New rationing plan is president's option

EVEN AS Energy Secretary James Schlesinger (above) points to a chart illustrating domestic oil production and oil imports, California gas station attendant Monique Roberts keeps cars in and out of line with the aid of a baseball bat. Schlesinger was testifying before a House committee considering windfall profits of oil companies, while Ms. Roberts was using her bat as an "authority symbol," claiming she never threatened anyone with it.

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's now up to President Carter whether to draft a new standby gasoline rationing plan to replace the Senate-approved version that the House dealt a stunning defeat Thursday night.

House leaders blamed the 246-159 defeat, after several days of intensive White House lobbying for the plan, on confusion over which Americans would have gotten the most fuel under its provisions.

The president's original, oft-amended plan for use in a national fuel emergency would have required motorists to use rationing coupons to buy gasoline under an allocation formula based on past consumption in each state.

Carter could send a new rationing plan to Congress, although he is not legally required to do so. He had fulfilled his statutory requirement to submit a plan for congressional action to be taken by today.

The law calls for a 60-day, rulemaking period of hearings by the administration. Carter already has done that, and he presumably could submit another rationing plan almost immediately without another 60 days of hearings. This was considered unlikely for political reasons, in view of the House vote.

There was no sign today that anyone in Congress was willing to take the initiative in drafting a legislative rationing plan.

Disregarding an impassioned appeal from House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill that "this is the only plan you'll have," the Democratic-controlled House handed Carter a bitter setback.

"Many Americans felt this was a plan to implement rationing," said House Whip John Brademas, D-Ind., "even though the bill would only have given Carter standby authority."

In addition, Brademas said last-minute changes to the plan made by the White House to win votes needed in the Senate led to fears in the House that some drivers would have ended up with a disproportionate share of a limited supply.

"It is difficult for members to approve something they don't feel they can count on," he said.

O'Neill likened the issue to the 1938 congressional debate over implementing the national military draft, which was in place when World War II began three years later.

The majority leader said that in a major energy crisis the president would need a rationing plan.

He appealed to colleagues to put aside questions of how much gasoline their own districts would receive if rationing were invoked.

California House members — bitter over what they said was administration inaction in solving already-existing gasoline lines in their state — complained that their constituents would lose gasoline under the compromise agreed to in the Senate. Similar complaints were heard from Pennsylvania.

Draft would remain suspended Registration may return

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boys reaching age 16 this year will have to register as potential draftees when they turn 18 if a measure approved by the House Armed Services Committee becomes law.

The committee voted 30-4 Thursday to renew draft registration starting Jan. 1, 1981, but there is no indication whether the full Congress will go along.

The House may act as early as next week on the registration provision, which is contained in a $42 billion weapons authorization bill. The overall bill was approved by the committee, 35-2.

The draft itself would remain suspended even if the registration provision becomes law. The measure under consideration would require young men to merely register so mobilization would be speeded up in case the draft is ever reinstated for a war or emergency.

However, a House Armed Services subcommittee plans hearings within the next two months on a proposal to go one step further and draft up to 200,000 men a year into the Army Individual Ready Reserve.

The measure approved by the committee Thursday would require the president to register men who turn 18 after Dec. 31, 1980.

Although it specifies that men be registered, the measure also requires the president to recommend to Congress how a registration system should be carried out and, as part of that, whether women should be included.

President Carter has taken no position on draft registration. Secretary of Defense Harold Brown has said he still hopes the present Selective Service system can be improved to meet war mobilization requirements without renewing registration.

The committee vote was to kill an amendment by Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., aimed at knocking out of the bill a draft registration provision written into it earlier by a subcommittee.

Rep. Schroeder argued that Congress should wait and make a decision on the entire issue of how Americans should be called to fight any future war.

She is co-sponsoring a separate bill that would require all young people to serve in wartime but give them a choice between military and some alternative civilian duty.

The committee approved the draft registration measure in response to arguments that the present Selective Service system cannot meet Pentagon war mobilization requirements for manning a "worst case" war in Europe.

The Pentagon requirement is for getting the first draftees in 30 days and 650,000 draftees in six months. Studies last year indicated the present system would need 110 days to supply the first draftees and eight-to-10 months to supply 650,000.

Dallas could host Demo convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dallas representatives hoping to land the 1980 Democratic national convention for Texas put across their offer more sedately than their three competitors.

But the message was clear — almost unlimited Texas wealth from the private sector is available to let the Democrats prepare for the 1980 presidential campaign freed from convention debts.

The site selection panel of the Democratic National Committee was to narrow the field to two today, with its choices among Dallas, New York City, Detroit and Philadelphia.

The selection for the August 1980 convention site is scheduled for June 28 after the selection committee makes field visits to the finalists.

Dallas' presentation followed a million-dollar bid by Philadelphia said to be the highest the committee had ever received.

Earlier, New York City imported some Radio City Music Hall Rockettes to sing "I Love New York," and Detroit Mayor Coleman Young reminded the Democrats that the Republicans chose his city for their 1980 convention to prove an urban commitment.

Dallas representatives said that unlike the other cities they would not be able to offer any public funds for the convention, but all costs would be absorbed by the private sector.

Ron Kessler, Dallas County Democratic chairman, said his estimates showed the convention would cost between $500,000 and $3 million.

"How in the world is it possible for private individuals to put up this magnitude of money? I just can't see it," said selection committee member Sharon Rockefeller of West Virginia.

"You really believe you can raise all that money?" Kessler replied: "Yes."

Schlesinger to watch oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger says he plans to watch the oil industry closely in the next few weeks to see that gasoline production is not held back in anticipation of higher prices.

But for the moment, Schlesinger told the House Ways and Means Committee Thursday, it is principally a shortage of crude oil — not any oil-industry conspiracy — that has held U.S. refineries to 85 percent of capacity.

In an effort to reduce U.S. consumption of foreign oil, President Carter will begin phasing out federal oil-price controls June 1.

Schlesinger went before the committee seeking support for Carter's proposed new tax to take away some of the windfall revenues that will flow to the oil companies after decontrol.

The committee planned to hear today from Charles L. Schultze, Carter's chief economic adviser, on the economic effects of decontrol.

Rep. Ed Jenkins, D-Ga., told Schlesinger many Americans strongly suspect the current scattered shortage of gasoline is a deliberate effort by the oil companies to hold down production until decontrol begins and the maximum allowable price of oil is raised.

"We have no such evidence," Schlesinger replied.

He added that as oil imports from Iran continue to climb toward normal levels, refinery output should increase. The Energy Department will monitor the refineries and "if they are too conservative, we will take action," he promised.

The Treasury Department estimates removal of price controls will increase oil-company revenues in 1979 through 1981 by a total of $15.4 billion. After existing state and local taxes, federal income taxes and payments to owners of oil lands are subtracted, the oil companies would be left with $8 billion.

What's inside

STUDENTS FROM Linda Germany's School of Dance in White Deer will present their 14th Annual Revue Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the White Deer High School Auditorium. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children, with all proceeds going to the Muscular Dystrophy Society. Pictured above, from top to bottom, are Leia Shuman, Jacque Burns, Lisa Hodge, and Kandy Mynear in a jazz work, "Night Fever." (Special photo to Pampa News)

'The Beeples' on stage

The Pampa High School Storybook Players will present "The Beeples," a dramatic fantasy about honor among bees by Allen Cullen, at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the high school auditorium.

The play, which like all good children's works can be enjoyed by adults as well, has a cast of some 18 beginning drama students.

Director Rochelle Lacy says the moral of the play "is an old-fashioned one, the triumph of good over evil" but "The Beeples" can be enjoyed on several levels. There's even a smattering of political comment here and there.

There will be one performance only. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Rabies Clinic to end

Pampans have until Saturday to take advantage of a $1 savings on pet care. That's when the Rabies Clinic Week ends at all of the city's veterinary clinics. People can have their pets vaccinated against rabies for $6, one dollar under the normal price. An annual vaccination for rabies is required by state law.

Six injured in accident

Six persons were injured in a three-vehicle chain collision Thursday night in Pampa.

A vehicle driven by Robert McKinnis of Box 607, Fritch, reportedly struck the rear of a 1979 Oldsmobile driven by Thomas Veale of Red River, N.M. Veale was stopped at the intersection of Hobart and Somerville streets.

The collision caused the Oldsmobile to strike the rear of a 1977 Chevrolet driven by Joseph Gonnell of 1031 N. Sumner, who was also stopped at the intersection. Gonnell, McKinnis and Veale's passengers — Dona Veale, 35; Mary K. Veale, 53; J.B. Veale, 53; and one-month-old Melissa Veale — were transported to Highland General Hospital by Metropolitan Ambulance.

All were treated and released except McKinnis, who was admitted and listed in satisfactory condition this morning.

SALT meeting set

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev will meet for the first time at a summit conference from June 15 to 18 in Vienna to sign their new SALT-II treaty to cap the nuclear arms race, it was announced today.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Refunding the teachers

Through the years 1974 to 1977 the National Education Association (NEA) deducted political contributions from teachers' paychecks without the teachers' consent. If teachers objected, the only way they could get a refund was to fill out a cumbersome written request.

In 1976 the Right to Work Committee obtained a court order to force the organized labor dominated Federal Election Commission to charge the NEA with a clear violation of federal law. Last July, Washington District Court Judge Oliver Gasch ruled that the NEA's "reverse checkoff" system was illegal and ordered union officials to devise a refund plan.

Instead of just refunding the money, the NEA stalled and held up the funds. The big problem was that the NEA Union Officials had already spent the money in bank-rolling the campaigns of their favorite politicians.

On Nov. 3 Judge Gasch ordered the NEA to give the money back to every teacher by May 15 unless the teacher requested in writing that it not be given back. After filing an appeal, NEA officials balked again and asked the judge if they could hold up payments until after hearings on their appeal.

Judge Gasch agreed to a delay on the condition that the NEA put up a $825,155 bond to assure him that they could return all of the funds collected illegally for political use. NEA officials again countered with a proposal that they only put up a $300,000 bond on the assumption that less than half the teachers would accept the refund. The judge again said no.

In March the NEA sent agents out in a desperate attempt to talk teachers out of accepting the refund. This mission was financed by compulsory union dues money.

Susan Staub, director of Concerned Educators Against Forced Unionism, says that NEA labor bosses have broken the law before. "We'll take legal action if they try it again. Fortunately, we've apparently stopped the NEA officials' malignant check-off system on its early development," said Staub. "By contrast the citizens of Great Britain are suffering under a similar political dues check-off system that is crippling their country politically and economically," she said.

NEA officials do not like to have the organization termed a labor union. They prefer the term "professional association" be used. Regardless of the name used, the NEA's actions place it squarely in the category of a labor union and it is among, if not the largest and most powerful, of unions operating in this nation.

The NEA has exerted tremendous political clout at every governmental level and, through log-rolling, has effected legislation which has had no bearing on education at all. The power this organization wields has often been against the best interests of the people and the education of their children.

No one individual and no organization has the right to take money from people to be used against their views or their best interest. To force money from unwilling members is just plain theft and should be so treated.

We can only admire the judge who stood by his ruling and forced this gigantic labor union to return the money extracted from the teachers.

Retiring our presidents

In light of the cost of maintaining ex-presidents it appears that taxpayers would gain if they reversed the prevalent thinking and picked the older candidate. It could even be a good idea to seek older material for nomination of a vice president.

The way costs are escalating for the two living former presidents and the probability that they will be joined by a third, with a longer life expectancy ahead of him, should change the thinking a bit. There is not much chance that the baronial stipends for ex-presidents will be lowered. It would be too much to hope that even the pace of increase will be slowed.

There was a time when former presidents got nothing after leaving office. Ulysses S. Grant came close to dying in poverty. In 1958 pensions were established for our former leaders. Now we seem to have gone to an unwarranted extreme in the treatment of those who have held the top political office.

It will cost taxpayers nearly a million dollars a year to maintain Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford in the style now established. Nixon gets $85,000 a year and Ford receives $106,000 in basic pensions. These amounts include benefits for both presidential and congressional service. This is only the beginning.

Secret Service protection for the men and their families becomes a high item of taxpayer cost, and its necessity justifies some skepticism. We have had acting presidents killed while being "protected" in a massive manner. It would seem that an ex-president would become a more minor target with much less chance of being a victim. If he were a target there is little chance that the protection he gets would be effective.

We cannot understand why Nixon needed $183,329 for office expenses last year and Ford $291,685. Nixon's expenses included five color television sets and repairs to his golf cart and Ford spent $2,242 for plants for his office with the added cost of $100 per month to have them watered. Both Nixon and Ford can see over a million dollars coming from various fees in book royalties and television.

Do they need taxpayers' help to repair golf carts and water plants? Both are asking for increases in office expense money in 1980.

We would suggest Congress start rethinking the largess now being bestowed on former presidents. Yet it is possible that there are enough in Congress looking to the outside chance of obtaining the office, that a move to cut would not be popular. After all, didn't Ford make it? Who would have thought he had the slightest chance two years before it happened?

Since we are most sure of being stuck with the cost of maintaining our own royalty in the modern mode, perhaps we would be well advised to pick the older candidates and get a few less years of the tax burden.

Some bar statistics

There's probably no connection, but some interesting professional statistics were reported in a recent edition of "Student Lawyer," monthly publication of the Law Student Division of the American Bar Association.

For one thing, the attraction of public-interest work has apparently passed into history with the '60s. Polled recently as to their intentions, only 15 percent of Harvard Law School students indicated any interest in devoting their professional efforts to low-paying public service. For a hefty 62 percent, the goal is established law firms with starting salaries in the $22-25,000 range and ultimately partnerships drawing six figures.

Nice work if they can get it and most probably can.

The publication also noted that while 10 percent of drinking Americans are estimated to be alcoholics, within the legal profession alcohol and similar dependency may afflict 20 to 35 percent.

Participating in our victimization

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER
I recently watched what was, for the most part, an excellent television movie titled Friendly Fire. The movie was based upon the actual experiences of an Iowa farm family whose members struggled, for many months, to find out from the American government just how and why their son-brother had been killed in Vietnam by fire from American artillery. The movie demonstrated just how far the government would go to protect itself from criticism, including withholding information, telling lies, tapping telephones, and opening the mail of its own citizens who asked for nothing more than the truth of what happened. The movie demonstrated something else, as well, although it is not at all clear that the producers had intended the additional lesson. That had to do with portraying how good, decent, and responsible people get themselves into positions where the political State can do them grievous harm.

The family in this movie was presented as fairly "typical," "conservative," middle-class Americans. In the beginning, at least, they expressed no opposition to the war or to the idea young men should go off to fight if the government called upon them to do so. Even after their son had been killed, these people appeared very supportive of the war effort: their quarrel ran to the bureaucratic runaround they were getting rather than to the idea of the war itself.

It is here that the real tragedy of this family's experiences emerges. They—like almost all of us—were raised in the belief that obedience to institutional authority and a willingness to sacrifice even one's very life upon command to do so, constituted virtuous behavior. Schools, politicians, the entertainment industry, have all combined to preach to us the idea that dying in service to the State is an honorable death.

But all of this is a lie, a gigantic, cruel, vicious lie. The political State does not exist in order to protect its citizens from attack by foreign nations: it exists in order to control its own citizens so that they may be of service to the State. The principal means employed by the State to elicit the support of its citizens has been war. The State must, then, manufacture crises and conflicts in order to get its citizens to put aside their private interests and join in the great collective effort to rid society of the carefully concocted "threat."

The "threat" need not, of course, come from foreign sources; it may be found within the nation, as well. We are witnessing the creation, by the State, of new internal enemies today. The oil companies appear to be the prime candidates. But conflict and division are the conditions upon which the political State thrives. Whether the enemies be foreign or domestic, the State requires the appearance of disharmony and disorder in order to get its citizens to sacrifice themselves to, and follow the directions of, the State. True "peace" occurs only as a consequence of the State functioning improperly.

Throughout the world, violence is in the ascendancy. "Conflict" has become the norm, as people organize themselves in opposition to other persons and groups. Out of this insanity have come acts of terrorism, butchery, extortion, maiming, and slaughter of any who have not had the foresight to rally round the proper flags, colors, or bromides. Such behavior is repulsive to even the most minimal expectations of civilized behavior. Few could embrace such conduct as an ideal for human society.

And yet, the political State goes on perpetuating such conditions in order to further its institutional interests. Young children continue to grow up being indoctrinated in the virtues of statecraft; young men continue to march off to wars to be blown apart; and sad and lonely parents still seek answers to the question, "Why?" The answer is within themselves.

Balance the budget

With Proposition 13 in California, government by the people asserted itself.

Similarly, nationally, one state at a time, the federal government is being told that it should balance the budget, that it should be required to live within its income.

My goodness, how the members of Congress are squealing!

And the President has designated an "emergency task force" to fight for his right to spend your money limitlessly.

Generations of congressmen, while running for election, have talked about "economizing," about "balancing the federal budget."

But, once in office, lawmakers discover that the easy way to re-election is to purchase your vote with the money of your grandchildren.

Thus, under whatever administration, collectively we have gone deeper and deeper into debt.

Economists come up with all sorts of explanations for why deficit spending is good for us, but out in the grass roots there is a common sense about such things which contradicts the theoreticians.

And thus the United States, 28 of them one at a time, have voted to summon a Constitutional Convention - thus to amend our Constitution, and to require our national leaders to balance our national budget.

With six more states, the President and the Congress may find themselves overruled.

Then listen to the lawmakers and the bureaucrats and the parasites holler!

House Majority Whip John Brademas of Indiana says that requiring a balanced federal budget would be "as foolhardy as prohibition."

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd of W. Va. calls a balanced budget "a simplistic solution," and he instead recommends raising the national debt still higher.

According to an AP - NBC survey the American people do want a balanced budget even if it requires cuts in federal programs they like.

Seventy percent favor a constitutional amendment that would require balanced federal budgets.

Generations of economic theologians have argued that increased federal spending would beget more economic activity with greater tax returns to the government and less spending for welfare.

It has not worked that way.

Now economic pragmatists are asserting that the only way to phase out the gravy train - which has encouraged idleness - and knock some cents back into our dollar is to demand that Uncle Sam spend no more than he takes in.

For politicians who must be re-elected periodically this poses a problem. Necessarily, budget balancing means higher taxes and or some belt-tightening, either of which, however worthy the objective, is negative vote bait.

So some members of Congress are threatening a cut-off in federal aid to those states that dare propose to limit the prerogatives of the federal government.

The most plausible objection to the Constitutional Convention came from Robert Orben. He says, "Constitutional Conventions tend to attract a lot of wild and crazy guys - people who have wooden teeth and wear wigs and dress funny and fly kites in thunderstorms..."

Free and easy oil prices

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The good news (relatively speaking) is that the legal price of gasoline, heating oil and all other petroleum products is spiraling upward at a dizzying pace.

The bad news is that the illegal price, charged by fast-buck artists willing to risk violations of federal law, is soaring even higher - but government efforts to apprehend and prosecute those criminals invariably are too little too late.

The sorry state of the federal law enforcement program is vividly illustrated by two documents that surfaced here recently but went virtually unnoticed, possibly because the officials involved wanted no embarrassing publicity.

The Justice Department's first complete listing of all cases referred for prosecution by the Department of Energy (DOE) contains 22 separate allegations of criminal activity, many of them involving multiple defendants.

The charges involve illegal falsifications of invoices, price lists, transportation charges, sources of crude oil and various official certification documents.

Other allegations include conspiracies between refiners and resellers, operation of "daisy chains" to illegally boost profits and improper efforts to gain special oil allocations.

The suspected criminal activities have occurred throughout the country, in Florida, California, Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Kansas, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas and Virginia.

DOE was created in the autumn of 1977. With only two exceptions, however, none of the criminal cases was even referred to the Justice Department until late 1978 or early this year.

The oldest case on the list dates back to mid-1976, but is still hasn't come to trial. Another case goes back to late 1977 but wasn't concluded until last month, when four oilmen were sentenced to prison terms by a federal judge in Tampa, Fla.

On the same day, a federal grand jury in Houston indicted four petroleum companies and five oilmen on charges of participating in a "daisy chain" scheme. That case had been referred to the Justice Department almost a year earlier.

The situation isn't much better within DOE, according to the newly issued annual report of that department's inspector general.

"Programs totaling billions of dollars are being audited only glancingly," says that document, referring to a lack of oversight "in program areas where the possibilities for waste, fraud and abuse are the greatest."

To monitor all energy including transactions worth billions of dollars, DOE has an investigative staff of exactly 21 people, with 17 at headquarters here and one person each stationed in Tennessee, New Mexico, Nevada and Washington.

In contrast with DOE, the Department of Housing and Urban Development has 80 field investigators and the Agriculture Department has a field investigative staff of 241 people.

DOE is supposed to regulate the prices at which multinational oil companies are allowed to transfer crude oil from their overseas - based producing affiliates to their domestic refining subsidiaries.

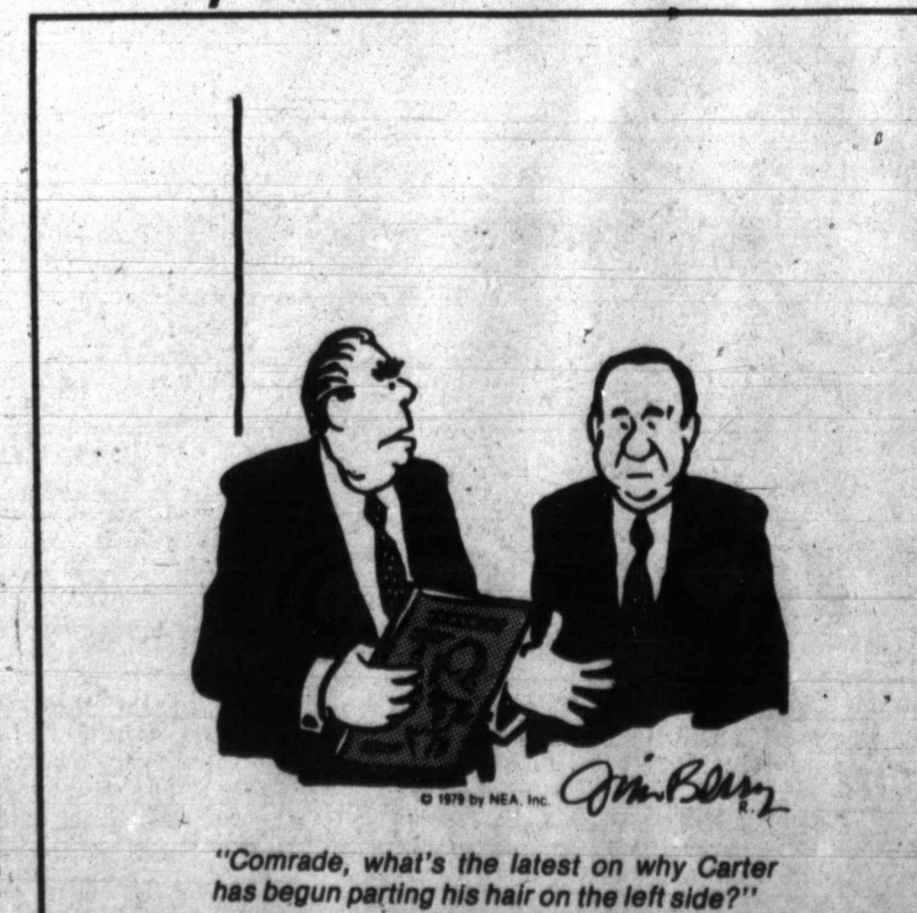

But the inspector general "learned that DOE had published maximum allowable prices only for the period (from) October 1973 through May 1975," says the report. "This meant that the department had no way of determining overcharges which may have occurred since May 1975."

Although the lack of more current ceiling prices could result in hundreds of millions of dollars worth of overcharges being passed on to consumers, DOE agreed to update its list of allowable prices only through the end of 1976.

Despite the warnings from its own inspector general about the potential for price gouging, the department displayed no inclination to establish maximum allowable prices for 1977, 1978 and 1979. As a result, the major oil corporations are free to set their own prices for international transactions.

Inspect large-scale solar facility

Church Council continues nuclear power debate

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — After seeing a big solar energy system at work, U.S. church representatives today headed into a final round of debate on whether to challenge nuclear power as a peril to humanity.

Both pro and anti nuclear views rippled through the drawn-out floor discussion with a decision now at hand on the third day of talks.

The proposal before the National Council of Churches constitutes the first attempt at a broadly representative religious-ethical appraisal of nuclear energy production, a keen issue of the times.

Ironically, there were several exactly tying votes Thursday night on efforts to modify terminology of the proposed statement, which calls for a national energy policy which "will not need to utilize nuclear fission."

The statement concedes that a "just energy policy is difficult because inevitably some ethically desirable goals must be traded off" against other goals, which also are good, "but the paper concludes that nuclear power is morally untenable."

To get a first-hand look at an alternative, representatives of most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches climbed a long, zig-zag flight of metal stairs Thursday to the top of a Trinity University building to inspect a large-scale solar facility.

Contrary to the myths about the impracticality of such a system, it works and it's cheaper, cleaner and provides more jobs than other power systems, physicist Eugene Clark told the representatives.

"It not only works, but it works a lot better than nuclear power or coal," he said, noting that the solar lenses atop the university's athletic building provide 70 to 80 percent of the heating for that building and five dormitories.

The webb of foot-wide, 10-foot long lenses covered 16,000 square feet on the rooftop of 50,000 square feet.

Clark, director of the solar data center at the Presbyterian-related Trinity University, said solar energy technology presently is at a stage that it could meet 35 percent of the nation's heating needs and do so more economically than present systems.

The proposal before the council, representing 32 denominations totalling more than 40 million members, would urge the nation to focus on "renewable energy resources" such as solar, wind and water power and not to rely on nuclear plants.

Citing humanity's divine mandate as caretakers of the earth, the statement says nuclear plant operations demand an infallibility humans don't possess to avoid possibilities of poisoning the earth so it wouldn't sustain future life.

The 2,500-word policy statement was worked out through a prolonged process of research, consultations, and hearings extending back to 1974 and including participation by top scientists as well as economists and theologians.

The present version was drafted by a study commission headed by the Rev. Joel K. Thompson of Elgin, Ill.

Senators approve bingo bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators approved a local option bingo proposal Thursday after Sen. Bill Moore jokingly asked if it would allow atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair to "open up a bingo game."

Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, assured Moore his bingo bill was limited to religious societies "organized primarily for religious purposes."

"She might take it to the Supreme Court — and she'd win," chided Moore, D-Bryan.

Mrs. O'Hair broke up an Austin church bingo game in October 1977 and accused police of not doing their duty by following up with arrests.

Schwartz's "Bingo Enabling Act" was sent to the House, 22-7.

If approved by the House, it would go into effect if Texans vote to change the state constitution and legalize bingo.

The Texas Constitution prohibits bingo, but a proposed constitutional amendment by Schwartz has cleared the Senate and the House, with amendments.

Schwartz, D-Galveston, said Thursday he would ask the Senate to accept House amendments, which would require quarterly reports to be filed with the state comptroller on how much money was taken in at bingo games and how it was spent.

Bingo games for money would be limited to non-profit organizations, such as churches, charities, fraternal and veterans groups and volunteer fire departments.

The proposed constitutional amendment legalizing bingo would be voted on Nov. 4, 1980.

"Would this simply allow people to do what they've been doing in South Texas for 200 years — having fun, enjoying themselves and raising money for good causes?" asked Sen. Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg.

"That's correct — under very limited and specific restrictions," replied Schwartz.

Schwartz's bill authorizes the comptroller to charge $50 for processing each report.

Longoria said another benefit of legalizing bingo would be to "stop embarrassing district attorneys," who apparently have been reluctant to prosecute bingo players.

"You're right, senator," said Schwartz.

Business wins House battle

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Business interests won a victory Thursday as the House tentatively passed a watered-down Senate bill that critics claim will weaken the law against fraud in the marketplace.

After five hours of debate, representatives voted 80-32 for the measure. One more vote is needed to return the bill to the Senate for consideration of House amendments.

The measure sparked two lengthy filibusters a week apart in the Senate and another talkathon is likely.

Rep. Danny Hill, the bill's House sponsor, said the proposed changes were needed to restore balance between merchants and consumers in the courtroom.

Hill, D-Amarillo, persuaded colleagues to accept several amendments that he said would remove possible objections to the Senate-passed version.

Consumers winning lawsuits under the state's Deceptive Trade Practices Act would receive at least $3,000 under one amendment.

"This sets a ceiling of $1,000 for mandatory triple damages and takes care of most small claims," explained Rep. Don Henderson, R-Houston. "It gives the consumer a legitimate remedy in the courts."

Triple damages are mandated now in most lawsuits. Under the original bill by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, a plaintiff must prove "an unconscionable act" before awards could be trebled.

Representatives voted 72-66 to mandate triple awards for the first $1,000 of actual damages ordered in successful lawsuits against deceptive businessmen.

Juries or judges would decide whether a defendant's conduct warrants tripling of actual damages over $1,000.

"One of the problems in the beginning with this bill is that many people thought we were trying to get away from triple damages," Hill said. "We're trying to get away from mandatory damages."

Rep. Luther Jones, D-El Paso, argued unsuccessfully that the $1,000-ceiling proposal would be unconstitutional. He said it would give neither juries nor businessmen guidance as to what conduct would warrant additional triple damages.

Hill endorsed and House members accepted two other changes in the committee-approved version that would:

- Allow recovery for physical pain and mental anguish — something not provided for in the Senate version.
- Allow consumers to file class action lawsuits, which would be prohibited under the original bill.

After three hours of debate, House members turned down a chance to postpone further discussion of the complicated issue.

Prom Saturday

Adding another memory to their school days, Pampa High School students will be fitted in their best dress clothes at the Senior Prom in the Heritage Room of M.K. Brown Auditorium Saturday night from 8 to 12.

Low Dela, a Dallas band, will provide music for the dance, and Sandy McBride will cater the food. Koen's Studio of Amarillo will take pictures and make copies.

School poll rates basic skills ninth

CANADIAN — Teaching basic skills was rated ninth in proficiency for this city's school system, according to a report at a recent regular session of the school board.

The poll of 350 parents and students showed the school system most competent in promoting a healthy attitude of sportsmanship in competitive activities. There were 43 goals listed on the poll.

Developing versatility through participation in a wide variety of activity was considered another strong point, rating second in proficiency.

The poll was set up by the board's Steering Committee. Its purpose was to form an idea of the school's needs according to community opinion.

In other business, the board approved an update from the Texas Association of School Boards, which consolidated policies in handling personnel and replaced a 60-page section of the policy book with 40 pages.

Two teachers, Elizabeth Alexander and Brenda Boone, were hired, while decisions on a band trip and the purchase of a sound shell for the music department were tabled.

Weather

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
 A slow moving cold front moved eastward across Texas today, triggering thunderstorms, very heavy rains and at least one tornado.

The National Weather Service issued a tornado warning early today for northern sections of McLennan County and southern sections of Hill County after radar indicated a tornado near the town of West in Central Texas.

There were no immediate reports of damage. The thunderstorms earlier dumped 3-4 inches of rain at Waco and a thunderstorm triggered heavy rainfall in the Dallas-Fort Worth area before dawn.

More thunderstorm activity was forecast today for both northern and southern sections of the state. Skies were to be mostly clear and temperatures rather cool in West Texas.

Highs were to range from the 60s in Northwest Texas to the 90s in far South Texas. Most of the state was to have highs in the 70s and 80s.

A flash flood watch was in effect for the eastern third of North Texas early today.

National weather

Thunderstorms accompanied by occasional hail and heavy rain rumbled along a cold front today from south-central Texas across central Missouri into Upper Michigan.

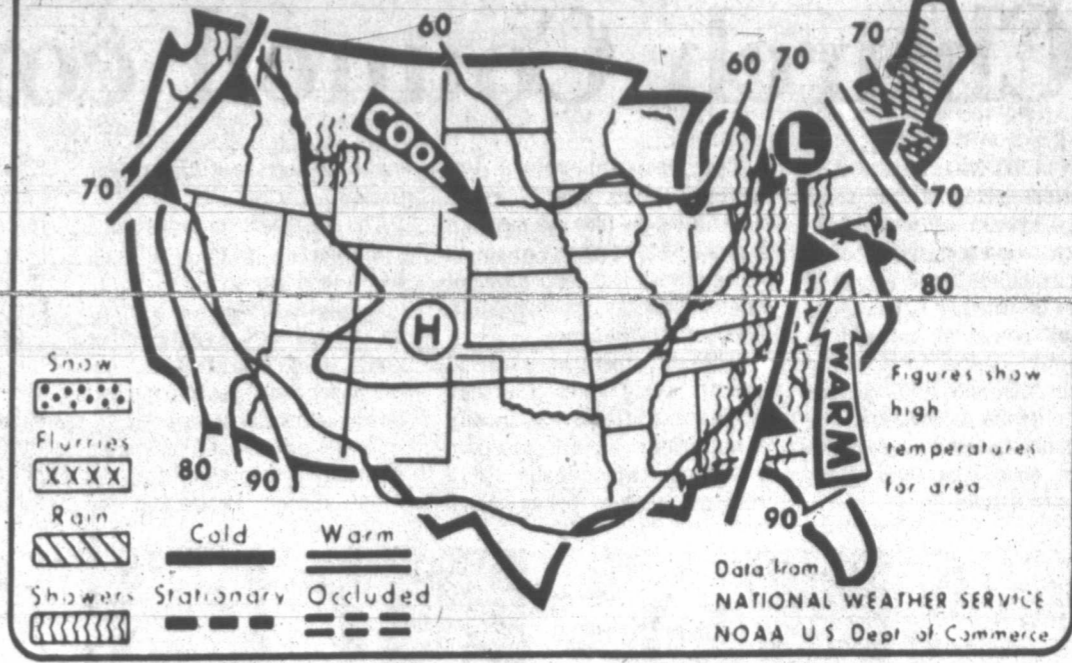

Tornadoes touched down late Thursday south of Waco and Hillsboro in Texas and at Tomah, Wis., about 30 miles east of La Crosse. No injuries or damage was reported.

Rain drenched McLennan, Limestone and Falls counties near Waco, Texas as well as the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Elsewhere, showers and thundershowers were scattered over the central East Coast States and upstate New York. A few widely scattered rain showers wet the northern Rockies.

FORECAST

for Saturday

RAIN IS FORECAST for parts of the Northeast and New England. A broad band of showers are due for an area stretching from the Great Lakes to the Gulf Coast. Showers are also due for parts of Washington, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming.

Eight missing in collapse of oil rig

GALVESTON, Texas (AP)—Eight persons were reported missing early today after an oil rig containing 34 men collapsed in the Gulf of Mexico, the Coast Guard said.

The Coast Guard said 26 men have been taken by helicopters to John Sealy Hospital here for treatment of various injuries. Four were admitted with conditions listed from fair to serious, the hospital said, including one man whose arm was sheared off in the accident late Thursday night.

Coast Guard divers were quickly dispatched to the rig in waters about 12 miles south of Galveston. They waited until daybreak to determine if it was safe to enter the submerged portion of the three-legged rig, which rested at a 45-degree angle.

Initial reports indicated 12 persons were missing, but the Coast Guard said there had been early confusion about how many were aboard the platform, owned by Atlantic Pacific Marine Corp. of Houston. The Ranger One rig is leased to Mitchell Energy and Development Corp. of Houston.

Bob McKinna, a spokesman for Coast Guard search and rescue operations in New Orleans, said only 34 crewmen were aboard the platform. Twenty-six were rescued.

McKinna said several more men reportedly were aboard a crew boat, the "Delta Seahorse," moored to the rig. He said the crew boat reportedly did not sink.

Three Coast Guard helicopters, the cutter "Point Monroe," Coast Guard divers and several civilian boats searched early today for the missing men.

Survivor Paul Fromberg, 26, an employee of IMCO Service Co. Inc., said he was in the galley of the crew quarters when one of the structure's three legs collapsed beneath him.

"I didn't hear any crash, there was a sensation of dropping," Fromberg said. "I was in the galley when it suddenly dropped and we were up in the air with furniture flying."

Fromberg said he could not get out a door because of water pushing against it but escaped through a galley window that was not under water.

He said he found a floating raft. "I dragged another guy into the raft. He was complaining about his arm and when I got him into the raft I saw that it was gone, just cut off."

DA seeks probation revocation

A motion to revoke the probation of a Pampa man reportedly involved in a high speed chase with Department of Public Safety officers May 4 was made Thursday in 223rd District Court.

James Kirk Dougless, 26, will face a probation revocation hearing Tuesday after being charged May 4 with driving while intoxicated, failure to stop and give aid after an accident, and failure to drive within single marked lane.

Emergency team to meet Saturday

The Gray County Emergency Team will meet at 7:30 Saturday night at the National Guard Armory to discuss activities for District VI, which includes 46 area counties.

The team consists of home-based Channel 9 monitors of Citizens Band radio. The members watch the weather and listen for accident reports to relay to the proper authorities.

However, everyone is invited to come to the meeting, according to President Paul Hassell. The team will officially become a part of the national organization for Channel 9 monitors, REACT, when its charter arrives. Hassell said the charter may be received for the Saturday meeting.

Police briefs

Telephone calls arouse suspicion

Pampa police are asking to be notified by persons receiving suspicious telephone calls concerning their bank accounts.

According to police, Robert F. Jack of 403 N. Nelson and Buck Durning of 513 N. Warren reported receiving calls this week from a male who identified himself as a local bank employee.

In both cases he told the men a bank computer had made an error, and he requested they check their bank statements and advise him of their balances. When each man contacted his bank he was told it had not been responsible for the call.

Police Lt. J. J. Ryzman is urging anyone receiving such a call to be cautious and check with the bank if there is a question as to the caller's identity. Do not give information on the telephone, Ryzman added.

Burglars hit seven businesses

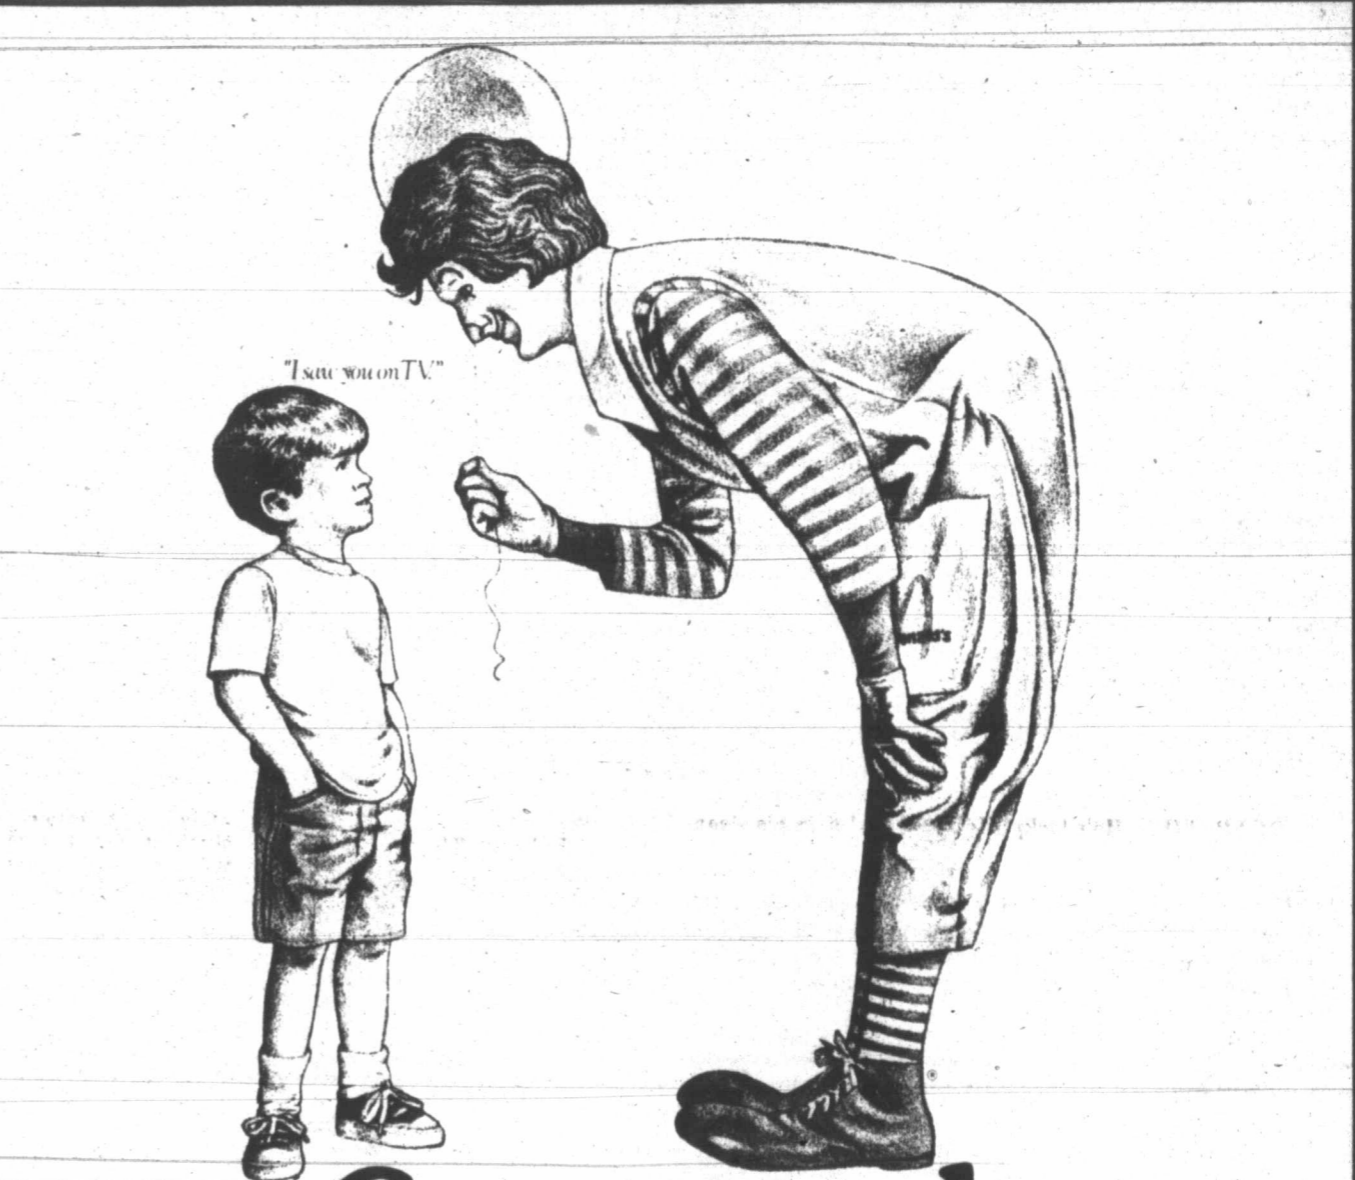

The burglaries and attempted burglaries of seven businesses in Pampa occurred late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning, and apparently all were committed by the same person or persons.

Two of the burglaries involved medical offices, but no drugs were stolen. Keith L. Teague, a dentist, reported to police the theft of $180 in cash and stamps from his office at 807 N. Sumner. John Sparkman reported the Professional Building at 800 N. Sumner was entered, but nothing was stolen.

The other break-ins occurred at the Coronado Center. Ruth Carter reported the theft of $13.70 in change from the Copper Kitchen. Ten dollars in cash was removed from Sarah's, and although the Merle Norman cosmetic studio was entered, nothing was reported missing.

Employees from Alco Discount Store and Pants West of Pampa, also in the Coronado Center, reported someone tried to enter those stores but was unsuccessful.

abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: Where can I get silicone injections to enlarge my breasts? I live in Pennsylvania and was told that injections are illegal in this state. In which states are they legal?

I wanted silicone implants but they are too expensive for me.

Also, do I have to prove I'm 18 before a doctor will mess around with me?

Sign me "Flat as a board" or ...

A CARPENTER'S DREAM

DEAR DREAM: Silicon INJECTIONS are illegal in every state of the U.S.A. No physician will "mess around" with a minor. It's a major offense.

DEAR ABBY: I am almost 20, and for nearly five years I have carried one of your columns in my wallet. It is so worn I can scarcely read it, but it has done me more good than any single thing I've ever read. Please reprint it, Abby, for girls who need the advice as much today as I did then. I am enclosing the column. I am the girl who wrote the letter signed MOTHER HATER.

Sincerely yours
WISER NOW

DEAR WISER: Yes, I'll reprint the column. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: You will probably think I am a monster, but I am a girl of 14, and I hate my parents. Especially my mother.

She is so old-fashioned it's pitiful. She wants to pick out all my clothes and tell me how to wear my hair. I am the only girl in our crowd who doesn't wear eye makeup. She won't let me go in cars with boys. All she worries about is my reputation, and I swear I haven't done anything wrong. She is killing my chances to go with the right kids and be popular.

Don't tell me to talk it over with her because she will only give me a long lecture on this bull about how it's all for my "own good!"

I would like to be able to tell her things, but, heck, I don't want to get killed. I hate to sneak behind her back, but I have no choice. I sure wish I had a different mother.

MOTHER HATER

DEAR MOTHER HATER: Girls your age, who feel as you do, regard all adults as the enemy. Perhaps a letter from a girl your age with a different point of view on the same subject will help you more than any advice I could offer:

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 and think more girls my age should appreciate mothers who love them enough to care about what they do. I feel sorry for young girls my age whose mothers let them go in cars with boys, and wear eye makeup and hairdos that are too old for them.

I am not allowed to go on car dates until I am 16. My mother helps me select my clothes. I wear no makeup to school, and only a little on special occasions. My mother has lived a lot longer than I have, and I have learned from experience that when she forbids me to do something, she always has a good reason for it. I am thankful that I have a mother who loves me enough to raise me right.

FOURTEEN AND LUCKY

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a man who smiles a lot in his sleep?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: He's lucky. He could TALK in his sleep.

Dr. Lamb
by lawrence e. lamb, m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My friends and I all read your column and we'd like for you to write something about insomnia. Last night I couldn't go to sleep so I finally took some Somnux and followed other recommendations but it didn't seem to do any good and I was awake all night. I'm sure a lot of people would be interested in your comments about this.

DEAR READER — It's a very frequent problem. The first question the doctor has to answer is if the person really has insomnia or not. You'd be surprised how many people think they only slept two or three hours during the night when in fact they may have slept six or eight. There seems to be some illusion of time during the sleep hours that confuses people entirely about how many hours they were actually asleep. This has been adequately proved by actual sleep studies in people.

To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-6, Sleep And Insomnia. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Unfortunately, a lot of the sleeping preparations you can buy without a prescription don't help a great deal. The amount that you're permitted to use often won't induce sleep. If you take more than is recommended on the package, you'll start getting too much of some of the medicines and this can be dangerous. In a few instances, people who have taken excessive amounts of preparations they could buy themselves have reported to hospital emergency rooms with a reaction that looks like they've been on a drug trip. This can lead to serious confusion about diagnoses and have rather drastic consequences. I'd like to caution all my readers not to take more of any sleeping preparation than the container recommends even if they don't go to sleep. It's better to have a sleepless night than a misadventure at the hospital emergency room.

Many of the sleeping preparations that are prescribed by doctors won't have much effect for more than two or three weeks at a time. The body quickly adapts to them and then you're right back where you started.

I've discussed in The Health Letter I'm sending you alterations in life style that help a lot of people go to sleep. Daily exercise is important, but don't do a lot of physical exercise in the hours preceding your normal bedtime. That may make you stay awake. The same applies to mental exercises. Don't do anything mentally taxing just before going to bed.

College students sometimes have trouble going to sleep at night because they've been studying intensely up to the very time they want to turn out the lights and go to sleep. Sometimes the brain and emotions don't switch off that easily.

You should establish regular habits. That means going to bed at the same time, eliminating all noise and light and making yourself as comfortable as possible.

Will 'Divorce Game' be TV smash?

CLEVELAND (NEA). — Four couples, all divorced, have gathered at the television studio to take part in a new quiz show called "The Divorce Game."

They will be kidded about their failed marriages and quizzed about their feelings for each other now that they have split.

It is one hour to show time. You would expect the atmosphere to be tingling with tension as people who have decided they can no longer endure each other are thrust together in a bizarre showbiz adventure.

As a matter of fact, they are, for the most part, as relaxed and casual as they might be at a family reunion — which is sort of what this is.

Roberta Thomas is here with her new husband, Robert, and her former husband, Arthur Grossman. She has also brought along her two sons — Jason Thomas, 3, and Aaron Grossman, 5.

The kids play happily and noisily, looked after by Robert, Arthur, a state parole officer, watches quietly.

Denis Gorges, a psychologist, has arrived with former wife Linda, a nurse. He will leave with her too. In fact, they have lived together since their divorce six months ago after two years of marriage.

"So why the divorce?" he repeats the question. "Well, we only got married to please our folks. And it didn't work. We fought too much."

"You better believe it," Linda chimes in. "We're saving money living together. We still have outside dates, though. I'm more jealous than he is."

"What a great place to study human behavior," says Denis, looking around the room with professional enthusiasm.

"There are eight divorced people in this room and four of them are Tauruses," notes Betty L. ("use the initial, please") Varga.

"That proves what they say: People born under the sign of Taurus have trouble making their marriages work."

"I'm a Taurus. So is my former husband. We almost killed each other, but we stuck it out for 11 years. We've been divorced now for seven years. It's great to be free. One child — a son, 16. We share him."

"Maybe a reconciliation? No way," growls her former husband, Julius, operations manager for a fleet of trucks. "By the way, I'm starved."

"His girlfriends haven't been taking good care of him," Betty says airily.

Little is heard from Timothy R. Tolley, 19, and former wife Pat, who is 18 and five months pregnant. They have been divorced for three months.

"We started when we were pretty young," says Tim, a rookie steelworker. "I was 17; Pat was 16. It just didn't work ..."

"I'm very nervous about this television show," says Pat. "It was mostly his idea."

"Well, it's a new experience," Tim says. "That and the money. We'll each get $25."

Gene Norris is the producer, the man who thought up "The Divorce Game" and hopes to sell the series in syndication.

"The outfit that distributes Chuck Barris' 'Dating Game' is interested in the show," he says. "We'll send them the tape and a half dozen cassettes, which they'll pass around to stations around the country to see who's interested."

Norris reports getting a call from a young man who thought he and his ex-wife would make good contestants. The trouble was that he hadn't spoken to her since the divorce. He asked if Norris could call her.

"So I called her," Norris continues. "And the wife said 'sure' and called the guy and I guess they started talking again, because I got a call from him the other day."

"He said he and his ex-wife wouldn't be on the show after all. He said it looks like they might get together again."

On ways around harmful paraquat

State Department advising marijuana users

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — At first glance, it looked like someone at the State Department had been smoking something. Why else would the government advise marijuana users to smoke their marijuana through a water pipe or take it in brownies to avoid the effects of the herbicide paraquat which is sprayed, with State Department help, on Mexican marijuana fields?

It turns out the State Department had no choice. It was forced, by a court suit filed by a small organization that wants to legalize pot, to consider how to mitigate paraquat's harmful effects on marijuana users.

The National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 requires federal agencies to assess the impact on the environment of government actions at home and abroad.

So the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws found out about the paraquat program, distrusted government assurances that the herbicide was not harmful to smokers, and went to court to insist on an environmental impact statement.

The State Department resisted, lost in a lower court, appealed and finally settled out of court on April 24, agreeing to provide an impact statement.

It paid the Mitre Corp. $255,211 for a several-hundred-page document that discusses everything from the effect of the marijuana eradication program on family life among the Mexican campesinos to the effects on American marijuana smokers — and how they can be mitigated with water pipes and brownies.

The statement says the government spent $68.8 million since 1970 on the program, on helicopters, communications equipment, a $3 million "electro-optical illicit crop detection system," pilot training, mapping, computer services, protective armor for aircraft and crews, a hangar, "specialized interdiction vehicles," weapons and contract technicians, services and equipment.

It probably represents the most sweeping review the government has ever made of the fallout from American policy on marijuana. The case illustrates how a small organization with limited resources can use the law and the courts to force the government to give a public accounting of itself.

Peter H. Meyers, NORML's full-time lawyer, is chiefly responsible for the suit. He said its preparation cost about $100 for paper and his salary.

Dozens of government lawyers, in at least nine agencies, were involved in reviewing and commenting on Mitre's report. A draft was prepared, and comments were solicited. Each of 163 comments had to be answered in the final report.

Yet NORML is not satisfied with the product, and plans to return to court, seeking more detail — and hoping the government ultimately will decide to give up the fight and the paraquat program.

The out-of-court settlement specifically gives NORML the right to return to court to challenge the adequacy of the impact statement.

Says Meyers of the State Department's first try: "It doesn't explore enough the long-and short-term consequences of paraquat to the health of marijuana smokers. It doesn't look deep enough into the effect of paraquat on the health of Mexican peasants, the Mexican wheat supply or endangered species. And it doesn't adequately look into what paraquat might be doing to crops and animals raised on the West Coast of Mexico and exported to the United States."

The report estimates that 16 million Americans use marijuana and at any one time 85,600 of them are probably smoking marijuana contaminated with the herbicide.

It says paraquat — odorless, colorless and tasteless — probably carries only a slight risk to the health of moderate marijuana smokers.

As for heavy users — those who smoke 10 marijuana cigarettes a day — "the health effects of long-term use of paraquat-contaminated marijuana are not known."

"The threat to human health from short-term exposure to paraquat contaminated marijuana is minimal," the report says. "However, a limited educational effort may be justified to inform the marijuana user that (1) visual distinction between Mexican and Colombian marijuana is virtually impossible and (2) it is extremely difficult to tell the difference visually between contaminated and uncontaminated marijuana."

As for mitigating measures, the report says, "The United States government would be reluctant to suggest 'better' ways to undertake an illegal activity."

But, it says, use of a water pipe, in which the smoke passes through water before reaching the smoker's mouth, "would decrease the amount of paraquat entering the inhaled smoke" and "the toxic effects of contaminated marijuana consumed in foods such as brownies or bread would be less severe" since "paraquat is poorly absorbed through the stomach and intestines."

Discussing the campaign's impact among peasants of western Mexico who find raising marijuana and poppies for opium more profitable than raising traditional crops, the report says there was "resistance and resentment" and "violence, fights and homicides due to the narcotics war."

The State Department says its role has been to assist the Mexican government in a program Mexico wanted to undertake in any event.

The Mexican government has fought marijuana fields — initially with sticks, machetes and hoes — since the 1940s. What the United States provided was chemistry and technology.

Wheat crop shaping up

WASHINGTON (AP) — This year's total U.S. wheat crop seems to be shaping up about the size of last year's harvest of around 1.8 billion bushels, according to the latest government outlook figures.

Winter wheat production, which accounts for about three-fourths of the total, was estimated Thursday by the Agriculture Department at 1.39 billion bushels.

Although such a harvest would be 11 percent larger than the 1978 output of 1.25 billion bushels, it would be about 4 percent smaller than USDA forecast last Dec. 21, not long after the crop was planted.

The new estimate, based on May 1 prospects, was the first since then.

Looking at the winter-wheat situation, officials said much of the reduction from December prospects "occurred in the Pacific Northwest where winterkill caused abandonment or reduced stands" of wheat.

But overall the crop was reported in "fair to good" condition as of May 1 and generally had adequate soil moisture to sustain further development, the department's Crop Reporting Board said.

Production in Kansas, the leading wheat producer, was estimated at 321 million bushels, compared to 306 million in 1978.

The report said the May 1 survey showed farmers will have about 42.9 million acres of winter wheat for harvest this year, compared to 38.9 million acres harvested in 1978.

Nationally, the average wheat yield was estimated at 32.4 bushels an acre, compared to 32.1 bushels from each acre harvested in 1978.

No official estimate of spring-wheat production will be made by USDA until July 11, along with the first production forecasts of 1979 corn and some other major crops.

According to department sources, however, some experts say total output of spring wheat this year — including durum and other types — could range between 375 million and 475 million bushels, down sharply from 1978 production of 550.4 million bushels.

Assuming a midpoint possibility of about 425 million bushels of spring wheat, the new estimate for winter grain points to a total U.S. wheat harvest this year of around 1.82 billion bushels against a total output in 1978 of slightly less than 1.8 billion.

The department some time ago said total wheat output this year could range between 1.74 billion and 2.08 billion bushels, depending on the weather and final decisions by farmers on planting spring wheat.

Wheat prices at the farm in April averaged around $2.98 a bushel, according to the department's preliminary figures. That was up from $2.82 a bushel a year earlier.

The U.S. reserve of wheat from previous crops by June 1 is expected to be about 951 million bushels, the smallest in two years. A year ago it was about 1.18 billion bushels.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union and Turkey are doing what many American farmers are advocating these days: exchanging oil for grain.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday that "Turkey has signed a contract with the Soviet Union to barter 40,000 (metric) tons of Bezostaya wheat for 50,000 (metric) tons of Soviet petroleum."

Although the brief note, included in a weekly report on world production and trade, did not provide further details, it seems Turkey will be trading about four bushels of wheat for one barrel of oil.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — El Salvador's military government reported leftist guerrillas burned six persons to death in buses as thousands turned out for the funeral of 17 anti-government demonstrators.

Government spokesman Col. Rafael Flores Lima said guerrillas of the Popular Liberation Forces shot up two buses near Arcateo, a village 54 miles north of San Salvador, and set them afire Thursday. He said four passengers and two drivers burned to death before they could escape.

The Popular Liberation Forces is one of three underground leftist armies fighting a guerrilla war against President Carlos Humberto Romero's military regime.

More than 15,000 persons turned out for the funeral of the demonstrators, who were cut down by police bullets Tuesday as they rained outside San Salvador's cathedral in support of anti-government militants occupying the cathedral and the Costa Rican and French embassies.

The rough pine coffins were brought out of the cathedral and placed on the bloodstained steps as mourners marched and chanted "Down With Repression!" and "We Want Freedom!"

The bodies, some in shrouds, others in tattered bloody clothing, were transferred to more expensive wooden caskets, and pallbearers from the crowd hoisted them on their shoulders for a pompously-chaired march to the cemetery that lasted three hours.

Along the 20-block route, the marchers chanted, "End The Tyranny!" "It's The Color Of Blood We Will Never Forget!" "Socialism Is Coming, No One Can Stop It!" and "Victory Forever!"

The marchers took turns shouldering the coffins. They wore gas masks against the stench of the corpses, which had lain on the cathedral steps or inside for almost two days in 90-degree heat.

"Glory To The Dead Of May 8," read a big banner carried by some of the marchers as the procession wound through San Salvador's narrow streets.

Authorities search for more shooting victims

BEDFORD, N.Y. (AP) — The bizarre slayings of four persons, including a former U.S. undersecretary of state, at two neighboring estates had authorities searching door-to-door in this affluent New York City suburb for other possible victims.

"We're just hoping we won't find any more bodies," said police officer Joseph Fuchs of the Bedford Hills Police Department.

"I don't know what's happening here. We've had robberies before, but no one's ever been hurt," sobbed an unidentified neighbor of Charles Frankel, who served as undersecretary of state and educational and cultural affairs from 1965-67.

The bodies of Frankel, 61, and his wife, Helen, were found Thursday afternoon in the bedroom of their home, one block from the Corydon Sperry estate, where earlier in the day, Christopher R. Sperry, 21, and 82-year-old Nettie MacCormack, his governess, were found dead.

Inflation should begin easing

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Inflation should begin easing as the economy slides into a "moderate, brief" recession in the second half of the year, according to economic consultants for a prestigious group of businessmen.

The analysis released today at the semi-annual meeting of the Business Council was more pessimistic than the group's previous quarterly reports.

And it was a contrast to Carter administration insistence that a recession can be avoided as inflation is brought in check by tighter money and budget policies and the voluntary wage and price guidelines.

The report to the council, which is made up of board chairmen and chief executive officers of 100 major U.S. corporations, predicts the economy will decline for six to eight months before turning up again.

"I think the consensus was that this is what we need, this is what we are moving into," Clifton C. Garvin Jr., chairman of Exxon Corp., said in remarks prepared for his introduction of the report. "It's not all that bad."

Garvin said he preferred the term "downturn" to "recession" but admitted "it's a little more severe than people had anticipated."

As recently as February, the consultants had been predicting only a moderate decline in the nation's economy. But even that was a sharp contrast to its prediction last fall that the economy would expand this year by 2 1/2 percent, about the same as President Carter's prediction.

The new Business Council forecast calls for the nation's output to decline "roughly 1 percent" over two to three quarters beginning at mid-year.

A recession is commonly defined as a contraction in economic growth for at least two consecutive quarters.

The Council said, however, that this year's recession would be no worse than the 1969-1970 recession, "the mildest of the post-war period." By contrast, there was a 6 percent drop in output during the severe 1974-75 recession.

Around the nation

DOVER, Del. (AP) — The Delaware Legislature, the second in the nation to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment, has rejected a proposed referendum on whether to rescind that ratification.

House members voted 14-23 Thursday against putting the non-binding question on the 1980 ballot. Rep. William H. Brady II, D-Middletown, said if an ERA referendum were held during the statewide races in 1980, candidates "would be talking about no issues other than the ERA."

Meanwhile, a separate bill to have the General Assembly itself vote on rescission remained stalled in a Senate committee.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New York is the "spy capital" of the nation in numbers, but the amount of espionage in Southern California's aerospace industry "is frightening," says the new head of the FBI's Los Angeles office.

Mother's Day

In other languages, she might be called Mutter, mere, meter, madre, or mat'. In English the word is mother, and this Sunday, Mother's Day, carries on the tradition of honoring mothers in the United States. Special days honoring mothers have long been observed in England, Yugoslavia, and other countries. Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia began the campaign for an American observance of Mother's Day in 1907. She picked the second Sunday in May. Philadelphia churches held Mother's Day celebrations the following year. In 1914 President Woodrow Wilson signed a congressional resolution making Mother's Day a national observance. He proclaimed it an annual observance in 1915. DO YOU KNOW — What flower is traditionally associated with Mother's Day? THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Jerry Brown succeeded Ronald Reagan as governor of California.

NEW YORK (AP) — At the request of the faculty of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, chancellor Gerson D. Cohen has postponed until 1980 action on proposals to admit women as candidates for ordination as rabbis in Conservative Judaism.

A commission set up by Cohen, after exploring the issue for a year, reported it found no reason in Jewish law barring women from the rabbinate. But the faculty — both those opposing and favoring the step — asked more time to consider the change.

The Reform branch of Judaism already admits women to the rabbinate, while the third branch, Orthodoxy, does not.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A one-time classmate of Pope John Paul II, the Rev. Msgr. W. Thomas Larkin, 56, is to be ordained a bishop by the pope May 27, to become head of the diocese of St. Petersburg.

As young priests, Larkin and the pope-to-be had lived together at the Belgium College in Rome while completing their doctorates at the Dominican Angelicum University.

Larkin, pastor of St. Cecilia Church in Clearwater and also diocesan administrator since the death of Bishop Charles B. McLaughlin last December, was picked by the pope to become the new head of the diocese.

It is the first time in more than 50 years that the diocese has had a local pastor chosen to head it, to the delight of its laity and clergy, says the Rev. Laurence E. Higgins of Tampa, Fla.

More than 300 of them are flying to Rome for the ceremony, at which about 20 bishops from around the world are to be consecrated.

Puffing, sweating, their faces flushed and strained, the joggers pound along the sidewalks and paths in swelling profusion.

Subconsciously, they're trying to get away from that overtaking crunch of age and years, says a Michigan State University professor, the Rev. Dr. Fred Graham, a long-time jogger himself.

They're "running scared," he adds. "It's an irrational response to a subconscious anxiety."

He says that the underlying, subconscious motive is to stave off the debilities of old age and terminal helplessness — a striving for a sort of "secular salvation."

"It's hopeless, of course," he said in an interview. "It won't work. The running can't make much final difference. But fancying that it will is the subconscious motivation, the hidden anxiety."

There's a bit of self-deception in it, he said. "We tend to hide the real motive from consciousness and pretend it's something else — such as to keep in shape or to be strong."

Graham, professor of religious studies who has researched the psychology of the jogging phenomenon, questioned about 100 runners over a five-year period, analyzing their fantasies while running and reasons for doing it.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life, in thy presence is fulness of Joy..."
PSALM 16-11

HERE IS THE PATH

...and God bless Mother

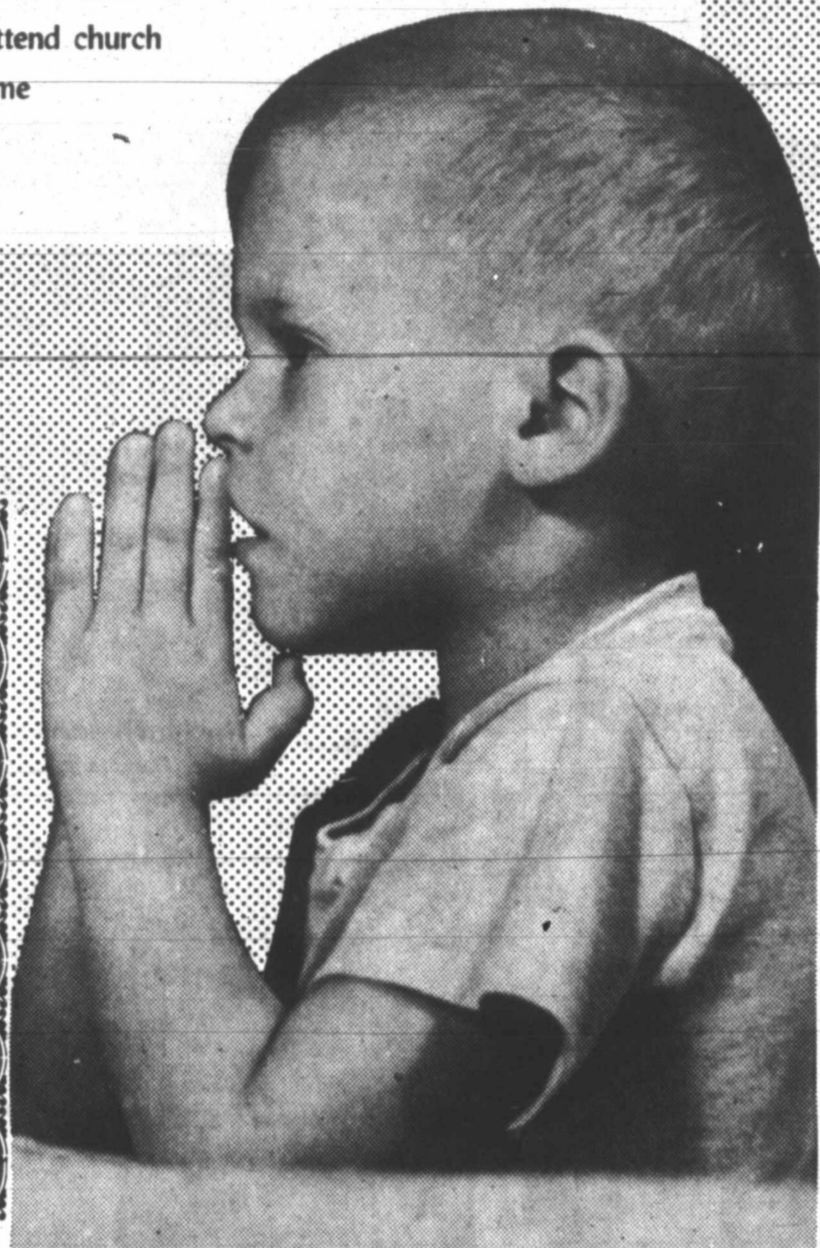

This little one is aware of his mother's tender care, and responds with love. It would be wonderful if all of us showed our love for our Mothers all of the time. Even if we have been a little neglectful, we have an opportunity to go all out this Sunday, and express to her our love and appreciation for her goodness to us. The Bible tells us to "Honour thy Father and thy Mother."

On this special Mother's Day attend church and share in celebrating this time with others.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

May 12, 1979

Lucky breaks or fortunate opportunities could come through others this coming year. Pay particular attention to situations involving loved ones.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Those things you do for or with your family today bring you the most happiness. They'll share your enthusiasm, while friends may dampen your high spirits. Your new Astro-Graph Letter tells you what lies ahead for you from your birthday on. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Holding things inside you will only harbor resentment. Talk openly about what you feel. You'll reach the understanding you had hoped for.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't just verbalize about things, do them. You could let a golden opportunity slip through your fingers if you're all words and no action.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your self-interests are certain to be satisfied today. However, you may put out much more money than you can comfortably afford. Don't go overboard.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Though loved ones will offer the support and help you need, you could unconsciously be hypercritical of their behavior. Don't hurt their feelings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A friend who has been lucky for you in the past will prove to be so again, yet because of a negative attitude you may not even realize it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are likely to receive greater reward for your achievements today than you may have in the past. Be wary, however. A jealous person might try to undermine your victory.

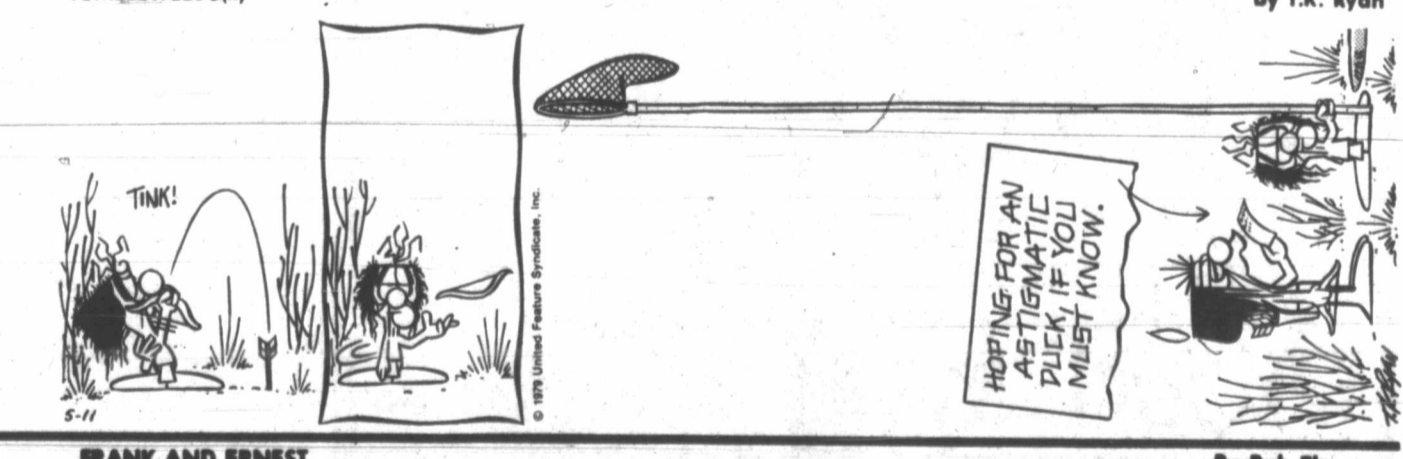

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll fare better today with humanitarian thinking than you will with self-serving thoughts. Don't give in to the latter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will profit today only if you keep things under your hat. Spilling the beans or passing on unflattering information dissolves your gains.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This could be a constructive day to work out agreements in matters requiring teamwork. However, don't involve people who didn't produce in the past.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will receive the credit or reward for a performance you made today. Be certain, in return, to acclaim co-workers if they deserve it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Sharing your time with close friends should make this a pleasant day for you. Don't let someone's breaking a promise spoil your enjoyment.

LUBBOCK - The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has approved several changes in the fish and game regulations affecting sportsmen in northwest Texas this fall.

The Commission authorized reducing the mule deer season in the Panhandle from 16 days to nine days. A shortened season will reduce the buck harvest and increase the number of older age - class buck mule deer left in the population. The nine day season will standardize the length of the season with the Trans - Pecos area.

The mule deer bag limit for the gun season will be the same as last season with a bag limit of two mule deer, no more than one buck, antlerless by permit only. Archery season bag limit is one buck mule deer only.

The Commission established an expanded and split season for aoudad sheep in the Panhandle. The season will be the first Saturday in November for 14 days and from the first Saturday in January for 16 days.

This aoudad season rule will provide greater hunter opportunity as some landowners do not have sheep in November, but have them on their winter wheat fields in January.

Many counties in the Panhandle - South Plains - Permian Basin regions do not have huntable populations of antelope and the Commission approved closing the antelope season in these 24 counties for 1979.

The upland bird hunters will have a longer season to bag pheasants in the Panhandle as the Commission expanded the pheasant season from 16 to 30 days, from the second Saturday in December for 30 consecutive days.

The lengthening of the pheasant season will have no adverse affect on the pheasant population. Censuses indicate a steady increase in the population of birds in northwest Texas.

The Commission did add the restriction of prohibiting the use of cables, chains, ropes, or other devices attached between moving objects to flush pheasants as has been the practice of a few hunters in the past.

The fur - bearing regulation on possession of fur - bearing animals or their pelts except during the open season as provided by law.

A few trappers - hunters have taken pelts before and after the season storing them in a freezer until the legal season for selling.

The Commission authorized increasing the statewide bag limit on striped bass from three to five per day (except lakes Texoma and Toledo Bend.) The rapidly expanding striped bass populations allow for a more liberal bag limit.

Also, all bag and possession limits on striped - white bass hybrids were removed statewide by the Commission. The hybrids of striped bass will not reproduce and should be managed for high harvest rates to reduce losses from high natural mortality.

Counting Deer

LUBBOCK - An inexperienced hunter and heard to say that there wasn't a buck in the whole herd of deer spotted on a West Texas ranch last week.

This person was using antlers to judge the population of bucks in the herd and as all Texas Parks and Wildlife Department employees know, early spring is no time to try and count buck deer.

The white - tailed and mule deer of Northwest Texas both lose their antlers during the winter following the mating season. With the elimination of the antler from the animal, it is hard to identify bucks unless a comparison can be made with nearby does. Normally, the bucks are larger than the does and they can be spotted among the herd by the careful observer.

Following the loss of the antlers, the process of growing new antlers begins. Antler formation begins in most areas in April with the appearance of velvet - covered buds. Within two weeks, the characteristic branched pattern has appeared. During this period, the buck deer is careful to avoid hard objects that might hit his new antlers.

By August, the antlers are mature. Growth has ceased and the velvet has begun to dry at the tip. When the bony material of the antler has become fully hardened, the velvet dries and peels off in shreds helped by the animal rubbing it's antlers gainst brush and small trees.

These deer "rubs" are a sure sign of bucks to the alert deer hunter scouting hunting areas in early fall.

Rain halts play at Byron Nelson

DALLAS (AP) - Tom Watson, pursuing his third tournament victory of the year, was one par away from the first-round lead today in the $300,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Rain halted the first round Thursday with 39 players, including Watson, still on the 6,993-yard Preston Trail layout on Dallas' north side.

Larry Nelson was in the clubhouse with a 5-under-par 65, with George Burns at 66 and the trio of Brad Bryant, Lanny Wadkins and Morris Hatalsky at 67. Arnold Palmer was among a quartet at 68.

Watson, playing the back nine first, was 1-under-par coming into No. 18. Then he sank putts of 15, 18 and 8 feet for consecutive birdies, made a 15-footer on No. 4 to move into a tie with Nelson, then took the lead after hitting a 9-iron to within three feet of the pin on the 431-yard sixth hole.

Watson, who won this tournament a year ago, was looking over a six-foot birdie putt at the par-9 eighth hole when officials sounded the sirens.

His putt slid off to the side, and he took his par and headed in.

The last 13 threesomes were scheduled to finish their rounds before the start of today's second round. The last groups had four holes to play.

Bob Gilder, playing in the second threesome behind Watson, was at 4-under when the rain stopped the action. He was one over at the turn, but birdied Nos. 1, 2, 3, 6 and 7 to move into contention.

"I hit a lot of good shots today, and I'm certainly happy about the way I was playing," said Watson, 1979's leading money winner with $232,674.

In his victories in the Heritage Classic, which he won by five strokes, and the Tournament of Champions, which he won by six shots, Watson led from start to finish. He was second in four other tournaments.

He was hoping for a par or better on his last hole today to give him his best competitive round of the year. His previous bests were two rounds of 65 in the Heritage.

Nelson, like Watson, had a bogey-free round. He had birdies on Nos. 2, 5, 11, 15 and 17.

"I kinda scraped around on the front side, but I played a little better on the back side.

"I picked a lot of right clubs today. I used the wrong club only once, or maybe I hit badly with the right club then. I never had a bad lie, and I chipped well."

SPORTS

Post seeks LPGA win

ATLANTA (AP) - Sandra Post, the No. 3 money winner on this year's Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, hopes to claim her second victory of the season in a $100,000 event beginning today on the Brookfield West Country Club course.

Post has earned $76,758 so far this year and could move into the No. 1 money spot by claiming the $15,000 first prize, since top winner Nancy Lopez with $88,475 and JoAnne Carner in second place with $83,350, are not competing over the hilly, 6,353-yard, par 73 layout.

"I don't worry about anybody else in the field," Post said Thursday. "I've won when they've all been there. Whenever I play, I give it my best. Sometimes I can't get it all together, however."

Post said she bypassed last week's LPGA event and "just piddled around" at her condominium in Florida.

Her only 1979 tour victory came in the Dinah Shore Winner's Circle early in the year following a pair of second place finishes in earlier tournaments.

With Lopez and Carner, who was injured in a motorcycle accident at her Florida home last week, out of the field, Post ranks along with Jane Blalock as favorites in the 54-hole event.

Blalock already owns three tour triumphs this season and has two Atlanta victories to her credit.

Pampa meets Sandies today

The Pampa Harvesters play their most crucial game of the year today at 4 p.m. at Optimist Park as they host the Amarillo High Sandies for the District 3-AAAA baseball championship.

The Harvesters will carry an 18-5 ledger into today's contest. Overall in the district play, Pampa was 6-2. The Harvesters won the first-half title, while the Sandies prevailed in round two. Amarillo High is 16-5 for the year.

Amarillo High is expected to pitch Pat Hrcic today. It will be the third time that Hrcic has faced the Harvesters. For Pampa, the pitcher is expected to be either Steve Stout or Rick Dougherty.

In the first meeting between the two teams in the first-half race, Pampa won by a score of 6-5 in a game at Optimist Park. Then last Monday in the final contest of the second half, Amarillo High won 4-2.

Admission prices are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Baseball tournament begins

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Baylor Coach Mickey Sullivan, whose Bears have won the past two Southwest Conference baseball tournaments, says his team doesn't get "fired up."

"I don't think baseball is a motivational sport like football," Sullivan said. "You have a bat and if somebody is throwing a ball you'd better be trying to hit it. I don't like the term fired up."

"I feel if you have a scholarship on baseball or golf or whatever you ought to be fired up."

The Bears, who finished third behind Texas and Arkansas in this year's SWC race, will try once again to pull the rug from under the favorites in this year's tournament, which begins today at Texas' Disch-Falk Field.

Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson doesn't see anyone as a strong favorite.

"I can't see where any one of those teams is weak enough to be called a dark horse or strong enough to be called the favorite," Gustafson said.

Texas, which compiled a 22-2 record, will meet Texas A&M and Baylor and Arkansas will square today in the opening games of the tournament.

Seek commanding lead Spurs host Washington

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — San Antonio Coach Doug Moe says he hopes the Washington Bullets will allow the Spurs to race to a big lead tonight so Bullets Coach Dick Motta can test one of his theories.

"I've never seen San Antonio really hold the lead in the big pressure games," Motta said as the Bullets practiced here Thursday in preparation for tonight's fourth game of the NBA Eastern Conference championship series.

The defending NBA champion Bullets are down 2-1 after a late rally fell short here Wednesday night and the Spurs held on for a 116-114 win. The Spurs had led by as many as 14 points midway through the fourth quarter.

In the Western Division, Phoenix and Seattle, who are tied at 2-2, will go back to Seattle for the fifth game tonight. Seattle won the first two games, while the Suns took the next two. Motta was on hand here in the previous series when the Spurs blew an 18-point second quarter lead before beating Philadelphia in the seventh game. The Washington coach says the Spurs get a "rattled look" in their eyes when they run to a big early lead. That "look," Motta says, usually leads to a Spur scoring drought.

Both coaches look for more backboard brutality when the series resumes. The lightweight Spurs, who usually run from a fight rather than join it, surprised the Bullets with a tough inside game Wednesday night. They held Bullet center Wes Unseld — who owned the offensive boards earlier in the series — to six offensive rebounds.

Physically, the Seattle SuperSonics appear to be sound for Game 5 tonight of their National Basketball Association Western Conference championship series against the Phoenix Suns.

The key will be whether the Sonics show up for the game at the Kingdome mentally prepared to battle the Suns for a full 48 minutes.

Lenny Wilkens, the Sonics coach, says his club appeared to be hesitant in Tuesday night's 100-91 loss to the Suns in Phoenix.

That triumph was the Suns second straight over Seattle and knotted the best-of-7 series at two games apiece.

Phoenix will be without starting center Alvan Adams, who remained at home with a sprained ankle sustained in the first quarter of Game 3. He is expected to be ready for Game 6 Sunday in Phoenix.

Seattle won the first two games of the series at home and there was talk of a sweep. The series then moved to Phoenix where the Suns won two games easily.

Terrell trails in state meet

AUSTIN—Pampa High golfer Barry Terrell found the going tough during the first day of the Class AAAA tournament at Morris Williams Golf Course in Austin.

Terrell finished the first round with a score of 81, which is 10 strokes behind the current leader. Heading the field at this time is Daryl Henning of Euless-Trinity. He has a one-under-par 71.

There are five other linksters tied for the second spot currently. They all have scores of 73.

Terrell qualified for the state tournament after finishing second in the recently held regional meet. He also finished in the runner-up spot in the District 3-AAAA meet. Action will conclude today.

Area tracksters at state meet

AUSTIN—Miami will search for its second state title in a week this weekend at the boys state track meet at University of Texas Memorial Stadium.

After the girls team won the Class B title a week ago, the boys will try to do the same, but it won't be easy with the likes of Snook, Wortham, Gorman and Sanderson being represented.

In the 800, Miami's Tim Ross will be entered. He won regional with a time of 1:57.7 and that mark is the top time of the eight regional qualifiers. Teammate Doyle Sullivan will run the mile. His time at regional (4:39.8) ranks third among the qualifiers. Carlos Lopez of LaPryor (4:34.01) has the best time with Joe Camales of Austwell-Tivolli next at 4:36.08.

The final Miami entry will be its mile relay team. They will carry a regional time of 3:31.2 into the meet. Four other teams in the meet have better times with Anna and Snook leading the way at clockings of 3:29.6 each.

In the 120 high hurdles, Groom's Neil Wieberg will be competing. His time of 15.3 ranks seventh among the eight qualifiers. The top clocking is a 14.55 by Gary Bowdoin of Crawford. The other area participant is Randy Cady of Lefors in the shot put. His qualifying throw of 47-1 1/2 at regional ranks eight among many participating.

The top throw has been 62-5 by Van Hughes of Axtell. He has a chance to break the state record this weekend since the current mark is a 58-11 toss by Ronnie Urbante of Riesel.

In Class A, area participants include Chandler Pruitt of Panhandle in the 800 along with Clarendon's William Thompson in the mile run and Keith Floyd in the high jump.

Major League roundup

John pilots Yankees, 8-1

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Give Jerry Narro credit — the rookie catcher of the New York Yankees knows when to butt out.

Narro made his second major league start Thursday, filling in behind the plate as regular catcher Thurman Munson took a turn as designated hitter. On the mound was Tommy John, the crafty 36-year-old veteran for whom the New York Yankees spent $1.75 million on the free agent market next winter.

Narro had the great good sense to let John, a veteran of 457 major league games over 17 seasons, do his thing. The result was an artful seven-hitter as the Yankees beat the Seattle Mariners 8-1 and the unbeaten John became the major leagues' first seven-game winner.

"I let John call most of the game," said Narro. "It's not hard for any catcher to catch Tommy John."

John gave up a run in the first inning on Tom Paciorek's 410-foot triple, but Yankee leadoff man Mickey Rivers got it right back by slamming the first pitch from Mariners starter Odell Jones into the right-field stands.

Reggie Jackson added a run-scoring single later in the first, the seventh game in a row in which Jackson has driven in at least one run.

Indians 8, Brewers 1
Eric Wilkins and Don Hood

combined for a five-hitter as Cleveland beat the Brewers, putting the game away with five runs in the eighth inning. Ron Pruitt drove in three runs, two of them on a double in the eighth.

Angels 5, Red Sox 3
Brian Downing hit a two-run homer, a double and a single. Rod Carew, Carney Lansford and Rick Miller doubled and Don Baylor had three singles to lead California's 12-hit attack against the Red Sox.

Jim Rice hit his fifth homer of the year for Boston, which kept the score close by killing a seventh-inning threat with a triple play. With Carew on second and Baylor on first, second baseman Jerry Remy snared Joe Rudi's liner and flipped to shortstop Rick Burleson to double up Carew, then Burleson threw to first to nail Baylor.

Orioles 3, A's 1
Gary Roenicke's seventh homer of the season was Baltimore's game-winning run, putting the Orioles up 2-0 in the fourth inning against John Johnson.

Meanwhile, Dennis Martinez stopped the A's on three hits. "Martinez really goes after them," Orioles Manager Earl Weaver said. "He's got all four pitches and he knows how to use them."

White Sox 5, Royals 2
Claudell Washington hit a homer in the first inning and a triple to set up a run in the sixth.

Then singled to trigger a three-run eighth that carried the White Sox past Kansas City.

After Washington's single in the eighth, his fourth straight hit, Chet Lemon walked and Eric Soderholm, Rusty Torres and Wayne Nordhagen delivered run-scoring singles.

Dodgers 14, Mets 1
Andy Messersmith gave up six hits and chalked up four strike outs to lead the Dodgers past the Mets.

Messersmith in his second tour with Los Angeles, hadn't pitched a complete game in two years and a shutout in three. He was working on both Thursday night until Lee Mazzilli pounced on a fat sixth-inning fastball for a home run.

Expos 3, Giants 0
Rodney Scott displaced veteran Dave Cash as Montreal's second baseman because of his glove, not his bat. But against the Giants he hit his first home run in 718 at-bats (1292 games) in the majors.

"It was a bonus," he said. The homer came off rookie Phil Nastu. "He hung one to the smallest guy in the park," moaned Giants Manager Joe Altobelli. Meanwhile, Steve Rogers stymied San Francisco on three hits.

Phillies 3, Padres 2
Pitcher Nino Espinosa drove in a run, offsetting the fifth career homer of 40-year-old Padres hurler Gaylord Perry, as Philadelphia chalked up its 19th victory in the last 23 games and the seventh straight on the road.

Cards 3, Astros 1
Keith Hernandez singled, Ted Simmons delivered an RBI double, then Simmons scored on George Hendrick's single in the seventh inning to help St. Louis beat J.R. Richard and hand the Astros their fifth loss in seven games.

Bob Sykes, who went the first 71-3 innings, Darold Knowles and Mark Littell combined on a five-hitter for the Cardinals.

Reds 7, Cubs 7 (tie)
Homers by the Cubs Barry Foote, Ted Sizemore and Dave Kingman and the Reds Dave Concepcion highlighted the nine innings in Chicago that ended with the teams knotted 7-7.

The game was suspended — to be resumed when the Reds visit the Cubs again on July 23 — to let the Cubs catch a flight to Houston.

Walton chooses his NBA agent

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Bill Walton has chosen Dr. Ernie Vandeweghe of Los Angeles to represent him in contract negotiations with National Basketball Association teams.

The Oregonian newspaper reported Thursday.

Walton becomes a free agent at the end of the NBA playoff series when his contract with the Portland Trail Blazers expires. The 6-foot-11 center led Portland to the NBA championship in 1977 and was the league's most valuable player the following season.

Walton sat out the 1978-79 season because of a broken foot. But he has been pronounced medically fit and is practicing basketball at UCLA, his alma mater, while staying in Southern California.

Portland Trail Blazers President Larry Weinberg said, "I had lunch with Bill last Friday and it was a very, very pleasant lunch. He told me that Ernie would be in touch with me soon."

Vandeweghe was one of a number of persons who offered to act as Walton's agent.

Triple play made

BOSTON (AP)— Despite pulling off their first triple play in seven years, the Boston Red Sox lost to the California Angeles 5-3.

With the count 1-1, Joe Rudi lined a shot toward Red Sox second baseman Jerry Remy, who leaped and caught the ball. Remy flipped the ball to shortstop Rick Burleson, who stepped on second to get Rod Carew, then fired to first baseman George Scott, who stepped on the base before Don Baylor could get back.

The last Red Sox triple play was May 25, 1972, against the Baltimore Orioles.

UH weight man seeks titles

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—University of Houston shot put and discus expert Mark Baughman, whose occasional hobby is shooting mice with a blowgun, says contrary to myth, weight men aren't flaky.

"I guess we're a little different from other track athletes because our event involves more emphasis on strength," the defending Southwest Conference discus champion said. "But I don't think we're really flaky."

"It's just that the physical requirements set us apart from, say a long jumper or a distance runner."

Baughman hopes to set himself apart from the rest of the discus and shot put contenders beginning today in the 64th annual SWC track and field meet at Texas Memorial Stadium.

Baughman, the National Collegiate Athletic Association indoor national champion in the shot put, will try to beat out the challenges of Texas freshman Oskar Jakobsson of Iceland, and Texas A&M's Tim Scott in both shot put and discus events.

Several other individual struggles likely will spice the two-day track and field circus include a battle between sprinters Curtis Dickey of Texas A&M and Houston's Rich Edwards in the 100 meters; 800 meter leaders Bruce Gingrich of Rice and James Mays of Texas Tech and Doc King of Rice, trying for his third straight 100 meter hurdle title.

Baughman is almost as adept with his two-foot long blowgun as he is when he picks up a shot put or discus.

"He started playing around with the blowgun while working at a summer night watchman's job in a nursery. He cured his boredom by shooting at mice."

"I hit a few mice," he laughed. "I shoot it mostly in the dorm. We set up target ranges in the hall. My record for shooting a dart is about 85 yards on the field."

The Texas Longhorns, strong in the field events and both relays, is the early team favorite but defending champion Texas A&M and Houston, also strong in the field events, are top challengers.

Baylor and Rice have been hampered by injuries.

Dickey, the defending 100 meters champion, will get a strong challenge from Edwards in this year's event. Dickey, who missed much of the early track season because of spring football practice, won the Drake Relays 100 meters in 10.34.

Edwards won the Penn Relays in 10.35 and nipped Dickey at the tape twice when the pair ran anchor legs on their school's 400 meter relay teams.
