Steel area Man of the Year

AMARILLO — Gene Steel, manager of the Celanese Chemical Co. plant in Pampa, was honored Monday night by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce as its Man of the Year for the Panhandle Area.

Steel received the surprise award at the 69th annual Chamber Area Banquet, held in the Amarillo Civic Center. Lennie Sims of Wellington was named the area's Woman of the Year.

A plaque was given to Steel

"in appreciation for his outstanding contribution of time, energy and talent that improved the quality of life in Pampa and the Texas Panhandle."

In an introduction by Gene Edwards, president of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, Steel was described as "a person of many talents who has made his contribution through business, education, industrial development and youth work."

"I am truly honored and speechless," Steel remarked when accepting the award. "I accept this with great humility. Thank you."

The "Good Neighbor" Man and Woman of the Year awards, in their fifth year, are given by the Amarillo chamber in appreciation of the citizens of surrounding communities.

Clotilde Thompson of Pampa was named Woman of the Year in 1977.

Steel was nominated for the award by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, and was selected Friday.

"We looked at a lot of people in the entire Panhandle," Dori Hileman, executive vice president of the Amarillo chamber, said Monday morning. "It isn't just for a man who has done a whole of a job in his own community. He has to be a person who has done a bunch for the Panhandle."

"It certainly goes to outstanding persons, and Gene is an outstanding guy, no doubt about it."

Steel, a native of Anson, attended Texas Tech University and graduated in 1957. He has been the local plant manager for Celanese since 1972.

Steel serves as a director for the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, Security Federal Savings and Loan, the Amarillo Area Development Foundation, the Texas Tech University Foundation and the Pampa Youth Center. He is vice president of the Pampa Industrial Foundation and chairman of Pampa United Way.

Steel is a past president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, Pampa Genesis House and the 13-county Adobe Walls Council of the Boy Scouts of America. He was a 1976 recipient of the Boy Scouts Silver Beaver Award, and has been selected Texas Business Leader of the Year for 1979 by Phi Beta Lambda, a college business fraternity.

Bush announces bid for presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former CIA Director George Bush formally announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination today promising Americans a "new candor" for tough problems.

"As a candidate, and as president, I will speak not in terms of simple solutions but of hard choices," Bush said in his announcement speech.

And in a news conference following declaration of his candidacy, Bush accused Democrats of overpromising for the past two decades and said he would call instead for sacrifices by the American people.

"As a president I would ask them to realize we cannot beat inflation, which is the No. 1 issue today, unless we curtail to some degree government spending and that will involve some sacrifice," he said.

"In the whole field of energy... there may be a real need to call on the American people for sacrifice," he added.

Bush said he hoped to run his primary campaign without attacking his Republican rivals so that the nomination would "be worth something in the fall."

"I just don't want to divide an already minority party," he said.

But if Republicans can stick together they can out President Carter in 1980, he said.

"The record of the Carter administration is so impotent any Republican winning the nomination would have a good shot in the fall," Bush said. "I just believe I would have a better shot."

"It is time for those who aspire to leadership in our country to stop trying to fool the American people that there are panaceas for our problems," the Texan said in a prepared announcement.

"More important, it is time for we, the American people, to stop fooling ourselves."

Bush, 54, with a broad record of public service, becomes the sixth announced Republican candidate.

The others are former Texas Gov. and Treasury Secretary John Connally, Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois, Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut, Harold Stassen, and Los Angeles businessman Benjamin Fernandez.

Five other hopefuls have registered with the Federal Election Commission, but haven't formally entered the race.

Taking a slap at Democratic slogans for the past five decades, Bush said "rhetoric is not enough to provide the kind of leadership our country needs and deserves."

"As a candidate for president I am not promising a New Deal, a New Frontier, a Great Society or a New Foundation," he said. "But I do pledge a new candor."

Local store robbed

A Pampa convenience store was robbed of an undetermined amount of cash Monday night by a man armed with a revolver.

The suspect, described as a white male in his late teens, entered Alsups store at the corner of Starkweather and Foster streets shortly after 11 p.m., according to police. Police said the man fled on foot after ordering the attendant at gunpoint to hand over the money in the cash register.

Berl Springer, president and chief operating officer of Southwestern Public Service Co., has announced the sale of TUCO Inc. to the Cabot Corporation. The purchase price was $33.8 million.

TUCO Inc. was formed in May of 1974 as a wholly-owned subsidiary of SPS to provide the company with a firm supply of fuel, including natural gas, coal and fuel oil. TUCO Inc. also produces other liquid hydrocarbon by-products for sale to non-related wholesalers.

Carter gives warning to Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says if the Soviet Union violates a treaty to limit nuclear weapons "it might very well escalate into a nuclear confrontation."

Other consequences of Soviet cheating, Carter said Monday at a news conference, might include U.S. nullification of the treaty and termination of "the good relationship" between the two countries.

The president's remarks were offered in defense of the nearly-completed treaty to limit U.S. and Soviet long-range bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said they also were intended as a public warning to the Kremlin.

However, Carter gave no indication he expects the Russians to cheat. And he reiterated his confidence in U.S. means of verifying Soviet compliance "to our complete satisfaction."

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin scheduled another negotiating session today — their 22nd this year.

Critics of the treaty have doubted both Soviet intentions and U.S. monitoring ability, particularly with the closing of two bases in Iran that gave the United States a ringside view of Soviet missile launchings.

Carter acknowledged "there are limits on what we can do." But he said the Soviets are aware of the risks of violating the treaty and that this lends "an element of stability and rationality" to the pursuit of weapons controls.

He also told reporters that even if the Senate vetoes the treaty he would adhere to its key provisions — providing the Soviets do the same.

"I would do all I could, monitoring very closely Soviet activities, to comply with the agreements reached," he said.

This pledge could lead to new controversy since it implies unilateral U.S. controls. Carter seemed to be aware of that prospect when he said he had "no inclination to minimize the importance of the constitutional process."

The Senate has the power to kill the treaty with 34 negatives votes. The administration needs the nod of at least 67 of the 100 senators for ratification.

Opponents are not likely to calmly accept the prospect of a treaty being put into effect informally if it is rejected in the Senate.

On another matter, Carter said he favors granting trade benefits to the Soviet Union and to China, but is still exploring the legal side of the question.

The move depends on a presidential finding that the Russians and the Chinese are permitting Jews and other minorities to leave freely.

Congress imposed that requirement in 1974, leading to a Soviet decision to give up trade benefits with the United States rather than comply.

China has never been permitted the advantage of lower tariffs. The administration would like to boost trade to cement new ties with Peking, but wants to follow a parallel track with the Russians.

THE PAMPA HIGH SCHOOL CONCERT CHOIR, competing over the weekend in the Greater Southwest Music Festival in Amarillo, was designated the best overall choir in the festival. As such, the choir is entitled to keep the festival's "traveling" award for one year. The award is shown flanked by Choir Secretary Dianne McNeely and Vice President Tommy Bruce, who are holding additional awards won by the Pampa students for outstanding 4-A mens choir and outstanding mixed choir. About 50 choirs competed in the three-day festival. This year's win marks the second time the Pampa choir has received the traveling award in seven years.

Computer issue tabled

Decision on whether to open bids for the purchase of a punch card computer voting system was again tabled for further discussion in a regular session of Gray County Commissioners Court this morning.

The punch card computer system would include about 102 manual voting devices for distribution among the county's 13 voting precincts, a central counting computer, two back up computers, and an additional memory bank for voter registration.

Commissioners have expressed reluctance over the cost of a proposed system by Computer Elections Systems, which would cost $97,000 if purchased outright, and about $120,000 if lease-purchased over a period of five years.

But CES representative Dennis King told the court that the computer system could pay for itself after only five years of use.

King cited county election expenses projected for 1980 at approximately $21,000 in worker and material expenses of the party primaries, the general election, and voter registration.

The county currently pays $3,200 annually for a computer print-out of voter registration.

King estimated the cost of the system at $7.61 per voter, saying that it represented only a small increase over the cost of $6.95 per voter under the paper balloting system.

The court heard from Randall County Clerk Leroy Hutton on the use of the system in Randall County.

Randall County has employed the system since 1968 but has rented a computer at West Texas State University for the counting of ballots. Hutton said the chief advantage of the system had been its apparent function in helping ease the impact in the yearly increase in voter registration.

According to Hutton, the voter roll in Randall County has increased from 22,000 in 1968 to a predicted 35-40,000 in 1980.

Motion was made to table discussion until the court's May 16 regular session.

In other business, the court accepted a low bid from G. W. James Materials Co. for resurfacing of the runway at the McLean Airport. G. W. James bid low at $2.761 for the project.

The court, which was still in session at press time, also accepted bids of $33,512 and $27,675 from Griffin-Burnett Inc. for the five year lease of county owned oil and mineral rights in Gaines County.

Kennedy to support Carter race?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's criticism of administration oil policies is a lot of baloney, but the senator says he'll still support Carter in the 1980 presidential campaign.

"I'm not hurt or shocked," the Massachusetts Democrat said Monday shortly after Carter called Kennedy's criticism of the administration's oil policies "a lot of baloney."

Then, giving what has become his standard response to questions about the 1980 presidential race, Kennedy said he expects Carter "will run, be renominated and re-elected."

It generally is conceded that the most formidable obstacle to that scenario would be a Kennedy candidacy. The senator steadfastly denies any intention of running, although public opinion polls among Democrats frequently rank him ahead of Carter as the preferred presidential candidate for 1980.

At a nationally broadcast news conference, Carter reacted angrily to a Kennedy speech in New York in which the senator continued his sharp attack on the president's plan to phase out price controls on U.S. oil and to levy a tax on the resulting excess profits.

Kennedy told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that "the overbearing power of the oil lobby... has intimidated the administration into throwing in the towel without even entering the ring on the issue of oil price decontrol."

"That is just a lot of baloney," responded Carter, who added that he would gladly support efforts from anyone in Congress "including Sen. Kennedy," to toughen his tax proposal.

"I really can't believe that Sen. Kennedy said this unless the phrases were taken out of context," Carter said.

No, Kennedy told reporters later, nothing was taken out of context.

"The facts speak for themselves," said the senator. "I think the administration did throw in the towel without a fight on decontrol."

As for Carter's reaction, Kennedy said, "I think he was defending his position in the strongest manner he could. I happen to think it's an indefensible position."

If Carter was astonished by Kennedy's criticism Monday, the president must not have been listening last week when Kennedy used words such as "political opportunism" and "charade" in referring to decontrol and the windfall profit tax.

Capital Comments

foster whaley

Despite the marathon debates in the House on the appropriations bill this week, the House has moved along on other legislation. We've dealt with production of alcohol as fuel (H.B. 1986 and H.B. 1803); Limits on alien ownership of land (H.B. 431); Mandatory automobile liability (H.B. 22); allowance of petitions for the consolidation of school districts (H.B. 1058); and school discipline bills such as H.B. 8, which spoke to the issue of more restrictions on abusive or disruptive students in public schools.

Extended day and night sessions on the floor of the House have kept me out of my office in the capitol much of the time in recent days. However, if you have questions or need immediate help with any department in state government, you can always get a message to me. Several constituents needed assistance this week in dealing with state agencies. I'm always glad to do what I can.

As a general rule, I've found the state agencies to be cooperative and helpful in answering questions and taking necessary action. Some agencies, of course, have outlived their usefulness or have failed to serve the public properly. They are subject to the Texas Sunset Act and, unless continued by legislation, will be abolished either this year or in following years.

The frustrating thing for private citizens is trying to find the way through the bureaucratic maze of state boards, commissions and agencies. It's difficult at times to determine who handles what. Here is a good toll-free number to record in your personal telephone directory: 1-800-252-9600. This is the Citizen Assistance office in the capitol. This telephone service provides a central point of contact to direct the general public to sources of information or assistance available within state government.

My staff has compiled a list of other toll-free telephone numbers for distribution to public libraries and chamber of commerce offices in the district. It will be helpful to citizens who need to know where state services are available for the handicapped, where to register consumer complaints, where to find medical transportation in non-emergency cases, and similar kinds of information.

State government is here to aid and serve the people rather than thwart efforts to find solutions to problems. These toll-free numbers may help you get through the red tape. I'll be glad to send this list to individuals who request a copy.

Scholastic seniors recognized

The top ten students of Pampa High School's Class of '79 were released by the school Monday. Those ten topped the academic list of 290 seniors to earn this distinction.

Kris Douglass earned the highest grade point average (GPA) in her class, scoring 3.67419 out of a possible 4.0 points.

John Nooncaster and Sharon Carey ended their high school years with a 3.66667 and shared second place on the top ten list.

Fourth on the list was Susan Lane, who received a 3.61356 average, while as Terri

Alexander was fifth with an even 3.60 GPA.

Lou Ann Robertson showed a 3.57705 mark for her work in high school, placing her sixth on the list ahead of Courtland Imel, who finished with a 3.56333.

A 3.55439 was the GPA obtained by the eighth-ranked student, Stacey Duenkel, and the ninth on the list, Julian Clark, had a 3.52 for his years of work.

Number ten on the list, Cynthia Darnell, had a 3.51864 to make the final range of the high achievers a scant .15555 points.

Houston facing nervous breakdown

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Not that it comes as a surprise to many residents of the Houston area who have to drive to and from work each day, or hustle down the crowded sidewalks bumping elbows and shoulders, but the people of the nation's fifth largest city are facing a massive nervous breakdown.

That's the word from the Mental Health Association of Houston and Harris County after a study of the divorce rate, the juvenile crime rate, the drug and alcohol abuse rate, in this city called the "Golden Buckle of the Sun Belt."

The Houston metropolitan area, with an estimated population of 2.2 million, is growing by 1,000 persons a week, according to the latest Chamber of Commerce figures. Traffic is a daymare, with freeways bumper to bumper each morning and afternoon. After the rush hours, the major routes resemble a drag strip on a Sunday afternoon.

The Houston Chronicle even runs a daily report on Page One to report how many of the city's buses are out of service, how many runs have been canceled and how many late starts.

For example, on Monday 166 buses of the total fleet of 499 were out of service, 14 runs were cancelled and there were 17 late starts.

This doesn't encourage people to use buses. One driver, in a recent test, drove the speed limit the 13 miles from his office to his home. He was passed by 144 cars, 23 of them blowing horns because he was moving too slowly. He passed one vehicle and it was puffing smoke from an apparent over-heated engine.

The mental health association report stated, "Fifteen percent of the entire population of Harris County, or approximately 350,000 persons, will require some form of mental health care soon."

And the report from a team of researchers added, "The most disturbing aspect of this increasing social disintegration is its effect on our children. Our figures on child abuse, the number of children who required mental health care, juvenile crime rates, show that our children are the victims of our inability to cope."

The report concluded, "Unless the community and our public officials act on some of these urgent recommendations, the problems we are facing now in mental health care will soon become completely unmanageable."

Adding to the growing population and ever-increasing traffic, Houston was flooded last week by a heavy rainstorm that left 1,500 vehicles stalled, streets blocked, and tempers short. One wrecker driver admitted he had made $600 in cash in a few hours pulling away the drowned cars.

The mental association report listed several reasons for its findings of Houston's neurosis, including:

—There were 25,876 marriages, and 25,086 divorce suits filed in 1978.

—For the same year, there were 10,090 arrests for drunken driving and 14,125 arrests on drug charges.

The Crisis Hotline, a service that offers aid and counsel to distressed persons, received 60,099 calls last year, far above the preceding 12 months.

Several physicians contacted for comment refused to speculate on Houston as a flaky center until they had more time to study the situation.

But, Dr. James Watson, the Houston health director, said the addition of new mental facilities wouldn't solve the problem.

He said the trouble "is more and more emphasis on materialism. Possessions are becoming our masters rather than our being the masters of our possessions."

The mental health needs or demands of a population can hardly be taken care of if they are the results of the maladjustment to prevailing circumstances," he said.

In other words, families should keep down their materialistic goals and set a more realistic approach to life.

SECRETARY of the Interior Cecil Andrus speaks to news reporters during a news conference Monday at the Offshore Technology Conference in Houston. Andrus talked about the department's plan to fulfill President Carter's message on increasing the five-year leasing schedule of the Outer Continental Shelf and Alaska.

Tax rollback bill on way to floor

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Bill Clark, D-Tyler, says the average homeowner in his city pays the equivalent of a month's salary in local property taxes.

Clark's bill giving voters in every city, county and school district the right to call elections to roll back property tax increases exceeding 5 percent gained tentative House approval Monday, 87-45.

A final vote that would send the bill to the Senate was expected today.

"This bill gives taxpayers for the first time in this state the right to say no to large increases in property tax," said Clark.

Clark, son-in-law of former Attorney General John Hill, said taxes on a typical house in Tyler are $840 a year, "one-twelfth of a fella's take-home pay."

Since home rule cities already have initiative and referendum in their charters, the bill's main impact probably would be on school districts, whose taxes have steadily risen during the 1970s.

Clark had to weather a couple of setbacks in debate on the bill, which makes it more difficult to call tax rollback elections than he wanted.

Doubts also were raised on the House floor that senators will accept the measure.

The bill would allow local voters to call elections to roll back tax increases that boost property tax revenue by more than 5 percent. Income from taxes on newly constructed buildings would not count against the 5 percent growth limit, however.

As approved by the House, the bill would require a rollback election upon the petition of 25 percent of the qualified voters in the affected area.

Clark originally wanted an easier petition requirement — 15 percent of the voters or a total of 40,000 signatures, whichever was smaller. But he settled for 25 percent when it looked as if the House would impose an even harsher 35 percent requirement.

He won a significant victory, however, when the House tabled, 76-39, an amendment by Rep. Bill Blanton, R-Carrollton, that would have allowed only 30 days for gathering petition signatures.

The bill provides 60 days for collecting signatures on petitions for rollback elections.

House members also voted down, 76-53, an attempt by Rep. Frank Collazo, D-Port Arthur, to eliminate school taxes from the rollback provision altogether.

School board members, he said, can be voted out of office if they raise taxes higher than citizens will accept.

"That's your initiative and referendum. Get rid of them and get somebody who will listen," Collazo said.

Mixed drink tax to net over $5 million

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas cities and counties will collect more than $5.2 million in rebates from the state's mixed drink tax, the state comptroller's office said Monday.

The rebates, local shares of the 10 percent gross receipts tax on mixed drinks during the first quarter of 1979, will be disbursed to 200 counties and 354 cities.

Mixed drink sales for the quarter of 1979 totaled more than $180 million.

Pampa man to Oklahoma City

The Taco Villa restaurant franchise will sling its chain into Oklahoma City this summer with the building of a new store to be managed by Dennis Martin of Pampa.

Martin is currently manager of the Taco Villa on Hobart Street. He has managed that restaurant since its opening in 1977. His wife Yolanda, the assistant manager, will hold the same post at the Oklahoma City restaurant.

The expansion of the franchise into Oklahoma was due largely to the success of the Pampa operation, according to Mike Douglas, vice president of the franchise.

The Martins are scheduled to begin operation of the new restaurant June 1.

Nora Hoke will be promoted to manager of the Pampa Taco Villa. Barbara Rush will become assistant manager. Debbie Jackson will become a manager trainee. The three and Martin recently completed a 12-week management training course at the franchise's general office in Amarillo. Mrs. Martin has also completed the course.

MAY 01 79

Mending mature marriage by Louise Pierce

How many times has it seemed that you give out oceans of sympathy to your spouse -- and get no drop of it in return? A dozen, a hundred, a thousand times? Take heart. You're in the majority of long-married couples.

Our own hurts are always special to us. When I was a child, my sister said, "It's just a little scratch on your finger." And I said, "But it's MY finger!" That feeling lurks within us from birth to death. We want to get sympathy but we don't want to give it. And that can stifle personal enjoyment and repel mates and squeeze a longtime marriage into a straight jacket so tight that the spark inside is snuffed out.

Stanton J. wrote me: "I'm never free of the pain of lumbago. But does Bertha care? She's just mad because I don't baby rheumatism!" And there are hundreds of similar misunderstandings among couples who inhabit older marriage.

Joe Z. is a man in his seventies, married 50 years to Molly -- until recently. Six months ago Molly had a stroke that confined her to the hospital and on to a nursing home for life. Joe said: "If she ain't comin' home, I ain't wasting my life waitin'." And he didn't. He divorced Molly and is dating a younger woman, probably learning that forty-year-old females hurt the same as sixty-year-olds, though perhaps not in the same places.

When Otis and I were young, we kissed each other's broken bones and slashed fingers and aching heads. We hurried with the Band-aids at the slightest sight of a microscopic cut or bruise. Then time inured us to each other's repeated hurts, turned out our sympathy for, even our interest in, one another's physical upsets. Barring operations, strokes, glaucoma and pneumonia, we set up walls of indifference.

I'm a bumbler, always walking around with at least one toe and two fingers tied up because I didn't see the open safety pin on the rug or the butcher knife in the open drawer. And I'm an allergist's dream, possessed of congested head and recurrent rashes and the wheeze of asthma that is almost-but-never-quite under control. Those disturbing problems used to cause Otis to leave home until the current attack had subsided.

More than once, years ago, he said, "Can't you take off a few bandages before we go to the church supper? You look like you'd fough a wildcat and lost!" And once he sighed, "There's never any relief from that blasted nose of yours, is there? You have hay fever all summer and temperature allergy all winter. You sniffle all the time, and it's no joy to listen to!"

I stopped telling him when I hurt and I stifled my sniffles when he was around. With no sympathy forthcoming there was small cause to mention my aching wish for improved health. Likewise I started ignoring his twinges of arthritis, the "golfer's wrist" that he sometimes rubbed all evening, his ear aches and sore throats and fits of indigestion. We glared at each other in our need for sympathy -- but we gave none and got none.

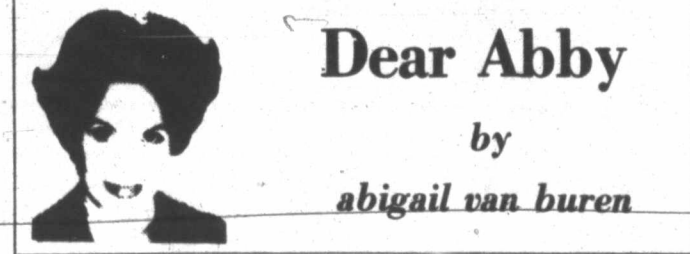

Then I was suddenly and desperately ill, all one night. I wanted to call our doctor. But Otis said, "You've just got a little of the flu that's going around. You'll be all right in the morning." But I wasn't. He had to take me to the doctor and on to the hospital where I underwent an emergency appendectomy with complications that nearly took my life. The surgeon said, "You almost stayed away too long." Otis, realizing that he'd almost lost me, became attentive, loving, completely sympathetic. He still is, to my least health hazard.

Likewise I note his hurts and tsd-tdk over them, offering pills and salve and shots and sympathy. I listen for hours as he describes the hurt of the finger he caught in the car door, the sick stomach he suffers when he overeats, the coughs that rack him when he catches cold. His smallest discomfort is my care too, as mine is his.

We know that the only place where genuine and continuing ease is found is in each other. Friends and neighbors and relatives come and go, asking and expecting only happy exchanges of pleasures and bright plans, never feeling the wish to know our discouragements or the displacement of our muscles or moods.

We don't have to pretend our genuine interest in each other's ailments now. Our quick queries, our instant ointments, our warm hands on throbbing foreheads are genuine.

We sympathize. Do you? Tell me.

Dear Abby by Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband won't let me register to vote. He says I might have to spend a month locked up in a motel with other members of a jury and no way will he allow that!

I realize that the chances of this happening are remote, but I suppose it could happen. I run a business at home and have a 4-year-old child to take care of, so I probably could be excused from jury duty anyway.

Our marriage has enough problems without adding another one, so I've abided by his wishes, but I'd really like to vote in the next election because so many important issues are coming up.

Should I go behind my husband's back and register?

WANTS TO VOTE

DEAR WANTS: No. Register in front of his face. And don't worry about being stuck with jury duty. If you have legitimate reasons for being excused, you will be.

The right to vote is not only a privilege, it's the responsibility of every citizen who wants a voice in how his country should be run -- and by whom. By choosing not to vote, you forfeit your right to criticize your government's policies and its elected officials. Edmund Burke said, "The only thing that is necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing." I'm with Edmund.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a gentleman who lets a lady win in a game of sports or cards?

GILDA

DEAR GILDA: If a gentleman lets a lady KNOW that he has let her win, he's either a bad actor or he's no gentleman.

DEAR ABBY: I've been widowed for six years and have two children, 8 and 10. For two years I've been living with a man who lights up my life. My children adore him (they think we're married), and we're a very happy family even though it's not legal.

My live-in friend and I bought a house together (as "Mrs. and Mrs.") and we share all the household expenses. A lot of people think we're married. We just never talk about our relationship. (I am "Mrs." on the mailbox, and we have "Mr. and Mrs." charge accounts, etc.)

I was recently left $100,000 by a relative. Ever since my friend heard about it he has been planning on how "we" will spend it. (He wants to buy a boat.)

I would like to put it in trust for my children. What I need to know, Abby, is this: What will happen to my children if I should die? He is not their real father, and he hasn't adopted them. And what will happen to ME if HE should die? I'm sure he's made no provisions for me in his will.

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS. Both you and your live-in friend should see a lawyer and have these questions answered immediately. Don't put it off, don't assume anything and take nothing for granted! Take your legal questions to a lawyer and pay him for what he knows. It's the best investment you can make.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (26 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

SK Information

If you fly, you undoubtedly know about jet lag, but do you know about "Skin Shock"?

It occurs when you travel from one climate to another and skin doesn't have time to adjust.

With gradual seasonal changes, your skin has time to acclimate itself to temperature and humidity differences.

But winter adjusted skin plunged into a warm, humid "summer" climate, may suffer from prickly heat, rashes and scaling. Conversely, summer adjusted skin is susceptible to dryness and winter itch.

No matter which change occurs, your skin needs extra care and pampering.

A shock of warm weather requires a lightweight moisturizer to counteract skin irritation. You may have to use it more often than a heavy lubricant, but it won't clog pores and cause prickly heat.

Upon returning to a cold climate, frequent lubrication is necessary to counteract dryness and winter itch. Moisturize with a cream, lotion or oil every night and after every shower or bath.

It is best to apply moisturizers after bathing when skin is still damp. Skin's own lipid film, which is never a totally effective barrier against moisture loss, is even less effective after bathing. An emollient will help seal in moisture for a longer period of time.

Dr. Lamb

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB -- I have a problem which is no doubt shared by many others my age and I'd be interested in some comments on the subject. My problem is slow, painless urinating which has developed over the past few years and it seems to get slower and slower. No pain -- just annoying. The urine's clear. I'm 70 years old and have a little high blood pressure and I take Diazepam for that.

DEAR READER -- It would help if you had signed your name or let me know whether you are male or female. It does make a difference when you start talking about your problem. I'm going to assume that you're a male and have a prostate gland.

The prostate gland encircles the urethral tube that drains the bladder. It's somewhat like a donut and the urethral tube goes through the hole in the donut. As you get older, the prostate gland either squeezes down or enlarges in such a way as to create pressure on the urethral tube.

It is this obstruction that causes a man to have difficulty in urination. It's a mechanical problem. The stream starts slowly, it often gets very small and sometimes it doesn't shut off completely. Most men who have lived to 70 years of age have such a problem.

If you had given me your name and address I would have sent you The Health Letter number 1-6, Prostate Gland, which would explain this subject more thoroughly. Readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The new Olive Oyl is selected

America's underweight actresses need not starve themselves for their art any longer. Producer Robert Evans has picked his Olive Oyl, and she's Shelley Duvall.

Duvall went out over such other skinny sorts as Gilda Radner of "Saturday Night Live" and Lily Tomlin. Tomlin hasn't been having much luck since "Moment by Moment" turned out to be such an unexpected howler. Tomlin's last project, "The Incredible Shrinking Woman" was scrapped when director John "Animal House" Landis couldn't get the overblown budget he wanted.

Polly's Pointers by Polly Cramer

POLLY'S PROBLEM DEAR POLLY -- Does anyone have any ideas for using those mesh bags that fruit come in? -- MRS. P.R. DEAR MRS. P.R. -- Perhaps the following letter will be of some help to you. -- POLLY

DEAR POLLY -- I take a bag that oranges come in, tie a knot at one end, drop into it all my tiny pieces of soap and then tie another knot. This makes the best back scrubber yet and by leaving the bag long it will reach to crisscross over your back for scrubbing. No more wasted soap at my house -- A.E.M.

DEAR POLLY -- I save the small mesh bags that onions come in for holding soap scraps. Fold, stitch across raw edges, turn, stitch around three edges and halfway across the fourth side. Drop soap scraps inside and finish stitching fourth side. These are great in the bath, for hand washing and even dish washing. You name it -- they are so handy. -- MRS. H.S.M.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Have a little patience if things start out on the wrong foot today. Everything will work out better than you could hope for.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Because you keep your temper in check today, one who was trying to throw cold water on your ideas will fail. You'll have things your way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something that means a lot to you could get misplaced today. You're lucky an honest person will return it to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You may not have full cooperation at first today. However, you handle dissenters so diplomatically that you'll have them eating out of your hand.

Wheeler athletes receive honors

RANDY MATSON, a graduate of Pampa High School, was the featured speaker Monday night at the all-sports banquet at Wheeler High School. Matson is a former record holder in the shot put and was a gold medal winner in the Olympics. (Pampa News Photo By Greg Hardin)

By JERRY GUNTER
Pampa News Sports Editor
WHEELER—Presentation of awards along with a special message by former Pampa High graduate Randy Matson highlighted Monday evening's Wheeler Mustang all-sports banquet.

A full-house was on hand to see athletes in each of the sports honored by their respective coaches for the 1978-79 season at Wheeler High.

Former world shot put holder and Pampa High graduate Randy Matson spoke to the Mustang athletes encouraging them to always give that little extra which is necessary in sporting activities.

"There is a great deal of importance in winning," noted Matson, "but winning is not everything. What matters is how much you put out. Just like when I was throwing the shot put—I always strived to improve on each throw and that really helped me out a lot."

He continued by saying, "Once we come to the point where we try to maintain the status quo—we go down."

In addition to Matson's talk, several awards were presented to the Mustangs in each of the sports.

The outstanding girls tennis player as presented by coach Cathy Carter went to Beth Wills. In boy's tennis, coach Mike Morgan honored Myron Jolly as the award winner.

Charles Carter, girls track coach, talked of his team's improvement during the year and the success it had enjoyed. Therefore, he presented the outstanding athlete award to the entire 1979 team. Coach Joe Allen presented the outstanding boys track award to Mike Gallagher.

The outstanding girls basketball player award was given to Kerri Childress, while in boys basketball, the honoree was Myron Jolly.

In football, Mike Lee was named as the top offensive lineman and defensive back. Meanwhile, Marvin Grimes was selected as the outstanding offensive back and defensive lineman.

Charles Carter presented the Mustangette Award to Beth Wills, while Grimes was given the Mustang Award. Grimes also was honored with the Fighting Mustang Award.

Also honored with special awards were the four all-state football players. They included Grimes at running back and Jolly at defensive back. Also honored was Vic Bradford (offensive and defensive tackle) along with Mike Lee, who was all-state at both linebacker and offensive guard.

Matson told about getting interested in shot put at an early age and related a humorous story.

"I wasn't getting in enough practice at the school yard, so my Dad decided to fix me a place to throw in our yard. One time I got a real good one off, but it swerved off to the left and hit my mother's car. She came out and was pretty upset, but my Dad came to my rescue and said to my Mother, 'Why if you hadn't had your car in the way, he might have got 60 foot on that throw.'

Matson, like so many athletes find out today upon graduation, said that sometimes it became a hassle in dealing with coaches when trying to pick the college to attend.

"Yes, sometimes it can bother you some," explained Matson. "Back then you weren't limited to the number of times that you could visit a player and I think Texas Tech contacted me something like 30 times. But I had narrowed it down pretty quick and it didn't take me long to see that Texas A&M was the school for me."

Matson said that he felt that athletes, mainly in track, are at a disadvantage in competition with participants from the other parts of the state.

"It is just getting to the point of the year here in the Panhandle that the weather is really suitable for the kids. While down close to College Station, they have had so much more nice weather. It really takes more dedication from someone up here to compete with the others because of the weather disadvantages," added Matson.

WCT involved in another controversy

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — The World Championship of Tennis found itself involved in another injury controversy today.

Jimmy Connors was given a day's grace in his first round match at the expense of John McEnroe and John Alexander. McEnroe launched into a diatribe Monday because his schedule had been disturbed.

Bjorn Borg said if he had moved his schedule he wouldn't show up for the match.

Barring any last second whim by McEnroe, the match was on tonight at Moody Coliseum between the fiery 20-year-old American and Alexander, a 28-year-old Australian, who made the WCT semifinals in 1975.

Connors, if his injured left hand comes around, was now scheduled to play 23-year-old Gene Mayer, a first-time WCT performer, Wednesday night.

Borg plays Geoff Masters and defending champion Vitas Gerulaitis plays Brian Gottfried Thursday night.

The semifinals are Friday night with the survivors meeting Sunday afternoon for the $100,000 first prize.

Borg, who whipped Connors in straight sets last week in the Alan King Classic in Las Vegas, had to withdraw last year because of an injury and defaulted to Gerulaitis. WCT officials drew criticism in the way the announcement was handled. There were charges the announcement was delayed 24 hours after the WCT became aware Borg was defaulting. The WCT denied it.

Connors was supposed to play Mayer tonight and McEnroe and Alexander were originally paired for Wednesday night.

"I'm not happy about it," said the 20-year-old McEnroe, who like Connors is known for his on-court temper-tantrums. "I came here prepared to play Wednesday. Why can't both matches be played Wednesday?"

"They can play Connors Sunday at midnight for all I care but I still want to play Wednesday."

However, WCT officials had Pat DuPre in the wings should McEnroe pull out.

Mike Davies of the WCT said there must be a match Tuesday night because tickets were printed and sold.

"If he (McEnroe) withdraws, he withdraws," said Davies.

Connors, who was in Las Vegas, failed to show Monday for the WCT press day.

He later flew to Dallas with his wife.

Dr. Richard Browning said from Las Vegas Monday that Connors had an infected little finger on his left hand caused from a broken callus. He also said Connors had respiratory problems and a swollen toe.

"I'm sure he (Connors) will play," said Dr. Browning. "He is very determined."

Asked what he would have done if they had moved up his match, Borg said "I wouldn't play. You prepare to play for the day they tell you."

Borg criticized Connors because he missed the press conference.

"He (Connors) should be here," said Borg.

Derby only small part of Louisville attraction

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — There's a rumor that everyone swarms to Louisville on the first weekend in May each year to watch a bunch of horses run around a dirt track. Don't believe it.

At one time in its 105-year history, the Kentucky Derby may have been just a two-minute horse race. But it has become an extravaganza, a seven-day circus, a week-long excuse to go crazy, drink, party, swap lies and blow a year's savings.

The Kentucky Derby, today's version, is a young tradition. Not in years, certainly, but in spirit. It's almost as if someone sat up one Derby Day, looked at the Churchill Downs infield full of partying teen-agers, and said, "Why just one day of fun?"

And so it came to pass that Derby Day stretched from an afternoon into several days. And the fun multiplied with the hours.

There's a balloon race, a runner's marathon, a 100-kilometer bike race and a steamboat race on the Ohio River. There are picnics, concerts, all-star basketball games and a parade.

The super-rich throw parties, some of which would seem more at home in ancient Rome than in a normally quiet Midwestern town. Why, girls even jump out of cakes!

On the seamier side, the Derby week crowds provide a paradise for pickpockets, con artists and prostitutes.

HORSE RACING is the reason for the Kentucky Derby, but fun - and - games is the reason that thousands of people flock to Louisville each year to take part in Derby Week.

And the whole thing is mixed thoroughly, and liberally, with that old favorite of drinks, the mint-julep, as well as with anything and virtually everything that has a measurable alcoholic content.

And celebrities are everywhere. Each year, the Derby offers a veritable who's who of the year's big names. Last year, for instance, super-model Cheryl Tiegs and Jaclyn Smith of television's "Charlie's Angels" were on hand.

This time around, none other than Walter Cronkite, the Most Trusted Man in America according to one national poll, will be in attendance.

England's Princess Margaret was the big name in 1974, and President Nixon commanded the limelight in 1970. Any self-respecting autograph hound could fill a book in a week's time.

For some of the locals, Derby Week is an excuse to test capitalism's law of supply and demand. Hotel rooms that sit empty in January go for $100 or more a night in May. Residents who live near the track don't bat an eye in demanding $10 for the use of their lawn as a parking space or the roof of their house as a distant vantage point.

Somewhere in the middle of all this, there is indeed a horse race. Some 3-year-old thoroughbred will get his picture in newspapers around the world. His breeding value will skyrocket.

Some people would do almost anything, and pay almost any amount, for grandstand seats on Derby Day. There are only about 43,000 seats, "and we could do with about 143,000," says Bob Gorham, vice president of Churchill Downs.

Some of the juicier divorce cases each year involve Derby tickets, and the Louisville papers are jammed with outlandish pleas for tickets. One fellow offered a two-week vacation in the Caribbean to anyone who'd give up Derby seats. He got the tickets.

The easiest tickets are those to the infield. Sold on race day, these $10 ducats guarantee only breathing room.

The official reason for the whole carnival is lost to thousands of people even on the day of the race. The kids in the infield at Churchill Downs haven't a hope of seeing the race, but they don't seem to care.

The infield on Derby Day becomes a microcosm of what the city has been all week. Beer flows freely, clothes peel from male and female bodies as the sun reaches its zenith. Frisbees fill the air.

"With 100,000 people, we're the third-largest city in Kentucky, and we have all the same things happening that usually happen in a city that size," says Bill Rudy of the Churchill Downs publicity office.

"There have been people born, heart attacks, marriages, divorces. Some infielders are determined, just for form's sake, to place a $2 bet on the Derby. There's a story told of one poor fellow, thinking he was placing a bet, who stood in line for three hours only to find that he was next into the rest room.
