GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By ALICIA HART
NEA Service Staff Writer

No matter if her features and figure are perfect, the girl who doesn't shine with cleanliness just isn't her most attractive self.

Her skin may be smooth and fine-textured, but its loveliness will count for nothing if she doesn't clean her face several times a day, never putting fresh makeup on over stale, or of course, her hair may be thick and naturally wavy, but it won't be stunning if it isn't scrupulously clean with the softness that comes from frequent shampooing. She may have beautiful hands, but nobody will know that, or care, if they are grimy as a schoolboy's, with stained fingertips and chipped nail polish.

With every smart, neat, dainty woman, a daily bath is a must. During spring and summer weather, she supplements her nightly tub bath with a quick morning shower. In very hot weather, she manages to find time for a shower in the late afternoon.

Furthermore, she has accumulated a few nice bits of equipment which make her nightly tub a relaxing as well as healthful, cleansing routine. She has, for instance, both long and short-handled bath brushes. With the long-handled one, she scrubs her back until her skin is pink and glowing. She uses the other on elbows, shoulders, feet and ankles.

That is, unless her skin is especially sensitive, in which case she uses a rough, coarse washcloth mitt instead of a brush.

Gentle massage with the bath brush loosens the tension at the back of her tired neck. The same type of massage does a great deal to make the toes and arches of her feet less weary. When the bath is finished, a rubdown with cologne or some kind of after-bath lotion, followed by a light dusting with bath powder, leaves her tingling from head to toe. She's rested enough to face a party or relaxed enough to go straight to sleep.

The frequency with which she washes her face with soap and water and the kind of cleansing equipment she uses depend on the texture of her skin. If it's very dry and extremely sensitive, she uses soap and water only before going to bed, rubbing the rich lather around and around with the palms of her hands and fingertips. After a thorough rinsing with cold water, she immediately puts on night cream.

On the other hand, one whose skin is quite oily and not sensitive by any means, might cleanse her face and throat with a complexion brush at night, a gentler soap and water treatment in the morning. For the normal skin, a rough wash cloth at night, with cleansing cream in the morning and during the day, usually is satisfactory.

Unless you have some kind of tonic preparation with which you can clean your hair perfectly, a weekly shampoo is in order. A weekly washing with soap and water will not harm the average head of hair; it is more than a daily washing with soap and water will injure the average skin.

Jap Planes Raid Chinese Capital
 HONGKONG, May 5 (AP)—Dispatches received by the private wireless station of a Chinese bank here said Japanese warplanes made a devastating raid on Chungking today, the third attack on the Chinese provisional capital in three days.
 The dispatches said the Kitching bank, one of the largest buildings in Chungking, was destroyed.

 More than 2,000 casualties were caused by a Japanese raid yesterday on Chungking, 1,370 miles up the Yangtze river, and about 200 more by a Wednesday raid.
 Fires raged through at least one-eighth of the provisional Chinese capital. Thousands of terrified natives milled along the banks of the Yangtze river, seeking conveyance from the ravaged city.
 Most of the foreigners, including many Americans who narrowly escaped death and injury, were taken aboard the United States and British gunboats, Tutuila and Falcon. Landing parties escorted them to safety past lines of burning buildings.
 Chungking is 1,370 miles up river from Shanghai.

No AFL-CIO Peace This Year

Babson Claims CIO Is Losing Ground

By ROGER W. BABSON
 BABSON PARK, Miss., May 5—There is no sign of peace this year between Mr. Green and Mr. Lewis. From 1935 through last fall the C. I. O. group steadily gained ground on the A. F. of L. A year and a half ago Lewis was so strong that he threatened to merge the less picturesque A. F. of L. into his C. I. O. Caged old William Green, however, called time out to take the edge off the Lewis drive. Meanwhile the breaks began to go against the C. I. O. and Lewis has since been on the defensive. However, he is not licked by any means. Moreover, if a consolidation ever takes place, it is not likely either Green or Lewis will be in the saddle.

The Law of Action and Reaction works in human relations just as it does in physics and economics. The public is badly fed up on the C. I. O. and its tactics. Lewis' movement, popular when it started, has met the enemies of many of his friends. While the public is not in love with the A. F. of L., at least the methods used by Mr. Green's group seem less obnoxious than those used by the more youthful C. I. O. crowd. This public reaction is, therefore, having its effect on Lewis' position. What has happened the past week brings this out clearly.

RECESSION SLOWS DOWN C.I.O.

The business recession has given the Lewis unions some more bad jolts. The widespread lay-offs in the automobile and steel centers have strained the treasuries of the new C. I. O. unions. Because the A. F. of L. groups are older, they are richer than Uncle John's new unions. Their finances can stand the jaff of this slowing-down period of business better than those of the C. I. O. To meet the reduction in income, the latter has had to let a lot of valuable organizers and other staff workers go. This has halted their drive for new members and has given them a definite setback in many plants where the C. I. O. is presently well down a year and a half ago.

A third factor which may be the "button punch" for the belligerent Mr. Lewis was the strike in the soft coal fields. The money necessary to run his gigantic 1937 offensive against the motor and steel industries was put up largely by the United Mine Workers. They were the spearhead of the whole C. I. O. drive. I was curious as to whom Mr. Lewis was referring recently when he said that "outside interests" were backing up the rebellious bituminous coal operators. A little checking around reveals there is not much doubt as to whom John L. was referring. Those "outside interests" are the big coal consumers such as the railroads, utilities, steel companies, and other large employers who simply cannot afford to pay any more for coal.

A BEAR GUARD ATTACK?

These consumers are large enough to take a great part of the output of a single coal mine. Hence, their bosses can talk turkey to the mine operators. These big consumers, inspired by Thomas Girdler, Eugene Grace, and others, would like nothing better than to "put the finger" on the C. I. O. for once and for all. The Lewis adherents claim these large consumers of coal have stiffened up the backbones of the mine operators. The strike, with 340,000 miners out of work, has been a mighty costly affair for the United Mine Workers as well as for you and me. It has hit the Achilles' heel of the C. I. O.—the treasury of the United Mine Workers.

WHAT THE OPERATORS SAY

The mine operators, however, insist that they have always been ready to renew the contract which expired April 1. Their story is that the A. F. of L. is "mussling" by on the C. I. O. with a new union in the coal fields. It is making progress and it worries Mr. Lewis. He wants to eliminate the fines imposed in the old contracts for unauthorized lockouts and strikes so that he can call his C. I. O. men out of any mine that hires an A. F. of L. worker. The operators have fought against throwing out these penalties. They believe that if both sides unite on a contract, both sides should be liable to the same penalty for breaking it.

PUBLIC 'HOLDS THE BAG'

Meanwhile, patient John Q. Public has been taking it on the chin as usual. The 340,000 idle miners were declared eligible for Unemployment Insurance Compensation. The unemployment fund, of course, represents the contributions of all workers. It was not set up to support strikes. Moreover, the coal tie-up has cost many railroad workers their jobs. Steel operations have been dropped and general business has sagged 5 per cent. We need a Labor Act that will prevent such situations—one that will protect workers and jobs of innocent workers in other industries.

Mr. Wallace With Tongue in Cheek

Why the tongue in cheek, Mr. Secretary? From stand in front of exposition's Federal building, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace hears international good-will address of President which opened New York World's Fair.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PAUL WORKS A HARD FIELD. Text: Acts 18:1, 4-11; 1 Cor. 2:1-5. By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of Advance.

The method of Paul's preaching was to attend the synagogue wherever he went, presenting to those of his own religion and race what he conceived to be the fulfillment of the religious teaching of the Old Testament prophets in the coming of Jesus, the Messiah, and in the Gospel concerning His life, death, and resurrection. Apparently Greeks or Gentiles were in the synagogue as well, and were interested in Paul and in his teachings.

It throws considerable light upon the progressive nature of Jewish culture and religion that the synagogue should have been to such an extent a place of open meeting and discussion.

It seems to have been in some respects a sort of forum or religion, and this fact should not be lost sight of in recognizing that many of the Jews showed the hostile attitude toward Paul and his teaching that has been common on the part of religious people in every age and country toward those who have seemed to be setting up new teaching.

In religious circles particularly, where opinions are decided and convictions strong, the attitude of hostility to anyone who seems to be an innovator or to be departing from commonly accepted conceptions of truth is so widely prevalent as to be almost normal.

The thing that is really worthy of comment is that, in spite of all this, both synagogues and churches—regardless of all their narrowness—have after all been the chief places of promoting religious truth. Paul found the opposition of some of the Jews so strong that he turned to the Gentiles and made the chief center of his propagandism the house of Titus Justus, whose house was adjacent to the synagogue.

The inference would be that, though Titus Justus was a devout man who worshiped God, he was a Gentile who had accepted the Jewish teaching concerning the one God. But Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue, was among those who accepted Paul's preaching, and with many other Corinthians, he was baptized.

Paul seems to have been in the midst of a great deal of ferment in spite of the encouragement he received, because by night there came a vision to him, giving him strength and urging him that he should not be afraid.

The result was that Paul spent one of the longest periods of his whole missionary journeys in the city of Corinth, staying at that time for a year and six months, presumably following his occupation as a tentmaker while teaching the word of God. It is interesting, in the light of Paul's experiences in Corinth and his long stay there, to read Paul's letters to the Corinthians—the longest two of his Epistles.

The portion of the Epistle attached to this lesson brings very vividly before us Paul's recollection of his time spent in Corinth and the spirit in which he had carried on his ministry there. The church at Corinth had eminent and fluent speakers, like Apollos, and in contrast with these, Paul, who was evidently not so fluent, felt his weakness. It is strange to find a man who seems so bold and courageous in matters of faith admitting that he was with the Corinthians "in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling." It throws an interesting light upon what "great faith and strong convictions can do to overcome natural weakness and hesitation."

Richberg Hails Cardenas Talks As 'Fruitful'

SAN ANTONIO, May 5 (AP)—The latest discussions between President Lazaro Cardenas and Donald Richberg, attorney for oil companies whose properties have been expropriated, were described here today by Richberg as having been "fruitful" and with "effective progress made" towards a mutually satisfactory agreement.

Richberg passed through San Antonio this morning en route to his home in Washington, D. C., after completing his latest discussions with President Cardenas in Saitillo, Mexico, early this week.

Presumably the progress made in the oral discussions means that the way may be cleared soon for the beginning of long and tedious technical negotiations in which auditors, engineers and others would be called in.

Richberg said the preliminary discussions between himself and President Cardenas began in Mexico City on March 8 and were resumed in San Antonio between Ambassador Najera and Richberg last Thursday and continued until Saturday.

Richberg and Najera then went to Saitillo to meet President Cardenas for the latest discussions, which have just been completed.

Richberg said Ambassador Najera will leave for Washington tomorrow.

Richberg said "after three meetings the discussions reached the point where it is necessary that the results should be given careful study by President Cardenas and by my clients."

"The discussions have been fruitful, and effective progress has been made towards a mutually satisfactory agreement. It is anticipated that in the near future the negotiations will reach a definite conclusion without the need for further oral discussions between President Cardenas and myself."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven... Through thy precepts I get understanding; therefore I hate every false way" (Psalms 119: 89, 104).

All that God imparts in accord with Him, reflecting goodness and power" (page 515).

JUNE 13-14

Annual Doan's Picnic To Be Held May 6-7

VERNON, May 5 (P)—The Doan's picnic, an annual event of first importance to pioneer cattlemen and settlers of Northwest Texas and Southwest Oklahoma, will be held May 6 and 7 at Watt's Grove, three miles above Doan's crossing where old-time cattle drivers crossed the Red River.

Survivors of trail days will gather to spin yarns of the era when this was a wild, untamed land. Their children, their grand-children, and in some cases maybe, their great-grand-children will participate in the reunion and picnic.

The custom of holding the Doan's picnic was originated by the families of C. F. and J. Doan, owners of the trading post at Doan's crossing, where the biggest cattle trail passed over the Red River. The creation of the picnic was almost an accident. From their English forefathers, the Doans had retained the custom of celebrating May Day in some special way. On May 1, 1884, however, there seemed little change of having much of a celebration as the grass "was rising," and most of the men had gone up the trail.

Women Start Custom

Finally, the women of the Doan family, not to be deprived of their May Day celebration, decided to have a picnic, so they made a raid on the stores for cheese, sardines, and crackers. Then, making C. F. Doan close the store for the day and accompany them, they went up the river to a huge grove of trees, now known as Wyatt's Grove, and there held the first Doan's picnic.

Thereafter the picnic became an annual affair, gradually expanding to its present huge proportions. Two persons who attended the first Doan's picnic Mrs. Bertha Ross of Vernon, daughter of C. F. Doan, and the first white child in Wilbarger county, and her cousin, Mrs. Emma Wheatly of Amarillo, daughter of J. Doan, will be present. Mrs. Ross, president of the Wilbarger County Pioneers Association, is a veteran newspaper woman of this section, having worked many years as a reporter on the Vernon Daily Record.

Vividly she remembers that first picnic and the stirring events of the times when Doan's store offered the great trail outfits moving north to Fort Griffin and Dodge City their last opportunity to obtain provisions before plunging into "The Nation," as Oklahoma then was called.

Although the Chispolm trail had received more publicity, it never compared in importance with the northern trail which crossed the Red River at Doan's. Six million cattle and 1,000,000 horses crossed there between 1876 and 1885.

The trail herds of some of the most famous cattlemen of Texas passed at Doan's store for final provisioning.

6,500,000 Jobless Youth In America, Rainey Points Out

COLLEGE STATION, May 5 (P)—Dr. Homer Price Rainey, president-elect of the University of Texas, predicted before Texas educators here the struggle for employment in the United States would become more bitter as the adult population increased over youth.

"Wise statesmanship will be required to prevent driving of a wedge between youth and those of social security age, and we must reduce to a minimum any feeling of conflict between these groups," he told representatives of Baylor, Texas Medical School, North Texas Agricultural College, Texas A. & M., and Texas graduates last night.

Dr. Rainey studied the problem four years as director of the American Youth Administration, from which he is retiring to head the state university.

The educator said the nation had 890 adults to every 1,000 young persons in 1890, that today there are 2,200 adults to each 1,000 youths, and by 1960 the ratio will be three to one in favor of the adults.

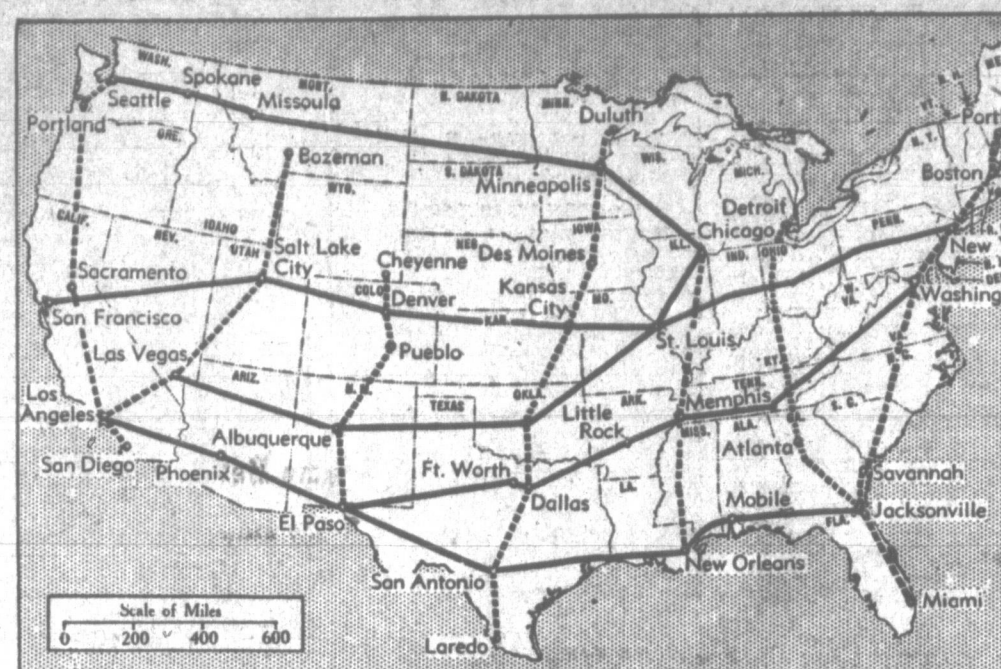

"It is vital to note," Dr. Rainey continued, "that Hitler used 6,500,000 unemployed youth to ride into power, and there are 6,500,000 unemployed youth in America today.

"We do not now have a youth movement in America if you mean it in a political sense, but this wedge between the two classes of population would be a means of producing such a movement. We are going to be taxed to the utmost to meet these problems."

Texas-Flavored Expression To Be Preserved On University Statue

By ERNEST G. FISCHER
Associated Press Staff

"Hell bent for leather" will be one Texas-flavored expression which will be preserved when a piece of statutory bearing that little and showing a group of charging mustangs is reared on the campus of the University of Texas.

Hundreds of other pioneer expressions, not emblazoned on stone or bronze, may be lost as Texas speed becomes more standardized under the influence of the radio and other mediums. Of necessity newspapers, edited for the family and various trades and professions cannot employ cowboy vernacular or the jargon of the oil-field roughneck.

Only a handful of the oldtimers remain who made and used idioms and slang which smacked of the frontier. A few of these terms crop up in the provincial press, but they are almost as rare as nuggets. The dialogue in so-called western magazines is caricature, not characteristic, and movies follow suit.

A debutante still "cuts a wide swath in society," and the male of the species may "cut quite a figure," but only at the oldtime cowboy balls—perhaps occasionally at the old trail drivers' ball—someone "cut it exceedingly fat" or "cut a rusty."

Moderns still find themselves "on their uppers," but the cowboy equivalent was "sold his saddle." The latter term meant the waddle found himself in such straightened circumstances he had to part with his saddle. Later the term came to have a traitorous connotation.

To the cowboy cattle were "slow deer; bad whiskey was "tarantula juice," and to muss an animal with the larlat was "to waste a loop." Never to miss was "to sling the catgut well."

"There's a hair in the butter" suggested an embarrassing situation—perhaps "a fly in the ointment" or a "nigger in the woodpile." Perhaps the cowhand needed a little more information to clarify the situation. He "knew as much about that as a hog does a side-saddle." Possibly he informed himself better—"got some more medicine," paralleling the modern slang-slinger's "got some more dope." Having informed himself better, he "had to take some more hair off the dog."

A trail driver frequently became so thirsty he could "spit cotton." When he found a water hole the water was so muddy he had "to chew it before he could swallow it." When he stole a ride on a freight train he was "saving money for the bartender."

"Dog fighting" was not aerial combat, but hand-to-hand fighting, using fists—natural weapons, like dogs. Gentlemen preferred pistols.

To tell a lie was to "stretch his blanket" and to exaggerate was to "draw a long bow."

But Indians who drew bows "poured dogwood switches at us." A scalping victim had "a head peeled as slick as an El Paso onion."

These expressions, gleaned from approximately 100 books and manuscripts of the latter half of the 19th century, are examples from a manner of speech which is "foggin'" rapidly getting away.

Tech President Receives Copies Of O. Henry Maps

LUBBOCK, May 5 (P)—President Clifford B. Jones of Texas Technological College has received enlarged photostat copies of maps of portions of Kent, Webb and Dickens counties executed by O. Henry while an employee of the Texas General Land Office. Presentation was made by Land Commissioner Bascom Gulick. The maps will be placed in the Tech museum.

On the Kent county map the picture of O. Henry (William Sidney Porter) has been superimposed. All of the maps bear evidence of the artistic handwork of the gifted writer. A coiled rattlesnake, a jack-rabbit, and a racing cowboy twirling a lariat are drawn in on the Webb county map. Dates on the maps are 1888 and 1890.

Donley Farmers To Plant Melons On 1,000 Acres

CLARENDON, May 5 (P)—Donley county farmers and truck gardeners expect to plant more than 1,000 acres of watermelons and cantaloupes this season. Seeding began more than 10 days ago and Frank Hardin, large scale grower, said the work was favored by a good season and warming soil.

Marketing of melons, a cash crop delivered at the field to truckers, begins the last week of July and continues until the middle of September. Hardin, who has specialized in the industry more than 20 years, said he would plant at least 150 acres of watermelons and cantaloupes this year.

Even Cowpunchers Injured In Polo

STAMFORD, May 5 (P)—Ribs, arms and tender flesh of strong men of the cow country have cracked or been bent in the rigors of the society game of polo.

Most of the boys who practice the sport at Stamford ride stock saddles, and spring practice lists these casualties: Broken ribs for Bob Johnson, team organizer, and Lloyd Adams, and laceration from a mallet blow for Buddy Rhodes. A broken stirrup on an English saddle resulted in a fall for W. G. Swenson, president of the Texas Cowboy Reunion, and a broken arm.

SERIAL STORY BORDER ADVENTURE BY OREN ARNOLD

Yesterday: Safe out of sight of the Barro ranch, Sherry contacted the wood cutter as soon as he left Betty Mary after she told him that Hope had already escaped.

CHAPTER XXV SHERIDAN STARR ceased being a Mexican woodcutter as soon as he settled over Mexico. "Betty Mary?" he called, when he felt it was safe to start again.

"Yes," she answered instantly, from beneath the boxes in the burro cart. "It's dark now. I think we can make a try for the river."

"Can I actually come out of this? Goodness!" "I apologize. I sure am sorry you had to stay there, but there was no way of knowing who might be observing us, or who—"

"Don't, Sheridan! It is I who apologize. I owe you more than I can ever tell, and I'm not uncomfortable!" She had crawled out, with his help, and stood next to smile up at him. "I was just scared!"

He squeezed her arm a little; and somehow this gesture conveyed more than a thousand words might have. She looked quickly up at him again. The big officer was anything but handsome now. He wore a scraggly set of gray whiskers, and his hair was brushed with gray too, especially around the temples. His high-crowned straw sombrero was frayed and torn. His clothing was very old and ragged.

But Betty Mary saw right through the convincing makeup, to the man she really knew. "Sherry," she almost whispered it, tremulously. "Yes?"

"I just—I just want you to know I think you are grand! You and Hope. I am well aware that you risked your lives to rescue me."

"Skip it! We were just playing acting. Anyway, young woman, we aren't out of danger yet. We're still in Mexico."

"Play acting or not, it was wonderful. How did you know to make up that way? It's perfect."

"We didn't. There's a stock company on an El Paso stage. One of their actors helped us. Hope was dark and handsome enough to look like a Mex without much change. They had to cover up my mug, though. Come on, let's get going."

"What about the cart, and the burros?" "Aren't worth $50. I've turned the burros loose to run wild."

To avoid suspicion, Sherry had driven his cart and Betty Mary parallel with the border, not toward it, so that they now were still more than three miles from the river. She knew they couldn't ride any further, lest some of Barro's agents detect them. They could be inconspicuous if they walked.

"I can carry you if you get foot weary," he told her. "Those shoes you have were not made for walking in rocks and cactus thorns."

"They're better than the ragged sandals you have on. Anyway, I weigh a lot."

"I'll bet!" He squeezed her arm again. "You ought to be playing dolls. Well, stay right behind me, and act dumb if anybody talks to us."

They saw only a few rural folk but no one accosted them, and after about an hour's walking they came to the Rio Grande. It looked heavenly to Betty not only because of its real beauty but because of the other shore lay the United States.

"It looks wide," she said. "I hope I am not too fatigued to swim that far."

Gallantly, then, Sherry stooped and picked her up in his arms and solemnly waded into the water. She thought it a very strange position in which to assist a girl in swimming, but she realized it they were half way across. The water was just a little above his knees.

"Is the—the swimming—very hard, Mr. Starr?" she asked meekly. "He chuckled, and held her a little tighter. When he had put her down on the American shore, with a frank sigh of relief to be on his own soil again, he took off his whiskers and smiled down at her.

"It's the first and maybe the last chance I'll ever have to hold you in my arms," he declared simply. They had crossed where some flags and willows grew, and they came at once into a farmer's cotton field. Another quarter-mile of walking brought them to a paved highway, and within 10 minutes they were in a filling station telephoning for a car to carry them home.

"There's one significant thing I must point out, Miss Jordan," Officer Starr said then, rather formally, "so you can use it when you report back to headquarters in Washington."

"What, Sherry? Although I'm not at all sure I shall ever make a report."

"It was that you and I waded right across the international boundary at 9 p. m., unmolested. If we can do it that easy, so can anyone else. The boundary is 2000 miles long, and there aren't half enough officers allotted to guard it. What'd you mean about never making a report, though?" "I just feel that I may never go back to my job. I—I may stay here."

Sherry went a little glum at that. "TWOICE today he had deluded himself from her talk that she might be in love with Hope Kildare. She had saved Hope's life in San Felipe canyon, and such drama can draw two people very close together."

The big fellow swallowed hard, and changed the subject. But gloom had settled on him. He talked very little more until they were back in El Paso, in serious conference with Hope himself.

"I had no trouble," Hope avowed there. "I drove the old rented truck right on into Juarez, across the bridge and into the American officers' hands. Of course they let me in when they recognized me—but they had some fun doing that! I'm sure glad you two made it safely."

They had to explain every detail, and then they had a new plan to effect. After all, Barro was still a threat, and they knew the plans he had for his crossing at New Channel.

"He may or may not change his place and his date," big Sheridan summarized, eventually. "He'll know that Betty Mary escaped, but he won't know how much she knows. Didn't you say that woman you talked to in his house, Betty Mary, was coming immediately to this side?"

"Yes," said Betty Mary. "Then Barro won't know you talked to her. And she won't know you were a spy. And you didn't talk confidentially to any other servant or anybody, so Barro may conclude that you don't know his plan at all. Even if he did, he may go right on with his plan, thinking he is safe with that many men. He would be. We weren't tipped off; a hundred armed estranjeros and snugglers—gosh!"

"This is Friday night," said Hope. "And he was to send the aliens across on Sunday night, but might change. Knowing he had a big force, we can get a big force too. We would simply have to know when and where on the border to expect him."

"That's certainly a fact!" Sheridan agreed. Then he added, thoughtfully, "But how can we know, for sure?"

They were silent for a long moment, and then Hope Kildare replied: "There's only one answer. One of us will disguise, must go back to Mexico." (To Be Continued)

Damage Suit Filed In Wheeler Court Payment of alleged damages totaling $21,000 is sought in a suit filed recently in 31st district court at Wheeler, styled Mrs. Nellie Health vs. Wayne Smith and R. G. Hughes, according to Mr. Hughes who said he had been served with a citation today. The case is to be tried in the November term. Mr. Hughes said. Babson Attacks Liquor

By ROGER BABSON.
I am not now speaking of or against any political party. I, however, do say it is a disgrace, both to the Church and to Democracy, to have the best people of our country divide their vote between the two major political parties. This is especially true in connection with the liquor problem.
In saying this, I am not referring to the great harm liquor is doing to our people, especially to the youth. I am not even thinking how this harm may strike our own homes and ruin our sons and grandsons—yes, and now, even the girls of our families. No one is obliged to drink and a proper campaign of education as to the evils of liquor could save most of these young people. My reason for being against the commercialization of liquor, gambling, vice, and similar evils, which now flourish under both Republicans and Democrats is because of what these evils are doing to Democracy.
I am convinced that only by crushing the traffic in these evils can Democracy be saved. I go further and say that the American people are now fast approaching the time when these evil interests will be running the United States government. If our constitution is thrown over for Fascism, it will be due primarily to the liquor, gambling, vice, and other rackets. Even today, the liquor interests claim that they elected President Roosevelt and that it is to him to protect them.
As a statistician, I am especially disturbed by the arguments which the liquor interests use in connection with taxation. They claim that liquor is contributing about $500,000,000 a year to Federal and State treasuries. They, however, are telling only one-half of the story. The other half is that the liquor upon which they pay this tax has so undermined the character of the American people, that our Federal and State governments are now required to pay out more than $500,000,000 a year for relief. It is true that we would lose these excise taxes if we crushed this hideous traffic, but this loss would be more than offset by what would be saved on relief after the traffic is crushed. The same principle applies to race tracks and other evils.

Newspapers and magazines might temporarily suffer until legitimate advertising should increase sufficiently to take up the slack. If, however, we have learned anything from the mistakes made under prohibition, we will not allow these newspapers and magazines to suffer. We will see that the government carries on an educational, paid-advertising campaign to develop the character, health, and efficiency of the American people.
This should more than offset any losses due to suppressing present liquor, race track, and similar advertising. England and other countries are already meeting the problem in this way. Only thereby can our ten million unemployed gradually be put to work. We have available the needed natural resources and the capital for full employment. The factor lacking is a rugged character on the part of our people.
The liquor, gambling, and other rackets will claim that to take the profits out of their "business" would hurt real estate values. Statistics show that this is an outright falsehood, spread about to fool the voters of the United States. Actual facts as to the real estate situation show that real estate values have been declining since these interests have again been in the saddle. Surely the opening of a liquor store in any neighborhood usually hurts the rental value of adjoining property. Commercialized vice and gambling have always done real estate far more harm than good. This can be proven in almost every community.
The liquor traffic, gambling, and similar evils have also been a great contributing cause to unemployment. Charts could be made showing the correlation of the growth in their growth and the increase in unemployment. You, however, need not bother with charts or statistics. Look about your own community. You will find that for every five homes fully employed, four of them will be homes of thrifty people of good habits. On the other hand, for every five homes on relief, you will find that four of them are families of questionable habits. Things cannot continue to go along as they are now going without a spiritual, social, and financial collapse.

OZONA, May 5 (AP)—A gavel fashioned from Walnut wood from Tennessee, the native state of David Crockett, hero of the Texas Alamo, is to be used in ceremonies when the new David Crockett memorial is dedicated in the city park here June 22. The wood is from a farm near Limestone, Green county, Tenn., where Crockett was born and reared.
