Slashes $252.4 million from spending bill

Clements sticks to his promise

Texas legislators he would do it, and he did — whacked $252.4 million out of the 1980-81 state spending bill.

The bulk of his red pencilling, announced late Friday, affected building plans of state agencies and colleges

"At a time when we are asking for a reduction in employment, improved management effectiveness. higher productivity and elimination of unneeded services, our resources should be dedicated to effective service rather than bricks and mortar." said Texas' first Republican governor in 104 years.

any agencies or institutions and noted that his vetoes extended to almost every area of state government.

"There are many other reductions that I would like to make if my veto power were broad enough. Clements said. "However, the appropriation pattern used by the legislature imposes inflexibility on the veto authority. With budget execution power which I have requested, the governor in the future could be far more effective in managing state spending.

Also lifted from the budget were appropriations of $16.1 million for a new prison unit and $13.2 million for additions at six present units

Some of the largest items vetoed included -$40 million in federal funds for construction of a state office building to house both the Texas Department of Human Resources and the Texas Youth Council. "Expenditures of funds for this purpose would be in direct contradiction with my goal to reduce, not expand, the state bureaucracy, he said.

'Boat people' gather sympathy

By The Associated Press U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim urged Malaysia Saturday to abandon its plan to drive 76,000 Vietnamese "boat people" back out to sea, and to instead continue providing shelter for the refugees on its shores

Malaysian officials conferred in private in the face of an international outcry against their announced intention to load the homeless Vietnamese onto boats and take them back out into the South China Sea.

A U.N. spokesman in New York said Waldheim asked Hussein Onn to clarify the Southeast Asian nation's policy. The secretary-general urged "that Malaysia continue to provide temporary asylum for the refugees while international efforts to secure settlement places for permanent asylum are being pursued." spokesman Francois Giuliani said.

Japan, meanwhile, called for an urgent conference to deal with the estimated 350,000 Indochinese refugees awaiting resettlement in Southeast Asia. Waldheim said he has spoken to representatives from the United Waldheim said he was ready to convene a conference, but "underlined the need to ensure it would bring positive and concrete results," Giuliani said.

Leaders labor on arms treaty

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — President Carter — new areas of cooperation and for facing and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev opened their summit talks Saturday in conflict over regional trouble spots and defense spending but with a mutual commitment to world peace

U.S. sources said Brezhnev appealed indirectly to the U.S. Senate to ratify the treaty he and Carter will sign Monday limiting strategic nuclear weapons.

"We are not happy with everything in this treaty, but it reflects everything that is realistic and possible at this moment." Brezhnev was quoted as telling Carter in their first round of talks at the U.S. Embassy

The two met for more than four hours in their first of three days of summitry. They then dined on smoked salmon and roast beef at the residence of U.S. Ambassador Milton Wolf The negotiating sessions were behind closed doors, but U.S. officials briefed reporters on what took place. In a banquet toast, Carter said the SALT II treaty "can be a framework for guidance toward Carter said he and Brezhnev had come to the summit "to take one more step towards avoiding a nuclear conflict which some few might survive but which no side could win." He added, "We are working for cooperation among nations, for the peaceful settlement of disputes, for economic development, social justice and human rights around the globe.

"It is my feeling that this meeting can become an important step in improving Soviet-American relations and ameliorating the international climate "Brezhnev said

Among the hodgepodge of federal programs, the one called CETA has elevated itself to a position of prominence in waste of taxpayers' funds. The Comprehensive Employment and Training Act is in the spotlight again with about as bizarre a charge against it as could be imagined

A congressman complains that money intended to train and employ the disadvantaged is being used to pay salaries of up to $13,000 for convicted felons. Rep. Cavanaugh has asked Labor Secretary Ray Marshall to call a halt to the criminal offender program begun as an extension of the CETA act. He also demanded that the Labor Department recover all funds wrongfully expended under the program for incarcerated

The representative based his allegations on practices revealed at the Lorton Reform atory in the District of Columbia. In 1978 at least 27 inmates who had been convicted of rape, murder and armed robbery were employed in the CETA program at a cost of $200,000. More than 170 inmates are receiving salaries this year, he said.

Prisoners with jobs are never charged over two dollars per day for room and board, no matter how much they earn. And, they are not required to make support payments to their dependents. No effort is made to determine if the dependents are on welfare. The inmates on the CETA earning program are not required to make restitution to victims of their crimes.

Although outrageous enough to catch the headlines, the misuse of CETA funds at prisons is probably dwarfed by the total waste in the

Coalition politics and the 1980's

By PAUL M. WEYRICH

Party identification alone cannot explain what is happening in American politics today because voters now cannot trust party labels to evaluate a candidate's worth." With those words, pollster V. Lance Terrance of Houston summed up perhaps the most interesting development to occur in the political process in recent Neither political party stands for much of anything in the public mind anymore. Democrats range from Larry McDonald on the right to Ron Dellums on the left while the Republican spectrum includes Jesse Helms as well as Jacob Javits.

To clarify what the candidates of both parties stand for, now that the parties don't tell the voters much, special groups have begun to identify certain issues which have an appeal to a segment of the electorate. Candidates position themselves on these issues and thus become "good guys" or "bad guys" in the eyes of these special groups and their memberships, which often run into several thousand voters in a given Congressional district.

The right to life issue may be really important to only 5 percent of the voters in a given district. The right to work issue may turn on only 8 percent and the gun issue just 3 percent. Taken together, candidate 16 percent of the vote (most often far greater than the margin in a contested race) regardless of his political party. This effort is called coalition politics. It works with liberals as well as conservative

HOW YOU AMASSED

It was Coalition Politics which was at work in Minnesota where the Right to Lifers, combined with the anti-tax groups, combined with groups which disliked the environmentalists, managed after tumultous primaries, to turn the state of Hubert Humphrey and his Democratic -Farmer - Labor party upside down.

Coalitions were also involved in the upset wins of Roger Jepsen in Iowa and Gordon Humphrey in New Hampshire where these two conservative Republicans ousted liberal Democrats - and in Washington. where a coalition, with labor unions at the center, and Blacks and Gays and environmentalists at the outer edges. ended the short career of Rep. Jack Cunningham. In all of these cases, special groups were decisive in the election

Since the elections, Coalition Politics has taken still another turn, a further indication of the decline of the parties:

In New Hampshire, State Senator Bob Monier was elected Senate President by a coalition of eight Conservative Republicans and four Conservative Democrats. In New Mexico, Conservative Democrat Gene Samberson was elected Speaker of the House by a coalition of 26 Conservative Republicans and 11 Conservative Democrats. The situation is interesting, because the legislators who formed the majority Caucuses in New Hampshire and New Mexico have retained their party labels and will likely run for re-election without changing parties.

This is the logical step for candidates who are elected by issue coalitions and whose first loyalty is to their own philosophy and not to their party label.

If the idea of putting the Conservatives (or Liberals for that matter) of both parties into a formal coalition catches on elsewhere in the states, there will likely be a similar move in the Congress. Previous attempts to unite the Conservatives have centered around Southern Democrats switching parties. Now there may be a way for Members of Congress to retain their party label while at the same time becoming a part of an effective and ruling majority.

In any case it appears that Coalition Politics may well dominate our electoral

Washington, D.C., and at long last someone is going to do something about it.

This sounds like the opening lines of a good joke. It's not, however; it's the sober truth. A lawsuit may be filed against the U.S. Congress and the Architect of the Capitol by a public interest legal group to force Congress to obey a law it passed nine years ago. A similar suit, filed over a year ago by the same legal group against the General Services Administration, was reported in this column last August. In repeated violation of the 1970 Clean Air Act. black smoke loaded with sulfer dioxide and nitrous oxide has been rolling from the Capitol Power Plant smokestacks. The plant supplies heat and air conditioning to the Capitol, Library of Congress, the U.S. Supreme Court, and the Senate and House Office Buildings.

The Architect of the Capitol operates the plant under the direction of the House Office Building Commission, made up of the House Speaker, majority and minority leaders, and the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration.

Accordingly, the alleged guilty parties were publicly called to task May 2 when William C. Mott. president of the Capital Legal Roundation, released copies of letters from CLF legal director. James R. Richards, to House Speaker Thomas O'Neill (D-Mass.); Sen. Claiborne Pell (D-R.I.), Chairman of the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration: members of the committee: House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes (R-Ariz.); House Majority Leader James C. Wright (D.Texas); and George M. White,

Architect of the Capitol. These lawmaker - breakers were informed that if the air of Capitol Hill is not fresher within 60 days, the CLF will file

Congress' views on the subject are a matter of record. Back in 1970, in regards to the Clean Air Act, Rep. Paul Rogers (D-Fla.) directed that "Federal installations, who, incidentally, are some of the biggest polluters in this Nation; shall abide by the pollution laws . . . In other words, this is telling the Federal agencies: We want you to stop polluting the air too.'

This clear, sharp statement lost its fine edge in late 1971 when Architect White explained to concerned District of Columbia officials that the Capitol Power Plant was "unique in its designed mission to provide adequate steam and chilled water supply to support the continuity of operations in the Legislative Branch of the United States Government." In other words, maybe Congress was above the law

In February 1978, the Power Plant's chief engineer refused to accept a notice of 'flagrant' violation of D.C.'s visible emissions regulations, and wrote the District's government that the code was "completely unreasonable." Reminded again, the following January, he issued orders - probably with a resigned sigh for workers to carry out their polluting activities only in the dark of night. His rationale, no doubt, was that "visible" meant "noticeable"

The CLF's stand, says Richards: "The law must be applied evenly and fairly, both for private power companies and Congressional boilers. Our primary interest in this instance is to prod the Congress into setting an example for the rest of the country to follow.

The moral of the story, of course, is that no one is above the law. The purpose in telling it is that it simply warms our wicked

Henley statement a key issue

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - Attorneys for Elmer Wayne Henley this week will try to convince a state judge to throw out a written statement Henley made to investigators when he was arrested in 1973.

The explicit statement was admitted as evidence at a 1974 trial when Henley was convicted of six murders and given six, 99-year prison terms. The charges were in connection with a homosexual torture and death spree that left 26 boys dead in Houston in the early Henley, 23, was granted a new trial by a state appeals court that ruled the San Antonio judge who heard the case should have held a venue change hearing sought by the defense.

The second trial began here two weeks ago. After questioning more than 100 local residents, the attorneys agreed on 34 potential jurors. The attorneys Monday will whittle that panel down to the 12 needed to hear the case.

State District Judge Noah Kennedy has said he will sequester the jurors once they are picked. The first action will be the hearing on the lone pre-trial motion the defense attempt to suppress the statement.

Defense attorney Will Gray of Houston tried to have a Houston judge throw out the statement at the first trial. But State District Judge William Hatten - who presided in the case until it was moved to San Antonio - ruled that Henley had not been compelled to give the statement.

The statement was given to investigators shortly after Henley was arrested in the summer of 1973. Henley said he had shot Dean Corll to death. The defendant said Corll, 33, had masterminded the death

In the statement, Henley said he was 14 when a friend introduced hom to Corll.

"Dean told me that he belonged to an organization out of Dallas that bought and sold boys. They ran whores and dope and stuff like that. Dean told me he would pay me $200 at least for every boy that I could bring him and maybe more if they were real good-looking boys," the statement said.

At the first trial Gray aruged that Henley's civil rights were violated by investigators who sought the

In that statement, Henley said he did not cooperate with Corll until about a year after he first met him.

"... I decided that I could use the money to get better things for my people, so one day I went over to Dean's apartment on Schuler Street and told him I would find a boy for him," the statement said.

Henley's statement also detailed the methods in which Corll handcuffed the victims to a plywood board and homosexually raped them.

"Then he would kill them. I killed several of them myself with Dean's gun and helped him choke some

Clements vetos law to license state's midwives

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements hurt the poor citizens of the Rio Grande Valley by vetoing a bill that would have required lay midwives to register with the state, Rep. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, said.

Uribe sponsored the bill which cleared the Legislature but not Clements' desk.

'Many women want their children delivered in non-hospital settings. Many other women cannot afford a doctor's care," he said. "My bill addressed this situation.

In his veto message, the governor said the bill had "noble purposes" but said it was questionable if the public actually would be helpd

"All this would do would allow some midwives to pass themselves off as professionals and this state recognition of midwifery would give credibility to a group that may or may not have credibility," he said.

Clements also said. "The public would have no way of knowing whether midwives were state sanctioned or not because the whole procedure is

Uribe said Clements was ill-advised because his bill would have restricted services midwives could perform and would have required the practitioners to register with county clerks.

"Only the education (section) was optional. and I think that most lay midwives would have taken a training course. If they did not, then they would have had to tell clients that they were not trained." the representative said.

Midwives have become pat of Rio Grande Valley culture. Uribe added.

"In his campaign, Governor Clements said he would represent all Texans. His veto shows that he does not. He does not represent women who want a choice about how and where their children are delivered. He does not represent the poor who cannot afford expensive health care," Uribe said

Future of PHS lawn in question

A decision on the future of the landscape around Pampa High School will be made when the Pampa Independent School District Board of Education meets Monday afternoon at 5.

A plan to replace the lawn on the school's south side with a parking lot will be considered with several other renovation and construction projects.

The meeting at the Carver Educational Center is open to the public.

Rick Barry says team is creative

HOUSTON (AP) - When Houston forward Rick Barry says his Rocket teammates are creative, he's not talking about writing poetry or artistic talent - a basketball in hand, preferably on the run, is their medium.

"We have a lot of very creative people out there in wide open court situations but not that many people who are creative in the set situation." Barry said recently, analyzing the Rockets and predicting a running attack next season under new coach Del

"I know myself it's certainly easier to play the game when you're running up and down the court and the defense doesn't have a chance to get set and you have a chance to freelance and create. So what you are doing is trying to minimize the number of times you have to set."

That is the opposite approach to former head coach Tom Nissalke, who preferred the patterned philosophy on offense. Harris prefers to run and Barry welcomes the chance.

"I think we have the type of personnel that can operate better under those situations," Barry said. "And when we do set up, I think we'll have a lot more diversity

Governor signs UIL bill

Clements has signed into law a bill that exempts children from masses," Marshall was quoted the University as saying by the Austin InterscholasticLeague's residency rule. The bill marks the first time in recent history that the Legislature has interfered with the UIL, the statewide arbiter of public school sports and other extra-curricular activities. UIL Director Bailey Marshall had asked Clements to veto the bill, but it was signed Monday without notice. The UIL did not learn until a reporter contacted the organization Friday that the bill had been signed. Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, introduced the bill after stories were published that a 15-year-old foster child wanted to play football this fall when he enrolls as a high school junior at Lorena, a farming community south of Waco.

The boy, whom state law prevents from being identified was a tackle last year on a junior varsity team at Corsicana, where he was a resident of the state orphans' home for six years.

The Lorena High School coach reportedly wants him on the team, but a UIL rule requires a year's residency before a new student who is not a senior can play varsity football

He can play on the junior varsity team again or try another sport, but the rule would prevent him from playing football until the fall of 1980.

The UIL twice refused Betty Mayfield's request to waive the

Texas trades Dock Ellis

By The Associated Press

The Texas Rangers were the busiest team, landing left-handed pitcher John Henry Johnson from Oakland and third baseman Eric Soderholm from the Chicago White Sox before Friday's midnight intraleague trading deadline.

Seven players figured in the three deals involving the Rangers, who unloaded pitcher Dock Ellis, catcher Mike Heath, pitcher Ed Farmer, infielder Dave Chalk and first baseman

Johnson, 22, had a 2-8 record and a 4.36 earned run average in 14 games for the A's this season, 13 of them as a starter. He was the A's top winner last year with an 11-10 record.

To acquire Johnson, the Rangers gave Chalk, Heath and an undisclosed amount of cash to Oakland, Chalk, 28, who had seen limited duty with Texas after being obtained from California last month, has a lifetime .255 average. Heath, 24. a former New York Yankee who was dealt to Texas in the offseason, had been playing in the minors this year.

Soderholm, 30, came from the White Sox in exchange for Farmer, 29, a right-hander with a 2-0 record and a 4.36 ERA, and Holle, 24, who has seen little major league action after being

Estes trial involves big

Texas bucks

DALLAS (AP) — Testimony in the fraud trial of Billie Sol Estes - one of this country's most notorious flim-flam artists - got under way this week with a colorful yarn of high-rolling, intrigue and razzle dazzle talk of big Texas bucks.

Using the pivotal testimony of an undercover Internal Revenue Service agent and 29 hours of secretly-recorded conversations, prosecutors laid out what they call the crux of one of their three cases against Estes. They charge that, contrary to the terms of his 1971 parole, Estes masterminded complicated deals to buy and sell companies using other folks' money

Estes and co-defendant Raymond K. Horton, a former associate, are charged with concocting a . scheme to bilk investors through mortgages on non-existent oil field steam cleaners and of conspiring to hide Estes' interest in several businesses. Estes also is charged with conspiring to conceal assets from the government.

Walt Perry, a Los Angeles-based IRS agent, took the stand Friday and told jurors how he posed as a wealthy Chicago businessman looking for a slightly shady, yet profitable energy

Using the name Walter Placko, Perry and seven other agents portraying his attorney, accountant, chauffeur and associates, Perry said Estes offered to set up several invetments in return for 50 percent of the profits.

Donning special earphones, jurors then heard tape recordings of the negotiations, in which Estes bragged of his control over numerous 'million dollar" companies and his influencial friends in high places.

"After all the trouble that I've ever been in, my credibility is good as hell," Estes said in a recording dated July 20, 1977. "... I am going to make something of the profit. And I am going to run and I'm not in a position that we can be sued or in a lawsuit for not fulfilling our obligations. Cause I'll be on my way back to jail and I cannot have any trouble, you understand.

The recordings were made, Perry said, with battery equipped body microphones that transmitted the conversations to a special

"... What I'm saying, anything that I'm in I welcome another expert cause I'm so damn cocky in this business," Estes said in a recording dated July 21, 1977.

"I've been the biggest in the world ... I'm cold blooded as hell when it comes to business and you can damn sure burn at the stake.

The tapes are laced with Estes' braggadocio and vacuous connections with President John F. Kennedy's administration, former Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and the late mayor of Chicago, Richard

"If ya'll are good people to do business with. well the credibility of doing business with me is worth a hell of a lot more than one deal, you understand?" Estes said in the July 21 tape

At one point in the tapes, Estes refers to Horton as "a complete crook.

To prove his good faith, Perry said he once showed Estes a half million dollars in certificates of deposit. Perry said Estes told him he wanted 50 percent of any stock in the investments, but because of the terms of his parole, he wanted the stock in the names of his daughters or brother.

Estes was convicted in 1962 of engineering a scheme that defrauded investors through mortgages on non-existant anydrous ammonia fertilizer tanks. Under the unusual terms of his 1971 parole, he was prohibited from self employment or engaging in promotional

Dust covers streets of Laredo

Associated Press Writer

LAREDO. Texas (AP) -Three times a day, 68-year-old Isabel Sota and her garden hose do battle with the powdery. white dust swirling off the dirt street in front of her house. The dust always wins. It always has.

The caliche mist filters through every crack. It turns her laundry gray and clogs her lungs. And Mrs. Sota, who has never lived on a paved street, fears it will eventually kill her.

This is not Laredo's rugged Santo Nino barrio, but a neighborhood near $45,000 brick houses and the sleek Mall Del Norte. The choking dust indiscriminately hangs like a gritty fog bank over poor and affluent neighborhoods alike in this bustling, growing border city of 100,000.

The dust comes from an unbelievable 2,700 blocks — 150 miles - of unpaved streets. That's more than half of the streets in the 224-year-old city that has become the nation's

Aldo Tatangelo promised to change all that more than a year ago when he was elected mayor largely on a "pave-the-streets" platform. The unlikely election of an Italian-American from Rhode Island signaled the end of the corruption-marred, 24-year

Martin, in which hundreds of thousands of municipal dollars were allegedly misappropriated.

But heading into the second sweltering summer of the new regime. Mrs. Sota and hundreds of other Laredoans continue to water their dirt streets. Only a few blocks have been paved by contractors paid with federal Community Development Agency funds not connected to Tatangelo's promised city from the budget. The mayor's supporters. however, say the residents, who have always done without paved streets, expected too much.

In the meantime, an experimental, stop-gap dust abatement program is planned to quell the dust while city crews begin paving with the new

A Grasshopper Control Porgram for large blocks of rangeland in the Gray County area is in the process of being signed up and organized at the Gray County Extension Office in the Courthouse Annex, Pampa, Texas.

This cooperative cost - share program with USDA and the Texas Department of Agriculture will require a deposit of 60 cents per acre from rangeland operators.

The deadline for getting rangeland signed - up with the money on deposit is Tuesday, June 19th. All rangeland operators in an area are going to need to participate if the program is acceptable for the government cost - share benefit. Neighbors are going to have to cooperate and work together on signing up several thousand acres in solid blocks of land.

If for some reason the spray program doesn't reach your area and you have put up money, then it will be refunded. However, if you are not signed up by Tuesday, then you will have missed out on getting sprayed and in all probability you may have prevented a lot of neighbors from getting sprayed for grasshoppers, also.

This is a real busy time for farmers and ranchers. Several are real interested, but just don't have any time to devote to contracting their neighbors. Therefore, if you are at all interested - come by the County Extension Office and bring your check - book. The Extension Office telephone number is 669-7429. PESTICIDE CERTIFICATION:

I run across farmers who have not received their private applicator certification for restricted use pesticides. Farm operators need to come by the County Extension Office and obtain the necessary booklet and application form. You send the application in to the Texas Department of Agriculture. It takes a few weeks to get your certification. Therefore, you need to do this before you are actually going to need the certification number to buy a restricted pesticide. It is not difficult and I encourage you to do this real soon. WHEAT DISEASE:

I saw a wheat field infected with Root Rot last week on the Ab Lewis farm. This late spring caused this disease to show up about three weeks later than normal. You generally notice premature wheat heads showing up. If you have any of this condition you are suspect of, please call me immediately before your entire field gets ripe. A crop rotation is needed next year. Farmers will only be asking for disaster next year if wheat is planted back on a field already infected with root rot. SICK PLANT CLINIC

Our Gray County Sick Plant Clinic will be held June 26th in the Courthouse Annex Meeting Room, Pampa. The time for the clinic, which is a come and go affair, is from 10:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

We will have five Specialists with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service on hand for the clinic. Mark this date and bring any sick plants or insects for identification and recommended controls.

VACCINATE HORSES FOR SLEEPING SICKNESS: Texas horse owners should begin plans to vaccinate their animals against Eastern, Western, and Venezuelan Encephalomyelitis.

This sleeping sickness is caused by viruses transmitted by mosquitoes, which are on the increase after all of our wet weather.

Early clinical signs of the disease are depression and high fever. Diminished reflexes, a drooping lower lip, reluctance to move and incoordination soon follow

TREAT NOW FOR ELM LEAF BEETLES:

Elm trees, particularly Siberian elms, can be severely damaged by elm leaf beetles unless control measures are taken Adult elm beetles begin mating and laying eggs in spring. An adult beetle is 14 - inch long and yellowish to olive - green with a dark stripe along the outer edge of each wing cover. Eggs of the beetle are yellowish - orange and spindle - shaped and are laid in groups of 5 to 25 on the undersides of leaves. In a few days, eggs hatch into small, black, hairy larvae (worms) which skeletonize the tree's leaves:

After two to three weeks of feeding, larvae migrate to cracks on the trunk and lower limbs to pupate (change from larvae to adult forms). They emerge as adults 7 to 14 days later. Due to their short life cycle, elm leaf beetles produce several generations annually in week of open weather over most of the state, Texas farmers are trying to complete spring planting and to cultivate weedy fields that have resulted from prolonged wet conditions.

Texas farmers completing planting

Crops are beginning to make good progress over all the state although many of them are late, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. With good soil moisture conditions in most sections, open weather will allow crops to make good growth. However, farmers should give attention to moisture conservation since hot, dry summer weather is

Insect problems are increasing in some sections of the state and will continue to be a factor throughout the season due to many late crops, noted Pfannstiel. Livestock and range conditions continue to look good over the state due to widespread spring rains, said Pfannstiel. And hay making is active in many counties due to good growth of spring

Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions.

Wheat is making good progress and is beginning to turn color. A good harvest is in prospect. Cattle and forage conditions look good due to recent rains.

Wheat harvesting is about to get under way, with good yields expected. Peanuts will be planted as soon as fields are dry enough. Hay making is active. Some early peaches and plums are being harvested.

LEARN TO READ YOUR ELECTRIC METER AND SAVE:::

It will let you determine how many kilowatt hours you use in a given period of time ... an hour, a day, a month or a year. That's how electricity is measured — by kilowatt hours (kwh) used.

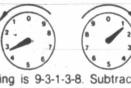

Electric meters are easily read from right to left as you look at the meter. If the pointer on a dial is between two numbers, write down the smaller number. When the pointer is directly on a number such as one (1) (see center dial above) then read it as 1 if the pointer on the next dial immediately to the right has passed zero (0). However, read it as zero (0) if the pointer on that dial to the right has not reached zero.

The dials above read (from left to right): 9-3-1-1-5. If, however, the pointer on the second dial from the right above was between 9 and zero then the center dial would read as a zero.

Now let's read the same meter 24 hours later

proximately five cents

The later reading is 9-3-1-3-8. Subtracting the first reading, 93115, from the new reading of 93138 - the answer is 23. Thus you would have used 23 kilowatt hours in the 24 hour period. Each kwh costs ap-

When she moved to Pampa in the mid-50s, she intended to teach for one year and then retire to kitchen duties and home chores. But, as many teachers have, she staved longer than she expected.

"Pampa's school system has been tops as far as I'm concerned. They've always dealt with me very fairly in times that I needed help," she said.

Expecting to resign quietly, Mrs. Heaton said she was surprised by the school's honorary tea and dinner, which was given by the Pampa Classroom Teachers Association and the Pampa Association of Educators.

In retrospect, she said, "I do see a change in the children — the way of life."

She said getting old also prompted her to take early retirement. "The children are the only things that have changed. The teacher and the furniture got older and older." she said. To begin pursuing undeveloped interests.

Noting that she used some of her own story creations in the classroom, Mrs. Heaton said she would like to illustrate a children's storybook.

Her most recent creations have been based on the adventures of her daughter's dog. She said she hopes to develop these story ideas more fully by taking college courses in creative writing and painting.

Steve Kotara headed for Peru

Artifacts of the Incaic Empire - and hopefully some good skiing country — will be at the disposal of Steve Kotara when he travels to Peru as an American Field Service (AFS) foriegn exchange student.

Kotara, a Pampa High School senior, is one of several students from the area selected for the AFS

A tour of the Inca ruins is part of his 10-week schedule, which began with his departure Wednesday to Miami, Fla. This stop will include an orientation session to prepare Kotara for his new home Next was a flight to Lima. Peru for three more days of orientation, after which he will be transported to Trujillo to meet his new family - the Salvador Daniell

The Garcias have four boys, Kotara said, and two of family until he leaves Trujillo in September. "It'll be a good educational trip," said Kotara who added that he is anxious to learn about a different culture. He's also hoping that his new home will have skiing facilities nearby.

He has been preparing for the trip since the AFS center in New York contacted him June 2. Kotara said he has brushed up considerably on the Spanish language, because he had only taken one year of it five years ago. "I just finished two years of French in high school," he added with a grin. Referring to other preparations, he said, "I'm getting a few shots a day. I'm a pin cushion." Travel to another country usually requires several immunizations.

He said he will have to learn to play soccer, a favorite

South American sport. But another favorite in North and South America, basketball, won't be any problem for the 17-year-old.

However, AFS literature indicated that sports are not as popular as they are in America, he said. "Coed schools are scarce," he said, "but are being encouraged." He was uncertain whether his school would be an all-boys or a coed facility.

"I won't press myself to study because it (school work) is in Spanish," he said in reference to the amount of time he would spend on classwork. Girls are met at parties supervised by adults, he said, and dates are taken in groups. The family life there is more restrictive and polite, he said, referring again to his AFS material. It said an American student might find his Peruvian age group

On May 10, District Judge William Eakes ordered Campbell to prove that his three children are registered for public school or enrolled in a state-approved home-education course. The judge warned Campbell he would be held in contempt of court he if failed to appear for an Aug. 30 hearing on the matter.

Truckers: On strike

According to independent truckers on strike all across the United States, the government and the oil companies are putting them out of business.

Area truckers claim the oil companies are raising the price of diesel fuel, while the government refuses to stop the increase.

"They're going to destroy us if we let them." said one trucker at an Amarillo truck stop.

The truckers have demanded a ceiling of 59.9 cents on diesel prices, uniform weight and length laws of 80,000 lbs. and 60 feet and lifting of the speed limit from 55 to 65 miles per hour.

Eric Jeffries, leader of the area truckers, said drivers are going to join together and force Americans to realize that the food they eat is delivered by truckers.

The local strike began a week ago and has grown steadily. At the Affiliated Foods warehouse in Amarillo last week, the strikers turned away most of the independent truckers arriving at the warehouse. warehouse.

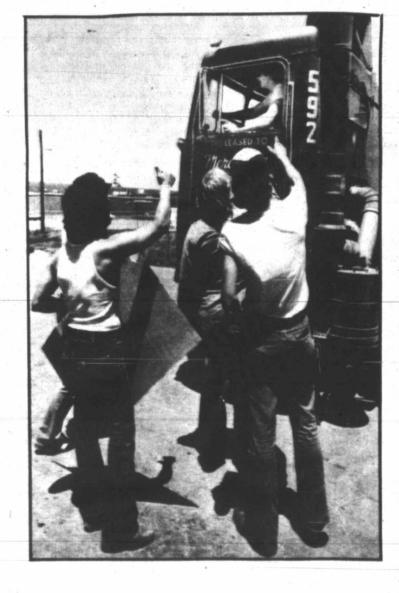

One trucker in Amarillo said he would remain on strike even if it meant having his truck reposessed.

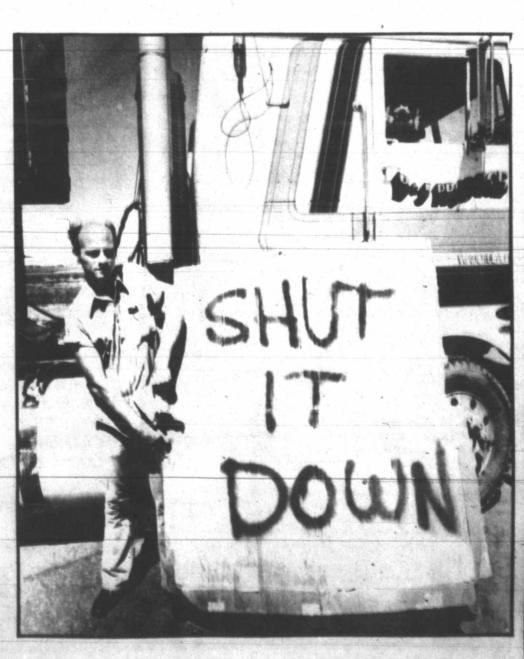

Although violence has reportedly been used against independent truckers who have not joined the strike. Jeffries stressed that the strike a peaceful protest.

Mending mature marriage

by louise pierce

Two readers have asked why I feel qualified to offer advice on holding older marriages together. I'm happy to tell them, and the rest of you, why I don't hesitate to continue my present writing on

First of all. I'm in an older marriage myself, and that puts me squarely in the know. Next, while I don't hold a degree in psychology, I am a college graduate with considerable study in human behavior. I have been a teacher and lecturer for many years. I have conducted polls among couples married a long time, thus compiling a host of heartfelt comments on long marriages, some that have failed and some that have made it. I have immediate access to those whose expertise is greater than my own. If I need to consult a doctor, judge or minister. I do so. Therefore you might say, and I do say, that I have the right of every reasonably - informed person to express my studied opinions. Call me a "little" advisor if you wish. And remember that the little things in our lives, especially our marriages, are often the most important factors in achieving the happiness we seek. Little can be vital - and I hope I am.

So many of your letters reveal the desperate need of watching the small things we do and say. Usually a couple joins forces and works well through a big crisis. If there is serious illness or death, if there is need to give combined support to a child or grandchild in distress, if an earthshaking decision must be made - in all such matters, the husband and wife usually become partners and see the problem through. But let a small worry crop up and, presto, the whole situation can change. The little issue is often the one that breaks up a marriage. You readers have told me so - and your feelings support

DEAR LOUISE: When our son died, my husband and I clung together. When our business failed, years ago, we made it through to another project and still held hands. If either one has been sick, these thirty years the other one has stood by. But we fight over things that hadn't ought to matter, and the fighting has been making us terribly edgy these last few months. We hurt each other's feelings all the time. For instance, I told him the kind of house shoes I wanted for Christmas, but he got another kind because he said it was all he could find in one store and he didn't want to run all over town. I couldn't act happy about the ones he brought home because they weren't pretty and they weren't comfortable, so I took them back. He pouted about it for days. I don't watch my grammar as well as he does and sometimes I say "he don't' or "I seen you" - and he gets upset and bawls me out. Yesterday he made a scene, in front of company, when I said, "It was me you saw yesterday." He told our guests about how bad I talked and how much it embarrassed him. I left the room and stayed gone until the company left. I don't think I can stand it if he keeps this up. What would you do? C.E.

DEAR C.E.: I'd have a long discussion with him about the little things that can drive a couple apart. You could have appeared to like the house shoes, and even worn them sometimes, because they were a gift from him. You could have bought different ones later and alternated them with the ones he gave you, thus saving his pride. He should be able to listen to anything you say, any way you say it, since he loves you enough to have lived through crises with you. And the way to come to an understanding now, according to the marriage authorities as well as my own gleanings from polls, is to hold a frank talk about your small resentments. If love conquers all, and it does, then you can tell each other what words and deeds offend you and why you don't want to go on living with them. Talk about the straw that broke the camel's back and other true adages like it. Make him a deal: that you'll work on improving your English if he'll-stop criticizing it. Promise not to show disappointment over gifts and favors, but ask him to do his best to please you. Don't go on letting little things bother the happiness you need to share.

DEAR LOUISE: My wife is a good woman and easy to live with when we're at home. But she makes a fool of herself in public and it drives me crazy. She seems to want to show off and she doesn't know how. She is quiet at home but she talks too loud when we go out. She complains about the service, makes a big thing of adding up the bill for a meal, and if she doesn't like something, she tells the waitress and the manager and the cook in the kitchen. If she sees somebody of importance that she's barely met, she runs across the room and kisses them on the cheek and acts like their bosom buddy. How can I stop her doing things like this? Husband Fed Up.

DEAR H.F.U.: Tell her how you feel about the scenes she makes and ask her to stop them. If she refuses to reform, tell her you'd rather eat home cooking than risk the embarrassment she causes you. Most wives would prefer to eat out quietly than to cook at home and get to yell. If she still won't change, refuse to take her out to eat. Unwarranted public display is a little thing that can become a big

To the rest of you who wrote about this problem, try to play down the little things that upset you about each other. Remember that none of us is ideal. We are all just trying to be. Overlook small annoyances if you can. You'll feel better not to have made a fuss - and so will your

AN OLD TIMER

DEAR OLD TIMER: Those "rules of conduct" sound more like a prison sentence than a teacher's contract. Fortunately, times have changed!

DEAR ABBY: My husband sometimes goes to topless bars with some of his buddies. I'm sure he wouldn't cheat on me; he just likes to look.

He comes right home, and I know he loves me, but I still don't like the idea of him going to topless bars. What is your opinion?

Dr. Lamb

lawrence e. lamb, m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you tell me something about ringing ears or noise in the top of my head that might be known by some other name? I'm 81 years old and having hearing problems caused by noises where I worked years ago. I do not smoke or drink and am not taking any medicine. This noise goes on all day long and keeps me awake some at night. I'm sure that I'm not the only one who has this problem.

DEAR READER - Indeed you're not. Over 30 million Americans have this difficulty and that's a conservative estimate. It's called tinnitus.

It is a symptom and can be caused by a wide variety of things, including medicine that you might be taking. That's why I was interested in your statement that you don't take any. Even simple aspirin will cause this problem for some people.

In other instances it is associated with a plug of wax in the ear. Beyond that you get into the problems of circulation to the ear and to the brain. You can develop ringing in the ears immediately after exposure to excessive noise such as a loud blast. Initially this may be temporary but it's a good warning not to expose your ears to excessive noise.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 12-10, Help For Tinnitus: Noise Or Ringing In The Ear. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It will give you more details about this common problem than I can here.

I do want all of my readers to know that there are now things that can be done to help relieve this problem in many cases.

In some instances certain hearing aids are useful. If you have a hearing problem, you may not hear all the common sounds around you. In the absence of this sound imput to your brain, the abnormal and distressing sounds are more apparent By improving your hearing, you tend to mask these undesirable sounds and are not bothered by them.

As long as the hearing loss doesn't involve the sound range for normal conversation, a person may not know he has a hearing loss. That is why hearing testing in such cases is important.

Individuals without hearing disorders can sometimes use a tinnitus masker which provides a different and more soothing noise and makes the condition more tolerable.

As far as sleeping at night is concerned, you can set an FM radio close to your bed and tune it between stations and turn up the volume. The noise that it makes may drown out the sensation of the ringing in your ear and could enable you to get a good night's sleep.

FREEZING FRUITS AND VEGETABLES AT HOME:

Frozen fruits and vegetables spice year round menus with garden fresh flavor. But the nutritive value and quality of these fruits and vegetables depend largely on the treatment before freezing, storage temperature and method of cooking and serving. -

Most fruit can be frozen satisfactorily. Select sound, ripe fruit which is slightly riper than for canning but not soft or mushy. Tree or vine ripened fruits contain more vitamins and a richer flavor than fruits picked green and allowed to ripen before freezing. In general fruit is prepared for freezing as for eating.

Keep fruit cool until it is frozen. Wash it in cold water but do not allow it to stand in the water. Some fruit loses food value and flavor and some gets water soaked.

Some fruits, such as peaches, apricots, apples and pears discolor easily. To prevent this use ascorbic acid. Ascorbic acid (vitamin C) is available in tablet, crystalline or powdered form. Use 1/2 teaspoon in 1/2 cup cold water to each quart of fruit.

Some special commercial antidarkening preparation of ascorbic acid are now on the market. These materials can be found at drug stores or where other freezing supplies are sold. Most fruits have better texture and flavor if packed in sugar or syrup. Some may be packed without sweetening for use in special diets.

The way you plan to use the fruit determines the method of packing it. Fruit packed in a syrup generally is better for dessert use; fruit packed in dry sugar or unsweetened is better for most cooking because there is less liquid in the products. Quickly getting vegetables from the garden to the freezer is a must for top quality frozen vegetables. During hot weather, harvest vegetables in the early morning before they absorb much heat.

Vegetables at optimum maturity will have best flavor and texture. If you must store vegetales before freezing, spread them out loosely in a cool, well - ventilated place or pack loosely in the refrigerator.

Prepare vegetables for freezing similar to cooking them. Wash thoroughly in cold water, drain and sort, peel, trim and cut. Heat vegetables in boiling water before freezing. Use one gallon of boiling water to each pound of vegetable. The length of heating time varies with the vegetables:

This kills enzyme action in the product. The enzymes help the plants grow and mature but if not deactivated the vegetables will develop off flavors and often discolor or toughen during freezing. Place the scalded vegetables immediately into running cold or ice water. When the product is cool to the tongue when tested, it is cool After the vegetables have been heated, cooled and drained, pack in airtight moisture - vapor - proof containers, leaving ½ inch headspace. Seal according to type of container you use. Cook all vegetables in the frozen state, except corn - on - the - cob which should be partially defrosted. Cook them only until tender in a small amount of water. For more freezing information, ask for bulletin B-175, "Frozen Foods" available free from the County Extension Office

WHO says rabies remain prevalent

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) Rabies remains a major threat to the health of humans and animals, according to experts of the World Health Organization, a United Nations specialized agency.

Although some countries, such as Great Britain, have eliminated rabies by strict vaccination and quarantine laws, the disease is still common in many areas of the world. Unless the victim receives immediate treatment, an agonizing death is inevitable, WHO experts say.

They moved from Indiana to California and - get this - the house they bought was vacant when they arrived, the van carrying their furniture showed up when it was supposed to, the utilities were turned on in the house and (is this too much?) they got their own

Do you have any idea what the odds are of having everything come out on schedule during a move? Some guy in Vegas figured it out once and it's a twelve - million - to - one shot

Frankly, I would have thought the odds would have been higher. You won't believe it, but I'm one of those wonderfully organized people who is prepared for anything.

When we moved a couple of years ago from Ohio to Arizona there were no surprises. When the van arrived at the house and discovered the truck was too wide to come over the bridge. I expected that. When the packers packed the garbage and loaded it on the truck.

but left the picnic table and lawn furniture in the side yard. I When we arrived at the house and the mover called from Taos,

New Mexico, and said he exited too early, I expected that. When the only room in the motel was a honeymoon suite at $85 a day and the kids crayoned on the heart - shaped toilet seat. I expected

When the mover insisted the bill be paid in cash and the bill was $220 more than they figured and it was Saturday and all the banks were closed and no one in town knew us well enough to cash a check, I

When we found that the water in the toilet was hooked up to the hot water tank and we were shrouded in steam every time we flushed, I expected that

When something happened to my "system" and I was surrounded with 75 cardboard boxes in the living room all marked 'miscellaneous," I expected that.

But when the mover who had loaded up the furnitre from our old house moved it into our new house, stopped suddenly, looked around, picked his teeth with a matchbook cover and said, "I wouldn't have traded you the old house even for this one, lady," I didn't expect that.

Surprises. They're great for vestment you have in the appliance. With a service children's birthday parties. contract, you'll not hesitate But in most other ways, we don't like them. The reason is simple enough. Surprises usually end up costing us money. And most of us have plans for our money. All of it. It's not surprising, then, that increasing numbers of American families are guarding against surprises in any way they can. One of those ways is with service contracts on major appliances.

Consumer

Scene

According to General Electric, one of the nation's largest suppliers of major appliances, popularity of service contracts is rising dramatically, by some 25 percent a year. Apparently most of those who have bought them are satisfied. GE points out that a high percentage of those who buy service contracts will renew them at the end of the first year's coverage.

Generally, service contracts can be purchased at the time you buy the appliances or at anytime before the original warranty runs out. If you wait until after the warranty has lapsed, you'll probably have to pay an inspection fee.

Other than the peace of mind of knowing you'll not be hit with an unexpected repair bill, what other advantages are there to a service contract? GE cites the following:

- It protects the into call for service even if your problem's a minor one. That way, problems don't get to become major ones.

- It allows you to budget for household expenses with more confidence.

It freezes the cost service for the duration of the contract. No matter how much inflation forces prices up or how many times you need service, you know precisely what the service will cost for the year. In the case of GE service contracts, they assure that your appliances will be serviced by a technician trained by the company that made the appliance, and that you'll get genuine replacement parts, designed by the manufacturer specifically for your appliance.

How much do contracts cost? According to General Electric's Product Service Department, service contract prices are based on the average annual cost of repair and are determined product by product.

Contract costs vary from area to area also, simply because it costs more to supply service in one area than in another. Differences in such things as the prevailing wage scales will cause some geographical differences in costs. GE said

FIX-IT-FAST Murphy's Law stalks many home projects

No matter how carefully you plan, home projects may not go by the book. The instructions tell you to remove a bolt, and then you find that the bolt is frozen tight. That part of the project which should have taken less than a minute suddenly becomes a project in itself

This kind of event pushes the do-it-yourselfer to his limits. He is forced to improvise and even come up with ingenious new techniques. Perhaps these unexpected problems are a part of the exciting challenge of doing things yourself — but they also can be the source of serious hazards.

Take the case of the homeowner with the deeplyclogged drain pipe, a true story. The clog proved to be down in the basement portion of the pipe and drain cleaners didn't work. He decided to remove the pipe to clean it. The pipe hadn't been touched in 20 years and was frozen solid. No amount of penetrating oil or effort with big wrenches helped.

He then improvised. He decided to remove the pipe by sawing through it, planning to replace the sawed section with new pipe. He started with a hacksaw, but oved too slow. Then ne used his saber saw with a metal-cutting blade in it. This required the use of a long extension cord and the wire type. He used it, along with a three-prong con-verted plug to accommodate the saw's three-pronged plug.

He was concentrating so hard on his pipe problem that he neglected two important considerations: (1) The saber saw needed to be grounded through a threewire extension to protect him from shock; and (2) he was cutting a metal pipe connected directly to ground.

The project followed Murphy's Law, which says that anything which can go wrong, will go wrong. The short occurred. There was a bright blue flash and the homeowner was violently thrown from his ladder. He ended up with multiple bruises, but he was lucky not to have been electrocuted.

There are several points in this story. For one, when improvising, don't overlook common-sense safety pre-cautions, no matter how frustrating or distracting the job has become. For another, be wary of speeding up any work.

Learn to read instruction sheets as an aid to better. safe work. Every part of a house has its own name in the specialized terminology rs an out to make repairs, it is a good idea to know these names.

Fossil hunters in urban areas need not leave the city to pursue their hobby. They can join the growing trend of spotting fossils in building stones.

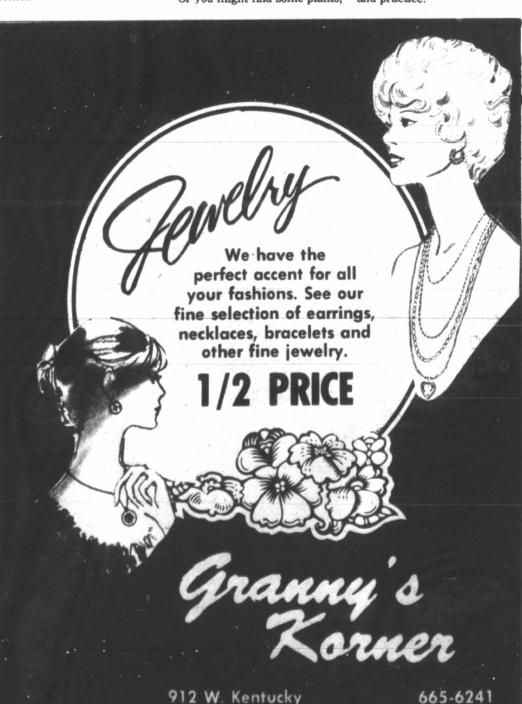

Syracuse University geologist Osborne Nye says more and more fossil hunters and rock hounds are combing urban areas, enjoying the abundance of fossils to be found in building

"If you are very lucky you might find some dinosaur footprints, but that would be unusual," Nye says. "I think the only place that would be likely would be in the brownstone houses in the New York City

"In almost every city and small town are buildings made of slabs of limestone that may contain fossils of clams, coral, sponges, even the lowly snail. Or you might find some plants, such as ferns," Nye says. He maintains that buildings have long been recognized as forms of art in terms of architecture, but their potential as a valuable geological learning tool has been largely neglected.

The urban fossil hunter doesn't even need a magnifying glass to spot exciting remains of past ages," he says. "Most fossil remains can be easily spotted with a little patience

Do these figures boggle your mind in this frightening era of double digit inflation? Impossible? It must be a rummage sale

This is merely a sampling of some of the bargains you can find with a little smart shopping in mill outlets and discount fabric stores now proliferating across the nation and becoming the "in" spots to shop for great bargains, some of it designer - named.

Factory outlets originated as a source for the manufacturer to sell his "imperfects" and slow - moving merchandise directly to the public. The discount fabric store is the modern version of the earlier 'get it off the pipes" bare bones retail outlet concept. It differs in that it is independently owned and sells fabric by the yard. You'll notice hardly any flaws on some of the irregular merchandise sold in these retail outlets. In other cases, you'll get merchandise of first quality but in a fashion that laid an egg. In still other instances, the merchandise will have been obtained from retailers who went out of business - or who were in so severe a financial bind that they had to unload at deep discounts to raise cash. Or the styles could be from last year.

Whatever the specific explanation, the values are generally excellent. And with just a minor effort to shop wisely, you can achieve some extremely practical purchases - and really save

But as in all other areas of personal finance, you must be on guard. In some cases, the name "factory outlet" may be a misnomer designed to lure you into believing that you are looking at merchanidse which is flowing from a pipeline in the factory. You will not be told the whole truth, and will be exploited as you reach for

Factory outlets frequently will be located in smaller cities and towns where textile and apparel factories tend to congregate. Discount fabric stores are located in rural areas, too, but are in metropolitan centers as well.

Clothing for men and women is not the only type of merchandise you'll find in the factory outlet. Furniture and household items also can be bought in stores specializing in these products.

The furniture manufacturing center around North Carolina's Greensboro - High Point area, as you might logically expect, has stores which pick up merchandise that has been a slow mover for the

I cannot overemphasize the warning, though. You must be trained enough to distinguish between a regular price and a real bargain. As an illustration, here are representative prices from discount

Designer Angelo Donghia's "Shoot for the Moon" fabric with minor flaws at $2 a yard, or one - tenth the regular retail price; velvets, which retail up to $75 a yard, at $5 - $15 a yard; chintzes, regularly at $1 a yard, discounted by 25 percent or more; handwoven Italian silk, retailing at $400 a yard, selling for $125 a yard; needlepoint Italian and Spanish tapestries at special prices; even wallpapers, some with matching trimmings at bargain prices etc.

Expect spartan interiors - even exposed steam pipes overhead and goods displayed in assembly line fashion. Dressing rooms are rare; a makeshift screen may be all the privacy Ask about the store's policy on returns and exchanges before you

There is another statistic in her life: A young woman in her 20s, marrying today, has a 40 percent chance of divorcing or being divorced. All of which diminishes the urgency of marriage.

These young women, themselves the children of the baby boom, with the greatest numerical potential of producing children in American history, have produced the lowest fertility rate in that history - only 1.8 births per woman, less even than the 2.2 children

"They may reinvent the forms and context of marriage, but the conjugal relationship is pretty much a solid one. People keep trying to get it into some other form, but the need for a kind of intimacy in a relationship that has some kind of continuity is still there.

. Many of today's women quarrel with the Freudian image of sex, which, they say, casts men in aggressive roles and women in submissive ones. In fact, in some tests, there is considerable switching between traditional "male characteristics" (aggressive, independent, self-reliant) and traditional 'female traits' (sympathetic, compassionate, gentle, warm).

Why, asks Indiana University's Dr. Hershey, can't men be as readily sympathetic, and compassionate and women as readily aggressive and self-reliant?

'I think it is interesting that more women are taking on previously masculine roles than men are taking on previously feminine roles,' she says. "That suggests that those feminine traits that people thought so terrific are not so valued when people have a free choice.

Dr. Fullerton notes that the fastest-growing group of enrollees at San Jose State are women over 25. While economic pressures are an obvious factor, by and large most women enter the job market now for the greater satisfaction they can get than as fulltime nomemakers, Dr. Fullerton says.

Just how this generation will mold the future of this society, no one can say for sure at this point. Certainly things are in transition, and in all the stress of the moment there is considerable conflict between Says Dr. Huyek: "There is a kind of rage, a kind of compensation because women have been so long devalued. I hope it is just a transition. We either do it all together, or we don't do it at all.

There are signs that attitudes are changing even as far back as high school. A nationwide study by the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan found that high-school seniors felt that when there were no pre-school children, the wife should work. They also said that when both parents worked, they should share housework and child care.

In this and other respects, society is beginning to readjust for the new role for women. Great-grandmother might have been shocked. Not so the nearer generations of women.

Says Dr. Huyek: "We hear from a lot of middle-aged women that they have learned a lot from their daughters. They say, 'I've learned to stand up for my rights, for interests of my own. My daughter has shown me that I will not lose everything if I assert myself.

PICTURES AND WALL ORNAMENTS give a room the touches of color and visual intrigue that help it to "come alive". The finest furniture will have an incomplete look if the walls are all bare. Wall decor is like the jewelry that turns a woman's simplest dress into a striking outfit.

Besides providing a dramatic or restful place for the eye to fall, paintings can be useful decoratively. You can use the colors in a painting to tie your room colors together, for example. However, it's not a good idea to choose a paiting for this purpose alone. You should select it because you like it. Keep your decor personally yours--not artificial.

You may want to group several smaller paintings for wall interest, or create a wall display for hobby items. Artifacts brought back from a special vacation, pieces of sculpture, antiques-- all can give your room eye appeal. Today's trend is toward more ornamentation-so be bold!

From eye-catching wall decor to striking accessories...and famous names in quality furnishings for every room...our selection offers solutions to your decorating needs. Let us help you beautify your home in keeping with your good taste...and your budget.

You have a tendency to try to do too many things and finish none of them. This year your prospects look extremely promising, but only after you have completed that which you have already started. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Presentation and cooperation are very important today, especially with anything having to do with money which involves friends. Otherwise, hurt feelings could result. Find out more about yourself by sending for your Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph. P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A tactless remark on your part could put a wedge between you and an important alliance. Fortunately, a pal will come to your aid and patch things up. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Unnecessary roadblocks could be put in your path today because of your negative thinking. You have less faith in yourself than others have in you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Obligations you have to friends, associates or even business commitments had better be kept today. No one will appreciate reneging or tardiness. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The early morning strains involving an important relationship could be lifted by a little quick thinking on your part, as well as a tender touch. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There could be so much to do today that you might feel everything needs doing at once. Keep your head, organize, do each step well and it'll all get

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might find yourself involved with some undesiable company early in the day. Your cleverness will show you how to make a quick exit. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Diplomacy is called for today when dealing with domestic situations. It behooves you not to lose your temper. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have a tendency today to overanalyze things, causing confusion and making your work tougher than it really is. Try to react to your first thoughts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Because you don't tend to your pennies carefully today you might find yourself overextended. Fortunately, the fun things that pop up will be free. ARIES (March 21-April 19) When you admit that the other person has valid points to make you'll be able to get positive results with your relationships today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Responsibilities could bog you down today. If you use your head and team up with somebody, working in unison will let both of you make strides.

Poor Boy Art Show employs bazaar atmosphere

By DAN LACKEY Pampa News Staff

The abandoned Gibson's Discount Center building on Duncan Street is being given new life this weekend with artist entrepreneurs from throughout the Panhandle, Kansas and Olkahoma gathering there to display their wares in the first Top O' Texas Poor Boy Art Show.

The show, which will continue from 16 this afternoon, is more given to commerce than contemplation, and is actually a bazaar rather than a show. But it's a pleasantly hectic place to browse. The artists and craftspeople seem like the most modest "salesmen" in the world, since they are selling pictures and other artifacts made by their own hands.

Commenting on the dizziness some people feel seeing so much work (more than 50 exhibits) all in one space. Canyon frames as a hobby which grew into a artist Jon Birdsong said, "The biggest problem people have - it's just a maze of squares and rectangles as you go through

The "maze of squares and rectangles" may be one many people won't mind being trapped in for a while. Art bazaar, though hardly imbued with the monastic silences of galleries, are like carnivals for the contemplative.It's a refreshing kind a commerce in these days of mass

Bouncing from exhibit to exhibit, this reporter found every kind of artifact from an array of bottle cap magnets (as a supplement to other work) by one craftsman to virtual store displays of picture frames by Dewey Hargan of Sudan. Hargan said he began making picture business which now employs fourteen people. Hargan says he makes all of his own frames, and includes in his display a number of reproductions of his own oil

As with many other art entrepreneurs, Hargan spends most of his weekends on the road, and counts the trips as a signifigant part of his business

But the bazaar mixes both the established businesspeople - artisans and those who are only taking their first steps into arts and crafts selling, opening out from small hobbies begun in their spare

Cheryl Scott of Guymon, Okla., has opened a display of original baby quilts and stuffed animals from her 6 p.m. to midnight hobby, pursued along with a 40-hour work week as a bookkeeper. Her younger sister, Cathy, set up shop next to the baby quilts and stuffed animals for a showing of pictures done with a process known as gold leafing.

"You use these very fragile sheets of gold," she says. "When I'm doing gold leafing no one breathes because it may just sail away!

All of the artists are helpful and friendly in talking about their work. Salemanship is mellowed by shy pride in one's own work.

Jon Birdsong's work includes a great many naturalistic scenes, but the favorite among his displayed work is a set of elongated rectangle frames with water colors of one, two, or several birds on a

"These aren't my main thing," he says. "Actually, they're a sort of caricature. But it seems like I'm better known for the birds than anything. It's almost like a gimmick."

In the Plastic Age of the Barbi Doll, Jo Anne Batman of Dumas has found her forte in making dolls out of socks and wooden spoons. And her partner, Francis Key, fashions tiny human scupltures out of a mixture of glue, glycerin and bread. Jo Anne then carefully paints her friend's

But perhaps the most unusual works in the bazaar are various kinds of kitchen baskets made with salt, water, and flower, and covered with seven or eight layers of

The baskets, which humorously resemble large pretzels, are the handiwork of Glenda Minkley of Dumas. The artist has been perfecting her craft for six years. Not all flour and water at the Top O' ceramic - like artifacts. Jeanna Harris of Borger, who says "give me a package of yeast and I go to town," has a small artistic bakery which includes neat samples of sour veast bread.

"No, these are silk flowers," says Mrs. Harris. "My daughter, Monica, makes them." For anyone who values longevity in flowers over the fleeting pleasure of the floral aroma, might want to take a chance on this very realistic and well - arranged

Ironically, in such a large show, some of the most interesting works on display are a number of small scale water colors and jewelry pieces by several artists. These works dot the show.

Wayne's politics were reflection of movie image

Wayne was a man who professed a dislike for politics, vet seemed ever embroiled in it. His politics, in a way, were a reflection of his screen persona: tough, straight from the shoulder and unabashedly patriotic. His motto seemed to be "Go West and turn right."

His image as an arch-conservative, an implacable anti-communist, a staunch defender of the Vietnam War and a man who thumped for candidates of the right became a part of his baggage.

Wayne frequently denied he was an arch-conservative, and said he was actually liberal on some issues. When he supported the Panama Canal treaty, some of his friends agreed.

He campaigned for Ronald Reagan for governor of California in 1968, but scoffed at the suggestion that he, too, might run for public office. He said, "I hate politics. I consider it a necessary evil.

any leftist taint and from a Vietnam stand so hawkish that he directed and starred in the "The Green Berets" at a time when every studio was shving from the war.

In the 1940s, when the Hollywood Ten was cited by the House Un-American Activities Committee and McCarthvism was developing, he helped organize the Motion Picture Alliance for the Preservation of American Ideals.

Wayne considered himself patriotic, but some within the group thought him a little pink. The alliance was divided into two factions - the "once-a-commie-always-acommie" group and those who welcomed leftists who repented their past indiscretion. He belonged to the latter group.

Nevertheless, he considered politics something of a nuisance. 'My main object in making a motion picture is entertainment. If at the same time I can strike a blow for liberty, then I'll stick one in.

He put his beliefs on the the Alamo as a metaphor for America and the message was clear - stand up and fight for what you believe.

In 1966. Wayne went to Vietnam where a sniper's bullets barely missed him at Chu Lai, then came back to make "The Green Berets."

At the time, Wayne called the Watergate break-in "a panty raid by underlings who enjoy playing cloak and dagger." As more and more Watergate revelations were made he began to waver in his support of President Richard M. Nixon.
