PAMPA, GRAY COUNTY TEXAS, THURSDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 22, 1934.

PRICE FIVE CENTS

WOULD-BE KIDNAPER HANGS SELF

Gray county has many children who are, by legal definition, delinquent—and about the same number of parents.

Few Frenchmen ever leave home, which may be one reason why the nation will heavily tax aliens. America's unemployed number about the same as the immigrants admitted in the last two decades. Add that up.

Mrs. Gushaway says if the dust storms continue all spring she will demonstrate some plain and fancy gushing about it.

With spring approaching, it is quite possible that there are some housekeepers who really are AFRAID OF THE BIG, BAD WIND.

And, with complications arising and a truck shortage existing from the start, that Pampa-Lefors road seems to be a BIG, BAD JOB.

Brevitorials

Musings of the moment: Most of the persons we meet are hungry for knowledge. They are forever "going to" take a course in something, read a book, "settle down." Few do. Adult education is essential to modern culture. Education does not end with graduation. Learning evaporates. The most interesting adults we know are those who can talk about the latest books, the best authors, modern science, geography. Why is there no very great variety in barber philosophy? We've often wondered at the similarity in various cities. Other words for incense: Embosom, coop, enlock, corral, incapulate, inwell, embail, embowser, circumscribe.

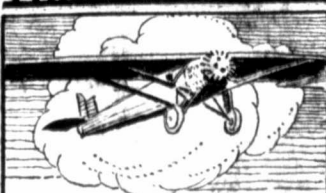

MAYBE you don't like the way Russia takes care of her children, making them virtual charges of the state and undertaking their education and support in many provinces. Maybe not, but have you looked into the way neglected and delinquent children are provided for in Texas? If you haven't, perhaps it would be wise for you to do so before making very many statements on the subject.

TEXAS has many laws—a big book full of them—about child welfare, but her machinery for taking care of the mounting number of delinquencies is sadly inadequate. All of the few homes for neglected and underprivileged children are filled. They have long waiting lists—the system has broken down through failure of the legislature to expand facilities as our state population increased. The problem has been thrown back upon counties and local communities, for both planning and financing.

THE laws intended to protect wayward children are still on the books. A child is not a criminal because he steals a motorcar or other articles. He is delinquent by definition, but the state does not intend that he shall be sent to the reform school, which is for older, hardened youthful offenders. The law even provides that wayward children shall not be placed in jail as punishment or to await hearings—unless the county or district judge, or in his absence, the officer executing the writ, believes it is necessary to insure the presence of the child at the court hearing. If he is jailed, such a child must be placed

PILOT KILLED AS ARMY MAIL SHIP CRASHES

TWO OTHERS ESCAPE; ARMY FLIER DIES AT DENISON

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 22 (AP)—One army mail pilot flew to his death today and two others narrowly side-stepped fatal accidents as fog, snow and a low ceiling spread across the hazardous flying trails of the middle west.

Lieut. Durward O. Lowry, flying the mail from Chicago to Cleveland, was killed when his plane, miles off its course, plunged into a woods near Deshler, O., and buried its nose in a creek bank. Lowry tossed out the mail sacks as the plane dropped.

Shortly before Lieut. Lowry crashed to earth, his parachute dangling uselessly, Lieut. C. P. Hollstein, taking the mail from Cleveland to Washington in thick fog, landed in the trees on Chesnut Ridge, a few miles from Uniontown, Pa.

Badly cut about the face, Lieut. Hollstein walked to a farm house, telephoned his superior officers in Cleveland and went back to remove the mail from his plane. Meanwhile, a Lieut. Schlater, flying from Cleveland to Chicago, brought his plane down in a snow storm at Goshen, Ind., and forwarded the mail to Chicago by train.

DENISON, Tex., Feb. 22 (AP)—Lieut. F. I. Patrick, 40, Barksdale field pilot, at Shreveport, La., was killed when his pursuit plane crashed into a plowed field one mile from here at 9:50 a. m. today.

Witnesses said Lieut. Patrick's motor "cut out" while he flew at an altitude of about 200 feet. The plane dipped and nosed into a field on the outskirts of the city.

Several men and boys working in the field rushed to the plane and extricated the flier's body from the wreckage. He was still strapped to the pilot's seat. He died shortly after being removed from the plane.

Lieut. Patrick was not an air mail pilot.

Nation Observes 202nd Birthday Of Washington

By The Associated Press. George Washington was born 202 years ago (on February 11, old style) today. He was a general, a statesman and first president of the United States. Today is a legal holiday in every state, territory and possession.

President Roosevelt intended to visit Mount Vernon, Va., the Washington home and tomb. The senate and house remained in session, but placed eulogies on their schedules.

Somebody in Philadelphia dug up an old newspaper and found that when Washington announced his farewell as president, patent medicine advertisements crowded it off page one, and it was two days late, anyway.

Another deliver into records, in Seattle, found that it was a Kentucky gentleman who caused the selection of Washington as the name of the state. They were going to name the territory Columbia. The Kentucky gentleman said he wanted the sovereign state named after the father of his country.

I HEARD—

A local woman, who didn't have her mind on a bridge game, last night said "Good night, dear," when asked what she bid.

Kills Self Shortly Before He Was to Face Alleged Confederate in Jail.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22 (AP)—Twelve hours after he confessed to an abortive plot to kidnap Emanuel Philip Adler of Davenport, Ia., Fred Mayo of Birmingham, Ala., alias Charles Phillips, hanged himself in a Marquette police station cell.

He died soon after police found him suspended by his neck scarf from the cell bars. They called to take him before Jack Lacey, alias Wyman, his alleged confederate, arrested today.

He was rushed to the county hospital in hopes of resuscitating him, but it was futile. He had taken on himself the capital punishment he had feared the state of Illinois would inflict for kidnaping. He emulated the method used by Verne Sankey, notorious kidnaping, in Sioux Falls recently.

The man he had named last night as his accomplice in the plot to kidnap the Davenport newspaper publisher and carry him out of the Morrison hotel in a huge trunk had been captured only a few moments before Mayo was found lifeless.

Mayo had been nabbed as he stole back to the hotel corridor where he had clubbed Adler. He soon acknowledged a robbery attempt, but not until late in the night did he admit planning to kidnap Adler and hold him for $40,000 ransom.

Lacey was pronounced while asleep in a south side hotel room, registered under the name, J. Lacy.

He was rushed before the state's attorney, who then sent for Mayo to confront him.

Lacey was identified as one of two men who bought the trunk found in the room adjoining that of Adler. It was punctured to provide air, and Mayo admitted he and Lacey planned to knock Adler senseless and take him away for ransom.

Ten minutes before the turkey had visited every cell and served coffee to each prisoner, Mayo had slipped his, and chatted a few minutes with the policeman.

Before locking him up, the desk sergeant had removed his belt, necktie and the contents of his suit pockets. It was cold, and he was allowed to keep his overcoat. In one pocket was the neck scarf that he used for a noose.

President C. E. "Dan" McGrew has issued a call to every oil field worker in the Panhandle to be present. Mr. Kinley will tell how many fires are started and will demonstrate the use of equipment. His pictures will show well fires both in America and abroad.

A musical program will be presented before H. F. Kelly of Borger makes a report on the Mid-Continent A. P. I. meeting in Tulsa last week.

SECOND MAN HELD IN BURGLARY HERE

Becomes King of the Belgians

Here is a striking study of Crown Prince Leopold, who becomes king of the Belgians. A hero in the eyes of his countrymen since enlisting in his father's army at the age of 13, the prince is well known in the United States, having visited here in 1919.

TWENTY-FIVE YEAR RESIDENT OF CITY, SAMUEL McCULLOUGH, DIES; FUNERAL TO BE HELD ON FRIDAY

Rites Set For Three O'Clock at M. E. Church

Samuel McCullough, 70 years and nine months old, died at the family home, 207 North Gray street, yesterday afternoon after a long illness. Mr. McCullough had been a resident of Pampa for 25 years, coming here from Ohio.

Soon after moving to Pampa to make his home, Mr. McCullough became connected with C. B. Barnard, who owned one of the first general stores in Pampa. Mr. McCullough worked with Mr. Barnard for nine years but during that time made several trips back to his home in Ohio and also to California. He retired 15 years ago.

Mr. McCullough is survived by his wife and two children, Mrs. E. E. Mead of Miami, and Neal McCullough of Pampa. Other survivors are a sister, Mrs. Mary Speak, and a brother, Frank C. McCullough, both of Coshocton, Ohio, and two grandchildren, Martha Lucille and Lawrence McCullough.

The body will lie at rest at the family home until 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock at the M. E. church.

Two Lads Taken From Jail, Given New Clothes, Put In Temporary Homes.

TEMPORARILY at least, two local boys—brothers—arrested for petty thefts and held in jail for lack of foster homes to which they could be paroled, have been placed where they will have opportunity to make good their promise to "go straight."

The boys were paroled yesterday afternoon; the older, 13, to Principal J. A. Meek of the B. M. Baker school and the younger, 11, to the Rev. Gaston Foote, pastor of the Methodist church.

Given New Clothes. They were happy boys, thrilled by the thought of being free again, excited over outfits of new clothing when they were seen at a local store late yesterday. They had been given baths and much needed hair cuts and had been told to throw away their old garments. Their new outfits cost $42. The merchant,

H. L. Polley, from whom the clothing was purchased, donated $23 of this expense. The remainder was to be obtained today through the efforts of the Gray County Child Welfare board, headed by A. G. Post.

They Must "Behave." The boys will remain in their new homes for an indefinite period, conditioned upon their behavior, the wishes of the foster parents, and the child welfare program which will be worked out soon by the board and the county commissioners court.

Principal Meek has been interested in the boys for several years and has believed that they would make good if their environment could be improved.

LATE NEWS

BROTHER AND TWO GENERALS ASSASSINATED

IMMEDIATE PROBE OF SLAYING ORDERED BY PRESIDENT

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 22 (AP)—Gen. Augusto C. Sandino, famous rebel, was killed with his brother, Socrates Sandino, and two friends by national guardsmen at midnight on the outskirts of Managua, a government communique indicated.

The government officially states that the action of the guards national in killing Sandino was contrary to the instructions of President Somoza to guarantee the lives of Sandino and his followers while they were in Managua.

The president severely reproves these acts of some individual guardsmen and has ordered an immediate investigation and is requesting congress to give him the necessary faculties to maintain public order.

All outgoing messages were censored. Reported slain with Sandino were his former generals, Umanzor and Estrada.

By the terms of the peace pact signed by President Sacasa and General Sandino, February, 1933, the latter laid down his arms with the exception of keeping 100 former followers who were to retain their arms for one year. With these 100 men he was engaged in cooperative farming on the Rio Coco.

Sandino came to Managua from his Rio Coco colony last week to terminate arrangements for the final disarmament of his followers.

He was reported to have declared privately and to have intimated to the press that the national guard was unconstitutional and this fact apparently irritated members of the guardia nacional.

Men Invited to "Home" School at Closing Meeting

The homemakers convention, that feminine stronghold, is about to be invaded by men. In fact, men are given a special invitation to attend the closing session this evening of the convention sponsored by the Pampa Daily News and Pampa merchants.

Women are urged to invite their husbands to accompany them to the city hall auditorium where Mrs. Leona Rusk Thrift, convention director, will make an special effort to interest them in her demonstration on easier homemaking methods.

Not only men, but business women who find it impossible to attend the extra sessions are to be given extra consideration in this evening's program. The night session is a departure from the usual cooking school schedule, just as the convention programs are different from the usual routine.

All women—and men—of Pampa territory are invited to be present from 7:30 to 9:30 this evening.

Complaint Made On Bergerite Is Denied By Him

Joseph Bradley Indicted for La Nora Plot—Record Is Shown in Fingerprints.

"I'M GUILTY. I won't fight the case." So spoke Joseph Bradley, indicted for the burglary of the La Nora theater and holdup plot, when arraigned before District Judge W. R. Ewing this morning. The judge said he would appoint an attorney to represent Bradley—as the law requires—and call the case early next week.

Meanwhile, David Ackors of Borger is held in jail for lack of furnishing $4,000 bail bond after being charged in Justice W. S. Baxter's court with the La Nora burglary. Officers of the sheriff's department, who with Berger officers arrested Ackors, allege that the latter was Bradley's companion in the burglary. Ackors denies this. He was arrested after an investigation by Gray county officers. The grand jury was probing the complaint against Ackors today.

That Bradley was denying his real record was shown last night when Chief of Police John V. Andrews received a fingerprint report from John Edgar Hoover, director of the U. S. division of investigation at Washington, D. C. The report follows:

Also "Joe Clayton" "Fingerprints show J. Bradley as Joe Clayton, received at state penitentiary at Lansing, Kans., April, 1915, robbery, first degree, 10 to 21 years. As Joseph Bradley, arrested by police at Joplin, Mo., July, 1922, auto theft. As Joe Clayton Bradley, received at state penitentiary at McAlester, Okla., June, 1925, murder, life imprisonment."

Chief Andrews asked S. E. Brown, warden of the Oklahoma penitentiary, if he was interested in Bradley, and the warden wired back that Bradley was out on parole and "not wanted," even though the prisoner has violated the parole.

The explanation is that Bradley has a b. and is a sick man. He was haggard and pale when arraigned today, and his left shoulder dropped.

Oklahoman Indicted. Arraigned at the same time on a car theft indictment was Bennett G. Humphreys, young Oklahoman charged with taking George Walters 1933 Chevrolet car a week ago. Humphreys said he "borrowed" the car to take his family back to Oklahoma. He said he was on his way back with the vehicle when arrested by Sheriff C. E. Pipes, sent to Sayre and returned with Humphreys in custody. The car was recovered. Humphreys will be tried next week. He said it was his first offense, and that he came here with his wife and two small children looking for work.

CWA Quota to Be Reduced by 105 Men Friday

Due to a drastic cut in the state CWA personnel, the Gray county quota will be reduced 105 per cent, effective tomorrow morning. The cut will reduce the number of men working on CWA projects in this county by 105 men. Mrs. W. H. Davis, county administrator, announced this morning.

The telegram received from Austin stated that men needing the work least were to be the first ones cut from the payroll. Persons on direct relief will be the last affected by the reduction of men and work.

A group of Pampans went to Amarillo this afternoon to attend a meeting of representatives from the drought stricken area of the Panhandle. The order discontinuing the hiring of truck drivers on CWA projects was to be discussed. When the 24-hour week was put into effect, truck owners worked one 24-hour shift, and drivers were hired for the second 24 hours. A recent order states that relief drivers will not be paid from CWA funds, which will mean curtailment of work.

The county board is considering such a program and means for financing it.

The two local "problem boys" were breaking into their new routine last night. The older boy was peeling potatoes at the Meek home. The younger went with Rev. Foote to the mid-week service of the Methodist church.

BACKSTAGE IN WASHINGTON

By GILMORE N. NUNN
Washington Correspondent
The NEWS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Newspaper reports of D. C. happenings may sound quite thrilling right now, but the low-down is that the "unexpected turn of affairs" has given its place to the monotonous, obvious, expected, cut-and-dried routine of customary government function—as I should say of customary government investigation.

It's true that former Postmaster General Brown is now appearing before the airmail committee and that his testimony may lose a bomb shell or two in the near future, but NOT NOW. Roosevelt and his aides have their hands full handling the situation they've already brought about in regard to the airmails, so until they conclusively prove their point—and their actions, they probably won't want Brown flayed too mercilessly. You know it's quite a task to "prove your point conclusively" when it's contrary to the desires of an industry that has the power, backing and lobby that the airlines now maintain. And, though it's bad to have to admit it, it must be said that there are lots of blind hero-worshippers that have yet to be convinced that Lindbergh was wrong—or ever will be. So you see the administration can't have something else big break right now—something that will demand such drastic action as has marked the past week—unless it's momentous enough to bring even more potent favor to the battling side. Welfare of the nation, or no-votes must be considered.

Out of all these investigations, however, there have come several pertinent, and almost certain facts.

Government subsidy of ocean and air mail contracts are things of the past, future carrying of mails

New Oil Order Given to Allow More Production

In order to permit full allowable production for the month of February, it has been found necessary to increase the percentage of proratable oil allowed in the Panhandle field from 17.03 per cent to 25 per cent. An order, issued yesterday afternoon from the local office of the oil and gas division of the Texas railroad commission, became effective yesterday morning at 7 o'clock, and will remain in effect until further notice.

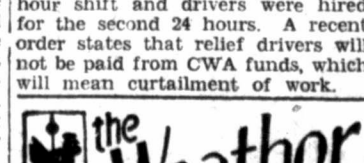

The Panhandle allowable was increased to 32,000 barrels, an increase of 10,000 barrels, early this month. It is believed the additional oil to meet the allowable figure will be produced by the end of this month. Preparations are under way for a new schedule to be released March 1.

Local officials believed increasing the proratable factor was the best way to give every producer the advantage of the increased production.

KING'S FUNERAL DESCRIBED AS POSSIBLY MOST BRILLIANT AND SADDEST OF THIS GENERATION

Titled Mourners Of Entire World Attend

BRUSSELS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Belgium buried her king today—Albert the valiant.

Kings walked in the funeral procession, and commoners. A hundred guns saluted, and church bells tolled. Behind wooden barriers crowds that in places were packed to a depth of 200 yards watched the solemn march.

Some likened this funeral of Albert I, killed Saturday while mounting climbing, to that of France's Marshal Foch. It drew an even more brilliant line of titled mourners.

Active and future rulers of many of the world's remaining monarchies, high officials of democracies, and leaders of the allied armies escorted the king's coffin as it was taken from the grand palace to a crypt at the little grove church near the royal castle at Leeken.

No Women In Parade. Brussels became a vast dump for the sad occasion. Thousands of visitors of every circumstance spent the night in the streets to obtain good places along the route of the procession.

Once more on the march, but this time without arms, between 30,000 and 40,000 Belgian war veterans who knew the dead king as their leader against the armies of Kaiser Wilhelm, marched past the coffin before the procession started from the palace. True to Belgian custom, no women took part in the ceremonies. The broken and widowed Queen Elizabeth and the future queen, Princess Astrid, remained in seclusion at Laeken castle, while Crown Prince Leopold and his younger brother, Charles, followed their father's body afoot.

Wrapped in the national flag, the coffin was first brought down the great staircase at the Brussels palace where tens of thousands had seen the cold figure of the king for the last time during the last two days and nights.

Go To Cathedral. It was placed with tender care upon the gun carriage in the court at the palace with the king's tunic, helmet, and sword resting upon the cover of the coffin.

At 7:30 o'clock this morning, the Belgian war veterans—12 abreast—began their march past the coffin. They paraded silently through the court for nearly three hours.

Amid this resplendent gathering, the somber dark coat of President Albert Lebrun of France and the similar attire of the American ambassador, Dave Hennen Morris, contrasted sharply with the glittering uniforms.

The boom of a gun announced that the march of the veterans had ended. It was the signal for the cortege to begin the journey to the old cathedral of St. Gudule.

Thousands of onlookers in packed masses of humanity sank slowly to their knees when the coffin was borne from the palace. The air was sweet with the fragrance of freshly cut black blooms—Queen Elizabeth's favorite.

Promptly at 10:15 o'clock, guns boomed the signal for the start of the procession. King's Horse Follows. Horses were hitched to the gun carriage upon which the body rested. Police along the streets fought to keep back the ever-pressing, surging crowds.

From every town and village and almost every farm in Belgium they had gone. There were women in slippers with babies in arms from the Walloon district miners' country. There were people in costumes of many descriptions.

A murmur of sadness ran through the crowd at sight of the king's favorite charger—the saddle empty, field boots reversed in the stirrups—immediately following the coffin caisson.

Crown Prince Leopold, his younger brother, Charles, and their brother-in-law, Prince Umberto of Italy, walked close behind the familiar charger.

Padewski Present. Next came President Albert Lebrun of France; the Prince of Wales; King Boris III of Bulgaria; King Christian of Denmark; King Prajadhipok of Siam; Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, heir to the Swedish

Trial Will Be Held at Church Sunday Evening

A "trial" conforming to procedure used in district court will be held at the First Methodist church Sunday evening, beginning at 7:27 o'clock. The pulpit will be arranged to resemble as much as possible, the Gray county district court room.

Judge W. R. Ewing of 31st district court will preside as judge. The defendants, the Rev. Gaston Foote, pastor, announced last Sunday night, will be Mr. and Mrs. John Somebody, and the indictment will charge "criminal neglect of their son."

Attorney for the defense will be Joe Gordon, local attorney. Rev. Foote will be prosecuting attorney. Henry Jordan will be clerk of the court and balliff. The audience will be the son.

At the close of arguments by the defense and prosecuting attorneys, Judge Ewing will deliver his charge to the jury. Both sides will call about a dozen witnesses, including the parents of the boy who has been apprehended by peace officers for petty banditry and misdemeanors. Among the witnesses will be Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar, who will testify as a club woman; A. L. Patrick, the boy's father; and Philip Wolfe, his Sunday school superintendent; a policeman, scoutmaster and others. The "trial" will not be based upon actual incident, but will form a composite picture of a child of well-to-do parents who are so busy with clubs, business and their own recreation that they have no time for their son. Final rehearsal will be held at the church Sunday night. The charges and the characters in the play will of course be fictitious.

Black Face comedy is the keynote to Minstrel Memories, the second of the two stage attractions, with featured comedians dancing, and old minstrel songs.

Buyers Report Lovely Models Ready For Show

Merchants returning from eastern markets are reporting to Business and Professional Women's club style show committees that the widest and most elaborate assortment of spring frocks in years has been purchased and will be ready for the club's annual style show March 8 and 9.

Models for the show are being chosen now. Not only popular young Pampa women, but some from nearby towns are being selected to wear the dresses, coats, and accessories on the La Nora theater stage.

The movie to be shown in connection with style display has been announced as "Easy to Love," starring Adolphe Menjou.

Club members will complete their plans for the show at a business meeting next Tuesday evening. They will also discuss plans for observing the first week in March as national business women's week, an annual custom.

Texas Assert Sooner Officers Fired Upon Them

DALLAS, Feb. 22 (AP)—J. J. Carter, 43, and Elmer Roland, 28, Dallas men who said they were fired upon in Oklahoma City Sunday by officers hunting for desperadoes, said today they planned to employ an attorney to obtain restitution.

Carter, ill at his home, said the police fined him $11 for speeding before they would permit him to return home.

"We were driving along slowly looking for 1015 Pennsylvania avenue when the policeman began shooting at us. They searched us and the car and wanted to know where our guns were. We told them we were looking for Mrs. Roland but they would not believe us and we were taken to jail here we had to telephone to Dallas to be identified."

"After they found out we were not Clyde Barrow and had nothing to arrest us for, they made me pay $11 for speeding."

"They never said anything about being sorry for their mistake or made any offer to help us find the place where Mrs. Roland was."

The Dallas men had driven to Oklahoma City to get Mrs. Roland at a home where she had been visiting.

It is fortunate, in a way, that two very difficult child welfare cases have developed here coincident with appointment of the County Child Welfare board. These cases are showing up the full meaning of the law and at the same time are showing the inadequacy of remedial machinery. The inherent difficulties of placing wayward children in foster homes are showing up. It is easy to state the ideal; it is hard to find families willing to become the ideal foster parents.

PLACING children in jail is not good for them. A jail bird remembers his incarceration a long time. It may warp his thinking along the lines of law and imprisonment. . . . But there are worse things than jails. Society—you and I—cannot expect good results if we do not remove the causes. The two boys held here for petty theft have no home worthy of the name. "Very bad," you say. Granted, but what of many other boys and girls of the community. . . . It follows that a survey of home conditions among the underprivileged children of Gray county would be a next logical step.

CHARITY is a fine thing, but good homes are more important to children than handouts. "Bring up a child in the way he should go," if you do not wish him to depart from it. . . . Charity has no relation to home training, and trained welfare work may be very unscientific. Note this challenging example. In 1910, a Texas man was accepted as a charity recipient. He "got by" through lowering of his standard of living. Relatives "got the idea" and asked similar treatment. A recent survey revealed the astonishing fact that now 56 members of that man's family, with near relatives, are on charity.

VARIOUS counties are adopting child welfare programs and are making appropriations for training the children a few months or years, until relatives or families can be found to take them. Wichita county, for example, "boards" unfortunate children in private homes at about $4 per week. Welfare agencies provide clothing. The children are sent to school. There were only two alternatives—to let the children "run wild" or to send them to reform schools, both undesirable courses. . . . The Gray County Child Welfare board can become an agency of vast importance. We assume that in appointing it the county commissioners had in mind that it would be financed economically but adequately. Without some funds, it would be an empty gesture toward solution of one of society's greatest problems.

Second Annual Chess Tourney Begins March 1

The second annual Pampa Daily News chess tournament will begin March 1, with C. P. Buckler chairman of the committee in charge. Chess players in this vicinity are urged to register immediately with Mr. Buckler or at the Pampa News. Twenty-four players participated in the tournament last year. It was won by Mr. Buckler who defeated Dr. Whittenberg in the final match.

The goal this year is 40 players. The News will give a suitable prize to the winner of the tournament. The committee in charge of the tournament made the following statement: "Our experience has indicated the need for some minor changes in the method of conducting the selection of the champion. The preliminaries will be run off as usual. The contestants will be divided into four groups, seeded on the basis of their play in previous tournaments. Every man in each group will play every other man in the same group two games. A win will count two points, and a draw will count one point. The two men in each group having the largest number of points will enter the finals."

'More Humanity And Less Hell,' Is Kight Slogan

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 22 (AP)—The hat of H. Tom Kight, Claremore legislator and one of the "four horsemen" active in the impeachment and ouster of former Governor Henry S. Johnston, was in the ring for the democratic gubernatorial nomination today.

"More humanity and less hell," he said, would be his campaign slogan.

"I do not accept nor will I receive the support of the administration—it goes to Tom Anglin."

Kight's platform calls for reorganization of the school system, home-stead tax exemption, tax reduction, the right of women to hold major offices, old age pensions, and use of the militia only in emergencies.

Swedish Prince To Wed Actress

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—With or without royal consent, the wedding of Prince Sigvard of Sweden and his pretty German commoner will proceed as planned, it was reported reliably today—and the parents of the bride, blond fraulein Erika Patzek will be on hand for the nuptials.

So far as is known, the only guests expected at the simple wedding planned for March 8 are Erika's father, Anton Patzek, Berlin business man, and her mother.

Both Prince Sigvard and Miss Patzek remained in seclusion after the prince, son of the Swedish crown prince, had turned a deaf ear to Count Folke Bernadotte who flew to London to dissuade them from marrying.

Prince Sigvard, who like his bride-to-be is connected with the NFA Motion Picture company in Berlin, was induced to talk briefly last night. He stated when the marriage was mentioned. A questioner was referred to his lawyer. Neither added anything to published reports.

Officers Testify In Triple Slaying

FORT WORTH, Feb. 22 (AP)—Strands of wire binding the bodies of the three Handley slaying victims matched other wire found on the farm of W. D. May, near Handley, U. S. marshal, J. R. Wright testified today at May's trial on a murder charge.

Wright was sheriff of Tarrant county at the time the three men were alleged to have been slain July 8—and was in charge of the investigation.

A crowd that jammed criminal district court heard state witnesses testify to finding blood stains on a truck and belt, found on the May farm, and upon the rail of the east First street bridge, under which the bodies of Jack Sturdivant, J. B. and Harry Rutherford, were discovered.

Defense attorneys went to great length to determine whether officers investigating the slaying had illegally searched the farm of May at the time the truck and other articles were found.

No More Money In Cattle Says Aged Cattleman

MIDLAND, Feb. 22 (AP)—W. D. Cochran, 81-year-old cowman, believes that costly grass, lack of room and fences have taken the profits out of the cattle business and doubts that any more money will be made from it.

The first cow outfit west of Midland, he recalled, was that of W. H. George and John W. Cowden who established the "JH" just 50 years ago. The next big cattle venture in this section was by Nels Morris who founded the "C" ranch, still in operation in Andrews county.

Morris put up the first fence in that county and people laughed at him. The "C" ranch now has 400 sections, owned today by Canadian capital.

Mr. Cochran ranches west of Midland for ten years in the early days, driving his stock 75 miles to market.

In 1886, he dug the first well at the site of what is now the town of Jal, New Mexico, an oil town but seven years ago.

Mr. Cochran recalled a roundup in Throckmorton county where 20,000 cattle were assembled. The roundup lasted a week with 300 men representing 30 or 40 ranches at work. A ranch in those days represented a brand and not a tract of land. There were never any large roundups in this section, he said, but he attended one on the Pecos at Horsehead crossing in 1886, when 100,000 head of cattle were worked over.

Illness Fatal to W. D. Bowers Baby

Ronald David Bowers, 9 months, died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Bowers, south of Pampa, this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Bowers live on the Joe Bowers lease.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the chapel of the G. C. Malone Funeral home with the Rev. C. E. Lancaster, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating. Burial will be in Groom cemetery.

The child is survived by its parents and one brother, Robert Kenneth.

Domestic Cat And Coyote Caught in Traps, Still Fight

CHILDRESS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Ed Hall, farmer living near Childress, tells the most singular story of the winter trapping season, but he has a witness in Charlie Morgan, a neighboring farmer.

Hall set two coyote traps close together. On the third day he returned to the spot, but the traps were gone. He followed a trail marked by blood, bits of fur, and broken twigs, for three-quarters of a mile across two fields—and there found a domestic tom cat and a coyote, still alive and still fighting. The cat and the coyote had been caught in the two traps almost side by side. In the fight which followed the traps were torn loose from their anchorage and the animals fought their way for almost a mile. They were found in Morgan's field. How long they had fought, the witnesses did not know.

Answers to Today's Three Guesses

via these two modes of transportation will be based on "fair recompense" or payment by what the postage brings. . . . Regardless of what Woodring says, he'll probably "be resigned" in short order, and Currie will be the new Secretary of War. . . . When the ocean-mail hearings are made public, we'll really hear some astounding (to say the least) revelations of collusion, favoritism, etc. . . . One steamship company received a "short haul" contract, and was paid $250,000 per annum for carrying the mail—in 1930 it carried ONE LETTER!

Several other interesting things that DIDN'T come out of any investigation whatsoever, but rather out of private (?) conversation indicate . . . that there will be no fleet inspection in New York harbor, by the president, next June. It takes too long to get back to the Pacific coast! . . . the wife of the new ambassador (from Japan) confesses that one of her greatest delights in coming into the new embassy here is that she has ice water at her beck and will; her husband chooses ginger ale! . . . Mrs. Greenway, Arizona's representative whom I spoke of the other day, dashed madly into a committee meeting out on the Hill the other day and asked if she was too late to speak. The chairman courteously informed her that she was not, so she forthwith set out upon, and completed, about a twenty-minute discourse on something about "The Advantages of Irrigation in Arizona," finished and thanked the committee, was in due turn applauded by them, then left. The next week she discovered she was in the wrong committee meeting!

It's really most surprising how Farley's press conferences have increased in size—and I don't mean as a result of the air-mail probe. There used to be anywhere from six to ten at a conference; now there are probably twenty, and by the time Big Jim moves into his new quarters, there are apt to be 30 or 35 attending quite regularly.

REASON—Big Jim promised a real party for the press boys on the move into his new offices—with food, beer, wine, and whiskey included!

Here's a way to easy money—that is if you have any guaranteed ideas on how to get rid of Starlings! To those people who find thinking more difficult than actual labor, "easy money" isn't the phrase to use, but it's worth considering. Here's the dope:

Several years ago Washington's ly but surely by some sort of an insect that couldn't be exterminated by spraying, so following the example olive growers who once imported "Lady Bugs" to eat up the parasites on the olive trees, Washingtonians imported several thousand Starlings to rid the trees of the damaging insect.

These birds, an English variety, were imported from South America only after an "international patent" was signed whereby government officials agreed never to exterminate the birds.

The Starlings lived up to their agreement and absolutely rid Washington of the ruinous insects, but officials here failed to take nature into consideration—also the fact that Starlings multiply faster than rabbits, or guinea pigs, or Remington-Rand calculators. Now—seriously speaking—it's one of the greatest governmental problems. They're absolutely ruining Washington buildings in spite of scarecrows, swinging telephone directories, blank shells, and even gas attacks administered by the army. Have you a prize-winning idea?

will be conducted at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the First Methodist church, where Mr. McCullough was a member. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Gaston Foote, pastor, assisted by the Rev. A. A. Hyde, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and the Rev. C. E. Lancaster, pastor of the First Baptist church. Burial will follow in the new cemetery under the direction of the G. C. Malone Funeral home.

Palbearers will be Lee Harrah, J. S. Wynne, Joe Shelton, J. E. Wood, C. B. Barnard, and W. R. Campbell. All old time friends of Mr. McCullough are invited to be honorary palbearers and asked to meet in front of the church at 2:45 o'clock. Friends are asked to please omit flowers.

Miami Scouts Are First to Complete Clothing Campaign

Miami's Boy Scout troop No. 79, headed by T. V. Weaver as scoutmaster, is the first group in the Adobe Walls council to complete the clothing-house furnishing drive requested by President Roosevelt.

This announcement was made today by Executive C. A. Clark at the headquarters office.

Pampa residents are urged to go through their attics and store rooms and pick out usable articles for the needy families of this community. Boy Scout troops will begin knocking on local doors Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock. They will have trucks for picking up the articles donated. Clothing for school children between 9 and 14 years old is imperatively needed, but any article of wearing apparel, bedding, and furniture will be welcome.

Citizens wishing their donated articles to be gathered quickly may call the B. C. D. office, phone 384, and give the list of articles contributed.

Horse-Raising Coming Back in Dalhart Section

DALHART, Feb. 22 (AP)—Horse raising is returning to the Pampa-Dalhart section, if inquiries coming to Dr. R. T. Lee, Dalhart county agent, are an indication. Several farmers have asked him to get them purebred Percheron stallions while others have asked for purebred or high grade Percheron stallions. Return of the horse for farm work is a factor, Dr. Lee believes.

Horse raising has also been stimulated by development of north Panhandle polo clubs. Texline and Nara Vasa will have clubs this year, in addition to Stratford, Dalhart and Dumas.

Interest has also increased in feeding out cattle for market provided this section gets a feed crop which now appears probable. Several farmers are seeking purebred Jersey bulls for promotion of farm dairy herds.

Cost of Keeping Texas Convicts Has Decreased

AUSTIN, Feb. 22. (AP)—It does not cost as much per prisoner to maintain the Texas penitentiary system as it did a few years ago.

Lee Simmons, manager of the system, has called Governor Miriam A. Ferguson's attention to the cost of upkeep. In 1929 the cost per prisoner was $391. In 1933 it was $224.

Of the $1,641,770 appropriated to run the penitentiary for the fiscal year ending August 31, last, $464,280, or 28.3 per cent was not expended.

The average population in 1933 was 5,362, compared with 5,535 the previous year. There were 109 escapes last year against 302 in 1929.

Seven thousand three hundred and sixty-two bales of cotton were produced from 11,673 acres planted on prison farms. The crop was valued at $403,853.

The net operating loss was $458,254, compared with $873,237 for 1932.

The system owns 1,867 head of dairy cattle valued at $64,350; 2,956 head of range cattle inventoried at $70,990; 7,363 hogs worth $33,403; 1,044 sheep valued at $10,272 and 975 goats at $2,051. In addition the system has $267,530 worth of working livestock, including 621 horses, 2,127 mules, 73 oxen and 475 dogs.

All assets of the system aggregated $5,006,987.

Of the inmates, 627 are from Harris county; 400 from Dallas county; 220 from Tarrant county, and 1711 from Texas county.

The system sold 17,214 pairs of shoes valued at $36,925, to state clemency institutions.

TO SHOW NRA IS WORTHY OF PERPETUATION

WOULD PROVE SYSTEM HAS CAPACITY TO AID NATION

By James Cope.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (AP)—General Hugh S. Johnson hopes that a permanent change in the social order will flow from the great gathering of NRA code authorities here March 5—an assemblage which officials already are likening to a first economic congress.

Elaborate preparations for the meeting indicate that Johnson wants it to be a forceful demonstration of two things: That industry, under the NRA, has the capacity to act for the nation's well-being, and that the new system—which to date has been frankly experimental—is worth perpetuation.

Meantime, more immediate problems are also occupying NRA's attention. Johnson disclosed that correspondence is in progress with the Ford Motor company on complaints submitted by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that two Ford plants have violated collective bargaining provisions of the auto code.

Warning against "fairy tales," the NRA head nevertheless has said that if the complaints are true it will be a challenge to the government. Green added that a court suit would be the only recourse.

Meaning, Senator Wagner (D, N. Y.) reported to President Roosevelt that he was troubled by an increasing opposition by industrialists to the activities of the national labor board, of which he is chairman.

More than 320 cases involving 164,000 workers are still pending, Wagner said. About 100,000 of these employees are on strike, he added.

Although Johnson undoubtedly will suggest a lowering of industrial work hours at the forthcoming code meeting, he still stood upon assertions that an arbitrary 30-hour week could not be applied.

The outpouring of criticism and suggestion which Johnson desires at the preliminary public sessions starting next Tuesday, is admittedly designed not only to produce information, but to impress the elected delegates of business with their social responsibility.

The first objective of the code authority gathering corresponds roughly to the transformation of 500 hastily recruited regiments into well-knit units capable of maneuvering in unison.

The second is to give this army a real fighting punch for the battle on depression, by making every industry take on the utmost employment and payroll load it can stand.

BLOND GODDESS

A New Serial by HERBERT JENSEN

SYNOPSIS: Frank Graham, the explorer, and Janice Kent, movie star, fall into a mysterious valley while escaping from a band of murderous savages. In the interior of Yucatan, they cannot get out of the valley, and to their horror they find the high priest of the tribe imprisoned with them. To cap the climax, they find Bill Langton also, and Langton is the aviator friend of Graham who has been missing many months.

Chapter 39 LANGTON'S STORY

Janice exclaimed in a choked voice, "He's hurt, Frank, oh, he's hurt!"

Langton muttered, "That happened weeks ago. I'm all right now. I got cracked up badly trying to get out of this valley. A line I'd made broke when I was halfway up the cliff. . . . Getting food was pretty hard for a few weeks. . . ."

Janice's eyes glistened. Langton smiled. "Don't feel sorry for me, Miss Kent—wait 'til I show you my Crusoe bachelor quarters. I've got everything including running water. Too much running water, but I'm afraid not so many groceries as I'd like."

He chuckled on, gayly, inconspicuously, as if he were admitting them to his house for an afternoon's visit. Frank could not take his eyes from the gangling emaciated figure.

The few rags of clothes he had were soiled and torn and hung from him like pitiful tatters on a scarecrow. He suggested that they walk to his camp.

He ambled ahead with a grotesque limp, swinging his stone-tipped bludgeon with what was almost an air of gay insouciance. The other arm stood out at a pitiful angle.

The afternoon sun dipped beyond the western cliffs as they reached Langton's fire. The high-priest lay as they had seen him earlier in the afternoon, face immobile, eyes hateful.

Frank experienced a little crawling of the muscles of his back as the ahkin's eyes rested upon him. Helpless as the man was nevertheless his glance seemed to have substance.

Frank felt the malevolent impact of his gaze. The ahkin seemed to have a power for harm that was beyond the physical.

Langton poked the fire with a stick. Several hours had passed since they had found him at their camp across the stream. After showing them his "Crusoe quarters"—the small shack that stood before the entrance to an extensive cave, he had pressed them with questions of the outside world.

His months out of civilization, he had said, seemed like so many years. Frank had gossiped steadily, and his news, supplemented by what Janice could tell, seemed to bring back the side of Billy Langton's nature—the impudent, reckless character—the world had thought lost forever to it.

Langton listened with the complete absorption of a child with a fairy tale.

Once with a vast pentence he interrupted to ask them if they were hungry. He barely waited for their answer, but disappeared into the cave and brought out a woven basket of dried venison.

Janice and Frank ate ravenously. The ahkin, when it was offered to him had waved his hand negatively, almost contemptuously. Nor did Langton eat any.

"He's like I am," Langton grinned. "I'm so sick of the stuff myself I'd rather eat a bucket of spinach. . . . If I had a bucket of spinach. . . ."

Frank glanced at him suspiciously. "Is that all you have?" he pointed at the basket.

Langton chuckled behind his blond beard. "I get you. But you're wrong this time. . . . There's more in the cave. And more running around loose in the jungle."

"This place is sort of a wild game trap. Animals that don't fall off the cliffs float down the stream and land here. They can't get out." He stared with impassive reflection into the fire.

"I've done as well for food as could be expected. I've had enough, anyway. I made a rope of vines and cactus fiber. With it I could trap a deer when I wanted."

"I've even caught a turkey or two, and managed to net fish. The fish weren't very good. The trouble was—" Langton made a grimace. "—that the rope finally got me in trouble."

"I made a long one, tied a rock to it and practiced slinging it. I got so I could throw it quite a distance. It occurred to me that if I could sling it up over the lip of the cliff it might catch on something and I could haul myself up by it."

"I tried it. After a while it fastened on something—I thought stoutly—and after testing it by climbing on feet or so I decided to risk the entire climb. Well. . . . it let me down. . . ."

He pointed to his maimed arm.

"I broke that, and dislocated my hip. I crawled back here. It was pretty bad for a while. I had some food but I couldn't hunt—I guess for weeks." He grinned again. "But my appetite wasn't what you'd call hearty, and I got by all right."

"What did you do for fire?" asked Janice.

"That was the least of my worries. I found a wood that burns forever, I think. The natives used it back in the city, and I had a few matches."

They sat and talked late into the night. The mosquitoes did not bother them. Langton claimed that it was because there was good drainage into a swiftly flowing stream, and therefore there could be no breeding places.

Langton's story was that he had been blown out of his course by the hurricane and sighted no place to land until his amazement he saw the great stone-slabbed clearing near the pyramid.

Not only could he land there but it appeared designed for a later take-off. He had, then, no hesitation in landing.

"I'd been spoiled, I guess," he went on with a hint of apology in his smile. "When the natives surrounded me I thought that they composed a sort of jungle reception committee. They seemed to know who I was, too."

"I used to read stories about these people down here who made gods of blond men—you know lots of those old Spaniards were blond, which was one of the reasons they got by so well in the old days."

"Even when they came they found the natives had blond-gods-from-the-east-legends. The Spaniards took advantage of those legends."

"Maybe I thought I might do the same for a little while. I'm kid enough, I guess, to try feeling how it is to be a king. Yep," he continued, "I tried, but I didn't get away with it. I met the ahkin here in a day or two and I began to wish that hurricane had blown me somewhere else."

"The high-priest isn't a bad sort, really. I think he's a remarkable fellow. He doesn't speak English—only Spanish—yes, that's right, just Spanish and his own language, but he can read your mind like a book."

"Don't tell me you don't believe in telepathy, Frank—this boy can give you some startling exhibition. Either that or he's a twin brother of Herman the Great. Anyway we got along fine when I'd ask him questions that he could answer with a yes or a no in Spanish—I know that much of the language, anyway."

"We got along fine, I say, until I was taken to the top of the pyramid to witness one of their little sunrise performances. They'd dressed me up quite trickily.

"They killed a poor devil on the sacrifice stone. . . . and a girl. I went a little hazy and in the fight came out second best."

"They put me in a stone room, and gave me to understand that my scrap on the pyramid top had elected me to take a more or less personal part in the next performance."

"They treated me all right though. They gave me some stuff from the ship, pop, chewing gum, and chocolate bars—" He grinned a little shamefacedly. "You know me, Frank. Frank used to tell me, Miss Kent, that all I needed on my crate was a peanut whistle to go into business."

"I wrote a note on a cablegram envelope, and scratched my story on the wall, high up. The envelope I put in a pop bottle and sealed it with chewing gum and a piece of rag from my shirt. When they took me to the pyramid top I carried the bottle with me."

"To cut a long story short, I tried to take the ahkin with me—not because I had anything personally against him, but he is a dangerous lunatic and with him out of the way the vital statistics of this ancient city would take quite a drop for the good."

a revolutionary new line of low-priced trucks

Bigger, huskier models feature an entirely new engine, giving increased power on less fuel than ever!

THE 1934 line of Chevrolet trucks—truck-built for truck service all the way through—feature the Blue-Flame engine—a great new development that will be welcomed by every truck buyer in America. Here are the remarkable facts: The new Chevrolet trucks are even bigger than last year's models—bigger in bodies, with stronger heavier frames, huskier transmissions and rear axles, and larger brakes. They will deliver more power. They will haul bigger loads than ever. Yet, thanks to the new Blue-Flame engine, operating costs are actually lower than before—and that means the lowest in the hauling field. The net result of all these improvements is a line of trucks like no others on the market—the first to offer such a combination of big capacity, great power and unequalled economy. an Billy The Kid Missed, To Feature Mural

T. SUMNER, N.M. Feb. 22. (AP)—The only man Billy the Kid was shot at and missed will be memorialized in a mural depicting the youthful desperado, as it is being done for the walls of the Ft. Sumner courthouse as a WPA art project.

Legend has it that Bill Matthews, former resident of Texico, N.M., was the only person ever to w the Kid's fire and escape head being felled by the band-dreadly gun. Matthews' widow, now living in California, furnished a picture of her husband for the mural sketch.

The north wall of the historic old courthouse will be devoted to the early history of Ft. Sumner, which was frequently punctuated with the gun fighting and daring escapades of the "Kid" outlaw. Much of the content will be taken from photographs.

Vernon Hunter, of Texico, is the artist.

PRESIDENT OF BANK RESISTS HIS ATTACKER

CONFESSION IS MADE SUDDENLY, SECOND MAN HUNTED

CHICAGO, Feb. 22. (AP)—A prisoner's dramatic confession that he plotted to kidnap E. P. Adler, Davenport, Iowa, publisher, for $40,000 ransom, marked a new victory today in the drive to end the snatch racket.

The plot was frustrated by the plucky resistance of the 61-year-old publisher and bank president. When Charles Phillips, alias Fred Mayo, and an accomplice, slugged him with a blackjack yesterday in the Morrison hotel, Adler fought them off.

Phillips, captured a short time later, admitted last night, after 15 hours of questioning, that he and his companion, known as Jack Wyman of Des Moines, planned to put Adler into a trunk and ship him to a southside flat to await ransom negotiations.

Police flung a wide net for Wyman, who was still at large.

Suddenly breaking down, Phillips confessed to Sergeant Thomas Kelly that he and Wyman came from Des Moines, Iowa determined to slug, drug and kidnap Adler.

A woman, believed by police to be Wyman's wife, was seized at the South Side flat for questioning. She said her name was Mrs. Minnie Lacey.

It was his first "job" in the snatch racket, Phillips told police, and it failed because Adler fought off his two assailants, and summoned help despite the fact he had been blackjacked.

Phillips was seized when he returned to his hotel room close to one in which Adler was staying. He gave his home as Birmingham, Ala., and for hours insisted robbery and not kidnaping was the motive. Asked why he had denied the plot, he said:

"The whole country is dead set against kidnapers and when I was caught I thought I would not have a chance to escape the death penalty. The whole thing got on my nerves and finally I decided to tell everything."

He said he met Wyman in Des Moines, where both were out of work, and that they decided there to snatch Adler, who is the owner of the Davenport Times, president of the Davenport Savings Bank and Trust company, and head of the Lee Syndicate of newspapers.

East Digging Out Of Worst Storm

By The Associated Press.

Dead crews redoubled their efforts today to reach communities still isolated following the north Atlantic seaboard's worst storm of the winter.

On the eastern shore of Maryland conditions were the worst since 1900. Many schools were closed and most of the Chesapeake bay was still ice locked. The fourth cold wave of the month was expected.

In Massachusetts many small towns were cut off by snowdrifts as deep as 20 feet. Stalled snow plows and automobiles dotted the roads. All rail lines were open but trains were behind schedule. Warmer, cloudy weather was predicted.

Conditions on the mainland of New York state were almost normal. Main highways were open and the mercury was slowly climbing. Long Island was still in the grip of huge drifts, however, with rail and automobile traffic fighting to get thru with food and fuel to communities cut off from New York City since Monday. In one community 15 families had been without food for 30 hours. More snow, predicted for today, would, it was feared, place thousands of suburban dwellers in danger of hunger.

Negro 'Senator' Is Welcomed To South Carolina

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 22. (AP)—"Senator" Green Coleman, bent and stooping with age, came back today to the legislative halls he was ordered to leave almost 60 years ago as a political exile—a "man without a state."

Coleman is a Charlotte, N. C., negro who was elected to the South Carolina "carpet bag" legislature in 1874. He served until 1878 when Colonel Wade Hampton, riding the roads by night with his Red-Shirts, "took over" the state as governor.

The senator's return today was a "triumphant entry" into the state from which he was banned.

He was accompanied by a motorcade of prominent Charlotte business and professional men.

The general assembly met in joint session to receive the aged negro.

After he was ordered from the state, Coleman went to Charlotte, where he was given refuge. He worked as a commercial painter until the infirmities of age caused him to give up his calling. Recently he expressed a wish to return to Columbia before he died. He had never returned to South Carolina after his banishment.

HOBBS, N. M., Feb. 22. (AP)—Bones believed to be fossilized remains of a prehistoric ape or man were unearthed recently by dogs and workmen on the Hobbs to Jal highway. Sent to Southern Methodist university for examination, a report was returned classifying the bones as part of an ape that roamed the staked plains while the earth was still warm.

Short Meetings Held at Feet of Stephen F. Austin

AUSTIN, Feb. 22. (AP)—The imposing portrait of Stephen F. Austin in the Texas house of representatives has been put to a new use.

To save time, committees often hold short meetings while the house is in session. Members are reluctant to leave the house floor while legislation is pending, to go to a committee room.

"The committee on highways and motor traffic will hold a short meeting at the feet of Stephen F. Austin," the house reading clerk announced the other day. Since that time meetings at the feet of "Texas' colonizer" have been frequent and the practice has spread until meetings also are being held in front of other portraits, notably those of James S. Hogg and Sam Houston.

No longer do members of conference committees go into session without something to "trade on."

A conference committee is appointed to adjust differences between the house and senate on legislation. It is a give and take proposition, the idea of the committee being to take as much as possible and give as little as they can to effect a compromise.

During house debate on the bill to issue unemployment relief bonds, sponsors pleaded that amendments be added so that house conferees would have some-

LARGEST CROW ROOST IN U. S. TO BE RAIDED IN BELL COUNTY

TEMPLE, Feb. 22. (AP)—War has been declared on the millions of crows that roost nightly on a farm in northeastern Bell county by the farmers and sportsmen of the county and nearby counties. E. E. Heap, Temple business man, has been named field marshal of a crow army being recruited.

The leaders are seeking 200 gunners to make up the raiding party that will creep up on the roost one night soon. The wary crow can not be caught in the daytime, but it is a very foolish bird at night, farmers say.

The army will meet at a town near the huge roost and as positions are taken by the units, bright fires will be sent up to illuminate the sky and get the crows to take off. Then the sportsmen will crack down.

The attack on the black menace is being planned in conformity with other crow hunts held in the northern farming sections so that the hunters may be assured of safety from other guns.

The roost has been conservatively estimated by farmers to nightly house more than 750,000 crows that spread out by day all over this section.

A long stretch of woods along Camp creek, east of Octaville, is the site of the crow home. The birds usually land in fields before retiring and small coveys of grain cover entire fields of grain. In the day time the raiders go out and destroy fields of grain, quail eggs and other bird eggs.

The roost is believed to be one of the largest in the United States and the army plans to raid the roost several nights in a row, provided the crows come back the night following the first raid.

Government aid has been promised in the form of poison to clean up the crows the hunters leave. Henry Dunlavy, superintendent of the Blackland experiment farm near Temple, has secured a large amount of poison that will be scattered over the ground around the roost.

OIL CASES TO BE APPEALED IMMEDIATELY

JUDGE ISSUES DECREES IN EAST TEXAS OIL CASES

SHERMAN, Feb. 22. (AP)—In their fight for national regulation of the unruly oil industry, federal officials were in a position today to appeal to higher courts from decisions restraining them from interfering with the operations of concerns engaged purely in intrastate commerce, which have not signed the oil code.

Federal District Judge Randolph Bryant, whose decisions in the Amason Petroleum corporation and the Panama Refining company cases precipitated a crisis in the oil administration's program, has signed decrees in these cases and ordered them filed at Tyler. His action paved the way for appeal to the United States court of civil appeals and, in all probability to the United States supreme court.

After lengthy arguments, F. W. Fischer, attorney for a group of East Texas operators opposing certain phases of federal regulation, and Charles I. Francis, assistant to the attorney general, reached an agreement on both decrees.

"I am not going to grant any stay in these cases," said Judge Bryant in refusing to grant a stay of execution.

Francis announced that the government would take the cases to the higher courts immediately, appealing in both. Exceptions to the decrees were noted in court.

The Panama decree caused the most trouble before it was approved. As agreed upon by Fischer and Francis, it perpetually enjoined government agents from "enforcing any rule or regulation promulgated under the national industrial recovery act insofar as the same applies to the production of petroleum or refining and storage or transportation of petroleum or products in intrastate commerce."

It also enjoined agents from "going on or about the premises or in any wise interfering with the companies, or molesting them in the conduct of their business by reason of the provisions of the N. I. R. A. or regulations promulgated under them."

TEXAN WHO THREW WRENCH INTO NRA OIL CODE BARELY GOT THRU FIFTH GRADE READER IN SCHOOL

KILGORE, Feb. 22. (AP)—A country boy who was born on a "poor but well-mortgaged farm" in the mountains of West Virginia almost 50 years ago has thrown a monkey wrench into the enforcement of the NRA petroleum code in Texas.

F. W. Fischer, now a Tyler oil attorney, managed to get through a fifth-grade reader, a third class arithmetic and a blue book speller. In 1900 his family moved to Oklahoma with the opening of the Kiowa-Comanche Indian reservation. As an Oklahoma farmer raising "broom-corn," he borrowed law books from Jake Hammon and other Lawton, Oklahoma, lawyers, and was admitted to the bar in 1907.

He spent two years in the army during the world war and served later as counsel for a railroad. He moved to Wichita Falls, Tex., and in 1931 to Tyler and the oil field.

Fischer has become the mouth piece of the independent refiner and producer in east Texas.

Comparatively unknown when he moved to this sector, the lawyer took up the cause of refiners and producers charged with producing "hot" oil in August, 1933, when Secretary Interior Harold I. Ickes issued rules and regulations governing national oil allocation and sent federal agents into the east Texas field to enforce them.

Ickes appointed A. D. Ryan his chief east Texas investigator and Ryan at once called the so-called "hot" oil producers and consumers into general meeting at Tyler. He told them they would have to cease violating and would be forced to live up to all rules of the game unless they wished to "eat Christmas dinner in jail."

Asked his opinion on federal control, Fischer said he believed the entire set up unconstitutional. When he returned to his office seven refiners were awaiting him. He was employed as counsel and the fight started, Fischer against the state and federal oil regulatory bodies and the government prosecutors.

The battleground was the state and federal courts. Fischer protected his clients with injunctions until he could bring their cause to trial under the Panama Refining Co. case.

After Judge Randolph Bryant's opinion and decree favoring his clients, Assistant Attorney General Charles I. Francis proposed to place scores of indictments before the federal grand jury and to conduct a general investigation for the government in conditions in the east Texas field. But Judge Bryant refused to permit an investigation based on the national oil regulations or the petroleum code, both of which he had declared invalid within the borders of Texas.

Francis then asked for five indictments with which to test Bryant's ruling before the supreme court and the judge granted the request. The federal prosecutor assumed that Fischer would demur to the indictments, that the judge would sustain the demurets and that the road would be open to the highest court. But that was not the case.

"Since when has it become the government's duty to both prosecute a prisoner and direct his defense?" Fischer asked the court. "These defendants choose to plead not guilty and to stand trial before a jury of their peers at the next term of court." (Three months hence.)

Solons Refuse To Take 'Ma's' Advice on Bonds

AUSTIN, Feb. 22. (AP)—Both branches of the legislature have refused to allow investment funds of state institutions in Texas relief bonds, regarded by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson as a major obstacle to their sale.

The senate yesterday passed, with amendments, a house bill to authorize additional bonds to carry on relief work when proceeds from bonds already issued are exhausted. It rejected an amendment, also declined by the house, that would have permitted the University of Texas, permanent school fund and other state surplus money to be invested in the securities.

Bills approved by the two houses differed only in two major respects. The senate voted to issue $4,500,000 while the house approved $1,000,000. The senate eliminated a house provision to increase the tax on wagers at horse races, a part of the increase to retire the bonds.

Elimination of the race tax was regarded as the only change the house might refuse to accept.

Four Planes Are Forced To Land In Mimic Battle

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Feb. 22. (AP)—The forced landing of four converted land planes on a rough sea and the rescue of 8 officers aboard them today supplied the only mishap in the three-day mimic warfare of the United States fleet.

Caught in a fog so thick a return to their ship was impossible, five of the 300 aircraft participating in the final phase of the maneuvers yesterday were instructed to fly to San Diego. As the density of the fog increased, four of the planes were brought down on rough water 25 miles at sea and 100 miles from their destination.

The pilot of the other plane, and his fellow officer, chose to guess their way home and flew "blind" to the San Pedro naval base where they reported the predicament of their companions.

The fleet, steaming toward San Diego, swung around and immediately began a long search for the 8 aviators whose lives were in danger because of the light pontoons on their converted land craft.

The battleship Texas found one of the quartet drifting five miles from the post, where it had landed five hour earlier. An hour later destroyers rescued the crews of the other planes. They had taxied toward Oceanside, Calif., until their gasoline gave out and they were rescued by the fleet's maneuverers in the Pacific before departing for the Atlantic in April.

Party of 101 Is Marooned on Ice Floe in Strait

MOSCOW, Feb. 22 (AP)—Crumbling ice and a raging gale carried today a grave threat of death to 101 shipwreck victims marooned on a drifting ice floe in Bering Strait.

The stranded party—including eight women and two small children—comprised Professor Otto Schmidt's Wrangel Island scientific expedition. They took refuge on the ice when their steamer, the Cheliuskin, sank while returning from the island, Feb. 13.

First real fears for their safety were aroused when the government rescue commission at Moscow announced that storms had blocked all efforts to reach them.

Food supplies are plentiful, the commission said, but the ice field was reported to be disintegrating. The fact it was being driven northward by the wind darkened hopes for rescue.

Sixty dog teams started out days ago from Providence Bay. Ice conditions halted them, it was reported, at Cap Onman. A snow storm forced two big airplanes to return to their starting points, Cape Weiland and North Cape, before they could get near the survivors' ice camp.

In the heart of the business section of Montgomery, Ala., on Saturday the entire center of a street is reserved for wagons and buggies.

TEN BEST GOLFERS FROM ALL FIELDS OF SPORT SELECTED

Shute Picks Baseball Aces, Boxer, Tennis Players, Swimmer and Jockey.

By EDWARD J. NEIL, Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 22 (AP)—Suppose there were a golf tournament for athletes who have won their fame in anything else but golf.

Would a ball player such as Babe Ruth win it, or would a tennis player, a prize fighter or a swimmer or a jockey come through?

Denny Shute, the calm young man who won the British open championship last year in his first try, doesn't know, but in his travels he has played with, seen, or heard about almost all the crack golfers in other fields of sport.

This is the way he ranks the top men:

- 1—Sammy Byrd, Yankee outfielder.
- 2—Arnold Stutz, Pacific Coast outfielder.
- 3—Johnny Indisano, Boston middleweight boxer.
- 4—George Herman Ruth, Yankee slugger.
- 5—George Lott, Davis cup tennis player.
- 6—Pony McAtee, jockey.
- 7—Ellsworth Vines, tennis player.
- 8—Mickey Cochrane, catcher and manager Detroit Tigers.
- 9—Harold Thurber, jockey.
- 10—Johnny Weissmuller, former swimming champion.

"Byrd," says Shute, "comes pretty close to being as good a golfer as most of the pros. He has a fine long swing. He hits a long ball, accurately. He went around in the rain at Llanerch, in Philadelphia, last summer in '28. He's the one athlete I've seen outside of golf who might make the professional grade."

Stutz ranks just behind Byrd, Shute says. The former big leaguer hasn't quite the style of Byrd nor does he get the same distance.

Indisano, who once seemed headed for the welterweight title, plays consistently in the middle 70's. Ruth, a deadly serious devotee of the game and a tremendous clouter, is too erratic.

George Lott, an eight handicap player, and McAtee, one of the outstanding jockeys of a few years ago, sticks close to 80 while Vines and Mickey Cochrane, the latter an all-round athlete, stay in the low 80's, averaging a stroke or two under Thurber and Weissmuller.

Department of education statistics show that two out of every three high school graduates in Alabama never attend college.

SCOUT NEWS

Troop 18

The troop committee of Hopkins troop No. 18 met Tuesday night in called session, in the Phillips District Officers, W. R. Barrett, chairman of the committee, presided with the following men present: L. E. Church, W. E. Reno, M. L. H. Baze, D. A. Price, L. T. Jones, E. F. Vanderburg, B. M. Cotton, Everett Vanderburg, John E. Shannon; Marion Johnson and George J. Adamie.

The first business brought up was a location for a meeting hall for the boy and girl scouts of this community. Definite arrangements were made to get this building program under way and Mr. Baze, L. T. Jones and George Adamie were appointed to investigate cost of balance of material that would be needed.

The business of raising a troop revolving fund was then gone into, and L. E. Church, W. E. Reno and E. F. Vanderburg, were appointed to find ways and means to raise this money and make recommendations on same.

Two boys of Troop No. 18 were then called before the committee for questioning as to their conduct which was believed had not been in line with the Scout laws and oath.

Considerable discussion was had concerning the part of the parents in Scouting, the importance of their interest and ways they can be of help.

Princess Will Not Be Present At Coronation

BRUSSELS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Princess Astrid will not be at her crown prince husband's side when he makes his entry into the city Friday as the new king of Belgium.

Because of her health—she is expecting the birth of a child—the crown princess will motor from the royal castle at suburban Laeken to the house of parliament where Prince Leopold will take the oath of allegiance to the constitution.

Arriving, the future queen will be greeted by a delegation from both houses and conducted to a special throne erected in the chamber of deputies.

Cabinet ministers, dignitaries of state, foreign kings and princes and other foreign notables already will have taken their places upon a special tribune facing seats to be occupied by senators and deputies.

Not until the state is thus colorfully set for his arrival, will the crown prince arrive to be welcomed by another delegation and like the queen—escorted to his throne.

Forthwith, the prince will take the brief oath by which he is to become King Leopold III.

An electric shovel, built at Marion, O., is big enough to pick up a 40-passenger bus, swing it over the roof of a 4-story building and drop it in the backyard.
