Safety first on the fourth

The ideal Independence Day situation for those who want to see spectacular fireworks — but also want a safe and legal environment to do so — is the free display offered tonight in the Top O Texas rodeo arena.

The show begins at 7:30 p.m. with an exhibition by the Trials Motorcycle Club, followed by the display at 9:30.

The Pampa Jaycees are sponsoring the fireworks display.

Safety is no matter to be taken lightly during Independence Day activities, since both health and property are often in danger.

Officials at the Fire Department urge persons who set off firecrackers to search for a proper setting, free of dry grass, weeds or crops, and away from other persons, buildings or fences.

Children should never be allowed to handle fireworks, and the fireworks should be set off by using punks, rather than matches. The firecrackers should not be placed in pop bottles or cans, since exploding debris could easily cause injury.

Discharging or selling fireworks within the city limits of Pampa is a class C misdemeanor, stresses Sgt. Charles Morris of the Pampa Police Department, who adds that any prosecutions will be handled in municipal court.

Police answered about 50 calls last year on the evening of the Fourth, and have already answered many complaints about fireworks — and reported gunshots — this year.

Fire officials estimate these few days around July 4th cost Gray County about $10,000.

Firemen have been making an average of four calls daily to extinguish firecracker-related grass fires within the county, at a cost of $300 per run.

Sending one truck on each call considerably lessens the city's protection, says J.D. Ray of that department, but the problem has not been as bad as it could have been since the county received several spring rains.

Most fire reports have come from citizens and C.B.'ers, reporting small grass fires on county and railroad right-of-ways, where discharging fireworks is also illegal.

Persons popping fireworks throughout the county should be aware of a special fire hazard — ripe wheat crops and stubble left after harvest, cautions Ray.

"If somebody goes out and shoots off fireworks and starts a wheat fire, it could force a farmer into bankruptcy," he explained, but added that no wheat fires had been reported as of yesterday.

All line firemen are on shift duty today, and a spokesman in the emergency room of Highland General Hospital reports no injuries related to fireworks have been treated.

Will gas shifts come?

Only governor knows for sure

From staff and wire reports

In about a week, Pampans should know if they will have to give up five percent of their gas to help drivers in Dallas and Houston.

That's the word from Gov. Bill Clements' office, where the governor is reportedly proceeding to use his newly granted authority to shift five percent of the state's gasoline from rural areas to the cities.

Extra gas to ease shortages at "pressure points" in Texas should show up at the pumps within eight to 10 days, said Clements.

Clements indicated an extra 5 percent gas allocation would be reserved primarily for weekend sales in big cities, such as Houston and Dallas, although plans were not final.

Clements and his energy adviser Ed Vetter talked to reporters Tuesday after meeting with officers and directors of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association in the governor's private office.

Vetter stressed extra gas for cities would simply mean less for other areas, such as rural communities, which do not seem to have as severe a supply problem.

"We're trying to equalize the misery," Vetter said.

Vetter also announced two more counties — Rockwall and Kaufman — have become the 13th and 14th counties to participate in Texas' odd-even distribution system for motorists.

Both men agreed Texans are driving less, with beach and other tourist spots "really suffering."

"The traffic count is down, people are moving less — Texans are really aware of the energy crisis," said Clements.

John Ford, Clements' press secretary, said determining which areas to take gas from "is going to be a very delicate situation."

"We're trying to determine where in the so-called rural areas there is a surplus of gas," Ford said, adding that no area truly has a surplus.

Rabies may have claimed 8-year-old

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Doctors say it will be Thursday before they can determine if 8-year-old Marianita Garza is the second child to die from a rabies outbreak along both sides of the Rio Grande near Eagle Pass.

An autopsy was performed on the Garza girl Tuesday night, but Santa Rosa Medical Center spokesman Jack Finger said it probably would be Thursday before the results were known.

Mexican officials said a 9-year-old girl died of the deadly virus last month in Piedras Negras, Mexico.

Another Eagle Pass resident, 8-year-old Gerardo Castano, continued to cling to life in the hospital's intensive care unit Tuesday with a confirmed case of rabies.

Only an hour before the Garza girl died Tuesday afternoon, the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta reported that one of five test results indicated "the child's clinical course was consistent with rabies in its earlier stages," said Finger.

The Garza girl, who was bitten by a rabid dog May 31 in Eagle Pass, completed the painful 21-shot rabies vaccination series in late June. But her attending physician, Dr. Enrique Martinez said "she could belong to the 20 percent that doesn't acquire immunity" from the vaccine.

"She was not that sick when she was brought in, but she went downhill rapidly," said Finger. "She had six cardiac arrests last night and was resuscitated each time."

Four of the five rabies tests performed on the girl were negative, but Finger said that does not mean the girl did not have the almost always fatal disease.

"Doctors point out that it is possible to have an infection of rabies despite negative studies of the disease in its early stages," said Finger.

"Doctors tell me circumstantial evidence points to a diagnosis of rabies, but that can't be confirmed until the autopsy," continued Finger.

The Garza girl was one of more than 60 persons who have taken the rabies vaccinations in Eagle

Pass and Piedras Negras during the last three months.

Eagle Pass City Manager Roberto Gonzalez told city councilmen Tuesday night that unless they could persuade residents to vaccinate their animals they may have to declare a state of emergency.

"Gentlemen, the problem is here, the sooner we buckle our belts and face it and get rid of it the better we're off," Gonzalez told the councilmen.

The city manager said it was too early after the death of the Garza girl to measure the impact on the city of 21,000.

"Any time you have human exposure to the disease there is quite a bit of concern and turmoil," said Gonzalez.

"I think the council has agreed to declare a state of emergency on Friday if there is not a good turnout at a (pet) vaccination clinic Thursday," he said.

The city manager said declaring a state of emergency could result in orders to shoot stray dogs on sight.

He said according to reports in a Piedras Negras newspaper, Mexican authorities have shot 6,000 dogs in the last 40 days.

Officials said human rabies is extremely rare and that only three persons in medical history have survived the disease.

Dr. Raymond Moore, Texas Commissioner of Health, said in Austin that the Garza girl could be the first Texan in 10 years to die of rabies after contracting the disease in Texas.

He said a ranch hand from Fort Bend County died of the disease last year, but was infected in Mexico.

A 2-year-old girl from Poteet, a town about 30 miles south of San Antonio, has been hospitalized here for observation with some rabies symptoms and her test results sent to Atlanta, Finger said. But he said the girl, who was listed in poor condition, has no history of dog bite.

Moore said there have been 567 confirmed cases of animal rabies in Texas this year.

What's inside

Weather

The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies through Thursday with a chance of late afternoon and evening thundershowers today. The high today and Thursday is expected in the mid 90s with the low tonight in the upper 60s. Winds today and tonight will be out of the southwest at 10 to 15 mph. Chances of rain: 20 percent today, 40 percent tonight, 20 percent tomorrow.

Gang members slain

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Five members of a motorcycle gang were shot to death execution-style this morning at a house in northwest Charlotte, police said.

Police Capt. L.L. McGraw said four men and a woman identified as members of a gang called the Outlaws were shot at a home used as a headquarters and residence for the group.

One man was found sitting on a front porch, where he apparently was posted as a guard, with a gun in his lap, McGraw said. He said the others were inside the house.

"It appeared that there was no sign of a struggle, more or less an execution-type thing," McGraw said.

Firemen keeping busy

Pampa firemen answered three calls Tuesday night for fires involving fireworks, two of which were inside city limits. Apparently, several holiday celebrators are declaring their independence of the law which makes use of fireworks inside the city a Class C misdemeanor.

Grass and fence fires at 401 Graham St. and 1120 S. Dwight St. around 7 p.m., both the result of fireworks, were quelled without damage, according to firemen.

A third fireworks blaze occurred shortly before 9 p.m. on Loop 171.

In tune with the season, firemen have been answering increased calls since Sunday — many having to do with "backyard" explosives.

Firemen were also called to Dyers Barbecue in response to a trash fire unrelated to fireworks Tuesday.

TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

A letter to my son

By EDWIN FEULNER

"Dear E.J.:

Independence is a big word, especially for someone in the third grade. I know in school you are already learning about the history of the United States and why we celebrate our independence.

Independence does not just mean being free from foreigners telling us what to do. That is one of the things it means. But it means a lot more than that. One of the key things independence means is being able to choose.

Choices are never easy to make. It was not easy for you to choose between an electronic baseball game and a new fishing pole.

But it isn't just choices like these that make the United States a very special place. It's being able to make choices in bigger things.

In our country, we can choose which school you and your little sister are going to go to, instead of someone else telling us which one you will attend. Choices make the United States special. And these choices are available not just in politics but in the everyday part of our lives.

It is exciting that we can choose from a hundred different kinds of colors and makes of cars to buy. When I was in Russia a few years ago, just after you were born, anyone who wanted a car had to pay for it first, and then wait for a long time to get it. Even then, there was only one kind he could get and they all looked the same.

Remember last week when we had that special dessert and we had both strawberries and blueberries on our shortcake because Mommy could not choose which one we would like better? I remember when I was growing up we had a student from Austria living with us. I have told you about Hans before. One of the things I remember was on the first day he was in our house. All of a sudden he stopped talking because he had just seen a bowl of fresh fruit for the first time in his life. And I remember him taking pictures of that bowl of fruit to send back to his family. You see, his younger sisters who were born during the Second World War, had never seen oranges or bananas or other fruit.

You are already making some choices. I was so proud of you just a couple of weeks ago when you scored your first goal in the Alexandria soccer league. That was your choice to play soccer this season instead of Little League baseball. I remember some children when I was in a refugee camp in Vietnam a few years ago who didn't have choices like that because their parents had been killed by the communists. The only toys these Vietnamese children had were the simple things they could make themselves out of tin cans and other things we throw away everyday here in Virginia.

Being able to make choices means we can make big choices too. Daddy and Mommy decided where we are going to work. There are a lot of places, E.J., where you don't decide where you are going to work. Someone in the government decides that for you. In some countries you don't decide where you are going to live, someone else decides that for you.

You know we just had an election here in Virginia and I worked pretty hard for some of the people who were running. You also know that I was unhappy because only 7 per cent of the people bothered to vote. Voting is important because it is one more way that we can make a choice.

We can choose whether we want people in government who will let us make more choices or who will take them. That is never the way they say it. But that's what it comes down to. Because, you see, the more money they take away from us in taxes, the more choices they are making for us instead of letting us make them for ourselves. And believe me, I think Mommy and I know what is good for our family better than someone in the government does.

When you get older, you'll know more about some of the big choices that people have had to make. I was in Germany in 1961 when they put up the Berlin Wall. The reason they did that was to stop people from making the choice that they wanted to live in freedom instead of under oppression.

Just four years ago, Mommy and I spent Independence Day talking to our Vietnamese friends who just left their home and were in a Hong Kong refugee camp. We were telling them about life in the United States and how we might help them to start a new life here in Virginia. They had to leave their parents, their cats and dogs and all their property behind, but they knew it was worth it when they made that big choice.

There are a lot of people who think making choices is easy — they think it's a case of buying a baseball game or a fishing pole. But it isn't that easy.

So on Independence Day, we should pray and thank the Lord for all the people who died to help make the United States the great place that it is to live in.

And let us also remember that independence means that we have to make choices. Sometimes they are hard choices. But then again we all learn that anything that is worthwhile isn't easy.

Inflation hits diet, teeth

A forced reduction in the purchase of essential health services and products has become one of the most destructive but least recognized effects of rampant inflation, according to a recent national survey.

When members of more than 1,250 families were interviewed in a poll sponsored by General Mills, 19 percent blamed rising prices for their decision to reduce the quality of their daily diets.

Another 14 percent said they had abandoned the practice of serving meat at meals every day, while 8 percent had cut back on their purchases of fresh fruit and vegetables.

Ranking behind good nutrition as a victim of inflation was dental work. Among those polled, 16 percent said they had postponed needed work on their teeth and 11 percent had delayed getting regular dental checkups.

The eternal foundation of America

By CALVIN COOLIDGE
At the time of this speech (July 4, 1916) Mr. Coolidge was the Governor of Massachusetts.

Excellence does not age; it endures. The following Fourth of July oration was delivered two generations ago, on July 4, 1916, at the height of World War I. The speaker was the governor of Massachusetts, Calvin Coolidge, who later became the 30th President of the United States.

Contrary to his reputation as Silent Cal, Mr. Coolidge was an indefatigable speaker. According to the historian Charles Beard, "Coolidge was in truth of facile and versatile speaker and writer." And in the opinion of some more recent scholars, he was of all our Presidents the most graceful writer of English prose since Lincoln.

Like America, Calvin Coolidge was born on the Fourth of July.

History is revelation. It is the manifestation in human affairs of a "power not ourselves that makes for righteousness." Savages have no history. It is the mark of civilization. This New England of ours slumbered from the dawn of creation until the beginning of the seventeenth century, not unpeopled, but with no record of human events worthy of a name. Different races came, and lived, and vanished, but the story of their existence has little more of interest for us than the story the naturalist tells of the animal kingdom, or the geologist relates of the formation of the crust of the earth.

It takes men of larger vision and higher inspiration, with a power to impart a larger vision and a higher inspiration to the people, to make history. It is not a negative, but a positive achievement. It is unconcerned with idolatry or despotism or treason or rebellion or betrayal, but bows in reverence before Moses or Hampden or Washington or Lincoln or the Light that shone on Calvary.

July 4, 1776, was a day of history in its high and true significance. Not because the underlying principles set out in the Declaration of Independence were new; they are older than the Christian religion, or Greek philosophy, nor was it because history is made by proclamation or declaration; history is made only by action. But it was an historic day because the representatives of three millions of people there vocalized Concord and Lexington and Bunker Hill, which gave notice to the world that they were acting, and proposed to act, and to found an independent nation, on the theory that "all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

The wonder and glory of the American people is not the ringing declaration of that day, but the action, then already begun, and in the process of being carried out in spite of every obstacle that war could interpose, making the theory of freedom and equality a reality. We revere that day because it marks the beginnings of independence, the beginnings of a constitution that was finally to give universal freedom and equality to all American citizens, the beginnings of a government that was to recognize beyond all others the power and worth and dignity of man. There began the first of governments to acknowledge that it was founded on the sovereignty of the people. There the world first beheld the revelation of modern democracy.

Democracy is not a tearing-down; it is a building-up. It is not a denial of the divine right of kings; it supplements that claim with the assertion of the divine right of all men. It does not destroy; it fulfills. It is the consummation of all theories of government, to the spirit of which all the nations of the earth must yield. It is the great constructive force of the ages. It is the alpha and omega of man's relation to man, the beginning and the end. There is and can be no more doubt of the triumph of democracy in human affairs, than there is of the triumph of gravitation in the physical world; the only question is how and when. Its foundation lays hold upon eternity.

These thoughts are overpowering. But let us beware of fate and destiny. Barbarians have decreased, but barbarism still exists. Rome boasted the name of the Eternal City. It was but eight hundred years from the sack of the city by one tribe of barbarians to the sack of the city by another tribe of barbarians. Between lay something akin to a democratic commonwealth. Then games, and bribes for the populace, with dictators and Caesars, while later the Praetorian Guard sold, the royal purple to the highest bidder. After which came Alaric, the Goth, and night. Since when democracy lay dormant for some fifteen centuries.

We may claim with reason that our Nation has had the guidance of Providence; we may know that our form of government must ultimately prevail upon earth; but what guaranty have we that it shall be maintained here? What proof that some unlined hand, some barbarism, without or within, shall not wrench the sceptre of democracy from our grasp? The rule of princes, the privilege of birth, has come down through the ages; the rule of the people has not yet marked a century and a half. There is no absolute proof, no positive guaranty, but there is hope and high expectation, and the path is not uncharted.

Men of every clime have lavished much admiration upon the first part of the Declaration of Independence, and rightly so, for it marked the entry of new forces and new ideals into human affairs. Its admirers have sometimes failed in their attempts to live by it, but none have successfully disputed its truth. It is the realization of the true glory and worth of man, which, when once admitted, wrought vast changes that have marked all history since its day.

All this relates to natural rights, fascinating to dwell upon, but not sufficient to live by. The signers knew that well; more important still, the people whom they represented knew it. So they did not stop there. After asserting that man was to stand out in the universe with a new and supreme importance, and that governments were instituted to insure life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, they did not shrink from the logical conclusion of this doctrine. They knew that the duty between the citizen and the State was reciprocal. They knew that the State called on its citizens for their property and their lives; they laid down the proposition that government was to protect the citizen in his life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness.

At some expense?
Yes.
At cost of life?
Yes.

While they required all, they gave all. Let us read their conclusion in their own words, and mark its simplicity and majesty: "And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor." There is no cringing reservation here, no alternative, and no delay. Here is the voice of the plain men of Middlesex, promising Yorktown, promising Appomattox.

The doctrine of the Declaration of Independence, predicated upon the glory of man, and the corresponding duty of society, is that the rights of citizens are to be protected with every power and resource of the State, and a government that does any less is false to the teachings of that great document, of the name American. Beyond this, the principle that it is the obligation of the people to rise and overthrow government which fails in these respects. But above all, the call to duty, the pledge of fortune and of life, nobility of character through nobility of action: this is Americanism.

"Woe for us if we forget, we that hold by these."

A prop for repression

by martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Why is President Carter, the self-proclaimed leader of a global crusade for human rights, visiting South Korea—a nation notorious for its abrogation of the most fundamental citizen rights to freedom and liberty?

Massive amounts of United States military and economic assistance to South Korea may indeed be needed to discourage adventurism on the part of the belligerent North Koreans and to reassure the Japanese government that this country remains firmly committed to the security of northeast Asia.

But it's certainly not necessary to have Carter spend two days personally touring a country whose government he strongly criticized during the 1976 presidential campaign on the grounds that "its internal oppression is repugnant to our people."

Although the president's schedule includes meetings with critics of South Korea's autocratic President Park Chung Hee, the Carter visit undoubtedly will serve to further legitimize the Park regime and reaffirm its questionable claim to having a special relationship with the United States.

In its annual report on human rights practices around the world, the State Department earlier this year offered this assessment of the South Korean government:

"The department continues to view the restrictions on the peaceful expression of dissent and other controls in Korea... as excessive in relation to the threat under which the nation lives and as contrary to international human rights standards."

Park came to power as an Army general who led a military coup in 1961. Much of his current authority is derived from a "reform" constitution adopted under martial law 11 years later.

That constitution gives the president the unchallengeable right to issue emergency decrees suspending—in the name of "national security"—virtually all individual rights for indefinite periods.

Currently in force is the Park-issued Emergency Measure No. 9 (EM-9), promulgated in March 1975 and classifying the following actions as crimes punishable by prison terms of up to 15 years:

—Advocacy or petitioning for revision or repeal of the martial law constitution under which Park enjoys unchecked power.

—Broadcasting or publishing a news account of any opposition to the martial law constitution.

—Publicly opposing EM-9 or reporting in the news media on any such opposition.

EM-9 also grants the police and the Korean Central Intelligence Agency abroad authority to arrest, detain, search and seize—all without issuance of any judicial warrant.

An Amnesty International mission to South Korea in 1975 reported "numerous credible cases of torture" and instances of political prisoners "held in solitary confinement and denied attention" during the early 1970s.

The South Korean government claims it has abandoned such abuses but it continues to rely upon "house arrest," indefinite detention and other forms of arbitrary arrest and imprisonment to suppress dissent.

The State Department estimates that "between 180 and 220 persons were probably still serving (prison) terms for politically motivated charges" at the end of last year.

More than 500 people—including religious leaders, labor organizers, university students, intellectuals and politicians who publicly opposed Park—have been charged with violating the provisions of EM-9 during the past four years.

One of those recently subjected to South Korea's heavy-handed police state practices was Patricia J. Patterson, an American citizen and official of the United Methodist Church.

In late March, she was detained by Korean authorities at Seoul's Kimpo International Airport and forced to surrender temporarily both her passport and a letter she was carrying.

That letter was addressed to Carter and signed by 37 missionaries, all of them Americans. Its message: A presidential visit to South Korea would only serve to prop up the dictatorial government and encourage further repression.

Oblivious feds still undaunted

Undaunted by a decade of global hide-and-seek, the federal government remains convinced that it can stop the flow of narcotics into this country by shutting off the supply from a single country or region of the world.

The first such effort to eradicate heroin use in the United States came when federal officials sought to disrupt opium traffic from the "Golden Triangle," the portion of Southeast Asia where Laos, Thailand and Burma meet.

That effort met limited success only after tens of millions of dollars were poured into the desolate, mountainous region. But Turkey promptly assumed the role of the leading supplier of heroin to this country.

Federal officials convinced the United Nations to finance a massive "buyout" of virtually all of Turkey's poppy production. The action then shifted to Mexico, where a multi-million-dollar, United States-financed program of marijuana and heroin eradication produced nominal results.

But the narcotics industry simply packed up and moved to Colombia, currently a large-scale producer of marijuana and a major transshipment point for cocaine destined for the United States.

Apparently oblivious to the fact that dozens of other nations are capable of becoming the next center of narcotics traffic, the Drug Enforcement Administration insists that its country-by-country approach is "the only cost-effective way to stop these destructive imports."

WAITING to get your wheat in the grain elevator can turn into a few hours work — or a quick nap if you prefer. (Staff photo by Gary Clark)

Elevators jammed with wheat

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff
Gasoline lines? No problem in Pampa. Instead, local farmers are having to contend with wheat lines — not to purchase the grain, but to get rid of it.

A near-record harvest is shaping up the result of abundant spring rainfall. The bumper crop, combined with shortages of rail cars and trucks, has caused the Wheeler-Evans grain elevator at 600 S. West to remain more or less full during the last week.

The farmers are bringing in so much wheat that, by 2:30

Tuesday afternoon, Wheeler-Evans had to stop accepting deliveries for lack of storage space.

"We were doing real good until today," observed Lee Heaton, manager of the elevator. "It got full and we can't move it."

"I've been here since '57," said Superintendent David Putman, "and it's the busiest I've ever seen."

Outside the Wheeler-Evans office, 15 trucks full of wheat were sitting in line, waiting to be emptied. Most of the drivers had turned off their engines and abandoned the vehicles in favor of the air-conditioned office or the shaded front porch.

Inside, a group of farm women were talking excitedly about the harvest and swapping yield-per-acre figures.

"I wish I'd taken pictures of our wheat crop," said Barbara Smith. "It's the best wheat crop since I've been farming for 14 years. I've never seen anything like it."

"It's the best I've ever seen, all in all," agreed another woman. "We've been farming since 1947."

"They say this happens once in a lifetime," said Mrs. Smith.

She and her husband farm approximately 300 acres of dry and irrigated land east of the city. Their crop has been averaging from 35-65 bushels per acre.

"We had a little irrigated patch that we think is 70 (bushels), but we haven't substantiated it," she said.

Ordinarily, dry land yields at best average 10-15 bushels per acre. One woman recalled plowing up dry land fields last year because the yield wasn't worth taking the trouble to harvest.

JoAn Walters, who started harvesting her crop June 16, described the yield as "real good" and said her dry land yield averages 30-45 bushels per acre. Others reported dry land yields of as high as 53 bushels.

Farmers throughout the Panhandle are reporting similarly fantastic yields. The women noted that grain elevators in Hoover and Kingsmill are also full.

Farmers usually spend only about 10 minutes waiting to dump their wheat, Heaton said, but Tuesday afternoon many of the women had been there for two hours. Asked when the grain would start moving again,

Putman replied "It depends on what kind of service we get from rail and trucks."

Wheeler-Evans was scheduled to get some empty rail cars and trucks that evening, he said.

"We'll load cars tonight and fill up again tomorrow," Putman said. "That'll be the story, I'd say."

Putman estimated the harvest in the Pampa area is two-thirds completed. Heaton guessed that three-fourths of the crop had already been cut. Neither man was sure.

"I haven't had a chance to get out and look around," Heaton said.

"If a guy had room in the elevator, I'd say it (the harvest) would be over in two weeks," Putman said.

"If there was a place to dump it, it would be finished this weekend," Heaton said.

Not only is there more wheat this year, but farmers are also getting a better price for it — $3.83 a bushel Monday, as compared to $2.78 a bushel at the same time last year.

"They'll get a good price," Putman said. "Not the best, but fair. And I guess we'll get a little of it, too."

Israeli diplomat: Fleener 'knew what she was doing'

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Terre Fleener, imprisoned for 20 months in Israel after being convicted of spying for Arab terrorists, "knew exactly what she was doing" and should have been sentenced to 15 years in prison instead of five, says a top Israeli diplomat.

"She knew exactly what she was doing. She got out with nothing for what she did. She served 20 months in prison instead of 15 years, which is what she should have gotten," Yitzhak Leor, the Israeli consul general for the Southwest, said here Tuesday.

In a closed-door trial in early 1977, Ms. Fleener, a 24-year-old former coed at the University of Texas at San Antonio, pleaded guilty to taking photographs and collecting information for Palestine Liberation Organization terrorists.

Ms. Fleener, the only American to be jailed in Israel on a security charge, was originally sentenced to five years in prison.

Because of what Leor said was pressure from the U.S. State Department, Ms. Fleener's sentence was halved last month, making her eligible for parole over the weekend. She made a tearful return Monday to San Antonio, where she had lived most of her life with her grandmother.

Dr. Catherine Edwards, one of Ms. Fleener's professors at the University of Texas at San Antonio and a witness at her trial, said Ms. Fleener's plans a Washington press conference next week.

"She collected information for them knowingly," said Leor. "She admitted to everything. She pleaded totally guilty to all of the charges. Her appeal to the Supreme Court (of Israel) was that she did it because she was young and naive."

Ms. Fleener has maintained since her release, however, that she was innocent. She said she had to plead guilty even though the charges were "inaccurate" and has criticized the way her case was handled.

She was charged with posing as a tourist to photograph markets, beaches, hotels and a kibbutz as future sites for Arab terrorist attacks.

"They always shoot at innocent civilians, that's why she didn't go to any army installations. It's always as many Israelis as they can kill in cold blood," Leor added.

Rockdale legislator wants legalized stills to produce 'agrihol'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Pure grain alcohol can be produced economically in a backyard plant and used to fuel cars, trucks and tractors, says a Rockdale legislator.

Rep. Dan Kubiak said Tuesday that Texas farmers easily could build small plants producing 190-proof grain alcohol from corn or other grain. The "agrihol" could be burned straight without mixing it with gasoline.

He told a news conference he visited plants in Colorado and Kansas last week and was optimistic smaller "do-it-yourself" versions could be built in Texas.

In periods of slumping grain prices, farmers could use their crops to produce fuel instead of food, he added.

Agrihol differs from gasohol, which is a blend of 200-proof alcohol and gasoline, Kubiak explained.

Brazil will make the switch from gasoline to 100 percent alcohol-fueled vehicles within a year, he added.

"Over a five-year period, I hope we can surpass what they've accomplished in Brazil," he said.

An experimental pilot agrihol plant likely will be built this year in Kubiak's Central Texas district, he added. Local farmers and engineers will establish the facility.

A $5,000 model can produce three gallons of agrihol from a bushel of corn, he said. Production could range from 10 gallons to 1,000 gallons daily. A protein by-product of distillation can be used as a livestock feed.

Pure grain alcohol could be marketed at between 65 cents and 70 cents a gallon, Kubiak said. A slight carburetor adjustment will allow gasoline-burning engines to run on the agricultural fuel.

Conventional engines get better mileage on pure gasoline than alcohol, he said, but the price factor will make up for mileage.

Agrihol also can be mixed with diesel and will improve a diesel engine's efficiency by 30 percent, he said.

Agricultural fuels have not been taken seriously until recently because its cost was not competitive with gasoline, Kubiak said.

"The way the price of gasoline is today, gasohol and agrihol will certainly be competitive with gasoline," he said.

LELIAH H. JEFFRIES

Funeral services for Mrs. Leliah H. Jeffries, 80, of 2237 Beech will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at Carmichael-Whitley Colonial Chapel with Glen Walton of the North Amarillo

Church of Christ officiating. Burial will be held in Fairview Cemetery. She died Tuesday evening at Highland General Hospital.

Mrs. Jeffries was born Nov. 10, 1898, in Indian Territory. She was married on July 28, 1916, to Claude M. Jeffries at Tulsa, Okla. They came to the Panhandle in 1926 from Covington, Okla., and moved to Pampa in 1932. Mr. Jeffries, who was a trucking contractor here for 50 years, died Oct. 10, 1978. Mrs. Jeffries was a lifetime member of the Royal Neighbors. The family requests memorials be made to the Pampa Children's Home, Box 2438, Pampa, or to Girls Town, Borger.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Claudine Bradley and Mrs. Virginia Body, both of Pampa; four grandchildren; and 10 great-grandchildren.

MRS. A.R. HUGG

SHAMROCK — Funeral services for Mrs. A.R. Hugg, 98, will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in Clay Funeral Chapel. The Rev. Richard Payne, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, will officiate. Graveside rites will be conducted by the Order of the Eastern Star, Shamrock Chapter No. 384. Burial in Shamrock Cemetery is under the direction of Clay Funeral Home.

Mrs. Hugg died Tuesday in Clovis, N.M. She was born Aug. 6, 1880 in Stilesville, Ind., and had lived in Clovis since 1972. She was a 40-year resident of Shamrock.

Mrs. Hugg, the former Miss Floy Harlan, married A.R. Hugg Oct. 14, 1910 in Stilesville. Her husband preceded her in death in 1950. She was a member of the First United Methodist Church of Shamrock, and a member and past matron of Order of the Eastern Star. In the last two years, she had received ribbons at the Curry County Fair Pioneer's Day Picnic, honoring her as the oldest person present.

Survivors include two sons, William A. of Clovis and Harlan H. of Boulder, Colo.; the grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Memorials may be made to Carl Farley's Boys Ranch in Amarillo.

MRS. CONDE SCROGGINS LASATER

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
 Very heavy thunderstorms roared through the Big Bend National Park during the night and widely scattered showers and thunderstorms gave West Texans some early Fourth of July fireworks. Forecasts called for widely scattered showers and thunderstorms over many parts of Texas today, possibly enough to spoil or at least hinder some holiday celebrations. Highs were expected to be mostly in the 90s statewide.

Texas forecast

West Texas — Partly cloudy through Thursday. Widely scattered mainly late afternoon and evening thunderstorms all sections except the southeast through tonight. Widely scattered thunderstorms Panhandle and mountains Thursday. No important change in temperatures. Highs in the 90s except near 105 lower elevations of the Big Bend. Lows mostly upper 60s and lower 70s.

Extended

Friday through Sunday
 West Texas — Chance of thunderstorms mainly Panhandle... otherwise clear to partly cloudy with no important temperature changes. Highs in the 90s except near 105 Big Bend lowlands. Lows in the 60s and low 70s.

German statute of limitations off

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The West German Bundestag has repealed the statute of limitations on murder, insuring that still-identified Nazi killers can be brought to justice as long as they live.

The vote in the lower house of Parliament Tuesday night was 255-222 with 19 members absent or abstaining. Most of those voting to keep the statute on the books were from the two conservative parties, the Christian Democratic Union and its Bavarian ally, the Christian Social Union.

Approval by the upper house, or Bundesrat, was not required.

The legislative action concluded a three-year campaign, launched in 1976 by Socialist-leader Herbert Wehner, that got a big boost from the showing in Germany of the U.S. television series "Holocaust." Recent opinion surveys indicated that about half the West German public were in favor of continued prosecution of war criminals, an increase of 20 percent since the dramatization about Nazi oppression of the Jews was broadcast.

The statute provided for immunity from prosecution 30 years after the alleged murder was committed. It had been extended twice, in 1965 and in 1969, to allow for continuance of the hunt for Nazi murderers. The last 10-year suspension would have expired on Dec. 31, but even then persons under investigation or indictment — numbering some 3,700 — would have still been liable to prosecution.

Israeli Ambassador Yohanan Meroz followed the debate all day from the visitors' gallery. He smiled broadly and shook hands with three companions when the vote was announced.

Court decision to change little

Judges and lawyers doubt there will be much change in Texas courts as a result of Monday's U.S. Supreme Court decision allowing judges to hear pre-trial motions in secret.

But the 5-4 decision prompted sharp criticism from the state president of Sigma Delta Chi, the Society of Professional Journalists.

"It's just another in a growing string of decisions in the Supreme Court's attempt to close off sources of information and deny the press and public access to the court. This bunch acts like they've never read the first amendment," said Mike Kingston of the Dallas Morning News.

Warren umrett of Odessa, a widely known criminal defense lawyer, said, "Don't panic. Nothing much is changing."

"It's nothing especially novel. We've been doing it in Texas for years since judges have hearings in chambers to protect the defendant's right to a fair trial," Burnett said.

Frank Maloney of Austin, who was the first president of the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association, agreed.

"This is nothing new. It (closed pre-trial hearings) has been going on for 20 years at least. ... Judges are prone to keep things open. This type of thing is something they've just used good sense on," he said.

Maloney said closed hearings on pre-trial motions usually are sought only in highly publicized cases where lawyers fear potential jurors might be prejudiced by some of the things that are said.

"I've never held any in private," said State District Court Judge Mace Thurman of Austin. He added there might be times when a closed hearing on pre-trial matters might be in the best interest of a fair trial.

He predicted the Supreme Court decision might result in "more pressure on us for this" but said "judges should use it extremely sparingly."

State District Judge Filemon Vela of Brownsville said he could "see certain situations where I definitely think it would be appropriate to bar the public from hearings ... but not as a general proposition."

"The effort should be to expose the public to everything, until it interferes with someone getting a fair trial. ... The idea is not to keep the public out. The idea is to see that justice is done," Vela said.

Closed hearings on pre-trial motions could be a means of getting victims of such crimes as rape to testify against defendants, he said.

Dr. Lamb says

Normal body temperature may vary several degrees in children

DEAR DR. LAMB - I hope you can put my mind at ease. I've been having a problem with my 7-year-old son. About six months ago he developed swollen glands in his neck. He had been complaining of being tired so I took him to a pediatrician. He ran some tests for mononucleosis and found it was negative and he took a throat culture which came back positive so he put him on antibiotics.

This swelling never went down and different people say that he's pale and tired looking. I took him back to the doctor and he said he had had swelling too long and he did a whole new series of tests on him. These tests were all negative. He then told me to wait a reasonable length of time and to come back for another check.

Also he runs a temperature of 99 to 100 frequently. Have you any suggestions at all?

DEAR READER - I'm not sure what the throat culture was for in the case of your son but I would presume it was for a strep throat. You've certainly done all the right things. Some people don't always recover as quickly from streptococcal infections as others and some children take a little longer to develop resistance to some of the common bacterial problems including streptococcal infection.

One of the complications of a streptococcal infection is rheumatic fever which has a variety of manifestations and sometimes doesn't cause any symptoms. It would take a while in the absence of other symptoms to determine if that were the case.

Your son may appear pale but if the blood tests were all normal, which would also mean he's not anemic, I wouldn't be too concerned about the color of his skin.

I'm not so sure what the body temperature really means. Many healthy youngsters have body temperatures as high as 100 degrees in the late afternoon. For that reason I would be hesitant to say definitely that your son has a fever without knowing about the time that the temperatures were taken and how accurate they really were.

Many people don't appreciate the wide variation of body temperature within a 24-hour period. It can vary as much as three degrees in perfectly normal people. The low point is usually in the early hours of the morning and the high point is in the late afternoon or evening. This is the diurnal cycle of body temperature which we all have to some degree.

To give you more information on what you might expect from the variability of body temperature, I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-6, Body Temperature and Fever. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

In any case, it sounds like your son is being adequately supervised and if anything of major medical importance is wrong, I'm sure it will be discovered at a time to give him optimal treatment.

I should like to add to all parents that if their children do develop unexplained nodules or lumps under the arm, neck or other place, it's a good idea to have them examined. It's pretty hard to guess what a lump is just by feeling it and not knowing anything else about the blood tests or medical factors related to the case.

At wit's end
by
Irma Bombeck

I've been doing a lot of thinking lately about the Kiss-'N-Tell books. The ones where the trusted family retainers run after former First Ladies all day and polish up their manuscripts on their day off. Where the children of superstars find a whistle and blow it, and disenchanted wives of prime ministers feel obliged to share their sex life with readers.

My personal feeling is it's unethical, an abuse of trust and is unconscionable. But what the heck, it's a living.

As I said to my cleaning woman the other day, "Who was that man who dropped you off today?"

"My husband," she said cautiously.

"What's his name?"

"Lionel."

"Is that one L or two?" I said, making a note in my notebook.

"I'm not sure. Why?"

"Nothing. I'm just trying to get to know you better."

"Is that why you taped interviews with my children?"

"They've ruined my surprise. When did they tell you?"

"They didn't. My mother told me right after you picked up some correspondence and pictures from her. Did you read that awful book about my friend, Dora, written by her Friday employer? I think it's called 'Lust and Dust'."

"Clever title," I said, jotting it down.

"It's perfectly disgusting. Why, after awhile, domestics and secretaries are going to have employers sign a statement saying they're not going to divulge any secrets they learn while we're working for them."

The phone rang.

"I'd sure hate to see that happen," I said as I raced to answer the phone. "Who's calling, please? Could you spell that? If I could just tell her the nature of the call? I see."

I turned to my cleaning woman. "It's for you. She says it's personal."

I was breathing heavily by the time I got to the extension phone in the bedroom but made it in time to hear that her Wednesday employer had written a book on her called, "Nanny, Dearest," and had just sold it to the Book-of-the-Month club.

As I was shredding my notes, I looked up and said, "You're fired."

Dear Abby

Independent kids should pay way

DEAR ABBY: The parents of an 18-year-old girl wrote: "Dear Abby: Our daughter has graduated from high school and has steady employment, so now she says she can do as she pleases. She is living at home (free), but she doesn't care what anybody thinks about her actions."

Her old-fashioned parents want to know if we have the right to set some rules for her. We have asked her to be home by 1 a.m. when she goes out on a date. (She's been coming home anywhere from 2 a.m. to 4:30.) When we object to her going to her boyfriend's apartment to watch TV for an evening, she says we have "dirty minds."

She tells us if we don't "get off her back" she will move out and rent with girlfriends. Of course, she is trying to assert her independence, but we think she's overdoing it. Please give us bewildered parents some guidelines.

Bewildered"

Your reply:

"Dear Bewildered: Tell your daughter to sit down with a pencil and paper and figure out exactly how 'independent' she is. Advise her that when she is able to support herself entirely -- and that means pay for her room, board, clothes, transportation, entertainment, travel, doctor, dentist and insurance -- then she may live where she chooses, and by her own rules. But as long as she lives with you, she will have to live by yours."

Abby. I strongly disagree with your advice. It is just this sort of thinking that is tearing families apart.

McCarthys host reunion

Mr. and Mrs. D.C. McCarthy of Skellytown recently hosted a three-day reunion of the John Henry and James Levi Terry families.

The group of 46 descendants met at Roman Nose State Park near Watonga, Okla., for boating, fishing, visiting and eating.

James Levi Terry, his wife Phoebe Belle and their sons came to Texas from Tennessee in 1891. They first settled in Wise County, then moved to Beckham County, Okla., where his father, John Henry Terry joined them. After James Levi's first wife died, he married Victoria Monk.

The reunion was the 28th annual gathering of the descendants of the two men. Those attending from Pampa were Mrs. Myrtle Leigh and Jeff; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Terry McCarthy, T.J., Jani Cherry, and Angie; Denise Terry; Geof and Kim Terry, and Weldon and Ruby Terry.

Other family members attended from Oklahoma and Kansas.

Drugs, pregnancy dangerous

Drugs taken during pregnancy can be dangerous. Even over-the-counter medications could harm an unborn child. If you are expecting a child, take drugs only when necessary, and only on your doctor's advice.

The Food and Drug Administration has a reprint from its magazine, the FDA Consumer, that discusses drugs that can cause problems in pregnancy. For a free copy of Drugs and Pregnancy, just send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 653G, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Women who discontinue oral contraceptives -- "The Pill" -- in the hope of becoming pregnant, should wait at least three months before trying to conceive. In the meantime, use another method of birth control. A fetus conceived immediately after you stop taking "The Pill" could have a higher risk of birth defects.

While pregnant, avoid tetracycline antibiotics; they have been shown to permanently discolor the child's teeth. And, avoid barbiturates also. Women who have taken large doses of barbiturates throughout pregnancy or during the last three months of pregnancy may give birth to addicted infants.

Amphetamines, which many women take to aid in weight loss, may also cause birth defects.

Minor tranquilizers such as Valium, Librium, or Miltown, taken during early pregnancy, may increase the risk of cleft lip or palate.

And, don't take aspirin or other drugs containing salicylate during the last three months of pregnancy, except under a doctor's supervision. Salicylate, a common ingredient in many over-the-counter painkillers, may prolong pregnancy and labor and may cause excessive bleeding before and after delivery.

In general, live vaccines such as rubella, measles, mumps, smallpox, yellow fever, and live oral polio vaccine are not recommended for pregnant women since the effects on fetal development are unknown. Killed or inactivated vaccines such as influenza, rabies, cholera, tetanus, diphtheria, and Salk polio vaccine should be administered to pregnant women only when absolutely necessary.

When you order a copy of Drugs and Pregnancy (free), you'll also receive a copy of the free Consumer Information Catalog. It lists more than 200 selected free or low-cost publications from the federal government. The Catalog is published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration.

UT chimps need family therapy

Chimpanzees in America may need family therapy if they want to behave like chimps.

Chimps who do not know how to live in a family -- or perform the important family function of breeding -- turned up recently when the University of Texas started setting up a facility to breed chimps for research purposes. New chimps are badly needed because the supply from abroad has been sharply curtailed in recent years.

Most of the animals being sent to the new facility do not know family life because they are research animals who were not raised with other chimps. Some were trapped at a young age in the wild; others were born in a research facility. They have never learned the patterns of getting on with peers and offspring that chimps need to form successful family and breeding groups.

The veterinarian in charge, Michael Keeling, says the animals will learn how to be chimps by being put with animals who already know. Fortunately, the Texas facility is getting 16 chimps from the Stanford Outdoor Primate Facility, which is shifting its focus to smaller monkeys. The Stanford chimps should be good teachers, Keeling says, because some were born in the wild, and all of them have been living in a natural environment.

PSYCHOLOGY IN JUSTICE SYSTEM

Last year the American Psychological Association commissioned a task force on the role of psychology in the criminal justice system, where psychologists and legal personnel are often uneasy with one another. The guidelines, recently published, call for courts to restrain their demands and for psychologists to recognize both their responsibilities and limitations.

Among the 12 suggestions: --Psychological assessments of offenders should be performed only when there is a good chance they will serve a useful function. Psychologists should not, for example, assess a prisoner's suitability for a treatment program when no treatment program exists.

--Psychologists should be exceedingly cautious about offering predictions of criminal behavior for use in imprisoning or releasing offenders. The task force says flatly that psychologists are unable to determine or predict accurately when an offender is dangerous or rehabilitated. Even if they could, however, the task force says decisions about release involve legal and social judgments about the risks society is willing to run. As such, they are the proper business of the courts.

--The inability to determine whether or not an offender is rehabilitated does not mean that treatment programs should stop.

Controversy continues on nuclear power safety

Editor's Note: Nuclear power — is it safe? Can it be made safe? Is there room for human error? Some say yes, others say no. The power companies say their plant can take a direct hit by a plane or a hurricane. Critics look to Three Mile Island and the potential problems there. Whom does one believe?

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
A jumbo jet. A hurricane. A tornado. Or even a tornado hurling a huge locomotive. Tests show there's not much man or nature could throw that would even dent the four-foot-thick reinforced concrete walls of the giant containment silos at Texas' two nuclear power plants.

The 265-foot domed silos are lined with half-inch-thick steel and have four-foot-thick walls of specially-tested and inspected concrete webbed throughout with several layers of nearly three-inch-thick steel rods. The dome is nearly three feet thick and there's 12 feet of concrete underneath.

The entire building can be immediately sealed off at the slightest hint of a problem to contain any radiation that might leak from the inside.

But there's even more protection inside to prevent any radiation from reaching those massive outer walls. Four more feet of concrete surround the carbon steel reactor vessel, a 44-foot steel bottle whose eight-inch-thick walls contain the reactor core and the highly-pressurized, radioactive coolant water.

Stainless steel pipes carrying the water are specially designed and welded to withstand pressure of more than 3,000 pounds per square inch. Every millimeter of each weld is radiographed and inspected numerous times.

And should there be a problem — an extremely remote possibility, according to utility company officials — there are safety systems, backup safety systems, backup backup safety systems and, in some cases, backup backup backup safety systems.

The Comanche Peak and South Texas Nuclear Project plants, in short, have been designed to be as safe as man and his computers can make them.

That, however, is not good enough for Pam Mayo Clark, Dale Bridenbaugh, U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez and the growing number of opponents to the commercial nuclear power that is scheduled to arrive in Texas in 1981.

"The thing about nuclear power is that no matter how safe they claim it is, it's got to be perfect. Everything must work at all times," said Mrs. Clark, one of the leaders of the anti-nuclear Austin Citizens for Economical Energy. "There's no room for mechanical, technical or human error, because the result of such a minor mistake are so massive."

"We saw at Three Mile Island what happened when there are four or five minor mistakes."

Dale Bridenbaugh of San Jose, Calif., worked 22 years as an engineer in General Electric's nuclear power plant program before resigning in 1976 and becoming an outspoken critic of nuclear power.

"We don't know that the safety systems work. They haven't shown that a reactor core that's been operating a long time can be cooled if the coolant is lost. There's a buildup of heat. The Three Mile Island reactor had been operating only about three or four months and there was a partial meltdown," he said.

"I probably wouldn't be a critic if the industry would level with the public and admit they've got problems," he continued. "There's economic pressure to put these plants in service."

"When they come out with those asinine statements that no person has ever been killed by nuclear power, that nuclear power is safer than sex, safer than eating beans, then that makes me mad."

The March accident at Three Mile Island, Pa., in which some radioactivity from coolant water pumped out of the containment area and into holding tanks in the auxiliary building escaped into the atmosphere through a ventilation system, has spurred what was already a growing anti-nuclear movement in Texas.

But utility officials and nuclear scientists in Texas again point out that there was no one killed or injured in what was a serious series of mechanical breakdowns and operator errors. They hasten to add that nobody has ever been killed or seriously injured in 22 years of commercial nuclear power.

"If you scrape away all the commotion from Three Mile Island, it showed how safe nuclear power really is," said Dr. Richard Neff, a professor in Texas A&M's Radiological Safety Office.

"We've been telling people that a major accident could be more serious than that. We were wrong. It's not as serious as that," said Dr. Robert Cochran, chairman of Texas A&M's nuclear engineering department.

"People can talk all they want about what happened at Three Mile Island. What really happened? Not a damn thing when you come right down to it," said Bill R. Clements, a former nuclear submarine commander and vice president of the Texas Utilities subsidiary that'll run Comanche Peak.

"I think it's a gross oversimplification to say nuclear power has been operating 20 years with only one problem. Three Mile Island," countered Bridenbaugh. "There are no apparent bodies laying around. That's about all you can say. We don't know what the long term effect of the radiation release at Three Mile Island will be."

"It's what I call a nuclear credit card death. You sentence them today and they die tomorrow," said Gonzalez, a Democrat from San Antonio who has introduced anti-nuclear legislation in Congress.

But Texas Utilities and

Houston Lighting & Power Co., managing partner of the South Texas Project, are not taking the Three Mile Island accident lightly. Both have appointed independent technical review panels to study the accident and determine if any design or operational changes should be made with their plants.

Texas' anti-nuclear forces have zeroed in on welding and concrete problems in Brown & Root Co.'s construction of the two Texas plants.

Concrete work on the first containment building at the South Texas Project has been stopped indefinitely after air pockets were found in the concrete directly behind the steel inner lining.

Farmers must sign up soon for gas priority

Evelyn Mason, executive director of the Gray County American Soil Conservation Survey, is reminding farmers that agricultural concerns desiring protection against natural gas curtailments have until July 15 to file a written priority request with their supplier.

This applies to farmers, food processors, food distributors and other agricultural concerns. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) originally designated June 15 as the last day for this requirement, but extended it by one month.

Users of interstate natural gas have been certified by the Secretary of Agriculture to be protected up to the full requirement against curtailment.

Farmers' requests to the supplier should include name and address, intended end user and volumes of natural gas needed, natural gas purchases for the 12 most recent months for which records are available and documentation to support calculation of needs.

Standard industrial classification (SIC) code numbers such as 01 for crops and 02 for livestock should also be included, as well as a signature swearing or affirming to the accuracy of the request.

It is suggested that local natural gas companies be contacted concerning procedures for obtaining agricultural priority.

If additional assistance is needed, state and county ASCS offices hope to soon have information regarding eligible agricultural uses.

FOCUS

Supernova

925 years ago, a doctor named Ibn Butlan, who was living in Constantinople, observed a "spectacular star" in the sky. He was not alone. Astronomers in China and Japan, and perhaps some North American Indians, also noticed the unusual sight. What they saw was a supernova, a star that has run out of fuel and collapsed into a very dense state. It then explodes into a cloud of glowing gases, called a nebula. Supernova explosions are rare. Scientists believe that only about 14 of them have occurred in our galaxy during the past 2,000 years. The Crab Nebula contains what remains of the supernova Ibn Butlan observed in 1054.

Air collision kills five

ASHDOWN, Ark. (AP) — At least five persons were killed Tuesday night when two airplanes collided in mid-air over Millwood Lake in southwest Arkansas, police said.

Almost one hundred law enforcement officers and rescue workers were conducting dragging and diving operations Tuesday night in search of one more body. Ashdown Patrolman Tony Nations said.

Police said the identities of the victims were being withheld. Nations said a witness told police that a single-engine plane and a twin-engine plane, later identified as a Cessna 340, collided near the Millwood Lake Dam and plummeted into the lake about 6:15 p.m.

The witness, who was not identified by authorities, was quoted by police as saying that the larger plane was flying north and the smaller one was headed east. He said the small plane tried to bank away from the larger one, but the wings crashed together.

Hansen twins improve

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — David and Patricia Hansen wanted the world to see that their twin daughters look just like their little girls.

Peering from under bonnets decorated with ducks and seals, separated Siamese twins Lisa and Elisa Hansen sat for a family portrait released Tuesday, just over a month after pioneering surgery separated them.

The 20-month-old twins remained in satisfactory condition, but doctors warned that the tops of their heads, where they were joined at birth, are still vulnerable.

The girls sat with their parents and little sister, 2-month-old Shaylyn, for the portrait taken Monday.

"They had the picture taken because the parents felt that they wanted to let everyone know they looked like little girls now instead of sickly little girls with oxygen masks on," said University of Utah Medical Center spokesman John Dwan.

Friendships take on a new importance this coming year. You'll be meeting and forming many new relationships, but one in particular could bring about an unusual opportunity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Unexpectedly, the socializing from previous days spills over into today. Your hours could be filled with many pleasant surprises.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your attention will be drawn to a lot of little incidental things that need to be done around the house today. You certainly won't be bored.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Running errands and people popping in and out today will keep you on the go. There's a chance you might even hear from one you'd least expect to encounter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This continues to be a good period for you materially. Something unusual could happen today that shows a lot of promise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There is nothing stale or stodgy about you today. Your personality is right on the button and you're ready to respond to the latest vogue.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you wish to catch up with things after this hectic week, get off in a corner of your own. You'll do what you want to accomplish in lickety-split time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep your schedule flexible and loose. Although you may not have planned it, there will be a lot of people to deal with today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Conventional projects will not be on your agenda today. Give yourself a wide berth to be as inventive as possible.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You might find yourself wandering into unorthodox places today, mainly because your thinking is unusual. This could broaden and enlighten you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Problems that appear insoluble to others are as clear as a bell to you today. Don't hesitate to speak out and supply the answer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 10) Allow those little flashes of inspiration to guide your decision-making today. You won't get one bit ruffled if the day gets busy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your imagination is your greatest ally today. Whenever possible, put it into high gear and watch the genius come out of you.

Borg, Connors to meet in semis

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Roscoe Tanner is the only man who can stop Bjorn Borg from winning his fourth straight Wimbledon title, according to his fellow professionals.

Borg meets Jimmy Connors in the semifinals Thursday, with Tanner taking on unseeded American Pat Dupre.

But although the Connors-Borg match is being built up as the Wimbledon decider, the players think otherwise.

Tom Okker, the veteran Dutchman who has been playing at Wimbledon since Borg was 8 years old, says: "I think Borg will win the tournament. Connors plays from the baseline as well, but Borg is stronger at that game. But Tanner must have a chance with his huge serve. It is a big weapon on grass."

Okker, a semifinalist last year, was crushed 6-2, 6-1, 6-3 by Borg in Tuesday's quarterfinals. "He was playing pretty well," Okker said. "Only someone who serves very hard and plays very wide shots is likely to beat him. A big server could put him in trouble, but there are not many of those about."

Connors made it to the semifinals with a hard fought four-set victory over Texan Bill Scanlon, who had never won a round at Wimbledon before this year.

Connors won 6-2, 4-6, 7-6, 6-4, but Scanlon was unimpressed. "If Borg has the chances that Connors gave me, he will take Jimmy in three sets," he said.

Tanner, who was virtually always in command en route to a 6-1, 6-4, 6-7, 6-2 victory over Tim Gullikson, is strongly fancied to beat Dupre, the surprise of the tournament.

Gullikson said Borg is the favorite "because he has won for the last three years, but he is not the only player in the world. Roscoe is having his best year by far. He used to be a little bit inconsistent, but this year he is reaching the semifinals of nearly every tournament. Overall he is a much better player — and on any type of court."

"Roscoe serves so hard you can hardly see the ball coming out of his hand before it is at you," Gullikson added.

Tanner, though, is not prepared to count his chickens before they hatch. "I don't have to concern myself with Borg and Connors," he said. "They are on the other side of the draw. I have to think about my own opponent."

That is Dupre, who thrilled a rowdy center-court crowd for more than 3½ hours before beating unseeded Italian Adriano Panatta, 3-6, 6-4, 6-7, 6-4, 6-3.

Dupre, 24, who was born in Belgium, raised in Alabama, and now lives in La Jolla, Calif., has described himself as "a horrendous grass-court player."

But against Panatta, he trailed lost the first set and trailed 0-4 in the second before hitting back with seven successive games to pull himself back into the match. Panatta took the third, but came back Dupre again to take the fourth and then break Panatta in the first game of the final set.

U.S. continues to win at Pan Am Games

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The marauding United States athletes continued their raid on gold medals and the record books in the VIII Pan American Games Tuesday.

But two silver medals slipped away on disqualifications.

The Americans splashed their way to one world mark and five Pan Am Games records while running their incredible streak to 10 gold medals through as many events.

Going into today's third round of competition in these quadrennial Games, the U.S. competitors had 24 of the 33 gold medals awarded and 43 medals overall while Canada was the closest challenge with 20 medals overall.

Kim Carlisle of Cincinnati was disqualified after finishing second in the women's 100-meter backstroke because an American official said she failed to touch with her hand on the turn.

It was argued she obviously had touched, since her touch activated a timer. Officials refused to change the decision though a videotape replay appeared to back up Carlisle's performance.

Tom Peterson of Everett, Wash., won a gold in the 5,000-meter speed roller skating race earlier in the day, but lost a solid chance for a silver in the 500-meter round-robin roller skating event when an official ruled he varied ever so slightly out of his lane.

But generally it was another romp for the U.S.

Cynthia Woodhead, of Riverside, Calif., collected her second gold of the Games with a world record one minute, 58.43 seconds effort in the 200-meter freestyle.

Linda Jezek, of Los Altos, Calif., earned her second gold in the 100-meter backstroke.

Swimming team leader Tracy Caulkins of Nashville, Tenn., lost her chance for a third gold and a fifth medal overall when she was upset by her own teammate, Tami Paumier of Columbia, Md., in the 100-meter breaststroke.

Army Lt. Col. Lones Wigger, a living legend in rifle competition, added two gold medals to his impressive career collection as he set a Pan Am Games record and equalled a world record he tied 15 years ago in the English Match.

Don Nygard of La Crescenta, Calif., also earned two golds in leading the individual and team air pistol events.

The U.S. squad took golds in a total of 14 events, including the men's 400-meter freestyle relay and team skeet shooting. Also, Greg Louganis won the three-meter diving, Ken Sutton took the 500-meter round-robin skating for his second gold, and Fred Morante captured the artistic singles roller skating.

In basketball, the American five dispatched the Cuban squad 85-53. Coach Bobby Knight was the perfect gentleman, after a morning visit with the Pan American Sports Organization's Technical Committee.

The Committee requested the meeting because of Knight's behavior the night before in a rout of the Virgin Islands team. The Committee reported that Knight apologized.

Major league baseball games

By the Associated Press
 Ferguson Jenkins shook off his catcher's call and lost what would have been his first major league no-hitter.

With John Lowenstein leading off the fifth inning for the Baltimore Orioles, Jenkins ran the count to 3-and-2. "I called for a slider," said Texas Rangers catcher Jim Sundberg. "He went for a fast ball. He wanted to challenge him. He didn't want to trick him."

Lowenstein lined a single to right field.

"On 3-and-2, I just didn't want to walk someone. I was concentrating as much as I could," said Jenkins, a veteran of 15 years in the major leagues who struck out 10 and walked three in hurling the Rangers to a 4-0 victory over the Orioles Tuesday night.

Brewers 7, Yankees 2
 Home runs by Charlie Moore and Paul Molitor, and a two-run single by Robin Yount backed left-hander Mike Caldwell's 10-hit effort as Milwaukee defeated New York.

Red Sox 10, Royals 0
 Bob Watson belted a pair of home runs and Fred Lynn and Dwight Evans slammed one each to power Boston over Kansas City and back the five-hit pitching of Steve Renko.

Indians 7, White Sox 3
 Cliff Johnson powered a first-inning grand slam home run and added a run-scoring single to lead Cleveland past Chicago.

Blue Jays 9, Tigers 1
 Designated hitter Roy Howell drove in six runs with a grand slam homer and two singles, pacing Toronto to its victory over Detroit.

Twins 12-2, Mariners 2-10
 Pete Redfern hurled 61-3 innings of effective relief after replacing injured starter Dave Goltz in the first inning as Minnesota romped over Seattle in the opener of their two-night double-header.

Redfern took over after Goltz was struck on his pitching hand by a ground ball off the bat of Bruce Boche. The injury was diagnosed as not serious.

In the nightcap, Leon Roberts and Bob Stinson blasted home runs to lead Seattle to its victory. Roberts' eighth home run of the year, a three-run shot, highlighted the Mariners' offense to back the six-hit pitching of Byron M<sup>1</sup> Laughlin.

Angels 3, A's 0
 Dave Frost blanked Oakland on four hits and Don Baylor slammed his sixth homer in as many games as California won. Frost, 64, did not allow a runner past second base and allowed no walks.

The Atlanta Braves were looking up because they finally had somebody to look down on. For the first time since April 16, there was a team below the Braves in the National League West. And who was it?

None other than the Los Angeles Dodgers, the NL champions the past two years.

Bob Horner, the reluctant Brave earlier this season, knocked in three runs with his 12th homer and a sacrifice fly, powering the Braves past the San Francisco Giants 5-2 Tuesday night. With the San Diego Padres' 3-2 victory over Los Angeles, the Dodgers dropped into the NL West basement for the first time in 11 years.

The Dodgers are one-half game behind Atlanta and 17 games behind first-place Houston. The Braves are one-half game behind the fourth-place Padres.

Astros 3, Reds 2
 Enos Cabell singled, stole second and scored on Jose Cruz' two-out double in the ninth inning to lift Houston past Cincinnati.

Padres 3, Dodgers 2
 Gene Tenace singled home the go-ahead run in the sixth inning to give Gaylord Perry his 27th career victory as the Padres beat Los Angeles, dropping the Dodgers into last place for the first time since September, 1968.

The win snapped a four-game Padre losing streak and was the Dodgers' seventh loss in their last eight games.

Cubs 3, Expos 2
 Bill Buckner's tie-breaking bases-loaded single with two out in the ninth gave the Cubs the victory over first-place Montreal. Chicago relief ace Bruce Sutter, 2-2, got the victory.

Phillies 4, Mets 2
 Bake McBride's two-out, two-run homer in the seventh inning snapped a tie and carried Philadelphia past the Mets.

Pirates 4, Cards 1
 Dave Parker slammed his 14th homer and later unlocked a tie with an RBI double in Pittsburgh's triumph over St. Louis. John Candelaria and reliever Enrique Romo teamed for a four-hitter.

Western Open tourney to begin

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Affection for the rugged Butler National Golf Club course, where the 78th Western Open starts Thursday, does not go very deep with tournament golfers.

Some of them say it's a good place to send your mother-in-law.

Absenteeism runs fairly high. Missing this time are, among others, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller, Lee Trevino, Jerry Pate, Lanny Wadkins, Lon Hinkle, John Mahaffey and Chi Chi Rodriguez, the 1964 winner.

There are plenty left, however, with the favorite spots going to leading money winner Tom Watson, seeking his third Western title, and defending champion Andy Bean.

The purse has been raised by $75,000 to $300,000 with the winner bagging $54,000.

Marshall Dann, executive director of the Western Golf Association, would like to see all the big names in the tournament that benefits the Evans caddy scholarship program. But he realizes the reality of modern golf with players picking their spots.

"This is a trend that takes place every week some place on the tour," he said. "Most guys will play two, three or four weeks and then go home for a break. Even at the TPC (Tournament Players Championship) there were five players who didn't show up."

Dear Gabby

She Shines A Light On Financial Plight

Dear Gabby: My wife complains that I don't give her enough money to operate the household. I do the best I can in accordance with our budget. Any suggestions? — In A Bind.

Dear Bind: Speaking of your problem and household, why don't you take a good look around the premises and see what still-usable articles you have stored away. Did you know that these are a source of extra income? You can just call the Classified department of this newspaper and advertise them in the "Articles For Sale" columns. People are always looking for good bargains in such things. This will give your wife added money and cleaner storage space as well. Gabby and Classified... great problem solvers!

—ADV.

The Declaration of Independence

When in the Course of human Events, it becomes necessary for one People to dissolve the Political Bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the Powers of the Earth, the separate and equal Station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a Reason must be given to the World for the step which is about to be taken. We hold these Truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are, Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these Rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just Powers from the Consent of the Governed, that whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its Foundation on such Principles, and organizing its Powers in such Manner, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient Causes; and accordingly we have suffered long by Sufferances and Intolerable Abuses, which have required us to explain the Necessity of a new System of Government, for the Support and Maintenance of our unalienable Rights. We deem these United Colonies to be united together in the same Bonds of Union, and to be entitled to the same Rights and Privileges as the other Colonies of Great Britain. We therefore, the Representatives of the United Colonies, in General Congress assembled, do hereby declare, that these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be, free and independent States, that they are absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all former Attachments to that Crown, are hereby disclaimed and renounced. We do hereby declare, that we have full Power, sole and exclusive Jurisdiction, and Authority, to enter into all Treaties, Alliances, Confederations, and Combinations, with any State, Prince, or Potentate, or any Number of them, and to send and receive Ambassadors, Consuls, and other public Ministers, and to execute all Acts of Trade and Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which independent States may of Right do, and in all other Things to do all Acts and Things which independent States may of Right do, and in all other Things to do all Acts and Things which independent States may of Right do.
