Man seen with rifle days before judge shot

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A report surfaced Saturday that federal agents investigating Tuesday's assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. have been told about a man with a rifle and a walkie-talkie seen near Wood's townhouse several days earlier.

An FBI official said Saturday of the report, "I can't deny or confirm it" and refused further comment.

Meanwhile, a source close to the intense investigation into the sniper slaying said the FBI has received no significant responses to the two composite sketches released Friday of men witnesses said were in the "immediate vicinity" the morning of the shooting.

"None of the responses is anything to get excited about," he said.

Wood, 63, known as "Maximum John" for his stiff sentences in drug cases, was killed by a sniper who fired a single 243-caliber bullet into the judge's spine.

A 243-caliber bullet is usually fired from a high-powered deer rifle, although FBI officials have refused to speculate on the type of weapon used in the slaying.

It was the second time in seven months a Western District of Texas official connected to massive West Texas narcotics smuggling cases has been ambushed. Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr escaped serious injury when his car was riddled by bullets Nov. 21 as he drove to work.

FBI officials have refused to comment on whether they believe the two assaults are connected. Kerr and U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd have said they feel Wood's assassination is connected to the massive drug smuggling investigations and have vowed to accelerate the crackdown.

The report about the man, published in the San Antonio Express-News, said a witness had told the FBI about the man with the rifle and walkie-talkie near the judge's townhouse an undetermined number of days before the shooting.

Some investigators, the report said, felt the man might provide a link between the Kerr and Wood attacks. Other investigators, however, eliminated that possibility because the man sought in the Kerr case had tattoos and the man allegedly spotted near Wood's home did not, the report added.

The two composite sketches released Friday were put together after the FBI collected descriptions from "more than one" witness.

"We're not saying these people are connected to the case in any way, but we're not saying they're not either," Daniel Shaffer, the assistant director of the investigation, said Friday.

The sketches showed two men in their late 20s or 30s, one with brownish long hair, glasses and a mustache and the other clean-shaven with medium length light hair and glasses.

To cut premium cost No-fault insurance not answer

No-fault insurance was trumpeted as the answer to rising auto insurance rates when it was pioneered in Massachusetts. Eight years later, it has met with only mixed success and more than two-thirds of the country remains without it.

In fact, last week Nevada became the first state with a no-fault system to repeal it. On Monday, the legislature voted to cancel the state's 6-year-old no-fault law after premiums soared.

That leaves 15 other states with full-fledged no-fault systems. And while no-fault has quickened payments to accident victims, it has not showed the savings expected in some states.

At its best, no-fault compensates more people more quickly at less cost, according to supporters such as Lynn Sutcliffe, former counsel of the Senate Commerce Committee. At its worst, it is too costly.

No-fault insurance was designed to lower premiums by discouraging lawsuits over the responsibility for accidents and damages. Once an individual files a claim under no-fault, his own insurance company pays for costs stemming from injury — no matter who is responsible.

States permit lawsuits for "general" damages such as pain and suffering only after a set minimum is reached. In some states, this "threshold" is based on a specified amount for medical bills — it was $750 in Nevada. In other states it is simply a verbal standard, such as disabling, disfiguring, or otherwise "serious" injuries.

In states like New Jersey and Nevada, where critics of the law said that the dollar threshold was too low to discourage lawsuits, rates have had to rise to keep pace with generous benefits.

"Where no-fault has not worked well is where the threshold for lawsuits isn't high enough to keep minor cases from being litigated," comments Leslie Cheek, a vice president of Crum & Forster Insurance Cos. "That only mimics the old system. You can't save money without cutting out old expenses."

The Senate Commerce Committee agreed, reporting in 1978 that "a sound no-fault system ... saves money while paying more benefits."

Additionally, an insurance industry group called the All-Industry Research Advisory Committee noted in a 500-page study just published that 81 percent of the accident victims in no-fault states got their money within three months and 90 percent did so within six months.

To native Poland Pope John Paul II begins visit

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II, igniting a massive outpouring of sentiment in this most Roman Catholic of communist nations, began his visit home Saturday with an outdoor Mass for 300,000 people. A torrid sun, that shot the temperature into the 90s, bathed the site in Warsaw's Victory Square.

Officials estimated that a million people came to see the first Polish pontiff, nearly doubling this capital's population.

About 20,000 crowded the airport to see John Paul step from his jet from Rome and kiss the soil of his native land, which he had left seven months before as Cardinal Karol Wojtyla, a prelate little known to the world.

The 59-year-old pope was cautious in his remarks to President Henryk Jablonski and other leaders of Poland's communist government, but he clearly chided them by noting that Pope Paul VI who died last August had gone to his grave without fulfilling his dream of visiting this country where about 90 percent of its 35 million people are Roman Catholics.

"Today it is granted to me to fulfill this desire of the deceased Pope Paul VI to be in the midst of you, beloved sons and daughters of my motherland," he said in his homily at the outdoor Mass.

The government twice turned down requests by Pope Paul make a pilgrimage to Poland.

At the airport in the morning, John Paul told the crowd: "My visit has been dictated by religious motives. I earnestly hope that my present journey in Poland may serve the great cause of rapprochement and of cooperation among nations ... for reconciliation and for peace in the contemporary world."

Crowds gathered everywhere along John Paul's motorcade route through Warsaw. Some began taking their places before dawn to await his arrival, which was at 10:07 a.m. (4 a.m. EDT).

The white and yellow flag of the Vatican fluttered on the pope's route alongside Poland's red and white standard.

Faithful wearing yellow hats, children in traditional peasant dress and ordinary Poles in shirts and jeans waited hours on the sun-drenched streets for a glimpse of the pope. He stood shaded by a yellow canopy on a vehicle that looked like an elevated golf cart.

Poles had the day off from work, as they do every fourth Saturday.

On his flight from Rome, the pope had said he was trying to control his emotions on the occasion of his first trip home since becoming the leader of the world's 750 million Catholics on Oct. 16, chosen as successor to Pope John Paul I, who died in September.

After the landing here, he stepped off the plane onto a red carpet, knelt beside it and kissed the ground, a gesture he had made on his stop in the Dominican Republic in late January en route to Mexico.

On Sunday, he travels to the ancient religious capital of Gniezno, 150 miles to the west of Warsaw.

Nona Payne marks 90th year

Nona Payne

The largest bronze statue west of the Mississippi, a likeness of the legendary William Cody or "Buffalo Bill" now stands at Oklahoma City's Cowboy Hall of Fame. The statue owes its existence in large part to the philanthropic assistance of Pampa Nona Payne, who has taken an abiding interest in the activities of that living shrine to the gone but not forgotten Old West.

Recently, plans for a second life size bronze statue, a rendering of Frederick Remington's famous painting "Coming Through the Rye", were announced by the Hall of Fame. The project is being supported by contributions from Mrs. Payne, who is a staunch supporter of a multitude of projects at the Hall including the well-known Fraiser art collection.

Yet in an age which has perhaps made generosity a rarity, the Pampa philanthropist is proving that—despite enduring support to such cultural institutions as the Cowboy Hall of Fame—charity begins at home.

At two weeks short of 90, Mrs. Payne is most fondly appreciated by local high school musicians for her interests in both the band and the choir.

Annual band and choir scholarships were established by Mrs. Payne in 1978. In 1978 and 1979, the Pampa High School Choir, was invited through her to perform at the Cowboy Hall of Fame.

Born in Bloomfield, Iowa, on June 14, 1889, Mrs. Payne has worked in Enid, Okla. for Newman's and in Wichita Falls and Amarillo for Morrow Thomas Hardware.

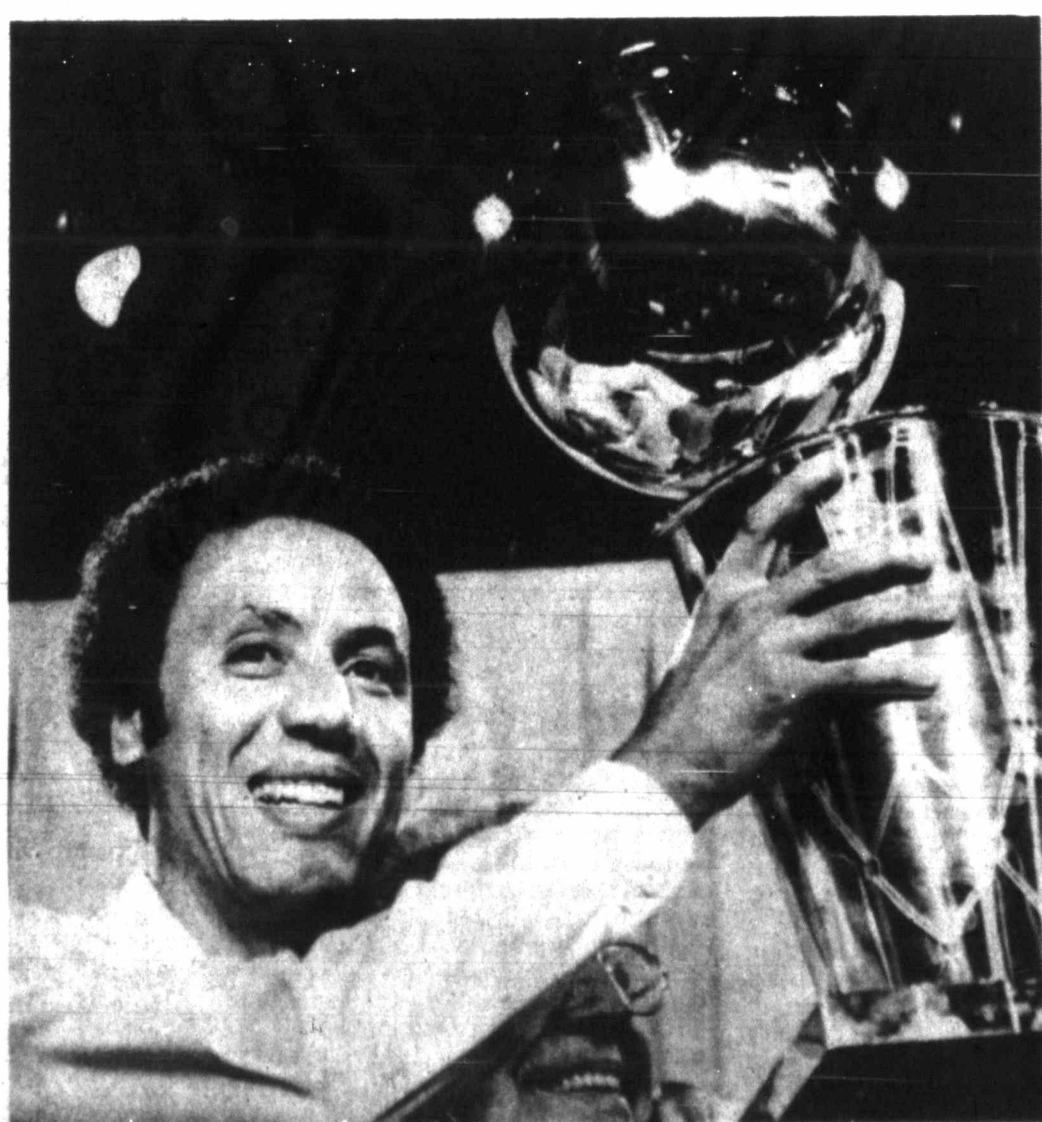

Since the death of her husband, rancher David Payne, Mrs. Payne has become even more actively involved as a contributor to a large number of local organizations and causes.

Mrs. Payne has locally supported, belonged to, or contributed generously to numerous churches of various denominations—especially to building funds. She has also been a donor, contributor or benefactor to Genesis House, the Salvation Army, and Senior Citizens, among many others. Mrs. Payne has recently contributed to the Pampa Children's Home, operated by the Church of Christ on Mary Ellen Street.

She enjoys a life membership in the Panhandle Historical Society and the Cowboy Hall of Fame, and is a member of the Historical Society of Canyon and the Professional Rodeo Society.

An avid and entertaining host, Mrs. Payne has become known for her elaborate breakfasts at the Lincoln Plaza in Oklahoma City. Today, however, the tables of hospitality will turn as friends celebrate this generous lady's 90th birthday today—just a few days early—at the Pampa Country Club.

A salute to a lady who is herself a monument to a Biblical truth: It is better to give than receive.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Misunderstanding about cancer

Reading the news stories based on releases from various sources concerning "cancer threats" leaves the public in a quandary. Adding to this, health officials have, in many cases, launched many a regulatory wild goose chase. This has resulted in funds being diverted to workplace hazards which could have been better spent in major risk areas.

Dr. John Higginson, director of the World Health Organization's International Agency for Research on Cancer, coined the term "Environmental Cancer" and draws attention to the general misunderstanding which has become prevalent. He says, "Workplace hazards account for probably no more than six percent of all cancers. Most cancers are the result of our own lifestyles and are somewhat within our own control."

Higginson says that many people are tempted to overlook the more serious cancer threats such as smoking, excessive alcohol use and improper diet. He said, "The causation of cancer is complex. While we do know that certain man-made chemicals induce tumors, we are equally positive that each individual, by leading a more prudent lifestyle, can substantially decrease his or her personal risk."

Thus it is possible that regulatory agencies, if they only concentrate on cancers associated with the workplace, may be diverting excessive funds and attention from major risk areas. As scientists do not dismiss the importance of air and water pollution, generated primarily by industries, as a contributing cause of some cancers. Yet, try as we may, we can find no consistent correlation between cancer rates and the extent of industrialization of certain localities.

Dr. John R. Goldsmith, an air pollution expert with the Health Sciences Faculty of Ben Gurion University, Israel, has shown that in the United States, several cities that are generally regarded to have a relatively clean environment with little or no heavy industry, show higher cancer rates than industrial cities such as Detroit, Pittsburgh and Birmingham. San Francisco, "that Nirvana of the West," shows higher cancer rates than Los Angeles, which has so much of its air pollution related to the petrochemical industry.

As an example of misguided government action on a "carcinogen" and its damaging effects to a society, Dr. Higginson said, "A recent report from India indicated that following the discontinuation of DDT use in the malaria program, there had been a resurgence of Kala-azar (an Asian infectious disease caused by the bite of sand fleas) with 100,000 cases and 4,000 deaths in 1976. Control of this disease was a side effect of the DDT program. A decision to reintroduce the pesticide has now been made."

"The air we breathe, the chemicals in the food we eat, and the water we drink may increase the risk in some cases, but no absolute cause and effect relationship can be shown. So let's keep it all in proper perspective. Because that's the best way to attack cancer," the doctor concluded.

Dr. Higginson's talk was related to keeping a proper perspective from the health aspect. We think his remarks are timely and should be observed by the public and especially by governmental agencies. There is another great concern which can be added: the factor of cost effectiveness is of primary concern, for without that perspective, there can be tremendous waste of funds through misguided and fruitless misdirection.

The pursuit of guidance through proper perspective is badly needed in the area of fighting the causes of cancer.

Gassing up the wind machine

By BUTLER D. SHAFFER

The gas lines here in Los Angeles have, indeed, become an annoying inconvenience. I strongly suspect the so-called "gas shortage" is one of those contrived "problems" designed to generate "public demands" for government controls. I have witnessed this sort of public manipulation before, such as during the Johnson administration when government officials helped to organize and conduct one of those "grass-roots" boycotts by housewives.

Whatever the cause may be, the current petroleum episode does have its lighter moments. The morose response to the gas situation by politicians, television newscasters, editorial writers, and self-anointed "consumer advocates" has provided more than enough humor to offset the aggravations associated with buying gasoline.

The lines at gasoline stations are nothing compared to the lines of economic ignoramus and "consumer rights" charlatans who have queued up at local television stations to await their turns at indicting cruel and unusual punishment upon an already beleaguered public. The competition to surpass prior outlandish nincompoopery has been fierce, demonstrating that there is certainly no monopoly on bubble-headed economic phantasmagoria.

Anyone who has stood in line to buy a tankful of gasoline now regards himself as equally qualified and informed as industry representatives to theorize on the causes of the gas shortages. What ballroom dancing instructor does not now fancy himself an authority on the subject? One newspaper even took to printing the opinions of grade-school children, leaving the readership to ponder whether, in future editions, the paper might choose to poll the asylums or the indigenous indigents of "skid row."

We are witnessing mongrelized Jacobin-Populism running amuck. The yahoos are abandoning the television quiz shows and pouring into the streets in their campers and RV's to man the barricades against the threat of oozing capitalism. Shoe salesmen with Ph.D.'s in anthropology have embarked on new careers in today's major growth industry: "consumer rights advocacy." People who, just last week, were certifying one another as experts on nuclear power plants, are now busily conferring instant petroleum authority status on each other.

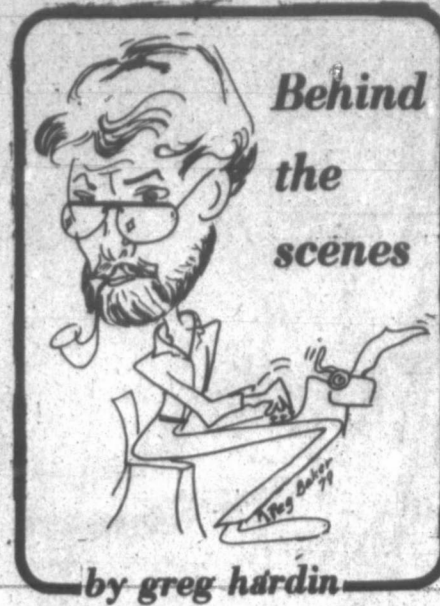

I have heard more preposterous conspiracy-theory buncombe in recent days than one would find at a free-for-all debate between the John Birch Society and Ralph Nader's staff. One Keynesian retread discovered his own school of economic thought when he suggested that the oil companies were intentionally withholding oil in order to punish motorists for having purchased ever-larger quantities of gasoline at ever-higher prices.

Not to be left behind in this hokumhuckstering, others jumped up to tell of visions of gasoline transports streaming into the deserts to dump their gasoline, or of fleets of oil tankers anchored off shore like the Japanese fleet at Pearl Harbor. I am surprised that no one has yet suggested that the oil companies are loading gasoline onto UFO's and shipping it off to Adolf Hitler on Mars! But then, I haven't seen today's news shows either.

Nor have we heard from the psychics, the astrologers, the palmists, or other related frauds. Perhaps they could conduct a public seance — the TV talk shows would be a good forum since most of them are well experienced in airing this kind of stuff — and conjure up the spirit of John D. Rockefeller to tell us where we went wrong. At the very least, the psychics ought to be able to go into the shakes and tell us where all the oil is located.

You will have to admit that the gasoline "crisis" has provided us with one hell of a show, although I imagine the rest of the entertainment industry must be a little uneasy at being upstaged by amateurs. The competition must be a little unnerving since, after all, this new crowd of cretins works far below union scale, and is prepared to go on at a moment's notice. All you need to do is wave an oil company credit card in their terror-struck faces and watch them go into fits of uncontrolled babbling. What zoo can long hope to compete for the entertainment budgets of bowling league secretaries and manicurists when this gaggle of unemployed sociologists hits the electronic midway? Think about it: The gas crisis may not be all that bad. When it's over, we may only be left with re-runs of Gilligan's Island.

A telephone call. An ambulance screams through the streets over the bumps and dips of Pampa's streets.

A near collision as a motorist refuses to give way to the emergency vehicle. Precious seconds pass as ambulance personnel try desperately to reach the address given in the short conversation.

Finally, in a frantic rush, the trained personnel reach the house to aid the injured. All of this they find has been for nothing — only a false alarm.

A woman with nothing better to do or simply playing a joke.

A joke played with the lives of others — the ambulance personnel — the fallen victims of tragedy that may have been saved if emergency help had been available.

This little story is not make believe. It happened this week. Here in Pampa.

False alarms are not as frequent here as in other cities but one fictitious call to ambulance personnel, the police or the fire department is one call too many.

People have died racing to give aid to injured or trapped personnel and many have died racing to a false alarm.

A call of distress is always taken as a life depends on quick response and often does.

We think only children make such ridiculous calls to make a false report but our thinking is faulty. Many adults place calls for emergency aid when there is no emergency.

Anyone that makes such a report should be penalized under the law but many times only receive a warning from the authorities because no law can effectively be enforced to contain such prank calls.

If the people of Pampa worked each day as the reporters and editors of the News do with the police, firemen and ambulance personnel, then they would have a deep respect for the job that these men and women do for the residents of our town.

Each time you see an emergency vehicle screaming through our streets, remember those men and women may give up their lives in the next few minutes to protect ours.

A false alarm is the worst thing that anyone could do to these people — a blown tire or a vehicle that won't pull to the side might end the lives of those trying to help in an emergency. We shouldn't increase the risk they already face.

Old warriors have old ways

by paul harvey

Gen. Bernard Rogers, Army chief of staff, says we must revive the military draft immediately. He wants a lottery for picking recruits and prosecution for draft evaders — immediately. He wants to start calling up recruits a hundred thousand a year for mandatory training and standby duty.

So the footsoldier concept is not dead. Some individuals charged with responsibility for our nation's external security are still ignoring technology, still thinking and planning in terms of marching men and bayonets.

Old warriors have old ways. There are still those in the Pentagon who are willing to fight the next war with the weapons which lost the last two.

For seven years now the United States has managed fine without a military draft. There is no war in sight which should involve us.

Yet Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Army Secretary Rogers and Marine Commandant Louis H. Wilson are all urging resuming regimentation of our civilian population. All of them want to revive the draft and Brown wants to draft women as well.

On the Hill it is Sen. John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) and the old men who are most willing to draft young men to fight their wars for them.

Since the volunteer concept was introduced during the Nixon years, many Pentagon generals — especially in the Army — have resisted the idea, at least subconsciously have hoped it would not work.

The fact that it has worked they are now willing to ignore in their eagerness to resurrect our country's last vestige of involuntary servitude.

In our nation right now we have 2.1 million men and women on active military duty, another 800,000 in the selective reserves, another 300,000 in the individual ready reserves — plus between 50,000 and 100,000 in the delayed entry program.

Further, our country has a history of being able to recruit more than 20,000 volunteers even during such an unpopular war as Vietnam.

Why in the world do the generals want more?

I don't know how long are the memories of the mothers of Korea and Vietnam and the school-agers who mounted such massive resistance to the draft in the '60s.

Some student groups have threatened an anti-draft campaign that they say will include civil disobedience if necessary.

Nobody can want to see those confrontations revived.

Aside from the extravagant absurdity of resurrecting 5,000 costly, cumbersome, potentially subvertible draft boards, there is the consideration of whether weapons, tactics and strategy are going to be updated or remain antiquated.

If we are going to rely on massed manpower, we can't win. There is no way our seven percent of the world's mothers can produce enough boy and girl babies to match the hordes of Asia.

We will keep potential enemies at a distance with a thermonuclear first in the face; nothing less.

And our strategic arsenal can be effectively manned by a comparative handful of skilled technicians.

But old warriors have old ways. They need to be retired or reeducated.

Is Schweiker serious

Legislators serving the supposedly economy-minded 96th Congress continue to talk out of both sides of their mouths, promising to cut taxes and the federal budget while simultaneously bragging about the expensive federal programs they have attracted to their states and districts.

The most recent example involves Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., who introduced legislation to limit the growth of federal spending on the grounds that Congress must be "truly serious about fighting inflation, cutting back federal spending and balancing the budget."

Explained Schweiker: "There has been no clearer mandate from the American people in recent years than their desire to balance the budget, limit government spending and cut taxes."

But the Coalition of American Public Employees discovered that only one month earlier the senator distributed to his constituents a newsletter "proudly citing his raids on pork barrel."

Economizer Schweiker boasted of his role in securing for Pennsylvania federal funds to finance a $10 million highway bypass, a $7.8 million lock and dam project and $5 million for river and beach anti-erosion projects.

Bottling up the competition

After almost a decade of intensive lobbying, the nation's biggest marketers of soft drinks believe they have lined up a majority in both houses of Congress to gain special immunity from federal anti-trust laws.

The political struggle began in 1971, when the staff of the Federal Trade Commission charged that the major producers of carbonated soft drinks violated the anti-trust statutes through the use of unique franchising arrangements.

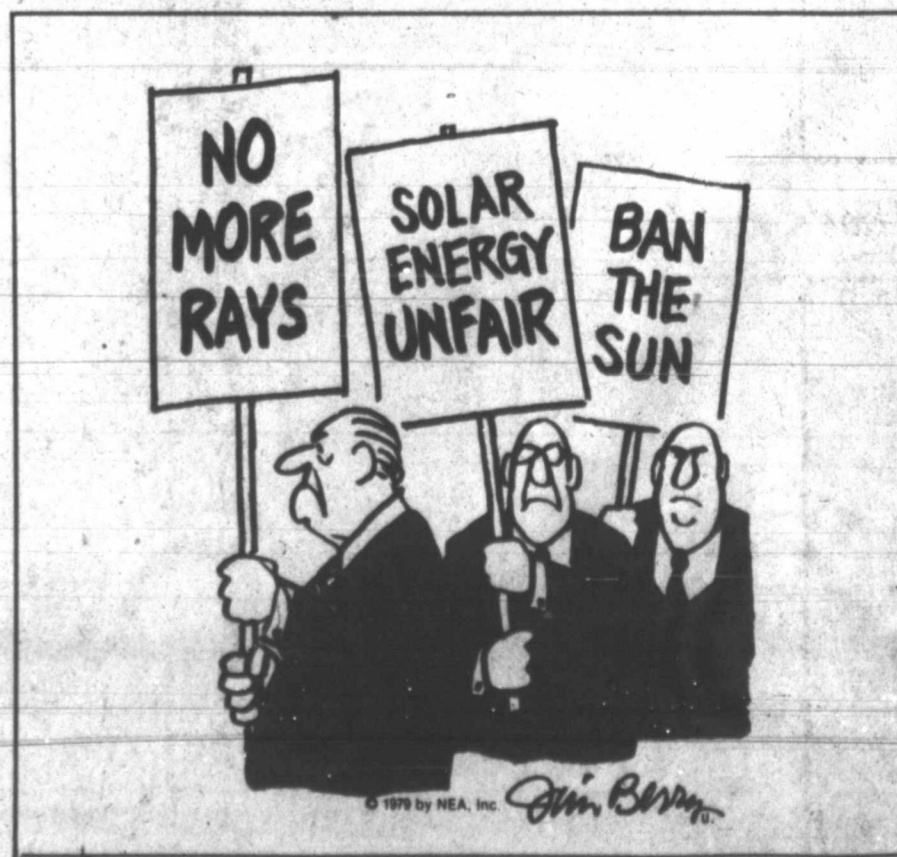

In return for the right to distribute Coca Cola, Pepsi Cola and other nationally advertised brands of soda, independently owned local bottling companies must accept strictly enforced limitations on their marketing territory.

A Coke or Pepsi distributor in one community, for example, cannot compete with a bottler of the same soda in an adjoining town. The result: virtually no price competition in the sale of each brand of soft drinks.

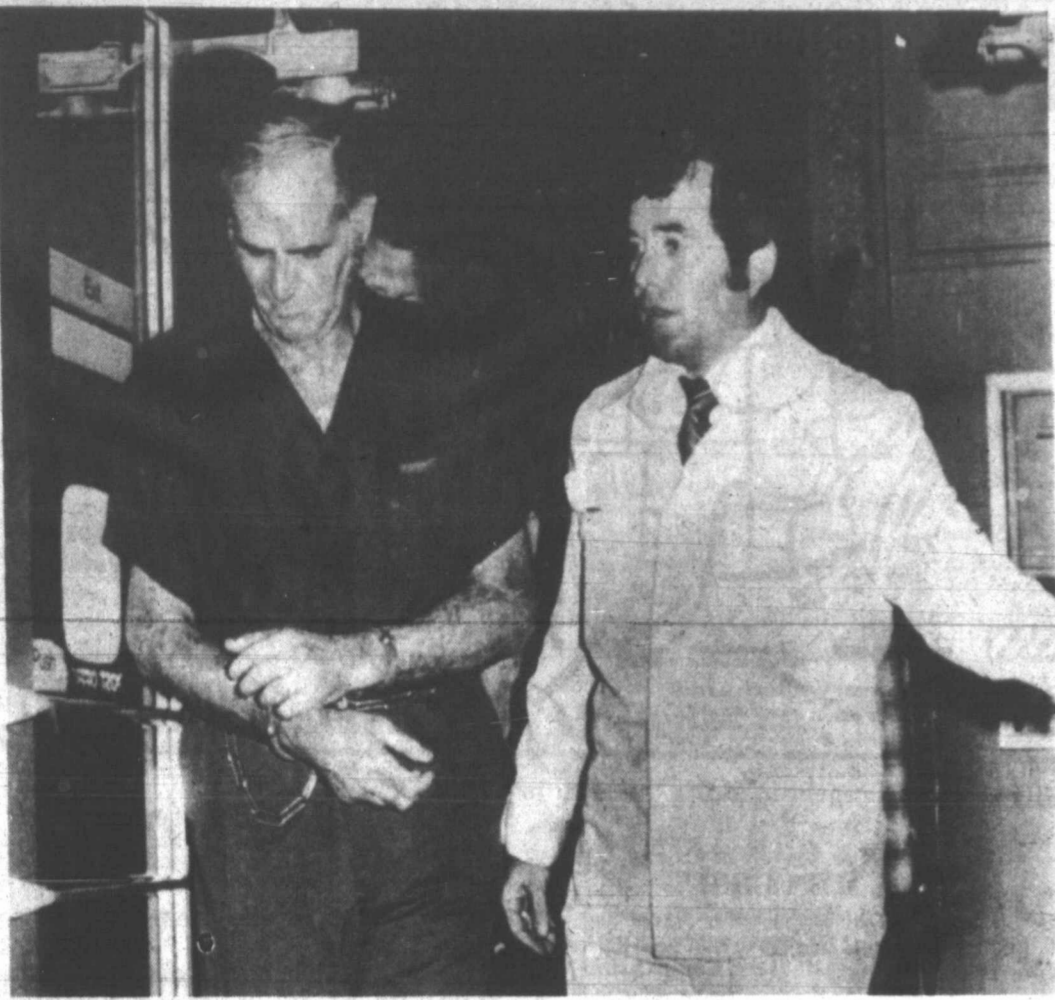

Although legislation to authorize a special anti-trust exemption has been introduced in Congress in eight of the past nine years, it never has been approved by both the House and Senate.

This year, however, the $11 billion-per-year industry has lined up almost 200 co-sponsors in the House and about 75 in the Senate. The one remaining impediment is the possibility that unfriendly legislators may attempt to (pardon the pun) bottle up the bill in committee.

Arrested in Laredo Search for LeBaron ends

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Polygamist leader Ervil LeBaron, arrested by the FBI and jailed in Laredo, Texas, was trying to decide Saturday whether to fight extradition to Utah to face murder charges, authorities said.

A 20-month search for LeBaron, 54, ended Friday afternoon with his arrest at the Mexican border and arraignment before U.S. Magistrate Tom Goodwin, who set bail at $100,000.

LeBaron, who was being held in the Webb County Jail in Laredo on a federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for murder, was given 10 days to line up an attorney.

LeBaron, who has at least a dozen wives, is head of the polygamist Church of the Lamb of God. Considered a prophet by his followers, he once claimed the right to kill false prophets.

He is wanted in Utah and California on murder and conspiracy charges and is accused of masterminding the slaying of rival polygamist leader Rulon Allred, who was shot to death by two persons in his Murray, Utah doctor's office May 10, 1977.

"He said that he had been in touch with an attorney," Murray City Police Detective Gary Pedersen said Saturday. Pedersen spoke by telephone from the Webb County Jail.

If LeBaron chooses to fight extradition, a removal hearing would be scheduled, but only after he finds an attorney, Pedersen said. "So the removal hearing could be up to a week away," he said.

"I think the fellow (LeBaron) just said he was in no position to know what to do until he had consulted his attorney," said U.S. Attorney Emilio Davila Jr. in Laredo.

If LeBaron waives extradition, he will be brought to Utah to stand trial in Allred's death, said U.S. Attorney Stephen W. Snarr in Salt Lake City.

For mass murders Henley goes on trial Monday

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Elmer Wayne Henley of Houston, a teen-ager when he was convicted five years ago in connection with a two-year homosexual torture and death spree, goes on trial again Monday.

Henley, now 23, earlier this year won a new trial when the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled that State District Judge Preston Dial erred in refusing to hold a change of venue hearing requested by the Henley defense.

Dial presided over the case in San Antonio after it was moved from Houston — a city shocked by accounts of the gruesome deaths of 27 teen-agers. The case was moved here to the court of State District Judge Noah Kennedy after the new trial was ordered. The trial opens Monday with what could be a lengthy jury selection process.

In July 1974, after five days of prosecution testimony and no defense testimony, a six-man, six-woman jury convicted Henley of murder in the deaths of six teen-agers. The jurors recommended 99-year sentences for each of the deaths.

The grisly murders came to light in August 1973 when Henley called police to tell them he had shot and killed Dean Arnold Corll, a 33-year-old Houston Lighting & Power employee. Henley told police the shooting came after a night of terror during which a teen-age girl and boy were handcuffed to a "torture board" where they were to be sexually abused by Corll.

The Corll death was ruled self-defense after Henley disclosed the details of his relationship with the older man. It began, Henley said, when he was 15 and was told that Corll would pay youths to attract teen-age boys to his Houston Heights home.

It ended when Henley shot Corll and led investigators to 27 bodies of youths allegedly tortured and killed by Corll.

Testimony during the first trial showed that Corll handcuffed youths to the plywood board and homosexually tortured them before they died. The bodies were then taken to either a boat shed in southwest Houston, Lake Sam Rayburn in East Texas or a High Island beach for burial.

Judge Kennedy has ordered tight security for the Henley trial here. Spectators will only be allowed in and out of the courtroom during recesses. Kennedy also said Nueces County Sheriff Solomon Ortiz has ordered metal detector inspections.

The new trial will add a new chapter for the parents of the victims. Dorothy Hilligiest said her family had finally learned to live with the horror of having her 13-year-old son die in the murder spree. Now she says she has some trouble understanding why there will be a new trial.

"I try to be as open and as fair as I can. I know it will not bring any of our boys back. I don't blame (the Henley family) for fighting for their son. At least he's alive so they can fight for him," she recently said from her Houston home, five blocks from where Corll once ran a candy store.

But defense attorney Will Gray apparently is not surprised by the second trial. After the San Antonio trial — during which he made 303 objections — he predicted there would be a new trial for his client. He erred only in predicting that the second trial would come within two years.

Harris County District Attorney Carol Vance, who called Henley a "monster" at the first trial, said he does not anticipate much difference in the prosecution. However, he said he could not predict if the defense would change its strategy and offer testimony here.

The case also adds a new chapter for Joseph Jachimczyk, the Harris County medical examiner who still has possession of the skeletal remains of six victims never identified.

Texas town flooded by heavy rains

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — Heavy rains pushed two creeks from their banks in this southeast Texas town Saturday, causing severe flooding and forcing evacuations of at least 500 persons, some from atop roofs and second-floor balconies.

Law officers reported water standing up to 15 feet deep in some parts of the city. The National Weather Service said 4 inches of rain fell Saturday morning and more was expected.

There were no reports of injuries.

The Nacogdoches Fire Department put out an emergency call for boats to aid in the evacuations in the city of 28,000 people.

At least apartment complexes were evacuated, and two large trailer parks were reported under water.

Many streets were impassable, several bridges were under water, and some county roads were also flooded and blocked.

The Bonita and Lanana creeks spilled over their banks, causing most of the problems.

Weather Texas weather

By The Associated Press

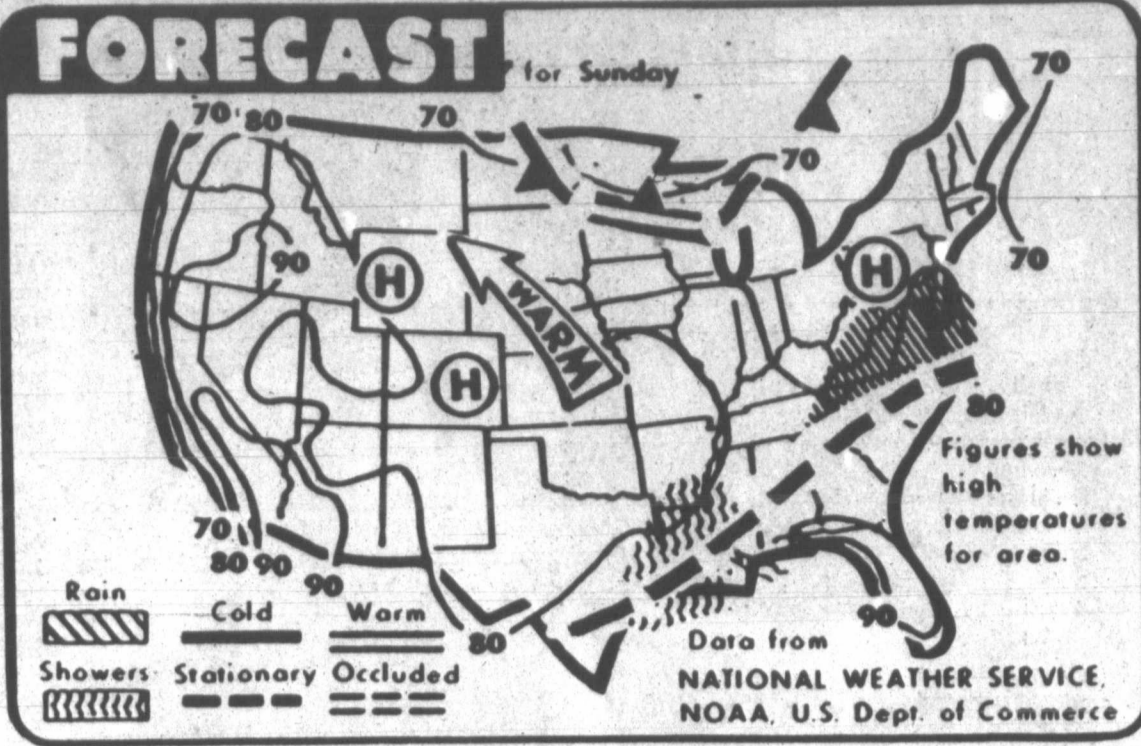

Thunderstorms rumbled across South Central Texas and Southwest Texas early today, bringing with them heavy rainfall that prompted the National Weather Service to issue a flash flood watch for a vast area.

The flash flood watch covered the area and along and west of a line from Cotulla to College Station and included the Hill Country and the San Antonio and Austin areas. The watch was to remain in effect through tonight.

Forecasts called for more showers and thunderstorms over most of the state today. The thunderstorm activity spread eastward across much of South Central and Southwest Texas during the pre-dawn hours.

Heavy rain fell late Thursday and early today across much of Southwest and South Central Texas. The largest amount of rainfall recorded by early today was 2.20 inches at Junction, where that amount fell in about two hours.

About two inches of rain fell just north of Ozona late Thursday.

SHOWERS are expected along the Gulf to East Texas until late today. (AP Laserphoto)

DC-10 making bigger noise now

NEW YORK (AP) — They started marketing it in 1971 as "a good neighbor airplane that will enter and leave airport areas with scarcely more than a polite hum and a whoosh." And they sold more than 280 of them worldwide, the most recent at around $50 million each.

But the wide-body DC-10, queen of the McDonnell Douglas fleet and a product of its 50-year aeronautical tradition, has been making a much greater noise than its makers intended. It has become one of the most controversial planes to have flown.

The troubled history of the aircraft again came under scrutiny when an engine fell from an American Airlines DC-10 as it lifted off from Chicago's O'Hare International Airport on May 25. The plane suddenly plunged to the ground, killing 274 people in the nation's worst crash. And "problems" were found on 59 of the nation's 137 other DC-10s during later Federal Aviation Administration-ordered inspections.

The most significant of the accidents involving DC-10s are these: —Nov. 3, 1973. A jet fan assembly on National Airlines Flight 27 disintegrated near Albuquerque, N.M., and pieces of metal punched holes in the plane's skin and smashed a cabin window, causing the passenger next to the window to be sucked out and killed.

—March 3, 1974. Shortly after takeoff from Paris on a flight to London, the rear cargo door of Turkish Airlines Flight 981 blew out and caused the floor of the passenger cabin to collapse. Vital control cables were damaged and the plane smashed into the Ermenonville Forest killing 346 passengers, the greatest death toll in aviation history up to that time and still the worst for a single plane.

—Nov. 12, 1975. An Overseas National Airways charter taking off from New York's Kennedy Airport sucked a flight of gulls into its engines causing the fan blades to disintegrate. Flying metal fragments severed fuel lines and started a fire that consumed the plane. The 139 passengers managed to get to safety.

—March 1, 1978. Two tires burst on a Continental Airlines aircraft taking off from Los Angeles Airport, and the plane caught fire as it ran off the runway. Of the 200 people aboard, two died from smoke inhalation and burns, and 31 others were seriously injured.

Aviation experts are comparing the troubles of the DC-10 to those of Lockheed Co.'s Electra project nearly 20 years ago — millions of dollars were spent to correct that plane's design flaws. And experts are wondering if the DC-10 will become a "jinxed jet," like the first version of the British Comet that was forced out of service because of mechanical faults.

Schoolteacher killed by gunmen

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Two gunmen shot and killed an American schoolteacher Saturday in the southeastern Turkish town of Adana, U.S. Embassy officials here reported.

The victim was identified as David Goodman, 26, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who had been running a private English language school in Adana, 250 miles southeast of Ankara, near the Mediterranean coast.

Embassy officials said two unidentified persons rang the doorbell at Goodman's apartment house Saturday morning and began firing when he opened the door. The gunmen ran away and escaped, the officials said.

Goodman, seriously wounded, was taken to a hospital where he died a few hours later. He is survived by his wife.

No terrorist group claimed responsibility for the attack, but police sources called it politically motivated.

He was the third American killed in politically motivated violence in Turkey in the past two months.

Against property taxes

Texans about to embark on tax revolution

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans are about to embark on nothing short of a revolution in property taxation.

It will be a gradual revolution, however, not taking full effect until Jan. 1, 1982.

Whether it will raise or lower taxes or merely impose greater order and fairness is an open question.

For the results, voters can give much of their thanks or blame to three people — Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange; Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene; and Gov. Bill Clements.

Peveto crusaded six years for a more orderly taxing system with better safety valves for aggrieved taxpayers. Nobody in the Capitol calls the new measure anything but the "Peveto Bill," or occasionally "Grandson of Peveto" because of his three tries at passing it.

Jones, calm and steady chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, gave the Peveto Bill an aura of respectability among senators, many of whom were repelled by Peveto's ardor and his personal attacks on Senate opponents in previous sessions.

Clements, according to aides, prevailed on Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, to break ranks with the other Senate Republicans and cast the deciding "aye" vote.

The Peveto Bill squeaked by 65-63 in the House and 15-14 in the Senate.

Clements called it "one of the most significant steps in history toward equitable property taxation."

But real estate lobbyists did their best to convince legislators it would raise taxes. Rural lawmakers view it with suspicion if not downright hostility.

"The bottom line is tax increases for ad valorem taxpayers," said Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange.

So what's in the Peveto Bill?

A single appraisal office in each county for all but county taxes is the most striking feature and the one that first grabbed Clements' support.

Every school district, city, hospital district, water district, mosquito control district and any other taxing unit will have its property appraised by a single countywide office starting in 1982.

They will, however, levy and collect their own taxes on values determined by the appraisal districts.

Voters in a taxing unit could decide in a local option election to abolish their tax assessor-collector's office and have the appraisal district collect their taxes.

Five-member boards of directors for the appraisal districts will be chosen this fall and will have until Jan. 1, 1982, to hire their staffs and get organized.

Governing boards of school districts and cities within the counties will choose the appraisal district boards, with voting strength weighted according to total property taxes imposed.

A small city or school district could divide its votes among all the places on the board or concentrate them on a single candidate, depending on which route protected its interests the best.

County governments may continue doing their own appraisals or join the appraisal districts. Texas voters will decide in 1980 on a constitutional amendment allowing the Legislature to force the counties into the single appraisal system.

Legislators propose more changes to constitution

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas legislators have proposed 12 more changes in the state's much-amended 1876 constitution.

Voters will have their say on three of the suggested amendments this Nov. 6, but the other nine proposals will not come before voters until Nov. 4, 1980, in the midst of the next presidential election.

This year's proposals are unlikely to attract any avalanche of voters.

However, the 1980 agenda includes several items that will attract attention even with a hot presidential election holding headlines for most of the year.

Right now, several of the proposed constitutional amendments defeated before the 66th Legislature's regular session ended May 28 are still being discussed.

Gov. Bill Clements says he will call, sooner or later, a special session to consider again a plan to let voters initiate legislation and repeal laws passed by the Legislature. A similar measure failed three times in the House and never came to a vote in the Senate.

Another very controversial proposal that failed would have repealed the state property tax and at the same time substituted a new state fund for financing college building. Another bill that was passed also repealed the property tax, in effect, but the fate of college building funds is left to future legislatures.

Still another constitutional proposal that failed would have banned the personal income tax in Texas.

The three proposed constitutional changes that will be on the November ballot this year include:

—HJR108, putting the appointment of notaries public on a statewide basis, instead of countywide.

4-H members to attend round-up

Seven Gray County 4-H members will be attending the annual State 4-H Round-Up at Texas A&M University this week.

The Gray County 4-H Senior Rifle Team, which placed second in District competition at WTSU last month, will be competing in the State Rifle Contest. Rifle Team members are Keith Courtney, Doug Youree, Clint Miller and Steve Thurman.

Participating in Method Demonstration Contests will be Berklee Brainard, Penny Miller and Sally Youngblood. Penny will compete in the Open Class, while Berklee will participate in Companion Animals Competition. Sally will present a Method Demonstration in Horticulture Production and Marketing Competition.

4-H CAMP SCHOLARSHIPS:

The annual 4-H County Camp will be held June 22-24, at the Texas 4-H Center at Lake Brownwood. The approximate cost for the three day camp will be $30. Camp scholarships are available to any Gray County 4-H member who submits a short essay to the County Extension Office stating why he or she would like to attend 4-H Camp. Essay should be submitted this week.

RECORD BOOK WORKSHOPS:

Gray County 4-H members who plan to enter the County Record Book contest should contact the Extension Office. Workshops will be set up during the month of June and in early July to help 4-H'ers organize and prepare their record books for the County Contest. 4-H members wanting more information about the workshops can contact the Extension Office at 669-7429.

Sonics capture NBA title

LANDOVER, Md. (AP)—The Seattle SuperSonics, led by center Jack Sikma and a trio of talented guards, made up for their playoff disappointment of a year ago by beating the Washington Bullets 97-83 Friday night to win the first National Basketball Association championship in their 12-year history.

The Sonics took the best-of-seven playoff final four games to one and dethroned the Bullets, who had won the title a year ago by beating Seattle in a seven-game series.

It was a comeback victory in which Seattle recovered from a 51-43 halftime deficit by limiting the Bullets to 42 points in the second half.

Not once in the five-game series was Washington able to match its regular season scoring average of 114.9 points per game, and four times the Bullets were held under 100 by the Sonics' sticky defense.

Sikma, Seattle's 6-foot-11 second year man, scored 12 points and grabbed 17 rebounds, battling Washington's Wes Unseld and Elvin Hayes under the backboards.

Meanwhile, the Seattle guards took care of the scoring. Gus Williams had 23 and Dennis Johnson, named the series' Most Valuable Player, had 21 points while reserve Fred Brown contributed 14.

The Sonics trailed 69-66 going into the final period, but scored the first six points of the quarter to take the lead for good. Paul Silas scored on a layup. Brown hit a spinning bank shot and Lonnie Shelton sank a jump shot to give Seattle a 72-69 advantage with 8:59 to play.

The Sonics built the lead to 80-74 midway through the final period and then turned back repeated challenges by the Bullets.

Three times in the final 1:25 Washington pulled within two points—only to have the Sonics meet the challenge. Williams hit a jumper from the right side, Dennis Johnson sank a 10-footer while falling to the floor and Gus Williams sank two free throws with 12 seconds left to close out the victory.

Williams was dribbling the ball when time ran out and as the final buzzer sounded, he tossed it high into the air in jubilation. The Sonics players raced onto the court and hugged each other in celebration.

The capacity crowd of 19,035 at the Capital Centre gave both teams a standing ovation as the players headed to the locker room.

Elvin Hayes led the Bullets with 29 points, scoring 16 of them in the first period as Washington took a 30-19 lead. The Bullets missed eight of their first nine shots in the second quarter but recovered to hit seven of their remaining 10 in the period to 51-43 at the half.

Three straight baskets by John Johnson and one by Williams enabled Seattle to tie the score at 55-55 with 7:50 left in the third quarter. But the Bullets responded with four baskets and led by as many as nine points late in the third period before a basket and two free throws by Dennis Johnson and a field goal by Brown cut the deficit to three going into the final quarter.

Williams scored eight points in the final period, Dennis Johnson had seven and Brown scored six as the Sonics went on to the victory to capture the NBA title.

Seattle's guards, who have dominated this series, outscored their Washington counterparts 58-27. For five games, the Sonics' backcourt enjoyed a 302-185 advantage.

Seattle's victory brought an end to the NBA's 33rd season that began 232 days ago on Oct. 13, 1978.

At Kemper Open

Two golfers are deadlocked

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Jerry McGee came from four strokes off the pace with a 3-under-par 69 that can only be described as peculiar and tied Craig Stadler for the third round lead Saturday in the $350,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

McGee started off as if he would match the spectacular 61 with which he opened the tournament. The relatively short-hitting veteran played the front side in 6-under-par 30, actually had the lead alone at times, and then struggled home in 39, 3 over.

He finished with a 204 total, 12 shots under par, and tied with the scowling Stadler. Stadler, in a commanding position when play started on the hot, humid, hazy day, fought his way to a 73, 1-over-par on the 7,160-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course.

With Stadler, playing on his 26th birthday, failing to capitalize on his big lead, a number of players moved into strong contention for the $63,000 first prize.

Jerry Pate made the biggest move, surging to within a single stroke of the lead with an 8-under-par 64, the best round of the day and the course record until both McGee and Stadler broke it on the opening day of this event.

Pate was at 205. Ray Floyd, winner of the Greensboro Open earlier in the year, was next at 206, two back, after a 68. "I just hope to be within striking distance when we get to the last three or four holes tomorrow," said Floyd, a former Masters and PGA titleholder. "That's what it's all about."

J.C. Snead, fighting his way out of a protracted slump, was next at 207 after a 71.

John Tate records win

MMABATHO, Bophuthatswana (AP) — John Tate, the undefeated American heavyweight, stamped himself a rising threat in the division when he stopped South African Kallie Knoetze at 2:30 of the eighth round of their scheduled World Boxing Association 12-rounder Saturday.

Tate, the 24-year-old slugger from Knoxville, Tenn., raised his record to 19-0, as he viciously punished Knoetze with thudding lefts and rights to the face, shattering the 26-year-old South African's hopes for a shot at the world heavyweight title.

The muton-chopped former policeman, who weighed 225 pounds, was bleeding profusely from under his right eye and nose when referee Isidoro Rodriguez of Venezuela stopped the one-sided fight.

"Kallie started off quickly but burned himself out in the early rounds," said Knoetze's manager-trainer, Billy Lotter. "I salute Tate as one of the most scientific heavyweights from overseas we have ever seen in South Africa."

"He is a man who is going places. Overall, Tate was too strong."

Knoetze, the No. 1-ranked WBA contender, began the bout by charging at the heavier American like one of the bulls which were roaming the bush outside the open-air soccer stadium.

But most of his punches went wild. Tate, the No. 3-ranked contender who weighed 233 pounds, continually danced away from the lumbering South African, whose record dropped to 17-3.

By the seventh round, Tate, a black, was openly winking and smiling at the predominately black crowd of 50,000 spectators in this country which was granted independence by apartheid South Africa. The United States, which doesn't recognize Bophuthatswana, claims South Africa's white minority merely formed a country out of black homelands to circumvent the apartheid issue.

Neither Tate nor Knoetze would talk with reporters immediately after the fight.

Brock to be in All-Star game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Although Lou Brock is not on the All-Star ballot, the St. Louis Cardinals outfielder will wear a uniform in the July 17 game anyway, according to Tom Lasorda, manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Lasorda will manage the National League team in the summer classic at Seattle and can add Brock to his roster as a reserve.

"I've thought a lot about it since the voting began," Lasorda said. "He's made a great contribution. He is going to be there."

The 39-year-old Brock, the league's top hitter this season — the last of his 17 major league campaigns — says he will be pleased to be a member of the NL team a sixth time "if I earn it."

some displeasure that he failed to gain a place on the ballot among 27 outfield candidates.

"I don't think I should have been left off in the first place," he said.

Cosell to return

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Love him or hate him, the viewers generally don't leave him, and that's why Howard Cosell will be back in the broadcast booth this Monday night when ABC belatedly gets back into the baseball picture.

All announcers are subject to the whims and tastes of the public, but nobody gets more of a reaction than Cosell. Some of it is violent, which can, in part, be traced to jealousy among his colleagues, to Howard's own horn-blowing or simply because he's Howard Cosell.

TV Guide published a poll last year in which Cosell was chosen the best liked AND the least liked television announcer. ABC and Cosell recognize this and revel in it, particularly in the network's prime time football and baseball broadcasts when it must reach beyond the hard-core sports nut to be a ratings success.

"Being least liked is like a badge of honor in journalism," said Cosell. "The function of journalism is not to seek popularity. There are no heroes in our business, just ratings. And the day I don't get the top ratings, I'll be gone."

Baseball was gone from ABC in April and May of this year because of ratings. The top-rated network balked at showing baseball on Monday nights during the spring, especially in the sweep month of May when the number of viewers determines advertising rates for the summer.

In return for tearing up the 1979 contract, baseball negotiated a new agreement with ABC that will end in 1983 and make the 26 major league teams a bundle of loot. It calls this year for 12 Monday night games — including Boston vs. Texas this Monday, one other weeknight game later this summer and three Sunday afternoon contests in September.

ABC's main baseball crew will be Keith Jackson calling the play-by-play, former Dodger ace Don Drysdale providing color and Cosell doing his thing, which is a little bit of everything.

"It doesn't matter whether I'm alone or with one or two others in the booth," said Cosell. "The issue is what are the capacities and functions of the announcers. It's always more pleasant for me to work with professional announcers, not jocks."

"LET US ASSUME Frank Gifford had been in Las Vegas in February when the Rossman-Galindez fight didn't come off. Frank is one of my very best friends, but does he have the training and background to ad-lib for 55 minutes?"

"I believe in journalism and communications. A jock's training isn't in those areas, so who is left to philosophize? It takes a man of education and journalistic training."

Cosell is indeed a gifted journalist who can sound knowledgeable on almost any topic in or out of sports. And most of the time, he is. "Watching football or baseball on ABC without Cosell is a lot like a wedding without the best man," said a TV executive from another network. "He tells us so much, the only trouble is that we don't want to know it all."

Not a superstar

Rod Carew considered a rare star

NEW YORK—Baseball's No. 1 hitter isn't a huge celebrity.

Rod Carew, with seven American League batting titles and All-Star honors in each of his first 12 seasons, has never really been called Mr. Superstar.

Despite his $800,000-a-year pact with the California Angels, Carew still doesn't get the kind of intense public acclaim often heaped on baseball heroes.

He isn't as stylishly bold as Pete Rose. He isn't as awesomely powerful as Jim Rice. He certainly isn't as flamboyant as Reggie Jackson.

Yet Carew, owner of a sparkling .334 career batting average (along with Rose) one of today's remarkably few sure-fire Hall of Famers.

He tells his own story—of a one-time moody infielder who labored on the Minnesota Twins without reaching the World Series—in "Carew" (Simon and Schuster), a new autobiography written with Ira Berkow.

"I think it shows the different parts of Rod Carew as a person," he explains about his unusually revealing book. "I was trying to be true and honest."

The truth, unfortunately, is that Carew, 33, just emerging as a self-possessed veteran, badly needs the game's ultimate showcase to fully display his skills.

"Play in the World Series," he admits. "That's the big thing I'd like to do. I think I have a pretty good chance over the next few years."

So do the talent-laden Angels, a pennant-less expansion franchise run by wealthy Gene Autry—the old cowboy singer-actor. They forked over a reported $4 million to sign Carew during the off-season to a five-year pact.

Carew's threatened departure as a free agent had forced Twins owner Cal Griffith to ship him to the Anaheim, Calif., version of the Golden West.

"I'm the kind of guy who plays to help the team," Carew asserts.

He became disenchanted in Minnesota when Griffith, financially troubled, let several of his top athletes slip away in contract disputes. The last straw: Griffith's characterization—in racially turbulent public remarks—of Carew as a "damn fool" for having signed a $170,000-a-year Twins deal.

It ended a lengthy player-team bond that had developed after the Panamanian-born black, who had moved to New York City as a teenager, was signed in 1964 by Twins scout Herb Stein off a Bronx sandlot for $5,000.

Ironically, Carew, a sulky newcome who was to be dogged through his Minnesota career by whispers of malingering, credits fiery Billy Martin, his 1969 manager, with helping greatly to settle his temperament.

"I think I've matured a lot in the past few years," says Carew, referring to his own literary detailing of those kinds of woes.

Part of the difficulty involved Carew's (still-active) estrangement from his father, an ex-Canal Zone ship painter labeled by the son as an erratic, indifferent hard-drinker who unpredictably beat his children.

Carew lists two women as key beneficial influences: his mother, Olga, now a New York hospital worker; and his wife, Marilyn, a white ex-dental assistant whom he married in 1970 despite initial misgivings within her Jewish family.

In the summer before his marriage (the couple now has three daughters), Carew had suffered his worst baseball injury. While playing second base, he damaged right-knee ligaments in a collision. Thanks to good doctoring and plenty of self-discipline, the leg healed perfectly by 1972.

That steady hitting belies most of Rod Carew's ups and downs. For instance: 1967-.292 (Rookie of the Year); 1969-.332 (first AL title); 1974-.364 (despite 33 errors that led him to change to first base); and 1977-.388 (the year he at the magic level of .400 for much of the season).

Discussing his free-wheeling approach to hitting and his varied batting stances, Carew explains: "I want to in. I'm aggressive at the plate. To hit 400, I'd need at least 125 walks. I don't think that will happen."

Carew drew 78 walks, his most ever, last season, hitting .333 to capture his seventh batting title. Only Ty Cobb (12) and Honus Wagner (8) have more.

"I'd like to stay and get 3.000 hits," says Carew, who has been averaging nearly 175 a season. He collected his 2,000th hit last season.

And it isn't because of his running that the name Rod Carew often evokes few memories of baseball's golden ages. An adept base stealer, he has swiped home 16 times—more than any player in modern days.

Yearning to get into the World Series, Carew—"I know about guys like Ernie Banks and Billy Williams who never made it"—is more comfortable with his new secure financial and emotional status.

His image isn't even being tarnished by a modishly controversial book on dramas inside the clubhouse. "There aren't a lot of four-letter words," Carew says. "I think it's a book any 9-or-10-year-old can pick up and read."

So, the heck with glitter and flash. What Carew lacks in personal glamour he makes up for at the plate. His bat does the loudest talking.

Explains Carew: "I enjoy it. I like to hit."

Kris Douglass honored as an All-American

Kris Douglass has added another honor to her many accomplishments during the 1977-78 school year.

Douglass has been honored as a High School All-American tennis player by the High School Coaches Association. The association's main office is in Manchester, New Hampshire.

The honor is based upon 70 per cent athletic ability and 30 per cent achievement. Douglass was the valedictorian for the recently graduated 1979 Pampa High class.

Coach David Martin talked about his former star pupil saying, "I couldn't be happier for her. I nominated her for this award about a month and half ago. Kris will receive a certificate from the association telling her about the honor."

Kris finished second in the district in District 3-AAAA tennis this past spring in singles for the Pampa High Harvesters. By taking the runner-up spot, she advanced to the regional tournament in Lubbock. This marked the first time any Pampa athlete had been involved in regional tennis competition in the last 46 years.

Bird to meet Tuesday

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Celtics and the attorney for college basketball star Larry Bird will meet Tuesday in an effort to sign the Indiana State college-player-of-the-year to a National Basketball Association contract.

A meeting between the two sides had been scheduled for Friday, but Red Auerbach, Celtics' president and general manager, said Bird's agent, Bob Woolf "had to be away and I had to be away."

"We won't even be talking about it again until Tuesday," Auerbach said Thursday.

"Both sides are taking the weekend off," said Woolf. The Celtics had hoped to reach a tentative agreement with Woolf today in the long negotiations for Bird.

At a meeting Wednesday, the Celtics increased their original multi-year offer from $500,000 to about $600,000 per season. Woolf's most recent proposal was $700,000.

Auerbach said he and Woolf did not discuss the contract Thursday.

Pro basketball currently in anemic state

NEW YORK (AP) — The purpose was tennis but the subject was the anemic state of pro basketball, and there were these three specialists with invisible stethoscopes probing means of revitalizing the patient.

Only one of them was a doctor — "Dr. J." Julius Erving, the $2.5 million ball-handling wizard of the Philadelphia 76ers.

The others were John Havlicek, the Boston Celtics legend who retired a year ago, and Rick Barry, the city-hopping perennial all-star of two leagues, now with the Houston Rockets, all in town to promote the Dewar's Cup sports celebrity tennis tournament June 18-21 in Las Vegas.

"The game is in need of a face lift," said Dr. J., addressing himself to the charge that pro basketball is eight months of sheer boredom in danger of losing its spectator appeal.

"It cries for a fresh imagery. Too many of the headlines deal with the monetary facets and controversy — the flashy guys with ten gold chains around their necks and their Rolls Royces. It is poorly presented both in the press and on TV."

"I will buy that," said Barry, who set records in both the National Basketball Association and the now defunct American Basketball Association. "This is a team game and it should be sold as a team game."

Added Havlicek: "I think the problem is that the cities which made pro basketball the sport of the last decade are not contenders. I speak of Boston, New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. Look, the New York Knicks won one championship and they wrote 33 books about it.

Boston is what Notre Dame and Green Bay are to football. Who knows who plays for Atlanta?"

The greatest criticism leveled at the professional basket sport is that the season, stretching from October to mid-June, is entirely too long, the games tend to become meaningless, players have reached such perfection the game becomes stereotyped and the endless playoff rounds border on the ridiculous.

The 35-year-old Barry, regarded as one of the keenest students as well as one of the most skilled practitioners of his art, said he thought much of the criticism had validity.

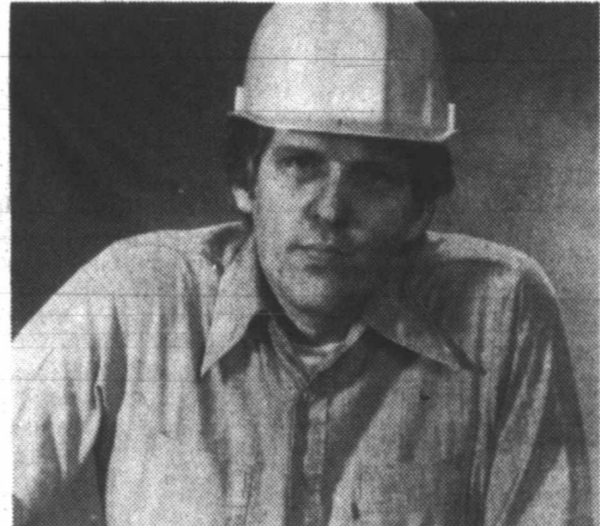

"A friend of mine, Pat France, and I were sitting around Sahara Tahoe talking about this recently," Barry said. "He came up with what I thought was a great idea — give one point for each half.

"A team leading the first half gets a point. If it leads both halves it wins 2-0. If the other team leads the second half it is a 1-1 tie and they go into a five-minute overtime.

"Imagine how this would sustain interest."

The New Jersey native, out of Miami (Fla.) University, said his personal project is to revamp the salary structure.

Major League roundup

Home runs power Reds

By The Associated Press Home runs by George Foster and Ken Griffey carried the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-2 victory over Philadelphia Saturday and handed the Phillies their ninth loss in 10 games.

Foster's home run, which followed a walk to Dave Concepcion in the sixth inning, cleared the center field wall in Riverfront Stadium and landed in the bleachers some 450 feet from home plate.

The Reds added a run in the sixth on a sacrifice fly by Dan Driessen. Griffey's home run in the seventh iced the victory for starter Mike LaCoss, 6-0, and gave the Phillies their sixth straight loss.

Philadelphia starter Randy Lerch, 2-4, pitched six innings and took the loss.

Giants 8, Cubs 6 Terry Whitfield pinch hit a two-run single in the seventh inning to snap a tie and help the San Francisco Giants end a seven-game losing streak with a victory over the Chicago Cubs.

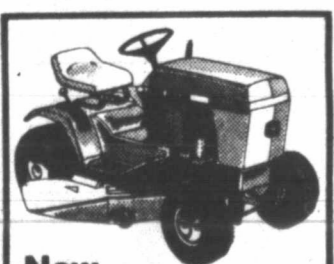

The game was highlighted by six home runs — three by each team.

Twins 8, Red Sox 2 Bombo Rivera, batting ninth in the Minnesota lineup, drove in four runs on a single, a double and his first homer of the season, backing the six-hit pitching of Dave Goltz and powering the Twins to an 8-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Goltz, 5-5, had trouble only in the fourth, when Boston knotted the score at 2-2 on consecutive doubles by Carl Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk and an infield out by Dwight Evans.

Boston rookie Chuck Rainey, 3-3, lasted four innings and left trailing 4-2.

SOUND COUNTRY

It's finally happened! The Tennessee Senate unanimously passed a bill renaming a section of U.S. Highway 411 in Sevier County, Tenn., the Dolly Parton Parkway. The bill was passed in the House of Representatives earlier in the current legislative session and now requires only the signature of Governor Lamar Alexander to become law. And since the Governor is said to be a staunch country music lover, it's all in the bag, so to speak.

There's only one thing wrong with the project. The people responsible for the idea picked the flattest piece of highway in the entire state. And every red-blooded country music fan knows that is certainly not in keeping with the Dolly Parton image.

Dolly says she is "tickled to death" to have a parkway named after her (especially in Sevier County where she grew up).

Peach trees hit with bacteria spot

Many Peach trees in the Gray County area have developed bacterial spot. The most noticeable effect from this disease is the sudden drop of leaves and peaches during the last week. Upon closer inspection, symptoms include smaller circular, irregular lesions, pale green in contrast to the surrounding dark, green tissue on infected leaves. In advanced stages, angular lesions are formed and surrounded by a hole of lighter colored tissue. The inner portion of the lesion turns black and may fall out after a time, giving the leaf a "raged" or "shot hole" appearance. Leaves heavily infested will turn yellow and fall. A lot of leaves around Pampa have already fallen before the leaves had time to develop the shot hole appearance.

The disease also appears as a small olive brown, circular spot on the fruit surface. As the disease develops, spots become slightly darker and depressed. Lesions are scattered over the fruit surface. Most noticeable in advanced stages is "pitting". This tissue grows, a "pit" is formed.

This pit serves as an entry for other diseases such as brown rot. The area below the pit is corky and unpalatable.

The recent wet weather can probably be blamed as the thing that has helped spread this bacterial disease to a lot of peach trees in the area. There are several practices that can aid in reducing the severity of the disease. These include pruning to an open center for better air circulation. The period of time that leaves remain wet partially determines the severity of the disease. Adequate amounts of a complete fertilizer will also help to reduce the weakening effect of the disease.

Chemical control can be beneficial to the new leaves that will soon appear as the affected leaves drop to the ground. There may be several products that will assist in the control of this disease. However, one that is cleared and approved for use on peaches are spray materials containing copper-based sprays. You should probably spray twice, about 10 days to 2 weeks apart to protect new leaf growth. Dormant sprays are the most effective to control over wintering organisms. This dormant spray should be applied in October and one application of copper hydroxide at this time is reported to give good control.

KARRIE SCOTT receives her crown as the new Miss Miami Saturday afternoon being selected from a field of eleven contestants to represent Miami in the coming year. (Staff photo)

AFTER MONTHS of hard work the city of Miami realized a dream Saturday when County Judge Newt Cox and Extension Agent Vernon Cook dedicated the Roberts County Museum in ceremonies held before the National Cow Callin' Contest. (Staff Photo)

Follies kickoff Cow Callin'

MIAMI—The folks here don't need Roy Clark, Buck Owens, Grampa Jones, Lulu, or even Minnie Pearl (though they're nice to have on tap on the tube). The 1979 National Cow Calling Contest and Frontier Follies got off to a rousing start here Friday night in the high school auditorium as children and latecomers crowded the aisles to witness the "downest homest" home version of "Hee Haw" to strike the Panhandle since last year's Frontier Follies.

The Follies Fandango, under the direction of Bob Burgoon, boasted a set with a rickety wood fence and a sign reading "Miami—Pop. 999,999. And though a few less than 999,999 were present Friday night, country and western spirit reached the million mark as the Follies moved a full house to foot tapping and singing along to such all time favorites as "Won't You Come Home Bill Bailey" and "Jimmy Crack Corn."

Spectators and performers were reminded of the continuity of the National Cow Calling weekend by a display of slides from previous Follies which were silently shown as the crowd assembled.

Debutante spice was added to the rollicking fun with the first part of the Miss Miami Beauty Pageant. Eleven girls competed in swim suit and evening gown competition Friday night before being judged for poise and personality on Saturday.

Karrie Sue Scott was named Miss Miami before the cow calling competition Saturday; Cindy Noble was runner-up; and the Miss Congeniality Award was voted by contestants to Frannie Scott.

Momentum for the annual event could hardly have been lost Saturday, despite the unfulfilled threats of showers, due to the good humor—both drole and raucous—of the Follies "blast-off" Friday night.

The fastest gun in the West has apparently been replaced by the slowest joke-teller in the Panhandle. John Brogden, the cowboy's Henry Youngman. Brogden, who talks slow to savor the juices of some of the worst and best known bad jokes in Texas, came to the rescue at Friday's Follies during some brief trouble with a broken curtain. The joke teller, who sparks to groans as lesser performers thrill to applause, branded the audience with a number of unforgettable—or unforgivable—punchlines.

Things, of course, were mellowed by some plaintive slow songs sung by one attractive lady after another. And, in true country-western tradition, everyone sang from the heart.

Hundreds attend annual Cow Callin' contest

MIAMI—Crowds fill the street in front of the Miami American Legion Hall. Hundreds of people, surprised by the sunshine after threats of rain, are downing pounds of barbecue, gallons of ice cream, and swollen streams of soda pop. And at a table in the mostly bare vestibul of the Legion Hall, out of the glare of the "Texas Spotlight", taking a break from meeting old friends, Woody Pond takes time to tell a newcomer the familiar story of how he helped start the Cow Calling Contest in 1949.

Pond, former Potter County Judge, a native of Miami, and now a resident of Pampa, tells how Gene Howe, late publisher of the Amarillo Globe-News, decried the lost art of calling cows in his column "The Tactless Texan". Pond recalls how he took humorous umbrage at the charge, telling Howe that the art was far from lost in Roberts County, and how he'd hold a contest to prove it.

"As it happens," Pond recalls. "I won that first year and took the trophy."

But like almost every contestant since Pond's mam-mouth ground-breaking for the festive rite which has survived 31 years, the former judge has no specific advice to offer the newcomer on the technique for calling cows.

"Go down deep in the stomach, and use your lungs," Pond says off handedly, as if he can't believe the newcomer actually thinks that cow calling is what the National Cow Calling contest weekend is all about.

But the newcomer presses Pond for a gimmick, asking, "How would you go about teaching someone like me to call cows?"

The grandest cow calling champion seems to take this question seriously.

"Well, first I'd whittle off a two- by - four at one end. Then if you didn't get it right the first time, I'd whack you across the (buttocks) with it."

An hour and 132 wild and crazy whelps later three new cow calling champions took home new gold plaques and $50. Two of the three winners were return champions. Contest rules require winners to sit out a year.

Doris Wilkens, now of Perryton, returned home to compete for the first time in the grandmother's category, took the top prize in the first round of competition. Mrs. Wilkens first won in the girls' category in 1950.

Mrs. Wilkens admitted she felt foolish the first time out but "the $100 prize I took home that first year took a lot of the sting out of it," she says.

The runner-up in the grandmother's division was Mildred Cunningham.

Winner of the women's division was Nancy Stockstill, a former Miamian, now living in Denver, where she works for an airline company.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY I notice that the first of your TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR HUSBANDS is:
"Thou shalt put thy wife before thy mother, thy father, thy daughter and thy son, for she is thy lifelong companion."
Abby, does your husband put you before his mother? And does your son put his wife before you?
CURIOUS IN N.J.

DEAR CURIOUS: I hope so.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has promised to abide by your decision. Our problem is his snoring. He starts to snore the minute he dozes off, and he snores like a bull.
I have put up with his snoring for the seven years we've shared the same bed. Not once have I disturbed him or asked him to roll over because I didn't want to disturb his much-needed sleep.
However, I complain bitterly when he insists on falling asleep in the living room while I'm trying to watch TV.
When I complain he says he enjoys dozing off with the TV on, that it's his living room, too, and I am being unreasonable.
I say that he is being unreasonable to subject me to his snoring while I'm trying to watch TV.
What is your verdict?
BOTHERED IN BELLEVUE

DEAR BOTHERED: I hereby declare the living room off limits for snoozing. If hubby enjoys dozing off with the TV on, let him get a portable TV for the bedroom and snore to his heart's content.
Furthermore, if you continue to suffer in silence every night while your husband snores like a bull, I order a psychiatric examination for you! (You are either a masochist or a martyr.) Get some earplugs. Court adjourned.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 23 and my husband is 31. We've been married for two years and have no children. He has a small business and I have a full-time job. We have separate checking accounts and separate lives. He refuses to discuss his business or income with me.
He is never at home at night and I never know where he is. He stays out almost every night until the bars close, and on weekends he's never at home even in the daytime.
I got so fed up with being alone, I left him once. When I try to talk to him about our problems, it helps for a few days, then he goes back to his old ways. What should I do?
LEFT ALONE

DEAR LEFT: Nowhere in your letter do you mention "love." Why did you marry? Surely not to have separate lives. As I see it, your husband enjoys being married as long as he can live like a bachelor. If you want a real marriage, free yourself from this empty, in-name-only relationship and find a man who wants to be a full-time husband.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "MARRIAGE IN TROUBLE IN VENTURA": Your letter tells me that your husband is using the television to avoid talking about what's really bothering him. You need to talk honestly to each other. Open up a dialogue with love—not in anger.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

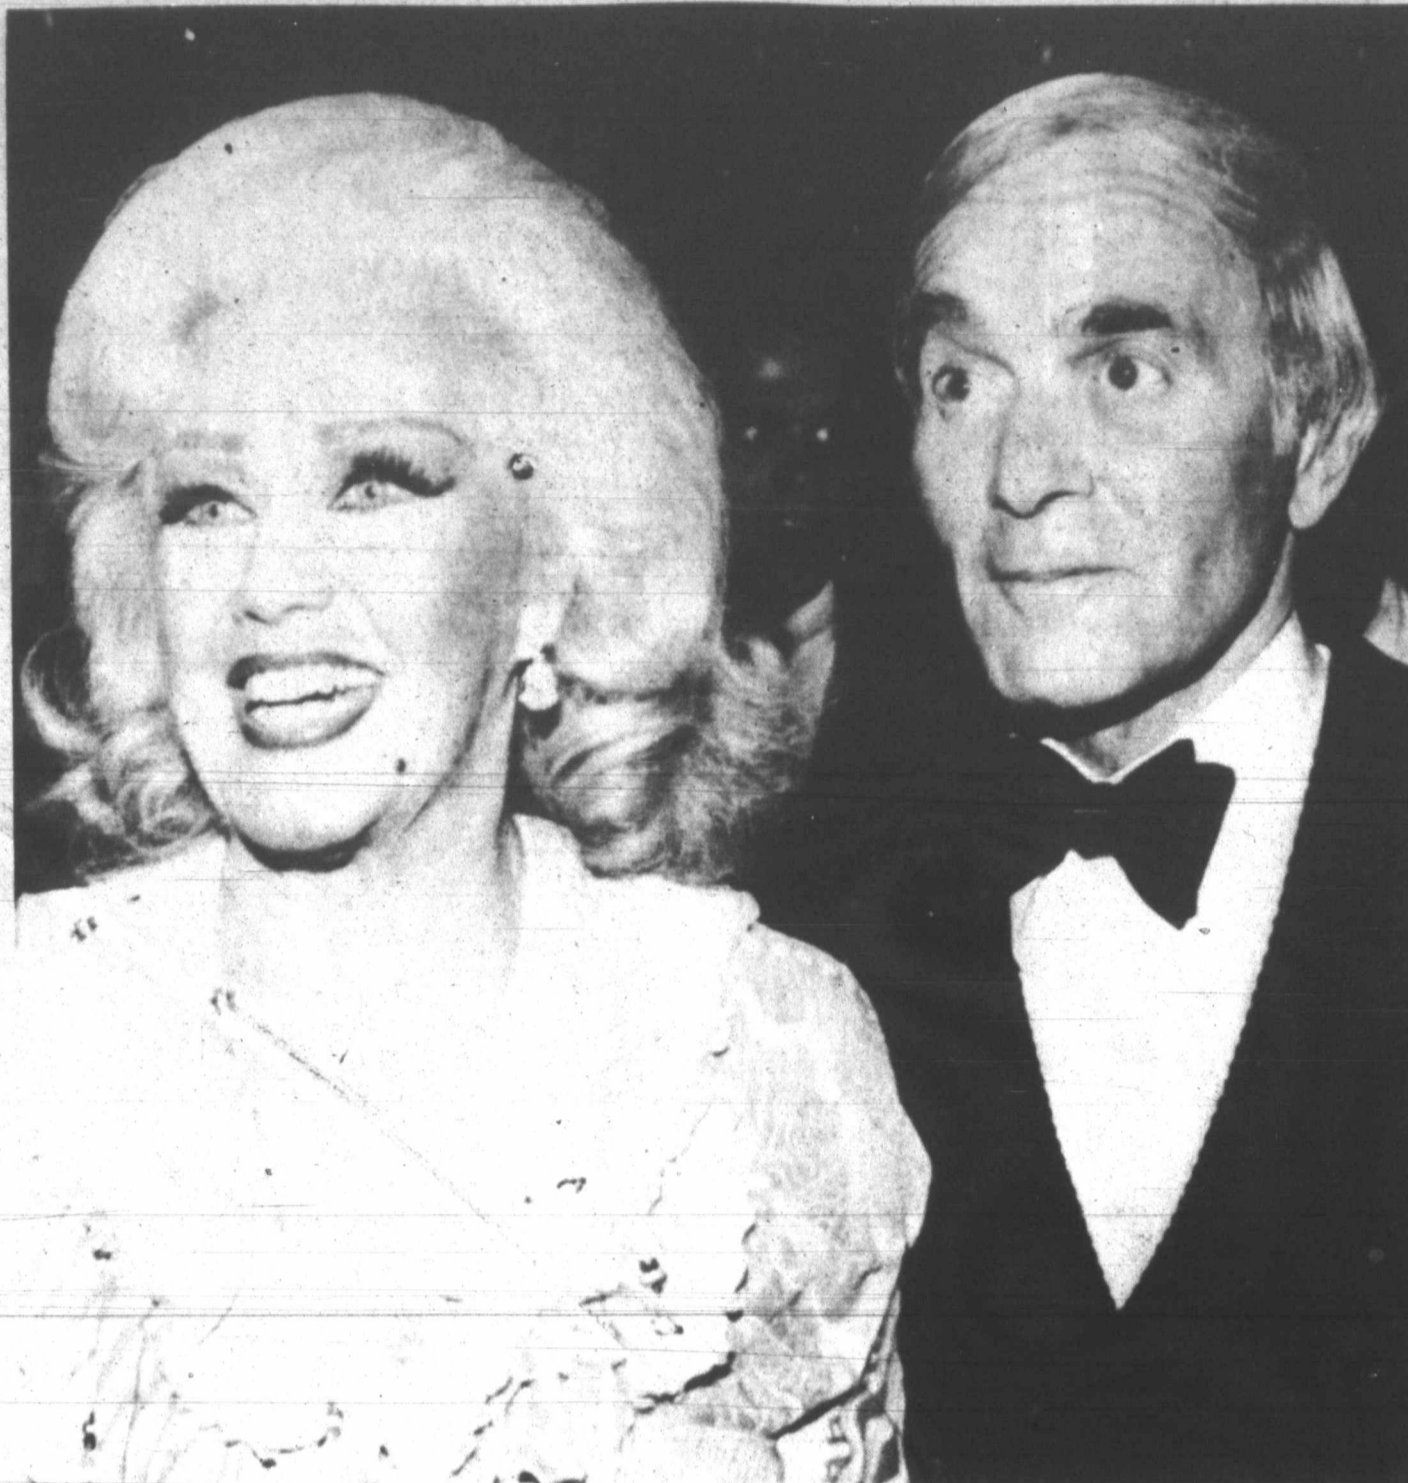

At wit's end

by irma bombeck

My mom was visiting the other day and in anticipation of Mother's Day I started to sing a traditional song that has always given both of us a lump in our throats.
M is for the (C)oupons in her cupboard.
O is for the (H)alf-price sales she haunts.
T is for her (E)nergy-saving tactics.
H is for her (A)nfi-extravagance.
E is for her (P)atience in recycling.
R means (Y)ears of saving foil and twine.
Put them all together they spell... MOTHER, but that is not the bottom line.
Mom has always been sensitive about my lack of thrift. The day she saw me throw away a zipped bag of plastic that had only held shredded lettuce, she told everyone, "I have no daughter. She was lost in the war."
I have to admit that perhaps thrift skips a generation. Somehow, I never shared my mother's zeal for conservation. She invented knots in shoelaces. The first time I saw a whole pair of shoestrings, I thought there was something wrong with them.
She launders aluminum foil and dental floss and hangs them up to dry. She cuts the bottoms off plastic tubes of hand lotion, rises out bottles of bleach and liquid soaps and has saved every box she has ever received anything in. She sincerely believes that toothpicks were put on the earth to dig lipstick and chap cremes out of the tube.
In all the years I have known her, I have never known my mother to throw away a rubber band. Her gifts are in boxes that have been in reruns for as long as I can remember.
No leftover is too small to save. No remnant is too skimpy to hang onto. No sample is sparse enough to pitch out.
She's a wonderful manager, a no-nonsense saver, and a credit to homemakers everywhere. But when she is around me she drives me crazy trying to convert me to Saver's Paradise.
"I see you're still throwing money down the drain," she said, plucking a piece of chicken skin out of the sink.
"When I eat it, it settles on my neck," I said.
As she shook her head I started to sing, "M is for the (C)oupons in her cupboard. O is for the...
She got a lump in her throat. I got mine elsewhere.

Dr. Lamb

by laurence e. lamb, m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About five years ago I had a wrist operation to correct a problem I was having. The tendons had enlarged in the wrist and were pinching the nerve that goes into the hand. The doctor scraped the tendon and enlarged the hole where the nerve passes into the hand. He said that the problem would not return but I'm having this difficulty again. My right hand is numb again and is worse at night when I lie down. The doctor said before that four of my fingers and the thumb were affected.

DEAR READER — I wish I had all the answers to your questions but I don't nor does anybody else.
At the wrist there are a number of very small bones that form the base for the hand. In front of these bones are a group of watchband-like tendons and fibers. These tendons and the bones form a tunnel. The tendons that move the fingers, nerves and some blood vessels must pass through this tunnel.

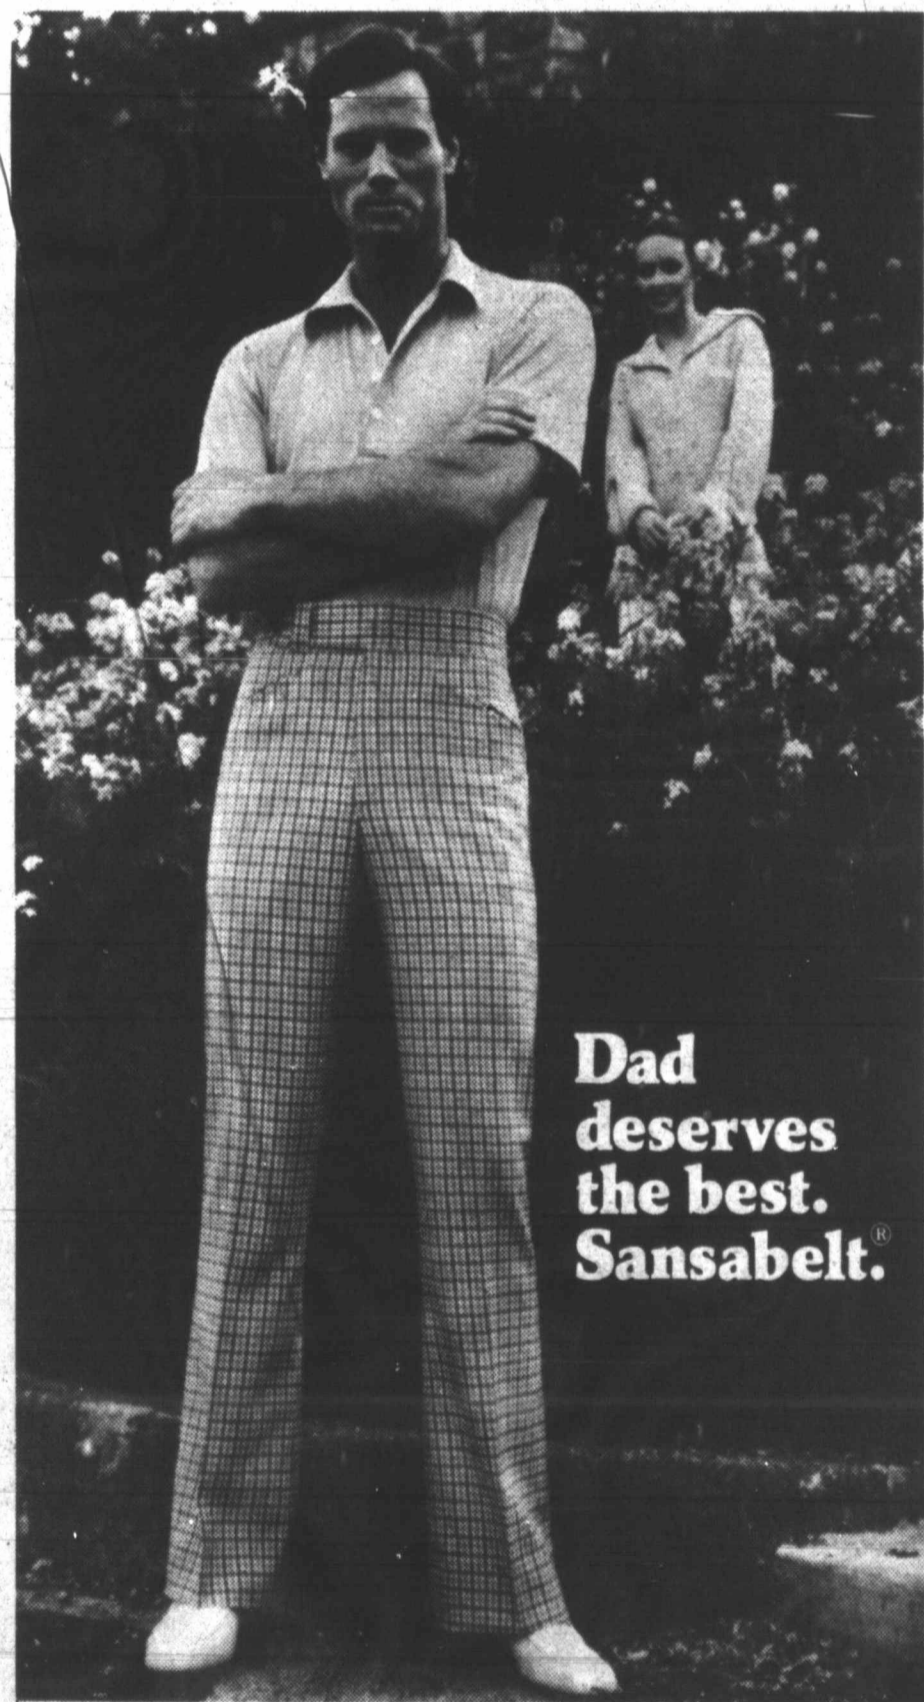

Whenever anything happens to make this tunnel too small or its contents such as the tendons become too large, you inevitably will have pressure. It does cause pressure on the nerves and can cause a variety of symptoms including numbness, pain and tingling in the thumb and fingers and pain in the arms.

One approach to treatment is to open the tunnel and provide more room for its contents. Apparently, that's what was done in your case and, apparently, you did get some relief for some time.

If you have real swelling of the tendons that doesn't mean that the tendon problem itself will go away, but in some instances this problem does disappear spontaneously. In other instances, doctors use medicine which combats inflammation and helps to decrease swelling in the area.
It's possible that you might benefit from another operation, at least temporarily, but such a decision should be made by the doctors who review your problem and know the specific details of your condition. On the basis of all the facts, it might be important to use an anti-inflammatory medicine. Or if there's no evidence of inflammation and it's simply a recurrence of the constriction phenomenon, mechanical relief through surgery might be the answer.

You should see a rheumatologist, a specialist in arthritis and joint problems.

Miller - Curry exchange marriage vows

Faustina Ann Miller and John Stewart Curry were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. June 2 in the First United Methodist Church in Pampa. Dr. Jim T. Pickens officiated at the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Connelly of Fayette City, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Curry, 1126 Charles, Pampa.

The music during the ceremony was provided by Dr. Sylvia Coats, cousin of the groom, at the organ and by Karen Cory and Ann Peele Thomas on the hand - bells. Kathryn Porter and Jerome Cribb were the vocalists.

Attending the bride was Mrs. James Patchell of Arlington, Va. as matron of honor. Jennifer Cribb of Pampa was the flower girl.

The best man was Ron Underwood of Denison. Matthew Porter of Pampa was ring bearer.

The ushers were Kenneth Johnson of Dallas; The Rev. Donald Underwood of Prisco; Jack McCavit of Pampa; and Bill Smith of Glendale, Ariz.

Following the ceremony there was a reception and dance at the Pampa Country Club. Reception assistants were Doreen Holder, Ann Ferris, Denise Roberson, Sherry McCavit and Kay Harvey.

The bride, given in marriage by both her stepfather and her brother Shane Miller, chose a gown of candlelight crepe de chine. The blouson bodice featured a yoke of silk English net and a Queen Ann neckline outlined in appliques of alencon lace and seed pearls. The long full sleeves were enhanced with a pattern of silk net, lace, and seed pearls at the shoulder line. The full skirt fell in folds to carpet length and swept to a chapel train. A narrow belt of braided seed pearls tied at the natural waistline and ended in tassels. She carried a cascade of pink ruben lilies, sweetheart roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and English ivy.

DECORATING TRENDS...

Charlie's

PILLOW SOFT

One of today's most popular trends, especially in contemporary furnishings, is upholstered pieces or groups featuring super-comfortable, thick pillow seats and backs.

Create comfort is the big virtue of these furnishings, along with a casual look that is very welcoming. Whether March winds keep you indoors, or you spend a lot of time sitting and relaxing, or in casual entertaining, you and your guests will enjoy the bonus in comfort.

Pillow-style upholstered furniture, with big plump cushions, tends to be on the large size. For bigger rooms, large pieces or groups in this style, perhaps with a colorful cotton print, help to make the rooms seem more in proportion and thus more livable.

If the room is small, you won't want to overdo this look. But even a smaller home or apartment can function beautifully with one or two large key pieces, or a coordinated grouping covered in neutral or natural tones that offers lots of seating in a concentrated arrangement.

Quality fabrics, padding and materials add not only to comfort but also the lasting value of upholstered furniture. You'll find that built-in quality in our complete collection of fine home furnishings. Come in soon!

The bride is a 1976 graduate from Pampa High School and is attending the University of Texas at Austin.

The groom is a 1975 graduate from Pampa High School and is also a graduate from the University of Texas at Austin. He is employed by Ernst and Ernst, San Antonio.

After a honeymoon in the Ozarks, the couple will be at home in New Braunfels, Texas.

Nona Payne

to be honored today

Mrs. D. D. Payne will be honored today on the occasion of her 90th birthday with a reception from 4-6 p.m. in the Pampa Country Club.

Mrs. Payne, a native of Bloomfield, Iowa, has spent most of her life in Texas. She has lived in Wichita Falls and in Amarillo, where she was employed by Morrow Thomas Hardware Co.

On May 4, 1940, she married the late David

D. Payne, a Roberts County pioneer rancher, and moved to the ranch on the Canadian River, where she lived until 1958 when Mr. Payne retired at the age of 88. The couple then moved to Pampa where Mrs. Payne has continued to live since her husband's death in 1969. She is well known for her many charitable interests.

Her many friends are invited to join in wishing her well on this special occasion.

engagement is announced

MR. AND MRS. Donald E. Estes of Perryton announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Tonya, to Jeff Ward of Perryton. The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Ruth Herlacher and Mr. and Mrs. Millard Lunsford of Pampa. Her great grandparents are Maggie Lunsford and Charlie Bird also of Pampa. The couple plan a July 14 wedding at The People's Chapel, Perryton.

Fragrance! No well-dressed woman should be without it.

Whether you wear your scent in the form of perfume, toilet water, cologne, perfume oil or solid perfume, realize that fragrances traditionally have been divided into seven different categories. Read all about it and you're on your way to choosing the scents that are right for you, right for gifts:

1. Single florals feature one note like carnation or rose.
2. Fruity blends include the popular lemon fragrances.
3. Floral bouquets are just that, a beautiful blending.
4. Modern blends seem crisp, bright and sparkling.
5. Oriental scents can be laced with musk or amber.
6. Forest blends may be woody, mossy, leafy.
7. Spicy and herbal scents are aromatic, delightfully so.

Gardening tips

The Moon will be increasing: 1-9; 24-30. The moon will be decreasing: 10-23.

The Fruitful Signs are: After 4:00 p.m. the 6th - 8 (Scorpio); 15-16 (Pisces); 24 until 1 p.m. the 26th.

The Semi-Fruitful Signs are: 4 - until 4 p.m. the 6th (Libra); 11-12 (Capricorn); From 12:00 noon through 21st (Taurus).

The Barren Signs are: 2-3 (Virgo); 9-10 (Sagittarius); 13-14 (Aquarius); 17-19 until 12:00 noon (Aries); 22-23 (Gemini); From 1:00 p.m. the 26th through the 28th (Leo); 29-30 (Virgo).

We are glad we live in the Panhandle, we have had a wonderful spring. We have lots of good moisture in the soil to face summer. It may be a hot one, but we have the spring to remember.

Because of the cold days and wet soil we are late with our gardens. We are planting our "cole crops" next month. These include cabbage, kohlrabi, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, kale, collards and cauliflower. They like the shorter and cooler days of autumn. And the insects are not so bad either. Kohlrabi is quick - growing so it can be planted continuously from spring through fall.

Seeds can be sown directly into the garden. They are heavy feeders. They should be fertilized with manure (well rotted) or compost to get them off to a good start. Water well and mulch. Control the beetles and cabbage worms with Bacillus Thuringiensis, a new biological spray. Butler's Nursery has this product. We had some success last year with crumpled mint leaves scattered on the small cabbage heads. These have to be replaced often.

The roses are beautiful. Lilies and spirea iris are ready to add their bit. The weeds are outdoing themselves, so keep the hoe moving. Be careful with weed killers. They are dangerous for you as well as for your growing plants. Use pesticides only when necessary, then select the proper chemical and use it carefully. We must learn that our art is dependent on the whole of nature that surrounds us. Birds, animals and beneficial insects are important parts of our garden environment.

All herbaceous plants will be growing freely and will benefit from a side dressing of fertilizer, or a drink of it in liquid form.

If you are anxious for first-class blooms, the roses and carnations should be disbudded. This means keeping the large terminal buds and pinching out all the smaller buds.

Shade trees pruned after June 11 and before June 23 will heal their wounds faster than at any other time. There will be very little bleeding.

Softwood cuttings of spring and June flowering shrubs will root easily the 7th and 8th or 15th and 16th of this month.

Prune quinces, lilacs, spiraea, weigelas and viburnums as soon as they have finished blooming. Forsythia can be pruned anytime, and still give bloom in the spring.

As the days get hotter water the lawn and beds well, remembering the vegetable garden. There is less evaporation if done in the evening.

Portulacas love hot weather and full sun. Sow now where-ever you need a low-grower and lots of color. They will bloom until frost.

Deadheading is an important job this month. The dead heads should not just be pulled off, leaving ugly beheaded stems. Use small pruning snips to do the job better. The stem should be cut back to a leaf or leaves.

Hanging baskets and window boxes dry out quickly and need daily attention. The baskets will benefit by an occasional soaking in a bucket or tub.

Continue to plant gladiolus for continual bloom. Roses cut in the early morning or late evening keep better. Plunge the stems in warm water for at least two hours before arranging.

Asparagus - cutting should be stopped by the end of the month to allow the plants the time for building up their crowns for next year. The fern-like growth that develops must be left until it dies in the fall, when it can be cut down to ground level.

Cut the dead iris bloom stems to the ground. This will prevent rot rot. These stems are full of water, and this will be absorbed by the roots and may cause them to rot. The iris can be lifted and divided and replanted beginning this month. Use bone meal in the hole when replanting. If you are planning for some new iris next year, your order should be in this month.

Cut back the flowers from the peonies as they fade, removing all the seed pods. Do not cut back the foliage. Allow it to remain until it is cut down by frost.

After their leaves turn yellow, lift any spring-flowering bulbs that are too crowded. Divide and replant daffodils and narcissus. Store tulips in a cool dry place until fall. Trim columbines half-way to the ground removing all seed pods after they have finished flowering. They will come back and bloom again in the fall.

Watch roses for shoots sprouting below the graft. Cut these sprouts off before the rose reverts to its rootstock parents.

Many of your spring-blooming shrubs may be propagated by layering this month. Bend down a lower branch, cutting it slightly on the underside near a bud or eye. Bury the wounded limb in the soil holding it down with a wire hoop or rock. By next spring you should have a newly rooted plant.

Feed the chysanthemums with rich compost or well rotted manure and pinch the stems back to about six to eight inches.

Remember the marigolds are recommended to cure soil nematodes. But it does take more than one season of continuous planting to build up enough in the soil to drive the nematodes away. So you should make repeated plantings throughout the garden, including the vegetable garden.

Fruits sometimes form in clusters as our apples have done this year. Remove all but one fruit from each cluster. The apples and peaches should be spaced four to eight inches apart.

This is the time to protect the peach and plum trees from borers. To do a thorough job, remove the soil around the base of the tree to the depth of three inches. Then bind the trunk of the tree with masking tape in a snug sheath that extends from three inches below the soil line to four inches above it, seven inches in all. The moth deposits her eggs in the soil, and as the eggs hatch, the new larva cannot get into the tree, and so starve to death.

Mrs. Ronald William Mercer

Hudgins - Mercer exchange marriage vows

Barbara Marie Hudgins and Ronald William Mercer, both of Plainview, were united in marriage at 7 p.m. June 2 in the First Baptist Church at Hale Center. The Rev. George W. Warren officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Gladys M. Hudgins of Hale Center and the late Brooks Hudgins. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. George W. Warren of Pampa.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Don Maddin at the organ; Edwin Turner and Willie Teeter were vocalists.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Gary Abercrombie of Plainview, sister of the bride. Other bridal attendants were Mrs. Timothy Powers, sister of the groom, and Jean Ann Clingman, both of Plainview.

The groom's attendants were Timothy Powers, best man, Dr. Gary Abercrombie, both of Plainview, and Dr. Garry Warren, Arkadelphia, Ark. Ushers were Dr. Craig Brown, Columbia, Mo. and the Rev. Calvin King, Fort Worth.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Earl Hudgins of Plainview, chose a Gibson girl gown of ivory logado accented in Nottingham lace. The fitted bodice was yoked in a vertical panel of tucking and lace and the long sleeves repeated the lace and tucking. She wore a mantilla veil edged in Nottingham lace.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the Church.

The new Mrs. Warren is a graduate from Wayland Baptist College and West Texas State University. She is employed as an educational diagnostician by the Plainview Public Schools.

Her husband attended Paducah Community College, Murray State University, and West Texas State University. He teaches history in Plainview High School.

After a honeymoon in Dallas the couple is at home at 612 West 8th, Plainview.

Pearls, if your birthday's in June

There's nothing like pearl jewelry to bring out a woman's beauty—but did you know that some women have also used powdered pearls as a beauty aid?

According to the Jewelry Industry Council, ancient Egyptian sirens achieved a come hither look with eye shadow made of ground pearls. Thousands of years later, fashionable French women dusted pearl powder on their faces to make their complexions pearly smooth and lustrous.

As June's birthstone, the pearl stands for health, vitality and long life—so it's no wonder that people in more primitive times were tempted to add a pinch of pearl to their cosmetics and medicines. During the Middle Ages, doctors prescribed powdered pearl in lemon juice for every ailment from hysteria to heart trouble. In parts of 17th century Europe, a concoction of ground pearls in distilled water was a popular all-purpose tonic.

But, through the ages, most people have preferred to use pearls as the precious gems they are. Rich Roman ladies wore pearls from head to toe, even decorating their shoes with the gems. The Roman general Pompey went a step further and had his portrait done in pearls.

History's champion pearl lover was probably England's Queen Elizabeth I. Good Queen Bess wore a pearl-studded crown, pearl-embroidered gowns, and huge pearl drop earrings, as well as half a dozen pearl necklaces at a time, with the longest reaching down to her knees.

The pearl's subtle, mysterious beauty has inspired many legends. To the ancients, the pearl symbolized the moon, just as the more brilliant diamond was the sun's gem. In Arabian folk tales, pearls were presented as raindrops swallowed by oysters.

Could you possibly hope to discover a pearl in your next plateful of oysters? According to the Jewelry Industry Council, that popular belief is just another myth. The edible varieties of oysters rarely produce pearls and, when they do, the gems are too tiny and lusterless to be of value.

Natural or Oriental pearls range in color from delicate rose white to black, depending partly on where they are found. The world's whitest pearls are said to come from Australian waters, while the rare black pearl is occasionally fished from the Gulf of Mexico. The cultured pearl industry, pioneered in Japan, is still centered there.

Fresh water pearls, produced by mussels rather than oysters, are assuming new fashion importance—especially Biwa pearls from Lake Biwa in Ja-

Long hot days - long cool drinks

Have you ever considered how much more often you see your friends and neighbors during the summer?

Everyone spends much more time outdoors in the summer. At ball games, picnics, concerts in the park - not to mention beach parties, the golf course or at the tennis court. Because we see each other more, summer is the time of year we do the bulk of our home entertaining - backyard barbecues, patio parties, or just back porch get-togethers.

It's hard to anticipate what guests will want, especially these days when tastes are becoming more varied and even a little more exotic. But with practically no trouble or expense, you can give your summer coolers lots of interest and appetite appeal. Try some of these suggestions.

HOW TO FROST THE RIM OF BEVERAGE GLASSES

Place the rim of each glass in a saucer filled to 1/4-inch depth with strained lemon juice, then dip at once into another saucer filled to 1/4-inch depth with sifted Imperial Powdered (Confectioners) Sugar. Let stand a minute; lift out carefully so as not to displace the clinging sugar on the rim of the glass. Place, right side up, in the refrigerator until set. Carefully fill with the drink. This adds a frosty look and an intriguing sweet - tart flavor to the beverage.

HOW TO MAKE DECORATIVE ICE CUBES

Add a mint leaf, red or green maraschino cherry, or a few strips of orange or lemon rind to partially frozen ice cubes. For fruit juice cubes, freeze leftover juice from canned fruits, or fresh fruit juice lightly sweetened with Imperial Pure Cane Sugar - rosy strawberry, peach, or golden apricot puree cubes add both color and flavor to lemonade and other fruit drinks.

HOW TO GARNISH

Save the reddest berries, the brightest grapes, the most perfect fruits to use as garnishes. Try using them in a ring around a serving of frozen dessert or in a cluster at the base of a sherbet glass, as well as for the single perfect piece of fruit to top off the dessert or drink. Cubes of bright-colored gelatin add color when fruits aren't available. Mint sprigs or leaves add both color and flavor. A grape or ivy leaf under a fruit cup makes a cool setting.

SIMPLE SYRUP

4 cups warm water
7 cups Imperial Granulated Sugar
Combine water and Imperial Granulated Sugar in a saucepan. Stir over medium heat until Imperial Granulated Sugar is thoroughly dissolved and mixture begins to boil. Pour into jars and cover. Cool. Store in refrigerator. Makes about 2 quarts.

Iced tea is just as refreshing made with either tea leaves, tea bags or the more convenient instant tea. Here are some suggestions for making iced tea. TIPS FOR MAKING ICED TEA

1. Keep teapot sparkling clean. Then rinse with boiling water just before using.
2. Use standard measuring spoons and cups to measure tea and water. Then you'll always get the same good results.
3. Have water boiling vigorously before adding it to the tea leaves - just hot water won't give the best flavor. But never boil tea.
4. Strain the tea as soon as it is brewed. Tea becomes bitter if allowed to stand on the leaves too long.
5. Cool in refrigerator or let the tea stand at room temperature until ready to serve.
6. If using instant tea, always mix with cool tap water.

Please don't call him Reggie

Call Rex Harrison by his real name and all you'll get is the cold shoulder. His real monicker, Reginald Carey Harrison, he says "sounds like a music hall."

"Maybe I heard a dog being called Rex on the streets," he laughed.

WHEN THE TEMPERATURE soars it's time to think about tall, cool, refreshing drinks. The most economical way to quench thirsts is to choose from the variety of unsweetened drink mixes that are available. For a quick refresher, mix a pitcher of Mint Tea.

Crafty Cooking

by sally shaffer miller

Falling down is not one of my favorite pastimes, because it has a remarkable tendency to hurt and leave bruises. But fall I did. I asked, "Why me?" And the answer was, "Because you and it were there."

Somehow the answer didn't seem logical. The "it" was a rocking chair that I tripped over in the frozen food section of the grocery store. I really hurt my knee. It also occurred to me that a rocking chair didn't have any business in the frozen food section, either, but there it was.

I could imagine what people would say and they did. "Sure!" came one comment. "Oh, yeah? Um-humm," came another. Laughter and "You gotta be kidding! Only you could do that!" So I resorted to a tale equally as preposterous as the truth and said that an alligator bit me on the knee when I was in the grocery store. Well? If they sell rocking chairs, they'll sell alligators, won't they?

To compensate for it, and for my own hurt feelings and pride, I'm going to offer you a salad recipe which came to me from a very nice man, Dr. Edward Wiebe.

He's the man who treated my frozen rocking chair knee. While he was tenderly treating my knee with various injections and recommending crutches (vile things that make your ribs hurt), he was cheerfully giving me a good recipe. I call it WIEBE'S WESTERN WONDER SALAD. It is beautiful and expands to serve as many people as you wish, because each person builds his own. It would be good for a summer buffet, and the salad makes a meal. Here is the offering for four to six people.

HAVE ON HAND:

Individual salad bowls
All the fixings for a basic salad, such as assorted lettuce, spinach leaves, sliced radishes, diced celery, sliced cucumbers, etc. Whatever you normally put in a salad will be fine. But you should put these in separate bowls or plates.

1 pound lean ground beef
1/2 pound grated Cheddar Cheese. Or any other cheese you think will be good.

2 bunches of green onions, chopped, tops and all

1 large bowl of coarsely crushed Fritos corn chips. Dr. Wiebe says that any other brand will do, that size and the flavor doesn't matter.

1 bowl of tomato wedges.

Bowls of salsa sauce, red or green. Tabasco sauce, and lemon wedges, from four fresh lemons.

NOW DO THIS:

Fry and drain all the fat from the beef, and keep it warm in a bowl in the oven, on very low heat. Grate the cheese in a separate bowl and set it aside, covered, in the refrigerator. Chop the onions; cover them and refrigerate. Your basic salad ingredients should be in their own bowls or plates.

And set out the individual bowls. Get out the forks, napkins, salt and pepper, and the sauces and the lemon wedges. Put the fritos on the side.

NOW DO THIS:

Allow your family and or guests to make their own salad. Dr. Wiebe suggests that they take the basics, as much as they want. Then add some chopped onion, some of the warm ground beef, and some grated cheese. Then they will scoop up a handful of the crushed corn chips and sprinkle those on top. Now they can select one or more of the sauces or lemon wedges. They will toss all of this by themselves. Then, he says, all that's left is to enjoy.

Have a home permanent party

NEW YORK (NEA) - One Friday night in June, you and Arnold are going to pull the shades and embark on Operation Home Permanent. On each other.

"The results are always better if someone stands behind you and rolls up the hair," says Robert Pearson, a hairdresser at New York's Studio International salon.

Why not Arnold? Then you can stand behind him and roll and you'll both be set for summer.

But get one thing straight from the start. "The skill in a permanent lies in rolling the hair quickly, so you must be professional about it," Pearson says. Once you start, no kitchy-kooling, no "look who's on Merv Griffin."

Now then, Friday night, at 1800 hours, you and Arnold will get into old clothes, out of all jewelry and eyeglasses and into the kitchen or the bathroom where there's good light and lots of towels.

Do Arnold first, since he's fidgety - providing he didn't get a haircut that morning. Then you won't do him at all. "The hair should be long enough to get round the curling rod twice," Pearson says, "so never get it cut before you perm." Do that afterwards so the hairdresser can correct untoward clumps.

Unless Arnold's hair is despicably grungy, just wet it down because some natural oil is good protection, Pearson says. Otherwise, shampoo once with a mild shampoo.

Then comb the hair the way Arnold wears it: the part here, the devilish dip there, and start getting at the top as follows:

"Take a lock of hair, dampen it with a piece of cotton saturated with the bottom on an end paper also dipped in the lotion," Pearson says. "Then cover that end paper with another dampened one."

Stick the curing rod underneath, but before you roll the hair, pull it out. Not "of" the head, just "from" it at a 90-degree angle. "That's important to give the hair lift and because there's a tendency to drag hair down when you curl. The head has lots of different curvatures so to get a 90-degree angle, pull the hair straight up on the crown, straight out on the sides and back, and forward in front."

Roll it around the rod firmly but not tightly - "You'll get crinkle marks if you wrap hair too tightly" - and sit the rod in the spot of scalp you want a curl to come from. Then secure it with the crossbar.

Quickly, now, take a non-metal hairpick or toothpick and wedge it between the crossbar and the rod. "That prevents the bar from biting into the hair and leaving a mark and from breaking the hair."

Remember, too, as you roll, the larger the rod and the more hair on it, the larger the curl. (Smaller rod, less hair, tighter curl.)

When you've rolled Arnold's whole head, you and he can breathe for 10 minutes. Then you take the first "test" curl.

"Choose a curl you rolled midway through so you're not looking at one over or underdone," Pearson says. "Unwrap it 50 percent of the way down and lay the rod in your hand. Now gently push it towards the scalp." You're watching for an "s" formation of the hair; a long, relaxed "s" for a loose curl, a nervous upright one for a firmer curl. If you don't see the "s" you want, roll the rod up again, wedge the pick in and wait another 10 minutes.

"It takes about 20 minutes for a light permanent curl on an average head of hair," Pearson says, "and up to 50 for a tighter one depending on the formula, hair length, etc."

When the "s" is as you want it, get Arnold's head, still set, under lots of lukewarm water and wash out the waving lotion. Thoroughly.

"Then you blot each rod dry with a paper towel," Pearson says, "and apply the neutralizer to each rod with cotton balls. I like to use two-thirds of the neutralizer on the cotton and reserve a third. The neutralizer restores shine to the hair and hardens the outside of the hair."

"So after 10 or 15 minutes, when you remove the rods you can massage the last third of the neutralizer into the hair to make sure you've saturated all parts of it."

A little hair conditioning follows and then, "Comb the hair into shape and let it dry naturally or under an infrared lamp. Don't blow it dry because that tends to take out a lot of curl and you're back at square one."

All the while be quick, be patient and be careful. When Arnold gets up, you know, it's your turn to sit down.

HOLLAND BEST

PARIS (AP) - Holland is the best European country to live in, according to a recent survey by the French magazine Le Point.

Giving points for health, culture, stability and comfort, the survey placed Denmark in second place, followed by France.

At the bottom of the list, ranked as the "least inviting countries to live in" were Britain and Ireland.

A GENTLEMAN FROM another age helps to dress his lady's hair as she carefully watches the procedure. A home permanent would probably have helped the situation.

Ex-con market parole, a new game

HUNTINGTON PARK, Calif. (NEA) - At long last you've served your time.

The prison gates open for you. The warden hands you $100 and sends you back into the world a free man, presumably rehabilitated and ready to resume your place in society.

You get a job, settle down with your family and put prison behind you.

That's the way it ought to work. But it doesn't. Your civil rights are gone, you cannot get a job or credit, your family is scattered to the four winds.

That $100 soon disappears. You've had one job turn-down after another. Things are getting desperate.

So you steal, get caught and go back to prison. The whole vicious circle starts again.

Danny Migdol and The Conspirators are out to change all that.

Migdol is a five-time loser just recently out of prison. The Conspirators are his friends, all ex-cons, who have formed an organization

Migdol says that's why he formed The Conspirators and why he is turning over his prison game to the organization he will head as director.

He claims he has been offered "a lot of money" for the rights to Parole. But The Conspirators will produce and market the game themselves; 60 percent of their receipts will be used to help ex-cons find jobs.

Migdol explains how it will work: "We have divided the country into eight regions. Bob Jolley here, for instance, is in charge of the California-Arizona-Nevada region. It will be his job to go to all the prisons and interview cons about to come out, to find out their needs."

"Suppose there's this guy about to come out who has no money. He's an expert auto mechanic but he has no tools. We get him the tools."

"He doesn't want to stay in California for one reason or another. He wants to go to Florida. We send him there, where his case is picked up by the Florida region director, who finds him a place to live if he needs it, provides him with food and gets him a job.

"By the way, we don't send him to Florida by bus; he goes by non-stop plane. We don't want him getting off a bus, getting drunk and blowing the whole thing."

According to Migdol, nothing like this has ever been tried before.

"It's convict helping convict on a convict level," he explains. "We're not asking for any handouts. We won't cost the taxpayer a cent. We're putting out a game people can have fun with and 60 percent of what they pay for the game goes into helping people."

The game originated after Migdol drew a Monopoly board with a felt-tip pen to pass the time with his cell-mates.

Customer averaged billing plan

Southwestern's Averaged Billing Plan is designed to minimize the ups and downs in your electric bill.

If you've wished the amount of your electric bills could be more consistent every month instead of changing so much between seasons - here's a way...

The Averaged Billing Plan is provided to HELP SMOOTH OUT THE HIGHS AND LOWS that occur in your electric bills. As the name implies, this plan arranges for you to pay an "average" rather than the actual amount used each month.

Who's eligible for this plan?

Any residential customer with satisfactory credit, whose average bill is $25.00 or more, can request the Averaged Billing Plan.

How to get started.

All you have to do is call

Southwestern Public Service Company. There's no charge for participation in the Averaged Billing Plan. If for any reason you decide to drop the plan once you've started, just notify us. Payment by Automatic Bank Draft can also, in most cases, be arranged.

This is how the Averaged Billing Plan works.

The dollar amount of your electric bill each month will be determined by averaging the actual dollar amount of your bill for the past 12 months. When the amount you have paid does not cover the amount you have used, 15 percent of the difference will be added to your monthly average.

So, the Averaged Billing Plan does not change your rate, but allows you to pay less during high-use months and make up the difference by paying more during low-use months.

In Agriculture

by joe van zandt

The Field Day at Bushland last week was very interesting to farmers and people concerned with agriculture. As far as I was concerned, the big news item is that a new wheat variety is being released, TAM 105. It is a short statured, hard red winter wheat with exceptional yielding ability for irrigated production on the High Plains and dryland production on the Rolling Plains of Texas. According to Dr. Kenneth Porter, who developed the new wheat variety, it may represent a new yield level in winter wheat.

Foundation seed of TAM 105 will be released to registered and certified growers in the Fall of 1979. Seed should be available in quantity after harvest in 1980.

This gives wheat farmers something to look forward to trying in a couple of years.

Another item of interest viewed was a vertical axis Darrius wind turbine which is mechanically coupled to a vertical turbine pump through a commercially available combination gear drive.

With this arrangement, the wind turbine supplies mechanical power to the pump whenever the wind speed exceeds a minimum cut-in level. The remainder of the power for constant output pumping is supplied by an electric motor. Since the electric motor supplies only part of the power, electricity is saved. Thus, energy saving is the primary objective of the experimental pumping system.

The blades of a Darrius wind turbine are air-foils that produce a lift similar to an airplane wing. Airfoils are much more efficient than the drag type blades of a farm windmill; thus, the blade area can be reduced considerably. The ratio of the blade area to the area swept by the blades is called the solidity. The solidity of the Bushland wind turbine is only 1/4 while the solidity of the farm windmill is nearly one. The desired solidity of a wind turbine can be achieved with two or more rotor blades. Since the blades are a major cost component for the entire wind turbine, most large wind turbines, use only two blades.

This is a strange sight and hard to really understand how the wind turns the rotor.

MULCHING VEGETABLES PAYS BIG DIVIDENDS:

What miracle material prevents weed growth, conserves soil moisture, keeps soil at the right temperature, adds organic matter to soil, prevents the splashing of soil onto plants and fruit, and eliminates hoe fatigue? Mulch is this miracle material.

Mulching is a very important part of vegetable garden culture in our arid climate. Mulching makes vegetable gardening a more pleasant and productive endeavor by reducing the labor required to control weeds while increasing the yield and quality of your vegetables and enhancing the appearance of your garden. The best mulch material is clean wheat straw. There will be a good supply available around wheat harvest time. Wheat farmers often bale wheat straw for use later on. A four- to six inch layer of straw will prevent weed growth.

Most home gardeners have a continuous supply of grass clippings during the growing season. Apply a three- to four inch layer of freshly cut clippings on the soil surface around direct seeded vegetables soon after they germinate and around tomatoes, peppers, okra and squash after the soil temperature reaches 70 degrees Fahrenheit (21 degrees Centigrade). Additional layers of clippings should be applied as the season progresses.

Coarse leaves, collected the previous fall and composted through the winter, make a good mulch. Tree bark mulch gives the garden a neat appearance, but it is a relatively expensive form of mulch.

Black plastic film, spread out on the soil surface with the film edges well anchored in early spring warms the soil in early spring and favors the early growth of the warm season vegetables: tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers, squash, melons and okra. The plastic must be removed at the end of the season.

In the small home garden, organic mulches and black plastic mulch are more effective weed control than chemical weed killers. Chemical weed killers are quite specific as to the weeds controlled and vegetables spared. There is no single chemical that can be used safely in a garden with many kinds of vegetables.

The methods and timing of application for chemical weed killers are very precise. There is no room for error with chemical herbicides which are best used only by commercial vegetable growers.

Your mulched vegetable garden will amaze you with its productivity, beauty and economy.

Motor Plan for the Over-55 Driver

Of the 125 million of you who are licensed drivers on the road today, roughly 30 million of you are over age 50 - a full 24 percent of the total. Yet, though you account for 24 percent of all drivers, you are involved in only 15 percent of the accidents.

Now, because of your splendid record for safety, courtesy and responsibility, the National Retired Teachers Assn. and the American Assn. of Retired Persons have joined with the Amoco Motor Club to launch a new motor plan for the 55- and-over.

The program covers both husband and wife when in need of service, no matter where you travel or what car you may be driving. It does not cover non-members who may be driving a member-owned car, but it spans a broad scope of emergency services for members of the NRTA - AARP. To indicate that scope:

Included is emergency road or towing service provided via emergency dispatch centers in many metropolitan areas.

The metropolitan areas are in Arizona, California, Colorado, Washington, D.C., Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia and Wisconsin.

Outside metropolitan dispatch centers, you may obtain assistance in locating emergency road and towing service by dialing a toll-free (800) number.

More than 9,000 Amoco dealers are participating. As a member, you will receive personalized auto trip routing and large, easy-to-read maps.

You will be entitled to: emergency personal check-cashing service at any participating Amoco station; locked-out or lost-key protection; hospital emergency room bond; car-theft protection; $500 arrest bond certificate. (No arrest bonds are acceptable in California, and they are limited to $200 in Florida, Oregon, Virginia and Wisconsin.)

You may find the hospital emergency room bond certificate particularly significant. Because many hospitals have found it difficult to collect payment from out-of-state residents treated as outpatients in the hospital emergency room, some hospitals request immediate payment. Or the hospitals will demand evidence of financial responsibility when providing non-residential patients with emergency care in situations not posing a threat to life.

Part of your special protection and other services is payment for legal defense. As a member of the program, you will be reimbursed for money spent on legal fees up to $500.
