Brutality charged

A Pampa police officer, accused by a city woman of brutality after an incident that occurred Thursday evening, is reportedly preparing to resign from the police department.

Officer Rodney Tucker, a two-year member of the department, is under fire for circumstances surrounding the arrest of Rachel Bailey of 2105 N. Dwight. Mrs. Bailey received a broken finger while being handcuffed by Tucker, and had to be treated at Highland General Hospital. She was then released without being charged.

Police are investigating the incident, although Mrs. Bailey has not filed a formal complaint with the department.

According to police, the department received a call Thursday from Joe Fischer, owner of Joe Fischer Realty, who complained that Mrs. Bailey had removed one of his signs from property at 2104 N. Dwight, across the street from her residence. Tucker went to her house to talk to her, and he and Mrs. Bailey supposedly got in a "scuffle" in the front yard.

"What happened, I don't exactly know at this time," Police Chief Richard Mills said Friday. "It appeared to turn into a shouting match and then a scuffle. From what I get, she was yelling, screaming and cussing, and the officer was yelling at her."

Mills said Mrs. Bailey was taken into custody and backup units were called. She was transported to the city jail, where police discovered her hand was hurt. They took her to the hospital, and she was treated and released.

"Right now we're interviewing witnesses, taking statements and trying to figure out what happened," Mills said. "It's one of those things where both parties could have been in the wrong. We've gotten no complaint from her about the incident."

Mrs. Bailey said Friday she is awaiting the advice of her lawyer. She said she plans to file a suit alleging police brutality.

According to Mrs. Bailey, she removed the realty sign from 2105 N. Dwight at the request of her husband's elderly aunt, who owns the house there. Mrs. Bailey said she put the sign in the alley behind the house and called Joe Fischer's office, informing his secretary what she had done.

At about 6 p.m. Thursday, she said, Tucker came to her door and asked her to step outside. She said they exchanged words, and when she told him she didn't want to talk to him and turned to go back in the house, he grabbed her arm. She hit him, she said, and he twisted her arm.

The two ended up in the living room, where she was handcuffed, she said. In the course of being handcuffed, Mrs. Bailey said, she was struck on the head, scraped by the handcuffs and thrown on the floor.

Her young teenage son Brent, who witnessed the incident, said he tried to call the police department and had the telephone knocked out of his hand by Tucker, who requested backup units and said Brent had a gun.

Two more officers arrived, and Mrs. Bailey said she was dragged to a patrol car. Tucker told the other officers to file simple assault charges against her, she said. She claims the police knew she was injured but took her to jail anyway.

Mills said Friday he couldn't say much about the incident because no complaint had been filed.

"At this time I've heard conjectures, I've heard rumors and I've heard hearsay," he said. "But neither Mrs. Bailey nor her attorney have made any allegations. I don't see there's much I can do about it until she makes a complaint."

Gunfire rattles Managua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Bomb blasts and gunfire rattled Managua Saturday as Sandinista guerrillas carried their offensive to within blocks of President Anastasio Somoza's fortified compound.

Officials said the capital was braced for a major assault.

A night curfew, state of siege and national guard patrols failed to deter the rebels, who launched hit and run attacks throughout Managua. Fighting was reported in most other major cities and along the Costa Rican border.

Some members of Somoza's Cabinet, including Foreign Minister Julio Quintana, moved into the Intercontinental Hotel next door to Somoza's headquarters, better-known as "the bunker."

Labor edging back to Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of organized labor, faced with the growing prospect that there may be no one else to turn to, are edging back into Jimmy Carter's camp as they look toward the 1980 presidential campaign.

Despite disenchantment with many of the president's economic, energy and social programs, union leaders are starting to conclude that Carter will be renominated by the Democrats next year. In that case, the laws of pragmatism say, it's better to be for him than against him.

"I think Carter will be the only viable Democratic candidate," observes William H. Wynn, head of the newly created United Food and Commercial Workers International Union and co-chairman of a labor committee pushing Carter's re-election.

Wynn echoed what other union leaders have been saying for months.

Houston police shooting less

HOUSTON (AP) — Officers of the Houston Police Department statistically did much less shooting in 1978 than the police in New York, Baltimore or Philadelphia, Police Chief Harry Caldwell said.

Caldwell said the 37 shootings by Houston policemen last year, which resulted in the deaths of eight persons, represented 25 per 100,000 population based on 1.5 million in the city and a police force of 3,000 officers.

Weather

The weather forecast for today is partly cloudy and warmer, with the high temperature in the mid-70s.

Rescue efforts continue for miners

CALUMET, La. (AP) — An explosion sent shock waves ripping through vast corridors of a salt mine near here Saturday, killing three miners and leaving two others missing and possibly trapped 1,200 feet underground, officials said.

The blast occurred shortly after a charge of explosives had been set off by miners blowing loose another section of salt, said Achille Boutte, one of 17 men who made their way to safety through dark, debris-clogged tunnels. Four miners were hospitalized in fair condition, and the others were treated and released.

"Our main concern now is to find the other two," said Greg Lauser of the main office of Cargill Salt Inc. at Minneapolis.

Lauser identified the dead as Richard Collins of Patterson, Donald Mayon of Baldwin and Herman Zimmerman of Franklin.

Boutte, a foreman, said he believed the miners hit a pocket of methane gas, a colorless, odorless, flammable gas formed by the decomposition of vegetable matter. It can be used as a fuel.

"You can't tell what happened until you go back and check," he said.

He said the 21 men working in the mine were holding a safety meeting in a corridor as wide as a city street when the explosion occurred.

Country Club manager dies in accident

The manager of the Pampa Country Club died of natural causes Friday night after losing control of his car and crashing into a business in the 800 block of W. Foster.

William H. Childress, 53, of 604 N. Somerville was driving west on Foster at about 6:58 p.m. Wednesday when he apparently suffered a heart attack. According to police, Childress' car jumped the curb on the south side of the street and struck the east side of the R.W. Pollard Welding Shop at 815 W. Foster.

The car went through the shop and struck the west wall, hitting a parked car belonging to Bill J. Harris of 944 Terry.

Childress was transported by Metropolitan Ambulance to Highland General Hospital, where he was pronounced dead of a probable heart attack.

Two police cars and three ambulance units responded to the accident. Ambulance personnel unsuccessfully attempted to revive Childress at the scene.

"The car was jammed inside the building and it took us a while to get him out," said Kenny Pearce, Metropolitan assistant manager. "He was laying across the front seat of the car."

"He had a bad heart rhythm when we put him on machine. We tried to change the rhythm and lost it all together."

R.W. Pollard, owner of the shop, said Saturday no damage estimate was yet available.

Childress, a native of Lampasas, had been manager of the country club since moving to Pampa with his wife, Rosa, from San Antonio in 1976. He was a World War II veteran and member of the Pampa Kiwanis.

Funeral services for Childress will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Carmichael-Whitley Colonial Chapel. A second service will be held Wednesday in San Antonio. He will be buried in the Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery.

occurred. "It was five or 10 minutes after we blasted," he said. "I didn't hear any sound, all we had was the pressure."

"It blew everybody from where we were standing. It threw me out of my jeep. I couldn't see anything. Everything was black, and there was dust and smoke all over the place."

"I heard somebody say, 'What are we going to do? Where do we go?'"

"I couldn't see him, but I kept telling him to try to get out. I kept talking as long as I could, but we were afraid of carbon monoxide, so we put our breathing masks on, and we couldn't talk any more."

"I got to the No. 2 shaft, and it was real hot, so I re-routed and came up a different way."

"When I got to the top, nobody was with me."

Boutte said he began working at the mine in 1968 shortly after fire suffocated 20 men underground. A second shaft has been opened since that time, however, and a number of other improvements have been made, he said.

The mine is 1,800 feet deep, located about 75 miles southwest of New Orleans in marshes that merge with the Gulf of Mexico. The mine punctures a salt dome that forms a bump of dry land on the flat, prairie-like marshes—the only high spot for 20 miles around.

The miners work in wide, high-domed corridors chipped through solid salt.

St. Mary Parish Sheriff Chester Boudoin said Saturday's explosion was so powerful that some men working at the surface were injured.

Crushing S.S. taxes

Whether the news about Social Security is good or bad depends on where one stands in the labor force - on the active rolls or retired.

Pensioners who have been watching inflation shrink the buying power of their social security checks have the "good" news that help is on the way. Benefits will rise by 9.9 percent in July, reflecting an automatic cost-of-living adjustment.

But that same news is not so good for the employees and employers paying a Social Security tax that took one jump this year and is scheduled to rise even more sharply in 1980. Trustees of the system now are worried that these tax increases, voted by Congress in 1977 with a promise that they would solve the Social Security financing problem, may turn out to be not enough.

The trustees recently issued a report saying the system will be "financially sound for well past the turn of the century," but with an ominous qualifier. A recession serious enough to raise unemployment to 8 percent while inflation remains at 6 percent or more could put a "severe" strain on Social Security trust funds as early as 1983, they say.

That's what happened during the recession of 1975, creating the problem which Congress purportedly solved in 1977 by increasing the tax and by rising the formula for applying cost-of-living benefit increases. The trustees - Social Security Commissioner Stanford Ross and cabinet secretaries Michael Blumenthal, Ray Marshall and Joseph Claifano - now seem to be saying the problem isn't solved after all.

Economists are predicting a business slowdown of some degree this year. It would not have to be very severe - given the current inflation rate and its impact on benefits - to produce another serious imbalance between the amount of money going into the Social Security pipeline and the amount going out.

The burden which the new Social Security tax schedules will place on American workers and their employers in the 1980s is heavier than they can be expected to shoulder. If there are new cracks appearing in the facade, the repair work must be done in the area of the promises the system is making to future beneficiaries and not in higher taxes.

Democracy and disposable diapers

In Oregon the politicians and the zealots are actually talking about banning disposable diapers. You read that correctly - banning disposable diapers. It is the reductio ad absurdum of recent environmentalist and political trends.

We're at a loss to understand the reasoning behind the damn - the diapers, ban - the disposables movement. Usually the people who attach themselves to crusades of this sort urge the banning of products that are not "bio-degradable" - i.e., material, like plastics, that are not "organic" and cannot be plowed back into the good earth.

Certainly the intention of disposable diapers is organic and bio-degradable and all that. Perhaps the opponents of disposable diapers object because they missed the chance to mandate an organic substitute for a popular synthetic?

Or perhaps these people really are libertarian subservives and we failed to decipher their code. Perhaps they fully understand that in a free society an infant's parents really do have the right to purchase or reject marketed products, such a right after all being the most convincing basis of "consumerism."

Perhaps, you see, they wrote the proposal anticipating that what passes for reasoning on our judicial benches these 1 future legislation. Think we know that the statutory product of all legislatures is the least bio-degradable stuff on the planet, that laws are with us to blight the landscape for an eternity. And we know that the content of these laws is plain waste, pure and simple.

The disposable diaper debate has riveted our attention to Oregon as the latest front for a moving round of democracy in action. And it is moving. A lady in Minnesota even wrote in to Newsweek calculating that a return to cloth (trayon? polyester?) diapers would require that a mother spend possibly an hour and a half more each week in the laundry.

What Senate ethics?

by martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Regardless of the outcome, there will be no "winners" in the Senate Ethics Committee probe of financial misconduct charges against Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga.

There is no Watergate drama of high crimes and great constitutional issues, no edge-of-the-chair contest between heroes and villains.

Rather, what has been unfolding for the past month in the committee hearing room is a mundane tale of petty chiseling, arrogance and deceit of the kind that has given politicians in general - and members of Congress in particular - such an unsavory reputation.

It doesn't matter, at bottom, whether you believe Talmadge, a 23-year veteran of the Senate "club," or his chief accuser, a former top aide named Daniel Minchew who has now turned on his old boss.

Somebody in a position of public trust - senator or staff aides - indisputably played fast and loose for years on end with taxpayers' money and with campaign funds and did so with a cavalier disregard of the laws against such finagling. And it took a press investigation, rather than internal checks, to bring the whole scheme to light.

Minchew says Talmadge was responsible for submitting false expense vouchers to the Senate and for converting campaign funds to personal use by means of a secret

Washington bank account. The senator says Minchew is a "proven liar, cheat and embezzler" who used his name but acted without his knowledge or consent.

The Ethics Committee has also accused Talmadge of filing false campaign finance disclosure reports, failing to report gifts and property on those documents, and failing to report correctly on his federal income tax returns gifts made to his ex-wife, Betty.

The senator, with an imperious wave of the hand, has dismissed those charges as "trivial" and "petty," scarcely worth comment let alone rebuttal. He has suggested that any "errors" that occurred were the result of sloppiness and confusion on the part of his staff.

A United States senator, Talmadge has implied, is too important and busy to concern himself with such matters. If his staff screws up, why that is unfortunate but hardly a federal case.

Blaming the staff is a hoary tradition on Capitol Hill, the last bastion of feudalism in modern America. From the lowliest file clerk to the loftiest administrative assistant, every aide serves at the whim of the senator who has hired him or her. Labor laws, civil rights laws and the like which protect other employees - public and private - do not apply to congressional workers.

The result is that pleasing and protecting the boss become an imperative of survival, even if it means cutting a few corners now and then - or accepting blame where none is really due. For a Senate staffer, the only punishable "crime" is disloyalty.

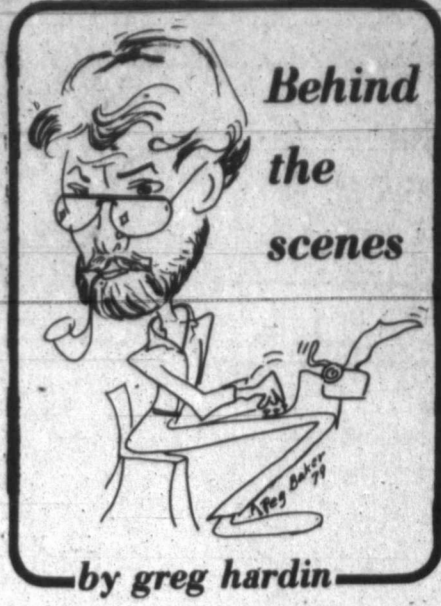

It is, consequently, not exactly surprising that current Talmadge aides have stoutly upheld the senator's claim that he never sullied his own hands with pedestrian problems like expense vouchers and campaign accounts, but left that to the staff. Anyone who testified to the contrary, one can't help suspecting, might soon be looking for a new job.

Even Minchew, the ex-staffer who broke the code, still pays lip service to it. Although he insists he was acting on Talmadge's behalf and at his behest, it was Minchew who handled all the dirty work with the secret bank account.

He did so, he testified last week, in order to "insulate" the senator and give Talmadge "deniability" in case the whole business ever came to light. "If it were ever traceable or discovered, I would have taken the fall," Minchew said.

Indeed, the former aide claimed, "I probably would have done so" if Talmadge had asked him nicely once the press began snooping into the senator's financial affairs instead of turning on Minchew and calling in the Justice Department.

That's ethics - Senate style.

Behind the scenes

by greg hardin

Recently we talked about the problems facing the young people of our town and I have received a great deal of additional information facing our youth.

After talking with several young people from the age of 15 to 21 I realize that I did not convey my message strong enough.

One young man, 16 - years - old, told me that his friends and himself found the only thing to do in the summer in Pampa when it rained was to hang around the pool halls shooting pool.

After several direct questions I found that this young man lacked any creative means to express his feelings.

"I know I can't talk well and I know that it is hard for me to make friends but there is just no place to go and be with different people," the young man said. "There is always someone telling us what we should do - but we can't afford a car to get to Amarillo to do those things. There just ain't nothing for us to do around here, except drink beer and shoot pool."

This is not an isolated case Pampans. This is the rule not the exception. Our kids are deteriorating before our eyes.

It is my opinion that some of our committees and organizations need to get together and find out what they can do to improve the night life and recreation for our young people before it is too late to save them.

Pampa has fallen into the worst possible type of rut. The people here are afraid of change and they want their children to follow in their footsteps but that is impossible.

The young people today are alive and need recreation areas, dances, night life to survive.

Their society is the society of tomorrow ours is the past. It is time to give our youth the same advantages that we had and more. It is time that we listened instead of demand.

More than one young person has expressed their opinion to me and I think that if you don't listen to these young minds they will pass you by.

Now is the time that we must pool our resources and develop a program or programs to help our youth cope with boredom.

If you are not involved in helping young people get involved, I am.

Uncle Sam's Hip-shooters frequently miss

by paul harvey

This is Chicago. We have been hosting a host of presumed aviation experts investigating the crash of Flight No. 191.

With the arrival on the scene of the first of these government people we began getting a hodgepodge of piecemeal and premature conjecture.

One investigator, Elwood Driver, publicly jumped immediately to the conclusion that the mishap was caused by a "broken bolt."

Shortly thereafter, another investigator, Michael Marks, said the broken bolt found on the runway had nothing to do with the crash.

Another investigator, James King, suspected a "design defect." He was sure there was a structural weakness, cracks in the "monoball" which anchors the engines to the wings.

Another investigator, Bob Buckhorn, was equally convinced that the pylon of that engine on 191 - when it let go - ruptured hydraulic lines and thus disabled the airliner's controls, leaving the crew helpless.

It's not their fault that these fellows run for the microphone with tidbits that may be more confusing than clarifying. Media peoplepester them to say something.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, June 10, the 161st day of 1979. There are 204 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1971, the United States lifted a 21-year-old embargo on trade with China, easing hostility between Washington and the Communist government in Peking.

On this date:

In 1610, the first Dutch settlers in America landed on Manhattan Island.

In 1776, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia named a committee to draft the Declaration of Independence.

In 1898, U.S. Marines invaded Cuba in the Spanish-American War.

In 1940, Italy declared war on France and Britain in World War II.

In 1942, the Nazi Gestapo killed 173 male residents of Lidice, Czechoslovakia, in retaliation for the assassination of a German official.

anything - in time for the 6 o'clock news.

But if they were better disciplined, they would not.

Philip Hogue of the National Transportation Safety Board announced that he would not fly on a DC-10.

Hogue is but one of five members of the NTSB, but as such would seem to be obligated to more discretion than that remark indicates.

The DC-10 has an accident rate well below that of most other airliners.

In fact, if you take the top 12 airliners over a 10-year period and total their fatalities per 100,000 hours of flight, of the 12 any one of eight others has killed more people.

And among the big jumbo jets, the 747 and L-1011, the DC-10 has a lower fatal accident rate than either of those.

So Mr. Hogue's remark demonstrated an apparent ignorance of his own government agency's statistics.

Federal Aviation Administrator Langhorn Bond said the other day that no jet airliner had ever before tried to fly with one engine ripped off. That is just plain not so. I know of at least two.

Midst this barrage of conjecture, hopefully Americans will learn themselves to wait for "the whole truth," because hip-shooting bureaucrats obviously frequently miss the mark.

Let me say this much more about these investigations.

Nobody wants to conceal the facts.

It was through the crash of the Lockheed Electra in 1959 that a design flaw was discovered. Wings actually snapped off the plane in flight.

Funeral held for Gene Hart

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — A Cherokee tribal ceremony at a rural cemetery in the rugged hills near here has brought an end to the tragic story of Gene Leroy Hart.

"I'm convinced we followed Gene's wishes," said attorney Garvin Isaacs, a brusque Oklahoma City attorney who two months earlier had engineered Hart's acquittal in the still-unsolved slayings of three Girl Scouts at a camp two miles south of here.

An estimated 1,000 mourners gathered in the high school gymnasium here Friday afternoon to pay final respects to Hart, a man many remembered as a high school football star nicknamed Sonny.

"God stepped in with his mighty works and powers and called Gene home," said minister Bill Grass of Spavinaw, adding that Hart had "suffered enough."

Many of those who gathered in the hot auditorium had also attended Hart's month-long trial on three charges of first-degree murder in the June 13, 1977 Girl Scout slayings.

That trial ended March 30 with Hart's acquittal. He was immediately returned to the Oklahoma State Penitentiary to begin serving sentences for kidnapping, rape, burglary and escape convictions dating from 1967.

Monday, the 35-year-old Hart was felled by a deadly heart attack after an hour of strenuous exercise in the prison exercise yard.

Hart was buried in Ballou Cemetery near this northeastern Oklahoma community after the hour-long service that began at 2 p.m.

Hart was dressed in a blue three-piece suit he had worn for much of his grueling trial in Mayes County District Court.

It was almost two years ago that counselors at Camp Scott found the bludgeoned bodies of the young girls on June 13, 1977.

Teachers lose appeal to state board

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A teacher with a penchant for hunting and another who risked her job to get married both lost their appeals to the State Board of Education on Saturday.

The board unanimously rejected the plea of U.D. Vick, who was fired after taking off a week in October 1977 without permission to go deer hunting in Colorado.

Vick had been employed since 1969 as a teacher of general construction trades in the Bridgeport school district, near Fort Worth, and had made it a practice to go hunting each year.

Vick contended he had a contractual right to leave for a week's hunt each year. Even if the time off was unauthorized, he argued, the violation was so slight he should not have been fired.

State Education Commissioner M.L. Brockette stated Vick had been rehired only after he had said he would be willing to pass up the yearly hunt, and the school superintendent specifically had disapproved any leave for hunting.

The reassignment of Nederland biology teacher Carolyn Cagle Willis was upheld, 12-7.

Several board members, however, criticized Nederland trustees for rewriting a rule to fit Mrs. Willis' situation after trustees had used the rule to switch Mrs. Willis to another school in that southeast Texas district.

She had taught biology at Nederland High School for 10 years and had been chairman of the department for seven years when she married Don Willis, a vocational agricultural teacher on Jan. 7, 1978.

She had been told, prior to her marriage, school district policy prohibits spouses from working on the same campus.

Governors gather for conference

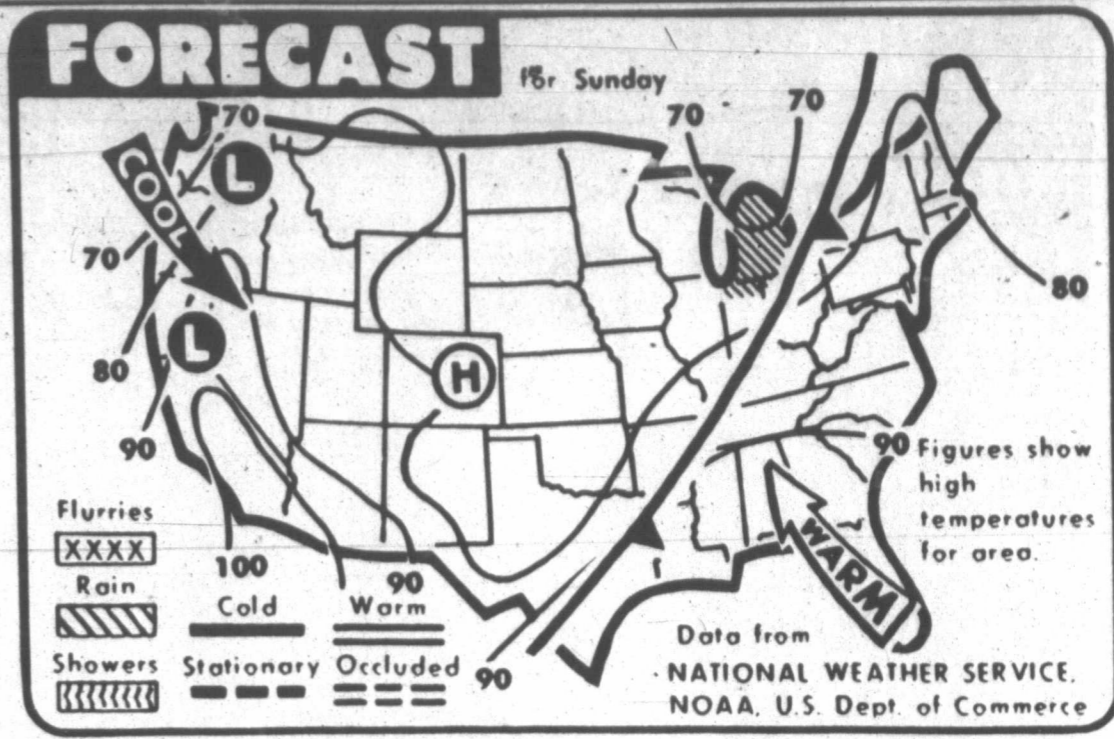

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP) — Western governors gather at this luxurious, placid ski resort Sunday night for three days of talks about common problems such as fuel supplies, nuclear waste and the economy.
 They're likely to come up with more problems than answers.
 It's the annual Western Governors' Conference, which will draw chief executives from 15 Western states and territories. The only governors not scheduled are Jerry Brown of California and Arizona's Bruce Babbitt.
 And the convention will be less than 100 miles from a problem shared in some degree by several of the states—nuclear waste and disposal.
 Nearly every Western state has a controversy over nuclear waste. Convention host Gov. John Evans of Idaho says it will be a key topic of discussion, especially states' rights to regulate nuclear matters.
 "It will be a topic of discussion," said Evans. "It's on the agenda at the direct request of Nevada Gov. Robert List. He's concerned over state control over transportation of nuclear waste."
 Evans himself has a big problem with nuclear waste. Millions of cubic feet of plutonium-contaminated waste are stored in Eastern Idaho at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, perhaps 100 miles from the convention site.
 Much of it is buried in rotting and leaking containers. Evans and other state officials want the waste removed. But the question is where.
 "We've got to identify a place where it can be accepted economically and socially by the people," said Evans.

 A vast area of West Texas was under a flash flood watch today because of continuing heavy rainfall.
 The counties included were:

VA pensioners to be affected by bill

The first cost-of-living increase in Social Security payments since passage of last year's Veterans Administration pension reform bill will affect more than 2.5 million VA pensioners in a variety of ways, Jack Coker, Waco VA Regional Office Director, said today.
 Coker said the increase will bring a 9.9 percent boost in monthly payments for approximately 100,000 veterans and their beneficiaries enrolled under the new pension plan. For those who chose to remain under the old pension plan there is an upward adjustment in the income limitation ceiling.

Congress last year linked VA pensions to Social Security cost-of-living hikes when it enacted a new VA pension program that gave pension recipients a choice of converting or remaining under the existing plan.
 Coker said almost 400,000 applications have been received for conversion to the new pension program and that another 200,000 are expected before the end of 1979.
 While the new program offers higher pension rates than the old one, all income of a veteran and his dependents is counted in calculating his pension.

Pampa News Marathon

*Run to

United Fund*

For all of the running enthusiasts who would love the chance to enter The Pampa News' Marathon, but feel that they lack the necessary conditioning, here's a short course to get your body in great shape and at the same time prepare you for the Labor Day event.

When you choose a marathon that you want to enter, start training about 13 weeks in advance. You should start out slowly and then build up gradually as the weeks pass.

As you train, your running will build up to an average of an hour a day. Consider this a minimum for everyone. Almost anyone can finish a marathon on this amount. But if you wish to race (for time), you need to obey the "collapse-point" rule: Average at least one-third of the race time. If your time will be under three hours, the hour a day is still enough. If it's to be slower than that, add one training minute for each three minutes of racing.

It may appear that the faster runners are let off with less work. They don't, in fact, run less distance, only less time because they cover the required ground faster. One-third of a marathon is about 8 1/2 miles. A three-hour marathoner may do that comfortably in an hour, while a 3 1/2-hour runner may take 70 minutes. But they both work at the same level of effort.

Alternate between long and short runs, taking three of each per week with one "optional" day for rest or making up lost training. Short runs amount to about one-tenth of the week's total, long runs are two-tenths and the longest runs are three-tenths.

Use the longest weekly run as a race rehearsal under surface, terrain, time-of-day and weather conditions similar to those expected in the marathon. Practice taking drinks regularly during these runs. Give particular attention to all of this in Week 11, when the longest run extends to an extra half-hour.

Training pace should be similar to your marathon, but easier, naturally, because you aren't running as far.

Cut training to no more than 30-45 minutes a day in the last (13th) week. You can't do any more building at this point, but it isn't too late to hurt yourself.

Preparations are now being made for the first annual Pampa News Marathon to be held in the city on Labor Day, Sept. 3.

The marathon will have three different races including six, 13 and 26-mile jaunts. All proceeds from the event will be donated to the United Fund Drive.

Each of the three races will have the following divisions: 14-18, 19-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50 and over along with a women's division.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three finishers in all divisions.

The course for the event will be through the streets of Pampa and the surrounding area.

Entries will be accepted until Friday, Aug. 31. The entry fee is $5 per person.

The event will start promptly at 8 a. m. on Sept. 3.

For more information contact Greg Hardin or Jerry Gunter at the Pampa News by calling 669-2525.

NOTE: The Pampa News will not be held responsible for any accident incurred by any of the participants during any portion of the marathon.

Agricultural picture described as wet! wet! wet!

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Wet! Wet! Wet! That's the best way to describe the current agricultural picture in Texas.

Heavy rains throughout much of the state have brought agricultural work to a halt, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Early planted crops are making good progress in South Texas and the Coastal Bend as well as in parts of Southeast, South Central and Southwest Texas. However, elsewhere most crops are late and are making limited progress due to cool, wet conditions, noted Pfannstiel.

The planting season got off to a good start in the High and Rolling Plains several weeks ago, but now rains are also causing delays. Most of the irrigated cotton has been planted in the South Plains, but dryland farmers have been waiting on planting moisture, which they now have.

The rains have also delayed the beginning of the wheat harvest in the Rolling Plains and have played havoc with many first cuttings of hay, said Pfannstiel. Hay crops have been doing well with the plentiful moisture, but now dry weather is needed to harvest first cuttings. A good first cutting of alfalfa hay has been harvested in western areas and the plains.

Peach harvesting is increasing over Texas as weather conditions permit. Crop prospects remain good. Pecan prospects also remain good to excellent over most of the state, with spraying active to control pecan nut casebearers.

Vegetable harvesting continues throughout the Rio Grande Valley and in the Coastal Bend and Southwest Texas (Winter Garden) as weather conditions permit.

The rains have boosted West Texas livestock and forage. Pfannstiel said. But excessive moisture over much of the eastern half of the state is hampering grass growth.

Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions.

PANHANDLE: Rains have improved soil moisture but have also delayed planting. Cotton and sorghum planting will resume when conditions permit. Corn is growing well but needs warmer weather. Wheat continues to look excellent. Range conditions will improve with the additional moisture.

SOUTH PLAINS: Rain has halted cotton planting, with about 80 percent of the crop in. Planting of the dryland crop will be completed as fields dry. Soybean and sorghum planting will also be completed as weather permits. The wheat crop is excellent. Ranges continue to improve.

ROLLING PLAINS: Rains have halted cotton planting and wheat harvesting. Cotton planting is about 20 percent complete while wheat is ready to harvest. A good wheat crop is in prospect. Ranges are in excellent condition and cattle are making good gains. Grasshoppers are increasing in some counties.

NORTH CENTRAL: Some cotton remains to be planted due to wet conditions. Some replanting also will be necessary. Wheat is ready to harvest; most oats have been cut for hay. Greenbugs and aphids are increasing in sorghum. Some hay has been harvested, but open weather is needed. Livestock generally have good grazing.

NORTHEAST: Rain is hampering field work and hay harvesting. Most crops are in but need open weather for normal growth. Watermelons are being planted as field conditions permit. Some early peaches are being harvested. Clovers are providing good grazing for livestock.

FAR WEST: Good rains should boost crop and forage conditions. Cotton, sorghum, alfalfa, vegetables and pecans are growing well. Some small grain harvesting is starting. Lambs continue to move to market.

WEST CENTRAL: Most of the area has good moisture but a few counties remain dry. Cotton planting is active where field conditions permit; some will have to be replanted due to heavy rains. Most of the sorghum has been planted, and peanut planting is active in some counties. Peach and pecan crops continue to make good progress.

CENTRAL: Rains have caused some flooding and crop damage. Cool, wet weather is hampering cotton growth, with thrips and fleahoppers increasing in some fields. Wheat is maturing and harvesting will start as fields dry. Farmers also waiting on fields to dry to plant peanuts. Apricots and early peaches are ripening. Pecan prospects continue to look good.

EAST: Wet weather has brought some flooding and crop damage, and continues to delay spring planting and the first cutting of hay. Planting of soybeans and peanuts will begin as fields dry. Some early peaches are being harvested. Livestock are generally in good condition.

On Kansas City Market

Winter wheat prices take sharp jump

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Winter wheat futures prices at the Kansas City Board of Trade jumped about 25 cents this week amid speculation that a hot spring in the Soviet Union has adversely affected the wheat crop there.

Trading Friday led the rally with 16-cent increases posted across the board.

Roderick Turnbull, spokesman for the Kansas City Board of Trade, said the Friday's price jump apparently was set off by rumors that a Russian crop report soon to be released will "show their crop is worse off than (the traders) originally thought."

Traders figure that a poor Russian wheat crop will prompt the Soviets to buy more wheat in U.S. markets. Heavy buying by the Russians, or even the prospect of heavy buying, often boosts the domestic futures market.

July wheat futures at the Kansas City Board of Trade jumped 16 cents Friday to $3.84 1/2 a bushel, September futures were up 15 cents to $3.89. December wheat was up 15 1/2 cents to $3.96 and March was up 16 cents to $4.01.

The gains topped off a strong week in which the market set new season highs. Futures prices rose about a dime Wednesday, declined slightly Thursday and rebounded again Friday.

Hard red winter wheat, which is traded exclusively in Kansas City, comprises the bulk of bread-making wheat.

Futures prices at the Board of Trade have jumped nearly 50 cents since late April when traders expressed concern about the cold spring. Cold, wet weather in northern parts of the United States kept farmers from planting their crops. Late crops are more susceptible to insect damage and run the risk of being hurt by an early freeze.

"All we know for sure now is that people are buying — because when people are buying, the market goes up," Turnbull said at the close of trading Friday.

He said traders thought speculation about future Russian wheat buys was the reason for the sharp rise in prices.

"If you knew you were going to be needing some grain, and thought the Russians were going to be buying heavily later, then you'd decide you better get in the market and buy before they do," he said.

Also contributing to the rise in wheat futures were reports of wet weather in Oklahoma and Texas, where the wheat harvest is under way.

"We think we're going to have a good crop, but none of it's in the bin," Turnbull added. "That's what everyone is concerned about."

RANDY CARPENTER cuts wooden segments, which will be the base for the panelling to be placed in his alma mater, Pampa High School. According to the construction foreman, Dave Rawlins of Lubbock, the work for this part of the renovation work should be done before school starts. The crew, hired by the contractor - Monterey Construction Co., began Monday after Rawlins surveyed the project over the weekend. The panelling was expected to arrive Friday. The Monterey Co. may be contracted to finish building the concession stands at the football field. The building trades class began their construction, but had difficulty completing them because of weather problems. (Courtesy photo by Ed Sackett)

Protest picking up momentum

Protests by independent truckers upset at the high price and short supply of diesel fuel appeared to be picking up momentum and outside support, and one leader said a nationwide strike was scheduled for Monday.

Leonard Barnwell, an organizer of protests in Nashville, Tenn., said officials of the 30,000-member Independent Truckers Association based in Los Angeles informed him late Friday of the planned work stoppage.

Barnwell said association president Mike Parkhurst told him, "there'll absolutely be a shutdown Monday. We just don't want the trucks rolling."

Parkhurst could not be reached for comment. Earlier Friday, Parkhurst said the association had "not yet come to the point where we can sanction a shutdown of trucks."

But he said he would be in Washington Monday to give details of a 20-mile convoy of trucks that is being planned to dramatize the truckers' grievances.

Meanwhile, the truckers' campaign seemed to be gaining steam around the country in protest votes, preparations, and angry talk.

Some 150 members of the West Alabama Independent Truckers Association voted Friday to shut down at midnight and a national strike coordination center was set up in Mesquite, Texas.

"I'd like to see all trucks shut down for about two weeks and see this nation on its knees," said George Morris of Wapakoneta, Ohio, who has been driving for 10 years.

The truckers' cause got a boost Friday from officials of the American Agriculture Movement.

Coastal wins Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — Coastal swept into the lead with a little more than an eighth of a mile to go and won the $269,000 Belmont Stakes Saturday in a spectacular upset as Spectacular Bid finished third and failed to win the Triple Crown.

Spectacular Bid, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness and the 1-5 favorite to become the third consecutive Triple Crown winner, led for most of the 1½-mile race and was ahead turning for home. Then, as the crowd of 59,073 cheered him on, Coastal stormed along the rail for his stunning upset.

Golden Act, third in the Derby and second in the Preakness with stretch runs, put on another stretch drive on this hazy day at Belmont Park to finish second.

Coastal, who was not nominated for the race and had to be supplemented for $20,000, made owner William Haggin Perry's gamble worth every penny as Coastal won his second straight stakes and his fourth race in as many starts this year.

Coastal is the chestnut son of Majestic Prince, who failed to win the Triple Crown by losing the Belmont 10 years ago. Ridden by Ruben Hernandez, Coastal finished ¾ lengths ahead of Golden Act, who was a neck in front of Spectacular Bid. Screen King was another 9½ lengths back and was followed by King Celebrity, Gallant Best, General Assembly and Mystic Era.

Coastal carried scale weight of 126 pounds over the mile and a half in 2:28.5.

The winner, who earned $161,400, returned $10.80, $4.80 and $2.10. Golden Act paid $5.40 and $2.10. The millionaire Spectacular Bid, winner of 12 straight stakes going in, was $2.10 to show.

Before the race, Lucien Lauren, the trainer who saddled Secretariat to win the Triple Crown in 1973, said of Coastal, "He's a fresh horse with great ability, racing on his home track (Coastal has raced four times at Belmont, winning three, and trains there regularly), he's comfortable and confident here and I just think he's going to be awfully tough to beat."

He was impossible to beat — on this Saturday.
Ronnie Franklin broke Spectacular Bid third out of the gate and had him second into the clubhouse turn. Shortly after entering the backstretch, Spectacular Bid took the lead and the crowd roared. The throng continued to cheer Bid on, but then just before the eighth pole, as Coastal flashed by on the rail, the cheers of an expected victory turned to a roar of disbelief. The king was dead.

Bid went into the race as the overwhelming favorite to join Secretariat, Seattle Slew in 1977 and Affirmed, 1978, as the fourth Triple Crown winner in this decade. Instead, he became the ninth 3-year-old to win the first two jewels of the Triple Crown, only to come up empty in the Belmont.

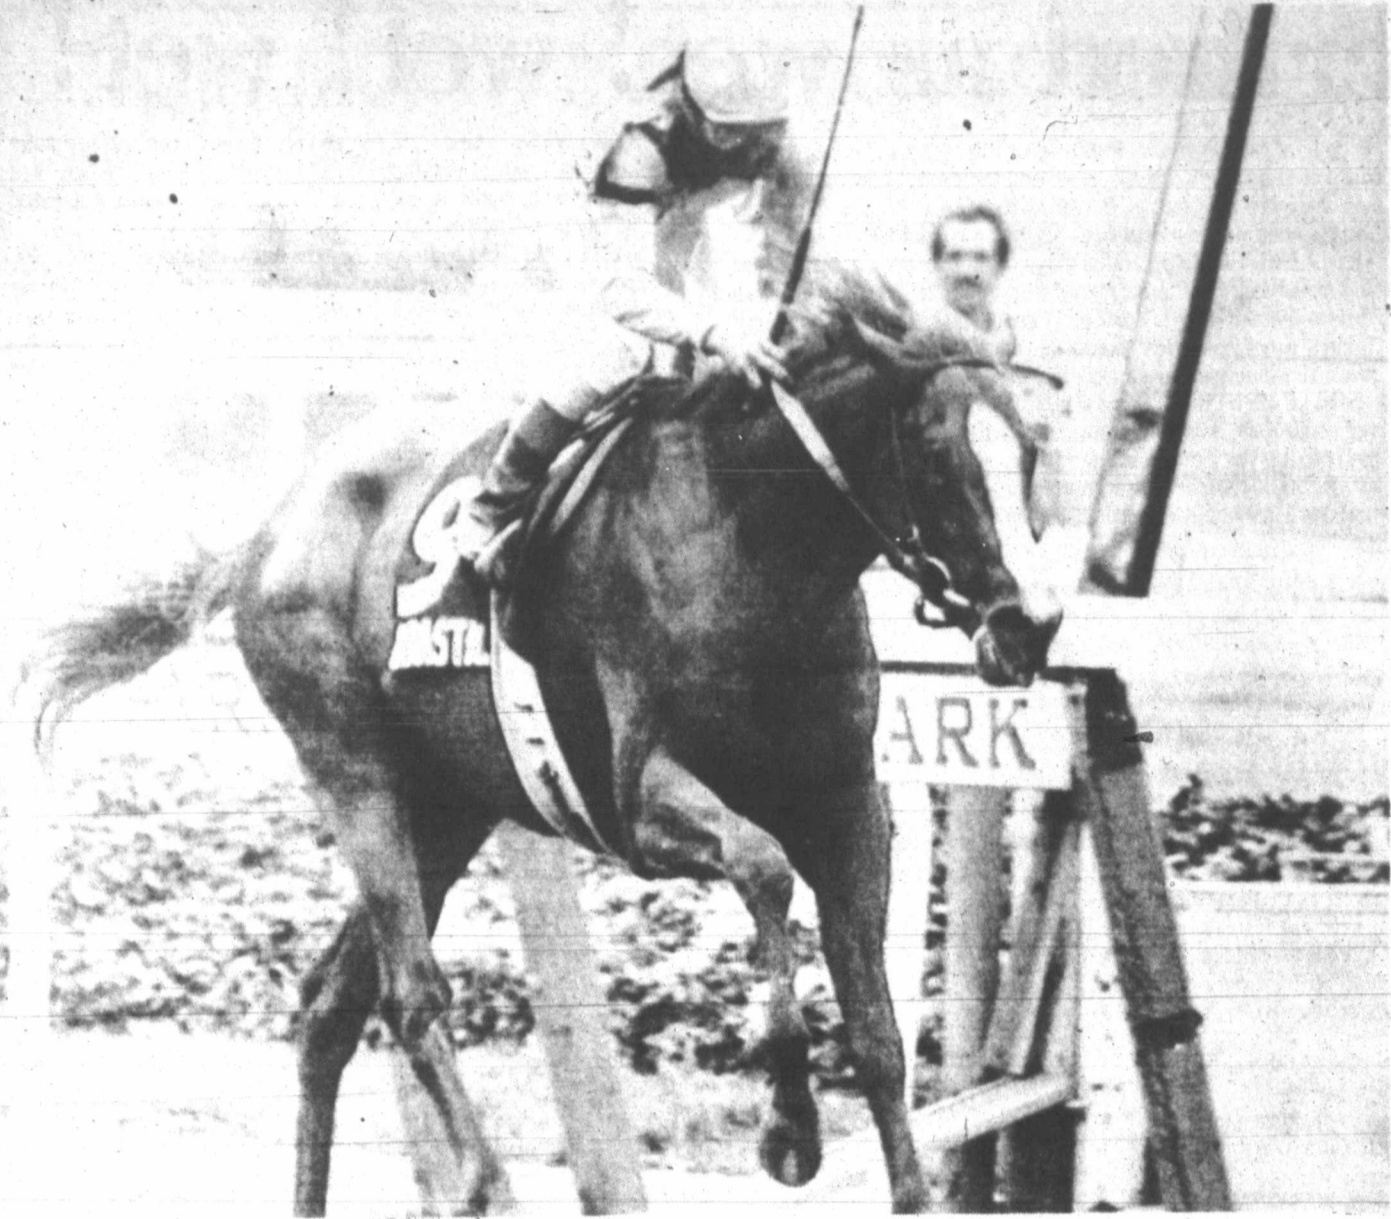

A crowd of about 50,000 turned out to see if the gunmetal gray colt could become the fourth winner of the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont in this decade.

Secretariat became the first Triple Crown winner since Citation in 1948 when he won the Belmont by a record 3 lengths in a record 2:24 for the 1½ miles in 1973. Seattle Slew and Affirmed accomplished the feat in 1977 and 1978, respectively.

Eight 3-year-olds were set to challenge Spectacular Bid. The field was reduced when Picturesque was scratched Saturday morning, cutting the purse by $1,000 to $271,000. It was by far the richest Belmont. The purse was boosted to $200,000-added for the first time this year.

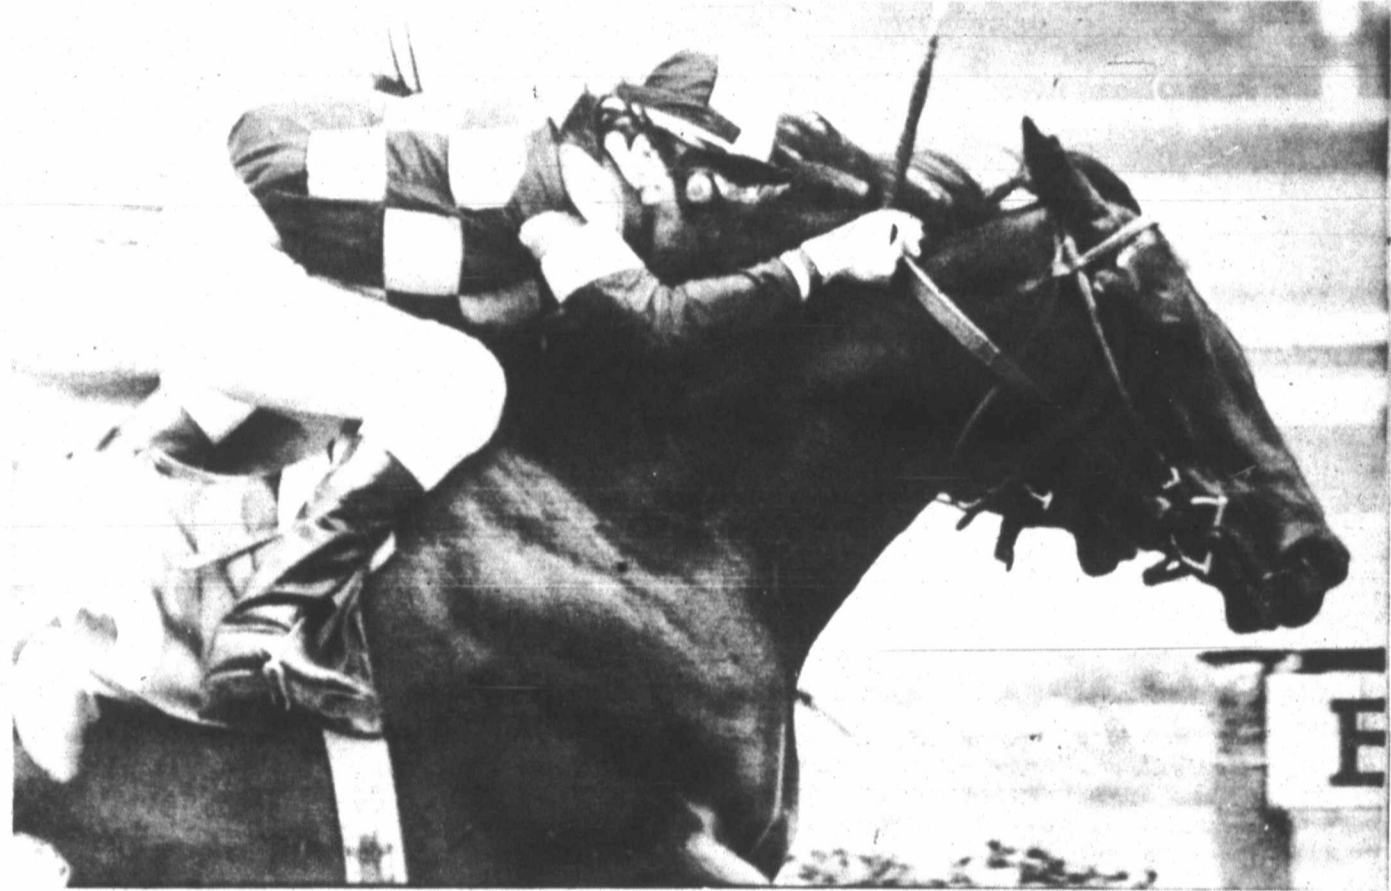

Bid's main challengers were expected to be Coastal, who was unbeaten in three starts this year, and three colts who chased him in the Derby and Preakness — Golden Act, General Assembly and Screen King. Coastal was not nominated for the Belmont and therefore it cost owner William Haggin Perry $20,000 to get him into the race.

Post time was 5:38 p.m. EDT.
The crowd was far below the record of 82,694 that turned out to see Cananero II bid for the Triple Crown in 1971 — he finished fourth in that race, which was won by Pass Catcher. Secretariat won before a crowd of 67,605; Seattle Slew performed before 71,026 and Affirmed was watched by 65,417.

Jazz moves to the Salt Palace Arena

CHICAGO (AP) — The New Orleans Jazz, contending it can't get some prime dates in the Superdome, has been given the go-ahead by the National Basketball Association's 21 owners to move to the 13,200-seat Salt Palace Arena in Salt Lake City.

The move, however, could be the subject of court action.

Unanimous approval Friday by the NBA Board of Governors followed a recommendation in favor of the move from the board's advisory committee. Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien said.

O'Brien said the Utah franchise would be put in the league's Midwest Division, with the Indiana Pacers shifting to the Central Division.

O'Brien refused to discuss what position the NBA would take regarding the threat of suits resulting from the move. He said the matter "would be left to the league's counsel."

Perini nudged teammate

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Paul Perini nudged Broward Community College teammate Kirk Jones by a single stroke when he chipped in a birdie on the final hole Friday to capture the 20th annual National Junior College Athletic golf tournament championship here.

Perini and Jones' one-two finish also clinched the team title for the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., school.

Broward had a four-day team total of 1,198 on the Odessa Country Club course to beat defending team champion Brevard of Cocoa, Fla., which finished with a 1,204 total.

Perini, who took a five stroke lead eroded in Friday's final round, needed the 18th hole birdie to shoot a 79 for a tournament total of 294. That was one stroke better than Jones, who fired a final round 175.

Defending champion Jim Stuart, of Alexander City, Ala., and Rick Stallings of Brevard were tied for third at 297.

Pampa Open finishes junior division

Junior events of the Pampa Tennis Open were finished by Friday evening while Saturday morning rains prevented play of the senior events, which will probably be scheduled again in August.

Ending two days of play, Borger's Brad Renick took the 18 boys singles division in straight sets (6-2)(6-4) against Jeff Willard, who is also of Borger.

Willard combined his efforts with Pampa's Kurt Krause to win the 18 boy's doubles division in a (6-2)(6-0) match with two Lubbock players, Jimmy Butler and Steve Starkey.

In the finals of the 18 girl's singles division, Pampa's Kris Douglass lost straight sets (6-2)(6-0) to Sonja Hutcherson of Memphis.

Douglass teamed up with another local, Susan Lane, to take on Hutcherson again in the 18's doubles event. Hutcherson and her partner, Rhonda Bryant of Amarillo, won (6-3)(6-0).

Starkey, defeating Vince Ballen (6-2)(7-5), was the victor in the boy's 14 singles division. The doubles division for this age group was combined into the 18 boy's doubles.

The bracket of the 16 girl's singles division showed Amarillo's Bryant continuing to be successful by overpowering Laura Johnson of Pampa in a (6-2)(6-0) battle.

Bryant and another Amarillo girl, Ann Patterson, kept a momentum in a three set match against Susan Westerfield and Sandy Honath both of Amarillo to win (6-2)(3-6)(6-3).

Amarillo also displayed strength in the 14 girl's singles division with a decisive final match by Julie Vaughan, who beat Borger's Becky McKay.

Leonard Wennmohs struggled to finally overcome Dick Hughes of Tucson, Ariz in a (6-4)(3-6)(7-6) match in the 14 boy's singles play.

Hughes and Pampa's Clay Douglass played a strong finals match in the 14 boy's double event to defeat the Pampa team of Richard VanKluyve and David Walker in two sets. (6-1)(6-0).

In Thursday's matches, Memphis' Hutcherson had advanced to the finals of the 18 girls singles with an earlier semi-final win over Sandy Honath of Amarillo, 6-1, 6-0.

Honath had advanced to the semi-finals with an upset win over Laura Johnson of Pampa, 9-6, 6-4, 6-2.

First round action in the 18 girls doubles saw Beth Wills and Beth Brown of Wheeler win by default over Darcey Albin and Dena Rogers of Canadian.

But the Wheeler duo could not repeat the win in the semi-finals as they lost to Kris Douglass and Susan Lane of Pampa by scores of 6-3, 6-4. Sonya Hutcherson and Kim Clark won their semi-final match with a 6-1, 6-0 victory over Cindy Waterfield and Donna Bruce of Canadian.

Kramer gripped by mixed emotions

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Kramer is gripped by mixed emotions — pride, reservation, concern — when he views the explosion of big time tennis.

"It's the fruition of what a lot of people worked for down through the years — Tilden, Vines, Perry, Budge, Riggs and, if you'll excuse me, myself," said the onetime king of the courts. "Now we have to be careful we don't blow it."

Kramer, of Los Angeles, former world champion, tour promoter, administrator and spearhead in the move to open tennis, was in New York recently to be inducted into the Madison Square Garden Hall of Fame.

He took time out to put in a few promotional licks for his new book, "The Game: My Forty Years of Tennis," co-authored with Frank DeFord.

"Big Jake" is now 57, going on 27. He has lost none of his boyish good looks, his clean-cut All-American image, unbridled enthusiasm and charm. Few men, if any, have left a finer legacy or greater impact on the game.

"Tennis players today have gained equal stature with the athletes of every other major sport — football, baseball, basketball, golf and hockey," he said. "Prize money and endorsements run to more than $1 million a year in some cases. They are given prime spots on TV. They are lionized by the fans."

"As such, they must not overlook the fact that they have a responsibility. They can't take it all with them. They have to leave something for the next generation."

Kramer is disturbed that the modern professional tennis player too often assumes the role of "spoiled brat" — surly, undisciplined, at times even boorish and profane.

"Not all of them, certainly," Kramer said. "But as a body they have much to learn from their counterparts in golf. Golfers are more mature when they begin. They aren't as accustomed to parental pampering. They are drilled to do the right things."

"In tennis, there seems to be too much of a premium on winning. Maybe it's because tennis players start so young and parents and coaches haven't done their jobs properly. This raises the temptation to cheat. The kid is afraid to come home and tell his mother he got beat."

When Jack was 14, he got sore after being called for a foot fault and threw his racket over the fence while uttering an epithet. "My father came out on the court and said, 'That's all, Cocky — let's go home.' I never forgot it."

Kramer said he hoped young John McEnroe would shun the so-called "color syndrome," typified by the volatile Ilie Nastase and Jimmy Connors, and become an example for all the youngsters coming up in the game.

"...I hope he will play more like (Bjorn) Borg. This way he could turn it all around. Young kids would look at him and say, 'I want to play like McEnroe, I want to act like McEnroe.'"

"The same is true in the case of Tracy Austin among the women. These youngsters carry a great burden on their shoulders."

Connors upset in French Open

PARIS (AP) — The 1979 French Open Tennis Championships were unfolding according to form, with defending champion Bjorn Borg and his No. 1 challenger, Jimmy Connors, moving relentlessly toward a confrontation in the finals. And then came Victor Pecci.

The 6-foot-4 Paraguayan with the sledge-hammer serve defied his unseeded status Friday and stunned this $485,000 tournament with a sensational 7-5, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3 defeat of Connors in a semifinal match at Roland Garros Stadium.

The upset before a capacity crowd followed a masterful performance by three-time French Open champion Borg, who whipped Vitas Gerulaitis 6-2, 6-1, 6-0 and sent the New Yorker running out of the stadium without so much as a shower.

The 23-year-old Swedish wonder will seek his fourth men's crown in six years here in the finals against Pecci on Sunday.

The competition for the $30,000 women's crown has gone according to plan, with top seed Chris Evert Lloyd scheduled to face Australia's Wendy Turnbull in today's women's finals.

Pecci, with his thick mane of black hair and diamond ear pin, had been impressive in earlier victories on the slow red clay here and then became a star Wednesday when he completely overpowered No. 3 seed and former French champion Guillermo Vilas of Argentina.

As impressive as that 6-0, 6-2, 7-5 conquest was, almost no one was prepared for what Pecci did to Connors, least of all Connors.

The Belleville, Ill., belter, with his tricky left-handed power game, had been getting steadily stronger and confident on the clay, dispatching clay masters Manuel Orantes of Spain and then Eddie Dibbs of the United States.

Inman leads in Atlanta Classic

ATLANTA (AP) — Joe Inman says he isn't certain how anyone would go about ranking golf rounds of 64. "But if you grade 64s, it would be one of the ugliest ones you ever saw," Inman said Friday, referring to his own 8-under-par round that put him into the halfway lead at 9-under-par 135 in the $300,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

DECORATING TRENDS...
Charlie's

SMALL BEDROOMS can often seem a problem to furnish...but they need not be. For one thing, don't limit your decorating by any hard-and-fast rules about size, or choosing only small-scale furnishings for small rooms.

The bold, dramatic trend in today's decorating includes such strokes as choose a big, eye-filling, wall-filling bed that will dominate the small bedroom...and let you (or the kids, if it's their room) sleep better. After all, that's what the room is for...and emphasizing the one big bed will unify the whole room.

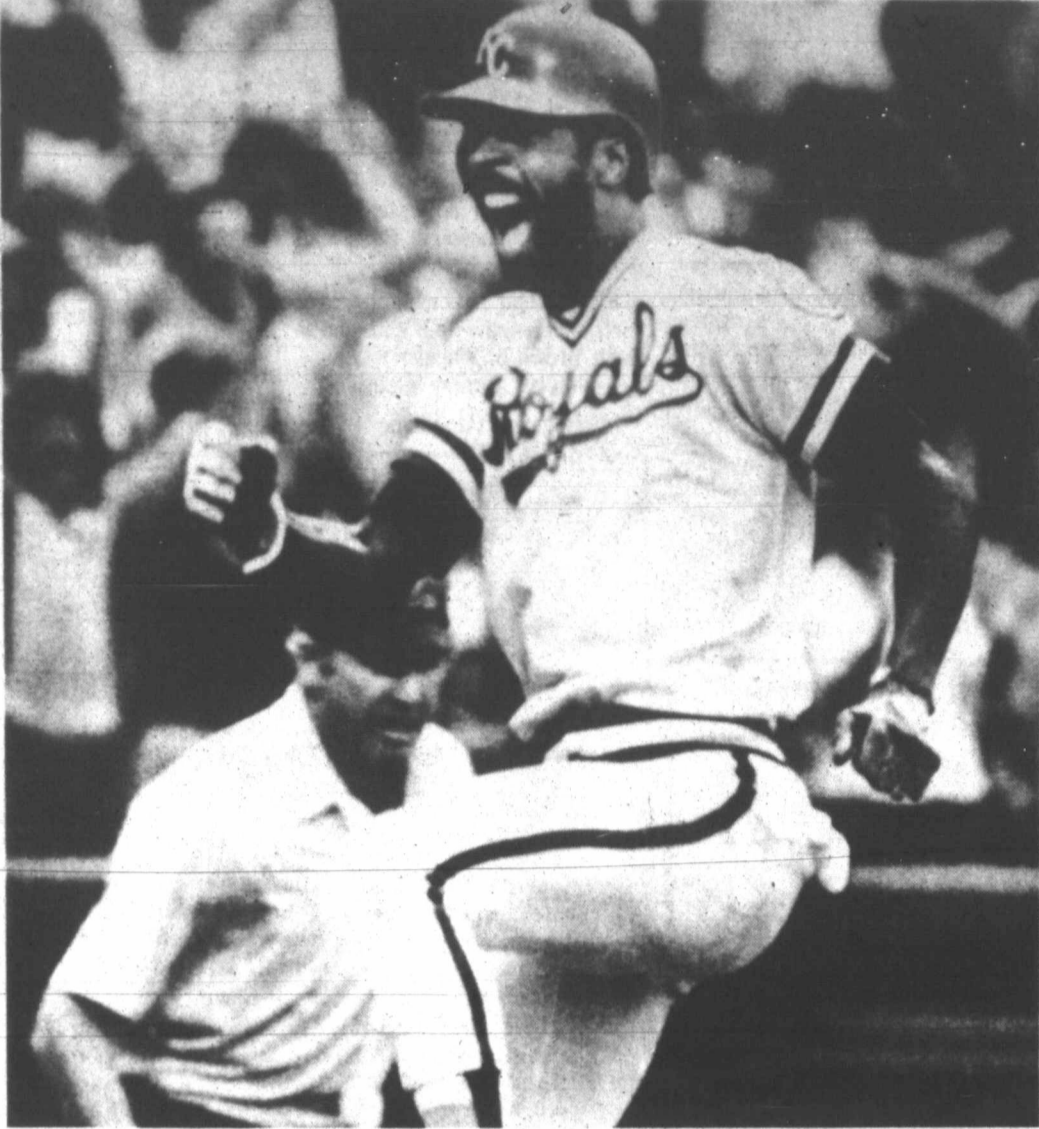

There are other ways to use the remaining space economically. For instance, a pair of bedside chests for storage, instead of smaller nightstands, eliminates the need for a separate large dresser. In the child's room, chests, desk space and storage can all be combined in a continuous wall unit, even making use of corners and under-window space.

The point is, don't be afraid to do things in a big way, even in a small room. Sometimes thinking big can give better results.

You'll find many ways to solve your furnishing problems imaginatively and beautifully when you browse among our displays, including a wide range of bedroom suites and pieces for every decorating need...and for your budget, too.

Orioles hold their own

The Baltimore Orioles' hitters may be bloody and bowed of late, but you ought to see the opposition.

"Everything's come to a stop, but we're holding our own," Manager Earl Weaver said after Mike Flanagan pitched a four-hitter and beat the Texas Rangers 3-0 Friday night. "It's great that the pitchers have come through."

Astros 5, Mets 0

The Houston Astros have won nine of their last 10 games and 11 of 13, and first baseman Cesar Cedeno says, "The pitching is the difference." "When you get pitching, everything seems better," he said after the Astros got a four-hit shutout from right-hander Joe Niekro Friday night and beat the New York Mets, 5-0.

Carl Yastrzemski, Carlton Fisk, Jim Rice and Fred Lynn belted home runs in a 17-hit barrage Saturday as the Boston Red Sox trounced

Minnesota 12-6 for their third straight victory.

Mike Torrez, 6-3, allowed only one hit for 72-3 innings before being chased when Minnesota erupted for five runs in the eighth.

Royals 9, Yanks 8

Willie Wilson's inside-the-park home run leading off the 13th inning gave the Kansas City Royals a 9-8 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday.

Wilson pounded the first pitch of the inning from Ken Clay, 1-2, up the alley between left fielder Roy White and center fielder Mickey Rivers. White retrieved the ball but his throw got past Fred Stanley at shortstop while Wilson roared home.

Cubs 5, Dodgers 3

Jerry Martin drove in three runs with a single and a double Saturday to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 5-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Martin's two-run single capped a three-run first inning and his double into the left-field corner drove in Dave Kingman from second base and snapped a 3-3 tie in the sixth.

Morgan sees changes

Special education improves

Following the development of Pampa's Special Education Program for handicapped students could probably best be done by tracing Ruthia Morgan's involvement in it. She became a part of the program in 1970, designed for students 3-21 years old, after three years of commuting from Pampa to Amarillo, where she taught elementary children and later the educable retarded kids. Morgan has watched the changes in the local program and the growth of its students the past nine years with pleased eyes. During her first years in the program, she was the only teacher for 11 trainable mentally retarded (TMR) children, who had to learn basic functioning skills. These children had to be taught to eat, walk, articulate, tie their shoes and even blow their noses, she said. "We just had a coordinator who chose materials and advised on the curriculum," she said of the early years when her class was housed in the old Sam Houston Elementary School. "We now have more personnel," she said, listing them as coordinators, speech therapists, counselors, aides and diagnosticians. Morgan also said the program has had partial access to a psychiatrist through the school district. The use of high school coaches for the PE program has improved the motor control development of the children, she said. However, the PE program loses some of its effectiveness on those days when coaches have games or tournaments to attend, she said. With this increase in personnel and the expansion of facilities, "Classes are a more individualized thing," she said. She taught class the past school year at Austin Elementary School where she has a dishwasher, washer and dryer in her classroom and the assistance of an aide. Those facilities are important to her curriculum, she said, which includes vocational competency and home and family living skills. "Students respond better to real life objects rather than a toy representation," Morgan explained and added, "they treat a toy like a toy." The aide helps by reinforcing the skills that have already been taught, she said, "and now I have more time to teach each child. "And in my class individual instruction is important because no two kids are alike," she said. Before the program moved to Austin, it underwent several transitions which led to its present situation, which she says is much improved. Sam Houston Elementary School became the facility for seventh graders in the 1972-73 school year. Finding herself without a classroom for her students, she moved to Baker Elementary School on an invitation from its principal, Floyd Sackett. The Educable Mentally Retarded (EMR) had already been housed there, she said. The two units for mentally retarded children received an addition when the school districts employed a woman to seek out handicapped youngsters in the local community homes, she said. The legislation required public school districts to provide facilities and materials for handicapped persons from 3 to 21. Younger students could be recruited from the Satellite program when the law was enacted, she said. The enrollment increased, and the students were divided into three units—ages 13-21, 10-13 and 3-10, she said. Morgan headed the 13-21 age group, in which six of her first Pampa students were included. As a teacher, she said the most satisfaction came from watching the growth in her students' lives. Individual road maps are followed to provide guidance to each child to meet his potentials and needs, she said. Everyone, especially parents, plays an important part in these children's lives, she added. The parents can either reinforce the progress made in school or hinder it, she said. Morgan said parents of all children, not just of the handicapped, should realize how important their influence can be on a youngster's development.

Several handicapped children have just returned from the Special Olympics in Austin, where they participated in track and field events. The students go bowling every Thursday, she said, and other activities for them are still being explored.

Newspaper - living textbook in studies

Newspapers are used to help teach the realities of government in the classroom of Pampa High School's Marvin Bowman. The newspaper is a living textbook, said Bowman, who has used the newspaper in the classroom for about eight school years. "The classroom textbook died when it came off the press because it fails to keep up with current events," he said. "However, it takes a combination of the textbook and newspaper to teach a student," he added. "By the textbook, we learn how it (government) is supposed to run," he said, "... but the newspaper presents how it operates in practice." Before including newspapers in the classroom, Bowman attended a three-day seminar, called the "Living Textbook Workshop," at West Texas State University. The workshop, which is still held, brings together teachers, journalists and other interested people to exchange and present ideas about newspapers, he said. "Attending the workshop increased my appreciation of the newspaper and its value," he said. Daily usage of the newspaper has been a part of his class studies since 1976 and takes up between 10 and 25 minutes of each class period. The amount of time depends upon the importance of the stories that day, he said. Bowman said he selects the stories to be used and writes on the blackboard the page numbers and headlines of the stories to be scanned or read by the class. Then, questions about the material will be answered orally or in written form, he said, but students' grades will not be lowered from the results. Bowman said he is trying to make reading the newspaper an enjoyable experience—and students sometimes react negatively to grades. The newspaper helps with lessons on all government levels, he said. Mr. Bowman's class covered the rules, procedures and structure of the Texas legislature while following the news items on the filibuster efforts of Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin. When the Panama Canal Treaty debate was at its height, the class learned about the treaty making powers of the Senate. The students read about the elections of the school board trustees and city commissioners as they studied city government, he said. "This is real—it is happening," he said, "and students can relate to it." "It (the newspaper) is an ideal text for my government classes, more so than any other course that I can think of," he said.

Extra schools to serve handicapped

Handicapped children will be served in the 1979-80 school year through a Texas Education Agency (TEA) contract with 25 private and eight state-supported nonpublic schools. The contract will provide educational services to 2,669 handicapped students unable to attend their local school districts, at a total cost of $4,940,836, according to a TEA release. The State Board of Education approved the contract in May under the authorization of Senate Bill 230, passed by the Texas Legislature in 1969. Costs for the program are expected to increase by slightly more than 10 percent during 1979 and 1980, according to Don Partridge, Texas Education Agency associate commissioner for special education. The contracting system first went to effect during 1970-71, serving 2,234 students at a total cost of $1,385,305 in Foundation School Program funds. Costs for individual students currently range from $8,550 for a deaf and blind child to $650 for a youngster with a speech handicap. Other individual costs include: orthopedically handicapped, $2,700; mentally retarded, $2,450; physically handicapped and mentally retarded, $3,600; emotionally disturbed, $2,350. Other costs are language and or learning disabled, $1,950; preschool hearing impaired, $1,900; school age hearing impaired, $3,000. Private schools in Arlington, Dallas and Houston are included in the contract, while nonpublic schools in Beaumont, Dallas, Corpus Christi, Denison, Fort Worth and Edinburg and are being recommended for the program.

Advisory committee appointed to study schools

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements announced the appointment Thursday of a 22-member citizen advisory committee to study the state's public elementary and secondary education system. "This (public education) will undoubtedly be the priority item in the 1981 legislative session," Clements told his weekly news conference. The committee will issue a report to the 1981 Legislature. "They will take a hard look at every aspect of the elementary and secondary education facilities, not only the system within schools but also the Texas Education Agency and the State Board of Education," he said. Dr. Willis M. Tate, SMU chancellor emeritus, will be chairman, Clements said. Other members include the governor's wife, Rita Clements; Franklin Bass, Texas Association of School Boards president; Joe Kelly Butler, State Board of Education chairman; Thomas J. Cleaver, education division director of the University of Texas at San Antonio; Cecil Drachenberg, Alvin assistant school superintendent; U.S. District Judge Reynaldo Garza of Brownsville; Gerry Gilmore of the Houston education service center; Johnnie Marie Grimes of Dallas; and Superintendent Calvin Gross of Alamo Heights schools. Also, Eldon M. Knox of Coleman; H.B. Zachry Jr. of San Antonio; Tiny S. Hawn of Port Aransas; June Hyer of LBJ School of Public Affairs in Austin; Chandler Lindsley of Dallas; Arnulfo L. Oliveira, Pan American University president; Virginia Allred Stacey, past president of Texas State Teachers Association; Betty Tidwell, Trinity teacher; Floyd Trimble, Association of Texas Educators president; Superintendent Forrest E. Watson of Hurst-Euless-Bedford schools; Superintendent Linus Wright of Dallas schools; and Sam Young, member of the College Coordinating Board.

New math made easy

Schmoos, globs and shimmy shams could be the math lesson for today, if the teacher is under the influence of Dr. Lola June May, who recently was featured at the Summer Math Workshop.

The three-day seminar concentrated on methods in teaching, which were discussed and illustrated by May, presently a counselor for the public schools of Winnetka, Ill.

Outlining her technique in math teaching, May said the student's attention has to be gotten first. Schmoos, globs and shimmy shams were catchy words for illustrations involving the fundamentals of base five.

Then, a model has to be conveyed to the kids, who are introduced to a related abstract idea to make a generality in math, she said.

The model could be a picture, such as the diagrams used for teaching base five. Circles, boxes and an X were the basic ingredients for presenting a pertinent image.

May, who is an author and scholar, also had covered the teaching of the operation of whole numbers, fractions and geometry in her workshop material.

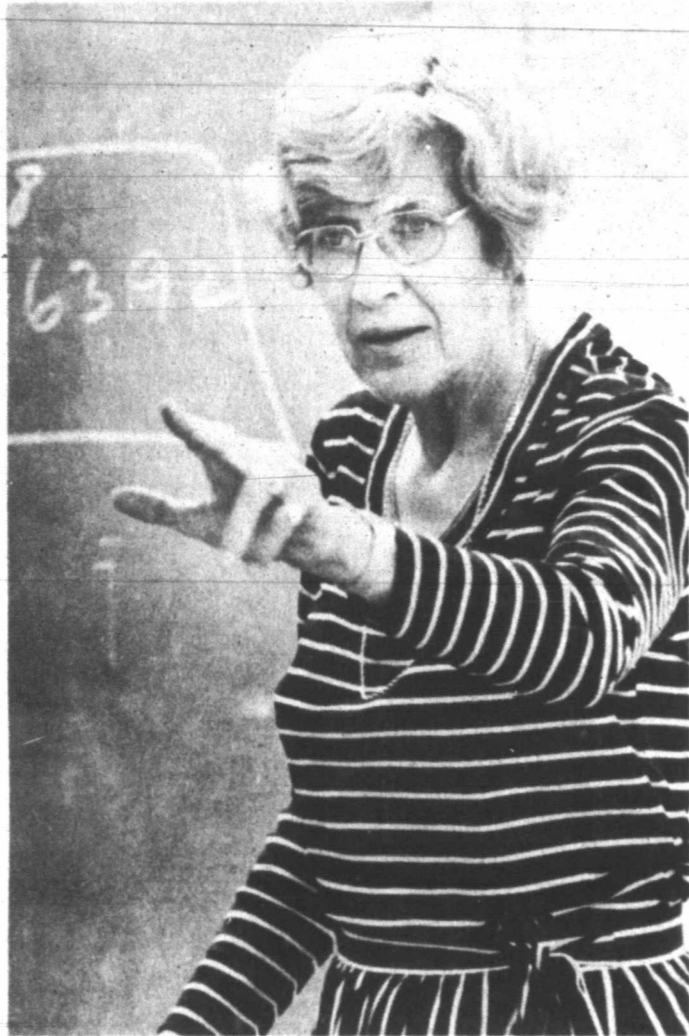

She suggested games and activities to be used in the classroom and group activities in other workshop discussions.

A classroom situation was set up with third, fifth and sixth graders each of the workshop days, and May demonstrated her teaching talent.

Her educational background includes a bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin and her master's and doctorate degrees from Northwestern University.

She had been a visiting scholar to Cleveland, Ohio in 1967, to Adams State Teachers College (Colorado) from 1967-70, to Piedmont colleges (North Carolina) in 1975.

She had written "Teaching Mathematics in the Elementary School" in 1970 to give her total of seven published books.

Protests widening against company

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Protests against a company that uses tritium in its operations are widening following additional reports of radiation contamination.

Walter Buckmaster, president of the parish council at St. Ambrose Catholic Church, said Friday the American Atomics Corp. should be closed after a report the swimming pool at the church school had excessive radiation.

While federal regulations say each liter of water should contain no more than 20,000 pico-curies of tritium, a sample taken Wednesday at the pool contained 51,000 pico-curies. One pico-curie equals one trillionth of a curie, the amount of radiation given off by a gram of radium.

Buckmaster said the church "might be forced to take legal action."

"We are calling for a closing down of American Atomics Corp.," Buckmaster said. "We're not saying it should be put out of business but relocated to an unpopulated area — and the quicker it's done the better for all concerned."

But he said he felt company officials were acting in a "coercive way" when they noted their $225 million annual payroll.

Risley says health forcing retirement

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Burt Risley has cited health problems and not charges of mismanagement as forcing his early retirement after 15 years as executive director of the State Commission for the Blind.

Risley's decision came after Gov. Bill Clements called his agency "a mess" and release of a highly critical state auditor's report.

The 59-year-old agency head also was asked to resign in January by three of the six commissioners who accused him of mismanagement.

But Risley said Friday his decision to step down Feb. 6, 1980, was not influenced by outside criticism.

"I wish to emphasize that my health is my only concern at the present time," he said in a statement read to reporters by his secretary.

Risley has been hospitalized in the past year for hepatitis and pneumonia. He said he would immediately begin extended sick leave and vacation.

Charles Sapp of Houston, commission chairman, released a statement afterward though the Austin agency office praising Risley. Sapp did not say when the board would name a new director.

Commissioners Sam Millsap Sr. of San Antonio, John Turner of Dallas and Walter Musler of San Antonio accused Risley of mismanagement in January and asked for his resignation.

State Auditor George McNeil recently released a report on the commission for 1977-1978. It was the second, consecutive state audit to criticize the agency, which had a $16.5 million budget this year.

Jewish settlers begin construction

ELON MOREH, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Jewish settlers, laboring under a blistering sun, raised the first prefabricated house in this controversial new Israeli settlement overlooking the largest Arab city on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

"We have 28 families coming in the next two or three weeks," Avraham Shavoot, chief of the construction effort, told a reporter who watched the house go up Friday. "In a year and a half we will have 100 families in real buildings, and in five years there will be a town here with a lot more people."

Shavoot's ambitious plans pointed up a potentially explosive issue overshadowing Israeli and Egyptian efforts to negotiate a formula for self-rule for the 1.1 million Palestinians in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Both Egypt and the United States, mediator of the autonomy talks, have denounced Israel's plans to settle the Arab territories it occupied in the 1967 Mideast war. They contend the settlements violate international law and hinder the peace process.

Despite the Egyptian and American condemnation, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet narrowly approved the Elon Moreh settlement last Sunday. The first settlers trekked to the hilltop Thursday and by Friday a bulldozer had cut a crude path through the rocky ground and heavy trucks brought in the first building materials.

A truck with a 12-ton crane gently lowered a small two-room house that had made a wobbly ascent to the hilltop on the back of an army truck. Relays of men labored in the heat to unload a shipment of cement blocks. Occasionally they stopped to gaze across the sleepy valley separating their fledgling community from Nablus, the largest West Bank city with a population of 80,000.

Nablus and Elon Moreh are only two miles apart, but between them is an all but unbridgeable ideological gulf symbolizing all the Arab and Israeli fears born of three decades of conflict.

Lawsuits filed in plane crash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three multimillion dollar lawsuits have been filed over the May 25 crash of a DC-10 in Chicago, two charging negligence against the plane's manufacturer and one claiming improper construction of the jet.

Two of the suits were filed Friday in federal court and the other in Superior Court, naming as defendants the aircraft's manufacturer, McDonnell-Douglas, and the carrier company, American Airlines. One of the federal suits also named General Electric Co. which manufactured some of the engine's components.

Raymond Towne, spokesman for McDonnell-Douglas, said Friday the firm's attorneys would not comment on the suits because they had not yet been served notice. The other defendant firms were not immediately available for comment.

The parents of Kerry Douglas Tims, 19, of Claremont filed their suit seeking $810 million in Superior Court. The Tims' attorney, George Glasco, said he would ask the court to declare the case a class action on behalf of other relatives of crash victims.

Willy and Betty Tims claimed in their suit — the first filed in state court — that the DC-10 was not properly constructed and had structural design defects.

In the federal suits, heirs of Robert W. Vaughn and Shu-Ren Lin filed negligence and strict liability suits against McDonnell Douglas and American Airlines.

Attorneys for the Vaughn family also included General Electric Co. in their $5 million suit, charging negligence in the manufacture of the engine that dropped as the plane left the ground.

Shu-Ren's widow and children are asking for $20 million.

The American Airlines jet bound for Los Angeles crashed shortly after takeoff from Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, killing 275 persons in the worst disaster in U.S. aviation history.

The Federal Aviation Administration is investigating the crash, but has not yet determined what caused it. All DC-10s have been grounded while engine and wing assemblies are inspected.

GRASSHOPPERS:

A Grasshopper Control meeting for ranchers will be held Wednesday, June 13th at 8 p.m. in the Gray County Courthouse Annex Meeting Room, Pampa, Texas. USDA and Texas Department of Agriculture officials will be on hand to discuss a cost-share grasshopper control program for rangeland.

Ranchers need to make close inspections of rangeland for the presence of grasshoppers. On Monday, I accompanied USDA-APHIS personnel around Gray County checking for grasshoppers on rangeland.

We found generally economic damaging levels of potential grasshoppers in most locations, but not every spot we made. These are real small grasshoppers for the most part that we found and require some close looking to see all of them.

We have known for sometime that we had the potential for damaging levels of grasshoppers this year and it looks like the potential is developing.

For suitable rangeland areas a government cost-share program can be available if producers are interested and want to sign up and deposit about 60 cents per acre. These programs like to be organized in blocks of 10,000 acres or more of rangeland. Aerial spray programs are most effective in short grass areas. Control in the tall grass-bushy areas is not as effective because not as much of the spray material can get down to the grasshoppers. However, it may be beneficial in these areas.

Gray County producers need to move fast if we want to get in on the cost-share program. Funds are limited and a wide-spread area is likely to be trying to obtain the necessary funds for the cost-share program. Some countries are already signed-up for a grasshopper control program. It would be organized and managed similar to earlier spray programs here in Gray County, which was last organized in 1973.

This is going to be a fast moving program if Gray County decides to get in the cost-share program. According to USDA officials, Gray County would likely be among the first counties to be sprayed in the Panhandle and spraying could take place in late June.

Therefore, ranchers are urged to get out and look closely for hoppers in your rangeland. Come to this meeting Wednesday night ready to sign-up and deposit 60 cents per acre if you like the way the program sounds to you and you decide to join in the spray program. We will have a very short sign-up period. If you have rangeland and want to hear this program explained in detail, please attend this meeting or send someone to represent you.

Gray County also has a lot of areas with grasshoppers in areas that will not qualify to get in the cost-share spray program. Producers and homeowners with grasshoppers that don't qualify for the cost-share program will need to take care of your own grasshoppers.

Look for signs of infestations along roadsides and fence rows bordering cultivated fields. Many of the grasshoppers that damage new crops and gardens hatch in these idle areas. Early treatment of these areas before the young grasshoppers move from their hatching grounds will greatly reduce the amount of acreage that might otherwise require treatment later.

In some situations crops and gardens will need to be treated to prevent extensive damage. Baits applied to field margins have long been a means of grasshopper control. The following insecticides are approved for most crops, gardens and rangeland: Sevin, Diazinon and Malathion. In addition, Toxaphene is approved for most crops and Pennacp and Dibrom are approved for grasshopper control in rangeland. Be sure and check label directions. If you have questions about grasshopper control, contact the Gray County Extension Office at 669-7429.

RANGE WEEDS:

Now to range weed problems while looking for hoppers, you might also notice the tremendous amount of weed growth present. Common broomweed is one of the more damaging range weeds that can easily be controlled with 2,4-D. Also, there are many other weeds present that about 3/4 to 1 pound of 2,4-D Per acre can control right now. Many pastures were grazed shorter than normal last year and this winter due to last year's drought. This has been very conducive to weed growth this spring.

I have also noticed a lot of weeds in some Weeping Lovegrass pastures that apparently received some freeze damage this past winter and thinned the grass stand. Here is another situation that weed spraying is needed and generally economical to control heavy weeds on weakened lovegrass pastures.

SICK PLANT CLINIC:

Our Gray County Sick Plant Clinic will be held June 26th in the Courthouse Annex Meeting Room. The time for the clinic, which is a come and go affair, is from 10:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Bullock receives award

AUSTIN, Texas - State Comptroller Bob Bullock Monday received the Municipal Finance Officers Association's prestigious "Louisville Gold Medal" award for his successful effort to help Texas counties, including Gray County, modernize financial practices.

Gray County is one of several Texas Counties that received financial management assistance through the Comptroller's Standard Financial Management System program.

Bullock was awarded the highest honor given to a public finance officer at the 73rd Annual Conference of MFOA in Detroit on June 4.

He was cited for his efforts to lend assistance to Texas counties through the establishment of accounting standards, model accounting systems and on-site technical assistance.

The award was established in 1939 by the Municipal Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada and is given annually to the individual judged to have made the most outstanding accomplishments and contributions to governmental finance management.

The on-going program is still assisting several Texas counties and the program is due expansion and updating, according to Bullock.

International year of the child

By resolution of the United Nations, based on a special Declaration of Rights by the UN in 1959, official attention is being given the rights of those one third of the world's four billion people who are under the age of 16.

The International Year of the Child-- 1979-- is designed to focus attention on the well being of children in the underdeveloped countries at least 350 million of which are beyond the reach of basic health services, education and sanitation. The focus will also rest on the developed countries, including the United States, and the ways in which the needs of children are or are not being met.

According to Dani Adjemovitch, technical officer of the IYC Secretariat, "The overall goal of the Year is to place children at the center of world attention and to encourage a concern for children everywhere. Each country is invited to concentrate on the needs of its own children."

Chairman of the Carnegie Council on Children, Kenneth Kenniston, says "It's not too strong to say that although we Americans like to think of ourselves as a child protecting society... We love our children and take as good care of them as we can, but as a society we tolerate a great deal of unnecessary damage and pain among children."

The IYC seeks to emphasize that "once considered the property of their parents, children are now acknowledged to be full human beings in their own right, but beings to whom adults and society in general have special obligations."

The presidency of a club that I know of is up for grabs. If you don't take it, I certainly will. The object of this club is to do the things you have to. Fine. The beauty of the club is to train you not to feel guilty about the things you haven't done.

That's nothing short of wonderful, because you're working on a happiness.

For instance, if I have done one marvelous thing (or at least semi-good thing) per day in the house, I have done well. I can dust the top of the T.V. and neglect the coffee table. Or I can sweep the kitchen and take no notice of the bathtub. And I can certainly by-pass the clothes and the tennis shoes and sweat shirts by quietly closing the door on you-know-whose room. As a member of the club, I can do all these things without one pang of guilt.

You can't carry it over, though. If once you've decided on the main dish, you have a tendency to sigh and quit and think you're through, think again. Sorry. It doesn't work quite that way.

Eventually, you're going to have to figure out what goes with what. I'm here to help you out. I have two very versatile side dishes to offer to you. If you shudder at the thought of baked tomatoes, don't. You bake almost every other vegetable, so why not tomatoes? And who doesn't like green beans? Read through and make up your mind. First, try Basilically Baked Tomatoes.

HAVE ON HAND:

4 Medium tomatoes, cut in half so that they sit on their bottoms
1 TBSP. butter
1 Medium onion, chopped
1 TBSP. chopped fresh parsley
One-fourth TSP. basil, crushed
1 very heaping TBSP. dry breadcrumbs
Some salt and pepper
NOW DO THIS:
Heat the oven to 350 degrees. Lightly grease a glass baking dish. Sauté the onions in the butter. Stir in the other ingredients, except the tomatoes, till they are thoroughly blended. Remove that from the heat.

Put the tomatoes, cut side up, in the baking dish. Now top each half with the breadcrumb and herb mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for about 20 minutes until the toppings are browned. You can do this the last 20 minutes of your roasting time, and everything comes out together.

Second, Try S&S GREEN BEANS. Not counting the time it takes to boil water, this one will take about 10 minutes of your time.

HAVE ON HAND:

2 packages (10 ounces each) of the frozen green beans
1 cup of boiling water, lightly salted (one-half TSP. salt)
one-fourth TSP. pepper
1 bay leaf
3 whole cloves
2 TBSP. sugar

4 TBSP. white wine vinegar. If you like, you can use tarragon vinegar.
3 TBSP. butter
NOW DO THIS:
Put the frozen beans in a pan and pour the boiling water over them. Add the pepper, bay leaf and the cloves. Cover it and cook over a medium heat for 5 minutes.

Drain them and add the sugar, vinegar, and butter. Cook it 5 minutes more, stirring it constantly, or it will stick to the pan. Just before you serve it, take out the bay leaf and the cloves.

pressure cooker processing of foods in home canning? The water-bath method is used for processing fruits, rhubarb, and tomatoes and is done using a pan with a lid and rack. The rack is used to hold the jars off the bottom of the cooker. The pan is large enough to cover the jars with one to two inches of water, so that the jars are surrounded with boiling water. The lid is used to help retain the heat. The acid in some fruits and vegetables helps prevent the growth of some bacteria which is the reason the water-bath process can be used.

However, low acid fruits and vegetables must be canned using the pressure cooker. The spores ("seeds") of some bacteria are highly resistant to heat, which makes it necessary for them to be destroyed by high heat. This is accomplished with the pressure cooker. What foods processed by these methods? The water-bath is used for such foods as peaches, plums and tomatoes. The pressure cooker is used for such foods as beets, corn, peas, beans, greens and okra.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: A repairman who was obviously crippled by multiple sclerosis or cerebral palsy came to my home today. My 4-year-old daughter asked loudly, and in front of the man, "Mommie, why does that man walk so funny?"

I was terribly embarrassed and totally unprepared for her question, so I said, "The man wasn't as lucky as Mommie and me." I didn't mean to sound patronizing or condescending, but I didn't know what else to say.

Later I told my daughter that it wasn't nice to mention a person's handicap in front of him or her. My question is, what do you tell children when they ask what is wrong with a crippled or disabled person in the person's presence?

AT A LOSS FOR WORDS

DEAR AT: You tell them the truth in language they can understand. ("The man has a sickness that made his leg crooked. It's a little harder for him to walk, but he can still do his job as well as anybody else.")

Very young children will not understand why it isn't "nice" to mention the obvious. They are naturally curious, eager to learn and shouldn't be discouraged from asking questions.

Bless those disabled who anticipate a child's curiosity and come right out with why they are in a wheelchair, wear a brace, or have difficulty talking, seeing or hearing.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 22 and my husband is 25. We've been married for three years. When I was first married I weighed 130. Now I weigh 180!

My problem is my sex life. My husband refuses to touch me until I lose 40 pounds. I'm trying, but it's not easy. What should I do?

HUNGRY FOR LOVE

DEAR HUNGRY: Keep trying. In the meantime, ask him if he'll kiss you if you lose 25.

DEAR ABBY: I had to make an emergency trip and couldn't get a confirmed reservation on a plane, so I went to the airport and took my chances on a standby. Fortunately, I got on a flight. Unfortunately, I was placed in the smoking section and I am allergic to smoke.

I was so grateful to have gotten a seat on that plane I wasn't about to make any waves.

Well, my seat partner was a chain smoker. After her third cigarette, I asked her politely if she could please cut down on her smoking. Her answer was, "I wish I could, honey, but I'm a nervous wreck when I fly, and I have to smoke."

What would Dear Abby have done in my place?

ALLERGIC

DEAR ALLERGIC: She would have sent up smoke signals to the flight attendant who said on take-off, "If there is anything I can do to make your flight more enjoyable, please let me know."

Dr. Lamb

lawrence e. lamb, m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I visit my dentist regularly, each three months for cleaning. I have bridges which I keep clean. I have caps on my front teeth and gold crowns in various parts of my mouth. The problem is no matter how often I brush and floss and use my teeth shower, I have bad breath. I have tried various home methods to counteract this to no avail. I would appreciate your advice and hope you can come up with a solution. I'm so embarrassed that I avoid talking to people. My dentist is unconcerned.

DEAR READER — Bad breath is a symptom and many people have it. Contrary to popular advertising, it's not always caused by your teeth and if it is, it may be a problem with your teeth that you can't solve by the choice of toothpaste that you use.

Brushing, flossing and teeth showers are all useful in cleaning out any food residue or plaque that has developed. If you happen to develop deposits underneath the gingiva (gum) line, these have to be removed by a dentist or a dental hygienist. Cleaning out these pockets and removing any infection that might occur around the roots is essential. This is not something that you can do but a dentist must do.

If there's nothing wrong with your teeth, and your comments concerning your dentist's reaction suggests that would be the case, your bad breath may come from totally unrelated problems.

A frequent cause for bad breath is an infection in the sinuses. It can be chronic. You might be wise to see an ear, nose and throat specialist to see if you have any problem in these areas that contribute to the disorder.

To help you, I'm sending you The Health Letter number 9-4, Halitosis: The Breath Problem And What To Do About It. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Unpleasant chemicals will escape through the lungs from your bloodstream and be exhaled causing the bad breath. Clearly, if the problem is odors coming from the lungs, simple mouthwash or toothpaste isn't going to solve the problem.

One of the best examples of bad breath on a chemical basis is alcohol. The alcohol in your bloodstream escapes through the lungs and is exhaled. That's the basis for the breath analysis tests done by the police to measure your blood alcohol level.

If there's nothing in the dental area that is causing your problem and nothing in your ear, nose and throat area that causes difficulties, then you need to see your internist to find out if you have any other medical problems that may be contributing to your difficulties.

Home Food Preservation Plan:

Do you plan to preserve some of your family food supply at home? Do you know how much you want to preserve? When should you start planning? A good time to start planning for fruits and vegetables is before the harvest season starts, whether you grow your own food or plan to buy it.

Consider the amount of freezer space you have whether it is a chest type, upright, or a part of your refrigerator. If your freezer space is limited, you may want to preserve part of the food your family needs by canning. Consider the jars and other canning supplies which you have on hand. Will you need to purchase some new supplies? Remember, you can reuse undamaged jars and rings, but always replace used lids.

Jim and Betty Brown were in Mazatlan, Old Mexico, last week. So many Pampans are taking interesting trips this summer.

Many are taking weekend trips to the races in New Mexico too. One group went to Raton by bus last weekend. On the way home the bus driver appeared to be unwell. The next day he had a heart attack and died.

To whom it may concern: If the person responsible for taking the 8-track tapes from Bill Campaigne's car is enjoying them as much as Bill and Chris enjoyed them - fine. However, as they consist of classical music, it's possible they are a disappointment. So how about putting them on the porch at 1824 Chestnut one dark night? Bill taped the music himself, using equipment sent from Viet Nam by son Bill, and he would very much like to have them back.

p.s.
Charles and Jeanne Cook are going to live in Phoenix as soon as they can arrange their affairs. It seems the climate there agrees with Jeanne so much that it would be foolish for them to stay here.

p.s.
They came from Canadian, Miami, and all points of the compass last Sunday to wish Nona Payne a happy birthday. Among those helping to make the affair a success were Janie Bowers, Joe Gordon, Freda LeMond, Jessie Newberry, and Dorothy Gardiner.

p.s.
Pam Turek, your onetime columnist, has been playing the role of hausfrau since moving to Dallas. However, husband Phil says she has now made a cozy nest of their new home and will probably launch a new career in the near future.

Thelma Bray begins her day at the U. S. Post Office at 4 a.m. Oh dear! Fortunately, Thelma loves her job as well as her hours.

Georgia and Ellis Locke from Miami are often on the Pampa scene. They are nice people to have in our town.

Raccoon meat?

ALMA, Ga. (AP) — High beef prices don't bother Wayne Lewis who operates a food store here. He simply began offering his customers dressed raccoon instead.

"It's delicious," he says. He's selling as many as 50 raccoons a day at 79 cents a pound to customers who come from as far away as Florida.

He says raccoon meat can be served stewed, baked or barbecued.

Mending mature marriage
by
louise pierce

Today's changing, warring world is difficult for all ages. And it's especially so for long-married couples. They saved money all their lives for the time when the two of them could wear beautiful clothes and take marvelous trips and buy each other whatever gifts they fancied. But now the ogre of inflation has ruled out all those lovely benefits of aging. There is only enough money to buy the food and clothes they require. Their pensions, once hailed as lavish by industry, now seem meager. Social Security helps but not enough. Some couples get new jobs -- but even that income seldom allows as many luxuries as they had hoped to enjoy. Genuine discouragement results. And sometimes that can be embittering, turning mates against each other. The atmosphere can be peaceful -- and then, suddenly, one of them starts fretting about how they're going to get the bills paid and whether they can hang onto their house or not and whether they can afford Christmas presents for anybody this year. The worrying one sees ever-enlarging financial trouble and lets imagination run into groaning and grumbling about the probable collapse of the good American life. If the wife starts the stewing, she cries and carries on like crazy. If the husband begins the worry, he stamps his foot and bangs the door and mopes for hours because he can't change the world. Nothing is more contagious than bitter unhappiness. Within minutes a quarrel can pop up and start growing. If the couple weathers this storm and decides, sensibly, to accept inevitable conditions without further bitterness, they aren't assured freedom from disappointment. Personal accomplishment is necessary for every one of us, whatever our age. If we don't get it in some way, our discouragement can overwhelm us. We want terribly to remain important somewhere. When we're shoved from one corner to another because we're supposed to be "on the shelf" now, so it's downright heartbreaking. Letters have told me so.

DEAR LOUISE: How do you let go when you want to hang on? Bert and I have always helped run things -- in the town, the church, the civic club he belongs to. We loved being a part of all the activities. But all of a sudden the younger people began to push us out and take over. When the city election put Bert out and voted in a man half his age, he came home ready to drop out of sight forever in his rocker. When our Sunday School class made plans to redo part of the church, a younger class told us not to bother because they had already begun the work and they could do it all themselves. The kids everywhere seem to be standing so close behind us, ready to grab all our glory away from us, that we'd step on them if we turned around. I love my children and grandchildren, but I don't want them or anybody else's kids shoving us out of all the things we always enjoyed and did extremely well. Being replaced makes us so irritable that we either sit and feel helpless or else we vent our disappointment on each other and end up fussing and fighting and maybe one of us leaving home for an hour or a day. What can we do about this problem? W.M.

DEAR W.M.: Your discouragement is one we all share. Young people are always impatient to take over the world. They believe that their ideas are fresh. (A boy recently told me that he had a brilliant idea, which was to feed only those people who worked. I didn't tell him that John Smith ran an early American colony that way.) They have endless energy and they can't wait to exert it. So why don't you let them? There may be something for you that will prove far more enjoyable. If you've labored on a certain board for years and a twenty-five-year-old girl wants your place because you "must be tired after all this time", let her have it. You may find out you're glad to be rid of that old job. There are always other positions you can assume -- the presidency of a Sunday School class your own age, garden clubbing, serving on boards for retired children who will love you because of your patience and maturity. Besides, your usurper will probably come to you for advice about your former job, and that will restore your wounded pride. A President Emeritus isn't always a figurehead; he is usually a working adviser. So let the kids run the things they want to. Be glad they think they're as smart as you used to think you were. You and Bert find new interests and quit nipping each other.

DEAR LOUISE: Why is it so hard to keep hoping when you get older? Rob and I want to achieve some kind of success in our retirement, but nobody will let us. We do painting and woodworking in our little shop, and we turn out good things. But nobody will buy them. Oh, sometimes somebody offers a dollar when it cost two dollars to make. We're about to give up the shop and start sitting down and complaining to each other.

Any suggestions? C.Y.
DEAR C.Y.: Indeed I have. Try to realize that success for any age, seldom comes easy. And creative fields sometimes take the longest of all to attain money and fame. If somebody is paying you anything at all for your wares, it is a real start. The word spreads when you have a good product. Take heart and keep going.

A new policy for the Society Section of the News

BEGINNING JUNE 11, 1979, there will be a new policy in effect for the Society Section of the News.

It will be required that wedding and engagement information be submitted either in typewritten or printed form.

Errors have occurred in the spelling of names due to the illegibility of some handwriting.

We realize how important it is to those concerned that this information should appear correctly in print, and we trust this new policy will eliminate the problem.

Who wants to be first or last?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Who hasn't ever had an urge to be at the top or the bottom of the telephone directory?

In the San Francisco telephone directory, a man named "A" leads all the rest.

"A" is actually the professional name of Bob Smith, a 27-year-old silversmith who sets up samples of his handiwork on the street. He chose the name "A," he said, "just to be the first in the phone book."

The directory ends with Vladimir Zzzzzabakov, but his number was disconnected. Just above him is Zwill Zzzzstra. He is actually Gilbert Freitas, a retired police inspector who writes mystery novels. He lists the Zzzzstra name in the directory in the hope that a girl he met 30 years ago in Shanghai, named Zola, will see it and be prompted to call.

A Pacific Telephone official said the company had no policy governing the efforts of those who aim for the top or the bottom of the list.

Astro-Graph

June 11, 1979

This coming year will be one of many opportunities for you. One in particular, involving your home, you have worked very hard to bring about. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Money matters are your potential trouble area and need supervision today. Stay close to home and attend to things in a sensible manner. Find out more about yourself by sending for your Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign. CANCER (June 21-July 22) A personal relationship is under more strain than usual. Harsh words are close to the surface. It's important to be forgiving and cooperative. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Only your best efforts will be acceptable today, so put your nose to the grindstone and don't try to sweep anything under the rug. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid the company of any acquaintances with whom you run the risk of having opposing views. An uncomfortable social situation is likely to arise. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't plan too challenging a schedule for today. You tend to be more of a "loner" and will desire to do things in your own way and time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Rather than let someone drag you into an argument, seek a way to find a middle ground acceptable to both you and the other party. It can be done. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is not the time to spend beyond your means. Rather, it would be wise to trim unnecessary frills from the budget wherever possible. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't block your thoughts with reasons why something can't be done. Use your imagination to figure out how you can accomplish your purpose. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something you've neglected may demand to be taken care of today. You're going to have to clear it up before anything else can be accomplished. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Group endeavors may take patience and cooperation on your part today. Exercise both or you'll rock the boat and bring everyone down on your neck. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Duty calls today. Even if you find it difficult to heed, you must place it above your own interests or an important contact could be lost. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Running around in circles today could be the result of your lack of planning. Organize your time and thoughts.

SOUND COUNTRY

Epic Records has paired another winner in the teaming of George Jones and Johnny Paycheck. Each is a successful artist on his own, and the teaming of the two on record is just adding more juice to the jug they scored a big winner in their upbeat countryed version of the old Chuck Berry tune 'Maybelene,' and their latest effort of another old rocker, titled 'You Can Have Her,' should do just as well if not better. In addition to some good guitar and harmonica licks, Paycheck and Jones add a little extra touch to the record with their own one-liners. Joe Stampley and Moe Bandy have completed a session in Jack Clements Studio in Nashville, and their record is slated for release at the end of the month. The song 'Just Good Ole Boys' was written by Stampley's band leader and piano player Ansley Fleetwood.

"Pampa poet takes top honors"

One summer in the late 1920s, Pampa poet A.R. Nooncaster held his tongue, resisting the all-too-human temptation to say "I told you so." The restraint may have earned him $1000, payable some 50 years later, in June 1979, in the form of first prize in the 4th Annual Viola Hayes Parsons Awards for poetry.

Poets who are not Rod McKuen rarely find their calling a lucrative one. And for Nooncaster, who has published three slim volumes of poetry since 1955, the literary honor seems to have arrived with all the bewildering thrill of a winning lottery ticket.

A thrill because it's always nice to be surprised with a thousand dollars, but perhaps bewildering because it brings back memories of the pErsonal event which for a poet usually seems remote from the public reward.

"Hold on to your hat!" wrote Mrs. Zinita Fowler of Carrollton, Texas, who is co-director with her sister, Mickey Huffstutler, of the poetry competition which bears their mother's name. "Here comes a 'June Blow-Out' of our own. Your poem by the same title has been awarded the big first prize in our 4th annual awards... Congratulations!"

"June Blow-Out" WRITTEN BY Nooncaster in the summer of 1950, was selected as the best from among some 5,000 poems submitted from across the country. The experience upon which the poem is based occurred when Nooncaster, as a high school student, was working on the family farm in Lamesa, Texas.

"June Blow-Out" describes a not unusual occurrence on the South Plains: the loss of an entire cotton crop to the wind in the middle of the night. The poem expresses the sympathy the poet feels for his father, as the crop is destroyed. Fifty years later, in Pampa at the Rathskeller Restaurant, Nooncaster exhumes the biographical fact on which the poem is based.

"Yes, it's true. He lost the entire crop that year; if you're familiar with that area of Texas, you know what the wind can do. And as the poem says, we had an argument the day before about whether to plow up the weeds around the crops. I said we ought to leave the weeds-careless weed, it's called, grows fast and straight up, and helps hold the soil if the winds get high. But he went ahead and cut them out."

Despite a number of "close to the gut poems," detailing personally moving and tragic experiences with his father and brother, Nooncaster, as a Pampa High football coach turned English teacher in the early 50s, says he hasn't written about sports and about his immediate family because the experiences are "too close. I haven't been away from it long enough."

"Somebody once said that you have to write from the deep well," he recalls. "Maybe you need to let memory screen out what isn't so important."

Thinking of the night of the late 20s "blow-out" he says, "I was feeling sympathy for my father. I guess I could have said 'I told you so' but I didn't."

Instead, Nooncaster let the experience lay fallow for a couple of decades, then recalled it in the summer of 1950, when he was back working with his parents on the family farm before returning to a college summer session.

Perhaps what would have been spent in a geyser of superficial emotion ("I told you so") was saved for the "deep well" of memory and emotion from which good poems are made.

Nooncaster says his father never read "June Blow-Out," or any of his poetry, and remarks, "Here in Texas, and the West, if someone paints or writes, a lot of people still think he might be a little odd. There's still some of that feeling around; it's just not quite understood yet."

His favorite American poets are Robert Frost and Walt Whitman. And while his favorite English poets are the Romantics Keats, Shelley and Byron, he is humorously unromantic about writing poems.

"I think a lot of talk about the creative process is so much bull," Nooncaster says with a smile. "Someone once said inspiration was turning off the alarm clock and getting out of bed in the morning. I guess to a large extent inspiration is mostly overcoming your own laziness."

The influence of Frost's poetry is easily seen in Nooncaster's work, though the curmudgeonly Frost's New England scenes are replaced in Nooncaster's work with what has been called "the taste of the soil."

Nooncaster, retired from teaching and working parttime as a bookkeeper, says the award has gotten him thinking more about poetry lately. His last book, "Amid the Glow of Suns," was published in 1975; his first book, "Interim Days," which included "June Blow-Out," was published in 1959; "Listen For a Poem" was published in 1967.

POET A.R. NOONCASTER has found through his poetry a rustic language to match the "taste of the earth" spirit of rural Texas. Nooncaster recently won the $1000 first prize in the 4th Annual Viola Hayes Parsons Awards for poetry.

Art show Saturday

The first Top O' Texas Poor Boy Art Show is scheduled for June 16 and 17 at the old Gibson's building, 900 Duncan St. The show will feature a large variety of work by selected area artists and craftsmen from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Kansas.

Wayne Cox, director of the show, said Thursday that 40 entries had so far been received for the show. Those included in the show so far, he said, included such noted artists as James Ivey Edwards of Canyon, Mary Selfridge of Amarillo, Richard and Louise Harris of Hugoton, Kansas. Artist Jerry Vance, a former Pampa non living in Amarillo, has also entered the exhibit.

Cox said he expected at least 50 exhibits by show time Saturday, and said booth space was available for 100 exhibits.

Works already received include oils, watercolors, pottery, macramé, pouter casting, stain glass, ceramics, jewelry crafts, photography, and sculpture.

The show will also include china painting, woodwork, weaving, and hand sewn crafts.

Diplays by area hobby and craft stores, the Pampa Satellite School, and Clarendon College art classes, and the Pampa Center will be included in the show.

The show will run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on June 16, and from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. on June 17. The exhibit is open to the public. There will be no admission charge.

Booth space for exhibits is still available to individuals, clubs, and organizations. All work must be original, and entries will be screened. Those wishing to enter should contact Wayne Cox at 665-6327.

"Super stars hired to salvage ship"

The sequel to "The Poseidon Adventure" is cleverly titled "Beyond the Poseidon Adventure," though a more honest and accurate label would be "Beneath the Poseidon Adventure," since the movie is a billboard-size boast of just how low its producer, Irving Allen, will sink in search of one more boot full of box office treasure.

For the fortunate few who may have forgotten, the "Poseidon Adventure" was the story of a capsized cruise ship loaded with more stars than "Airport 77" - "Love Boat" meeting the Titanic, so to speak.

Anyway, in this sequel - of sorts, Michael Caine, Sally Field, Peter Boyle, Shirley Jones, Telly Savalas (along with some unknown white - uniformed villains), and Karl Malden (nose aNd aLL), stumble around for a couple of hours in the lavish bowels of the mostly submerged ship, looking for bullion and a way out of this mess. Caine, Malden, and Field, are salvage adventurers, looking for the bullion, and the rest of the cast (except for Savalas and his boys) are survivors, who may hereafter have trouble finding work in the legitimate theater.

It doesn't make much sense, though it makes for a couple of pretty good gunfights between the good guys and the bad guys. And when a performer dies, he really dies for an Oscar, so to speak, as in the first Poseidon misadventure.

The Britisher Caine is a funny fixture in American disaster movies. He seems to find a small boy's earnest fun in the hokey make believe, and is such a pleasure to watch (we laugh with him as we laugh at the movie) that we never think of him as a mere hack, doing any dirty thing for the big bucks. In the movie about killer bees, "The Swarm," I loved the way Caine said "bees." ("Tha bays," he said. "Thy're coming. Wave gawt 'stawp'tha bays.")

Caine's presence in this movie is somehow as honest as his co-star Sally Field is cute. Between them, they make it a less than disgusting way to kill a couple of hours.

Idea for a "Beyond the Poseidon Adventure" theater party: As soon as all the major characters have been introduced, make your predictions as to who will be killed off, and how. Record your predictions on a napkin. The one in your group who's predictions are closest to the outcome of the film, wins a free gallon bucket of butter corn, courtesy of the rest.

"Studio theater to make debut"

AMARILLO—A sort of Off-Broadway addition to community theater will make its debut in Amarillo June 15, when the Amarillo Little Theater opens its new studio program. The program will include five evenings of four one-act plays, designed to train new actors and directors, and to encourage new playwrights.

The new program will open in the new Studio Theater, the recently redecorated Green Room near the south end of the ALT building.

Performances will be June 15-17 and 22-23. Friday and Saturday shows will be at 8:15 p.m. with the Sunday June 17 matinee at 2:30 p.m.

The four one act plays include two recent works by Tennessee Williams, "Outcry" and "The Case of the Crushed Petunias" and two vaudeville - style comedies titled "The Apple Bit" and "Harry and the Angel".

Anyone interested in submitting plays for consideration should contact the managing director of ALT, Steven Nunnally.

Swimming motions, by fish or people, create low-frequency vibrations that are picked up by sharks' acute hearing. If the sound is regular and rhythmic, a shark may ignore it, National Geographic says. But if it is irregular, indicating thrashing or struggling, the shark may sense easy prey and attack.

Interest Rate Snafu on Consumer Deposits

Millions of you now earning interest on money in your checking accounts will lose this service unless Congress acts quickly.

The reason: A few weeks ago, a U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C., ruled that three new types of consumer bank accounts are illegal. These accounts go by different names at different institutions - but all make it possible for banks, credit unions and savings & loan associations to compete for customers by offering similar services, and for you, as a consumer, to earn interest on your deposits until you actually spend them.

To give Congress time to pass a law permitting financial institutions to continue offering these accounts, the appeals court postponed its ban until Jan. 1, 1980. But because of holidays and recesses, my associate, Brooke Shearer reports that lawmakers have less than 90 days in which to move.

If Congress doesn't meet this deadline and judicial appeals don't succeed, then:

Millions of you who are commercial bank customers will lose your right to have your money moved automatically from your savings to checking accounts.

Roughly 900,000 members of federal credit unions will lose their share draft accounts.

And customers of nearly 200 federally chartered savings & loan associations no longer will be able to use remote service units. These units permit customers to deposit or withdraw money from savings accounts at such convenient places as shopping centers, presumably when they are about to spend it. Thus, the units enable you to avoid having to visit the S&L office itself and to earn interest on your funds as long as possible.

The only consumers not threatened by the court decision - other than those of you who don't hold any of the new accounts - are those among you who have NOW accounts or who have signed up for telephone bill-paying services.

The bill - paying accounts were established under different regulations, and Congress approved NOWs (Negotiable Order of Withdrawal accounts) in six New England states and New York, while prohibiting them to be offered elsewhere. NOWs are essentially savings accounts on which you can write checks.

Partly in response to this ban on nationwide NOWs, credit unions, banks and S&Ls introduced the other types of accounts.

But if you're among the millions who hold one of the endangered types of accounts, you need not panic.

I doubt that the accounts will disappear. Congress seldom retracts any privilege, power or, for that matter, tax break which individuals, institutions or industries already have been granted. Interest-bearing checking accounts or savings accounts on which you can draw checks - they are essentially the same thing - are no exception.

Had Congress wanted to abolish the accounts, it could have done so much more easily six years ago, when only two states - Massachusetts and New Hampshire - permitted NOWs. But Congress didn't plug this crack in the 45-year-old bar against paying interest on checking accounts. Instead, it approved them on an "experimental basis" and then over the next several years allowed institutions in five more states to offer them. Simultaneously, though, it stopped them from spreading across the country.

The crack has now become a yawning hole.

And the court ruling means Congress cannot put off deciding the joint issues of whether all financial institutions, not just commercial banks, should be able to offer you, the customers, checking accounts and whether consumers should be able to earn interest on such accounts. Congress has several options, among them:

- (1) It can let all types of financial institutions offer checking accounts, permitting them to pay or not to pay interest on these accounts, as they wish.
- (2) It can approve nationwide NOW accounts.
- (3) It can hammer out complicated variations of both the other proposals, tying them to many, even more controversial banking issues. President Carter's just-announced bank reform proposals fall into this third category.

The logic is that, at a minimum, Congress will pass some measure legalizing the status quo - permitting the institutions to continue offering the three types of accounts the court declared illegal. If Congress does nothing, it will, in effect, be approving the court's ban - defying the wishes of the public and the institutions.

Sharing knowledge of land

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - David Svien and Clint Dabelstein share a knowledge and love of land, yet when it comes to use of that land, it is easy to imagine them as David and Goliath.

For when the husky, bearded Svien, a Minnesota Department of Natural Resources forester, talks of acquiring timberland for a state park, the wiry Dabelstein, a farmer with a lot of timberland, loads his weapon.

Dabelstein's target isn't Svien but what Svien represents: Eminent domain - the power of government to acquire private land for public use or benefit.

"The state shouldn't have this kind of advantage. It's like an ax over our heads," Dabelstein told Svien during a recent local soil conservation district meeting in Lewiston, Minn.

Svien talked of the need for more public recreation areas which the state forest would provide. "There's a hunger for land, there's more people and less land."

An increasingly recreation-minded public demands that government find more recreational land, environmentalists demand more wilderness, the lumber industry more timber.
