOP Works For Reenactment Of Neutrality Act

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—Working quietly, some influential Republicans in the senate have begun a movement for a "compromise" of the current neutrality controversy which would leave the present law unchanged.

Disclosing this today, one of the group said their view had been aptly expressed in the statement this week by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, ranking minority member of the for-sign relations committee, that the temper of the public made the time inappropriate for framing permanent neutrality legislation, and put another way, that the present act should not be changed at this time.

There were indications, meantime, that the administration was ready to press for a showdown on the question of changing the law. Chairman Pittman, democrat, Nevada, of the senate foreign relations committee said that Hugh S. Johnson, newspaper columnist and former NRA administrator, would testify Monday and that the committee would begin hearings on afterward and begin consideration of proposed changes. The committee did not meet today.

Legislative leaders expressed the opinion that the discussion of the neutrality problem already had narrowed the possible outcome to a choice between two propositions. These alternatives, they said, were: The adoption of Pittman's amendments under which American markets would be wide open to all belligerent nations, with the restriction that they pay cash and that their purchases not be transported in American ships.

Oil Exposition To Open At Houston

HOUSTON, April 22 (AP)—The rich oil industry prepared tonight for the grand opening Monday of one of its biggest annual shows—the Oil World Exposition.

Scattered over a vast hall, the industry has amassed $18,000,000 worth of equipment to be shown some 200,000 visitors expected during the six-day show.

The tools and machinery on display, will cover all branches of the petroleum industry from the time geological prospecting starts until the final product is refined and offered on the market.

Oil men visiting the show will have an opportunity to attend meetings in which operating methods developed in fields and plants will be discussed.

Ed G. Lenzner, general manager of the show, said the greatest number of foreign visitors in the history of the show had made reservations.

News Ad Men Go To Meet In Oklahoma

Five members of The Pampa News advertising department staff left last night for Oklahoma City where they will attend today the one-day session of the Oklahoma Press Association of Advertising Managers.

E. B. Tracey, News' advertising manager, will address the association this afternoon on the topic, "Making Small Ads Profitable."

Other members of the News advertising staff at the meeting are Wayne Phelps, Edward C. Pohl, Dillon Holt, and Elton Lathrop.

Texas Filly Wins

PAWTUCKET, R. I., April 22 (AP)—An upset triumph by the Texas filly Be Blue, making her first start of the year, in the $5,000-added spring handicap today marked the opening of New England's 172-day racing season before a 35,000 crowd at Narragansett Park.

The Department of Agriculture estimates wildlife in the United States is worth $350,000,000 a year in controlling insects.

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—With news inspiration lacking, both at home and abroad, the stock market today shuffled over a narrow trail at the slowest pace in 10 months.

Declines, indifferent at the start, frequently were at the standard in the grid proceedings. Transfers totaled only 154, 900 shares against 660,300 a week ago. It was the lowest turnover since June 15, last year. The week's volume of 4,282,400 shares was also a low figure since June.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down 1.4 of a point at 44.2. On the week the composite showed a net loss of 2.7 of a point.

Minor gains predominated at the opening, but these were transformed into negligible declines in many cases at the finish. In the two hours only 485 individual issues changed hands. Of these 169 were down, 138 up and 153 unchanged.

Traders were inclined to leave the market to its own devices partly because of the fact European crisis have had a way of developing over week-ends. While less apprehension was evident over a potentiality abroad, many commission house customers were disposed to maintain a close state pending Hitler's expected answer next week to Roosevelt peace proposals.

There were a few new favorable business news items, including a summary of the automobile manufacturers association disclosing a jump in first quarter motor sales of some 40 per cent over the same 1938 period.

School Head Warns Against Propaganda

America as a haven for the broken bits of European civilization was described in a speech by Ernest Cabe, Pampa Junior High School principal at a Father and Son banquet at 7:30 o'clock Friday night at the American Legion hut.

Mr. Cabe was the principal speaker on the program given by the Kerley-Crossman squadron of the Sons of the American Legion. The meal was prepared and served by members of the American Legion Auxiliary and the Junior auxiliary.

"The time may not be far distant," Mr. Cabe said, "when Europe may destroy itself. America may be the last democracy to survive. To us will then come the remnants of that war, to add what remains of what is fine in their civilization to ours, and to find a heaven here."

Propaganda More Subtle

Propaganda of 1917 and of 1939 was compared by Mr. Cabe. He described the way Americans were deluded and gradually pushed into the World War, told of the increased efficiency of propaganda today, and declared that America is in more danger of being submerged by it today than two decades ago.

The American Legion was praised as an organization that still held fast to the ideals of Woodrow Wilson, who looked forward to the world Wilson would have created, despite the disillusionment ex-service men experienced in seeing that they had not fought a war to end all wars.

Emphasizing the need of vigilance to preserve democracy, the speaker mentioned the handful who voted in a recent election. "This is only a small thing, perhaps, but it is by doing these simple things, such as voting that our democracy exists," Mr. Cabe said.

He contrasted the relationship between fathers and sons in Russia, Italy, and Germany, where the state intervenes, and in America where children are not pawns of the nation and families are not separated by methods of the state.

Interlocking Generations

The error of referring to "my generation" and "the new generation" was refuted in another of the speaker's remarks. He cited the fact that America was built by both young and old. In the American Revolution, he said, the armies of this nation were composed of soldiers ranging from 15 to 65. The Constitution was written by men of from 27 to 65, and serving in the first Congress were men from 25 to 28 years old.

James Washington, Jr., captain of Kerley-Crossman squadron, presided at the banquet, with Billy Winchester, squadron program committee chairman, introducing speakers and making announcements.

Brief talks were made by Joe Roche, chairman of the post's Sons of the American Legion committee, R. L. Franks, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Charlie Maisel, district commander of the American Legion.

The invocation was given by Paul D. Hill, post chaplain, and grand ammonier of the 40 and 8.

Attendance at the banquet, including Legionnaires, Sons of the American Legion, American Legion auxiliary, and Junior auxiliary, and guests, was 90.

Judgment In 2 Cases Filed In Court Here

Judgments in two cases, one a compensation case, the other a damage suit, were filed in district court here this week-end.

Saturday, District Judge W. E. Ewing approved an agreed judgment and stipulation in the case of A. C. Lamar vs. the Travelers Insurance Co. whereby plaintiff receives $200 with interest at 6 per cent per annum, and costs of suit. The action was based on injuries received by the plaintiff on December 8, 1938, while he was in the employ of Boh Brothers Construction Co. An Industrial Accident Board ruling of January 24, 1939, is set aside.

On Friday, Judge Ewing approved a compromise agreement in the case of Vivian Manson, individually and as next friend, vs. Gibson Machine & Tool, et al.

Under the terms of the judgment, Mrs. Manson receives a total of $3,000, allotted $2,000 to Mrs. Manson and $500 each to Tommy and Colla Jo Manson.

The suit was for damages claimed as the result of an automobile collision eight miles east of Lefors May 15, 1938 on the McLean road, in which Joseph Thomas Manson,

SERIAL STORY

BORDER ADVENTURE

BY OREN ARNOLD

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday Betty sends a letter to the subject, telling them of her discovery that a woman and child are involved in smuggling. Then she states that she is safe.

CHAPTER XIV

BETTY MARY deduced accurately that El Casino Tecolote and The Place of the Sleeping Monk, two establishments with excellent music and excellent cuisine, really were Luis Barro's favorite hang-outs when he was in Juárez. But, he appeared to have business out of town a great deal of the time. Betty liked The Place of the Sleeping Monk better. It was quieter than the first spot. It did not have a big gambling room adjoining. It seemed to enjoy a better class of customers from among the many tourists who came across from El Paso.

A detail too was the fact that Luis Barro had ordered the proprietor and employees there to "show Señorita Jordan every possible courtesy whenever she comes in." She discovered that his order meant she could never pay her check, nor indeed pay for anything, despite the meticulous service they gave her. In a way she didn't like this, but in her capacity of detective she knew it was a valuable lead.

By sketching there often, and eating there at least once a day, she struck up a nominal friendship with the manager who sat in the cashier's booth. The fifth day of her stay in Mexico, she picked a moment in mid-morning when the place was almost empty and when Luis Barro had not been around for more than a day, then opened her purse in the cashier-manager's presence.

"Oh, dear, I must have left my compact in the hotel," she lamented. "As a woman would, she dished out all manner of purse trinkets. Lipstick. Handkerchief. Pencils. Coin purse. Note pad. Tiny scissors. Nail file. A snapshot of her father. Mirror. And a .22 caliber rifle cartridge. She called his attention to the cartridge silently with her eyes.

Instantly the man turned to his cash register and pressed a button. "Cling-clang!" the machine sounded, and a "No Sale" sign popped up. From a drawer he calmly took a .22 cartridge of his own, fingered it a moment for her to see, dropped it back and closed the drawer. Betty Mary felt her pulse quicken. This was the third person today to whom she had exhibited her cartridge, and this time it had worked. The other two, a waiter and the traffic policeman outside El Casino, had shown no response. "You—you are one of us," she murmured, tentatively. "No one is near, but is best not to talk too much in a public place," he suggested. "Luis gets careless, I think. He is too sure of himself." "He is quite capable," Betty Mary said. "Of a certain, senatorial But caution is always good."

"Surely, señor. I am, uh, new in his organization, as you doubtless know?" "Don Luis never speaks to me of his helpers," the cashier said. "I am interested in narcotics," she said quite frankly. "I know where perhaps a cargo worth a hundred thousand can be had. Cheap."

"A hundred thousand pesos? For how much?" "No, dollars. American dollars. For a tenth of that. Can—can Don Luis send it safely across? Do you think I should tell him where he might contact this cargo? I do not wish to—uh, interfere too much in his plans and affairs. He might not even be interested in narcotics now. Therefore I have helped only with aliens."

"Hah! Señorita is indeed new with the grand one! He is sent in more contraband chemicals than men. He ships it in sacks of beans. He ties it on the underside of freight cars that cross on the railroad. He even has little boys transfer it to the American side when they go wading in the Rio Grande! He is the smart one, this Don Luis!" "Then when I am sure I can get the new cargo for him, I will tell him." Betty Mary was not looking at the man, lest her eyes reveal something of the excitement she felt. "A deal of this size should be profitable to us all." "He would send it by submarine, no doubt. It is the safest way."

Cost, up to California? Hardly that, she knew; it would be far too expensive as well as impractical. Well, it was not yet noon. She could cross to El Paso and contact Sheridan and Hope about it. She hadn't been there in three days, she could legitimately go and call at an art store, a restaurant, then a picture show, without losing her front of being a tourist on leisurely vacation. Tourists did cross back and forth every day.

DURING these last few days, Sheridan Starr and Hope Kill-dare had asked for duty at the international bridge where they could be near if Betty Mary needed them, and also be on the lookout for the woman smuggling dope. The woman who, Betty Mary's letter had hinted, worked with a child.

It was their task to inspect every vehicle that crossed during their shift on duty. They must investigate everything that looked suspicious, must inspect passports, pry into packages, question foreigners, on every street car and automobile that came along their bridge. It was a task that required constant alertness.

They saw the Tafoya woman every day and studied her covertly each time. She had a little girl perhaps five years of age, named Angelina. Angelina invariably carried her doll, sometimes a teddy bear, sometimes a big teddy bear.

"She's been arrested and searched twice," Hope kept muttering about her. "And yet they didn't find anything on either mother or girl. We must be on the wrong track somehow."

"That kid's cute," Sherry ventured, the fourth morning of the vigil. "Always cuddles a doll; has a new one every time she comes over—SA-A-A-A! My lord, Hopey!"

"Huh? What's hit you?" "Sa-a-ay! Didn't you tell me you held that little kid's doll one day while the matron was searching her and her mother? Didn't you?" "Yeah. But what—?"

"Well listen, Hopey, that kid has had a new doll almost every day! But my little nieces back home, they clung mostly to just one doll, had a favorite they liked to 'ag around! That Tafoya woman—'d little Angelina's new dolls—!" "Who—e-ew!" breathed Hope, in sudden understanding. They confiscated more than a gallon of the little cocaine capsules used for doll stuffing, when they arrested Mrs. Tafoya and daughter next morning for the third time. The size capsule that retails sub rosa for about $2 each.

Mexican Red Bean Smugglers Keep U. S. Border Patrolmen Hopping

By OREN W. CLEMENTS, Associated Press Staff. Once upon a time smugglers slipped into Texas cars old wines, cigars, spices, and fine cloth. Now they are smuggling red beans. Mexican smugglers keep Uncle Sam's border patrolmen hopping day and night to keep down the traffic in beans across the border. The reason: Mexican frijoles are a delicacy that make the American stomach water. The American red bean and the Mexican frijole are as different as tempered steel from brass. The U. S. A. has placed a high duty on Mexican red beans to protect the red bean growers over here. The duty is three cents a pound, which is about all the frijoles are worth of anybody's money. To escape this duty, and, maybe for the thrill of outwitting the law, certain individuals residing in Mexico shoulder a sack of beans and swim the Rio Grande at night. This nefarious business, border patrolmen say, nets the Mexican smugglers a few pennies, provided they are not caught. It is always open season on smugglers along the Rio Grande. The fatter striving for material gain in this world of jazz and the trickle of coins is worse than an epidemic of woodpeckers. There once was a time when the smuggler prided himself on his wares. Now he slips in with sheep, goats, beef, mules, and red beans. It is an ever changing world. Since President Cardenas outlawed gambling in Mexico and the United States reinstated alcoholic spirits, the Texas-Mexican border hot spots are slowly going to pot. About all the border towns have to offer American tourists these days are wild fowl and game dinners, and a sort of chili that trails far behind the Texas brand. Chili, as Texans know and eat it, is not obtainable very far below the Rio Grande. It is strictly an American dish. The bars and curio shops attract a few tourists but most Americans heading south these days stop only long enough at the border to get a few Mexican pesos and a tourist card. Tourists take few pesos in the money exchange at border points because further south the American dollar buys even more Mexican dollars. Good roads in Mexico, especially the highway to Mexico City, are proving worth their weight in gold to the southern republic. In the tourist season, there is an average of 15,000 Americans a day in Mexico City. Even if they do get 4.00 pesos for one of their dollars, the Americans still drop plenty of coin with the Mexican merchants and hotel men.

you with a club when we get back to Texas."

The goatman stepped on the gas and the new automobile leaped ahead of the other cars. At the ferry, the goatman forgot how to stop the automobile and the three and the automobile shot across the ferry into the Rio Grande. When the tourist sobered up, two ranchers and a flock of men were hauling his automobile from the muddy river. The machines was practically ruined, but the ranchers, who were sobered by their bath, also, paid for all repairs on the machine and sent the stranger on his way. That's why the border is still an interesting place. Quien sabe?

Border Notebook: There is a gravestone in the Del Rio cemetery bearing the name of Judge Roy Bean, Law West of the Pecos. The same cemetery has a headstone bearing this epitaph: "As I was, you are now, as I am, you will soon be." Chief of Police Cole Blackwell of Del Rio writes visitors to his home town letters of introduction to Chief Trevino in Villa Acuna. The letters work, too. George Meyers of Del Rio owns the largest ranch in northern Mexico, 810,000 acres, just across the Rio Grande. Cowpunchers found a garden spot on the ranch the other day that they did not know existed. It contained palm trees and spring water and was hidden in a canyon. Have You Seen the Want Ads?
