Drying out after Claudette South Texas faces big rebuilding effort

By The Associated Press

The sky was clear and the drinking water was declared safe, but for residents of Alvin, like those of other flood-battered Texas towns, good weather marked just the beginning of a long rebuilding effort.

"The water will subside but a lot of people have absolutely nothing to go home to," said Alvin Police Chief Mike Jez. He estimated the homes of 80 percent of the residents of the town of 18,000 were damaged.

Tropical storm Claudette caused an estimated $750 million damage to southeast Texas. Weekend rains also caused an estimated $25 million damage in Indiana, where there is a chance of flooding through Friday.

Officials in Alvin on Sunday declared the water supply safe for the first time since rain swelled water treatment plants past capacity last Thursday. A 10 p.m. curfew also was lifted and roads in the area were opened to the public on a limited basis. Six Texas counties have been declared disaster areas by President Carter and the first 2,000 flood insurance claims assigned to adjusters were paid Sunday.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements was flying over the 10-county area around Houston today to survey the 7,900 homes that sustained major damage and 4,400 others that received minor damage after heavy rains began falling Thursday.

"I've lived in Dickinson almost 28 years and I went through Hurricane Carla," said Galveston County Civil Defense Coordinator Bill Brady. "I've worked every hurricane that has hit here in the past 28 years. And I've never seen water like this."

"I figure 85 percent of the homes and businesses in north Galveston County were affected by this."

In Indiana, rain fell Sunday for the fourth day in some of the areas hardest hit. The National Weather Service issued flood warnings through Friday for the White River from Spencer downstream to Hazelton, where the river is expected to crest 6 feet to 8 feet above flood stage.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service has estimated damage to Indiana farms at more than $25 million. The flooding, which also began Thursday, swept through small towns and began falling Thursday.

The flooding was blamed for seven deaths in Texas and one in Indiana.

Indiana Gov. Otis Bowen has declared a state of emergency and was to gather information today to ask Carter for federal aid.

Bill McAda of the Federal Emergency Management Agency in Texas said Sunday six offices would be set up in the areas hardest-hit by the flooding to aid victims with temporary housing and assistance grants.

Raid nets $3,500 worth of drugs

A Pampa man remained in county jail this morning in lieu of $15,000 bond set after he was arrested Saturday and charged with possession of a prohibited firearm and large amounts of drugs.

Lynn Harlon Holtman, 26, of 1130 N. Christine was taken into custody after police raided his residence at about 12:30 a.m. Saturday. Inside the home officers found approximately 28 bags of marijuana in various sizes, a sawed-off .22 caliber rifle less than 26 inches in length, quantities of hashish and amphetamines, and drug-related paraphernalia.

Holtman's wife, Donna, 25, was also arrested Saturday morning at the home, but was released on her own recognizance to care for the couple's children. Donna Holtman was taken into custody this morning and released after posting $10,000 bond.

Bond for Holtman was set by Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford at $10,000 for the drug charges and $5,000 for the firearms charge.

The drug and firearms offenses are both felonies. The sawed-off rifle is also a violation of federal law. Police have filed a federal charge against Holtman with District Attorney Harold Comer, according to Lt. Roy Denman of the department.

The arrests followed two months of police investigation and surveillance of Holtman. Denman said the department received several complaints that Holtman was allegedly dealing marijuana.

Det. Lynn Brown, who headed the investigation, obtained a search warrant Friday with the help of Comer. Five officers served the warrant early Saturday to Holtman, who did not resist arrest, Denman said.

The drugs and paraphernalia were found scattered throughout the house, Denman said. Brown estimated the total street value of the drugs at about $3,500.

MORE THAN A POUND OF MARIJUANA and a sawed-off .22 caliber rifle were among the contraband seized by Pampa police early Saturday after an investigation conducted by

Det. Lynn Brown (above), Lynn Holtman and his wife, Donna Holtman, both of 1130 N. Christine, were arrested when police raided their home. (Staff photo by Gary Clark)

Skellytown man arrested

A Skellytown man was charged during the weekend by Pampa police with possession of over four ounces of marijuana, a felony crime. Gary James Campbell, 36, of Skellytown was stopped Saturday night at the intersection of Alcock and Rider streets and arrested for driving while intoxicated. A search of Campbell's vehicle yielded the marijuana. Campbell was placed in the city jail. Bond was set at $1,500 for the possession charge and $500 for the drunken driving charge.

Retail Committee to meet

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce Retail Trade Committee will hold a meeting for all retailers at 10 a.m. Thursday in the chamber office conference room.

Police Chief J.J. Ryzman will present several ideas for conducting a seminar on shoplifting, bad checks and other areas of interest to businessmen. Committee members will help set up the seminar by deciding what to cover. Retailers are urged to attend the meeting.

Police seek killer

HOUSTON (AP) — Police were searching today for a man they believe shot and killed three adults and wounded a child while searching for his estranged wife.

Police quoted witnesses as saying the man being sought had been searching for a woman who had been hiding from him for several weeks.

THIS SMALL DOG was found wandering near the high school over the weekend. It apparently had crossed paths with someone who had a twisted sense of humor, because the dog had been dumped in road tar. Five hours of work removed most of the tar that covered almost three-fourths of his body. If you've lost a dog that resembles this animal or if you would like to give it a home, call 669-2525 and ask for Rick. (Staff photo by Rick Oncken)

Mexican murdered in Canadian

CANADIAN — A 38-year-old man died early Sunday morning 30 minutes after being stabbed in the back during a fight at a dance.

Ramiro Mier, 38, a Mexican national living in Canadian, was identified as the victim.

A felony warrant charging murder against Evelia Escobar, 28, also of Canadian, was issued late last night.

District Attorney's Investigator Kervin Roper said this morning that Escobar had not been seen since the alleged incident about 12:30 Sunday morning. Escobar was believed to have been heading for Mexico but his mode of transportation was unknown, Roper said.

The fight reportedly stemmed from an argument at a wedding earlier in the evening. The stabbing occurred in a parking lot outside the City Hall, according to a spokesperson for the Hemphill County Sheriff's office.

The wedding reception dance was being held in the city auditorium inside Canadian City Hall, which had been rented for the occasion, Roper said.

District Attorney Harold Comer said the investigation was being hampered by the language barrier.

"A witness said he saw the two men fighting and saw the suspect stab the man in the back," Comer said. "The suspect then threw down the knife and ran away."

Escobar was described as a Mexican national, 6 foot, 160 pounds, with a slim build and fair complexion.

He had been living in Canadian for about two months, working in oil field construction, Roper said.

Services for Mier are pending with Stickley-Hill Funeral Directors, though Mier's body will be taken to Mexico for final services, officials said.

Oil warnings have been posted since late 1950s

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — President Carter's emergency energy program may surprise some, but a group of Texas officials and industry leaders have warned of a coming energy crunch for almost three decades.

"I wrote President Johnson a letter in 1967 saying that unless we faced up to excessive imports of oil it could drive the nation into bankruptcy," says Jim Langdon, former Texas Railroad Commission member and now an Austin attorney.

Even earlier, in the 1950s, the late former commission member Ernest O. Thompson urged that domestic oil supplies be developed instead of relying on cheap Middle East oil.

Dr. John McKetta of the University of Texas was an early crusader for more domestic production.

The Texas pleadings for a workable national energy policy was taken up by Govs. John Connally and Dolph Briscoe and is carried on today by Gov. Bill Clements.

Members of the Texas Railroad Commission have become a traveling lobby for increased oil production, making numerous trips to Washington to talk with congressmen and appear before committees.

"The general public has been fed such a fantastic amount of misinformation, wishful thinking, misplaced hopes and plain demagoguery, that Americans have yet to really look their energy future in the eye," said D.K. Davis, staff vice president of Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association, in a recent speech.

Langdon told President Johnson in 1967, "Quite frankly our nation may be heading for serious trouble if there is not a change in oil policy... It seems clear to me that unless the downward trend is reversed, this nation can soon find itself in a position in which it can fill neither the gap left by the next Mideast crisis nor even its own growing requirements in an emergency."

Langdon, Davis and the others stress that maybe 98 percent of the nation's potential oil and gas supplies never have been tested.

"Production has been developed on only 50,000 square miles, less than 2 percent, most of that was relatively shallow," Davis said. "The bureaucrats are determined that we should walk away from the potential of the other 98 percent."

Geologists have said for years that only about one-third of discovered oil is recovered without expensive special techniques and huge quantities of new natural gas exist in geological areas deeper than 15,000 feet.

New prices for oil and gas and new techniques make these supplies available, the Texans say.

Another idea Texas leaders are trying to sell right now is the fact the Texas has plenty of natural gas for sale, particularly for industries that want to switch from heating oil and diesel.

Gas is still cheaper and cleaner than coal, which is not available in sufficient quantity.

Encouraged by higher prices in unregulated areas, such as Texas, enough new gas wells were drilled the past two years to ease the gas shortage.

Davis and other spokesmen for TIPRO have been carrying the messages to Eastern distributors from New England to Florida that Texas has natural gas to sell, if the government keeps hands off.

Potential deep gas fields onshore and offshore of Texas and Louisiana contain more natural gas than the 50-year supply believed to be left elsewhere in the country, they say.

"It's calculated to contain up to 105,000 trillion cubic feet of gas," says Davis. "This means that if we used only this one source of energy — no coal, no oil, no nuclear, no solar, no anything — and if we use energy at three times our present consumption, it would still provide all our energy needs in this country for 500 years. We could export gas to Mexico."

Davis admits the estimate is optimistic. "But if we more than doubled U.S. consumption of natural gas to 50 trillion cubic feet a year, then only 10 percent of this possible reserve (in Texas and Louisiana) could still provide the needs of the entire country for 200 years."

Possible Alternative

Available facts clearly indicate that there is now available to the United States adequate nuclear "waste" to produce all the electrical energy needed in the foreseeable future. However, Jimmy Carter has blocked a program to develop a breeder reactor program that would utilize nuclear waste.

Nuclear waste is a very important issue with the people in Pampa and West Texas because the federal government has chosen our area of the country as a nuclear waste dumping ground.

The federal government thinks this is an ideal area because it is so desolate. Only a few Texans live in the area so the risk to human life is greatly reduced. Only you and I have to worry and who are we to the federal government?

Tom Hoy, National Rural Electric Cooperative Association Assistant Director, visited breeder reactor projects in France and reported his findings in the "Rural Electrification" magazine of June 1979 under the title "France Builds - We Debate Breeder." The following selected bits of information are gleaned from Hoy's article:

(1) France has made an all-out commitment to a nuclear power future based on breeder reactors and the United States has steadily retreated from breeder development.

(2) President Carter, motivated by his fear that plutonium produced by breeders will increase the chances of the proliferation of nuclear weapons, has all but stopped American efforts in breeder development at Clinch River, Tennessee.

(3) The U.S. electric power industry, including rural electric cooperatives, are completely united in support of continued construction of the Clinch River breeder reactor.

(4) Without the breeder reactor program the U.S. faces a severe shortage of electric generating capacity by 1990.

(5) The breeder reactor will produce up to 70 times the amount of electric power that can be produced from the same quantity of uranium in a light water reactor.

(6) France has a comprehensive national goal of energy independence by the year 2000 and is busy constructing the world's first commercial breeder reactor scheduled for completion in 1982. If the U.S. Congress can be persuaded to continue and promote the Clinch River project this year, U.S. entry into commercial breeder operation will still be after the year 2000.

These are only a few of the facts as reported by Hoy in his report.

We are all aware that in the foreseeable future our fossil fuels such as oil and gas will be depleted and that nuclear development is necessary if we are to gain our independence from outside energy sources.

Not only do we need the energy that would be generated by these plants men in the free enterprise system advocate but in West Texas and Pampa it would mean we would not have to live in a nuclear waste dumping ground.

Nuclear installations in France are located in heavily populated areas with no damage to the surroundings.

If the President is serious about his commitment to be independent of foreign energy sources then it should be his first commitment to promote the development of the breeder reactor and not force regulation that has the potential to kill the program under development in Tennessee.

The government has often kept the free enterprise system from growing because the bureaucrats realize that a free economy would give the American people everything they need and would cut the power of government control over the people.

Nation's Press

Strong Temptation

Tulsa World

DESPITE the Administration's gyrations to make a voluntary wage and price control program work, it obviously isn't.

And as the election campaign of 1980 nears, the temptation for President Carter to do one of his famous turnabouts and institute mandatory controls, will become stronger.

Politically, the President will have some reason to take action. But we hope he reads a new book published by the Heritage Foundation, "Forty Centuries of Wage and Price Controls: How Not to Fight Inflation."

Written by Robert L. Schuettinger and Eamonn F. Butler, the book examines mandatory governmental controls spanning 4,000 years and 30 countries.

Their finding will be tempting to Carter, the politician. While there have been some cases in which controls have at least apparently curtailed the effects of inflation for a short time, they have always failed in the long run.

The reason, the authors contend, is that controls do not address the real cause of inflation but only two of its results. The basic cause of inflation, they contend is an increase in the supply of money over the increase in productivity.

Those seeking a clue to inflationary times in the U.S. might consider the fact that productivity increases have been steadily declining, while the U.S. Government has consistently "monetarized" deficits in Federal spending.

In other words, our government has been printing money that necessarily becomes less valuable in an attempt to paper over the inflation.

The authors also point to a common occurrence when past Governments tried to monetize debts, only to find the problem multiplied.

"Governments then put the blame on the wickedness and dishonesty of their subjects, rather than upon the ineffectiveness of the official policy. The same tendencies remain today."

Thus we have a President railing away against labor unions who want to obtain increases for their members at least equal to the inflation rate and against businesses who want to increase their prices on the same basis.

If the President opts for short-term political advantage to institute controls, he will be going against 40 centuries of experience. But don't bet that isn't exactly what is coming.

At last count, 229 members of the U.S. House of Representatives and 59 Senators had pledged their support to repeal the controversial carryover basis rule of estate taxation.

Since that's a clear majority of votes needed for passage, why hasn't the issue reached the floor? The reason for the delay is President Carter's threat to veto a repeal bill. A two-thirds vote by both Houses present is required to override a Presidential veto, and the advocates of carryover repeal are still nine Senators and 61 House members short of that magic number.

Time is running out for repeal advocates. Unless repeated by the Congress this year, carryover becomes effective January 1, 1980, and from that point on would impose enormous capital gains tax liability on sales of inherited property. The many Senators and Representatives who seek repeal regard carryover as an "economic time bomb whose detonation could destroy small businesses in the United States along with the investment incentives of millions of farmers and nonindustrial private forest landowners."

Senator Russell Long (D-La.), powerful chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and one of the chief strategists in the carryover repeal campaign, reportedly is looking for an opportunity to attach carryover repeal as a rider to some "veto-proof" tax legislation passed by the House and urgently sought by President Carter. The proposed windfall profits tax would be the vehicle.

If carryover should be abolished in this fashion, it would be "poetic justice," repeal advocates say, because of the controversial nature of its origins. Although twice delayed in implementation by Congress due to objections from millions of small businessmen, farmers and property holders, the rule has actually been on the books since passage of the Federal Tax Reform Bill of 1976.

After the Senate and House had completed action on the main portions of the tax bill enacted that year, carryover was injected as an inconspicuous add-on to the conference report as a concession to Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) and other Congressional liberals who wanted it as a "plug to close the tax loophole of death." Since the collective Congressional energy had been spent on the main legislation, the conference report -- with carryover -- was accepted more or less automatically and tacitly with few eyebrows raised. Thus, carryover became Federal law without hearings and without debate or even serious consideration on either the Senate or House floors. Repeal advocates say "it literally snuck in the back door."

While the ultimate fate of carryover and the repeal effort are, as of this writing, still shrouded in doubt, there is no denying that the prospect of its implementation January 1 has had a profound psychological effect on millions of Americans who are property owners of long standing. More specifically, it has greatly increased their fear of death, and the financial consequences of their dying on their heirs.

As the term implies, the rule carries over the income tax basis from decedents to heirs, which means that sales of inherited assets would become vulnerable to capital gains taxation based on increases in value from the time of acquisition by decedents. Under the old "stepped up" basis, which preceded carryover and is still in effect -- at least until January 1, 1980 -- and heir's income tax liability was limited to appreciation accruing from the time he acquired title to the property.

Since assets of long standing can multiply in value by several times, due to inflation alone, the aggregate and individual tax bills of heirs in general with carryover could obviously be staggering. And, without repeal, the meter starts running with the advent of the New Year.

Consider, for example, the potential plight of the tree farmers -- the 4 and one half million nonindustrial private owners of forestland who hold 60 percent of the nation's commercial forest acreage.

From the time of planting, it takes several decades for a tree crop to reach full maturity and merchantable value. Trees planted today escalate in value dramatically by the year 2000. But, by that time, the current owner may die. His heirs would then be confronted with a financial strait-jacket and a king-size dilemma.

Federal and estate inheritance taxes, which are already considerable today, would have to be paid whether the heir sells the property or not. But if, as customary, the heir sells part of his property to be able to afford the estate taxes, he would immediately be drawn within the income tax reach of carryover. Of course, the heir could avoid the tax overload of carryover if it were possible for him to hold on to all of his inherited assets. But to do that, he would have to refrain from selling his timber as well as his land, which would hardly be a profitable enterprise.

The more likely prospect, says the Southern Forest Products Association, is that the spectre of carryover will discourage tree planting and encourage premature liquidation of developing timber stands by nonindustrial private forest landowners "to save their heirs from financial ruination." Or else, tree farmers will be disposed to sell out to corporations, which unlike private individuals are exempt from carryover. But there's a limit to the amount of land that corporations can or are willing to acquire and the inevitable result would be an overall reduction of the commercial forest base.

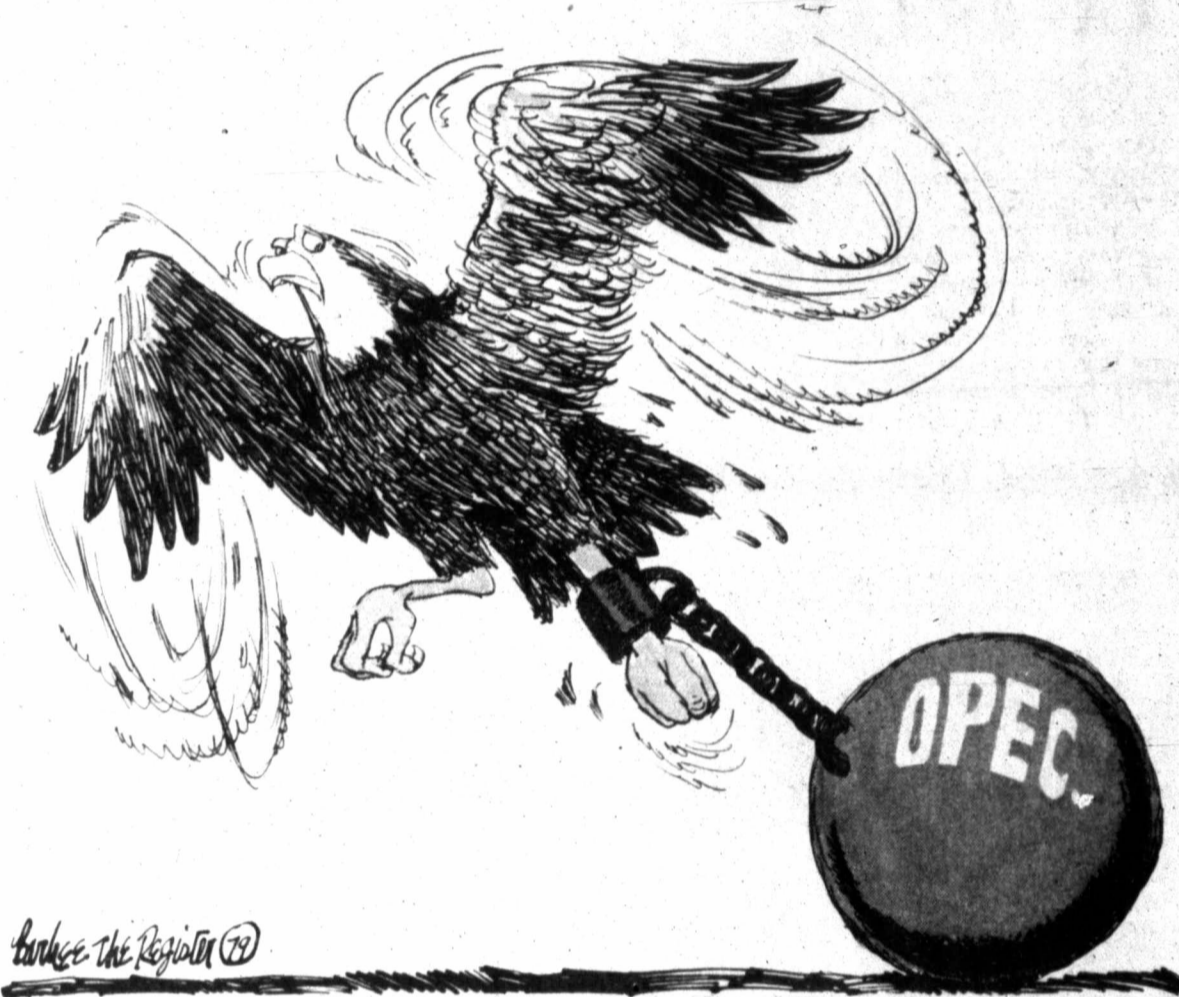

"Not a very pleasant prospect," the Association observes, "when you consider that the South is ultimately expected to become the main source of forest products for the nation as a whole in volume twice as great as present production and when you also realize that 73 percent of the commercial forest acreage in our region belongs to nonindustrial private owners."

The chief supporter of the carryover basis rule -- and the chief opponent of repeal in the Congress -- is Sen. Kennedy, who expresses dismay at a "massive grass roots' campaign" aimed at repeal and displeasure for the traditional American practice of passing down property from one generation to another in which the total value of the estate, when it changes hands, is not excessively eroded by demands of the IRS.

Perhaps to a less fervent degree, President Carter shares Sen. Kennedy's viewpoint, as indicated by his threat to veto a repeal bill. However, the Carter Administration is not unmindful of the growing opposition by millions of small, non-corporate businessmen and property owners nationwide to carryover. The Administration's latest proposal, in an effort to save carryover from repeal, is to increase the exemption of estate from $60,000, as now, to $175,000 beyond the confiscatory tax reach. This, the Administration and Sen. Kennedy claim, would exempt all but the "wealthiest" 2.7 percent of U.S. families.

The rebuttal of repeal advocates to this proposal is that the carryover coverage extends to all assets of an estate including homes and residential real estate as well as commercial land, businesses and farms and to all other personal property such as furniture, stocks, bonds, antiques, family heirlooms and stamp collections.

"Very few small businessmen who are worth their salt would get much relief from increasing the exemption from $60,000 to $175,000," repeal advocates say. "One's home alone could completely eat up the exemption."

Mr. Carter's message

By Anthony Harrigan
President Carter's much-dramatized message on the national situation was more of the same -- more sermonizing and more proposals for expanding the bureaucracy.

The centerpiece of his energy proposals is a so-called Energy Security Corporation -- another federal agency. The country already is burdened with a counterproductive Department of Energy that has bungled the gasoline allocation system and done nothing save add to the number of federal employees in Washington.

One wonders why Mr. Carter imagines that hiring more bureaucrats and putting them in a new federal "corporation" will lead to a solution to America's energy problems. That's the Amtrak approach. The American people know that government is the problem, not the solution to it.

The United States needs new oil, gas, coal and nuclear power. Mr. Carter failed to say a word about nuclear power in his

Sunday night broadcast. His reference to it in Kansas City was very weak. He also failed to pledge removal of environmental restrictions which have limited the increase in coal production in recent years below three percent. Instead, he plugged for a mislabeled "windfall profits" tax on American oil companies, which are best prepared to develop new energy sources. They are to pay for the new energy bureaucracy. Mr. Carter ignores the fact that new oil wells can't be developed without abundant capital derived from profits. The oil companies are the logical leaders in the drive for energy independence.

Mr. Carter's proposal for a "Solar Bank" another handout proposal, is an insult to the intelligence of the American people. It's a political gimmick similar to the Urban Bank which the administration concocted some months ago. Solar energy requires technology of the distant future. It won't be economical before the end of the century, and will never replace current sources of power.

The President's remarks on oil quotas also raise questions. He gave his audience the impression that really tough restrictions would be applied by using the yardstick of 1977 imports. He failed to inform the public that current imports are below the 1977 level.

It's hard to resist the temptation of accusing Mr. Carter of humbug. He called for massive use of coal, but declined to call for a rollback of environmental restrictions. He failed to confront the anti-nuclear lobby which has managed to impose a virtual moratorium on nuclear power plant construction.

Mr. Carter's speech wasn't the speech of a fearless leader. It was carefully crafted to avoid antagonizing the various anti-energy, anti-industrial groups that demonstrate against new nuclear power plants, new fossil-fuel plants, new surface coal mines, etc.

Mr. Carter said that the nation faces "a crisis of confidence." The American people don't question the natural riches or productive capacity of the country. What they question is Mr. Carter's competence.

While at Camp David, Mr. Carter listened to dozens of politicians, economists and ideologists from the liberal establishment -- the people responsible for our current predicament. While trying to sound "bold," he came up with same tired nostrums -- more government, more bureaucracy, and more federal spending.

Regulatory Zeal -

Its gone too far

By Richard M. DeVos and Jay Van Andel

In an advertisement in major metropolitan newspapers last fall, Amway introduced "The Federal Nanny, domestic help we can't afford." The purpose of the advertisement was to equate the regulatory activity of our central government with the activities of an overzealous nursemaid. Most of the people who wrote to comment on the message agreed that Washington has gone too far in regulating the lives of Americans.

Opinion polls conducted during 1978 also showed that a majority of the people recognizes that the price of regulation is paid by the consumer. The cost is staggering -- in 1979 about $2000 for the average U.S. family. That is more than the same family will spend for a summer vacation and a substantial down-payment on a new car.

It will cost $4.8 billion to run the federal regulatory agencies this year. But studies by Dr. Murray Weidenbaum for the Center for the Study of American Business at Washington University in St. Louis show that the budgetary impact of regulatory agencies is not nearly as significant as the "multiplier" cost to private industry to comply with all the regulations. That cost is twenty times as much, which means industry will spend almost $100 billion this year as a result of government regulation.

Unlike the federal government, businesses cannot operate on deficits or create new money to pay the bill. The cost to comply with (or fight) the agencies' regulations is passed on to the consumer in the price of every product made and sold in the U.S. That means the people pay, first in taxes to run the agencies, then in the prices of consumer goods.

There is no question that some regulation is necessary and beneficial. The concern is that regulatory zeal has gone too far. The Federal Nanny wants to run the whole house!

When Amway was founded in 1959, there were about 25 agencies with regulatory responsibility. Now that number is in excess of 50. President Carter and his inflation fighter, Alfred Kahn, say they want to get rid of regulations which are costly, stifle competition, and shackle the free enterprise system. Kahn did an excellent job of deregulating the airline industry when he was Chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board. Congress must move in this direction.

Overlapping regulation must be eliminated. The President and the Congress must determine the cost of each new regulation before it is adopted. A program must be established to review all existing regulations continuously and allow unneeded ones to expire. The creativity of the private sector must be called upon to develop more practical and more economic solutions to problems which are now being solved through rigid, bureaucratic regulation.

(Note: Richard M. DeVos is President and co-founder of Amway Corp., Ada, Michigan. Jay Van Andel is Chairman of the Board of Amway, and also is serving during 1979 as Chairman of the Board of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.)

Second Davis trial to start today in Ft. Worth

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Prosecutors begin what probably will be their last attempt to put millionaire Cullen Davis behind bars today with the opening of jury selection in his second trial on murder-for-hire charges.

Attorneys will try to glean a jury of 12 from 500 prospective panelists called to District Judge Gordon Gray's courtroom. Gray denied a prosecutor's motion for a change of venue last May, but he has said if a jury cannot be found in Davis' hometown, he will not hesitate to move the trial to another Texas city.

The first murder solicitation trial — moved to Houston after a jury could not be seated in Fort Worth — ended in mistrial earlier this year. Observers have speculated that the Tarrant County district attorney's office will not pursue further prosecution if Davis is not convicted at the conclusion of this trial.

The industrialist is accused of trying to hire the murder of District Judge Joe Eidsen, the jurist who was presiding over Davis' drawn-out and stormy divorce from Priscilla Davis. The judge was not hurt and the couple since has been granted a divorce by another judge.

Several bizarre developments have clouded the week preceding jury selection in the already complicated case.

The Dallas Morning News has reported that a witness gave testimony, to a Tarrant County grand jury Friday that supports Davis' alibi in a shooting spree unrelated to the present charges. Davis was the prime suspect in the Aug. 2, 1976 shootings at his $6 million mansion that left two dead and two wounded.

Davis' then-estranged wife, Priscilla, and a family friend, Gus Gavrel, were wounded in that shooting. Priscilla's daughter, Andrea Wilborn, and her lover, Stan Farr, were killed.

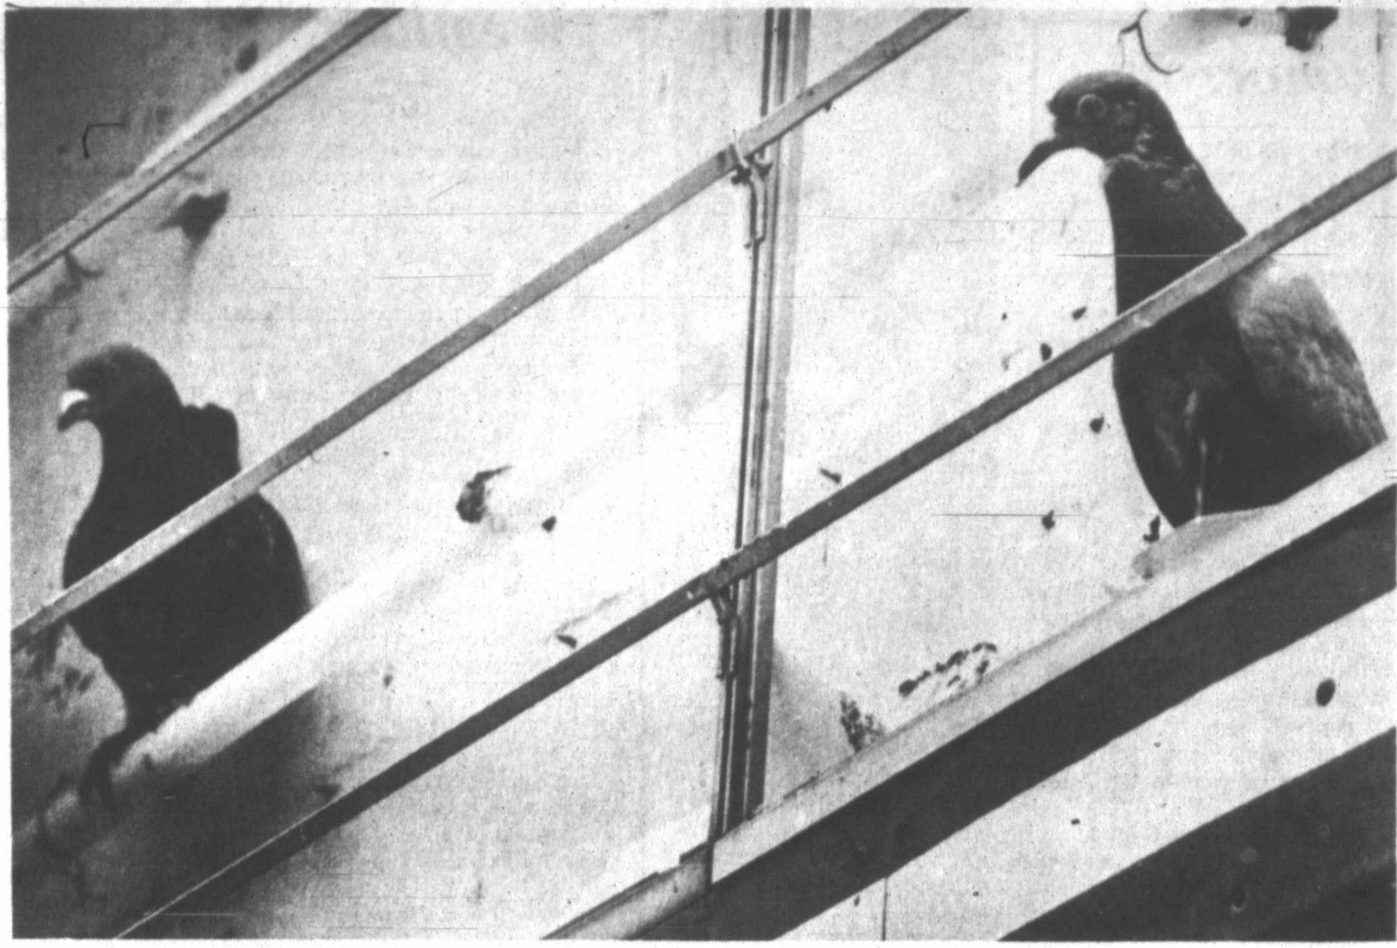

Davis was acquitted of the murder of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea, in 1977 by an Amarillo jury. He has not been brought to trial on any other charges stemming from that midnight attack.

Earlier this month, Davis' alibi was entered into court documents for the first time in a deposition taken for a civil damage suit filed by Gavrel. He said in the deposition he went to a movie and a restaurant alone the night of the shootings.

There has been no explanation as to why the grand jury witness waited until the week before Davis' second murder solicitation trial to come forward.

Also last week, prosecutors charged that the wealthy Fort Worth man had bought off two witnesses who testified in his behalf in Houston.

State's attorneys said Davis' divorce papers indicated he gave $4,000 and $5,000 "loans" to two defense witnesses. Although Davis' attorneys have denied any wrongdoing on the part of their client, prosecutors claim the loans probably will "never have to be paid back."

Rain day no washout

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (AP) — Anyone who doubts that Wayneburg has a pipeline to the clouds every July 29 is all wet, say local pundits.

Sprinkles fell at 12:26 a.m. Sunday and again after sunrise, making the 104th Annual Rain Day Festival a success, as usual.

"I think this will convince any skeptics that are left around," said rain prophet John Daily. "There's no doubt about this one. It's been a great day."

Folks in this southwestern Pennsylvania town were wagering it would rain as it has every July 29 for 90 of the previous 103 years.

"All that Wayneburg needs on July 29 is a couple showers and a bar of soap to keep its record clean," said Albert Sayers, great nephew of the Allison brothers, who started keeping records of the town's peculiar weather pattern more than a century ago.

Connally advocates substantial tax cut

HOUSTON (AP) — John Connally says there is an immediate need for a $25 to $35 billion tax cut to benefit those escalating into higher tax brackets only because of inflation.

"We should have learned a long time ago we can't spend ourselves out of a recession," Connally said Sunday.

"What we are going to have to do is have a tax cut, a substantial tax cut."

Appearing on the ABC "Issues and Answers" program, the former Texas governor, who is seeking the Republican presidential nomination, also said President Carter's "political theatrics" in making recent cabinet changes have placed him in real political trouble.

Connally said Carter's actions have enhanced his earlier belief the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination will go to Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts.

He would not say, however, Carter has destroyed himself politically.

"I wouldn't characterize it that way but he certainly hasn't helped himself," Connally said. "If anything, I think in a few weeks he'll find he's lower in the polls than ever. I think the net effect of what he has done is he engaged in political theatrics."

He said Carter obviously is trying to do his best to overcome some very serious problems.

"He is so eager, he made a televised speech to the nation about energy and he is so eager to re-establish his credibility he comes right along within a week and has this huge political upheaval of musical chairs and directs the entire attention of the nation away from energy back onto political matters," Connally said.

He added that when such Democrats as Sens. George McGovern of South Dakota and Henry Jackson of Washington say the situation is hopeless "you realize the president is in real trouble."

Connally said a meaningful tax cut would have to fall between $25 and $35 billion.

"The tax cut ought to come to benefit the working people of this country who make less or in the range of $35,000 a year and less, who have been escalating into higher tax brackets just because of the rate of inflation," he said.

"They are the people who are hurt the most. They are the ones who should get the relief."

Connally said it will take three to five years "to get us back out of this inflationary trend" but said a tax cut of such size is possible without increasing deficit spending.

"I rely on the president's estimate in the budget message he sent to Congress earlier this year," Connally said.

He said if you take the next four fiscal years we will generate over and above the present level of spending about $250 billion in new revenues.

Connally said a lot of the $250 billion would result from inflation.

"But, nevertheless, we are going to have that much new revenue," he said. "I think we can cut spending. I think we can cut taxes and still not create a greater deficit."

Chili cookoff set Saturday at Reese Air Base

West Texas chili cooks will have a chance on Saturday, August 4, 1979 to prove their chili-know-how and possibly earn points towards qualifying for the World Championship Chili Cookoff at Arriba Terlingua, Texas. The occasion will be an open chili cookoff at Reese Air Force Base, Texas during the base's two day Open House, August 4th and 5th. The day's activity begins at 10 a.m. and will end at 6 p.m. Judging will last from 4 to 6 p.m.

The cookoff will be conducted in accordance with official chili cookoff rules using the Frank X. Tolbert Super and Secret Judging System.

Entrants in the Reese cookoff will be awarded points toward qualification for the Arriba Terlingua Championship on the basis of three points for first place, two points for second, and one for third. It takes six points accumulated at Chili Appreciation Society International (CASI) sanctioned cookoffs to earn a spot at Terlingua.

All chili must be cooked from scratch on site the day of the cookoff. Regular commercial chili powder is permissible, but complete commercial chili mixes are not permitted. As the cookoff will be held on a paved area, there will be no open fires. Entrants are asked to bring their own burners, Coleman stoves, or barbecue pits. Chili will be judged by taking all criteria, such as aroma, color, taste and consistency into consideration.

In addition to the chili judging for CASI points there will be awards for chili showmanship. Showmanship will be judged on theme, costume, booth setup, action, and audience participation. The judging will be continuous throughout the cookoff by anonymous persons. Winners will accumulate points towards the chili showmanship division of the World Championship Chili Cookoff. The top military winner will advance to the Air Force-wide Chili Cookoff at Goodfellow AFB in San Angelo, Texas. The winners of that contest will go on to Terlingua. Other events during the cookoff will include a hot chili pepper eating contest and a moseying contest.

Cookoff and showmanship winners will receive trophies. To enter the cookoff write Lt. Tony Nunez, Box 8727, Reese AFB, Texas 79489, or call Lt. Nunez at 885-4551. Ext. 504 or 885-3847. There will be a $15 entry fee.

For more information on the Reese AFB Open House, please contact Bill Tynan at (806) 885-3410 or 3236.

Big Bend country displayed in photographic essay

A photographic exhibit of Big Bend Country: "The Last Frontier of Texas" is on display at the Carson County Square House Museum until Aug. 31. The Big Bend region of Texas and Mexico was one of the last unexplored regions of the Southwest.

This exhibit includes the beautiful contemporary color photography of Bank Langmore of Dallas and an interesting black and white collection of the history of the region from the W.D. Smithers collection, compiled from many sources.

Langmore spent six years endeavoring to capture the beauty and mood of the Big Bend landscape and its people. He became fascinated by the unique culture that exists on both sides of the Rio Grande River, as well as what he observed as the last real cattle frontier in Texas.

His photography is unique in that it focuses on aspects of the Big Bend not often treated. He concentrates on the people, their way of life and the immensity of open spaces and timeless features of the landscape.

Langmore's portrayal of the Big Bend evokes a way of life existing much as it did 75 years ago. The small, river border towns appear as portraits of the Old West.

The exhibit is sponsored by the Governor's Office of the Southwest Border Regional Commission of the Arts and Humanities and Texas Association of Museums. It is on loan from the Aron Carter Museum, Ft. Worth, one of the largest museums in the state of Texas. From here it will go on display at El Paso, Chamizal National Park.

Weather

Texas

By The Associated Press
 Sparks of lightning and the rumbling of thunder disturbed Panhandle skies before dawn today, and gusty winds blew across the Plains as thundershowers threatened parts of West Texas. However, there was scant rainfall. Dalhart, El Paso and Lubbock reported very light amounts of rain from the unstable weather, while other West Texas reporting stations were generally dry. Widely scattered thundershowers also threatened parts of North and South Texas during the day, and East Texas again had morning fog. The spotty clouds foretold another uncomfortably warm, humid day for most of the state. As the sun rose, several cities still were reporting readings above 80 degrees. Temperatures were expected to remain warm during the day, with readings largely in the 90s, and some late afternoon temperatures expected to reach above 100 along the Rio Grande.

National

Strong storms rolled through the northern plains this morning where winds gusted to 60 miles an hour and reports of heavy rainfall were common with several communities in Nebraska reporting large hail. Scattered thundershowers were predicted today for the mid and upper Mississippi Valley through the lower Ohio Valley and into the upper Great Lakes region. A flash flood watch continued over northern Missouri today. A severe thunderstorm watch was posted over eastern Nebraska, northeastern Kansas, western Iowa and northwestern Missouri.

THURSDAY'S FORECAST calls for showers over most of the nation, including the Southwest, Gulf Coast, Ohio Valley, Great Lakes and the Northeast. (AP Laserphoto)

Texas forecast

West Texas — Clear to partly cloudy in the southeast, with scattered evening thundershowers elsewhere. Highs in the 90s except near 100 in the Big Bend and in the 80s through the mountains. Lows in the upper 50s.

Extended

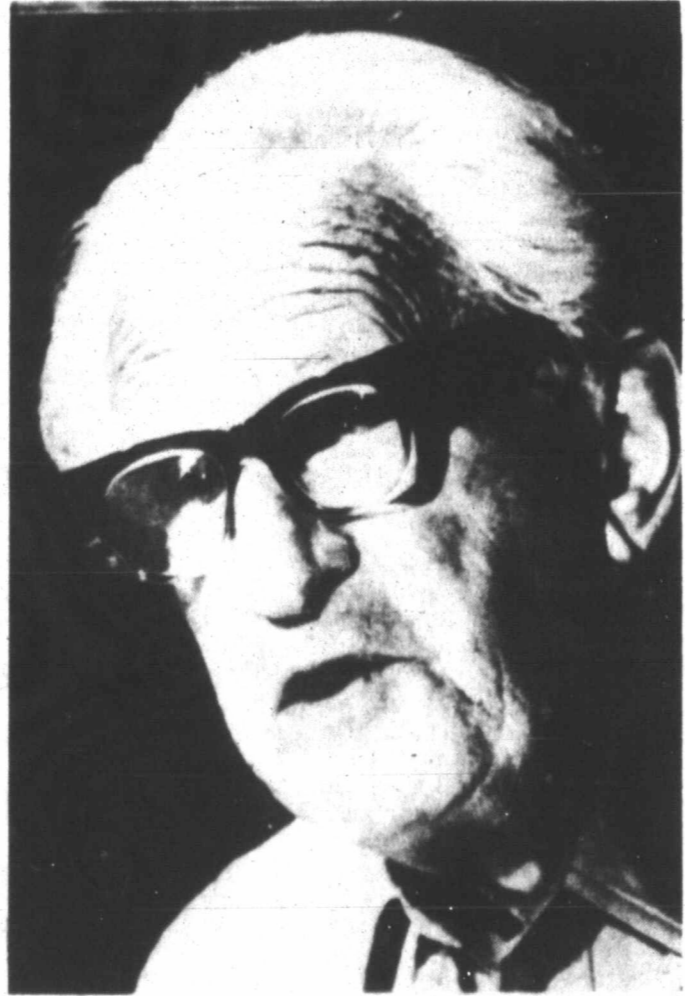

Wednesday through Friday
 West Texas: Partly cloudy days and mostly fair nights with no important temperature changes. Widely scattered afternoon and nighttime thundershowers mainly northern portions Wednesday.

Prisoner hangs himself; Others probably looked on

NEW YORK (AP) — It was just after 3 p.m. when the suspect hanged himself in a cell where 11 others were detained. The other inmates say they were asleep, but a corrections official says they may have felt "it's none of my business." One inmate later admitted he watched as 29-year-old Michael Dabidi pulled off his belt and hanged himself from the bars in a detention cell at Manhattan Criminal Court, authorities say. A homicide detective said the death occurred within 10 feet of a manned desk and no outcry was heard. "This guy was no little baby," the unidentified detective told the New York Times, discounting the possibility of foul play. Asked why no one interceded, he said, "they mind their own business when they're in the cells." When a guard went to the cell Saturday afternoon, he found Dabidi hanging by his belt and 11 inmates looking on, police said. "It's unusual for somebody not to yell out for help in a situation like that," said Correction Department spokeswoman Susan Gilbert. She quoted an inmate as saying, "I didn't want to get involved. It wasn't any of my business." Dabidi, whose record included dozens of previous arrests, allegedly took $10 from a bar patron Saturday morning, police said, and was charged with possession of stolen property. He was being held without bail pending transfer to another jail for mental observation, authorities said. Dabidi did not have a "suicidal record," but Criminal Court Judge Louis Neco decided to send him to the city jail at Rikers Island for mental observation because he "refused to answer any questions during his hearing" on Saturday, Ms. Gilbert said. Dabidi had been placed in the detention cell with other inmates so he would not be alone, she said. "That obviously didn't work," she added.

The collision took place in the 1400 block of North Hobart. An 11-year-old boy in the Hamilton vehicle received minor injuries in the accident.

Reflections

By Nancy Ellis

From our vantage point along the highway, grapevines march in precision form, row after row, mile after mile — a true feast for the eyes.

Misted mountains and valleys create a backdrop for this vacation scene which seems from another world. The order here is clearly manmade, yet it is quiet and peaceful.

Grapes from these vineyards are transformed into wine which then is aged in enormous wooden barrels inside the local wineries. Each barrel holds a slightly different amount, and each — some nearly a century old — is a hand-crafted work of art.

During Prohibition, many barrels which were left empty dried out and rotted away. But the survivors all are full now and smell deliciously of wet oak and wine.

In the tasting room at one large winery, we sample selections with great deliberation, finally settling on four varieties.

We're lucky, we are told, as several of our choices happen to be the last of particularly good, though small, bottlings.

The next day on our flight home, we tuck the cardboard wine tote carefully into a baggage slot in the back of the plane, knowing that in months to come, each bottle will be a tasty reminder of our pleasant sojourn.

Finally our flight — and our vacation — comes to an end, as we deplane with coats, camera, purse, briefcase and other assorted items that wouldn't fit into the suitcases.

We claim our luggage, drag it to a taxi, and head home. There, already feeling the effects of jet-lag, we tumble gratefully into bed.

Dawn, and the children are still sleeping as we savor a first cup of coffee. Suddenly my husband buries his head in his hands, obviously in pain:

"The wine!" he groans. "We left it on the plane!"

They laugh at me when I call the airline's "lost and found" to see if anyone has turned in the four bottles.

DEAR ABBY

Mate's sex affliction misunderstood

By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: I was married for 35 years to a man who had an overly healthy appetite for sex. Then he died. At 55 I married a man who told me he recently had mumps. Since I never cared for sex, I was thrilled.

Now I find out that he is plenty healthy. In other words, mumps didn't affect him the way it was supposed to!

I would like to leave this man, but since he didn't know that I married him thinking he was sexually disabled from mumps, do I have grounds for divorce? Please advise me.

DISAPPOINTED
DEAR DISAPPOINTED: The man didn't intentionally deceive you — you jumped to an erroneous conclusion concerning what mumps is "supposed to do" to an adult male. It leaves some (not all) men sterile — not impotent. An impotent man cannot perform sexually. A sterile man can, but he, can't father a child. Level with your husband, then consult a lawyer about grounds if you want a sex-free life.

DEAR ABBY: A bride asked if it would be permissible to write on her wedding invitations, "No perfumes or colognes, please, as the mother of the groom is asthmatic and highly allergic."

You replied a curt "No." I disagree. Highly scented products (perfumes, colognes, hair sprays, etc.) can be just as hazardous to the health of some as cigarettes, cigars and pipes are to others. If a person's health is affected, he has the right to ask for consideration from others.

It is no longer considered rude to post "no smoking" signs, or to ask someone outright to refrain from smoking if the smoke creates a medical problem. Should those who are allergic to fragrance be entitled to less?

As an ex-smoker, I know it is far more difficult to refrain from smoking (to accommodate others) than it would be to refrain from using perfumes. In short, madame, you goofed. PHILADELPHIA

DEAR PHIL: You're right. I did. My nose was buried in my etiquette book and my brains were out to lunch when I answered that one.

A better answer would have been: It is considered poor form to write anything on a formal wedding invitation, but a short note (on a separate sheet of paper) could be enclosed requesting that guests refrain from using perfumes, colognes, etc. since some members of the wedding party would be medically affected.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me if I am wrong for feeling put out when I drop in on people for a little conversation and company and they turn the television on right in my face.

If I wanted to look at television, I could have stayed home and watched my own. Wouldn't you think people would have better manners? What is the matter with some folks, anyhow?

PUT OUT
DEAR PUT: The "matter with some folks" is that they don't view situations the same as other folks. It is also possible that unexpected "conversation and company" may not be as fascinating to a surprised host as the television program he may have planned to watch.

In other words, be considerate. Call first.

The People's Pharmacy

by Joe Graedon

Menstrual cramps can be a terrible trial for millions of women. The discomforts of cramping, headache, backache, nausea and vomiting lead to over 140 million hours of lost work time each year. Adding insult to injury, many doctors have labeled the symptoms psychosomatic.

Until recently, there was no really satisfactory treatment for the pain of dysmenorrhea; the drugs available over-the-counter were usually ineffective and the medications prescribed by physicians were often excessive, ranging from birth control pills to narcotics. Now, however, there is good news for the 30 to 50 percent of women who suffer. Recent breakthroughs in our understanding of the disorder have led to effective drug treatment and dramatic relief.

For a long time the causes of distressing menstrual cramps were unclear. Many doctors suggested that psychological factors were primarily responsible. This attitude led women to believe that they weren't supposed to feel bad, which in turn often made them feel guilty and made matters worse.

Well, the good news is that the symptoms are not "all in your head". New research seems to establish quite clearly that women who suffer persistent menstrual cramping are more likely to have high levels of substances called prostaglandins which appear to trigger uterine contraction and most of the other complaints as well.

Prostaglandins are hormone-like chemicals that affect a wide variety of life processes from nerve impulse transmission to reproduction. There is evidence that they can initiate labor during pregnancy by causing the uterus to start contracting. Investigators now believe that much the same thing occurs during menstruation for women who have naturally high levels of these chemicals.

Our new knowledge of what may contribute to the underlying cause of dysmenorrhea has offered researchers a way to test their hypothesis and relieve the symptoms of menstrual cramps simultaneously.

Over the last few years a whole group of new drugs has been developed which are very effective at shutting off the body's manufacturer of prostaglandins. They are called non-steroidal anti-inflammatory agents and are used primarily to treat arthritis. Some of the most popular prescription products include Motrin (ibuprofen), Naprosyn (naproxen), Ponstel (mefenamic acid), and Indocin (indomethacin).

The results of the research with these drugs have been very promising. Experiments were carried out in such a way as to eliminate psychological influence. Double blind tests were used so that neither the doctors nor the women receiving the medications knew if they were getting a real drug or a placebo (sugar pill).

The researchers discovered that placebos didn't provide much benefit, which confirms what we have been saying all along — menstrual cramps are for real. Secondly, the investigators were unanimous in concluding that the drugs work. By preventing the action of prostaglandins, these drugs appeared to provide good and often complete relief. Not only was there calming of the cramps and reduction of the pain, an added bonus was less weakness, dizziness, nausea and leg cramps.

Another advantage of the new treatment program is that women do not have to take the drugs continuously, as they did with birth control pills. They can start the medicine at the same time the menstrual cramps occur and they can usually stop after one or two days.

Side effects have been relatively rare, but arthritis medications do have a reputation for causing stomach irritation, light-headedness and nausea. For this reason, anyone with a history of ulcers or gastritis should probably avoid the new treatment.

Although the FDA has not yet approved these drugs for the treatment of menstrual cramps, the results of the research is so promising that the go-ahead should come soon. Since the drugs are already available for arthritis, women in the U.S. should be able to look forward to relief in the near future.

Transfusion enters bloodstream

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB: I wish to discuss blood transfusions — the effects and how soon one recovers completely. How long does it take for the blood to get to the outer surfaces of the body? I had a hysterectomy and 14 days later I hemorrhaged and underwent three more operations for repair. I was in the hospital 23 days and had 10 blood transfusions. I am 58 years old and have always had a good health record.

I'm wondering how much of the recovery time was related to getting the circulation back or my muscle tone. A relative said the blood recirculates every 24 hours, but what about to the outer areas of the body?

My gynecologist did notice how my coloring was coming back. It took quite a while for the pink to come back into my cheeks. I've always had a ruddy complexion.

DEAR READER: An average adult has about seven quarts of blood in the body. The heart at rest will pump about five quarts a minute so your blood is constantly on the move. A vigorous athlete may pump over 30 quarts a minute even though all the blood in his body may only be about seven quarts.

When you have a transfusion, the blood immediately enters into your circulating bloodstream. If you require a transfusion, you usually have a lot of other things wrong with you. I'm sure that was true in your case. You needed a transfusion to replace the blood that you had lost.

This coming year you may be subjected to some changing conditions not of your own choosing. Don't be discouraged should this happen. The ultimate effect will be beneficial to you.

LEO (July 3-Aug. 22) You may be the first one out of the starting blocks today, but you might not be a good stretch runner. Don't begin things and leave them half finished. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Seeing only the negative side of situations today will prove self-defeating. Be optimistic and look for positive alternatives as well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't spend on the basis of what you anticipate you'll have soon. Commit yourself only to the limits of your bank account.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Being too self-serving or selfish today where personal ambitions are concerned will displease associates. It could even cause them to work against you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be helpful and compassionate toward others today, but also be wise as to what you do for them. Put limits on your generosity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Before taking business gambles today, carefully consider what might happen if they fail. Impulsiveness could lead you to do something you could regret.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Important decisions should not be made for the sake of expediency today. Carefully weigh and evaluate every aspect before you make a move.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Coworkers may be a trifle difficult to get along with today, so give them the kid-glove treatment. Do nothing that could create ill will.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be very careful today how you handle things for others. Mismanagement of another's affairs could cause you frustrating complications.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Normally, you're very practical and realistic in striking bargains. Today, however, you might agree to do something that will not be to your ultimate advantage.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make it a point to take your duties and responsibilities seriously today, instead of trying to postpone things. Rationalizing isn't the answer.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is one of those days when your extravagant whims could get the better of you. You could buy something costly you may not truly need.

Richard continues dominance of LA

By the Associated Press
Houston pitcher James Rodney Richard, imposing at 6-foot-8, stood at home plate — where he is anything but imposing. He carried a helmet, a bat, and a .105 batting average with which to terrorize Los Angeles pitcher Terry Forster.
Richard is up to .121 now, thanks to the ninth-inning single he hit Sunday night. Later, he scored on Cesar Cedeno's triple and the Astros had a 4-3 triumph over the Dodgers.
After the victory returned his team's lead to 3½ games over the Cincinnati Reds in the National League's West Division, Houston Manager Bill Virdon admitted he had thought of sending a pinch-hitter up in Richard's place. The game was tied, it was the ninth inning, and, well, there was that batting average to think about.
"Sure, that always crosses your mind in that situation," said Virdon, "but we decided if he was all right we would go with him. And fortunately, he was the hitter we needed."
For nine innings, Richard was the pitcher the Astros needed. He scattered five Los Angeles hits and struck out eight Dodgers to raise his major league-leading total to 182. When it was over, he had recorded his ninth straight victory over Los Angeles since 1976.
"I don't get up for the Dodgers any more than any other team," said Richard. "I just try to prepare and relax in every game I pitch."
"It was a joy. I had no thoughts in my head. It was the thrill of victory," said Richard, now 9-11. For Los Angeles it was the second defeat in a row after six consecutive victories.
Reds 9, Braves 4
Third baseman Ray Knight drove in five runs with two doubles and a homer, pacing Cincinnati's rout of Atlanta.
Knight even managed to find something positive in the loss of George Foster, who has been disabled by a pulled leg muscle.
"I'll be glad when he gets back," said Knight, who admitted that in some respects, we've probably played better with him out. When he's not in the lineup, we know we've got to do some things we don't have to do when he's in it."
Expos 5, Pirates 3
Montreal, knocked out of first place for the first time in 45 days Saturday night, held a team meeting before Sunday's game and promptly returned to the top spot.
Andre Dawson drove in three runs with a bases-loaded triple and Rusty Staub cracked a pair of RBI singles as the Expos salvaged the finale of its four-game series with Pittsburgh.
Cardinals 6, Phillies 5
The visiting Cardinals scored four runs in the fifth, complete their three-game sweep of Philadelphia, and passed the Phillies by a fraction of a point in moving into fourth in the East.
St. Louis' percentage is .5154639, while Philadelphia's is .5148514.
"At the beginning of the season, we got off to a great start. And on our last home stand we played the way I thought this team could," said Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark. "In between, we've been a rocky boat and it looks like half the time we're going to sink."

Giants 4, Padres 2
Jack Clark hit a two-run homer and Joe Strain contributed a run-scoring single, carrying San Francisco past San Diego.
Mets 4, Cubs 0
Lee Mazzilli and Richie Hebner drove in two runs apiece, lifting New York over Chicago. Kevin Kobel and Ed Glynn combined to hold the Cubs to two hits before further play was cancelled by rain in the seventh inning.
The second game of the scheduled twinbill will be made up Sept. 18 as part of a doubleheader.
Angels 9, Twins 3
For Rod Carew, it wasn't anything personal. For Dan Ford, it was. Both California Angel players made life miserable Sunday for their former team, the Minnesota Twins.
Carew had four hits, for the 40th time in his career and the second time this year against the Twins. Ford belted a two-run homer among three hits to help the Angels beat Minnesota.
"I don't get up over any ballclub," said Carew, the seven-time American League batting champion who is playing for the Angels this season after a long career with the Twins. "I just do my job."
Carew left Minnesota with a sweet Angels contract and no hard feelings, but there was considerable bitterness in Ford's case. He was extremely unhappy in Minnesota and just wanted out of town.
Orioles 6, Royals 4
Gary Roenicke hit two homers as Baltimore beat Kansas City for its 10th victory in 12 games. Left-hander Scott McGregor won his sixth game in the last seven decisions although he needed relief help in the seventh from Dave Ford, who gained his first save.
Brewers 5, Yankees 3
Sixto Lezcano hit a two-run single and Paul Molitor scored twice, leading Milwaukee over New York for a sweep of their fight-marred three-game series.
Bill Travers and Bob McClure combined to scatter nine hits for the Brewers, who lost third baseman Jim Gantner by ejection because of a seventh-inning scrap with the Yankees' Lou Piniella. The trend of battling started in Milwaukee's 6-5 victory Friday night.

Tigers 5, Blue Jays 4
Lance Parrish hit two solo homers and Steve Kemp added another bases-empty blast to power Detroit over Toronto. Rookie Pat Underwood scattered 11 hits, including a solo homer by Rico Carty. Underwood was relieved in the eighth by Aurelio Lopez, who won his eighth save.
"Parrish is going to be one of the great players in the game," said Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson.
Indians 9, White Sox 6
Rick Manning's grand slam homer following a two-run shot by Gary Alexander capped a seven-run second inning, leading Cleveland over Chicago. Rick Wise was the winner with sixth-inning relief from Paul Reuschel. The triumph was the seventh straight for the Indians, all since Dave Garcia took over the managerial reins from Jeff Torborg.
A's 2, Mariners 1
Rookie Mike Morgan pitched a three-hitter for his first major league victory and Oakland scored a pair of unearned runs in the first inning to beat Seattle. Morgan, 1-6, didn't allow a hit after the fourth inning to post his victory after nine major league losses.
Red Sox 3, Rangers 2
Carl Yastrzemski's RBI groundout in the sixth inning scored the winning run in Boston's victory over Texas. Mike Torrez earned his 11th victory against six losses although he was cuffed for 11 hits by the Rangers. Torrez staggered 7 1/3 innings before reliever Dick Drago came on to earn his sixth save. Yastrzemski knocked in his 64th run of the year with his ground ball.

Angry AAU head denies 'payoff' story

MOSCOW (AP) — Ollah Cassel, executive director of the Amateur Athletic Union, responded angrily to reports over the weekend that several U.S. track and field athletes skipped the Spartacade Games here and the National Sports Festival because they were not paid.
"I'm sure there was no payoff for Spartacade, and I'm sure there never was supposed to be one," Cassel said Sunday. "And I know there was none for the Sports Festival."
On Sunday, Wilma Rudolph, the first woman to win three Olympic gold medals, told The Associated Press that several athletes had expected "under the table" payments to join the two track meets. Other sources, who asked to remain anonymous, confirmed her story.
"I can't sit here and tell you that the athletes don't get money

Gold Sox fall to Tulsa

By the Associated Press
The two Texas League division leaders clashed again, last night, and the East prevailed over the West by two runs. East leader Shreveport overcame a five-run lead with a six-run outburst in sixth inning and beat the Midland Cubs 8-6.
Kyle Hyper, 1-1, got the win in relief while Jon Perlman, 2-6, took the loss for Midland, which still maintains a one-game lead in the Western Division.
The Tulsa Drillers took a 6-5 win over the Amarillo Gold Sox in Tulsa Sunday night. Amarillo had taken an early 4-0 lead, but Tulsa tied the game in the eighth on a homer by Dane Ibsen, and scored the winner later in the inning on a suicide squeeze.
In other Texas League action, San Antonio split a double header with Jackson, winning the first game 3-1, dropping the second 6-2.
In the first game, every San Antonio starter but one had a hit to go with a five hitter by Rick Sanders, 2-1.
But in the second, Jackson took advantage of wildness by Dodger starter Doug Harrison, 7-6, to score three runs in the fourth and fifth innings to retaliate.
An American athlete at Colorado Springs talked to the AP only if his name was withheld.

American thinclads claim 7 Spartacade victories

MOSCOW (AP) — Don Coleman and Stan Vinson look like good bets for next year's U.S. Olympic track team after anchoring three relay teams to victory between them at the Soviet Spartacade.

"But don't be too sure," said Vinson, of Chicago, who brought the 4x400 meter squad home to victory.

"It's going to be tough getting selected for the Olympics. You never know what will happen in our country. There are 30 to 34 runners in the United States who could have a good day and make the team."

Coleman, 27-year-old runner from Eugene, Ore., was the hero as the United States brought its final gold medal total in track and field events to seven.

He came from behind twice — first in the 4x100-meter relay and then in the 4x200 meters, a non-Olympic event. Each time he overhauled powerful Soviet runners in the Central Lenin Stadium on the track to be used for the Olympics next July.

"It was the first time I had ever run 4x200," Coleman said. "It was fun. I liked it."

Coleman was four yards behind Valery Vladimirov of the Russian Republic as he set off on the last leg. He finished five yards ahead.

In the 4x100 he came from a yard behind Valery Schiapnikov of the Moscow squad.

The U.S. team — Cliff Wiley, Rich Edwards, Wardell Gilbreath and Coleman — was clocked at 39.33 seconds in the 4x100. Coleman said they would have made 38 seconds except for a bad baton pass after the second leg.

Ron Harris, Gilbreath, long jumper Carl Lewis and Coleman ran the 4x200 in 1:22. Wiley, Harris, Fred Taylor and Vinson won the 4x400 in 3:03.70. It was the second gold medal for Vinson, who won the 400 meters Friday.

Two Americans won silver medals. Craig Masbach of White Plains, N.Y., was a close second to Vladimir Ponomarev of the Soviet Union in the 1,500 meters. The Russian clocked

3:38.6 and Masbach, 3:38.9. Benn Fields of Salisbury Mills, N.Y., matched Alexander Grigorev of the Soviet Union in the high jump with a leap of 7 feet, 4 1/4 inches, but the Russian had fewer misses to win the gold medal.

The eight-day track and field program ended with one of the closest finishes ever seen in the marathon. After pouncing through the streets of Moscow, six men entered the stadium shoulder to shoulder.

The first three were officially given the same time, 2 hours, 13 minutes, 20 seconds. Leonid Mosev of the Soviet Union, the reigning European champion, was awarded first, followed by Shigeru Sou of Japan and Viktor Zubov of the Shigeru Sou.

Kenny Moore of Eugene, Ore., finished in 2:36:57.87 and was far back in the field.

The Spartacade is the Soviet Union's sports festival, with athletes from the 15 republics of the U.S.S.R. competing. Foreign athletes were invited for the first time to give them a taste of 1980 Olympic conditions.

Far to the north in Lithuania, the U.S. men's basketball team suffered its second defeat in three games. Ukraine defeated the Americans 85-76.

Latvia downed the U.S. women's team 100-87 despite another fine performance by Denise Curtis, a 6-foot-1 center from Davis, Calif., who scored 36 points, bringing her total to 101 in three games.

The U.S. volleyball team won its first game, defeating Ukraine 3-1.

In judo, Deway Mitchell of Seven Springs, Fla., won a decision against Viktor Slavny of the Soviet Union in the 95-kilogram class.

Andre McCoy of New Bedford, Mass., moved into the semifinals of the light-heavyweight boxing division by stopping Yuri Mudry of the Soviet Union. The referee stopped the contest in the second minute of the third round.

Today's Big News Is In Classified

Surveys show that people find newspaper advertising just as "newsworthy" as the regular news section. This would be particularly true of the Classified pages, long known as the great people-to-people communicator.

Want Ads abound in news about what people have to sell, what some would like to buy, what's available in housing and transportation, who's announcing a special message, where to find a certain pet, or what's available in repair services.

If you have items to sell, that's good news to hundreds of bargain hunters. And it's so easy. Just give us a call, and we'll put your items in the "Articles For Sale" column. At a very low cost.

Yes, there's good news today and every day in the Want Ads. Why not make some news yourself?

WATCH OUT FOR RABIES
Public awareness of rabies prevention is important due to the large increase of confirmed cases in Texas this year. Rabies cases doubled during the January - March period of this year compared to the same period a year ago.

Rabies, one of the oldest and most feared diseases, is a natural disease of dogs, cats, bats and wild carnivores.

All warm-blooded animals are susceptible since the disease is transmitted by a bite which introduces the virus-bearing saliva. The virus may be present one to three days before the onset of clinical signs. Since there are no "typical" cases, animals exhibit a wide range of symptoms. Therefore, any unexplained central nervous disorder should be regarded as possibly being rabies.

Clinical rabies in man and in most animals is essentially 100 percent fatal. There is not specific therapy once the disease's course has begun.

Take proper precautions when encountering an animal suspected of being rabid. An apparently healthy animal that is not a stray that bites a person should be confined and observed by a veterinarian for ten days. Immediately kill a stray that bites. Since the brain is needed for diagnosis, don't kill the animal by injuring its head.

Immediately clean all bites and scratches thoroughly with soap and water since this is the most effective rabies preventive. Then contact your doctor for further treatment.

Protect all pets through a rabies vaccination program. Livestock should also be protected in areas where rabies is prevalent in wildlife.

Promptly pick up and humanely dispose of all stray animals. Also warn children to stay away from strays or other wild animals.

Rabies have been positively identified from a skunk in the McLean area this year. Area residents should be alert for suspicious acting animals.

PROTECT GARDENS FROM ANIMAL PESTS.
Insects are not the only pests that threaten home gardens. Birds may peck ripening fruit or young seedlings. Moles or gophers may burrow through the garden destroying plant roots. Ground squirrels, mice and rabbits may destroy plants. Deer may be a problem in some areas.

Birds are one of the most common pests besides insects. They cannot be fenced out because they can fly in from the top. You wouldn't mind sharing with them if they would eat one or two peaches, but instead they tend to peck every peach on the tree.

One of the best bird controls is bird netting. This is a plastic netting that can be used to cover fruit trees, berry crops, vineyards or other crops.

Keep fruit trees small by pruning, so the tree will be small enough to cover with a bird net. If your fruit tree is too large, you'll have to find other methods. Try keeping a bird feeder full of grain during ripening time.

For small gardens, use one-inch by four-inch lumber to make a frame. Cover this with screen wire or hardware cloth then place it on the ground and over the young plants to be protected.

What about mice, rabbits, and deer? Recent University of Maryland research shows that hot sauce made from chili peppers may be used to repel these pests from plants. Mix one tablespoon of either Tabasco sauce or Louisiana Hot Sauce with one gallon of water for a spray. To make the spray stick to the bark of trees all winter add two tablespoons per gallon of an anti-desiccant such as "wilt-pruf". Apply the spray when temperatures are above 40 degrees F.

When using the hot sauce spray on plant leaves during the summer, add one tablespoon per gallon of anti-desiccant, but spray rapidly growing plants every 10 to 14 days. Tests show that deer check the plants frequently and will discover the new growth is free of repellent.

The best deer-proof fence is the angle fence. Instead of woven-wire fence five feet tall, placed vertically the same fence placed at a 45-degree angle facing outward. This angle fence is a psychological barrier to deer. They can jump it, but don't know they can. So they don't try.

The pocket gopher is a burrowing rodent that lives entirely underground. A single gopher may have a system of tunnels that extends up to 800 feet and cover an area the size of a football field. The tunnels are four to eight inches deep and circular mounds are found on the surface.

Poison baits and trapping are the best way to control gophers. For small areas, traps are best. At least two traps are needed. To set traps, dig down to find the tunnel. It will go two directions. Set a trap in each end and secure the trap with a small chain and stake to retrieve it.

To fence rabbits and other small animals out of a garden get one-inch poultry netting 18 inches tall. Nail the top 12 inches on the outside of the posts with a bottom apron bending outward to lay on the soil surface. Cover the edge of the wire apron with a two-inch layer of soil.

Rabbits will sometimes try to tunnel under the fence by first digging down at the edge of the upright part. By this method, they will be standing on the wire apron as they try to dig and will be stopped by the layer of wire netting.

LAWN GRUB CONTROL.
Homeowners who suspect grub damage to their lawns need to check for the presence of white grubs that may be feeding on the roots of the grass. Homeowners need to treat between July 15th and August 15th. Timing of application is important for good control.

Farmers selling to consumers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers in six selected states sold nearly $260 million worth of nursery stock, vegetables, fruit and other commodities directly to consumers last year, the Agriculture Department said today.

The figures were the first collected by the department to help determine the extent of direct farmer-to-consumer sales through road-side stands and other means.

Congress directed USDA in the Direct Marketing Act of 1976 to conduct annual nationwide surveys, but officials said "limited funds kept the first study to six states."

The states, ranked by total sales directly to consumers, included: Michigan, $75.9 million; Pennsylvania, $68.6 million; Ohio, $34.7 million; Indiana, $32.8 million; New Jersey, $27.7 million; and North Carolina, $20 million.

"These states were selected because of the availability of sampling lists and the importance of direct marketing to their agricultural economies," the report said.

Although the $260 million worth of products sold directly to consumers last year is highly important to the farmers involved, the total is small compared to overall marketings of farm products.

For example, USDA records show that cash receipts from sales of crops and livestock products in the six states in 1978 totaled about $14.1 billion. Thus, the $260 million realized from direct sales to consumers made up only about 1.8 percent of the total.

According to recent USDA tabulations, overall cash receipts from crops and livestock in the six states last year included: Michigan, $2.03 billion; Pennsylvania, $2.17 billion; Ohio, $3.07 billion; Indiana, $3.45 billion; New Jersey, $3.65 billion; and North Carolina, $3.08 billion.

The six-state report showed that the direct sales of trees, shrubs, bedding plants and other nursery and floral products accounted for nearly one-third of the $260 million worth of business done directly with consumers.

In New Jersey, for example, those items accounted for 64 percent of the products sold directly by producers.

Purge reported underway in Iraq

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A sweeping purge is reported under way in Iraq, with five leading members of the government arrested for plotting to overthrow President Saddam Hussein. Unconfirmed press reports said 250 persons had been jailed and 34 of them were executed.

The official Iraqi News Agency said the plotters were inspired by a "foreign quarter," and their goal was to end Iraq's opposition to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty. A Kuwait newspaper said Egypt was the foreign power. But some diplomats in Beirut speculated the plotters' aim was to reverse Hussein's movement toward the West and renew close ties with the Soviet Union.

Hussein, long the strong man of the ruling Baath Socialist Party, replaced ailing Hassan el-Bakr two weeks ago as president of the country and head of the ruling Revolutionary Command Council.

Under his leadership, the government was already cracking down on the Communist Party and drawing away from the Russians. It recently concluded trade pacts with Britain, West Germany and Japan and an arms deal with France, pledged to merge with Syria after years of bitter feuding and has grown closer to the conservative rulers of Saudi Arabia.

The announcement by the Iraqi News Agency said the conspiracy was headed by five members of the Revolutionary Command Council. It said they were arrested and would be tried by a six-man tribunal.

The Beirut newspaper An Nahar said the five were Deputy
