

Budget requests being prepared by city officials

It's budget time again at City Hall. Municipal officials have begun the annual task of deciding — preferably without angering the taxpayers — how much money will be needed to keep Pampa in business.

Heads of the various city departments have submitted their budget requests to City Manager Mack Wofford, and will begin meeting Thursday with Wofford for about a week to explain any requested changes. Wofford will then discuss the budget with the city commission before completing and filing it Aug. 10 with the city secretary.

Last year's budget emphasized two priority items — cutting a high municipal employee turnover rate and switching to container garbage collection system. This time, according to Wofford, discussion again will center on two "big issues": funding massive street improvements and increasing the number of city employees.

The city manager conceded that both issues will probably be touchy with the public, considering the popular opposition throughout the country to more government spending.

The current $4,084,441 budget, in effect until October, included money for a recently-completed street-sealing program. Wofford said he thinks renovation of several dilapidated city streets is necessary, and he indicated that nothing short of a bond issue might be required to pay for it.

"I believe there will have to be a short-term program — annual maintenance — and a program of long-term funding for major capital improvements," he said. "Annual funding won't provide for major expenditures on the streets. I just don't see it being available."

"Right now, we're approaching $150,000 just for annual maintenance. For rebuilding the streets, we're talking about the possibility of millions of dollars."

Like it or not, Wofford said, additional municipal employees may be necessary because of the city's growth.

"Our goal is to provide a level of service acceptable to the people of Pampa," he said. "First, we need to be assured that we are being as efficient as possible with the people we have."

Several departments have requested additional personnel. For example, the 13-member street department has asked for two more people. The police department, with 32 employees, wants eight more officers.

"I don't doubt that they need more people, but I don't know about eight," Wofford said.

An estimate of the city's projected revenue from taxes, utility fees and so forth for 1979-80 will be available next week, he said. Although he can't predict yet if higher taxes or fees will be necessary in the coming year, Wofford said, the budget will no doubt increase because of inflation-related factors such as salary hikes.

"We're currently working on a salary package this year that would include cost of living increases," he said. He added that he anticipates keeping the increases within President Carter's seven percent wage-price guidelines.

The pay plan included in the current budget, which raised some salaries as much as 10 percent, has reduced turnover "some," Wofford said.

Last year, when faced with a higher budget because of the salary increases, the city commission raised water, sewer and sanitation fees 11 percent. The commission would probably favor another such increase over a property tax hike, Wofford said.

"If you look at it (the 11 percent increase) in terms of private utility costs, that's not out of line by any means," Wofford said, defending the commission's action. "It would be very nice if our natural growth would balance off with our needs, but apparently that's not the case."

Pampans will have a chance to air their views on the city government's plans at a public hearing, tentatively set for Sept. 11. The commission can amend the new budget before adopting it at the end of September.

Cabinet coup coming? Resignations offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — With all of his Cabinet and high-level staff offering to resign, President Carter is expected to decide by Friday where the ax will fall as he works on a new lineup to revive his presidency.

Senior officials were shaken by the move — the latest surprise in Carter's self-declared turning point — which left the government in limbo.

The 34 top officials affected said little in public beyond confirming that they had been asked Tuesday to tender their resignations.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said the offers, made orally and not in writing, would be considered "carefully and expeditiously" by the president.

Cabinet secretaries were led to believe they would hear whether Carter would keep them on "in two or three days," one source said. Another source said the president's decision would come sometime "this week." Both sources asked not to be identified.

One White House official, reflecting the extremely secretive nature of the day's developments in this city that thrives on rumors, said, "Whatever the president's decisions may be, I can assure you he is keeping them to himself."

The number of resignations the president will accept remained unclear, but one White House official said "the president will accept some."

Members of Congress called Tuesday's announcement "strange" and "curious." Republican reaction was the harshest, but several Democrats also questioned the president's actions.

Powell's brief announcement that several high members of the administration had tendered their resignations left unanswered several questions:

What motivated the mass offer? Were the resignations solicited? And by whom, the president or his chief aides as they seek flexibility in revamping the administration to bolster Carter's re-election odds?

Dodging such questions, one official who asked for anonymity, would say only that the resignations "were offered."

Asked why dozens of top people in government would be moved simultaneously to offer to quit without prodding, the official responded, "We felt it to be an appropriate step to take at this time."

Besides the 12 Cabinet officers, resignation offers came from all presidential assistants and special assistants, including Hamilton Jordan, Carter's de facto, but untitled, chief of staff. When the smoke clears, Jordan is likely to emerge with that title.

Powell, a Georgian like Jordan, could also be given expanded authority.

Speculation on those most likely to leave the Cabinet focused on embattled Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, who has said he would leave before Carter opens his anticipated re-election campaign.

Sandinistas to establish capital

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Three members of the Sandinista rebel junta flew to Nicaragua today to establish a provisional government outside Managua. The guerrilla movement threatened a bloodbath unless dictator Anastasio Somoza's handpicked successor, Francisco Urcuyo, abandoned his declared intention to hold on to the presidency.

Sources close to the junta said Violeta de Chamorro, Sergio Ramirez Mercado and Alfonso Robelo Callejas left San Jose, the Costa Rican capital, shortly after midnight for Leon, Nicaragua's second largest city 55 miles northwest of Managua.

Leon was the first city captured by the Sandinista National Liberation Front in the offensive that resulted in the resignation Tuesday of Somoza and the end of the 42-year-old Somoza family dictatorship.

The sources in San Jose said the three junta members planned to declare Leon the provisional capital of Nicaragua. They said one of the two other junta members, guerrilla leader Moises Hassan Morales, was in Masaya, in southern Nicaragua, and the other member, Daniel Ortega Saavedra, was in another Nicaraguan city held by the rebels. They said the three junta members would send for the two men as soon as the government was set up in Leon.

In addition to Leon and Masaya, the Sandinistas control 24 other cities ringing Managua.

Urcuyo, a Somoza man elected president by members of Congress early Tuesday after the dictator resigned, had been expected to step down as soon as the provisional junta named by the Sandinista National Liberation Front flew from Costa Rica to Managua.

Instead he called on the rebels in a broadcast to lay down their arms, and aides said he planned to serve the rest of Somoza's term, until Dec. 1, 1980. The new commander of the national guard, Lt. Col. Federico

Mejia, told the troops to redouble their efforts "in the current fight."

"Urcuyo will be responsible for the bloodbath that is going to follow if he does not turn power over to the new government," said Manuel Espinoza, a spokesman for the Sandinista junta waiting in San Jose.

In Washington, the State Department expressed "grave concern" over Urcuyo's stand. It said it would "contradict understandings reached with the Somoza government and with Mr. Urcuyo himself, and deny the Nicaraguan people this historic opportunity for peace and reconciliation."

U.S. Ambassador Lawrence Pezzullo met with Urcuyo briefly Tuesday afternoon. A U.S. Embassy source said Urcuyo's administration "was intended to be a caretaker government" that would last only until the junta took over.

In school district

Taxing methods to stay same

The Pampa Independent School District will continue to follow some of its current taxing procedures despite possible options created by House Bill 1060, which implements the tax relief amendment.

In a unanimous vote, the school board chose to continue its collection of automobile property taxes from local car owners at its Tuesday evening meeting at Carver Center.

The Texas Legislature renounced a state requirement of automobile taxation when it passed the relief bill May 28, but left local governments with an option to continue or rescind the tax in their own community.

At a specially called meeting last week, Superintendent Bob Phillips said funds from automobile taxes are an important source of revenue for "this and many other school districts."

Collection of auto taxes probably will be carried through by a majority of Texas school districts, he added, after evaluating the reactions of fellow educators at recently held state meetings.

Auto taxes amounted to $230,000 of the $3.4 million collected for the 1978-79 fiscal year, according to figures provided by Dwayne Walker, the School District Business Manager.

Local appraisals of agricultural property will continue to be figured solely on the current market value system until 1980, when the school district must enact the relief bill's mandate to allow for an optional assessment based on agricultural value.

State law requires that, by 1980, uses of agricultural land should be determined for an annual income valuation from a production average of five years of good management.

This average, called a "net to land" figure, will be capitalized by 10 percent or the Federal Land Bank interest rate plus 2.5 percent to obtain the appraisal value of the property. The Land Bank's interest rate is now 11 percent.

In a matter concerning a specific delinquent tax, the board declined to waive interest and penalty on properly assessed property.

Turning its attention away from taxation items, the board elected Trustee Paul Simmons as its delegate to the Texas Association of School Board's Convention and Trustee Dr. Robert Lyle as the alternate.

School finances again concerned the board when the bid for one of the Long Range Planning Committee's projects was awarded to Pampa's Malcom Hinkle, Inc.

Malcom Hinkle, bidding $8,411 on the installation of a dust-collecting system in the high school's industrial arts shop, underbid its out-of-town competition.

Armstrong Mechanical Co. of Lubbock and Scottee Mechanical Contractors of Amarillo had submitted contracts for $9,600 and $11,960, respectively.

The board followed this business with the approval of fourteen proposed bus routes for the school district. The routes include transportation for the elementary, Middle School and high school students.

After an executive session, the resignations of Sydney Brobst and Wanda Doughten were approved along with the hiring of Steve Porter as a coach and history teacher at Pampa Middle School.

Bird and the immunities of justice

As this column is being written, Rose Bird, chief justice of the California Supreme Court, is testifying before the state Commission on Judicial Performance in its unprecedented inquiry into possible wrongdoing within the court. The probe was prompted by a newspaper story claiming another justice delayed the release of a decision concerning a highly popular "use a gun, go to jail" law to help Bird's prospects.

The release of her opinion that the law was unconstitutional might have influenced a considerable number of voters against her. She won confirmation by 52 percent, the lowest margin in the history of the court and considerably below the 60 percent voter approval for judicial retention required in some states.

Some supporters of Bird, and the court majority of which she frequently is a part, have condemned the probe as invading the judicial decision making process. Disregarding the fact that justices must be confirmed by the voters at designated intervals, they argue that high court justices are not part of the political process and must be insulated from public pressures that might interfere with their acting when necessary, contrary to the wishes of government officials and popular majorities. Another difficulty these critics face is that Bird herself requested an investigation of the charges.

Many years ago, as a law student in Chicago, I too would have opposed such hearings. In Illinois, candidates for the state supreme court run for office as Democrats and Republicans. I was always disturbed by newspaper accounts of court decisions identifying as Democrats and Republicans, the justices in favor or opposed. I thought that judges decided cases in accordance with the law, unswayed by partisanship, and that no outside influences should distract their deliberations.

I have since become better informed. Justices make decisions for a host of reasons, ranging from the noble to the base. While elevation to high office does not eliminate the innate desire to prevail, it also does not obliterate the tempering qualities of duty and service. The late Justice Felix Frankfurter once wrote that judges, after all, are human beings, and that... "it requires minds of unusual intellectual disinterestedness, detachment and imagination to escape from the too easy tendency to find lack of power where one is convinced of lack of wisdom."

Under our system of government, federal and supreme court justices have enormous powers. They can strike down laws that the people and their representatives strongly favor. Or, they can with virtual impunity uphold measures that are contrary to the language, meaning and purpose of constitutions, which they swear to uphold.

Charges, as have been made in California, that the holders of this vast power are in addition seeking to influence public elections, raise an issue that cannot be ignored. If the justices are engaged in such conduct, what are we to expect from them in fulfilling their official responsibilities? There is no branch where the hunger for power can so readily be disguised. Legal reasoning allows judges to select from a wide variety of options and alternatives that will rationalize a judgment arrived at for entirely different reasons.

Unlike presidents, governors and legislators, justices of high courts are obligated to explain their decisions in writing. They cannot hide behind Yes and No answers and must either explain in detail their analysis of the issues, or concur in the explanation given by another justice. Full disclosure is therefore an essential element in the judicial process. We should accordingly not be reluctant to scrutinize judicial conduct when illegal or unethical conduct may have occurred.

Those who object that politics will thereby enter this branch of government, should remember that this objection is not persuasive in states where justices must stand for retention. Like other candidates for office, they must endure the trauma of public elections. Both supporters and opponents of Bird employed tactics common in political elections and discussed her record and qualifications. The voters however, would have obtained a better informed judgment about the chief justice had they been apprised of her gun-law opinion.

Does this mean that state court justices should consider public opinion in arriving at their decisions? The traditional response is that judges are obligated to protect minorities and consequently should not be beholden to popular view. However, in making justices subject to voter approval framers of state constitutions may well have sought to limit the extent of judicial immunity from popular will.

There is much to be said for giving the public veto power over the justices. Interpreting a constitution frequently turns on one's ideological convictions. Given these circumstances, why should the constitutional perspectives of a very select few be conclusive? Thus critics of the California Supreme Court contend that a majority of four almost invariably follows a generally New Deal liberal line in adjudicating constitutional disputes. Nothing in any constitution grants this ideology special preference. If this is the situation, should society grant these four individuals greater political power than the people?

OPINION PAGE

Nicaragua, round two

Should you want to sum up the situation in Nicaragua in a few words, they might well be:

If at first you don't succeed, try, try, try again.

They apply to both sides in what has now become an open civil war that has the potential of going international, spilling over the border into neighboring Costa Rica.

The Sandinista rebels, making good on their pledge when they were routed by government forces last September, are trying again, and in sufficiently greater strength to make their eventual success look like something less of a long shot than was the case the first time around.

And Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza Debayle would appear to be trying his utmost to prove again a basic truth about authoritarian regimes: The greater the force applied to stifle dissent, the stronger the opposition grows and the greater the likelihood that it will succeed in overthrowing the regime.

If he needs examples, Somoza need look no further than the experience of his immediate Latin American neighborhood - Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Honduras and Guatemala providing a few of the most recent and obvious.

The Sandinistas, for all the ability they have now demonstrated to launch attacks simultaneously in a half-dozen cities, including the capital, are still very much the underdogs. They have yet to show they are a match for Somoza's troops in a major engagement.

But they have grown in strength, in weapons and manpower, since September. They were not so much defeated then as battle tested. And as a result, they are now more of a threat than ever.

Somoza is his own witness to the seriousness of his present situation, reimposing the state of siege and martial law so recently lifted, a step he had indicated would be taken only if absolutely necessary to maintain control of the country.

As the pressure from his internal enemies grows, so does the danger that he may strike back at Costa Rica, across whose border he charges the Sandinistas find support, shelter and supplies.

The prospect adds urgency to efforts at outside mediation. U.S.-led diplomatic intervention last year failed to persuade Somoza to give up with reasonable grace the absolute power his family has held in Nicaragua for more than 40 years.

Should that again be the peace-making story, one thing would be predictable in an otherwise highly fluid situation. Both sides in the Nicaraguan standoff will continue trying until one succeeds.

And odds are increasing that it will be the rebels - if not this time, then the next or the next.

Suitable suspicion

In full-page newspaper advertisements appearing in 27 major cities, Exxon proclaims it "is not holding back products" and tells gasoline-short motorists "we're doing the best we can with what we have."

In testimony at a congressional hearing, a senior vice president of Texaco says one way to alleviate the worsening gasoline shortage is to convince the public that there's a real problem "to be approached rationally and without panic."

But amid all of the petroleum industry's repeated calls for calm and conservation, a great deal of embarrassing information about the rapidly deteriorating gasoline crisis isn't being provided to either drivers or politicians.

Much of that information is buried in the statistical report issued by the Department of Energy and the American Petroleum Institute, two organizations that traditionally have been highly protective of the oil industry.

Among the disturbing conclusions that emerge from a detailed examination of those weekly and monthly reports:

Item: Despite the highly publicized interruption of United States imports of crude oil from Iran as a result of the revolution in that nation, there was no significant decline in this country's total imports late last year or early this year.

The shortfall induced by the Iranian political crisis was about 300,000 barrels per day - not the 500,000 barrels per day repeatedly cited by Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger. But it was largely offset by substantially increased imports from Saudi Arabia.

In fact, during the six-month period encompassing the last quarter of 1978 and the first quarter of 1979, total imports of crude oil into the United States, compared with the same period one year earlier, actually increased by more than 75 million barrels or 6.8 percent.

Item: At the same time the major oil companies have been reducing service station allocations to 80 or 85 percent of the gasoline provided one year earlier, the industry has been increasing its stock of crude oil.

Crude stocks normally are reduced in the first quarter of each year, as high inventories built up in prior months are refined into gasoline and other products.

In January of this year, crude stocks were an unusually low 296.6 million barrels. With the industry desperate to replenish its supplies, the total rose to 297.1 million in February, 308.7 million in March, 324.4 million in April and 324.4 million in May.

But while crude oil stocks were growing, gasoline stocks were dwindling - despite the industry tradition of devoting a substantial amount of refinery capacity to gasoline production during the early months of the year.

Last August, the industry allowed gasoline stocks to drop below 209.9 million barrels - the lowest level in more than three years - and never adequately rebuilt them.

The month-by-month decline in gasoline stocks this year, in millions of barrels, looks like this: January - 245.6, February - 251.0, March - 241.1, April - 233.9 and May - 220.1.

Item: For reasons the industry has never fully explained, utilization of available refinery capacity consistently has been way below average throughout 1979.

It's impossible to achieve 100 percent utilization because of periodic planned shutdowns for maintenance and repairs as well as unexpected shutdowns due to accidents. The effective maximum utilization of refinery capacity this year is well below both of those figures: January - 87.2 percent, February - 83.8, March - 84.1, April - 84.9 and May - 83.6.

In summary, crude oil is available but it's being hoarded by the industry, refinery capacity is grossly underutilized and gasoline stocks continue to dwindle. Yet the petroleum industry can't understand why it's the object of so much public suspicion.

IN WASHINGTON

Doubt reigns on high

martha angle and robert walters
WASHINGTON (NEA) - Uncertainty about President Carter's chances for re-election now has reached unprecedented heights - to Vice President Walter F. Mondale, handpicked by Carter as his running mate less than three years ago.

During recent trips back to his home state of Minnesota, Mondale quietly passed the word to fellow Democrats: Kindly avoid making any commitments regarding the 1982 race for the U.S. Senate seat from that state.

Those who have had personal conversations with the vice president on the delicate subject say Mondale clearly is concerned about the possibility of being out of office if the Carter-Mondale ticket loses in 1980.

Mondale, apparently seeking to minimize or eliminate opposition for the Democratic nomination in the Senate race, has held public office during virtually his entire adult life and was a member of the Senate before joining the Carter ticket.

If he seeks to return to the legislature, Mondale undoubtedly would face Republican opposition, probably from the current officeholder, Sen. David Durenberger, who was elected only last year to fill the remaining four years of the final term of the late Hubert H. Humphrey.

Dual role creates peer pressure

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., may encounter some difficulty in retaining his position as Senate minority leader while simultaneously running for the Republican presidential nomination. Baker acknowledges that "at some point" late this year or early in 1980, "I'm going to have to focus all my attention on the presidential campaign."

At that time, he plans to delegate the day-to-day responsibility for leading the Senate's Republicans to Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, whose title of minority whip makes him the second-ranking GOP leader in the chamber.

But Baker already has been placed in a difficult position by Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., who resigned his position as chairman of the House Republican Conference - the third-ranking GOP leadership post in that chamber - when he recently entered the presidential contest.

Baker says "the precedent of the Senate is to the contrary," citing the cases of then-Sens. Alben W. Barkley, D-Ky., and Lyndon B. Johnson, D-Texas, who ran for vice president while retaining their leadership positions.

But that explanation doesn't fully satisfy Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., who also is a contender for the GOP presidential nomination.

"I like Ted Stevens, but I didn't vote for him as minority leader," says Dole, suggesting that he might try to press Baker to abandon one of his roles.

Surprise: You don't need us

Some good news from Capitol Hill: The chairman of an obscure congressional panel, the Joint Committee on Printing, wants to abolish not only his job but also the entire committee.

The committee's principal job has been to oversee the work of the Government Printing Office, which prints the Congressional Record, Federal Register, agency and departmental reports, bills, hearing records and thousands of other documents.

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., has proposed legislation replacing his House-Senate committee with a seven-member board of directors to supervise the work of the printing office. The bill is co-sponsored by the committee's vice chairman, Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.

The board would be composed of three public members and one representative apiece from the printing industry, information industry, library community and labor unions. All members would be appointed by the president and paid only for work done on meeting days.

The board, in turn, would appoint the public printer and the superintendent of documents, who are responsible for production and distribution of government documents. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Apprehensive readers

More than half of the nation's food shoppers scrutinize product labels in an attempt to avoid specific ingredients - especially sugars, salts, fats, oils and preservatives - according to a new government survey.

The Food and Drug Administration, which reportedly is planning to propose more stringent food labeling requirements, recently released the results of an agency-commissioned poll of almost 1,400 food buyers throughout the country.

The survey found that relatively few people question the nutritive value of packaged food products, but large numbers of shoppers fear a proliferation of substances that might be carcinogenic or have other adverse health effects.

One person in seven reported a concern about the health implications of the ingredients in packaged foods. Thirty-five percent of that group worried about preservatives while 29 percent cited "additives" or "chemicals" in general.

Another 20 percent was apprehensive about sugar content, 8 percent mentioned artificial colors, 7 percent was concerned about salt content and 4 percent was worried about artificial flavorings.

Other substances frequently cited as a cause for buyer concern included artificial sweeteners, starches, seasonings, cholesterol and monosodium glutamate.

Enough is enough

When thousands of Cubans fled to the United States in the early 1960s to escape Fidel Castro's regime, a generous Congress established a special federal program to help state and local governments assimilate the wave of refugees.

Almost two decades later, most of the Cubans are well-established members of their communities - but the federal assistance program and the government bureaucracy that administers it continue to consume millions of taxpayer dollars.

Calling the refugee program "one of the biggest rip-offs in the federal budget," Rep. David Obey, D-Wi., recently convinced the House Appropriations Committee to recommend termination of an operation that already has cost more than $1.4 billion.

"It's time to kill this turkey before it eats another load of corn," says Obey, noting that two-thirds of all Cubans now in the United States arrived more than 10 years ago and 95 percent of them have been in this country for at least five years.

Despite the Cubans' remarkable rate of economic and social integration, communities in Florida, California and other states continue to receive almost $50 million annually to administer the outdated program.

Officials from those communities already are lobbying to prevent the full House and the Senate from killing the refugee aid program.

NTSU probe revealing 'routine' cash procedures

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State colleges and private foundations routinely handle funds between themselves in a method that some would consider "laundering money," says a legislator involved in a probe of North Texas State University.

"Almost every university in the state has a private foundation," said Rep. Lee Jackson, R-Dallas. "Our concern is if it serves the public and if it leads to opportunities for abuses of the kind we've discovered."

Jackson and other members of the House General Investigating Committee turned over audit reports and other documents Tuesday to prosecutors from Denton and Austin.

At issue is whether North Texas State officials and officers of the North Texas State University Educational Foundation Inc. violated state law by depositing checks made out to the college in foundation accounts.

C.C. "Jitter" Nolen resigned as university president April 12 after mounting publicity over alleged misapplication of university funds. Hours after stepping down, Nolen and three others testified at a closed investigating committee hearing. One of the other witnesses, James Reid, recently announced his resignation effective Aug. 1 from his post as foundation executive director.

Two state audit report cite numerous instances of university donations being diverted to the foundation. State funds also were used to pay the salary of the foundation executive director.

Private foundations have been used as "bankers" by state colleges that need more money that the Legislature gives them, Jackson said. The foundations raise funds by contributions and can spend them almost without restriction, in contrast to their beneficiaries, he added.

The private entities often supplement state salaries of top university administrators.

"This has been for years considered standard operating procedure," Jackson said. "What we've considered to be laundering the money was standard operating procedure."

Committee Chairman Richard Slack, D-Pecos, said the panel will give the district attorneys a chance to review progress in the case before pursuing the matter. The committee will meet again Aug. 6 and Denton County District Attorney Jerry Cobb said he will know by then whether criminal charges will be filed.

Slack said regardless of what Cobb and Austin prosecutors decide, the committee probably will suggest legislative remedies and administrative changes at the university.

If criminal violations occurred, the Denton or Austin prosecutors would handle the case depending on where the activity happened, Cobb said.

The committee also agreed to ask Attorney General Mark White to file civil suit if necessary to recover any state funds improperly spent for private use.

FIXING REID STREET at the corner of Murphy will make a major improvement to the area, simply because every time it rains, the dirt intersection turns into a big mud puddle.

Retirement system gets new director

The Texas Municipal Retirement System (TMRS), which covers some 55,000 municipal employees, including more than 200 in Pampa, will have a new director early next year upon the retirement of its founding director.

The TMRS Board of Trustees, at its June meeting in Austin, announced the retirement of Dean Gorham, who has headed the system for over three decades. The board appointed Jimmie L. Mormon, assistant director of TMRS, to succeed Gorham.

362 cities are members of the system, which has total assets of $330 million. Pampa joined in 1961.

Mormon has been in municipal service for 25 years, having served as deputy assessor in San Angelo from 1955 to 1960 and then as assessor-collector and city treasurer of Mesquite for seven years.

Committee split on theory behind two assassinations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Was the 35th president of the United States murdered by a conspiracy involving gangsters? Did other conspirators plot the killing of a major American civil rights leader? The assassinations committee of the U.S. House of Representatives, in a divided decision, says that may have been the case when:
 —On Nov. 22, 1963, President John Fitzgerald Kennedy was shot to death in Dallas.
 —On April 4, 1968, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was gunned down in Memphis, Tenn.
 The committee's final report, the product of a two-year, $6 million investigation, said Tuesday that Kennedy's assassination was probably a conspiracy and King's may have been.
 But three of the committee's 12 members filed dissents to the conclusion that Kennedy's assassination was a conspiracy, much less a conspiracy by mobsters.
 One of the three dissenters, Rep. Harold Sawyer, R-Mich., said the conspiracy findings in the Kennedy and King assassinations are based on "supposition upon supposition upon supposition."
 Committee members scheduled a news conference today to formally release the report and answer questions about it.
 Conspiracies or not, however, the committee agreed with conclusions of earlier investigations that Lee Harvey Oswald assassinated Kennedy and James Earl Ray assassinated King.
 It said it found "substantial evidence" that a St. Louis group offered $50,000 for the murder of King — but no proof linking the offer to his murder.
 Of Kennedy, the final report said: "The committee found that it was possible ... that an individual organized crime leader or a small combination of leaders might have participated in a conspiracy to assassinate President Kennedy."
 It named Carlos Marcello and Santos Trafficante as "the most likely family bosses of organized crime to have participated in such a unilateral assassination plan."
 But it said it found no direct evidence Marcello or Trafficante were in fact involved.
 Marcello, operating out of New Orleans, and Trafficante, out of Miami, deny they had any connection with Kennedy's murder.
 The report said "one critical evidentiary element" distinguishing Marcello from other mobsters is "credible associations ... albeit tenuous" linking Oswald and Jack Ruby, who killed Oswald, to Marcello associates.

Texas

By The Associated Press
 Very heavy thunderstorms moved through the San Antonio area early today, prompting forecasters to warn of the possibility of flash flooding.
 Forecasters said the very heavy thunderstorms in the San Antonio area were capable of producing up to three inches of rainfall per hour and warned of the possibility of flash flooding of low water crossing and low lying areas.
 The thunderstorms extended northwestward from San Antonio towards Boerne, Helotes and Medina Lake.
 Other thunderstorms were being reported early today in Southeast Texas near Lake Livingston and across a vast section of the northern half of the state from the southwestern mountains to just east of the Dallas-Fort Worth area.
 Forecasts called for partly cloudy skies and scattered thunderstorms statewide.

National

Thundershowers dumped rain on the Rockies early today after a night of funnel clouds and minor flooding in some Colorado communities.
 Rain was expected today along the East Coast and into Florida and from Georgia into the southern plains, and hot summer temperatures were forecast for the West and Midwest.
 Funnel clouds and hailstorms Tuesday buffeted eastern Colorado and a cloudburst caused minor flooding in Central City, Colo.

WIDESPREAD SHOWER ACTIVITY is expected in the forecast period lasting until Thursday morning from Texas and the central Plains through the Southeast. Warm temperatures are forecast for most of the nation.

Pioneer Gas at center of advertising controversy

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A utility analyst, ACORN lawyer and Plainview city councilman claim Pioneer Natural Gas Co. wants to foster a good corporate image at the ratepayers' expense.
 Jack Hopper of Electric Consumers of Texas, Inc., accused the Amarillo company Tuesday of using corporate pressure to gain support for its proposal to make customers pay for gas utilities' advertising and charitable donations.
 "Believe me, there's been coercion to smoke people out to get them down here today," Hopper said at a Railroad Commission hearing.

Pioneer's proposed rule would allow gas utilities to charge up to 0.5 percent of their gross receipts for advertising and contributions.
 "Advertising by utilities is not a four-letter word," said Tom Stephens, a Pioneer-spokesman.
 Support for Pioneer's proposal came from hospitals such as Scott and White of Temple; charitable organizations such as United Way; chambers of commerce; private colleges such as Texas Christian and Abilene Christian universities; Entex, Inc.; Plano YMCA; Southern Union Gas Co.; and the Texas Association of Broadcasters.

 Paul Plunket III of Houston, representing Entex, said the rule would add only one-half cent a day to the average customer's monthly bill.
 He noted the Public Utility Commission allows electric utilities to pass on 0.3 percent of its gross receipts for advertising and donations, which gives them an advantage.
 "If we have a story to tell, we need to be able to tell that story on the same basis as electric companies," Plunket said.
 "The Railroad Commission should not be influenced by an error committed by the Public Utility Commission," said Plainview Councilman Tom Almon.

 He presented a council resolution opposing the proposed rule.
 "There's no reason to ape an unpalatable and unpopular rule of the Public Utility Commission," said Hopper.
 "We're opposed to any limitation on advertising," said Rush Evans of KTBC-TV, Austin, a spokesman for broadcasters. "The public has a right to know what's happening in the utility field."

Johnson's extradition Thursday

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — While Texas grain dealer Robert Johnson prepares to return to Fort Worth for arraignment on fraud charges, his traveling companion is free on bond in his home town here.
 Johnson will be returned to Texas from Pocatello, Idaho, Thursday and is scheduled for arraignment on a 17-count federal indictment before U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon Friday.
 Johnson is charged with swindling Texas and Oklahoma farmers out of $2 million worth of wheat. He disappeared 2½ years ago and had eluded an extensive federal search for him until last weekend, when he was arrested in Rexburg, Idaho.
 His companion, Irene Mary Olson, 40, surrendered to federal authorities here Tuesday. She was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Gene Richey on charges of harboring a federal fugitive. Richey denied a prosecutor's motion that bond be set at $50,000 and Mrs. Olson was freed Tuesday on $7,500 bond.

The 40-year-old woman appeared at the arraignment with her 11-year-old son, Nathan, and two Wichita Falls attorneys.
 The charge against her was filed in Yakima, Wash., shortly after she and Johnson were spotted there by federal authorities about a year ago, the FBI said. They eluded capture at that time.
 Bannock County, Idaho, authorities said Texas officers will fly Johnson, 43, to Texas Thursday for arraignment on 13 counts of interstate transportation of stolen property and four counts of aiding and abetting interstate transportation of stolen goods.
 Johnson was arrested for running a stop sign in Idaho. An officer checking his identity discovered Johnson was wanted on the federal charges. The former Iowa Park grain dealer said Monday he would waive extradition and return to Texas to face charges.
 U.S. District Judge Marion Callister has set bond at $1 million.

Ex-officers under fire at trial

HOUSTON (AP) — The father of teen-ager shot to death by Houston police after a high-speed car chase says his son never owned a gun and only took drugs to control his epilepsy.
 The testimony of William T. Joyvies came Tuesday in the trial of former officers Walter E. Plaster, 53, and John S. White, 28.
 They are charged with conspiring to violate the civil rights of Billy Keith Joyvies, 18, by planting a "throw-down" gun in his car. The youth died of a gunshot wound July 11, 1975, after a 30-mile chase with police.
 The grand jury indictment returned against Plaster and White charges that they planted the gun to back up their story that Joyvies fired at them during the chase, and to substantiate the filing of attempted capital murder charges against the youth.

Dear Abby

See lawyer, male or female

DEAR ABBY: I note that you frequently advise readers with legal problems to "consult a lawyer, and pay him for what he knows."

That's excellent advice. But today, when approximately 25 percent of the graduating classes of most law schools are women, your readers could wind up paying a lawyer for what she knows. And it would still be a good investment.

MS PERLMAN, ST. PAUL, MINN.

DEAR MS: Thanks for keeping me on my toes. Mandy Stellman, a lady lawyer and vocal feminist in Milwaukee, has been chastising me for years for referring to lawyers as "him." Sorry. Old habits die hard. But I'm learning.

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked why so many children from "better" homes who have never known poverty or deprivation have turned to crime and violence.

By way of explanation you quoted PARENTS magazine: "A peek inside the middle-class home will reveal a child who lives with two adults -- but has no real parents."

As a veterinarian, I have noted a similarity between the behavior of pet dogs left unattended all day long while the family is at work or at school, and the behavior of children who also, unfortunately, receive little attention or love because so-called parents are too preoccupied to spend time with their children.

Dogs become destructive and chew furniture, shoes, pillows and the like in an effort to get attention. You will find that children also become destructive, vandalizing property and injuring people in an effort to secure the attention that they, as individuals, desire and need. Thirty years of teaching experience has taught me that the child without love in the home is the problem individual in the classroom and on the street.

DAVID C. TUDOR, V.M.D.

DEAR DR. TUDOR: Well said.

DEAR ABBY: Now that vacation time is here, I have a word for those who take pictures and show them around:

Please, do not feel that you have to identify every person in every picture. For example:

"See the man on the right -- the one with the red jacket? Well, his name is John Smith. He lives in Ferndale. His wife, Stella, is the one standing next to the woman in green who's holding the poodle whose name is Fifi who used to belong to the couple on the left who live in Podunk. Now the ones in the middle are Betty and Harry."

ABC IN PORTOLA VALLEY

DEAR ABC: You have a lot of company. And while we're on the subject of vacation pictures, readers, please be considerate and limit your show-and-tell snapshots only to those that came out well, and have heart, not more than half a dozen!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "MR. Z IN LAGUNA": One of the greatest virtues is "forgiveness." Best described: Forgiveness is the fragrance of a violet on the heel of the one who crushed it.

There's no typical 'Mrs. Housewife' in choosing floor coverings

By ELAINE Q. BARROW
AP Newfeatures

How Mrs. Housewife selects floor coverings may surprise some manufacturers.

Although area rugs are "in," they share the sales volume with wall-to-wall carpeting. Persian-design rugs like those cherished by Grandma are still "big," but are yielding ground to rugs of Chinese patterns. The prestige of wool is undisputed, but 8 out of 10 yards of carpeting sold in America is nylon.

In fact, it may be discovered that there is no such person as Mrs. Housewife. There are Jane, Barbara, Gladys, Pat and other individuals -- with an equal number of personal preferences.

One homemaker paying scant heed to decorating trends was surprised when a visitor praised her arrangement of area rugs.

"I didn't do it for style," she said. "I placed them that way to cover dog stains."

The recent winter floor-coverings market in New York verified the timeliness of area rugs -- by themselves on polished wood floors or placed on top of carpeting, often to echo colors in wall coverings and paintings.

Acknowledging the prevalence of wall-to-wall installations, one manufacturer went so far as to suggest an inset: cutting out a space in the carpet into which the area rug would fit, with its surface flush with the surrounding carpet.

Area rugs can be as large as 8-by-11 feet and as small as 3-by-4 feet. It's a personal choice whether furniture is placed on top of them or arranged around the rugs.

Extensive selections of patterns inspired by Oriental themes at the recent market seemed to indicate an emerging trend.

Just as world news has focused on U.S.-China relations, a comparable reaction in furnishings is seen by Trans-Ocean, a major U.S. rug importer. Emphasis, we're told, is on patterns featuring traditional designs as well as new designs derived from centuries-old motifs adapted from archaeological finds in China. Some are even considered an investment.

Says Ralph Shulman, executive vice president, "As imports of Persian rugs decline, more and more collectors are investing in Chinese rugs. Today's collectibles, they will be tomorrow's heirlooms, much as Chinese rugs were in the era of our ancestors when a symbol of true status was the Chinese rug."

He was referring to the more expensive products in the firm's line.

Basic calorie equation includes basal metabolism, stored calories

DEAR DR. LAMB - No, no, a thousand times no. Your statement that overweight people are warmer because they have the insulation of fat simply cannot go unchallenged. There is an important area that you people in medical science forget. You're always saying that the calories consumed must be less than the calories expended. That's frustrating even if it is true.

You've forgotten about basal metabolism. My thin husband can sit and read in the depths of winter in a cool house wearing a sleeveless shirt with perfect comfort. It seems reasonable to assume that he can do this because he's able to burn food for warmth. On the other hand, overweight people are only warm during or following vigorous exercise.

I realize that for some, thyroid deficiency is the culprit. I've had my thyroid tested and it's normal. Of course, the thyroid is involved in metabolism. I suggest that researchers should study the thin as well as the obese to find out what the problem is. We deserve a better answer than simply that the outgo must exceed the intake.

DEAR READER - You have quite a few misconceptions in your letter that deserve to be clarified. In the first place, whether you feel hot or cold has very little to do with what your body temperature really is. We know that skin temperature is not a reliable indication of body temperature. That's one reason that we prefer to put the thermometer under the tongue and some prefer a rectal temperature. We have such a thing as core temperature which is the temperature we use to study metabolism.

A person may feel hot or cold in relationship to the blood flow to the skin. That's where the nerve fibers are that give you the sensation of being hot or cold regardless of what your body temperature really is. Exercise, particularly if it's vigorous, increases body temperature and stimulates an increased circulation to the skin so that excess body heat can be lost. When this occurs, the skin is warmed and you feel warmer.

So the real culprit isn't necessarily thyroid, but it has a lot to do in many instances with the circulation in the skin.

To give you more information about body temperature, I'm sending you The Health Letter number 7 - 6, Body Temperature and Fever. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

And what makes you think that most fat people are cold? I've received letters from numerous overweight people complaining about their feeling hot while their spouses were perfectly cool.

Drying process to be demonstrated

A demonstration on drying fruits and vegetables is scheduled tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. in the Courthouse Annex Meeting Room.

Conducting the demonstration will be Elaine Houston, county extension agent.

Included in the demonstration will be procedural instructions, basic steps and the methods of drying, and supplies and equipment needed. Dried produce, the finished product, will be exhibited, and a question and answer period will be included.

The demonstration is sponsored by the Gray County Family Living Committee, along with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Quadruplegic launches art career

WARRENSVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Quadruplegic artist Edgar Bailey says, "Drawing now makes me feel like I have a hand. It's a good feeling."

Bailey, 35, who has been bedridden for 20 years, has developed a technique of drawing with a pen or pencil held in his teeth.

An avid sports fan, Bailey had hopes of a career as a boxer before he fell from a roof and broke his neck and back, losing the use of his arms and legs.

Now he does portraits of sports figures. He has also done landscapes and still-life works.

"I'm never satisfied with my work," Bailey said. "I always think I can do better."

But he has had several showings and has sold a number of works.

Leaky faucet can waste 15 to 20 gallons a day

A slowly dripping faucet can waste 15 to 20 gallons a day.

Faucets are the second greatest source of leaks. (Toilets are No. 1.) The American Water Works Association suggests you check all faucets in the house once or twice a year. Worn washers, the most common cause of leaks, are easy to replace.

Turn off the water supply line, then take apart the faucet. For more complicated fixtures, consult a good household do-it-yourself book.

Be sure that the new washer is the right size. The washer has to spread out to the edges of the valve stem when screwed down. If the faucet still leaks, you may need a plumber to find the problem.

Lever-controlled faucets are just as easy to disassemble and repair.

CBS to introduce new sitcom

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a few weeks, CBS will debut a summer show that is really an old successful sitcom that became three other sitcoms, which were all done away with before ever getting on the air.

This is fun. There is more. The new show will feature one star from the original successful sitcom and three stars from the three derivative shows, but it will be missing the main star from the original show (who also starred in the first of the later three sitcoms).

Okay, that's enough. But it is a curious history that "Hanging In" brings to the tube this summer. This show, in its various incarnations, has been:

— A new format for CBS' "Maude," which would have brought Maude to Washington as a freshman representative. This was canned after production began because Bea Arthur didn't want to be Maude anymore.

— "Onward and Upward," which also would have featured a freshman representative in Washington. Only he was to have been a black former football player. This was dumped, after production began, when John Amos, who was to have starred, walked out of the thing.

— "Mr. Dooley" came into being for a short while, but the title had to be done away with because it belonged to the old Dooley cartoons.

— "Mr. Dugan," the third-generation child of the original "Maude," came closest to actually going on the air. Cleavon Little was to have been the jock-congressman, but Norman Lear, whose TAT Productions made the show, thought that blacks were not properly presented. The congressional Black Caucus agreed and "Mr. Dugan" was dumped five days before it was to go on the air.

CBS, intrepid, was still apparently interested in the idea, (though by this time it's hard to say what the idea was), and told TAT to go on with still another production.

PROFILE

'Art' of relaxation comes easel-ly to Robinson

The 'art' of relaxation comes easel-ly to Robinson. Have you ever wondered how a network news anchorman unwinds after a long and hectic day? For ABC News anchor-man Max Robinson the answer is painting. "I don't really call myself a painter," says Robinson smiling broadly. "I paint and I enjoy it. It is my source of relaxation." As a child, Robinson first detected his artistic interests when with considerable dexterity, he drew portraits of members of his family. But it was not until Robinson was in his mid-20's that he started to paint. "During my childhood, painting was not considered a manly vocation in my neighborhood; unless you happened to paint houses," says Robinson. Max started painting after an artist friend challenged him, and results came almost immediately. The fifth painting he did was entered in an exhibit. "Interestingly enough, I started to collect paintings before I ever painted -- buying my first work when I barely had enough money to eat. It was only $45, but for me, that was a fortune then. I owned a genuine original painting. And now I continue to collect as I paint, each passion helping the other," says Robinson. Before joining ABC News as the National Desk anchorman on ABC's "World News Tonight," Robinson anchored local news in Washington. His art work was exhibited at the Iranian Embassy there. All forms of paintings intrigue Max, but he favors abstracts, having started with portraits. "The first thing I do is choose my subject and a canvas style I like. I pick the colors and then I start to paint. I let the painting evolve on the canvas, losing myself in it. When I'm unconscious of what I'm doing, that's when it works well. The best portrait I ever did -- my fifth painting -- I lost myself completely." Max explains that choosing colors is even more interesting for him than selecting a subject -- he's color blind. Other painters cannot detect that he has a touch of color blindness, because he says, "I'm always using a blend of colors in my painting. I approach it with all the abandon in the world."

THROUGH CHANNELS

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: Actor Lee Majors is claiming he had the wool pulled over his eyes by an artist who sold him an oil painting of wife Farrah Fawcett for $10,000. And he wants $200,000 in damages as well as his $10,000 back, we learned exclusively. In papers on file in California Civil Court, Majors says he agreed to buy an original painting of Farrah from Dutch-American artist William Verdult for $10,000. But the painting that he received was said to be a copy, with a value of only $50. All this came out at a pre-trial hearing last month on a breach of contract suit brought by Verdult against Lee and Farrah. Verdult claims that he agreed to sell Lee the painting of Farrah -- priced at $25,000 -- for $16,000 and also do a gift portrait of Lee to match it. Lee paid him $10,000 and promised to send the remainder and a photo of himself so work could be started on the other portrait later, the artist claims. Other than Farrah and the two Cheryl's -- and perhaps Suzanne Somers -- Loni Anderson, "WKRP in Cincinnati" co-star, is the prettiest, and certainly the busiest, blonde on television. Actually, the real Loni isn't much like the vapid -- but not dumb -- girl she plays on the comedy series. Because she has posed for a best-selling, ultra-sexy bikini poster, she gets problems on the street, meeting strange men: "They assume I'm a loose type of woman and I'll do anything once," she explains grimly, as though she can hardly believe, despite the nature of her poster which makes Farrah look like a child by comparison. "I've been accosted and propositioned more times than I care to mention. People really believe in stereotype."

CELEBRITIES IN CANDID: "I've been away a long time," admits Andy Griffith, who is back on television and in a new series, "Salvage 1." The show may be gimmicky -- about a junk collector who goes to the moon for valuable space trash -- but it's struck audiences' fancy and Griffith hopes it will keep him in the public eye for years to come. "It's tough to get accustomed to being in a long-running hit series like 'The Andy Griffith Show' and then to do a few flops and sort of fade out," he explains humbly, very likeably. "I know 'Salvage' won't be called high art, but it's entertainment and it's got no violence and jiggling girls." The real Andy Griffith is very much like the characters he has played on his series and in films like "No Time for Sergeants." He admits, though, that he isn't exactly Mr. Goody Two Shoes. "I have a temper, brother!" He pauses. "Andy on the show didn't have a temper, but I sure do. Ask my wife." Ileana Parsons makes her television debut in Liberty Mutual's dramatic special, "Oberndorf Revisited."

Soviet grain sales drive prices skyward

WASHINGTON (AP) — The big sales of corn to the Soviet Union and other nations are doing more than just boosting grain prices. They are helping give hog farmers a good reason to get out of the business.

According to the latest Agriculture Department analysis, "After two years of good returns, hog producers now face leaner times."

The reason is twofold: Farmers expanded hog output sharply in response to rising market prices — which, in turn, were fueled in part by the long-awaited takeoff in cattle prices — and because of a huge export drain on the U.S. corn supply.

With the big grain exports and indications they will continue through the 1979-80 marketing year, corn prices are expected to average substantially higher than in the 1978-79 season.

That means a double crunch is taking place in the hog industry from lower pork prices and higher feed costs.

The bottom line may be that a year from now consumers will have eaten most of the currently larger pork output, causing prices to start rising again.

But for now, the department said Tuesday in its latest "Farmers Newsletter" about livestock, the hog slaughter for the rest of this year will be up about 20 percent from the last half of 1978.

"As a result, hog prices may remain in the low $40's (per 100 pounds) during July-September, then move to the upper $30's during October-December," the report said.

According to surveys made June 1, producers indicated they planned to boost farrowings of new litters by 17 percent from a year earlier in the June-August period.

Those probably will occur, because the sows expected to farrow in June-August were bred before the survey was taken.

The survey also showed farrowings in September-November would be up 14 percent from the same three months of last year.

"But these intentions (of farrowings) are less likely to be met," the report said. "There's still time to adjust plans... to reconsider any planned production increases in light of the lower hog prices to come."

Prices of corn from the record 1978 crop of 7.1 billion bushels are expected to average about $2.20 a bushel over the entire 12-month marketing year then runs through Sept. 30, according to USDA experts.

But because of the smaller — although still huge — 1979 corn harvest, estimated at 6.66 billion bushels, and the record demand for exports, prices for this fall's harvest are expected to average in a range of $2.60 to $3 a bushel over the marketing year that will begin Oct. 1.

Thus, it may turn out much more profitable for many farmers to sell corn for cash than to market it by feeding the grain to hogs. The same thing occurred when grain prices soared in 1972-74, with livestock producers being forced to cut back because of high feed costs.

"High feed prices, coupled with sagging hog prices will end the hog industry's current expansion phase, even for large, capital-intensive units," the report said.

But it said the big commercial operators probably will not cut back soon. Instead, they "likely will maintain output near capacity, trying to spread costs and hired labor costs over a large number of hogs" by holding the line on production.

However, farmers who have mixed livestock and grain operations — such as those who feed only one or two batches of hogs a year — may choose to sell corn this fall instead of feeding it to hogs.

There is one modifying factor. So long as farmers expect cash receipts from hogs, they will sell to exceed out-of-pocket cash expenses, they will continue to raise hogs, the report said.

"If they can't cover all cash costs, they may decide to quit the business," it said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A native of Brooklyn, N.Y., Daniel Marcus, was sworn in Tuesday as general counsel of the Agriculture Department.

Ruth S. Harkin, wife of Rep. Thomas R. Harkin, D-Iowa, was installed as the deputy general counsel, the No. 2 lawyer in the department.

Marcus, 38, was nominated by President Carter for the $50,000-a-year job June 1 and confirmed by the Senate June 27. He has been serving as acting general counsel since April 16.

Before joining USDA in April, Marcus since March 1977 had been deputy general counsel in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Mrs. Harkin, 34, had been a "confidential assistant" in the department's general counsel's office. She was the prosecuting attorney in Story County, Iowa, from 1972 to 1978. Her salary is $47,500 a year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says spraying operations against grasshoppers in western states probably will peak at about 7.2 million acres.

Officials said Tuesday spraying has covered more than two-thirds of the area designated in the federal-state control program and that "the remainder should be completed within the next few weeks."

Israeli gunboats attack base

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli navy gunboats shelled a Palestinian guerrilla base on the southern Lebanese coast Tuesday evening, the military command announced.

The location of the base was not revealed, but a military spokesman said Israel had "very good information" that the base "served several terrorist organizations in the planning and preparation of sea-launched terrorist attacks within Israel."

There were no Israeli casualties during the brief operation, the spokesman said.

In Lebanon, provincial authorities reported that Israeli border gunners shelled guerrilla-controlled towns in southern Lebanon, prompting Norwegian and Irish troops of U.N. peacekeeping forces to go on alert.

ENERGY

Building managers comply with new energy program

Some Texas building managers are changing their cooling systems rather than be held liable for tenants' violations of the federal mandate.

Most public buildings surveyed Tuesday were following President Carter's order that thermostats be set at 78 — to a degree.

The First International Building, one of Dallas' newer skyscrapers, has two thermostat systems — one for the interior of the building and one for the perimeter. While the first can be altered only with a key, "a bunch" of tenants have figured out how to lower temperatures in the latter system, said manager Henry B. Dirks III.

"If they change it, that's their violation," he said.

But Bill Nickolas, director of governmental affairs in the Dallas Energy Department office, said he interprets the regulations to mean building owners are ultimately responsible for violations, since they are responsible for certifying that the building is in compliance with the regulations.

The Sheraton-Dallas Hotel is starting to computerize temperature controls and is placing plastic guards over all thermostats in public areas, said Energy Manager Jim Taylor. Now, each thermostat can be raised or lowered by anyone who walks by. Two thermostats in a lobby of the hotel were set at 68 and 70 degrees Tuesday.

Next door at the Southland Life Building, the management was preparing letters alerting tenants to the new regulation and the maximum $10,000 fine for violators.

Since each office has its own thermostat, the building's management will have to rely on the honor system for compliance.

At Midland's Oil and Gas Building, manager Bobby Virgin said plastic guards may have to be placed on thermostats there because "we have them in our hallways and anyone can change them."

"We have people who are willing to cooperate and some who are uncooperative," she said.

The University of Texas at Austin will have to change the cooling system in 75 to 80 buildings, said W.A. Worsham, air conditioning and refrigeration engineer with the UT utilities department. Thermostats are individually controlled in newer buildings, he said.

While most Houston buildings said they are complying with the order, Harris County government buildings are set at 76 degrees.

Assistant County Attorney Anthony Sheppard said the county qualifies for exemptions and if the federal government orders it to go to 78 degrees, the county may take the matter to court.

Thermostats in city buildings and public schools are set at 78 degrees, but the city also is seeking an exemption.

Temperatures in Foley's department stores are still at 76, said vice president A.J. Gallerano.

Plan may reduce domestic oil

HOUSTON (AP) — President Carter's energy programs will "freeze and reduce" domestic oil and gas production and cause longer lines at the gasoline pumps, an oil industry spokesman maintains.

"The best way to cure the shortage is to be certain that oil and gas is the most profitable investment anywhere," D.K. Davis, vice president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, told the Men's Club of Houston Tuesday.

But Carter's plan is based on "the fallacious premise that we're out of oil or gas in this country," he said.

"Under the Carter plan being debated, only $8 million would go to the producers for exploration and $40 billion of tax proceeds would go to the government," he said.

The country's energy now consists of 53 percent oil, 21 percent natural gas and 19 percent coal, Davis said, while all others — including hydroelectric, nuclear and geothermal power — make up just 7 percent.

The Department of Energy's budget for 1980 sets aside $3.6 billion for alternate energy research projects, he said, with $130 million to be spent on photovoltaic devices, which produce electricity from sunlight. The DOE's goal is to produce solar electricity at a cost of $2 per kilowatt hour by the mid-1980s, he added.

But he scoffed at the cost effectiveness of these devices and other proposed energy alternatives.

"If your Houston electric bill is $100 a month, photovoltaic electricity at its cheapest can be delivered to you for only $6,670 a month — that's on a sunny day, of course," Davis said.

"The energy savings for a solar-heated school the DOE funded in Virginia two years ago will pay out the installation cost in 645 years," he said.

Davis said the proposed production of alcohol from agricultural products is a "classic example of American ingenuity." About 30,000 gallons of ethanol a day is now being produced for $1.22 to $1.80 a gallon, he said.

"If we could increase the capacity by 120 times, enough could be produced by 1990 to put one-tenth of 1 percent of alcohol in the country's gasoline supply," Davis said. "Agricultural people say we can't grow enough crops to make even that much alcohol."

Be prepared this coming year to let go of situations that have proven to be unprofitable and unproductive. There is great hope for you once you are willing to try the new.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) When dealing with others today, be sure to lay all your cards on the table. Do nothing that could lead them to suspect you kept an ace up your sleeve. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In your efforts to try to be all things to all people today you may cause yourself unnecessary complications. Unfortunately, you can't please everyone.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's extremely important today to clearly define your goals and objectives. If you aim for too many targets, you may miss them all.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone who respects your opinion may come to you for advice today. Tell this person the truth, and not what you think he'd like to hear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Make no important changes impulsively today. You may find that you jumped from the frying pan into the fire. Sit on things for a bit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It may be a shade difficult to make decisions today, owing to the fact that you are too easily influenced by others. It's best to use your own judgment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Tasks for which you have small fondness are likely to be made even more difficult today because of your attitude. Avoid negative assumptions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In your social involvements today make it a point to treat everyone equally. Showing favoritism will cause hurt feelings.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't look upon domestic disagreements today as incapable of being immediately resolved. Clear the air quickly, even if a one-sided compromise is necessary.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be very careful today how you phrase what you say. There's a chance you could unintentionally offend one you care for.

TAURUS (April 20-May 10) Financial conditions are a mixed bag for you today. Unless you're very prudent, you could wind up in the red instead of the black. Spend sensibly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're usually very capable of taking on two projects simultaneously and doing a good job. Today, however, you're better off sticking to just one.

Nationals win 7-6

Four 9th inning walks decide All-Star contest

SEATTLE (AP) — Baseball's annual All-Star game can be counted on for surprises and the 1979 edition came up to that standard except the National League won again and that's routine.

But who would have thought the throwing arm of Pittsburgh's Dave Parker, the muscular giant, would win the Most Valuable Player Award for him? After all, it was his bat that won him MVP honors for the league last season.

And who would have thought the Mets' Lee Mazzilli would homer in his first All-Star at-bat and then outduel Ron Guidry of the Yankees in a confrontation 3,000 miles from New York?

Or that in the intimate confines of the enclosed Kingdome that four walks in the ninth inning would decide the 7-6 game for the eighth straight NL victory and their 16th of the past 17.

"When you're not hitting, you have to do something," said the 6-foot-5 Parker, who weighs 230 pounds.

What he did was throw out Jim Rice at third base after the Boston star hit a sky high fly that dropped for a double to open the seventh inning with the AL leading 6-5.

Then in the eighth, when the Angels' Brian Downing tried to score from second on a single by the Yankees' Graig Nettles, Parker threw him out at home. The ball reached catcher Gary Carter of Montreal on the fly and he blocked the sliding Downing from the plate.

"That play was perfect all the way," declared Manager Tommy Lasorda, who has to hope that some of the All-Star good fortune will rub off on his defending champion Dodgers, who languish in last place.

Mazzilli, a 24-year-old outfielder and All-Star reserve, evened the count with his home run in the eighth inning on a 0-2 pitch from Texas' Jim Kern.

Kern, who had given up only one home run this year, observed wryly. "He went with the pitch and hit it 317 feet far."

The dimensions of the Kingdome are 316 feet down the foul lines and Mazzilli's shot landed at the top of the fence.

It was Mazzilli again in the ninth only this time he drew a bases loaded walk from Guidry who was called into the game by Manager Bob Lemon after Kern had walked the bases full.

"He didn't throw anything close to the plate," Mazzilli commented. "I really wanted to get a hit and I swung at one bad ball and missed it. Truthfully, I liked the home run better than the walk."

Guidry appeared angry with Lemon, the man fired earlier this season as manager of the Yankees. The Cy Young Award winning pitcher who helped the Yanks to the World Series title last season said:

"I'm not happy with the circumstances of going in there. When you come in with the bases loaded, you ain't got no room to play with."

Relief ace Bruce Sutter of the Chicago Cubs took credit for the victory, pitching shutout ball the final two innings. It was the second straight All-Star win for the right-hander who throws what he calls a split-finger fast ball, something like a forkball.

Don Drysdale, in 1967 and 1968, was the last to achieve two consecutive All-Star triumphs.

A crowd of 58,905 jammed the Kingdome for Seattle's largest baseball crowd ever and in addition to the game saw striptease dancer Morganna make good her boast that she would run onto the field. She did, fully clothed and planted a kiss on George Brett of Kansas City, who was stepping into the batter's box.

The Angels' Nolan Ryan started for the AL, struck out the first two batters but then gave up a walk to the Dodgers' Steve Garvey, a triple Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt and a double to Cincinnati's George Foster.

Ryan gave up another run in the second that knotted the count at 3-3.

The AL jumped on two-time Cy Young Award winner Steve Carlton for three runs in the first, highlighted by Fred Lynn's two-run homer in his only time at bat. He had been bothered by a groin pull and had run into the fence trying to get Schmidt's hit.

The AL added two more off Joaquin Andujar of the Houston Astros on singles by the Angels' Don Baylor and Boston's Carl Yastrzemski, plus a hit batsman and an error.

In a bad night for Cy Young Award winners, Gaylord Perry of San Diego, gave up three hits and the final AL run while facing only three batters in the sixth.

The Nationals had chipped away in putting their overall record at 31-18-1. Singles by the Phillies' Bob Boone, the Cards' Lou Brock and the Dodgers' Dave Lopes brought a run in the second.

Another scored in the third thanks to a Schmidt double and one more was scored in the sixth when the Padres' Dave Winfield doubled and Carter singled him home.

Mazzilli's homer led off the eighth but then Kern put down the side. With one out in the ninth, he walked Joe Morgan who reached second on a balk. Parker was intentionally passed, thus finishing the evening with just one infield hit. Craig Reynolds of the Astros fouled

All-Stars is only a good show

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

SEATTLE (AP) — A guy so big that you'd think he would do better moving pianos makes two defensive plays that are absolutely mind-boggling. A little, dark-haired guy from New York's rag-tag Mets hits the game-tying home run in his first time at bat.

The game's best home run hitter, Mike Schmidt, goes eyeball-to-eyeball with the killer speedball pitcher, Nolan Ryan, in the very first inning and hits a massive triple. The host city's lone representative, Bruce Bochte, comes to bat in the sixth and bounces a hit over short. Bedlam in the Kingdome.

With the bases full, the 1978 Cy Young honoree, walks home the winning run and a bullpen specialist of the Chicago Cubs blows down Boston's Jim Rice and Rick Burleson, for the last two outs as the National League beats the American League for the eighth straight time in baseball's 50th All-Star game.

Add to that these ingredients. There are 58,905 crammed into the tight Kingdome with gadgets and red, white and blue streamers hanging from the rafters. A guy in a chicken's uniform is doing silly routines on top of the dugouts.

Morganna, the notorious sports striptease, leaps out of the stands, runs to home plate and plants a kiss on George Brett's startled features. We didn't think George protested half enough. And then this lanky guy in shorts, tee shirt and baseball cap runs out on the field and plays tag with the cops.

That, in a nutshell, is the 1979 All-Star game, won by the National Leaguers 7-6.

Baseball? Don't be stupid. It's theater. Maybe that's too kind a word. It's vaudeville. But it's fresh. It's fun. It's unpredictable. And the fans loved every minute of it.

So what if the National League has won the last eight in a row, 16 of the last 17, 31 to 18 with one tie overall? Do you think Chub Feeney, the NL prexy, can throw out his chest and brag about superiority? Of course not. The All-Star game proves nothing in the way of comparative league strength. No more than in the World Series in which the American League has a 45 to 30 edge, 27-19 in the period since the All-Star game's inception in 1933.

Let's face it. It's a great show, with players moved in and out of the lineups like basketball players. The All-Star game has none of the organized rhythm of regular season play or World Series, none of those tense duels in strategy that are more akin to war and chess battles.

Let's have no more of those barroom hassles about one league being better than the other. Let's just savor it for what it is — a look at our heroes in a fun-filled setting.

In this one, there were heroes and goats to go around. But the outstanding individual undoubtedly — winner of the Most Valuable Player Award — was gargantuan Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who played right field the entire game.

You've got to hand it to Lee Mazzilli of the Mets, hitting that home run in the eighth to tie the game. You can't discount gutsy Bruce Sutter of the Cubs for his "split-finger" strikeout mastery in the ninth. But Parker, 6 feet, 5 inches, and 230 pounds, a Goliath in a solid gold uniform, was a spectacle to remember forever.

In the seventh he lost Jim Rice's towering fly ball in the lights. Big Dave recovered the ball, wheeled and cut the dashing Red Soxer down at third — eliminating a threat. In the eighth with two men on base, the Pirates outfielder outdid himself on Graig Nettles' sharp hit to right. He charged the ball and shot it on a fly to catcher Gary Carter of the Expos, who snuffed out a charging Brian Downing at home.

Parker is renowned for his offensive skills — league batting champion the last two years, 1978 MVP, first in total bases and a bidder for baseball's triple crown — batting average, home runs, and rbi titles.

This night he was the complete ball player — a man to applaud in a nerve-stabbing if not a perfect game.

DAVE PARKER of the National League's Pittsburgh Pirates holds the trophy he received Tuesday night in Seattle after winning the MVP award in the All-Star game. Parker was the first outfielder in the tilt's history to be credited with two assists.

Watson appears ready to break British Open jinx

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Tom Watson, a two-time winner of the British Open golf title, laughs off suggestions that the Lytham St. Annes course holds a hex for American players. No American has won an Open here since Bobby Jones, an amateur, in 1926. But Watson, whose two victories have come in the last four years, hopes to change all that.

"I don't think there is much significance in the fact that no American pro has ever won here," said Watson. "We have been close, but just haven't succeeded. Maybe this year will be different."

If the jinx is to be finally laid to rest, Watson is the man most likely to do it.

The 29-year-old Kansas City, Mo., resident is in the midst of a phenomenal season that has seen him win four tournaments and finish second in four others. He has collected close to $400,000 in prize money, confirming himself as the new world golfing power.

He has had a few poor tournaments recently, and missed the cut in the U.S. Open. But he remains optimistic about doing well.

"I am certainly hopeful," he says modestly. "You can never tell, but I hope to play well."

According to Watson, driving will be the key to success on this 6,822 yard, par 71 course.

The rough here is rough in the extreme — more than 2 feet deep in places — and Lytham is the sort of course that can severely punish errors from the tee.

Wednesday's first round was expected to claim some unwary victims.

"In any major tournament you have to drive the ball straight," said Watson. "That is what I will be working on this week."

"It is very difficult to hit second shots from the deep rough here and then get them on the green. I hope I hit the fairways more than I did in our own Open. But if I hit the ball straight there will be no problem."

Most experts pick defending champion Jack Nicklaus, hoping to shake off a recent lean spell, as Watson's major rival for the coveted crown.

Strangely, not one of Nicklaus's three Open triumphs has been on an English course, and that knowledge is one of the motivating factors this time.

"I'd like to win in England, all three of my wins have been in Scotland," said Nicklaus. "The key is probably how well I putt. If I do well on the greens, I will be in contention."

The other three-time champion, South African Gary Player, spent Tuesday practicing with his 17-year-old son Wayne, playing in his first Open. Gary's other son, Mark, was caddying for his father, while an uncle, Bobby Verwey, was also among the qualifiers.

Player and the promising young Spaniard Sevyv Ballersteros are rated the only obvious contenders in the 152-man field capable of preventing a U.S. victory.

The American delegation is as strong as ever, with 13 of the top 20 U.S. money earners in the hunt for the $30,000 first prize.

Woodard back for final year

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M fullback George Woodard's weight — or lack of it — is once again a topic of conversation.

Woodard weighed as much as 290 pounds his junior year and soared over 300 pounds last year when he missed the entire season with a broken leg.

He was given an ultimatum by Coach Tom Wilson to get down to 245 or not bother reporting for fall practice.

The Aggies will have to dust off Woodard's old No. 33 jersey because Woodard now weighs a trim 248 and plans to come back for his final collegiate season.

"I know pro football plays a big part in his future plans, and that had a great deal to do with it," Wilson said. "We told him what he had to do to come back. George does have some character."

"Tom put his foot down and George knew he meant it," A&M assistant coach Paul Register said. "From what I've seen so far, he has more endurance than ever. I'll damn sure take a bet now that George will play. Not too long ago, I wouldn't have."

Woodard rushed 2,864 yards and scored 35 touchdowns during three varsity seasons with the Aggies.

"I'm tickled to death," Wilson said. "We presented him with an ultimatum and he took the challenge."

Wilson said Woodard's future still is uncertain. "I'm not trying to go overboard," the coach said. "George does have medical clearance but we still don't know if he'll have that quick start or how the leg will hold up when it's hit for the first time."

Phillips pleased with Oiler rookies

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Houston Oiler Coach Bum Phillips says, rather surprisingly, that second round draft pick Jesse Baker of Jacksonville, Ala. State has been the surprise of the Oiler training camp.

"His ability wasn't a surprise because we knew about that when we picked him," Phillips said. "It's his willingness to do everything that has been such a surprise."

"We'll work on pass rush, and everybody else will do nine rushes. Jesse will do 14 because he's jogging back to the end of the line."

Rumors spread quickly after the Oilers drafted Baker in May that he had an attitude problem. Baker answered his critics by saying he would report to training camp ready to prove himself.

"He was the best defensive lineman when he reported but he wasn't satisfied," Phillips said. "He wanted to get right to work and practice what would make him better."

Phillips, in fact, is pleased with the entire rookie crop that has been working out at Angelo State University. He says as many as 10 first year players could make the team.

"If I've done anything smart in my time it's drafting this group," Phillips said. "It's something we all worked on, our scouts, coaches, other staff members and the scouting combines. It's paid off."

"I'm not naming them but that would be 10 of 43 players or nearly one-fourth of the roster. We told them from the first that we were trying to improve our team. And that's what they've tried to do all along."

Phillips said the 1979 rookies had more athletic talent than any group in his five years as an Oiler coach.

"We cut guys last year that would have made it two years ago," Phillips said. "And this year's group is better than last year's."

The Oiler rookies meet the Kansas City rookies tonight in a scrimmage at Kansas City.

Oiler veterans are due in camp by midnight tonight but most are already on campus.

Knight a teacher above all else

EDITOR'S NOTE — Bobby Knight, basketball coach, is a national figure. But he is a man who closely guards his privacy. The second part of a three part series looks at Bobby Knight the man.

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Bobby Knight considers himself, above everything else, a teacher. When he left for Puerto Rico and the Pan American Games last month, the passport he gave the customs officials listed his occupation as "Teacher."

"I think my responsibility is to teach," said Knight, who once took a course at Ohio State given by former football coach Woody Hayes.

"I made up my mind that if I ever was in that position (coaching), I would make sure that I would teach like Woody, making the course a meaningful experience for everybody," he said.

So Knight gives a course in the methods of coaching basketball. He has several rules. Nobody wears hats and nobody can come in barefoot. He makes class attendance mandatory, deducting a grade for every class that a student misses. There are no exams, and Knight grades his students on the organization of their notebooks.

For his basketball players, Knight has fewer rules. There's no curfew, but players must wear jackets and ties on the road. The most important rule is no drugs. Early last season, the Indiana team was devastated when Knight threw three players off the team and placed five others on probation for smoking marijuana.

"I don't think too many coaches would have had the courage to do that," said Bob Kinney, Knight's former sports information director at West Point. The other rule on Knight's teams are no moustaches or long hair during the season.

"I think that kids look neater that way," Knight says. "But the important thing is to teach them something. Unless you're the head of General Motors, you're going to have to learn to accept rules."

Knight feels that few people can motivate themselves. "It's human nature to sluff off," he said, explaining why he constantly pushes his players to reach new heights.

"Outside of my parents, he's been my greatest motivator," said Dave Bliss, a former Knight assistant and now head coach at Oklahoma. "He's a dynamic person, very driven. In a war-time situation, he would make a great general. He's totally dedicated to coaching, and he's the smartest person I know."

"I think Coach Knight has always gotten the most possible out of his teams," said Mike Krzyzewski, now the head coach at Army who played and coached under Knight. "He impressed upon us how each individual couldn't do his own thing, that the team was all-important."

"At times I didn't like being pushed so hard. But I was thankful for it afterwards. If you just tell him what you think, he'll respect you. He cuts short people who are underhanded or devious. He's a perfectionist. All I can say is God bless the guy who helped me reach my potential."

Knight is fascinated by history, and is a big buff on the Civil War. Al McGuire, the former Marquette coach, calls him Gen. Patton. He has a photographic memory and is a speed reader. According to Kinney, Knight would read a thick history book on long road trips and paperback cowboy books on short trips.

He fishes and plays golf with his few close friends, but his passion is eating and sleeping basketball. And he shares that knowledge with almost anybody who expresses a sincere interest.

Knight studied basketball with the masters, and he is glad to impart his wisdom to other coaches. "Basketball is not a form of espionage," he says. "It's not like the CIA."

"If you look at the coaching clinics, you'll see Bobby Knight at many of them," said Wayne Martin, coach of Morehead State. "There are some highly recognized coaches who won't share their knowledge."

Knight's mentors were Clair Bee of Long Island University for tactics, the late Joe Lapchick of St. John's for handling personnel and Fred Taylor, who coached Knight at Ohio State, for organization. He acknowledges his debt to these coaching greats, often citing their contributions to his career.

After Indiana won this year's NIT basketball championship, he interrupted the public address announcer to call Lapchick's widow, Barbara, down for the awards ceremony. And the first phone call he made after winning the NIT was to coaching legend Bee.

Loyalty is obviously very important to Knight. "Coach Knight would do anything for his players," said Krzyzewski, who was the assistant coach of the Pan Am team. "He's very sensitive and loyal, but he just doesn't want a lot of publicity for it."

Johnny Orr of Michigan says Knight "helped me over some rough times."

In 1974, there was a "Dump Orr" movement in Michigan. Indiana and Michigan had tied for the Big 10 championship and the NCAA berth, forcing a playoff. Michigan won 75-67 on a neutral court, even though the Hoosiers had won by 12 the last time the two teams met.

"At the post-game press conference," Orr said, "Bobby got up and told the media: 'Now all you guys who don't think Johnny Orr can coach, stand up.'"

Cheerleaders no longer just on sidelines

DALLAS (AP) — Once upon a time, the only place you saw the Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders was on the sidelines, where they pranced to the music of the day and mouthed an occasional yell to justify their title.

Television cameramen and directors were fond of "cutting away" to the cheerleaders to give viewers something to look at while the action on the field was at a halt.

Some of the cheerleaders posed for a poster, which sold well.

Television executives at ABC liked the way the girls looked on the tube, so they made a television movie featuring them. Viewers liked it a lot.

ABC liked the ratings enough to ask the cheerleaders to do a sequel.

Now CBS-TV has entered the picture. Several members of the cheerleading squad leave today for the West Coast to tape a segment of that network's "Celebrity Challenge."

The eight cheerleaders appearing in "Celebrity Challenge" will jog through an obstacle course in a program to be broadcast in November.

"They wanted us to compete in several other events, but we just didn't have the time," said Suzanne Mitchell, the group's leader and director.

Back at ABC, it's possible that the girls will take a voyage on the "Love Boat." Ms. Mitchell says there's a "good chance" that a segment of that show might be taped next month.

If television doesn't tempt you and you're not in the market for a poster, then how about a nice yearbook? The cheerleaders are in the process of putting together 64 pages of color photographs, expected to go on sale in September.

It doesn't end when a girl's career with the official Dallas Cowboy Cheerleaders is over.

A group of ex-cheerleaders known as the Texas Cowgirls is doing pretty well, too, even though their spicier version of a poster was kayoed by Ms. Mitchell and the Cowboys organization.

The Cowgirls have sent a six-member squad to Japan, where they appeared on behalf of Mitsubishi Corp.'s automobiles in a month-long series of appearances.

Other Cowgirls are playing Las Vegas showrooms, and another squad will play the Cheerleaders in the movie "North Dallas Forty," which is being filmed in Houston.

Even as the Cheerleaders are publishing their yearbook, the Cowgirls say they're having a paperback book written about them with an eye toward a movie contract.

The Cowgirls play their first home game Aug. 4, a preseason tilt against the Denver Broncos. The cheerleaders will be there, too.

Coe breaks mile record

OSLO, Norway (AP) — England's wonder boy, Sebastian Coe, set a world record for the mile, winning the Dubai Golden Mile in 3 minutes, 48.95 seconds.

John Walker of New Zealand held the old record of 3:49.4.

It was the second world record established by Coe, in 12 days. On July 5 he also set a world record of 1:42.33 in the 800 meters.

Cowboys release six free agents

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Six free agent rookies were given their walking papers Tuesday by the Dallas Cowboys as veterans underwent physicals and walked through a light workout.

Placed on waivers were running back Delmar Jones of Montana State and linebackers James Gray of Alcorn State, Dan Cernansky of Wayneburg and Will Withers of Utah State.

Defensive lineman Dennis Freeman of Colorado State and defensive back Ray Threlkeld of Carthage were released after failing their physical examinations.

Coaches scheduled two-a-day workouts in full pads to begin Wednesday.

The Cowboys are the preseason opener this year, taking on Denver in the Hall of Fame game July 28 at Canton, Ohio.

BOOM AND BUST has been the story of the history of Fairbanks since the frantic race to the rich gold fields about the city got underway at the end of the 19th Century. Completion of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline didn't quite make the city (pictured above) go bust, but it emphatically ended a boom. (AP Laserphoto)

"The steel ribbon: Valdez and Fairbanks"

EDITOR'S NOTE — The trans-Alaska pipeline has provided additional gasoline for the lower 48 states and a new life for communities in Alaska. In this two-part series — "The Steel Ribbon: Valdez and Fairbanks" — Associated Press writers examine what the 800-mile steel ribbon has meant for two communities: Valdez and Fairbanks.

VALDEZ, Alaska (AP) — Like some poor relative come suddenly into an inheritance, the little town of Valdez grew wealthy almost overnight when the trans-Alaska oil pipeline was completed.

Across the azure waters of a bay which reflects the snow-mantled Chugach Mountains lies the end of the $7.7 billion, 800-mile pipeline through which 1.2 million barrels of oil a day moves south from Prudhoe Bay, on the state's North Slope. At this ice-free port, the crude is loaded into tankers for the ride to southern refineries.

Having the pipeline has been akin to paving the streets with gold.

The 4 percent sales tax has been eliminated. Property taxes are only 5.9 mills. There's no personal property tax, and the skyline is alive with new construction paid for by oil dollars — a billion-dollar petrochemical plant and the buildings of a new $48 million port.

There are rumblings, though, that the city's wealth is not sifting down to its 4,500 residents.

"The city can surely pay its bills.

The town's rich, but the people aren't," says councilman Robert Keller.

Valdez had its beginnings as a tent and cabin jumping-off point for thousands of prospectors stampeding north to the copper of the Wrangell Mountains and to the gold of the Klondike.

In 1907, Valdez and Cordova, 50 miles to the southeast, vied for the attentions of two competing railroad builders, who were looking for a terminus for a railroad to the copper mines. Valdez lost.

A 364-mile wagon trail to Fairbanks kept the town alive, and it evolved into a major port for supplies shipped into the interior.

In 1964, nature stepped in. The great Alaska earthquake hit on Good Friday. Sea waves and blazing oil from ruptured bayside tanks wiped out the docks and a good chunk of the town.

With the help of government dollars, a new townsite was carved out four miles away on more stable ground, but Valdez never regained its status as the port for the interior. It wasn't until construction of the oil pipeline began that the town started to boom again.

The construction era brought soaring prices and a housing shortage. And the influx left townsmen grumbling about newcomers whose attitude was, as one resident put it: "I can't wait to make my $100,000 and get the hell out of this rathole."

ECONOMY

Recession may be worse than Carter has predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The coming recession probably will be worse than the Carter administration has predicted, with sharply higher unemployment, says Chairman G. William Miller of the Federal Reserve Board.

Miller told the Senate Banking Committee Tuesday that unemployment could hit 7 percent this year and 8.25 percent in 1980, compared with the administration's worst forecast of 6.6 percent unemployment this year and 6.9 percent in 1980.

The difference between an unemployment rate of 6.9 percent and 8.25 percent is about 1.4 million jobs.

Miller said the Federal Reserve Board has forecast an overall decline in economic activity of between 0.5 percent and 2 percent this year and a range of activity of between a 0.5 percent decline and a 2 percent growth in 1980.

The administration outlook was for a 0.5 percent decline this year and a 2 percent increase in 1980.

Inflation also will be worse, the board's forecast said. "We see a moderate recession running through this year and into next year," Miller told the committee.

He said the recession probably started in the second quarter of this year and will continue through the first quarter of 1980.

While he said the recession should not be nearly so bad as the steep 1974-1975 economic downturn when unemployment hit a post-war peak of 9 percent, he added that nobody can be certain what will happen to the economy.

"The economic outlook currently is obscured by exceptional uncertainties, and the range of possible outcomes appears quite wide," he said.

But indicating he feels the administration's outlook is too optimistic, Miller said it "does seem to envision a somewhat more favorable combination of real output and inflation" than the Federal Reserve Board feels is likely. Miller said the board's outlook was a consensus of the seven members, the first time there has been a consensus forecast.

Miller indicated the administration and Congress may want to consider reducing taxes, especially for business through accelerating the investment depreciation allowance. But he also said he would favor a reduction in Social Security taxes.

"We must ensure that our system of taxation does not discourage the saving and capital investment necessary to reverse the deterioration of productivity performance observed in recent years," he said.

Carter also has indicated he would favor a reduction in Social Security taxes as his first preference if the economy needed a boost from a tax cut.

Gold tops $300 an ounce

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold topped $300 an ounce for the first time in history today amid uncertainty in the world's financial markets that President Carter will be able to implement his energy policies. The dollar dropped.

Gold, an investor's traditional hedge in times of monetary uncertainty, opened on the London market at $302.25 an ounce. This was an advance of $3.875 from Tuesday's closing rate in London of $298.375, the previous record price.

A month ago an ounce of gold was selling for around $280, and at the start of the year it was $225.20. The metal leaped the $200 hurdle for the first time July 28, 1978.

The dollar declined in New York late Tuesday on uncertainty over the news that Cabinet members of the Carter administration had offered their resignations to allow the president to pick a new team to cope with such pressing problems as the U.S. energy shortage. The U.S. currency continued its slide on the Tokyo market, but dealers said news of an impending U.S. Cabinet reshuffle had no significant impact on Tokyo trading.

"I guess operators here don't know how to interpret the news and are withholding evaluation at the moment," one Tokyo trader said.

The dollar finished the day in Tokyo at 215.775 Japanese yen, down from 216.80 yen at Tuesday's close.

The dollar was also weaker as trading began on European foreign exchanges, which start their business day about the time Tokyo's ends.

In London the pound was quoted in morning trading at $2.2887 dollars, up from $2.2705 late Tuesday and at its highest level since June 1975.

NATIONAL

GAY, Ga. (AP) — Inspired by President Carter's energy speech, the City Council of this tiny west Georgia city has voted to invest half its savings in energy bonds.

In his address to the nation Sunday, Carter proposed the formation of an Energy Security Corporation that would issue up to $5 billion in energy bonds to develop alternatives to petroleum fuel.

The City Council voted unanimously Monday night to buy $10,000 worth of bonds as soon as they are ready to be sold, provided they yield interest. That's half the $20,000 the city of 200 has saved over the past 30 years.

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. has recalled 1.8 million cars and light trucks from the 1978 model year to replace front outer wheel bearings that might fail and cause a vehicle to run out of control.

The car lines included in the Tuesday recall were Chevrolet Monte Carlo and Malibu, Pontiac LeMans and Grand Prix, Oldsmobile Cutlass, Buick Century and Regal, Chevrolet El Camino and GMC Caballero.
