FOUR MEN SLAIN IN GUN BATTLE

Constitutionality Of Law Permitting Gasoline Stripping Attacked In Suit

CAPTIVE SUSPECT IDENTIFIED AS ONE OF TRIO WHO LOOTED COLEMAN BANK

SNEED CLAIMS HIS HOLDINGS ARE DAMAGED

SAYS 600,000,000 FEET OF GAS WASTED DAILY

AMARILLO, Feb. 3. (AP)—The constitutionality of the sour gas law, which permits the stripping of gasoline from natural gas, was attacked in a suit filed in United States district court here today by J. T. Sneed, Jr., owner of 75,000 acres of oil and gas lands in the Panhandle field.

Sneed is seeking an injunction against the Skelly Oil company and the Phillips Petroleum company, charging that the operations of these companies are sapping his own holdings. He did not ask for a temporary restraining order.

It is probable that the case will be tried before Judge James C. Wilson at the spring term of federal court, which convenes here in April. The petition, which charges that 97 per cent of the gas processed by natural gasoline plants is blown into the air and lost, attacks the constitutionality of the sour gas law on the ground that it denies landowners in this area equal protection, in that stripping is permitted only in the Panhandle field and the national constitutions are violated.

Penalties Added When Cars Seen Minus Licenses

Twenty per cent penalties have been paid by a number of Gray county residents who have been found driving their cars without 1934 licenses.

Those who thought the usual time extension would be granted were astonished when they found that highway patrolmen who stopped them were not "joking".

ARRESTED IN AUSTIN HILLS WITH $7,800

NEWTON AND WIFE ARE FOUND IN REAR OF FARMER'S CAR

AUSTIN, Feb. 3. (AP)—An official and an employee of the Coleman National bank tonight identified a man who gave his name as John Newton, and his home as Chickasha, Okla., arrested in the hills near here today with $7,800 on his person, as one of a trio who held up their bank and robbed it of $23,750 yesterday.

D. C. Edens, cashier, and Ed Lemay, bookkeeper of the bank, made the identification.

Edens said Newton was the man that "covered" the rear of the bank while the robbery was in progress and added that, in his opinion, "he was not the leader."

Lemay was even more positive in his identification.

"I never could forget those eyes," he said. "He had a handkerchief over his face, but the eyes I now have just seen peered out from above it."

Edens said he was made even more positive of Newton's identification by the man's voice.

"He was the man who guarded the rear door and walked from there to the vault," said Edens. He commanded C. W. Woodruff, assistant cashier, to put the money in a sack which he (Newton) hid.

Woodruff was one of the six employees abducted by a trio of masked men after they robbed the bank. Woodruff was the last man to be released from the robbers' car. He was unable to come here to try to make the identification.

A woman, who gave her name as Marie New, on arrested with the man identified as one of the robbers, was being questioned by managers and other officers. She did not actively participate in the robbery, however. She was arrested in Newton's company, the two of them crouched in the rear of a farmer's automobile, by Captain E. H. Hammon.

Sheriff Frank Mills, who came here with the Coleman bank employees, said he did not know whether he would return the couple to his county tonight or wait until morning.

BACKSTAGE IN WASHINGTON

BY GILMORE N. NUNN, Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The galleries finally got their money's worth in the senate. Huey Long "told the tale" down in the pit, and was the center of attraction, while up in the presidential box Will Rogers snickered and stomped his feet. Dr. Albert Einstein twirled his mousetrap in contemplative satisfaction, while Mervyn (movie-actress) lent beauty and charm to the must be admitted, very little admittance.

Mid swinging arms and bobbing head, the English hurred one monkey-wrench after another into the machinery of his opponents who are trying to start an ouster action against him. Giving the devil his dues, it must be admitted that his two-hour tirade was an able oration, studded with gems of wit and repartee, and spiced with rebuffs that made those who opposed him on various and sundry questions sorry they ever got to their feet. Example:

LONG: "—And now we are condemned, because we were in the Choctaw club when we ran for the senate by a blackened-face gang who cannot go under their own names, but hide behind the petticoats of their wives and daughters; men who have been put on the block and have been found wanting; the public will not have, who do not dare to show their mon-

Car License Issue Revived

The senate rejected a house bill to extend the payment of motor vehicle registration fees, which were due on Feb. 1, but an effort to revive the proposal may be made next week. The house passed another bill that would fix March 31 at the final payment date as a permanent policy and that proposition still is to be acted on by the senate. Senator B. G. O'Neal of Wichita Falls and others have given no ce they will try to amend that bill to have it apply to 1934 registrations. Should it be of any value to motor vehicle owners this year, however, it would have to receive a two-thirds majority vote of each house, to put it into immediate effect, when signed by the governor. Otherwise it would not become law until sixty days after the legislature adjourned, too late to help those who would hope to benefit by a postponement this year.

HEARING SET FOR FEBRUARY 19 TO CONSIDER WHETHER OIL ALLOWABLES SHOULD BE HIKED

PARKER SAYS DEMAND IS GREATER THAN SUPPLY

AUSTIN, Feb. 3. (AP)—The Texas railroad commission announced today it would hold a hearing on February 19 of operators in all oil fields in the state to consider the probability of increasing present production allowables.

The state allowable at this time is 884,000 barrels daily under permit of Harold E. Teke, federal oil administrator.

R. D. Parker, chief of the oil and gas division of the commission, said the demand for Texas oil "is much greater than the allowable assigned this state by the federal board." He pointed, for proof, to "large" importations of California oil for refining purposes in Texas.

"There never was a clearer case of 'carrying coal to Newcastle,'" said Parker.

He said "wells all over this state have been cut to the bone and many shut down, because the allowable is too small to justify their operation."

As the jury completed earlier in the day, was retired early tonight for the week-end if it had heard out, the direct testimony of August Thalheimer, at whose home Kennedy lived after separating from his wife, was given Monday morning.

As a packed courtroom followed intently every word and Dr. Dean, handsome and aloof, listened calmly. Thalheimer told the jury that Kennedy became ill after going out on the night of July 21 "and staying out until 4:30 a. m."

Thalheimer said the physician dressed with great care and went out about midnight after receiving numerous telephone calls, but the state's attempt to show these calls came from Dr. Dean was balked by a court ruling.

"You'll have to prove the defendant was at the other end of the wire," said presiding Judge S. F. Davis as the prosecution started to question Thalheimer about Kennedy's "numerous telephone calls."

Thalheimer thereafter was prevented from repeating anything he had heard Kennedy say over the phone.

SICKNESS OF DEAD DOCTOR IS DESCRIBED

State Fails to Prove That Woman Physician Called On Night of Poisoning.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Feb. 3. (AP)—A vivid description of the 10-day illness of Dr. John Preston Kennedy, 44, allegedly poisoned with a whisky lullab, was presented by the state today as it sought to convict Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, 33-year-old physician, for his death.

The one state witness testifying today told how Dr. Kennedy, a surgeon, remained out until near daylight the night before he became ill. He had left his home at midnight after receiving numerous telephone calls, but the state was not able to prove Dr. Dean was at the other end of the wire.

As the jury completed earlier in the day, was retired early tonight for the week-end if it had heard out, the direct testimony of August Thalheimer, at whose home Kennedy lived after separating from his wife, was given Monday morning.

As a packed courtroom followed intently every word and Dr. Dean, handsome and aloof, listened calmly. Thalheimer told the jury that Kennedy became ill after going out on the night of July 21 "and staying out until 4:30 a. m."

Thalheimer said the physician dressed with great care and went out about midnight after receiving numerous telephone calls, but the state's attempt to show these calls came from Dr. Dean was balked by a court ruling.

"You'll have to prove the defendant was at the other end of the wire," said presiding Judge S. F. Davis as the prosecution started to question Thalheimer about Kennedy's "numerous telephone calls."

Thalheimer thereafter was prevented from repeating anything he had heard Kennedy say over the phone.

The state's procedure in starting off with a description of Kennedy's illness was attacked by Chief Counsel A. F. Gardner, but he was overruled on a request that the court require the state to outline its case before taking testimony.

Blankets To Be Given Those In Dire Need Here

A limited supply of blankets to be given to families in dire need in Gray county will be received at the local relief office Wednesday. Mrs. W. H. Davis, county relief administrator, was notified yesterday morning.

Sankey Grilled

Verne Sankey, kidnap gang king, hunted for more than two years, is shown here in two poses as he was grilled by federal agents in Chicago on the Lindbergh kidnaping case and other abductions. Sankey, captured as he sat in a barber chair in a Chicago shop, is said to have admitted his guilt in the Bremer abduction in St. Paul and the Botcher kidnaping in Denver.

KIDNAPERS ARE GIVEN 3 DAYS TO NEGOTIATE

Then Officers Will Be Summoned To Hunt Gang

ST. PAUL, Feb. 3. (AP)—Begging an early release of his son, Edward G. Bremer, an anxious father tonight gave the kidnap gang demanding $200,000 ransom for the young banker's release, three days and three nights in which to act before summoning authorities to track them down.

"Please use this all the promise you can," Adolph Bremer, principal owner of the Jacob Schmidt Brewing company, asked newspapermen as he made his third public appeal for immediate return of the 37-year-old bank president.

"This" was a neatly typed statement, offering fullest cooperation and secrecy to the gang if they would heed this plea and pledging that his interest in the abduction would cease upon the safe return of the younger member. The elder Bremer inferred he would not prosecute the gang if they were captured, provided the son was freed.

Maury Hughes To Run For Governor

LUBBOCK, Feb. 3. (AP)—Maury Hughes, Dallas, chairman of the democratic state executive committee, will announce his candidacy for the democratic nomination as governor of Texas on Tuesday night, Feb. 6.

Mr. Hughes in Lubbock to address a convention of West Texas Young Democratic clubs, said in his formal announcement would be made at a state-wide banquet being tendered him by friends in connection with his services with the democratic state executive committee.

POLICE CHIEF OF OKLAHOMA TOWN KILLED

BLOODY FIGHT FATAL TO 2 POLICEMEN, 2 OUTLAWS

SAPULPA, Okla., Feb. 3. (AP)—Two police officers and two outlaws were killed outright and a third outlaw was critically wounded in a pitched battle on a highway just north of town at 5 o'clock tonight. Those killed were: Tom Brumley, police chief of Sapulpa.

C. P. Lloyd, Sapulpa patrolman, Aussie Elliott, bank robber and jail break artist.

Raymond Moore, a confederate of Elliott.

National Guard troops helped county officers disperse a threatening crowd which gathered here after the slaying.

The crowd, estimated by police at 500 men, gradually scattered after milling for more than two hours about the county jail and police station, where two surviving members of the outlaw band were being held.

Sheriff Willis Strange expressed belief all danger of mob violence had passed.

The wounded man was Eldon Wilson, a bank and highway robbery suspect who had been a companion of Elliott for several years and with whom he escaped from the Osage county jail at Pawhuska several weeks ago.

Tipped that "some fellows that have been hi-jacking filling stations around here" could be found at the home of Lee Davis, a farmer, Brumley, Sheriff Willis Strange of Creek county, and a half dozen others converged upon the place, not knowing the identity of the men sought.

Brumley went to the back door, Strange and another officer to the front door, and others took their posts at windows.

Patrolman Floyd Sellers armed only with a pistol, saw Elliott thru a window and retreated to his car to get a rifle, believing there would be heavy firing.

As Strange rapped on the front door Davis came out and was quickly handcuffed.

Elliott and Wilson followed, with their hands in the air.

A moment later Moore, inside the house, saw Brumley entering the back door and fired, killing him instantly. The shot was a signal for general firing by both the officers and the outlaws, and in a moment Elliott was dead and Wilson wounded in several places.

Ten minutes after the first battle a farmer, W. D. Gamberl, told officers he had seen Moore hiding in a weed patch about two miles from the Davis home.

The officers resembled and surrounded the place.

As Lloyd crawled toward the weeds in a ravine, he raised himself above the protecting cover. At the same time Moore lifted his head both fired and both fell, dying in a few moments from head wounds.

At 7:15 a. m. away, National Guardsmen were assembled tonight, to prevent possible violence to Wilson, whose condition was pronounced dangerous.

Sapulpa citizens were keyed to a high pitch by the bloody battle, and a thousand persons milled about the scenes where the shooting took place. There was no indication of violence, but numerous persons gathered on the streets in little knots to discuss the affair.

THE TWO GREAT COMMANDMENTS: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself.—Luke 10:27.

If you are not a cotton grower, you probably don't know much about culture under the federal plan. Cotton is an important crop in south Gray county, although little in evidence on the plains. You have probably read that Uncle Sam is "renting" cotton land to retire it from production and control surpluses. The letter and spirit of the contracts provide that land thus retired shall not be used to produce crops that may be sold, directly or indirectly. The adjustment plan offers cotton farmers the "chance of a life time" to tone up land with clover, cow peas, soy beans, and other soil-enriching legumes, and to terrace it. In sort, rented acres may well prove to be the key to better farming. . . . If you like figures you may be interested to know that the 1933 cotton crop was worth $856,776,000, including rental payments of $111,500,000 and option payments of $48,000,000 on a production of 13,177 bales.

FRIENDS of congressman Marvin Jones take pride in pointing out the success of the adjustment plans on wheat and cotton. At the same time, it is annoying to note that in a few counties south of us there is a feeling among farmers that they can profit more by refusing to rent part of their land to the government and by raising all the cotton they can possibly produce. This is another example of the rugged individualism which, should it become prevalent in the south, would again reduce the industry to chaos. The government, if given cooperation will distribute about fifty million dollars in the cotton belt in the form of rental checks which will be received in time to finance the planting of the remainder of the cotton acreage.

WHEAT farmers have received $38,295,590 in return for curtailing their 1934 wheat acreage. That sum represents somewhat more than half of the first installment, of 20 cents a bushel, or adjustment payments which will be made to more than half a million growers on their farm allotment. A second installment of 8 cents a bushel will be paid to these farmers after they have fulfilled the terms of their contract.

Collection from the wheat processing tax of 30 cents per bushel, from which the adjustment payments will be made, had totalled $50,721,631 up to December 31, that figure including about $13,000,000 floor stock tax.

Cooperation between the agricultural adjustment administration and wheat growers in carrying out the program is being effected through 1,450 county or district wheat production control associations which function in approximately 1,700 counties in 37 states.

Definite totals on net acreage reduction will be available only after spring wheat plantings are known. Although the wheat sign-up campaign for the 1934 program indicated that nearly 8 million acres would be taken out of production, offsetting plantings of non-cooperating farmers may somewhat reduce that figure. The December 1 crop report showed total winter wheat seedings 7.2 per cent under the three-year average for 1930-32. However the figures in that report do not account for the fact that some growers had planted their wheat before they signed up and will take it out later to conform with the contract requirements, nor for the fact that reduction in spring wheat planting may further reduce total acreage planted.

NOW that about 250 recovery codes are in operation it is quite logical that the administration should begin to examine the conditions which may be arising from a suspension of the anti-trust laws. Co-operation that the national recovery act has made possible has also brought the revival of the possibility that the old evils of unfair competition may be reborn. But it has been very obvious that the codes were being written for the purpose of ending unfair practices which had grown up even under the anti-trust laws. Therefore it is to be expected that monopolistic practice and price fixing should be rigorously combated. Cooperation within an industry must not mean discrimination. If the old evils reappear they will undoubtedly be suppressed with statutes even more severe than those which the president has caused to be experimentally suspended.

A milk strike shouldn't bother Chicago as much as a liquor strike would.

Washington Is Again Playing Game of 'Tag'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. (AP)—Washington is playing that numbers game again—but it isn't a "policy" game. It's automobile tags. Now that all the licenses for 1934 have been distributed, the citizens are looking about to see who has the low numbers.

Heads turn sharply when a District of Columbia number between 100 and 110 goes by. If it isn't the president it's likely one of the Roosevelts or at least their automobile.

Vice President Garner has an official car with license number 111. General John J. Pershing kept 175.

the number he has had for years. Members of the cabinet have a series reserved for them after the vice president—121 went to the bureau of prohibition of the justice department. "Secretary A. W. Mellon," as the application read, got the number he asked for, 442.

The district commissioners can have the lowest numbers but apparently no one is anxious for 1, since numbers 1, 2, 3, and 4 were assigned to the commerce department.

CWA IS PRODUCING 12 PLAYS AND MAY END UP WITH GRAND OPERAS

BY DALE HARRISON.
NEW YORK, Feb. 3. (AP)—If it's all right with the senator from Nevada, the time may come soon when some of the countryside's better barns will be plastered with 24-sheets announcing:
"Tonight! At the opera house The C. W. A. presents with an all-star cast of CWA actors, together with a stupendous ballet and various elephants and camels. Gowns worn by Aida and the hats worn by the soldiers are manufactured under strict NRA regulations. Banners carried by flag-bearers will bear lifelike reproductions of the Blue Eagle.
Admission 50 cents or what have you."

That is George Junkin's dream, and Mr. Junkin is technical director in charge of drama projects under the CWA.
"I hope," he said today, "that the 12 plays now being produced and through a federal grant of $38,000 will prove to be the opening wedge for a gigantic program to include grand opera, pageants, and the return of the old road show, all to be financed by the federal government."
"The possibilities, given adequate federal support, are limitless."
There have been many suggestions already, Junkin said, all hinging upon the availability of federal funds which, in the last analysis, are dependent upon the senators and representatives.
One suggestion is for the hiring of 5,000 Harlem negroes to present a series of negro pageants from the pens of negro writers, the spectacles to be offered in various large auditoriums and stadia.
Another idea is to organize companies of experienced stage hands and stage technicians, ten men to a company, and have them visit schools and amateur theater groups, advising them how properly to produce plays.

A further hope is that the "road" may be revived under CWA benevolence, providing culture for the countryside and vitamins for the actors.
Some thespians contend there is nothing like a dose of "Macbeth" or "Ben Hur" to pep up the farmers and send them racing into the wheat fields the next morning, with new enthusiasm for the plow; and the farmers feel there is nothing like wheat, translated into bread, to add new lustre to the long hair of the actors.
If the CWA can find the necessary money, the actor will get his bread and the countryside will get its culture.

BLOND GODDESS

A New Serial by HERBERT JENSEN

Synopsis: Janice Kent, the movie star, with her press agent and photographers, has arrived in Yucatan to make a picture in the jungle. At Merida they are met by Don Raoul Ortega, who is the man suspected of an attempted abduction of Janice in Hollywood, who says he will guide them to their "location." Meanwhile, Frank Grahame, rejected suitor of Janice, just has escaped death at Ortega's hands and plots a journey into the jungle to look for his friend Bill Langton, aviator who has disappeared.

Chapter 22 IN THE JUNGLE

"We will take burro and horses along," continued Ortega, "and when you have finished your pictures, we can push on to the coast. I have a launch there, at my hacienda, and I will take you south to Belize where the United Fruit boats stop. From there you may sail to Cuba. You have plenty of money."

"Enough," said Greene shortly. Ortega shrugged. "I would suggest you take enough," he said. "If you carry drafts I can arrange tomorrow to have them cashed for you." His glance appraised the diamonds on Janice's fingers and at her throat. "It is not wise to wear jewels in these times. You had better hide them."

"Will this trip be safe?" asked the girl.

"Oh, quite," replied Ortega casually. He smiled slightly.

"Well," said Mr. Greene, "let's get going."

They filed out of the car. Several soldiers behind them with their rifles. Ortega made arrangements to have them taken to a hotel. Mr. Greene admitted to Janice, rather grudgingly, that Ortega certainly could get things done.

Janice did not reply. She was too tired from the long day and the excitement to take much interest in what was going on about her. She noted, however, that Ortega kept close to her, rather too close she thought, but perhaps it was only his zeal to see that she was comfortable.

She stood waiting for her coach. It was poorly illuminated before the station. People moved restlessly about her—native women with shawls about their shoulders, children who whimpered, soldiers with polished, sullen faces, whose metallic equipment clinked and rattled as they moved.

It was then that she observed the man who leaned against the post in the station entrance. Almost a pure Indian type she thought, taking in the dark skin, the beaked nose, and wide cheek-bones. A shock of coarse black hair fell over his forehead. He seemed to be staring toward her, yet not at her.

She turned toward Ortega, who was at her elbow. He was looking directly at the Indian. Ortega nodded his head. His lips were parted in a half smile, which vanished as he became conscious of Janice's interest.

"A poor fellow," he said suavely. "A sort of servant of mine, from my hacienda."

Janice wondered. Then, as the coach drew up beside her, she dismissed the matter from her mind. She assured herself that the slight feeling of uneasiness that pervaded her was due to her fatigue, or her unfamiliarity with these strange surroundings.

Still, the Indian who had stared at Ortega at the station had not looked like a servant. There had been something imperious in his gaze—something that is seen in the look of one used to commanding powerful, obedient, slaves. His character seemed to be expressed by his nose—beaked like a hawk's or a vulture's.

Grahame made a last slash with his machete and dropped it among the tangle of jungle creepers at his feet. He drew tobacco and papers from his breast pocket, and while rolling his cigaret watched the tawny figure beside him. Sweat glistened on Juan's bronze face, the muscles rippled under his shirt as he swung his heavy knapsack.

"Let's cut back to the trail, muchacho," said Grahame.

The lad paused doubtfully. "But we may meet the men who come for the arms," he replied.

"Almost," said Grahame, "it would be better than this."

"As you say, I am willing." He grimaced at his blistered hands and smiled. "It is better to die swiftly with a bullet than to expire slowly from too much work."

Grahame chuckled. "Spoken like a true son of Mexico." "Nevertheless," he continued, "we should be able to tell from the trail whether they have passed toward the hacienda or not, also, they may have returned with the cases. In that event, we can keep behind them."

"Buena," agreed Juan. "Good. The trail lies three kilometers to the south behind that small hill."

They were about fifty kilometers in from the coast. Roughly the direction of the train was south-west. They had been nearly two weeks journeying to reach this point, keeping always off the main trail.

At times they were easy, when the jungle opened into broad grassy savannahs. At other points they were forced to plunge into leech-glutted bogs where every step was a supreme effort.

They skirted the small hill that Juan had noted. Soon they stood upon a narrow path that twisted southward, a truly Indian trail that looped and swung around trees and swamps, never ran straight.

Juan preceded Grahame as they strode along. Their packs were humped high upon their shoulders. Each carried a rifle, taken from Ortega's landed cases. Occasionally Juan pointed to the right or left of the trail, calling Grahame's attention to freshly severed vines that they have passed this way toward the coast. I can not tell whether they have returned.

They walked for several hours. The trail dipped toward a swamp, and Grahame noticed that as the point it crossed the bog, tree trunks and branches had been thrown to give a firm footing. Juan uttered an exclamation and hurried forward.

"I can tell you more now," said the boy. "They are behind us. They have not returned. See—The mud is smoothed. The footprints go all in one direction, very large party, too—perhaps half a hundred, perhaps more."

"They stood at the edge of the swamp that stretched about two hundred yards ahead of them. Thoughtfully they examined the footprints.

"It's the side trail again for us, son," said Grahame. "At least until the footing is dry. It would be telling 'em too much if we crossed here. We don't know how far they are behind us. If they see our prints here they'd send a party ahead to catch us."

Chapter 23 THE SHOT

They started forward. Juan's arm was uplifted to push aside a tree branch. A rifle spat bullets from across the swamp. Grahame glimpsed the flash and saw Juan plunge sidewise into the brush. The American dropped to his knees and crawled toward the boy.

"Hurt, son?" he called softly.

"An instant there was silence, then," "I do not think so, son. The bullet hit my pack and knocked me down."

For a quarter of an hour they lay quiet. Their position was embarrassing. Ahead of them was the open swamp. Behind them—the jungle, but there was a gap between; and it looked impossible for them to cross it unobserved by the hidden rifleman.

"They should wait until dark, but again, it was impossible to tell when the party would return. If it were soon the rifleman could warn them with a shot, and Grahame and the boy would be nearly caught."

It would be better, thought Frank, to bolt for cover and chance the chances of a wild return. If he were soon the rifleman could warn them with a shot, and Grahame and the boy would be nearly caught.

"But surely," Juan agreed. "Ready then?"

"They arose and plunged toward the screen of jungle behind them. But they did not get far. They lay panting behind a log and peered through the screen of hanging vines. Grahame thought he heard a call—a cry coming faintly across the swamp.

"He gave a flash of white as he got out of the far side of the muddy causeway. Juan flung his gun to his shoulder but Grahame knocked the muzzle into the air.

"Wait," he commanded.

A man came into sight, and headed toward them. He lurched between the upflung branches of the felled trees. His chin was sunk to his chest and he dragged a rifle by its muzzle with the butt scrapping in the mud.

"It's a white man," exclaimed Frank. He half rose, but Juan caught his arm.

"Wait." This time it was Juan who spoke the word. "It may be a trick. I do not trust this country."

The man came close. It was apparent to Grahame that he was staggering, whether purposely as Juan had suggested, or from some hurt.

The man crossed the causeway; he was now within yards of the two who hid behind the trail-side. He plodded wearily up to firmer ground.

"Then without warning, his knees buckled. He was so near that the hidden two heard his breath whistling in his throat. The stranger fell forward on his face.

Grahame leaped to his side and half rolled him over. Mud and blood smeared the face, but the man was white. Sweat trickled through the stubble of several days' growth of beard.

The eyelids twitched and two blue eyes glared into Grahame's. The stranger struggled to speak.

"Take it easy, old man," cautioned Grahame.

"I'm done for," whispered the fellow. "I know it. I can't breathe any more."

"With the help of the boy Grahame lifted the inert white man and carried him away from the trail. He commanded Juan to build a fire and heat water. He drew his sheath knife and swiftly cut at the torn and stained clothing of the stranger.

Once he whistled softly beneath his breath. "The man" was badly hurt. Grahame wondered at the vitality that kept him alive.

"There was a bullet hole in the man's abdomen at the right side, not far above the line of the hip bone. The back was a mass of torn flesh where the bullet had passed through. Grahame compressed his lips.

"Dum-dums. A brutal wound. There wasn't a ghost of a chance for the fellow. Probably the lumb was struck too, since he had no control of his inability to breathe."

"Frank took his first-aid kit from his pack. He spread his hypo-dermic kit before him. The stranger's eyes followed his movements.

"Thanks," he whispered. "But I don't need the shot. Don't waste your morphine. I can't feel anything anyway and I've got something to tell you." He closed his eyes. "Listen!"

Grahame leaned over him. The words came slowly, twisted, as if they were strangled before they passed his lips. Grahame stored the broken sequence of words and made no attempt to prompt or question the man.

"His name was McGrath, he said. He was from Hollywood and had come to Yucatan on location. He hoped they would not, and thought that they could not since Ortega, his guide, no doubt had been captured when they were fired upon from ambush three days before. Without Ortega they would not know where McGrath had gone.

"Who did it? Indians, McGrath inquired. He saw one while he lay by the trail's side. He thought Ortega had been captured because he had heard his voice talking with the others. But he couldn't be sure. He'd been nearly unconscious; they had taken him for dead.

"They went through my pockets," whispered McGrath. "Then they threw me into the brush like a hunk of meat!"

"My gun had fallen in a swamp. I remembered that and fished it out when I came to. They had gone."

Juan crashed through the brush and crunched, panting, beside Grahame.

"Senor!" He spoke swiftly. "They come! I went back to watch and heard them. They are just behind me!"

"Good boy," breathed Grahame. Almost with one gesture he emptied the pan of water upon the face of the wounded man, Juan lay, snoudering fire, and heaped dirt over the steaming embers. He glanced toward the trail and was satisfied that they were sufficiently screened from the company of men which would pass within the next few minutes. Already he could hear their vague shuffling trail noises.

It was late afternoon. Grahame blessed the luck that had given them this emergency when shadows were deep. Any tell-tale sign they may have left had good chances of being over-looked in that deceptive haze of pre-dusk.

He saw white moving through the screen of brush and trees; then they were abreast of him. Almost he held his breath. On the other side of the wounded man, Juan lay, studiously the boy kept his eyes fastened upon the moving feet that padded the trail so few yards away.

Grahame smiled. It is said that jungle-wise folk can feel eyes upon them, and Juan was talking no gibberish. McGrath's breathing too seemed quieter.

Mosquitoes and gnats whined at the sweat on Grahame's face. He ached to brush them away—to grind his palms against the skin that twitched in protest against the punishment it was taking.

The column of figures that passed them seemed to be without end. He saw patch of white drifting by—the ammunition cases upon the backs of men. Once the line halted. His hands tightened over the stock of his rifle. There was a faint call from ahead and the fragments of white moved again.

Then suddenly the last figure passed. Still Grahame and the boy lay immobile. All sound ceased. For minutes the American remained without movement, then slowly he began to draw one leg forward, preparing to rise. He felt Juan's hand grip his ankle. Again he relaxed.

He heard his wrist watch ticking a yard from his ear. Then came a soft sound from the trail—the breathing of men. It sounded as close as if he were locked in a Miss Cook a pale green crepe afternoon frock, and Mrs. Christine Cook a gray suit with pink lace blouse. All wore pink and white shoulder corsages.

Mrs. Essie Turner and Mrs. Don Conley served tea at the dining table, which was laid with lace cloth over red. Red sweet peas made the heart shaped centerpiece, surrounded with a chiffon ruffle and pierced with gold arrow. Silver candelabra held white tapers.

Rolled sandwiches tied with red ribbon, red heart shaped mints, and large white heart shaped cookies iced in red with "I love you" inscribed in white icing, were served with the tea. Red chiffon-ruffled nut cups had tiny cards attached with red ribbon, bearing the announcement. "Mary Ellen-Willard, March 17."

Mrs. Conley's afternoon dress was of flared red, and Mrs. Turner's of repeat blue. They and the program guests wore lovely corsages presented by the hostess.

A huge red heart and a shower of tiny Valentines hung from the dining room chandelier. Red, sweet peas, carnations, and roses were used through all the rooms.

The program included a musical reading, The Proposal, by Mrs. T. F. Morton, who played her own accompaniment; vocal solos, In the Garden, and Sweet Molly, by Mrs. J. M. Dodson with Mrs. Tom Rose as accompanist; a violin number, Salut d'Amour, Elgar, by Miss Eleanor Fry with piano accompaniment by Miss Lorene McClintock; a piano solo, Claire de Lune, De Bussey, by Miss McClintock; and vocal solos, Love Is a Rose, San Souci, and The Secret, by Mrs. W. A. Bratton.

The last number, in clever words written by Mrs. H. H. Hicks, announced details of the engagement and wedding plans. Miss McClintock arranged the music.

Guests were Mesdames Buckler, Brown, Bratton, Boston, Faulkner, Hunkapillar, C. Thul, H. Thul, Kelly, Hicks, Ivy Duncan, Rose, Don Conley, Turner, Dodson, C. H. Walker, Braly, Willard, Doucette, Keim, Hughey, McConnell, McDonald, Purviance.

Misses Davis, Chapman, Finley, Walstad, Doucette, Jones.

The dinner, served in formal buffet style, was given at 8 o'clock. Guests were served from a T-shaped table arranged in the dining room and covered with a cloth of imported Chinese lace.

The heart of sweet peas centered the table; red and white sweet peas and white candles completed the room decorations. Place cards were decorated with brides and grooms, and at each plate small china doves perched on gold wedding rings, holding the scroll which announced the marriage date.

ATTENDANCE AT CWA SCHOOL HAS BECOME THE SMART THING

EVERYONE HAS GOTTEN TO STUDY A THING OR 3

SAVANTS, LOWBROWS YEARN TO LEARN THINGS

DEAR OLD CWA, recovery-born school is gaining respect and prestige daily. There has never been anything like it. That it was needed is proved by the local enrollment figure—162.

Everybody is wondering what they can "take" at the school. A pastor would go if they would teach Greek; a man whose stomach has gone hay-wire on him would go if they would teach all about diets, vitamins; one woman wants to take contract bridge lessons. New subjects are being added daily.

What's a Fugue?

By the time of a figurative commencement, some one may have a class in Einstein's theory of relativity; Old Clingman may be teaching wrestling; a mechanic may be teaching mechanics—there are endless possibilities.

Just to show how diverse are the subjects being taught now: In one room T. V. Edwards, expert physicist, is teaching a large class in gasoline plant operation. A small fee is being charged for laboratory experiments. The class meets in room 307 in the high school—where all classes are taught—on Wednesday from 7:30 until 9:30 o'clock.

Beginning tomorrow night, Dudley Steele, Cabot company chemist, will teach a class in chemistry, in room 203, beginning at 7 o'clock.

Who Was Gaugin?

While this is going on, in the next room Miss Beth Blythe, "prince pal" of the school, appointed by Supt. B. Fisher, appointed supervisor by Mrs. Mrs. W. H. Davis, county administrator, appointed by Lawrence Westbrook, state administrator, appointed by Harry L. Hopkins, appointed by President Roosevelt—oh yes, while this is going on, in the next room Miss Blythe is to teach art. Among her students is a cafe waitress and her friend, an oil field workman. The latter is taking art because, he said, he believes that every man and every woman should paint at least one picture. He wants his to be good.

In an adjoining room, people are learning to read, write, and cipher. There should be more of them in CWA school, because somebody checked up and found that there are too many illiterates—people who can't read and write—here.

Hurray for CWA!

The "student body" is interesting, motley and varied. There are people who drive to the high school in big cars; other who pound the pavement with their shoes; some are eager after the knowledge they seek. Some work with a will, some "gripe"—just as all students do. All they need is a football team.

Miss Blythe announced that a new beginners bookkeeping class meeting from 7-8, has been added to the curriculum. Each of the 162 enrolled take two and three courses each. A near-definite schedule has been arranged, but it will be subject to change from time to time as circumstances arise to make it necessary.

Because of the demand for typing and the limited number of typewriters, most of the typing classes have been divided into two and three-day classes.

That Schedule

The present schedule follows:

- Classes meeting from 4 until 5—business arithmetic, room 302, daily;
- From 5 until 6—art, daily, room 106; music, T-TH; typing, daily, room 307;
- From 6 until 7—typing, room 307; daily; penmanship p and spelling, room 301; beginners shorthand, daily, room 308;
- From 7 until 8—grammar, room 301, daily; typing room 307; public speaking, room 309, MWF; elementary arithmetic, room 304, daily; elementary bookkeeping, daily; reading room 306, daily; advanced shorthand, room 306, daily; penmanship p and spelling, daily; art, room 106, MWF; business arithmetic, room 304, MWF; music, T-TH, room 304; typing, daily, room 307; grammar, daily, room 301; beginners shorthand, room 308, daily.
- From 9 until 10—business arithmetic, room 304, daily; typing, room 307, daily; seventh grade arithmetic, daily.

UNIFIED NATIONAL SPIRIT IS NEED URGED BY MRS. ROOSEVELT

BY ELEANOR ROOSEVELT.

IN CONSIDERING the educational problems of this country there is one phase we are apt to forget; namely, the fact that, according to our census bureau, out of our population of one hundred and twenty millions or thereabouts 14,204,149 are foreign born and come from 41 foreign countries. In addition to these, there are 29,339,373 persons in this country having either or both parents born abroad. Thus, there are 43,543,522 persons who have at least close ties to some foreign country.

From the standpoint of education, this is in itself a great complication, particularly in our large cities. In these centers, there are whole areas which represent, as far as possible, foreign cities where people are living an nearly as possible in the way they lived abroad. Their children, however, are forced to attend American public schools and there they must learn, not only a new language, but new ideas, habits, and customs. Unless their parents also go to these same schools and learn the same ideas, habits, and customs, we find ourselves confronted with the saddest of all difficulties—the children growing away from their parents because the latter do not understand the things which become second nature to the children.

We also have rural communities where even the schools were conducted for a time, in the foreign language of the community. Though it is difficult to obtain reliable figures, the Foreign Language Information Service states that, in 1933, there were approximately 1,075 foreign language newspapers in the United States as well as 354 national and semi-national foreign organizations, together with thousands upon thousands of local and state organizations, of which it is difficult to obtain reliable lists. This presents a strange and conflicting picture which I will discuss in the future but today I want to cover another point.

It is true that these foreign language groups have contributed more than we often realize to the culture, to the life, of the various parts of this country but the problem which I make here is that now we have reached a time when we must think of America as a whole and not as a collection of isolated communities. We are restricting immigration because we no longer have vast areas of unpopulated land.

In order to get the best results for our people, they must have, more or less, the same objectives for government and for living. There are, of course, certain differences which a country as large as ours must have; the climate varies, different sections have predominating agricultural interests and other parts have industrial interests. This has been so since our earliest days and there has been a struggle between conflicting interests because we have not learned how to make them supplement each other and consider each other's needs. This will come, but it will come more easily as we weld ourselves into a unified nation and forget that, for many years, a little group of Anglo-Saxon people looked upon themselves as the real backbone of this nation and considered everybody who came from any other land as more or less an alien.

The time has come when, for the good of all our people, no matter where their origin may lie, we must be Americans in thought and in deed. Their original nationality, as well as the ancestry may be of tremendous help because they may be able to interpret for us the people of the countries from which they sprang. They must never, however, allow themselves to think except as Americans. There can be no divided allegiance but there can and should be more patience, more knowledge and, therefore, better understanding of the problems of other countries.

I believe that, first, we must study our own problems and learn to cooperate with each other to the nation. Then, having learned patience and cooperation, we must extend the same spirit to our dealings with the other nations of the world. It will do no good for our various national groups to face our problems as Germans, as Scandinavians, or as Italians and to continue here the quarrels which may be rending their former countries. That way, nothing but danger lies.

A few years ago I talked with an old woman at the Woman's Trade Union League. She had come to get assistance in taking out her first papers. She spoke English haltingly but she was going to night school and we managed to understand each other fairly well. I asked her why she wanted to become an American citizen and she replied, "In the country where I came from, we had hardly enough to eat. If I had a crust, I watched over it for fear my neighbor would steal it. Here, my neighbor will give me what I need. I love your country and want to be a citizen."

That was a very simple statement but, if everyone takes up citizenship in that spirit and really loves America, there will come a really uniform American spirit and it will lead us to work out our own problems, to be sympathetic, cooperative and understanding of the problems of others, but always to be Americans first. ## BALLOONISTS HONORED

MOSCOW—Thousands paid their last tribute today to the Soviet balloonists who, their barograph indicated, ascended higher into the stratosphere than man had ever gone before, three days ago, only to crash to their deaths while all Russia waited to acclaim them. Long lines of mourners filed slowly past the urns containing the ashes of the three aeronauts in a lofty hall of the central executive committee house in Red Square.

FIFTH AVENUE FASHIONS

By ELLEN WORTH

Multiply Your Entire Wardrobe by Three

In a season when contrasting touches are so fashionable, there's no limit to the number of changes you can have if you know your fashions. One simple crepe frock becomes three with the help of these three bright tricks. The first is the satin gilet you've been hearing so much about—with a draped neckline, broad shoulders and matching cuffs. It slips on over the head and the cuffs button on.

The second is a demure affair in crisp white pleats that is certain to make you look very young and pretty with its perky knotted tie-ends and pleats tucked in the shoulders.

The other is a broad rippling cape-collared with the Chinese influence apparent in a standing Mandarin band that's very, very bewitching. In lame it is just the thing for very special "dates."

Make them for yourself and for every one of your friends. They are so inexpensive and they make such luxurious-looking gifts.

LIFE SENTENCE OF MINISTER IS AFFIRMED

BERRIE CONVICTION IS UPHELD BY SOONER HIGH COURT

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 3. (AP)—The life imprisonment sentence given the Rev. S. A. Berrie, song writing minister, for the death of his first wife, was affirmed today by the criminal court of appeals.

Berrie was convicted at Muskogee of killing his wife with poison. Eight weeks after her death the 51-year-old minister married Ida Bess Bright, his 18-year-old secretary. His prosecution for murder followed.

The appeals court's decision quod amorous poems, "some extremely suggestive," written by Berrie to Ida Bess before the first Mrs. Berrie's death, and said the evidence appeared sufficient to sustain the verdict of the trial jury.

Berrie is now in state's penitentiary at McAlester. His young wife is working as a waitress in a McAlester cafe.

The court's decision was by a two to one vote. Judge Thomas A. Edwards wrote the opinion and Judge James S. Davenport concurred. Judge Will H. Chappel dissented.

Education-Grams

BY MRS. J. A. HILL, 7th District Chairman Education, T. F. W. C.

The future of America depends upon the quality and the quantity of education.

Multiplied leisure hours demand preparation for the same. Idle brains are crime laboratories and idle hands its tools.

"A love for good literature, music and art is our best defense against the misuse of increasing leisure."—W. H. Pillsbury, Supt. of Schools, Schenectady, N. Y.

"Our schools are facing serious problems. The cultural subjects especially are being attacked. There is urgent need of a declaration of faith that the arts are not optional luxuries for the few but are essential for the complete living of the many."—Educational New Frontiers.

We must be on our guard lest the so-called "fads and frills" so necessary to life's enjoyment be eliminated from our school curricula in the false name of economy.

PLAINVIEW CAGERS SWAMP HARVESTERS 44-26 IN SURPRISING WALK-AWAY

DEAN SCORES 22 POINTS IN SMART ATTACK

MAKES TALLIES WHILE PAMPANS GUARD MABRY

PLAINVIEW, Feb. 3.—Playing their greatest game of the season, the Plainview Bulldogs smothered the Pampa Harvesters 44 to 26 in a wild game here tonight. While the Harvesters watched Mabry, big center who was the star of the game when the Bulldogs lost in Pampa, Little T. Dean slipped around the big center and took passes to score 22 points on crisp shots.

The Pampa defense, practically impregnable all season, was completely shattered by the fast charging Bulldogs who passed and shot their way into third place in the Class A race. The win over the Harvesters gave Amarillo undisturbed lead in the race with six wins and one loss and one game to play. Pampa remained in second place with six wins and two losses.

Friday night the Harvesters took an overtime period to defeat the Lubbock Westerners 30 to 34. Both teams played stellar basketball, breaking fast and shooting accurately after breaking up the defense. The Harvesters broke away in the overtime period with nice combination work.

Captain Miles Marbaugh not only guarded Mabry but got away from the Plainview giant to score 15 points for second high man on the floor. J. E. Green, Pampa ace scorer, was effectively bottled. Coach Frank Lovvorn of the Bulldogs having built a right-court defense to bottle the Pampa star.

Coach Odus Mitchell started Woodward and Green, forwards, Marbaugh, center, Heiskell and Dunaway, guards. The Bulldogs lined up with Foster and T. Dean, forwards, Mabry center, E. Loan and L. Lowry, guards.

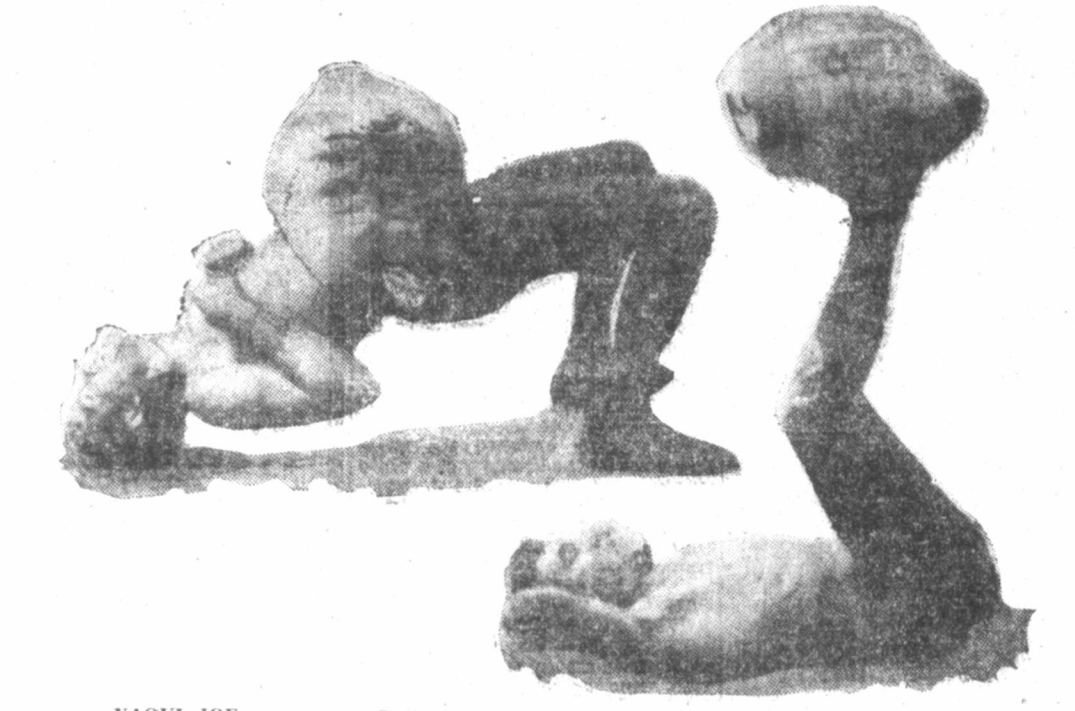

The Harvesters won their county championship and will meet the winner of the Armstrong county race. The first game will be played some night next week, it is expected.

Organization of the West Texas division of the state organization was perfected and Hugh Anderson, Lubbock attorney, was chosen as president. John L. McCarty of Dalhart was named first vice president; Lloyd Croslin of Colorado, second vice president; O. C. Christie of Quanah, third vice president; M. L. Collis of Pecos, fourth vice president; Zolite Steakley, of Sweetwater, secretary, and Weldon Johnson of Levelland, Damon D. Blake of Amarillo and Herbert Gordon of Amarillo as members of the steering committee.

Amarillo was awarded the next convention.

Unqualified support of the national administration and President Roosevelt's recovery program was voiced by the convention in a unanimous vote. Expression of thanks was extended to James A. Farley for his services to the party.

MacDonald Leach of Corpus Christi, national committeeman for Texas and state organizer, opened the convention as temporary chairman Saturday morning and guided the session throughout the day, giving advice of various procedure and at one time taking the chair again in the afternoon when the floor became aroused over action on the resolutions.

DEMOS WOULD REDUCE STATE LEGISLATURE

LUBBOCK, Feb. 3.—Suggesting drastic changes in Texas' state government even to the extent of reducing the state legislature to one house composed of 36 members and asking for immediate redistribution of state senators and representatives, Young Democratic leaders of West Texas held their first convention here today and immediately served notice on the rest of the state that West Texas will expect just and fair consideration in Texas political affairs from now on.

Approximately 200 delegates from 50 counties of West Texas attended the convention.

Besides the immediate redistribution of representation, the young party leaders went on record asking for a more equitable distribution of state funds particularly those used for highways and education. They also asked that West Texas landowners be given more complete recognition and protection on the proper exercise of their mine rights on lands formerly owned by the state.

The convention became embroiled in several hours' debating over the passage of resolutions which called for the revision of the state constitution and changing the state legislature to one body of 36 members to be paid a minimum of $12,000 per year. Vote on the latter resolution carried by only one vote. Much argument pro and con concerning the revision of the constitution preceded the vote on this resolution but proponents of the resolution were successful in placing it on record.

MORELAND NOT TO ENTER SAN ANTONIO MEET

MUST SAVE MONEY TO GO TO EUROPE IN SUMMER

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Gus Turner Moreland, for three consecutive years amateur champion and twice a United States Walker cup choice, will not compete in the 12th annual $2,500 Texas open February 8-11 at San Antonio. He said Saturday he also will pass up the $2,000 tournament February 15-8 at Galveston. "I regret to make this announcement," Moreland said. "Frankly, I must save as much money as possible before I sail for Europe to play as a member of the United States Walker cup team. I plan to remain in Europe for several major tournaments which will be expensive. I will defend my championship in the 20th annual Houston country club invitation February 20-23. I simply can't stand the financial pressure of three successive tournaments."

Francis McGonigal, professional at the Dallas Parkland country club and current Texas professional golfers association champion, said he would compete in the Texas open. He recently returned from the winter tournaments in Florida.

A number of southwest professionals plan to play the Brackenridge course several days in advance of the tournament, and before the huge field of short-shooters arrive from the $7,500 Agua Caliente open. Wiffy Cox of Brooklyn, Paul Runyan of White Plains, Harry Cooper of Chicago, Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., Joe Kirkwood of Miami, George Von Cakes of Los Angeles, Ralph Guldahl of Los Angeles, Dick Metz of Deal, N. J., Willie Hunter of Los Angeles, Bill Mehlhorn of New York, and Olin Dutra of Santa Monica are a few of the nation's glittering sharpshooters who are expected to "move in" from Agua Caliente.

The Texas open offers a first prize of $750 with the remainder of the fund split into smaller prizes. Competition starts Thursday morning with the amateur event in which professionals will be allowed to select their partners.

COX SETS NEW GOLF RECORD AT CALIENTE

EXPLODES OLD MAXIM ABOUT THIRD ROUND

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Feb. 3.—W. H. "Wiffy" Cox won the fifth annual Agua Caliente open golf championship with a 72 hole score of 282 today, to establish a new scoring record for the event and knock a pet golf supposition into the nearest trap.

The Brooklyn pro led the field at the end of the second round, held his position through a gruelling third round and was still out in front by a stroke over Willie Hunter, Culver City, Calif., when the firing was over for the year on the Mexican front.

An old golf axiom has it that some of the leaders blow in the third round and those who fall to explode in the third crack in the fourth.

Cox ran the scale in winning the $1,500 first money. His four rounds moved up a stroke a day, 69-75-71-72, when more than a stroke advance would have been embarrassing.

Hunter, who was 41 years old last Monday, was given a handsome birthday present of $1,000 for finishing second. The former British star, long resident in the United States carried the fight to the last hole, coming to the eighteenth with a chance to tie for the lead by getting a birdie three.

He fired a great iron 22 feet above the cup and was left with a tricky putt against the grain of the green. He studied the lie closely but his ball stopped a scant two feet short.

Hunter, who was tied for the runner-up position in the recent Los Angeles open with Bill Mehlhorn, was a bit rueful as he left the home hole, so near and yet so far from the championship.

"Looks like I can get up there but not quite far enough," he said. "Still, you have to give Wiffy Cox all the credit in the world for getting out in front and staying there."

5,575 Persons See Chevrolet In Last 10 Days

The new Chevrolet cars on display in the showroom at the Culbertson-Smalling company were inspected by 5,575 persons during the 10 days they have been on display. That number registered and it is probable that hundreds attended the showing without registering.

A carload of new cars, the first to arrive in Pampa outside of demonstrators, was to arrive in Pampa this morning. Frank Culbertson and T. P. Smalling attended a meeting in Oklahoma City Friday and were informed that all factories were running full time and that cars would be received regularly now.

Doctors Assert Samuel Insull Can't Be Moved

ATHENS, Feb. 3.—The comparative cheerfulness of the Samuel Insull household today led to the belief that two University of Athens doctors, who examined the former Chicago utilities executive, had concluded he should remain here longer.

Dr. Nicholas Maniotis, one of two police physicians who examined the 74-year old fugitive Jan. 20, and decided he could travel only under comfortable conditions, was present at the 45-minute diagnosis today by the medical professors, George Liveratos and Vladimir Benis.

The professors' report, Dr. Haricis said, would be like his. It will be submitted to the interior minister who will decide whether an earlier expulsion order is to be carried out or whether Insull's health will prevent such action.

Mrs. Insull appeared on the streets today, in an apparent good humor, as contrasted with the tenseness of the previous two days. Other members of the Insull entourage seemed cheerful too.

The residence permit of Insull, who is wanted in the United States to face charges in connection with failure of the utilities empire, expired Jan. 31 and he pleaded that he was too ill to travel.

Local Car Dealer Hurt in Accident

George Taylor, of the Carhart-Taylor Motor company here, was seriously injured when the car he was driving overturned on Highway 23 about 10 miles west of Panhandle Friday afternoon. Noble Roberts of Panhandle, former Pampa boy who was driving with Mr. Taylor, was less seriously injured. Both are in an Amarillo hospital.

The Pampa man was hurled thru the top of the car, receiving a fractured shoulder, cuts and bruises, and possible internal injuries. Mr. Roberts was cut and bruised.

Details of the accident have not been learned. It is believed, however, that the car struck the soft shoulder off the paving after passing another car. A witness said that Mr. Taylor was hurled higher than the telephone wire along the road. The car overturned several times and was badly damaged.

DIRECTOR HAS NO ROLE SUCH AS PICTURED

PRODUCER OF GAYNOR "CAROLINA" CITES THE ERROR

PANDY caricatures a motion picture director as a rather absurdly dressed individual in checkered riding breeches, turtle-neck sweater, cap on backwards, and a megaphone.

Contrary to popular opinion, a director is not walking comic drawing. He doesn't work in breeches. That does he bark commands through 18-inch megaphones, as he is so often pictured in cartoons.

"This conception of a director is a libel against the profession," says Henry King, director of "Carolina." Fox film, with Janet Gaynor and Lionel Barrymore, in the stellar roles. The production is now playing at La Nora theater.

"In my experience filming pictures, I have known but two directors who regularly worked in riding breeches. One was Cecil B. DeMille, who is a gentleman of good taste, and the other was a man whose name I have forgotten.

"The same is quite true of megaphones. The only time we needed and used them in our business was when we directed out-door scenes a good distance from the camera. That need no longer exists. Today, we have elaborate public address systems capable of carrying a director's whisper a mile or more. The megaphone, like the Dodo bird, is quite extinct.

Witness of Exaggeration.
"We directors are pictured as impossible creations, because it is the American custom to exaggerate types," King explained. "For instance, a farmer is popularly presented as an uncouth blimpkin-type; he certainly is not; the legislator is always crafty looking, and around a traction or public utilities magnate is always an ogre, and a gambler is pictured as a suave, lean and menacing type. As a matter of fact, the last-mentioned is more often than not a cherubic, innocent-looking man."

"The appearance of the screen's leading directors would seem to belie the caricatures designed to represent them as a class.

PROBLEMS OF YOUTH SHOWN IN REX FILM

"ROAD TO RUIN" WILL START MONDAY FOR 4 DAYS

LIQUOR, dope, white slavery—all these bugaboos of a past generation have given way to a new menace that threatens the very life of the nation—the menace of juvenile delinquency.

Liquor affects comparatively few families, dope still fewer, while white slavery as symbolized by red lights and segregated districts, has practically ceased to exist. But juvenile delinquency and its appalling moral decay of modern youth is a problem that reaches into every community and threatens the freedom of modern thought and conduct, and it is hard for them to believe that their child could be in danger.

Many will see "The Road to Ruin" which comes to the Rex theater for 4 days beginning Monday, and which is described as "A Flaming Warning to the Parents of America."

"The Road to Ruin," which is based on an actual case is an amazingly frank story of the temptations confronting the children of today and contains a tremendous lesson, while at the same time, because of the extremely able handling of a delicate subject, it is first rate entertainment.

The reckless abandon with which the jazz-crazed youth of today finds themselves into the mad chase after the illusive "good time" is vividly depicted in "The Road to Ruin." Jazz and gin, sex and sensuality, cars parked on shady lanes, sporty roadhouses, wild strip poker parties are among the highlights of this most unusual picture, which graphically illustrates the terrible results of parental neglect and ignorance in the handling of modern youth.

"The Road to Ruin" is up to the minute, and as Ann Dixon, exotic Helen Foster, gives an astonishing realistic portrayal of the errant flapper.

COURT RECORD

SCOUT MOBILIZATION TO BE PROOF OF NATIONAL SCOPE AND MEANING OF MOVEMENT

Summer Weather Is Enjoyed Here

Spring, summer, or a "new deal" in weather was in the air Friday and Saturday. Proof not only came from the thermometer but from flowers and insects. Several of the buds on the Japanese quince bush outside the police department window at the city hall burst into full bloom yesterday. The buds were large and healthy more than a week ago.

Earl Talley added proof to the summer theory when he found a large black grasshopper on the used car lot south of the Chevrolet garage. The insect appeared healthy and "in good spirits," as Earl remarked.

The thermometer at the Santa Fe station rose to 79 degrees in the shade Friday afternoon and yesterday afternoon passed that mark by two degrees, both figures being in the shade.

JACKETS WIN
BROWNWOOD, Feb. 3. (P)—Morrow high scoring center on the Howard Payne college basketball team, accounted for 18 points tonight as he led the Yellow Jackets to a 36 to 26 victory over the Southwestern university team. The Yellow Jackets were leading at the half, 19 to 12.

LITTLE THEATER PRESENTS WORK OF ART BUT AT FINANCIAL LOSS

The Little Theater lost money on "HE: Who Gets Slapped," over $100 to be exact, but it was worth it. The members had their fling at art. Before they gave the play, they figured that Pampa theatergoers would not go in for art, especially for Andreyev's pessimistic variety. They guessed that some one would say as he left the auditorium, "What's it all about? What's funny about a slap?"

Life to the Little Theater can not be all burlesque, melodrama, slapstick, comedy, most popular form of stage attractions. Life as it is depicted on the stage, must necessarily be realistic at times. It must expound certain rules of living, of fate, of love, of beauty, of truth. After all it is better to attempt to live with the aristocrats of the mind and soul than to live by bread alone—as animals do.

The meaning of "He: Who Gets Slapped" involved certain issues: Is it better to die than live without love? Which is the more important, what a man feels in his heart or what he puts on his back and in his stomach? Can a man be courageous and kill the thing he loves? Is death better than the frustration of love? What value is to be placed upon such things of the world in comparison of a deathless love?

Major members of the cast were aware of their tasks. They worked terrifically. Reg Fairless was in reality He who gets slapped; John Keiler WAS Mancini; Mrs. G. L. Greene BECAME a lion tamer; Louella Wade actually wept for weeks in rehearsals and in production when she "died" in the last act. It would be hard to find a cast that could do the play better. Or a more understanding director than Mrs. Earle Powell.

The Little Theater organization was organized to help its members grow spiritually and in turn to hand this growth on to the audience, but it's the players who are supposed to benefit. It will be safe to say that the actors came off the stage Friday night spiritually taller, wiser about the ways of life, love, more appreciative of beauty. About 50 saw the play both nights.

Husband Held

A weird story of how he found his wife, Mrs. Rose Koons, above, a suicide from gas, then left home on a drinking bout and returned in 10 days to find her body still seated in a chair, was told police by Floyd V. Koons, 45-year-old Brooklyn, N. Y., broker, after his crazed wanderings in Ohio. He was held on a charge of homicide under the technical count of aiding his wife to take her life, by failing to notify authorities.

STOCK AND BOND PRICES REACH HIGHEST LEVELS SINCE 1931

MANY ISSUES SHOW GAINS OF 3 POINTS

WHEAT ADVANCES CENT A BUSHEL AT CHICAGO

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Financial markets ended the first week of the new bull market today with a brilliant flourish in the stock market which carried price averages to the highest level since November of 1931.

Trading in foreign exchanges remained in turmoil as international funds continued to shift restlessly about the world while financial centers tried to appraise the effects of the new dollar. Stocks retained their advance, and wheat and cotton turned upward.

Foreign currencies checked their sharp decline of yesterday, despite substantial bear speculation in French francs.

The dollar came down a little nearer its gold parities abroad, and despite a morning flurry of selling, British pounds and French francs rallied here. The pound closed in New York at $4.93 1/2, up 1/2 cent, up .10 of cent.

The pound rallied somewhat in terms of the French gold franc and the gold price in London slid back a little, although some $5,000,000 offered in the open market was quickly gobbled up by American banks.

Gold continued to flow from Europe to New York with the movement evidently held in check only by the lack of fast steamer sailings. The Bremen and the Berengaria sailed from Southampton, England, bringing an aggregate of about $30,000,000.

Despite the rise in pounds and francs, the dollar remained, at a premium of more than 2 percent over the pound, calculated on the sterling price of gold in London, and at a premium of nearly 5 percent over the franc. Bankers calculated that at that premium they

Oil Field News

Adventurability of increasing the oil output for the Panhandle field will be discussed in Austin tomorrow by members of the Texas Railroad commission and J. M. McDonald, supervisor, and Gene Green, deputy supervisor of the local office of the oil and gas division of the commission. The Pampans left for Austin yesterday.

Conditions of the Panhandle field and the history of proration will also come up for discussion. The Panhandle field is recognized as could profit roughly $2,000 on every $1,000,000 in gold imported from France, after all costs.

Stocks were less buoyant than trends in the New York market, but resumed their advance after hesitating yesterday, and scores of issues again registered new high levels since 1931, with many gains of $1 to $3 a share. Trading was the most active for a Saturday since July. Cotton futures bulged up rather strongly, closing with gains of 70 to 95 cents a bale, and wheat at Chicago advanced more than a cent a bushel. Bar silver futures turned buoyant again, gaining a cent an ounce and more.

Trading on bonds aggregated $17,000,000 par value for the final week of the session, the biggest Saturday turnover in years. The trading for the entire week in the bond section of the stock exchange exceeded $128,000,000 par value, the biggest for any week since the final week of 1931, when a huge turnover in liberties boosted the total over $150,000,000.

STOCKS SOAR UPWARD

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Markets were virtually unanimous in their forward movement today and trading on most exchanges, especially those handling securities and currencies, was very active.

By declining against foreign currencies the dollar assumed a more normal direction, thought it still maintained substantial premiums over French francs and sterling. The American dollar was down abruptly at the opening, then rallied for a time, and finally dropped again. French francs, closing 6.33 cents, were up one-tenth cent and the pound at $4.93 1/2, was 5/8 cent higher.

Stocks overcame early profit-taking and climbed to a strong finish which saw general gains of 1 to 3 points. Bonds, in the second busiest Saturday in record, held their momentum, although much of the betterment was in issues offering the largest yields. Cotton reached new highs since July and wheat gained around a cent, silver futures 1/8 cent, and copper 1/2 cent.

Stamps continued to be in the limelight, when the industrial group, where merchandising and equipment, steel and iron, closed a good span of gain. The advance in stamps was accompanied by the fact that American stamps were down about 2-1/2 to 3-1/2 points, the biggest two-point drop since last summer. The London market, however, with a further advance of approximately $17,000,000 par value, closed about three-quarters of an hour late.
