City facing collection problems

Of The Pampa News

During the past few weeks, a shortage of sanitation workers has reduced neighborhood garbage collections in Pampa from two a week to one -- or less

Yet the city government has announced plans to raise sanitation fees an undetermined amount in fiscal year 1979 - 80, which begins City officials admit the situation is bad -- they are reminded daily by telephone calls from irate citizens -- but they say there isn't much they can do about it for the time being The problem, officials say, is caused by three things: not enough sanitation employees, muddy alleys caused by unusually wet weather, and the fact that the city is in the process of converting to a mechanized container collection system. Lack of labor is the most obvious factor contributing to the city's difficulty in picking up the garbage. The sanitation department has "historically had a problem with labor," according to City Manager Mack Wofford, becayse of low wages and the nature of the work.

"It's not that the city doesn't want to do it (pick up the trash). it's the manpower that doesn't want to do it," said Sanitation Superintendent Allan Vickery. "We've got the trucks but not the

Vickery said Thursday the 30 - member department was short eight workers. As a result, he said, only four crews are handling five collection routes

It takes about 212 days for each crew to complete its route. Vickery said. Each crew is supposed to handle its route twice a week. But with only four crews running, he said, each crew does its route once a week, and then they combine at the end of the week to complete the fifth route. So the garbage is only picked up once a week. Vickery said, and the amount of trash increases weekly

Wofford said one garbage collection every five days is "minimal. We're trying to go at least that." Residents in some sections of the city, however, have reported to the Pampa News that one collection every ten days or so is more often the case.

(A resident of Terry Road called the News and complained that his trash hadn't been picked up in more than a week. Noting that sanitation fees are about to increase, the caller said "They (the city) should give it to an independent group so they can pick it

Personnel Director David Callison said high rates of turnover and absenteeism in the sanitation department are part of the labor problem. The turnover rate in the department las year was about two people per month, he said.

"Terminations are exceeding hiring," Callison said, because workers either are fired or quit in favor of higher - paying jobs in private industry. Starting salaries for Pampa's sanitation workers is $633 a month, and the maximum pay is $805.

"Unemployment is so low that there are not many people looking for jobs, period," Callison said. And, he said, the city has tried to maintain certain standards in its employees, which has added to the difficulty of finding people "Trying to get dependable people to accept the job that we offer for the money we can afford to pay is difficult," Callison said. 'You can't just put a warm body out there. I've heard that suggestion before, but that can cost more in the long - run. Aggravating the problem of keeping a full sanitation crew has been the transition to a container collection system. Ironically, one reason the city is switching to the new system is to increase When the container system is fully implemented, the city will need only 16 sanitation employees. The department is trying to eliminate 14 jobs by attrition, and so new employees are being hired on a temporary basis, with no benefits.

'When they're only getting $633 a month and they know they're temporary, this does not give them a lot of incentive to go to work." Wofford said.

"We want to phase out some people, but the problem is the people are phasing out before the containers come in." Callison

Six hundred of the containers are scheduled to be delivered here by Monday, but the system won't be in full swing until October or November. Wofford said it may take until then before the city's garbage collection woes are resolved. 'Hopefully it will be better before the containerization becomes effective," Wofford said. "As long as the weather remains dry, that will help us a great deal.

"But (service) is probably not going to return to the level it should be until those containers are put in there.

Vietnam to allow U. S. to pick up refugees

Ho Chi Minh City to pick up 258 refugees who are awaiting reunification with their families in the United States, a visiting U.S. congressional group said Saturday

The announcement came with a series of statements by Vietnamese leaders seemingly aimed at speeding establishment of normal relations with the United States

Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., leader of a 10-member congressional delegation, told reporters that Vietnamese officials also said U.S. military representatives will be able to visit Hanoi periodically to seek information on Americans still missing in action after the Wolff criticized the State Department for a "lack of concentration on the MIA issue in the past." Sources said Vietnam may have new information to account for some of the estimated 2,300 Americans still listed as missing in action.

Earlier. Vietnam's acting foreign minister told The Associated Press in an exclusive interview that the Hanoi government might pull its troops out of Cambodia.

The refugees. MIAs and Cambodia are the three issues mentioned by American officials as obstacles in negotiations to establish normal relations between Washingtion and Hanoi

Wolff said he was optimistic about improved relations between the two former adversaries in the near future. He said Hanoi officials told him U.S. planes can pick up the refugees in Ho Chi Minh City —

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — Vietnam will let American planes fly to formerly the South Vietnamese capital of Saigon — at any time, as part of the Vietnamese government's effort to establish normal emigration from its country while stemming the seaborne flight of thousands of refugees to settlement camps elsewhere in Southeast

> This visit should bring progress in bringing our nations together. Wolff said in a toast during a dinner hosted by the American party. "We have a tradition of turning adversaries into friends."

The acting Vietnamese foreign minister. Nguyen Co Thach, replied. "A new page has been turned and the future looks very bright for our friendship.

Rep. Clarence Long. D-Md., said the Vietnam War took place because American presidents became too strong, and Congress now should be more powerful

"We will support that," said Thach. Earlier. Thach, who has emerged as Hanoi's chief international spokesman, told the AP in an English-language interview that Vietnam has had difficulty providing economic help for neighboring Cambodia, which it invaded eight months ago.

Acknowledging that a long-term occupation could prove troublesome, he noted that Vietnamese forces had withdrawn after two previous occupations Something unnecessary is uncomfortable," said Thach, speaking in English. "You must even take off your watch at night. Thach gave no indication when such a pullout might take place.

Riot police block Klan marchers

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - About 200 riot-equipped policemen blocked the march of scores of Ku Klux Klansmen at the outskirts of this Alabama capital city on Saturday and confiscated a small arsenal of weapons from the "white power" marchers.

The Klansmen, whose ranks had swelled to more than 100 on the last leg of a march from Selma, were ordered to lay down the weapons and warned not to enter the city.

The marchers, most of them wearing T-shirts and jeans with many carrying clubs, turned over their weapons and filed peacefully into a campsite about 200 yards outside the city limits. But they vowed they would parade into Montgomery on Sunday or go to jail.

Police said they confiscated clubs, knives, brass knuckles and chemical weapons in the showdown on U.S. 80. They also confiscated a black van and two pickup trucks where at least a dozen guns allegedly were stored

The Klan had set out on a 50-mile hike from Selma on Thursday. retracing the route taken by late Dr. Martin Luther King and his followers in 1965

'We're going to march into Montgomery tomorrow or go to jail,' said KKK Imperial Wizard Bill Wilkinson of Denham Springs, the march leader, after he had urged his followers to comply with police orders to lay down their weapons.

Mayor Emory Folmar, who was on hand for Saturday's confrontation, had ordered the Klan not to parade in his city, an order that was backed up in local courts.

The marchers were stopped just outside the city limits on Saturday by Police Chief Charles Swindall, backed up be city, county and state police, some with trained dogs.

He ordered the Klansmen to lay down their clubs. They did. Wilkinson then picked up a bullhorn to tell his followers:

This is a denial of our rights to march into Montgomery, but I ask you to lay down your weapons. Everybody just keep calm. Swindall then ordered the Klansmen to disperse in a manner that

Police, who had lined the highway on three sides of the marchers. opened their ranks and allowed the Klansmen to file into a campsite area where they planned to spend the night

But Wilkinson vowed there would be another showdown.

We're going to march into Montgomery tomorrow," he said. We're not going home tomorrow.

As the Klansmen were making their way to the campsite, Folmar told police. "Make sure they don't have any weapons

By late Saturday, a number of cars and trucks had pulled into the large field where the Klansmen were camped in a heavy downpour. A huge burlap-wrapped cross was erected for a nighttime cross-burning ceremony

Education bureaucracy an American tragedy

Members of the Texas teacher's' union cheered the other day when a bill calling for establishment of a separate cabinet-level U.S. Department of Education was passed in the House of Representatives. That was to be expec.ed, since many members of the Texas State Teachers Association are big admirers of the National Education Association, the national teachers' union, which had placed priority on the passage of the bill in both the House and the Senate.

This is Big Labor getting its way. One cannot deny that the teachers organizations named are not labor unions — and the NEA is one of the largest. if not the largest, in the land.

The NEA has been one of Jimmy Carter's babies, too, and while the two may have some differences, one sees indications they're still in a mutual

Among the Texas cheerleaders in Washington when this new American tragedy occurred - a vote for the Department of Education of 210 to 206 were Cecile Russell, TSTA president, and Barbara O'Neal, Waco teacher and head of the Texas Educators Political Action Committee (TEPAC)

A similar measure was passed 72-21 by the U.S. Senate on April 30. It should be noted that Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas voted for the union-supported outfit. Sen. John Tower of Texas opposed it. Bentson has been very liberal in his actions in recent months, if one will recall the Panama Canal fiasco and some other non-conservative actions of the man.

The House and Senate versions of the bill now will go to a conference committee to settle differences between the two.

The full House and Senate then must approve the compromise version before it can go to President Carter for his signature which would make it a federal law. Carter has publicly supported establishment of a U.S. Department of Education — a contradiction of the man's campaign promises to cut down on personnel on the federal payroll and reducing the size of the federal bureaucracy

The proposed department would be headed by a cabinet-level secretary of

The cabinet-level department has been a legislative priority not only of the NEA but of its 53 state affiliates, the national school boards association and the national PTA

The President said recently in a press conference, "I have advocated and worked for the establishment of an independent Department of Education. I don't think education has gotten an adequate hearing because it has been a part of the Health, Education and Welfare Department, with health and welfare (having) the dominant portions.

And Texas Russell said. "Not only would the new department help to break up the huge HEW bureaucracy, but it would increase efficiency of the federal government in supporting public schools . . . and establish a full-time top-level advocate for public education at the federal level. Now, ponder this. It is a commendable thing to remove education from the NEW bureaucracy. It would also be commendable to remove health and welfare from it, too, thus killing it dead. But the establishment of a new cabinet-level Department of Education — "a full-time top-level advocate for public education at the federal level" — is wrong, morally wrong at that. The action can only lead to a full control of American education by the federal government. There is still time for the full Congress to kill the proposal. Education is a matter of local-level action, not the business of federal level action, not the business of federal government. It should be a private matter, not public. It should never have been in the HEW in the first place, nor in Washington, only at a local level. There is no need for a U.S. Department of Education which will serve only as the political tool of what may be the biggest union in the nation. Establishing the department will be a major step toward placing control of the minds of America's learners in the hands of a union that seems to be grasping for even more power than the federal government now has.

The artful politics of Jane Fonda

by JEFFREY D. WALLIN

Dr. Wallin is Associate Professor of Political Science at Arkansas State University and currently visiting professor of Politics at University of Dallas.

California, the stand-up comic of American state governments, has once again excited the political humor of the nation. The latest foible of the sunshine state was highlighted by Governor Brown's July 21st excoriation of the California Senate for rejecting his appointment of Jane Fonda to the state Arts Council. According to Brown, the Senate was clearly guilty of that most heinous of crimes, mixing art with politics. The state Senators, says Brown, "are more interested in politics than in artistic achievement." A perplexing criticism, considering the chosen profession of the senators.

Jane Fonda herself, in a reply to the California Senate on the editorial page of the Los Angeles Times, admits that there is no question in her mind that art can be a persuasive form of politics. The proper role of an artist, she claims, is to criticize society and the "establishment." Just how political her art can be is shown by the success of her anti-nuclear film, "The China Syndrome.

But what is most interesting about Ms. Fonda's reply is that she apparently believes it is undemocratic of the California State Senate to deny her the appointment, and to deny her the opportunity of defending her political beliefs on the Senate floor.

Democracy evidently means something different to Jane Fonda than it does to the rest of us. The word democracy has as its root the Greek demos, which means the people. Democracy is rule by the people, either directly, or by their representatives.

In their capacity as elected representatives of the people of the state of California, the California Senate rejected the appointment of Jane Fonda who, incidentally, has never been elected to any public office. The procedure was in every respect perfectly democratic.

Tain't true! Once you're politically dead, you stay DEAD.

principle of democracy requires the California Senate to confirm her as a paid critic of the democratic society that elected it. Even if one were to accept Ms. Fonda's dubious proposition that the purpose of art is to criticize society, it is hard to understand why any society - and especially a society based on the consent of the people - is obligated to pay somebody to Should artists, for example, be required to pay someone to urge them to conform to the standards of the societies they live in? This, of course, would be absurd; but no more so than what Jane Fonda demands of the people of California.

Of more importance to Ms. Fonda. however, is the charge by Senator Robert Nimmo that during the Vietnam War she gave aid and comfort to the enemy, and is on that ground a traitor to her country. This afforded Ms. Fonda the opportunity, much loved by the "acting community", to weigh in with the reduction ad McCarthy argument that someone is once again raising "the spirit of the witch hunts of the

One does not have to sympathize with the antics of the late Senator Joseph McCarthy to weary of this charge. The fact of the matter is that Jane Fonda is no stranger to the term traitor, having applied the term herself to the President of the United States in 1972. Indeed, in her response to the Senate she again suggested that not she. but rather those who supported the war in Vietnam should be labelled traitors.

A traitor is the converse or opposite of a patriot. And a patriot, as the root word 'patria'' informs us, is one who loves the land of his fathers, his country. In our own democracy, our "country" is considerably more than the place where our fathers were born, for many of our fathers or our fathers' fathers were born elsewhere. American patriotism could more correctly be said to be attachment to this country's democratic principles, as expressed, for example, in the Declaration of Independence and the institutions which embody them. It requires that one do nothing calculated to weaken them, and, presumably, that one does whatever is in one's power to sustain them. This certainly does not require us to agree to every policy supported by the people, whether embodied in the resolves of their representatives or not. It may even, as Ms. Fonda suggests, require that one speak out on issues where one thinks the country is wrong, particularly so if the error is thought to be a grievous one. That the country, or in this instance, the state the principle of democracy. The objection to Jane Fonda is not that she spoke out against the Vietname war--although one wonders at her lack of moral indignation over the Democratic Republic of Vietnam's brutal treatment of the "boat people." The objection is that her radio broadcast from Hanoi, on July 13, 1972, urging American soldiers to stop fighting, was calculated to help, to "aid and abet" the enemy

Fonda defends this act on the ground she was refused permission to make the same broadcast from South Vietnam. Does she thir's the North Vietnamese would have allowed her to urge North Vietnamese soldiers to desert their posts? But, of course, she didn't appeal to the enemy to stop fighting, which is precisely the point.

What then, ought to be the proper course of action when a citizen objects to his country's participation in a war? The correct answer was given over a hundred years ago by Abraham Lincoln, the most forceful advocate of democratic principles since Thomas Jefferson.

Lincoln, as a young member of the United States House of Representatives, strongly opposed the Mexican War. He was convinced that it was not only unjust, but harmful to the best interests of the United States, since any Mexican acquisitions were likely to extend chattel slavery westward. Yet, while he seized every opportunity for speaking out against the war, he nevertheless voted for every appropriation of money requested by the President for the sake of prosecuting that war, thereby supporting both the American soldiers in the field and the political process which, erroneously in his opinion,

Rarely does an editor sit down in front of his desk and begin to write without thinking of what the person who reads his masterpiece wants to

Many editors feel they know what is best for their community and thus their newspaper. Well, this is where I differ somewhat. I don't know all the answers and freely admit I don't.

I don't know what you, the reader. want to know in Pampa, Texas because only a very few people write letters to the editor to express their feelings about a specific subject. So without this knowledge I have to design the newspaper on gut feeling rather than drawing from your knowledge.

I don't have all the answers to the problems which face our town, that's right OUR town, and don't even attempt to know all the answers. If I had all the collective knowledge of the readers of the Pampa News I'm sure I would know much more than I do now.

I don't know all the people in town because I am often pre-occupied with my work and newsmen have never been the social animals that others are. So I don't know all the people who have the information which would make me better informed.

I don't know how the readers of the Pampa News feel about the changes I have made simply because no one ever tells me, or hardly ever, what I have done right or wrong.

I do know what makes a newspaper great and that, my friends, are the people who read it everyday. The people who write the letters to the editor and express their views and those who don't. Those people who drop by the office to say I have done a good job or to horsewhip me.

I do know how to make a new spaper look good. With photographs of local people, with local news items and promotions of events going on in

Many editors feel they know what is best and never listen to what their readers have to say but I am not that way. I won't let you take over my job of deciding what is best for the paper but I will listen to what the people who read the newspaper have to say And try to work with their ideas so the newspaper is able to grow as the town

I sit here writing another column, which for all I know isn't even read, smoking my pipe waiting for someone somewhere to stimulate my way of thinking with their ideas.

All I can say is my number is 669-2525 and I am waiting to hear what you have to say about what I do.

Second Davis trial raises questions

EDITOR'S NOTE: The murder-for-hire trial of a Texas millionaire, which begins Monday, raises some unusual and provocative questions. Those issues are explored in this article, a cooperative effort by The Associated Press and Carolyn Ondreias and Ron Hutcheson of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - On Jan. 22, in the secrecy of a Houston jury room, a 47-year-old medical secretary scribbled out a brief, emotional note.

It said "We, the jury, have reviewed, discussed and debated the evidence innumerable times, each time reaching the same conclusion...we feel we have faithfully fulfilled our duty as jurors and it would serve no purpose to continue to deliberate. Minutes later, a tight-lipped, chain-smoking judge ended the three-month ordeal. He declared a mistrial and freed the millionaire defendant on $30,000 bond.

"The system," Judge Wallace Moore said angrily, "has been abused."

And now, half a year later, the system of which he spoke undergoes a new and perhaps sterner test, one which raises a multitude of provocative questions

Beginning Monday, a jury of eight men and four women will sit in judgment of industrial czar Cullen Davis, 45, reputedly the richest criminal defendant in Texas history.

The State of Texas contends he ordered the contract murder last August of his divorce judge and others and paid FBI informant David McCrory $25,000 in the mistaken belief the judge was dead innocence of Cullen Davis. Haynes labeled the result "a victory for the system."

with the Davis case

Prosecutor Jack Strickland disagreed, saying "I don't think it shows you can buy justice, but I think the system is the loser in this trial...there was no resolution of the issues and in large measure, much of what we were about here dissolved into non-issues. "I don't think the expiration of time or the process was well served here. The system was indeed abused.' Strickland's boss, District Attorney Tim Curry, conceded the system was not flawless, and questioned his own ability to cope

"I was under the perhaps naive belief that the system works regardless of whether you're rich or poor. "I guess the system, as we know it, is just not designed for this sort of situation...no one involved in it will tell you candidly it is

"But it's thee best we have, and on a day-to-day basis it works. You run into times when it falters and fails...it's a cold, cruel world out there. You just have to hustle along with what you've Retired Judge Arthur Tipps of Wichita Falls, who has presided over Davis' bond and venue hearings, agreed with Curry that the system itself is in effect on trial here.

"I'm afraid people are saying that if you have enough money, you can beat the judicial system...based on the acquittal in Amarillo and the hung jury in Houston," he said.

ELECTRIC ENGRAVERS used in Operation Identification, a nationwide crime prevention program, were denated Friday by the Pampa Kiwanis Club to Cabot Corp. and the Pampa Council on Ministries. The engravers will be available for Cabot employees and church members to discourage theft by marking their Annual textbook battle to begin soon

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - It's time for the annual battle over which textbooks will be used in Texas public schools.

The State Textbook Committee will hear complaints Monday through Thursday about the 44 textbooks up for adoption this year.

Publishers will sweat through whether the $23 million worth of books will make the approved list for order by local school districts. Eighteen groups and individuals have protested one or several of the titles. The objections and book publishers' replies fill 11 volumes. Both the protesters and publishers' representatives will appear at the four-day hearing. The 15-member textbook committee will make its selections Sept. 10-12. The State Board of Education will hold a public hearing Nov. 8 on the committee's recommendations before making final selections

Only high school texts on typing, health, computer math, government and auto repairs are up for review this year. Approximately one-sixth of all public school subjects are reviewed each year. Texts are adopted for a maximum of six years.

No other state conducts such far-flung textbook hearings with

Custom sparks violence, death

SEADRIFT, Texas (AP) — The code of territorial fishing rights is really nothing more than a coastal custom. But for decades, it has governed the fiercely independent shrimpers, crabbers and fishermen who make their living from San Antonio Bay.

And that custom has now become the center of a dispute including some violence — in this fishing village of 1,100 on the Gulf Coast, about halfway between Corpus Christi and Houston.

On one side of the battle are local crabbers; on the other, their newly transplanted Vietnamese refugee counterparts.

The feud that has provoked the shooting death of a local crabber and the firebombings of four Vietnamese boats and a refugee residence has been simmering for more than two years - ever since some of the refugees attracted in 1976 by a new crab-processing plant took up crabbing, shrimping and fishing.

The hard-working Vietnamese, the local fishermen complained, did not honor the gentleman's agreement and regularly intruded when a local crabber had discovered a good fishing spot The locals also resented the Vietnamese crowding the bay, cutting into what they fear is already a diminishing harvest. The Vietnamese, most of whom speak no English, say the local crabbers provoked the confrontation. Language and cultural barriers compounded the problem. "They do things so differently. They're just so different," said one

Texas beaches SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) - A week after scientists warned of an environmental catastrophe, tourists lolled Saturday on South Texas beaches cleansed of scattered tar balls from the world's worst oil spill.

Although the dire warnings have thinned the crowds at this popular tourist spot, no signs of oil or tar balls were evident on the shoreline. Coast Guard crews scoured the beaches all last week in anticipation of much heavier concentrations of oil from a runaway Mexican well. "Right now things are calm, but the threat is still here." said

Roger Meacham of the Environmental Protection Agency. The oil drifting northward from the Ixtoc I well, 500 miles south of here off Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula, was expected to enter U.S. waters a week ago and wash ashore on Texas' shores two days later.

Businessmen feared for the multimillion-dollar tourist industry and environmentalists were concerned for wildlife that flourishes along the coast, especially in the lush Laguna Madre, a shallow. 113-mile long bay between the mainland and Padre Island.

But so far the catastrophe has not occurred. Gov. Bill Clements toured the area by helicopter Friday and said "It's much to-do about nothing," although he agreed the danger is not over.

The Mexican well that blew out June 3 and caused the spill has not been capped, and Clements, an oilman who owned the firm that leased the drilling equipment used on 1xtoc I, said it may be mid-September before the flow is stopped.

Coast Guard reconnaissance flights show the leading edge of the main slick remains just south of Texas in Mexican waters. A few patches have broken loose and are drifting 15 to 100 miles offshore east of here. So far clusters of "tar balls" that have littered some parts of South Padre Island have neither chased vacationers from the surf nor caused any environmental impact

And initial toxicity analyses showed that the little oil that did come ashore is not potent enough, after two months in the water, to kill full-grown shrimp and fish, although baby fish and eggs are sensitive. Meacham was cautious in his predictions Saturday about where the oil may go next. "That's anyone's guess because of the strange pattern of this flow," he said. "The flow that has developed is out of anyone's control. When the oil's floating on the water it does many strange a things. He said predictions the oil would wash ashore last Tuesday were based on prevailing Gulf winds, but that the winds "just stopped."

"A week ago when things started happening fast, everyone involved expected a much greater impact by now." Meacham said.

"Of course as soon as we got everything in place the whole thing stalled. Maybe we scared it off with all this wonderful equipment.

NEW YORK (AP) - Despite a deluge of . Big Board volume reaches a high for the a day against 33.09 million the week before. Of course, the idea that stock prices should rally at some point every summer simply because it is summer makes no logical sense

To cynics, it might well seem that the phrase "summer rally" - like that other Wall Street cliche, "profit-taking" - can be dismissed as merely happy talk that sounds good but explains nothing.

Still, the fact remains that the market has been rising steadily in recent weeks when the news that is supposed to influence investors' decisions has ranged from bad to

Gold, after a brief setback, is back above $300 an ounce; the dollar is still struggling in foreign exchange, and a recession is widely presumed to be unfolding.

In addition, there is no sign yet of the easing of inflation that so many experts have predicted for the second half of 1979.

But even that news induced only a modest decline in the stock market on Thursday, and by Friday prices were moving back up again.

For a possible explanation of this phenomenon, the Value Line Investment Survey suggested that one try to imagine what is going through the minds of professional money managers these days.

A counselor, a mediator

A school's counselor provides a guiding hand for students and in the same light sits at his desk as a mediator for them, parents and teachers.

His position leans to constant compromise since he is in the middle of arguments and questions among parents, teachers and students.

Pampa High School's senior counselor, John English, has found arguments and answers to have more than one side to them, but admits this discovery to be an evolution from his years of

When I started I thought things were black and white, but over the years I have decided there is gray in the middle," said English.

"I'm less sure of a right answer because there are many sides to an issue," he said. Hopefully, I've become more understanding," he said of results from this change, which he labels as "mellowing." From his counselor's vantage point, the revolving mad world of education is full of revelations and changes. As for the age old question of how does a teacher successfully discipline her students.

English observes, "It is an individual thing.

Some teachers have built a certain rapport with the students to maintain discipline. And it works for them." One example he pointed out was today's teachers usually assign less homework because of extra - curricular activities and concentrate their efforts in the class period. However, other teachers, the more traditional ones, have successfully made homework a part of students' learning experiences outside the classroom. English also notes that teachers today deal with a different attitude in students. He noted with relief that current students' concerns have been funneled into actions other than riots, such as those in the '60s.

"They (today's students) are good thinkers. but not as vocal in protesting," he continued.

"They are concerned with what it will be like for them 30 years from now," he said, "and this affects their attitudes."

From another perspective, English has found students to be the same with the only change being time.

Students are basically the same with the same personalities and problems," he said. All students have to grow up, he added. "It's certainly difficult to grow up, and anything a counselor can do to help certainly makes it all worth his while," he said. Since his initiation into the education field, English said he has undergone some personal changes other than mellowing. When English first began his educational career, he wanted to teach and carried out this desire for four years in Dumas. A 1960 graduate of Pampa High School, he returned to his alma mater in 1966 to further pursue teaching and instructed English classes for three years. His responsibility then changed to that of a counselor, but his desire to teach was still there. "I miss teaching, but counselling has become a part of me," he said of his change.

"I lost the relationship of student to teacher, but have gained one (relationship)," he had explained earlier. "It (the relationship) is a help relationship.

English's daily work includes checking each senior student's records for the proper number of hours and credits for graduation and guiding him if any problems are seen or arise.

The constant contact with students and their records has offered a much valued pleasantry to English's life at school. "By the middle of the student's senior year, I'm able to recognize them and that's nice," he said.

A soil nitrogen analysis following a 60 bushel - per - acre wheat yield indicated the nitrogen level had dropped from 124 pounds per acre to 13 pounds per acre.

Soil tests from the Extension Soil Testing Labortory at the Texas A & M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center near Lubbock provide a guide for making decisions on what, when, and how much is needed

Nitrogen is the element likely to be in shortest supply the soil's nitrate nitrogen content, which is determined by soil test. provides an excellent criteria for evaluating the nitrogen need.

The rate of application should be based on nitrogen present in the soil, grazing practices, and on yield potential which is determined by water availability and cultural practices.

On hardlands all or part of the nitrogen can be applied before planting. On sandy soils where leaching may cause nitrogen loss, part of the nitrogen should be applied pre - plant with one or more applications made later in the season.

Insufficient phosphorus may or may not be limiting factor and here again, the soil test can serve well. Phosphorus, second only to nitrogen in importance, is a major contributor to the vigorus early growth that supplies first - quality forage for the beef industry.

Demonstrations recently conducted near Kress, Texas, indicated that wheat yields were increased from 8 to 19 bushels per acre from phosphorus application depending upon phosphorus rate and tillage practices.

Phospate, where needed, should be applied in the seedbed before planting because it does move into the soil with Carc'ul collection of soil samples and information about each operation is essential for a meaningful soil test report. the old ground level leaves encourages new Withing a few days after the sample is base growth while discouraging tall, leggy received, a report is returned showing the plant growth.

Information on sample collection, information sheets, fees, and mailing Great yields of high quality forage and instructions are available from the County SORGHUM INSECTS:

Greenbugs in the Panhandle area are beginning to cause damage to some sorghum. Parasitic wasp activity is apparent, but very light. Producers need to check fields frequently and control measures should be applied based on damage to the plants rather than actual greenbug numbers.

The following guidelines are revised recommendations for this year. On sorghum plants from 6 inches to pre - boot, treat when greenbug colonies cause red spotting or yellowing of leaves and before any entire leaves are killed.

When sorghum is in the pre - boot to heading stage, treat before greenbugs cause the death of one functional leaf.

In the heading to hard - dough stage, treat when greenbug numbers are sufficient to cause death of two normal sized leaves. YELLOW LEAVES SIGNAL NEED FOR CARE

Many normal broadleaf evergreens such as oleanders, privet and viburnum shed old leaves near their bases. But when leaves of most plants turn yellow and drop, that signals an unhealthy plant and a need for special care.

For instance, an improperly watered or fertilized plant may shed its leaves.

Water plants adequately after making frequent, light fertilizer applications, such as 1 to 1 and one - half pounds of am monium sulfate per 100 sq. feet. Make heavy applications only in early spring.

Water when the young tip growth of a plant wilts or the soil's first new inches become dry. After prolonged cloudy weather, do not water plants even though they are wilted.

Slow watering allows saturation of deeper soil depths, encouraging deeper root penetration. Also, deeper saturation assures a soil moisture reserve when topsoil dries.

Oleanders, privet and nandinas tend to shed more leaves than most plants even though they are healthy. Until you prune, it is difficult to force new growth near the base of the plants. Removal of one - third of CHAIRS....for charm, for comfort, for sophisticated decorative accents, for sociable conversation groupings or solitary television watching! What item of furniture offers so much variety, so much scope for your personal, family and entertaining needs?

Today's wide selection of chairs can be any decorator's delight. A good idea is to familiarize yourself with the different types available. The club or lounge chair is a man's favorite. Characterized by simplicity of line, with T or square cushion, this is one of America's favorite chairs. The famous Lawson chair is a good example.

The open-arm chair, usually smaller, has an upholstered seat and back, with the area under the arms open. You'll find it in every style from traditional to Scandinavian modern. Similar, but often smaller still, is the pull-up or occasional chair, light in weight so that it can be easily moved. These are effectively used in pairs.

Decorators often refer also to the "character" chair. It serves the function of lounge or occasional chair, but is styled as a dramatic eye-catcher. Examples are high-back wing chairs, barrel chairs, contemporary rockers, and many others.

From "club" to "character" chair, you'll find them all in stunning variety in our showroom now, in full range of distinctive new fabrics to complement your decorative scheme. Come in and see them all!

Weekly oil report

HOUSTON (AP) - Petroleum trends in Western Europe and Japan have been quite different from those in the United States since the Arab embargo of 1973-1974.

Oil imports have increased sharply in the United States as demand for petroleum products continues to move upward.

By contrast, both Western Europe and Japan have reduced oil imports and cutback on requirements for petroleum products. The communist bloc of Russia, Eastern Europe and China meanwhile has slashed foreign oil requirements and boosted consumption rather dramatically.

Crude oil production in the United States has declined steadily while output in Western Europe and the communist block has increased sharply.

The post-embargo trends are reflected in the new edition of "Statistical Review of the World Oil Industry," an annual publication prepared by British Petroleum Co. Ltd.

The publication places 1976 U.S. demand for petroleum products at 18.3 million barrels a day, an annual average increase of 1.7 percent since a 1973 daily requirement for 16.8 million barrels.

Western Europe consumption of 14.6 million barrels a day represents an annual average decline of 0.9 percent since a 197; demand for 15.1 million barrels daily.

Japan's 1973 demand averaged 5.425 million barrels a day. Last year it was 5.420 million, reflecting a five-year annual average decline of 0.5 percent.

As domestic demand increased, U.S. imports of crude oil and products increased 32.5 percent to a 1978 average of 8.2 million barrels a day as opposed to 6.2 million in 1973.

Western Europe meanwhile was dropping its foreign oil requirements 14.5 percent, from 15.3 million barrels a day in 1973 to 13 million last year.

Japan cut its foreign requirements 7.2 percent, from 5.7 million to 5.3 million barrels daily. Crude production in the United States in 1973 averaged 9.1 million barrels a day. The 1978 average was only 8.7 million. Western Europe production meanwhile was jumping more than 300 percent, from 445,000 barrels a day to more than 1.8 million.

primarily a result of the United Kingdom's North Sea interests. British crude oil production, lumped with Western Europe's

Japan's 1973 production also rated only an Eastern Hemisphere miscellaneous category. Its output, placed at only 10,000 barrels a day last year, was said to have declined at an annual average rate of 4.8 percent the past five years.

Between 1973 and 1978, the communist bloc reduced its oil imports 70 percent, from 455,000 to 135,000 barrels a day. It meanwhile was boosting its exports 56 percent, from 1.285,000 barrels a day to more than 2 million.

Over the five-year period, communist production jumped 46 perulido, from 9.6 million to 14 million barrels a day. Demand for petroleum products jumped 39 percent, from 8.7 million to 12.2 million barrels daily

Russia's crude output moved from 8.4 million to 11.7 million miscellaneous output in 1973, averaged 1.095 million barrels a day barrels a day, an annual average increase of 6.3 percent. China's production did not rate a separate category in 1973 but its 1978 output of 1.9 million was said to represent an annual average increase of 11.9

SOUND COUNTRY

In 1970, Loretta Lynn and Conway Twitty devised a simple formula for making very successful records. Theformula translates into something like: X plus Y equals a hit record. X, of course, is Loretta and Y is Conway. Their newest formula LP is appropriately titled The Very Best of Loretta Lynn and Conway

This 'Best Of' album draws material from the duet's previous album releases: We Only Make Believe, Lead Me On, Louisiana Woman, Mississippi Man, Country Partners, Feelins', United Talent, Dynamic Duo and Honky

Tonk Heroes.

In tallying up the mail count from our readers over the past five years, the most mail has been about buying records. After making a market-by-market study of record distributors, the fact remains that many of our readers are not in a major distribution market where all records are available

Mountains on the moon

Was that a spaceship you saw just of the past lie exposed throughout the settling on the floor of Palo Duro Canyon? A spaceship? Impossible!

Not so, if an imaginative visitor to the state park allows himself a look at the around 250 - million years ago, to the rugged peaks and ravines in the deep, dusky hues of sunset.

In that setting, the canyon might well resemble what Americans watched on television a decade ago, when the Apollo 11 crew made its moon landing in the lunar module Eagle.

Palo Duro Canyon State Park, spreading over 16,403 acres, offers a chance to explore terrain carved by water erosion beginning some 90 million years ago. Even with the meandering Prairie Dog Town Fork of the Red River, it's difficult to imagine the mass and force of water required to sculpture the deep chasm across the Panhandle flatlands.

The park area, made a state park in 1931. is only a small part of the entire Palo Duro Canyon, which stretches an awesome 120 miles across four counties. Palo Duro presents a look at acres and acres of rugged beauty, barely touched by man's interfering hands and still being honed by the winds and rains.

It's not all unimproved, of course. The canyon sports an interpretive center and scenic overlook equipped with a telescope. the Pioneer amphitheatre, a trading post with camping supplies, and designated campsites and picnic areas complete with shower and restroom facilities.

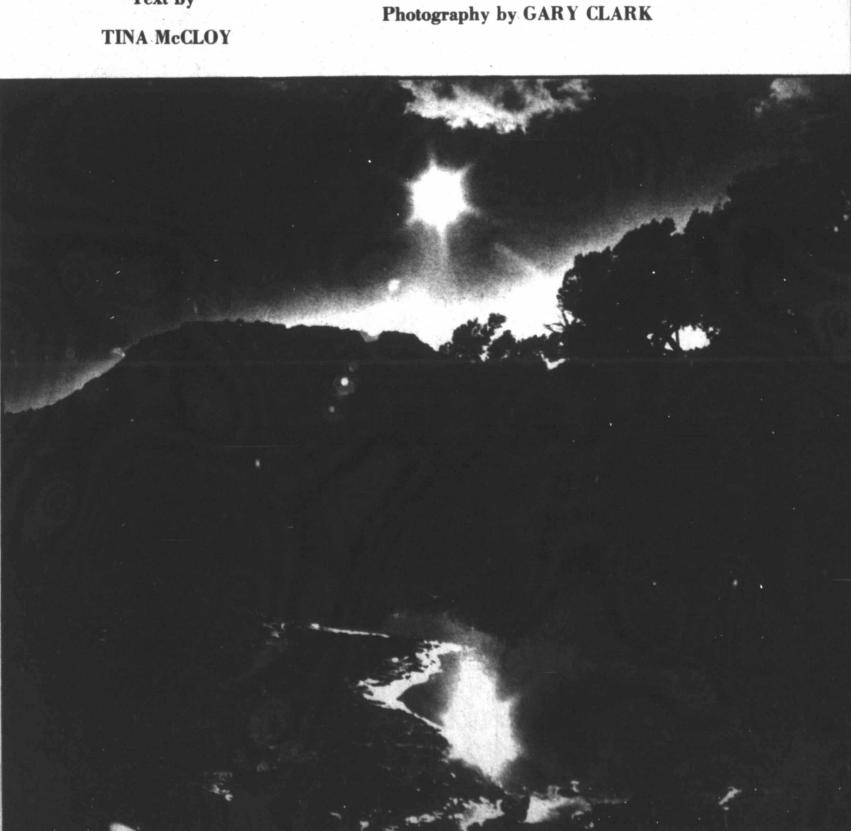

Then there's a two - mile jaunt on the Sad Monkey Railroad, named after the somewhat grotesque tilted monkey - faced rock atop a nearby peak.

Even with these man - made contrivances, the canyon presents acres and acres of rugged beauty, still being honed by winds and rains.

Even Amish feel gas shortage

NEW MARKET, Md. (AP) - An elderly man was standing near his horse and buggy, talking to a woman at a St. Mary's County feed store. Across the street, some 50 cars were lined up to get gasoline.

"It amused me," Ben J. Yoder recalled later, stroking his chest - length, gray whiskers. But he was not about to poke fun at the gas - hungry motorists, who depend on their cars as Yoder depends on his horse and buggy.

Yoder's Amish religion considers the use of a car sacrilegious, although some have been forced to purchase cars for limited use. Even then, the cars are stripped of chrome and painted black.

But while they don't use cars as their means of transportation the Amish also have been hard hit by the gasoline crunch.

The flow of tourists through their southern Maryland community here has sharply decreased, leaving fewer prospective buyers for the produce, baked goods, wood crafts and handmade furniture in their shops at home or at the Amish Market at Charlotte Hall.

'Not as many people come around with this gas thing.' said Yoder's wife, Katie, who runs Katie's Store in the front portion of their home there.

"It hurts us all," said Mrs. Yoder, who wore a simple blue dress - with straight pins instead of buttons on the front - a black apron and pulled - back hair under a sheer, white bonnet, the usual garb of Amish women.

"We use gas for water, gas for our washing machine," she said. "He (her husband) uses gas for the tools in his (chair) shop. We all use gas.

Almost two miles up the road from the Yoders, there are fewer persons milling in the Amish market, where for 25 years or more - the Amish have been selling their homemade goods as part of their means of support. Others are also permitted to peddle their wares in a flea market - like fashion.

nutus Hosteler, an elderly man who has been selling homemade bread, gingerbread and shoo - fly pie in a small stall in the market for 18 years, says things have been slow lately.

Insurers help black colleges

Black colleges are having greater success in establishing endowments.

According to the United Negro College Fund, endowments at the nation's 41 private black colleges and universities rose 19.3 percent from 1975 to 1978, to an all - time high of $118 million last year. The Fund anticipates 1979 will be another year of gain.

Part of the reason for their optimism is the creation of a new endowment building strategy designed by Dr. Frederick D. Patterson of the Moton Institute in New York. Dr. Patterson's plan, which has never been used in the nation before, makes it possible for small black schools to greatly expand their endowment programs through a financial arrangement with U.S. life and health insurance companies.

The College Endowment Funding Plan (CEFP) combines private gifts to small colleges with borrowed funds from life and health insurance companies. The combined sum is invested for 25 years. During that time, the investment income repays the loans, with interest to the insurance companies, and provides significant income to the colleges for current expenditures.

To participate in CEFP, explains Dr. Pattterson, "each school must raise $300,000 in gifts from alumni and other sources. The United Negro College Fund then contributes $50,000 and $400,000 is borrowed from a life insurance company

The first Arabic word Nancy Wooldridge learned when she moved to Tripoli, Libya, was "malish"

And now, after two years of teaching there in an American school, the Pampa native has learned to apply the word to the daily frustrations she faces in the foreign country.

"It means 'it doesn't matter' or 'not to worry'," explains the teacher. visiting for the summer in the hon, e of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wooldridge. "It will work out."

"Nothing surprises me anymore." she explains. "I may stand in a meat line for an hour and then up up with no meat, but I shrug the difficulties off."

"I had an easy time adjusting because of the people in the school," explains Nancy, who teaches elementary students in the Oil Company School in Tripoli. But she admits, "I would have gotten on a plane after two weeks and come home.

Her newfound optimism comes in handy when she has trouble with mail shipments or traveler's checks. Or when she wakes with no electricity in her villa and has to visit a neighbor down the street to finish blow - drying her short brown hair.

A 1971 graduate of Pampa High School, the young woman received a degree in elementary education from Texas A&M in 1975. She taught a couple of years in Bovina, then decided she was ready for a change.

She had contacted the Oil Company School the first year she taught, but lacked the sought - after experience for the job. After reapplying and interviewing with the superintendent of the school, her qualifications were presented to the school officials.

Initially, she was issued a 90 - day work permit by the Libyan government, but now has a permit which must be renewed each year.

"In Libya it is difficult for a single woman to come in and work," notes. the 25 - year - old. "The Khaddafi is a strong Moslem and in the Moslem religion the women are kept in a very closed environment.

"I think he might be afraid we influence the Arab man, so he makes it hard for us to work," she comments.

Oil Company School is an independent system supported by five American oil companies. Nancy is one of about 40 teachers, al. Americans except for those faculty members who teach Arabic, a subject required by the Libyan government.

"Our school answers very closely to anything the Libyan government allows," explains Nancy. "They make sure we don't forget it's their Classes are taught from kindergarten through ninth grade at the school, with non - Americans allowed to attend on a tuition basis.

In her two years in Tripoli, Nancy has taught children of ten nationalities, including some American children who have never seen the United States.

With fathers employed overseas by the large oil companies, the youngsters consider the U.S. a place to visit during vacation.

For the most part, the American citizens in Tripoli live in a suburb of the city. Their dwellings, the school, and shops catering to their tastes are all clustered there.

With no movies, television or English radio, the group has become close - knit, entertaining frequently in their homes and using the school facilities year - round.

Nancy, who says she takes one school year at a time and won't speculate how long she'll stay with the job, has few fears about living in a country known for internal instability.

"I think the school and the community does a good job of keeping us informed," she says. For instance, the Egypt - Israel peace signing made big news there. The U.S. wasn't in anyone's favor.

The superintendent called us in and told us we might be confined to our villas and school might be closed for awhile, because of demonstrations. But nothing ever happened.

As for "malish". Nancy says the change in her attitude has definitely been an improvement.

TWEEN 12 AND 20 Protective folks

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed. D.

view. Welcome. Dr. Wallace: What can a teen-ager do about overprotective parents? I am 13 but I'm treated as though I were six-years-old.I must go to bed at 9 o'clock and can only watch television two hours a night. To top it off. I am not allowed to date at all.

I've already talked to my parents, but all I hear is they are the boss. I hope your advice helps other teen-agers with overprotective parents. -Franny, London, Ontario.

Franny: I'm not sure you would classify your parents as overprotective. The hours per evening for watching television are more than reasonable, and not dating at 13 is probably the right decision. The only thing that might be a wee bit strick is the 9 o'clock bed check, especially if this rule applies to weekends.

Instead of trying to gain your independence all at once, why don't you work on one thing at a time? Start by proving that you are mature enough to stay up past 9

Hello Franny: I think you are being treated like a 13-year-old. I don't know of any 6-year-olds who stay up until 9 o'clock, watch television two hours a night and who want to date.

I'm sorry but I think your parents are very reasonable. After all, you are only 13. When you get a little older and more mature, your parents will grant you more priviledges -Jerry, Michigan City, Ind. · Hello Franny: If I were

But I don't necessarily think my parents are overprotective.

Genesis House is stable environment

Genesis House, supported partially by the United Way, offers a stable home life for the young people who live there.

"For a lot of these kids, it's the only stable home they've ever had," says Lois Still, administrator of the two homes. "They form guite an attachment for us and we sure do for them.

The girls' home, started in 1971, is located at 321 Starkweather. Seven girls, ranging in age from 13 to 18, live there.

When it opened, the First Presbyterian Church agreed to underwrite us for a year until it could become a community project," explains Mrs. Still.

The need for the same type facility for young men was apparent, she says, but it wasn't until the end of 1976 that the boys' home, located at 612 W. Browning, opened. Four boys live there at present

'These kiddoes are not troublemakers.' says the administrator. "They've just hit a time in their lives when they cannot cope. with their peers, with their parents.

They come from good homes, broken homes, lower, middle and upper class homes, she explains. Some are dropouts and runaways who approach them for help: others are referred by parents or social agencies

Most are from Pampa and the immediate area, but Mrs. Still stresses that the right place for the child is found.

"Our program has to meet the child's need. Some of ours need to be moved out of Pampa, separated from their peer groups or their parents, or may need advanced vocational training or intensive counseling.

Therefore, some of the youth which come to Genesis House are relocated to other homes across the state.

The two homes in Pampa are ucensed with the Department of Human Resources as child - care institutions for 13 - to 18 year - olds Funding comes through the department, the Texas Youth Council, private donations and the United Way. Its annual budget is around $90,000.

'As a child - care facility, we supply the kids with food, clothing, shelter, medical and dental care, school expenses and counseling if needed," she explains.

While at the homes, the young people are expected to keep their own rooms, cook, wash dishes, and do their laundry, as wel as plant, cultive and harvest a large garden.

"The kiddoes are actually learning house management," says the administrator. They rotate their chores and are learning to be self - sufficient. That goes along with teaching them to set goals and work toward

The teenagers attend public school and are encouraged to participate in school activities. Most of them hold after - school and summer jobs.

A 12 - member board oversees the Genesis House and sets the homes' policies A large volunteer staff, assisting with school transportation and other guidance. gives the youngsters a feeling that they are accepted by the community

Pickled okra is Texas favorite

By Elaine Houston County Extension Agent

PICKLED OKRA --- A TEXAS FAVORITE:

Pickle the extra okra from your home garden or roadside vegetable stand that you do not freeze or use fresh. Pickled okra is a favorite for many Texas families and adds zest to meals. Select tender pods which are uniform in size. Wash thoroughly to prepare for pickling. Here's how to pickle okra:

DILLED OKRA 3 pounds uncut and washed young okra pods

celery leaves 6 small hot red peppers cloves of garlic large heads of dill and stems, or one - half teaspoon dill seed per pint

1 quart water 1 pint white vinegar one - half cup salt

Pack okra into hot jars with a few celery leaves, pod of pepper, clove of garlic and head of dill or dill seed in each jar. Make brine of water, vinegar and salt. Heat to boiling. Pour over okra. Process in boiling water bath by placing in a large kettle of boiling water to which a little cold water -- about one cup -- has been added to lower the temperature only slightly.

The kettle should have a rack to hold the jars off the bottom and be deep enough for the water to come over the jars one to two inches with a remaining head space of one to two inches. It should also have a tight - fitting lid. Process the okra for 20 minutes. Start to count processing time as soon as hot jars are placed in actively boiling water. Remove jars and place on a rack to cool out of a draft. The next day after processing, remove rings. Wash and dry jars and store in cool place. NOTE: The okra will be shriveled immediately after removal from the water bath, but after several days will absorb the liquid and become plump once again.

PICKLED PEARS MADE AT HOME:

Pickled pears made at home are a taste treat in family meals. How can you make them at home? Wash twelve pounds of Kieffer pears, peel, cut in halves or quarter and remove the hard centers and cores. Boil the pears for ten minutes in water to cover. Drain off liquid. Use one pint of the liquid in a syrup made from a combination of two quarts sugar, 3 cups vinegar and boil 30 minutes. Before boiling syrup, add eight sticks of cloves, two tablespoons whole cloves and two tablespoons allspice tied in a clean white cloth. The spice gives the pears added flavor.

To prevent peeled pears from darkening during preparation, put them in cold water containing 2 tablespoons each of salt and vinegar per gallon immediately after peeling.

Add pears to the boiling syrup and continue simmering for 20 to 25 minutes. Pack the hot pears in clean, hot pint jars and add two pieces of cinnamon per jar and cover with boiling syrup to one - half inch of top of the jar. Cover with lid according to the manufacturer's

Process in boiling water for 20 minutes. Start to count processing time as soon as water in canner returns to boiling. Remove the jars and place several inches apart on a wire rack to cool. Pickled pears are especially appropriate as accompaniment to main dishes in family

CRAFTY COOKING

Crock pot specialty recipes

By Sally Shaffer Miller I have a good friend named Claudia who lives in Colorado. She's one of the most delightfully creative and positively impulsive people I have ever known

Last summer, she asked her husband if he would give up part of his TV football game space for her. She wanted a walk - in pantry. Actually, her request required a complete renovation of the basement. At first, he was hesitant, but since he liked to eat almost as well as he likes football. he complied. Her pantry is really outstanding, and so is her emergency shelf

Claudia's has things like dry salami, jars of hard sauce. poppy seed, oyster stew, and sardines in all kinds of sauces.

One time she told me about what she calls her emergency shelf crocked casserole. Believe me, it's good, but I would have to go out and buy the things that are in it. She uses 2 (28 oz) cans of baked beans, 1 can of Vienese sausage, 1 can of spam, chopped, one - fourth pound sliced dry salami. some minced onion, one fourth teaspoon garlic powder and one - eighth teaspoon leaf thyme. She puts that in the crock pot and stirs it, sets the pot on low and goes away for 8 or 9

Although this is a good recipe, it wouldn't solve any of my emergencies. I don't plan to have an emergency 8 or 9 hours away

However, I have an extremely good crock pot recipe that I don't have to make a grocery trip for, especially since my husband gave me a yogurt maker. I call this

CROCKOMANOFF NOODLES: Have on hand

Worcester shire sauce 2 dashes of tobasco sauce. more if you like 2 teaspoons garlic salt

Now do this:

Grease the crock pot with the butter. Cook the noodles according to the directions on the package until they are barely tender. Rinse them in lukewarm water and drain. Toss them with the melted butter and set them aside.

Now get a pretty good sized mixing bowl and mix the yogurt and flour. Stir in the rest of the ingredients. Add the noodles and stir them around.

Put everything in the crock pot and turn it on low and leave it for 8 to 10 hours. Serve the noodles with hamburger patties and a green salad.

stood more than a few people on their heads last season when they posted a 9-7 record in only their third year in the National Football League.

On Sunday night, Jim Zorn and company face the Dallas Cowboys and go on national display for the first of four times this season. Sunday's game will be carried on ABC-TV and will start at 8 p.m. (CDT).

"A lot of fans who haven't seen us before are going to be impressed," said Zorn, who will direct his team against Super Bowl XIII finalist Dallas.

Going into the Dallas game, which is sold out, the Seahawks have drawn 1,962,841 fans in their four years. They will welcome their two millionth fan Sunday night.

Seattle and Dallas will be meeting for the third time. In a 1976 regular season game, Dallas won 28-13. Seattle captured a 1977 exhibition game from the Cowboys 23-17.

Zorn, who signed a new $250,000-a-season, five-year contract in May, is one player who got away from Dallas. But the Cowboys really can't be Zorn, who was signed as a free agent by Dallas in 1975 and then released, happens to play quarterback - the same position as Roger Staubach.

"I have a lot to be grateful to Dallas for." insisted Zorn. They gave me my first chance. If I didn't get that chance at Dallas, I might not have gotten a chance at Seattle

Staubach was supposed to play only one quarter at quarterback Sunday night but that changed during the week when Danny White, the 37-year-old Staubach's heir apparent, suffered a broken thumb in practice at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

So it'll be Staubach - not White as coach Tom Landry had planned - at the controls at the start for the defending National Football Conference champions in their third preseason game.

It also means that Landry is expected to use his No. 3 quarterback. Glenn Carano, a third-year pro from Nevada-Las Vegas who has yet to throw his first NFL regular season pass, most of the second half.

As a collegian, Carano passed for 5,095 vards and 37 touchdowns. He was a No. 2 draft selection in 1977

Staubach has started both of Dallas' exhibition games this season, a 20-13 loss to Oakland in the NFL Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio, July 28, and a 7-6 win over Denver at Dallas last Saturday

In Dallas' second offensive series against Denver. Staubach suffered a concussion and Carano came on to direct the Cowboys to a 76-yard scoring drive. It turned out to be the only Dallas touchdown

Connors defeats ruling, Higuera en route to U.S. Clay Court final

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Top-seeded Jimmy Connors, down 4-0 in the second set, overcame some tense moments with the officials Saturday to defeat fourth-seeded Jose Higueras of Spain 6-2, 7-5 and reach the finals of the $275,000 U.S. Open Clay Court tennis

Connors, in the finals here for the fourth consecutive year, plays the winner of a semifinal between No.2 seed John McEnroe and No.3 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina in a nationally televised match (CBS)

The defending champion, who beat Higueras in last year's final is looking to win here for the third time in four years

The women's singles final between Evonne Goolagong Cawley and Chris Evert Lloyd was scheduled for Saturday night.

"It's over and finished. I just hope it never happens again," said Connors, when asked about the dispute which had him penalized a point, when he was down 2-0 in the second set, for making an obscene exhibition season: New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) -Walter Payton rushed for 80 yards in limited duty and quarterback Vince Evans had another superlative day in relief, leading the Chicago Bears over the New Orleans Saints 13-6 in a National Football League exhibition game

Payton carried just eight times during the game, and only two of those carries were in the second half. His longest run of the afternoon was a 49-yard sprint early in the third quarter.

Evans, a third-string quarterback who got into only a dozen plays last season, hit seven of eight passes for 101

After taking a 3-0 lead in the first quarter. Chicago fell behind 6-3 four minutes into the second quarter when Saints quarterback Archie Manning hooked up with wide receiver Wes Chandler on a 12-yard scoring pass play. The extra point attempt was blocked.

But the Bears came back to take the lead for good midway

While Connors protested the penalty, umpire Don Frydell awar the game to Higueras. That penalty was overruled, however, a chief referee James McClure and Franco Bartoni - the Grand F supervisor of referees - discussed the situation with the players Higueras broke Connors service for third time in the match to t a 4-0 advantage before the defending champion rallied to tie the by winning four consecutive games.

'It was cold and windy and I felt bad," said Higueras about five-minute delay during the dispute. But, it could happen anytis was cold and I put my jacket on

Snead maintains lead in Hartford Open

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) - J.C. Snead, who finished his second 18 holes Friday, held a 1-stroke lead in the $300,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open after 69 golfers finally were able to complete the second round of play Saturday.

The 25-hour postponement forced officials to change to a 36-hole final on Sunday The second round was postponed at 4:30 p.m., EDT. Friday when a thunderstorm packing 65-mile-an-hour winds and hail struck the Wethersfield Country Club course. A total of 69 golfers were unable to finish their round, including first-day leader George Cadle. A persistent rain for most of the day left the players and the GHO's hopes of playing the third round high and dry. But in the late afternoon as the rain became less steady, PGA officials managed to squeeze in the remainder of the second round on the water-logged 6.534-yard, par-71 course

Some golfers were able to take advantage of the conditions, which included puddles on almost every fairway. Mark Hayes, who began the round in a tie for fourth place at 5-under, finished with his second consecutive 66, one stroke behind the leader. Hayes birdied two of the five holes he had to play Saturday to move into sole possession of second place. Cadle slipped into a seven-way tie for fourth, finishing the round with a 2-over-par 73, for a 36-hole total of 7-under 135.

Calde said after the round, in which he bogeyed two of the six holes he played, that he thought the course was unplayable Saturday.

Alone in third place was rookie Mike Brannan of Tempe, Ariz.

Pirates down Phillies in slugfest

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Catcher Ed Ott hit an eighth-inning grand slam and banged out three other hits Saturday as the Pittsburgh Pirates rallied from an 8-0 deficit to beat the Philadelphia Phillies 14-11 with a 23-hit attack.

The Pirates scored five runs in the fifth inning and added four runs in the seventh and four more in the eighth to earn the victory for Enrique Romo, 9-3. Kent Tekulve hurled the last three innings to pick up his 22nd save

Pittsburgh trailed 8-5 when Dave Parker opened the seventh with his 20th home run. The Pirates then bunched four hits after two were out to take the lead

Bill Madlock and Ott singled, then Phil Garner doubled to left to score both runners and tie the game at 8-8. Pinch-hitter Mike Easler singled off reliever Tug McGraw to put the Pirates in front.

Pittsbugh added four runs in the eighth, again with two out. Willie Stargell singled and John Milner doubled. Madlock was intentionally walked and then Ott connected for his first career grand slam.

The Phillies rallied for three runs in the ninth inning, highlighted by Bake McBride's two-run double.

The Phillies had 15 hits in the wide-open game.

Twins, A's

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Hot-hitting Ken Landreaux went 4-for-4 and knocked in three runs as the Minnesota Twins beat the Oakland A's 9-7 Saturday

Landreaux, who had six hits in Friday night's doubleheader with Oakland, scored the go-ahead run in the sixth inning on Danny Goodwin's single and then knocked in two runs in the seventh with a single to give the Twins a 9-6 lead. Jeff Newman's leadoff homer in the eighth, his 20th, made it 9-7 against Twins reliever Mike Marshall.

The Twins scored a pair of unearned runs in the sixth to make it 7-6. Third baseman Wayne Gross' two straight errors with two out loaded the bases and allowed the tying run to score before Goodwin delivered his run-scoring single

Brewers-Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) - Robin Yount singled home the tie-breaking run in a three-run 10th inning Saturday as the Milwaukee Brewers blew a five-run lead, then rebounded for a 9-6 victory over the Boston Red

The Brewers tied the score at 6-6 in the ninth on doubles by Charlie Moore and Don Money before rallying in the 10th to snap Boston right-hander Mike Torrez' four-game winning streak.

With one out, Sixto Lezcano singled past third baseman Butch

Hobson and Dick Davis singled off Dwight Evans' glove in right center. Yount then grounded a single to center, scoring Lezcano. Davis and Yount moved up as Moore grounded out, then scored as Jim Gantner singled off reliever Bill Campbell for his third hit. Milwaukee scored five runs in the first on an error, singles by Cecil Cooper, Gorman Thomas and Ben Oglivie, a sacrifice fly by Lezcano and Davis' 11th home run.

Jim Rice got two runs back for Boston in the first with his 30th

Dodgers-Giants SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Charlie Hough pitched six scoreless innings and Davey Lopes provided the winning run with a two-out single in the seventh, helping the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 7-4 Saturday

The Dodgers, who have won seven of their last nine games, took a 4-0 lead before the Giants snapped a 24-inning scoreless string with a pair of runs in the bottom of the seventh Ron Cey started the scoring with a solo homer, his 22nd, off loser Ed Whitson, 5-7, in the fourth. Doubles by Gary Thomasson and Darrel Thomas made it 2-0 in the fifth. Singles by Thomasson and Thomas with one out started the Dodgers' decisive seventh-inning

Hough was then safe on a fielder's choice, loading the bases, when shortstop Roger Metzger dropped-pitcher Greg Minton's throw for an error on a force attempt. Lopes followed with his two-run single.

A walk to Mike Ivie and Terry Whitfield's single got the Giants going in the bottom of the seventh off Hough, 3-4. With two down, pinch-hitter Willie McCovey ended an 0-for-17 slump with a two-run single. Hough was replaced by Joe Beckwith.

The Dodgers added three unearned runs in the eighth.

Blue Jays-White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) - Rookie right-hander Dave Stieb hurled a four-hitter and J.J. Cannon had three singles and three stolen bases Saturday to lead the Toronto Blue Jays to a 6-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox and a doubleheader split.

Jorge Orta drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly and Greg Pryor hit a solo home run to power the White Sox to a 6-1 triumph in the first game.

Stieb, 4-3, picked up his first major league shutout and was in command after the Blue Jays staked him to a four-run lead in the second inning off loser Randy Scarbery, 2-7.

A walk, a passed ball and a run-scoring single by Tim Johnson got the Blue Jays started in the second inning of the nightcap.

Oklahoma snaps Oil Bowl losing streak

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A soft rain, a soggy field and Doug Furnas brought an end to Oklahoma's five-year victory drought in its annual Oil Bowl clash with Texas.

"It sure feels good to win," said Furnas. The soccer-style kicker from Commerce, Okla., booted field goals of 29 and 25 yards to seal the Sooners 14-6 win in the 42nd annual schoolboy football all star classic Friday night. Texas still leads in the series.

Slick footing, loose footballs and the surging Oklahoma defense left Texas convinced that when it rains it pours.

"We really beat ourselves," moaned J.C. Morris of Cooper High School. "The fumbles killed us.

hands of Texas backs and twice it rolled Oklahoma's way But Oklahoma's defense was the key. It swamped Texas on its initial possession.

throwing the Texans for a loss on each of the first three downs. On fourth down, Manuel de la Garza of Highland Park slipped and fell when he tried to sidestep the Sooner onslaught.

Oklahoma took over at the three-yard line and on second down Steve McKeaver of Altus crashed over from the one. George Harris of Waco Richfield blocked Furnas' extra point attempt to keep the score 6-0.

The Texas Christian-bound Morris, voted the game's most valuable offensive player. put Texas on the scoreboard with his sparkling 38-yard touchdown romp in the second quarter. Furnas then avenged his failed point after attempt when he sailed high to block an extra point attempt by Vic Vines of Odessa Permian Following the kickoff, McKeaver raced 40 yards to set up Furnas' 29-yard field

Morris dazzled the rain-drenched crowd in the first half, slashing and sliding for 118 yards on eight carries. But the Oklahoma defense closed the door after intermission, allowing the speedster just three yards on four carries and dropping him for a safety. "I just moved with the flow," said Juan James of Okmulgee, who made the tackle

"I thought it would be a little more difficult to catch him behind the line, but I had a lot of help.

When I was dropped for the safety that really hurt," said Morris. "One of the keys to the game was the way the Oklahoma line shut us down in the second half.

Oklahoma defensive tackle Paul Parker of Tulsa Washington, who shared defensive MVP honors with guard Steve Hogue of Ada, said he knew it would be a tough

"Everybody was hitting hard and we just got a few more breaks," said Parker.

"The rain really hurt us," said Tim Sanders of Fort Worth Haltom, who threw the block that allowed Morris to score the touchdown You just couldn't get any traction out there. Of course it hurt our passing too.

But the traction didn't seem to worry Furnas, who capped the scoring when he booted a 25-vard fourth quarter field goal

Q. Who is the fastest pitcher in the National and American Leagues? And how fast does he throw? — Junior Wilcoxen, Brownwood, Tex.

It's difficult to give a definitive answer because there are quite a few flame-throwers around. My pick, even though he is now 32 years old, is still Nolan Ryan. On Aug. 20, 1974, a speedgun timed his delivery at 100.9 miles per hour. Recently, I said baseball pitchers throw faster than softball pitchers and created quite a brouhaha from fans who sent me documented proof that softball pitchers throw as fast as 116 mph. But it's deceiving because their distance is 15 feet shorter.

Q. Willie Wilson of the Kansas City Royals leads the league for in-the-park home runs so far this year. Could you please tell me what the record is for in-the-park homers and who set it? — Todd Beach, Franklin. Neb.

The Elias Sports Bureau, my final word for baseball figures, tells me it doesn't keep such records. "But by the end of the season," says Seymour Siwoff, "we'll undoubtedly be researching it." Through July, Wilson had hit three inside-the-park round-trippers. Terry Moore, the great centerfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, once hit two of that species in a single game in the 1930s.

Q. I would like to know what ever happened to Toronto pitcher Jerry Garvin. He was the Topps All-Star rookie left-handed pitcher in 1977. - Phil Perry, Santa Maria, Garvin, selected by the Blue Jays from Minnesota in the expansion draft, is currently being carried by them on the disabled list. In his first two seasons, he compiled 10-18 and 4-12 records, respectively.

The tipoff:

The enthusiasm generated by Seattle fans in the Kingdome at baseball's All-Star game was nothing compared to what they're whipping up for their football Seahawks. Envisioning a title challenge by their fourth-year expansion team, and with season ticket sales cut off at 59,500, Seattle fandom already has grabbed up every other seat in the 64,700capacity Kingdome, ensuring sellouts for all 11 home games.

Tomjanovich felt no risk before hit

HOUSTON (AP) - Rudy Tomjanovich, the Houston Rockets star forward, said he felt no threat before a one-punch fight that crushed in the front of his face.

"I felt no risk at all," he said, when trotting over to a disturbance involving former Los Angeles Laker Kermit Washington and former Rocket Keven Kunnert. The punch he got knocked him out for the rest of the year.

Tomjanovich, who will earn $300,000 next season, is suing California Sports Inc., owner of the Lakers, for at least $1 million in damages suffered Dec. 9, 1977, when Washington slugged him. The Rockets captain, now 30, suffered a broken nose, fractured skull and dental and facial injuries. Tomjanovich, who spent more than two hours on the stand in federal court Friday, said the incident jeopardized his future as a professional basketball player. Nick Nichols, Tomjanovich's lawyer, asked the five-time National Basketball Association all-star if his marketability had been diminished by the injuries. "It sure has," Tomjanovich said. He also said he earned $225,000 and $250,000 for the first two years of his contract, which expires next season. "I tried to be the best player I could," he said of the this last season, but "I wish I could be better.

The Rockets, who finished last in their division after losing Tomjanovich, are suing the Lakers for an additional $1.4 million for the loss of their starting forward.

Describing the incident, Tomjanovich said he never saw the punch Because of my concern for Kevin (Kunnert, whom Washington had just hit), my full attention was on him," Tomjanovich told the The next thing I remember was lying on the flood. There was a buzzizng in my ears. I remember thinking that the scoreboard must have fallen on me

He had to ask what happened, he said.

"Someone said Kermit Washington hit me. I couldn't figure it out because I had done nothing to him.

"As we reached the corridor, Washington was still pacing back and forth in the area of the Laker dressing room and I asked him why he

Paterno, Bryant head lists again as football's winningest coaches

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) -Joe Paterno of Penn State and Bear Bryant of Alabama, whose teams squared off in the Sugar Bowl for the 1978 national championship, head the main categories of the nation's "Top Twenty Coaches" for the fifth straight year.

Paterno, whose Nittany Lions lost only to Alabama 14-7 last season, leads in percentage (.829) with a 13-year record of 123 victories against 25 losses and one tie.

Bryant, whose Crimson Tide recovered from an early-season loss and came back to capture the national championship. leads in total victories with 284.

His full 34-year record at Maryland, Kentucky, Texas A&M and Alabama is 284-77-16 for the No.3 percentage, 1775.

Michigan's Bo Schembechler is No.2 in percentage between Paterno and Bryant. The 10-2 mark of 1978 makes his 16-year record at Miami of Ohio and Michigan 136-32-6 for .799. Frank Kush of Arizona State.

9-3 in 1978, is fourth on a 21-season log of 173-52-1 for .768 and Notre Dame's Dan Devine, also 9-3 a year ago, is 156-51-8 in 20 years at Arizona State, Missouri and Notre Dame for a fifth-place percentage of .744.

The "Top Twenty Coaches" was originated in 1958 by Elmore "Scoop" Hudgins, publicity director for the Southeastern Conference. The selection system researches the records of all Division I head coaches for the 20 who have won the most games. Only service at four-year schools counts and at least five seasons must be on the major college level.

Making the list for the first time are Tony Knap of Nevada-Las Vegas and Bud Elliott of Texas-Arlington. Knap, who coached at Utah State during 1963-66, reached the five-year major-college requirement when Las Vegas was elevated to that level for the 1978 season. He has an overall

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Rookie linebacker Tom Graves intercepted a pass by rookie quarterback Phil Simms and returned it 86 yards for a third-quarter touchdown that gave the Pittsburgh Steelers a 10-3 victory over the New York Giants Saturday night in a National Matt Bahr's 35-yard field goal on the first Steeler series of the, game gave Pittsburgh a 3-0 halftime lead. The Giants, with 26-year-old Fred Besana at quarterback, managed just 16 net offensive yards in the first half compared to 213 by Pittsburgh.

Simms, the Giants No. 1 draft pick from Morehead State in Kentucky, made his NFL debut to open the third quarter and completed a 30-yard sideline lob to Ernest Gray on his first pass play.

Faced with second-and-nine at the Steeler 13, Simms slipped a pass into the right flat intended for running back Dan Doornink.

Graves, a 6-foot-3, 228-pound rookie from Michigan State, stole the eass and romped 86 yards for the touchdown

In the final quarter, the Giants cut the margin to 10-3 on a 46-yard field goal by Allan Leavitt that followed a 39-yard drive. The Giants fell to 1-1 in preseason. Pittsburgh is 2-0.

Oriental waiters are traditionally supposed to treat their guests with the deference of a passing shadow. But this is not quite the style of service at our town's Chinese - American restaurant, where your hapless hero was seen last Thursday evening in the company of a chef salad, a sparse cup of Won Ton soup, and a large pile of bread

"No!" Looney exclaimed to prodding waiter George Ha Chu, after A. Tad had for the third night in a row declined to substitute cottage cheese for baked potato and, in George's words, "Take a whole meal like a very good sport.'

"I am now a weight watcher," Looney announced. "Weight watching is a religion. And it would be a violation of my conscience and my ethics to accept this butter with my breadsticks." But A. Tad's testimony did not ring true. As if on cue, an angry cowboy punched the juke box, flooding the restaurant with the mellow wailings of Waylon Jennings. "Yes, a weight watcher," Looney repeated bitterly, pausing to flavor his soup with Sweet N' Low tears. George sighed and smiled, and Looney began making a low sound like the steady cantankerous hum of a decrepit refrigerator. At a
