

Carter choices fall by wayside

WASHINGTON — In the beginning, President Carter greeted his Cabinet with words of extravagant praise and said, "It would suit me fine" if every person in it stayed to the end of his four-year term of office.

The men and women Carter chose to help him run the government were no casual choices.

They were the result of a selection process Carter himself called "slow, careful and methodical." When he was finished, he told reporters: "I think I have the finest Cabinet and staff any new president could have."

On Thursday, Carter fired two members of that Cabinet, from whom he had elicited a commitment to serve for four years. They were W. Michael Blumenthal, the secretary of the treasury, and Joseph A. Califano Jr., the secretary of health, education and welfare.

Pentagon sources said late in the day that Energy Secretary James Schlesinger would be replaced soon by Deputy Defense Secretary Charles Duncan Jr. That's exactly what happened early today. (See story below.)

Also on Thursday, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said he might quit despite a vote of confidence from the president.

Carter started putting his Cabinet together shortly after Election Day 1976 as he and his staff went through more than 6,000 names of potential high-level officials.

"I wanted Cabinet members who were practical," he told an interviewer, "who had shown a success in their own lives in managing who had been able to overcome difficulties and problems and obstacles to reach a goal."

He made his appointment of Blumenthal and Adams on Dec. 14, 1976. "Two men who have my complete confidence."

"They've got a superb background," he said. "They have intense and detailed knowledge of the areas of government for which they will be responsible."

He named Califano to head HEW eight days later, saying, "I think he will do an outstanding job in correcting those defects which do exist."

He said he was especially impressed with Schlesinger, calling his appointment "one of the most important" he had made.

Before the inauguration, Carter told an interviewer he expected his Cabinet to speak out and even to disagree with him. But he coupled that expression of presidential permissiveness with a warning that there were limits.

"I don't want a group of Yes-Men and Yes-Women in my Cabinet," he said. "I need to have strong advocates for their positions."

"And there will be times when they advocate something very strongly when I make a different decision. They are perfectly at liberty to express their disagreement."

"If in good conscience, they can't carry out my directive once I make a decision... then I think they would have to resign."

"But that would be a very rare occasion and I don't anticipate it happening anywhere in the next four years."

Booby trap kills Florida Boy Scout

MIAMI (AP) — "What are you going to say to a man when you've killed his only son?" sobbed Carmen Charles Falco, a Boy Scout leader who police say rigged a booby trap in his home that killed a member of his scouting troop.

Police say 14-year-old Richard Brush Jr. was struck in the chest and killed by a bullet from a .22-caliber rifle that had been rigged to the bathroom door of Falco's home to stop burglars.

No charges have been filed. Assistant State Attorney Robert Kaye said Thursday his office was awaiting a police report on the shooting.

"I knew exactly how to set it up. I knew exactly how to scare somebody away," said Falco, 31, who told police he learned to set booby traps while in Vietnam.

"Unfortunately, the only thing the Army taught me was how to use a weapon to destroy an individual in every possible way," he said.

Police said the rifle was positioned on a chair with a string running from the bathroom door knob to the trigger. When Richie opened the door, the gun went off.

The scoutmaster told authorities his home had been burglarized three times this year — once earlier this week when an intruder broke in through the bathroom window.

Dade County homicide detective Fabio Alonso said young Brush smashed the same window Wednesday night and entered the house when no one was home.

"Richard was a little boy. He was a nice boy. He was an ordinary boy who loved camping. Why he went in that house I don't know," said the youth's father, Richard.

Three lost Thursday

Schlesinger latest casualty of Cabinet shakeup

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter removed Energy Secretary James Schlesinger today and will nominate Deputy Defense Secretary Charles W. Duncan Jr. to replace him, government officials said.

Schlesinger confirmed that Carter has accepted his resignation. Capitol Hill sources said the president told congressional leaders of his selection of Duncan to take over the Energy Department.

Schlesinger, at the Capitol to testify before a House committee, was asked about reports that he was leaving the administration.

"That is correct," the secretary said. There also was speculation that Transportation Secretary Brock Adams might be ousted today.

Asked about Schlesinger, House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas said he expected Carter to make the official announcement later in the day.

Wright said it was his understanding that Schlesinger would remain in office until the fall, while Congress is considering the president's recent energy proposals.

"It's cut and dried," one source said of the Duncan decision. Duncan refused to confirm or deny it early today, as did White House press secretary Jody Powell.

Under the shadow of Defense Secretary Harold Brown, Duncan, a multimillionaire and former Coca-Cola executive in Atlanta, has wielded more power than most Cabinet secretaries as he managed the Pentagon on a day-to-day basis.

White House political aides have high regard for Duncan and have long sought a wider role for him in the administration. Duncan, who is known to dislike Brown, has volunteered repeatedly for more responsibility.

Powell said he expected Carter to complete evaluating his Cabinet before the weekend and to turn his attention next week to his own senior staff. A high administration source said this Cabinet reshuffling would be "completed by the end of the day (today)."

On Thursday, in three announcements in 4½ hours, Powell said Carter had dumped Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and had accepted the resignation of friend and fellow Georgian, Attorney General Griffin B. Bell.

Revealing a new Cabinet look for an election year, Powell said Carter will nominate —Housing and Urban Development Secretary Patricia R. Harris to succeed the controversial and outspoken Califano.

—Federal Reserve Chairman G. William

Miller to succeed Blumenthal, who has had frequent clashes with White House staff members.

—Deputy Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti to replace Bell (see related story page 3).

Powell said successors to Miller and Mrs. Harris will be named soon.

Adams may have undermined his own position Thursday afternoon with a statement that he had been asked to remain in the Cabinet but was "considering whether or not I should."

Adams said he was weighing such factors as "the commitment of this administration to mass transportation and moving Detroit towards a fuel-efficient automobile, the direct accessibility of the president to the Cabinet and the responsiveness of those with enhanced authority at the White House to the Congress and the American people."

Asked if Adams was staying, Powell replied: "The president has not yet had an opportunity to talk with Secretary Adams. He will do so in the near future."

One close Adams associate said the secretary had made up his mind to leave. But an aide said Adams was undecided.

It was learned that White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan told Adams in a Thursday morning meeting that the secretary had Carter's confidence but there were problems with some officials in his agency.

It was understood that, after Adams issued his statement, an irritated Jordan reached him by telephone aboard an airplane to complain that none of the issues Adams raised in his public statement had been broached during their face-to-face meeting.

One Adams associate said Federal Aviation Administration chief Langhorne

Bond and Federal Railroad Administrator John L. Sullivan, a Carter campaign veteran, are under consideration to replace Adams.

Bell, who had long said he intended to leave before the end of the year, was asked if his resignation was announced now to make Carter's actions appear broader than they might otherwise seem.

Bell replied: "Hold on two or three more days, you'll see that it's pretty broad. They don't need one more body."

A high administration source compared Schlesinger to Blumenthal and Califano, who were fired. "There are different sorts of resignations and acceptances," this source said.

Powell declined to comment on reports that Andrew Young, often embroiled in controversy as U.N. ambassador, might be asked to take another post, possibly that of HUD secretary.

Weather

The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies and warmer afternoons through Saturday. The high today should reach the low 80s with the low tonight near 60. The high Saturday is expected in the upper 80s. Winds today and tonight will be variable at 5 to 10 mph. The high Thursday was 80 and the overnight low was 60.

Fire to close plant

The Getty Watkins natural gas plant six miles east of Borger on FM 280 may be closed up to two months following a fire this morning caused by a leak in a cooling tower.

The fire broke out about 9:45 while workmen were attempting to repair a leak in a cooling tower, according to plant operations manager Pete Gee.

No injuries were reported from the fire, which Gee said burned for about 45 minutes. A unit of the Phillips Fire Department was dispatched to the scene.

Firemen and plant workers were still attempting to cool the area shortly before 11:30. Plant officials said damage estimates were not yet available.

Gee said it was not known what ignited the escaping gas. A wood and plexiglass partition surrounding the tower was completely destroyed. Extensive damage was done to internal cooling units.

The operations manager, who said the plant employed 21 persons, said operations would probably be closed "from 30 to 60 days."

Turtles evacuated

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Government scientists rescued 450 baby turtles from a Gulf of Mexico oil spill Thursday, but couldn't find the oil.

The scientists were in a specially equipped C-130 cargo plane, and their primary mission was mapping the oil spill resulting from a blown-out well off the coast of Mexico.

The airlift of the tiny Kemp's Ridley sea turtle hatchlings was part of a joint effort by the United States and Mexico to save the endangered species from the runaway oil slick.

The oil has been gushing from the Ixtoc I, an exploratory offshore well owned by the Mexican government, at the rate of 30,000 gallons a day since a natural gas explosion June 3.

Experts from the Coast Guard and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration boarded the airplane Thursday to begin a systematic mapping of the spill.

An Electrical Answer to OPEC?

While the federal Energy Department harps on the need for conservation and succeeds best in wasting tax dollars, industry in the private sector moves ahead to save energy. Through new technology we will soon have the opportunity to save tremendous amounts in domestic and commercial lighting.

The Wall Street Journal reveals that General Electric will soon market a light bulb which will save 30 percent in energy used for the same amount of lighting and will last about four times longer than an ordinary bulb. The original cost is high but it is expected to produce a net saving of $20 over its projected life.

Light in the new GE bulb is produced by an arc of electricity in a quartz tube using a metal halide vapor. It is set to be on the market by 1981.

Not so close to marketing is another light bulb being developed by the Duro-Test Corporation, and is based on the scientific work of Drs. John Fan and Frank Bachner of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. This effort is in cooperation with the Corning Glass Works and the Materials Research Corporation.

This bulb is being devised with the probability that it will save users 60 percent of energy consumed for the same amount of light. One of these bulbs could save, during its lifetime, the equivalent of three gallons of oil in energy fuel consumed.

A layer of silver, so thin it is invisible, is sandwiched between titanium oxide coatings on the inside of the bulb. The layer lets the light through and reflects the heat back to the filament. The amount of silver used per bulb is so small that at its present high price, 100 bulbs can be made and only use one half cent's worth of silver. It will only take one ounce of silver in the production of 15,550 of these light bulbs.

Thirty watts of electric power will produce the same amount of light than can now be had from a 75-watt ordinary bulb. In a conventional bulb there is 90 percent heat and 10 percent light emitting from the filament. The silvered coating of the new bulb is so thin it is completely transparent. It lets the light through and reflects back the heat creating the great saving to consumers and to the total energy fuel use.

For the many years that electricity was a cheap commodity, not much was done to improve the efficiency of electric devices. With the energy crunch raising electric costs to all-time highs there is great incentive for innovators to cash in on energy saving inventions.

The response to increased incentives is gaining momentum. Hardly a week goes by without a report of some new breakthrough showing up in the news.

In continuing to raise the world price of crude oil, the OPEC nations may be on the road to pricing them selves out of much of the market. They are fashioning a double-edged sword. Along with inventions which will cut the amount of needed oil there is also the incentive for greater production of domestic oil, along with development of alternate fuels.

Throwing billions at the problem in the public sector will only inhibit the private sector as it moves to correct misplaced dependence on government. Private enterprise is going ahead with innovations to solve energy problems. It moves ahead in spite of enormous interference and added costs placed by our over-grown bureaucracy. Government cannot solve economic problems, private enterprise operating in a relatively free market can.

Given more freedom from bungling governmental interference, the private sector can move much faster to provide our energy needs. The best, and really the only thing, the administration and Congress can do to speed progress is to call off the dogs of bureaucratic regulation and red tape.

Eating less Candy

Americans may not be cutting down on their consumption of gasoline — yet — but they are on another popular commodity.

They are eating less candy. Commerce Department statisticians, adding up national production of sweets during 1978 and dividing by population, come up with a per capita consumption of 14.9 pounds. That is down from 15.4 pounds the previous year.

But a jawbreaker declined does not necessarily work out to a nickel saved. Increases in the costs of most of the ingredients meant that although total candy production was down, total price paid by the public for indulging millions of sweet teeth was up — by some $22 million.

How sweet inflation isn't.

Grain farmers get their good year

American grain farmers, some of whom spent the winter marching on Washington to protest economic hardships, are enjoying a sudden flush of prosperity.

Summer is bringing bumper crops and, in a change welcomed by farmers, sharply rising grain prices. There's also good news for consumers: Federal experts say the price rises will have little impact on food costs, at least this year.

Wheat prices in late June hit a four-year high of $4.40 a bushel on the Kansas City market, up from $3.08 at the same time last year. Prices of soybeans, corn and other grains also showed sharp increases.

The winter-wheat harvest, now nearing completion in Kansas, is reported to be 14 percent higher than in 1978. Farmers also have planted a record number of acres in soybeans and almost as much corn as last year.

Why the jump in prices? One reason: The Soviet Union, facing another disastrous grain harvest, is buying more American grain. Russian wheat purchases are expected to reach 15 million metric tons by the end of the fiscal year on September 30. Grain traders believe Russia may buy 26 million tons of U.S. wheat next year.

Russia's troubles began when wet weather delayed spring plantings. Then came hot, dry winds that withered crops. The latest estimate of the Soviet grain crop: 185 million metric tons, 20 percent less than last year and well below the 200 million tons needed to feed the Russian people.

In 1972, huge and unexpected Soviet grain purchases depleted U.S. reserves. However, officials say the size of this year's crop, a 12-million-ton wheat reserve and new regulations regarding foreign purchases will keep the rising demand from once again leaving the U.S. short of grain.

Making one's way in the world

By ROBERT LEFEVRE

There are only two ways of paying for one's survival costs. One way is to provide for one's own expenses by providing goods or services others voluntarily pay for. The other way is to provide for one's expenses by getting others to cover the costs involuntarily.

In discussing this subject I suppose the first point that has to be made identifies what I have called one's "survival costs." What are the costs of survival?

An economic axiom has it that "there's no such thing as a free lunch." In short, even survival isn't "free" in the sense that no costs are incurred. Once the individual decides that he would prefer to stay alive costs will occur. Thus, all the food, clothing, shelter, comforts, conveniences and other benefits that a person wishes to receive are the costs of his staying alive. No two of us have precisely the same tastes or preferences and hence no two of us run up exactly the same costs. In any case, whatever goods or services we want must be paid for one way or another. They will either be paid for by voluntary endeavor or by involuntary procedures.

Another explanation apparently is necessary, if response to my columns is to be believed. In writing on this subject before I have referred to the "marketplace" as the place where the goods and services are provided. One irate gentleman has called me several unpleasant names because, as he sees it, the marketplace is nothing more than a place where exchanges occur. Therefore, from his own strange definition, no farmer, manufacturer or other producer is in the marketplace. His odd way of looking at the marketplace makes this gentleman somewhat unique. The conventional definition, which is the one I had intended, relates to voluntary acts of production and exchange occurring anywhere at all.

Voluntary acts of exchange and production occur in the fields, forests, farms and factories. They also occur in stores, shops, salons and seminars. Wherever goods are traded for money, goods for goods; money for money, services for money or goods, ideas for money or goods or other services, indoors or outdoors, on sea, on land or in the air, there is the marketplace. The single criterion is this: Does the individual engaged in production or exchange act as he does of his own volition? Or, on the contrary, is he driven, like a slave by other men who compel him to do what they wish, disregarding his wishes in the matter?

I am in the market if I raise carrots on a farm and sell them to people who wish to buy carrots. I am also in the market if I manufacture a gadget and sell it. Likewise I am in the market if I teach those who voluntarily hear or read my lessons or my books. Thus, I am in the market when I write a field. All acts performed by human beings wherein they produce a good or service for the purpose of inducing, through voluntary methods, patronage for that good or service are marketplace acts.

When a person engages in any such act and receives, in consequence, the voluntary support of customers, we say that he is "earning" a living.

There is a modification here. Some people are incapable of "earning" a living by virtue of special circumstances. The very young are incapable of earning a living. To hold down any job at all requires a set of learned skills. The very young have not yet learned such skills. However, the costs of the survival of the young must be met or the young will not survive. Economic reality faces us all regardless of our wishes.

Those who are injured seriously cannot earn, at least while they are incapacitated. Some are crippled either mentally or physically so that they cannot perform productive actions. Those who have grown too feeble through the passing of time may be beyond the ability to perform productively. What happens to these people?

Parents of children, foster parents of adopted children; those who have practiced thrift and can look after themselves during illness; those who have saved enough so they can be generous to others not so fortunate; all of these contribute voluntarily either to help their children, themselves or others who are in difficulty.

Parents who pay for the expenses of their children; savers and investors who pay their own way through difficult times we class as self-supporting persons. However, those who provide voluntarily for the expenses of others not as fortunate as they, are engaged in charitable acts. They are, in fact, providing welfare for others.

Those persons who find themselves unable to support themselves, particularly when such condition has arisen through no fault of their own, can be looked at with great sympathy. They have become objects of charity. And there is nothing wrong with charity. It represents a generous concern on the part of some for the wellbeing of others who can no longer help themselves.

Voluntary giving to pay the survival costs of those unable to cover those costs through their own savings or ongoing efforts is also classified as welfare. However, welfare payments made by persons who volunteer their funds are marketplace actions! Persons making such payments are exchanging money for the survival of others, willingly. This does not prevent such payments from being welfare. We can look on such contributions with a glad heart.

Indeed, we have thousands of organizations, voluntarily put together and supported by voluntary effort engaged in precisely this type of procedure. Churches were originally the giants in this field although not all of them today would qualify. Besides religious orders of various kinds, we have the Red Cross, Salvation Army, Goodwill Industries and a host others not as well known.

Surviving the bicentennial

By Richard E. Cohen

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Ready or not, the nation will celebrate another bicentennial in 1987.

This one won't be like the 1976 festival of fireworks, tall ships and entertainment extravaganzas.

It will be the thinking person's bicentennial, led by political scientists, historians and lawyers. They believe patriotic commemorations should emphasize culture as well as commercialism.

Their focus will be the U.S. Constitution, written in 1787 and now the world's oldest government charter. They will examine the document to see how well it is surviving after 200 years.

Project sponsors also want to stimulate student awareness of the Constitution's significance as well as a lively public discussion of current issues.

Traditionally, constitutional study focuses narrowly on specific laws and Supreme Court cases. Rarely do we step back to take a look at what Benjamin Franklin, James Madison and their peers were attempting to create when they wrote the Constitution in Philadelphia.

Nor do we look at whether the resulting institutions adequately protect the public welfare.

For example, what is the significance of the Senate having two senators from each state serving six-year terms while the House has members elected on the basis of population for two year terms?

The framers intended that the Senate be more sober and reflective than the House. Has that been the case? If so, has it affected how issues are considered?

"These differences have had a profound influence on the character of government and the way business is done but the issues have not been considered in constitutional law study," said Robert A. Goldwin, director of "A Decade of Study of the Constitution," a project established recently by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research.

Goldwin, a political scientist and expert on American political thought, was hired in 1974 by President Ford to be his resident intellectual. He became an impresario of provocative discussions linking the White House with the academic community.

His new project also will examine the constitutional significance of "human rights," which President Carter proudly proclaims one of his major goals. What human rights does the Constitution envision and how should they be promoted?

The Constitution makes few references to specific rights yet the government was structured on a system of "checks and balances" designed to assure that no individual or group would gain too much power.

Does this democratic ideal work or does it permit special interest groups to frustrate the general will?

Goldwin does not expect final answers but he hopes more discussion will yield some new ideas.

The American Political Science Association and American Historical Association had a similar hope when they created "Project '87." The project sponsored a conference on political parties in the American system and plans additional sessions on subjects ranging from the role of the judiciary to the prospect of a constitutional convention.

The latter subject is particularly timely with all the talk of calling a convention to require that the annual federal budget be balanced. Although the Constitution permits such an action, the device has never been used and there is considerable disagreement over how and whether it would work.

That may cause another problem.

The budget-balancing controversy makes some constitutional scholars wonder whether the Constitution they are reviewing will survive intact until its bicentennial.

A man on the moon

By Don Graft

Time flies, memory fades.

It is a full 10 years since man first walked on the moon, yet it does not seem like yesterday. So much has happened down here on Earth in this eventful decade, space exploration itself has gone beyond the moon in other and unmanned directions, that this supreme achievement of human voyaging into the unknown has receded into history. Not ancient, certainly, but not so recent as viewed in the light of significance to our lives today.

How many among us today know the number of manned lunar landings?

There were six.

How many men actually walked on the moon and what were their names?

They numbered 12, and if all of their names cannot be recalled, one can: Neil Armstrong.

He was the first. And not the least noteworthy aspect of the ceremonial events to be staged by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration this July 20, the anniversary of the first manned lunar landing, will be Armstrong's public appearance in Washington, his first in some time.

The lunar experience—and ensuing if not enduring notoriety—had a profound effect on all who shared it. For some it led to power and wealth in other fields—business and politics. For others, the readjustment to an earth-bound existence was difficult, leading in a few cases to psychological breakdown and shattered lives. One moon-walker found in it a lasting religious experience.

But of all the reactions to the experience and subsequent histories of the lunar astronauts, Neil Armstrong's may be the most unusual.

His is a name that will share a place in the chronicles of mankind with only a few others—Christopher Columbus and Charles Lindbergh being the first to come to mind and perhaps the only others to be considered.

There is an important difference. Both the latter were essentially loners, although Columbus had the essential financial patronage of the Spanish sovereigns. But their visions were their own, realized through their own courage and determination.

Armstrong, on the other hand, was the point man of a $25-billion national effort, backed by a team of thousands and the technical resources of the world's greatest industrial power.

That may be the significant fact in his own reading of the nature of his achievement and an explanation for his subsequent actions. After a brief period in the public spotlight that included a showbiz turn in one of comedian Bob Hope's ritual tours of American fighting fronts—this one Vietnam—Armstrong turned his back on fame. He withdrew from public life to the University of Cincinnati, determined, according to spokesmen for that institution, to be not a celebrity but a university professor.

Armstrong has largely avoided public attention since, refusing to participate in fifth-anniversary observances of the moon landing. His participation in the July 20 ceremonies, therefore, may be presumed to lend additional luster and interest.

It probably will not, however, provide the answer as to why having participated in the making of history, he has chosen to withdraw from his own times. He did not have to be the first man to set foot on the moon, but, as commander of the Apollo mission, chose to be over his fellow astronaut, Edwin Aldrin. A smaller man might have capitalized on the consequent fame. Whether he is a bigger man for having taken an exactly opposite course is difficult to say.

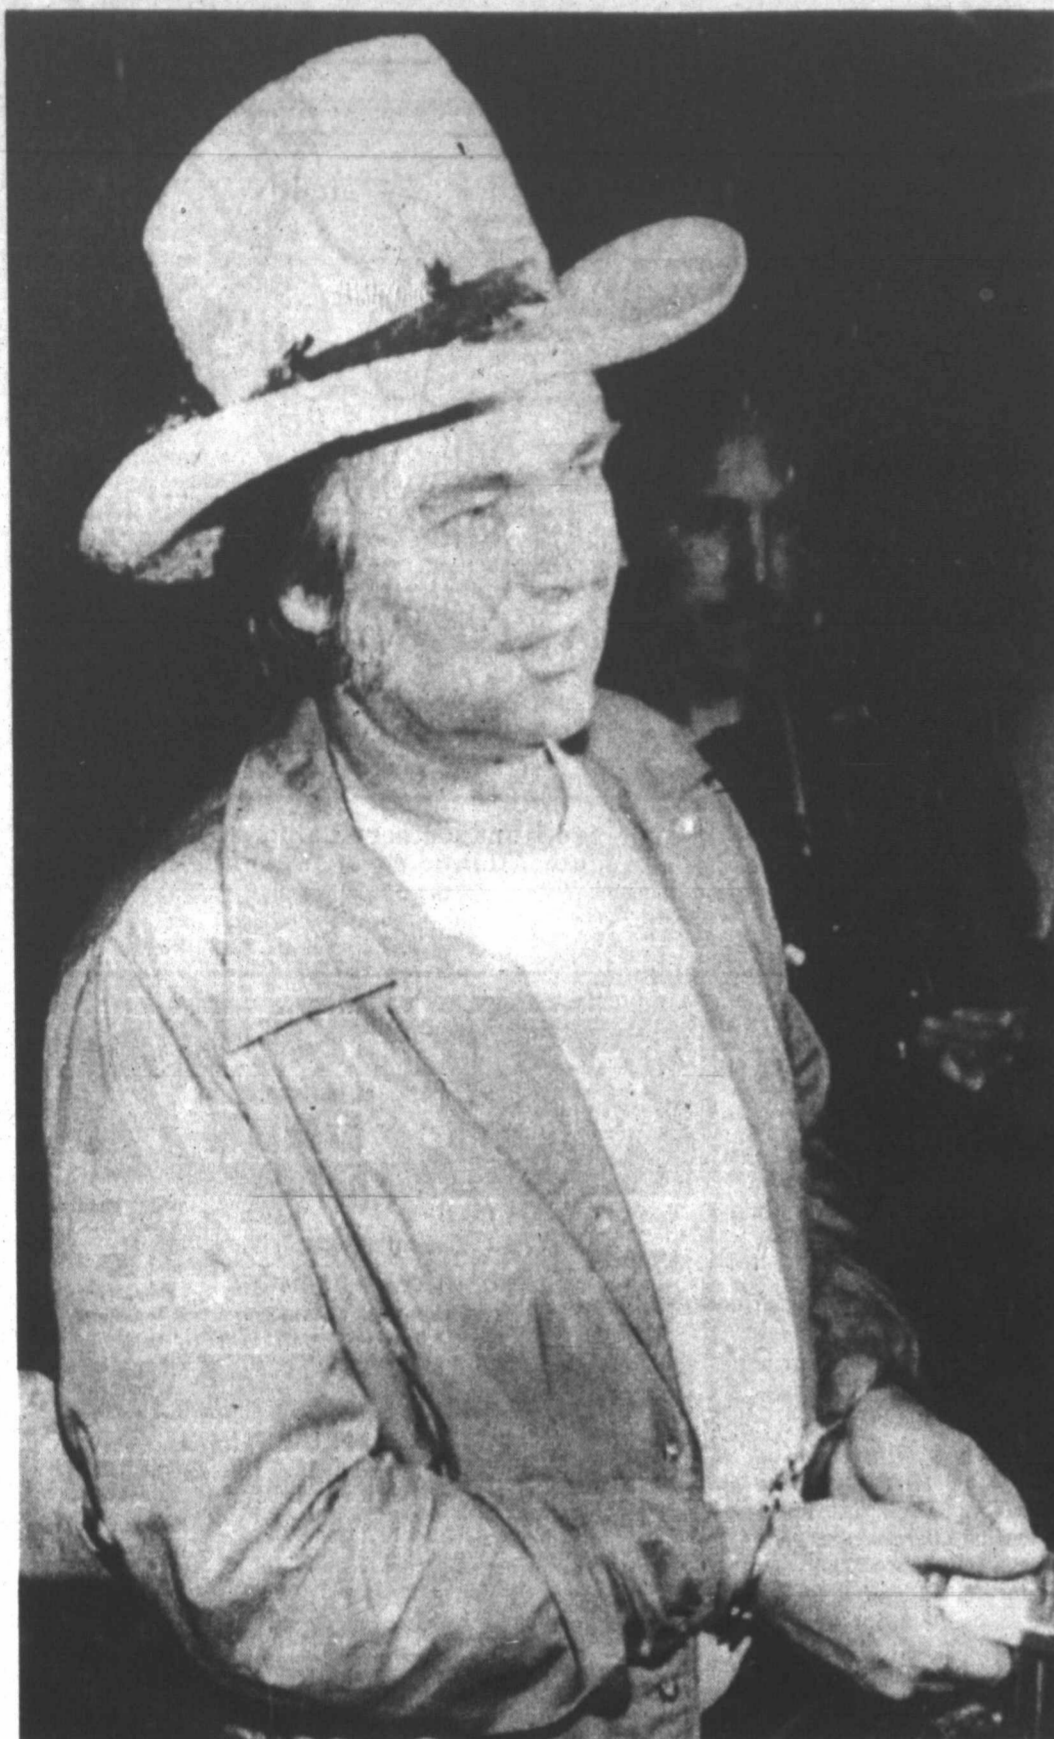

However reluctant he may be to exploit his role in history, Neil Armstrong cannot, however, withdraw from it. History will have none of that.

After all, it was he who said it first. It may have been a small step for the man who actually took it, but it will forever be recalled as "one giant leap for mankind."

Johnson arraigned for transporting wheat

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Clutching a briefcase in one manacled hand and a package of cigarettes in the other, Iowa Park grain dealer Robert Johnson was booked into the Tarrant County Jail Thursday after being extradited from Idaho on federal charges.

"I'm sorry, not today," said Johnson when newsmen asked him to comment on charges he transported stolen grain.

Arraignment was set for today before U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon. Court sources said Mahon probably will enter a plea for Johnson, who has been in jail in lieu of $1 million bond set by an Idaho judge. Johnson has not employed an attorney.

Johnson, arrested in Rexburg, Idaho, on a traffic charge, was a popular prisoner.

"He's a pleasure to travel with," said U.S. Marshal Clint Peoples, one of three federal officers guarding Johnson on his commercial jetliner flight.

The former millionaire businessman wore a straw cowboy hat, t-shirt and a blue windbreaker as he stepped from the airplane onto Texas soil.

More than two years ago, companions reported that

Johnson fell from a boat in the Gulf of Mexico and drowned.

His disappearance on Jan. 3, 1977, kicked off a multi-state, multi-nation investigation into his business affairs. That probe uncovered a million-dollar grain shortage at the Robert Johnson Grain and Molasses Co. facilities at Iowa Park, near Wichita Falls.

The FBI filed theft charges against Johnson and he was declared a fugitive in September 1977 when he was indicted on 17 counts of transporting stolen grain from elevators in Texas and Oklahoma.

Insurance fraud hits aged

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Insurance agents are asking for stiff punishment if they talk elderly Texas couples into buying two "Medi-gap" policies when one is enough, the State Insurance Board has warned.

The board issued a statement Thursday promising "firm disciplinary action" against any agent or company that misleads any couple into thinking it needs two policies.

Board records show one agency extracted more than $4,000 in unnecessary policy fees by double-selling Medi-gap coverage to some 400 elderly couples.

Two of the firm's agents currently are involved in a disciplinary proceeding for alleged double-selling.

In a typical case, an elderly husband and wife are given a sales pitch for a Medicare supplement policy, no policy would cover both for the same premium, but the agent says they must have separate policies.

The premium would be identical, but the difference is in the policy fee which the customer ostensibly pays to cover the cost of paperwork involved in issuing the new policy.

Instead of one policy fee, the agent would collect two, one each from husband and wife.

"A husband and wife may be, for example, led to believe that two policies with the resulting double policy fee is the only means of obtaining the insurance," the board said.

Policy fees are known to run as high as $30 per policy in some instances.

The board told insurance companies in a memorandum it had information showing agents were the ones benefiting from selling unnecessary policies because they were allowed to keep the policy fees.

Possible punishment could be suspension or revocation of an agent's license and a company's right to do business in Texas.

Respectfully Yours...

Civiletti's nomination to draw Hispanic fire

DALLAS (AP) — President Carter's announcement that he will nominate Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti to step up to attorney general guarantees a fight from "incensed" Hispanics, the president of the League of United Latin American Citizens said Thursday.

Ruben Bonilla is a long-standing Civiletti foe because of Civiletti's refusal to prosecute in the deaths of two Mexican Americans in Texas. Law officers allegedly were involved in each case.

Carter accepted the resignation of Attorney General Griffin Bell, a fellow Georgian, Thursday, and said he would nominate Civiletti for the job.

Bonilla said he was in Washington to lobby against that action, which had been rumored, when he learned of Carter's decision.

"We were hit with a midafternoon bombshell," Bonilla said.

The recently elected head of the nation's largest Hispanic organization immediately contacted Capitol Hill lawmakers in an effort to marshal resistance to Civiletti's confirmation.

Gives gifts to the needy

'Trading stamp man' deals joy

LAPORTE, Texas (AP)— Each morning, Carl Reich opens stacks and stacks of mail; removes the trading stamps and begins licking and sticking them into books.

When he gets enough for a toaster or a frying pan or even a television set, he redeems them and waits until he hears that a poor family needs that toaster or a home for the elderly or a hospital could use a TV.

Reich, 74, the retired manager of the La Porte Chamber of Commerce, recently learned the Locust Grove Nursing Home in the East Texas community of Wills Point needed a movie projector. So, off went the number of stamp books required.

Over the years he has collected enough stamps to send 21 television sets to the East Texas Chest Hospital at Tyler.

And, he has brought many a smile to a child's face with his annual donation of stamps to be redeemed for Christmas toys for those who otherwise would have known a bleak holiday.

"Just yesterday," he said in a recent interview, "I took $1,200 worth of books to an organization here in La Porte that will redeem them for toys."

Reich said he believes each book is actually worth about $3, so that adds up to 400 books and here it is only mid-summer.

By Christmas time, Reich hopes there will be enough toys available for most of the needy children, not only in La Porte, but surrounding communities.

It all started 18 years ago when Reich and his wife were on vacation near Santa Fe, N.M. There the owner of a vacation resort showed a pickup truck loaded with sweaters, shoes, and other things to be distributed to the Indians of the Taos, N.M., area.

"The owner told me," Reich said, "that all of the stuff had come from collecting those stamps. I decided it would be a good idea to do the same thing back home in La Porte."

He started with a local appeal for "all those who were going to flush the stamps down the commode to send them to me."

Then a report of the project appeared in The Houston Chronicle and "I began getting more and more stamps," Reich said.

"Even people who lived here and then moved away continued to send me their stamps from New Jersey or New York or California. If there is no office around here, I will order the articles, put them in a closet, and then hear about someone needing something and I have it on hand.

"You know there are some people too proud to take welfare and it is those I try to help," he explained.

Being retired, Reich said the project is something to keep him busy in-between kissing his wife goodbye each morning as she leaves for work and kissing her when she returns each night.

"I get a lot of mail," he said, "but I manage to keep up with the licking and the sticking."

Weather

Texas

By The Associated Press

Much of Southwest Texas was under a flash flood watch today as scattered showers and thunderstorms, some locally heavy, continued across much of the southern half of Texas.

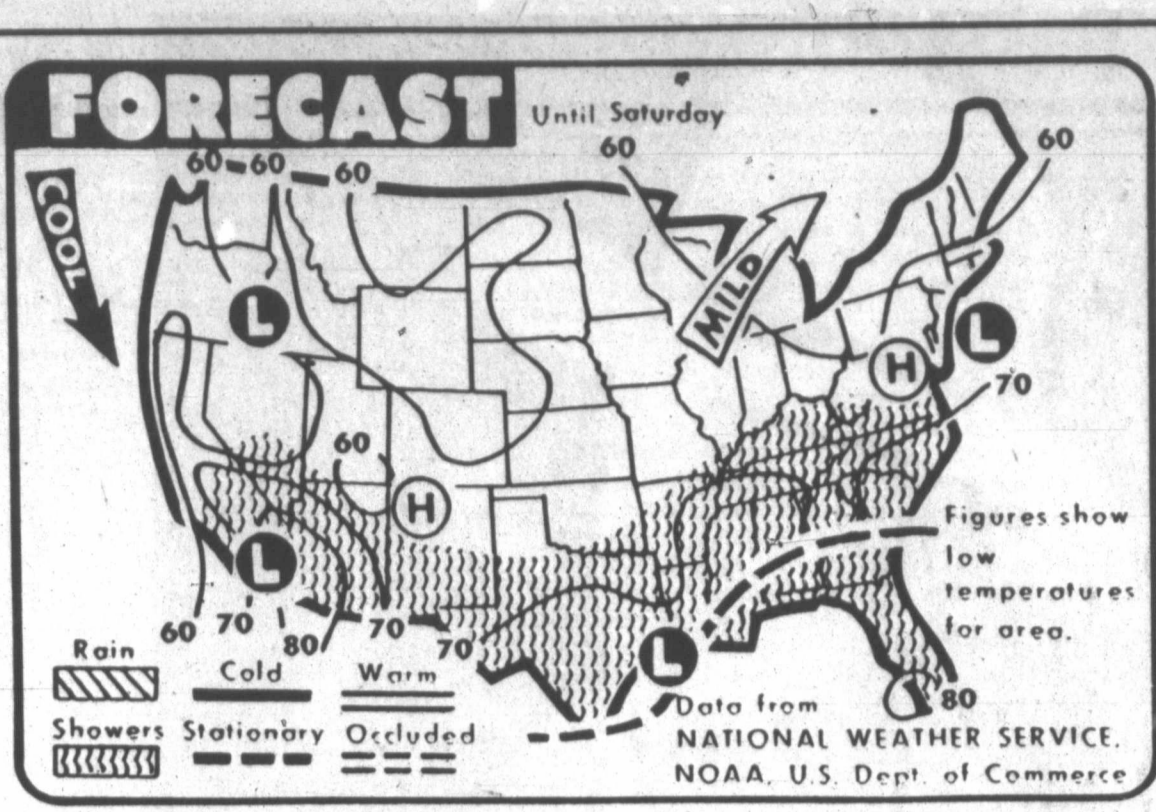

Counties included in the flash flood watch were El Paso, Hudspeth, Culberson, Reeves, Jeff Davis, Presidio, Brewster, Pecos, Terrell, Crockett, Schleicher and Sutton.

Forecasts called for continued showers and thunderstorms, some locally heavy, across the southern two-thirds of Texas today. Most of the locally heavy activity was expected in Southwest Texas, where rivers and streams were running bankfull or near bankfull.

The northern third of the state was to have partly cloudy skies and continued warm temperatures. Highs were to range from the 80s in North Texas to near 100 in far South Texas.

Heavy rain was being reported in several areas, including at Austin where a daily record of 4.85 inches fell yesterday, including slightly more than four inches that fell during the night. More rain, including some locally heavy, was reported in the Austin area during the pre-dawn hours today.

Forecasters said satellite pictures indicate that much of the Pecos Valley, where creeks were running bankfull, got 3-4 inches of rain during the night.

A WIDE BAND OF SHOWERS is expected from southern California across the southern tier of the states to the south Atlantic coast. Weather in the northern areas is expected to be clear. Warm temperatures are expected across the nation. (AP Laserphoto)

Olson will stop taking donations

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Insurance Board member Lyndon Olson Jr. says some $13,000 in political donations from insurance men won't color his judgment but he won't take any more.

"I'll probably not take any more because they cause more trouble than they are worth," Olson said Thursday.

He referred to stories in Harte-Hanks newspapers disclosing that about a third of the $38,688 he raised toward retiring his congressional campaign debts between April 1 and June 30 came from persons associated with the insurance industry.

His federal campaign finance report showed he spent $33,266 to pay off loans made to his unsuccessful campaign last year for the congressional seat centered on Waco, his home town. Olson was appointed to the insurance board by former Gov. Dolph Briscoe in December.

Among Olson's contributions were $1,000 apiece from Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Rappoport of Waco. Rappoport is president of American Income Life Insurance Co.

Olson said he and Rappoport's son grew up together, attending the same schools in Waco.

Other large contributions included $1,000 from Theodore Beasley of Dallas, chairman of Republic National Life; $1,000 from Clifton Robinson of Waco, president of Citizens Fidelity Insurance Co.; $500 from Harold Riley of Austin, president of Citizens Insurance Co.; and $400 from Waco agent Bill Bailey. Most contributions were in $100 to $250 amounts and came from a fund-raising barbecue held May 10 at the Olson family ranch near Valley Mills.

At least two lawyers who represent insurers before the board or the Legislature, Will Davis and Larry Temple of Austin, were among the contributors — Davis giving $200 and Temple $100.

"I never felt there had been or would be any impropriety as a result of the contributions. I felt if they wanted to make a contribution to what I perceived as good government, that's fine. If it was for any other purpose, they could have it back," Olson said.

FIVE HOMES COLLAPSED in Juarez, Mexico, Thursday due to heavy rains and runoff. No injuries were reported to police, but approximately 30 people were left homeless. Rainfall in the Juarez-El Paso area ranged between 1 and 1 1/2 inches Thursday. (AP Laserphoto)

Handy's legacy found in blues

His legacy was popularizing the blues and his influence on today's musicians is inestimable, say two men familiar with the work of William Christopher Handy.

Better known as W.C. Handy, he has for years been recognized as a composer, publisher and one who helped develop other musicians.

Two men who have studied Handy's work, however, say his most significant historical role was popularizing the blues and getting the message across to the listening public.

"I guess you could say his main contribution was probably that he was the first person to see some significant public or commercial potential in the blues and to do something about it," David Evans, associate music professor at Memphis State University, said in an interview.

"He could see something in the raw material and he knew how to popularize it."

Darius Thiem, chairman of the Fisk University music department in Nashville, observed, "...if somebody ever kept count, I would think that pieces by him would be among the most performed by other musicians."

"It's like all chorales were influenced by Bach. All blues were influenced by W.C. Handy. It's hard to say that is patterned or influenced by him," Thiem said.

Handy, called "Father of the Blues," is considered among the first to publish the blues. Some of his works are still regarded as standards, among them the St. Louis Blues and Memphis Blues, published in 1911 after being written under another name as a campaign song for an office hunting politician.

Handy, who died in 1958, was born in 1873, the son of a Methodist minister, in Florence, Ala.

BOOKS

Sleepless nights

"Sleepless Nights is an almost poetic novel which must be read with the closest attention.

Shifting her focus in a deft stream of conscious recall of a life—much of it her own life—author Elizabeth Hardwick moves the reader through time and space. The effect is like listening to a close friend tell the story of her life, skipping in time back and forth between years long past and only yesterday, and in place among New York City, Boston, Maine and the South.

The effect is mildly disconcerting, but the reading is rewarding when the reader finds himself attuned to Hardwick's unique literary rhythms.

Hardwick has a special gift for writing Description, and the book includes a number of telling accounts of human faces. Miss Hardwick writes with precision, a stylistic virtue not easy to come by when writing a book which seems to ramble.

Happenings for this weekend

MOVIES

The memory of the emergency at Three Mile Island lingers on not only in the minds of those actively supporting or opposing nuclear energy, but in the open minds of citizens who have not yet made up their minds about the issue.

The movie which eerily foreshadowed that actual nuclear accident, "The China Syndrome," opens tonight at the Capri Theater. Although decidedly thumbs down on nuclear power plants, the movie is not only the drama of a possible core reactor meltdown but the emotional "meltdown" of operator Jack Lemmon, who tries to stave off the accident. A good thriller, which does not depend on its obvious topicality for interest. The producer, Michael Douglas, did his homework on nuclear energy.

Opening tonight at the Top O' Texas Drive - In is a remake of the classic horror movie "The Invasion of the Body Snatchers" with Donald Sutherland and a movie version of J.R.R. Tolkien's "Lord of the Rings." On side two, are a couple of "R" rated offerings, one of which features the infamous Linda Lovelace supposedly in the running for president.

Saturday at noon followed by local news and the farm bureau roundup.

CBS saves knockout punch

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Remember last February's ratings "sweeps" period, when the networks were beating each other over the head with blockbuster movies?

"Gone with the Wind," "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," "Marathon Man" — you can have those. As far as I'm concerned, CBS saved its knockout punch for the summer.

"Animal Crackers" makes its network television debut on CBS Saturday night. I've canceled my frog-gigging date for this.

"Animal Crackers," made in 1930, was the Marx Brothers' second movie, and beyond a doubt, their best. It was their biggest Broadway hit, transferred practically intact to film.

Because of some legal difficulties, the movie was out of circulation for more than 30 years, and reappeared in theaters in 1975. Groucho himself attended the Los Angeles reopening.

Forget storylines — the plot here is thinner than the one you'll find on ABC's "Love Boat" rerun playing opposite. This is pure crazy. I think the story has something to do with some missing art the brothers are trying to recover for plump and rich Mrs. Rittenhouse (Margaret Dumont), but it doesn't matter.

You know the plot doesn't count as soon as Groucho enters Mrs. Rittenhouse's plush Park Avenue digs in a sedan chair borne by four Nubian slaves. He is Captain Spaulding, famed explorer. You can tell that because he is wearing boots, riding pants and a pith helmet.

And because he dances his bizarre dance and sings the song that was to become his theme, "Hooray for Captain Spaulding":

"Hello, I must be going, I cannot stay I only. Came to say I'm going.

"I'll stay a week or two, I'll stay the summer through. But I am telling you, I must be going."

Some of Groucho's classic jokes are here. When he climbs out of his sedan chair, he recounts the rigors of life in the jungle.

"Up at six, and back in bed at seven... One morning I shot an elephant in my pajamas. How he got in my pajamas, I'll never know."

More.

"What this country needs today is a good seven-cent nickel."

Area church news

Pampans attend Bible Camp

BOISE CITY, Okla. — Several Pampans and area persons were among 160 attending the third annual session of the Black Mesa Bible Camp near here July 8-14.

Glen Walton of the North Amarillo Church of Christ directed this year's camp, which annually conducts a four-week concentrated study of the Bible. The camp is now in its 14th year.

Staff members from Pampa included Foy Barrett, Jackie Barrett, Stan Quesberry, Betty Bradford, Vardean Searl, Paul Searl, Valerie Bradford, J.R. Hollis, Jim Steward, Audrey Steward, Mark Williams, Shirley Williams, Wilma Mason and Patsy Strawn. Denny and Linda Sneed of Lefors and Mary Cousins of Skellytown were also staff members.

Mr. and Miss Black Mesa, as elected by the campers, were Jeff Eggleston of Hooker, Okla., and Cheryl Coleman of Liberal, Kan. Miss Coleman is the grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Coleman of Skellytown and Mr. and Mrs. Foy Barrt of Pampa.

Best cabin campers of the week were Tracy Gee of Lefors and Jay Taber of Liberal. Misti Brummett of Pampa was another best cabin camper.

Bible award winners included Audrey Rawls of Bedford. She is the grand-daughter of Jim and Audrey Steward of Pampa.

McCullough birthday Tuesday

WHITE DEER — Brant McCullough, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCullough, will celebrate his first birthday Tuesday.

As most area people know, he has a rare form of leukemia. Medical expenses are tremendous, as are flight expenses to and from Dallas, where he receives treatment.

In lieu of birthday presents, why not give a monetary donation to the Brant McCullough fund at the First Bank and Trust Company in White Deer or at the City Hall in Skellytown?

If you are in possession of aluminum cans, please deposit them at the Rolling O Conoco station, 100 Main Street in Skellytown. All donations will be deeply appreciated.

Central Baptist begins renovation

Central Baptist Church has begun construction to renovate most of the sanctuary.

Upon recommendation of the Renovation Committee and church approval, plans were presented which proposed a $250,000 project to renovate and restore the building. The contract was granted to L.L. Sams and Sons Co. of Waco. The project began July 9 and will be completed by September 9.

The aim of the project is to enhance the beauty of the Worship Center, to update equipment and lighting needs, and to repair damage due to extensive roof repairs.

Some of the major features will include complete rewiring and lighting system, a new sound system, new walls, an enlarged choir and pulpit area, re-decoration of the baptistry area, replacing pews, new faceted glass windows, re-decoration of the foyer, leveling of the floor, new carpet and finishing of the balcony area.

Many of the renovation improvements came after a year-long study of needs. During renovation, the Worship Services will be held in the Fellowship Hall of the Educational Building. Two Sunday services are planned each morning, one at 8:30 and the other at 10:55.

Singers in Mobeetie Sunday

MOBEETIE — Members of Amarillo's First Christian Church will be in Mobeetie Sunday night to sing a cantata entitled "The Witness."

The singers, who have traveled all over the world, are coming to Mobeetie because of interest in the town's history. Members of the Mobeetie Historical Association will greet the choir in costumes of the last century. A sandwich supper will be served in the old jail prior to the concert.

Dr. Dale Roller, head of Amarillo College's Music Department, will direct the singers. The program will start at 8 p.m. in the high school gym.

Book to be issued in autumn

NEW YORK (AP) — A book on sexuality commissioned by U.S. Catholic bishops and then ordered destroyed after 2,000 copies were printed is to be published by Seabury Press, publishing arm of the Episcopal Church.

It said the book, "Faith and Sexism: A Guide for Religious Educators," by Marianne Sawicki, would be issued in September.

Although the book had been approved by educational units of the U.S. Catholic Conference, the bishops' administrative board judged it unacceptable, going "beyond conference philosophy," and ordered it scrapped.

Houses of prayer increase in number

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A "dramatic growth" in the ministry of houses of prayer is reported by Patricia Crewell, editor of the current House of Prayer Directory. She says it lists nearly twice more houses than a year ago.

Both Roman Catholic dioceses and religious orders are expanding their prayer retreat centers in keeping with "renewed interest in prayer" among Americans, she says. The new directory lists 133 houses and 71 study-experience centers, a 45.7 percent increase.

The centers, which are not cloistered but which emphasize contemplative living, maintain policies of hospitality for those seeking periods of refreshment and spiritual growth.

Most have their specialties, such as some with classical prayer traditions developed by the various orders, while others emphasize Scriptural prayers, parish ministry, liturgy of the hours and various guidance for inner development under trained staff members.

HERE IS THE PATH

The Carpenter's FRIEND

To build... one must have plans, and plans give exact measurements. The carpenter who makes careful measurements finds that the work is made easier. Careful measuring prevents waste... waste of time and materials. Therefore the measuring device is truly a friend to the carpenter.

The church wants to be your friend, and help you to a easier and better way of life. The Bible clearly gives us a way to measure life. Through many centuries man has found no better rules than those given in the Bible.

Attend church and receive the friendly welcome that awaits you.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Coleman Adv. Ser.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: Twenty-five years ago, when I was 2, my parents split up. My mother was an alcoholic and didn't want me. My father couldn't raise me alone, so I was given up for adoption.

The only parents I have ever known are the wonderful couple who adopted me, loved me, gave me their name and a good life.

Recently, out of the blue, my "real" father contacted me by telephone and said he was coming out to meet me. I had always known I was adopted and thought it rather exciting to be meeting my "real" father.

I'm not sure what I expected, but this man was a terrible disappointment. He is a heavy drinker, smokes like a chimney, has had a rough life and looks it. The father who raised me is exactly the opposite.

Although I feel sorry for this stranger, I don't know how to tactfully discourage him from wanting more of my life than I want to give him. I'm grown up now and have no desire for a close relationship. I don't want to shut him out completely, but we have nothing in common and I see no basis for more than a distant friendship.

How would you or your readers handle this?

FOUND IN OREGON

DEAR FOUND: I would be respectful and courteous, carefully avoiding any phony expression of affection in order to make him feel better. Any pretense of feelings that are not sincere would be more cruel than kind.

DEAR ABBY: This is our first baby, and my husband and I couldn't be happier but, wouldn't you know it, there is a problem.

My husband absolutely, positively refuses to change our baby's diaper.

He says he will do anything and everything in the line of housework, cooking, laundry, marketing, etc., but he simply cannot bring himself to change a diaper! He says that is a MOTHER'S job.

Abby, my husband is the dearest, sweetest, most considerate guy in the world, but his mind is closed on this particular subject and he will not budge.

What is your opinion?

IRRITATED IN IDAHO

DEAR IRRITATED: Diaper - changing is no more a mother's job than a father's. However, if he agrees to do anything and everything BUT, don't hassle the dearest, sweetest, most considerate guy in the world.

DEAR ABBY: A big thanks to you for warning people to never leave discarded refrigerators where youngsters can crawl into them and suffocate before they're found.

After reading that item I literally ran to our garage where mine is stored and removed the door as you suggested.

We have a three - year - old and a one - year - old, and I would never forgive myself if they became victims of such a tragic accident. I hope other readers did the same.

THANKFUL MOM

DEAR MOM: I hope so, too. But, unfortunately, some will not. Read on for another life - saving letter on that subject.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote about her small daughter being found blue and nearly lifeless after having been trapped for hours in an abandoned refrigerator in a neighbor's yard.

Your advice was good, but parents should also be aware of the potential danger of refrigerators and upright freezers that are IN USE!

Children have been known to climb inside these (in basements) to "hide". They are equally as dangerous.

Caroline Bird probes impact of working wives

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The steadily growing number of wives who work is changing life in America, affecting not just women but also men, the family, and the business world itself, says writer and lecturer Caroline Bird.

Not only are more than half of married women in the work force, but 45 percent of mothers of preschool children are working, "and that's an impressive statistic," adds Miss Bird, whose most recent book, "The Two - Paycheck Marriage," examines its impact on individuals and on society as a whole.

"These young mothers are apt to be college educated, and education is a better prediction of whether a wife will work than the presence of small children," the author explained in an interview.

It isn't that the women's movement has made wives discontented with being home, she says, but rather that the jobs are there - especially jobs in the area of health, education, and welfare, which used to be performed by mothers at home and which have gradually become outside jobs.

"Women did at home what's now done by restaurants, hotels, hospitals, social agencies, the garment industry, laundries," Miss Bird enumerates. "Te exodus from home to paid employment has been going on for 150 years, and there's no reason why it won't continue to go on."

"Today's volunteer work is always the paid employment of the future," says Miss Bird, who claims the women's movement is the consequence of the increase in the employment of women, not the cause of it.

"Women go to work earlier, stay longer, come back sooner after their children are born. An increasing number of women see the need for the goals of the women's rights movement - equality in the workplace - where they didn't before."

"The women's movement is important only because it articulates what women who now work and expect to work all their lives feel," she says.

Miss Bird, who has written such previous best sellers as "The Invisible Scar" about the Depression and "Born Female", researched her current book for several years, drawing on material that included matching questionnaires filled out by husbands and wives, interviews, and discussions following her college lectures.

College, she says, has sex equality built into it. With dormitory life declining, men are learning to share chores in coed housekeeping situations.

"They get married and both get jobs and they more or less perpetuate this lifestyle," she says.

Miss Bird considers one of the major benefits of so many wives working is that it gives women options - to work or stay home.

"Sheer quantity makes it impossible for each wife who works to think of herself as an exception," she points out. "She has a practical choice. Some react with a whoop and a holler, think it's grand; some are afraid of choice."

"And it gives the husband and wife the opportunity to switch roles; people can change over the course of their marriage," she says.

It gives men options too, but it also confuses them, she adds. Though they may believe in equality, they're deprived of male pride in being the breadwinner.

"Women have been given through the women's movement a rhetoric, being told this is how you should feel, so they can support each other. Men don't have a male support group."

The impact on the family, Miss Bird says, means fewer and later children, children wanted for themselves rather than because having them is expected. And it also means better marriages because independent women won't have to stay in disastrous ones.

As for children, "it's almost impossible to single out any impact of employment of the mother on the children."

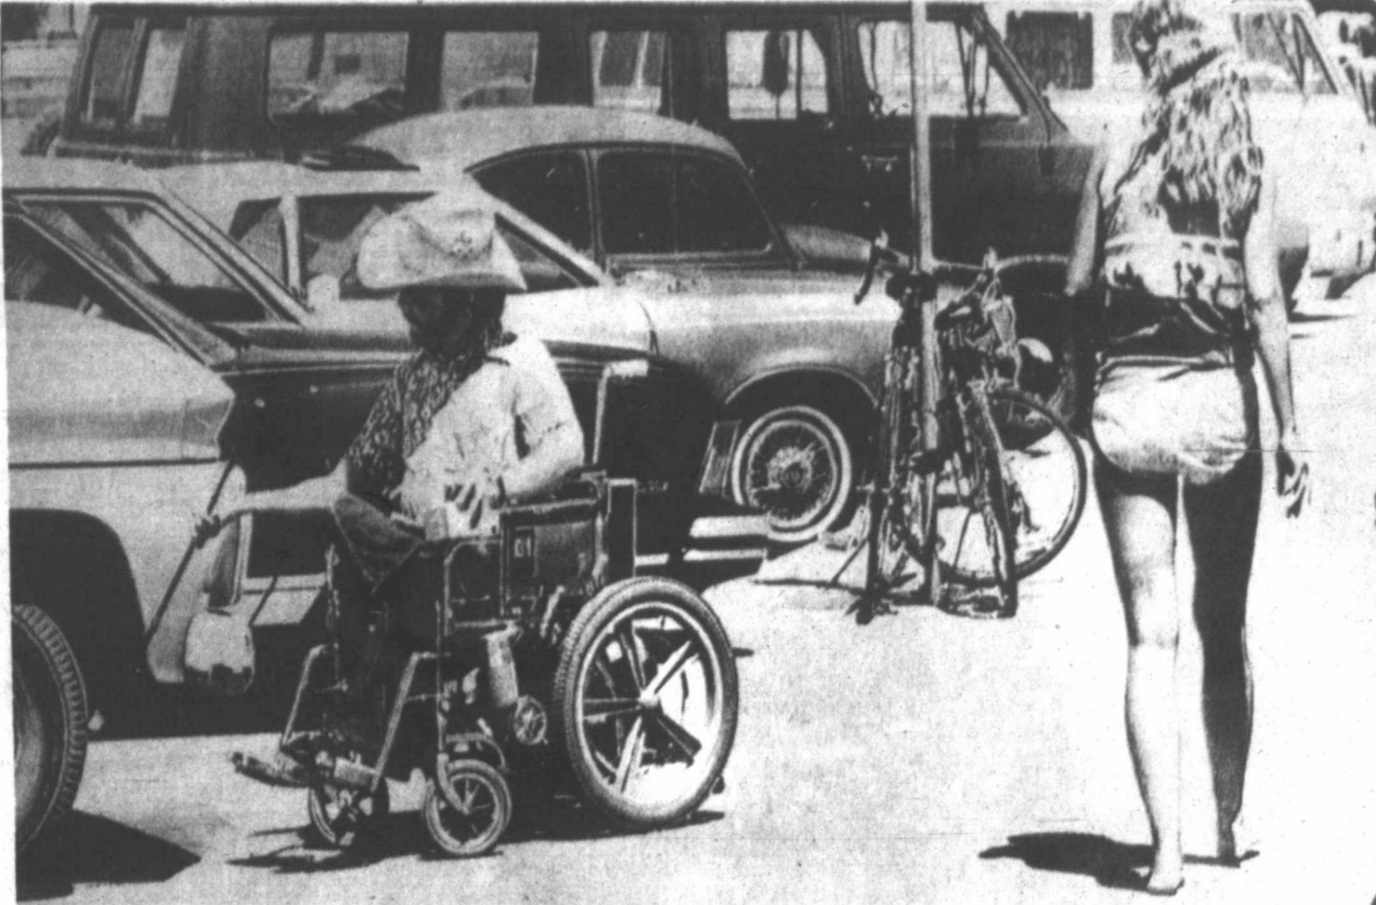

Miss Bird sees changes ahead for the business world, which she thinks will have to contend with employees different than in the past: ones who can quit more easily.

"Business organizations have to rearrange work - more part-time, more flexitime, for men as well as women," she asserts.

Miss Bird, who wears her graying hair short and looks much younger than her 64 years, is the mother of a daughter from her first marriage and a 17-year-old son from her present marriage to Tom Mahoney, also a writer.

They live in a "rambling old house" in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. Mahoney, who has worked in public relations, does the shopping, she says, and "he's an embarrassingly terrible booster of me - he's always sending clippings to people."

"The Two - Paycheck Marriage" is published by Rawson, Wade.

DR. LAMB

Help is available for ringing ears

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Recently my husband noted your column about how a hearing aid might help ringing in the ear. I've had a constant ringing in my ears since I was in my teens. I am now 30. I've been told that nothing could be done for this condition. Most of the time I can keep it drowned out with the radio or TV or a fan. Sometimes these other sounds do not help. I'm interested to know if there are any tinnitus clinics in our area. The ear specialists I've been to have not been able to explain my problem. Some said that it may have been caused by allergies. Any help that you can give me will be appreciated greatly.

DEAR READER - By now most of the specialists in ear, nose and throat and the audiologists who are keeping up to date at all with the literature should be aware that there are things that can be done to help a lot of people with ringing and noises in the ear. When I say a lot of people that doesn't mean everyone.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 12-10, Help for Tinnitus - Noise or Ringing in the Ear. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self - addressed envelope to me at P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. I would suggest you take it along with you when you see your ear, nose and throat specialist and tell him you've read it and you would like to know if a hearing aid or a tinnitus masker would be helpful in your case.

Now relieving the annoyance of ringing in the ear doesn't always mean that you're going to explain the problem. There are instances in which we never know what causes the ringing or buzzing in the ear. But, of course, it is a symptom and a person needs a careful examination to see if there is a cause that can be detected.

Simply not knowing what causes the ringing or buzzing in the ear doesn't mean that it can't be helped either with a hearing aid, if there's an associated hearing loss, or with a tinnitus masker if the hearing is normal.

The truth is you're using a modified form of tinnitus masker when you turn up the radio or the television or use a fan. It would be a lot more efficient to have a balanced noise provided to your ear in the form of a tinnitus masker if your testing proved that you'd be a candidate for it.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Do you get any benefit from taking a tablespoon of all natural dark molasses a day or would it do any harm? Will it prevent constipation?

DEAR READER - If you're talking about black strap molasses, it does contain a small amount of iron (and one tablespoon a day won't provide enough to make that much difference) and quite a bit of potassium. A single tablespoon does contain 585 milligrams of potassium which is about twice the amount that you'd get in an average orange. A normal person should be getting quite sufficient potassium anyway if he includes the proper amount of fruits and fruit juices in his diet.

Molasses won't help at all with constipation.

Pampa native named firm's vice president

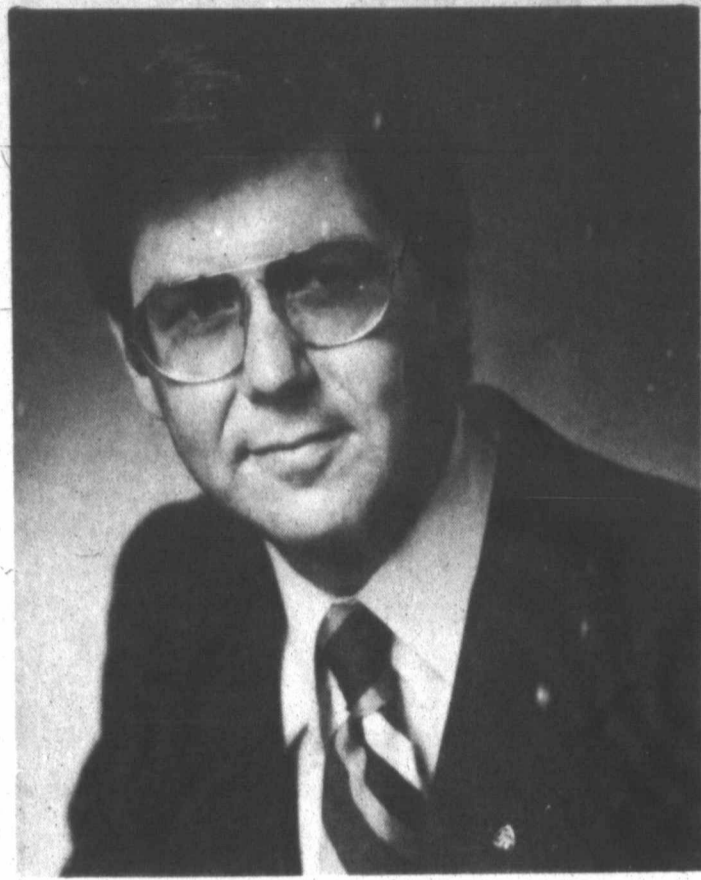

Gregory C. Jewell, a 1965 graduate of Pampa High School, has been made a vice president of Service Corporation International and the regional manager for that firm's southeastern region.

Service Corporation International is a publicly held corporation on the New York Stock Exchange and is the largest funeral service operation in North America. It incorporates over 200 funeral homes and cemeteries.

At 32, Jewell is the youngest vice president and regional manager in the company. He started with the company in 1966 while attending college and was eventually named general manager of the Waltrip Funeral Directors in Houston.

He served as assistant regional manager for the southern region until September 1976, when he was appointed area coordinator for the Miami, Fla., funeral homes. He was then transferred to Orlando, Fla., as assistant regional manager for the southeastern region.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Jewell of Pampa.

Windfall profits tax should not apply to Texas revenue

WASHINGTON (AP) - The windfall profits tax on domestic oil production should not apply to the revenue Texas receives for its permanent school funds, state Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong told a Senate committee Thursday.

The income Texas receives from oil and gas production on state land is placed in permanent school funds, and the interest on the bond or "corpus" of the funds is used for education.

"Therefore, the application of any crude oil 'windfall' profits tax to royalties paid to states with respect to state school lands not only will reduce directly the amount of funds otherwise available to such states for their educational programs, but take away a part of the corpus that we have struggled to maintain," Armstrong said.

"These sales have never been taxed by the federal government," he added.

The House made state royalties exempt in the windfall profits tax measure it passed. The Senate Finance Committee presently is considering the proposal.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., asked if the federal government had the authority to tax another government in any event.

"To my knowledge, there has never been a tax levied on the sale of property belonging to a state," Armstrong replied.

He said exempting the state royalty from any windfall profits tax would affect eight-tenths of one percent of the total Texas production.

At the same hearing, industry spokesmen requested exemptions for independent producers and production from stripper wells. They warned that a higher tax will mean less exploration and lower production.

Stripper wells are those which maintain an average daily production of 10 barrels or less.

Harold E. Wright of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association said the independent producers who find most of the nation's new oil will be strapped for cash to continue explorations under the windfall profits tax proposal.

"The average independent concentrates on finding and producing petroleum. Thus, he is a direct target on taxation applied to wellhead operations," Wright, of Dallas, said.

Figures for the past five years show independent producers put 95 to 128 percent of their wellhead revenue back into exploration, development and production, Wright said. "Contrary to public opinion, the domestic petroleum industry is not a financial bonanza constantly creating excess profits to be placed elsewhere in the economy," he maintained.

Joe B. McShane Jr., president of the National Stripper Well Association, said a new tax would prompt more abandonments of low-producing wells.

The 1973 removal of direct price controls on stripper well production reverse a trend toward abandoning wells, McShane, of Monahan, Texas, said.

"The windfall profits tax would jeopardize stripper operations in every oil producing region. Production would decline. The rate of abandonment of these wells, nearing the end of their productive lives in any case, would be hastened," McShane said.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, a finance committee member, has introduced an amendment to exempt from the windfall profits tax the first 3,000 barrels a day produced by an independent.

ENERGY

Energy shortages will cause recession

DALLAS (AP) - Energy shortages caused by the government and spiraling inflation will plunge the nation into a recession within a year, a visiting scholar to the Southern Growth Policies Board in Washington, D.C., has predicted.

"I would concur with those who point to the Department of Energy as the cause of these shortages," said Bernard L. Weinstein, associate professor of economics and political economy and director of the University of Texas at Dallas' Southwest Center for Economic and Community Development.

Speaking Thursday to the 4th annual Public Utilities Conference sponsored by UTD, Weinstein also predicted Congress will cut corporate and personal income taxes substantially early in 1980.

The Southwest will not escape this recession, he said, because it is becoming more and more like the rest of the nation. The Southwest can no longer market itself on the basis of cheap labor, cheap energy, inexpensive housing, or lower living costs.

"I do expect the maintenance of the Southwestern lifestyle to become increasingly expensive. Indeed, I would predict that the lower cost of living, which has been such a strong magnet attracting industry and people to the Southwest, will have evaporated within five years," Weinstein said.

Attempts to substantially increase synthetic fuel production will get lost in the "regulatory jungle" of the National Energy Act, he said, adding less government intervention - not more - would speed energy security.

"It is obvious to me that the president and his advisers do not understand - or are unwilling to face up to - the real causes of energy shortages, and most of the proposals for increased energy production strike me as both unrealistic and expensive," he said.

The North is more energy efficient and the relative increases in production costs will be more pronounced in the South, he said.

A Dallas utility official earlier told the conference that the energy program "can only result in disaster for the utility industry and its customers" unless the increased regulatory risk can be diminished.

John S. Ferguson, senior vice president of Middle West Service Co., predicted the gas industry will suffer more than the electric industry from the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act, one of five parts of the national program.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede ool

July 21, 1979

This coming year you will be better able to consolidate your forces in order to achieve your aims. Your outer and inner drives will function harmoniously.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) All the grand intentions in the world will do you no good unless you are realistic in your planning. A poor choice of a co-worker could ruin everything. Your new Astro-Graph Letter tells you what lies ahead for you for the year following your birthday. Get yours by mailing $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you find yourself stuck with those you consider to be boring, and uninteresting, make the best of it and be the gracious person you innately are.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are much too wishy-washy about your goals to accomplish much of anything today. Instead, you may spend all your time and energy making excuses.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your mind has a tendency to wander today, fantasizing all types of things. Take care not to put too much stock in your daydreams.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Count your blessings today and not all those things you don't have. You can spend just as much energy on positive thoughts as on negative ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) That ideal you're chasing isn't to be found today, because all you can see are the imperfections in others. Revise your thinking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Inconsistency in the direction of your output and energies gets in the way of your getting anything accomplished today. Don't be a drifter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You are kidding yourself if you think the world is going to entertain you today. Things happen to those who make them happen.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Dissatisfaction with your lot in life could have you making many unproductive changes today. Take a realistic look at what you are doing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a tendency to chatter aimlessly today without giving much consideration to what you're saying. You may mean no offense, but someone could be hurt.

TAURUS (April 20-May 10) You'll have to continue to be extra careful with your spending. Again today you could buy without thinking about anything but your personal desires.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Kidding yourself about how much you are capable of doing at one time and attempting too many projects could make you a very unreliable partner today.

Top NFL choice chooses to play Canadian football

NEW YORK (AP) — As a kid, Tom Cousineau never dreamed he'd be a pioneer.

Just a couple of months ago, when he was the No. 1 pick in the National Football League draft, the Ohio State All-American linebacker appeared on the verge of accomplishing a childhood ambition. Now he may become known as a sporting trendsetter.

"Any kid in the U.S. playing football grows up dreaming to play in the NFL," Cousineau said Thursday after signing a multiyear contract with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League. "I'm no exception but this is a very positive move."

"It's a possibility it will set a precedent. But that's not why I did it."

What the 22-year-old, 6-foot-3, 227-pound Cousineau did was become the first top pick in the NFL draft ever to bypass the NFL and sign with another league. He turned down what the Buffalo Bills termed "an offer in excess of any ever sought by a

No. 1 draft choice."

He did it because the Alouettes' package outdid the Bills' best offer.

Although terms of the contract were not disclosed, Jimmy Walsh, Cousineau's attorney, said: "Montreal won more than Buffalo lost. It was a better business deal for Tom in Montreal. Better for money and from other standpoints."

Cousineau's signing lends credence to the CFL's position as a viable alternative to the NFL for graduating collegians.

"Jimmy came to us about a month ago," Alouettes General Manager Bob Geary said. "I guess he was looking for someone to compete with the Bills. We thought we lost him two weeks ago. It was a monetary thing but we got it worked out."

The CFL season began two weeks ago and Cousineau said he will be ready to step into the lineup next Wednesday.

"I'm in good shape. There'll be a period of adjustment to a different game," he said. In Canadian ball, there are 12 men on the field at once, a team gets just three downs to move the ball 10 yards and the field is 110 by 65 yards.

"But it's that way for any player coming out of college. In college, especially in the Big Ten, you don't see the passing game like in the pros. In Canada, because it's so wide open, the passing game is even more important."

"I set a standard for myself and I expect to live up to it."

The Alouettes, who have been in the Grey Cup (the CFL's Super Bowl) four of the past five years, winning in 1974 and 1977, expect him to live up to their deal. Other American stars, such as Johnny Rodgers and Anthony Davis, have bolted for the NFL in the midst of their pacts with CFL teams.

"There is nothing in his contract to allow him to play in the NFL before his contract ends here," said Robert Berger, vice president of the Alouettes and son of team owner Sam Berger. "He's not a slave and we want him to be happy, like all our players. But there is no 'escape clause.'"

Irwin can settle question of 'Open' champ

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Golf fanatics have argued for years whether the U.S. Open or the British Open is the world's leading tournament.

Hale Irwin, the current U.S. Open champion, doesn't profess to have the answer. But he could well answer the question "who is the Open champion?" by winning the British tournament as well.

Irwin went into today's third round at Lytham St. Annes with a 2-stroke advantage over young Spaniard Severiano Ballesteros. Irwin shot his second successive 68 for a 6-under-par total of 136.

"There are those in the States who feel the U.S. Open is the tournament that matters," Irwin said. "Our friends across the pond think this is the big one. To win both would really settle the argument as to who won the Open."

The last man to win both opens in the same year was Lee Trevino in 1971.

"I would dearly love to win the British Open," Irwin said. "It would be a big, big feather in my cap. It is pretty special."

Irwin's round included three birdies on the front nine and not a single bogey. The round lifted the bespectacled American above overnight leader Bill Longmuir.

The little-known Briton shot a 3-over-par 74 to end the day at 139, one shot behind Ballesteros.

Tulsa Drillers crush Amarillo Gold Sox, 7-1

By The Associated Press
Gene Dotson's three-run home powered the Arkansas Travelers to a 4-1 Texas League baseball victory over the El Paso Diablos Thursday night.

The Diablos, however, rebounded in the second game to take a 4-2 victory. In the only other Texas League action, Tulsa beat Amarillo, 7-1. Scheduled games matching Shreveport at Midland and San Antonio at Jackson were postponed because of rain. Dave Pennill singled and Fred Tidale reached base on an outfielder's error before Dotson's second inning homer. The other Travelers run came when Neil Fiala tripled and Joe DeSa drove him home with a single.

Mike Bishop's solo homer in the seventh, his 10th of the season, accounted for the only El Paso run in the first game.

Dave Johnson, 7-3, was the winning pitcher. The loss was charged to Bob Border, 3-7. The Travelers jumped out to a 1-0 lead on a single by Gene Roof after Dennis Delaney walked and moved to second on a wild pitch.

El Paso tied the game in the third when Brian Harper doubled home Rick Brewster, who had walked.

El Paso wound up their scoring with three runs in the sixth inning. The three-run outburst featured singles by Bishop, Brandt Humphrey, Steve Lubratic and Jeff Berton.

Arkansas' final run came in the seventh when Roof doubled and came home on a single by Fiala.

Jim Vallone, 1-0, was the winning Diablos pitcher. The loser was Hector Eduardo, 9-4.

The Tulsa Drillers used big innings to take a 7-1 victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox. The Drillers scored two runs in the second and three in the fourth and went on to take an easy victory.

Chuck Lamson, 8-3, was the winning pitcher. George Stablein, 6-10, was the loser.

Rosen resigns position as New York's president

NEW YORK (AP) — George Steinbrenner, principal owner of the world champion New York Yankees, has begun looking for a new president for the American League team after Al Rosen resigned "to explore several other business opportunities."

Rosen, in a statement issued by the Yankees, said "contrary to speculation, I have not, nor will I, accept any of those business opportunities in the near future."

Rosen's resignation, which had been rumored for several days, apparently was triggered by a dispute between Rosen, Steinbrenner and Manager Billy Martin. Martin, who has been embroiled in controversy several times during his two tenures as manager, said of Rosen: "I feel sorry for him."

In accepting the resignation, Steinbrenner, after two days of meetings and conversations with Rosen, said in a statement: "When he (Rosen) told me of one of the opportunities, I gave him my best advice. I did not see, frankly, how he could turn such an offer down."

Rosen is rumored to be joining Bally, a corporation which will soon open a gambling casino in Atlantic City, N.J. Bally is run by Bill Weinberger, a longtime friend of Rosen's.

Last year, when Steinbrenner surprised a Yankee Oldtimers' Day crowd by announcing that the recently fired Martin was returning to manage the team and that Lemon would become general manager in 1980, it was also announced that General Manager Cedric Tallis would be retiring following this season.

It also is rumored that Steinbrenner may take over as president.

Rosen, 55, was lured out of private business by Steinbrenner to take the Yankees job two years ago. He is one of 16 limited partners who jointly own the club with Steinbrenner. Steinbrenner is listed as the principal owner.

Rosen's troubles reportedly began last month when Steinbrenner replaced Lemon, a close friend of Rosen's and a former teammate on the Cleveland Indians, with Martin about four months before Martin was due to return to the team.

And Martin failed to return seven phone calls from Rosen during the Yankees' West Coast road trip last week and Steinbrenner and Rosen were reported to have had a shouting match over the telephone.

"There is no doubt, as in any venture, that George and I have had disagreements," Rosen said. "However, I want to make it positively clear to everyone that they never involved any shouting or yelling matches. Our close friendship of 15 years would preclude any overt altercations."

Coleman, Stemrick lone Oiler vets still unsigned

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Houston Oiler starting safety Mike Reinfeldt today has a signed contract and an unworried mind as he and the other Oiler veterans begin their first day of training camp at Angelo State University.

"I didn't want to be a holdout so I'm glad we've got it settled," the third-year pro said Thursday after signing a multi-year contract. "I was looking for a little longer contract and that's what I eventually got."

Oiler rookies have drilled since July 1. Reinfeldt, who had signed a pair of one year pacts with the Oilers, said he could now concentrate on helping the Oilers become a better defensive unit.

"When you sign one year contracts, you spend about three or four months in the off season worrying about that," he said.

The signing of Reinfeldt means there are only two Oilers without contracts, running back

Ronnie Coleman and defensive back Greg Stemrick, one of the Oilers' best special team players who is expected in camp today with his agent.

Meanwhile, head coach Bum Phillips made his first series of cuts, trimming 13 players from the roster, including three quarterbacks.

Phillips cut quarterbacks Kris Jordinelli, Mesa College, Mark Cahill, Nevada-Las Vegas, and Oscar Ramirez, Texas-El Paso, following a rookie game Wednesday night against the Kansas City rookies which the Chiefs won 10-3.

The Oilers now have former Texas Tech quarterback Tommy Duniven and jack-of-all-trades Guido Merckens as backups for Dan Pastorini and Gifford Nielsen.

Other players cut Thursday were tight end Richard Anderson, Salem College; offensive linemen Wilbert Cunningham, Texas Tech, Tim Jones, Stephen F. Austin.

Pittsburgh sweeps pair from Houston

By the Associated Press

Atlanta's Phil Niekro has caught his brother, Houston's Joe, as the National League's only 13-game winners and it looks like someone else may catch the rest of the Astros before too long.

The Brothers Niekro each surrendered six hits Thursday, but Phil did it over nine innings in hurling the Braves to an 8-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Joe lasted only 4 2-3 innings in the nightcap as the Astros dropped a 9-5, 4-2 double-header to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Two-run homers by Willie Stargell and Phil Garner in the opener and John Milner in the nightcap helped the Pirates to their sweep of the Astros. Milner slammed a first-inning homer in the second game and Bruce Kison blanked the Astros on four hits until the ninth, when he needed help from Grant Jackson after retiring 17 consecutive batters.

In the opener, the score was tied twice before Garner's homer in the sixth gave the Pirates a 7-5 lead.

Braves 8, Cubs 2

Two-run singles by Rowland Office and Jeff Burroughs highlighted Atlanta's six-run fifth inning that erased a 2-0 Chicago lead. Office singled to tie the score and Burroughs' bases-loaded hit put the Braves on top 4-2. Burroughs hit a solo homer in the ninth.

Reds 16, Cards 4

Ray Knight drove in six runs with a grand slam homer, a single and a sacrifice fly to pace a 19-hit Cincinnati assault against Pete Vuckovich and four relievers. The Reds scored five runs in the first inning and continued the attack until Knight's third home run of the season and first career grand slam wrapped up the scoring in the ninth against Will McEnaney.

Dodgers 7, Expos 3

Steve Yeager, Joe Ferguson and Davey Lopes slugged home runs and Burt Hooton scattered six hits as the Dodgers broke a five-game losing streak.

The offensive outburst followed a closed-door pregame meeting following charges during the All-Star break by several players that Reggie Smith had "quit on us." Smith, angered by the remarks, said following the meeting that "I gave my side of it and everything is now geared toward a more positive attitude."

Giants 1, Phillies 0

John Curtis hurled a seven-hitter for his second consecutive 1-0 shutout and Darrell Evans drove in the only run with a fourth-inning double. Curtis struck out five and didn't issue a walk and was in deep trouble only twice but was helped by some fine defensive plays.

Padres 3, Mets 1

Pitcher Randy Jones doubled and scored what proved to be the winning run and Dave Winfield cracked his 23rd homer. Mets starter Kevin Kobel retired the first 12 Padres before Winfield homered, giving him a league-leading 73 RBIs. Winfield has hit eight home runs and driven in 18 runs in the last 18 games.

Red Sox 7, Mariners 1

Larry Wolfe was supposed to be sacrificing Rick Bursleson to second. Instead, he got Bursleson and himself all the way home — and the Boston Red Sox closer to the top of the American League East.

"I thought the hit-and-run was on," Wolfe said after misreading a bunt sign from third base coach Eddie Yost, swinging away and hitting his third home run of the season to break a fifth-inning tie and help the Red Sox beat Seattle Thursday night.

"I found out I was wrong (on Yost's sign) when I got back to the dugout," Wolfe said. "They told me it will cost a $2 fine from the Kangaroo Court." To which Manager Don Zimmer said, "It's going to cost him $1. I'm glad he hit the homer."

Dennis Eckersley scattered six Seattle hits and was nicked for the Mariners' only run in the fourth inning when Dan Meyer singled and Leon Roberts tripled.

Angels 4-0, Orioles 3-3

Gary Roenicke drove in two runs and Mike Flanagan pitched a six-hitter to give Baltimore its split in the second game. California won the first game when Dan Ford's single broke an 11th-inning tie.

Yankees 10, A's 2

Luis Tiant checked virtually everyone on Oakland — Jeff Newman hit a pair of solo homers — while Reggie Jackson hit a two-run homer and Brian Doyle drove in three runs with a double and a bases-loaded walk in the Yankees' victory.

Brewers 3, Blue Jays 2

Ben Oglivie's one-out homer in the eighth inning boosted the Brewers into a tie with Toronto, then Sixto Lezcano's one-out shot in the 11th beat the Blue Jays. Bill Castro got his third victory without a loss with 3-3 innings of shutout relief for Milwaukee.

Tigers 8, Twins 3

Lance Parrish drove in three runs, two with a triple in Detroit's four-run fourth inning against Minnesota, and rookie Pat Underwood won his fifth game without loss with ninth-inning relief from Aurelio Lopez. Rusty Staub added two RBIs for Detroit with a first-inning single off loser Jerry Koozman and a sacrifice fly in the sixth.

Indians 2, Royals 1

A bobbled bunt and a wild pitch spelled trouble for Kansas City's Dennis Leonard, who allowed only five hits in losing the game. In the first, Leonard bobbled Tby Harrah's bunt. Andre Thornton singled, scoring one. Then Leonard wild-pitched Harrah to third, from where he scored on Cliff Johnson's sacrifice fly.

White Sox 9-5, Rangers 6-4

Ralph Garr was Chicago's big gun with a two-run homer in each game against the Rangers. Chet Lemon also homered for the White Sox in the nightcap while Richie Zisk had a two-run clout and Pat Putnam and Buddy Bell solo shots for Texas.

Output of goods, services decline in second quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's output of goods and services fell at an annual rate of 3.3 percent in the second quarter this year, the largest such drop since the nation was in the depths of the 1974-75 recession, the Commerce Department said today.

The decline, which had been expected by economists in and out of government, followed a modest 1.1 percent rise in the first three months this year. It was the first dip since early 1978.

The drop was the largest since the first quarter of 1975, when "real" output—that adjusted for inflation—fell more than 9 percent, said Commerce Department analyst Adren Cooper.

The nation's output, adjusted for inflation, showed a modest 0.8 percent growth in the first three months of the year after rising almost 7 percent in the vigorous, final quarter of 1978.

The last quarterly decline was recorded in the January-March 1978 quarter with a 0.1 percent drop.

A recession traditionally is defined as two consecutive quarters of "negative growth." And that's just what economists in and out of government say the United States is in for, if not more.

Growth figures are important because they reflect personal and industrial well-being, which in turn reflects the ability of Americans to get and hold jobs and acquire income.

The Carter administration, which for months denied that a recession was on the way, reversed itself last week and acknowledged that the economy was in for declining output, possibly through the end of the year.

The administration forecasts that gross national product, adjusted for inflation, will fall 0.5 percent in 1979. It rose 4.4 percent last year.

The deteriorating economic conditions, which Carter's advisers said could cost more than 1 million persons their jobs before December, was blamed on the impact of price hikes enacted by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

OPEC has raised prices by more than 50 percent since last year. G. William Miller, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board and President Carter's choice to replace W. Michael Blumenthal as Treasury secretary, gave an even gloomier forecast to Congress earlier this week.

Miller said the nation's output could fall as much as 2 percent this year and that as many as 1.4 million people could lose their jobs.

"It appears likely that they (the new Commerce Department figures) will indicate that real gross national product declined somewhat after advancing only marginally in the first quarter," Miller told Congress.

In other economic news Thursday: —The most recent Associated Press-NBC News poll found that more Americans than ever now say their families' finances have been damaged by inflation. Nearly one-third of those interviewed earlier this week said their families' financial picture had worsened over the last 12 months, the highest such response in three years.

—The Commerce Department reported that the personal income of Americans rose 0.5 percent in June. The total for wages, farm income, interest and dividends had risen 0.7 percent in May.

—The Treasury Department announced that it had discontinued its investigation of alleged below-market prices on imported Mexican vegetables. The anti-dumping investigation was stopped because Florida growers withdrew their complaint to see if the United States and Mexico could resolve the issue during discussions.

Anthony dollar finding trouble getting around

ADAMS, Mass. (AP) — The Susan B. Anthony dollar coin, introduced to American change purses nearly three weeks ago, is having trouble getting around in the famed suffragette's hometown.

Miss Anthony, whose likeness appears on the new, light coin, was born in this western Massachusetts mill town in 1820, and many of her relatives live here.

"It's disappointing more people don't want to use it, especially after the big celebration and all," says Margaret Anthony, whose husband Ralph is one of the feminist's distant cousins.

On July 6 then-U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal came to Adams to dedicate a plaque and congratulate Miss Anthony's relatives, several of whom live on rural West Road in the shadow of Mount Greylock.

Stella Hackel, director of the Bureau of the Mint, says 500 million of the coins have been produced and 300 million have been distributed nationwide since they were introduced July 2.

"Acceptance eventually will be good," she predicted.

But here and elsewhere the coin is causing confusion and attracting collectors.

The silver-colored coin is sometimes mistaken for a quarter, which is slightly smaller.

"You have to look at your money," said local bank manager Janet Zabeck.

Next week, she and other members of the Adams Chamber of Commerce will meet to discuss how to promote the coin. The Treasury Department has suggested poetry contests and bingo games.

Bankers say part of the coin's circulation problem lies with people who think the coin is pretty and distinctive—a great souvenir.

William Foster, president of Coffee Time Vending Machine Inc., said he would not mind seeing the coin drop out of sight.

"I hate them," he said. "It's a pretty coin and certainly a tribute to Susan B. Anthony. But people are mistakenly using them for quarters—and jamming up their machines."

Poor circulation is bad enough, but last week a local coin expert revealed that Ms.

Anthony is not even the first woman whose likeness has appeared on American money.

According to the expert, James R. Harrington, that honor already had been extended to Martha Washington, George's wife, and Queen

ISA-bella of Spain. Mrs. Washington made her appearance on the front of a $1 silver certificate in 1886. Ten years later, she shared top billing with her husband—she on one side, he on the other.

Isabella—the monarch who pawned her jewels to pay for Columbus' journey to the New World—appeared on a quarter minted to commemorate the Columbian Exhibition of 1893 in Chicago.
