Korea closes defensive ranks

 SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Koreans closed ranks against North Korea today, and the United States moved an aircraft carrier closer to the Korean coast as the government admitted that President Park Chung-hee was assassinated by the head of the Korean

Opposition leader Kim Young-sam, a strong critic of Park's government, said the entire nation united in warning North Korea it "should by no means miscalculate this misfortune of ours as an opportunity for invasion, and it should bear in mind that the nation is determined to defend free democracy under any circumstances. Another leading opponent of Park, 1971 presidential candidate Kim Dae-jung, also warned the communists "not to try to take advantage of the situation....The entire people's voice is united, transcending political Warnings to the North and support for acting President Choi Kyu-hah also came from President Carter, Defense Secretary Harold Brown and the commander of U.S. forces in Korea, Gen. John A.

U.S. officials said they saw no evidence of unusual North Korean military activity. However, Brown said the United States had sent two airborne warning and control aircraft to South Korea and moved an aircraft carrier, already on station between Japan and Korea, closer to the Korean coast.

Wickham, who also heads the combined U.S.-Korean Command, sent a letter to Choi pledging that "should hostilities occur the combined forces command will defend the republic...(and) will remain ready and totally dedicated to the security of the republic.'

Choi, the defense, home and foreign ministers and other key officials met for two hours this morning and declared: "Everything is in order and calm has been

(AP Laserphoto) 600 demonstrators arrested

NEW YORK (AP) - Police said they arrested more than 600 anti-nuclear protesters this morning as they tried unsuccessfully to shut down the New York Stock Exchange on the 50th anniversary of the stock market crash of 1929.

The demonstrators, who numbered more than 1,000, sang and chanted as they sat in small circles on streets around the exchange, waiting for police officers to lift them onto stretchers and take them to vans for a ride to headquarters for booking on disorderly conduct charges.

The protest in lower Manhattan was largest of several anti-nuclear demonstrations in cities around the country today, including Bangor, Wash., Groton, Conn., and the nation's Deputy Police Chief Michael Willis said that more than 600 persons had been arrested by the time the exchange opened as usual at 10 a.m. Hundreds of annoyed Wall Street workers had been passed through barriers around the exchange by flashing identity cards to police.

Police used 10 buses and a like number of smaller paddy wagons to drive their prisoners to a central booking facility in Manhattan. When processing began to back up, some of the overflow prisoners were sent to a second central booking site in Brooklyn.

Inside the exchange, a cheer went up from the floor as the red warning light went on at 9:59 a.m., followed by a louder roar at 10 a.m. when the bell sounded for trading to begin.

"Usually they cheer when it's closing," said James Fuller, exchange's senior vice president. Fuller said all the exchange employees were at work, some because they had come in Sunday and stayed overnight.

Stock prices rose moderately in early trading. but there were slight declines in some of the nuclear issues targeted by the protesters.

Outside, the mood was almost festive, with little acrimony displayed among the protesters and hundreds of police officers on hand. A 15-piece brass band played circus music and spectators watched the protest from hearby vantage points, including the steps of the Federal State Rep. Foster Whaley of Pampa said at a chili supper honoring him Saturday that he will officially announce his candidacy for a second term 'within 30 days.'

Corporate suicide

WALL STREET JOURNAL - Later this month, at the annual meeting of SCM Corp., shareholder democracy may experience an unusual twist. If some dissident shareholders have their way, the company will vote to go out of business.

A conglomerate with sales last year of $1.75 billion, SCM makes typewriters, copying machines, spices, coffee pots, paints and chemicals and sundry other products. The dissidents want to sell off all these operations and distribute the proceeds to shareholders. They figure that liquidating the company will yield a higher return than either holding or selling its stock, which for several years has been trading at prices well below book value per share. The dissidents are proposing to replace SCM's directors by a new slate that would dismantle and dispose of the company's operations.

Management's counterattack has centered on the dissident's leader. N. Norman Muller, and his misadventures as chairman of a collapsed , hot stock called Liquidonics. The dissidents have fortified their arguments about SCM with an opinion from the investment house Bear. Stearns & Co. On the basis of publicly available information, according to this opinion, liquidation of SCM would "produce a realizable value of $36 to $47 per share," compared with market prices that have hovered recently around $25.

Of course, information not publicly available might lower estimates of SCM's liquidation value. It's possible, too, that SCM's future income streams are so uncertain that it's difficult to give the company a proper

As is so often the case these days. SCM's earnings depend as much on courtroom decisions as they do on the marketplace. The company, for example, spent $21 million in an antitrust suit against Xerox Corp., claiming $500 million in damages. A jury last year awarded SCM $37 million, more than the company's earnings for the entire fiscal year of 1978. Then a judge withdrew the award, now the case is on appeal. Given such legal uncertainties, and their enormous impact on SCM's earnings, it would be surprising if assessments of its worth did not vary

But what are the implications if the dissidents are correct, and the Of course, no Marine landing ever goes best thing the company can do for its shareholders is to stop doing smooth. For one thing weather held up the business

One possibility is that it really makes sense to split up SCM into its different product divisions. In recent years too many companies have diversified foolishly — for the sake of boosting reported earnings per share, or building personal empires, or because it's been the fashionable thing to do. Perhaps SCM suffers from the "negative synergy" that has afflicted many companies whose operations have become too complicated and diverse to be easily manageable.

As another possibility, the problem may be less with the structure of SCM than with the structure of the economy. SCM is not the only major corporation whose market value has been well below book value. In many industries shareholders are so fearful of inflation, of erratic and punitive regulation, and of litigation and court-ordered delays in capital spending, that they have little confidence in the future of productive investment. This has driven share prices down to levels that may accurately reflect future prosects if economic policies are not September. changed, but which have been at historic lows in terms of earnings

This trend has fueled the acquisitions binge of recent years. Stock prices have been so low that many enterprises found it cheaper and less risky to buy other companies than to make their own internal investments. Buying existing assets was cheaper than building new

Whatever the merits of the SCM proxy fight, the contentions being offered raise the possibility of a new wave of tender offers — directed at capturing the presumed value in the difference between share prices and book values by liquidating the company. It's a sad commentary on the economy when it's necessary even to consider the possibility that the best strategy for a going concern may be to close up shop.

Inquisition in oil

one thing to help people keep their houses warm had fun recently berating energy company executives for not promising to keep heating oil costs frozen.

The executives should have responded by demanding that the congressmen maintain the value of the dollar for one year or face the consequences, but they didn't. For the most part, they sat before the House Environmental. Energy and Natural Resources Subcommittee like contrite children and took their licking.

The primary victims were the men from Texaco, who had made the mistake of doing the very thing the politicians were demanding: they had promised to hold the

But, said the congressmen. Texaco's pledge was a ruse: it only extended to the end of this year, before the real cold crunch hits, and it came from a company that already had one of the highest prices going.

lid on heating oil

What did they expect? That Texaco would tie its hands beyond the OPEC meeting in December, when the costs of its supplies may sky-rocket? Or that Texaco would make such a promise were it on the low end of the pricing spectrum? The congressmen get caught up in the rhetoric sometimes, and forget that, despite their blab-bermouthings to the contrary, the oil business is a competitive one and Texaco is not inclined toward corporate suicide. Anyway, the worst backfire of the company's whole publicity ploy was that somebody liked their assurance. That somebody was President Carter, who evidently thought Texaco was planning to freeze prices for the whole winter - a kind of politicians' dream - and singled out the

This embarrassed Texaco, which was getting praised into a corner, and agnered Congress' most voracious energy demagogue, Toby Moffett, D-Conn., who chairs the aforementioned subcommittee. Moffett huffed and puffed enough to heat a whole city block, threatening Texaco with a subpoena if its officials didn't come wagging their tails before his tribunal to be lashed, as leaders of Gulf and Sun

Petroleum already had done. Finally Texaco sent a couple of vice presidents to hear out the inquisitor. And naturally, their answers, which unlike a politician's pronouncements must be hedged on the uncertainties of the market and the real work, did not suit Mr. Moffett or his caustic colleagues.

The congressmen, like most people in public office, eschew responsibility for rising prices by putting the blame on someone else. We were reminded of that by another incident in late September: Gov. Brown, of California, sued the federal government, seeking to have taken away his newly vested authority to raise gasoline dealer profit margins in the state by 10 cents a gallon. The service station owners are pressuring Brown to do so, and are probably right in saying that a lot of dealers are going to go under unless he does, but the governor wants to pass the buck back to Washington

In a sense, he's probably right, because that's where much of the problems lie, with men who've made our oil situation a nightmare by imposing rules devised in their energy dream world. Men like President Carter and Toby Moffett.

Murder in the community

By Jeffrey D. Wallin

Dr. Wallin is Associate Professor of Political Science at Arkansas State University and currently visiting professor of Politics at University of Dallas.

Scratch the surface of public opinion on any current topic and you are almost sure to expose a considerable rift between it and the opinion of experts in the field. At least if the experts are also reformists.

crime prevention. Recent opinion polls indicate that an overwhelming number of Americans believe the courts are too lenient on criminals and that the death penalty for murderers ought to be retained. Indeed, the citizens of one of our most liberal states, California, have voted not to abolish the death penalty on every occasion the question has been presented to them.

Yet what generally likes to think of itself

The evidence in this matter seems to support public opinion. Crime is a serious problem: in the period from 1960 to 1976 serious crimes (murder, forcible rape, aggravated assault, and so on) increased by 181 percent. And the conviction rate-to say nothing of the punishment rate, is appallingly low: a mere 3 to 4 percent of all crimes in America result in convictions.

Weizman told it exactly as it is. The vast majority of Americans are saddened that the United States has declined to the point where such a characterization can be made and made with accuracy The United States has suffered appalling foreign policy reverses since the Carter administration took office. The administration's inaction with respect to revolution in Iran is the reason the United States is facing an acute energy problem. The Carter administration, in the words of U.S. Rep. Robert Bauman of Maryland, adopted a "leftist" policy towards Nicaragua. Military assistance was denied to a pro-U.S. government. As a result, this Cental American country is now under the control of a Marxist regime with close ties occupy key policy-making posts in the State Dept.

Unfortunately, the Carter administration is full of ideological fans of the Third World who aren't mindful of the strategic interests of the United States. Andrew Young is only the most conspicuous of these Third Worlders, not the only one. It's imperative that the public insist on a thorough housecleaning in the State Department and National Security Council in the years ahead

The need in the future is to find foreign policy executives who aren't part of the foreign policy establishment. If one examines the lists of academics who speak at government seminars on foreign policy. one finds the same old, tired figures who have produced set-backs for the U.S. during the Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon, Ford and Carter administrations. One thinks of such individuals as Adam Yarmolinsky and Robert Bowie, of the University of Massachusetts and Harvard University respectively.

These types continue to dominate the international affairs centers and academic think tanks linked to the government. Fresh talent, with a no-nonsense outlook on foreign policy, must be allowed to break into the privileged circle of government advisory groups.

It will take a very strong and knowledgeable secretary of state and national security adviser to make sure that the foreign policy establishment doesn't maintain its stranglehold, in the event there is a new, conservative administration. It's not too soon to start a search for realistic, hardline foreign policy executives with no links to the liberal

A striking possibility

Strikebreaking is nothing new, but when it's undertaken by airline passengers it's worth noting.

There were 280 in their seats ready for takeoff on a flight to Marseilles, a recent wire dispatch from Paris reports, when they received a message from their polit. It wasn't to inform them of cruising altitude, speed, weather at their destination and the like, but that the pilot was calling off the flight and joining a strike of ground

Passengers are a long-suffering lot because, as anyone who has traveled on a thrift ticket or taken an economy charter well knows, they have to be. But these passengers were not about to take this development buckled down. They seized the plane and pilot, demanding alternate transportation. They got it.

Which may only prove that while you still can't fight city hall, the cockpit is another matter.

Or maybe the incident suggests a possibility for dealing with wildcat public strikes that usually see the public getting stuck the worst. Commandeering and holding of equipment until the public was served might have an effect. On the other hand, it could have its drawbacks - for example, in a sanitation strike.

Yet reformers continue to argue that criminals ought to be rehabilitated rather than punished and that the death sentence ought to be abolished. These recommendations are made in spite of overwhelming evidence that not a single one of the numerous federal or state rehabilitative programs works. the reformers and abolitionists. Their written works suggest that they would consider such a response crude, uncivilized, and far more lamentable than the criminal actions which produced it. A recent book by Professor Walter Berns of the University of Toronto, subtitled Crime and the Morality of the Death Penalty, suggests that, on the contrary, the anger displayed by this crowd is, when properly tempered by the law, a necessary support to civilization and decency To be angry at another's murder-as distinguished from being frightened at the prospect of being a future victim-is to admit that one cares for the person murdered. We are not at all surprised that a mother cares enough for her son, or a wife for her husband, to hate their murderers. But what about the neighbors in this case? They did not know the victims well, perhaps not even personally. Does not their anger indicate a concern for those whose presence and decency helped to make them fellow members of a community rather than the solitary * creatures they otherwise would be?

We all wish to deter crime. But we sometimes forget that a significant purpose of the criminal law, in addition to providing an effective deterrent, is to reinforce the natural bonds of affection and trust that make decent political community possible. In part this educative function of the law is accomplished by praising those who abide by the law and punishing those * who break it. To neglect just punishment is to neglect the moral purpose which is at once the basis of the law and the result of the law. Abolitionists and reformers tend to deny the moral basis of the law, just as they tend to deny the moral ingredient in human

But is it not true that human life is " thought to be inviolable because humans are the only earthly creatures capable of moral choice? We do not condemn-nor do we praise-the actions of animals: for we' know that while some animals appear to be brave and others cowardly, there is in their actions themselves neither courage nor

To accept the abolitionists' argument, one would not only have to accept their premise that the death penalty does not deter crime (and the most recent evidence suggests that every legal execution prevents up to eight murders). One would also have to accept the view that we ought not to treat each other as human beings oreven as fellow citizens. Should we accept these premises, and should we further accept the notion that we ought to confine ourselves exclusively to those activities that benefit us in the most immediate material ways, ignoring the common purposes and bonds of friendship that distinguish the best human communities, then surely there would be little reason to exact the greatest of penalties for the greatest of crimes. The acceptance of such a way of life would itself constitute the greatest crime humanity is capable of committing against itself. In the conviction that this is so lies the source of the distinction between a common sense perception of the world we live in and the lifeless abstract world our reformers would too often fashion for us. Criminals ought to be punished, and some murderers ought to be executed. Our hope of future deterrence depends upon it, and our concern for the innocent demands it.

Houston facing confusing election

HOUSTON (AP) — Under the cloud of a federal grand jury investigation on alleged City Hall corruption, and a fog of confusion on a new council selection process, Houston residents will vote for a mayor and 14 councilmen Nov. 6.

There will be 97 candidates on the ballot, eight of them wanting to be mayor of the nation's fifth

Among that group are incumbent Jim McConn, a businessman seeking a second two-year term; Councilman Louis Macey, a bitter and vocal foe of the mayor; and Leonel J. Castillo, who recently resigned as commissioner of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. Because of the bulky field, runoff races are expected in most of the contests. Under a new formula, voters will select five council members on a citywide vote, and nine others from specific districts. That means each voter will have a shot at picking six council

In the past, the council had only eight persons

Harris cleaning up court's bail bond cases

For some reason, people in Gray County who are charged with a misdemeanor offense believe an arrest is the only thing they have to

Rick Harris, assistant county attorney, is proving them wrong. In August, he was appointed to a six-month term by the county commissioner's court to clean up 114 bail bond cases on the county

'I've done 60 of the cases so I'm over halfway through," Harris said. "Some of the cases go back to 1977 and the bonds have ranged from $250 to $1,000.

David Martindale, county attorney, became swamped with a backlog of county welfare and criminal cases, Harris says, and needed help in "cleaning up the dockett." Both are also in private practice with the Martindale, Martindale and Harris law firm.

"My prime concern is to get these defendants in court," Harris said. "The defendant has done something wrong and he has to answer for that. A lot of them hope the courts will forget about their cases.

Before Harris ever gets involved, the defendant must post bond and be arraigned. If he fails to show up at that arraignment, a "judgement nisi" is entered on the dockett sheet by the presiding Then Harris enters the case and issues a citation, delivered by the county sheriff, to the defendant and his bondsman. "Most of the bondsmen are bringing in the defendants and aren't having to forfeit the bond now," he said. "But most of the cases I'm handling have been cases where no one has shown up at all." He added that bond is simply an assurance that the defendant will show up at his trial. There are three types of bonders: bonding companies, individuals and personal recognizance bonds. "We've had trouble finding individual bonders," Harris said. "In

Technician joins SCS in Pampa field office

Elsie Briggs, who grew up with a conservationist in the family, has joined the staff of the Soil Conservation Service as a technician in the Pampa field office.

She will be working on maintenance of the conservation practices, as well as general assistance," said Lee McDonald, district conservationist.

This includes field application in terraces. critical area treatment, underground pipelines, waterways, tailwater pits, and other conservation measures handled by the Gray County Soil Conservation District.

Mrs. Briggs is the daughter of Lyle Dugan, a conservation contractor in the Seminole area. She is married to Gary Briggs, a range

Some doctors minimize cramping

By Joe Graedon

Q. I have been suffering from menstrual cramps two days every cycle since I was a teenager. I can barely stand because of the cramps: I have headaches, and my lower back and legs ache horribly. I usually feel nauseous, and often have diarrhea.

My doctor pushes me aside with barbiturates and tells me it's psychological. This doesn't help at all, and I don't believe it is "all in my head"

I've heard there are some new drugs for menstrual cramps. Are they available and do they really work?

A. Yours is only one of many letters we have received from women who are regularly incapacitated with cramps. Some doctors seem to minimize the problem as "psychomatic", telling their patients they are imagining things and recommending a hot water bottle or muscle relaxant to reduce anxiety.

Other physicians react by prescribing heavy - duty pain relievers (including narcotics) or birth control pills. A few women have even resorted to a hysterectomy to obtain relief.

Fortunately, those days are just about over. New breakthroughs in our understanding of menstrual cramps should bring some measure of relief for millions of women. Researchers have discovered that severe pain and discomfort are related to unusually high levels of hormone - like chemicals called prostaglandins. These substances trigger uterine contractions and some of the other common symptoms.

A number of drugs which have been developed for treating arthritis also block the action of prostaglandins. In a recent column we mentioned that many of these medications had not yet been approved by the Food and Drug Administration. However, two of these anti - inflammatory agents, Motrin (ibuprofen) and Ponstel (mefanamic acid), have recently been approved by the FDA for the treatment of severe menstrual cramps.

Studies have demonstrated that both drugs can provide significant and sometimes complete relief from most symptoms. Not only was there a dramatic decrease in pelvic pain but women suffered less weakness, dizziness, diarrhea and leg cramping.

Because the drugs are only taken for two or three days each month the likelihood of side effects is small. Nevertheless, Motrin and Ponstel can cause heartburn, gas and stomach pain and should not be used by women who have ulcers or chronic gastritis.

Other adverse reactions to be alert for include headache, drowsiness. nervousness, rash or fluid retention.

Although there is no guarantee that these drugs will eliminate your menstrual cramps, relieve your nausea or cure the headaches, optimistic reports in the medical literature and recent FDA approval are very encouraging. It might be worth discussing these two drugs with your doctor to see if he might supervise a trial course with one or the other.

Q. My husband loves fishing, but I don't. An hour on his boat turns me as green as the water. Is there some non - prescription drug that will cut down on that seasick feeling?

A. You don't have to keep running to the rail. There are drugs available in over - the - counter preparations which are effective against the nausea and vomiting of motion sickness. Meclizine (found in Bonine and Vertrol), cyclizine (in Marezine) and dimenhydrinate (Dramamine, Eldodram, Ram and Trav - Arex) have all been proven

Any of these drugs should be taken half an hour to an hour before casting off in order to obtain the most complete relief. They make some people feel sleepy, so you'd better avoid them if your husband expects you to navigate. But if you're just along for the ride one of these products could save the day

DEAR ABBY

Halloween hazards can be avoided

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: With Halloween just around the corner, may I point out that this happy holiday sometimes ends in disaster for some. According to the National Safety Council, 135 Halloween fatalities occurred last year. Some were children who died in Halloween-related traffic accidents. Some were youngsters who were fatally burned due to flammable costumes. And others died after eating booby-trapped "treats."

The American Optometric Association, whose 22,000 members are concerned with the need for seeing and being seen, offers the following safety tips:

· Buy FLAME-PROOF costumes only. Or if costumes are made at home, treat the fabric with a flame-resistant · Because masks, floppy hats, wigs and veils often interfere with a child's vision, use MAKEUP instead.

· Accessories such as swords, broomsticks, hatchets, wands, etc., should be made of CARDBOARD rather than plastic, metal or wood. Sharp items are dangerous.

· Provide youngsters with flashlights to prevent falls on sidewalks or porch steps. (Positively NO lighted candles should be carried!)

· Decorate your child's costume and trickster bag with reflective tape to make them highly visible to motorists.

· Remind children that they should NEVER enter the home of a stranger or accept rides. · Adults can help by keeping their yards well-lighted.

Parents should check all "treats" before allowing children to

Very young children should always be accompanied by an

DEAR ABBY: A woman physician, married for nine years to a career officer in a foreign military service, says their marriage was never consummated. She signed herself DOING FINE WITHOUT.

I am reminded of a quotation from Voltaire, who said (re sex): "The only aberration is abstinence."

Library reception for Family of Year

Library Family of the Year, the Michael Binghams, will be honored at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Lovett Memorial Library, instead of at 7:30 p.m. as reported in Sunday's edition of the News. The Friends of the Pampa Library will host the reception and invite the public to attend.

NACE to meet tonight in Borger

The Panhandle Section of the National Association of Corrosion Engineers (NACE) will have its regular meeting Monday, with dinner at 7 p.m. at Sutphen's Bar - B - Q in Borger.

Larry Beil will be the speaker. He will discuss application of cathodic protection to well casings. Several sub - topics will include rectifier - groundbed systems, mitigation of corrosion on well strings and maintenance of cathodic protection systems after installation. Beil is president of Corrosion Specialists, Ltd. He was formerly with Cathodic Protection Service in Denver and Houston.

Attitude adjustment begins at 6:30. Membership for is at 75 for NACE, which meets the last Monday of each month at Sutphens. Chairman is James Burke of Colorado Interstate Gas Company at Masterson.

Vice chairman is Joe B. Davis of Celanese Chemical Company in Pampa. Other officers include O.B. Thomas, secretary - treasurer, of W.E. Neill & Associates in Borger; Donald Pramer, trustee, of Northern Natural Gas Company in Liberal; and William Bolton, education chairman, of Seward County Community Junior College in

DEAR JOEL: One could say, "Abstinence makes the heart grow fonder."

DEAR ABBY: The invitations are out, the wedding gifts, are coming in and the wedding is to take place soon. My fiance and I went to see a counselor because we can't seem to agree on many things. (We argue constantly.)

I am beginning to think it's a mistake to continue. The counselor says to either postpone the wedding or forget it. What does one do (and how) at this stage? It can only get worse.

DEAR CHICKEN: Cancel the wedding either by telephone or telegram immediately. It will be somewhat sticky, but far better than being stuck in a bad marriage.

DEAR ABBY: I must come to the defense of Beverly, the perfectly groomed, beautiful woman who leaves her house at 6 a.m. for a 15-minute drive to an office where she isn't due until 8 a.m.

A reader asked what she did with all that extra time. He even hinted that perhaps she arrived at work disheveled and with a few spangles missing.

Well, I leave my house at 5:50 a.m., and arrive at 6:10 a.m., for an 8 to 4 job because I like it that way!

I make no stops and arrive as neat as when I left home. No one else is at work, either, in case you might think I'm meeting someone there.

I set things up for my day's work, and if I have something special that requires my full concentration, I prefer to do it then. I also read my newspaper in peace and quiet. I'm sure there are many others who arrive at their jobs early for legitimate reasons.

DEAR DOTTIE: You're right, of course, and I need not look far to find one. My devoted secretary, Katie Beal, who has been with me for 23 years, isn't due at her desk until 8, a.m., but bless her, she's frequently there at 7. (She calls her self "Abby's Irish Rose"!)

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

TWEEN 12 AND 20 Stop living dream

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I went to a concert to see Leif Garrett and fell in love with him instantly. I know that he could care less about me but I won't go out with any boys ever again even though I'm 16 years old.

My friends think I'm crazy and my mom who is religious asked me to pray to God for guidance. Well, I did and I got this vision of Leif sending me a package with a small box in it but I check the mail every day and it hasn't arrived yet. What do you think this vision means? - Debbie, Columbus, Ohio Debbie: You are living in fantasy land. Leif Garrett, I assume, doesn't know that you exist. Does he know your address?

It's perfectly natural to have a crush on a "star" but keep it in perspective.

Give the boys in Columbus a break and start dating again. I have a vision you will meet one who catches your fancy.

Approximately 80 persons gathered to hear Mel Newsom of Oklahoma City and Ed Carlson of Dallas speak at the fall meeting held at the Quality Inn of Amarillo.

Newsom, now associated with Don's, a studio in Nichols Hills Plaza, was employed for three years as a portrtait photographer for Eastman Kodak in Rochester, N.Y., and has taught several courses at the Winona School of Photography. He received his Master of Photography degree from the Professional Photographers of America in 1959 after compiling the necessary 25 merits in a short time Newsom's first program dealt with basic portrait lightening, proving to be as educational for the practicing "old-timer" who needed to brush up on his or her techniques as it was for the several newcomers in the audience.

Again on the second day of the meeting Newsom talked to the group about another important aspect of portrait photography oosing women. Teresa Rohrer of Oklahoma City, who often models for Newsom, demonstrated the fine points of posing that has won Newsom's portraits their many awards.

Ed Carlson, assistant vice president of sales at *Meisel Photochrome of Dallas, presented the final program of the two day meet on "Having Funm With Special Effects." Improved housing for handicapped College Station - Improved housing that will provide for maximum independence and self-sufficiency for the handicapped and the elderly should become a reality in the near future, researchers have predicted here.

Planners and researchers attending the American inspace. Association of Housing Educators conference Oct. 16-19 at Texas A&M University said the special needs and preferences of these groups will receive more consideration in the future.

Yonda Kiplinger, of the Philadelphia Geriatric Center. said between 1900 and 1950, the number of people 50 years of age and older tripled, and is expected to double by the year

"By 1985, there will be over

36,000 households headed by people 50 years and older," said Kiplinger

ROADWAY TAGE

Newspaper headlines told a grim story 50 years ago today, as prices collapsed on the New York Stock Exchange. But the news did not surprise everyone. In September, 1929, economist Roger Babson predicted that "sooner or later a crash is coming, and it may be terrific." A year earlier, novelist Sinclair Lewis remarked that "within a year, this country will have a terrible financial panic." In 1927, somebody asked Mrs. Calvin Coolidge why her husband had decided not to run for president again. Mrs. Coolidge replied, "Poppa says there's a depression coming." Events following the crash of 1929 would prove that "Poppa"

The base rate for electricity for most of Southwestern Public Service Company's customers in Texas went down one-half cent per kilowatt hour Oct. 1.

The reason is SPS's winter rates went into effect at that time. During the summer months, the base rate for residential service is 2.75 cents per kilowatt hour for all hours after the first 30. The rest of the year, the base rate after 30 kilowatt hours is 2.25 cents per

A customér who used 500 kilowatt hours in September received an electric bill for $30.94 plus city tax. His bill in October for 500 kilowatt hours would have been $27.08 plus tax.

Not all the savings this customer would realize came from the winter rate, however. SPS paid less for its fuel in October than September, so these savings were passed on to the customers. The fuel cost portion of the Spetember bill was $13.52. while the October fuel cost portion dropped to Fpr a customer who uses 500 kilowatt hours per month, the winter base saves him $2.36 over the summer rate.

Houston stuns Jets, 27 - 24

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Oiler Coach Burn Phillips tipped his western hat to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service Sunday and cast a broad smile in the direction of Austrian-born Toni *Fritsch

"Every time I look up and see that kid going onto the field I thank "God for our immigration laws." Phillips said of the 34-year-old refugee from the soccer fields of Europe. "He's one heck of a player.

For the second time this season, Fritsch ended another of "Houston's last-gasp rallies with a 35-yard overtime field goal that gave the Oilers a 27-24 victory over the stunned New York Jets. Fritsch's 29-yard kick beat Cincinnati 30-27 earlier this year.

The phere Fene on the Astrodome floor appeared to be just the atmosphere Fritsch needed. While the teams lined up for the play of the game. Fritsch stood waiting patiently, hands clasped behind his

"I had to go in and make it." Fritsch said matter-of-factly. "I was trying to stay ready. The kicker has one or two chances to show how good he is and I make my living off of kicking.

And so do the Oilers. * The Oiler offense sputtered and popped well enough to take a 24-10 lead into the final minutes of the game despite a total of 104 yards on 10 penalties, including 35 yards on one touchdown drive.

Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini, booed for his ineffectiveness in the first quarter, ralled the Oilers to a 17-10 halftime lead on Fritsch's 47-yard field goal and touchdown runs of one yard By Rob Carpenter and four yards by a hobbled Earl Campbell.

Pastorini, who finished with 18 completions on 36 attempts for 212 yards, regained some of the crowd's confidence in the third quarter with a 37-yard touchdown pass to tight end Mike Barber

But the boo-birds returned in the fourth quarter when Pastorini could not ignite the Oilers while New York rallied on quarterback Richard Todd's 15-yard touchdown pass to Jerome Barkum with 5:33 to go and Todd's one-yard run with 55 seconds left in regulation play.

"I'm 2-0 in overtime and I'm glad to get a shot at kicking the winner." said Fritsch, who earlier missed a 31-yard attempt, breaking a streak of 12 consecutive field goals.

"It's simple, we lost the game, we just didn't have it," Jets Coach Walt Michaels said ... 'We've lost two games in overtime that we could have won and we couldn't stop them on third down. The Jets. 4-5, lost to Cleveland 25-22 in overtime

Todd hit Wesley Walker with a 39-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter and Toni Linhart added a 31-yard second period field goal to take a 10-3 lead before Houston started its surge respect of the Dallas Cowboys. Do they also have their number? "Somebody said that we beat 'em when it don't count, and they beat us when it does," Dallas linebacker Thomas Henderson said Sunday after Pittsburgh beat the Cowboys 14-3.

"You know, what can I say? I'm at a loss for words," he added. "Hollywood" Henderson at a loss for words?

That's as rare as Dallas scoring just three points, which hadn't happened since a 23-3 loss to the New York Giants in 1972.

But it happened Sunday as Pittsburgh blunted the Cowboy ground game, sent quarterback Roger Staubach to the sideline with a fourth-quarter concussion, and turned Franco Harris loose for two touchdowns, including a 48-yard bolt.

"But," said Henderson. "I have a feeling we're gonna get them when they think they got us."

The Cowboys may get that chance in Super Bowl XIV in Pasadena, Calif. Both teams are now 7-2 and atop their divisions. But the Steelers have won four big ones in a row over Dallas, and the Cowboys would trade any of those for their five straight preseason wins over Pittsburgh.

"This was a very satisfying victory, to say the least," tackle Joe Greene said after Pittsburgh held Dallas to 79 rushing yards, 73 by

After the Steelers beat Dallas 21-17 in Super Bowl X, there were suggestions Pittsburgh had gotten away with excessive physical intimidation of Cowboy receivers.

Pittsburgh beat Dallas again 28-13 in the 1977 regular season, but it wasn't a must game for the Cowboys.

After the Steelers downed Dallas 35-31 in Super Bowl XIII, there was much talk about a controversial pass interference call against Cowboy cornerback Benny Barnes.

'There's was nothing flukey about it today." Greene said. "It was top-notch competition, a heck of a game. They came out to play and they played well. But we played better. Might Pittsburgh have a psychological edge over Dallas?

'What?" winced Coach Chuck Noll. "I'm not a psychologist I'm just a poor old football coach. All we do is practice techniques and play the game The Cowboys tried one pass from punt formation, but the Steelers were ready for it. Dorsett wanted to throw another pass on an end sweep, but the Steelers were ready then, too.

We wanted it so bad, and things didn't go right," said Dorsett, who came here with four consecutive 100-yard games. "We didn't execute. When you play a team of that caliber and don't execute, you're gonna be in for a long afternoon.'

Early in the second quarter, the Steelers faced fourth-and-goal at the Dallas one. Tight end Randy Grossman went in motion through the backfield, and Harris followed him off right guard for a touchdown. Dallas then drove to the Pittsburgh 12 before settling for a 32-yard field goal by Rafael Septien. Later in the second quarter. Danny White appeared ready to punt as Dallas faced fourth down at its 31. But White called a pass

They moved their up-backs to the wing position. When people do that we play the pass every time." said Noll.

Nobody was open. White's pass was incomplete. "He (White) obviously thought he could make the play," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "It wasn't a good play to make.

Does White have an option to call that play? "He won't any more," said Landry.

It didn't hurt, however, as Pittsburgh's Matt Bahr missed a 32-yard field goal try.

In the third quarter, Franco Harris bolted off left guard, eluded an arm-tackle by Randy White and deked past safety Cliff Harris on his way to a 48-yard touchdown.

Franco Harris finished with 102 yards rushing. The game before, he rushed for 121 yards and two touchdowns in a 42-7 win won Muhammad Ali's vacated WBA heavyweight boxing crown in South Africa, "The Greatest" wasn't watching. He was back in the counting house, counting his money.

"I coulda whupped 'em both," Ali said when he surfaced for air. "I could get in shape and beat both Tate and Holmes."

Larry Holmes holds the World Boxing Council (WBC) version of the fractured title. Tate wears the solid gold belt of the World Boxing Association.

It doesn't matter much. "The Great Man," who dominated the sport for close to a decade, just won't go away.

On the day that John Tate, the massive bronze medalist of the 1976 Olympic Games, returned triumphantly to New York, the scalp of Gerrie Coetzee dangling on his belt, it wasn't his picture but that of his charismatic predecessor that he saw splashed all over the place.

There Ali was on the cover of TV Guide, all decked out in top hat, velvet-trimmed coat, black vest and tie, advertising 'Freedom Road," the movie version of Howard Fast's bestseller, a four-hour drama to be aired by NBC in prime time tonight and Tuesday night.

Co-starring with Kris Kristofferson, Muhammad assumes the role of a slave in the mid-1800s who rose from slavery to a seat in the U.S. Senate.

"In 1865, they called him 'Boy," said the advertising blurbs "Ten years later they called him 'Senator."

Ali flew to Mississippi to assume the fictional role of Gideon Jackson. He got $1 million for 12 weeks' work on the $7.5 million

"There is little doubt," said the TV critic, "that Ali is indeed the most recognized face on the planet. His aides even speak of the possibility that he may some day run for president.

If Tate, who was pictured on the back page of New York's afternoon newspaper upon his reentry into the United States. had thumbed to the front of the paper he would have seen another picture of the ex-champion, beaming from a placard showing a popular Japanese compact car and unrecognizable Arabic script.

"Ali to Arabs: " said the headline, "Buy Cars."

The item went on to say Muhammad had signed a contract to star in a precedent-setting $4 million advertising campaign aimed at persuading the oil-rich Arabs to do away with their sleek limousines and buy the economical Japanese car.

Razorbacks have bowl hopes dimmed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - Lou Holtz was reflecting on Houston's 13-10 victory over his University of Arkansas football team in a confrontation between unbeaten Southwest Conference opponents:

'It's difficult to put your life into something. It's like a farmer putting his life into his crop and then it doesn't rain. Or a cotton farmer. I feel like a boll weevil has hit our field."

These boll weevils wore the scarlet and white of the Houston Cougars and they put a big dent in Arkansas' Cotton Bowl hopes with Saturday's victory in Fayetteville.

Houston is now alone at the top of the Southwest Conference. Arkansas, Texas and Baylor have one league loss each.

"We no longer have any control over what happens to somebody else," Holtz said. "We had our chance at home and didn't get it. That doesn't mean it will work out that way.

"We've been playing hard to get to the Cotton Bowl. We have to forget that and play for the sake of playing. All we want now is 7-1. "I'm not sure where we're going from here.

Mario Tremblay pulled Montreal to within a goal with 1:03 left, but Quebec held on.

"Our strategy was to force the play as much as possible in their end of the ice — to stop them before they got going," said Demers.

The Nordiques took a 1-0 lead on Richie Leduc's goal, then rallied after Montreal got tallies from Pierre Mondou and Steve Shutt. Real Cloutier and the Canadiens' Doug Risebrough traded second-period scores before Dale Hoganson tied it 3-3 for Quebec with 1:01 left in the second period.

Ohio State eyes number one

The Big Ten looks like the Big Two once again - what else is new? - and Ohio State and Michigan both have No. I on their minds.

There's just one little difference...Ohio State has its sights set on a No.1 national ranking while Michigan is grateful for the last-second heroics of freshman wide receiver Anthony Carter, who wears uniform No.1.

While Ohio State, tied for No.4 with Arkansas in The Associated Press ratings, was mauling Michigan State 42-0, 10th-ranked Michigan needed a last-second 45-yard touchdown prayer from John Wangler to Carter to salvage a 27-21 victory over Indiana and remain tied with the Buckeyes for the Big Ten lead. They meet in Ann Arbor, Mich., on Nov. 17.

Art Schlichter threw scoring passes of 53 and 12 yards to Doug Donley and scored on runs of 3 and 6 yards as unbeaten Ohio State piled up more than 500 yards in offense for the third week in a row and handed Michigan State its first shutout in 51 games.

Coach Earle Bruce, whose eight victories in his first year at the helm have surpassed last year's seven under the ousted Woody Hayes, was asked if he thought the Buckeyes should be No.1 nationally. "I don't know about that," he replied. "We are looking right down the line at Illinois and Iowa."

And then comes Michigan, whose miracle finish sent Indiana's affable Lee Corso into a state of shock. Corso clutched smelling smalts during his postgame interview and refused to let newsmen talk to his players. The Hoosiers had tied the score with 55 seconds left on Tim Clifford's 3-yard pass to Dave Harangody and Kevin Kellogg's conversion. But Wangler then took the Wolverines 78 yards in five plays. On the last one, he hit Carter down the middle at the 15-yard line and the slender freshman stumbled and weaved his way through the secondary into the end zone.

There were plenty of other minor-miracle finishes, but none quite matched Michigan's. Eric Hipp's 45-yard field broke a tie with 2:46 to go and Charles White added a last-second 5-yard touchdown run as No.3 Southern Cal shaded stubborn California 24-14. Sixth-ranked Houston got fourth-quarter field goals of 37 and 19 yards from Kenny Hatfield, the latter with 1:12 left, and then blocked a 42-yard attempt by Arkansas' Ish Ordonez on the final play to nip the Razorbacks 13-10. Arkansas had been tied for No. 4 with Ohio State.
