Citizens can report gas price violations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Motorists in 20 major U.S. cities who suspect their local service stations of price-gouging now have a rough government guide to legal gasoline prices in 20 major U.S. cities.

The Energy Department released the price list Monday, cautioning that the figures were valid as of Aug. 6 and were subject to change since then. Some stations may have gotten special exemptions to the general pricing rules as well, it said.

The list is part of the department's effort to monitor the prices of gasoline being charged by the nation's more than 175,000 service stations.

But Michael Podhorzer of the Consumer Federation of America charged that penalties for pricing violations and the chances of being discovered are so remote "people are not afraid of being found in violation."

And the department itself acknowledged it has had only 50 auditors working on complaints of retail gas prices. However, the department added that an additional 150 should be in the field soon in response to President Carter's recent order to increase the size of the auditing staff.

Federal rules have regulated the price of gas at retail stations for the past five years. The latest reported ceilings range from a low of 86.2 cents a gallon for regular in Dallas to almost $1.15 a gallon for premium in New York. The maximum prices are based on the wholesale gasoline price paid by the station operator plus taxes and a maximum margin of 15.4 cents a gallon to cover overhead and profit.

Despite the federal controls, government officials say it would be virtually impossible to conduct widespread monitoring of prices for possible violations.

"It would be just like auditing every taxpayer," said Dianne Novick, a spokeswoman for the Energy Department.

With the releasing of the maximum price list, the Energy Department's David J. Bardin urged motorists to notify the department if their gasoline costs more than the legal ceilings.

"We can now provide consumers with a more accurate guide to the maximum legal prices that may be charged for gasoline in various parts of the country," said Bardin, administrator of the department's Economic Regulatory Administration.

The department's toll-free telephone hotline for consumers to pass on their price complaints is: 800-424-9246.

Consumers who use the list to try to spot price gouging will find prices vary widely, from city to city and among the 10 oil companies included.

For example, the difference in the legal ceiling on a gallon of regular gasoline in Chicago varied earlier this month from $1.0057 for Shell to $1.0813 for Mobil, a variation of about seven cents.

Mideast strategy studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Carter steams down the Mississippi, his senior advisers are gathering at the White House to plan American strategy for the U.N. debate on the Palestinian issue.

That strategy, admitted Robert Strauss, the president's special Mideast negotiator, may be to offer no U.S. proposal whatsoever.

Strauss told reporters on his return from Israel and Egypt Monday that he found "considerable hesitation" in both countries about a number of possible American approaches he suggested in talks with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

"We might conclude to do nothing," Strauss said.

This would appear to be in accord with Israel's strong resistance to any U.S.-led effort to modify longstanding Security Council resolutions on the Mideast. Somewhat surprisingly, Strauss found Egypt backing the Israeli view, possibly because a U.S. split with the Begin government could upset continuing peace talks.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale was chairing today's meeting with Strauss, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's national security adviser. Vance interrupted his vacation at Martha's Vineyard, Mass., to try to settle on a U.S. position in time for the opening of the U.N. debate Thursday in New York.

Strauss ended his mission without blaming either Israel or Egypt for the U.S. dilemma. He called them "good and strong partners" in the peace process and said he found they were making even more progress in their own negotiations than he had expected.

But as to the Security Council debate, where the United States is likely to face strong Arab demands to acknowledge Palestinian "rights," Strauss said he returned without any recommendation for Carter.

"I do not know what he is going to decide," the special envoy said. The goal of the White House meeting is to produce recommendations for Carter's approval by Thursday morning.

Already ruled out is any U.S. support for Palestinian statehood. Carter is on record against it and, in any event, the administration would risk a break with Israel if it did not veto any resolution calling for a Palestinian state.

Blacks meet with Israeli

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Black supporters of Andrew Young are meeting with an Israeli official today to urge recognition of Palestinian rights after saying they support the rights of both Jews and Palestinians to national homelands.

Campaigning for Israeli-Palestinian rapprochement in the wake of Young's resignation as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, officials of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference were to meet with Israeli U.N. Ambassador Yehuda Z. Blum. They were also to hold a news conference, meet with New York Jewish leaders and address a rally of black groups at a Manhattan church.

Nachum Shai, a spokesman for Blum, told a reporter the SCLC delegation sent word to the ambassador that it wanted to "clarify our support for the PLO's human rights to establish a state." But at a news conference Monday SCLC president Joseph E. Lowery would not go beyond endorsement of the Palestinians' right to a homeland.

The SCLC leaders had lunch Monday with the Palestine Liberation Organization's U.N. observer, Zehdi Labib Terzi. Lowery told reporters: "We communicated to Mr. Terzi and his associates our support for the human rights of all Palestinians, including the right of self-determination involving among other things their homeland."

Lowery said they urged that PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat "give consideration to the recognition of the nationhood of Israel... whereby steps can be taken that would lead to peace and reconciliation."

He said his delegation also asked the PLO to consider "a halt to the violence that has inflicted hurt, death, destruction upon far too many of God's children in the Middle East."

"We think," he declared, "that God is moving in this whole situation to lead us to peace and reconciliation."

Lowery conceded that Young's resignation was the "catalyst" for his group's attempt to bring the Israelis and Palestinians together. But he said American blacks are concerned about the Israeli-Palestinian stalemate because a cutoff of Arab oil shipments to the United States "will have a devastating effect on everybody but it may have a fatal effect on black areas."

What's Inside

Weather	The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies this afternoon with a chance of thundershowers this afternoon and early this evening. Fair skies are predicted for Wednesday. The high today and Wednesday is expected near 90 with the overnight low in the mid 60s. Winds today will be out of the southwest at 10 to 15 mph, decreasing to 5 to 10 mph tonight. The chance of rain is 30 percent today and 20 percent tonight.
Record low tax rate approved in Canadian	CANADIAN — School trustees here set a record low tax rate in a regular session of the Canadian School Board Monday night. The rate was set at 87 cents per $100 of the value of assessed property, down 13 cents from the one dollar rate for last year. The school trustees adopted a $2,713,552 budget for the 1979-80 school year. School officials had recommended a 90 cent tax rate but lowered the rate three cents after hearing requests from various area oil firms stressing the adoption of a tight budget for the coming fiscal year. The new rate was the fifth consecutive rate decrease adopted by the Canadian School trustees. The latest rate was based on a tax valuation projection of $267 million for the school district.

Task force prepares for second assault of oil

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Oil spill task force leaders say they plan to take advantage of an expected two-day "cease-fire" in the relentless advance of history's largest oil spill to prepare for a second assault.

Coast Guard officials said Monday night that reconnaissance flights showed only "a couple" of patches of sheen within 80 miles of the 100-mile-long Padre Island, which bore the brunt of a major greasing last week.

Huge concentrations of the crude oil from a crippled Mexican offshore well cover thousands of square miles of the western Gulf of Mexico, but remain more than 100 miles south of Texas. The northerly flow of the oil is expected to stall at least until Wednesday as winds and currents die.

"It looks like we may be in for a period of two to three days with nothing significant coming onto the beaches," said Coast Guard Capt. Roger Madson, commander of the task force.

Meanwhile, an official of the Mexican government oil company that was drilling the Ixtoc I well said Monday that Pemex hopes to cap the well this week — more than three weeks ahead of schedule.

More than 100 laborers, armed with rakes, shovels and plastic trash bags, worked Monday to clean the goo from dozens of miles of multi-million-dollar tourist beaches fouled last week.

The oil has washed up on more than 50 miles of Padre Island's glistening white beaches, dealing a harsh blow to the vital tourist industry during a peak vacation time.

On the northern end of Padre Island, crews collected 2,000 garbage bags of emulsion containing up to 90 percent oil.

To the south, an 88-man clean-up crew worked along the plush strip of hotels and condominiums in the crippled resort town of South Padre Island where tourism has dropped 50 percent and Chamber of Commerce officials say the losses will total in the millions of dollars.

Officials are using manual clean-up rather than heavy machinery because the rakes and shovels remove less precious sand from the thin beaches and don't pound the oil into the sand.

The Coast Guard is also taking initial steps toward defending the difficult two-mile-wide Cavallo Pass into Matagorda Bay, some 100 miles up the coast from Corpus Christi. Task force officials have also begun looking up farther the coast at Galveston Bay, just southeast of Houston.

Some defensive equipment has been readied in the Cavallo Pass area, and Coast Guard officials will meet this week with private contractors who regularly work against such spills to determine the best way to defend the pass.

"This respite has given us the time to prepare ourselves further northward. It gives us plenty of time to make sure the oil doesn't outrun us and get past our defenses," Coast Guard spokesman Jim McGranachan said.

The defense strategy is to sacrifice the beaches on the barrier islands and protect the inlets into fertile bays and lagoons, which could be devastated by the oil. The inland bays harbor many rare species of wildlife and are the breeding ground for shrimp and other key commercial marine life.

Texas' attorney General Mark White, who says he has the authority to sue Mexico for damages, toured the blackened beaches Monday and said he could be months before investigators know who to blame for the mess.

White, a Democrat, stressed that no fault has been determined but added that he hasn't ruled out a lawsuit against a Dallas firm, founded by Republican Gov. B. Clements, that owns the equipment used in drilling the runaway well, Ixtoc I.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

The blind leading the blind

We're the last to carp at gestures of assistance to the blind and other handicapped persons. But it takes an extreme sentimentalist to fail to recognize the immense silliness of some, especially tax-supported, projects to serve such people.

After all, the favored propaganda of government spendthrifts usually has something to do with humanitarianism of some sort; anybody who disagrees is automatically pegged as a scoundrel. It would be impossible to list all the boondoggles that legislatures have produced by just such a formula.

Just asking, but we wonder if the audible traffic signals planned for the Golden West College area of Huntington Beach might not qualify as another federal boondoggle. Sponsored by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the new signals will no longer just flash red, green and yellow. They will go "tweet-tweet" or "cuckoo-cuckoo," thereby--ostensibly--enabling the 20 or so blind people federal study has determined live in the area to know when to cross the street.

The bird noises will cost taxpayers more than a thousand dollars per blind person--$27,000. We suppose you can argue the cost is worth it, but for that money the government could probably entice a couple of orange-jacketed crossing guards to put in a few hours at the designated intersections. They're already working down the street at Huntington Beach Central Park; and a couple more might put a dent in unemployment.

And we wonder--for the sake of the blind people--if this thing has been fully studied. Will the bird noises, for instance, be distinguishable from those emitted by the real cuckoos and twenty-birds that might be flying over? Can they be heard above the automobile noises? And what are the mechanics of communicating to a blind person that the allotted time between "Walk" and "Don't Walk" has passed? Does a "tweet" mean the former and a "cuckoo" the latter? What?

Well, maybe these things have been thought through. You can certainly trust the federal government to think things through, what?

The Nation's Press

State vs. The Church

Burlington, N.C.
Daily Times - News

It is like the struggle once upon a time in Rome. The State said thou shalt be gladiators or be fed to the lions at the Friday night fights, only they called it the Circus Maximus.

Though the method of dispatching the Christians was something on the harsh side, the issue was fundamentally the same as it is today in North Carolina, where the State is dictating to the private Christian academies what and how they shall teach the young.

The question of state certification of teachers and programs in the private schools is only a part of the struggle. The State Public Instruction Department, presuming it is more moral and more expert than the private schools, has a thick manual describing the curricula that should be followed in the elementary grades. This, besides the teacher certification, is what brings a major objection from the 63 fundamentalist academies, and other private schools across the state.

One example in the state manual calls for dancing in the lower grades. But the academies object to dancing and this is their right. Now, shall the State shove its rules down their collective throat, when the stricture is a part of the dogma of the church?

What the State is forgetting is that private Christian academies pre-date "public" schools by roughly 174 years in North Carolina. There is also the Constitution of the nation which stipulates separation of church and state.

For those who think the state's position is correct, in defense of claiming how ill we know whether the kids in church-private schools are getting a fit education, the answer is simple. They will be out there competing; their education will prove itself. When they apply to UNC or any other institution, they will have to take the same entrance test as all other students not granted scholarships for academic excellence. Already the state competency test has shown that students in private schools score higher than those in the public schools.

Another factor to be looked at is the tax money saved by virtue of the existence of the private schools, a total estimated at $50 million annually in N.C. where some 55,200 students are enrolled in private schools.

There are many sides to this issue. The private schools also have the edge on getting better teachers, although they traditionally pay less salary; yet the teachers don't seem to mind. That may be because they have some real control in the classroom and are able to administer discipline without creating a bureaucratic sheaf of paperwork.

In a state school, good teachers readily admit, it is virtually impossible to get rid of the bad teachers, short of catching them in moral turpitude, or stealing the lunch money. The standing policy of school boards seeking the ouster of a teacher is to give the teacher a "good" recommendation, in the hopes of dumping him on another school system. While it does not follow principles of integrity to do this, it often helps solve the problem--except for those unfortunate youngsters who get the undesirable teacher in that other system.

There is no doubt that education is essential to the building of a people and a country. But the State falsely presumes it is superior to its citizens when it decides all the goals and "certifies" who is fit to teach.

Should parents and churches, or should the government be--responsible for undertaking the education of the children? If the answer is government, why stop there? Would it not follow that the government than also should be responsible for rearing the children, employing them, and indeed, be responsible for their every action the rest of their lives?

If the church schools of North Carolina lose this battle and are brought to their knees, it will be one more sorry stroke cutting away at private and personal liberties, all, of course, in the name of doing good.

When we ask, has the conscience or moral fiber of the State been superior to that of its subjects, or to that of religion?

Once the powerful federal and state bureaucracies gain effective control of all educational facilities, we will see the erosion of independent thinking, where the "State" is substituted for God and church.

That is what Hitler tried to do, and did, and we see the great "moral fiber" his programs in Nazi Germany brought forth.

Communist inhumanity evident

By OSCAR COOLEY

The difference in the philosophies of the Communist and the capitalist worlds is well shown by the differing attitudes toward the thousands of refugees pouring out of Vietnam.

Some 150,000 people have been robbed, ejected from their homes and forced to flee in small boats from Vietnam. Nobody knows how many have drowned at sea. Those who did not are existing in Southeast Asian camps and gradually are finding their way to havens in other countries. Under United Nations auspices, the ministers of 60 nations met this week in Geneva to plan what can be done for these people.

Among the nations that offer to take some of the refugees, there will be no Communist regimes, you may be sure. It is the Communists of Hanoi who expelled the refugees. That they set them adrift on the open sea in small boats indicates their intention that they should drown. And backing and prompting the Communists of Hanoi are the Communists of Moscow.

Margaret Thatcher, prime minister and Lord Carrington, foreign minister of Great Britain, recently conferred with Alexei Kosygin in regard to the refugees. The British, though in the past not highly respectful of Orientals, look upon these castaways as human beings deserving a foothold on the globe.

This is the humanitarian viewpoint which prevails in people who respect life, liberty and property.

How do the Soviet authorities view the boat people? "They made it plain," reported Lord Carrington, "they didn't consider those leaving to be of much account." They dismiss the boat people as drug addicts and "black marketers." Many of these refugees are people of Chinese extraction who were merchants and tradesmen in Vietnam. In the Communist lexicon, to be merchant is to be a black marketer.

Further, the Communists look upon the Vietnamese merchant class as arch-capitalists who were foremost in collaborating with the Americans during the war, so out with them.

These tradesmen were not all poor. Many had saved money, even through war and revolution. This the Reds stripped from them before setting them adrift. A Communist has contempt for humanity but great respect for gold.

The British estimate that 800,000 people are being driven out of Vietnam and will have to find homes elsewhere. The United States has already taken 150,000 and is scheduled to accept 168,000 yearly as long as the flow continues.

Many Americans are volunteering to sponsor Vietnamese families, finding a home for them here, helping them to find jobs, to learn our language and ways. President Carter, to his credit be said, is using our ships and planes to expedite movement of the Vietnamese here.

Britain and other free nations are cooperating in the rescue and resettlement of the refugees. The response would have been swifter if people had realized this pitiful heira was going on. If Hanoi wanted to get rid of 800,000 people, why did it not say so and arrange to have them moved and resettled in an orderly manner? Setting 600,000 people adrift on the high seas in open boats is the crime of the century.

From the viewpoint of the receiving nation, is the influx of the penniless refugee economically desirable? This depends whether he is looked upon as merely a consumer, another mouth to feed, or as a potential producer, able and willing to work and contribute to the common wealth.

The millions of European immigrants who came to this country around the turn of the century were resented by some residents. After the First World War the flow was cut off. Looking back, it is plain that far from impoverishing America, the immigrants helped greatly to make it rich. In all likelihood, the immigrants of today, coming from the other direction, will do the same.

To be driven from your home and country must be a painful experience, but in the end for those who find new homes even in strange countries, it may prove fortunate. Remaining in Vietnam under the implacable Red regime, they would have been continually abused and even killed. In a new country, although they find it hard to get adjusted, they are free, and they will have an opportunity to work, even if at a new occupation, earn a living and educate their children.

To all men, this crime against a people may be educational. It illustrates that a Communist does not value men as human beings. He values only Communist men. All others are mere flotsam and jetsam. To be set adrift and disposed of, in the process of creating the perfect Soviet state.

Comeback for ROTC

War is going out of style. You and I are living to see come to pass that for which mankind has sought for thousands of years, when men would become sufficiently civilized so that they would recognize the futility of fighting and would elect to war no more.

The "civilization" was less a moral maturity than a technological triumph.

We have now learned on both sides of the world, since Korea and Vietnam, that footsoldier wars are too debilitating to tolerate.

Both East and West now recognize, as SALT agreements attest, that big wars are too devastating to contemplate.

Like it or not, the great nation states are going to have to resolve their differences in some more civilized manner.

However... This presupposes that we will keep our powder dry, that we will maintain enough nuclear clubs in the closet to keep the red bear--or anybody else--at arm's length.

Whereas in previous wars marching men with bayonets and bamboo spears may have been decisive, they are worthless now.

Our nation's future security requires skilled specialists in engineering, electronics and the nuclear sciences.

Our military does not need "bodies," it needs "brains."

And that is where the ROTC--the Reserve Officers Training Corps--is making a dramatic comeback.

For the first time in decades, the professional military is a respected vocation. ROTC enrollment over the last six years has more than doubled!

The fewer men in our new military will multiply their potential if they are above average mentally, highly motivated and enjoying career fulfillment comparable to civilian professions.

Muscleheads are worthless when the foot pounds of destructive energy which one man is capable of delivering has been multiplied 400 million times beyond any heretofore capability.

Since the War of 1812, Army ROTC had furnished 70 percent of all new officers each year. Thus college students of diverse backgrounds and aptitudes brought into the military establishment new dimensions in management and leadership and contemporary innovation.

During our nation's painful misadventure in Vietnam, ROTC became a target of campus disrespect and resentment.

This spring, with ROTC regaining campus prestige, more than 6,000 young men and women left commencement exercises with two visible signs of success--a college diploma and a commission as a 2nd Lieutenant.

Most new officers will remain on active duty three to four years. Many will attend basic officer training schools before returning to civilian life, where they will continue to serve part-time in the Army Guard or Reserve.

This present reservoir that is increasing 6,000 a year needs to be growing by 10,000 a year to adequately upgrade our continuously more sophisticated deterrent force.

Today's ROTC graduate starts as a 2nd Lieutenant at $1,000 a month!

But all life insurance costs more than it used to.

THE U.S. AND YOU

Tips for energy savers

by william steif

If you don't know what "R-value" is, you'd better start learning. Fast. Having made that wise-guy remark, I'll confess I didn't know, either.

But I do know, thanks to a free, 30-page pamphlet entitled "Tips for Energy Savers." That may sound like a big yawn to you, but it isn't. Our energy problems are here to stay.

R-values are insulation efficiency ratings. The "R" stands for resistance to winter heat loss or summer heat gain. The higher the R-number, the more effective the insulation. The numbers are on--or should be on--packages of all insulation materials: glass fiber, rock wool, rigid board, all the rest.

About 70 percent of all energy used in homes goes to heat or to cool. Twenty percent goes for heating water. The rest is for lighting, cooking, running small appliances.

The Department of Energy, which put together "Tips for Energy Savers," reports 40 million U.S. homes "are not adequately protected from outside weather." No matter how you heat or cool your home, DOE says, you can cut the load on your equipment by 20 to 30 percent by investing in a few hundred dollars worth of insulation. Benefits of insulation--lower utility bills--continue for many years. But first:

--You've got to find out if your home needs insulation. To do that, consult a reputable insulation dealer, a local building inspector, a county agent or even your local utility in some areas.

--Check R-values before buying insulation materials. Then buy the insulation thickness that will give you the proper R-value for your climate. (The DOE pamphlet contains a heating-zone map with recommended R-values for U.S. zones and an R-value chart for different insulating materials; recommended thicknesses are included.)

--Insulate or increase the insulation in your attic floor or top-floor ceiling. If you have less than 6 inches of old insulation, chances are you need more.

--Insulate floors over unheated areas, such as crawl spaces and garages.

Consider insulating exterior walls. This is expensive and requires a contractor but may be worthwhile if you live in a very hot or a very cold climate.

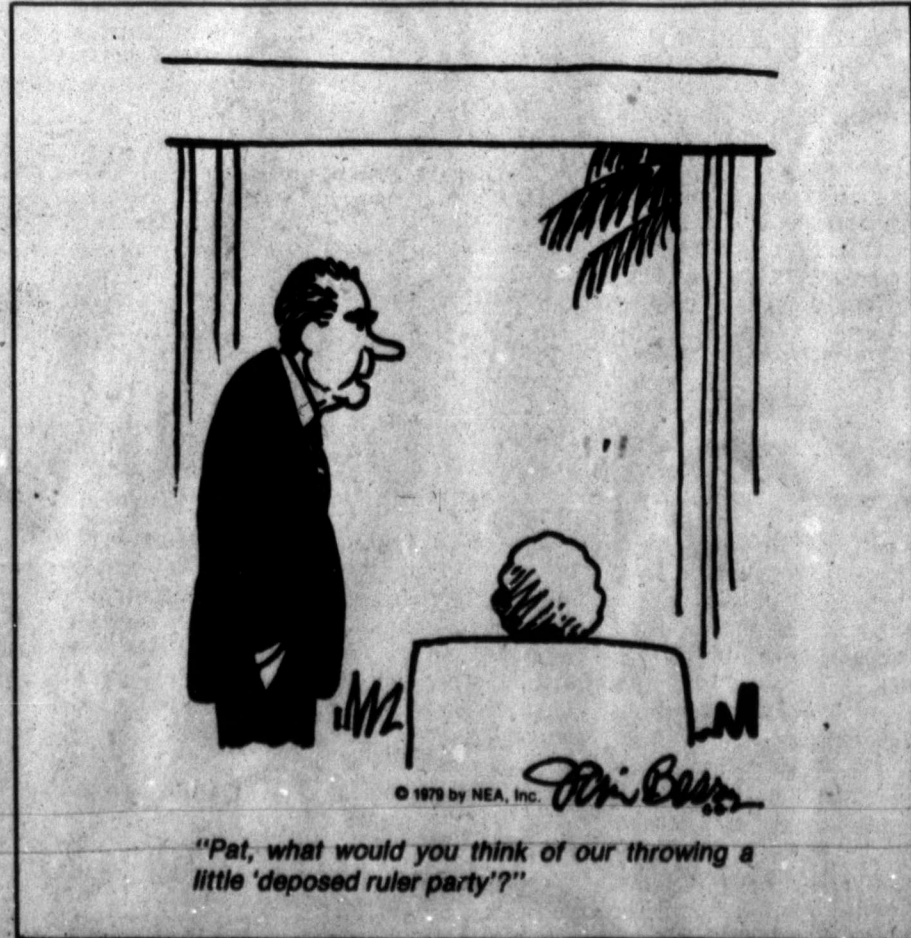

--Draft-proof windows and doors. You can test windows for air-tightness by moving a lighted candle around frames and sashes; if the flame dances around, you need caulking, weather-stripping or both. If you can slip a quarter under you door easily, it needs weather stripping. These are do-it-yourself projects--cheap--and can result in energy-cost savings of 10 percent or more.

--Install storm windows and possibly storm doors in very hot or very cold climates. You can knock off 15 percent yearly in energy costs with them.

There are lots of other things you can do: To save heat, close off unoccupied rooms. Use kitchen or bathroom ventilating fans sparingly. Keep your fireplace damper closed unless you've got a fire going. Consider a heat pump if you use electric heating; the pump is expensive but can save you money.

You know about regulating your thermostat: 65 degrees on winter days, 55 at night. If you're using an air conditioner, keep the thermostat at 78; that's comfortable and doesn't waste energy.

Democrats approve delegate plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — National Democratic Party officials have approved the state party's plan to select delegates to the 1980 presidential convention, State Chairman Billy Goldberg said Monday.

Texas Democrats will use a system of precinct, county and state conventions instead of a presidential primary.

However, Goldberg said the party would add a non-binding presidential poll if President Carter is challenged by someone with strong Texas backing.

National delegates and alternates will be chosen June 20-21 at the state convention next year. Senatorial district caucuses will select 104 delegates, while 48 will be picked at large.

The at-large bloc will include 14 party officials and state leaders. The other 34 slots are reserved for minorities and women.

Goldberg said delegates will be proportionately allocated among the presidential candidates who receive support from at least 15 percent of state convention participants.

Tougher camping policy recommended

PORT ARANSAS, Texas (AP) — An advisory committee has recommended a tougher policy on camping within the city limits to control "undesirables on the beach."

Bill Gaskins, chairman of the city council's Beach Study Committee, said the group is considering requiring campers to move outside the city limits for at least three weeks after camping inside the city limits.

The present city ordinance says that, after five days, a camper must move 200 feet before setting up camp again.

The ordinance is in effect only from Easter to Labor Day.

The "undesirables," Gaskins said, live on old buses, and all they have to do is move 200 feet at a time and never leave the city limits.

Clayton governor for day

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House Speaker Bill Clayton, who some say would like to be governor, had the job — at least temporarily — Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Clayton was notified by Gov. Bill Clements' office that Clements and the next two persons in line of succession to the governorship would be out of the state those three days.

Clements was vacationing "somewhere out west — he has places in Taos and Vail," said an aide. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby was on a family vacation in Wyoming. And Sen. Bill Braecklein, D-Dallas, the president pro tem of the Senate, was in Alaska.

Asked what Clayton had done with all that power, press secretary George Works said, "nothing."

Works said this was the first time a speaker had been acting governor since passage of law in 1959 putting him behind the president pro tem of the Senate in line of succession.

Weather forecasts need improvement?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The National Weather Service drastically needs to improve its forecast and warning system to avoid loss of life in future hurricanes and floods, says Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, D-Galveston.

Schwartz wrote the weather service director, Richard E. Helligren, last week.

"I believe that in this day of high technology that a potential rainfall of over 25 inches can be more accurately described in weather bulletins," the senator said.

Tropical Storm Claudette unleashed heavy rains of up to 32 inches this summer in Houston, Galveston and several coastal counties.

"I think your department needs to examine ways and means to tell people more facts in specific language which is directed to identifiable, smaller sections of a given county, city or smaller area," Schwartz said.

Residents might not have ignored advance warnings of Claudette if the weather service had been more specific about the storm's flood potential, he said.

Schwartz sent the same letter to Robert L. Carnahan, director of the weather service's disaster preparedness division.

Nuclear power critics called 'irrational'

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of Arizona Public Service Co. believes most criticism of nuclear energy is the "irrational blatherings and posturings" of environmentalists and politicians.

Keith Turley told a small gathering of delegates to the national American Legion convention here Monday that this country's nuclear industry is shrouded by an "atmosphere of fear" created by those critics along with the biased and sensational reporting of the media.

He was part of a question-answer forum on energy presented by the Legion as the final pre-convention activity before it officially opened today a seven-day meeting that apparently has the energy crisis as its focus.

The main speaker scheduled for the convention's opening ceremonies was Richard Morrow, president of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

The organization's emphasis on energy stemmed from its view that the nation's energy problems are, as its convention literature put it, "a threat to both the national security and our economy."

Monday's forum included representatives of the oil, natural gas, nuclear and solar industries, each presenting his point of view to the small, receptive audience.

Turley had some criticism of his own for President Carter, saying if the nation's battle to overcome the energy crisis is "the moral equivalent of war, then we are now in retreat."

One man killed as propane pipeline explodes

ORANGE, Texas (AP) — Authorities worked early today to stop the flow of propane gas to a ruptured pipeline that exploded and shot flames 400 feet into the air, killing one man and injuring another.

"It was a big rolling thick cloud of white smoke. It wasn't an explosion. It was like rolling thunder," said one witness.

Sybil Jenkins.

Two men using a bulldozer to slope a drainage ditch accidentally struck the pipe Monday afternoon. The force of the blast blew one man free of the flames.

The bulldozer operator, Roy David Hunter, 36, of Orange died in the explosion and fire. Authorities, kept by intense heat from getting near the bulldozer for hours, found Hunter's charred skeletal remains about 12:30 a.m. today.

Officials said his body was near the center of the explosion, 75 feet from the bulldozer.

Floyd Grasty, also of Orange, was reported in good condition at Orange Memorial Hospital. Orange County deputies said three homes in the area were evacuated because of fears another explosion might occur.

Sheriff's Capt. Joe Freeman said another pipeline, 20 inches in diameter, was within 10 feet of the crippled line. Gas to the Cities Service line was cut off at Orange and Vidor, but enough propane remained in the pipe to, keep the blaze burning out of control. Gas technicians worked into the night trying to plug the pipe three miles on either side of the blaze.

Cities Service connection foreman Willis Wyche said that once the special plugs were in place, it would take five to six hours more before the fire would burn itself out.

Vanderbilt testimony continues

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Nancy Moyer of Amarillo, whose 16-year-old daughter was kidnapped and slain four and half years ago, wept as she told a jury Monday of seeing her daughter for the last time as the girl was dressing for school.

Mrs. Moyer was the lead-off witness in the prosecution's second attempt to convict Jimmy Paul Vanderbilt, a former Amarillo rookie policeman accused in the murder of Katrina Moyer on April 1, 1975.

Mrs. Moyer's husband and the victim's father is Hudson Moyer, who was a state representative at the time of the slaying.

District Judge Larry Gist overruled a defense motion and allowed the state to introduce a mangled lead slug that police found 250 feet from where the girl's body was found.

Vanderbilt's first conviction in Potter County was reversed by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on grounds a statement Vanderbilt made after his arrest should not have been admitted in the 1976 trial.

OPEC wins court battle without fight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has won the first round of a price-fixing suit against it without appearing in court.

As hearings on the suit began Monday, U.S. District Judge A. Andrew Hauk ruled that OPEC could not be a defendant and declared it was not liable for damages under United States antitrust laws. The oil cartel had no representatives present in court.

Hauk left OPEC's 13 member nations as defendants, but expressed doubts as to whether they are subject to U.S. laws or the authority of his court.

The suit, filed last December by the 900,000-member International Association of Machinists, seeks an injunction to block American oil companies from passing OPEC price increases to consumers.

It accuses OPEC and its member nations of violating the Sherman Antitrust Act by fixing prices and contends the oil producers are subject to U.S. laws because their crude is sold here.

In June, oil ministers meeting in Geneva approved an increase in OPEC's base oil price from $14.55 a barrel to $18, but allowed members to add a $2-per-barrel surcharge and boosted the premium charged for higher-quality oil to $3.50 a barrel. The increases were the largest since prices quadrupled during the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo.

Hauk said he was removing OPEC as a defendant in the case because the Vienna-based cartel could not be served with a copy of the complaint. He said its 13 member nations have been served through their embassies.

Hearings, including night sessions if necessary, will continue this week, and the judge promised a full ruling Friday.

"Everybody is up in arms about them (OPEC)," he said, "but the question I have to decide is a legal one."

Hauk said he is "looking for what is the true picture and then the effect" of OPEC's oil-pricing policies. "Do the OPEC nations really set prices or are they set by the marketplace?" he asked.

He also said he had researched the case thoroughly, a "40 to 50 hour job."

Industrial tax roll 'formality'

Gray County commissioners took their seats in the jury box this morning as members of the Board of Equalization, prepared to pass judgement, if necessary, on disagreements between the county's contracted industrial appraisers, Thomas Y. Pickett & Co., and industries with Gray County locations.

About a dozen tax representatives of local industry appeared, but the equalization "hearing" was mostly a formality, according to Thomas Y. Pickett representative Joe Lee.

Lee said there would not be anything for the Board of Equalization to resolve. "It's usually all worked out before they come in now," Lee said. He referred to the new tax laws requiring a 20 day notice of the hearings.

"We like to have all this negotiated before we come before the board," Lee said. "There are some minor questions, which can usually be taken care of pretty quickly."

Lee said that in former years the sessions were "two-day, roll-up-your-shirt-sleeves affairs" wherein negotiations were often conducted on the spot.

Electrical storm causes power outages Monday night

An electrical storm Monday night caused power failure in parts of Pampa, but little damage was reported by authorities.

Lightning and high winds blew fuses and tripped breakers at Southwestern Public Service Co.'s McCullough Sub-station, cutting off power to about a third of the city for a total of 18 minutes, according to SPS Manager Joe Gidden.

Wind caused a section of power line to "fault" at 6:45 p.m. Monday, Gidden said, knocking out power from the southern city limits to the downtown business section. Workers repaired the line and power went back on at 6:58 p.m., only to be knocked out again for five minutes at 7:16 p.m.

"Trees whipping into power lines" and lightning caused lights to blink on and off again throughout the city, Gidden said. He added that three poles were knocked down in a rural area southeast of Lefors.

Although the storm and power failure may have been a nuisance to residents, all in all there was little effect on city operations.

"As far as civil defense is concerned, we didn't have an emergency," said Steve Vaughn, Pampa civil defense coordinator. "We weren't notified by the police to turn out, so we just treated it like a bad electrical storm."

Power was knocked out at the police station in City Hall, according to Lt. Charles Morris, but an emergency generator kept lights and a radio going during the storm.

"We were able to provide service throughout," Morris said.

R.B. Cooke, Pampa's director of public works, said the city's traffic lights had to be reset after the storm.

Arson suspect avoiding capture

HOUSTON (AP) — A man wanted for questioning in last week's fire deaths of four children has been reported seen near the house where they died, but has avoided capture, Houston police say.

"He is still out there and we have a whole lot of people looking for him," homicide Detective Dave Frazier said. "He was reported to have been seen twice near a convenience store and in the chocolate brown station wagon he has been driving."

Former convict Charles Harold Bingham, 33, walked away from an interview room Saturday night.

Bingham was charged with escape, a felony. No charges have been filed regarding the deaths.

Funeral services were set today for one of the children, Amos Black III, 9. Services for Andrea Jones, 12; her sister, Traci Marie Jones, 7; and Tony Beard, 3, were scheduled for Wednesday.

 Their bodies were found by firefighters Friday in a southeast Houston home. After finding a one-gallon gasoline container in a bedroom, arson investigators said the fire was set.

Three of the children were bound hand and foot and one had been raped. Medical examiners ruled three died from carbon monoxide asphyxiation, while the fourth died from strangulation and smoke inhalation.

Bingham, who had dated the mother of one of the children, had surrendered through his parole officer Friday night after twice telephoning arson investigators to deny any involvement.

Officers said he admitted being in the area and couldn't give a good reason why his hair was singed.

Arson investigator John Thornton said he took Bingham from the city jail to the interview room, questioned him about an hour, then left the room for no more than two minutes to get a homicide detective.

Thornton said Bingham, in street clothing and not handcuffed, was gone when he returned.

Police Lt. Wayne Williams said Bingham was paroled in September 1977 after serving two years of a 10-year theft sentence, and had been paroled in 1965 after spending one year in prison for burglary.

 A large area of thunderstorms marched across West Texas and North Texas late Monday and early today.

Moderate to heavy rain, accompanied by electrical activity, was reported over the state. Abilene measured 1.1 inches and Wichita Falls received .83 of an inch.

The rest of the state had either clear or partly cloudy skies and gentle winds.

Although the thunderstorm activity was breaking up this morning, the National Weather Service said it would develop again later today. The new storms were expected to appear in the western, northern and coastal regions of Texas.

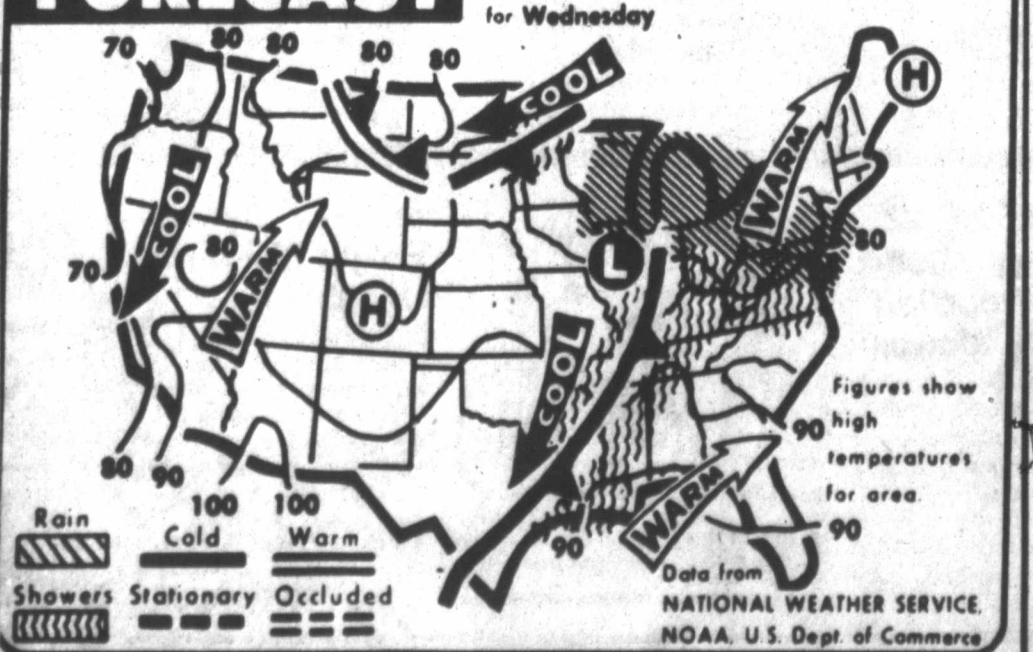

Afternoon highs were expected to reach into the 90s in most places, except for highs in the 80s in the mountains of West Texas.

Temperatures before dawn were in the 60s in the northern half of the state and in the 70s over the southern half.

DEAR ABBY

Hers is sterling silver anniversary

By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: I will soon celebrate my silver wedding anniversary and consider myself the luckiest woman in the world to have been married to this wonderful man for 25 years.

I want to express my appreciation to my husband for all his kindness and understanding, but I'm not very good with words. A friend told me you published a beautiful tribute to your husband on your 25th wedding anniversary. Please print it again. I could use some ideas.

WILMA IN DENVER
DEAR WILMA: What a coincidence! Your letter reached me on my 40th wedding anniversary, and because those words are as true today as they were 15 years ago, I repeat them with pleasure:
 July 2, 1964

Dearest Mort:
 Today is a very special day for me. It's my 25th wedding anniversary and I have this to say:

I had a mother and father who really loved each other, so I know what love is.

I've seen two teenagers safely through the traumatic teens, so I know what satisfaction is.

I've prayed, and my prayers have been answered, so I know what faith is.

And I've had by my side for 25 beautiful years, the kindest, gentlest, most considerate human being I've ever known, so I know what happiness is.

And because I've known all these things, I know what wealth is.

I love you.

DEAR ABBY: My 3-year-old son and two neighbor boys were playing in our small pool in the backyard. Since I'm always within earshot when children are in the pool, I heard my son say, "Let's play like babies without any clothes!" Then they all giggled and took off their swimming trunks. It was a very hot day and I saw no harm in letting them play in the pool for a while unclothed.

Suddenly an older sister of one of the boys appeared, and when she saw her brother naked she raised a big fuss. My son quickly admitted it was his idea.

Abby, is it wrong for small boys to play naked together? Or am I raising a pervert? What do the experts say about children and nudity? CALIFORNIA MOM
DEAR MOM: The experts say that to make a big deal out of nudity tends to give children the impression that their bodies are "dirty" and something to be ashamed of.

DEAR ABBY: Your letter to INTIMIDATED BY SALESPEOPLE reminded me of something funny that happened to my daughter and me last Christmas.

We were leaving the house to go shopping and I decided to take one of my plastic shopping bags. We had quite a bit of shopping to do, so my daughter took one, too.

If you want to get waited on in a hurry, just carry a large empty shopping bag into a department store. The salespeople were coming out of the walls offering their assistance. But when we had filled the bags, locked them in the car, and returned empty-handed, we were virtually ignored. DARING IN DENVER

TWEEN 12 AND 20

Inside dope on effects of cocaine

By Robert Wallace, Ed.D.

Teens: While reading my local newspaper recently, I came across an Associated Press article that I found most informative and I'd like to share its contents with you:

Although some users of cocaine think it is no more harmful than tobacco or alcohol, two Miami, Fla., doctors say the illegal drug is dangerous and never safe for recreational use.

Dr. Charles Wetli and Dr. Ronald Wright reported that they had counted 68 cocaine-related deaths since 1975 with most of them recently.

Taken illegally, cocaine is either injected, swallowed, smoked, mixed with liquor or, the most popular method, snorted.

Respiratory collapse and death occurred most quickly among those who injected cocaine directly into a vein. Among those who sniffed (snorted) it or swallowed it, the reaction was delayed as long as an hour, then the victim had a sudden seizure and died.

Medically, cocaine is used as a blood vessel constrictor and a local anesthetic, and as a central nervous system stimulant.

These are the facts. You must make the choice.

Dr. Wallace: I read your column all the time and realize there are a lot of frustrated teens who think their faces will never clear up. Let me share with them something that has worked very well for me.

Although I only had a mild case of acne, I was very self-conscious about it, so my parents sent me to a dermatologist. My face slowly got better, but even after a year of treatments I was still breaking out.

A couple of months ago I came down with a cold, so I drank plenty of liquids. During that time, my face looked clearer than it ever had.

When my cold was gone, I stopped drinking as many liquids, and my face was back to its old self.

Recently, I started drinking several glasses of water and at least one glass of juice every day, and my face has once again cleared pretty well.

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

Oldsters demand recognition

By Louise Pierce
 Many of us older-marrieds do not want to go marching for causes. But I, for one, am glad that some older couples, and retired singles, glory in shouting our rights as deserving and achieving citizens. I salute fist-shaking Maggie Kuhn, head of the Gray Panthers, who led a crowd of white-haired men and women through the streets of Washington, demanding recognition and money and job opportunity and whatever else they felt they'd lost upon retirement. If they get some of it back, power to them. But if they don't, I hope they'll be resourceful enough to stop whining about being old and start acting as young as they ought to feel.

Isn't it a fact that most of us older couples start to think we're aging when we remember some of the youthful enjoyments we long to relive? Our regrets weigh us down until we wish we could be sixteen instead of sixty. We wish it so long and hard that we stop laughing with our mates. And that can start dissatisfaction and even estrangement.

Why should we suffer any regrets at all? Hugh Downs' new book shoots down many myths about aging. He tells us that our I.Q. levels remain constant or increase with our years, that very few of us will ever become senile, that no disease is age-specific or age-related and that retirement will not hasten our deaths. Mr. Downs says further, "Americans over 55 are the best educated, best financed, and healthiest this nation has ever seen." So who wants to endure puppy love and motorcycle mania and diaper rash and furniture payments again? Not me. And I hope not you. I am happy in my present devotion to my middle-aged husband as his to me. I tell him his good looks are enhanced by his distinguished white hair. He says my enjoyable conversation, and my constant search for new projects, improve every year. We love return to our past. We love ourselves and each other the way we are right now. I hope I can persuade you to do so, too. I've had letters regarding regrets.

DEAR LOUISE: My wife was a tennis player when she was young, a very good one. She won a lot of tournaments, even a national one once. She had to give it up when we got married and had our seven kids. But she's never stopped feeling bad because she didn't get to be a tennis pro. Now, after 30 years, she cries every time she sees women win tennis matches on TV. And that makes me wish I'd never taken her away from her chance to be rich and famous. Sometimes I think she'd feel better if she didn't have to look at me. What do you think? T.N.

DEAR T.N.: I think your problem can best be solved by heartfelt dialogue and special kindness on the part of both of you. Sit down together and make a list of the many joys she has had in your marriage as against the one pleasure she gave up. Discuss the short-lived careers of sports pros as opposed to the lifelong happiness of being wife and mother. Read about the women pros and see if you can't find at least one former star who is spending her older age alone.

Meat processors get boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has given a boost to processors of nitrite-free meat products, a potentially major market for pork and beef as the government's concern over the long-time additive grows.

The department's food-safety regulators said Monday that, after Sept. 20, products that look like frankfurters, for example, can be sold under the traditional products name as "uncured frankfurters."

Preset regulations under the Federal Meat Inspection Act require nitrite-free hotdogs to be labeled "uncured cooked sausages" if they are sold across state lines.

Hotdogs, bacon or bologna, for other examples, now have to be preserved by traditional methods — using sodium nitrite or nitrate — to be sold as hotdogs, bacon or bologna.

Both types must meet federal standards for wholesomeness.

Assistant Secretary Carol-Tucker Foreman said the label change will help producers meet consumer demand for nitrite-free versions of old favorites. At the same time, she said, it should end the confusion the old rules caused shoppers.

As often happens when nitrite is mentioned, the American Meat Institute promptly said Ms. Foreman's actions would confuse consumers and hurt sales of processed meat products, both those with nitrite and "imitations."

The change requires makers of meat products not treated the traditional way to clearly advise consumers that the items generally need the same special care required for fresh meat.

To use the common name of nitrite-cured products, those without the additive also must be similar in size, flavor, consistency and general appearance, Ms. Foreman said.

Under the rules first proposed in April 1978, labels of nitrite-free items must use "uncured" as part of the name and bear the phrase: "No Nitrate or Nitrite Added."

If the product has not been canned, pickled, dried or otherwise treated, the labels also must carry this warning: "Not Preserved — Keep Refrigerated Below 40 Degrees Fahrenheit at All Times."

"The warning label ... is both too much and too little," the American Meat Institute said, acknowledging that its members might become the largest marketers of nitrite-free foods, too, if demand picks up.

"Some consumers will read the label and become unduly fearful about all processed food products and others ... may not read the label at all and treat the products carelessly," the trade association said.

Its vice president, A. Dewey Bond, added, "We continue to believe these frozen items ... should have names that fully describe these imitation products. ... We are not opposed to the products themselves."

USDA and the Food and Drug Administration are reviewing a Massachusetts Institute of Technology study, disclosed in August 1978, that found sodium nitrite could cause cancer in laboratory animals.

USDA had already reduced the legal amount of nitrite in bacon because of a cancer threat from a byproduct of the chemical's reaction to frying and certain proteins.

The law requires the agencies to ban any additive that causes cancer in either animals or humans, regardless of the amount of exposure or any benefits.

Nitrite and nitrate have been used for generations to thwart growth of spores that cause botulism, a deadly food poisoning. They are used in about 7 percent of the food supply and also occur naturally in the soil, air and water.

The AMI maintains that the amount of nitrite used in cured meats is too small to be harmful.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department plans a public hearing to hear what growers and others think about proposed changes in its list of fruits and vegetables that may be shipped from Hawaii to other states.

The Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service said Monday that it will take testimony Sept. 25 in Long Beach, Calif.

Under the proposal, tentatively due to take effect this fall, broccoli, brussels sprouts, cauliflower, Jerusalem artichokes and certain pineapple hybrids would be allowed to enter the rest of the country after inspection.

Scientists have found no hazard from movement of these articles from Hawaii, the agency said.

The hearing also will consider permitting mangoes to be moved after fumigation and certain thick-skinned avocados to be shipped with special handling and packing. The special rules are designed to guard against a spread of Oriental, melon and Mediterranean fruit flies, APHIS said.

Grace Baptist to hold revival

The Rev. Robert Stewart of Dumas, Tx. will be speaking nightly at the Grace Baptist Church in Pampa, the nights of August 22 through August 26.

The church will be hosting an old fashioned day August 26, with the public invited to attend the festivities.

There will be a picnic in the park after the Sunday morning preaching service and the revival will feature special music throughout the week during the special services.

Services will start at 7:30 nightly and 10 a.m. on Sunday.

Comic book bible on sale

LONDON (AP) — Spiderman, the Incredible Hulk and monsters from space can't teach the British Bible Society much about horror, say critics of the society's new publishing venture.

The 175-year-old organization has just published a comic-book version of the story of Samson, the Old Testament hero who lost his hair, his strength and his eyes to the beautiful Delilah.

He regained his hair and his strength in captivity and brought the temple of the Philistines crashing down on himself and more than 3,000 of his foes. The book, for youngsters 8 and over, shows it all in gory, full color.

Speaking modern English in bubble captions, Samson is also shown squeezing a lion to death and setting fire to 300 foxes who run into the Philistines' fields and set them aflame.

The high spot is the blinding of Samson — a red-hot stake being plunged into one eye, the other a burned-out socket and the hero shown full face, writing in agony.

A first printing of 15,000 copies of "Samson the Mighty" is on sale for $1 a copy, competing on magazine stands with the usual horror, war and science fiction comics.

The Bible Society's managing editor, David Halls, says he plans similar illustrated versions for the young of the stories of Moses, Abraham and Joseph. He says he started with Samson "because he is the most sensational."

Raymond Johnston, director of the revivalist religious movement National Festival of Light, says "Samson the Mighty" panders to a thirst for violence.

"The putting out of Samson's eyes is depicted with a horrifying explicitness which is totally unnecessary," he said.

He suggested the illustration may violate the Children and Young Persons (Harmful Publications) Act passed in 1955 to curb comic book excesses.

Johnston called on the society to withdraw the book from sale and replace the blinding scene. The society said it was ready to discuss the matter with him, but Halls commented: "It is unlikely that children who cope with the violence of the Incredible Hulk or the horror of Sleeping Beauty would be seriously worried by Samson."

The non-denominational, non-profit society was started in 1804 by the Rev. Thomas Charles, a Welsh clergyman concerned over the lack of Bibles in the Welsh language. It now publishes the Bible in 268 languages and dialects.

The comic strips are drawn by a team of French artists directed by a 70-year-old Roman Catholic priest, the Rev. Pierre Thivollier. The society said he had spent much time working with poorly educated children in Paris.

WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Pentagon officials believe the Soviet navy is downplaying a visit in the Caribbean because Cuba is about to host a major meeting of non-aligned countries.

Soviet warships recently left the Caribbean without visiting Cuba, Pentagon officials said Monday. "Both the Russians and the Cubans may think it wise to play down their close relationship at this time," said one official, who asked not to be identified. However, Pentagon officials said they were surprised that the two Soviet guided missile warships, a tanker and a submarine left after only a week without stopping in Cuba.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Gospel Music Association will perform on the South Lawn of the White House next month, the White House says.

In a statement Monday, the White House said President Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, will host the group for a performance of gospel singing on Sept. 9.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pan American World Airways is agreeing to pay a civil penalty of $17,500 after the Civil Aeronautics Board accused it of engaging in "unfair and deceptive" advertising of a $99 New York-Los Angeles fare, the board says.

The CAB said Monday the airline, which admitted no guilt in the proposed settlement of the case, also agrees to stop any further such advertising. In January, the CAB accused Pan Am of offering the $99 roundtrip New York-Los Angeles fare without telling customers that travel was limited and without disclosing other restrictions.

Astros regain winning form against New York

By the Associated Press
The Houston Astros have begun what pitcher Joe Niekro calls their "greatest and most important" road trip of the season, and he says it is the time to run for daylight.
Houston opened a three-game set in New York Monday night with a 3-1 victory, snapping a four-game losing streak as Niekro threw a four-hitter and became the first 17-game winner in the National League.
That victory, coupled with Cincinnati's 5-2 loss to Montreal, moved the Astros to open a 2½-game lead over the Reds in the NL East Division.
After the Mets series, Houston moves to Philadelphia for three games, then winds up its road trip in Montreal with three games. The Astros won't see the Astrodome again until Aug. 31, when the Mets visit.
"We can't just relax at any time," said Niekro, who walked three and fanned six. "We have to play like we did early in the year. A couple of one-run victories will give us a better mental attitude."

Expos 5, Red 2
Larry Parrish lined two home runs to left, and Tony Perez added a covering shot over the center field wall to power the Expos to their eighth straight victory.
Dan Schatzeder, 9-4, won his fourth in a row with relief help from Matt Sanderson and Woodie Fryman, who got his seventh save.
Parrish now has 19 homers on the season, Perez 12. George Foster and Johnny Bench homered for Cincinnati. Bench's shot, No. 14 this year, tied Frank Robinson's club record of 324 lifetime.
"We had our shots and just didn't deliver," Reds Manager John Narama said. "Every game is crucial. We just picked up three runs on Houston. So we lost one. That's all."

Pirates 6, Giants 5
Pinch runner Alberto Lois scored the winning run on a passed ball by catcher Mike Sadek in the eighth inning, allowing the Pirates to maintain a lead of two games over Montreal and four over Chicago in the NL West.

Pittsburgh tied the game for the third time in the bottom of the fifth on John Milner's sacrifice fly, and a half-inning later, the game was delayed by rain for 3 hours 42 minutes.

Jack Clark had given the Giants a 5-4 lead in the top of the fifth with his 24th home run of the season. Stargell homered for the Pirates, his 23rd.

Cubs 2, Dodgers 1
Lynn McGlothen doubled and scored to pace the Cubs to their fifth straight victory. Bruce Sutter pitched the ninth inning and got his 32nd save, breaking the club record of 31 in 1965 by Ted Abernathy and equaled by Sutter in 1977.

Dusty Baker's 17th homer of the season, off McGlothen in the eighth, provided the Dodgers with their only run.

The NL record for saves is 37 by Clay Carroll and Rollie Fingers, and the major league mark of 38 was set by John Hiller.
"I don't worry about the number of saves," Sutter said. "Winning is important."

Braves 5, Phils 2
Phil Niekro picked up his 16th victory of the year, and Atlanta rallied for three runs in the ninth to beat the Phils. Jerry Royster's sacrifice fly snapped a 2-2 tie, then Jeff Burroughs drove in two more runs with a single.

Cards 5, Padres 3
St. Louis dealt San Diego its seventh straight loss with two runs in the sixth and three more in the seventh, two on a single by Ken Oberkfell. Bernie Carbo and Tony Scott each drove in runs in the seventh, and Carbo added another RBI hit in the seventh off Gaylor Perry.

THE PAMPA HARVESTERS began fall football drills with a flurry of activity Monday with 118 sophomores, juniors and seniors on hand for the start of two-a-day workouts as preparations began for the 1979 gridiron campaign. Pampa's first game of the year is versus Hereford in Harvester Field Sept. 7.

Pampa opens fall drills

"We're in very good condition and had a businesslike practice...everybody got down to business."

Those were the words of first-year head football coach Danny Palmer after overseeing the first organized fall workout Monday for the 1979 edition of the Pampa Harvesters.

A large group of 118 seniors, juniors and sophomores were on hand at the football practice fields as Palmer and crew continued the job of creating a top-flight program which they began last spring.

"Everybody is running on the same team they finished at after spring training," Palmer said while looking over the Harvester depth chart.

"The first couple of weeks, we are going to be trying to develop a defense," he added. "What we're looking for is aggressiveness, the disposition to dominate. We want to make sure we get the right person in the right position, so we are having everybody out here go both ways for awhile. Everybody's getting a chance."

Although classes B, A, AA and AAA have already been working out for a week, Monday was the first day the University Interscholastic League (UIL) allowed the big schools to begin since they are allowed full contact work during the spring, but that was just fine with Palmer.

"Spring training helped us a lot as far as letting the kids know what to expect from the coaches," Palmer said. "I really prefer it (the UIL practice rule). Four weeks is too long to wait for your first game. Everybody seems to get burned out."

One disadvantage for Palmer of only having three weeks to prepare for the opening tilt (in Pampa's case, the Hereford Whitefaces) is the fact that he must find solutions to some questions left unanswered by the spring drills. Foremost among these involves the all-important defensive line.

"Our biggest question mark right now is at defensive end," Palmer noted. "Billy Grimes is a returning letterman at that position and we moved Clifford Anderson to the other end position from linebacker. We're going to have to have some good play from that position."

Pampa will don pads Friday morning as they begin full contact practices. On Saturday, the Harvesters will hold a press day in the stadium at 5 p.m. and have a "Meet the Harvesters" presentation at 7:30 p.m. where all players and coaches will be introduced. The evening will be capped by an intrasquad scrimmage at 8 p.m.

Original Recipe
IT'S STILL A SECRET

It took the Colonel many years to perfect his secret recipe for Kentucky Fried Chicken. And it's still a secret!

But there are some clues. The Colonel uses only fresh, Grade A Chicken. He seasons it with his special blend of eleven herbs and spices and then pressure fries it to seal in all the flavor.

The result, "finger lickin' good" Kentucky Fried Chicken Original Recipe. That's no secret.

It's nice to feel so good about a meal.

Missouri boss happy with Big 8 favorite's role

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Nobody expects the Big 8 Conference to produce a national football champion this year, least of all the coaches.

"I don't think anybody could reasonably expect one of our teams to be No. 1 this season," said Oklahoma's Barry Switzer. "In fact, I think there's going to be less of a gap between the top and bottom teams."

Echoing that view and expanding on it was Nebraska's Tom Osborne, who tied Switzer's Sooners for the 1978 title.

"Last season I honestly thought that of the seven league teams we played, at least six had a chance to beat us," he said. "I don't expect it to be any easier this year. It will be nearly impossible for a team to go through the conference schedule unbeaten."

But if anybody does, most observers figure, it could be Missouri. Coming off an 8-4 campaign and a rousing Liberty Bowl victory over Louisiana State, the Tigers of Warren Powers return the league's best quarterback and most talented, experienced and cohesive offensive line.

Powers is not at all shy about accepting the favorite's role that many have thrust upon him.

"I think it's good, I like it," he said. "Winning the Big 8 is what we're supposed to be trying to do, so if people think we should do it, fine. That can give our players something to shoot for."

In no particular order, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Missouri are generally rated the Big 8's top teams this year. Below them, Iowa State and probation-ridden Oklahoma State seem to have the most potential, followed by Kansas State, beginning its second rebuilding year under Jim Dickey, and Colorado, launching its first under Chuck Fairbanks.

Kansas, with folks Don Fambrough happy to be back in control, might have trouble improving the 1-10 record that got Bud Moore fired last season.

Quarterback Phil Bradley, a nimble, versatile junior who led the Big 8 in passing and total offense as a sophomore, is the main reason for the respect being accorded Missouri. His 189 yards per game total offense was 17th best in the NCAA last year. And although his three top receivers are gone, Powers has some impressive youngsters to replace them and, most importantly, a dynamic offensive line that returns everybody but All-Conference center Pete Allard.

Oklahoma sent 10 players into professional football this year and Switzer says there is no way he can replace such an abundance of talent. But he still has Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims to carry the ball.

DANNY PALMER, first-year head football coach for the Pampa Harvesters, shows his running backs the proper way to pivot out of the wishbone formation during Monday's afternoon session of two-a-day workouts. Monday was the first day for AAAA schools to begin organized practice.

Woodard faced with changes upon return to A&M campus

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M fullback George Woodard may wonder if he showed up at the wrong campus when the Aggies begin workouts this fall.

Since Woodard last donned an Aggie uniform, Tom Wilson has replaced Emory Bellard as coach and then replaced Bellard's wishbone offense with the I-formation.

And David Brothers has replaced Woodard.

When Woodard finished off clomping through opposing defenses two years ago he had become A&M's all-time leading rusher with 2,864 yards, a distinction he still holds by 14 yards over Curtis Dickey.

Then Woodard suffered a broken leg in the off-season, ballooned over 300 pounds, missed the 1978 season and miraculously pared back down to 246 pounds going into fall practice.

"David will be the starting fullback going into fall practice," Wilson said. "He is a good solid running back. If George can come back from his injury he will be an asset to our offense."

"He is strong at 246 and his leg looks good. The only thing we can't do is predict what will happen when it gets hit."

Woodard, who played two years ago at 260, was tailor-made for the wishbone offense, taking his stance menacingly close to the line of scrimmage. That will be another adjustment.

Meanwhile, the I should be a perfect fit for Dickey.

"We think Curtis is going to get a lot more opportunities to show what he can do from the I," said Wilson, who replaced Bellard during last season. "He'll be starting farther back and will be able to take advantage of situations as they arise."

The new offensive scheme also will be an adjustment for junior quarterback Mike Mosley, who grew up through the high school ranks as a wishbone quarterback.

"Mike has made a great transition from the wishbone," Wilson said. "He has put on some weight, which should help him, and he's such a fine athlete he can do some of the things we expect of him in the I formation."

Wilson has shuffled his offensive linemen too, hoping to get the best talent at key positions. Ed Pustejovsky from center to guard and took Tim Ward from defensive tackle and put him at offensive tackle. Kevin Kennedy went from the offensive to the defensive line.

Preston Dickson takes over the center position while Pustejovsky and Paul Hagerty will start at guards and the tackles will be Ward and Zach Guthrie.

Phillips Simpson and Chuck Carr will battle for the tight end position vacated by Russell Mikeska.

"Tight end was a big priority for us in spring training but I feel Simpson and Carr made great progress," Wilson said. "Their only problem is they haven't lined up and played much."

The Aggies, occasionally burned by the long run or the bomb last year, hope to rid themselves of that trademark this year.

"We've got to eliminate the big play," Wilson said. "We won't be doing as much of the man-to-man defense or blitzing as much. We'd be more of a zone team."

James Zachery and Jacob Green return at ends to anchor the defensive line and Gerald Galloway and Arlis James will replace graduated tackles Eugene Sanders and Gary Milligan, both three-year lettermen.

Wilson has great expectations for Green. "I speak about Jacob Green in the same way I talk about Curtis Dickey," Wilson said. "He's a big play man, always on the move. When there's a big play involved, Jacob is always involved."

The starting linebackers will be Cal Peveto, Doug Carr and Mike Little with Carl Grulich and Dan Davis at cornerbacks and John Dawson and Elroy Steen at safeties.

Three rookies released by Dallas

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have cut three rookies from their roster including linebacker Greg Fitzpatrick of Youngstown State (Ohio), a seventh-round draft choice.

The other players released on waivers were free agents Mike Kincaid, a defensive back from Florida State, and Ernie Rogers, a defensive tackle from Rice.

The cuts trimmed the Cowboys' roster to 57, but another seven players must go today to meet the National Football League deadline of no more than 50 players by the end of the day.

Two veterans and a rookie missed Monday's practice. Strong safety Randy Hughes was out with fluid on the right knee, linebacker Thomas Henderson suffered an upset stomach and rookie Bruce Thornton was in bed with a fever.

A team spokesman said all three would be ready for Saturday night's preseason contest against the Pittsburgh Steelers in Texas Stadium.

Football powerhouses abound in Midwest

By JOE MOOSIL
AP Sports Writer

Notre Dame, Purdue and Michigan will be among the football powerhouses this season but hopes of the Midwest providing a national champion appear remote at best.

Notre Dame probably has the toughest opening schedule in the country. The Irish start out at Michigan and Purdue before their home opener against Michigan State.

"We don't think we're going to be 0-3," said Irish Coach Dan Devine. But if the Irish happen to be 3-0 against three of the Big Ten's title contenders, they also have an Oct. 20 date with Southern Cal, the team Devine insists "has to be rated No. 1 in the country."

While the Irish are fretting over a schedule which finds them finishing the season against Miami, Fla., in Tokyo, Japan, the Big Ten race figures to be a four-way struggle involving Purdue, Michigan, Michigan State and Ohio State.

Passing, a phase of the game once frowned upon in the Big Ten, could make even greater strides this season.

"The Big Ten could be a different type of conference this year," said M. C. Darryl Rogers, who emphasizes the passing game and guided the Sparo to a share of the title last season. "There could be seven teams who will average 25 or more passes a game."

Bo Schembechler, dean of Big Ten coaches now that Woody Hayes is no longer in the Ohio State picture, agrees Purdue should be one of the favorites.

"But it is not limited to Purdue," insists Schembechler. "It will have to be Purdue and Ohio State. Both have experienced quarterbacks who are good. Secondly, they don't play each other. That's a big break. But don't count us out. If you do, you're making a big mistake."

Earle Bruce has replaced Hayes at Ohio State but the Buckeyes will be right up there in contention and their leader will be quarterback Art Schlichter who is equally adept at running and passing.

Behind Purdue, Michigan, Michigan State and Ohio State there is a big dropoff in the Big Ten.

Joe Salem at Minnesota and Hayden Fry at Iowa are two other new coaches in the Big Ten this season.

Minnesota has Marion Barber, the Big Ten's leading rusher, returning along with experienced quarterbacks in Wendell Avery and Mark Carlson. The Gophers could be the league's darkhorse.

Fry insists Iowa is a long way from being competitive but he is an innovative coach who will shake things up. "I've spent a lifetime going to sick places and making them well."

Wisconsin lacks depth on defense but could cause trouble on offense if quarterback Mike Kalasmiki makes his grades and at Indiana. Coach Lee Corso has a very young team which could gradually improve if the Hoosiers can avoid injuries.

Illinois will bank heavily on the quarterbacking of Rich Weiss and the same is true of Northwestern with Kevin Strasser but both teams are a long way from becoming title contenders.

TCU hopes to avoid lightning

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A midsummer thunderstorm was menacing Rivercrest Country Club golf course and Texas Christian Athletic Director Frank Windegger glanced at the dark clouds laced with lightning.

He turned to playing partner Norm Bulaich, a former star Horned Frog fullback and more recently a retired Miami Dolphin, and said: "Swing faster, Norm. The only thing that's gonna prevent us from winning this tournament is lightning."

Windegger can associate with lightning. Enough of it has hit the TCU athletic program in the 1970s to light up 15 Fort Worths.

A fatal heart attack struck down Jim Pittman midway through the 1971 season. Billy Tohill took over and piloted TCU through 1973 before he was nearly fatally injured in a car accident.

Former TCU great Jim Shofner was hired away from the San Francisco 49ers but never could get the hang of coaching college football. F.A. Dry was hired after the 1976 winless season.

"It's been a long uphill battle but with F.A. we're going to be back on top," said Windegger. "You can already see the changes around here."

"We've got a weight room second to none in the country. Our training room is magnificent and we have an excellent film room. We're going to build a dome. Everything is on the upbeat around here. Nobody is tucking tail and running. TCU is in the Southwest Conference to stay."

The Horned Frogs upset Oregon and Tulane

last year but went without a precious SWC victory.

Dry had every player on the team over to his house for Sunday night steaks after the Tulane victory. There's no telling what kind of celebration is in store this fall for a conference win.

"I really feel like we will sneak up on some people," said Dry, now in his third season. "We're starting to get our program established. If our offensive line comes through, we'll win some games. I'll tell you that."

Somomore Steve Stamp, who won TCU's two games last year with his passing heroics, is the catalyst for the offense which has returning backs such as Jimmy Allen and Craig Richardson.

Dry likes the looks of such freshman as running back Marcus Gilbert of Dallas South Oak Cliff, quarterback Reuben Jones of Tulsa, running back J.C. Norris of Cooper, and fullback Ollie Norris of Valencia, Pa.

Jones was Player of the Year in Oklahoma.

"We believe this freshman class is talented and potentially a great group," said Dry. "There's a good chance for several of these youngsters to give us immediate help, especially in backup roles."

Dick Lowe, a strong TCU supporter and longtime fan, said the freshman crop "just may be the best TCU has ever recruited."

Windegger hopes so. He's getting sick and tired of lightning.

Little credits LPGA win to maturity

PLYMOUTH, Ind. (AP) — Sally Little, looking forward to becoming an American citizen, says maturity is helping her produce the type of golf others anticipated when she left her native South Africa for the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour in 1971.

Little, 27, said she is starting to believe in herself after scoring her fourth pro victory in nine years Monday at Plymouth Country Club.

Little made a 3-foot putt for par on the final hole to edge defending champion Pat Bradley by one stroke. The putt gave Little a 71 for the final round and an 8-under-par 208 for the 54 holes on the 6,156-yard, par-72 course.

The victory in the Barth Classic was worth $15,000 to Little, the tour's most consistent performer recently with 11 consecutive finishes in the Top 10.

"I feel like I'm maturing. I'm coming of age. It's like every week I set goals for myself," she said. "In the past, I used to tee it up without any goals. I'd just go out and try and win, win, win."

"You can't do that. You've got to be in a position to win, and that's being in the Top 10 every week."

Little, who has earned a career high $97,392 in climbing to the No. 6 spot on the tour's money list this year, credits new confidence in her recent performance.

"Ability doesn't mean a thing unless you believe within yourself. It's not a cockiness or anything. It's a very comfortable feeling," she said.

"It's taken me longer than expected to become consistent. There were a lot of things I had to adjust to after coming from a foreign country, but I think I've matured to where I can compete as an equal."

Little, who moved from Dallas to Delray Beach, Fla., earlier this year, plans to become a naturalized citizen in 1981. She said she hopes to eventually have her parents, sister and brother join her in this country.

Little began the final round protecting a 1-stroke edge over Amy Alcott and Dot Germain. She made putts of 10 and 3 feet for birdies on her first two holes to pull away.

But Bradley, who began her defense with an opening round 73, kept charging, and the two were even at 8-under when Little bogeyed the 191-yard par 3 No. 14 hole.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A public hearing on a public elementary and secondary education in Texas will be held Sept. 26 in Fort Worth. Gov. Bill Clements said Monday.

The hearing will be conducted by the Governor's Advisory Committee on Education. The 23-member committee is headed by Dr. Willis Tate, former president of Southern Methodist University.

The blue-ribbon committee was created by Clements to advise him concerning policies and programs on education.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission approved an interim order Monday permitting Cities Service Co. to continue disposal of produced oilfield brines in a Terry County lake.

Total brine discharged into the lake, under specified conditions, must not exceed an average of 75,000 barrels per month for any 12-month period.

Hearing examiners reported disposal of salt water into Mound Lake will have no adverse effect on usable quality water or wildlife in the area.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission refused Monday to approve higher gas rates for two gas utility companies in the environs of Temple and Brady because of excessive charges for rate case expenses.

Texas Municipal Gas Corp. filed an appeal with the commission last year asking a 49 percent rate increase for about 2,600 residential and commercial customers in and around Brady.

In the other case, Lone Star Gas Co. proposed new increased rates for various customer services, affecting about 88 residential and commercial customers around Temple.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State and federal welfare officials have rebuffed Comptroller Bob Bullock in his effort to learn how many state employees are getting food stamps.

He said the State Department of Human Resources took his request for information and made it "a bureaucratic football by tossing it to federal officials who turned down the request."

Bullock said federal welfare officials turned him down because his office is not directly involved in administering the food stamp program.

The comptroller recently advocated unionization of state employees in a speech to the Texas AFL-CIO convention. He said Monday he asked welfare officials last week for information as a first step toward "finding a solution to keeping productive state employees."

Bullock has estimated as many as 60 percent of the government workers might qualify for food stamps because of low wages.
