United Fund drive underway

By TINA MCCLOY
Of The Pampa News

The Rev. Dr. William Slider, guest speaker at last night's United Fund - Chamber of Commerce kickoff dinner, said he's tired of being told that American people are materialistic and do not care.

"I feel like we are concerned, and the United Fund is the grassroots to do something about it," said Slider to almost 350 people gathered in the M. K. Brown Heritage Room.

Slider, who interspersed his serious comments with a Will Rogers-like wit and chuckle, cited Fidel Castro as one of several reasons he works with United Fund in his hometown of Louisville, Ky.

"In his country, and a great many others like it, there is no United Fund," he explained. "The state takes care of those needs and the people don't have a spirit of sharing."

"That spirit of mutual concern and sharing — what Slider call the frontier spirit of America — has kept America alive, he says.

"You call on your own people in your community to take care of problems," he said. "decide what needs to be done and take care of it."

Noting an abundance of professionalism in the world today, Slider emphasized, "It isn't the pro who gets the job done. Pros don't always do the job without the volunteers and the spirit of volunteers."

"All the talking that's done doesn't add a cent to all you're going to raise. You're going to do it. Your attitude will help immensely."

United Fund is good business, he stressed, explaining that federal, state and municipal governments can't provide the same services for the same costs.

"The federal government, if they undertook the same sort of program, would cost $3 for every dollar actually used in the program," said Slider, quoting from information compiled by Oren Pritchard of Life Underwriters.

"At the state level it would cost $1 for every dollar that got into actual service, and a municipal government would have to use 27 cents of each dollar in service."

"The United Fund, to get the dollar where you intended it to go, would cost only nine cents for every dollar raised."

Slider, pastor of Christ United Methodist Church in Louisville, said he works in United Fund because he wants to keep Louisville advancing and growing in the right ways.

"You have no apologies to make for your community," he said of Pampa. "But as it grows you want to make sure it doesn't take second place in matters of humanity, matters of solidarity."

"I'm concerned about United Fund. I think it's the best way to do the job, and I may use the services myself someday," added Slider.

In his ministry at Christ United Methodist Church, he said he uses at least five of the services. He's concerned because he realizes they are a help to him and he wants to share in those things.

"I like to think I make my own way and I don't need anybody's help," he said. "but when you stop to think, you've done very little to make you what you are."

He noted that he did nothing to assure that he was born in a favored country and favored century, with the economic system, education and healthy society it has.

Another reason he gives his efforts to the United Way is because of the kind of man he wants to be.

"The value of a man lies in the useful service he is willing to perform," he said.

"Sociologists estimate less than two percent of all persons who have ever lived have done anything to push the world forward," said Slider.

"These actions in which you are taking part with United Way help lift the social, economic and moral tones of the community," he added.

"History reveals nations are built upon ideals, not on power," he explained. "The nations with the highest ideals survive — that's where the battle is fought."

"The ultimate victory is tied to the value placed on human lives, not artillery or weapons. If we lose those ideals at this (the community) level, we cannot expect to have them in Washington or other places of power."

Saying he really could not remove himself from his religious background, Slider added, "The measure of man in this world and the next is the way he responded to other men."

The thing that counts at last is something called heart — and Pampa already has a golden heart."

Groups recognized for support of fund

Several dozen groups were recognized for percentage increases in contributions during last night's United Way - Chamber of Commerce banquet which kicked off of the 1979 fund-raising effort.

The local business, industry and school groups received Fair Share, Leadership and Achievement awards for their efforts in last year's United Fund drive.

Vic Raymond, who presented the awards, also was honored at the banquet.

Presented by Rick Oncken, president of Pampa United Fund board, the award recognized Raymond for his efforts as last year's general campaign chairman.

Dick Stowers, general campaign chairman of this year's United Fund drive, introduced representatives of the 13 member agencies which will receive the funds collected during the '79 campaign.

Goal for this year's drive is $182,537.

Stowers also recognized the chairmen of the major, special, employee and general gifts divisions of the fund drive, and stressed that the first check-in will be Oct. 11 at 4 p.m. at the First National Bank.

County employees get 10 percent pay increase

By MELANIE MILLER
Of The Pampa News

A ten percent salary increase for all county employees and a four cent increase in gasoline allowance were the main items approved Monday by Gray County Commissioners Court.

These two items are in the 1980 budget which has yet to be formally voted on. However, County Judge Carl Kennedy said they were the only things left to be "nailed down" as far as guidelines are concerned in the proposed budget.

After much discussion and debate, commissioners approved the salary increase for county employees. A motion on accepting the increase, which was finally approved, was amended several times because of a question of allowing the county sheriff to use "his own discretion on implementing the increase."

The last pay raise was approved a year ago and inflation was the primary reason salaries were raised, Kennedy said.

After almost an hour of discussion, commissioners also approved an increase in gasoline allowance from 18 cents per mile to 22 cents per mile. The money will be used only for official county drivers, who are primarily law enforcement officials, Kennedy said.

"We didn't really solve the problem," the judge explained. "But we couldn't come up with any workable method."

Commissioners were split on allowing 22 cents per mile for the sheriff's office and leaving the allowance at 18 cents for all other county drivers.

"By leaving it at 18 cents, we can say to the constables that we're concerned with the mileage you've been turning in," Kennedy said during the meeting. "We have some reservations about how much driving they're doing."

It was first suggested to amend the budget to say 3,000 miles would be the maximum the county would authorize for gas mileage. But commissioners were split on the vote and the 22 cents per mile was finally approved. Kennedy said the county would encourage county employees to watch their mileage more closely.

In other commission business, the court agreed to write a letter to the Soil Conservation Service at the County Annex informing them of a possible rent increase for space in the building. Kennedy said their rent has stayed the same since 1971 and rent for the agriculture office there increased last year.

Also, commissioners agreed to the disposition of certain county records ruined by a sewer leak in the basement of the Courthouse.

Others that can be saved will be cleaned up. Approval for a pipeline to cross a county road three miles south and west of Pampa was granted to Phillips Petroleum Company.

Two items were deferred, including bids on a used Farmall Tractor for Precinct 3. Also deferred were applications to the Texas Aeronautics Commission from the Perry-Lefors Airport. At the next court meeting, engineers involved in airport improvements are expected to have cost information for the commissioners before final approval is granted.

Airport board members agreed to prepare a plan for improvements they want for that meeting, Kennedy said. He added that the airport is seeking approval for use of county road machines in implementing any such improvements.

Other business included approval of payment of a $1,047 charge of an indigent patient at Highland General Hospital.

Adventurers abandon trip in balloon

SPENCERVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Severe thunderstorms and swirling snow forced four adventurers to abandon their transcontinental balloon journey and descend to earth while being buffeted by thunder and lightning, the balloon's command post says.

"It wasn't a case of anything being wrong," Randy Birch, an NBC-TV cameraman and crew member, said early today. "It was a case of the weather having closed in around us."

There was "lightning at all sides and snow coming down," said Rudolph Engelmann of Boulder, Colo. "It just didn't look good. There were a lot of mixed reactions about what ought to be done. Common sense prevailed."

The four crew members were taken to St. Rita's Medical Center in nearby Lima where Vera Simons, the only woman aboard, was treated for a broken leg. She was listed in fair condition. The three other members, including Fred Hyde of Prairie Village, Kan., were not injured, authorities said.

The crew descended early today near this western Ohio city inside the 100-foot high balloon's gondola.

The balloon, named the DaVinci Trans-America, lifted off Wednesday from Tillamook, Ore., in hopes of reaching the East Coast after the first transcontinental balloon flight.

"Everyone is fine. One of the people here spoke with one of the crew members," said Lesley Edwards of Weather Service Corp., the command post in Bedford, Mass.

"He (the crew member) walked to a farmhouse to call us (at 1:04 a.m. EDT) — about an hour after the crew decided to land. "He was mostly just trying to say 'Hey, get in touch with our families and tell them we're all right.'"

Earlier, the DaVinci's flight command post in Bedford, Mass., said it was believed the balloon had gone down northwest of Spencerville, near Van Wert.

Birch said they had been having weather problems all day. Federal Aviation Administration officials in Ohio and Indiana said a fast moving cold front was overtaking the balloon as it crossed into Ohio with thunderheads as high as 40,000 feet.

The crew, hoping to reach the East Coast somewhere in Virginia, had dipped lower to the ground to try to escape the front.

The DaVinci was at about 16,000 feet, with snow falling, said Birch. "And the weight of snow started bringing the whole thing down. We started ballasting and took ourselves back up and realized the fact that we had nothing to get ourselves back down again other than emptying the helium out of the balloon."

"We got within 1,000 feet (of the ground) and the thunder and lightning became very heavy," he said. "It was obvious we had to set down."

Birch said the landing "was quite smooth in comparison to what it could have been."

Teachers, officials locked in negotiations

Negotiators for the Lansing, Mich., school board and the city's striking teachers were locked in a courthouse today after a judge ordered them to stay together and keep talking.

Ingham County Circuit Court Judge James Giddings issued the order Monday, saying the negotiators must remain in the courthouse for two days, or until they reached agreement on a contract.

"I don't know if they brought food for two days, but they did bring their sleeping bags," Brian Bevez, an aide to the judge, said Monday night.

The strike by Lansing's 1,500 public school teachers is one of 32 by teachers in eight states, affecting about 330,000 students.

Giddings refused to hear a contempt motion filed by parents whose children are among 30,650 idled by the Lansing walkout. The parents last week obtained a back-to-work order, but it has been ignored.

Lansing students are among 85,000 in seven Michigan school districts affected by teacher strikes.

In Flint, the state's second-largest struck district, weekend bargaining ordered by Genesee County Circuit Judge Harry McAra failed to achieve a settlement, said Harry Boyes, spokesman for the Michigan Education Association. The two sides were to meet again today.

Meanwhile, teachers in the Morris, N.J., School District are returning to work today, ending an 11-day strike. The 440 teachers overwhelmingly ratified a contract providing 8 percent pay raises in the first year, and 7.2 percent in the second year, said James Ward, teachers association president.

Assistant Supt. Don Snyder said the school board would withdraw all pending civil contempt charges.

The 107 teachers of the Sussex Vocational-Technical High School in Sparta, N.J., will be fired if they don't return to the classroom by 9 a.m. Wednesday, said principal William Massa. Superior Court Judge Reginald Stanton ruled last week that teachers not in the classroom Wednesday morning would be fired and could not be rehired. Massa said area newspapers have been notified of 107 possible openings.

In Ohio, strikes continue in the Ohio Valley Local, Meigs Local and Lorain school districts. About 1,100 teachers are off the job, affecting 22,800 students.

In Louisiana, the lawyer for the Jefferson Parish school board says most striking teachers ignored an administration ultimatum to be back at work by 4 p.m. Monday. Attorney Jack Grant said the board probably would meet tonight to consider disciplinary action. The strike is in its sixth week, making it the longest in the nation this year.

Strikes also continued in California, Illinois, Indiana and Pennsylvania.

Paperwork requires millions of man-hours

Keeping Big Brother informed and his pockets full of coin of the realm has become a wearisome and heavy burden on the American people.

One hears the politicians in office and the bureaucrats that sit on the same nest with them say they're working on cutting the paperwork to a minimum. But they're not making a dent in it, nor are they doing anything about it except to make it bigger.

One government official, the Wall Street Journal reported, said he estimated people spend 786 million man-hours a year filling out federal forms.

He said that tax reporting takes the most time, 577 million man-hours, and providing information for government regulations and administrators demands 105 million more man-hours.

The average small businessman in Odessa, or in any other West Texas community, feels the heavy burden of mandated federal paperwork quite often, probably mostly during the end of the month and the end of the quarterly and annual periods of his fiscal year.

More times than not, the small businessman must do most of his paperwork himself, not being able to employ the additional help that would be required. So he not only runs his business but is overburdened by having to spend extra hours keeping Big Brother informed and paying him off, too.

Little Brother can't get away with not filling in those forms, for Big Brother will write him a letter and then if the filled-in paper isn't handed in, Big Brother will send his hatchmen to help Little Brother find his pencil and his purse.

The big businessman has the same problem, but it is bigger, and chances are he can hire someone to do his paperwork.

But even if one multiplies all those man-hours spent on doing paperwork for Big Brother by the federally mandated minimum wage, one is talking about a terrific amount of "lost" money. One wonders what would happen if all business firms, large and small, and all individuals who are called on by the government to fill in forms, should send the federal government a bill for services rendered. The same applies for collecting sales taxes, and all the bookwork required in withholding income taxes and social security taxes.

Why, nothing would happen. The bills would be ignored, unless they were accompanied by a threatening note, such as warning the government its delinquent account would be turned over to the Credit Bureau or the Better Business Bureau. Then, of course, the business firm or individual would be visited by the G-Men, the T-Men, the FBI-Men, the head bureaucrat, and maybe even by JC himself.

Well, this is rather to the extreme, but it is put down here to get the reader steamed up and to thinking about all that hard work Americans are putting in, writing it down on paper (including the checks), just to keep Big Brother off their necks.

One lucky hunter

The Goldsboro News-Argus reported the other day on a sportsman in that neck of the woods who came across some incredibly good luck on the opening day of dove season.

The limit of doves in this state is 12. A good round number.

The hunter was having a good day firing down and watching the doves fall. He was keeping count and, luckily so, for the 12th dove and a game warden came across the field at the same time.

"How many have you taken?" asked the game warden, a visitor from another county.

"Well," drawled the down easterner, "that makes 12 if my count is right."

"Better let me count 'em," suggested the warden.

The hunter tossed them out of his game bag one at a time. As he tossed one out, the dove — which had only been grazed by a shot — suddenly leaped from the bag and flew away.

Not counting the dove that flew off, the hunter had an even dozen.

"That dove that flew away," the warden announced, "just saved you from getting a ticket."

One cannot escape some domination

By Butler D. Shaffer

A major contributing factor to the conflict, misery and disorder existing among people in the world has been our willingness to allow institutions to dominate our lives, to control and direct almost every facet of human activity, including our relationships with other people. We live our lives in unquestioning subservience to the demands of institutions, allowing them to pre-empt our own decision-making in favor of their self-serving priorities. We have been willing to doubt and deny ourselves, but unwilling to doubt or deny institutional purposes or authority.

The case for institutions, however, can no longer simply be assumed. The consequences, to human beings, of an institutionalized, hierarchically-structured world have been disastrous. The costs go far beyond those narrow, quantifiable monetary costs which so engage the interests of institutional leaders, and encompass a wide range of conditions which can best be generalized as a diminution in the quality of human life. From the more obvious examples of the destructive wars and the oppression of the political state to the less apparent (though equally identifiable) de-humanizing influences of educational, religious and business institutions, we humans have put together very efficient machinery for organizing conflict and discontent. We have, however, gone about as far as we dare on the blind faith and unquestioning obedience we have for institutional authority.

As soon as we have drawn our first breath of life, we begin getting pulled into the institutional scheme of things. We receive a birth certificate, a document of no useful purpose to us, but necessary to inform institutions of the presence of a new conscript. The birth certificate, for example, locks us into the system of compulsory schooling, and is a requirement for registering to vote, getting a marriage or driver's license or a passport, or other institutional "services." The birth certificate is also a prerequisite for getting registered with the Social Security system which, as anyone who has ever worked for someone else has discovered, is a requirement for getting a job. The prospective employer will also insist on seeing our school records.

The record we have with our employer (including our Social Security number) pulls us into the tax system. In order to gratify the taxing authorities, banks, investment houses, insurance companies, and other firms, demand the identity of our Social Security number.

Our birth certificate, Social Security number, and school records, also lock us into the military draft system. The military fingerprints us, and this information, along with our driver's license and other data, also ties us into the police system. Registering to vote brings us into the system of jury duty, and as we get older we find that we must have a Social Security number in order to get medical treatment. We also discover that we cannot cash a check without a driver's license, that we must display our draft registration card upon demand by state authorities, and that something called a "credit rating" is distilled out of our combined records with various institutions.

The examples could go on and on demonstrating how institutions tie us into one another through an elaborate network of interconnected registrations, certifications, licensing, and other information. Standing by itself, such systematic documentation is of relative insignificance. What is noteworthy, however, is the degree of institutional control over our lives reflected in all of this. Far more than we care to admit, most of us have become little more than numbered parts in giant machines over which we have virtually no influence, but which use us in furtherance of their purposes.

Tomorrow belongs to the gutsy

by Paul Harvey

Early Americans did not move westward across this continent in search of "security"; their thirst was for "opportunity."

And the way has hard. But adversity is the elixir of life.

If to young cars this sounds like a threadbare theme, so be it.

America's young are on the threshold of a new frontier and this one, like that one, is going to separate the men from the boys, the timid from the triumphant.

Would you believe that there are some Americans so paranoid over the very mention of the word "recession" that they are stockpiling tools and food—and guns!

The same people who dig air raid shelters for protection against attacks that never come are hoarding gold, grub and gasoline against an economic cataclysm.

Some of us have watched recessions come and go every seven years of our lives and have ridden the Wall Street roller coaster through half a century of ups and downs and ups. We have watched all the pessimists get ulcers on their ulcers unto death.

But we have also watched with excitement as Americans of courage and vision bailed themselves out of all kinds of trouble with machines that talk and roll and fly—even beyond the sky.

Those of us who have seen Americans at their best when they had to be are waiting with our eagerest ever anticipation as the curtain goes up on the unprecedentedly pregnant 1980s.

Yet here is the latest public opinion survey by George Gallup's pollsters showing that 66 percent of Americans expect bad times for the next 12 months; 59 percent anticipate bad times for the next five years.

Sindlinger of Sindlinger Opinion Research says, "The American people are scared to death!"

Horsefeathers! Because our economy has been going uphill in overdrive it had to throttle back or blow a gasket.

I recognize evidence of some anxiety.

Sales of home freezers up 10 percent; sales of gasoline storage tanks up; firewood in short supply, prices of gold and silver soaring.

A book called "How to Prosper During the Coming Bad Years" is on the best-seller list. The author urges laying away a year's supply of dehydrated food, stockpiling stout clothing and spare parts and guns and ammunition and shame on him!

I know few creatures more despicable than a merchant of fear.

Here is a Chicago lawyer beating his breast and proclaiming, "Whoever is our next President will be the captain of the Titanic!"

If only in the development of optional energies, this next decade will be the most exciting—and the most fruitful in the history of our Republic.

But it will then be as it ever was—an opportunity only for the adventuresome.

Tomorrow belongs to the gutsy. The scaredy-cats don't even enjoy today.

Beatles, ballet, boat people

By Don Graff

The course of human events is inherently disorderly.

Humans nevertheless persist in attempting to see order in the chaos, to discern connections between seemingly unconnected events. Or to create connections if such can be made to demonstrate a point. Artifice for the sake of articulation, so to speak.

This train of thought is prompted by several current events, starting with the quickening tempo in defections by Soviet ballet dancers.

First there was Nureyev, then came Makarova and Baryshnikov. And now we are suddenly awash in Russians choosing artistic freedom, American style. We have among us Aleksandr Gudonov, Leonid and Valentina Koslov and there might have been another had not, according to reports, none other than Koslov played the fink before his own defection and revealed that the travel plans of fellow Bolshoi soloist Ludmila Semenyaka did not include a return to the Soviet Union from the company's U.S. tour.

It all makes a good story, one that is particularly illustrative of defects in the Soviet system. The emigre dancers for the most part have changed allegiances for purposes not of political but of artistic freedom. They have rebelled at the tyranny of direction, the absence of creative challenge and the denial of opportunities for individual expression within their own ballet organizations, rated though they are among the world's greatest.

Maybe, however, it is too much of a good story by now. With familiarity has come a lessening of interest, or at least duration of interest, and possibly of enthusiasm in receiving later arrivals into the Western dance fold.

There are only so many dancers, even as produced by the superb schools of the Bolshoi and Kirov ballets, of the caliber of a Baryshnikov.

And there are limitations in the capacity of the West — and that means essentially the United States, which is where ballet is really at currently — to absorb new stars. It produces plenty of its own. And while companies are numerous, finances are a continuing problem for all but a select few.

Nevertheless, the newcomers would appear to face no employment problems. As an American impresario observed of the Koslovs, they may not be the top of the Soviet ballet line but they should find plenty of bookings with smaller companies that can't afford the top.

The attention accorded to and the secure futures of the dancers are in painful contrast to the lot of defectors from another tyranny — the hundreds of thousands of Indochinese for whom possible death on the open sea and in border minefields has been preferable to the life they knew at home.

The boat people are, of course, news — a big and continuing story. But collectively, individually they are largely invisible, personal agonies submerged in the mass misery. There has been much h a n d w r i n g i n g in the West over their plight, but the response has yet to measure up to the colossal need. Some 350,000 are estimated to be in camps in Southeast Asia, awaiting an opportunity to begin living again somewhere in the world. The international community's bill for emergency aid and resettlement is some $10 million monthly and rising.

Their plight would appear to have no connection with the perennial interest in a possible reunion of a music group that probably has received more attention during the past two decades than any single or several individuals in the world, with the possible exception of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

But it is in the boat people's cause that the Beatles are now being urged to come together again. One promoter wise in the ways of making rock celebrity pay and pay estimates that a series of three Beatles concerts would realize an estimated half billion dollars from live audiences and television rights.

The primary interest of the contributors to that prospective take would not be refugees, of Indochinese or any other variety. But that isn't important. The money is. That and possibly a point demonstrated: What humanitarian instincts alone can't achieve in the disorderly course of human events, a little show business often can.

A point that would not be likely to meet with argument among the ballet defectors. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Supermarket bills increase

Meat prices led the way as supermarket bills increased by almost half a percent last month, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The latest increase brought the total rise in grocery prices for the first three-quarters of the year to just over 6 percent. One of the few encouraging signs in September was a drop in coffee prices.

The AP drew up a random list of 14 commonly purchased food and non-food products and checked the prices at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973. The prices have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

Among the highlights of the latest survey: —Prices for the three meats checked by the AP went up in more than half the cities, with chopped chuck leading the way. The price of a pound of chopped chuck increased at the checklist store in eight cities. On the average, a pound of chopped chuck at the checklist stores cost $1.96 at the start of October, up 5 percent from a month earlier and up almost one-third from the start of the year. Meats accounted for 21 percent of the items in the AP survey and 43 percent of the increases.

—The marketbasket total went up during September at the checklist store in four cities and went down in seven cities. It was unchanged in two cities. The increases were sharper than the decreases and on an overall basis, the marketbasket bill rose by four-tenths of a percent during September. That compared with an increase of nine-tenths of a percent in August.

—Since Jan. 1, the marketbasket bill has risen by an average of 6.1 percent at the checklist store. Food prices generally have fluctuated more than non-foods. During September, for example, non-foods accounted for only 8 percent of the increases although, like meats, they represented 21 percent of the items on the list.

—Coffee prices dropped slightly after rising for several months. The increases followed a frost in Brazil which dashed hopes of a coffee surplus.

Troopers ordered to answer emergency calls only

JOURDANTON, Texas (AP) — The Department of Public Safety, refusing to give in to Atascosa County officials demanding the transfer of two controversial officers, has vacated its six-man command post here and ordered troopers to answer only emergency calls.

County Judge O.B. Gates, meanwhile, refuses to discuss his plans. But one county commissioner did say the loss of the six troopers would burden the rural South Texas county's 25 other law enforcement officers.

"I think they can handle it, but not for a long time or as well as they could before with the troopers," said Commissioner W.W. Westbrook.

"We have no idea what will happen now. I don't think they expected us to do this," Capt. Randol Gilmore said Monday after the DPS refused to transfer patrolmen Earl Conaway, 32, a black, and Albert Rodriguez, 26, a Mexican-American.

The two troopers are credited with a breakdown on drunken driving that Gilmore said has cut the county's traffic death rate in half.

But it has also led to drunken driving charges against sons of two local politicians, including the county commissioner who sponsored the eviction resolution.

"We simply decided if they didn't want two of our officers, they could do without all six of them," said Gilmore. "This isn't what they wanted us to do at all."

The six troopers will remain stationed in their Atascosa County homes, but do routine traffic patrols in adjoining counties.

"It would be a disservice to the people of the county to pull out completely," said Gilmore. "We'll make accident calls and we'll respond to calls for assistance from the sheriff or other officers."

Gilmore said the county will lose the more than $225,000 it receives per year in fines from DPS traffic cases. Sheriff's deputies, constables and city police officers in the county do not regularly patrol the highways.

County commissioners cited numerous reports of "harassment" in ordering the transfer.

But DPS officials and the two troopers feel the order was prompted by arrests of prominent citizens, including a son of Pleasanton Mayor Travis Hall and Tausch's son, Thomas James Tausch.

The six troopers also believe racism in the county has aggravated the problem.

Gates and Tausch largely ignore reporters, but have denied the order was spurred by the two arrests or racism. Westbrook, who abstained on the Sept. 19 resolution while the other four members of the commissioners court voted for it, also scoffed. "That didn't have a thing to do with it."

Gates and Tausch said they had received numerous complaints that the two troopers had

"harassed and abused" residents, but refused to offer specifics. Gates told one reporter last week that he has collected numerous statements to support the allegations.

No formal complaints have been submitted against the officers, DPS officials said Monday.

Gilmore said the two troopers will take their prisoners 40 miles away to San Antonio or 37 miles away to Floresville. He noted that according to state law, Williams must accept the prisoners if the jailing is officially order by a justice of the peace.

The other four troopers, Gilmore said, can still use Williams' jail. Breathalyzer equipment used to test alleged drunken drivers is available in San Antonio, Floresville and other surrounding towns, the captain added.

The troopers began moving over the weekend and by Monday morning had removed all traces of the DPS, including the black-and-white "Texas Highway Patrol" sign.

Texans excited about Kennedy running for office

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans excited about Sen. Edward Kennedy running for president will meet Nov. 10 to decide whether to set up a statewide group to support his candidacy.

Liberal leader Billie Carr says she has "never seen anything catch fire" like the prospect of the Kennedy candidacy.

"Every time he raises his hand it's on TV, and we get calls from volunteers," Ms. Carr said in a telephone interview from her Houston office. "I had a call at 7:30 this morning from someone volunteering to work for Kennedy."

Ms. Carr, a Democratic national committeewoman, said Monday Texas liberals had three candidates they could "live with easily," but Kennedy, D-Mass., is the favorite.

"Even kids too young to have known John F. Kennedy are enthused — it's a phenomenon," said Ms. Carr. "Most people in the Texas Democrats feel the same way."

She said President Carter and California Gov. Edmund Brown also would be acceptable to the 6,000-member Texas Democrats, a "loose-knit" predominantly liberal group that was formed in the wake of Sen. George McGovern's unsuccessful presidential race in 1972.

The Texas Democrats met here Saturday, with 175 persons registering at $5 each.

In a poll asking whom they favored as the Democratic presidential nominee, Kennedy got 86 votes, Carter 19, Vice President Walter Mondale 11 and Brown 4. There were 9 votes for other possible candidates.

The Democrats also were asked to rank five presidents by giving a one to the president they liked the best and a five to the one they liked the least.

John F. Kennedy got 84 first-place votes and Lyndon Johnson of Texas 27 votes. Johnson also had 56 second-place votes and nothing lower than that.

The other presidents included in the poll were Richard Nixon, who got one first-place vote and 109 last-place votes; Gerald Ford and Carter. Carter had only one first-place vote. He was ranked third by 73 persons.

So far, Ms. Carr said, local Kennedy groups in areas such as El Paso and Houston have been separate from the Texas Democrats, who also will be invited to the November meeting.

The meeting is scheduled for an Austin motel (Villa Capri), but Ms. Carr said, "I'm not sure it will hold the meeting. Potentially, because of the size of the crowd, it could be a riot almost."

She said Pat Robards and Louise Caddell of San Antonio are organizing the meeting.

"We'll mind the store until he (Kennedy) announces," said Ms. Carr, "and then we'll step aside and let Kennedy's own people make a decision who is to take over. We want to keep that attitude so there will be no ego or territorial problems."

Estes may face third trial

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Convicted West Texas swindler Billie Sol Estes could be on trial a third time before he finds out whether he has to finish a prison sentence from his first conviction.

Two parole commissioners conducted a parole revocation hearing for Estes at La Tuna Federal Correctional Institution near here Monday, according to prison officials.

But U.S. Parole Commissioner William Amos of Dallas said there will be no revocation decision until the full commission meets several weeks hence.

In the meantime, Estes faces trial Oct. 15 on a complicated government charge which a Dallas jury could not decide last summer.

Witness speaks for Davis in trial

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Defense attorneys have placed a key witness on the stand in hopes of convincing the jury that millionaire Cullen Davis was the target — not the mastermind — of a conspiracy.

Dorothy Neeld, 38, was sworn in as a witness Monday, but Davis's murder solicitation trial was recessed for the night before she got into the meat of her testimony.

When Davis was tried on the same charges in Houston last year, Miss Neeld testified she happened to see on a parking lot three persons who defense attorneys say conspired to frame Davis.

The first trial ended with a hung jury. The millionaire industrialist is accused of asking one-time friend David McCrory to hire a killer to murder the judge in a bitter divorce case between Davis and his ex-wife Priscilla.

Ms. Neeld said she watched from her Dallas office and saw Priscilla, McCrory and a third man, karate teacher Pat Burleson, enter a car Aug. 18, 1978.

Davis was arrested two days later after a parking lot meeting with McCrory which was monitored by the FBI.

The defense maintains the defendant's ex-wife Priscilla framed Davis to enhance her divorce settlement and that Burleson and McCrory were co-conspirators in the scheme.

Ms. Neeld was the seventh defense witness in the trial.

Motions denied in hearing

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Crystal City and two other parties have failed in an attempt to delay implementation of the settlement of $1.6 billion in lawsuits against Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. by its customers.

The Texas Railroad Commission denied their motions for rehearing Monday, thus allowing the settlement to take effect at once.

Crystal City, Lone Star Industries and Ideal Basic Industries had requested rehearings on the decision in the six-year-old case.

Crystal City contended in its motion the settlement "was not in the public interest and was directly opposite to the commission's Dec. 12, 1977, order that Lo-Vaca must revert to pre-1973 contract prices for its gas."

The South Texas community is facing its third winter without gas.

Commissioners receive training at Camp Brown

Commissioners are friends to scouting packs, troops and posts. They know how to recharter a unit, the importance of advancement. They are resources for outdoor experiences.

Roy Webb, Kiowa District Commissioner, Bill Felter, Council Commissioner, Ella Dunn, den leader, Joe Chamber, Scout Executive and unit commissioner, and Harvey Dunn, Scoutmaster National Guard Army T-413 assisted with the commissioner training. Area trainers were Seth Cunningham and Harold Hooper from Borger and Don Lamb from Guymon, Okla.

Pope arrives in New York for speech

NEW YORK (AP) — Pope John Paul II arrived in New York today en route to address the United Nations and the moral perils in a world of conflict, terrorism, East-West rivalry and nuclear arsenals.

The Trans World Airlines Boeing 727 — dubbed "Shepherd I" — which carried the pope from Boston touched down at 9:02 a.m. EDT at LaGuardia Airport where a crowd estimated by police at 3,000 had gathered.

The pontiff, wearing a white cassock and waving his arms, was greeted by his host, U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, and other diplomatic and church officials.

In a brief airport address before setting off a motorcade to Manhattan, the pope said he had looked forward to the visit ever since Waldheim had invited him to address the General Assembly. "Your organization has a special significance for the whole world," he said, "for in it, the needs and aspirations of all the people of our planet come together."

"At the basis of all efforts, there must be the dignity and worth of the human person. It is likewise the human person, every individual, who must make the aims of your organization come true."

A group of bands and school groups saluted the pope with music and flowers. Among the youngsters were students from a Middlesex, N.J. school, dressed in Polish costumes, bearing bouquets of chrysanthemums and waving flags.

New York was the pope's second stop on a seven-day, six-city U.S. tour that began with a jubilant welcome in Boston on Monday.

Most of the pope's day was to be spent at the United Nations — a 16-acre international enclave on the East edge of bustling midtown Manhattan, overlooking the East River.

In an airport greeting, Waldheim told the pope: "We eagerly await the message which you will deliver..." He recalled the visit of Pope Paul VI to the United Nations 14 years ago and said: "His moving words still inspire us and we greatly cherish them."

He noted that the United Nations "reflects the complete diversity of mankind. We come from many cultural traditions and religious backgrounds, but we are united in our common determination to seek peace and human betterment."

Several thousand people gathered at LaGuardia in advance of the pope's arrival.

The pontiff's address to the U.N. General Assembly promised to be the most important of his week-long U.S. tour — in his own words "a plea to the whole world for justice and peace, a plea in defense of the unique dignity of every human being."

He told a vast, rain-splattered throng at a papal Mass in Boston Common on Monday evening he was aware of the "importance" and "challenge" of his speech to the world body.

But for many packed onto the rolling green of the common, or along the narrow rainy sidewalks of Boston neighborhoods, John Paul's stopover here was one of the most exciting days imaginable.

From curbsides, windows and rooftops, standing on cars, trucks and fire engines, hundreds of thousands cheered and waved placards proclaiming: "We're With You!" "Long Live the Pope!" "Viva il Papa!" and "Witamy!" — the Polish way of saying "Welcome."

It was the first papal visit ever to this strongly Catholic city, and it is the Polish-born John Paul's first visit to the United States as pope. He came straight to Irish-accented Boston from a three-day visit to Ireland, where he made a dramatic appeal to an adoring populace for peace on their troubled island.

Texas

By The Associated Press
Fair skies dominated the state weather picture as warm afternoon temperatures were forecast again for most of Texas.

A weak cold front that moved through the state yesterday was expected to dissipate with little effect on the weather.

Winds were generally light and variable statewide. Early morning temperatures ranged from the upper 40s in the northern Panhandle to near 70 in central and coastal portions of the state. Some light fog was reported along portions of the coast and the lower Rio Grande Valley.

The forecast called for fair skies and warm temperatures statewide with highs ranging from the mid 80s in the Panhandle and western mountains to the 90s elsewhere. Readings near 100 were possible in the Big Bend region.

NATIONAL

A cold front has generated several thunderstorms in the Tennessee and Lower Ohio valleys, spawning tornadoes and prompting severe thunderstorm warnings in Tennessee and Kentucky.

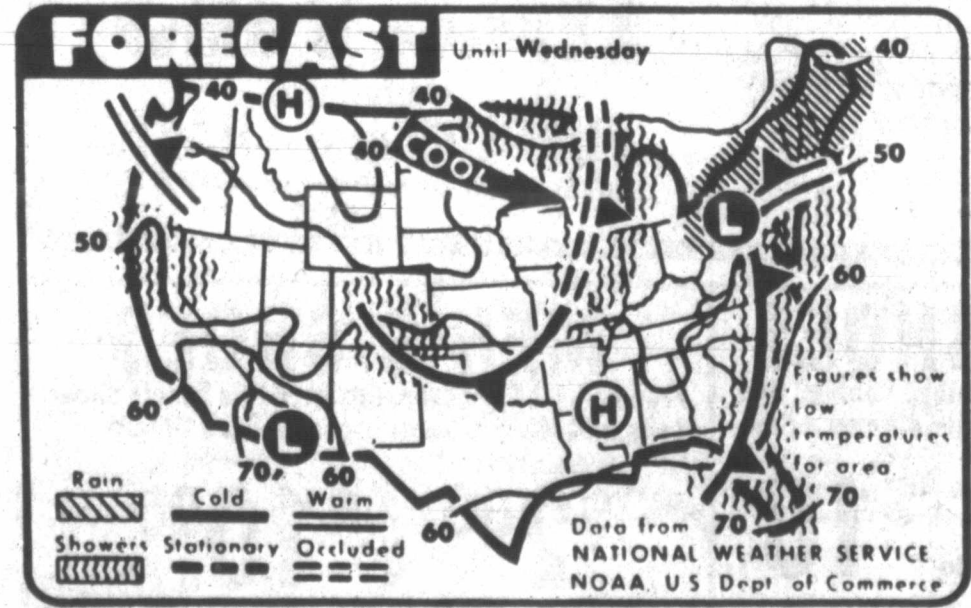

Much of the same weather hit Indiana Monday night, causing at least five tornadoes in that state and one across the border in Kentucky. Two homes were destroyed and some injuries were reported when a twister touched down near Noblesville, Ind. Wind damage was reported in several areas on both sides of the Indiana and Kentucky borders.

High winds, severe thunderstorms and swirling snow forced four persons to abandon a transcontinental balloon journey early today near Spencerville in western Ohio. They lifted off from Tillamook, Ore., on Wednesday, headed for the East Coast in hopes of completing the first transcontinental balloon flight.

Other showers and thundershowers soaked Illinois and Michigan, and spread through the eastern portions of Virginia and North Carolina.

Skies were cloudy or partly cloudy from the Pacific Northwest to the Dakotas, with generally clear conditions over most of the West.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 33 at International Falls, Minn., to 87 at Phoenix, Ariz.

RAIN AND SHOWERS are expected for large portions of the nation today. (AP Laserphoto Map)

More Arab buying pushes gold higher

More Arab buying helped push the price of gold to new highs in Europe and New York Monday. The dollar rose against the Japanese yen but continued dropping against most European currencies. Central bank intervention eased the decline.

Gold rose $15.75 to $413.25 an ounce in London, jumped $18 to $414.50 in Zurich, and hit $419 in New York before retreating to $415.50.

It was the first time gold closed above $400 on European exchanges and a record closing figure for New York also. The price was $200 an ounce in July 1978 and closed above $300 for the first time less than three months ago, on July 18.

A trader at Samuel Montagu in London said Arabs and other major investors were unloading shaky dollars to buy gold. "What else can they do with their dollars?" he asked.

"There's a lot of overseas buying," said Franc Schumaci, a gold trader for Marcus & Co., at New York's Commodity Exchange. "A lot of the commodity pros are out of the market. Eventually, somebody's going to come in and sell this gold, but right now it's going to the moon."

The continued flight away from the sagging dollar and into commodities also pushed other precious metals higher, with platinum futures surging $131 to an astounding $700 an ounce at one point on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Platinum for delivery this month later eased but closed on the exchange at $632.30, up $64.

The price of silver leaped $1.19 in London to a peak $17.51 an ounce. It kept rising in New York, with October silver futures closing at $17.88, up $1.48 on the day.

The dollar opened at 225.10 yen in Tokyo today, up from 224.925 late Monday. It went to 225.15 about half an hour later, see-sawed through the day and closed at 224.875, just slightly below Monday's closing rate.

After closing at 223.45 yen Friday, it climbed Monday to 225.20. Then the Bank of Japan sold an estimated $400 million to protect the yen, fearing aggravated inflation that would push import prices up.

The dollar is improving in Japan, in contrast to its situation in Europe, because Japan is running an increasing trade deficit and because of expectations of higher oil prices which will have to be paid in dollars.

In New York, the dollar climbed to 225.12 yen Monday, compared to 224.75 Friday.

The dollar sank to its lowest level in 11 months against the West German mark Monday and would have dropped further had the Bundesbank not mounted its biggest rescue operation of the year. It bought more than $87 million. The Swiss central bank and the U.S. Federal Reserve also did some buying to bolster the U.S. currency.

The dollar gained in London, however. The pound sold for $2.1903 Monday, down from $2.20075 on Friday. The rate dropped in New York from $2.1990 Friday to $2.1974.

Critics still against moves by Carter administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional critics say President Carter's Caribbean initiatives have failed to untie the knot linking the SALT II treaty with the Soviet brigade deployed 90 miles from U.S. shores in Cuba.

In his speech to the nation Monday night, the president outlined plans to increase U.S. surveillance of military activities in Cuba, bolster the U.S. Naval and military presence in the area and speed more aid to those Latin American nations which feel threatened by the Soviet-Cuban alliance.

At the same time he reported that he has been given "assurances from the highest levels of the Soviet government" that the brigade of Russians are indeed engaged only in training and that they will not be used to threaten anyone.

But the Carter speech did little to sway critics of the administration's foreign policy, many of whom complained that the president failed to keep his pledge to change the status quo in Cuba by negotiating withdrawal or dismantling of the brigade.

"No, we are not going to push forward with SALT until the Soviet troop question is resolved," said Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., one of several GOP presidential contenders who commented.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., referring to the administration's early handling of the Cuban flap, said the president spent most of the speech "trying to deal with a self-inflicted wound."

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said that what he sees as the president's inability to change the status quo "will cause me to be more secure in my vote against the SALT treaty."

"I think this leaves us right where we were," said Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, a principal SALT II opponent.

But a senior administration official who has been closely involved in intense negotiations with the Soviets on the troop issue said the status quo has in fact been changed by the presidential orders increasing the U.S. military presence near Cuba and by Soviet assurances that their troops in Cuba "will not be a threat to the United States or to any other nation."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called the Soviet assurances, said to have come personally from Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, "welcome but insufficient."

"I continue to believe that before the treaty may take effect the Senate will insist on an affirmation by the president, backed up by our own intelligence, that Soviet combat forces are no longer deployed in Cuba," Church said.

The president said the Cuban controversy must be kept in perspective. He maintained it is no reason for a rebirth of the cold war. And he said if it led to the destruction of the SALT II treaty, the United States would be forced to live in a world "in which every confrontation or dispute could carry the seeds of a nuclear conflict."

Pantex back to normal

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Department of Energy supervisors at the nation's only final-assembly plant for nuclear weapons said operations were "normal" after a walkout by security guards ended.

The guards, members of Local 38 of the International Guard Union had struck the plant when their contract expired Sept. 16. They ratified new management proposals Saturday and returned to work Monday.

Both sides refused to be specific about the agreement, saying only that it concerned "administrative matters."

After the ratification, spokesmen for labor and management were equally tight-lipped about terms of the settlement.

MEMBERS OF CHOIR, made up from various churches in the Boston Archdiocese, singing at Mass celebrated by Pope John Paul II on Boston Common, as the pope began a six-day tour Monday in the U.S. The pope arrived in Boston Monday afternoon after a two-day visit to Ireland where he asked for an end to violence. (AP Laserphoto)

Special mass held by pope

Boston Common site for uncommon gathering

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Common has seen some uncommon sights since Parson William Blackstone kept his brindled cow on these 50 acres, but hundreds of thousands of umbrellas bobbing in genuflection to Pope John Paul II on a high outdoor altar has got to rank with the uncommonest.

Despite a steady drizzle that turned to a heavy downpour as the papal motorcade made its way along the stately brick buildings of Beacon Hill, the citizens of this "gateway city" — as the pope called it — proved steadfast in their loyalty and oblivious of the elements throughout the impressive ceremony.

In the ghostly ground fog that hid three-quarters of the glass-sheeted, 60-story

Hancock building looming over the common, the triple canopied altar, with its lights turned on early and a fringe of yellow chrysanthemums, shone with a silvery sheen in the fast-gathering dusk. Bishops and cardinals in their rich robes seemed to be moving about in a Medieval religious drama.

The same fog must have made the pope's arrival in the United States a sticky business for Aer Lingus pilot Aidan Quigley. Those of us aboard the papal jumbo jet got our first sight of Boston when the runway lights of Logan Airport suddenly appeared at wheel level as we descended from the murk.

The 59-year-old pope, unmindful of the mist, a broad-brimmed red hat upon his head, traveled in an open car for the motorcade through the city, waving as cheering well-wishers greeted him with unfurled banners, flags and flowers. "Viva il papa!" they chanted in the Italian-American North End; "Witamy" — Polish for Welcome — read a few placards elsewhere.

And everywhere there was the roar of thousands of joyful voices, the tuneful notes of bands and bagpipes, songs that gave way to the refrain of "God Bless America" as the pope neared the common.

Despite the heavy weather, which seemed more suitable to the Irish portion of the pope's pilgrimage of peace and love, the turnout on Boston Common, officially estimated at 410,000 was twice the record set by an October 1969 peace rally.

More came to Boston's historic downtown pastureland on this single rainy day than used to show up all during the Christmas season when reindeers grazed in the shadow of Boston's skyscrapers.

Parson Blackstone, an Anglican clergyman who gave his pasture to the city in 1684, certainly would never have recognized the place.

"Christian Love," and "Ban Nuclear Power" banners and placards blended with signs in many languages welcoming the pope. In an ecumenical gesture, followers of the Rev. Sung Myung Moon filled the windows of the headquarters building looking down on the outdoor Mass, and allowed NBC to put a camera crew on the roof.

Eye surgeon authors best - seller

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Robin Cook wrote his first novel under water. "You might say I was submerged in my work," quips Cook. Then, serious, Cook explains that "The Year of the Intern" was written in 1970 while he was serving aboard a nuclear submarine. Cook, an eye surgeon whose latest novel is "Sphinx," says "I was serving as a general doctor on the submarine. I had a little, a very little, sick bay, and I worked on the book between patients, of which there weren't many since a sub crew is in good physical condition. "It took about 75 days to do the book — the length of a submarine patrol." The 39-year-old Cook, a relaxed soft-spoken man, says that although he had never written anything before he decided to do that first book, he went ahead because of "a feeling of exasperation." That feeling, he says, grew out of "the way I felt medical information was being given out to the public. The books I'd read and the movies I'd seen about medicine did not portray the problems as I saw them. So I decided to write a novel about how I saw medicine." Cook says the book sold well for a first novel. This, he says, "encouraged me to try it again, but in a different way." The result was the best-selling "Coma." "What I tried to do," he says, "was to write entertainingly and at the same time to make people aware of certain important issues." "I was pretty confident a lot of people would enjoy reading 'Coma' but I really was surprised that it was as big as it was." The book, he says, earned him enough to give up medicine but he prefers not to, although he has "restricted my medical doings to clinic work at a teaching hospital in Boston." "My schedule varies since it depends on how much eye surgery has to be done. Eye surgery is nice and delicate, which is what attracted me to the field in the first place. It's much more exact and demanding in terms of how careful you are." Cook, who lives in Boston, says he considers himself "a writing doctor. Let's face it, you can't train for 14 years and not consider yourself a doctor." His newest novel, written when he wasn't doctoring, grew out of a boyhood fascination with things Egyptian. "I was born in New York City," he says with a smile, "and one of the benefits of growing up there was the availability of museums. I used to go to them all of the time and look at the Egyptian things. They seized my imagination." "I wanted to be an Egyptologist, but eventually I became aware of the fact that most buried cities probably had already been discovered. I felt I was going to need a little more excitement in my career." "So I turned to medicine because it offered excitement and discovery. When I was growing up medicine was making one discovery after another. For me, medicine offered the best blend of science — which was my forte in school — and the humanities." Cook says he decided to write "Sphinx" because "I'd noticed that some writers after they'd had a best seller would write a next novel that was similar to the successful novel." "I wanted to avoid that. I wanted the challenge of doing something that would be more difficult for me. I wanted to step away from the known area of medicine and write about a field in which I was interested but which I didn't know as much about as I did medicine." Cook, currently working on another novel which he prefers not to discuss, says, "It really was fun to do 'Sphinx.' Partly because it gave me an excuse to read 99 books on Egypt. When you're in medicine you feel guilty when you aren't reading medical books." ("Sphinx" is published by Putnam.)

DEAR ABBY

Bedside manners

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the newlywed signed FRUSTRATED, who couldn't wait for her husband to be released from the hospital to have sex, reminded me of a similar incident. Years ago, when I was on night duty at a hospital, a woman patient rang her bell and asked if I'd mind standing guard.

RETIRED RN, MILWAUKEE

DEAR RETIRED: At least she asked.

DEAR ABBY: I was once in the same predicament as FRUSTRATED, and my husband and I were ready to climb the walls. Then we spoke to his doctor, who wrote my husband a "prescription" and gave it to the head nurse. (We still have the "prescription" in our scrapbook.) One nurse entered our room out of curiosity, but we felt justified in telling her to stay out — that it was doctor's orders that we were not to be disturbed for two hours. There were no more problems, once the word got around the nurses' station.

Signed this ... SAVED BY UNUSUAL PRESCRIPTION

DEAR ABBY: As an RN in a Houston hospital I have seen some mighty strange goings-on. I recall a complaint from a woman who was sharing a double room with a pretty young girl who had broken both legs in a skiing accident. It seems that the girl (with both legs in casts, yet!) had frequent visits from her husband, during which time they carried on as though they were in a private room. When I confronted the young girl with her roommate's complaint, she said, "If she's such a prude, she can turn the other way."

TRUE STORY

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the frustrated newlywed reminded me of my days as a young intern at St. Joseph's Hospital in Syracuse, N.Y.

I'll never forget the 82-year-old patient who had a young woman visiting him. I went into his room to tell him that visiting hours were over. At first it appeared that he was alone, then I discovered that they were BOTH in his bed! I was more embarrassed than they were!

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

Fun with other couples

By Louise Pierce

* For one week in July of every year, our country club hosts the Tri - State Senior Golf Tournament. Players range from 55 to 93 years of age. Nobody younger can register and nobody older has shown up so far. If ever a prop for sagging older marriages existed, this tournament and its many prototypes provide that pleasure. Every couple is carefree, eager for six days of pure enjoyment, happy to rejoin old friends and take advantage of the many recreational facilities available. It's a delightful time that Otis and I would never miss, at least not while we can crawl to the golf course.

* Good sportsmanship is ever present and invaluable. Of course, this year Otis was defeated by a good friend from Lubbock and was not at all upset. Whoever wins, whoever loses, everybody is happy. The group of 100 to 150 men and their wives want only the joy of relaxed pleasure with their old and new friends. They say their marriages are also renewed in togetherness. Do you know any other situation in which couples can hardly wait to return to a week of fun?

You may think that these couples are all rich or have no flaws in their marriages anyway. But that is not so. Some save to attend the Pampa get-together. Others stay with relatives or friends and thus have no board or bed bills. Besides, a week of group fun doesn't have to be for golfers alone. Any planned meeting of a small or large gathering of senior couples, lasting from two to six days, can improve dispositions, better marital compassion for each other and offer realization that most of us older couples want to stay happily married and are willing to work toward achieving that goal. The sheer joy of cutting loose all home ties and allowing a couple to share a few days of full-time pleasure can be the salvation of older twosomes who have numbed their minds and their backsides in creaking rocking chairs. A camp - out with friends at a nearby lake (or even a pebbly stream that sports only minnows) can renew your zest for living and for each other. A scenic caravan trip by car or bus can do the same thing.

Problems that could mount into terrific tiffs seem to float away in the fresh air of congeniality. At this year's senior tournament I heard one lady chiding her husband for missing a few steps in dancing; the chide grew into a chill and they sat down. Another lady said to him,

"Hey, Handsome, you're my kind of dancer!" And they soared to the floor. When their dance was done, the man's wife said, "You're my kind of dancer, too, darling. Let's get with it!" And they did, with no further fussing.

Another woman was annoyed because her husband was two miles out on the course with all her spending money in his billfold. She fumed, "If I don't lay him out ... " But two Pampa women offered loans, and the lady went shopping. Her husband paid back the money — and won his match as well.

Ever so many readers, men and women, ask how to force their mates to enjoy life. One said, DEAR LOUISE: My wife says 67 is too old to act like 17. Is there any way I can get her to be half the fun she used to be when we were young? We're both healthy. She's just given up. And I'm getting sick of sitting around. I love her, but I can't stand nothing forever. B.B.

DEAR B.B.: Why don't you give her a surprise party? When the next special day comes (birthday, anniversary, anything to celebrate), invite several couples to the house for dinner, arriving at 5:30 or whatever time is ahead of your evening meal time. If you can afford it, send out for food, a whole dinner piece if you're affluent or a hamburger piece if that fits your pocketbook. That way your wife will have no notice that a party is coming. Since she used to be fun, she's pretty sure to greet the guests with a happy heart — and you with open arms. It shouldn't be too hard, from then on, to plan more meetings of old friends. That can save your marriage and maybe some other couple's unions as well.

I'm always the life of any party, anyway to myself and sometimes to others. At the reception on the first night of the senior tournament this year, I accidentally stepped on the toes of a jolly soul who turned out to be the MC of one of the banquets. In the course of his remarks to the assemblage he said, "You Pampa women are terrific." Why, Louise Pierce has the strength of an ox when she steps on you. If Eisenhower had put her ahead of the tanks, we'd have won World War II a year sooner!

Otis agreed, adding, "I'm going to hand onto my old war horse as long as I live!" And he'd better.

Write problems to DEAR LOUISE, Box 616, Pampa, Texas 79065.

DR. LAMB

Men develop osteoporosis

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — You're always talking about women having osteoporosis but you never say anything about a man having it. My husband has it. The doctors told him he has deterioration of the spine. Some vertebrae are already gone. He has a lot of pain and takes medicine for that. He's only 61 years old. His back hurts him all the time. We walk quite a bit and he gets sore and stiff. He can't take exercises as the strain hurts his hips. His health made him retire and we want to do some traveling but he gets too tired for that.

DEAR READER — To answer your first question, men do develop osteoporosis. It usually occurs 10 to 20 years past the age that women commonly develop it. That's why you usually don't see it until men are in their 70s and sometimes not until they're in their 80s.

Osteoporosis is degeneration of the spine. The term degeneration of the spine is used by doctors to cover a host of disorders when they're talking to the public.

I don't know from that term exactly what your husband has and I don't know how long he's had it. He may have degenerative arthritis or he may have some other form of arthritis. If there is any question about his diagnosis, you might want him to see a specialist in rheumatology to clarify what the basic problem is.

I will send you The Health Letter number 6-10, Osteoporosis Or Bone Softening so you can have more information on that problem. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Of course, if your husband does have true osteoporosis, then high calcium diets, perhaps hormone support and other measures may be indicated to help prevent the situation from progressing. But if he has arthritis, the treatment would be entirely different.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Eight years ago when I was 30, I was found to have hearing loss in both ears because of nerve damage. A hearing aid helps very little.

There is no explanation for this except that I was given streptomycin by injection off and on for two years for treatment of chest colds and asthma. Could this medicine have damaged my hearing? This is important for me to know as I have three young school children and would want to keep them from being given this antibiotic if there's any danger of it affecting a person's hearing.

DEAR READER — Yes, streptomycin can cause hearing loss. When it is used, careful attention must be given to any symptoms of ringing in the ear or any signs of hearing loss.

This doesn't mean that streptomycin shouldn't be used as a medicine. There are medical conditions that are sufficiently severe that the risk has to be taken. This is less often true today now that there's a larger number of antibiotics available.

Of course, I must tell you that just because you have hearing loss from nerve damage doesn't mean it was caused by the streptomycin. There could be other reasons for your hearing damage.

Teens speak on allowances

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Victor, 12, from Tacoma, Wash., had his allowance stopped and asks the thoughts of our guest teen writers. Jill Thomassen, 12, from Galesburg, Ill., and Rory Clarke, 13, from Fresno, Calif., will do the honors. Welcome!

Dr. Wallace: I'm 12 and my mom thinks I am too old to get an allowance. Instead, she said I have to work at home to receive my money.

For one week, I did all the work my mom said but when it came time to pay me, she said my work was no good so I didn't get anything. Do you think this is fair? Please have your guest writers respond. — Victor, Tacoma, Wash.

Victor: I see nothing wrong with working for your allowance but if Mother was unhappy with your work, she should have told you so before the week was up so you could have improved.

There are many ways to earn money — delivering newspapers or working for neighbors doing odd jobs such as cutting grass, washing windows, pulling weeds, shoveling snow and many more odd jobs.

If you would like to be a teen guest writer, please write to me, in care of this newspaper.

TSTI students save money for Potter County

Alton Watson of Pampa, a recent graduate of Texas State Technical Institute, was one of three students who saved Potter County an estimated $1,000.

As a summer project, the three students, including Pat Matthews of Panhandle, installed a communications systems at Potter County Correctional Center. They built phone systems for visitors and the front gate from surplus materials and new equipment purchased by the county.

Watson earned an associate of applied science degree in electronic systems technology and is working for MOSTEK. Matthews is undergoing training at Pantex.

Trend in farming continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The trend toward fewer but larger farms has continued, but a new government study says this does not mean actual land ownership is becoming more concentrated at the same pace.

According to the report, prepared by the Agriculture Department as required by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977, "the trend in farms growing in size and shrinking in number has paralleled an increasing concentration in assets and the sale of farm products."

For example, in 1974 about 125,000 farms accounted for 50 percent of all the crops and livestock sold. A decade earlier, the 1964 farm census showed it took 205,000 farms to produce and sell 50 percent of the crops and livestock.

Further, the report said, in 1974 some 97,000 farms accounted for 50 percent of the U.S. land in farms, compared to 125,000 in 1964.

"The concentration of land in farms is not necessarily synonymous with concentration of land ownership," the report said. "Today, many farming operations are combinations of rented units or of owned and rented units."

"It is not uncommon in the Midwest, for example, to find farmland owned by retired farmers and widows and heirs of farmers, but consolidated through rental into larger farming operations."

The report, which was recently sent to Congress as required by the 1977 farm act, was made available Monday to the public. Single free copies of "Status of the Family Farm" may be ordered from: ESCS Publications, Room 0054-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Commenting further on the 1974 figures showing the dwindling numbers of farms, the report said that "today there are probably fewer than 100,000 such farms" that account for half of the nation's sales of crops and livestock.

"Relative to some other sectors of the economy, this may not appear to be a high degree of concentration," the report said. "It does reflect a reality far different from the common perception of an agriculture with most of the production coming from many moderate-size units."

According to USDA's latest definition, a farm is one that has annual sales of commodities of at least $1,000, which disqualifies about 302,000 smaller units that previously were classified as farms.

Officials estimated that under the new $1,000 definition, about 2.33 million farms were in operation this year. The peak year — under the new and old definitions — was 1935, when about 6.8 million farms were in operation.

Before 1974, the report said, agricultural censuses showed that farms with at least $20,000 in annual sales were increasing, while smaller farms were decreasing.

Other findings in the report included: —The average age of farm operators increased from 48.7 in 1945 to 51.7 in 1974. Only about half of the older farmers leaving the land between 1964 and 1974 were replaced by younger farmers.

—Cattle feeding, once dominated by small farmer-feeders located primarily on grain farms in the Corn Belt, has given way to large feedlots in the southern and central Great Plains. One-half of the cattle produced in feedlots comes from 400 large operations. While there still are more than 130,000 smaller units (of 1,000 head or fewer), those produce less than one-third of the fed cattle.

Fire prevention week slated to begin Monday

"Fire burns a home every minute of every day, 365 days a year, and it kills an average of 18 people a day."

Every property owner should consider these facts during the coming National Fire Prevention week, Oct. 7 through 14.

According to a recent release from Kemper Insurance Group, your home—the place where you live and where you should feel most secure—could be a fire trap. You may have simply overlooked or been unaware of potential hazards which could cause a fire and threaten your family.

In order to bring emphasis to the Fire Prevention Week, the chief of the Pampa Fire Department says the department will be holding fire drills at the area schools throughout the week. The fire truck will be taken to the elementary schools for demonstrations.

The fire department will also be attending various club meetings during the week to give fire prevention-related programs.

The public is invited to an Open House at the Central Fire Station on Wednesday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. There will be a display of the fire equipment, and coffee and doughnuts will be served.

The siren on top of the Hughes Building will be blown each day at noon beginning Sunday, to remind Pampa citizens of National Fire Prevention Week.

Gray County taxing entities set special meeting for today

The taxing entities of Gray County, eligible to vote on appraisal board members according to Senate Bill No. 621, will meet in a special session today at 8:00 p.m. in the Lefors school auditorium. The following item will be considered on the agenda.

1. Consideration of a resolution to change the number of appraisal board members and the method of selection.

Theme to beat inflation is to stop wandering

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a consistent theme in the messages of those "how to beat inflation" or "how to make a million" advertisements that tease the economically weary, wayworn wanderer.

It is: Stop wandering. Instead, the ads inform, seize control of events and beat inflation. Don't accept 5.5 percent: reach instead for 55 by owning gold or art or antiques, or by becoming a landlord.

You don't need money. The great fortunes of America were financed by other peoples' money, by OPM as they say. But once you get it protect it: learn how to pay no taxes. Borrow, buy, speculate and shelter.

Dozens of entrepreneurs are promoting the notion, offering to sell you their techniques if you just fill out the enclosed coupon and mail it with your check.

You see their ads in some of America's finest publications. Why not — they're legitimate.

They espouse their beliefs with religious conviction, and they spread the word with evangelical zeal. Save yourself from financial despair: get on the side of truth.

As such they broadcast the instability of personal economics today, in which to save is to lose, to borrow is to gain, to speculate is often to be rewarded and to be smart is to manage legally to avoid taxes.

Why borrow? Simple. With family expenses consuming so much of your income, and with inflation eroding savings, you'll never be able to get ahead. To get ahead you need a bundle of investment capital. Borrow it.

Sure, it will cost you money, but don't forget: Uncle Sam is your partner. It means that all the interest you pay back is tax-deductible. And you pay back in cheaper dollars too, inflation sees to that.

Why buy? Because, say the entrepreneurs who sell their techniques, many purchases actually rise in value at rates faster than inflation. They're more economically desirable than paper money. Like gold.

Or, to name another, like houses. Houses have been outpacing inflation for many years.

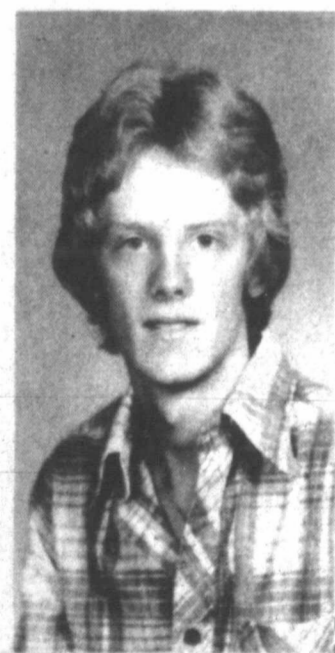

Is this speculation or investing? It difficult to draw a line that separates buying, investing and speculating. Perhaps the risk-reward ratio is the best determinant. Buying now involves limited risk, investing more, speculation a lot.

Adult swim classes offered

Adult swimming instruction will be offered by the Pampa Youth and Community Center beginning Oct. 15 and lasting through Oct. 26. The classes will meet on Monday through Fridays from 10:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. Lessons will be offered in the Beginners, Advanced Beginners, Intermediates and Swimmers classifications.

To attend the classes, you must have a Youth Center membership which is available at the front desk. Please come by from 4:00 to 10:00 p.m. weekdays, Saturday from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m., or Sunday from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. to pre-register.

Also, the Youth Center is sponsoring a teen dance from 8:00 p.m. to midnight on Friday, an open date on the Pampa High School football calendar.

Crawford listed in Who's Who

Lynn Crawford, a senior at Pampa High School, was nominated and accepted by the 13th Annual Edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1978-79.

Fewer than five percent of American high school students are featured in "Who's Who" each year. Those accepted are eligible to compete for over $50,000 worth of scholarship awards.

Lynn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Crawford, of 3008 Rosewood.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

October 3, 1979
 Through change and circumstances this coming year, situations could develop to enhance your financial base. They could come through channels that have not been open to you before.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Materially and financially your prospects are very encouraging today, but for some reason you may not believe this to be true. Self-defeating thoughts are your enemies. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Temptation to spend beyond your means may be strong in you today, so be on your guard. Consider logically what you are able to afford.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you will be more inspired to do for those you love, rather than for yourself. Heed these noble impulses. You'll make everyone happy in the process, including you.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Make it a point to be frank and open today in intimate conversations with friends. Your candor will encourage them to do likewise.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A matter which looked rather sour could take a sudden, surprising twist today and turn out to be profitable. Things could happen out of the blue, so be prepared to act.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Success will not elude you today if you carefully explore all of your alternatives. Your ingenuity will find openings should other avenues be blocked.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your hunches could lead you astray today, but your resourcefulness won't. Use methods that you know from experience to have worked well in the past.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Agreements you make today will work to your advantage if you bargain from your strengths, instead of your weaknesses. Be positive, not negative.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's important to be decisive today where goals are concerned. A wishy-washy attitude will not only impede your progress — it could set you back.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Self-discipline is a must for you today, especially if you are on a diet or exercise program. Don't let your resolve go by the boards.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Better tie a string around your finger today or you might forget, or leave to the last minute, something you promised to handle for another.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Because you're able to think on your feet today, your snap decisions are likely to be your best ones. Evaluate carefully, but don't overanalyze.

PHS spikers to face Borger team bent on vengeance

By D'ANNA CONWAY
Pampa's volleyball team travels to Borger tonight to face a Bulldog team out for revenge. Still smarting from the last-minute defeat inflicted by the Harvesters in the final round of the Pampa Tournament Saturday, the Dogs should be waiting in their lair for a chance to pounce on the once-beaten Pampa squad.

Borger should stack its deck with a full house of supporters as the two arch rivals meet.

"Every other place I can yell and be in communication with the team," said Coach Lynn Wolfe. "but I can't at Borger because it's so noisy."

When asked how the rowdy crowd might affect play, Wolfe said, "It bothers us a little and we don't play our normal game, but I told the girls that they have to accept it like they would a pimple on their face. You got it and you know it's there, and you've just got to accept it 'till it goes away."

She said the closeness of Saturday's contest was due to "a loss of concentration," so Wolfe said tonight's game plan would include being "oblivious to the fact that we're playing another team, and to just play the ball when it comes over the net, which has been our aim all along."

"Also, we've got something to prove to ourselves. We want to try and find out how really good we are. They'll be mean and tough — they always are over there — but we'll be ready for 'em," she concluded.

Tonight's JV game begins at 6 p.m., with the varsity match to begin 20 minutes after its conclusion.

Moore scores narrow win

Margie Moore scored a narrow victory in the Top O' Texas Racing Pigeon Club's latest outing.

Her bird came in first with a speed of 1174.541 yards per minute, barely finishing ahead of V.C. Moore's top entry, which clocked in at 1174.354. Ten lofts entered 110 birds in the event, which began under clear skies and 5-10 mph northeast winds and ended under clear skies and variable winds of 5-10 mph.

Margie Moore also had the fourth-place finisher (1173.792), while V.C. Moore had birds finishing fifth (1172.297) and tenth (1138.578).

Jam Cantrell's bird was third with a speed of 1173.981. Margaret McPhillips had the sixth best entry at 1171.720, A.P. Coombes' birds finished seventh and eighth with times of 1162.525 and 1151.755, and Darrell Bolen's pigeon was ninth in 1148.221.

Expo pitcher expects Reds to beat Pirates

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Coming into this weekend, there was a good chance Dave Palmer would be on the mound Wednesday, pitching against either the Pittsburgh Pirates in a one-game playoff or the Cincinnati Reds in a best-of-five series for the National League pennant.

Now, the Glens Falls native, and millions of others, will be in front of their television set watching the Pirates and the Reds square off.

Palmer, a highly successful rookie with the Montreal Expos, said Monday he thinks the Reds will beat the Pirates, a team that outlasted the Expos to win the National League's Eastern Division on the last day of the regular season.

"Both the Pirates and Reds have good offensive clubs," said Palmer, who finished the season with a 10-2 record, including a club-record eight straight wins.

"However, because the Reds have a pitching staff that is better rested, I think Cincinnati will win the National League playoffs," Palmer said. "They could go to the five-game limit."

Palmer says he hasn't lost any respect for the Pirates. "Pittsburgh has more overall talent than the Reds, is a better road club and has a hitting advantage because the Reds don't have a good, front-line left-hander, which is needed to neutralize the bats of Dave Parker and Willie Stargell."

However, Palmer says he expects Cincinnati to prevail because of pitcher Tom Seaver and the suspicion that Palmer's Expos might have burned out Pittsburgh during their exciting pennant battle.

Tony Dorsett gains confidence

DALLAS (AP) — Tony Dorsett is feeling better, seeing better and running better.

The end result is that the Dallas Cowboys are getting better.

"The Cincinnati game did worlds for our confidence," said Dorsett, who tore off 119 yards on 20 carries as Dallas dominated the Bengals 38-13 Sunday. "I know I could see holes I hadn't been seeing. I felt good accelerating. My injured toe is healed completely now except it's a little sore."

Dorsett, who gained over 1,000 yards in his freshman and sophomore seasons with the Cowboys, broke his toe when he dropped a mirror on it in July.

"It's 100 per cent healed now except it still gets sore," said Dorsett, who has two 100 yard days in the three games he has played.

Dorsett has yet to break a long run for a touchdown, his specialty at Pittsburgh where he was a Heisman Trophy winner and in his first two seasons with the Cowboys.

His longest run this season has been 24 yards.

"I'll break one soon," said Dorsett. "I was just a step away several times Sunday."

Dorsett had 81 yards in the first quarter, showing his speed of old.

"I'm ready for plenty of work," said Dorsett Monday. "I'd like to carry the ball 25 times a game. A running back has to carry the ball that many times to be productive now because defenses are so geared to stop the run. I carried it 38 times one time at Pittsburgh. I wouldn't mind that many calls."

Dorsett said Dallas needed the big offensive explosion against the Bengals.

"We needed it to get our confidence back," Dorsett said. "It's the first time we've generated big offense in the first quarter."

Dorsett was needed for the slow way he gets off the ground and back to the huddle ala Jim Brown.

Nebraska fifth, Penn State out of college poll

By The Associated Press
Southern California, Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas held onto the top four spots, while the Nebraska Cornhuskers jumped from sixth to fifth in The Associated Press college football rankings this week.

The unbeaten Cornhuskers scored a lopsided 42-17 victory over Penn State Saturday and received 999 points in balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. The loss, meanwhile, knocked previously 18th-ranked Penn State out of the Top Twenty.

Southern Cal, which needed a touchdown with 32 seconds left to edge Louisiana State 17-12, received 47 first-place votes and 1,222 of a possible 1,240 points. LSU's near miss also benefitted the Tigers, enabling them to jump from 20th to 17th.

The defending national champs from Alabama clobbered Vanderbilt 66-3 for 14 first-place votes and 1,180 points, while No. 3 Oklahoma clobbered Rice 63-21 and earned 1,080 points.

The other first-place vote went to Texas, a 21-0 winner over Missouri, which fell from fifth to 15th. The Longhorns received 1,053 points.

After Nebraska came No. 6 Houston with 838, No. 7 Washington with 777, No. 8 Ohio State with 683, No. 9 Florida State with 662 and No. 10 Notre Dame with 656.

Houston jumped from eighth to sixth by routing West Texas State 49-10. Washington climbed from ninth to seventh by downing Fresno State 49-10. Ohio State moved from 14th to eighth by downing UCLA 17-13. Florida State defeated Virginia Tech 17-10 and went from 12th to ninth and Notre Dame's 27-3 drubbing of Michigan State lifted the Fighting Irish from 15th to 10th.

The Second Ten consisted of Michigan, Purdue, Arkansas, North Carolina State, Missouri, Michigan State, LSU, North Carolina, Tennessee and Brigham Young.

Last week it was Michigan, Florida State, Arkansas, Ohio State, Notre Dame, N.C. State, UCLA, Penn State, Southern Methodist and LSU.

North Carolina, Tennessee and Brigham Young made the Top Twenty for the first time this season. Carolina crushed Army 41-3, Tennessee trounced Auburn 35-17 and BYU defeated Texas-El Paso 31-7.

Besides Penn State, a long-time regular in the Top Twenty, and UCLA, SMU also dropped out by losing to Tulane 24-17.

Campbell rested while other backs get needed work

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler Coach Bum Phillips has been criticized for using Earl Campbell too much and he's been criticized for not using him enough.

If anyone is inclined to criticize, it would be the latter group's turn to stand up and be heard.

Campbell, bothered by a foot bruise, rushed carried only 18 times in Sunday's 31-10 victory over Cleveland but Phillips expects few complaints this time.

Campbell scored his third touchdown of the game on the first drive of the third quarter and then gave the rest of the Oiler running corps much needed work.

"I don't think anyone will criticize that offense," Phillips said Monday. "We played a lot of people not because we were ahead but because they are good players. Earl could have carried 35 times if we needed him."

They didn't.

Boobie Clark ran with the ball for the first time this season. Starting fullback Tim Wilson had his biggest production of the season with 46 yards on four carries and Rob Carpenter carried 11 times for 57 yards.

The Oilers had all the breaks their way Sunday, Phillips said. "We didn't do anything differently, but it turned out differently." This is one time we had everything go our way. We had a couple of balls dropped and they bounced right back to us.

"You've got to get those breaks. I've seen (Pittsburgh quarterback) Terry Bradshaw double dribble a football and then throw a completed pass. We had those kind of breaks Sunday."

Oiler center Carl Mauck prevented two Oiler turnovers by falling on fumbles. The Oiler defense, using a four-man rush in passing situations, dumped two Browns quarterbacks five times for 52 yards in losses.

It was a rare runaway victory for Houston, which won its 10 games in 1978 all by seven or less points. It was Houston's biggest victory margin since Nov. 6, 1977 when the Oilers beat Chicago 47-0.

Phillips said the Oilers would need another outstanding game Sunday against St. Louis, whom the Oilers defeated during the exhibition season.

Packers pull out all stops in win

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers had been 1-3. Their unique fans, while still fiercely loyal, had taken to booing of late.

Coach Bart Starr and quarterback David Whitehurst had been severely criticized all last week.

In other words, Packer safety Johnnie Gray said, the team had everything going for it.

"We were under no pressure tonight because nobody gave us a chance," Gray said after Monday night's 27-14 National Football League upset of the New England Patriots.

"Everybody was fired up," he said. "Part of it was the Monday night thing — the national TV exposure. But there was a lot of personal pride at stake, too, because of all the things that were written and said."

The Packers vented their frustrations on the heavily favored Patriots with Whitehurst passing 15 yards to Aundra Thompson for one touchdown and running for another.

The Green Bay defense set up three touchdowns with interceptions of Steve Grogan passes, and tackled New England's scrambling quarterback five times for 31 yards in losses.

The manner in which the Packers upset the team which had ranked third in the NFL on offense and second on defense was almost as startling as the upset itself.

Deluged with criticism after playing conservatively for a tie in regulation, only to lose in overtime at Minnesota eight days earlier, the Packers this time held nothing back.

They surprised New England with a 3-4 defensive alignment. They blitzed — a rarity for them. They passed from their own end zone. They ran — unsuccessfully — on fourth-and-1.

They threw on first down. Receiver James Lofton tried a forward pass. They ran plays without a huddle and holder David Beverly even tried to pass to kicker Chester Marcol on a fake field goal play.

If the wide-open play was in any way intended as a response to the past week's censure, Starr would not admit it.

But he couldn't mask his elation. "That was an inspirational, an emotional victory as I have ever been a part of," he said. "New England has one heck of a team. We were grateful just to be on national TV against them. To win is a huge bonus for us."

"I think we had to open it up, to have a chance against them. We felt that, in order to prepare properly for a team of their caliber, we couldn't hold anything back."

NEW ENGLAND QUARTERBACK Steve Grogan found himself on the ground five times while trying to pass against the Green Bay Packers Monday night. The Pack came away with a 27-14 upset victory. (Ap Laserphoto)

In Cincinnati Seaver, Candelaria open Reds-Pirates playoff tonight

CINCINNATI (AP) — Playoff veterans Tom Seaver and John Candelaria, throwing hard after being hampered by mysterious ailments earlier this season, will be the starting pitchers in tonight's opening game of the National League championship series.

Seaver, 16-6, will open for the Cincinnati Reds and Candelaria, 14-9, will start for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner said Candelaria "is fit, 100 percent" after being bothered with a recurring ache in his side.

"He says he's ready to pitch," Tanner said. "When he's pitching well, there's nobody any better."

Seaver, out a month with back trouble, came back to win 11 straight and now says he feels "fine."

"I've pitched fewer innings this year than I ever have in the big leagues," Seaver said. "Being injured early in the year cost me about five starts."

Before Tanner announced Monday that Candelaria would start the first game and Jim Bibby, 12-4, the second, Candelaria refused to admit he would get the nod.

"I know, but I'll never tell," he said. "Who would you start?"

Seaver, meanwhile, talked pensively about the playoff series and how his perspective has changed.

"Right now, I get more enjoyment out of seeing guys like Fish (pitching coach Bill Fischer) and Humie (pitcher Tom Hume) enjoy it than in me winning," Seaver said.

He admitted that the clubhouse celebration after the Reds had clinched the West Division title brought back memories of his first league championship with the New York Mets.

"The way they were running around, I could see myself 10 years ago," Seaver said. "I acted the same way in 1969. The excitement manifests itself in different ways now."

He said the thing that hasn't changed is the motivation.

"I love to pitch. I love it more now than ever. It's the same difference if it's June 1 and there's 2,000 people in the stands or if it's October and it's on national television," Seaver said. "I never predicated my effort or the importance of the game on external circumstances."

Living the experience of a major league competition has become more important to Seaver as he sees his playing days dwindling.

"The experience itself is more fun than the post-game celebration," he said. "When I was younger, I thought 'That's the ultimate experience, the post-game clubhouse celebration.'"

"I learned I was wrong. The ultimate joy is right out there, on the field. I enjoy it more out there than in here — or when I go off by myself."

Ironically, Cincinnati's starter in the second game will be rookie Frank Pastore, 6-7, a fireballer who reminds observers of the younger Tom Seaver.

Boosters meet tonight

Films of Pampa's 26-0 victory over Berger will highlight tonight's Harvester Booster Club meeting, set for 7:30 in the high school cafeteria.
 The films will feature two touchdown passes from Greg Quarles to Keenan Henderson, Steve McDougall's 88-yard punt return for a score and Bobby Dorsey's two-yard plunge for his fourth TD of the season.
 Also on film will be Pampa's "Tasmanian Devil" defense, so named by the Altus (Okla.) Times-Democrat after the Harvesters put the clamps on the Bulldogs' vaunted offense for a 15-7 win.
 Pampa will be off Friday night, but will return to Harvester Field for an engagement with Lubbock Coronado Oct. 12.
