TRAFFIC SAFETY FUNDAMENTALS

(From the Star-Telegram)

Remedies for the increase, at an alarming rate, of motor vehicle casualties in the United States have been set before the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, meeting in Washington, by J. H. Parmalee, chairman of the conference's committee on traffic accidents. Among the proposals are complete state systems for licensing motor vehicle operators. It is significant enough that this feature occupied first place in the committee's recommendations, its report showing that the States which have such systems are making the best showing in checking the march of motor accidents.

Other recommendations of the committee were: Safety education in the schools; laws making it the specific duty of some state agency to receive traffic accident reports and to investigate all accidents, with a specific duty upon proper officials to report all accidents in their jurisdiction; requiring detailed reports of the causes of accidents, as recklessness, carelessness or incapacity of persons, fault of mechanism in the vehicle, and physical conditions of the locality where the accident occurred; maps showing where accidents occur most frequently and the hours of most frequent occurrence; standard accident report forms.

Of all the traffic accidents in the United States last year the report shows that 93.8 per cent were due to motor vehicles, which accounted for 81,000 of the 33,960 deaths. This was an increase of 10.8 per cent over 1928. The report states that "the increase from 1928 to 1929 was one of the largest, both absolutely and relatively, in the last decade. Motor vehicle fatalities showed an increase from 1920 to 1929 of 147 per cent."

For some years, it has been felt that the increase in accidents about paralleled the increase in automobiles in use, and therefore that while we were not gaining we were holding our own. The 1929 report shows that this comfort is not allowed us. For the country as a whole, the increase in motor fatalities is faster than the increase in motor vehicle registration, and has been so each year since 1907. "Whether this recent tendency," says the report, "is due to a more intensive use of the automobile, or to the greater speeds at which now driven, or to more reckless disregard of traffic and safety rules, or to all three factors combined, it is difficult to say."

Texas, of course, in the face of the evidence that a driver's license law is absolutely necessary, can not hope to make a reasonable showing in traffic accident prevention until it provides such a system. We have laws and ordinances designed to coerce drivers to drive carefully, of course, but these are astonishingly ineffective. The licensing of drivers, making the privilege of operating an automobile dependent upon sane and careful operation, provides an enforcement agency for all safety laws and ordinances. The driver who will freely take chances with arrest when he knows that the worst he faces is the possibility of a ridiculously small fine, will think more than twice when the penalty is suspension or revocation of the license to drive.

Safety instruction in the schools will help, of course, and so will the other measures recommended by the committee. Especially is this true of the statistical recommendations. When authorities know that certain regions are marked accident spots they may concentrate their efforts there to obtain safer driving. But none of these, for all, will suffice without the drivers' licensing system, which puts teeth in all safety rules and laws.

Property loss in the United States from traffic accidents amounted to $850,000,000 with loss of life totaling 33,060, plus literally millions injured. These figures certainly leave no room for question that more vigilant, intelligent and serious attention by cities and States to this duty of public safety is one of the major matters of local government. The United States' annual fire loss is sometimes said to be the most scandalous of any important country, but the property loss from motor accidents is now far in excess of the losses by fire, and at the present rate of increase bids fair in a few years to be actually double that figure, while the loss of life and the physical injuries are enormously greater.

THE JOB OF A NAVY MAN

In this day when naval admirals are deploying before Senate committees by squadrons to express their opinion of the London treaty, it is rather refreshing to view the attitude of Rear Admiral J. R. P. Pringle, who has just retired as president of the Naval War College to go to sea as commander of a division of the fleet.

Called before the committee on foreign relations, Admiral Pringle admitted that he still believes that the United States needs 21 cruisers armed with eight-inch guns, instead of the 18 allowed by the treaty; but when he was asked whether he thought that the American delegates should have held out for 21 cruisers even at the cost of wrecking the entire conference and getting no treaty at all, he replied:

"I do not think that it is the duty of a naval officer, or his privilege either, to advise as to the negotiation or ratification of treaties."

Here, it seems to us, is one naval officer who thoroughly understands his position. It is a pity that so many of his fellow officers lack a similar clarity of vision.

The naval officer, to be sure, is placed in a rather difficult position by these naval reduction treaties. He is trained and paid to make the navy an efficient fighting force. If the country goes to war he will be the one who has to do the fighting, and if the navy is inadequate as to ships or equipment he is the one who will suffer for it.

Naturally, therefore, he wants to see the country maintain a big navy. He could hardly be expected to feel otherwise. It is this feeling that leads him into violent opposition to treaties such as this one signed at London, propagandize about the treaties. They are up to a Nevertheless, it is not the naval officer's function of propagandize about the treaties. They are up to another branch of the government. Admiral Pringle has the right idea; it is neither his duty nor his privilege to advise about treaties.

It is too bad that more of our naval officers cannot be induced to adopt Admiral Pringle's view.—N. E. A.

East Tennessee, Mr. Crawford, who is 85 years old, lived on the Tennessee river until the war and for 16 years afterward. He enlisted in Company E, 26th Tennessee in September, 1861, and surrendered with his company at Charlotte, N. C. April 23, 1864. In 1863, he was transferred to Company D, Fifth Tennessee cavalry, part of the army of General Joseph E. Johnston.

In one of the bloodiest and most desperate battles of the war—Chickamauga, Mr. Crawford fought in the center flank. This battle resulted in a clean-cut victory for the Confederates. The last year of the war, 1864, was one continuous battle in Virginia, Tennessee and in most strategic points east of the Mississippi.

Battle Every Day General Johnston's slow retreat to Atlanta lasted 69 days and there was a battle fought every day. Some of the most memorable battles of this retreat were Kennesaw Mountain and Resaca, both bloody. As Mr. Crawford understood the difference between General Robert E. Lee and General Johnston, the latter believed in sacrificing territory in preference to his men, while General Lee felt it to be his duty to hold territory at all costs. General Johnston's army killed more Federal soldiers than either Stonewall Jackson or Lee's. He fought as he retreated and tried to keep his soldiers in good condition.

Fatal mistakes cost the South the war, Mr. Crawford believes. Lee's failure to abandon Petersburg before he was bottled up was due to the influence and orders of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy. Mr. Crawford believes. The well-known blunder at Gettysburg, when fresh troops failed to occupy positions already gained, marked the moment when the sin of the Confederacy began to set. Four out of five battles were won by the Confederates, Mr. Crawford declared. If Albert Sydney Johnston had not fallen at Charlestown, if Stonewall Jackson hadn't been killed... if Lee had abandoned Petersburg and joined with Joseph E. Johnston... if A. P. Hill had gone up the hill at Gettysburg... Most Confederate soldiers and authorities on the Civil War are of the opinion that anyone of these things might have brought victory for the South.

Fighting to Win "And suppose the South had won? "Well, we were fighting to win, weren't we?" Mr. Crawford said. "If the South had won? Why the only aristocracy and culture that ever existed in the New World would have been saved! If the South had won it would not have been ground into the dust by the heel of the North for 40 years. Of course it would have been better for the South to win: Would you think a man would fight for four years, starving, freezing, bleeding, for a principle and believe he is wrong?"

Not "Jeb" Stuart, not Phil Sheridan, but Nathan B. Forrest was the greatest cavalry leader of the Civil War, Mr. Crawford believes. His reason: Forrest kept the Mississippi valley clear of Federal troops until the fall of Vicksburg. Forrest was the fastest cavalry leader of all time, is Mr. Crawford's conviction. During the so-called battle of Lookout Mountain, Mr. Crawford was four miles away. He says the Federals called it a battle but more than 100 guns were fired during the evacuation of Point Lookout. Hood Was Handsome Joseph E. Johnston was a little man, as well as Mr. Crawford remembers. He had a "roly-poly" stomach, a tuft of hair on his forehead and a bald crown. He was about five feet and seven inches in height. One of the most handsome Southern generals was General John B. Hood, who was only 32 when he was commander of the army of the Tennessee.

There is still something about the Civil War and the South's heartbreaking defeat that still brings a catch in the throat and mist to the eyes when talking to one of the soldiers who fought for secession and states' rights. It is no wonder that an old veteran should weep when he remembers the million soldiers who fell on the battlefields of the South—to be defeated in the end. Who would not weep when he visualizes Lee surrendering at Appomattox, Johnston dying at Chickamauga, Jeb Stuart dying at Yellow Tavern with his yellow sash wrapped bravely about his wrist? There is no true Southerner who wouldn't, said Mr. Crawford.

There are no Democrats today as there were in ante-bellum days, Mr. Crawford affirms. He claims to be no Jacksonian Democrat—no, because Jackson did not believe in secession, he forced South Carolina back into the union. The brand of Democracy that Mr. Crawford likes bears the name of Thomas Jefferson. "Why there's not a Democrat in the national congress today from either the North or the South who has one characteristic of a Jeffersonian Democrat! Not one!" he declared. "With the coming of industries and factories to the South, the Southern people changed to protectionists, clamoring for a high tariff. But I haven't changed—I'm agin it! I'm agin it, forever and ever! A tariff is wrong and unjust."

Against the Tariff "I sometimes think," Mr. Crawford said in closing, "that the pocketbook is the birthplace of patriotism." And one was aware that he had come to such a conclusion after noting the changes in Southern beliefs of 68 years...

Despite his 85 years, Mr. Crawford comes down to his office every day. His hand is steady and his voice falters not. His hair, though white, is as thick as the thicket of white. As thick as the thicket of white is as blue and steady as when they faced the carnage at Chickamauga. Find a man of 85 who is as active and energetic as Mr. Crawford and you'll find many a man who is just turning 50. As secretary-treasurer of the Plains Mutual Hall insurance company, Mr. Crawford's business takes him over sections of wheat. Well, just try to follow him for one day and there'd be no need to take the Hollywood diet.

Sheriff Says He Had No Chance to Answer Charge

"I am not charging any member of the grand jury with dirty politics but I do say that the grand jurors were deceived and deluded by false witnesses," Sheriff E. S. Graves declared this morning in commenting upon this morning's indictment returned by the grand jury against him, yesterday afternoon. "Of course politics was back of it all—that is, the jurors were the unwitting victims of dirty politicians, but even at that I can't understand how they could be so far deceived as to charge me with taking that bond money. I didn't dream they were considering such a thing until the indictment was returned. They should have called me before they heard my side before they took any action. I hesitate to express my opinion of the grand jury until I learn more about the case, but I will have plenty to say at the trial. "It won't take long for the grand jurors to see that they made the biggest mistake in the world and have done me the most injurious kind of a gross, criminal injustice! There's not a word of truth in the charge they filed against me. If they had called me before them I could have explained the thing in five minutes. Somebody has just pulled the wool over the jurors' eyes for the last 12 weeks.

"Never for once did the grand jury call me or my deputies before it to answer complaints made against us. The jurors should have given us a chance to give our side."

PITCHING OF SEIBOLD IS BIG SURPRISE

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The current performance of Harry Seibold, veteran pitcher of the Boston Braves, is one of the most amazing things in the National League struggle. Back in the days when Washington had a pair of pitchers named Nick Altrock and Al Schacht and a young left handed hurler appeared on the Boston Red Sox roster as G. Roth and was considered a good enough batsman to appear in a world series game as a pinch hitter, Seibold was a regular hurler with the Philadelphia Athletics.

A decade ago Seibold disappeared into the minor leagues, and little more was heard of him until he appeared at the top of the International League list with reading in 1928. The Chicago Cubs called him in from their farm to use as a trading material and sent him to the Braves. Seibold had a fair season last year, winning 12 games and losing 17, but it was not until the start of the 1930 race that he really began stepping out.

So far in a race only two months old, Seibold has pitched nine complete games and has won seven of them. He has not yet been removed from the hill, taking his complete turn every five or six days with a remarkable degree of success in a close race. He held the Phillies to six hits yesterday and won his seventh victory by a 5 to 1 score in the first game the teams have been able to play this week.

Seibold's leading rival for staying honors in the major leagues, Walter Stewart of the St. Louis Browns, trailed right along behind him, completing his eighth contest in ten games with a 4 to 2 victory over Detroit.

The Chicago Cubs moved up to an almost safe place in the National league's first division by winning the remaining contest of the three which survived the rain and cold of yesterday. By defeating Cincinnati, 6 to 5, the Cubs made their margin over the New York Giants a full game.

GUNS HAVE 2 HURLERS FOR GAME SUNDAY

Reported to be the leading baseball club of the South Panhandle, Estelline's line which will play their second game with the Guns at Gulf park Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, has won games from both the Amarillo Cats and Tacks this season.

The Guns have strong and well-founded hopes of winning a victory Sunday. Since May 10, when the Guns lost a tight game at Estelline 10 to 6, the Gulf team has added several good men to its roster. Hitherto the Guns have been winning games with only one pitcher—Edelen. The other day Left Goope joined the Guns ranks and will occupy the mound part of the time. Lefty throws any kind of a ball, fast and with plenty of curves.

The probable line-ups of both teams follow:

Estelline—J. Markham, cf; W. Baccus, 2b; Sims, c; Hale, ss. L. Markham, lf; Williams, 3b; McCollum, rf; J. Baccus, 1b; Weathered, p. and Chandler and Perry, utility.

Guns—Morgan, lf; Munds, 2b; Hickey, ss; Sullivan, c; Kuhne, 3b. Reynolds, rf; Hope, cf; Davis, 1b; Coop and Edelen, p.; and Swafford, emergency fielder.

SPUDS PLAN FOR RETURN OF SLUGGERS

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Fully convinced that they have a good chance to win a Texas league flag this year, the new owners of the Wichita Falls Spudders are said to be laying plans to make their chances even better. The latest report has it that the Spud magnates are dickering for the return either of "Red" Bennett or Ted Gullie, both of whom went to the majors after pounding the ball prodigiously in this circuit last year.

A three-run outburst at the expense of Grimm in the seventh gave the league leaders their opening with Dallas 6 to 0, yesterday, and their fifth victory in six starts. Dave Danforth had the Olers well in hand for five innings, but he was relieved for a pinch hitter in the sixth. The piece of strategy helped the Steers score three runs and go into the lead, but it backfired on them in the next inning. Storm led the winners' assault with a homer and single, and Kloza had a triple and two singles.

Houston kept pace a step behind the leaders by taking Waco 7 to 5, before a manifest crowd of 4,000 at Brenham. The Bufts lay there again today. Hank Thormahlen, who previously had won eight of nine starts, was the Bufts' victim. His teammates staked him to a nice lead when they bumped Lingrel for four runs in the third frame, but the star Portsideer couldn't hold it.

Shreveport came to life with the willow to outscore the Fort Worth Cats, 11 to 7, in their series opener and retain their hold on fourth place. Led by Cashion, who banged a homer with a mate aboard, the Sports popped five Panther hurlers for a total of 15 hits, seven of them for extra bases.

The San Antonio Indians came back from their double beating of the previous day to defeat Beaumont, 3 to 5, when the veteran Tom Estill held his former teammates to eight hits. Oscar Ehardt's string of consecutive hits was stopped at nine when he grounded out his first time up.

Think Mystery Slaying Will Be Unraveled Soon

DALLAS, May 29. (AP)—Officers today expressed the belief that the mystery surrounding the slaying of Charles H. Brown, bus driver of Houston, here last Monday would be solved soon.

They were holding as a material witness a woman who identified from the rogues gallery record a man she said did the shooting. The officers, who refused to reveal further clues in the case, said they expected to make additional arrests soon.

The officers had been working on the theory that Brown was the victim of mistaken identity or the victim of a robber.

Boyd had been held without bond, charged as an accomplice of Alsup, and today was back in jail, awaiting trial.

Alsup's trial in two cases of murder was set for Monday in criminal district court.

Seize Bottles
OKLAHOMA CITY, May 29. (AP)—The initial blow here against purveyors of bottles, kegs, caps and other paraphernalia, brought under the purview of dry enforcement officers by a recent decision of the United States Supreme Court, was struck today by Bee de Monbrum, deputy prohibition administrator and six agents who took possession of a vendor's establishment near the eastern edge of the city. Five persons were arrested.

Three Americans Left in Briton Golf Tourney

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 29. (AP)—Only three Americans remained in the British Amateur Golf championship after the fifth round which brought defeat to George Von Elm and Francis Ouimet, and only two can survive the sixth as the luck of the draw arrayed Bob-Quimet lost to Lister Hartley, four and three.

In the afternoon matches Voigt played W. L. Hope while Jones and Johnston, open and amateur champions of the United States, were in a clash, just behind.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 29. (AP)—George Voigt of New York, advanced to the sixth round of the British Amateur Golf championship today, defeating William Campbell, British Walker Cup player, 4 and 2, in the fifth round.

Bobby Jones, American open champion, went into the sixth round with an easy victory over G. O. Watt of Broughty Ferry, 7 and 6.

Although Voigt didn't have much of a gallery following him, the New Yorker flashed some of the finest golf the tournament has seen.

Starting with a birdie three at the 345-yard sixth hole, Voigt played seven holes in 23 strokes, taking fours at the seventh and ninth holes and threes at the sixth, eighth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth. This sensational streak gave him a lead of four up on Campbell. The next four holes were evenly divided, Camp four holes were evenly divided, Campbell winning the thirteenth and fifteenth while Voigt won the fourteenth, and then ended the match with a four on the sixteenth.

Jones played real Jones golf in ending his match with Watt at the 12th hole, the battle winding up with Watt stymied just as Cyril Tooley was in his match against Jones yesterday.

GRAND JURY-

grand jury, to the inefficiency of those charged with enforcing it. The following instances are cases in point:

1. In certain cases officers of the sheriff's department took no action on complaints by citizens, giving as an excuse that they did not have time to investigate such complaints.

2. In certain cases officers of the law have been dilatory in making arrests after indictments were returned.

3. In many cases complaints made to the sheriff's department and Justice of the Peace were not turned over promptly to the grand jury while that body was in session.

4. By far the most serious complaint against the officers of the law is their inability to secure the proper kind of evidence. Even in cases where the grand jury has reason to believe that the officers of the law desired to obtain a conviction, the evidence obtained by these officers in raids was entirely inadequate. In certain cases the deputy sheriffs are not well enough acquainted with the details of the law to know what evidence is necessary and this grand jury charges the district attorney's office with giving the sheriff's department a thorough schooling in the law which they are to enforce and charge the sheriff with employing deputies of sufficient initiative and intelligence to obtain evidence which will make it possible for the district attorney to obtain convictions in much larger proportion of cases than is now possible. In one case the thorough examination of an automobile owned by the accused would undoubtedly have furnished valuable evidence.

It appears not to have occurred to the sheriff's department to examine this automobile and when they were called upon to do so they reported that the automobile was not in town. We consider this to be carelessness which is almost criminal since it may lead to permitting a guilty party to escape punishment or to the implication of an innocent party in a very serious charge.

The grand jury furthermore has considerable reason to believe that many of the public officers of Gray county are guilty not only of inefficiency but of willful misconduct. The grand jury has heard a great deal of evidence implicating the sheriff and all of his deputies, and the Justice of the Peace. This evidence has been discussed carefully and conscientiously and it is our opinion that all of the above named officers should be brought to trial. We have discussed all of these cases with the district attorney, who informs us that we have not sufficient grounds to secure convictions except possibly in one case, where an indictment has been brought, and this grand jury consequently is unable to bring any action against the other public servants.

We charge the next grand jury to pursue our investigation in this direction. We consider it, however, our duty to report that these men are not, in our opinion, performing their duty honestly and we call upon the people of this county to take a more active interest in law enforcement and if it is their will that the law shall be enforced to express that will by election of incorruptible officers.

We understand that the last three grand juries have recommended to the Sheriff that certain of his deputies be discharged and that these recommendations were not followed. We consequently consider it futile to make such a recommendation. The responsibility lies with the citizenship to elect a sheriff who can and will employ deputies that will do their duty honestly and well.

Having completed our labors, we respectfully ask to be discharged. Dated at Pampa, Texas this 28th day of May, 1930.

Red Cross Has Big Relief Task

NEW ORLEANS, May 29. (AP)—With the peak of the Red River flood which took a toll of six lives and caused widespread damage passing above Shreveport and the high water stationary in Red river and Natchitoches parishes, Red Cross relief workers today were checking in thousands of refugees and issuing cash tickets for the purchase of food and supplies.

The brunt of the flood was passing into Rapides parish where it will wash by Alexandria, the largest city left in its sweep to the Mississippi.

The United States weather bureau here issued a new warning for Alexandria forecasting a crest there of 39.1 to 39.7 feet by June 1 to 3 under the present rainfall and warning that protection of life and property should be continued. Flood stage at Alexandria is 36 feet.

Three thousand flood refugees at Coushatta, Red river parish, were issued cash certificates to purchase their supplies food anywhere with the promise of a minimum of $12,000 to redeem the checks.

The flood driven inhabitants huddled together in the camps at Coushatta and East Point nervously awaited a chance to leave their camps of flight and return to their water soaked homes.

At East Point, above Coushatta, where the water has covered forty square miles of farm lands for several days, the houses out of water could be counted on the two hands. Most of the refugees there have been administered typhoid serum for prevention of disease. A few cases of malaria are reported from there.

Friends Nominate Lynch Davidson

DALLAS, May 29. (AP)—A petition signed by 35 Hunt county citizens along with a check to cover registration fees to have Lynch Davidson of Houston placed on the Democratic ballot as a candidate for governor has been received by Albert Sidney Johnson, secretary of the Democratic executive committee. Mr. Johnson said the action of the Hunt county residents legally makes Davidson a candidate for governor, as, according to laws of the party, the name of a candidate can either be registered by the candidate himself or by a petition signed by 25 citizens of the state.

The secretary added that should Mr. Davidson wish he could withdraw his name from the ballot.

Leave Old Hens
UNION CITY, Okla., May 29. (AP)—It was bad enough for chicken thieves to lift fifty prime fryers from the roosts of A. T. Reese, farmer of near here, but they could have spared him the distress of reading this dubious doggerel, left tacked on the hen house door:
"We take from the rich.
We take from the poor;
We left you some old hens,
To raise some more."
Upon reading, Reese took a hasty census of his poultry population and found that the thieves indeed had left him the old, tough variety.

Find Jewels in Deposit Vault

NEW YORK, May 29. (AP)—Police announced today that a safe deposit box held by Robert Nelson and believed to contain about $200,000 worth of jewels had been found in the First National bank of Chicago. Gems valued at a million dollars were found in Nelson's deposit boxes here Tuesday. He is charged with receiving stolen goods.

Coincident with this announcement it was learned that police are considering the possibility that the robberies in which the jewels were stolen were directed from the gang land haunts of Cicero, Ill., operating base of Al Capone.

Police Lieutenant Oliver, who took part in the arrest of Nelson, and of four other men and a woman who had $300,000 worth of allegedly stolen jewels, said an application for the Nelson box in Chicago would be made to the superior court of Chicago.

Meanwhile, a telegram from Hot Springs, Ark., police asked that two men arrested here last week in the roundup of jewel thieves be held for Hot Springs authorities. The two men wanted in Hot Springs are George Cole and James Watson, the latter described by police as head of a nationwide band of jewel thieves.

Although they gave no details of the charges against the two men, it was assumed they were wanted for questioning in connection with the killing there last September of Preston Austin, Victoria, Texas, rancher.
