House Okays Tax Bill By Huge Margin

Senate Due To Act Next On 15-Million Dollar Measure

AUSTIN, May 23 (AP)—By a huge margin, the House of Representatives today finally approved an omnibus tax bill, estimated to raise $15,000,000 a year. The vote was 108 to 30. As the measure sped toward Senate consideration, proponents enthusiastically claimed it was the solution to the great problem of financing Texas' social security program. That problem was made more acute recently by the legislature's abolishing the old age assistance law extensively. Thousands of persons will be added to pension rolls if the liberalization bill is signed by Governor W. Lee O'Daniel and approved by the Federal Social Security board. Opponents asserted the reception which the omnibus bill would receive in the Senate was very questionable because the Senate long since had passed to the House a proposed constitutional amendment which would levy general retail sales, natural resource and service taxes. The plan to finance social security costs by the constitutional amendment route has been rejected four times by the lower legislative branch.

Murder-Ring Trials Set For Next Week

PHILADELPHIA, May 23 (AP)—The "three-men-in-a-boat" drowning of a Philadelphia off the New Jersey coast seven years ago came to the fore in a mass-murder ring investigation today as authorities continued preparation for scheduled group trials of prisoners a week hence. Dominick Rodio, arrested in Cleveland last week, was summoned to a hearing on a murder charge in the drowning of Joseph Arena near Sea Isle City, N. J., in 1932. Arena's death is among more than 100 investigations being attributed to the syndicate in Eastern states. The commonwealth contends there was "conspiracy" to kill Arena for insurance money while on a fishing trip. Two other persons already are held in connection with his death. Rodio's hearing was one of two scheduled for the day. The other was for Morris Bolber, self-styled "psychiatrist" whom Assistant District Attorney Vincent P. McDevitt has named as a "director" of the syndicate. Bolber is charged with murder.

League Will Send Official To Danzig

GENEVA, May 23 (AP)—League of Nations officials announced after a meeting of the committee charged with supervising affairs of Danzig today that it has been ordered to send the league high commissioner, Prof. Charles J. Burkhardt de Reynold, back to the free city. They said he would be instructed to make a report on the Danzig situation. The committee includes France, Britain, and Sweden. Burkhardt de Reynold, a Swiss, has been absent from his post at Danzig and in Geneva since March 19. He has the power, on paper, to call for Polish troops to aid in keeping order in Danzig when he considers it necessary. Poles were said to want him back in Danzig, where he could make such a request in case of trouble.

Brothers Meet Again

GREENVILLE, S. C., May 23 (AP)—Charles O. Betts, a lawyer of Austin, Texas, registered at a hotel here and went to his room. He telephone bell rang. It was his brother, Albert D. Betts of Orangeburg, executive secretary of the South Carolina Federated Forces for Temperance, whose name was next on the register. Neither knew the other was in town. They had not met in 20 years.

I Heard--

A young lady about town, when asked, "How are you," reply that she wasn't so good, "you know good girls don't have glamor."

Alleged Maypearl Slayer To Have Sanity Hearing

WAXAHACHIE, May 23 (AP)—A district court jury was being selected here today to give a sanity hearing to Burton Franks of Botham, charged with killing President W. D. Williams during a Maypearl, Tex., bank robbery. District Judge A. Royce Stout granted the sanity hearing late yesterday after overruling defense motions to quash the indictment, for a change of venue and for continuance. Needing tires? Better see Barrett-Sill and save money.

Sadler Unworried At Talk Of Texas Oil Encirclement

AUSTIN, May 23 (AP)—Texas is not alarmed at any "encirclement" campaign instigated by Louisiana, Jerry Sadler, member of the Texas Railroad commission, said today. Sadler was commenting on a joecular statement by Governor Richard W. Leche of Louisiana that if Texas' oil fields are opened wide Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and even Mexico would not allow Texas oil to pass. The governor's observation followed a declaration by Sadler the lid should be taken off Texas' production after 60 days if other states did not reduce oil output and stop sending oil into Texas. In his latest statement Sadler spoke of the Texas war for independence from Mexico and the cry of the defeated Mexicans at the decisive battle of San Jacinto, "Me no Alamo, me no Goliad."

Freezing Weather Prevails As Royal Train Speeds West

ABOARD THE ROYAL TRAIN ENROUTE TO WINNEPEG, May 23 (AP)—The temperature was at the freezing point today with the royal couple, King George and Queen Elizabeth, on the West, sped past Ontario's famous cold spot, White River. As the 12-car special rolled through the rugged country between Toronto and White River there was a nip in the air and still some snow on the ground. White River, gaily decorated with flags and bunting, welcomed the royal pair with a cheering demonstration at the station. A 25-piece band was sent from Chapleau, 130 miles away, and every settlement near the railroad line was decorated for the occasion.

Driller Tells How He Sew Giant Boa With Spudding Shoe At Oil Well In South America

By THE ROVING REPORTER Who is E. Filch of Berger? Well, today the Roving Reporter got a masterpiece of a letter from E. Filch of the Wonder City, who wrote some of his amazing experiences in an astounding three-page letter. Obviously, Mr. Filch is trying to have some fun, and it seems that he is trying to kid somebody in a subtle manner. Nevertheless, the R. R. feels that Mr. Filch is quite a driller himself and has been around and knows quite a few of the answers. So thanks, Mr. F(1)?h, for this letter which follows: "It has been a long interest that I have been following the series of articles which have been appearing in your paper recently concerning the lives and history of the oil timers in the oil industry, as I understand these veterans are to be honored at the Top O' Texas Fiesta celebration, a worthy cause for which I am sure the whole fraternity commends you for the untiring efforts you are putting into it, and I would like to contribute my part as I surely intend to be there, and as I stroll through the autumn of a very active and useful life I like to think of the times that we old-timers might get together and re-live some of our experiences. Landed in Osage "As a young lad I left my home in the hills of Tennessee and started to roam, being ambitious, naturally, the big money of the oilfields beckoned me and soon I landed up in the Osage country of Oklahoma where I picked me out a tool-dressing stand there veterans are to be honored at the Top O' Texas Fiesta celebration, a worthy cause for which I am sure the whole fraternity commends you for the untiring efforts you are putting into it, and I would like to contribute my part as I surely intend to be there, and as I stroll through the autumn of a very active and useful life I like to think of the times that we old-timers might get together and re-live some of our experiences. Where are you hiding out, "Finky" Boyd, Billy Frost, Harry Kribbes and Roy Hall and you other veteran drillers? Come out of the cellar, Sticks Hamill, Tom Cree, John Evans, A. W. Babione, and Joe Embody! If you don't, the Roving Reporter is a-comin' in after you! What's eatin' on some of you old-time drillers, tool-dressers and rough-necks, anyway? Why don't you come on and register for the Top O' Texas Fiesta? A lot of oil field workers, approximately 65 in all, have already registered, and that's a whole lot, but many of the old-timers are still hanging back worse'n Li Abner backs off from Daisy Mae. Even Dutch Hubert—yeah, where's Dutch Hubert? Why, he was bar-tended the first string of pipe he ever run, and that ain't no stuff. Just ask him! Come on, Dutch. Come on, Sticks! Come on, Harry! Come on, all you other drillers and tool-dressers and rough-necks who have been following the oil fields at least 15 years. Come on and fill out the following blank and bring, mail or send it to the Roving Reporter at the News. If there isn't space enough in the blank, get you a piece of paper and pencil off what you can't get in the blank. Now, if you register, that don't mean that you are so old you have one foot in the grave. Pretty young fellows are registering. An oil field veteran is like a war veteran. He can become a veteran in a short time. If you have been under fire

Quints Hug, Kiss Queen

By FRANK H. KING. ABOARD THE ROYAL PILOT TRAIN, EN ROUTE TO WINNEPEG, May 23 (AP)—Everyone but the Dionne quintuplets was "tuckered out" today after the quint's visit with King George and Queen Elizabeth. Their majesties relaxed aboard their special train, skirting the shores of Lake Superior en route to Winnipeg, with only platform appearances and brief stops before them today. The quint's were back home in their Gallander nursery, not a bit tired after the first trip of their five years for a first meeting with royalty in Toronto yesterday, but their parents, their brothers and sisters, their nurses and Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo, the quint's physician, were "tuckered out," Dr. Dafeo acknowledged. There was no question but that the quintuplets provided the high spot of the royal visit to Toronto. The five little girls in court dresses or organdy, poke bonnets and patent leather slippers curtsied patiently to the king and queen, and then took things into their own hands. They hugged and kissed the queen, and she kissed them back. Cecile, Emilie, Annette, and Yvonne presented bouquets to her majesty. See QUINTS, Page 8

Lively To Speak On Decoration Day

Travis Lively, Pampa merchant and a member of the Kerley-Crossman post of the American Legion, will deliver the Memorial Day address at the First Baptist church by the Rev. C. Gordon Bayless. Members of both the American Legion and the V. F. W., the two organizations jointly planning the Memorial Day observance, have emphasized their desires that Pampans generally participate in the program, and that all ex-service men, whether members of the Legion or the V. F. W., attend the service Sunday and the program at the cemetery Tuesday. The delegation from Pampa is to arrive in Dumas at noon.

Fire Wagon For Taxi

PHILADELPHIA, May 23 (AP)—A fire department dispatcher went to action when a feminine voice pleaded over the telephone: "Send someone right away—please hurry!" Minutes later a fire engine and a police car roared up. Mrs. Joseph Smarke met the firemen at the door. "Oh," she exclaimed, "it's you. I wanted a taxicab."

Plans For Recreation Building Up Tonight

Tonight at 8 o'clock in the city commission room in the city hall, Pampans will gather to discuss final plans for a Recreation building and center. Plans as adopted by a building committee will be on display and methods of raising the necessary funds for Pampa's share of the project will be presented. The meeting, open to every public-minded citizen of Pampa and surrounding territory, will not be for the purpose of raising money, but to discuss ways and means of securing funds, providing those present believe the building necessary. Plans call for rooms and accommodations suitable for many types of play and entertainment including work with underprivileged children, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, boxing, wrestling, hand ball, volleyball, basketball, poultry show, Top O' Texas Fiesta entertainment, etc. With the building available inter-city and league basketball could be played. At the present time there is no place for such activity. Dozens of teams could be organized and leagues formed. The men who are trying to put over the big project have reached the end of their rope. They alone can do no more. It's now up to public-minded Pampans who will put their shoulder to the wheel and work. ATTEND TONIGHT'S MEETING.

Dies Questions Indiana Banker

WASHINGTON, May 23 (AP)—Felix M. McWhirter, Indianapolis banker, told the House un-American investigating committee today his only reason for inquiring whether Mrs. Cordell Hull had Jewish blood was to obtain information for himself. The witness, treasurer of the Indiana Republican state central committee, was questioned concerning a letter he wrote to James E. Campbell of Owensboro, Ky., asking whether it was true that Mrs. Hull, wife of the secretary of state, was "part or full-blood Semite." At the same time, he asked Campbell what he knew of the "Jewish connections" of Alfred M. Landon and William Allen White, Kansas editors. "You just wanted it for your own information," asked Chairman Dies (D-Tex.). "Certainly," McWhirter replied. "What prompted you to ask that?" "I don't know."

Garner Driven By Smoke From Bed

WASHINGTON, May 23 (AP)—Vice President Garner, clad in blue-and-white striped pajamas, was driven from his suite in the Washington hotel shortly before midnight (CST) by smoke from over-heated apparatus in the air-conditioning system. Rubbing his eyes, he hastened down a corridor to another room arranged by hotel officials. Mrs. Garner and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tully Garner of Amarillo, Texas, were in the suite at the time but their rooms were not affected by the smoke. A small blaze elsewhere in the hotel was quickly extinguished.

New Highway Head Says Commission Policy Unchanged

AUSTIN, May 23 (AP)—The highway commission has a new chairman but the same old policy—few if any definite commitments at hearings. Thus spoke Brady P. Gentry of Tyler, recently appointed chairman, as he presided at his first hearing of delegations seeking road improvements yesterday. After listening to 31 groups he said the policy of the commission would not be changed. "We have an enormous task confronting us in building the state's roads and cannot act hastily. I have been told that if we merely completed all present road designations the job would take 14 years," he said.

Mother Queen Mary was officially announced to be "suffering from considerable bruising" from effects of an automobile accident this afternoon and to have been ordered "some days complete rest." The royal car collided with a two-ton truck carrying steel tubes and was badly damaged. LONDON, May 23 (AP)—Queen Mother Mary apparently escaped serious injury today when her motor car was overturned in an accident in a London suburb. The queen was authoritatively reported "bruised and badly shaken" but otherwise unhurt. After a brief time in a doctor's house she was driven away from Putney, the west suburb of London where the accident occurred, to her Marlborough house residence. A crowd which gathered outside the doctor's house cheered with relief as the queen emerged and acknowledged their cheers. She was not bandaged, nor was she visibly injured. The accident occurred in Putney, a West London suburb. After resting at a doctor's house Queen Mary was driven away in one of the royal cars. She acknowledged cheers of a crowd which had gathered outside the doctor's house. Queen Mary will be 72 years old next Friday. She apparently was suffering from shock as she was aided into the physician's house. She was badly shaken as she left the overturned car, but appeared to have greatly recovered when she was driven away. The widow of King George V was assisted from the overturned machine by a house painter. He placed his ladder against the car to aid the queen to emerge. One of her most recent public appearances was to bid farewell to her son, King George VI, and Queen Elizabeth when they departed May 8 for their tour of Canada and the United States. The Queen's car was involved in an accident with a truck, an eyewitness said. "Queen Mary's car turned over. A painter who was working nearby rushed out with his ladder and assisted Queen Mary to climb out. She seemed to be badly shaken and was taken to a doctor's house nearby." An official at Marlborough House, the queen mother's official residence, said, "We are informed that she is not hurt."

2 Negro Convicts Shot To Death In Fight With Guards

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 23 (AP)—Two negro convicts, who escaped with eight or ten others when wind demolished their stockade, were shot to death by trusty guards in a hand-to-hand fight near the Cummins state prison farm today. The casualties came in the wake of a spring storm which killed four persons, injured scores and caused property damage of more than $1,000,000 elsewhere in the state late yesterday. The slain convicts were Archie Goodwin, serving 21 years for assault with intent to kill, burglary, and grand larceny, and James Patterson serving seven years for burglary and larceny. Prison officers said they were killed by two negro trustees when they sprang upon one who was beating through the dense woods between Cummins and Gould, Ark.

Miss Brothers Becomes Bride Of J. Simpson

Miss Hazel Brothers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. King, became the bride of James A. Simpson Jr. of Hollywood, Calif., in an impressive ceremony Monday evening at 7 o'clock in the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. W. M. Pearson, pastor of the First Methodist church.

The bride was attractively dressed in a beige dress with fascia accessories. She carried a white Bible showered with satin ribbon and roses.

Attending the bride was Miss Margaret Harris of Wichita, Kas. Miss Janice Purviance played the wedding music as the vows were read before an improvised altar of palms and baskets of roses.

The bride, who was graduated from Wichita, Kas., high school, was a popular member of the Order of Rainbow for Girls and Junior Twentieth Century club in Wichita.

Mr. Simpson, who attended high school in Salina, Kas., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Simpson of Hollywood. He is connected with the California Hardware company in Hollywood, where the couple will be at home.

FIVE LITTLE GIRLS DRESSED FOR ROYALTY

The party was spontaneous and informal when the quints met the king and queen at Toronto, despite the fact that the quints were dressed quite formally, as pictured above, in ankle-length organdy gowns, lace mittens, and poke bonnets. Royalty went to its knees to play with the quints, the quints toying with King George's medals. Queen Elizabeth kissed each of the girls.

Dresses For Royalty Garden Party Topic Of Discussion

WASHINGTON, May 23 (AP)—Short or long dresses for King George's garden party at the British embassy next month?

That question is causing almost as much hubbub over the fact many prominent Washingtonians were left off the guest list.

Lady Lindsay, wife of the British ambassador, says it doesn't matter what kind of dresses are worn. She pointed out, however, that the embassy lawn may be dusty if the weather is hot and dry and that it will be damp if rain should fall.

That was enough of a hint to many women that short dresses would be better suited to the occasion, but they nevertheless will be a number wearing long dresses. Even the wives of cabinet members are divided over the subject.

"I have the blue chiffon I bought for my son's wedding and I'm not going to cut it off," said Mrs. Claude Swanson.

"Mine is short," laughed Mrs. Harry Woodring. "It's a white voile I had made for a lace collar which belonged to my grandmother. And I can't lengthen it."

Mrs. Cordell Hull said the length of her frock would depend on the weather—a long summery dress if it's hot, and something short if it rains.

Along with cabinet members and their wives, the official contingent among the 1,300 guests will include more than 50 senators and their wives. Members of the senate foreign relations committee and the chairman of all standing committees are included. Several more, including Senator and Mrs. Robert A. Taft, republican, Ohio, and Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin, republican, Vt., were invited for personal reasons.

The fact that so many were invited brought objections from some of those omitted.

"Only about 70 senators have wives," one of the wives said, "and that means less than 20 of us were left out."

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

It wouldn't be a good idea to play it too often, but "the beauty game" is worth playing two or three times a year.

It's a game for one, of course. And you play it when nobody else is around or likely to drop in unexpectedly. The directions are simple. If there's anything to the idea that admitting your defects puts you well along on the road to elimination of them, what to do with the conclusions reached during the game ought to be fairly simple too.

"First, stand before a mirror and make believe that the woman reflected in the mirror is someone you never saw before. Look at her critically.

"Begin right at the top of the head of the woman in the mirror and tear her apart, bit by bit, right on down to her feet.

"Is her hair soft and shiny and becomingly dressed? Or is it fatly dingy and stringy, badly in need of a new permanent wave and dressed exactly as it was ten years ago?"

"Hitched Part Is Playing Honestly."

"What about her skin? Does it really think much of it? Or would you if you were her husband? Is it smooth and fine-textured and soft-looking? Or is it rough in spots, full of coarse pores? You see her face now minus makeup. But you've seen it with makeup. Does she know how to blend rouge perfectly and does she use just enough and never too much of it?"

"Is her posture excellent, or does she have an exaggerated hollow in the center of her back, as sunken chest and a lump on the back of her neck? If she carried her head properly she wouldn't have the lump, do you know that?"

"Ask yourself these questions and several more, and answer each one honestly. The game will have turned out successfully if the answers inspire you to make resolutions—resolutions which you will stick to during the months to come."

Legion Auxiliary Receives Flowers For Poppy Sale

Bright red poppies bloomed out today at the American Legion but when the American Legion Auxiliary received its supply of the World War memorial flowers for Poppy Day, Saturday, May 27. The poppies, hundreds of carefully made replicas of the famous poppies of France and Belgium, came from Legion hospital, where they were made by disabled war veterans.

The Auxiliary's poppy committee, under the direction of Ann Heston, chairman, is putting in busy hours counting and arranging the flowers in readiness for the women who will offer them on the streets on Poppy Day, to be worn in honor of the World War dead. Preparations are being made to cover the entire city with the flowers, with the hope that everyone will join in the observance of the day and pay tribute to those who gave their lives in defense of democracy.

"Each poppy has been shaped with painstaking care by some disabled veteran," said Mrs. Heston. "Each one is slightly different from the others because they are made entirely by hand. Some are more perfect than others, due to the varying skill of the veterans, but all represent the best efforts of their makers to reproduce in crepe paper the wild Flinders poppy which grew and bloomed along the battle front in France and Belgium."

"The idea of the poppy is the memorial flower for the war dead sprang naturally to the minds of the men in France when they saw these brave little flowers blooming on the bare battle fields. Colonel John McCrea expressed it in his immortal poem, and one of the first acts of the American Legion was the adoption of the poppy as its memorial flower. The British Legion also adopted the poppy and the flower is worn in every part of the world to commemorate the sacrifice of those who lie in the ranks of the democratic powers."

To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey, it's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic. You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is in the bowels. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines. If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, toasted, nutritious cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

job. Well, sir, being unusually bright and anxious to learn, it wasn't long before I was considered one of the best in that part of the country, then one day, as luck would have it, the driller was sitting on the lavatory bench eating his lunch and he told me to get up and let her down. So I crawl up on the derrick stool, and after adjusting the steam (in fact I gave her a couple of spokes) I let it down a foot or so, and about this time the contractor walks in and I was running it so much better than the would-be driller that he fired the driller and turned it over to me. That is just one of the breaks that a young feller gets. Well, after I left there I made all the booms in Oklahoma, Kansas, Wyoming, Texas and South America.

It was while in S. A. I believe I encountered my most unusual experience. The well that I was to work on was out from the main camp 45 days by mule. Now believe me, if you never rode one of them S. A. mules, you have missed something. They are just a shade tougher than any brahma steer that I ever rode. Well, on the 45th day, we rode into camp. I looked the situation over and after making a few minor changes (the well was poorly rigged up) I decided she was ready to go; so I started to spud one morning just after day-break. (I always run the morning tower as a man can get more done). I bumped upon a lime shell, and gentlemen, she was hard and I was running it just as hard as the outfit would run. (I always could use more white steam than any driller in the state of Texas).

What a Snake!

Well, sir, I had begun to think the bit was off, so I glanced out the walk for the tool dresser, figuring that I would pull out, and instead of the tool dresser, a big Boa about 22 feet long was crawling up the walk. Well, sir, for a few seconds I was senseless, but always being noted for quickness, I soon recovered and I figured that I would let Mr. Boa come on in and when he got directly beneath the spudding shoe I would suddenly throw up the brake and beat him with the shoe. Well, as I said before, I had all the steam on her she would stand, so I carefully gauged the length of my bridle and bided my time. Sure enough, the reptile crawled closer and when I threw up the brake the shoe caught him just back of the eyes, stunning him momentarily. Then I grabbed a double-bit axe that was laying across the forge and with one blow severed his head. I had the native camp boss skin the snake and make the hide up into belts which I sent to all my nephews in Tennessee. I supervised drilling of some of the

Where Is Posterity?

Writing in the Saturday Evening Post, Harry Sherman, the distinguished economist and author of "The Promises Men Live By," says, "There is only one alarming aspect of our national debt, in my opinion—the apathy and ignorance of the American public with regard to it. The common attitude is: If the experts differ as widely as they seem to do, why should an ordinary citizen add the national debt to his other workaday worries; sufficient unto the day are our own debts; if some great national disaster is really involved, poor posterity, not ourselves, will suffer it."

"But ten or twelve years from now is hardly posterity. Quite a few economists are of the mind that this short period may easily witness an economic tornado arising from the debt if its uninterrupted rise is not permanently reversed."

The public callousness toward a fiscal policy that, long enough continued, can result in nothing else than national bankruptcy, is one of the most tragic things in our life as a people today. Nine short years ago the debt had just passed the $16,000,000,000 point, and millions of thinking people were worrying about it. Today the debt has reached $41,000,000,000—and most of us seem to take it for granted, as if it were as uncontrollable and as little important as a change in weather.

The title of Mr. Sherman's thought-provoking Post article is, "Is Posterity Just Around the Corner?" And there can be no logical answer to that question, except Yes. If the debt should rise as much, proportionately, in the next nine years as it did in the last nine, it would pass $100,000,000,000! And no one, not even the most fanatical of the "spend, spend and spend" advocates, has yet contended that we could carry so great a load as that without living in a state of permanent depression, with a tremendous percentage of the population permanently on relief, and the standard of living of the rest of us constantly dropping.

The Nation's Press

THE TREMBLING DICTIONSHIP (Chicago Tribune)

The negotiations that John L. Lewis is carrying on with the Appalachian coal operators present a strange and ironic spectacle. Mr. Lewis is moving heaven and earth, has tied up the Appalachian mines and threatens a national strike, to prevent application of the Wagner act to let the miners choose their own union.

Mr. Lewis and his C. I. O. have been the most rabid defenders of the act and its creature, the National Labor Relations board. The board has been his rod and his staff, chastising his enemies and supporting his followers. Its partisanship has been shown time and again in the appraisal of its acts by the courts. More than any other agency it has been the channel for paying Mr. Lewis dividends on the $500,000 he gave President Roosevelt.

But in the coal fields Mr. Lewis now wants none of the Wagner act. He is trying instead to get his objectives—a closed shop and abolition of the 22 year old clause penalizing outlaw strikes—by direct negotiations with the operators. The Wagner act permits closed shop contracts, but hardly such an extensive one as Mr. Lewis asks. Under the act a contract is permitted if a majority of the employees in a bargaining unit designated by the board have chosen the union in question as their representative. Mr. Lewis wants as a single bargaining unit hundreds of employees in eight or ten states. Whether the act would permit the labor board to designate such a unit is dubious. The American Federation of Labor believes it does not.

The A. F. of L. has a rival mine union, the Progressive Mine Workers. Started in Illinois, it has been recruiting in the Appalachian area, in which it now claims a majority at 214 mines, employing altogether 80,000 to 100,000 miners. Mr. Lewis' proposed closed shop would force employers to deal with him as the representative of these Progressive miners, although he is the last person in the world those miners want to represent them. The contract might also give the labor board an excuse to refuse the demand of the Progressive union for board conducted elections in which the miners affected could name their own representative.

The motive for seeking abolition of the strike penalty clause is disclosed by a recent report of a trial examiner, who apparently does not share the view of his bosses in the labor board that Mr. Lewis can do no wrong. He recommended that a West Virginia mine be held guilty of an unfair labor practice and be ordered to reinstate a Progressive miner whom the company fired, if its officials said, in fear that failure to do so would cause a strike against the mine by the United Mine Workers.

In the words of the trial examiner, that miner was paying dues to the Lewis union because he had to. He was paying dues to the Progressive union because he wanted to. He paid dues to Mr. Lewis through the checkoff, under which his employers deducted them from his pay and turned them over to Mr. Lewis.

So long as there was no rival union in the field Mr. Lewis did not need a closed shop. Miners who worked at a union mine paid their dues to his union. It was and is his union, not the miner's. Mr. Lewis suspended the elected officers of more than half the districts, containing more than half the membership of the union. His appointees ran these districts and named the ANIMOSITY TOWARD CORPORATIONS Judging from contributions to newspapers and what the youth gets in the public schools from the teachers, there seems to be a general animosity toward corporations. The public seems to believe that corporations are the cause of our trouble; that corporations control the government and have secured laws that are responsible for our predicament. One contributor says, "They are Charlie McCarthys. A Corporation is an artificial person created by law."

Corporations are simply groups of men who combine their assets in order to more efficiently and economically bring capital together for the purpose of producing wealth and at the same time limit financial liability. A corporation has the same beliefs as the men who own the corporation. The one thing the corporation has, which the individual does not have, is a limited liability. If the enterprise does not succeed, the stockholders cannot have their other assets taken to make up the losses to people entering into contract with the corporation.

Experience has demonstrated that society is much better off to permit enterprise to have this protection. Every man who contracts with a corporation does it with the idea of a profit and knows his security is limited by the assets of the corporation and does not include the assets of the stockholders. This protection makes it possible for people to accumulate capital in an enterprise that could not be secured if the stockholders could be assessed to make up any losses.

If corporations have been responsible for the laws that have been passed, they certainly have made a miserable failure. The facts of the matter are that the Federal Government has passed practically no laws during the last quarter of a century, with the exception of tariff laws, that were for the benefit of the investor—the owners of corporations. The laws that have been passed have invariably been detrimental to the investors—the owners of corporations.

The sooner people begin to realize that any organization which permits capital to be accumulated, as corporations do, is beneficial to society as a whole, the sooner we will again be on the road to employment and a better standard of living. There probably is no subject on which the people need more enlightenment than the benefit which comes to the humblest worker by the accumulation of capital and means of getting it to unite for the purpose of increasing production.

ALL PAYING TRIBUTE TO JOHN LEWIS

Whether a citizen wants to or not, he is paying tribute to John Lewis. No matter what John Lewis stands for or does, we are all obliged to help support him. This is true because he coerces men to pay dues to his organization before they can mine coal; so that everybody who uses the products of the mine—and that includes everybody, because they are consumers of things made or transported by coal—is contributing to John L. Lewis. He has the right, under our present administration, to take this money to help elect the man who will further give him power. Last presidential election, his organization donated $600,000 to the Roosevelt campaign.

Another way that every citizen is contributing to John Lewis, when he orders a strike in order to get a contract that protects him against the inroads of the American Federation of Labor Unions, his men go on relief and every worker in the land is obliged to help support the Lewis strikers through paying more for the products they buy.

He is a nice example of collective bargaining. The Federal Government set up a coal commission and spent several millions dollars with 1200 employees to settle labor disputes and they have been able to do nothing. Of course, there is no possible way to settle a labor dispute by the government, if we are to retain free enterprise. If they coerce either the employe or the employer, it is a form of dictatorship, of bureaucracy, of slavery.

And those who admire what they do not understand, are constantly saying that collective bargaining is the solution for our economic problems. Collective bargaining can lead, as it is leading through the Lewis route, to loss of our personal liberty to create what we need. We must pay tribute to some dictator, like Lewis, who uses the word forcibly extracted from humble workers to entrench himself as an economic dictator.

Just suppose that when Lewis gets all the coal mines under his thumb, he rules that men who buy coal must do as he dictates, if he is to furnish them with coal. Then, how much more power will he have? Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini will have no more power than he has, if he gets absolute control of coal.

And, yet, the administration contends that it is for freedom and liberty and for the welfare of mankind in general.

Delegates to the national convention. The convention that reelected Mr. Lewis president of his union recently was just as democratic as the Reichstag, and for the same reason. In both instances a dictator named the delegates.

Similar tactics were followed by the C. I. O. which the miners' treasury largely financed. The steel workers, textile workers, packing house workers, and farm machinery workers, among others, do not have autonomous unions. They are recruited and ruled by organizing committees. Mr. Lewis runs the organizing committees. The workers who pay him dues through those organizing committees have no more control over Mr. Lewis than the members of the German Labor Front have over Dr. Robert Ley, who collects their dues for Hitler.

The United Mine Workers are the key to this whole system, but it is their treasury that has financed it. It was the miners who put up the $500,000 for Mr. Roosevelt. It was the miners who paid more than $3,000,000 that Mr. Lewis poured into the C. I. O. The C. I. O. is largely a paper organization. It cannot stand on its own feet financially. If Mr. Lewis loses the miners he loses the C. I. O.

PREVIEW OF 1940

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, May 23.—A talented young eastern newspaperman, hired as a writer several months ago by one of the studios, was told to try his hand at an original story. So he pitched in enthusiastically and in a week submitted an outline.

His bosses weren't in any such hurry, however. Nobody seemed to have time to look at the outline, and it was many weeks before it finally got back to him with the discouraging judgment: "This won't do at all."

Meanwhile, though, the newcomer had got so tired of playing pinocchio with his secretary that he had dived into work again and had turned out a screen play on his first story idea. The script fell into the hands of an associate producer, who accepted it and began work immediately. Other executives, impressed, asked for a second look at the rejected outline. They decided it had possibilities, after all, and have given it to a veteran team of story doctors for a rewrite job. So it may become another picture.

So This Is Fame Talking about movie fans the other day, John Garfield commented on the almost indestructible fame of the old favorites and the embarrassing obscurity of the newer players. Cited the Dodge City excursion as an example, and how Buck Jones and Hoot Gibson stole the show. Then he confessed what had happened to him.

People knew that the Garfields were from Hollywood because they saw them get off the train. But autograph hunters decided that his pretty wife (who isn't an actress at all) looked most like a movie celebrity, so several books were handed her.

Mrs. Garfield, amused, signed "Hedy Lamarr" on five or six of them before she noticed that nobody was paying the slightest attention to her husband. "Look, you really don't want MY autograph," she confided to the next person. "You should get HIS—his John Garfield."

What with the noise and excitement, the fan didn't quite catch the name. "Hey, gang!" he whooped excitedly. "Here's John Gilbril!" So for several minutes, until he could escape, Garfield scribbled, "With best wishes, John Gilbril."

Down, But Not Out A director of the Motion Picture Relief Fund tells about a Scandinavian nobleman, also an out-of-work actor, who had been receiving a small amount of cash aid each week. The fellow had pawned all his valuables and most of his wardrobe before appearing before the Fund committee for relief.

Soon afterward he again appeared with a request. Would it be possible, he asked hesitantly, for him to reclaim his dress suit and studs and things—just for one evening? Crown Prince Frederik and Crown Princess Ingrid of Denmark were in Los Angeles, and because of his—his—family standing he had been invited to the reception. In fact, he—had known the crown prince.

Not one of the stars and wealthy movie executives who administer the Relief Fund had been invited to the reception. They gave him the money, with a few dollars extra for a haircut and a taxi. It would be nice to be able to report that some change of fortune came from all this. But it didn't. The dress suit and studs and things are back in the pawnshop; the money is back in the Relief Fund; and the titled actor is back in his shabby rooming house. Speaking of bluebloods, there's Suddenly we three thought of the muddy tank in the pasture, and it lay like a far cool lawn in our mind's eye, so we knew there was nothing else to do but go in swimming. And it was like stepping into liquid May with the green air of the Plains flowing over us. Our bodies exulted as the silky water slid backward to our feet, and soon the sun set in swirls of Talkman roses, and you could hold your eyes even with the water and look toward the sun, and the water would be swirls of lacquered Talkman roses... such was the first swim of the year.

"Let's talk about The War," said the boy. "I like to talk about The War. They say there ain't going to be one and everybody is against it, but I've got a feeling that we are not going to miss out on anything." And the other boy replied, "Whenever I think of getting killed in a war I kind of get the creeps, but I know I'm not going to get killed." And his companion replied, "Well, I'm just the other way around. I bet I'd get killed the first thing. But I ain't gonna hang back. You can't afford to hang back because if you do you'll get afraid, and you'll be scared to death as it is."

So They Say

If there were more sitting down at the round table and less sitting down in strikes, we'd all be much better off. —FEDERAL JUDGE HARRY E. KALODNER, Pennsylvania.

I speak for the underprivileged rich. Americans should be willing to pay something for the privilege of voting. We have too many voters. Those who have a stake in the government should have some preference. —STATE SENATOR GEORGE WOODWARD of Pennsylvania.

Certainly, this administration wants to see the private economic system work, and has great confidence in it. I simply do not understand the defeatist attitude of men of great wealth that this private economic system cannot be made to work. —SECRETARY OF COMMERCE HARRY HOPKINS.

Labor relations? We don't have labor relations here. We all get treated decent because I believe any employer who can't pay me a living wage ought to get out of business. —CHARLES M. BERGLING, Cleveland small manufacturer.

The mothers of the world want peace. We must make peace to have it. —MRS. JAMES ROOSEVELT, mother of President Roosevelt.

another fellow here who, though titled, seems to be something less than a nobleman. On trains, in hotels and night clubs, and even in at least one private home, he has lost his wallet. When found, it always has contained cards and papers, but no money. But he makes dignified protest that it originally held a hundred or more dollars.

In several instances, rather than risk unpleasant talk, the sums he named have been "refunded" him. And at least two employes who found the wallet have been dismissed. Detectives had a heart-to-heart talk with him the other day and recommended a change of climate.

The Family Doctor

By Morris Fishbein

The rise in popularity of chocolate beverages is a matter which interests every mother in the country. School children like chocolate. There is no reason for disclaiming the statement that children will drink more milk when it is flavored with chocolate than without. Dietitians M. D. Paige and M. C. Kelly have made a study of this subject for the Annual Conference of Food Service Directors. They found all sorts of chocolate flavored drinks. Some are made by adding powdered chocolate, chocolate syrup or cocoa to milk. Sometimes whole milk is used; sometimes skimmed milk. Sometimes the flavor is added before, and sometimes after the milk is pasteurized. Sometimes sugar is added; sometimes tapioca, starch, or gelatine is added to hold the chocolate in solution.

In some instances, the chocolate milk beverage is enriched by the addition of vitamin D. Sometimes the vitamin D is in the milk before the chocolate is added.

In the preparation of this study, information was sought from school dietitians all over the country as to the type, cost and selling price of chocolate beverages. In some instances such beverages had been excluded from school lunchrooms, but it was found, throughout the country generally, that the sales of chocolate milk exceeded those of milk without chocolate.

Since the most of the chocolate drink is in some instances so high that the child goes without necessary foods, including the hot foods and fresh vegetables, there is a definite problem before the parents and teachers in relationship to the sale of these substances.

It is important to recognize that the addition of the flavor should not permit the sale of milk that is sub-standard in the quantity of butterfat or in the method of pasteurization, or in any other way. The same sort of regulations should control chocolate milk drinks as control milk in general.

Chocolate milk drinks must be fed during transportation and kept on ice before service in order to keep down the number of bacteria. If the drink has been modified by using skimmed milk, or in any other way that fact should be clearly stated.

It is generally known that the taking of sweetened beverages will tend to some extent to break down the appetite for other foods.

Obviously, therefore, the child should be encouraged to take the sweetened drink at the end of the meal rather than as the first course.

ADMIRAL STIRLING SCENTS WAR

A fighting admiral's 48 adventurous years in the Navy are related in a book both frank and rich in anecdote, "Sea Duty (Putnam: $3)," by Yates Stirling, Jr., retired rear admiral. Eased on that broad and lengthy experience, Admiral Stirling sums his opinion on the present international situation as follows:

World domination for Germany is possible only by defeating Britain on the seas and in the air. To conquer middle Europe and give her the resources of the Balkans to prepare her for a future war, but she does not require a navy, but to conquer America, which is her ultimate aim, she must have a navy powerful enough to conquer the British navy. Germany has no desire to force a war until her fleet is ready. She began the World War too soon. She was not ready on the sea in 1914.

America should desire that Hitler be forced to a showdown before his new fleet is built and prepared to give a new jolt to the world from Great Britain, for if that happens, America's turn will be next. There is no doubt about that in my mind. War and peace in Europe then are in the hands of Great Britain and France. War must come eventually, so why not now? It is the only way that Germany can be stopped.

In the Pacific, war might come because of some arrogant and aggressive action by Japan upon our cherished rights or upon our sovereignty. Japan will first wish to complete the subjugation of China, then throw Russia back in the eastern provinces. Like Germany, she has planned her domination of the East step by step. She can be stopped only by a complete defeat on the sea.

If she makes a misstep and drives the U. S. into a war, Japan will find herself in the same position that Germany did in 1914. She will have against her Great Britain, Russia and unconquered China. Could she hope to win?

War or peace in the Pacific thus are in the hands of the U. S., but war in the Pacific, as in Europe, will come eventually.

Panhandle Unit Hears Talk By Health Officer

Special To The NEWS

PANHANDLE, May 23.—Jimmy Walker, district health officer, talked on "Sanitation in the Schools" at a meeting of the Panhandle unit of Public Health Friday afternoon in the high school.

Mr. Walker stressed the necessity of a sanitary water system, drinking fountains, and adequate lighting and ventilation for school rooms. Mr. Walker stated, "Water carries almost all types of communicable diseases spread by personal contact, especially typhoid fever and dysentery."

Mr. Walker urged every school district to see that the water supply is given periodical state analysis. Mr. Walker added: "For better vision, use soft tones for ceilings and walls in school rooms, cream or buff is better than white, as they prevent glare."

Miss Ely Lockhart, county nurse, gave her quarterly health report. The next meeting will be July 3.

City Swimming Pool Will Open Saturday

Water To Be Clean, Clear All The Time

Can you picture a swimming pool whose walls, floors and water are as clear and clean all the time, day in and day out, as when the water was first put in the freshly-scrubbed pool?

Yes, you can picture that, because that vision is a swimmer's paradise, but the City of Pampa hopes to make that picture a reality this summer at the city swimming pool which WILL OPEN SATURDAY.

The city which will operate the pool this summer plans to keep the water and pool just that clear and clean by the use of two things—a rebuilt filter system, and a new vacuum cleaner that scrubs and polishes the sides and floor of the pool while it is full of water.

The cleaner requires six men to operate it, and arrived several days ago.

Softball Teams To Be Organized Here Tonight

Finishing touches are now being put on the filter system. Not only that but the water is going to be warmer than ever before. Since the pool was opened the boiler which heated the water has been standing in the open with no protection from the wind or the elements. It just wouldn't heat the water, but the City is planning to build a shed over the boiler in order to conserve the heat and really make the water as warm as possible.

100 Suits Bought

Not only that, but the city has purchased 100 new suits of the latest design, and that means something because the suits will not be antiquated affairs with skirts. Then, the men's dressing room is going to be finished, and stalls will be built all the way back. At present there are about four stalls with space for three times as many more.

How It Works

The city is already ready to guarantee that the water will be fresh and the pool clean, because of the new filtration system which has never worked satisfactorily in the past because it was not large enough.

The three filter basins which are eight feet deep, 10 feet long and 8 feet wide have been cleaned out. The filter system works like this: water continuously drains out of the pool through a pipe and flows by gravity down the hill toward Red Deer creek to the filter. At the bottom of the filter basin is one and one-half feet of inch rock, on top of the rock is one and one-half feet of pea gravel, and on top of that is one and one-half feet of fine sand. The water that runs out of the swimming pool will filter through the sand, gravel and rock, and when it does that it is purified. Everybody knows that water becomes purified when it runs through sand and rock. The purified water will then flow into the clear well which is 10 feet long, 10 feet wide and 16 feet deep.

Well Deepened

This clear well was formerly only 8 feet deep, but it has been deepened in the last few weeks to a depth of 16 feet in order to take care of the filtered water. All outlets to the filter basins and the clear well have been enlarged. When the purified water runs into the clear well, a centrifugal pump pumps it through the heater into the swimming pool.

The water will be fit for human consumption when it goes back into the pool. The city guarantees that.

To Fix Pumps

Naturally, the city expects more patrons. It believes that a continuously clean, clear pool will attract more swimmers.

This week the city commission will set prices which will be announced later in the week, and tickets will go on sale Thursday. These season tickets, including those for adults and children, will go on sale at the city hall. Rules and regulations for operating the pool will also be set.

New Pump Installed

The pool when full will hold 330,000 gallons of water. It is estimated that the new filter system will have the effect of changing the water in the pool every 10 days. The filter system will purify 30,000 gallons per hour. In recent years, the filter system did not run one-fourth of the time, and three or four times as much water will be filtered this year than in previous years. In the past the filter system has never operated to full capacity. A new pump will also be installed in the pump house by the filter basins.

To Warm Water

The new pump at the filter basins will have a capacity of 500 gallons per minute, and that is another reason why the city is confident that the water is going to be pure and fresh. The city will try to maintain the water to a temperature of 82 degrees, although water when it comes from the wells is about 52 degrees.

Another improvement at the pool is that the city is going to paint the walls with a special paint of medium blue color that will add luster to the water.

Board Eliminated

The highest diving board will be eliminated this summer. The 10 foot boards will be the highest at the pool. It was necessary to eliminate the high board to get insurance.

The waste water will be used to irrigate the "syrup pan" terraces which have been laid out on the slope running down the hill from the pool to the creek. The terraces have already been sown in Bermuda grass. Later on the city plans to terrace the grounds in front of the pool.

Another improvement will be a pipe rail fence at the front of the pool. This would prevent any dirt from crashing into the board walk and possibly injuring some one. Drivers are that crazy sometimes, you know.

LaCross Hit On Mat Card With Villainy

Suri Hayamaka, little Japanese Ju-Jitsu artist, defeated Ernie Peterson in straight, falls in a Ju-Jitsu match last night at the Pampa Athletic arena but it was Gill LaCross, the wild French-Canadian, who stole the card.

LaCross turned out to be even rougher and wilder than expected. When Sgt. Rich failed to arrive, George Thomas took his place and it was a bad night for Mr. Thomas, who wished time after time that Sgt.

Turn To Page 6 For Additional Sports

Rich hadn't been called to Beaumont because of the serious illness of his wife.

LaCross made lovers of villainous wrestling forget all about Buck Lipscomb. The French-Canadian slugged, bit, choked, kicked and wrestled. He demonstrated new holds, especially one where he picked his victim up bodily, with head down, and then ran into the corner with him. This particular torture hold and a leg breaker ended the match in 23 minutes when Mr. Thomas hollered "uff."

The dead-pan Japanese went after Peterson with nothing but Ju-Jitsu and Peterson didn't like it. Tickets swamped Peterson's style but he managed to get plenty of holds. Hayamaka, however, pressed nerves to break them and Peterson couldn't stand the gaff. He lost the first fall in 15 minutes with a Japanese choke hold and the second in 14 minutes with the same hold.

Nick or Pete Tripodas and Count Antonio Morino went to a wild and woolly draw in the opener. The Greek blocked the Italian's cunning with strength and the two were checkedmate all the way.

Righthander Frank Anderson, pitching his first game for Marshall after returning from Shreveport, allowed Texarkana only five hits as Marshall won, 2 to 1.

Montague showed flashes of fine golf in the qualifying effort but grew more errant as the afternoon wore on.

Pampa Loses Second Game To New Mexicans 7 To 5

CLOVIS, MAY 23—Seven to five in New Mexico's favor was the final count in a wild-eyed pitched here last night as Vannoy and Potec battled it out to nine and eight hits respectively and the Oilers dropped the second of a two-game series.

Gordon Nell kept his string of circuit clouts intact as he got one in the fourth, but none was on. After the score was tied twice, Rattifman of Clovis went howlid to score three runs in the third and fifth, and held Pampans to one in the third, three in the fourth and one in the seventh. Clovis got their other run in the second.

Pampa was retired both in the eighth and ninth with three on base.

Tommy Wright Strokes Best In Qualifying

By HUGH S. FULLETON Jr.

NEW YORK, May 23 (AP)—Tommy Wright, Knoxville, Tenn., pro, shot 36 holes in 132 strokes yesterday to qualify for the National Open tournament, but the chances are he won't be heard from again.

Wright's performance was the best of the many low-scoring feats that marked sectional qualifying rounds at 30 sites. He knocked eight strokes off par for Atlanta's famous East Lake course.

Whether Wright can shoot the same sort of golf through four gruelling rounds in the tournament proper at the Philadelphia Country club, June 8, 9, and 10, is another question. It's not unusual for some unknown player to get hot in these widespread sectional tests, but when

By HUGH S. FULLETON Jr.

NEW YORK, May 23 (AP)—Tommy Wright, Knoxville, Tenn., pro, shot 36 holes in 132 strokes yesterday to qualify for the National Open tournament, but the chances are he won't be heard from again.

Wright's performance was the best of the many low-scoring feats that marked sectional qualifying rounds at 30 sites. He knocked eight strokes off par for Atlanta's famous East Lake course.

Whether Wright can shoot the same sort of golf through four gruelling rounds in the tournament proper at the Philadelphia Country club, June 8, 9, and 10, is another question. It's not unusual for some unknown player to get hot in these widespread sectional tests, but when the showdown comes, its generally a man who has had plenty of experience in major tournament play who picks up the marbles.

There's considerable doubt Ralph Guldahl can make it three straight in this year's open, but the favorites will be with him in that group who won exemption from the sectional play by finishing in the low 30's at Cherry Hills last September.

There's still considerable doubt as to who will represent several western qualifying sites. At San Francisco, Los Angeles, Tulsa, and Minneapolis the low scorers all said they wouldn't be able to make the long trip east and it wasn't definitely settled which alternates could go.

SERIAL STORY DATE WITH DANGER

BY HELEN WORDEN

Yesterday Mary interviews the French family and police promise starting disclosure the next day about Janice French and her secret agent.

CHAPTER XI

TUCKY THOMPSON had come home late. A cocktail party at Mrs. Van Zant's detained her. But this was not unusual. She always ran hours behind schedule. Tonight she was only 30 minutes off. "Corinne!" her high-pitched voice echoed through the apartment. "Corinne!"

"Oui, Madame, out. I be there in a moment." Tucky's maid answered sulkily from the kitchen. "I pressing zat dress again for you to wear zis night."

But even Corinne's ill-temper couldn't disturb Tucky's good humor. The afternoon had gone well. Humming a little tune, she rustled into her bedroom.

Her present home was a remodelled walk-up in the East Fifties. She had decorated it herself. The walls of the tiny drawing room were sea-shell pink and the furniture chalk white. There were white bear rugs on the black painted wood floor and white Venetian blinds at the windows.

Her bedroom was done in the same manner. In its inebriated days the series of cubicles had been called a "railroad apartment," but since the architectural face-lifting had taken place they were dignified by the title of the English Chambers. There was a difference of $50 dollars a month in the rent.

Tucky was proud of telling acquaintance, however, that her last apartment, the one where she'd lived with her fourth husband, had cost $12,000 a year. She also explained that she'd taken this present modest home because she didn't think it was right to live in such luxury when so many people were suffering, but to closer friends she confessed that she'd moved into "rump" until she got more "almighty" out of Pete Thompson. The job as hostess at the Dove, she told them, was also helping her bridge the gap.

She must dress with extra care tonight. So many people she wanted to impress would be at the Dove.

The Van Zants' cocktail party had been a great success. The head of a new cosmetics company had been there and she had nearly agreed to promote his business as nearly as she could—until she was sure what to ask him for her efforts. Meanwhile he'd promised to come to the Dove that night. "A big spender," she'd tell Duke Martin. "A big spender."

But he wouldn't be grateful. He never was. Maybe she'd give up being a hostess in his night club and throw her lot in with beauty after all. With a skin like hers, why shouldn't she? The time was ripe. If she was ever to endorse a cosmetic company, she must come to a decision. She'd soon be too old. Anxiously she glanced in her mirror. No, not a line yet.

From beauty, her mind jumped to the Italian Count. Though she was wholly unacquainted with Italian, it gratified her to have him murmur compliments in that language. At least she hoped they were compliments. Heavens! Suppose he had proposed and she'd accepted! Those Italians never had any money. Little shivers ran up and down her back. But they could make love! The Van Zants were so democratic. They always invited everybody. The new head of the slum rehabilitation work in Washington had been there, and a young Swedish prince who was painting those marvelous night pictures. Then there had been quite a circle of dramatic stars; Tilly Porter who was playing in the new Jones review; Sir Ronald Summerfield who'd been brought over from London by the very erudite Winthrop; and Mary Field who was such a hit in "Bright Danger."

And of course there was Clem Shirley! Duke had reminded Tucky again and again that he wanted her to bring more girls to his club.

"I like them young. I like them beautiful," he had said. "But best of all, I like them with money. They're a talking point. They're the right sort of an advertisement for the Dove."

It was at the Van Zants that Tucky had run into Clem, the glamor girl of the deb season. "So much fresher than Janice French," she mused. When she saw her she cleverly button-holed Jack Burden.

"I want you to bring Miss Shirley to the Dove with you tonight and sit at my table."

Clem had been eager. "I've heard so much about that Duke Martin. I've always wanted to meet a real gangster."

"All the more reason for my going," Jack Burden had said. "The boy" was so good-looking, Tucky's brain rattled on as she slipped into her evening gown. If she were younger she'd make a play for him herself. He had such prospects.

The Dove was going full blast as Tucky tripped past the door. She was feeling high; more like the days of '29.

"You're late," said the Duke. "I've been to a cocktail party, looking up customers."

"Where are they?" "Sh-h, here come two now." With narrowed eyes, Martin watched the couple. The girl was fresh, vivacious and well-dressed. The grace of her prettily curved body showed through the sheer folds of a clinging scarlet chiffon. Her fluffy brown hair was piled in soft curls on top of her small head and there was frank curiosity in her blue eyes as she looked straight at the Duke.

"There's the man I want to meet," he heard her tell Tucky. "I'm sure of that," said Jack easily. "Glad to meet you, Martin. Your place has become quite a town institution. I see it was mentioned in the Gazette tonight."

"That so?" drawled Martin. "I haven't read any late papers."

"Oh, the Dove is famous," babbled Tucky. "And so is the Duke."

"Just how was the Dove mentioned?" inquired Martin. "Mary Franklin said that Janice French had just seen here! Thursday!" "I believe," she committed suicide, didn't she?

"What?" Tucky's face whitened. A nudge from Martin discouraged questions. "I'm so busy, I never have a chance to read the papers. Poor Janice! Where's the funeral?"

"I must go. Everybody will be there. She had so many friends."

The door to the bar opened. "Oh, here is that fascinating Italian count I met at the Van Zants. Mr. Martin, I'm going to leave these nice children in your hands."

The quint, whom the queen thought "among the most beautiful children I have ever seen," also made a visit to the legislature, which was cautioned to silence—so as not to frighten them. Emerging from the room in which they talked with the king and queen, the children, with Papa and Mama Dionne and their three nurses, marched down the aisle, slipped out a doorway and back to their train. Market Briefs

NEW YORK, May 23 (AP)—Attempted pump further pushed into the stock market were only partly successful today and leading issues finally moved tentatively to lower levels. A smattering of minor gains, however, was in evidence at the close. Careful study was given by speculative investors to the President's speech before the American Retail Federation, but brokers said, neither buying nor selling was stimulated to any great extent by the reiteration of new deal policies. Some thought, however, was accorded the Chief Executive's advice that consumer spending power should be broadened as a prime recovery measure, with budget balancing secondary. Foreign markets were steady to moderately improved. Commodities did better. Bonds were uneventful.

Auditor Attends State Convention

A trip to the Marshall Ford dam, located 20 miles northwest of Austin, on the Colorado river, featured the two-day program of the annual convention of the Texas County Auditors, held Friday and Saturday at the Driskill hotel in Austin. County Auditor R. C. Wilson returned Sunday from the convention. He was the only auditor present from the Panhandle. Attendance at the convention was 25, representing a third of the entire number of auditors in the state. A luncheon was served at noon to the auditors in the construction camp on the dam site. The dam project has been in progress for two years. The dam is 190 feet high, 2,100 feet long, and over a million cubic yards of concrete was used in its construction. P. L. Marquess, Wharton county auditor, a vice president in the association last year, was elected as the new president, succeeding W. C. Cobb of Waco, McLennan county auditor.

ROOSEVELT

(Continued From Page 1) through other levies on corporations earning more than $25,000 a year and provided no tax avoidance loopholes were created. For sound business reasons, he continued, especially in view of the unbalanced budget, tax revenues must be maintained at existing levels. To Republicans who have proclaimed this as "national debt week," Mr. Roosevelt said much of the approximately $40,000,000 in public obligations was offset by debts owed the government.

"The next thing to remember about the debt," he added, "is that government, like business men, is investing in order to create a higher volume of business income and, therefore, a bigger net yield for government. "National income will be greater tomorrow than it is today because government has had the courage to borrow idle capital and put it to work." The President emphasized that New Deal spending has had but one principal aim—to increase purchasing power among lower income groups. He criticized "highbrow columnists" and "high-gear economists" who he said wanted the government to get heavy industries going and new buildings and machines built without regard to the "average consumer's need or his ability to use these buildings or machines."

They were the same people, he went on, who in 1929 called conditions sound when there was no purchasing power to pay for "expansion which consumers do not need." "They were unrealistic and theoretical," he asserted, "when they were prophesying their new era in 1929—they are just as unrealistic and theoretical and wrong—when they are prophesying national bankruptcy in 1939." The President was applauded several times. The first was when he arose to speak. Mr. Roosevelt greeted the audience as "My Fellow Retailers." He told the group consumers' buying power "is the milk in the coconut of all business, big and little," and said there are two schools of thought on how to produce more customers with more money. He called one school the "gamblers" and the "wild-eyed radicals in our midst"—those who are "eager to gamble the safety of the nation and our system of private enterprise on nothing more than their personal hunch that the government will keep its hands off the economic system, customers will just happen."
