If stock producers quit business

Rodeo gates would close

The arena gates of big time rodeo would remain closed if Jiggs Beutler and his kind quit their business of providing bucking bulls

But such an occurrence would be improbable - especially for Beutler who has been a part of the rodeo since 1946 and has been producing his own stock since 1956. He had supplied the recently held Top 'O Texas Rodeo for three days. His current stock consists of 200 horses and 60 bulls, some of which 'have been proven successful bucks,' 'he said. The successful bucks are proven hard to ride, he said and named in this category Roan Wolf and Jug of Velvet, two horses that were entered in local competition. "They can be unpredictable," he said of the two horses, which he recently bought

Beulter said he bought Bar III and Bar XII, two proven bucking

His bulls are not given individual names, but are labelled with their previous brands. In explanation, he said, "I have enough trouble keeping up with the names of 200 horses."

As for the cost of rodeo animals, a proven horse draws between $1,500 and $3,000 while a good bull's worth ranges from $2000 to $3000, said Beutler

Some of the stock is bought on a premium basis. If a horse is proven, extra money is paid for him." he said.

Feeding the stock to keep them in good condition is costly, he said. Each horse will eat about 12 pounds of oats a day, and a bull will consume about 12 - 15 pounds of sweet feed, he added

The horses are ridden five to six times a month and only once at each rodeo, he said. "You've got to give 'em a chance and not take all "Bucking is as natural for these animals as running is," he said.

He said bucking horses, however, have become more scarce since he has begun because they are being used more for products. "The ones (horses) we get aren't much good for anything else," he

Judge rules against synthetic fuel plan

Congressional leaders reported June 6 that President Carter had pledged that day to join forces with legislators in assembling a major energy package to boost U.S. fuel production. Among other proposals was "A rush program to develop synthetic fuels from coal that can replace oil imports.

This would be a subsidy program with a $2 billion taxpayer price

The next day, the American Natural Resources Co., reported that a regulatory official had turned down its long-stalled plan to build a huge private enterprise coal-gasification plant in North Dakota. The ruling was made by an administrative law judge. If his arbitrary decision is not challenged by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the whole $900 million project will go down the drain. This project is the last of several such plans which still offer coal gasification in the near future.

The administrative law "judge" objected to the company's plan of financing with a consortium of four other large gas corporations. He said. "Whatever benefits are to be derived from this project will be shared by the entire country, not merely some ratepayers." He recommended that the Carter administration and Congress consider federal financing American Natural plans to appeal to the commission to overturn the "judge's" ruling. "We recognize this as a setback and hope the decision will be reversed." a spokesman for the ompany said. "If this ruling is upheld by the commission, the project will be put on the back burner. It would take years to go ahead.

The project was initiated seven years ago and it was proposed with a capacity of converting coal to 250 million cubic feet of gas a day. It has now been scaled down to half of that for the current

In other words, government interference has already lost us half the capacity through the years of delay and will lose the other half unless this agency's law official is stopped from continued

There has been $41 million already spent on the project and unless relief from arbitrary action by the bureaucracy is stopped. that money will be wasted.

What this so-called judge was really saying was that the venture should be a socialistic project rather than one being financed by the several sound companies in the private sector.

This whole business of "administrative law judges" is fast becoming an abomination which is costing taxpayers untold millions, perhaps billions, as the law judges wield power never anticipated in our constitutional processes. They are not a direct arm of the judicial system, but rather a kangaroo court setup within already over-powered federal agencies; just another structure to stifle the enterprise of American citizens. In the story on the president's pledge, there was not one specific word relating to the way bureaucracy is holding back the very goals being called for by the administration. Coal gasification, the Faraday principle to produce electricity from coal without turbines and turning generators, oil shale and oil sands development, oil mining to gain oil which cannot be recovered through pumping and many other projects-these are being hampered by regulatory agencies. The energy fuel industry does not need subsidy. It does need to have government agency shackles removed. The private sector is not an animal to be caged in order to keep it from harming some one. It is made up of responsible citizens.

Private enterprise can give Americans the energy fuel they need if given the opportunity to perform without a nightmare of overpowering regulations

How big is big government

By John Adams Wettergreen Mr. Wettergreen is Professor of Political Science at San Jose State University in California.

'No one in the government actually knows the number of workers who are supported...with federal funds." So reports UPI's Donald Lambro in one of this year's most important and least talked-about

For over two decades officials; political scientists and journalists have quieted their own and others' fears of big. government by pointing to the remarkably slow growth of federal employment. But now Lambro reports that federal civilian employees amount to 7 million, at the very least. This is considerably higher than the 2 to 2.9 million that has been reported since the end of World War II. Moreover. 7 million is a conservative estimate. There might be close to double that nuober.

Citizens may wonder how such a gross underestimation went unreported for so long. Basically, the federal government considers its employees to be only those who enjoy Civil Service protections. In fact, the federal government pays the salaries of millions more. Many are paid indirectly by the government. For example, many consulting firms are capitalized and financed with federal dollars. In Washington, D.C. alone, there are more than II.000 such firms.

But by far the greatest numbers are state and local government employees, who are both paid by the national government and subject to national directives. That is, not only does the national government pay all or part of these workers' wages, it also writes the job qualifications (including race, sex, class, and even "affectional preference") and job description for them. State budget officers, kindergarten teachers, the mayor's aides, perhaps the mayor himself, and so on and on are all likely to be paid wholly or in part by the national government

That the national government has practiced a deception regarding its size ought to be offensive to citizens. But we ought to be even more alarmed by what this deception has concealed. The national government has been steadily infiltrating local and state governments. This threatens to undermine two of the foundations of American freedom: local self-government and the decentralization of administration resulting from the independence of the states.

Local governments are better servants of the private interests of every citizen than is the national government, because they are closer to the citizenry. A single voice and vote is more easily heeded among thousands than it is among tens of millions. More importantly, local governments are the foundations of political liberty. Even today, most political associations begin at the local level. For at that level citizens can see the immediate connection between their private interests and the public good.

For example, if asked to solve the national problem of unsafe, unstable neighborhoods, most of us would throw up our hands. But when prostitutes decided to go into business in a neighborhood in my rity, a few vigilant, active citizens ended it in a matter of days. Their words and deeds made it plain to judges, police, politicians, and their fellow citizens that the law ought to be enforced, because the sight of such behavior is painful to decent men and women. Such citizens are the hard core of American political liberty.

Because local governments exist by virtue of state laws, local self-government exists by virtue of the U.S. Constitution's guarantee of the independence of the states. The independence of the states in their sphere cannot be compromised legally without violating the Constitution. Thus, while it might be very attractive politically in Washington, D.C. to dismiss a state governor or a state legislature, the national government lacks the constitutional power to do that. It appears that what the national government has done instead is to try to buy state and local Increasingly, matters of land use, local business practice, school curriculum, even speed limits are decisively influenced by national directives. And in many cases these are administrative directives, not even laws passed by Congress! Such matters are reasonably and constitutionally the concern of state and local governments, because they touch most directly on the daily lives of citizens. One fears that a citizen body which is not permitted to take responsibility even for its daily life will, after a while, lose the capacity to take that responsibility.

National political leaders are aware of this undermining of state and local independence. In the last few years, they have reformed the Hatch Act to make the undermining work to their advantage. The reforms allow state and local employees paid by the national government to be fully active for political parties and candidates. The Hatch Act does not have to say that political activity is a condition of employment for us to see that national tax dollars are being used to establish a national political machine.

The national government is now so large that public employees compose the largest special interest group in the nation. These employees have the largest, best financed lobby in Washington-the government itself. However, public employees do not yet compose a majority. If they do become a majority, it is difficult to see how the government could be the servant of the people rather than of itself

Frivolous lawsuits cost you

Two cars collide at an intersection. Both motorists may sue the city, claiming that the traffic light malfunctioned.

There is no way to prove it did — no way

Historically cities have disposed of these "nuisance lawsuits" by paying somebody something — thus to avoid a more costly court fight

Who pays? You, that's who! Frivolous lawsuits clog our courts and will continue to until enough Americans realize that, when the court says "They" must pay, "they" are "us" Recently I addressed a Chicago conference of the Risk and Insurance Management Society. It was an eye-opening experience for me to learn that in upwards of 85 percent of all lawsuits for damages nobody has really been damaged. The drunk and disorderly brawler who has to be shoved into the paddy wagon displays a bruise on his arm, alleges police brutality, etc.

Thus, every city has to maintain on its staff a battery of attorneys and insurance managers for whose services taxpayers

If the brawler settles for a nominal sum, taxpayers pay. If the brawler sues for more and wins — taxpavers pay. In industry — in every business — it is now necessary to employ a department for insurance management So many customers are suing - and so many employees are claiming injury or discrimination or something — that each corporation must employ these experts to determine how much of what kind of insurance to purchase, and what kinds of risk the corporation itself should shoulder.

In an effort to join forces to confront common problems, including the capricious "sue-ers," these experts have formed a national organization of 4,000 professionals representing 3,100 firms.

And the cost of all this recently added corporate burden inevitably is passed along to consumers. "They" are "us."

Energy independence

GRINNELL, IOWA: The farm states of the Midwest are doing something about the gasoline shortage. They are turning to gasohol--a mixture of alcohol derived from grain and crop wastes--and unleaded gas. It sells here for 93 cents a gallon.

Washington is dubious about gasohol. Officials doubt that it can be competitive with gasoline. But OPEC's determination to boost oil prices should make the Energy Dept. realize that gasohol is indeed competitive.

Dean Freed, farm columnist for the Grinnell Herald-Register reminds us that fifty years ago, Henry Ford called for production of alcohol as a motor fuel. Ford said: "We can get fuel from fruit, from sumac by the roadside, or apples, weeds, sawdust, almost anything. There is fuel in every bit of vegetable matter that can be fermented. There is enough alcohol in one year's yield of an acre of potatoes to drive the machinery necessary to cultivate the field for a hundred years.

It's time that we heeded the legendary Henry Ford.

Time and again, when the nation faced a crisis. American ingenuity found solutions. This was the case in World War II, when the United States was denied access to natural rubber. Within two years of the cutoff of rubber supplies, the United States was making artifical rubber.

In recent years, we seem to have forgotten our history as a nation of inventors and tinkerers. At the same time, we have become dangerously dependent on foreign sources of energy. Now is the time to employ our scientific and technological skills to find domestic substitutes for imported fuel. If fuel from farm products wasn't unrealistic in the age of the Model T. production of such fuel in this advanced era should be a snap--if there is a will to achieve energy independence.

The farm states are showing the way, albeit on a small scale. A national commitment to alcohol-type fuels would mean large-scale production and distribution. What people in the Northeasst today would give for alcohol fuel from the garbage heaps of their big cities!

Even as attempts are made to develop alcohol fuels, efforts should be made in other directions. Industries should be allowed to burn residual oil, thereby freeing higher quality oil for trucks and trains. The energy pinch should bring a corresponding squeeze on the Environmental Protection Agency.

The use of coal-fired railroad locomotives also should be reconsidered. In the early 1950s, when diesel fuel was being adopted by America's railroads, the Norfolk and Western Railroad experimented with steam turbine locomotives. However, the experimental engines couldn't compete against diesels, which utilized oil selling at 8 cents a gallon. Today, some railroads are paying $1.00 a gallon for diesel fuel. In this situation, new experiments with steam turbines make a lot of sense. Ingenuity is the way out of this

Diesel prices may be controlled

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - President Carter probably will slap price controls back on diesel and home heating oil, a regional officer of the U.S. Energy Department said Saturday.

"The president has scheduled his speech tomorrow and we don't know what it will be. But I have been told by people in Washington that serious consideration is being given to recontrol of middle distillates (diesel and fuel oil) and aviation fuel," Ed Barrie of Dallas told a legislative committee hearing.

Barrie is regional director of fuel regulation.

The escalating cost and low supplies of diesel and fuel oil would justify the controls, he added. The two fuels, unlike gasoline, carry prices determined by the market and not the

"I personally think he will put controls back on," Barrie said.

Barrie was one of several federal, state and industry officials who testified before the Senate Natural Resources Committee. "There is a certainty that the gas shortage is not going to go away by itself," said committee Chairman Babe Schwartz, D-Galveston. "There must be some better planning, better efforts to provide gas and diesel that the public will accept and that will be reasonable and managable in terms of supply. Texas needs a 12-month forecasting system.

instead of emergency plans to project supplies and demands, Schwartz said.

In addition to advance plans, Texas needs more reliable information on how much gasoline enters the state, Schwartz said.

"According to federal figures supplied by the oil companies, our prime suppliers delivered an estimated 130 million gallons short of the amount

The death toll from more than 24 hours of torrential rains in Indiana grew to seven, as tornadoes, thunderstorms and hail thrashed other parts of the nation's midsection.

Indiana officials blamed the rain for four traffic deaths, including that of a couple hit by a car as they rode a tandem bicycle in the rain. There were also two drownings and a boy scout was killed when a tree fell on his tent as he slept.

A 3-year-old Indianapolis boy battled for his life today after being rescued from a water-filled ditch where he had been pulled through a drainage pipe. Kenneth Arnold III, was listed in critical condition at Methodist Hospital.

Rain poured onto Indiana Thursday night and Friday, dumping more than 7 inches on some areas, turning some communities almost into islands and forcing evacuations from vacation homes along swollen private lakes.

Scores of highways were flooded, including more than 30 around Bloomington. Only one road was open into Nashville and into Martinsville and Texas. A band of showers will cover an area from the Northeastern states through parts of the Midwest, according to the National Weather

Ninth inning single wrecks Ryan's fifth no-hitter

ANAHEIM (AP) - Baseball's most overpowering pitcher, the sport's most famed clutch hitter and a highly questioned ruling by an official scorer have combined to show that exciting major league games can be played in midsummer.

Nolan Ryan of the California Angels came embarrassingly close to his fifth career no-hitter Friday night as the Angels defeated the New York Yankees 6-1 in a nationally televised game.

New York's Reggie Jackson, whose biggest hits have been reserved for World Series play the past two years, broke up the tense no-hit bid with one out in the ninth inning to help the Yankees score their lone

After Jackson managed a bouncing single through the pitcher's box, the Yankee slugger tipped his cap to Ryan, who was receiving a one-minute standing ovation from the Anaheim Stadium sellout crowd of 41,805 fans.

"I wish I could have given him a standing ovation myself," Jackson said of Ryan, who remains tied with former Los Angeles. Dodger great Sandy Koufax with four

A controversial ruling by official scorer Dick Miller in the eighth inning had tainted Ryan's no-hit effort. Miller, a reporter for the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, ruled that an unsuccessful attempt by Angels center fielder Rick Miller to make a running, shoetop catch of a liner by New York's Jim Spencer was an error. All of the Yankees and many in the crowd felt it looked like a hit. Ryan said he didn't see how close Miller came to making the catch, but he added: "I want it clean, not questionable. It just wasn't meant to be a no-hitter tonight.

Ryan blamed himself, saving he "just missed" fielding Jackson's bouncer and might have turned it into a double play ball. Official scorer Miller defended his eighth-inning call, saying: "In a game of this nature, it's the old thing - the first hit should be a clean one. I'll admit it was

Ryan finished the game with nine strikeouts. He leads the league with 160 strikouts and lowered his earned run average to 2.54. The performance by the right-hander who likely is to become a free agent this fall may have earned him another nationally televised showcase - a starting role in Tuesday night's All-Star more hit than error, but it hit his (Miller's) Game in Seattle.

IS

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) - Don Paige won the 1,500-meter run and American skippers picked up two more medals Saturday, assuring the United States of a record collection as the VIII Pan American Games wound toward a close.

The first medals of the day gave the overwhelming American forces a total of 240 going into the last full night of competition in these hemispheric Olympics. Further, the United States is assured of eight medals in boxing, which will bring the total to 248 for the two-week competition that drew teams from 34 nations in North and South America.

The previous record was 247 collected by the United States in 1975 in Mexico City. The Americans also hold the gold medal record, 128, in the 1967 Games in Winnipeg, Canada.

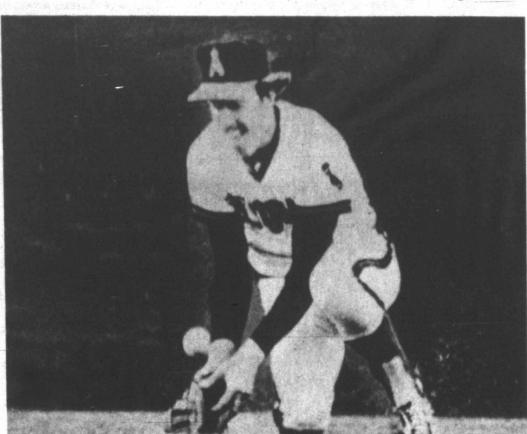

That may be tougher to break. Going into the night schedule, which is highlighted by eight track and field finals and the 11 boxing finals, the United States had a leading gold medal total of 114. Cuba was next with a gold-otal count of 58-133.

Canada has 22-124, Argentina 11-31, Brazil 7-32 and Mexico 3-33.

American runners were expected to sweep the four relay races on the closing track and field program. They also had gold medal possibilities in the pole vault and the marathon.

Six boxers - flyweight Richard Sandoval. bantamweight Jackie Beard. featherweight Bernard Taylor. light welterweight Lemuel Steeples, light middleweight James Shuler and light heavyweight Tony Tucker were in the finals.

Two other American fighters previously clinched bronze

RICK MILLER, center fielder for the California Angels, makes a dive for a low liner hit by the Yankees' Jim Spencer in the eighth inning of their game Friday night. The official scorer ruled the play an error on Miller, thus saving Nolan Ryan's no - hitter at this point. Ryan lost the bid with one out in the ninth inning, however, when Reggie Jackson drilled a single back through the mound for the only New York hit.

By Randy LIGHTFOOT Pampa News Sports Editor

For the second hight in a row, a new arena record was set in the steer wrestling ompetition as the 33rd Annual Top 'O Texas Rodeo completed its second round of action Friday.

Albert Hiemer, a native of Tryon, Okla., clocked a time of 4.8 seconds in moving into first place in the event. On Thursday night, Don Hennigh had set the old mark with a 6.1 elapsed time.

The only other rider of the seven entrants to have received a score is R.J. Preston with a 67 recorded Friday.

In Saturday night's action before press time, David Peters had the only legal ride for a score of 69 points to make him the winner of the bronco event with a 201 total.

The leader coming into this event, Joe Eckert was disqualified in last night's competition to finish second.

Third place was won by R. J. Preston who finished with a total of 67 points, which he scored in Friday's competition. Only four of the 18 saddle bronc riders completed their two turns in the saddle Friday, setting up the most heated of Saturday night's competition. Of the four who have finished their rides, only two received scores with Sammie Groves of Stroud, Okla. owning the top score of 140 after scoring 73 and 67 points Thursday and Friday, respectively. Brady Crumpler remained in second, but his score of 72 on Friday gave him an accumulative total of 133.

Friday's top ride of of the night belonged to Darryl Jones with a score of 73 and John Gass equalled Crumpler's total of 72 for the next

. Pampa's Sharon Youngblood moved into contention for the cowgirl barrel race title with a time of 16.5. That puts her just two-tenths of a second behind Martha Josey, who timed a 16.3 in Thursday's

Of the competitors who finished their two rides Friday, Kelly Moore of McLean had the time the Saturday contestants were shooting for with a 33.5. She had consistent clockings of 16.8 and 16.7. Sitting in second is LaVonda Calaway of Pampa with a 33.9.

Eddie Rawdon was the only cowboy to go the limit in the brahma bull riding, but the Cedar Hill, Tex. native used his opportunity to the greatest advantage in taking over the lead with 79 points. Only three other riders have qualified and they are led by the 74 points of Dick

Six of the top eight places in the double muggin competition were taken over by Friday contestants. Moving into first place with a time of 34.3 was the team of Tooter Henry, Gene Ferguson and Len Mixon. Knight cynical after U.S. wins gold

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) - Bobby Knight was at his cynical best

'The Puerto Rican basketball team is a lot easier to beat than their court system." he told writers Friday night after guiding the United States men to the gold medal with a brilliant 113-94 rout in the Pan American Games

Hours earlier, Knight's trial on an aggravated assault charge lodged by a Puerto Rican policeman was postponed until Aug. 22.

"This may be my very last night in the Caribbean for the rest of my life. I'm not a diplomat. I didn't study foreign policy. The basketball players are the only people on this island I care about

"I've had nothing on my mind except seeing this team win here since it was picked." Knight turned to his infamous Sunday incident at a practice site with policeman Jose D. Silva, saying, "Now about all (these) ... lies.

"My players sat there and saw the whole incident from beginning to end," Knight said. 'There didn't have to be any explanations on my part. I have no idea if it's going to be resolved before Aug. 22. So would Knight coach the Top OB moving to mound? CHICAGO (AP) - Rifle-armed Bobby Douglass figures control will be his immediate problem, and that could be a problem for batters, too.

That's right: batters. Not receivers. The 10-year veteran of quarterbacking in the National Football League has been signed by the Chicago White Sox of the American League and sent to the Iowa Oaks of the American Association. The Sox — run by stunt-loving Bill Veeck — insist the 32-year-old southpaw has big-league potential even though he hasn't played baseball since his college days

"This is not a gimmick." Roland Hemond, Sox vice president, said recently. "If his name was not Bobby Douglass and you saw him pitch, you'd say, 'You've got to sign this guy.' So that's what we did." 'We signed him as a major league prospect." Hemond said. "What he does in Iowa will dictate what happens. Douglass has been throwing batting practice for the White Sox and the Chicago Cubs recently. He was to report to the Des Moines team Friday and probably will be used initially in relief. Hemond said.

1983 Pan American team in Venezuela if he were asked.

'Well," he replied with a thin grin, "I've coached in the Pan Am Games and I think it would be very selfish on my part not to stand aside and let someone else have the experiences I've had."

As anticipated, the highly partisan crowd of 12,000 jammed into the Roberto Clemento Coliseum verbally derided Knight. They booed him. They whistled at him. They jeered at every opportunity.

The fiery Indiana University coach, atop the shoulders of his jubilant players afterward, raised his right fist into the air and whirled it around at the booing throng. Then he raised his forefinger, signifying his team was "No. 1.

"I'm not interested in standing anywhere and hearing hissing," he said. "I feel the United States is the No. 1 country in the world. And we are the No. 1 team.

Knight said a telephone call from injured guard Kyle Macy, back in his Lexington, Ky. dormitory room, helped ignite the U.S. to its ninth straight victory in these Games and seventh gold medal in eight tries. Puerto Rico suffered its only loss in nine games.

Dougherty, who had led Regalado by a stroke after 36 holes, came back with a third-round 70 in quest of his first victory on the Professional Golfers Association tour. Dougherty and Regalado had 13-under-par totals of 203 over the 7.010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course.

Lee Trevino, whose 66 was the best round of the day, was 1 stroke back at 204, along with Calvin Peete and Mike Reid. Peete shot a third-round 68 and Reid a 69

Dougherty, who quit his job as an assistant pro at a Philadelphia club to join the tour here in 1975, has won only $66,607 since. He won barely $1,000 the last five months of last year's tour because of a hand injury, Regalado, whose best finish and his best showing this season was a 10th-place tie at Atlanta.

> Dougherty had a chance to take the sole lead when a brilliant approach left him with a 20-foot putt for an eagle on the 550-yard 16th hole. He rolled the putt three feet past the hole, then sank a difficult downhill

"I hit that putt for the birdie the best I possibly could, right dead center," said Dougherty, 32. "It kind of carried me over through the last two holes.

Dougherty birdied his second and third holes of the day with putts of 20 and 9 feet, respectively, and took his only bogey on 11.

Regalado, one of four who had shared the first-round lead at 66. sank a 5-foot birdie putt on his fourth hole Saturday, but missed his only green on No. 12 and two putted for a bogey.

"I missed a lot of 10-, 12-, 14-, 20-foot birdie putts, and after that bogey, I started getting down on myself," said Regalado, a native of Tijuana, Mexico, who resides in San

Regalado sank birdie putts of 12, 6 and 10 feet on his last five

Trevino, who had seven birdies and one bogey on his scorching round, said he had made an adjustment in his putting alignment prior to his victory in the Canadian Open three weeks earlier. He has been planting his left foot slightly further ahead of the ball than he had before.

'My eyes were behind the ball before, and I was hitting up on the putts, either pushing the ball or pulling it." he said. "Now I've moved my center of gravity to the left. I'm looking over the bal. and swinging through it.

Forsch shrugs off Astro losing streak

To some players on a club clinging to first place, a seven-game losing streak might be a disaster of major proportions.

But to Houston pitcher Ken Forsch, the Astros' current nosedive seems to be little more than a minor irritant, to be shrugged off.

Since Texas has been designated as a recurring screw-worm infestation area by the USDA Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, producers must follow certain precautions when shipping

All livestock moving from Texas have to be examined and certified as screw - worm - free within 72 hours before shipment. This is done by a state or federal inspector or an accredited veterinarian before crossing the state lines.

Prior to entering Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands, livestock must be sprayed or dipped with pesticides at the point of origin of interstate movement.

USDA-approved pesticides include CO-Ral (coumaphos) 25 percent wet-table powder used as a 20 percent to 25 percent spray, dip or wound treatment; Co-Ral emulsifiable insecticide used as a 20 percent spray or wound treatment; and Korlan 24-E used as a 45 percent to 50 percent spray or wound treatment. The latter should not be applied to beef cattle within one week of slaughter.

Inspectors may withhold certification if they suspect a screw worm infestation and if animals can't be adequately treated to prevent spread of the infestation.

Livestock movement into states other than those listed above differs slightly. In addition to inspection and certification, livestock must be free of open wounds. If an animal is screw-worm-free, but has open wounds, it must be treated with an approved pesticide.

Any animal in a group may not be moved interstate until it is free of screw-worms. Remaining animals may be moved only if they have been sprayed or dipped with an approved pesticide. APPLICATOR CERTIFICATION PROGRAM

Gray County producers and commercial pesticide applicators are reminded that certain pesticide products now on the market are restricted and available for use only by or under the supervision of certified applicators.

The Pampa Meals on Wheels is a non - profit, community - funded service organized by the Gray County Committee on Aging and supported by the United Way. It has been successfully running since October 9, 1978.

The purpose of the service is to prepare and deliver a nourishing, well - balanced noon meal to elderly persons who are unable to prepare a good meal for themselves.

"One good, balanced meal a day gives these people nutrition that they normally would not get." said Shirley Kucifer, coodinator of the program. "It enables many older people to maintain their own homes and still receive the right kind of diet

"It also gives us a chance to check on them. Most of them are all alone: they could fall or have a heart attack and no one would know,' added Mrs. Kucifer. "Anyway, most of them look forward to getting the meal just because somebody will be coming to say hello.

Any person 55 or older who cannot prepare nourishing meals for themselves and has no one at home to cook for them is eligible for the service. The price is $1 per meal.

If they cannot afford this, they may pay what they can afford. The meals consist of a meat, two vegetables, bread, milk and dessert packed in a heat - retaining disposable plate.

They are prepared by the cooks and kitchen helpers at the Leisure Lodge under the careful supervision of a registered dietician. Special diets, such as low - salt, diabetic, and high protein, prescribed by the patron's doctor, will be served.

The Meals on Wheels organization runs Mondy through Friday, except holidays. However, on major holidays such as Christmas and Thanksgiving, the patrons of program are invited to eat at the Leisure Lodge. In the past, some concerned citizens have cooked meals and delivered them to persons who could not get to the Lodge on those holidays.

Although the concern of the citizens of Pampa is immense, there is still great need for volunteers to deliver the meals, especially during the summer months when many of the regular volunteers are away.

Forty - five minutes to one hour or less is all it takes to deliver a route: Volunteers can deliver one day a week or one day a month or however

If interested in volunteering your services to the program, or if you know someone who might need the services the Meals on Wheels, contact Shirley Kucifer at 665-1461 (office) or 665-2677

DEAR DONOR: There is no charge for transportation to hospitals for the removal of organs. Time is so important in their removal that a donor almost always has to be in the hospital at the time of death. (Corneas must be removed within four hours after death; kidneys within 20 minutes)

DECORATING TRENDS...

Today our bedrooms have become more than just a room for sleeping. Quite often we like to retreat to this private part of the house and read or relax with a good stereo album. It then becomes important that we furnish our bedrooms with more than just a bed, chest or dresser. We need comfortable chairs for lounging, with a table and lamps for good lighting. We may also wish to include a desk or writing table.

Not only our furnishings, but our windows and how we treat them should be given careful consideration. Many people who work at night and must sleep during the day need to have the bedrooms darkened. Today there are many new linings that completely cut out light. Or we might use tie backs with a decorative pull down shade done in the same fabric as the draperies or bedspread.

Whether it's furniture for your bedroom, draperies for your windows, carpet or accessories for your entire house, we furnish the home complete and our home planning experts are always happy to help with any decorating problem you may have...Stop in today, and see what we can do for you.

Study. How long has it been since you have? Oh, come on now. I'm not talking about the brief scanning of the newspaper or the leisure time reading of short escapism fiction that you can find in any supermarket. Oh. no. I'm talking about STUDY. That is the painful process thay you go through every once in awhile.

If you remember back to your school years, you felt ignorant because what you knew wasn't enough. There was (and still is) that vast milky way of knowledge just out of your reach. It was (and still is) crammed with knowledge, facts and insights you grope for. The harder you try, the more you know, but the darned thing moves a little more out of your way. It's enough to put you to bed for an afternoon, isn't it? It's painful.

It is a jolt to be forced to get out of your safe and small corner of the world. In your corner, you know everything by routine and automatic response. ("No. B.G. Mama doesn't like it when you hit your little sister and make her cry. That is the real world. But there is also another real world out there. It holds a lot of fear. It also holds a lot of fun.

Study. That is also a topic for the kitchen. Even if you are not remotely interested in cooking, a quick and let us say painless study of a recipe should do something to your mental tastebuds. If the recipe calls for something you would use once in four decades, like fenugreek, you automatically reject the recipe, as well you should. (I have a tube of anchovy paste that is going into its fourth year. because I can't stand it and my husband can't and we don't know many people who do. So there it sits, perfectly comfortable, but ready.) As far as your fenugreek is concerned, look at the recipe another way. This is a form of study. Look at the other ingredients. They may be quite decent, and you just might want to try the recipe at least once, if you and your mental tastebuds agree. Now. I've said all that to say this. Most recipes try hard to please.

In fact, if they don't, they tend to sit with quivering chins and whimpers. They become despondent when pushed to the back of the recipe file. This next one won't be pushed away, once you've tried it. Believe me, there's not a fenugreek in sight. It's also low - calorie, about 80 per serving.

ARISTOCRATIC STUFFED CABBAGE ROLLS

HAVE ON HAND:

1 head of green cabbage, but you'll only use about 8 of the large outside leaves. Save the rest of the cabbage for something else One - half pound of very lean hamburger

1 small onion, chopped almost until it is purified 1 cup of tomato juice. Actually, V - 8 juice is better

3 tbsp. skim milk powder. If you don't have any, this is a good investment for your family 1 tbsp. mint leaves. This is entirely optional. I've done this both ways and the mint didn't make any difference. 1 garlic clove, smashed. This is also optional. One scant teaspoon of garlic powder will do quite well.

One - fourth teaspoon salt

One - fourth teaspoon pepper One - half teaspoon mei ven

One - fourth teaspoon sugar

NOW DO THIS:

Pull about 8 or so leaves of the outside of the cabbage off. Wash them off, and let them alone. Mix the hamburger, onion, which you have chopped by now, salt, pepper and mei yen and skim milk powder

Go back to your cabbage leaves. Put them in boiling water and turn the heat off. Let the leaves stand to soften for about 5 minutes or so.

Grab a skillet, electric or not. Drain the cabbage leaves. Divide the meat mixture evenly as you can among the leaves and secure each with a toothpick. Use the wooden kind; plastic melts.

Put the tomato juice, garlie and the mint in the skillet and sprinkle the sugar over the top. Cover the skillet and let the rolls simmer for 1 and one - half hours. That's all there is too it. Now you may go read that fun novel you started until it is time to set the table

Overcome several crotch - fit problems easily

- with techniques used for underarm curves.

Crotch curves and underarm curves share

To fit the body comfortable, the armhole seam and crotch seam should follow the curve of the body. This means that for a set - in sleeve, the bodice and sleeve seams are sewn first separately, and then the armholes of the sleeve and bodice are sewn together in one continuous seam. The same holds true for pants. Each leg is sewn together at the outside and inside seams.

Then the crotch is sewn as one continuous seam.

Exceptions to all this are men's shirts and shirt -

To get a better fit, for reinforcement and to do away with unnecessary seam allowances, trim both armhole and crotch seams to one - fourth or three - eighths inch (6mm - 8mm) between front and back notches after sewing the seams. Also, double stitch the seam between these notches. In homesewers. The principle that sewing a deeper the crotch or underarm curve. For theses areas, the principle is just the opposite. To make a these seams often taper. On the other hand, to make the crotch or underarm curve higher (or shorter) let out the seam allowance to work with.

If in doubt about sewin these seams, first pin or

Cool hot-weather tips

As the expression goes, cool it -- especially in the summer - it's better for your health. Here are some hot tips on keeping cool: Drink an ample amount of water, about eight glasses a day if you work or play in a high temperature. A cool summer diet: fruits, juices, vegetables, only a limited amount of fatty foods, or iced beverages.

Most men like to look cool, but shaving's an unpleasant task when you've got to work up a steam to lather your face. One answer is an electric razor line by Norelco, providing a close, comfortable shave that leaves your face cool in the summer sun. Because one model has a charger it lets you shave for up to three weeks on one charge. That's a wireless boon to outdoorsmen and campers.

Some people believe that, to cool off in the summer, a hot shower's best. Nof true. The body temperature is reduced safely, gradually and for the longest period of time if you take a shower which is not ice cold but somewhere between cold and tepidly luke - warm.

Miss Clemmons is married Miss Mary Ann Clemmons became the bride of Michael David

Attending the bride were her sisters, Mrs. Terry Garland and Miss Stacy Clemmons, both of Amarillo. Serving as best man was Jimmy Dale Hughes, brother of the bridegroom, of Stillwater, Okla. Michael Clayton McCullough of Amarillo was groomsman.

Seating guests before the ceremony were Scott Dale Doores and Jerry Fowler, both of Amarillo. The bride, a graduate of Amarillo College's School of Dental Hygiene, is employed in the Amarillo Dental Building. Her husband graduated from White Deer High School and attended West Texas State University, where he was a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. He is a jewelry designer in Amarillo.

Mending Mature Marriage

Mobile couples may disagree on lifestyles

By LOUISE PIERCE

We hear so much about how old we ought to feel when we're over sixty that I'm happy to pass on some happier opinions. A book called "The Seasons of a Man's Life" by Daniel J. Levinson and published by Knoft divides the life cycle into five overlapping areas. It says, "Childhood and adolescence run from birth to twenty - two; early adulthood runs from seventeen to forty - five: middle adulthood from forty to sixty - five." Late adulthood and late - late age go on from there, he says. Now don't you feel young? We're not tottering in senility; we are still in middle adulthood. And a lot of us feel as good as we did when we were forty or younger. We've all heard. many times, that you are only as old as you feel. So feel young, older married couples - for yourselves and for each other!

I hope you've read the latest statistics about our growing numbers. The U.S. News & World Report stated recently that 26,000,000 people are one in nine is now over the age of 65, which is a ratio for the nation to take into account. Considering how many younger people don't bother to vote ("I'm too busy", "The crooked politicians have it all sewed up", "Nobody can fight City Hall", etc.) and how many of us older voters never fail to cast our ballots at every election, we are more of a power every year in shaping our country's history. So keep your marriages happy enough to want to vote, fellow

One of the important ways to stay abreast of the times and circumstances is to have good health by way of recreation, as much of it as possible in your life together. Several articles in the last year have directed their attention to us. And a majority of them begin with, "Get out of that easy chair!'

If a husband and wife are both hardy and adaptable, they might well consider joining the thousands of retired couples who love the nomad life they lead in their recreational vehicles. Motor - home dealers say that pensioners are among their best customers. And RV living is far from inconvenient. There are 14,000 campgrounds in the U.S., sites with water and electric hookups, renting for an average of $8 per night. (Many others are available without conveniences.) These "modern" sites provide healthy, happy years for the couple who can adapt to constant moving, who enjoy a frequent rendezvous with other mobile couples. If you want to be only partially nomad, you might be interested in one of the 200 proprietary parks where you can buy reasonably priced permanent sites or memberships; many have pools, tennis courts, stables, golf and lakes for fishing. Such parks usually have reciprocal agreements with others, and members may stay for $1 per night when they move from one to another.

One drawback to the RV life can be the cost and shortage of gas, which is a constant threat. But the big hazard is the risk of either husband or wife getting tired of traveling and longing for the old. settled - down life back home. That can foster unhappiness that goes on and on until conditions are forcibly changed. I've had letters regarding this.

DEAR LOUISE: K and I are wanderers. But ne of us, I mean K, isn't nappy. I teel guilty because I was the one who wanted a mobile home and talked him into it. The first two years we visited our four kids in four states and had a great time. But the third year, this year, we've just bummed around. I like scenery and hiking and seeing other wanderers when we pull into a park. But K is homesick and sits around a lot. He hardly eats a bite. Yesterday he said we were so different that maybe we shouldn't have married each other. What do other couples like us do? Are they happy if one gives up his way of life and has to go on without any pleasure at all?

DEAR O.V.: The couples I've known who came to the crossroads that you now face were hard pressed to find a way to live together happily. But it's not at all impossible. You just have to figure out something good for both of you, individual life styles that still blend harmoniously. I always suggest that the couple work out a way for one mate to be at home with beloved friends and surroundings but for the other to get to enjoy travel. You need to plan this together with the understanding that you'll be separated sometimes but never for long - and that you'll be so homesick for each other that your times together will be special.

Health, jobs depend on energy If we are to turn dreams into reality, there must be economic

What is delaying construction of neclear power plants? Mostly governmental indecision and uncertainties in the licensing process. It takes ten to twelve years to build a nuclear plant in the U.S. -twice that of Japan, but Congress and the states can establish a mechanism to eliminate duplicative hearing procedures, for resolving conflicts between agencies, and for establishing reasonable time limits for licensing new plants. That way, experts say, the energy business can help keep a lot more people in business.

Picture these hints

needed in the next ten years.

There's more to taking great pictures than just pointing a camera. You have to know what to point at and how to point it.

The first step to good picure taking is recognizing a good subject. What's unusual, beautiful, heartwarming or striking about a scene? What parts enhance this effect? You'll want them in the picture. What parts detract? You'll have to try to keep them out. The proper framing and lighting can make a big difference.

Be careful taking the picture. Some people hold their breath when they snap the shutter, just to make sure they're not shaking the camera.

You may be better able to concentrate on the picture if you know you can rely on your camera. One way is with an easy - to - use, easy - to - carry pocket camera that's ready when the picture is. One even comes with a built - in telephoto lens; a built - in meter that signals you when to reset the camera or use the built - in flash; and an adjustable focus to help you get sharper pictures. In addition, this camera has a quick film advance that helps you record action shots. Annoying and sometimes seriously sunburned eyes are just one of the hazards your eyes may face on a vacation.

Other typical vacation related problems are black eyes and eve socket fractures from baseball beanings or rackets, cuts and bruises from excursions into the woods, dry eyes from overexposure to wind and stinging, burning eyes from chlorinated swimming pools.

Although the low - grade irritation from pools usually clears up within a short time, cool compresses or decongesting eye drops available over the counter will ease discomfort, says the American Association of Ophthalmology, an organization of physicians specializing in eye

Eye drops can also help eyes dried by long exposure to the wind, but they should be used sparingly and according to directions. Those who have spent hours on a beach in the bright sun may also experience temporary night blindness, so they should be cautious about driving home at night.

A far more serious problem is the eye sunburn common to skiers. Temporary blindness known as actinic keratitis can result from too - great exposure to the intense ultraviolet rays of the sun in clear air.

Like sunburn, its symptoms do not occur immediately, and the victim may not realize until the middle of the following night that his eyes have been burned. He may wake up in intense pain, unable to open his eyes.

Such cases call for immmediate care in an emergency room, preferably by an ophthalmologist, as do all serious cuts and bruises. Only an ophthalmologist, who is a doctor of medicine (or osteopathy), has the training and expertise to provide total eye care. What can you do to protect your eyes while on vacation? Eye physicians suggest safety glasses for sports such as tennis and recouet ball and a good pair

What's electricity? Converted energy. A generator has two main parts: a rotor (a big magnet) and a stator (coils of copper surrounding the rotor). When the rotor rotates, the moving magnetic field produces electricity in the copper wire.

What makes the rotor rotate? Fuel (coal, oil, natural gas, uranium) is used to heat water in boilers. Heat changes water to steam which turns the turbine which spins the rotor to generate

So when you flip the switch, the electricity is delivered to you at nearly the speed of light - 186,000 miles a second. You pay for it on a basis of 1,000 kilowatts per hour.

there appears to be an adequate electric supply at least through 1985. The electric industry keeps building with an eye on the future. From 1978 through 1922, it expects to spend $850 billion for new construction. Electric utilities will be responsible for at least a third.

Will it always be thus? According to the Edison Electric Institute, possibly half, of all business financing during the next decade and a half, to expand facilities needed to fuel our nation's economy and provide jobs and consumer products in the years ahead.

Immigrant fights rip-offs

AP Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) -Anyone wanting to understand David Horowitz's approach to consumer reporting need look no further than his immigrant

My instincts are those of the Bronx barrio," says Horowitz, who absorbed his first lessons in survival as a child while playing under the kitchen table. It was the center of activity in his family's crowded, one-bedroom apartment

"You didn't let anyone rip you off, and if you did get ripped off, you fought back. My parents came from Europe, but they didn't knuckle under because of the language barrier or their lack of education.'

Horowitz, 42, still clings to that street fighter philosophy as the nation's best-known and highest-paid consumer reporter. He appears daily on NBC's Los Angeles station and is the host of the high-rated syndicated series "David Horowitz Consumer Buyline." His book, "Fight Back! And Don't Get Ripped Off," is in its fourth printing for Harper & Row.

He aims for the middle class and blue collar workers, and his targets are strictly those of the pocketbook: misleading advertising, shoddy products that plague us everywhere we Horowitz doesn't take after multinationals nor does he lead a monastic life. He makes a lot of money and says he doesn't have to apologize to the 'cheap-shot artists' who suggest he livesa little too well to relate to the average consumer. He says, "I have a good income, but that doesn't mean I'm not interested in nickels and dimes. I don't forget my background.

"Consumer Buyline" is syndicated to television stations in 40 cities. How effective is his show? Horowitz answers: "I can only tell you by the mail. We get 2,500 letters a week. When you get that kind of mail you know you're reaching people.

Horowitz finds his targets wherever he goes. Like service stations that charge for air and water. Or the vending machines in the Atlanta airport that charged five cents to change a dollar bill. He spent months to get the airport commissioner to put in free change service.

"The commissioner thought I was a whacko when I said I wanted to save a nickel," he says. "But it's a public service, and it should be free. It's only a nickel, but it's a matter of fighting back. We're being nickel and diffned to death."

Fifty-six television stations and more than 300 newspapers have consumer reporters. Many of them also are "action line" reporters who act as ombudsmen to solve the problems of viewers and Horowitz says: "So much of the television reporting is just regurgitating the consumer handouts and using a little film. I don't do the consumer handouts. If the government says be careful of Brand X, it's. because it's dangerous to your health. Everybody has that.

'That's not what I go after. I go after the people ripoffs. You make people aware that you can fight back. You can't do anything about a government report that some drug causes bladder cancer. You can do something about an advertising

Winning really isn't everything

JAMES BOND is back again as actor Roger Moore in the role of the super spy embraces actress Lois Chiles in a scene from the latest Bond picture "Moonraker." It's Moore's fourth time around as 007 and early box office reports indicate this might be the actor's most successful Bond venture.

A terrible thing to confess here in Coors Country, but a guy must occasionally do what's good for the soul: Though not a genuine pacifist, I am a bona fide bleeding heart. A week after one more fabulous Wimbledon tennis tournament, I note with relief that the phrase "killer instinct" failed to pop up in this year's TV commentary.

Last year, at Wimbledon and elsewhere, "killer instinct" seemed second only to "super" in the Lexicon of Sports Cliches.

"Bill, you've watched Reed Towers. He's got the poise, the power, the serve, and a dazzling back hand. A super player, super, All he needs now is That One Big Thing."

"What every champion's got to have, Bill. Killer instinct." This year, the imperturbable and soft spoken Bjorn Borg, champion for the fourth consecutive year, was pelted with such Ace Comics nicknames as "The Angelic Assassin" and "The Swedish Slasher." But as far as I recall neither Borg nor the pretty, perspiration - free Chris Evert Lloyd nor anyone else was praised for having-- or chastized for the lack of-- killer instinct.

Killer instinct connected with tennis always brings to my mind a picture of one player literally beating another player to death with his racket. But I suppose the commentators mean aggressiveness, no more Mr. Nice Guy, tennis finesse armored in an indomitable will to win. Who knows, they may be talking about the familiar homicidal urge many of us feel when a Sunday afternoon doubles partner lobs a perfectly elementary shot straight into the middle of the net.

Tennis players are sometimes said to "demolish" their opponents. "Demolish" is an OK word, I guess. But tennis, especially at its Britsh apex, has such a long tradition of sportsmanship and an admirably old - fashioned duelling etiquette ("Game, Mr. Conners, serve, Mrs. King") that talk about mere killers, assassins, and slashers seems, at the least, a little bit gauche.

Killer instinct is, of course, much more compatible with football. From beyond the grave, Vince Lombardi approves of it. For a while after his death, as a sort of media dirge for the late Green Bay Packer coach, everyone was quoting Vince's favorite saying: "Winning isn't everything, it's the only thing."

Those words themselves have a lot of killer instinct. A real muscle bound motto, that one, Vince. Kicks sand in the face of a quaint character - building slogan, popular in the days before organized T ball infiltrated the kindergartens, something to the effect that "It's seriously anymore? What does it mean, anyway?

Yea. That old chestnut from childhood. Does anyone take it

Well, different things to different people, probably. Basically, I've always construed it to mean it doesn't matter if you lose if you play

The way I read it nowdays, though, is: Who wins isn't as important as the quality of the contest. Good competition is the friction

Local education leader will work for teachers

The National Education Association (NEA) will concentrate more of its financial and spiritual efforts in Texas, according to Deana Milliron, the president of the Pampa Classroom Teachers Association (PCTA).

Elected to her office May 31, Milliron began her tenure by attending the NEA convention in Detroit, Mich., where several teachers and administrators gathered to discuss and take action on problems in education

At the meeting, the NEA decided to follow the lead of the AFL-CIO in heavily exposing its organization to Texas through sending additional money and some of its best people here, said Milliron, who will be teaching math and English at the high school for her second

Although Texas has a large number of teachers, the state has fewer unions than many other states, she said.

The NEA, unlike the AFL-CIO, does not call strikes, but will support its members in protest action, she said.

Milliron, who has lived in Pampa for more than a year, has attended other national meetings in Miami, Fla., in 1976, Minneapolis in 1977; and Dallas in 1978.

"I plan to keep the membership informed of all national, state and local issues concerning education," she said in naming the responsibilities her position will entail.

This year will be an important one for the NEA, TSTA and the local chapter, she said

A leadership conference in August will send the new president and four other PCTA members to Lubbock to attend workshops concerning the organization's membership.

She said she plans to appoint strong committee leaders and already has named some for the upcoming year.

These leaders are Rose Nelson on the Legislative Committee, Nancy Coffee on Public Relations, Helen Warner on the Membership Committee and Edith Jackson on the Scholarship Committee Elected officers who, will help coordinate her efforts are vice president Warner, treasurer Edith Jackson and secretary Jeannie Cone. Prior to her move to Pampa a year ago, Milliron was involved in the activities of the Classroom Teachers Association and the Professional Rights of Teachers during her six years of teaching at Amarillo High School

Amarillo teachers were given fringe benefits, such as discounts at grocery stores, she said.

Hopefully, a similar policy can be developed in Pampa through the PCTA since teachers have received only a 5.1 percent increase to meet the cost of a rising inflation, she added. These fringe benefits will balance the educational distance for teachers and will let them know they are appreciated, she said. "I want to work with the TSTA and NEA to build teacher's salaries. We are losing several good teachers because they cannot live on their salary," she said.

Working with the Department of Education, writing and calling representatives are also on her list of tasks. Her teaching experience includes two years at a junior high school in Bridgeview (a Chicago suburb), one year at a high school in Irving and another year as a junior high school teacher in Snider.

She earned her bachelor's and master's degree in education at West Texas State University in Canyon.

From her years of experience, she said, "As a teacher, I would not walk into a classroom without the insurance TSTA and NEA provide

The organization has coverages to protect a teachers against lawsuits, she said, and the stories about threats upon teachers encourage this precaution.

As for the present, she said she has to organize in preparation for the coming year.

County Extension Agent Three Gray County 4-H'ers will be among the statewide delegation attending Texas 4-H Congress in Houston, July 19 -22. Attending from Gray County will be Beth Smitherman of McLean, and Keith Courtney and Amy Brainard of Pampa The theme of the 1979 Congress is "4-H Energy - Partners for Progress" and programs will focus on energy sources and management. Highlights of the Congress will be a tour of the NASA Space Center.

The 4-H Fashion Revue was a scenic sight as girls from around the county modeled the garments they had made in the clothing projects. Red ribbon winners were: Sena Brainard, Larissa Hall, Nanette Hildenbrand, Stephanie Phillips. Amy Sprinkle, Candi Carpenter, Kristi Hook, Donna McAnear, Vietta Morgan, Sondra Rogers and Stacie Smith.

Receiving blue awards were: Angela Cochran. Sissy Giddeon. Michele Houston, Renee Sprinkle, Teresa Woods, Penny Miller. Bobbie Skaggs and Rhonda Woods.

The Fashion Revue would not have been possible without the hard work of the Revue Committee. Theses leaders were Dorothy Miller, Fern Woods, Betty Cochran, Lilith Brainard, Cindi Carpenter, Emma Jean Tate, Debbie Lombardozzi and Katie McDonald

A special thanks also goes to the First Baptist Church, Pampa Chamber of Commerce. Sanders Sewing Center, Gray County Extension Homemakers Clubs and Sue Fatheree for helping to make the Fashion Revue extra special this year.

Eleven 4-H girls visited the Leisure Lodge July 10th to show their sewing projects to the residents. Afterwards, they modeled at Furr's Cafeteria. The girls have worked very hard on their projects and enjoy showing their accomplishments. They appreciate everyone who has taken time to show an intrest in their work.

Gray County 4-H members have been invited to participate in the Phillips Fair July 25-28. Many 4-H projects can be entered, including crafts. sewing, baked goods, preserved foods and fresh home gown fruits and vegetables. 4-H'ers who would like to enter one or more items should contact the County Extension Office before July 24th so we can make arrangements to take all the entries to Phillips.

Lightning can be as important ecologically as rainfall or temperature. The death of a tree struck by lightning can mean life for other things such as insects and birds which are dependent on dead trees.

Uranium find brings bloodshed to Sahara Desert

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) - The world's largest desert, 3 million square miles of mineral-rich rock and sand, is becoming a theater of war over what may be the 21st century's main source of energy, uranium.

Bitter guerrilla wars, often involving African client states of the major powers, are bringing increasing bloodshed to the Sahara from the Atlantic to the Red

The legendary camel caravans of nomadic desert tribes still crisscross the vast wilderness, and even the French Foreign Legion is sill there in places. But modern highways are being built across the desert and the 10 countries whose territory lies largely in the Sahara are accumulating huge stockpiles of arms.

The growing tensions of the region will be a backdrop to the African summit meeting assembling here Tuesday.

Libya and Algeria, the region's most militant 'progressive' countries, are spending billions of dollars of their oil wealth to buy sophisticated weaponry from the Soviet bloc for the defense of what they call their "socialist revolution."

The other eight Sahara nations - from Morocco and Mauritania in the west to Egypt and Sudan in the east - look to the United Sates, France and other Western nations for arms and economic aid.

The desert, a barrier to human contact since prehistoric times, marks the boundary between Africa's black population and the Arab or Berber peoples of the north. Most of the Sahara nations lie astride this racial boundary and have suffered from racial conflict for centuries..
