The News is being assisted by the Lions Club of Pampa as co-sponsors.

Paintings Judged At Club Exhibit

The 103 entries in the art contest of the seventh district, Texas Federation of Women's clubs, attracted wide interest this year at the First Methodist church. Several hundred persons viewed the exhibit and the Pampa junior high school art students attend in a group. The fine arts department, with Mrs. F. M. Neal of Amarillo as art exhibit chairman, sponsored the exhibit, and Mrs. John V. Andrews, local chairman of exhibit arrangements, welcomed the visitors.

Ten oil paintings, judged the best of the exhibit, will be sent to the contest to be held in connection with the state convention. These were painted by Mrs. Maureen Bush of Amarillo, Ben C. Mead of Amarillo, Lenora Giles of Pampa, Mrs. Lillian H. Saunders of Amarillo, Cecil Foster of Sudan, Johnnie Edwards of Amarillo, Mrs. A. B. House To Take Up Sales Levy This Afternoon

AUSTIN, May 2 (AP)—The House voted today to begin floor work at 3 p. m. on the sales-natural resource tax constitutional amendment proposed three weeks ago by the Senate.

A motion to take up the resolution out of regular order prevailed, 86 to 38. A two-thirds majority is needed. The proposal must garner 100 of a possible 150 House votes in order to be submitted to the people August 19.

The proposed constitutional change would impose a 2 per cent tax on retail sales and gas, light and phone bills and boost natural resource levies 25 per cent.

Should the House approve it, the measure probably would be in such form conference committee work would be necessary to adjust differences between the legislative branches.

Top O' Texas Boys To Race Here In July

Pampa News To Sponsor Event With Aid Of Lions' Club

The Pampa News is happy today to publish one of the most important announcements ever made for boys between the ages of ten and 15 years, inclusive, in all the Top O' Texas area.

This newspaper will sponsor jointly with newspapers throughout the United States the now-famous Soap Box Derby which will be held at Akron, Ohio, next Aug. 13.

In taking part in this national program, The Pampa News, assisted by its co-sponsors, The Pampa Lions Club, will conduct its own Derby race at Pampa about the middle of July, and then send the local area champion to compete in the national finals at Akron.

The first thing that every boy in any city, town or community in the Top O' Texas area should do is to register and get an application blank and a rule book. That must be done first. No entries can be made without consent of parent or guardian.

Registration may be made with Luther N. Wagon, official Derby registrar, who has set up a Derby race office at the Culbertson-Smalling Chevrolet agency in Pampa.

Boys Build Own Cars Derby racers are gravity-powered cars built by the boys themselves. The rules set certain restrictions on weight and dimensions, and specify certain types of wheels and brakes, the main purpose of these restrictions being to assure safety for drivers and on-lookers, and equal opportunity to all boys regardless of their family's circumstances.

No car may cost more than $10 to build, and no adult may assist in its construction, except by giving advice. Professionally built cars, or entries involving processes specifically barred by the rules, will be disqualified.

The top prize for the winner of the Pampa Soap Box Derby, of course, will be the all-expense trip to the national finals at Akron. In addition there will be many other worthwhile prizes for the local first, second, and third place winners in two classes, A and B. The Pampa winner also will receive a silver trophy. Then, too,

Cox To Direct High School Reaper Bands

Believing that better bands can be developed under one director, giving his full time to band work, the Pampa school board last night in a called session elected A. C. Cox director of the junior high and high school bands for 1939-40.

Mr. Cox has been director of the Junior High school band for the past five years and his bands have been high ranking in contests. Mr. Cox will devote his entire time to teaching music.

Winston Savage, present high school band director, will become principal of Sam Houston school next September.

Plans for organizing a combined junior high and high school orchestra was approved by the board and Herbert Miller was named director. Mr. Miller is now band director at Akron.

Jail Prisoners, Teletypes And P. O. Cat-Walk Impress Students

Sixth grade pupils at Sam Houston school who made a tour of interesting places in Pampa last Thursday were deeply impressed by some of the things they saw on their educational hop around the city.

John Robert Lane was courted, where the children were shown thru all offices and were taken to the fourth floor for a look at the county jail.

"There was the dark cell," said John Robert, "where the real mean ones are kept." He also was impressed by the fact that he saw a 17-year-old boy in jail, put there for alleged car theft.

The federal post office was the highlight of the trip to Brent Blankvist Jr., who learned that approximately $8,000 worth of stamps are sold monthly, and that an average of 7,000 letters are mailed daily at the Pampa office.

Coralie Brandon was fascinated by the teletype machines she saw when the class visited The Pampa News.

Young Miss Brandon said: "We saw a man casting a cartoon for use in the day's paper. He made it out of hot metal which he poured on a paper mat."

Gene Lane was another who enjoyed the courthouse visit. He said that when the pupils visited the jail, the prisoners joked with them and pulled the girls' hair when they got too near the cell bars.

Earnest Searle expressed a great deal about the new city waterworks system. He found that each pump delivers 750 gallons of water per minute, and that the water wells are 400 feet deep with 80 feet of water sand.

New List Of Nazis Ordered To Get Going

Germany Retaliates By Ordering Three Englishmen Home

LONDON, May 2 (AP)—London newspapers said today they had learned that the British home office, in conjunction with Scotland Yard, intended soon to expel "more than 50 Nazi agents" from England.

Some of them, said the Star, are newspapermen, but "it is not their newspaper work but their activities in connection with Nazi organizations that is suspected."

The expulsion orders followed extensive investigation of activities of Nazi organizations throughout the united kingdom.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons that Britain wants "to conclude an agreement with Soviet Russia" but we must discuss what is the best form.

At the same time she proceeded with her measure for conscription by tackling delicate questions raised with Ireland by that step, and pursued her negotiations of European alliances—two indications that Adolf Hitler had not changed Britain's policy by his Reichstag speech of last Friday.

The home office disclosed it had sent to the German embassy a new list of Nazis living in Britain who were not wanted here because of their "individual activities."

Some sources declared each person in the list had been ordered to leave the country within a fortnight.

The development followed promise of Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare April 6 that Nazi activities in Britain would be closely watched and the announcement steps were being taken against three members of Nazi organizations in London.

It was learned these three members, who already have left Britain, were the head of the Nazi party in the united kingdom, O. G. Karlows; his second in command, E. F. Himmler; and Frau Ina Anna Joana Wolf, an official of a Nazi travel organization.

Sir Samuel's promise was made in the House of Commons when questions were asked about activities of the woman who was alleged to have sent intimidating letters to other German residents in Britain.

Britishers Ordered Home No details of the new list were known except that it included Dr. Gottfried Rosel, correspondent of the national Zeitung of Essen, a newspaper closely connected with Field Marshal Hermann Goering. Expulsion of Dr. Rosel was announced yesterday.

(Hitler's newspaper Volkischer Beobachter said the list contained nine names and hinted at German reprisals.)

Berlin countered the first three expulsions by ordering three British business men who had been living in Germany for years to pack up and leave.

10 Million Traitors In U. S., Says Dies

HOLLYWOOD, May 2 (AP)—Martin L. Dies, representative from Texas, charged last night in an address in Hollywood bowl that between eight and ten million residents of this country are allied with subversive groups seeking to tear down the government.

A crowd estimated in newspaper reports at between 25,000 and 30,000 heard him charge "all the 'isms' practiced in Europe today are new wolves in old clothing, the development of state over the individual; actually a return to pagan philosophy."

"We must not sit idly by and be another Czechoslovakia, our society honeycombed by attacks of statism—my word for the various forms of dictatorship now practiced in the totalitarian state of . . . Germany, Italy, Spain and Russia," Dies declared.

WPA Rolls To Be Cut 7,320 In May SAN ANTONIO, May 2 (AP)—A reduction of 7,320 persons will be made in the Texas Works Progress administration rolls for the month of May, it was announced today by Al Mellinger, state director of public information of the WPA.

Public Library Active For Past Eleven Years

By MRS. JAMES TODD Pampa Public Library has gone a long way in the last eleven years. From 1928-1932 it was governed by a Library Association and was financed by donations and benefits sponsored by the association with the aid of the various women's clubs and organizations. During the terms of the association administration, James Todd and Mrs. B. E. Finley served two years as president.

January 1, 1932, the library went on a taxation basis and a library board was appointed by the City Commission. At that time for one year Mrs. Bernice Whiteley served as president, from 1933 up to the present time Mrs. C. P. Buckler has been president of the board, and was re-elected at the January meeting to serve as president for another year.

The club women of Pampa held many meetings prior to a call to meet on Saturday, February 18, 1938, of committees from the churches, women's clubs, and civic organizations at the Christian church parsonage for the purpose of organizing the work to secure a library for Pampa.

After some general discussion as to the kind of library to be established, and as to various methods of ways and means, it was voted that a Library Association be formed from the committees received. The organization of Pampa, that the officers of the association be elected from these committees.

From these committees James Todd was chosen as president; Mrs. H. D. Lewis, first vice-president; Mrs. B. E. Finley, second vice-president; Mrs. Tom Eller, third vice-president; and Mrs. William Gray, fourth vice-president; Mrs. J. D. Sugg, recording secretary; and David E. Cecil, treasurer.

On April 13 the executive committee of the library association met and asked for all desirable types of books to be given to form a nucleus for the beginning of a library. Cash donations were asked to be sent to the treasurer.

For May 10 a games benefit was planned to be held at the Schneider hotel. For each dollar taken in at this benefit, Godfrey Cabot of Boston, president of the local Cabot company, said he would personally donate a dollar up to one thousand dollars. Through benefits and gifts the association raised eight hundred dollars.

The library was about to become a reality; the association with the aid of the various clubs and organizations had worked hard on the project. The Methodist church donated a room on the main floor and it was equipped with shelves, reading tables and about one thousand dollars worth of books, including standard references.

The formal opening was held February 12, 1929 at eight o'clock in the Methodist church, almost a year from the date of the organization. Nearly every seat was taken in the auditorium, more than 800 people being present. The late Charles C. Cook was the chairman of the program. Those present were shown around the library and a silver offering was taken which amounted to $419.76. A collection of 650 books had been catalogued and placed on the stacks by Miss Bernice Whiteley, English teacher of the high school, with the aid of a group of young ladies.

The various women's organizations furnished librarians for one week each, until a permanent librarian was employed. The reading room was open from 2 until 5 in the afternoon and from 7 until 9 in the evening.

Mrs. Lola Dorsey was the first paid librarian, serving for 15 months. The summer of 1930 there were 375 registered patrons. The library was moved from the Methodist church into a new location in the new city hall on the main floor, December 22, 1930. A drive was made for 2,000 members, membership cards costing one dollar.

The early spring of 1931 the Lions club circulated a petition asking for an election, placing the library on taxation. The petition bearing the names of 225 tax-paying citizens of Pampa was presented to the City Commission, asking that an election be called for the establishing and maintaining of a public library. That a tax of three cents on each hundred dollar valuation of all taxable property be levied and collected from year to year.

The election was held on May 10,

Larger Gardens Planted By Gray County Residents

Convinced that production of "family living" at home releases considerable cash for other farm needs, increased numbers of Gray county borrowers from the Farm Security administration have planted larger gardens this year. Vera R. Martin, FSA home supervisor for this county, said today. Last year one Gray county borrower family, which kept detailed accounts in its farm and home record book, reported $125.00 worth of food harvested from its garden. There is considerable interest among FSA clients this spring in breaking that record, Miss Martin said. Gardens were planted earlier than usual this year, according to the home supervisor, to permit as much earthing as possible to be done before drought threatens the vegetables. Last year one family of FSA borrowers in this county canned 902 quarts of vegetables for winter use, she said.

The Clubwoman Features Plans For Golden Jubilee

By MRS. H. H. DEAHL, Chairman of The Clubwoman How many club women of Seventh District have read the last issue of The Clubwoman, official publication of the General Federation of Women's Clubs? How many of you have not seen a copy of the magazine this year? A successful club woman must be well informed, and we cannot be really well informed unless we read our national magazine.

Are you aware of the great plans for the celebration of Golden Jubilee next year? These have been featured in detail in recent issues of The Clubwoman, and as the program takes shape, future issues of the magazine will keep you informed. Our Golden Jubilee subscription contest is now under way, and as Seventh District's chairman of The Clubwoman, I am especially anxious that we do our part in putting Texas at the top of the list in the contest. Our state chairman, Mrs. L. L. Blackburn, asks that each club president appoint a chairman to solicit subscriptions from members, after acquainting the club members with the importance of this publication. Subscriptions should be sent to general Federation of Women's Clubs, 1734 N. Street, N. W. Washington, D. C. To much faith should not be placed in automobile tire patches, since they seldom are as strong as the original material.

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP)—The stock market edged up the rallying camp today for gains of 1 to 3 points, but steam was lacking on the commodity and close-in prices were well under the best in many cases.

At the same time, Wall Street's hopes that the treasury's tax revision program would be a set-back when majority leader Senator Barkley indicated any broad alteration of income taxes was unlikely in the present session.

PANHANDLE

Once the cowboys played a joke on Uncle Charlie he took it in stride, and enjoyed it despite the injury he received.

The camp was down on McClellan creek and the boys were getting wood for the fires, and the way they got wood was to rope a dead tree and pull it down or rope a dead tree and pull it up and then drag it back to camp.

Uncle Charlie had his fun with the cooks before he became one himself. He knew what to expect and what to do and what not to do, just looking at Uncle Charlie you'd think that Williams, the fellow who draws the Out Our Way cartoons knew the Panhandle man.

PANHANDLE

Once the cowboys played a joke on Uncle Charlie he took it in stride, and enjoyed it despite the injury he received.

The camp was down on McClellan creek and the boys were getting wood for the fires, and the way they got wood was to rope a dead tree and pull it down or rope a dead tree and pull it up and then drag it back to camp.

Uncle Charlie had his fun with the cooks before he became one himself. He knew what to expect and what to do and what not to do, just looking at Uncle Charlie you'd think that Williams, the fellow who draws the Out Our Way cartoons knew the Panhandle man.

Who Should Pay Relief Costs?

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—A major controversy was developing in Congress today over the amount which states and cities should contribute toward cost of WPA projects.

In his brief message to Congress last week, President Roosevelt opposed setting up a fixed percentage for these contributions.

A special Senate committee, however, has approved a bill by Senator Byrnes (D-SC), its chairman, requiring state and local governments pay at least one-third of the cost.

Does College Pay?

That question has been asked by more and more anxious parents in recent years. Does it pay in dollars and cents, that is.

Best and strongest light ever thrown on the question, perhaps, now comes from a study by the U. S. Office of Education, which compiled data from 31 colleges, covering 46,000 alumni graduated between 1928 and 1935.

Here are some of the more interesting things revealed:

1. Of the men, 58 per cent, and of the women, 61 per cent have never been unemployed since graduation. Ninety-eight per cent of the men and 99 per cent of the women have never been on relief.

2. The average typical college man one year out of school is making about $1314 a year, and after eight years he has climbed to $2383. For women the average salaries were, first year $1092; eighth year $1906.

3. Nearly two-thirds of the graduates go into the professions, and after eight years about 19 per cent are owners or part owners of their business.

4. Of married alumni in the group surveyed, 57 per cent of the men, and 61 per cent of the women report no children. To 12,233 women graduates were born 7727 children; to 6359 women graduates were born 3463.

There's your picture. A young fellow goes to college. He graduates at about 22. He gets a job fairly quickly at about $25 a week. Not much, maybe, but better than the income of the average wage-earner.

That's pretty good proof that the pre-depression picture of the value of college has vanished. In those days it was: graduate, become a bond salesman, and make a million within five years.

Today the picture is less flamboyant and very much more realistic. The college degree today is no touchstone, no guarantee of monetary success. It never was.

The greatest value of the college diploma today, as always, must be sought in other places than the pocketbook, in other values than those which may be set down in a checkbook.

Another Birthday

Not long ago, the 50th birthday of Adolf Hitler was marked.

So great a stir it made, that another anniversary passed almost unnoticed a few days later. It was the 375th anniversary of the birth of William Shakespeare.

Yet there is reason to hope that when the clanking militarists and chest-thumping dictators have passed into mere shadows on the pages of history, Shakespeare will still stride onward, his stature undiminished in every domain where men still think and feel.

They will still read the words Shakespeare put in the mouth of Cassius and wonder how free men so long submitted to tyranny, Cassius:

"Why, man, he doth bestride the narrow world like a Colossus, and we petty men walk under his huge legs and peep about to find ourselves dishonorable graves."

THE GOVERNMENT'S FINANCES (Chicago Tribune)

A treasury department report shows that in the first 9 1/2 months of the fiscal year, which ends June 30, the government spent seven billion 188 million dollars. That is a record breaker for any like period in the Roosevelt administration by more than a billion and a quarter.

While spending has been on a more lavish scale than ever before, income has fallen off. In the 9 1/2 months collections of taxes were 425 millions less than last year. That was a decline of eight per cent.

With expenditures boosted to new heights and revenues falling off, the deficit for the fiscal year down to April 15 was the greatest for any like interval of Mr. Roosevelt's two administrations. Down to the middle of last year the government had spent 911 millions more than had been collected in taxes.

How long can any creditor sustain a debt of 40 billion dollars? Especially, can any debtor do that who is not reducing his obligations, but is adding to them at the rate of 2 1/2 billions per year?

Sharing The Comforts Of Life

EVENTUAL EFFECTS OF CASH PENSIONS A contributor inquires as to what I would do with those people who are not able to support themselves.

To those people who are not able to support themselves and had no relatives who were able to support them and no friends who were willing to support them, I would have the local government give them support in things and services they need and not give them money to let them use at their own discretion.

I believe it was free bread and free circuses that caused the downfall of the Roman Republic. When unproductive citizens come to believe that the frugal workers via government owes them the right to choose the kind of living they want as the self-supporting workers choose, then the incentive for work and savings is so greatly retarded there can be no accumulation of capital and hence no progress.

Every individual must try to support himself through his entire life. He must save in his productive years in order to do this and he must be permitted to have these savings to manage himself, even if some do lose or waste it. This freedom of choice in managing a man's savings is one of the best ways of educating the people as to the relative importance of things.

We made great progress when we followed the system of local direct relief without the pension method. Then we did not permit the wards to "look a gift horse in the mouth."

I believe there will be a great many people who will go through much greater hardships than the poor-house, if we continue the theory of such government interference with free enterprise as forced savings by pensions.

So when anyone believes the lot of the unfortunate, together with the lot of all of us, will be much worse than the poor-house because of interference with the right to have what a man produces when he produces it, because of pensions, one cannot help if he is at all honest but speak out against what he believes will be detrimental to society as a whole.

MACHINES BENEFITING CONSUMER—THE WORKERS

There is much confusion as to the effects of machines upon the working man. It seems many people believe that the machine, because it does more with a less amount of energy, hurts the worker by displacing him.

The point which the worker overlooks is, if this machine is not able to make the worker undersell the man without a machine, then the worker without a machine has nothing to fear; and if it undersells the man without a machine, then it benefits the customer, who is invariably a worker, and raises his real wages.

There are many families in which there is a tendency toward excessive thick eyebrows and long, thick eyelashes. Sometimes the styles favor thick eyebrows and long, thick eyelashes.

In many families there is a peculiar distribution of excess hair on the back or on the chest. All of these instances indicate, of course, that hair growth is largely controlled by inheritance, not only the excess growth, but distribution as well.

WASHINGTON, May 2—One thing which makes argument over the neutrality law so heated is that the opposing forces have diametrically opposite ideas about the immediate danger of war in Europe.

The group which endorses the Roosevelt policy of supporting the European democracies and wants to see the neutrality law modified thinks that a European war may come at any moment. Its attitude is best summed up, perhaps, by the testimony which Raymond Leslie Buell of the Foreign Policy Association gave the other day before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Briefly, Dr. Buell argued like this: the neutrality law hurts France and England more than it does Germany, hence makes their defeat in war more likely. Germany and Italy are hungry and have big ideas. If they beat France and England, the day when they would actively muscle in on American preserves is brought that much nearer.

Hence, it is to our interest to support France and England by "measures short of war"; the moves we have made to date have almost certainly averted a general war in Europe.

The opposition argument is well presented by Fredrick J. Libby, head of the National Council for the Prevention of War. It goes like this:

Neither Hitler nor Mussolini wants to fight, neither wants "world domination," and neither is likely to encroach on our preserves. They are putting pres-

In the World War the hairiness of the ears of the cannoners was celebrated in song in many a tavern. Many people, they get older, tend to develop excess hair in the nose and in the canal of the ear, as well as on other portions of the body.

One case is on record of a family in which the growth of hair on the ears was tremendous. There was a dark growth of long hair which still remained black even at the age of 71 in one member of the family.

When a study of this condition, as well as the lower portion of the back of the ear and presented a remarkable appearance. The excess hair began to grow in this family at the age of 18 or 19, and every boy in the family was affected, except two who were too young at the time of the examination.

varies in different races. Red Indians and Eskimos have the least amount of hair, and a Japanese group known as Alnus of Northern Japan have the most. There are also racial differences in the amount of skin on the face occupied by the beard.

Nowadays many studies are being made to determine the extent to which the glands are responsible for excess hair. Of course, with inheritance of excess hair occurs associated with glandular disturbances, it is the glandular structure and physiology that are inherited rather than the growth of the hair or the hair cells, this being secondary.

The most common form of excess hair seen in women is something resembling a mustache in the male. Today there are in most large cities institutions which have been developed for the removal of excess hair on the upper lip by the use of the electric needle, this being the only method for removing such hair permanently and without harm.

The Capital Jigsaw

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, May 1 (AP)—In the first three months of his administration Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel made approximately 50 appointments, including nine which might be classed as major ones to fill six state offices.

Of the group of nine principal appointments, most were business men while lawyers ran a close second, numbering four and three, respectively. One was a farmer-rancher and one a telephone technician.

Seven of the major appointees were men the governor had known closely or slightly, five being in the first classification.

Bulk of the appointments, however, have been to governing boards of state educational institutions, and a large batch, believe it or not, to be public weighers.

Vacancies occur along through the year. Currently there are three or the state commission for the blind two on the state board of nurse examiners and four on the state board of medical examiners.

Because of a division on politics within it, much interest is attaching to appointments the governor will make to the state prison board three members of which have term ending June 16. It is a nine-member body.

There is considerable mystery as to how Gov. O'Daniel decides on appointments and nowhere is it deeper than in the senate, which because it has the duty of confirming or rejecting gubernatorial appointments, has a peculiar interest.

A few senators say they think some of his appointments have been "most unusual," but they add the opinion that as time passed he gained in experience and his selections have been more in line with precedent.

One veteran member of the upper house said he understood the governor had a sort of "Dun & Bradstreet record" of all the men in the state and by flicking a page or two can determine whether he wants these men for an office.

"He knows a lot more about the outstanding men of Texas, especially wealthy business leaders, than anyone thinks," the senator said.

An extraordinary situation has resolved about the governor's attempts to fill the chairmanship of the state highway commission, a very important post which became vacant Feb. 15 when the term of John Wood of Timpon, a "deep" East Texan, expired.

Carr Collins of Dallas, insurance man, was the first choice and was rejected by the senate primarily, senators say, because of "geography." He didn't come from far enough East and there already was a Dallas man on the commission.

J. C. Hunter of Abilene, oil man, was the next appointee, but after sharp attacks by East Texas senators, requested withdrawal of his name, declaring he didn't want to ride into office on a storm of controversy.

Followed appointment of J. M. West, Houston capitalist, who also was rejected.

Of this important trio, only one, Collins, was a close friend, but all are able business men. Collins was one of the two or three closest advisors in O'Daniel's campaign.

No mystery attached to his appointment; the governor named him because Collins wanted the job and could have had any within power of the governor to confer. This was an out and out friendship appointment.

None in the capital seem to know just how the governor happened to choose Hunter and West. It is understood he knew the men only slightly. Hunter expressed astonishment at his selection and his state senator, Wilbourne E. Collier of Eastland, said he had no knowledge of it until a few hours before the announcement.

There is strong belief the governor consulted his "record book" of Texas business leaders and found Hunter and West to his liking.

A peculiar thing is that the governor reportedly offered the highway commission position to four Amarillo men before putting it up to Hunter. It is of interest the quartet were among the wealthiest, most outstanding business and ranchmen of the Amarillo section.

One view in the senate is that the appointment of Hunter was a "retaliatory" appointment and that the governor went as far west as possible (tried to go as far as Amarillo) in answer to the criticism of senators who objected that Collins did not come from far enough east.

Many stories have been told in corridors why the governor "lit" on West, but consensus among men who might know is he wanted a "big" business man for the position.

"I think," said the senator, "that in this case he wanted a man who had broad business interests, was used to handling millions of dollars, would be indifferent to salary and wealth and would be far above petty graft."

Opposition to West seemed to have rested chiefly on prejudice against his riches, apprehension he was so used to giving orders he might not fit well into a public office that has political angles, belief he might not have time because of his great interests to give proper attention to public duties and antagonisms growing out of business operations.

Openly the reason asserted for rejecting him was the fact he opposed Roosevelt for President and supported the Republican Landon in 1936. Said a senator: "A man can't make that much money without stepping on various people's toes and at least one senator has had his stepped on. He's very independent and some think he might tend to run the commission that way. He made the board of directors of Texas Tech come to Houston to iron out the Jones mix-up. There seems to be suspicion of him."

One of Gov. O'Daniel's first appointments was Tom L. Beauchamp of Tyler as secretary of state. This probably was a "friendship" selection because the man had known each other years and Beauchamp supported O'Daniel for governor. It was said they see eye to eye on many matters.

There is a story, however, that the governor's desire to make Collins highway commission chairman had something to do with the Beauchamp choice. He thought the story because the man had known each other years and Beauchamp supported O'Daniel for governor. It was said they see eye to eye on many matters.

Harry Knox of Brownwood was another "friendship" and business man appointment. Knox was a flour and grain dealer and once sold O'Daniel's flour.

Elster M. Halle, farmer-rancher of Hereford named tax commissioner, a former Kansan, like O'Daniel, and had been a warm friend many years. It was an unusual appointment. O'Daniel had favored abolition of the office of tax commissioner and the legislature did abolish it. He said he made the appointment with the understanding with Halle his job probably wouldn't materialize.

Other unusual selections were those of Joe Kunschik of Austin and Trust Smith of Lubbock, the former as labor commissioner and the latter as life insurance commissioner.

Kunschik was a telephone company technician who once wrote O'Daniel a radio fan letter and thereby opened a friendship. Smith never had been heard of by the governor until his name was suggested, reportedly by Senator G. H. Nelson of Lubbock, former law partner of Smith. The story there is that O'Daniel told Nelson he wanted a man for the job from West Texas and Nelson and Rep. Abe Mays of Atlanta put up Smith's name.

Knox, Kunschik, and Beauchamp were confirmed although labor opposed Kunschik as a "company union" man. Smith was rejected by the senate largely because of opposition from Lieut. Gov. Coke Stevenson who had been opposed for that office last summer by Nelson.

Another major appointment was that of Walter Woodward of Coleman for the insurance commission. A former president of the state bar association as well as a former and popular member of the senate, Woodward was promptly approved. O'Daniel had not known him.

"In my opinion," said an experienced member of the senate, "the governor chose Woodward because he had gained much knowledge and wanted someone who would be confirmed promptly, who had prestige and against whom no criticism could be brought."

California produced 1,297,011 ounces of gold in 1938, leading all the states of the union. The gold was worth $43,295,400.

The crop production per farm worker has increased threefold in the last 100 years, experts estimate.

STORIES IN STAMPS

AUSTRALIA'S duck-billed platypus has been puzzling the naturalists ever since the first specimen was found more than 150 years ago. Science has learned a great deal more about this unique little animal through the years, but the platypus is still pretty much of a question mark.

Is it fish or fowl or beast? That is apt to be your first query when you see the platypus in a zoo, and it is extremely unlikely that you will see one. This small, mole-like animal is completely at home in the water, with its webbed feet, has a bill like a duck, yet it is covered with fur, lays eggs and nurses its young.

So science is puzzled, and rightly. The platypus seems to be one of those "missing links" in the evolutionary chain. Consider its strange habits. It lives on small aquatic animals and muddy water from the bottom of streams. Its two jaws co-operate in sifting out the mud to leave worms and other crustacea in the mouth.

It digs a hole in the ground for nesting during the mating season and the female goes into a sort of suspended animation during this period. The eggs are leathery-shelled. Curiously enough, the female usually presses its chest against three eggs together immediately after laying them so that it is hard to separate them even by force.

As soon as the female takes to her nest, the male platypus deserts her, but the mother shows exceptional cunning in taking care of her young. For one thing she has adequate defense in a sort of spur in her back legs which ejects an irritating fluid that causes a bad wound. And so the cycle goes on. A platypus is shown above on a current Australian stamp.

SERIAL STORY BORDER ADVENTURE

BY OREN ARNOLD

CHAPTER XXII
YOU say, Hope, that she wasn't in her hotel all night?

Sherridan Starr, a few inches taller and several pounds heavier than Hope Eldred, gripped his friend's arm now with fingers like steel. Concern for Betty Mary had moved the larger man deeply.

"That's what I said," Hope admitted sullenly. "I couldn't just go to bed, my lord, man!"

Sherry swallowed. He hated to see Hope this way. Cold and formal, and almost antagonistic toward him. He who had been comradely so many years.

"Well—not of course not, Hope. I—the fact is, her two white spots, for safety, had been hanging there for several days, and nothing likely would hurt her if she just stayed around town in Juarez. She's smart, I figure. She can take care of herself. Now if there had been three white spots—that would mean trouble! But just a blank window."

Hope spoke impatiently, almost snapping it.

"A blank window, and Betty unaccountably missing now for nearly 24 hours, stupid! Well, you sit here and talk, but I'm going to do something."

Sherry himself was angered a bit by that.

"All right, what?" he barked. "What you going to do? You've already over there. If you didn't want me to help you, why'd you come here at daybreak? You know well enough we've been teaming together all our life, especially in a pinch like this. Hoped off your high horse now, and let's go into a huddle. First thing's to find her. Then any personal business, love and whatever, can be settled your own way. See what I mean?"

"That made sense, of course," and Hope's inherent good judgment told him so. Actually, he felt a trifle ashamed, and he tried to convey that fact now by cooperating with Sherridan.

"Maybe she moved her room, and figured we'd have sense enough to follow her signal in another hotel or something," he ventured. Obviously he was desperate, but still did not know just which way to turn.

"No, I don't," Sherry said. "But we can sure look and see. The dawn haze has about lifted—what time is it?"

Both looked at their watches and saw it was 7:25.

"The man in the tower will come down at 8. One of us'll slip up for a bit then, take the glasses and study every window in Juarez. Then we'll go a mile or two up river and look from another angle. I reckon we ought to go look from that angle first, while we wait."

In two minutes they were in a government car hastening out one of the streets near the river. When they topped a rise that gave them a clear view of the town across in Mexico, they parked and studied Juarez carefully.

"There's plenty of white spots but none in any window," Sherridan said finally.

"It could be just two spots, any color. Didn't her note say two for safety, three for help, any way any time? She—she gave the note to you that night, not to me."

Hope added this last a little bitterly, coldly.

"Yep, that's a fact. I mean about the signaling. She just happened to give it to me in all."

The conversation served, however, to upset Sherridan Starr considerably in his heart.

When Hope said nothing to that, Sherry spoke again. "It's nearly 8. Let's go on back and take a look from the tower. We better be there in case she phones again, too."

They talked scarcely at all on their way back to the Patrol headquarters and when they had parked, the man from above was just coming off shift. He saw Hope and Sherry as he clambered down his ladder-like steps.

"Hey, you two hams," he hailed them good-naturedly. "Weren't you interested in Boy Scout signaling or something a few days ago? You asked me about two white spots in a hotel window once."

"Yes! Why?" Hope and Sherry looked intently at him. "What is it? Did you see the signals today?"

"Hold your horses! No, I didn't see no two white spots in no window. In fact I guess what I saw was just clothes drying. But away over at that ranch house—the old Terrazas place, you know—old three white spots, sort of up on the hill, but—"

"Three?" Sherry barked it.

"Yeah. But it's just sheets drying, near's I can make out with the glasses. Still, it's a funny time of day to hang out—"

"But that's Luis Barro's home now, man!"

Sherry and Hope were staring at each other as if a bomb had exploded at their heels.

BETTY MARY JORDAN, a prisoner, behaved far better than her captor might have expected her to.

It was evident that Luis Barro told two of his guards to watch her closely, for often they came to check up on her, and each time found her peacefully at work. Not as scared as she had been, she maintained a front of abject fear, nevertheless. At that, it wasn't all pretense.

She labored in the laundry until after sunset.

"It is night," she told the woman in charge there. "Here are still some large items. Shall I hang them out now, even though it's raining?"

"Things dry at night in this air," the woman said. "But do you think you can slip by the guard?"

Betty Mary didn't try to escape. With the clothes lines already full, she climbed 60 feet or so up the steep hill—well above the roof line of the house—and tied three white sheets to shrubs that grew there, as she had often seen wash women do in Texas. Indeed, some dark shirts had been pinned there by another laundry worker this day, and that had really helped Betty to conceive her own idea.

She learned that evening that Barro was extremely busy with the aliens who kept coming. More than 100 were assembled now. Barro would have so many men under arms that no Border force, short of a detachment of soldiers, would be able to block him. Dangerously, he would fight right on through in the remote event that the American officers had wind of his plan. With Betty Mary, the spy, now helpless, he probably felt that his crossing would be safe, she realized. Barro couldn't even know that she had learned all of his plans, but he was keeping her just for safety. Then, too, he was attracted to her.

These points and more she picked up from the gossip servants in the kitchens and elsewhere, overhearing part of it. She devoted much time to looking for a chance to slip away unnoticed but there wasn't the merest opportunity. The cook soon put her to washing dishes, and after she had been locked finally in for the night, with but little sleep, she was working again in the kitchen before dawn.

She peered out a back window once at daybreak and felt two causes for gratitude—she had not seen Luis Barro again, and her three white sheets were still hanging.

Wheat 10 Per Cent Higher Than In 1938

CHICAGO, May 2 (AP)—The value of the American farmer's wheat today was 10 per cent higher than in a week ago, the sharpest rise in the grain market in almost a year.

The sudden upturn, coming opportunely a few weeks prior to the start of 1939 harvesting, answered grain traders' prayers for business and offered a solution to the knotty problem of disposing of millions of bushels of wheat stored under government loans.

Within a week blackboard quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade have been chalked up seven cents to the highest level since early last summer, when the market was on its way down from the nine-year top established in 1937. Largely because of the first unfavorable crop reports of the season from the winter wheat belt, where harvesting may begin by the end of this month, buying broadened sharply, breathing new life into the futures market and spreading smiles in the wheat pit where deepest gloom has prevailed for six months.

Although the price bulge has been at the expense of growers whose grain may have deteriorated because of dry weather, it has put values 7 to 15 cents above the five-year lows reached earlier in the season.

The rise in wheat prices has accompanied a material increase in commercial marketings. Wheat which has been under government loans is being redeemed by farmers, traders said, and is going into trade channels. The government lent $47,235,255 on 81,849,224 bushels of wheat at an average price of about 60 cents per bushel to the farmer. Yesterday cash wheat here was quoted at 79 1/2 cents for No. 2 hard, or 2 1/2 over the Chicago loan basis. The September wheat price of 73 cents is about a cent higher than the quotation for the corresponding delivery last July when the loan basis was announced.

Indicative of how much the revival in wheat pit activity has meant to lenders and merchants, the turnover in grain futures here last week totaled 129,838,000 bushels, practically double that of the previous week.

Pennsylvania Frees Fugitive From Texas

NORRISTOWN, Pa., May 2 (AP)—A Texas jail fugitive who had married and reared a family in Pennsylvania since his escape 17 years ago, was freed from prison here today because extradition papers were not presented.

A few hours earlier Warden Fred R. Fluck had received a letter from Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas declaring he deemed "it necessary" that Robert Dreyer be returned there because freeing him might "encourage other prisoners to escape."

The warden had planned to release Dreyer at 8 a. m., but with arrival of Gov. O'Daniel's letter the warden contacted the district attorney.

A short court hearing was all the formality necessary for Dreyer's freedom.

With his wife and brothers he started for his home in Pottsville, Pa.

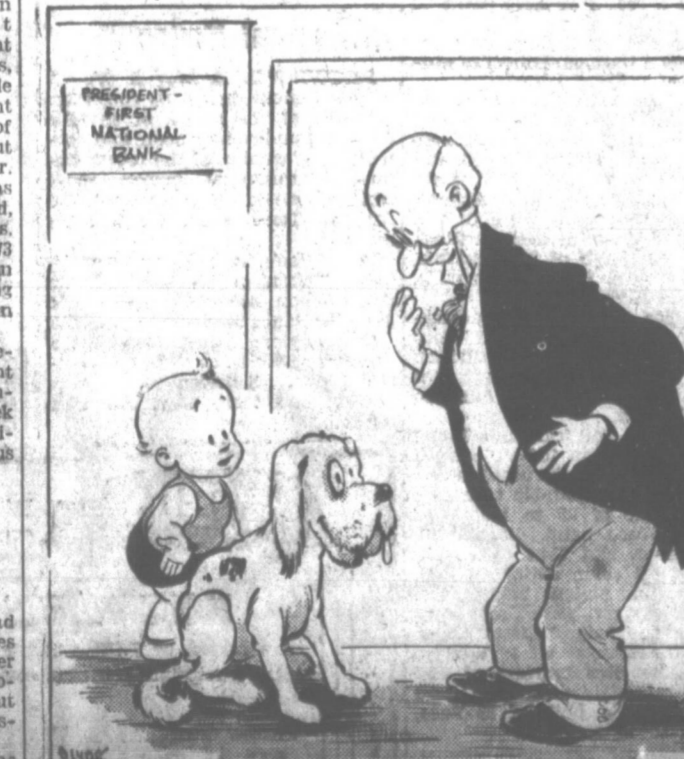

Dreyer was arrested a month ago for overloading his coal truck. A routine checkup with the Federal Bureau of Investigation disclosed he was wanted in Texas to complete a sentence for robbery.

The prisoner's wife, mother and children told Pennsylvania's governor Dreyer had been a "model husband and father" and had "gone straight" since his 1922 escape.

Amarillo Band Takes Second Division In National Contests

ABILENE, May 2 (AP)—High school band marching competition at Abilene last night was won Saturday night by a crowd of 5,000 gathered at the Hardin-Simmons football stadium for the concluding event of the Region 6 National School of Music festival.

Nine Class A bands fast-stepped through their intricate, colorful maneuvers, and five of them were given division one ranking—highest honors. They were Weslaco, Lubbock, Waco, Austin, and Abilene. The other four units were only a notch behind, with division 2 rating: Erickridge High of San Antonio, Austin High of El Paso, Amarillo, and Bowie High of El Paso.

In Junior High marching competition, Lubbock and North Waco Junior high school got first division placing, and San Angelo and San Houston Junior High of Amarillo second division.

The Class A musical units found the going harder in today's concert playing, only two of the nine making first division—comparable to a percentage grade of 95 to 100. They were the Waco band, directed by Lyle Skinner, and that of Austin, directed by Weldon Covington.

Amarillo and Abilene, both in first division last year, were dropped to second by the judges' sheets. Other second divisionists were Weslaco and Lubbock, Brackenridge of San Antonio rated third division, and Austin of Bowie, both of El Paso, were placed in fourth.

Soviet Airmen To Visit World's Fair

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP)—Two durable Russian fliers whose non-stop "good will" flight from Moscow to New York world's fair came to grief in a crackup on a marshy island off New Brunswick rested today at the Soviet consulate.

The airmen, first to fly from Moscow to North America via the Atlantic route in a single hop, planned after catching up on their sleep to visit the fair grounds late today.

Brig. Gen. Vladimir Kokkinaki, the pilot, and his navigator, Major Mikhail Gordenko, were too weary on their arrival at Floyd Bennett airport last night to discuss details of their forced landing Friday night on Miscou Island, N. B.

Both men grinned happily as Constantin Oumansky, Soviet charge d'affaires, read them a message of felicitation from Josef Stalin.
