A TREND WORTH WATCHING

No careful observer of national trends can overlook the fact that the federal government has set a precedent for the assumption that it has an unescapable duty to provide jobs for the unemployed. Out of such policies grow the decisions which outline the program of our democracy.

This assumption grew up during the depression. It's worth remembering that it is a comparatively new thing in American life. By the old tradition, the government was supposed to keep its hands off such matters. If industry couldn't employ the men it normally employed, there was nothing in particular that Washington was expected to do about it.

We found that that didn't work very well. The presence in the country of unemployment on a huge scale was too great a strain on the social fabric. So we became convinced the national government must take in hand, and this conviction found expression in the official pronouncements of the new administration.

That is what brought us to our present tangle in the NRA.

Industry, says the administration, must hire more men. It must do this by the process of shortening working hours, and it must raise wages at the same time, so that the men whose hours are cut will not suffer any decrease in income.

Industry replies that it cannot do anything of the kind and operate at a profit; and there is no reason to doubt that, in many, many cases, this is the exact truth.

What then is the alternative—bearing in mind the all-important fact that care for the unemployed has been accepted as a government duty?

The alternative, clearly, is for the government to go on making jobs for the jobless. If private industry can't do it, the government must. The enormously expensive CWA must be continued, even expanded. More millions must be pumped into public works.

And the money for this must come from taxes—which in large part, must be collected from industry.

These are the choices that face us today. They present about as tough a problem as industry and government jointly could be asked to solve, and they arise, unfortunately, from one of our new beliefs that unemployment is a direct concern of the government.

GRASS FIRE WAS MOST DREADED PLAINS SCOURGE IN 'NINeties

AMARILLO, March 28 (AP)—Those who lived in this area in 1900 remember one blaze which jumped the Canadian river from the north and burned to the vicinity of Groom before being controlled. The wind, they said, was high and fitful, whipping first one direction and then another, lifting embers across the wide sandy bed of the river to new footholds in the tall grass.

Mrs. Carolyn Deason Timmons, who has interviewed many pioneer ranchers on the subject, said the methods used to fight prairie fires were pretty much the same through the plains country. "Go and fight," Mrs. Timmons said, "was the law of the range. The law was the same for men and women and even children who were large enough to help. When a blaze was sighted everyone who saw it went directly to it and began fighting with whatever they had, even their clothing. The grass had to be saved. Life for the cattle depended on the grass and the life of the people depended on the cattle."

When a large enough force had assembled, Mrs. Timmons said, a cow or horse was killed and pieces of hide were stripped off for fuel. A fence post was used to spread the animal's legs and flatten the carcass, then two or more cowboys would fasten ropes to the carcass and drag it along the line meading a production schedule of 580,700 barrels daily for Texas during April and May. The current allowable was estimated at 963,709 barrels, with increases automatically granted under certain conditions bringing it to approximately 967,090 barrels.

Application for a 5,000-barrel increase in the daily allowable for the Panhandle field, was made by E. J. Daughan Jr. of Pampa, who is chairman of the Panhandle enforcement committee. He said the indicated market demand for Panhandle crude during April warranted an increase in the field's daily allowable production to 57,000 barrels. The commission announced nominations for Panhandle crude totaled 56,800 barrels.

W. B. Hamilton of Pampa, employing in the oil purchasing division of the Phillips Petroleum company, said production of the 52,000-barrel allowable during February and March had exceeded the demand. He opposed an increase.

He said storage of oil had increased during the two-month period and indicated production had exceeded demand.

Charles H. Keffer of Amarillo, representing the Amarillo Gas company, asked the commission to reduce the ratio of gas produced with oil in the Panhandle field. He said the present ratio, which he estimated at 1,000 cubic feet of gas to one barrel of oil, would result in ultimate failure to recover several million barrels of crude from the field.

Judith Lane

by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Judith Dale has re-organized the old Bevins Construction Company, acting as agent of her former employer, the late Tom Bevins. But she must face the enmity of Morton Lamper, formerly Bevins' attorney, and of Mrs. Bevins and her treacherous daughter, Mathie. Judith's determination to carry out Bevins' plan to build the Rio Diablo dam may also wreck her domestic happiness, for she is the wife of Norman Dale, and Norman is Lamper's law partner.

in and drew out the first robe. She had slipped into it before she realized it was the ermine trimmed peach-bloss she had worn the night of Tom Bevins' death.

"Norman, was it Lamper's idea they meet here?" she asked as she stood before him tying the folds of her robe.

"Yes, but he came at my invitation."

Judith stood on tiptoe, slipped white arms about his neck and brought his head down to hers—

"Norin, I understand so much more than you think I do. I'd like to tell you my side of the story, but it's useless, you're too prejudiced to understand. Kiss me goodnight and tell them down there that I'm . . ."

Chapter 19
TRAGIC INCIDENT
The sloping green roof, the slim pillars, the green shutters, the tiny balcony jutting out above the entrance, each had been dreamed out by the two of them, sketched roughly on letter pads, then turned over to the architect.

Slowly she entered and stood in the hall, pulling off tight gloves. Delphy came in from the kitchen "Law-re, you is late."

"What are all the lights on for, Delphy?"

"Mrs. Norman, he say there's a wife a company comin' 'rute. Mr. and Mrs. Bevins and Miz Dale and Miss Lamper."

"Norman," Judith turned to her husband who had come into the hall from his den, "is Lamper coming here?"

"Yes, I invited those immediately concerned with the Bevins will, Judith, I hope we can settle this quietly among ourselves."

"You mean you are bringing them all here to my home?"

"It's my home too, Judy."

"But my only sanctuary. We can't ever escape what might happen here tonight."

"It's too late now. Better have your dinner."

Judith straightened. "You may bring them here, Norman, but as my relations with them are purely business I can refuse to see them outside my office. I do refuse."

"Judy . . ." There was pleading in his voice, his face wore a harrowed expression. "Don't you see what we're doing to each other?"

Judith gave one tiny cry, started, hurt, then flew into his arms—

"Norman, why must this happen to us?" she whispered. "I can't go back on my word and I love you—"

"Then you will see Lamper?" he asked.

They walked upstairs. Judith removed her smart little hat and tossed it to the counterpane.

"Norman," she asked, "can't you see how useless it would be for me to talk to Lamper? It is impossible for us to meet on any common ground, it would only cause heartache for you, as for me I'm so trembly from this afternoon, I don't believe I could stand anything more."

"Judith, if I thought you understood everything about the case; if I thought I could present it to you as plain—as every other kempt-headed man sees it, then I'd do it and let you judge their views and the antiquated ones of our old friend, impartially."

Judith shook her head wearily.

Big Tom had even known Norman's reaction. Lamper was his senior partner, his father's friend.

"Norman, it's useless," Judith slapped kid gloves to the dressing table to emphasize the statement.

"Either you love me enough to carry on through this, or . . ." she held out her hands, pink palms up.

The door bell thrilled through the house and in a moment Lige came up—"Ma's Lamper, he say he'd like to talk to Miz Dale, alone . . ."

"Tell him Mrs. Dale has retired," said Judith.

She shrugged out of jacket and skirt, went to the wardrobe, reached

London Papers Praise F. D. R.

LONDON, March 28 (AP)—To President Roosevelt from London morning newspapers today—congratulations on settling the dispute in the American motor car industry! Predicted the Times:

"It will increase the enormous prestige he already enjoys and strengthen him in dealing with disputes which reach a critical stage in other industries."

And the Telegraph said the present terms "will become a new chapter in the whole of American labor."

... It is a great personal triumph for Roosevelt. His intervention administered the greatest blow that individualism in American big industry has sustained."

The Laborite Herald, after congratulating Mr. Roosevelt and the American Federation of Labor, observed:

cattle. It was the same with corn-fed meat. Similarly, the corn-hog plan is raising the price of corn with which feeders "finish" their cattle. The cattlemen were forced to get in line or be crushed.

SENATOR Tom Connolly of Texas is a recognized spokesman for the new deal. He advocated problem has been satisfactorily solved. No one asserts that every difficulty has vanished. We are still living in a world of actuality rather than fancy. Here and there will appear rough places in the picture. Some of the measures have been experimental. They blazed a new trail. They plowed a virgin soil. Only in the laboratory of experiment, only in the retort of initiative or change can progress be achieved. The old policy of standing still and doing nothing never pushed the world forward an inch. Running all through the program has been a purpose. The great objective has been the republic's recovery.

DESCRIBED as almost "like finding money" was the experience in the comptroller's department in collecting gasoline taxes in 1933. Revenues were $3,000,000 higher during the first nine months the new enforcement law was in operation than in the previous year. This was not a new tax. It was simply collecting what tax-evaders had been stealing previously. Texas schools and Texas counties through bond refunding shared in the captured bounty to the estimate of $750,000 each and there was $1,500,000 additional for construction of new highways.

WASHINGTON, March 28 (AP)— Senator Connally (D, Texas) today urged the relief administration to allot $233,000 to match state funds in hospitalization of 500 indigent tuberculars in Texas.

M. S. Leach of LeFors was a business visitor here yesterday afternoon.

WAGES OF OVER 300,000 WORKERS RAISED IN THREE WEEKS

AUTO, STEEL WORKERS WILL BENEFIT MOST

RESPONSE TO APPEAL OF ROOSEVELT IS SIGNIFICANT

By THOMAS J. HAMILTON Jr. WASHINGTON, March 28 (AP)—In the three crowded weeks since President Roosevelt appealed to industry to raise wages and shorten hours, potential pay boosts affecting over 300,000 workers have been announced.

An incomplete survey today showed that the greatest beneficiaries, numerically, will be workers in the automobile and steel industries.

Steel wages appeared on the way up as part of a general movement within the industry. Various companies announced 10 per cent boosts yesterday and last night.

Although retention of the 40-hour week appeared general, those listed latest as increasing pay, effective April 1, include:

The National Steel corporation, Pittsburgh, affecting 18,000 employees.

The Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, Pittsburgh, affecting 17,000 workers.

The Great Lakes Steel corporation, Detroit, 4,500 mechanical employees.

The Wheeling Steel corporation, West Virginia, 4,000 employees.

Other corporations making like increases included the Corrigan-McKinney Steel company and the American Rolling Mill company.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce announced in the midst of recent efforts to avert the threatened strike that it would recommend to its members a 36-hour week instead of the present 40, with compensating increases in wage rates.

This program is exactly that asked by Hugh S. Johnson, NRA head, from code authorities.

The raise would affect 183,000 workers, but how many additional jobs would be created has been disputed. Labor leaders said it meant simply an averaging up of busy and slack seasons over the year, with no increase in employment.

Speech Contests Won by Entrants Of Horace Mann

Geraldine Smith was winner of junior girls' declamation and Pat Patterson of boys' declamation in the city interscholastic league contests held at the city hall last evening. Both are from Horace Mann school.

Jessie Farmer of Junior high school placed second for girls and Carolyn Surratt of Sam Houston third. Lois Richey represented B. M. Baker school and Betty Sue Price Woodrow Wilson.

In the boys' division, Wayne Coffey of Junior high was second and George Saunders of Sam Houston third. Billy Green was the entry from Woodrow Wilson and J. C. Hyatt from B. M. Baker.

WILL JOIN SPECIAL

John Bowers and J. M. Dodson are making plans to join the Pull-Home Special train to Washington, D. C. which is being sponsored by the Texas Press association. They will carry a quantity of literature about Pampa and the oil territory for distribution to interested persons met on the trip.

Miss Josephine Thomas, above, principal of Horace Mann school, and Mrs. J. M. Turner, president of the Parent-Teacher association there, have been leaders this year in a program that added to school equipment and promoted welfare work. ## UNION GATHERING TO BE HELD AT BAPTIST CHURCH ON FRIDAY

Oil field workers will meet at the First Baptist church Friday evening at 8 o'clock to hear J. L. Cooney of Washington, D. C., international union secretary, instead of at the union hall as previously announced.

The change was made, it was stated, in order to accommodate the public, which is invited to attend. The Pampa local increased more than 100 members, it was announced today, during March. The Auxiliary will meet on the first Thursday in April at 7:30 p. m. in the union hall.

F. E. Townsend, A. F. of L. organizer, says the retail clerks local is growing steadily. Anyone who sells at retail is eligible to join. Berger clerks are preparing to organize.

The oil field union at LeFors, No. 232, has W. N. Simmons for president and Lloyd Hawthorne for secretary and treasurer. Fourteen new members were received at the last meeting. An executive board was appointed. The next meeting will be held tomorrow evening because of the coming of Mr. Cooney on the regular meeting night.

EES Art Classes Cover Subject in Practical Phases

The teaching of art in the Emergency Education school does not mean only instruction in the use of oils and water colors. The word "art" as used by Miss Beth Blythe, principal of the EES and teacher of art, means a host of things. Practical things.

For instance, would you like to make a tied and dyed pillow scarf or cover? A batik wall hanging? A hooked rug? A basket of reed or raffia? Your own Christmas cards? Silver bracelets? Posters or do, fine lettering? Would you like to learn how to paint with oils, water colors, pastels? Would you like to be able to recognize pictures of Michelangelo, Degas, Cezanne, Renoir and the other many famous painters.

If so, your place is in Miss Blythe's art class in the EES. Miss Blythe who is competent in doing all these things, is trying as much as possible to meet the individual interests and needs. The instruction is free and open to everyone. Classes are from 5 to 6 every day and from 8 until 9 on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Room 106, high school.

A civics class that met for the first time yesterday is taught on Tuesdays and Thursdays by Miss Grace Byrd.

Home Grown Wool Makes Blankets For H. D. Worker

"Look at all the lovely blankets, and for just the express on the raw wool to the factory," said Mrs. P. F. Britten, bedroom cooper of the Bluebonnet Home Demonstration club.

Mrs. Britten explained that Mr. Britten had a little over 100 pounds of wool that he was not able to dispose of last year and after seeing the blanket made of wool sent to the factory by Miss Ruby M. Adams, Gray county home demonstration agent, she decided to do the same with the left-over wool.

From this she got two pair of double blankets in the plaid design, one extra heavy reversible blanket, one burgandy single blanket to use on the day bed. Now the day bed is the most popular place in the house. It is located near the stove in the living room and is ideal for rest, and the short nap.

SERMON TO BE ON 'GREATEST SIN OF PAMPA'

PARENTS ARE BLAMED FOR CHILDREN'S MISDEEDS

MEN do not become Christians in the twinkling of an eye, but in living day by day the ideals of Christ, the Rev. Gaston Frote, pastor, told a large audience last night at the First Methodist church where a pre-Easter revival is in progress.

The minister, preaching on the subject, "Boomerangs," from the text, "whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." He explained that sins are like boomerangs which men scatter but which return back to plague them.

Tonight the evangelist's subject will be "Pampa's Greatest Sin," Thursday evening a candlelight communion service will be held on the anniversary of the Lord's supper. The subject Friday evening will be "Who Crucified Christ?"

Again the pastor addressed many of his remarks to church members and parents, saying that he had no indictment against modern youth for staying away from church. Parents are usually to blame for the sins of their children, he said. He deplored the failure of Pampa young people to attend church and its activities. "The responsibility of parents for impressing upon their children the necessity of living Christian lives was emphasized by the pastor.

WOMEN OF U. S. SLAVISHLY APE SCREEN STARS

So Says Painter of Portraits From London

NEW YORK, March 26.—The trouble with American women you can take this from Kenneth Green, a young English portrait painter is that they're all trying to be Dietrichs and Garbos.

American women's beauty is getting standardized because screen stars sway public taste, Green said today. "The standard face, the face that stands out in a crowd, is beginning to disappear from the American scene."

The artist, whose first exhibition in this country has just opened, called American girls the world's most slavish imitators of film stars. He deplored the trend, because, he said, "America has the most beautiful women in the world."

Only one woman in 2,000,000 should try to imitate Garbo, the artist said. "But about one in twenty try it."

"It may be that one in 500,000 have a Garbo face; but most women never can move like Greta, and should give up trying."

Unnaturally arched brows and overdone mouths threaten to wreck American beauty, Green continued. "One longs," he said, "to see a face—not a film of cosmetics. In general, American women have pretty, delicate faces. They should not work on them so much. And certainly they shouldn't try to be all alike."

Last year is a very individual thing. A woman should know something about art before she applies make-up. And she should study herself—never a model."

Green said American women's greatest defect is a slight droop of the mouth—a strained, nervous look, which results, he said, from trying to do too much.

He visited several American colleges, he said, and discovered that girls begin early with rouge and powder.

"I was flabbergasted," he averred, "at the amount of make-up I saw."

Pointers On Poise

By Laura Townsend Davies

If you ever attended a fashion show employing professional mannequins, you have noticed the ease and grace with which those girls turned as they showed the gowns. True, mannequins often lift their arms as they turn, and indeed, all their movements are exaggerated—for display purposes.

But fundamentally their walking, turning and poses are artistically correct and illustrative of the principles of good poise.

These principles are the common property of sculptor, artist, dancer and actress.

The Feet Are Important

Let us consider that trick of turning the way a professional does it. (By the way, have you ever noticed that a good bit of showing in the circus and on stage and screen is done with the feet? You must be careful so that they won't be ludicrous.)

Stand with the weight of the body over the ball of the right foot, the left foot a few inches in back of the right. Very little, if any weight should be on that left foot. The line of the left limb should be somewhat relaxed.

"Line Of Beauty"

Your right limb now becomes the relaxed limb—a sculptor would call it a "soft line" or a "line of beauty."

You are now ready, with that one smooth turn, to walk in the opposite direction. Always, in making a turn, turn toward the side of the relaxed limb and foot.

Try it. It's really much simpler than it sounds.

Whose Fault?

When Children Get Bad Reports in School

Poor marks in school are often due to a child's physical condition. No child can study with a sluggish system. Sluggishness actually dulls the senses; it will dull the brightest mind. Before you can blame the child—or his teacher—you must be sure you are not sending a badly clogged child to school. Don't wait for a badly treated tongue, headaches, and poor appetite to tell you a child's bowels need help! There's a way to insure their regularity; see next column.

This is the secret of helping boys and girls go through an entire school term without once slumping in their studies. Keep them free from bilious attacks. Not by purging them with cathartics of adult strength! They'll never need such things if you'll use this natural means of stimulating regular, thorough bowel action; every three or four days, let them have little California Syrup of Figs. The laxative action of the syrup in this fruiti syrup is enough. Get pure California Syrup of Figs.

Room Improved Over Obstacles

Starting with an unshelved room, a very rough far from level floor, and small amount of money to spend on bedroom improvement on a rented house is far from encouraging. This did not stop Miss Margaret Ekibinski of the Bell 4-H club from starting right in.

To win if possible in the county and state contest in bedroom improvement, and the earnest desire of all girls to have a pretty bedroom has made the road seem less tough.

Last year Margaret started by getting a new floor put in, then the short wheat crop caused her to stop until this year.

She has the room repapered now, has added new curtains and accessories, and rearranged the furniture.

Gray county girls who are working in the bedroom improvement contest will have their rooms ready for inspection by the first week in June, when members of the state extension staff will be here to score them.

BYRD WILL SPEND EIGHT MONTHS ALONE STUDYING WEATHER

SHACK IS 125 MILES SOUTH OF HIS PARTY

INTENSE COLD, SUDDEN STORMS, TO BE SUFFERED

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, March 28 (AP)—(Via Mackay Radio)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd put the final touches today on a little shack where he will spend eight months with a battery of thermometers for company.

It's all in the name of science. Alone in this tiny portable house at a winter advance base 123 miles south of Little America, he plans to study antarctic meteorological phenomena until the end of October.

There will be perils aplenty. Intense cold. Depressing darkness. Sudden storms. Yet, said Byrd as he departed by plane:

"I hope no one will make anything of what I am about to do. I am making no sacrifice of any kind. He urged the 55 men at Little America not to become concerned should his radio fail. After all, he smiled. "I am not a radio operator, so the radio will probably fail."

In his absence, the men at Little America will be under command of Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, senior scientist and second in command.

Although the nearly-completed shack boasts little more than elbow room, Byrd minimized its shortcomings. It will be nearly fireproof, he said, and reasonably warm.

Soon, with the house sunk below the snow surface, snow will have covered all but the wireless antenna, the spinning anemometer cups and the silver weather vane.

In this world's southernmost meteorological station, Admiral Byrd plans to keep a complete record of Polar weather.

Food and fuel tunnels will connect with the single door in the shack, leading to supplies for the long stay.

Only a handful of men were at the plane when Admiral Byrd left the administration building where he had been living in Little America. The others were working on dog tunnels.

It was 39 degrees below zero. He almost froze his nose in the few minutes he paused to talk.

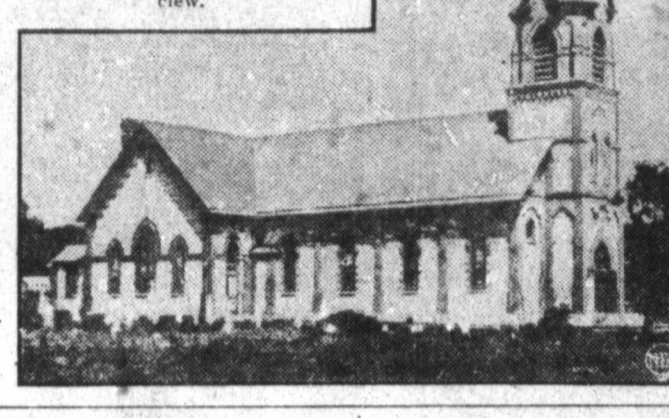

"Please explain to the other men," he said, "that I have not said goodbye to them individually because I never say good-bye."

With Pilot Bowlin at the controls, the plane was just clearing the ridge to the south of Little America when Bill Haines came flying into the radio shack.

In his hands he had a fur kluk (moccasin) belonging to the ad-

Chimes May Be Kidnaping Clew

Chimes of this church—St. Boniface Roman Catholic Church in Menominee, Neb.—may lead investigators to the hideout where kidnapers held Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, and where he heard morning and evening bells said to resemble in sound those of St. Boniface church. This church was one of scores visited within 300 miles of St. Paul, following this clew.

It had been sent to the expedition's tailor for repairs. "My God!" said Bill. "He's gone off without this and it will take me seven months to deliver it."

JULIAN ASHES WILL BE SENT TO CALIFORNIA

NINE PEOPLE ATTEND 5-MINUTE SERVICE IN SHANGHAI

BY MORRIS J. HARRIS, Associated Press Foreign Staff.

SHANGHAI, March 28 (AP)—Saved from a pauper's funeral by a Canadian countryman, C. C. Julian, former Oklahoma and California oil operator who killed himself Saturday night, will be saved from a pauper's grave by a sister in Los Angeles.

Orders came from Mrs. Viola Greenhow in the California city today to have the body cremated and the ashes sent back to the United States for burial.

As a result, the funeral service conducted by the Rev. Emory Luccock of Oak Park, Ill., was held in a Shanghai mortuary instead of a cemetery as planned. Mr. Luccock is pastor of a Shanghai American community church.

Nine persons attended the funeral for the man once known as a multimillionaire who died in poverty after fleeing from Oklahoma where he faced charges of fraud.

Before the cheap casket rested one wreath of flowers bearing an unexplained card "From Irt."

Later, a cablegram from Los Angeles arrived ordering flowers "From Blackbird."

Julian's mourners included Maurice Cohen, a Canadian and one time bodyguard for Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who knew Julian at Winnipeg in 1904.

Cohen, as a fellow Canadian, paid the costs of the simple funeral. Others there were the hotel landlady who evicted Julian the day preceding his death from poison, an unidentified Chinese who said "I knew Julian in California," two twittering girls—apparently, curiosity-seekers—and two newspaper men.
