City hires building inspector

The City of Pampa, now looking for a new police chief, recently hired a building inspector who, it turns out, used to be a

Steve Vaughn worked with the New Mexico State Police in Tucumcari before changing careers about a year and a half ago, around the time he got married. Vaughn, 26, came to this region from his native Georgia in 1975 - he was "more or less just passing through" New Mexico, he says, and he liked what he saw.

Vaughn went from Tucumcari to Dalhart, where he served as code enforcement officer for the last 18 months. He was then lured to Pampa, and began his job here June 1.

As building inspector, he checks the plumbing, electrical wiring and structure of buildings within the city to make sure they comply with city codes and fire laws.

Vaugn hails from Rome, Ga., a town about 65 miles northwest of Atlanta. The town was actually named after Rome. Italy, he said, and "it's got a nice big statue we got from the Italian government. Asked if Rome is near Jimmy Carter's hometown, he smiled and replied "No, but it's near Mr. (Bert) Lance.

Vaughn said he doesn't really miss Georgia: "It's a little too humid. I've been spoiled out here — I like the climate here a Nor does he get very nostalgic about the green Georgia scenery. 'The land scheme out here fascinates me as much as the scenery out there might fascinate someone from here," he said

Vaughn and his wife Twila are expecting their first child at the end of this month. Twila is staying in Dalhart until the baby is born, at which time the family hopes to move into a house Vaughn has selected Moving to Pampa from Dalhart, a community of about 8,000 people, has been 'kind of a pretty big step for me." he said. Although the building inspector position was vacant for six months before Vaughn was hired, there was no great backlog of work waiting for him, he said.

"The city is fortunate in that it has people who are cross - trained and can handle building inspections." he said. "There is a little backlog, but not substantial enough to cause a problem

"Our biggest problem has been not having enough time to keep up with enforcing building codes in existing housing. We have been able to keep up with

Vaughn is also slated to begin a new position, that of civil defense coordinator for the city. He will be in charge of developing and updating plans for the city in case of disaster or nuclear attack. If the the city qualifies, it could receive state funds to pay part of Vaughn's salary and to purchase civil defense equipment. The new inspector said he feels civil defense is one of the few federal programs actually worth the money being spent on it. Vaughn has completed the first phase of a four - stage federal course on civil defense preparedness, taught at Denton. He has also attended workshops in crisis relocation and hazardous material, and is an emergency medical technician.

Vaughn wants the public to understand his function as building inspector.

"My chief interest is to make sure builders provide the people of Pampa with the kind of quality housing they're entitled to." he said. "It's very important that before people let someone start construction on their property, they check with us to make sure that person is a licensed, reputable contractor or certified plumber, and not what I call a fly-by-nighter - someone out to make a

Rodney Tucker, the Pampa police officer accused by a local woman of brutality in connection with her arrest last week, has resigned from the police department

Tucker and Rachel Bailey of 2105 N. Dwight got into a scuffle Thursday night after he went to talk to her about the removal of a realty sign from a nearby house. Mrs. Bailey received a broken finger while being handcuffed by Tucker.

Although the incident happened five days ago, Mrs. Bailey still has not filed a complaint with the police department

Police Chief Richard Mills confirmed Tucker's resignation Tuesday, but denied that Tucker had been given a choice to resign or

"That is not true." Mills said. "He came to me and said 'I'm going to resign.' I have not talked to him about disciplinary action. The first mention of resignation came from Rodney.

Pair held for murder

BORGER - Officials are trying to piece together the murder of corrections officer Jack Thompson today after the spectacular capture Tuesday of two men suspected of killing the Hutchinson

Thetwo men, Michael Clyde Jones, 26, of Borger and George Marshall Hall, 23, of Phillips were arrested by Texas Ranger Jim Gilspey as they tried to hitch a ride with the officer, who was part of a massive manhunt for the fugitives. Both men are being held without bond in the Hutchinson County jail on charges of escape and capital murder A bizarre story began to unfold Monday night when inmates of the Hutchinson County facility alerted passing motorists that Thompson had been injured and that the two men had escaped

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Why the dollar buys so much less today

As the nation has turned more and more to the federal government to solve problems even at the local levels, a steady and ominous change has taken place in American productivity.

Once leading the world in annual gains, American productivity has now fallen behind some other industrial nations. And today it shows a shocking decline.

What is wrong

What is the result? And what can we do about it?

Jeffrey Hallett, director of the new Productivity Center of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, has this to say about the problem:

Real income of American workers has barely risen over the past 10 years. While average earnings rose almost 100 percent over the decade, purchasing power grew by only 10 percent. For every extra dollar in pay above 1968 earnings, 90 cents is virtually worthless.

The difference, or 10 cents of new purchasing power, results from slightly greater productivity. But overall, dollars buy less today because they produce

Productivity is the measure of improvement in our ability to produce goods and services. It is a measure of our combined ingenuity and effort to invent better ways of using our human and material resources. By improving our productivity year after year we generate a higher standard of living and quality of life for our society - without inflation.

The source of productivity improvements are the creative, ingenious applications of new ideas by individuals. Because the United States has always rewarded individual initiative and innovation, our productivity has long been the highest in the world.

We enjoy unmatched economic success because of productivity gains which averaged 3.2 percent per year during most of the past 30 years. Unfortunately, our productivity has slumped.

Last year our productivity improvement, as a nation was an abysmal four-tenths of 1 percent. Using all of our new technology, knowledge and materials to seek improvements in our performance resulted in near total failure. For the first three months of 1979, it actually declined at a rate of 4.5

Surprised? We shouldn't be. U.S. productivity has been deteriorating persistently for more than 10 years. According to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, this continuing slide has "resulted in a great loss of human physical welfare, high poverty rates and less opportunity for everyone. The average American household now receives $3,700 less personal income as a consequence of the decline in productivity

If the trend is not reversed the loss to average American households will be in excess of $40,000 between now and 1990. To conquer inflation we have two choices. One is to accept a standard of living and quality of life for ourselves and our children that does not improve or that declines through strict government controls on wages, prices, profits and individual initiative.

The other is to improve our productivity by generating more of what we need and desire by consuming less of our resources.

While government officials seem totally biased toward the control option, the people in this country increasingly voice the desire for less government and for more local and individual freedom to innovate and produce.

In a recently released Gallup survey of workers sponsored by the U.S. Chamber, fully 50 percent of those surveyed wanted less government regulation. Government regulations already cost $100 billion a year, and regulatory budgets call for 33 percent increased spending in 1979-1980 to enforce these regulations. No wonder people are beginning to cry, "enough.

The primary change between the years of 3.2 percent rates of productivity growth and the past decade is the persistent growth of government. We have slowly but surely given to government the challenge and responsibility for creative problem-solving

Every power and responsibility given to government is taken from private citizens. Over the past decade, we have significantly reduced the capability and motivation of individuals, communities and business to seek the innovations, changes and improvements in whatever it is they do to improve their productivity

In this complex and dynamic world, we need to stimulate our citizens toward excellence — toward innovation and improvement — toward creative

Choosing government to do the job is a poor choice.

Setting productivity improvement as national goal and pursuing policies to support it is a long-needed positive step toward fighting inflation and strengthening our economy. Recently, Congress has shown clear signs that it

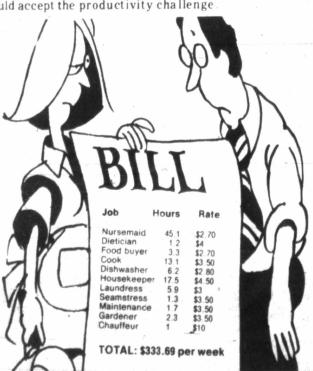

The Joint Economic Committee produced a unamimous report with specific recommendations for policies to improve productivity. More recently, Congress passed amendments to the one-year reauthorization of the Council on Wage and Price Stability requiring it to start actively concerning itself with productivity as part of the monitoring function.

To improve productivity only requires the effort to do so and a set of supportive government policies and actions.

Through its new Productivity Center, the Chamber has announced it will become an advocate for those policies.

The choice seems obvious.

We should accept the productivity challenge

Welfare and its definitions

By ROBERT LeFEVRE

The term, welfare, is an interesting one. Currently its usage is inspiring more and more controversy. According to Webster, the word came into usage to denote a condition of good health or prosperity for the individual. In short, if he was faring well, he could be said to be enjoying Extrapolated from the original usage is the term, welfare state. Referring to Webster again, we find here a meaning which includes state intrusion, Thus, we have a welfare state when legislation has been passed which concerns itself with the health, income, employment, safety and general well being of the members of the society en masse.

Webster says nothing about the imposition upon the taxpayers which becomes mandatory if the legislators are going to provide anything for anybody. So, as it develops, when the state begins to tax the population generally, to provide for the well being of individuals in society, then we have a welfare state. Those receiving this assistance are properly termed welfare recipients.

I have had occasion to bring out this fact in recent columns. Here and there a voice of indignation has arisen in protest from a few who are today receiving welfare by means of legislation which has been enacted to the benefit of some at the expense of the general public. Most notable among those protesting have been a few veterans who are receiving welfare payments called pension, medical benefits. educational benefits, housing benefits, job preference or other legislative bonanzas at the expense of the general public.

When I served in the armed forces in France during World War II, I pointed out to some of my comrades in arms, explaining that if we accepted the 'benefits" then being offered, we would simply become a burden to the public in general. This revelation didn't go down well, especially among those who had been drafted. The draftees seemed to believe that since they were in the military service through no voluntary action of their own, that everyone in the country owed them anything and everything they could grab. Possibly my own view was tempered by the fact that I had volunteered and hence felt that no one owed me anything. Be that as it may, one's opinion of the merit of a given program doesn't alter the intrinsic nature or character of the program.

By definition, any recipient of benefits from the government at the expense of the public at large is a welfare recipient whether he approves of the term or not. Government policies both in respect to warfare and welfare are leading inexorably to one ultimate result: the total collapse and ruination of this country.

Take the military procedure as an example. Hundreds of thousands of young people, in the future it may be women as well as men, are herded either by voluntary or involuntary means, into the military service.

There they are paid by virtue of taxes laid on all others.

The argument that those in uniform or those in mufti in military service are paying taxes, too, doesn't wash. They pay taxes out of the taxes they receive. On balance all that happens to them is what happens to the rest of us. They experience what amounts to a withholding tax, taken from the total tax money they receive. Thus they actually work for less take-home pay than the books show. But they are not paying taxes. They are merely receiving less tax income. But all of what they receive is tax money taken for their benefit (welfare) from the real income produced by others. When men and women are in the military they are unable to produce in the market place. Instead, they are compelled by government order to waste their time and energy following government decrees. Obviously, they have to be paid in some manner. Great segments of their lives are taken from them, some of them are injured either physically or psychically, and some

In the passing of time, fewer and fewer people become available to perform productive chores and more and more people receive welfare payments (by one name or another) because they are prevented through government intrusion into their lives, to be productive. This is a process which, when continued long enough, will wreck any nation. It is the route we are taking in this country.

In my prior columns on this subject I have endeavored to show that persons whose health, income, employment, safety or general well being are provided by government at the public expense are the recipients of welfare. I wish to re-examine

The question is not whether a person approves of his own welfare check or not. The question has nothing to do with what the person may have done to place himself on the welfare lists. Some may have merely been young, or grown old, or become injured, or belong to a minority group, or served in the military with or without injury. In terms of a definitive understanding, all of these are on public welfare. Therefore, they are obtaining their well being by riding on the backs of others.

. If you would like to get off public welfare you have to earn your own income by providing goods or services in the marketplace. If you are unable to, so be it. But the fact remains that such as are not earning their living but who are living at the public expense are public welfare

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Opponents of the women's liberation movement who hope to turn back the clock by defeating the Equal Rights Amendment are battling forces larger than they realize

Like it or not, the role of women in society is changing inexorably all over the world to an extent far greater than is generally recognized. With or without legal reforms, shifting economic and social conditions are steadily transforming the lives of women everywhere.

The United States, it is worth noting, cannot even claim to be on the cutting edge of this worldwide social revolution. Other nations, most notably in Scandinavia and Eastern Europe, have done considerably more to promote equality between men and women in employment, politics and the family

"In terms of attitudes and the way we live, the U.S. is quite advanced. In terms of public policy towards women, we rank quite far down the scale.

So says Kathleen Newland, author of "The Sisterhood of Man," a new book published this week under the auspices of the non-profit Worldwatch Institute here in Washington. Her study was financed by the United Nations Fund for Population Activities.

Despite frequent failures of enforcement, laws mandating equality for women have become commonplace. In the 1970s alone more than 25 countries have instituted legal reforms of this nature. There are, in fact, only eight countries left in the world which legally exclude women from participation in the political process. Except for tiny Liechtenstein, all are orthodox Moslem states - Saudi Arabia. Bahrain. United Arab Emirates, Yemen Arab Republic, Kuwait, Oman and

Throughout the world, education is serving as a major catalyst for change in the role of women, even though half again as many women as men remain illiterate. "Unlike employment outside the home or political participation, education for women is almost universally valued," notes Ms. Newland in her book.

With education comes the opportunity and the impetus — to break away from the traditional "breeder-feeder" role. Almost without exception, studies have shown, the more education women receive, the more likely they are to seek and find employment outside the home.

In industrialized societies worldwide. more than a third of all adult women are in the labor force. In the United States, Scandinavia and Eastern Europe, the percentage is well over half.

Equally significant, there is a direct linkage between education and fertility rates. The more schooling women obtain. the fewer children they are likely to have a correlation of immense significance in developing nations plagued by disastrous overpopulation.

Indeed, what is most intriguing about the worldwide social revolution is the extent to which improvement in the status of women is related to - and necessary for progress on a variety of other fronts.

Governments have been slow to recognize the connection, especially in countries where tradition and custom narrowly define the role of women. Equality for women has not been a priority item in public policy," Ms. Newland observes. "It's always possible to find some more urgent problem.

Yet most of those "more urgent" problems, from poverty to health care, hunger to unemployment, cannot be solved without the active participation of women. "Pragmatism as well as idealism is on the side of equality for women," Ms. Newland correctly contends. "As the world changes for women, women will also change the world."

Arming the dragon

Not a week passes but that a delegation of Americans visits mainland China. Many of the reports coming from the returning visitors are shockingly naive. They have swallowed the glowing propaganda prepared by their hosts in Peking.

Not everyone is taken in, however. Among the shrewd observers is Dr. Kenneth E. Boulding, director of the Institute of Behavioral Science at the University of Colorado. A liberal and longtime supporter of "peace" causes, Prof. Boulding nevertheless came away from Communist China with some deep concerns about the future.

Writing in Technology Review, Dr. Boulding said:

There is something frightening about the four modernizations, in a densely populated country of nearly a billion people. Seventy to 80 percent of the Chinese still harvest a poor existence in agriculture. A very small modernization of agriculture could release 100 million people overnight. All they have to do is expand the private plots and diminish the production brigades. In the United States the release of only 30 million people from agriculture in the last generation has created a severe urban problem.

"What would China do with the 100 million or 200 million that could be so easily unsettled? In time, of course, they can be absorbed producing increased riches, even bicycles, for in spite the fact that Peking swarms with bicycles, statistics suggest that there is only one bicycle for each 30 Chinese. Modernizing industry could produce ten more Hong Kongs, but at the cost of increasing inequality, disturbing the stability of equal, decent poverty."

These weren't Dr. Boulding's only concerns, however. He realized that a modernized, industrialized Communist China would be a profoundly destabilizing force in the world. He wrote: "Modernizing defense is even more disturbing. Peking today looks almost like Germany of 1937, with army convoys, soldiers doing the goose step, armed guards everywhere, and so on. The vast underground defense installations suggest that China is expecting a nuclear war. The deep sense of betrayal by the Russians, the fear of Russia, creates an international tension that reminds one of the Middle

If China modernizes its defense, this increases the arms race and it puts Russia in the pincers of East and West, which is likely to produce the same kind of paranoia that we found in Germany in the thirties. that will almost inevitably lead to almost unthinkable catastrophe.

It is to be hoped that Dr. Boulding's cautionary words will have effect within the liberal community. The rush to accept Communist China's new plans and to give Peking whatever it wants entails enormous danger for the free world.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has refused to interfere with a state court that may require evangelist Lester Roloff to show today why he should not be held in contempt for refusing to allow state inspection of his three South Texas children's homes.

U.S. District Judge Owen Cox dismissed a suit here Tuesday aimed at blocking state closure of Roloff's homes and the removal of the 400 to 500 children enrolled at the facilities.

Attorney General Mark White has asked State District Judge Charles Matthews in Austin to close the homes, levy a civil penalty against the evangelist and hold him in contempt of a 1976 court order requiring Roloff to submitt to state inspection and licensing of his

The parents contended the state, by licensing or closing the homes. violated their constitutional rights to educate their children as they saw fit.

'Never have the parents been asked what we feel or what we want to do about our children." testified Wiley Cameron, a trustee and superintendent of the Rebekah Home for Girls where his daughter

First assistant Attorney General David Young contended the suit was part of a continuing effort to avoid state licensing.

"Attorneys for Roloff have litigated this matter all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court saying the homes were operated by Roloff's evangelistic enterprises. Now they are saying they are operated by the People's Church," said Young.

Roloff has cited the constitutional doctrine of separation of church and state in his refusal to allow state licensing. The Texas Supreme Court rejected that argument earlier.

The 1979 Legislature failed to pass a so-called "Roloff Bill" which would have exempted his child care facilities and other church-operated facilities from state licensing.

Houston hearing brought to halt

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal commission studying charges of brutality in the Houston Police Department brought a preliminary hearing to a surprise halt after the HPD agreed to comply with the board's modified subpoena.

The Commission on Civil Rights ended its hearing one day early when it found the city in compliance with its subpoena Tuesday after attorneys worked out agreements concerning documents to be furnished the panel by the police department. Members of the commission stressed that the finding would ontinue only as long as the police department acted in "good faith" in furnishing what it promised.

The commission is to return to Houston for a full-scale public hearing Sept. 10-12 as it winds up a national study of police practices. "The focus of this study is to ascertain the nature and extent of police misconduct, specifically the excessive or unnecessary use of force," commission chairman Arthur S. Flemming said Tuesday. "It is important to note that its purpose has not been to identify, investigate or to resolve individual allegations of abuse.' The only comment heard by the commission from those presenting documents for scrutiny was that given to clarify what was contained

The commissioners explained witnesses will be allowed to present views, argue evidence and offer recommendations during the hearing in September

Police Chief Harry Caldwell presented the commission with reams of material, including cases involving officers going as far back as

He told newsmen his department was doing "everything in our power to handle the number of slayings in the city. Actually, we are not in too bad shape when compared to other large cities."

Also appearing at the hearing was Jenifer Schaye, counsel for the Houston Public Interest Advocacy Center, a federally financed organization that checks charges of consumer fraud and police

She said the center has received 25 reports of police harassment since Jan. 15, and "only three or four of those we talked with were advised they had no cases.

"The others have been forwarded to either city or federal authorities," she said.

Steven Shiflett, president of the Houston Gay Political Caucus, told the commission he had proof that atleast 100 homosexuals had been harassed by police during the past eight months.

Bentsen says lines won't be cut

WASHINGTON (AP)- U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says the lines won't be cut between the Texas delegation to Congress and Gov. Bill Clements despite the governor's harsh words on its energy performance.

"We're always pleased to see the governor of Texas and we'll continue to communicate with him." Bentsen, D-Texas, said at a news conference Tuesday.

Asked if he would attend another energy conference like the one organized Monday at Clements' request, the senator replied: "Let's see what his next proposal is." The governor at the meeting announced plans to send state officials traveling throughout the nation to promote the so-called

"Texas position" stressing energy production. "If they (Texas congressmen) have been talking about it, I want them to quit whispering and start yelling." Clements said after the meeting.

Bentsen said he was "surprised" by the governor's criticism. "The vast majority of us have been fighting this fight," the senator said. "As an oil man and as governor, he should be quite aware of the difficulty of convincing the Northeast and the Midwest of the position of a producing state.

Clements was head of SEDCO Inc., an oil drilling supply company, before his election last fall as the state's first Republican governor in more than a century

Bentsen said he noticed that Clements' own energy pitch to the National Governors Conference did not start a national groundswell of support for legislation promoting energy production.

"I don't know if he whispered or he yelled." the senator said. "It obviously fell on deaf ears.

Weather Texas weather

By The Associated Press A large high pressure system centered over East Texas produced clear skies and mild temperatures across all of Texas today.

Forecasts called for clear skies and warmer temperatures in northern and western sections of the state and for continued warm readings in South Texas. Highs were to be mostly in the 80s and 90s except for the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas where readings were likely to pass the 100-degree

There was no mention of rain in the forecasts. Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 50s and 60s. Extremes ranged from 49 at Sanderson to 70 at Galveston.

National weather

As Californians hoped for a break from four days of record heat, Old Forge, N.Y., recorded a low of 29 degrees overnight

Temperatures in New York, chilled by brisk northwest winds, were expected to return to the 80s by the end of the week. On the other side of the nation, weather service officials predicted a high of only 85 in southern California today after days of temperatures in the 100s and abnormally high overnight readings. Meanwhile, thunderstorms spread hail and damaging winds Tuesday throug Iowa into northern Clear skies covered muchof the rest of the country early today. Showers were experted in Florida, the lower Ohio Valley, North Dakota and northern Maine.

THE NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE predicts warm, fair weather for most of the nation through Thursday.

Local pilots to discuss safety at meeting

Various aspects of aviation safety of concern to local pilots will be discussed at a Pilot's Safety Meeting in the main hangar at Perry Lefors Airport Thursday at 7 p.m.

The program is sponsored by the Pampa Aviation Saftey Committee in cooperation with the Federal Aviation Administration Accident Prevention Program.

"The purpose of the meeting is an educational process," said Jack Chisum of the Accident Prevention Counsel. "We are trying to educate pilots and others so they know how they fit into the (aviation)

Chisum said the present program is generally sponsored together with the FAA about once a year. The last air safety meeting in Pampa was in December 1977.

"We've sent information out to about nine countles," Chisum said.

"We're hoping pilots from surrounding areas can fly directly in. The meeting is at the airport, so they won't need transportation into

The meeting is free and open to both the flying and non - flying public, Chisum said. Antique or classical airplanes will be displayed on the airport ramp and refreshments will be served.

Pilots and others will be able to obtain information about the Enroute Flight Advcsory Service from Ed Chambers, Chief of the Amarillo Flight Service Station. Chisum said the service allowed pilots to call in various weather information and updates to central controls. he said the service aided some 250 lost pilots in the last

A discussion of the up - grading of air traffic control and the possible change of the Amarillo Airport to a completely controlled facility will also be held. Chisum said small plane pilots are presently using a Voluntary Radar Service when flying into the Amarillo Talks on the importance of preflight check of all electronic and radio equipment, and a review of local instrument operations will complete the scheduled of events.

Chisum said there was a need for local pilots to keep informed about instrument controls. He said most local pilots fly under Visual Flight Rules (VFR) and are not fully aware of various control operations used for larger planes which fly under Instrument Flight canines will be under the leash or their owners will pay fines up to $100 when a new local law goes into effect here June 22.

Canines put on leash

The city council voted 3 - 2 Monday in favor of a city ordinance which would require all dogs to be fenced or leashed. Council members split their vote during the specially scheduled meeting, with Mayor George Arrington casting the deciding ballot in favor of the new law.

Under the law, dog owners can be fined up to $100 allowing their animals to run loose. The law also imposes penalties for the failure to have dogs lisenced. In order for dog owners to retrive their pets from the city animal shelter, a few of $5 plus $1 a day

The new law is expected to coSt $15,000 to $20,000, with the hiring of the city's first dog warden to enforce the new restrictions

The city council has received numerous complaints concerning stray dogs in recent months.

In other action, the city council voted to set rates for the municipal swimming pool at 50 cents for children 12 and under; 75 cents for children 13 to 18; nand $1 for adults. The swimming rates were reduced back from a recent raise in pool prices to $1 for children and $1.50 for adults.

by

lawrence e. lamb, m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have just found out I cannot digest milk. Any advice you can give me on this would be greatly appreciated. My doctor has me using Acidophilus and I am OK, but I can't use any other dairy products such as butter, cottage cheese and so forth. I don't like to drink milk. I get most of my calcium from cottage cheese and butter. Our health food store has Acidophilus capsules and Lact-Aid. Which of these is best or is there something else I can use? Is this something I will get over or will I have it the rest of my life?

DEAR READER -You're not as unusual as you might think. About 80 percent of the adults in most ethnic groups have such a problem and about 10 percent of the Anglo-Saxon adults have this problem.

The basic disorder is the absence of sufficient enzyme in the small intestine. This is an enzyme that splits the double sugar of milk into single sugars so it can be absorbed. When the sugar is not split and absorbed, it acts somewhat like a chemical laxative causing gas and diarrhea.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good And Bad. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper. P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It will give you considerably more information on the problem of milk intoler-

There are some people who have damage to the cells in the intestine and loss of normal bacterial flora and develop intolerance to milk because of this. These are probably in the minority. Most people with this problem inherit the tenden-

Acidophilus has been highly promoted and it may have some beneficial effects. The rigid scientific testing that's necessary to show how much good it does, if any, has really not been reported to date. Certainly if it does any good, it will have to be because of an enzyme liberated by the Acidophilus in the milk itself before it's digested.

Enzymes are proteins and the acid digestive juices in the stomach will start breaking them down before they have a chance to take any action. Also, the idea of increasing the types of bacteria that are in the colon isn't very practical from the point of view of milk intolerance. The absorption of the milk sugar is in the small intestine, not the colon. The small intestine is relatively free of bacteria.

DEAR POLLY - I have not been able to remove some chewing gum from my leather jacket even though I have used leather cleaners. I know that peanut butter will remove gum from one's hair but am afraid it might hurt my jacket so please tell me how to get out of this sticky situation. — KAREN

DEAR KAREN — The safest way I know of to get out of your sticky situation is to take the jacket to a leather cleaner. You failed to mention the sort of finish the leather has but I would be wary of the peanut butter because it might leave an oily spot that would penetrate right through the leather. If you must try something yourself the best thing I know to suggest is applying an ice cube to the gum and when it hardens remove with a dull knife. Of course, I do not know what the water would do the finish on your coat. Does it water spot? - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - THe following is an old restaurant trick I learned while working as a waitress. One way to have your knife come out clean when slicing a meringue pie is to stick the knife in a tall glass of hot water and let it heat through a bit before cutting the pie in pieces. —

First pool film made since 'Hustler'

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) -Subject matter of movies runs in cycles. These days, TV movies are frequently about diseases (autism, Hodgkin's disease, retardation, etc.) while feature films about sports (tennis, skiing, basketball, bowling) are common.

And now they are shooting a movie about pool. It's called "The Baltimore Bullet." and I watched as they were filming part of the climactic tournament sequence. A big banner declared it a "Hustlers Tournament," and some of the genuine pool players hanging around said there really was such a thing.

"Yep, had one of those every year in Johnson City, said Steve Mizerak. Honest and truly was such a thing. In this one, the finals are between James Coburn and Bruce Boxleitner, and the two were out there, lining up shots and chalking their cues and doing all those traditional things.

The real pool players, all dolled up in tuxedos, watched with superior looks on their faces.

Willie Mosconi said that this was the first film about the game since "Hustler." "And that wasn't really about pool," he said. "That was more of a love story. This one here is more of a pool story. That other one wasn't too accurate. I've never seen anybody's arm broken."

Irving Crane, a slim, gentlemanly old pro, said that he never did like "The Hustler.

"That movie," Crane said, 'didn't do the game any good. For 40 years, we've been trying to defeat the stigma - the pool player with the cigarette dangling out of his mouth. "This one is better, but there still are some scenes that are no credit to me or to the game. Hustling is deception; I've never done it.'

"The Baltimore Bullet" is the first feature film from a group called FilmFair, which has been making TV commercials for 20 years. It is the brainchild of John Brascia, the co-producer, who most people remember as a great dancer.

Brascia danced for many years on Broadway and then in films (he did the famous Frankie and Johnny number with Cyd Charisse in "Meet Me in Las Vegas") and then he teamed up with glamorous Tybee Afra. The dance team of Brascia and Tybee performed all over the world.

They were married for a while, too. And Tybee happened to be on the set when I was there, because they're still friends. Tybee said how Johnny broke up the act -"and there went $6,000 a week" - to prepare for this film. He said she was right, and that he has spent four years in that preparation.

The easiest part, actually, in a film of this sort is what movie-goers think is the hardest — making the difficult shots by the unskilled actors. It's simply a question of having the pros line them up, show the actors how to hit the cue ball, and then doing it over and over until it comes out right.

But even the pros seem to differ on some of the shots. Boxleitner was at the table, and they had lined up a shot for him. Out of earshot of the director (Robert Ellis Miller) and the other brass, the pros were grumbling.

"He's asking him," said, "to do a shot that maybe we couldn't do." 'He's not following through where he's aiming, said another, after Boxleitner blew it a few times. Boxleitner admits he is a rookie at this sport. He's never had a cue in his hand before this, but he says he's "hooked." "If I can't get a table out of this picture somehow," he said, between takes, "I'll be very disappointed. I'm planning on adding a room on my house and it'd fit in very nicely.'

A doctor or social worker may assure you that love and sex needn't stop at any age. But the emphasis throughout is on money.

No one denies that money is important after retirement. But to quote an old saying, "Money isn't every-thing." Other factors are just as important during our retirement years. Let's draw the picture:

Here is an elderly couple. They will be dependent on each other day and night for the rest of their lives. During their working years, they spent only evenings and yearly vacations together. They may not really know each other. Spending 24 hours a day with one another may be just too much togetherness. Pre-retirement courses say nothing of the danger of bickering through the retirement years. Neither do they cite statistics about seniors who become alcoholics. Nor do they mention those who just lose interest in life.

Lacking direction, such problems are inevitable for many retirees.

With all the money in the world, the retired couple will have an unhappy time unless they learn what is available to them socially and intellectually in retirement.

Pre-retirement courses must be expanded. Ways must be found to make life in retirement more interesting, more valid, more excit-

What's required is that articulate people who have already retired be present at some of the pre-retirement

Tower wants action on loans

WASHINGTON (AP)- U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, has called for quick action to approve supplemental funds for the Small Business Administration's disaster loan program.

About 335 claims from victims of the April 10 tornadoes in Wichita Falls and Vernon have been approved but cannot be paid until Congress refills the program's depleted treasury, Tower said in a letter to leaders of the Senate Appropriatoins Committee. The loans would total about $6.8 million.

"I urge that the Fiscal Year 1980 supplemental appropriations be immediately reported to the Senate," Tower wrote Monday. "It will also be appreciated if you will use your influence to have the matter taken up by the Senate at the earliest possible date.'

Dog only survivor in crash

GRANGEVILLE, Idaho (AP) - A dog with a broken leg was the only survivor found Tuesday by rescue teams searching for nine persons missing in the crash of a U.S. Forest Service DC-3.

Forest Service officials held out little hope of finding any more survivors of Monday's crash in the steel-walled canyon of the Selway. River in the Selway-Bitterroot Wilderness Area of north-central Idaho.

"I'd hate to say anything with all these relatives hanging onto hope, but it's certainly a possibility" no one else is alive. said Ed Lavins, a spokesman for the Nez Perce National Forest.

Three persons survived the crash, but one of them. Robert A. Taylor, 59, a 25-year veteran with the Forest Service, died shortly after the plane went

Grain export market growing larger thriving grain export market is growing even larger because of reduced crop prospects in the Soviet Union and some other parts of the world, meaning farmers may see higher prices for wheat and corn in the coming

The Agriculture Department said Tuesday that exports in 1979-80 now appear larger than previously estimated.

But a senior department official said a huge U.S. reserve of grain - mainly wheat and corn - and the upcoming 1979 harvest will provide enough to go around for foreign buyers and American consumers.

The wheat harvest is under way now, but the newly planted corn will not be ready until fall. Corn and other feed grains such as sorghum are essential to the production of meat animals, poultry and dairy products.

In a new "supply and demand' report, the department said that "with prospects for a reduced grain crop" in the Soviet Union and "deteriorating conditions in Eastern Europe," exports of U.S. corn are expected to be a record 2.1 billion bushels in the current season.

Last Friday, the department said Soviet grain output this year might be around 190 million metric tons - with a possible range, depending on weather, of from 170 million to 210 million metric tons. In 1978, the crop was a record of 237.2 million metric tons.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pound and is equal, for example, to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

The analysis said corn exports in the 1979-80 year could set another record, ranging between 2.15 billion and 2.45

150 million from earlier

projections. Wheat exports in the new marketing year that began June 1 were estimated in a range of between 1.15 billion and 1.35 billion bushels, compared to 1.2 billion in 1978-79. That represented an increase of 50 million to 100 million bushels from earlier estimates. The larger exports are expected to help boost grain prices at the farm from what USDA experts had been saying, including substantially larger increases if U.S. crops fail to develop to potential.

Purchases of wheat and corn by the Soviet Union are expected to reach nearly 15 million metric tons in the 1978-79 year, which will end Sept. 30, about the same as last year.

Howard Hjort, the department's chief economist. told a news conference that U.S. reserve supplies of grain - the largest since the early 1960s -"appear to be adequate" for foreign demand and domestic requirements unless American farmers get severely adverse weather

Hjort said cattle and hog prices have fallen below their earlier peaks this year and that should mean some easing of beef billion bushels, up 100 million to and pork prices at retail Beef production will be down counters.

If these savings are passed along, he said, the department's earlier prediction that consumers will see an average food price increase of "around 10 percent" still is valid, Hjort 10 percent to 12 percent from last year, but more pork and poultry are helping fill the gap.

Hjort said beef output for consumers is expected to level off in 1980 and that pork expansion will continue at least Poultry producers, however. may be more sensitive to rising feed prices and can cut back with much shorter notice than cattle and hog raisers, he said. Asked to predict food prices in 1980, Hjort said he could give only a possible range - an increase of between 6 percent and 15 percent being possible.

LEFORS-Pampans dominated last Sunday's edition of the Lefors Supertrack competition.

There were four Pampa winners. Those came in the 50 C.C., 80 S.R., 100 C.C. and the 125 C.C.

James Skinner won the 50 C.C. with Jamie Finney of Lefors taking second. Third place went to Jamie McDonald of Amarillo.

Pampa's Marvin Skinner was the victor in the 80 S.R. and Jay Jones of Wellington placed second. Pampa's David Youree took third

In the 100 C.C. Daren Tooley of Pampa grabbed the top place finish. Jerry Skinner, also of Pampa, was second with Buddy Patton (of Pampa) placing Jimmy Barker of Pampa won in the 125 C.C. and Keevin Sharp of Amarillo took second. Joe Skinner was third.

Brent Cates of Lefors broke the Pampa domination as he won first in the 80 J.R. Taking second place in the competition was Kevin McDonald of Amarillo. James Skinner of Pampa placed third.

Amarillo's Ricky Higgins was the victor in the 250 C.C. and Gary Griggs of Pampa took second. Third place went to Larry Franks of Lefors.

Amarillo representatives dominated action in the Open race. John Perin took first place honors with Kris Hubbard placing second. Third place went to Henry Small, also of Amarillo games into the American League season, Jim Campbell saw the Detroit Tigers "just rocking along" a notch above

So the team's president and general manager decided to rock the boat by firing low-key skipper Les Moss and hiring George "Sparky" Anderson, a self-described "crazy extrovert and wild enthusiast.'

Anderson, 45, fired last November after nine seasons and two world championships in Cincinnati, agreed Tuesday to a five-year contract with the

DETROIT (AP) - Fifty-three Tigers - the longest pact ever offered a Detroit manager. "We're building an organization here," Campbell said. "I think Sparky can be a cornerstone. Anderson will reportedly earn $110,000 a year with Detroit. Moss, 54, will be paid off for the remainder of his one-year agreement and has a spot somewhere in the Detroit system "if he wants one," Campbell said.

The Tigers were 27-26 under Moss, and Campbell said he was "just not satisfied" with the team's progress.

But, "had Sparky not been available, we would not have made the move at this time," Campbell said.

Anderson had been mentioned as the leading candidate to manage several clubs since leaving the Reds.

"Everybody was saying I'd go someplace where I could take over a winner," he said by telephone from his California home. "But this Detroit club, it's the best young team I can see. I really enjoy working with good, young kids.

"Texas is in a class by itself," said Meyer, who recruited one of the top schoolboy football classes in the nation.

"Texas has defense and kickers and one of the most dangerous receivers in the country in Johnny (Lam) Jones," said Meyer. "Lam Jones is an exceptional player. He is in the class of our own (All-America) Emanuel Tolbert:

Meyer added "Some say Texas has a weakness at quarterback but I can't go along with that...they have a great array of quarterback talent."

Meyer continued "the next six teams could jump into the championship picture. They are Baylor, Texas Tech, Houston, Texas A&M, Arkansas, and us. "TCU is much improved.

They feel they recruited the best freshman class in their history. TCU could be a real factor in several games. They will be a force...an upsetting factor. And Rice will be much better.

Late rally gives Mets comeback win over Reds

By The Associated Press After the Cincinnati Reds scored five runs in the top of the sixth inning, the New York Mets knew they really had to come up with something

They did - 10 runs. Mazzilli had a hand in the inning, the Mets' biggest in their history, by drawing a walk and scoring one of the runs enroute to a 12-6 victory. The Reds contributed two costly errors to the monster inning in which only four of the runs were earned.

The Reds had taken a 5-2 lead with their five-run sixth before the Mets came backwith their 10. Before Tuesday night, the most the Mets had scored in a single inning was eight runs. The combined total of 15 runs by the two teams in the sixth fell two shy of the modern National League record of 17, set by the old Boston Braves and New York Giants in 1912. The modern major league record for rules by two teams in an inning is 19, set by the Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox on April 10, 1977.

Phillies 4, Astros 0 Mike Schmidt's two-run homer in the fifth inning powered Philadelphia over Houston' behind the six-hit, no-walk pitching of Nino Espinosa. Houston's Rick Williams pitched perfect ball through the first four innings before walking Greg Luzinski at the start of the fifth, and Schmidt followed with his 18th homer of the season and a 2-0

Giants 7, Cubs 2 Bill North and Mike Ivie ht home runs in the first inning and San Francisco added four more extra-base hits to beat Chicago

Jack Clark had three of the Giants' nine hits, including a run-scoring triple in the second and a bases-empty homer in the fourth. The home run was his 10th of the year and gave him 40

Dodgers 9, Cardinals 3 Pitcher Burt Hooton's two-out, two-run single highlighted a three-run rally by Los Angeles in the fourth inning and triggered the Dodgers over St.

Hooton scattered nine hits, but it was his bases-loaded single that snapped a 2-2 tie to give the Dodgers a lead they did not

Padres 6, Pirates 3 Dave Winfield hit a three-run homer and Gaylord Perry gained his 273rd career victory as San Diego defeated Pittsburgh.

Royals 7, Red Sox 6 With two out in the ninth and the Red Sox leading 6-4 on Carl Yastrzemski's two-run homer in the eighth, Wilson hit what appeared to be a routine game-ending fly ball which clanked off Rice's glove as center fielder Fred Lynn cut in . homered off loser Dick Drago to Rangers 7, Brewers 6 Buddy Bell, who drove in two earlier tuns with a homer and single, drilled a tie-breaking single to cap a three-run ninth inning rally.

Indians 11, Angels 10 A two-out, two-run homer by Toby Harrah in the bottom of the ninth off Dave LaRoche tied the game. Later a two-run single by Tom Donohue gave the Angels a

Fishermen welcome return of shad

Associated Press Writer WINDSOR, Conn. (AP) - Armand LaFlamme cast his "willow" leaf" lure well out into the current of the Farmington River and then hunkered down, slowly reeling it in.

Along the lower stretches of the Farmington and up and down the Connecticut River, scores of anglers acted out a springtime ritual that usually peaks in May with good fishing well into June The shad are returning home.

Fleeing (not flying) with carpets

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's Persian carpet market — where things seemed up in the air just a few months ago - has emerged still prosperous from the Islamic revolution.

Its well-heeled foreign customers have been replaced by Iranians seeking a discreet way to get cash out of the country. So the carpet business, a blend of hallowed national tradition and costly traps for gullible buyers, still runs on sweet tea and vociferous bargaining in a string of tiny shops on traffic-choked Ferdowsi Street. Not that the revolution has not left its mark.

Photographs of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the nation's Moslem revolutionary leader, are plastered over the plate-glass windows of the shops. Portraits of the Imam Ali, a 7th century Moslem patriarch, gaze down inside the shops on piles of neatly folded

When Khomeini returned to Iran on Jan. 31 from his Paris exile, carpet dealers loaned him several of their most valuable specimens for his reception rooms. Khomeini was pleased. Now, with the Islamic revolution a strong backer of private enterprise, most dealers feel they have little to fear from Khomeini's administration.

Shopowners proudly recite to visitors the names of Americans.

Britons. Frenchmen and Germans "who always used to buy from me." but add with a sigh that most of them have left. The big spenders now are well-to-do Iranians leaving their homeland who hope to take some of their money out in the form of carpets. Iranian regulations now limit each departing traveler to the equivalent of about $285 in Iranian currency, and foreign money in Iran is difficult to get. But customs men often ignore a carpet or two The Iranian customers have driven up prices, providing a continued living to the merchants. A 6-by-8 foot Qom silken carpet that sold for $1,500 before the revolution plunged to $1,000 in the chaos of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's overthrow.

But now it is up to $2,000, and the values of some carpets are rising

by 10 percent every six months

In addition, half the 50-odd Ferdowsi Street stores have closed down since the revolution. Dealers say some owners had planned to move anyway because of traffic congestion and others have emigrated abroad. This means more business for the stores that

Dealers readily admit that buyers have traditionally been at the salesmen's mercy when it comes to judging the quality and durability of a carpet. Some customers hire freelance "carpet appraisers" to accompany them to stores, unaware that many of these receive kickbacks once a sale is made.

The new Iranian buyers are more discriminating than most foreigners, however. In recent months, Iranian customers have been pressing for higher-quality carpets, including more intricate designs and the best vegetable-based dyes in place of chemical dyes now commonly used

This demand has sifted down to Iran's provinces, where women weavers spend 9 to 18 months on an average specimen. Many of the carpets have 1,100 or more hand-tied knots per square inch.

In one Ferdowsi Street shop, a merchant displayed a 4-by 6-foot Turkoman style rug for $700, with a central design of black diamonds and intricate rectangular borders. Other popular styles are pastel-colored Qom carpets and traditional Persian designs based on trees, flowers and animals.

Carpet merchants appear confident that a steady stream of departing Iranians will keep their business alive, at least until foreign tourism revives. They say many Iranians are slowly closing up homes and businesses, and will be leaving over the next one to two long-awaited legislation to Capitol Hill.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's proposal to limit a family's annual health-care bill to $2,500 appears destined for an election-year congressional struggle with overtones of presidential politics.

Influential Democrats who would guide health insurance legislation are, for the most part, cautiously critical of the latest in Carter's national health insurance plans.

Most appeared unwilling to pick a direct fight with the president over HealthCare, as his proposal is called. But Mssachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who introduced his own version of national health insurance last month, labeled Carter's plan "inflationary and too inequitable.

'The bottom line is...we can't afford it,' Kennedy told a news conference.

Carter's limited health care plan would combine Medicare and state-run Medicaid plans for the poor in a program estimated to cost $23 billion to $25 billion in 1983, the first year it would

The bulk of that would go for the federal takeover of Medicaid plans.

Carter's plan would also: -Protect everyone against the costs of catastrophic illness by ending limits on Medicare payments and requiring private health insurance plans to limit a family's liability for hospital and medical bills to $2,500 a year

The elderly and disabled would not have to pay more than half that, or $1,250.

-Guarantee free prenatal care and delivery to all pregnant women, regardless of what plan covers them. Their children would have free care for the first year. -Require employers to pay at least 75 percent of all health insurance premiums. Employees or their unions could bargain with individual companies to increase that share.

As Carter outlined his limited approach, he

Game may become harsh reality IMPORTANT NOTICE

NEW YORK (AP) — We've been playing the "if only" game for years now, counting the dollars we would have made if only the stock market had risen a bit, if only inflation had departed and left us in

For years it was just a frivolous pastime. We knew inflation would not disappear, and we knew that during such economic chaos the stock market wasn't likely to rise very far. But we dreamed.

Someday, though, prices won't rise so swiftly. How and when it comes - through hard collapse or soft landing, by year's end or sometime later — is debatable. But when it does, the game becomes

What happens to the stock market still won't be fully predictable, but the impact on personal paychecks, savings, insurance and planning is fairly well known. A missing ingredient is the degree of

As inflation slows, the paycheck is likely to catch up with prices. If it practically disappears, which would be around 2 percent or so, then paychecks in all probability will begin to grow in real terms.

That would be a huge change from recent experience. In the 12 months through March, for example, straight-time wages rose 7.8

buying power. Reflecting an understanding of how inflation corrodes liquid assets, would-be savers have been investing in more inflation-resistant items, including land, houses, diamonds, art, and

Why not? Does it pay to leave money in the bank at 5 percent to 6 percent interest and pay out more than 13 percent to inflation? Or is it better to invest in a house that appreciated by at least the inflation

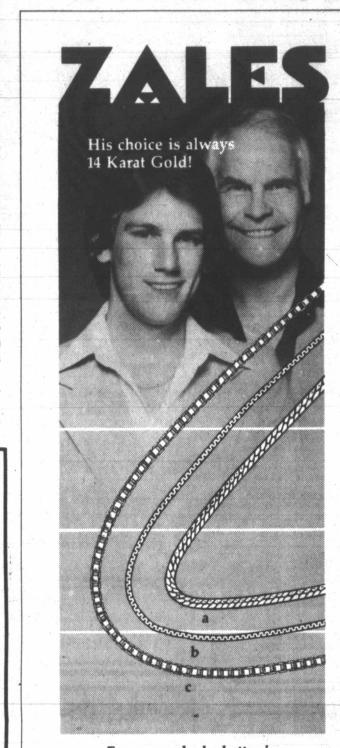

Those questions have led to hard decisions by millions. They chose the latter, and the U.S. savings rate dropped to less than 5 percent of takehome pay, around the lowest rate for any major industrial

The return on savings has now been raised. U.S. Savings Bonds pay 6.5 percent rather than 6.

Due to circumstances beyond our control the insertion date on our circular in today's paper is incorrect. All price effective dates are valid. We regret any inconvenience this may have caused.

John F. Kennedy. For centuries, the city was the capital of the Hapsburg empire. Napoleon captured it in 1805, but nine years later the leaders of England, Russia, Austria and other countries met at the Congress of Vienna to decide Europe's future after Napoleon's defeat. In recent years, Vienna has served as headquarters for the International Atomic Energy Agency and the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).
