THIS MARIJUANA PLANT, almost six feet tall, was spotted by Pampa Police Det. Lynn Brown (left) in the back yard of a vacant house on South Banks Street. Brown confiscated the plant and took it to police headquarters, where the pot was potted and given a new home. The plant, which will be destroyed, is an object of conversation among police, who say it is the biggest specimen of the weed they have yet encountered.

Probably Wednesday Skylab fall this week

WASHINGTON (AP) — At 100 miles up, Skylab will begin to glow — the first sign that it has begun its fiery death dive into Earth's thickening atmosphere. At 69 miles, it will begin to break apart.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration says the space station's much-heralded and much-discussed return to our planet will happen this week, probably Wednesday, Tuesday and Thursday are the other possibilities, NASA says.

First to rip away will be the four windmill-shaped solar wings atop a telescope mount, followed by a single large solar panel on the side of the craft.

Then, streaming flames like a meteor, Skylab will lose its telescope mount at 60 miles. Next to fall away will be a section containing a control center and a spaceship docking port.

The largest part of the station, the 48-foot long workshop where three crews of astronauts once lived, will blaze into a fireball at 55 miles. Its aluminum skin will incinerate, and aerodynamic forces will tear away the laboratory, bedrooms, kitchen and equipment used by the spacemen.

As Skylab disintegrates, fragments will break down into smaller fragments. Most will burn up. But about 20 minutes after the plunge begins, the first of about 500 pieces expected to survive will strike the Earth.

Pieces of debris weighing from a pound to 2½ tons will continue falling for 40 minutes over an area 4,000 miles long and 100 miles wide. The space agency says that no more than three pieces will fall in any 100-square-mile zone.

The surviving debris will weigh a total of about 40,000 pounds. The largest parts expected to make it through the searing descent are a 3,900-pound lead safe used to protect the astronauts' film from radiation and a 5,000-pound titanium airlock shroud.

NASA officials have repeatedly tried to assure the people of the world that chances of injury or damage are extremely slim. They say the odds against anyone at all being hit are 152 to one. The odds against a particular individual being struck are 600 billion to one, they say.

NASA released maps Friday showing areas of the world which will be in the path of Skylab Wednesday. But they merely suggested what cities could be in the path.

No one will know until the final minutes when and where the behemoth will break up.

Carter's support gone with wind

ATLANTA (AP) — The Southern support that helped Jimmy Carter gain the White House in 1976 is gone with the wind, and Sen. Edward Kennedy is now an equal contender for the votes of Dixie Democrats, according to a poll released Saturday.

"It is now apparent that the last stronghold of President Carter's support in the country has been broken," said Claibourne Darden Jr., president of the Atlanta-based Darden Research Corp.

Among all Southern voters, including Republicans and independents, Carter is now even with Kennedy and below former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, the pollster said. Among Democrats only, Kennedy outscored Carter.

Darden said his statistics are based on surveys conducted

June 26-29 among 750 registered voters in 10 Southern states. Carter carried all but one of those states in the 1976 election.

The sample was split evenly between the sexes and weighted to approximate the racial composition of the region, he said. The poll is subject to a maximum margin of error of 3.6 percent either way.

The poll follows a Louis Harris survey showing Carter's approval rating among all Americans was at 25 percent, the lowest figure of his administration and the lowest for any president in the last 30 years.

In a theoretical matchup with Kennedy, a survey of Democrats, Republicans and independents showed 42.9 percent favored Carter and 42.7 percent favored Kennedy, Darden reported.

Final trial for Davis?

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — In an era of sequels, it might be called "Cullen II" or even "Cullen III." But many feel the murder-for-hire trial beginning Monday will be the final criminal proceeding against millionaire Cullen Davis.

Both sides say it will be a grueling ordeal, a supreme test of the judicial system. If a jury can be found here, observers say, the proceedings could run through Thanksgiving.

Davis, 45, is charged with masterminding a summer 1978 plot to kill the judge presiding over his divorce proceedings and a dozen other people on an alleged enemies' list. None of the people on the alleged list was killed.

The defendant maintains he was set up and framed by a greedy, vindictive ex-wife who insists he killed her daughter in a bloody 1976 shooting spree.

An Amarillo jury acquitted Davis of the murder charge. A Houston jury failed to reach a verdict in the later murder conspiracy case.

Since the mistrial, Priscilla Davis has won a $3.4 million divorce settlement, and Davis has married his longtime girlfriend, Karen Master, and moved back into his $6 million hilltop mansion.

Prosecutors admit privately the new trial will probably be the final attempt to convict Davis on a multitude of pending charges. The state, not the defendant, is running out of money, at least as far as taxpayers are concerned.

The state already has spent more than $500,000 prosecuting Davis in three Texas cities. According to attorneys for his ex-wife, Davis has spent perhaps $7 million for his defense.

The Davis story — which has spawned two books, two records and millions of words in news coverage — dates back to Aug. 2, 1976. A man in black, wearing a woman's wig, invaded the Davis mansion and shot four people. Two died.

Killed were Priscilla Davis' lover, Stan Farr, and her daughter, Andrea Wilborn. 12 Mrs. Davis was wounded, and a mansion visitor, Gus Gavrel Jr., was crippled when a bullet lodged in his spine.

Priscilla Davis, now 37, Gavrel, 24, and Gavrel's date, Beverly Bass, now 21, identified Davis as the gun-wielding intruder.

After the longest, costliest murder trial in Texas history, an Amarillo jury deliberated little more than four hours before acquitting Davis of murdering Andrea.

Eight months after the verdict — on Aug. 20, 1978 — federal, state and local officers arrested Davis and charged him with soliciting the murder of Judge Joe Eidson, then the presiding judge in the long and bitterly contested Davis divorce case. Eidson was not harmed.

The forecast for today calls for fair skies with a high in the mid 90s.

Surprise!

Pampa police are investigating an unusual case of criminal trespass which reportedly occurred late Saturday morning or early Saturday afternoon at a Dwight Street residence.

Shortly after 1:30 p.m. Saturday, JoLene Reta Hapeman reported to police that someone had left a life-like male dummy in a chair by the living room door to her residence.

According to police, the artist-prankster gained entrance to the house by breaking a bedroom window. Clothes discovered by the trespasser in the bedroom were used to fashion a male dummy complete with cowboy boots, straw hat, jeans and a shirt.

Ms. Hapeman discovered the "intruder" about 1:30, when she returned home after an absence of several hours.

RODEO comes riding into Pampa this week as the 33rd Annual Top O' Texas Rodeo and Kid Pony Show occupy the rodeo grounds for a week. In keeping with the western spirit, the News has prepared a Gallery (see page 11) and a special tabloid section on profession cowboys, rodeo week and all the activities that go along with it.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

The cost of reality

The moon is full, soft breezes blow and your steady just asked you to marry him. You're on cloud nine, the whole world is beautiful and you can't wait to set up house in a little, ivy covered cottage. Through your rose-colored glasses nothing is impossible—the two of you can live on love. But can you?

We decided to take a look at some basic costs in Pampa. Costs that a newly married couple will be faced with in trying to set up their little love nest. Monthly costs that were taken care of by the folks before, but now are yours to pay.

Your little ivy covered cottage having two bedrooms and no furnishings will cost you about $200 per month to rent plus utilities. If you can find one that is furnished, expect to pay more.

Perhaps you would rather buy a home and you've just found one you love for $30,000. Do you have at least 10 percent of this cost for a down payment? If you don't, it's back to the rental. However, if you can get the down payment together and find a 30-year mortgage with 10 percent interest your monthly payment will be close to $320. This includes taxes, insurance, principle, and interest.

One thing we might note here is that, as a rule of thumb, your house payment should be no more than 25 percent of your gross income.

If you plan on buying a new car, a $6000 model will cost you about $200 per month for 36 months. Or if you choose a used model for $4500 your payment will be about $200 per month for 24 months.

Why is a used car payment as much as a new car payment? Because the used car has less value and a shorter life span, and the bank would like to get repaid before the wheels fall off.

Utilities are another area that people tend to overlook when they are in love. That phone your folks have been paying for but never get to use will cost you $24.25 to install and about $20 monthly for service. You will also have to consider a 2-month deposit or a letter of guarantee by someone who is already a customer with them before you even get one installed.

Your electricity will run about $27 per month and your gas about $23 monthly. The cost of these utilities will change with the weather and the seasons, but the above rates will be close to a yearly average.

Water, trash, and sewage carry a minimum charge of $14.44 monthly.

That should pretty well take care of the costs of shelter and transportation, but no gas for the car. Knowing from experience that you can't live on love alone, let's get to the munchies. Your grocery bill should run from $70 to $90 every two weeks. This doesn't include any eating out.

So far this adds up to monthly payments of $635 if you rent or $755 if you decide to buy a home. This doesn't include any medical or dental bills, no insurance payments, no emergencies and no money for recreation.

Let's not forget, Uncle Sam will take almost 25 percent of your gross income for taxes and social security.

What all this means, young lovers, is that one or both of you had better earn about $1000 per month to be able to pay your bills and just get by. If you plan on buying any furniture or other little goodies for the house you better make more than $1000 monthly.

Before you say I do — are you sure that you can?

Making a sacrifice

Rumor has it that the White House is getting ready to offer up John F. O'Leary, the number two man at the Department of Energy, as a sacrifice to the angry gods that created the gasoline shortage. A New York Times account quotes a source at DOE as saying the White House wants "someone who is a Carter person and is under political control," as a replacement for Mr. O'Leary. We're not sure why that would be so logical, aside from the fact that energy has become hopelessly tangled in regional, state and even precinct level politics, some of which is beginning to take on a rather seamy appearance. But we are sure that the gods won't be appeased merely by putting a single bureaucrat on the altar. Why not offer them the entire department?

Looking back at Pampa

Hot weather continued throughout the Pampa area today and the weatherman gave no promise of relief. The mercury rose to a blistering high of 98 degrees Wednesday, only three short of the year's high of 99 reached on July 4th.

Nine Pampans late this morning had appeared in the boards of equalization for the City of Pampa and the Pampa Independent School District.

Downtown shoppers may soon park to their hearts content without worrying about parking meters. Kirk Duncan, chairman of the Downtown Business Association, presented a request today to police chief Jim Conner asking for the deactivation of all parking meters for a trial period ending July 25th.

Today the 1964 Traffic Count stood at 68 injuries and 308 accidents. However, there had been no fatalities bringing the count to 828 consecutive deathless days.

1969
Means and ways to implement the $800,000 M.K. Brown Foundation Gift for construction of a civic auditorium were being sought today by the Auditorium Executive Committee.

A $4,000 contract to plan landscaping of city park areas along Red Deer Creek trail from North Hobart to Central Park and in Alameda Park was let today to Chevalier and Musiak, Lubbock landscape architects.

1974
The Gray County Board of Commissioners was scheduled to convene today as a board of equalization to consider the county's industrial roll.

A total of 534 July 4 holiday traffic deaths was reached early this morning by the National Safety Council.

Man, slave to weather

By Oscar Cooley
Speculating on the prospect of an economic recession is risky, but forecasting the weather more than a few days ahead is even more of a gamble.

Will we have a crop-scorching drought this summer? Should a farmer figure on ample and cheap corn next winter to fatten his hogs? Just why did my strawberries winter-kill under all that snow last winter? Economic well-being depends greatly on the weather.

And what does the weather depend on? "Surplus tropical heat, spilling out in the form of winds and ocean currents, is the driving force behind the earth's weather," says Barry Newman of the Wall Street Journal. But the tropics and why they don't keep their heat to themselves are not understood, he admits, saying this needs a lot more study.

Men have been talking about the weather, without knowing much about it, a long time. Aristotle wrote about it almost 2,300 years ago. But we lacked even a thermometer until Galileo invented it in 1607. Torricelli followed with the barometer in 1643. Not until about 1800 did men venture to forecast the weather. Even today, we cannot foresee the weather more than a few days ahead with any degree of accuracy.

But John Gribben, author of "Forecasts, Famine and Freezes," says the cost of the research which would enable us to predict average weather for the next decade—he does not say next week—"would probably be less than that of one oil rig." Either he is too optimistic or he hasn't priced oil rigs lately.

The meteorologists differ over whether the Earth is cooling off or heating up, but they are agreed it is always doing either one or the other. It seems the Earth has gone through grand cycles of heat and cold. At least four times in the last billion years, it has been so cold there were "ice ages."

Man has never lived through an Ice Age. In fact, our human civilization has developed, they say, in the last 10,000 years since the last ice retreated.

Apparently, it is still retreating, for the average temperature of the Earth is about 58 degrees. So we are getting warmer.

Further evidence that it is still a little chilly are the great ice caps, two miles or more thick, that still blanket Antarctica and the Arctic Ocean down into Greenland. We know there have been times when the poles had no ice, mammoths roamed in Siberia, and petroleum was laid down in northern Alaska. Be patient and these times will come again.

However, don't throw away your longies. The ice will not retreat appreciably for thousands of years, and meanwhile there can be a cooling trend within the warming. Such cooling could be caused by the increasing dust in the air, which cuts off some of the sun's rays. Such dust could be kicked up by man or it could be a result of the increased volcanic activity we have had since 1950.

Reid Bryson of University of Wisconsin thinks the air has become so much dustier that in the last 20 years the Earth has gone one-sixth of the way toward a new Ice Age.

Others say there is a warming trend due to a 10 percent increase of carbon dioxide in the air since 1850, caused by man's burning of fossil fuels. The carbon dioxide causes heat to be re-radiated back to the Earth. This is known as the "greenhouse effect." Seems that by burning fossil fuels, such as coal, we warm ourselves twice, as the wood-chopper is famed for doing.

Let us hope it does not warm up too fast, for the polar ice caps would then melt, adding so much water to the oceans that every coastal city would be flooded and Coney Island would disappear under the waves.

Our economic life is vastly affected by the weather. Obviously, the colder the weather the more energy man consumes to keep warm. But hot weather brings more air conditioners into operation and these, too, use energy. Extremes of both heat and cold impel people to insulate their homes, making work for those who make and install insulation.

Nice summer weather such as we are having makes crops grow. It also tempts workers to take more time off for recreation, increasing absenteeism and lowering production in the factory and office.

Producing oil from wells in the Gulf of Mexico and North Sea gets costlier as the gales on those waters increase. Heavy rains at harvest time cut the wheat crop, and June frosts in Brazil make our morning cup of coffee more expensive.

Man tries to control weather, as he tries to interfere with all of nature's doings. Seeding the clouds to make it rain or snow is common practice. It is expensive, and up to now it has been effective only locally. There is also the little matter of making it rain on the just, not on the unjust. Weather control is still in its infancy.

There has been a lot of talk in West Texas and the Texas Panhandle about water lately. But has anyone thought of any sure fire answers?

Well, a lot of people in Pampa think they may have an idea to help (remember I didn't say solve) the water problem.

When it rains in the Panhandle, it never rains in half measures. Streets are flooded, the ground turns to mud and trips to the garbage cans can resemble a tour of the New Jersey swamp. What if we could store that water for future use instead of letting it slip through our fingers?

Some people would like the powers that be to design a system that will trap all the runoff water that evaporates into our massive Texas sky.

The idea is a simple one. Provide a drainage system that would funnel all of the runoff water into one area to provide a means of recreation, income and water for future needs.

Millions of gallons of water are lost each year as we allow that precious rainwater to slip through our grasp.

One idea being kicked around calls for the city of Pampa to install proper drainage, allowing the water that stands on city streets to flow into the Red Deer Creek Basin with one small holding area in the Central Park region and another near the Miami area.

This is revolutionary thinking and would take considerable planning to accomplish, but we have to make plans now so that our children may have water for their needs.

And a water storage area or small lake could bring other advantages for Pampa.

Central Park would become the center of activity for which it was designed — and water always adds to the beauty of any city.

Additional planning could build an entire recreation system around a small water storage area in the area between Highland General Hospital and Clarendon College.

The area could be stocked with fish for our avid anglers, paddle boats could be added for Sunday recreation — the options are numerous.

Many, many ideas could be incorporated to add to the growth of our city.

Pampa is no longer the small farming and ranching community it once was. As time goes on, it will continue to develop into even larger city.

We now have the opportunity to add to our town's beauty and to aid future generations with an emergency water supply.

The time will come, and it will be in our lifetimes, when water will be the most important resource we can have.

We need to look to the future now — and not into the past.

"You meet our standards for bigotry, prejudice, intolerance and flaunting of firearms, Grosslump, but the imperial wizard has asked me to speak to you about your sheet ..."

When President Carter is right

by paul harvey

President Carter's most vociferous critics are in his own party.

To politicians, right and left, he is expendable.

Even when he proposes legislation about which there should be no quarrel—it begets a quarrel.

As a candidate Jimmy Carter was applauded and supported and elected when he espoused "less government" and "less government extravagance."

Now when he tries to lead us in that direction he looks back to discover that his erstwhile followers—somewhere back there—turned a corner!

Whatever President Carter has done or failed to do, how can anybody fault his effort to remedy the number one cause of inflation—federal government spending?

Yet here he is—daring to send to Congress a proposal for saving $4.6 billion a year in federal government outgo and his friends are ignoring him and his foes are trying to shoot him down.

Federal government salaries are disproportionately higher than salaries in private industry.

A government janitor may make more than a registered nurse.

The President is not proposing reducing government salaries—only freezing them in place until other wages catch up.

He dared to over-ride his own White House advisors in proposing this "pay reform plan."

As is, 462,000 blue-collar workers make eight percent more working for Uncle Sam than working for private industry.

White collar workers—14 million of them—make an average 12 percent more. Compared to some cities clerical workers may make as much as 100 percent more.

The President's hands are tied in curtailing increases in the U.S. Postal Service because those wages are established by collective bargaining.

But he is trying to do what he can do to keep government wages in line with other wages.

Now, you'd think industry would certainly and unanimously applaud that objective. Not necessarily.

In San Antonio, Tex., for instance, industry pays comparatively low wages. But the federal government has 30,000 employees in San Antonio—and their payroll pumps $500 million a year into the local economy—and San Antonio merchants like that.

They do not want President Carter holding government salaries down.

Understandably the American Federation of Government Employees, their dominant union, is vehemently opposing the President.

Even those members of Congress who would like to help the President have to live in the District of Columbia. And in D.C., if you want to be seen on TV with proper lighting, there are some things you just don't talk about.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, July 8, the 189th day of 1979. There are 176 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1944, in the Pacific War, the most important of the former Japanese-mandated islands in the Marianas, Saipan, was captured by the United States after fierce fighting.

On this date:
In 1663, King Charles II of England granted a charter to Rhode Island.

In 1835, the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia cracked as it was being rung during the funeral of Chief Justice John Marshall.

In 1919, President Woodrow Wilson received a tumultuous welcome in New York after his return from the Versailles Peace Conference.

In 1940, Norway's government moved to London after 62 days of resisting Nazi invaders in World War II.

In 1950, U.S. Gen. Douglas MacArthur was named commander-in-chief of United Nations forces in Korea.

In 1973, the United States announced that postal service with mainland China had been restored after being suspended for 25 years.

Ten years ago: Bishops and priests of the Church of England defeated a proposal for unification with the Methodist Church.

Five years ago: Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and his Liberal Party were the winners in national elections in Canada.

One year ago: A fire in Rio de Janeiro's Museum of Modern Art destroyed the entire collection of paintings, sculpture and engravings—some 1,000 works of art.

Today's birthdays: Singer Steve Lawrence is 44. Ballerina Cynthia Gregory is 33. Actress Faye Emerson is 62. Singer Billy Eckstine is 65.

Thought for today: It is a great nuisance that knowledge can only be acquired by hard work — Somerset Maugham, English writer, 1874-1965.

Another United Way agency

High Plains Epilepsy Association

The High Plains Epilepsy Association was established in 1972 in response to a need for services to area persons with epilepsy and their families.

These services, paid for in part by United Way campaign contributions, include purchasing anticonvulsant medication, physician referrals, payment of doctor and hospital bills, transportation; counseling on an individual and family basis, agency referrals and employment assistance.

In addition to free literature for public distribution, the association maintains a lending library of books, films and slides and has staff and volunteers on call for programs and workshops.

There are an estimated 540 people with epilepsy in Gray County. About 75 percent of people with epilepsy will begin to seizure before the age of 18. This makes the school years crucial for them, both physically and emotionally.

Because the school plays such a vital role in the life of the child, the Epilepsy Association emphasizes its work through its "School Alert" program and through the cooperation of the Pampa school nurses.

In keeping with its belief that most children with epilepsy can learn to deal confidently with all life situations through early diagnosis, treatment and counseling with parents, the agency is offering group meetings for counseling and for persons with epilepsy.

These meetings allow them to share common concerns and receive answers to their questions from experts in a wide range of fields related to good mental and physical care.

The meetings will be held monthly at the Children's Rehabilitation Center, 1250 Wallace Boulevard in Amarillo. A baby-sitter will be available for the evening sessions.

Although the meetings are designed primarily for parents of children with epilepsy, teachers and agency representatives who work with children should find them informative also.

For further information on the program or assistance of any kind from the association, contact Mr. or Mrs. Ed Sweet, Mr. or Mrs. Bob Carmichael or Director Mrs. James T. Brown of Amarillo.

The High Plains Epilepsy Association is headquartered at 806 S. Bryan, Room 213 in Amarillo. The agency's phone number is (806) 372-3891.

Clements on TV

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements will join three other governors Sunday on "Issues and Answers," an ABC television program that will originate from the National Governors' Association meeting in Louisville, Ky.

The program will be taped 1 1/2 hours before it is shown at 1 p.m. Texas time.

The other governors on the program are Julian Carroll of Kentucky, John Carlin of Kansas and William Milliken of Michigan.

On Monday, Clements will present an energy paper for discussion and a report of the Subcommittee on Immigration and Boundary Relations.

Estes fate in jury's hands

DALLAS (AP) — A decision on whether Billie Sol Estes remains a free man or returns to a federal prison could be decided Monday when a jury resumes its deliberation on the fate of the West Texas financial wizard and convicted swindler.

Deliberations are to resume at 9 a.m. Monday following a weekend recess. The 8-woman, 4-man jury discussed evidence in the federal fraud and conspiracy case for 7 1/2 hours Friday but failed to reach a verdict on any of the 10 counts contained in three indictments.

In the 1960s, Estes stockpiled a fortune by selling mortgages on non-existent fertilizer tanks to hundreds of West Texas farmers. He was convicted in 1963 of fraud and was assessed a 15-year sentence. He served less than half the term in federal prisons in Kansas, Minnesota and Texas before being paroled in 1971.

Now, the 54-year-old former financier and his co-defendant, Raymond K. Horton, 51, are accused of masterminding a similar scheme to raise money by selling $600,000 worth of non-existent oilfield steam cleaning equipment to leasing companies.

The government has also charged the two men with concealing assets so Estes would not have to pay $10 million in back taxes.

Francis bail set at $20,000

AMARILLO — Former Pampa businessman Kevin Francis is free on a combined bond of $20,000 set at appearances in two district courts Friday on a murder charge and two counts of solicitation of murder.

Francis, 29, faces the charges in connection with the Oct. 8, 1977, slaying of business partner Frank Potts at their discount clothing store in Amarillo.

Francis, who moved to Amarillo 2 1/2 years ago and was reportedly planning on bringing another store to Pampa, surrendered to Potter County sheriff's deputies at 1 p.m. Friday. He was named in three sealed indictments returned Thursday night by a Potter County grand jury.

George Hicks, 33, of Amarillo was also indicted by the grand jury for the Potts slaying. Hicks was already in the Potter County jail on an armed robbery charge.

Travis Shelton of Lubbock, former president of the State Bar of Texas, accompanied Francis when he appeared before 25th District Judge Naomi Harney on the murder charge and one count of solicitation of murder.

Shelton reportedly asked Harney for a postponement of Francis' arraignment to give him time to read the indictments and prepare any pretrial motions he might have. Harney ordered Francis to appear for arraignment at 1:30 p.m. July 18. Only the murder charge will be tried in her court, however.

One count of the murder solicitation charges will be tried in 108th District Court before Judge Edward Nobles, who is on vacation.

The other solicitation count will be tried in 320th District Court. Judge Jerry Shackelford set arraignment for 9 a.m. July 16.

SKELLYTOWN — Funeral services for M.L. "Barney" Mills, 67, of Skellytown will be held at 2:30 p.m. Monday at the First Baptist Church of Skellytown with Rev. Milton Thompson, minister, officiating.

Burial will follow in Memory Gardens Cemetery in Pampa under the direction of Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors. He was dead on arrival at Highland General Hospital early Saturday morning.

Born March 4, 1912, at Princeton, Ind., he moved to Skellytown in 1936 from Sapulpa, Okla. He worked for Texaco for 40 years and retired in 1977. He was a member of the First Baptist Church of Skellytown. He married Clara B. Hopper June 23, 1933, at Claremore, Okla.

He is survived by his wife of the home; one daughter, Mrs. Vivian Kay Summers of Denver, Colo.; four sons, Marlin of Deer Park, Marvin of McPherson, Kan., Richard of Skellytown and Gary of Pampa; three sisters, Mrs. Pauline Gattis of Tulsa, Okla., Mrs. Betty Jo Sauls of Pampa and Mrs. Mildred Diltz of Bell Garden, Calif.; one brother, Robert Bowman of Broken Bow, Okla.; his stepmother, Mrs. Edith Mills of Pampa; and 13 grandchildren.

W.R. "BILL" BRADSTREET

SHAMROCK — Funeral services for W.R. "Bill" Bradstreet, 88, of Shamrock are scheduled for 3 p.m. today at First Southern Methodist Church in Shamrock. Burial will be in Dozier Cemetery by the Clay Funeral Home. He died Friday.

He was born in Lockhart and had lived in Shamrock since 1960. He was a farmer and a member of the First Southern Methodist Church. He and his wife, Susie, were married in 1949 after the death of his first wife, Myrtle.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Truman of Shamrock and Jim of Houston; three stepsons, Robert Harvey of Snelling, Calif., and Raymond and Ray of Amarillo; three daughters, Mrs. Lola Cole of San Diego, Calif., Mrs. Billy Reints of Panama City, Fla., and Mrs. Linda Hall of Shamrock; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Etta Hudson of Texola, Okla.; a brother, Les of Phoenix, Ariz.; a sister, Mrs. Rozena Horn of Wheeler; 21 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

JULIUS R. MEAKER JR.

PANHANDLE — Funeral services for Julius R. Meaker Jr., 55, will be held at 11 a.m. this morning at the First Baptist Church of Panhandle with Rev. David Campbell officiating. Burial will be in the Panhandle Cemetery by Smith Funeral Home.

He died Friday. Survivors include his wife, three daughters, his stepmother, a brother and a sister.

DOVIE FLETCHER

Funeral services for Mrs. Dovie Fletcher, 74, of 1129 Garland St. are pending at Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

Mrs. Fletcher died Saturday afternoon at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo.

She was born Jan. 1, 1905, in Indian Territory. She was married Sept. 12, 1925 to Walter L. Fletcher in Walters, Okla. Mr. Walters preceded his wife in death on March 20, 1976. She was a member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Peggy Tucker of Amarillo; two sons, Walter Lee Jr. and Charles Allen, both of Odessa; eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press

More thundershowers and slightly cooler temperatures were forecast for Texas Sunday, with cloudy to partly cloudy skies.

The Gulf Coast, East and South Central Texas and the Southwest Texas mountain areas especially could expect showers, the National Weather Service said.

Thunderstorms rumbled along the upper Gulf Coast Saturday, with at least one funnel cloud sighted in the Texas City area, and other showers were scattered across the rest of the state.

Early afternoon temperature readings were in the mid-to-upper 80s in most areas under cloudy to partly cloudy skies. A few low 90s were reported along the Rio Grande, where conditions were clear.

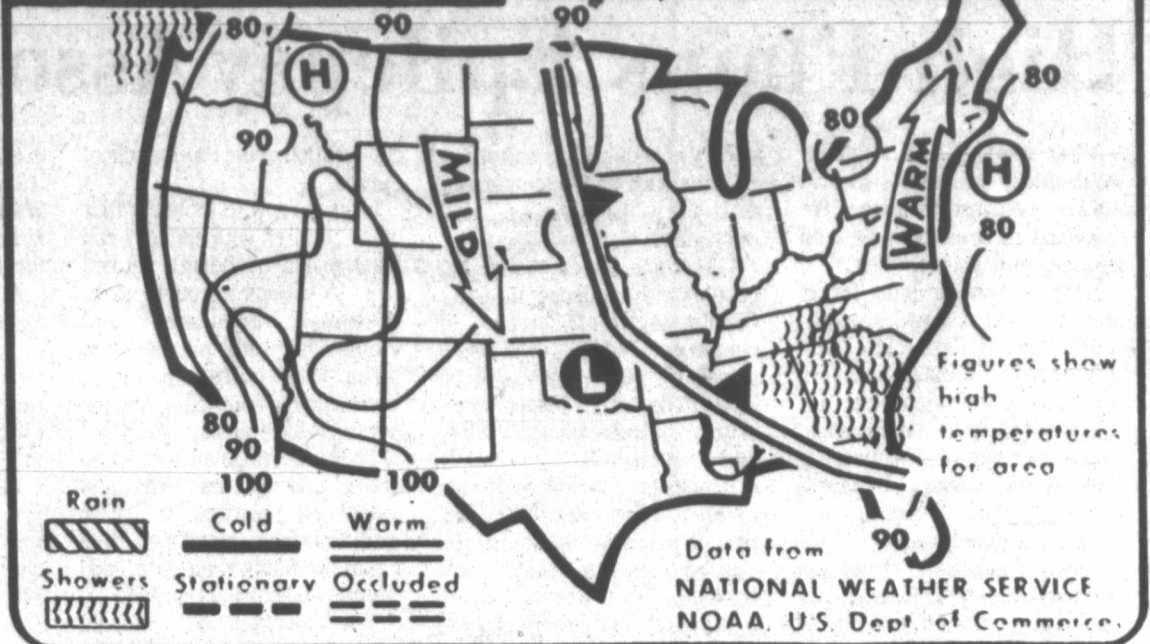

The funnel cloud reported in the Moses Lake area near Texas City Saturday morning prompted tornado and special marine warnings for Galveston County and Galveston Bay.

National weather

Showers and thundershowers were scattered across the nation late Saturday. Rain fell on areas from Oregon and Washington into Montana and Wyoming, from Nebraska into the Texas Panhandle and New Mexico, and from the lower Mississippi Valley across the south Atlantic Coast.

Today's forecast predicts showers and thundershowers reaching from Florida to South Carolina and westward through the Tennessee and lower Mississippi Valleys. Afternoon and evening thundershowers will develop from Montana into eastern Washington with widely scattered thundershowers over the southeastern Plains.

FORECAST

SHOWERS ARE PREDICTED Sunday for Georgia and parts of North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Washington state, according to the National Weather Service. Clear skies and mild to hot weather are predicted for the rest of the nation.

Texas forecast

West Texas — Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms east of mountains today and tonight, otherwise clear to partly cloudy through Sunday.

Extended

North Texas: Clear to partly cloudy and warm. Scattered thunderstorms mainly over the southeast portion Tuesday.

Niehous' employer tried for release several times

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — During the three years businessman William F. Niehous was held captive by leftist guerrillas, his American employer tried to negotiate his release but was blocked by the Venezuelan government.

Owens-Illinois Inc. says it even was willing to pay $3.4 million in ransom but was stymied by the threat of a takeover of its glass-manufacturing plants in Venezuela.

Today, with Niehous safe at home with his wife and three teen-age sons, the Toledo-based company still is keeping a lid on its rescue attempts because of its sensitive relationship with the Venezuelan government.

Asked last week if he was satisfied with his employer's efforts, Niehous said, "I haven't reached a decision on that yet."

Niehous, 48, manager of Venezuelan operations for Owens-Illinois since 1974, was spirited away from his Caracas home Feb. 27, 1976.

He was rescued by police June 29 from a primitive jungle but where he had been held much of his three years and four months in captivity. He lost 44 pounds during the ordeal but otherwise remained in good health.

Owens-Illinois, the world's largest manufacturer of glass-container goods with net sales of $3.1 billion in 1978, owns or has interest in 100 facilities in 21 countries, including four in Venezuela.

William W. Coleman, vice president in charge of Western hemisphere operations, was Niehous' boss when the kidnapping occurred.

"Of course we're all very relieved," he said last week after the rescue. "We've been working on it (the case) full time since the kidnapping."

Sam Allen, director of the Owens-Illinois news bureau, said that when it became apparent Niehous was not going to be released quickly, Coleman assigned many of his own corporate responsibilities to an assistant treasurer so he could devote more time to the case.

Coleman said that during the three years Niehous was being held captive, he worked "24 hours a day" on the case, although he declined to elaborate on his activities.

"The government told us we absolutely could not negotiate with the kidnapers," said Allen. "But we said from the beginning we would do anything necessary to find him."

The Venezuela government, assuming a hard line against terrorism, said it was against government policy to negotiate with the kidnapers. Would Owens-Illinois have paid the $3.4 million ransom the guerrillas sought? "Sure," Allen said, adding, however, that he knew of no such payment.

A Caracas newspaper reported in January 1976 that half the ransom was paid, but the report was never confirmed.

In early April 1976, Owens-Illinois met one demand from the kidnapers by buying space in the New York Times for a manifesto from the guerrillas. The company met another demand by paying bonuses of $116 to each of more than 1,000 Venezuelan employees.

City streets deadly

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It's safer to drive on interstate highways and farm-to-market roads in Texas than on city streets, the Department of Public Safety reports.

DPS statistics reported Friday showed that traffic deaths are up 13 percent in cities and towns and accidents in which fatal accidents occur are up 8 percent.

On the other hand, DPS said, fatalities on interstate highways are down 17 percent and deaths on farm and ranch roads are down 10 percent.

Hopefully, when you read this, the grasshopper cost-share control program in Gray, Wheeler, and Collingsworth counties will be completed on a satisfactory basis. There have been a few minor problems that had to be worked out as they arose which was to be expected. I guess, with a program involving this much overall acreage in the Panhandle needing to be sprayed quickly.

Mr. Roy Moritz and all of the people working under him have certainly been doing their best in my estimation to insure a satisfactory kill of grasshoppers. Many long, hot hours including a lot before the sun comes up have been required of them and the spray contractors and their people.

WHEAT HARVEST

We have heard of some real good wheat yields. Some almost to a point that the first story teller doesn't have a chance. Seriously, I would be interested in knowing about your high yields on both dryland and irrigated land. We may not have another wheat year like this for a long time. Call 669-7429 or come by the office if you had some real good yields as I would be interested in knowing about them.

SIDEDRESSING CROPS WITH NITROGEN

Due to late planting caused by unfavorable weather, some farmers need to consider nitrogen sidedressing.

Early nitrogen applications — within 30 days after planting if possible — are important where no fertilizer was applied at or before planting. Nitrogen sidedressing is also important for late-planted crops.

If some nitrogen has already been applied, the sidedressing can be put in the row middle. Otherwise, apply the nitrogen closer to the row so it can reach the roots sooner. Of course, take care not to damage plant roots and beds.

Incorporate the fertilizer into the soil's top four inches to hasten its availability if liquid or dry is used. Also, soluble nitrogen will reach roots sooner.

Phosphorus sidedressing is generally not profitable. Most crops need a good supply of readily available phosphorus in the seedling root zone, and delayed application fails to meet this need.

The objective of sidedressing is to apply fertilizer quickly so it will be available to plants as soon as possible.

BAGWORM SEASON

Homeowners need to be on the alert for bagworms. I have had several calls recently about severe infestations of bagworms. Some of these heavy infestations can strip a tree very quickly and cause death of the tree in a year or two.

Control of the bagworms while they are small is much easier and tree damage will be slight. Foliar applications of Sevin, Malathion or Diazinon give good control. Also, Di-Pel will give good control of all kinds of worms, including bagworms. Make sure you cover all tree foliage when you spray. If only a few are present, you may prefer to pick them off by hand, just be sure to destroy the bagworms after picking them off. Double check in a few days to insure that you didn't miss any as repeat applications may be needed.

Mexican authorities deny report of attack

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — An Iranian Islamic leader claims his revolutionary guerrillas attacked the Mexican residence of the exiled Shah of Iran with poison gas and mortars, Tehran newspapers reported today. The report was denied by Mexican authorities and aides to the deposed Iranian monarch.

Ayatollah Sadeq Khalkhali, a revolutionary court judge, who says he is masterminding a campaign to kill the shah, was quoted as saying the attack occurred Tuesday and killed a passerby near Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's rented villa at Cuernavaca, near Mexico City.

It was the second such claim by Khalkhali in two weeks.

"It is totally ridiculous, totally absurd, not one fact is true," Mike Moore, an aide to the shah, told a Mexico City reporter by telephone. "The shah is enjoying perfect health and continues enjoying his visit to Mexico."

Mexican police also denied the report, saying no violent deaths had occurred recently in Cuernavaca. Reporters and photographers who have been standing by near the shah's residence said nothing unusual had happened, and this was corroborated by local residents.

Satellite nears Jupiter's moons

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — As the first Jupiter photographs start coming back from Voyager 2, scientists expect the star of the show to be Europa, one of the giant planet's moons.

"Europa is the object we know least about and that's where the most surprises may come from," project scientist Edward Stone said Friday. "That's the missing link in our knowledge of Jupiter's moons."

Voyager 2's photographs also show that some major changes have taken place on Jupiter since Voyager 1's visit four months ago.

Scientist Bradford Smith said the planet's most distinctive feature, a red spot about three times the size of the Earth, shows some as yet unexplained changes in the cloud formations around the area.

The Jet Propulsion Laboratory scientists are as interested in Jupiter's moons as in the planet itself because, as Stone says, "They are like a miniature solar system."

Jupiter has 13 moons, and the Voyager 1 spacecraft got a good look at three of the four major ones — Callisto, Io and Ganymede. Voyager 2 will take pictures of the back sides of Ganymede and Callisto to see if they are any different from what Voyager 1 saw on the front.

The first Voyager's surprising discovery of volcanoes on Io prompted scientists to change Voyager 2's program to include 10 hours of watching Io in hopes of filming an eruption. Besides Earth, Io is the only body in the solar system known to have active volcanoes.

But the big wonder is Europa, and Voyager 2's photographs — to be taken Monday when the spacecraft is closest to both Europa and Jupiter — will show 10 times the detail as earlier photographs.

Jupiter seems to be mostly a gigantic ball of hydrogen and helium 1,200 times the size of Earth.

Teachers' commission to meet in Austin

The Commission on Standards for the Teaching Profession will have its first full business meeting at 8:30 a.m. July 20 in the Texas Education Agency office complex, 150 E. Riverside Drive in Austin.

The former president of the Texas State Teachers Association, Grace Grimes, was elected to chair the commission's organizational meeting. She is the director of secondary instruction and instructional resources for the Marshall Independent School District.

The commission replaces the State Board of Examiners. It will make recommendations designed to improve teacher education and serve as an advisory body to the State Board of Education.

High School names top ten seniors

Pampa High School recently released the names of its top ten academic juniors for the past school year.

Pam Homer has the highest grade point average of 3.6920, while Mary A. Skoog is close behind with a clean 3.6.

Other standings in descending order are Teresa J. Baxter with a 3.57959, Stephen W. Kotara with a 3.525, Mikala Moore with a 3.52245, Nickita G. Kadingo with a 3.50667 and Amy Denise Lewis with a 3.50435.

The remaining three are Michael D. Butler with a 3.48571, Linda R. Lee with a 3.47826 and Randy R. Tucker with a 3.47556.

These grade point averages can change during the year to affect the outcome of who would be the valedictorian and salutatorian for the upcoming graduating class.

Clarendon College begins enrollment

Clarendon College and its Wellington and Childress branches will begin enrollment on July 16 and 17 for their second session of summer classes.

Wellington will register students from 6 to 7 p.m. on July 16 at the high school, while Childress will enroll its students a day later from 6 to 7 p.m. at its high school.

They both will be offering Composition and Reading and Child Psychology as Monday-Wednesday courses, and World Literature, Social Problems and Accounting Principles as Tuesday-Thursday classes.

The school in Clarendon will hold enrollment July 16-20. Classes will begin July 16 and run from 6 to 10 p.m. each night until the last day of school on August 24.

Clarendon classes will include General Zoology, American History (1815 to Present), Composition and Reading and Child Psychology on Mondays and Wednesdays.

General Botany, Introduction to Philosophy, General College Chemistry, State and Local Government, Intermediate Algebra, Social Problems and Composition and Reading will be offered on Tuesday and Thursdays.

Foot Notes

By RANDY LIGHTFOOT
Pampa News Sports Editor

As of Thursday, I have taken over the reins of the sports department here with the Pampa News and I want to take this opportunity to introduce myself to all of you.

I am originally from Plainview and graduated from high school there in 1971. Also, for the past year or so I have been in charge of sports for the Borger paper, so I am no stranger to panhandle sports in general or Pampa activities in particular.

I have been extremely active in sports for over 11 years. I attended the University of Texas for 3 1/2 years and competed on the Longhorn track team as a hurdler for three years.

It was at Texas that I acquired my training in journalism (although many professors there may deny it), but I left the school before graduation for personal reasons and returned to Plainview and worked for a living for a little over a year.

When the opportunity presented itself, I completed my education at Wayland Baptist College and also used my one remaining year of eligibility in track.

Two important things happened to me while back in Plainview for those three years. For one, I acquired a degree in Health, Physical Education, and Recreation. Even more importantly, I met a girl named Penni (a WBC cheerleader, of course) and married her.

She and our 11-month-old son James were here in town Friday as we began the rather exhaustive hunt for a new place to live. Right now, we are still living in Borger and I am commuting to work and, as I'm sure many residents can attest, it is very difficult to find a rent house which meets all our needs.

It was her first time to visit Pampa and she agrees with me that this looks like it will be a fantastic place to settle down. One thing we were both very impressed with is the beautiful park which runs through the city.

As it is everytime a new man comes to the controls of something, some changes can be expected in the weeks and months to come on the sports pages. Some will be for the better and will become a permanent fixture as long as I'm here. Others may not be so good and they will disappear as quickly as they appeared.

Either way, I am interested mainly in printing what my readers want to see. I'm very seldom too busy to take a phone call or see a visitor.

One aspect of my job which is given the highest priority is reporting local events. Whether they be little league, Harvester sports, local golf tournaments, or any number of other things, I want it on these pages.

But, I cannot do this alone. Don't take it for granted that I know everything (or anything for that matter) that is happening in the area. With a sports staff that consists only of myself and my telephone, there will be several things which can slip by without my knowledge.

Bethea taking spotlight as Dallas opens camp

THOUSAND OAKS, California (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys came home to California Friday. Home, at least, for the next month as they opened their 1979 training camp on the California Lutheran campus.

And while Coach Tom Landry and his staff will be watching each of the players with interest, Larry Bethea seems to be capturing much of this year's spotlight.

Bethea, a one-year veteran, is a likely candidate for the defensive left end slot vacated when Ed "Too Tall" Jones abandoned football for boxing.

"I'm aware that they're going to be seeing how I can handle it," said the former No. 1 draft choice from Michigan State. "They've told me that I'll be working out as a defensive end and also at left tackle.

"They've told Larry Cole the same thing. I think they want to see who can handle which job the best and then eventually have us concentrate on one or the other position.

"You can't ask anyone to be more fair than that," the 6-5, 250-pound Bethea continued. "I think I can become a starter. That's what I'm here to prove.

"And hey, it doesn't really matter to me where. I just want to play."

Pancel course hosts tourney

The team of Sherrill Grady, Stan Keathley, Ade Becker and Ed Juenger fired a 60 to take top honors in the highly competitive Pancel Golf Club Selective Shot Club Tournament completed Saturday afternoon.

Carding a 61 and finishing in second was the Ardeth Keathley, Roy Stephens, Jerry Scott and Walt Bailey foursome. Third place went to the team of Charlotte League, Roger Peason, Charlie Loeffler and Bill Ellis with a round of 62.

There were a total of 11 teams in the tournament.

Men's softball tournament set

A men's invitational fastpitch softball tournament will be held at Lions' Club park July 13-15.

The deadline for registration is Wednesday and the entry fee is $55 plus one game ball.

All teams are invited to participate and interested teams may contact Nelson Medley at 669-2470.

Borg wins record 4th straight title

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg struggled for five sets Saturday to beat Roscoe Tanner and win the Wimbledon men's singles title for the fourth year in a row.

The match seesawed continually before Borg pulled it out 6-7, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The 23-year-old Swede sank to his knees, his arms held high, as Tanner's final service return shot went wide.

Borg is the only man to have won the crown four times in a row since the challenge round was abolished in 1922. Before then, the defending champion only showed up for the final round. The last man to win such a string was Anthony Wilding from 1910 to 1913.

It was the first time in the final for the 27-year-old Tanner, the Tennessee left-hander with the giant serve. But 16 aces and an improved backhand were not quite enough to stop Borg's run at history.

Borg bettered him with patience and guile, with passing shots and aggressive net play, with effective service returns and with some good service of his own.

"I can't believe I won again. It's unbelievable," said Borg, who said he was very nervous in the final set.

Borg stood up to relentless pressure by Tanner early in the match. And he lost three match points to him before the husky American swatted wide his final service return.

From triple match point, Tanner saved two points with winning returns, then Borg blew the third with a forehand volley into the net. But Tanner gave him another chance, dumping a service return into the net. And then came the last, deadly serve.

The fifth-seeded Tanner, serving and volleying with killing finality, took the battle to Borg from the time the first ball was hit and battled the heavily favored champion shot for shot until his mighty game finally came unhinged in the fourth game of the fourth set. Borg came back from a 2-1 deficit in sets.

The packed Center Court gallery of 17,000 roared wildly with every shot.

Borg was the favorite of the teen-age fans, who kept up a constant chant: "Borg, Borg, Borg."

But Tanner had his supporters — those who love the underdog — among them four English youths who camped at the gates for 176 hours with pro-Tanner signs waiting to buy tickets.

Tanner, from Lookout Mountain, Tenn., who attended Stanford University and later moved his residence to Palm Springs, Calif., was given little or no chance against the young Swede.

The legalized London bookies had him a 5-1 underdog in the betting, with Borg an odds-on 1-7 favorite. The battle swung back and forth through the furiously fought first set, which was decided in a pulsating tiebreaker when neither could break service through the first 12 games. Tanner won the tiebreaker 7-4.

In the final set, Tanner, after losing his service in the first game, fought back and had two points for a break in the eighth game.

But two bad errors by the American and a brace of whizzing passing shots by Borg allowed the Swede to survive the crisis. Borg then went to the line, serving for the match at 5-4.

Tanner netted a service return. There was a brief rally which reached close quarters at the net.

Borg scored on a well-placed volley, then went to 40-0.

Tanner refused to quit. He beat Borg on two subsequent volleys, deuced the game when Borg hit weakly into the net.

But Borg forced a Tanner error to get to his fourth match point, then closed the door.

There have been few more dramatic Wimbledon finals.

Tanner, built like a football halfback at 6 feet and 175 pounds, refused to be cowed by Borg's reputation for both shotmaking power and unflappable temperament.

Borg had been able to intimidate Jimmy Connors in the semifinals, winning effortlessly with the loss of only seven games but Tanner looked him in the eye and engaged him in a howitzer duel at close range.

McEnroe, Fleming team for doubles win

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — John McEnroe, the bad boy of tennis?

"Don't believe it," said big Peter Fleming after he and McEnroe won the Wimbledon men's doubles title.

"In singles, he seems to be getting mad with the umpires and with himself, but he isn't really. And I can honestly say that in all the doubles matches we have played together, he has never got mad with me. He's had cause, sometimes."

McEnroe was defeated in the fourth round of the singles by Tim Gullikson in the biggest upset of the tournament, but he salvaged something in the doubles final Friday. He and Fleming downed Brian Gottfried and Raul Ramirez, the 1976 champions, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Fleming said he started badly and never really got going until well into the second set.

"I kept saying, 'I'm letting you down,'" recalled Fleming. "When I said it for about the fifth time, John said to me, 'Now just shut up. We win as a team and we lose as a team.'"

McEnroe went into Wimbledon after criticism by the British press. He was involved in scenes with umpires and spectators in a warm-up tournament at London's Queens Club.

At Wimbledon, the crowd sometimes showed its hostility, cheering for Gullikson all the way in the fourth-round upset.

"But they were quite different out there on the center court for the doubles final," said McEnroe. "Perhaps they will think of me differently next year. Who wants the kind of crowd I had this year?"

McEnroe and Fleming have been doubles partners for almost two years, but this was their first major title.

King nabs 20th crown

WIMBLEDON (AP) — Billie Jean King won a record 20th Wimbledon tennis championship Saturday, teaming with Martina Navratilova to capture the women's doubles title with a 5-7, 6-3, 6-2 victory over Wendy Turnbull and Betty Stove.

King went into the doubles final tied with Elisabeth "Bunny" Ryan, 88, who died at Wimbledon Friday after watching Navratilova win the singles championship.

King, 35, broke the record after Bjorn Born had won his fourth straight men's singles title with a five-set victory over Roscoe Tanner.

Jackson paces Yanks to win

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Reggie Jackson knocked in five runs, one on his 14th homer of the season, and led the New York Yankees to an 8-3 victory Saturday over the Oakland A's.

Jackson has four homers and 11 runs batted in since coming off the disabled list June 9. Jackson began his day by reaching first on an error in the second.

He drove in a run with a single in a two-run third. With the score tied 2-2, Jackson tripled in two runs in the fifth. He chased starting pitcher Mike Morgan, 0-3, by crashing a solo homer in the seventh and singled in the Yankees' final run in the ninth.

Death clouds Billie Jean's triumph

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Billie Jean King finally won her coveted 20th Saturday, a record for tennis titles at Wimbledon, but she was in no mood for rejoicing.
"All I could do was think of Elizabeth — it took all the joy out of winning," the 35-year-old queen of the game said after teaming with Martina Navratilova for the women's doubles championship.
Only Friday, the 88-year-old co-holder of the honor, Elizabeth Ryan, California-born but in recent years a London resident, was sitting in her regular center court seat for the women's singles final.
Shortly after Navratilova beat Chris Evert Lloyd to retain the title, Ryan apparently suffered a stroke. She was treated on the grounds, then rushed to the hospital. She died en route.
"It was really bizarre," Billie Jean recalled after catching her breath following the historic triumph over Wendy Turnbull of Australia and Betty Stove of the Netherlands 5-7, 6-3, 6-2.

"We were both from the same area of California. When I was a teen-ager, just beginning, I would see her around the Los Angeles tennis club. Everybody knew her and knew her record.
"I thought of her during the match. I found myself waking up thinking of her."
Ryan was one of the leading women players in the era preceding and following World War I. Of her 19 Wimbledon titles, 12 were in ladies' doubles and seven in mixed doubles between 1914 and 1934.
"I talked some with her last year," King said. "She told me that she would like to keep the record but, if it had to be broken, she would be happy if I did it."
Ted Tinling, an English dress designer now living in Philadelphia, lunched with Ryan on Thursday and saw her briefly on Friday.
"She was very proud of her record," Tinling said, "but she was fond of Billie Jean because of Billie's competitive spirit. She was impressed with Martina but she told me, 'I don't think Martina has a tactical brain in her head.'"

A newsmen asked Ryan this week if she hoped Billie Jean would break her record.
"I hope she breaks her leg," the octogenarian replied, then laughed uproariously.
Billie Jean's 20 Wimbledon championships have been distributed among singles (6), doubles (10) and mixed doubles (4). In her 18 years at Wimbledon, beginning in 1961, King has racked up a record of 203 match victories while losing only 33.
King and Navratilova started nervously in their doubles match Saturday, which kept the packed gallery in their seats. But they rallied as the games of Stove and Turnbull deteriorated.
"Martina was so excited she could hardly talk," King said. "In the third — or was it the third? — we were down 0-30 on Betty's serve and Betty served what we thought was a double fault.
"The umpire gave her two more serves. We couldn't believe it when neither Betty or Wendy objected. We really busted our gut we got so angry. That made all the difference."

Judge temporarily halts move of Jazz

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A state judge says he'll decide next week whether to forbid the National Basketball Association Jazz to move to Salt Lake City, despite arguments that such an order would cost the league $22 million.
Such a ruling by a Louisiana judge might have little effect on persons and businesses in other states, but at least two players and several minority owners live in New Orleans, attorneys involved in the legal action said.
Ignoring an injunction could lead to citations for contempt of court and jail sentences. However, any citations would almost certainly be appealed through state and federal courts, the lawyers said.
The Jazz have already moved to Salt Lake City, hired a general manager and coach and started a season ticket drive. Training camp is scheduled to start, and seats are being assigned to season ticket holders.

However, $78 million worth of suits were filed this week aimed at making the Jazz return to New Orleans.
The state, which owns the Superdome, and Hyatt Management Corp., which runs the $163 million Superdome, asked for $60 million in an anti-trust suit. The city asks for $18 million, with $10 million of that as payment for damage to the city's reputation and $8 million for lost revenues.
The city also said the Jazz owes $38,000 in back taxes.
An order forbidding the team to move was issued Friday, but it was almost immediately withdrawn.

Civil District Judge Thomas A. Early Jr. issued the temporary restraining order but pulled back when Hyatt Management could not post a $7 million bond.
His ruling came after attorney Mike Cordova of New York argued that the NBA will lose $22 million if it cannot complete drawing up its 1979-80 schedule.

Ft. Worth juniors nab golf titles

ROANOKE, Texas (AP) — Jeff Seger and Tracee Fowler, both of Fort Worth, captured the Northern Texas PGA Junior titles here Friday and earned berths in the PGA Junior Championship Aug. 16-19 in Callaway Gardens.
In the boys' division, Seger knocked a 4-footer on the final green for a 74-77-151 to edge Tom Hathaway of Tyler by a stroke. Jim Matuszewski of Euless parred the second hole of a sudden death playoff to win third place from John Slaughter of Abilene after the pair had posted identical 77-76-153 totals.
In the girls' division, Fowler carded 78-77-155 for a 6-stroke margin over Lori Brock of Dallas. Viveca Vandergriff of Arlington knocked in a 30-footer for a birdie on the first extra hole to edge Rita Moore of Dallas for 3rd place after they tied at 163.
The tournament was played at the Trophy Club.

Niekro off to fastest start

CHICAGO (AP) — If the past is any barometer, watch out for Joe Niekro in the second half of the season.
The veteran, 34-year-old right-hander who carved a new career for himself by developing a knuckle ball, became the major leagues' first 13-game winner Friday when he hurled the first-place Houston Astros to a 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.
"I don't think anyone could have predicted a 13-3 for him because in the past he's never had a good first half," said Houston Manager Bill Virton. "If this is any indication, he's going to have an outstanding year."
How outstanding? The Cy Young Award? A 20-plus season? What's in store for a guy who never has won more than 14 games in one season?

"I don't know," said Niekro. "I never look past the next start. Sure, I'm happy, it feels good, great. You always hope for a good start, but nothing like this."
Niekro was touched for solo home runs by Jerry Martin, No. 13, in the second inning, and Dave Kingman, No. 29, before giving way to Joe Sambuto who finished and earned his 10th save.
Jose Cruz's two-run homer in the first inning plus run-scoring hits by Terry Puhl in the fourth and Alan Ashby in the eighth accounts for all the Astros' runs.
Niekro is the younger brother of Phil Niekro, the knuckle-ball artist with the Atlanta Braves.
Joe broke into the majors with the Chicago Cubs and did stints with San Diego, Detroit and Atlanta before going to Houston in 1975. He learned the techniques of the knuckle ball from his father, who taught both his sons.

"I didn't think my hands were big enough, so I didn't start out with the knuckle ball," said Joe. "Phil has always thrown it, and is great with it. Me, I guess I'm just good."
When it appeared his career was waning, Joe decided to get serious with the knuckle ball.
"I worked on it in 1971 in winter ball, and Phil helped me a lot in 1973 when I was with Atlanta," said Joe. "It already has added five years to my major league career."
Unlike Phil and other knuckle-ball pitchers, Joe also has a pretty good slider and a curve.
"Confidence in my slider has made me a better pitcher this year," said Niekro. "I'm not afraid to throw it in key situations."

35-foot putt pushes Nelson to Open Lead

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Larry Nelson birdied the last hole with a 35-foot putt to shoot a 70 Saturday for a 6-under-par 210 and a one-stroke lead over charging Tom Watson after three rounds in the Western Open.
Watson, the leading money winner who would boost his season earnings by $54,000 to $431,674 with victory Sunday, had another adventurous round over the demanding Butler National course in perfect golf weather.
He opened with three straight birdies but settled for 35 on the front side before blazing back with a 33 for a 68, the lowest round of the tourney and the only score below 70 Saturday.
Watson's 54-hole tally of 211 includes only 23 pars. The rest is made up of 18 birdies and 13 bogeys.
"I used to play like that four or five years ago — a lot of bogeys and a lot of birdies," said Watson, who is pursuing his fifth tourney triumph of the year and his third Western Open.
Watson's back nine included a 25-foot birdie putt on the 11th after he had three-putted the previous two holes for bogeys. He dropped an 8-footer for birdie on 12, a 30-footer for another on 15 and holed a 60-foot chip for one on the 18th after a trap cost him a bogey on 17.

Nelson, No. 5 on the money list, and Bruce Devlin were co-leaders after 36 holes. The 41-year-old Devlin sagged to 76 for even par 216. Nelson made one major mistake in an otherwise steady 34-36 round. He opened with two birdies, strung out nine pars before getting another birdie and then after a regulation 3 on the 13th he made his first double bogey of the tournament.
Four strokes out of the lead at 214 was young Dan Pohl who has missed the cut in six tournaments and failed to qualify in seven others this year. He fashioned a 71 that included birdies on the third and fourth holes and a 200-yard ace with a four-iron on the fifth.
Ben Crenshaw with a 71 was at 215 and Bobby Wadkins with a 70. Jim Simons, John Fought and Mick Soli were grouped at 217.
Defending champion Andy Bean still failed to get on the par route and cranked a 74 for a 220.

Drysdale--from bullpen to booth

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

When he walked into the Brooklyn Dodgers' dressing room back in 1956, Don Drysdale was 19 years old and hardly ranked as one of the Boys of Summer.

"They gave me a locker between Sal Maglie and Ruben Walker," he said. And that's how Don Drysdale began to learn his craft.

"We'd talk pitching all the time. Maglie from the pitcher's standpoint on one side. Walker from the catcher's on the other," Drysdale said. "When I went out to the mound, I'd be pitching to Roy Campanella, and that's not the same as pitching to some kid."

Those were the final days of the Dodgers' dynasty of the '50s, the last year in Brooklyn, and Drysdale remembers them fondly. "Being in that clubhouse was like being surrounded by walking baseball encyclopedias. Mr. (Branch) Rickey had put together a factory."

Drysdale feels he benefitted from being in Brooklyn. "I was 19 and that's unusual, to be coming up at that age," he said. "But I was a little farther along and that was a plus. They felt I was ready, so I came up. I was fortunate to be with a veteran club. They knew how to play and I learned plenty from them." Drysdale pitched for 14 years in the major leagues, winning 209 games.

Swimmers maintain superiority

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — This Caribbean island might seem like a strange setting for a cowboy gold rush, but swimmers Cheyenne Vassallo and Rowdy Gaines have managed the trick.

Vassallo, whose mother nicknamed him for the Rowdy Yates character once played by Clint Walker, won his second event and set a world record Friday night as the United States increased its swimming superiority and sent its gold medal splash count to 20 in 21 races at the Pan American Games.

Gaines, whose parents nicknamed him for the Rowdy Yates character once played by Clint Walker, captured his third gold by swimming the anchor leg of the Americans' winning 800-meter freestyle relay.

Vassallo, whose family now lives in Mission Viejo, Calif., is a Puerto Rican native who has become the local hero of the Games.

He gave the crowd more reason to cheer him with a world record in the 200-meter individual medley of 2 minutes, 32.9 seconds, passing Graham Smith's mark of 2:03.65. Smith, of Canada, won a silver medal with a 2:05.86 and Scott Spann of Greenville, S.C., was third.

Gaines, of Winter Haven, Fla., actually had it easy getting his third gold as his teammates — Brian Goddell of Mission Viejo, Dave Larson of Jessup, Ga., and Kris Kirschner of Solon, Ohio — gave him an eight-second lead over the overmatched Brazilians and Canadians, who finished second and third, respectively.

Also cashing in their third golds for the United States were Cynthia Woodhead of Riverside, Calif. in the 400-meter freestyle and Linda Jezek of Los Altos, Calif. in the 200-meter backstroke.

Woodhead outdueled Tracy Caultkins of Nashville, Tenn. who now has three golds and two silver medals.

Jezek, the world record-holder in the 200-meter backstroke, finished ahead of silver medalist Cheryl Gibson of Canada and 14-year-old Libby Kinkadee of Wayne, Pa.

Anne Gagnon of Canada became the first non-American winner in four days of swimming in the 200-meter breaststroke. Joanne Bedard made it a 1-2 Canadian sweep, with Patty Spees of Oakland, Calif. and Renee Laravie of Dayton, Ohio, third and fourth.

U.S. women still unbeaten

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Coach Pat Head should have no difficulty arousing her undefeated United States women's basketball squad against winless Bolivia Sunday in the Pan American Games.

"That was not one of our best games. When it's over and you look up at the scoreboard, you're just thankful you're ahead," said Head of the Americans' 99-89 decision over Canada Friday night.

"Because of our performance," she added, "getting ready for Bolivia should be no problem. The only way we can go is up. We have to get better."

Despite the ineptness the coach saw, the United States women are 2-0 in their quest for a fifth gold medal in the seven times the sport has been contested in the Pan Am Games.

Cuba is the only other unbeaten team. The two leaders do not play until the last game of the tournament next Friday.

Rosie Walker of Stephen F. Austin and Denise Curry of UCLA, two rugged 6-foot-1 inside performers, were the difference in handling Canada for the second time in three months of competition.

The United States whipped the Canadians by 16 points for the World Cup Championship in South Korea in May.

Walker came off the bench to score 28 points and grab 12 rebounds. Curry had 22 points and 11 rebounds. Between them, they outrebounced the entire Canadian team, 23-22.

Carol Turney and Sylvia Sweeney kept the Canadians in contention until the final moments with a combined 53 points, 28 of them by Turney. It was the first loss in three Pan Am starts for Canada.

Meanwhile, the American men play tonight. They are in a similar position as their women counterparts — unbeaten, but coming off a poor showing against Brazil.

The United States men carry a 3-0 mark into their final elimination game against Panama. 1-2. They have already clinched a berth in the championship round robin that begins Sunday.

Rockets ink top draftee

HOUSTON (AP) — The National Basketball Association Houston Rockets, who already have 10 players with guaranteed contracts, have signed No. 1 draft choice Lee Johnson of East Texas State to a non-guaranteed three-year contract.

Jim Paliatito, Johnson's agent, said the contract was for $253,000 over the three years but Rockets officials declined to confirm the figure. Paliatito said Johnson also received a bonus for signing plus assorted fringe benefits.

The non-guaranteed contract may explain why the Rockets passed over more established college stars to take a sleeper in the 6-11, 215-pound Johnson. Paliatito said the Rockets told him before the draft that they would not sacrifice another no-cut contract on their first-round pick.

"They definitely informed us of that in a strong manner," Paliatito said. "I didn't exactly agree. I just told them at the time I wouldn't try to rob them."

"Obviously we would have preferred a no cut... but again, we feel very confident of Lee's ability to make this club, so I don't anticipate any problem."

Houston General Manager Ray Patterson said Johnson would make the team only if he earns his spot during pre-season competition.

"He'll have to show he's one of the 11 best guys," Patterson said. "If we were already committed, we would have given him a no cut. Johnson will have to meet certain challenges at certain stages and keep progressing."

"Right now, he's not a finished product. But I'm impressed with what he's gotten done so far."

Alabama's Reggie King and Mississippi State's Wiley Peck both were still available when the Rockets made Johnson the 17th player chosen in the NBA draft.

Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers was second to Pittsburgh's Dave Parker in the 1978 National League MVP voting. But he was the MVP of the All-Star game and the pennant playoff against Philadelphia.

Original Recipe

IT'S STILL A SECRET

It took the Colonel many years to perfect his secret recipe for Kentucky Fried Chicken. And it's still a secret!

But there are some clues. The Colonel uses only fresh, Grade A Chicken. He seasons it with his special blend of eleven herbs and spices and then pressure fries it to seal in all the flavor.

The result, "finger lickin' good" Kentucky Fried Chicken Original Recipe. That's no secret.

It's nice to feel so good about a meal.

Society seeks out autistic children

The Texas Society for Autistic Citizens is conducting a summer long campaign to locate undiagnosed autistic children. The Society, which is headquartered in Austin, consists of member chapters statewide comprised of parents of autistic children and concerned laymen and professionals. Free counseling and referral services are provided for affected families. Autism is a severely incapacitating life-long developmental disability which appears during the first three years of life. The symptoms are caused by a physical disorder of the brain and include absent or delayed speech and language. Parents of young children are urged to be on the lookout for the generalized symptoms of autism. These symptoms are characterized by disturbances in the rate of physical, social, and language skills. Autistic children display abnormal responses to sensations. Any combination of sight, hearing, touch, pain, balance, smell, taste and the way a child holds his body are affected. Limited understanding of ideas and the use of words without attaching the usual meaning to them is common. Autistic children don't respond appropriately to adults and other children, and do not use objects and toys as normally intended. Autism occurs by itself or in association with other disorders affecting the brain such as viral infections, metabolic disturbances, mental retardation and epilepsy.

Rodeo rides into Pampa

JAY HARWOOD

'A top spokesman'

Jay Harwood, announcer at this year's rodeo, is recognized at the microphone for his ability to capably relay the excitement, spirit and thrills of the arena activity to the audience.

Harwood, from Albuquerque, N.M., is regarded as one of the sport's top spokesmen. He has a wealth of information about the participants' accomplishments and records.

Each year Harwood's schedule includes some 25 announcing engagements from Prescott, Ariz. to northern Canada, including the world-famous Calgary Stampede. He has been selected three times to announce the National Finals Rodeo at Oklahoma City, and has appeared on radio, television and in motion pictures.

Professional clowns will entertain rodeo audience

Quail Dobbs and Ted Kimzey will perform triple duties as clowns, bullfighters and barrel men during the three-day Top O' Texas Rodeo. Both men are considered among the best in the business.

Dobbs, who lives in Coahoma, has worked in professional rodeo as a clown and bullfighter for 15 years. He began his career while in high school, competing as a bareback bronc rider and a bull rider. It wasn't long before he decided clowning would be more lucrative than actual competition.

At five feet six inches and 135 pounds, Oklahoman Ted Kimzey may not seem like much of a match for an 1800-pound bull, but he is one of the nation's leading bullfighters and funnymen. He has been competing in rodeos some 13 years, but took clowning as a full-time profession in 1973. Kimzey still competes in riding events.

RED STEAGALL

Red Steagall to perform

Red Steagall and the Coleman County Cowboys will perform at 9 p.m. Saturday at the Top O' Texas Rodeo Dance in the Clyde Carruth Pavillion.

Steagall and his band are well-known throughout the state for their contemporary country and western music. Their rodeo performance is certain to entertain music-loving Pampans.

Steagall, performer of "Party Dolls and Wine," "Truck Drivin' Man" and the recently-released "The Devil Ain't a Lonely Woman's Friend," is from Sanford. Music and rodeo have always been an important part of his life.

The six foot, three inch Steagall has had over 200 songs recorded. He's been chairman of the board of the Academy of Country Music, and has served on the board of directors and co-produced the awards show for four years.

Almost all of the Coleman County Cowboys are native Texans. Danny Steagall, Red's younger brother, fronts the band and is a talented singer who plays guitar. Snuffy Elmore, 1975 and 1976 Texas Champion Fiddler, is from Joshua. Ricky Solomon, who also fiddles, was reared in Rhome.

Bass man Dale Bruce is from Aubrey, and drummer Lynn Massey hails from San Angelo, and Tim Harmon, the piano player, is a native of Texarkana. Lead guitarist Danny Fitzgerald, the only non-Texan, grew up in Kerville, Tenn.

QUAIL DOBBS

TED KIMZEY

Former pro will see friends

During June Ivory's days on the professional rodeo circuit, first as a performer and later as an official secretary, she used to keep an eye out for some of the "little folks" — the children of other professional performers.

This week as an official timer at the Top O' Texas Rodeo, she will see many of those youngsters again, but as she explains, they are no longer children.

"It sure seems funny that these kids I used to have to baby-sit around rodeos are now world-champion cowboys," says Mrs. Ivory, naming off professionals such as Donnie Gay and brothers Monty and Andy Taylor.

"What I can't figure out is how they got older and I didn't," she laughs.

June Ivory grew up in Gray County, where she began riding the barrels at the age of 14. She worked as a rodeo secretary even while she was in high school, keeping track of entries and fees, recording scores and times, and writing the winners' checks.

The Lefors native turned professional after high school and joined the World's Championship Rodeo Company, owned by Gene Autry and Everett Colburn.

She "carried the colors" and competed in barrel-racing events during her professional days, then went to work as an official secretary for the Professional Rodeo Cowboys' Association.

As secretary, she has many of the same duties and has to keep informed of all the PRCA rules.

"During her many years as secretary, June Ivory has worked nearly every major rodeo in the United States and has taught schools for other rodeo secretaries.

She boasts about the Top O' Texas Rodeo, saying, "Last year, Pampa had as good a professional rodeo as people will see anywhere in the country. This year, they have a line-up of a top announcer, clowns, and bucking stock."

Mrs. Ivory joined the PRCA in 1954, when Buster Ivory was executive manager and secretary of the group. That year, a change in the rules required all the girls who secretaried, timed, carried the flags and such to become PRCA members.

In 1954, the former June Bull was named Champion Cowgirl at the Top O' Texas Rodeo.

and July 30 of that year, she became the bride of Buster Ivory.

They exchanged vows during Cheyenne Frontier Days in Wyoming, and their wedding received front-page coverage on the Denver Post.

The two had met a number of months before that, in Madison Square Garden. Their vows united the Gray County cowgirl with a man who has won every major rodeo in the U.S. except one.

Ivory, who retired from rodeo competition in 1969, has always been close to the sport, even since his childhood on a California ranch. He's worked for the PRCA, taken rodeo and wild west troupes to Europe, Canada, Cuba, Hawaii and Mexico, and has handled shows for a couple of professional rodeo companies.

He and his nephew, Jim Ivory, own a rodeo company in Cody, Wyo., where they put on performances six nights a week during the tourist season.

Pat Bailey, a professional cowboy who'll compete in Pampa this week, will join the Ivory company in Wyoming for the remainder of the summer.

"It's a very good place for young cowboys to get a good start, and get a lot of practice on bucking horses," says June Ivory.

The Pampa woman, voted Rodeo Secretary of the Year in 1975, is an avid collector of western art, rodeo trappings and gold jewelry, and has picked up many treasures during her travels.

The outgoing Mrs. Ivory loves to entertain the friends she and her husband have made through their rodeo years, and sees many of them when they swing through Pampa on their way to rodeos. She says her favorite cookbook is "Mother Jane's Prescription for Hunger," a collection of menus and recipes written by her close friend, Jane Justin, whose husband owns the famous boot company which bears his name.

Since the Ivories bought a liquor store in Pampa a couple of years ago, June Ivory has tried to slow down from her usual "secretarying" schedule and stay close to the business.

But it's difficult to get away from the rodeo circuit. There's always one more rodeo calling her, requesting her special talent.

PHS choir lauded in NY paper

Besides receiving superior ratings and much praise for their fine performances in the Six Flags over Mid-America Contest last May, the "Golden Voices" of the Pampa High School Concert Choir succeeded in "putting Pampa on the map."

While touring St. Louis, choir director John Woicikowski announced to the group that they would be allowed to not only tour the St. Louis Cathedral but sing there as well — an event that turned out to be an extremely moving and memorable experience for all of the teen singers. The clasped-hand group encircled the domed room singing songs of praise as a handful of teary-eyed spectators looked on.

Patricia Argiro, a visiting reporter from Highland, New York and one of the few spectators, described the spiritual performance in the following column entitled "Branching", which appeared in the Highland Mid-Hudson Post on May 16, 1979:

"A short walk brought me to the St. Louis Cathedral, known for its Byzantine style mosaics of the life of St. Louis and the Hudson Valley's own Mother Cabrini. In front of the cathedral, two tour buses were parked. I was in for an unexpected treat. As I stepped across the threshold, a large group of teenagers in jeans and green T-shirts assembled before the main altar. A shirt-sleeved gentleman standing in the aisle lifted his hand. A wave of celestial music followed. When the a cappella selection faded into silence, the 100 youngsters reassembled in a circle under the edge of the cathedral's great dome.

They held hands as their voices, with the planned harmony of echoes from the dome, rose in an Ave Maria. Tears welled in my eyes. The impromptu concert ended. The T-shirted kids filed out of the church. As the last one passed me, I asked, "Who are you?" The girl answered brightly, "We're the Pampa High School Concert Choir from Pampa, Texas." Sheer luck had timed their one-time visit to the cathedral to enhance mine.

"Life is what happens to you when you're planning something else," my mother always says.

Garden, yard insects need attention

By EARL ARONSON

Keep your garden clean, inspect plants frequently, don't be queasy about picking off some bugs by hand, and you won't have too much trouble with insects. Some insects are easy to treat with insecticides, and you can pick off caterpillars, loopers and hornworms and destroy them. But cabbage-family attackers such as small green cabbage worms can be troublesome.

Some plants don't have consistent bug troubles big enough to require regular spraying or dusting. If insecticides are needed they will probably include methoxychlor, rotenone, Sevin, malathion, diazinon and - or pyrethrin, which are quite safe as long as you follow instructions.

Some insecticides may be banned in your state, so check.

Identifying the culprit insect will help you control the problem. So here is some identification and treatment information regarding some common destructive ones:

APHIDS: These small juice-sucking insects are with us from spring to late fall. They are soft-bodied, come in many sizes, shapes and colors and reduce plant vigor. They can also carry diseases. They can hurt the appearance of ornamentals by secreting a clear, sticky liquid that adheres to leaves and twigs. A mold fungus lives on the liquid and gives the plant a blackened appearance. When the weather is cool and damp, aphids are a major problem. Spray with malathion or diazinon preparations, covering all parts of the foliage. Ladybirds help control the aphid population.

ROSE CHAFER: This one enjoys rose buds and leaves but can seriously damage grapes, apples and other plants. It is one-half inch long, has a reddish-brown head and body and black underbelly. The body is covered with short yellow hair. Control with thorough sprays of malathion or Sevin, seven to ten days apart, first when the insects appear in early June.

OYSTERSHELL SCALE: Attacks woody plants, causing retardation of growth and yellowing of leaves. Evidence is grayish-brown scales, one-eighth inch long, on the bark. Eggs hatch at apple-blossom time, small crawlers emerge from scale coverings and suck plant juices all summer. Control with malathion, Sevin or diazinon, starting late in May.

LECANIUM SCALE: This oval, mahogany-colored juice sucker also likes woody plants, robbing vigor and causing leaves to yellow and wither. In late spring or summer spray with malathion, Sevin or diazinon, repeating in 10 days.

MITES: This tiny pest, one of the most destructive to shrubs, flowers and trees, is barely visible to the naked eye. It is related to the spider, has four legs and as an adult lays eggs. Mites increase rapidly in dry hot weather and may cause leaves of deciduous trees to fall early and conifers to brown. Spray foliage thoroughly with Tediol or Kelthane every four days for three weeks. Kelthane kills mites; Tediol destroys eggs.

LEAFHOPPERS: Dark brown to green, these insects suck juices from apples, raspberries, trees and some herbaceous flowers. They love honey locust trees. Foliage attacked becomes pale with specks of greenish-white on the leaf underside. Overwintering in the egg stage, the nymphs appear in June and there are several generations each year. Spray with Sevin wettable powder or malathion concentrate.

Camping is easy with shower and washer

By DIAN THOMAS

Dirt and camping don't have to go together. Keeping clean outdoors can be easy if you start with these simple suggestions.

GROOMING APRON: One aid to cleaner campouts is a grooming apron made from a bath towel and cotton rope. Besides simplifying washing at flowing streams and primitive bathrooms, it keeps all your grooming accessories at your fingertips.

Make the apron by folding up one end of a large bath towel to form a pocket six to eight inches deep. Select your grooming supplies — such as brush, comb, mirror, toothbrush, toothpaste, soap (in a container), washcloth and perhaps a flashlight for night missions.

Lay the objects in a row inside the folded pocket; then draw lines between the items. Stitch along the lines to form individual pockets for each item. Then stitch along the bottom of each pocket at just the right depth for easy access to its contents.

Make a two-inch tuck in the towel about six inches above the top of the pocket. Sew the tuck to form a casing. Through the casing, thread a piece of cotton rope long enough to tie around your waist. The top of the towel simply falls in front of the pockets.

Once the apron is tied around your waist, you'll have easy access to all your grooming supplies as well as a section of towel on which to wipe your face and hands.

WATER JUG: When camping, your water supply will often be distant from your camp. Here's an easy way to keep running water and soap handy for washing.

Punch a little hole near the bottom front of a well-washed plastic bleach bottle. Thread a six-foot rope through the handle of the bottle.

Tie one end of the rope to a convenient tree branch; tie the other end to a bar of soap that has been punched with a hole or placed in a nylon stocking.

Now fill the jug with water. You can turn on the water by unscrewing the lid of the jug until the right amount comes out the hole you punched. Really!

If your jug leaks, use a golf tee to plug the hole. To dress up the jug, paint it with a face or other decorations.

SHOWER CAN: To make your own portable shower, you need a new insecticide spray can and a portable shower head. Do not use a can that ever contained insecticide. Even after washing, the chemicals could be harmful.

Remove the wand from the can. Have a plumber attach a fitting so you can hook on the portable shower head.

Fill the can with hot water, pump it up and squeeze the handle. You can then take a two- to three-gallon shower. You can either spray yourself using the nozzle or hang the can from a tree and stand under it.

WASHING MACHINE: You can easily do the wash at your campsite with a large plastic container and new toilet plunger.

Any kind of deep plastic container can be used as a wash bucket. The plunger works well as an agitator.

Place soap, water and clothing in the container. Then insert the plunger and plunge. Having clean clothes while camping was never easier.

Chestnut tree returns in U. S.

The handsome and useful chestnut tree, wiped out in the United States in the first three decades of this century by fungus, probably will rise again to take its place among the great trees of the nation.

That encouraging development, reported in the July issue of Sports Afield, stems from discovery of an organism, called a hypovirulent, that weakens the blight fungus enough so that the tree can defend itself.

The chestnut tree's role as a major American hardwood was ended unwittingly by a Long Island nurseryman who imported infected Oriental chestnuts about 1900. Our native species could not defend itself.

First the trees in New York City, then the chestnuts of New York State, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia, then the great stands of the Great Lakes and the South succumbed. By 1930, all but a few scattered chestnuts were gone in one of the worst ecological disasters on record.

In 1950, the same blight fungus spread through the chestnuts of northern Italy — but there was a first breakthrough. A plant pathologist, Antonio Biraghi, noticed that some trees remained healthy despite repeated attacks. They had cankers that were actually healed.

Ten years later, a French mycologist, J. Grente, isolated the organism that inactivated the blight fungus. Widespread research began and has continued.

In 1973, Dr. Richard Jaynes and a research team of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station inoculated infected chestnut seedlings being grown in a Connecticut greenhouse. They found that the French hypovirulent healed the infected trees just as they had healed infected European chestnuts. Since then, Jaynes and his associates have been experimenting with various strains of the hypovirulent and have achieved some dramatic successes.

The problem now, Sports Afield notes, is to learn how to spread the cure naturally from one tree to the next. The search continues.

Though the giant fell many years ago it did not become extinct. Each year the roots of long-dead trees send out sprouts. Some grow large enough to bear crops of nuts before succumbing to the blight.

Persistence of these roots and the persistence and skill of researchers, someday, may bring back a magnificent tree that provided food for man and animals, and a cherished wood that enabled the carpenter and cabinetmaker to create their finest work.

SAVING TIPS on electric air conditioning

CENTRAL SYSTEMS

- Set thermostat on 78° or higher during the summer.
- Check filters every 30 days.
- Close draperies and blinds to keep out solar heat.
- Trim trees, shrubs & leaves away from outside compressor unit.

- Keep windows closed. Open outside doors as little as possible.
- Keep the damper on your fireplace closed.
- Have a qualified serviceman check your unit seasonally.

WINDOW UNITS

- Buy units with the highest "energy efficiency ratio" (EER). They use less electricity to cool.
- Never vent the unit into the garage.
- Proper insulation in attics, walls & around ducts is one of the most important factors in holding down the cost of air conditioning. Make your home more energy efficient . . . and your energy dollar will go further this summer.

Mending Mature Marriages

Man resents youngsters

By LOUISE PIERCE

Many problems and responsibilities that we accepted and managed admirably when we were young - marriages are not so easily assumed and resolved after we reach middle age. When the kids are out of the nest, when the house is paid for, when the freedom of pension and annuity income and the benefits of Social Security loom brightly before us, we tell each other that the rest of life will be peaceful and happy and free of any of the problems we had in our youth.

But for some older couples this does not prove true. Sometimes a young family, children of friends or relatives, is thrust upon the almost-retired couple and they find themselves having to adjust to being set back half a century.

This never caused dismay for me as a child. When our paternal aunt was fifty and her husband was sixty, they took my sister and me to rear and educate (I was just over a year old and Anna was six), following the death of our mother. There was never an unkind word between them regarding what they gave up for us, as far as we knew. But I have been realizing lately, because of the tone of unhappy letters sent to me, that we were unusually fortunate in having a happy home with older foster parents. I'm not at all sure that Otis and I could accept the responsibility of rearing two little girls, starting now. But it has been done by many couples.

Picture the middle-aged couple who has a moderate income that provides everything they really want and need. Picture their plans for a undisturbed future in their four- or five room house. Then imagine a death in the family that suddenly drops a young family into their laps, their possessions and their house space. Being forced to return to the worries of guiding young lives is not easy. And worry is harder to erase at our age than it was when we were under thirty. We just naturally shrink from taking on new problems.

But if you can adjust to the changes that sudden return to such responsibility brings to you, your life will be enriched, your outlook rejuvenated, your joys increased as you enter into the happiness of seeing children learn life as their parents learned it, as you learned it. But if you can't find that pleasure in such a situation, you may feel the fear and even bitterness that some of my readers have confided in me.

DEAR LOUISE: My husband, Ron, and I are in our early sixties. My nephew and his wife were killed in a plane crash two years ago and left three boys and a girl, aged one to ten. I am their only living relative. Ron wanted us to put the kids in a children's home. He said he'd pay for their keep there. But I couldn't bring myself to doing that. They were my flesh and blood, and I felt responsible for taking care of them myself. I thought Ron would accept and love them as soon as he got used to them. Well, he hasn't. He resents them every time I neglect him to help them with their clothes or school work or anything. I go to the Little League games and cheer as loud as the other players' folks do, but Ron has never gone to anything they are in. He isn't even nice to them, and I'm always apologizing to them for his rudeness. I can't put them out, but I love Ron too. Is there any way we can solve this problem?

Worried Jen

Dear Jen: Yes. You are in the position of a young mother who devotes her every thought and action to the baby, incurring the young father's jealousy of the newborn and sometimes his refusal to love it for weeks or months. Such a young woman soon learns, if she loves her husband, that she cannot hold her happiness if she puts him out of her life and becomes a full time mother and no-time wife. She has to walk a tight rope, perhaps for a long time, giving part of herself to the child and part to her husband. This is what you must do if you want to maintain the love of your foster children and of Ron also. You say, "every time I neglect him to help them", which reveals the fact that you do neglect him and you know it.

Undoubtedly you have never tried to get the children and Ron into any kind of project together. You could initiate some tasks that would require Ron's help to you and the kids, things like painting the house or building a small tool shed or taking a fishing trip, something that would let Ron become head of the family, the brains of the venture. If this doesn't work, then give him as much time as you possibly can. Show him that you never exchanged your love for him for the love of the children. He sounds jealous of them, so be kind to him. Remember he used to be your sole interest. Make him believe he still is, as far as wifely love goes. And be a better wife to him, never neglecting him again unless it becomes absolutely necessary. Your renewal of tenderness could persuade him to take an interest in the children too.

If you have some heavy cream left over and you have no immediate use for it, you can whip it (adding sugar to taste or omitting it) and freeze it to use as a dessert topping another time. It's a good idea to put the whipped cream into small paper cups placed on a small cookie sheet and freeze; when the cream is frozen, you can store the little cups in a tightly closed plastic bag in the freezer.

Brunch easy with guests

By SALLY SHAFER MILLER

It's that time of year when you can expect to have unexpected guests for an overnight visit. They may be sincere, casual, or long-lost friends or relatives, but you are obligated to smile and behave yourself.

This happened to us recently. A couple of our sincere friends had to make a hasty trip north, and Amarillo was the last watering-hole on the way to their destination.

Let's say that your situation is similar to ours. After the initial phone call, if indeed there is one, a whirlwind happens in your house. Vacuum; forget the corners. Dust; forget the furniture legs. Clean the bathroom and take a last galloping swipe at the kitchen. In this case, one swipe is definitely better than none. And for heaven's sake, take them out to eat for their first meal while you catch your breath.

The next morning, you will need an entirely different game plan.

I have found that a brunch-style meal is better, more casual, and easier on me. Send someone out to pick up sweet rolls, because you certainly don't have time to make them yourself. Maybe sometime in the future when you have been given more warning that company is about to descend on you, you can. Not this time. But you do have time to make a great brunch dish that's easy, once you've boiled the eggs.

BRUNCH FOR DROP-INS

one-fourth cup butter
1 tablespoon minced onion
one-fourth cup flour
2 cups heavy cream
one-half cup grated cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon fresh minced parsley. Even if you think you don't like parsley, this is a must.
1 teaspoon salt
one-half teaspoon white pepper. Use black if you want to.

one-half to 1 cup sauteed mushrooms. That's about a 4 and one-half ounce jar, drained and sliced.

6 slices of boiled ham, cut in slivers.

6 hard-boiled eggs, peeled and sliced

NOW DO THIS:

Boil the eggs. Slice the mushrooms and ham. Mince the onion.

Melt the butter in a saucepan that's a pretty good-sized one. Briefly sautee the mushrooms, and then add the onions. Cook them until they are tender. Now stir in the flour and blend in the cream. Cook this mixture until it is thickened, and you have to stir it constantly. Stir in the ham and very gently fold in the eggs. Keep it warm over a low heat. At serving time, spoon it over toast.

Now bid your guests good-bye, and go back to bed.

I need your help ...

I'm new in Pampa, and as editor of the "PEOPLE" section, I need to know what's happening in the area. I would appreciate any contacts with the civic, social, educational, business or special interest organizations in the city of Pampa and the surrounding area.

If the spokesmen for these organizations would contact me at 669-2525, I would be more than happy to visit with them. A club yearbook would make me aware of when and where your group meets, what sort of program is planned and who is responsible for the details.

The newspaper has specific policies I must follow for many items that run in the "PEOPLE" and society pages. I would appreciate the cooperation of the public in allowing me to follow these policies.

Dear Abby

No note, no $2,500 loan

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 32-year-old woman, living alone, supporting myself, and respectable in every sense of the word. I'm nothing special to look at (a little on the heavy side) but I never was so hungry for a man I'd date just anybody.

Well, a salesman came into our office two weeks ago and came on to me immediately. He's 36, divorced (no children). We were really attracted to each other. I honestly thought I'd found the man I'd been waiting for.

Then he asked me how much money I had in the bank. I told him, and he asked me if I could let him have $2,500 for 90 days. I was shocked since he had told me how "fabulously" he had been doing. It didn't add up.

I said I'd give him the money if he'd sign a note. He got very angry and said if he'd wanted to sign a note he'd have gone to a bank.

Now I don't know what to do. Half of me tells me not to give him the money without the note and the other half tells me to give it to him. I need some advice.

HALF AND HALF

DEAR HALF: Listen to the half with the brains and give him no money without a note.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the widow who wanted to know if she could continue using the name "Mrs. John Doe".

I find it strange that any woman (wife or widow) would want to be called "Mrs. John Doe". It is indeed a peculiar custom and seems as ludicrous as a husband calling himself "Mr. Jane Doe".

Incidentally, I am not a young radical. I am nearing 50 and have been happily married for 27 years, but I don't call myself "Mrs. Charles LaFollett". Neither does my husband call himself "Mr. Marlene LaFollett".

If you print this, you will probably hear from a lot of women who have obtained their identity through their husbands. Their rationale will probably be, "I'm proud to use my husband's name."

To that I would say, "Why doesn't he use your name? Isn't he proud of you?"

Think of it!

MARLENE LAFOLLETT IN COLORADO

DEAR MARLENE: I've thought about it, and it provides another valid reason for the use of "Ms." Read on.

DEAR ABBY: When Jane Roe married John Doe, she becomes, as you say, "Mrs. John Doe" for the rest of her days should she choose to remain so.

She is a "Mrs." by the fact of her marriage to John, and therefore can only correctly be called "Mrs. Jane Doe" in the event that her husband's first name was Jane! Highly unlikely!

ALEXIS PENCOVIC IN S.F.

DEAR ABBY: Last year you printed the name of a travel club that arranged tours and trips all over the world for non-smokers. I happened to be allergic to tobacco smoke and I can't imagine anything more wonderful than traveling with a group of non-smokers.

I clipped that column, although I wasn't able to travel at the time, but I am very much interested in going this year. Will you please print the name and address of the club again? I'm sure other non-smokers will be interested.

ALLERGIC IN CANTON, ILL.

DEAR ALLERGIC: Write to: Non-Smokers Travel Club of Gasp. 8928 Broadmoor Drive, Bethesda, Md. 20834.

Dr. Lamb
by
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 24 years old, 5 feet tall and weigh 108 pounds. I have been on a diet for the past 18 months and have lost 42 pounds. About three months ago I started taking a laxative when I overindulge and to help maintain my weight. My problem is that now I have become dependent upon the medication for bowel movements. I know that this was ignorant to let myself fall into this situation but now feel I'm in serious trouble. What is the best way to get my body back to normal functions on its own? I would really appreciate any help you can give me.

DEAR READER - When people are dieting, unless they're particularly careful to include quite a bit of bulk in the foods they are eating, they often have problems with constipation. Many of the high-protein fad diets cause such problems.

What you need under these circumstances is additional bulk. Bran, of course, is helpful. You would find it in a number of breakfast foods that contain whole wheat products or you can get natural bran from a health food store if you wish. If you can't use bran, then you need one of the bulk expanding products such as Metamucil, although it is not the only one available.

You're making another mistake. You really are accomplishing nothing that helps eliminate body fat by taking a laxative. Most of the chemical laxatives empty out the colon. The digestion and absorption of calories occurs in the small intestine. While you may decrease the pounds as seen on the scales by having emptied out the colon, it won't really do a lot for you in terms of eliminating fat and the calories you have already absorbed.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 12 - 8, Laxatives, Enemas and Suppositories. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me at this address: P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. This letter will give you quite a bit of information about how the various laxatives act and why they really aren't meeting your goals.

Now that you're hooked, the best thing to do is stop, add some bulk to your diet or else use a bulk forming laxative and if you need to, every two or three days you can use a tap water enema. This shouldn't become a habit either and should only be used temporarily until you regain your normal function.

Most people who get hooked on laxatives get the habit of emptying out the colon and then not waiting for it to fill again for normal function. You're going to have to learn to be patient.

Congratulations on your weight loss. Now try not to overdo it. Just maintain your weight through a sensible diet and regular exercise program. If you include in your exercise program situps and those which involve the abdomen, that may help you with any residual problems you might have with constipation.

SOUND COUNTRY

Kenny Rogers continues to rake in the coins with his UA single "She Believes In Me," plus garnering honors at both the Academy of Country Western Music Awards and The Music City Cover Awards Show. In addition to his other activities, Kenny has also written a book, entitled Making It With Music. In the book Rogers tells how it is and how it's done in the music world—everything from forming a group to finding an agent and getting a recording contract. It's a very down-to-earth guide written by a guy who's made it to the top.

Kenny Rogers' Making It With Music is available for $7.95 postpaid from: Rogers Music Report, 11632 Las Luces, Santa Ana, Calif. 92705. The book even has a photo of Kenny on his high school basketball team. In the meantime, he and Dottie West are hitting it big with their duo act in Las Vegas.

Pet peeves develop personality

Editor's note: The following is a satire on advice columns by a News staff member who would prefer to remain anonymous. Therefore, the byline that appears is fictitious.

By A. Tad Looney

Many people are said to have "pet peeves," but the truly peevis person knows that every particular grievance which incites a certain feeling of resentment (Webster's definition, more or less) is special. I cherish equally each of my peeves, and would never attempt to set any one or several of them apart from the rest as "pets." In short, to the authentically peevis individual, a peeve is by definition a "pet peeve" — each peeve being an important piece of the mental machinery with which he rationalizes his cantankerous nature.

With this qualification, I herewith list a few of my pet peeves:

Loud cars and the squealing of tires.
Rude people — especially "youth" — riding in loud cars and squealing obscenities out of the windows.

People eating potato chips with milk or people drinking Pepsi with cookies or candy bars. (Milk goes with cookies and candy; soda pop goes with potato chips and pretzels. And that's final.)

Those thimble size plastic cups of liquid or powdered cream served in restaurants. (How many nails have you broken or how many fingertips have you gouged trying to peel back the paper from the top?)

Red lights.
Locally, those dips — those "inverted speed bumps" — at intersections between Duncan and Hobart streets.

The large size drinks, known as "Big Gulps," found in some convenience stores.

Fresh tar.

Fresh cement.

And, of course, flies at picnics. The list can go on and on. Cultivate your own pet peeves. For your peeves are what make you uniquely you. One correspondent recently told Tad that one of his pet peeves is his failure to combine two of his favorite pastimes:

Dear Tad,
I love to eat potato chips. I love to watch television. But I come to nothing but grief when I try to do both at the same time. The crunching sound I make when chewing my chips drowns out the sound of the set. You might imagine how exasperating this is. Any suggestions? (And don't say turn up the set — I've just established a tenuous truce with the stereo bully in the next apartment.)

Dirk Delano

Dear Dirk,

As you probably learned in junior high health class (sorry to play Mr. Science), there are passages between each of your middle ear cavities and the upper part of your throat known as eustachian tubes. These bony and cartilaginous tubes help to equalize air pressure on both sides of each ear drum.

Not to knock millions of years of nasopharyngeal evolution, but these tubes are a real bummer when you bite into a crisp potato chip. The sound of the crunch travels straight through the tubes to your ears, creating a cranial thunder which often causes you to miss some of the best lines from the "Bob Newhart Show."

If you can't turn up the volume, I suggest a switch to circus peanuts. However, if you have no moral or aesthetic reservations about "dunking," you may want to dip your Lay's in Perrier water, the latest rage. It'll take some of the snap out of the potato chips' crackle and keep your ears from popping.

SINGER JUDY COLLINS is shown here in the "compromising" picture which graces the cover of her new album "Hard Times For Lovers." Collins says she wanted a full frontal nude of herself for the jacket, but the record company said they couldn't display it. The above photo — featuring the singer's fabulous eyes, once described by a fellow singer as "two oceans of desire" — is the compromise. (AP Laserphoto)

TV critic throws out baby with bath water

Us Americans, we smoke too many cigarettes. We drink too much alcohol. We ingest too much cholesterol. And we watch too much television.

It's the last vice that author Jerry Mander is concerned to put a stop to with his book Four Arguments for the Elimination of Television — a one man crusade, really, against the Deadly Sin of Sloth, as aided and abetted by the idiot box.

Ah, well. No sooner do I resolve to take TV more seriously than along comes a book which takes it far too seriously. But perhaps Mander's book was just the jolt I needed. Mander believes (a) that the institution of television is irremovable, (b) that its "evil" is inherent in the technology of television sets, and (c) it should be abolished.

First, as a practical (but crucial) matter, many people may want to cut back on their viewing time. Many parents may want to wisely regulate what and how much their children see. And many families may want to take a cold hard look at what effect the television habit is having on the quality of their domestic lives.

The oft quoted statistic — the set is on an average of seven and a half hours a day in each house — is a vaguely depressing one. Surely, simple conversation is being stilted in many homes. And there is convincing evidence that TV viewing has a strong connection with the drastic drop in reading and writing skills among college freshmen.

This said, we may still wonder why Mr. Mander wants to throw out the baby with the bath water. Mander, frankly, wants to scare us out of watching television altogether. His general (and perhaps admirable) disgust with the sloth associated with sitting zombie-like in front of the tube for hours has led him to cloak an essentially moralistic argument in some pretty daring pseudo-science.

Mander, who has been called "the Ralph Nader of advertising," left the corporate establishment to found a foundation-funded non-profit advertising and public relations office, Public Interest Communications, and achieved some national acclaim for his public service campaigns. Two of his clients were the environmentalist organizations the Sierra Club and Friends of the Earth.

Mander despairs of what he regards as his futile attempts to promote the causes of environmentalists and Indians and public interest groups on television. Throughout his four arguments runs the theme that television cannot help but distort the natural world. The TV picture can't do justice to the living beauty of the California redwoods, he says, and it can't but parody the customs and alien consciousness of certain Indian tribes.

Toward the end of the book, the author sullenly advises, "...people who are interested in celebrating and saving Indian cultures, like people interested in the arts or ecology or any nonhierarchical political forms might be well advised to cease all efforts to transmit these intentions through television and devote greater effort to undermining television itself and accelerating the struggle within other information fields."

Evidently distressed about his inability to do his thing — good clean, All-American PR propaganda — for "the good guys," Mander turns with a vengeance on what was formerly one of the most formidable tools of his trade — television. From attempting to alert the public to environmental hazards, he has turned on the television itself as an environmental hazard. And the author speaks literally, not figuratively.

At the core of Mander's book is a cryptic picture of the kind of relationship he implies that every viewer has with every TV set. Wanting to establish a link between TV viewing and hypnosis he seeks out three prominent psychologists, famous partly for their work in hypnosis, and describes for them what he regards as "the concrete details of what goes on between viewer and television set: dark room, eyes still, body quiet, looking at light that is flickering in various ways, sound contained to narrow ranges..."

Wanting to establish a link between TV viewing and sensory deprivation, he simply spends some pages describing sensory deprivation chambers (the ones used for psychological experiments) and then says watching TV is a lot like that.

As many parents are now learning, telling your kids silly horror stories about what marijuana might do to their brains in an attempt to keep them away from the vice only earns contempt and ridicule. Mander does the same thing to himself with his assertions about the "vice" of television.

Music drama still thriving

If there's strength in numbers, "Texas," Paul Green's musical drama of Panhandle history is proving to be a powerhouse.

At the close of 13 seasons in the open air at the Pioneer Amphitheatre in Palo Duro Canyon State Park in Canyon, more than a million people have pulled in to savor the familiar songs and inspiring story of the struggle of settlers, the strengths of the cowboys, the land love of the Indians, not to mention the elaborate burials, robust politics, business, and the dazzling celebrations.

The "Texas" spectacle is deserving of the size of the state it celebrates, with a company of more than 80 actors and singers. Not to be lost in this modern age are convincing technical recreations of a blazing prairie fire, the crash of thunder and the flash of lightning as background for the story of battles against change, dust, drought and storm.

The internationally recognized drama is produced by the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, a non-profit organization, in cooperation with West Texas State University.

The performances will continue nightly except Sundays at 8:30 p.m. through August 25. A barbecue dinner is served before every performance from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Theater goers are admitted to the park free after 6 p.m.

Astro-Graph

by bernice b de osol

July 9, 1979

Many interesting persons will pop in and out of your life this coming year, adding much to your social life. However, take care not to get too close to one who doesn't intend to stick around.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be nice to all those you have to deal with today. Through one you'd least expect you'll have a social encounter that turns out to be quite pleasant and interesting. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) No matter how many things pop up to give you extra work today, take care of each promptly. If you don't you'll find yourself in the midst of a big mess.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will create more ill-will with silence today than if you immediately sound-off, especially when dealing with friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's true that outside issues may be dropped on your doorstep today but before getting angry take a second look. Something worthwhile can come from them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're too set in your thinking or are argumentative today, you'll miss a great suggestion that would prove much more successful than your way of doing something. Listen!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Moneywise today, don't ignore that inner voice you hear or hint you receive just because you can't prove it's correct. Neither will be wrong.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) By treating those who snarl at you with a smile and kind word, you'll bring about a sudden reversal in their behavior and make everything turn out well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may not like the chores you have to do today, but doing them quickly will get them out of your hair, and also earn you an unexpected reward.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If a controversy occurs among friends today, act promptly to make any changes you think of to satisfy them. Don't let disagreements get out of hand.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The only way to get what you want today is by sharing. The opportunity may be fleeting. Take care not to be singular in your thinking.

TAURUS (April 20-May 10) Be willing to discuss things thoroughly today, instead of challenging others. You'll learn something surprising.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Opportunities come through you, but not to you, today. There's a great deal to be gained by using your talents and ingenuity. Don't expect any free rides.

STAMP OUT INFLATION
WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill which would guarantee lower mail rates for individuals willing to accept slower postal service has been introduced in Congress.

"It's time we treated individuals... who are first-class mailers the same as we treat businesses — by providing them the option of sending their mail at a lower rate, if they want," said Rep. William D. Ford, D-Mich., the bill's chief sponsor.

Under the measure, citizens would be allowed to mail their letters, greeting cards and personal correspondence for substantially less than the present 15-cent first-class rate.

This "citizens' rate" would involve a "deferred level of service" in which a letter might take a few days longer to reach its destination.

But the postage rate would be only 11 cents, Ford explained.

 friends. There's a formal living room and a comfortable den, both with woodburners. A 1/2 bath and convenient dressing area just off the master bedroom. A full bath serves the other 2 bedrooms. All nestled on over 4 acres just outside of town. Call our office. MLS 608.

Gourmet's Delight

This fully equipped kitchen has lots of counter and cabinet space and even has a built-in microwave.
 Three roomy bedrooms, 2 full baths,
 (one is a hollywood style), an office,
 a den with a fireplace, and a heated rec room in back. See only a few of the extras this home has to offer.
 MLS 704.

Delightful, Unique Tri-Level

Sunbathe in privacy on the sundeck just off the upper level master bedroom. It's decorated in cool blue for restful sleeping. The other upper level bedroom has plenty of room for twin beds and more. Three bedrooms in all, 1 1/2 baths, lots of storage, a cozy den with a woodburner, a gracious living room, a lovely yard and more. MLS 799.

There are houses and there are buyers. We have something for everyone.

Dear Gabby

A Man's Home Can Be A Hassle

Dear Gabby: I have decided to sell my house. How can I advertise it to its best advantage? How can I be sure I do not price it too low and lose money, or too high for the market? What should I know about the complex forms
 involved in such a transaction?
 What about title insurance?
 Will it be necessary to engage an attorney? — B. Fuddled.

Dear Fud: Check the Classified pages for names of prominent Real Estate brokers.
 One of them will have all the answers to your questions, plus solutions to many other problems involved in selling a house.
