PLO opens negotiations

By The Associated Press

A Palestine Liberation Organization mediation team has begun talks with Iranian authorities and the student militants holding some 60 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, a PLO source in Turkey reported today. He said they were in contact with Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The Palestinians are seeking the release of a few hostages as a first step toward ending the 6-day-old standoff, said the source in Ankara, who asked not to be named.

Tehran Radio said representatives of the Red Cross — the Red Lion in Iran — were allowed into the embassy today and found the hostages to be in good condition. But the PLO source said the Red Lion reported some were suffering from "mental duress."

The Turkish ambassador in Tehran, Turgut Tolumen, also visited the embassy, Saudi Arabian radio reported. State Department officials said they were informed Tolumen might try to negotiate with the students.

Thousands of Iranian demonstrators marched on the embassy today, chanting "Death to America!"; it was reported by witnesses reached by The Associated Press by telephone from Bonn, West Germany.

The embassy militants had rejected PLO mediation Thursday, saying they would negotiate with no one unless the United States agrees to hand over Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi for trial in Iran, where he has been condemned to death.

Joining the list of diplomats and world figures trying to win the hostages' release were Anwar Sadat, who said he was ready to fly the shah from New York to Egypt, Muhammad Ali, who reportedly offered to exchange himself for the hostages, and Pope John Paul II, who sent an envoy to meet with Khomeini.

The State Department said it was considering calling for a U.N. Security Council meeting on the situation.

Witnesses in Tehran, reached by The Associated Press from Bonn, West Germany, reported the march on the embassy, where the Americans have been held captive since Sunday by Iranian demonstrators demanding the United States hand over Shah

Mohammad Reza Pahlavi for trial in Iran, where he has been condemned to death.

The witnesses said the marchers were urged on by Moslem clergymen.

President Carter sent a peace mission en route to Iran two days ago but the Iranians rebuffed the overture. They also rejected a mediation bid by the Palestine Liberation Organization, saying they would not open negotiations with anyone unless the Carter administration agrees to surrender the shah.

The rejection of the PLO overture, reported by Tehran Radio, left world leaders groping for solutions to the stalemate.

Sadat told an NBC-TV correspondent in Cairo that the events in Iran were "a disgrace to Islam," and he believed that flying the shah to Egypt from his New York hospital bed would help meet the Iranians' demand the monarch be sent out of the United States.

"Quote me: my airplane is ready to bring him here any moment," Sadat said. He said he had talked to Carter about the idea by telephone Thursday night.

A State Department spokesman said such a decision would have to be made by the shah. Earlier this week, the deposed monarch offered to leave the United States but his doctors said it was medically inadvisable.

Pope John Paul dispatched Archbishop Annibale Bugnini to Iran "for humanitarian reasons ... to secure the safety" of the hostages, the Vatican said. Bugnini, papal ambassador to Iran, will seek a meeting with Khomeini, who sources said has "high respect" for the Roman Catholic Church and the pope.

President Carter sent a peace mission en route to Iran two days ago but the Iranians rebuffed the overture. They also rejected a mediation bid by the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Carter reacted to the bleak situation by halting shipments of spare military parts to Iran during the crisis and underscored his concern by postponing a two-day state visit to Canada.

Stalemate

A student leader (right) shows electronic gadgets and a tear gas cannister found in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Iran, as evidence of the "intelligence nest" of the Americans in Tehran during a press conference Thursday. Students also allowed pictures of the hostages, including an Embassy staffer and a member of the Marine Corps (below) to show their well-being. As of late Friday morning, the students were still refusing to set the hostages free.

Hospital contract approval stalled

By MELANIE MILLER
Of The Pampa News

When the Gray County Commissioners Court signed a lease-purchase contract agreement with the Hospital Corporation of America last April 1, local officials believed it would take only six to eight weeks for the state attorney general to rule on it.

Now, over seven months later, that ruling — which is the attorney general's opinion on the law as to whether the county hospitals can be leased — has still not been sent to Gray County Attorney David Martindale.

County Judge Carl Kennedy spoke to authorities in the opinions office of the attorney general's office several months ago and was assured the ruling was forthcoming. It has yet to be sent.

Mary Hazlett, attorney general's office spokeswoman, said Thursday the ruling should be in "shortly." She refused to specify a time period, adding that the attorney general has yet to sign the opinion.

"There were a lot of people and facts involved in the lease contract and we had to call back a number of times for more information," Hazlett said in a telephone interview. "We can't issue an opinion until all the facts are in. But it really shouldn't be too much longer."

Martindale said the extra information the office requested had been sent in.

"Their ruling shouldn't have taken so long — it should've only taken about two months," he said. "We should've had it five months ago."

Martindale wrote a letter to the attorney general last week requesting information on the status of his request on an opinion from that office. He has not received an answer.

Last March 19, he asked the state office for an opinion as to whether the county could enter the leasing agreement with HCA, considering the fact that Gray County's population did not fit into any specified brackets of state statutes regarding the lease or sale of hospitals.

Also, Martindale requested an opinion on specific statutes regarding authorization or provision for the "sale, conveyance, and transfer by the Commissioner's Court of personal property of the County."

Finally, he sought an opinion as to whether any Legislative action or voter approval was needed before the commissioner's court signed the agreement.

"We could've submitted a bill to the Legislature — while they were still in session — but the attorney general said that wasn't necessary," Martindale said. "If we'd done that, this would be all over."

The commissioner's court signed the contract with HCA, which authorizes the corporation to lease Highland General Hospital in Pampa and McLean Hospital for thirty months. At that time, HCA is to purchase Highland General and build a replacement facility.

A certificate of need application submitted by local authorities Oct. 1 also has yet to be approved by two state agencies, the Panhandle Health Systems Agency and the Texas Health Facilities Commission. However, those agencies have until March 30, legally, for their approval to be sent.

Two die in three-vehicle crash

ALANREED — Two persons were killed and four injured in a three-vehicle accident at 3:40 p.m. Thursday 1.1 miles west of Alanreed on a section of Interstate 40 now under construction.

Johnnie Warren, 43, of Collinwood, Tenn., was dead at the scene. Mrs. Eileen Greta Petterson, 44, of Cloverdale, British Columbia, Canada, was dead on arrival at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

David Anthony Warren, 7, was listed in serious condition late Thursday in the burn ward of High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo.

LeeAnn Petterson, 21, of British Columbia, was in good condition at Northwest Texas Hospital.

Clyde Charles Slavin, 65, and his wife, Madeline Slavin, 55, both of Clarendon, suffered minor injuries and were not hospitalized.

John Holland, the Texas Department of Public Safety trooper who investigated the accident, said the Warren pickup attempted to pass the Slavin vehicle, which was westbound, and collided with the travel trailer driven by Mrs. Petterson. The accident occurred on the center stripe of the two lane highway.

The Warren vehicle then swerved into the Slavin vehicle after the initial impact. A fire resulted, Holland said.

Traffic on Interstate 40 was blocked for several hours after the accident while clean-up crews cleared the wreckage.

Mrs. Petterson's body was taken to Schooler-Gordon Funeral Home in Amarillo. She is survived by her husband; her daughter; and three sons, Clint, Carl and Clint.

Warren's body was taken to Creed-Lamb Funeral Home in McLean.

Company promises cooperation

City representatives discuss SPS request

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

CANYON — Representatives of fourteen area cities, including Pampa City Manager Mack Wofford and Administrative Assistant David Callison, met Thursday afternoon in the Canyon city commission room to discuss the proposed Southwestern Public Service rate increase and elect a steering committee to study the matter.

"They are trying to avoid the mistake they made with the last increase," Mayor Phillip D. Langen of Canyon told the group.

After talking with Larry Mullins and Bert Ballengee of SPS, Langen said, he was informed the increase was necessary due to the loss of revenue after a cool summer and conservation methods used by consumers.

Hereford City Manager Dudley Bayne was elected chairman of the steering committee. Other members include Dr. J. Pat Stephens, Canyon Commission member; Jerry McGuire, Amarillo assistant city manager; Tom Alman, Plainview commissioner; and Merrill Nunn, Amarillo city attorney.

In an emotional address to the city representatives, Bayne said officials from SPS had expressed a desire to work with the cities on the upcoming rate hike.

"Pioneer Natural Gas was easy to work with on the last rate increase. Southwestern Public Service would like to do the same, they say," said Bayne.

Bayne added the officials "agreed there would be no battering for information," explaining last year's committee had trouble with the SPS office in obtaining information for their study.

"That's harassment as far as I'm concerned," Bayne stated. The officials have said, however, they would make the books available to the study team this time, he said.

Speaking about the last confrontation with SPS over a rate increase, Bayne said, "They were vicious when they first asked for the increase. We're not fighting any golden boys."

"We hope it doesn't have to go that far this time," Bayne commented, "but if they're as greedy as last time, we'll see them in Austin."

Bayne did concede that "publicity-wise" the attitude of SPS has changed. "Time will tell," he said. "We hope they are sincere in this."

Langen brought up in the meeting that a choice of the cities could be to change the method of electing people to the Public Utilities Commission. He felt the selection of commission members and "who they answer to is not always in the best interest of the citizens."

Commenting on a recent telephone company rate increase request, Bayne said, "When they ask for twice what they want and four times what they need, and then the PUC says 'You're not asking enough'... well, they're not representing you and me."

After the meeting, Bayne commented, "We don't want to cut down their return more than they're justified."

Wofford said, "The whole intent of the committee is to see that everyone's interest is served."

The purpose of the committee, Wofford feels, is to concentrate the combined efforts of area cities to "determine the fairness of a request" by SPS for rate increases. He explained if a city would try to do this alone, the "cost would be prohibitive."

"The public needs to be represented," Wofford said. "If there are not checks and balances in this system, then people are not being fairly represented."

Jury acquits Cullen Davis

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A jury shortcircuited the state's tape recording today and acquitted Texas industrialist Cullen Davis of plotting to kill his divorcee judge.

The panel of eight men and three women deliberated 16½ hours before rendering a verdict.

Davis, 46, proclaiming from the outset he was framed, thus averted jail for the second time on a murder solicitation charge.

Salt II ratification recommended

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharply divided Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted 9 to 6 today to recommend that the Senate ratify the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with the Soviet Union.

The vote ended the committee's four months of intense examination of the SALT II agreement and set the stage for a Senate debate that is certain to be long and divisive.

Two Democrats joined four Republicans on the committee in voting against the treaty. They were Sens. John Glenn, D-Ohio; Richard Stone, D-Fla.; Howard Baker, R-Tenn.; Jesse Helms, R-N.C.; S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., and Richard Lugar, R-Ind.

Senators voting for the treaty were Frank Church, D-Idaho; Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.; George McGovern, D-S.D.; Joseph R. Biden, D-Del.; Paul Sarbanes, D-Md.; Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine; Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb.; Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia hopes to bring the treaty to a vote this year, but treaty opponents hope to prolong the debate into the 1980 election year. A two-thirds majority of the Senate is required for ratification, or 67 votes if all 100 senators are present.

Before the vote, senators on both sides of the issue restated why they believed SALT II should be either ratified as it stands or defeated unless sweeping changes are made.

Church, the committee chairman, called the treaty one of the nation's most important foreign policy commitments since the NATO treaty in 1949.

Church said he had concluded that neither President Carter nor Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev are the most powerful men in the world because "they only possess a button neither dares push except in the act of committing national suicide."

He added: "We are like two gladiators locked in some sort of death dance. Finding a way to separate them is going to be difficult and will take time. This treaty gives us more time."

No job in winter

As winter approaches people think of Thanksgiving, Christmas, feasts and presents. But for many Americans, including several in Pampa, winter means freezing weather, colds and possible death. Hundreds of Americans will die this winter due to cold weather. Not those trapped in raging snow storms, but those elderly Americans who will freeze to death in their beds trying to stay warm.

Pampa seems so far away from the reality of death and despair we read and hear about in the daily news. So far away from anyone concerned with what a cold, bitter winter will do to those unable to pay for heat or food.

But the reality is here. It is here for many of our friends and neighbors. Those people who cannot afford the luxury of heating their entire house, but must sit in front of a small heater and pray the spring will come soon. Or those people who will brave the winter weather to go to a store or a friend's house where they may get warm for a while.

Here in Pampa, we have failed to realize the possibility of several older citizens won't live through this winter simply because they cannot keep warm.

We think those things only happen in other places — but the conditions for this tragedy are here with us now.

Several elderly residents live in houses where the rain and snow blow in through walls that have no insulation — and sometimes no heat. Several residents are handicapped and cannot care for themselves the way the more fortunate of us can.

Many of those elderly people won't be a problem when the snow blanketing Pampa this winter is gone — because they will have died. Victims of the apathetic way in which we live.

Hundreds of elderly residents live in housing you wouldn't allow your pet to occupy. They live in houses without water, heat, lights or any of the conveniences we take for granted.

The reality of the problem is this: Most of these people are proud to ask for help. They have worked all their lives and feel a handout is a slap in the face.

When you are eating your turkey on Thanksgiving and opening your presents at Christmas, remember how many of these older Pampans will spend those days alone, just praying they will live to see the buds on the trees one more time.

Dope as agribusiness

It doesn't yet have its own listing on the commodities exchange board; but the old devil weed is rapidly becoming a significant factor in California agribusiness.

According to a U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration report, California's sinsemilla pot is ranked as the tenth largest cash crop in the state; right there between almonds and strawberries.

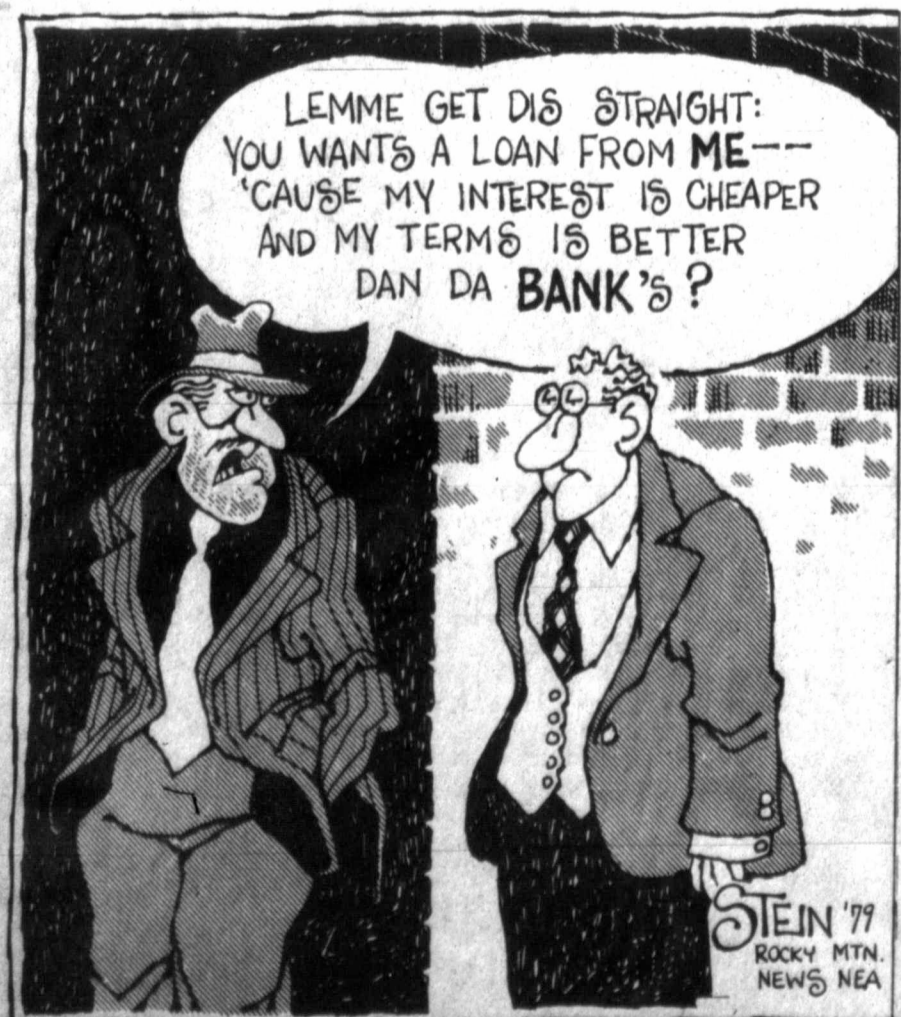

Such information may come as a shock to people who have insisted on believing that marijuana is an "underground" phenomenon, cultivated and consumed by a limited number of crazed dope fiends. In fact, the use of cannabis has emerged as the martini of a generation.

It certainly was no shock to the Humboldt County board of supervisors. That county — along the state's isolated northern coast — is a major supplier of sinsemilla to points across the nation.

The government estimates the value of the 1978 crop along at $186 million. In a bold action, the supervisors recently voted to reject a $20,000 federal grant that would have been used to help curb the flourishing pot business.

The move showed wisdom uncharacteristic of a typical ruling body. Granted, some supervisors indicated their decision was hinged on the belief that they could rise the wrath of pot-smoking or pot-dealing voters. But in the larger sense, they also indicated a recognition that a curb on the marijuana crop — and a possible dependency on federal dollars — would hurt the county's economy.

We will not debate here the possible dangers of marijuana usage. We simply want to point out a reality, one that is becoming increasingly clear as time passes: A lot of people have chosen to smoke the weed. And just as in the case of almonds or strawberries, businessmen will strive to meet demand. This is how any economy works. Just ask the merchant who sells an expensive color television set to an up-and-coming marijuana farmer. His dollars are as crisp and green as anybody else's.

Paying 'taxes' voluntarily

By Oscar Cooley

Out of every $100 of income earned by the American people, $40 is taken by the government in taxes, according to Milton Friedman, economist. He supports an amendment to the U.S. Constitution that would limit taxes to a certain portion of the national income.

Taxes finance the government. True government also borrows, but without tax revenue the government would not possess the credit that it does and so could not borrow as freely and as cheaply as at present. Taxing makes borrowing possible and excessive borrowing causes inflation. It is the power to tax that enables the government to inflate prices.

One may say — and Friedman probably would agree — that every loyal citizen should be willing to help pay for the services of government. But it does not follow that he should be forced to pay, as he is when he is taxed. Tax-paying is compulsory, not voluntary.

In fact, if it is agreed that all of us should contribute willingly to the support of our government, why are taxes compulsory? Why are we forced? Apparently, the theory is that some, maybe many, would not contribute their fair share if payments were voluntary, and so force has to be employed. You and I would pay voluntarily. Oh, yes, but would Joe Doakes? The suspicion that he would not moves us to vote to force him. This is the rationale behind taxing.

Forcing people to give up some of their wealth is the way of the hold-up man. Done by a private individual, it is labeled robbery and punished severely. But the government does it continually and it is considered legitimate. In fact, most people see no other way of financing government. It is not the taker of the wealth but the one who tries to evade the taking who is punished. Strange are the ways of man.

I bring up these seldom mentioned facts because the critical issue in the world, and one that is rapidly coming to a head, is volition versus compulsion; voluntary cooperation versus coercion; individual freedom and democracy versus autocracy and regimentation. Taxation is in the regimentation camp.

Because through long custom governments have been financed by taxing, the amount of taxing done varies, roughly, with the extent of government employed. In recent years, government in most parts of the world has extended itself, taking over more and more functions. Hence, government's need for money has grown, and it has taxed more and more heavily. This cannot be blamed on autocratic rulers; it has occurred in the most democratic of states.

We of the republican West are highly critical of communistic Russia, China and their satellites because they give all property to the state and rely on government to perform all the important social functions. This, we hold, extinguishes individual freedom, which we see as necessary to a good life.

The fact is that the democratic states like ours also seize much property through taxation and use it to do much the same things as are done in Communist states. We do not seize all, as they do. The difference is one of degree. Only if we stand against all confiscation of wealth by the state, which would mean against taxation, could we consistently hold that we are playing ball in a different park.

This would convert government into a totally voluntary institution, like a firm. To get money on which to operate, the government would have to offer its services at prices people would voluntarily pay, just as private firms do. There would be no taxes.

Some government services — mail delivery, for example — are now offered at prices, voluntarily paid. All would have to be, in a taxless world. Some hold that there are certain important government services — defense is one — that cannot be offered at a price. Such a service is non-pricable. Each person cannot take it or leave it, as he can a beer. All or none have to take it. Conclusion: since payment for such a service cannot be voluntary, it must be compulsory. Price being impractical, tax must be employed. This means that much as we democrats hate to admit it, we have one foot in the totalitarian camp.

The great need is not merely to limit taxes, which often has been tried but seldom succeeds, but to devise ways of financing government without resort to force — that is to abolish taxes.

Quotable

Warren H. Phillips, in the Wall Street Journal: "All the talk about the First Amendment right of the press is not about special privileges for newspaper reporters and publishers, but about a right of the public — a right to be kept informed, a right of the governed to have a surrogate watching the governors. The First Amendment wasn't drafted for the publishers' benefit but for the public's."

Hey Mister

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON—"Hey, mister, could you spare a billion and a half dollars to get me through 1980?"

"Out of my way, you bum. Why don't you get a job like everyone else?"

"I have a job making Chrysler cars."

"Then why are you standing here with a tin cup asking decent folks for money?"

"Nobody seems to want to buy my cars."

"In the capitalist system, my good man, it is the survival of the fittest. If you can't sell a product, then you don't deserve to be in business. Suppose I do give you a billion and a half dollars. How do I know you won't use it for drink instead of building better cars?"

"Don't worry about that, mister. You give me the money and I'll go right to the plant and produce one of the most beautiful automobiles you've ever seen."

"Why didn't you produce one before if you know how to do so?"

"That's a long story. I'll tell it to you if you put a billion and a half dollars into my tin cup."

"It seems to me that is a lot of money to pay for a hard luck story."

"I'll also give you a new pencil if you give me the money."

"This is ridiculous. I don't approve of panhandlers, even if they make automobiles."

"Don't think it's much fun being out here on the street, mister. But panhandling for car money is all I can do. The banks won't give me none, and a lot of people think I'm a loser. But if I can just get a little nest egg, you won't see me on this corner again."

"You were going to tell me your story."

"Only if you gave me a handout."

"I want to hear your story first."

"Okay. What happened was that once upon a time, I was a happy, prosperous auto maker. I made some of the best cars on the road. The kids used to whistle when I went by."

"Get on with it, I'm late for dinner."

"But then something happened. I guessed wrong on what people wanted. I made little cars only to discover they wanted big cars. Then I made big cars just when everyone decided they wanted small cars. I couldn't figure out what the public wanted, and it drove me to drink. I started cutting costs—a little here and a little there—and pretty soon not even Ricardo Montalban could move them out of the showroom."

"If I give you a billion and a half dollars, what will you do differently?"

"I have great plans for the new models. I even have an updated slogan: 'Buy the car that is guaranteed by the United States Treasury.' How does that grab you? Look, a billion and a half dollars is tip money for someone like you, but it could change my whole life."

"I guess I'm always a sucker for a hard luck corporation story. You know, if you had been a little guy I'd have let you starve to death."

"I appreciate that, sir. The minute I saw you walking down the street I said to myself, 'There's a man who cares about the big guy when he gets in trouble.'"

"Let's see what I have in my pocket—one hundred million, two hundred million, three hundred million, four hundred million, five-hundred million. You don't have another cup, do you—this one seems filled up."

"Yes, sir, right here."

"Six, seven, eight, nine—one billion—one hundred, two hundred, three, four, five. There you are. Now you be careful how you spend that, you hear?"

"Yes, sir. Thank you, sir. God bless you, sir—and, sir."

"What is it?"

"Don't forget your pencil!"

Letters

Dear Mr. Hardin:

Your survey in the paper concerning what is needed in Pampa for recreation prompts me to write this letter.

Whatever happened to one making ones own recreation? Have the post war years of controlled-supervised activities of children finally shown the result of young adults not knowing how to do things on their own?

There have been attempts thru the years for "Teen" dances at the Highschool, the Youth Center and even a "Teen Shack" run by the Teenagers themselves. (Remember it was on the corner of Somerville & Kingsmill — a carpet store is there now.) Due to the actions of the Teenagers themselves, these activities soon stopped. (Vandalism, Drugs, Drinking & violence) Also chaperones were hard to get. What few private parties were given was eventually stopped for the same reasons.

There are plenty of activities to occupy Teenagers in this town—There's School, Church, Boy & Girl Scouts, Optimist sponsored Little League. There's plenty of worthwhile jobs going begging in this town. What time is left? It does take "effort" to take part in any of these activities!

Dear Editor:

Recently, it was my pleasure to address the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet in your fine city. It was a total honor, and I was so impressed by your city, your Chamber of Commerce, and the grand array of individuals willing to share their time and talent for the common good of all citizens.

I have never met a more capable Chamber of Commerce executive than

I agree there is a need for post highschool to elderly adult entertainment—a nice place to dine & dance (for those who don't belong to the Country Club) an elegant Restaurant where one can take guests for dinner (not steak), maybe a Dinner Theater one in awhile for variety. Maybe arrangements could be made to bring one over from Amarillo.

We do have the Pampa Community Concert Assn who brings concerts to Pampa. We have the Pampa Fine Arts Assn who have brought Musicals, Theater, Dinner Theater, to Pampa. Why not give them more support, join these organizations, the more members, the more they can do for cultural entertainment in Pampa.

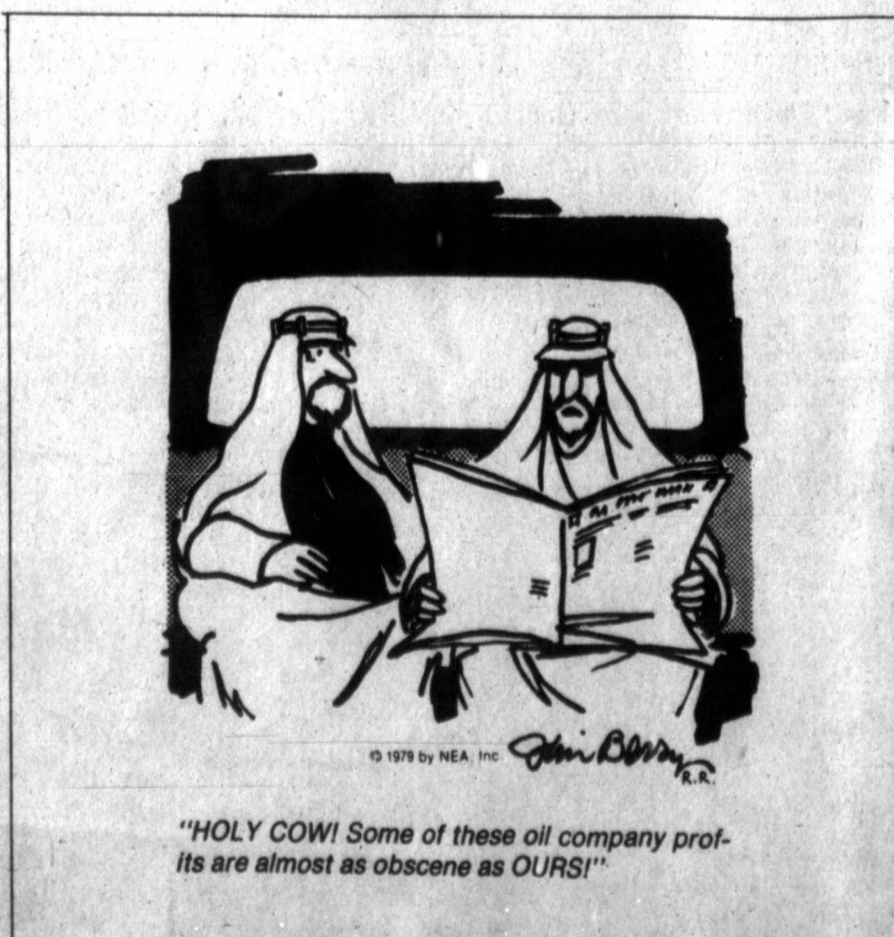

The "Band Issue" to support recreation such as a public Golf course, Tennis Courts, etc is too much to expect overburdened Tax payers to support. Our City Taxes are already too high & getting higher. Recreation should be left up to the individual to provide for himself & to Private Enterprise to provide the places to go to.

Floyd Sackett, and have never observed finer leadership than that which was provided last year by Luther Robinson, and which will be provided in the coming year by Art Atergut.

Split in Democratic Party appears early

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Democratic National Chairman John White had vowed Thursday to keep the party together in a potentially brutal 1980 Kennedy-Carter clash. It took only about two hours for the first rifts of discord to appear among top Democrats.

Democratic National Committeeman Joe Crangle, wearing a Kennedy button, sharply rebuked White during Thursday's routine executive committee meeting for publicly supporting President Carter.

"The national chairman is the trustee and a referee and should be impartial," the New York Democrat angrily told White. "The national chairman is a trustee of all Democrats. I find it a bit surprising and shocking."

Crangle said that in the two presidential races since the party's 1968 reforms, the national chairmen had remained neutral.

White attempted to laugh off Crangle's challenge, saying Crangle was suggesting that all DNC members should be impartial. "Are you trying to take politics out of politics? Let's get on with the committee business."

Crangle shot back. "This is of critical importance, not something to be passed off so lightly."

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young then strongly intervened. "We are about to enter into a very vigorous campaign for the nomination. I support the president. I frankly don't believe this nit picking, and that's all it is, is going to solve a damn thing. Let's take it to the people in the primaries, not create a division here."

Crangle later said he was not calling for White to resign, only for him to "reconsider" such public support of Carter.

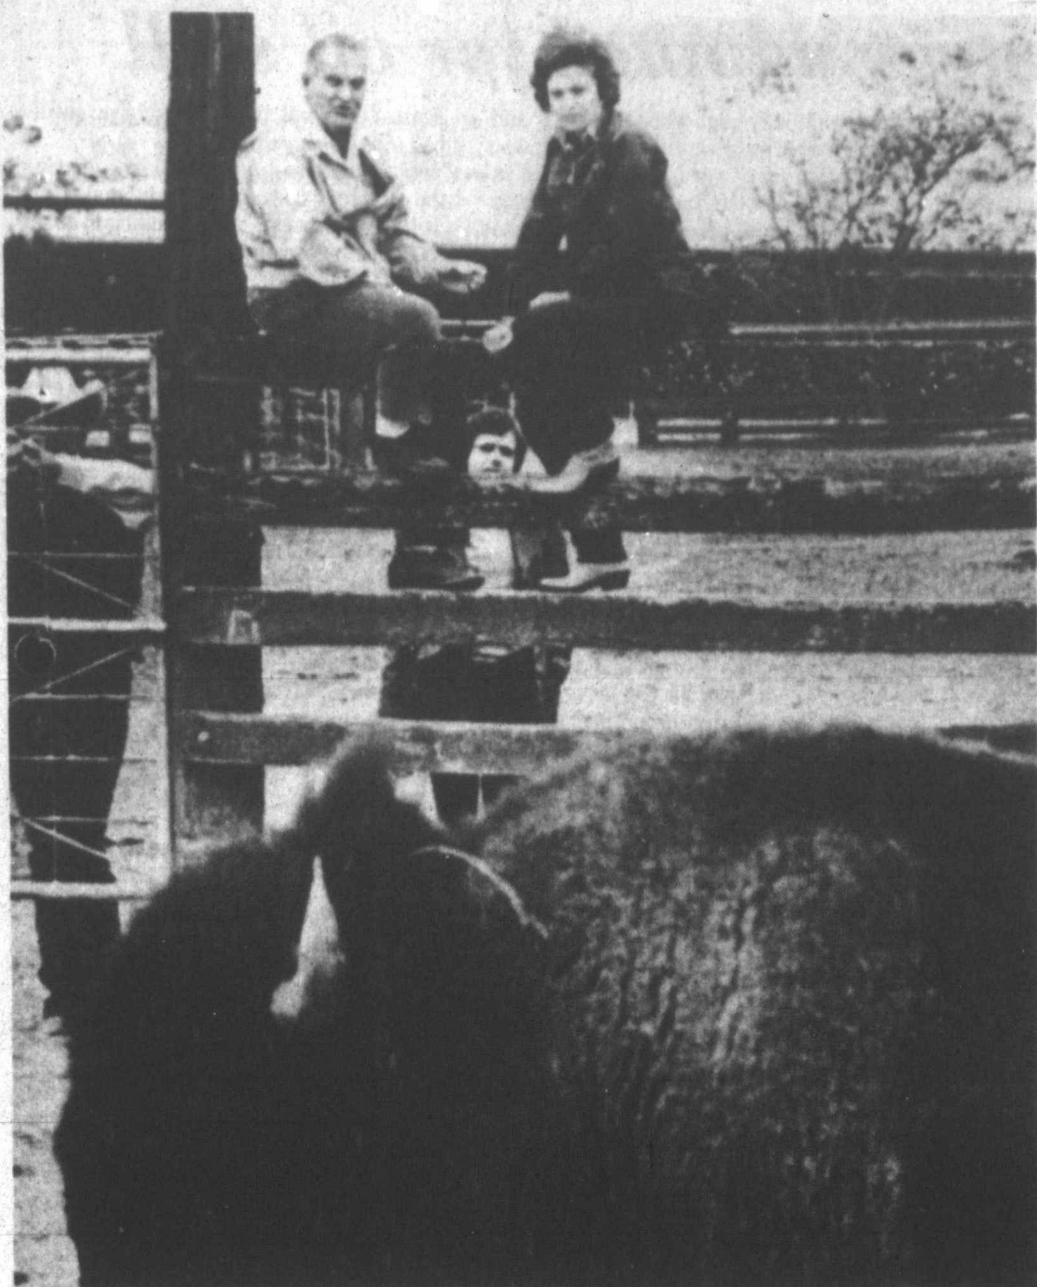

Asked if he and other DNC supporters of Sen. Edward Kennedy would press for White's resignation if White doesn't reconsider, Crangle replied. "We'll have to decide those things." White, who says he fears Democrats are in an "extremely dangerous" position of splitting themselves and losing in 1980, had told reporters only two hours earlier that he intended to keep the party together.

"I'm going to fight every Democrat from coast to coast if I have to," he said. "It (party unity) will involve a lot of discipline, basically on the part of the candidates themselves and the staff."

"The national committee belongs to all of the candidates, all of the party. I expect national committee members to make endorsements and I'll make mine. Certainly I support the president."

After the sharp exchange in the committee meeting, other Kennedy supporters called for White to either stop such public support or step down as national chairman.

Canada to come first in energy needs

HOUSTON (AP) — United States energy demands are so massive, they "could devour Canadian resources in a matter of years rather than decades if Canadian exports were not controlled," said the chairman of Canada's National Energy Board.

Jack G. Stabback told a Thursday luncheon at the National Energy Forum that his country must make provisions for its own future energy needs before it can think about exporting its resources to its southern neighbor.

Canada's high dependence on exports to the United States has led to policies "designed to ensure that Canadian energy prices do not exceed those in the United States," he said.

Because of those policies, he added, Canadian industries have tended to operate at a disadvantage to their American counterparts.

"However, over the long run, Canada cannot continue to maintain a significant divergence between its domestic oil price and the international price," he said.

"We cannot long maintain the situation such as it exists today with the domestic Canadian crude oil price in Toronto at about $14.75 per barrel compared to average international crude prices in the $20 to $25 per barrel range," he said.

Canada's natural gas sales to the United States during the 1950s and 1960s were keyed to the interstate market price of U.S. domestic gas, Stabback said.

Canadian natural gas exports dipped to 881 billion cubic feet last year, the lowest level since 1970, Stabback said.

"This year, it appears that natural gas exports will be just under 1 trillion cubic feet," he said.

Sing me a song of the Dakota

NORTHWOOD, N.D. (AP) — Dakota roses, they're called, yellow flowers looking for the sun. They used to be just bright spots in the garden, producers of birdseed.

But the sunflower in bloom has brought a sunflower boom to Minnesota and the Dakotas, where low wheat prices and European demands have encouraged farmers to raise sunflowers as a cash crop.

"It's sort of like watching a kid grow up," said Marvin Kleberg, smiling like a proud father. The Northwood-area farmer is president of the National Sunflower Growers Association and an officer in almost every other sunflower group in the country. He has raised sunflowers for 28 years.

"In those first years, we were just kind of growing them so we could stretch out the growing season and do more," Kleberg said.

"Another farmer and I got our seed in Canada. We planted 20 acres that first year. The market price was about 1.5 cents a pound, and we had to hold a crop three or four years before we could find a market. Some people thought we were crazy."

Today, sitting at his kitchen table over a cup of coffee, Kleberg can talk about his 1,200 acres of sunflowers.

North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Texas together are expected to harvest 5.3 million acres of sunflowers this year, compared with 2.8 million acres in 1978. The national estimate ranges from 7 billion to 7.5 billion pounds, about double 1978's, said economists at North Dakota State University in Fargo.

And farmers in North Dakota figure their return over cash costs will be about $12 an acre more for sunflowers than for wheat because of a higher average yield per acre.

Recent sunflower prices ranged around 8 and 10 cents a pound with a slight drop around harvest time. The average yield was around 1,400 pounds per acre. Wheat prices were about $4 a bushel in October, with an average yield of 26 bushels per acre.

At least 75 percent of sunflowers grown in the Midwest are exported to Europe which has had an appetite for sunflower oil and margarine since the 1960s, when the Soviet Union started pushing the product.

The European market stimulated Midwest sunflower growth in the early 1970s, when the Soviets cut sunflower exports to meet domestic needs.

Sunflower oil is high in polyunsaturated fats. It has been considered a health food in this country, but it's becoming more common on supermarket shelves.

Use of sunflowers in engine lubricants, lumber products, and use of the stalks as fuel is being researched. Processing plants are springing up in the Dakotas as growers campaign to get Americans to take the yellow flower seriously.

Before American seed companies developed hybrid sunflowers — which are more resistant to disease — crop yields used to be about 900 to 1,000 pounds per acre, said Ralph Taylor, of Dahlgren and Co., one of the companies that developed the hybrids. Last year's yields averaged about 1,500 pounds per acre, he said.

Sunflowers also fit well into rotation with other crops, say growers. They are harvested late in the fall, after small grains.

"By converting 20 percent of the acreage to sunflowers, it's almost like hiring another man" because the work can be done after the other harvesting is finished, Taylor said.

"A lot of these acres were fallow, and now we're growing a crop that is virtually all exported. And it's not a high moisture user."

In South Dakota, farmers whose fields were too dry for other crops found they could grow sunflowers.

"We've needed a crop like this for years. We aren't able to grow corn, and it's giving us a row crop in rotation that we've needed for weed control," says Chuck Hahler, who raises about 1,000 acres of sunflowers on his farm near Ashton, S.D.

Transportation continues to be a major stumbling block. Poor and unsteady rail service, high freight rates and the recent strike by grain handlers at the ports of Duluth-Superior have made farmers doubt they'll be able to market all their crop this year.

"The sunflower is light per cubic foot, and it takes more volume to haul sunflowers," Taylor said. "With the energy costs we see now, it looks like transportation is going to be an ongoing problem."

Still, the growers seem sold on their sunny crop. "We're sitting on top of probably the largest market in the world, if we can just get our share," said Kleberg.

Added Hahler: "I planted about 400 acres last year. I haven't seen much about sunflowers that I don't like. Until wheat comes back so it looks profitable, there's no reason to switch back."

Tibet changing under communist leadership

LHASA, Tibet (AP) — When construction workers in coolie hats were building a tea house for tourists at the edge of the lotus pond where the Dalai Lama used to look for meaningful reflections. The water had been drained, but the handwriting was on the wall for his followers to see.

The Potala, his thousand-room winter palace taller than the dome of Christopher Wren's St. Paul's Cathedral, has been turned into a museum. The Jokka Kang Temple, the Vatican of the lamaist religion where his devoted acolytes used to burn a ton of yak butter a day to keep the votive lamps flickering, is open only a few hours a week to the mostly elderly faithful.

The Drepung monastery, once the world's largest with 10,300 lamas, echoes hollowly now to the footsteps of only a few hundred lamas, all of them getting on in years too.

The Dalai Lama, if he comes back to Tibet, will find lots of other changes have taken place under the Chinese communists since 1959.

That's when he made his dramatic escape 20 years ago on foot and by yak-skin canoe to India across three-mile high mountain passes and down wild, roaring rivers, wearing cheap spectacles and disguised as a begging monk.

The Chinese government says it would welcome the Dalai Lama back, like any other exile, either to visit or to stay, and five of his senior emissaries now are on an extended tour of the country to assess under what conditions he could make his return.

It's plain as the Himalayan peaks to even this short-time tourist in Tibet that the god-king, the 14th and most recent reincarnation of the Buddhist god of mercy, won't be coming back as any kind of leader, either spiritual or temporal.

He won't find anyone around to carry his sedan chair, which once required 36 porters and now is among the exhibits on display at his summer palace. The lavishly furnished palace, which offers a peek at his phonograph and record collection serves as a guest house of the time and a museum most of the time.

All the lamas, even the living Buddhas, the highest order of the shaven-headed priesthood, are off working in the communes.

DEAR ABBY

Touchy times come with being No. 2

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband recently had a birthday. His ex-wife and children invited him over for dinner and a birthday celebration. I was excluded. He accepted and I was left alone for the evening.

I believe that what he did was inconsiderate and unfair to me. He could have invited his children over to celebrate his birthday with us, or arranged to do something with them at another time.

What do you think?

HURT

DEAR HURT: I don't blame you for feeling hurt. Next year start early to plan a special birthday celebration for your husband. Awkward situations such as this almost always arise when a woman marries a divorced man with a "first family." It's unfair to "No. 2," but it usually comes with the territory.

DEAR ABBY: Eight years ago I married a fine man. (Second marriage for both of us.) I moved to my husband's town and met his friends. His best friend is a mortician (married) who keeps making passes at me. Whenever we are together in a group, he manages to ask me quietly if I will meet him somewhere. I have told him repeatedly I'm not interested in anything like that, but he persists. He and his wife and my husband and I are a frequent foursome, and we enjoy each other's company.

I have never mentioned this to my husband because so far it's harmless, and besides it's not worth jeopardizing the present good relations we two couples enjoy.

Abby, the thought that drives me up the wall is this: when I die, I know my husband will call on this mortician to do the "honors" (as he did with his first wife), and I cannot bear the thought of it!

This situation does have its humorous aspects, but nevertheless it is disturbing to me. If I were 22 and in perfect health maybe I wouldn't feel so panicky, but I'm not.

I am going to arrange my funeral with another undertaker, but what do I tell my husband? He'll be astonished that I didn't take my business to his friend.

SERIOUS IN CONN.

DEAR SERIOUS: Don't tell your husband anything. Simply leave instructions with your lawyer, physician, clergyman and a few close relatives. You may outlive your husband AND the mortician. Or decide on immediate cremation. That way the mortician wouldn't get to lay a hand on you, dead or alive.

DEAR ABBY: You and MASSACHUSETTS MOM, who can't understand her husband's objections to allowing their 13-year-old daughter to pierce her ears, should stick this in yours!

I, too, have a 13-year-old daughter who desperately wants her ears punctured. Since my wife, who has two artificially added holes in HER head, supports the idea, I am constantly getting it from both sides.

Some of us obstinate old dads feel strongly that defacement of the body or any of its appendages in pursuit of faddish fashion is unnecessary, unnatural and unwholesome, though it may not be unholly.

Just as a sailor shouldn't request a tattoo when drunk, a young girl not of gypsy heritage should not decide to have her head modified until of legal age.

Today the ears, tomorrow the noses!

DR. LAMB

Fat backside, waist uncomfortable

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have the same problem that a lot of other people have. I've got large buttocks and an inner tube around my waist and on my hip bones. These are the only places I'm fat and it makes me feel uncomfortable. Could you please send me something - exercises or whatever to help me get rid of these things? I'm a young man and wouldn't look so bad if it weren't for these bulges of fat on the wrong places.

DEAR READER - Fat is fat regardless of where it's stored. I suspect that where and how it's stored has a lot to do with inherited characteristics in some people. Nevertheless, the solution is the same. You have to consume fewer calories than your body uses. There's no way you can change the fundamental law of nature. "Energy is neither created nor destroyed." That means that calories are neither created nor destroyed.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, because you'll probably need to cut down on your calories if you're successful at all. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

As The Health Letter I'm sending you suggests, it would also be useful for you to exercise. There really isn't such a thing as spot reducing but if you do sit-ups and leg lifts, it will help to tighten your abdominal muscles while you're losing fat.

A regular walking program will help to use calories and prepare you for more strenuous exercise. Once you're able to walk an hour a day without difficulty, then you might want to increase your exercise to include jogging and other forms of physical activity.

If you have a spare tire around your middle, as you described, the probabilities are that you also have fat inside the abdomen. There's no way that you can tighten up the abdomen enough to have a good figure if you have a lot of fat inside the abdominal cavity. That, too, will disappear with a proper diet and sensible exercise program.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I read about the woman who felt her sex life had become nonexistent because she had had a hysterectomy. This woman is misinformed. She didn't have her sex organ removed but her reproductive organs removed. Her sex organ, the vagina, is still intact and the main point of sexual arousal and enjoyment, her clitoris, is still there. Sex is freer and more enjoyable without the problems of a menstrual period or pregnancy. It gets better than ever. I know. I've been there and four years after a complete hysterectomy and at age 60, it's better than ever.

DEAR READER - Hear! Hear! Your letter suggests to me the old truism that an individual's sexual response is strongly related to his or her mental state. As some have been known to say, the most important sex organ is the brain.

Of course, you're right. We know anatomically that the nerve fibers leading directly to the vagina and the clitoral area are the ones that are stimulated during sex and provide the pleasurable feeling. The uterus really has no role in sex other than the emotional aspect that it holds for some women. The uterus, after all, is a baby carriage.

Fast foods can have role in balanced nutrition

Are you a secret fast food lover, torn between the convenience of today's modern food supply and memories of mother's three home-cooked meals a day?

"We shouldn't feel guilty that today's busy schedules no longer permit the luxury of three home-cooked meals a day," claims Dr. Howard Appledorf. "Our changing times call for changed eating habits."

Dr. Appledorf, a professor of human nutrition at a leading university, is advocating a healthy and realistic outlook on foods for today's busy people - especially working mothers and single parents.

The professor is a member of the Time Out Institute, founded by Kentucky Fried Chicken in 1977 to examine the changing role of today's American women and to contribute to the information available about their problems, attitudes, needs and concerns.

This year's focus on single parenting reflects the fact that 90 percent of all single parents are women. To promote better understanding of this group, Kentucky Fried Chicken is underwriting national research about single parents and will announce the research results later this year.

Describing modern or fast foods as a technological boon to our society, Dr. Appledorf concludes from his numerous laboratory tests that "it all boils down to the fact that fast foods, like all foods, can provide your body with the needed chemicals (food being a chemical and nutrient delivery system)."

According to him, "So-called food purists are confusing many customers as to the safety and wholesomeness of convenience foods."

"The government's nutritional labeling regulations for these restaurants compounds the confusion," says the professor, "and you have fast foods coming out with the unfair image of having little or no nutritional value."

As an example, Dr. Appledorf cites a recent hearing of the Senate nutrition subcommittee chaired by Senator George McGovern, who concluded, "It's not correct to say that (fast-food restaurants) are serving junk. Under the current regulatory approach to labeling, the fast food industry is unable to correct the perception of their food being low in nutritional value."

Dr. Appledorf, who has participated in a number of Senate subcommittee hearings on nutrition, says "the crux of the problem lies in the fact that the government wants each possible combination of food nutritionally labeled separately, based on weights and portions. However, in the majority of these restaurants, the number of food combinations reaches infinity."

He continued, "At Kentucky Fried Chicken, for example, the chickens are not a processed or portion-controlled product, which means the chicken parts just don't grow to be exactly the same size. You can imagine trying to do a label for every single piece of chicken sold."

"Knowledge of its inherent nutritional value should free fast foods from the image problem of being junk food and allow their use in the preparation of quick, convenient meals at home," he says.

"Such knowledge would also reduce the guilt feelings in people who feel they are cheating their families in serving fast foods. The first step, of course, is for the government to loosen the labeling regulations which would enable fast food companies to easily provide nutritional information."

Dr. Appledorf contends that with the nutritional value out in the open, people could then make use of convenient and economical fast food offerings by tailoring the meal they choose to their own caloric requirement or need. If a person knows, for example, that a two-piece fried chicken dinner with mashed potatoes, cole slaw and roll provides approximately 595 calories, then that person would know how to fit it into the USDA recommendation of daily caloric intake. A 5- to 8-year-old child, for example, should eat the equivalent of 2400 calories a day. A 35-year-old woman, on the other hand, should consume 2,000 calories a day.

As a member of the 1978 KFC Time Out Institute program, which sponsored the first-ever national attitude survey on wage-earning mothers, Dr. Appledorf learned that a majority of mothers are taking advantage of modern foods. Regardless of the availability of nutritional labeling, more than 60 percent of the respondents said they felt fast food meals were just as nutritious or more so than the same meal prepared at home.

"Both men and women who are single parents don't have the time to spend hours in the kitchen," claims Appledorf. "Especially for them, fast foods may prove economical - saving both time and money."

Teen: set example for pot - smoking parents

Dr. Wallace: I have discovered that my parents are smoking pot. I found some in the refrigerator and I know what marijuana looks like.

The next day I caught my father with it and when I asked him not to smoke the junk, he said, "You lead your life and your mother and I will lead ours."

I'm 16, confused and de-bounded. My dad is a big wheel in our community and both are active in our church. What am I to do? — J.T., Wheeling, W. Va.

J.T.: Your parents are fortunate that they have a mature, conscientious and wise daughter. Do as your father said. Lead your life as an example for your parents to follow.

It's sad that you must learn right from wrong by not doing what your parents do.

Dr. Wallace: My mom's brother died a few months ago and it totally changed my mom's life. She attends church every day, not once but three times — at 8:00, 12:00 and 7:30.

It's as if I don't have a mother anymore. What can I do?

I love my mother very much and I really need her. Dad can't do anything. — Claudia, Windsor, Ontario, Canada.

Claudia: Go to the church and have a talk with the clergyman in charge and tell him your dilemma. He will know exactly what to do.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 19 and met this really great guy and we have become very close. Recently he asked me to marry him but said that I must give him a fast answer because he will be going to school in France next semester.

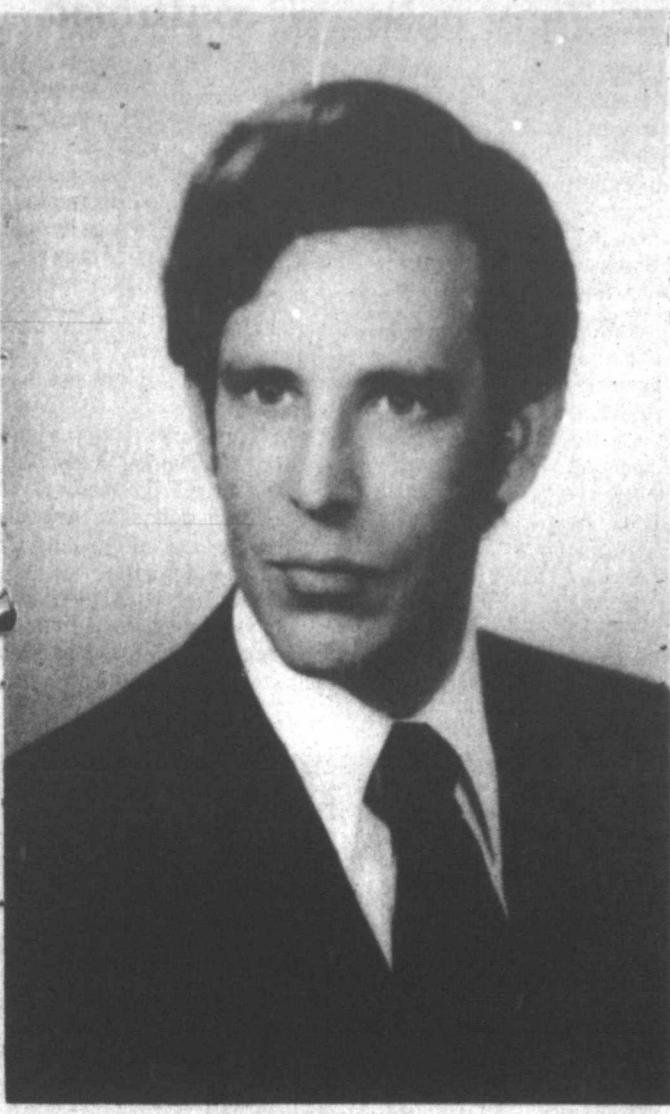

I love him but I'd like to finish college first before I get married but I'm afraid that he might meet someone that he likes better than me in France. What should I do? — Angela, Tacoma, Wash.

Angela: Marriage produces a great change in one's life. It's no longer me — it's we.

If he loves you, he'll wait.

Ex-convict sickened by conditions in prisons

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It was a weird sort of poker: the kids played in the National Training School in Washington, D.C., back in 1952. Boys 13 to 17 kept score not with chips but with razor slashes on their forearms.

Don Taylor, who was 13 then, watched the bloody exercise in teen-age bravado with horror and says now it merely underscores the brutality of prison.

He served three more prison sentences before resolving, at age 30, to give up the drugs — chiefly dilaudid — that had put him behind bars while other bright young people went to college and established careers.

"I've been out of prison 10 years and I still have nightmares about the experience that leave me with a gut-level sick feeling for days," says Taylor, 40.

Now a "materials expeditor" at Tracor, Inc., a scientific research and instrument manufacturing company, Taylor is the first ex-convict to be elected president of Texas' prison lobby.

Taylor heads Citizens United for Rehabilitation of Errants (CURE), whose 3,000 members — including 1,000 prison inmates — are dedicated to pushing the idea that penitentiaries aren't the best way to deal with most criminals.

Taylor also serves on a local criminal justice task force and is a director of the Texas Council on Crime and Delinquency.

A slender, six-footer whose close-cropped beard is flecked with gray, he rubs shoulders with the city's power people and gave the late Lyndon Johnson's lawyer as a reference when he applied for his job at Tracor this year.

Taylor got acquainted with LBJ's attorney, Donald S. Thomas, and Tracor president Frank McBee when he served with them last year on a committee that planned and successfully promoted an $8 million bond issue to build a new jail.

Paradoxically, he couldn't vote for the bond issue because convicted felons lose their right to vote. The Board of Pardons and Paroles rejected his application for a pardon last year, but Taylor filed a new one Oct. 23.

Taylor says he is not one of the Texas Department of Corrections' success stories. He says prison left him with a residue of anger that he still sublimates by playing one-on-one basketball and working to better the lot of prisoners.

"I internalized a lot of anger and bitterness and cynicism. That's what prison does for you. I saw I was letting the system destroy me. I began to learn how to deal with anger. You can turn it inward and become suicidal — that's what drug addiction is. I sought socially acceptable outlets. It was a gradual growth process," he said in an interview.

Taylor grew up in East Dallas and was the youngest of five children. He said he went to the Baptist Church and was a Boy Scout.

But he also was a petty criminal. He escaped from a county-operated reform school on Christmas night 1952, stole a car and drove it to Arkansas. At 13, Taylor was sentenced to the National Training School, a federal reform school that since has closed.

Released 18 months later, he began using uppers, downers and paregoric, which contains an opiate, and was expelled from the ninth grade at age 16.

At 18, Taylor drew his first prison sentence, three years for possessing a hypodermic needle.

Within months after his release, he was arrested for marijuana possession and went back to prison.

Three years later, at 24, he was a free man again. Arlington State College accepted him without a high school diploma on the basis of test scores. He completed a semester, made the "B" honor roll and got married.

But he also got caught forging dilaudid prescriptions and returned to Huntsville.

When he got out at age 30, he had spent 11 years of his life in prison, but within months he was arrested for forging prescriptions in Austin.

Taylor said he made a deal with the judge, paid a $1 fine and accepted counseling at the Travis County Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center.

He got a job in a printing shop and enrolled in the University of Texas as a psychology major. He says he has 90 semester hours, about three-fourths of the way to a degree. He also worked two years as a full-time counselor of ex-convicts.

What turned him around?

Taylor says there are no easy answers but it certainly wasn't prison. Getting away from his old haunts in Dallas and coming to Austin, where he at first lived with a brother, was part of it, he said.

"I never was happy with myself, being a drug addict and a prisoner," he said.

The prison system also needs turning around, he says, even though it is better than it was in the 1950s and 1960s, when "if they found a copy of the Constitution in your cell, they put you in solitary."

Taylor said he spent the early 1970s "just learning to live out here." Inmates, he believes, should be phased gradually back into society.

Ideally, he said, the state should allow cities or counties to operate their own prisons, keeping inmates close to their families and providing "training in marketable skills, not picking cotton. Then on to some kind of work-release."

Rehabilitation of prisoners suffers, Taylor says, when inmates spend years for relatively petty crimes while corrupt public officials get short sentences for their misdeeds.

"I think if they put some of the big shots in prison, we would have prison reform," he says.

Zaire massacre confirmed

PARIS (AP) — The International Federation for the Rights of Man announced Thursday that it had confirmed reports that 215 persons were massacred last summer by government soldiers in Zaire. The Zairean Embassy here denied the report.

Daniel Mayer, president of the federation, which serves as an umbrella organization for about 20 national human rights groups, said the information about a massacre in Zaire's eastern Kasai Province last summer came from Zairean sources three days ago. It has since been verified, he said.

Amnesty International, the London-based human rights organization which won the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize, said it had received conflicting reports on the incident and did not have sufficient information to make any judgment.

The federation said a group of soldiers came upon a youth vacation camp on July 19 and opened fire, killing 200 students in the camp. Fifteen fishermen who were working along the shore of the Lubilashi River were also killed, it said. It said all of the bodies were thrown into the river and floated downstream to the town of Lusambo, about 575 miles east of the capital of Kinshasa.

Residents of the town saw the bodies and authorities telegraphed the provincial capital of Mbuji-Maye to ask if there was a civil war, the federation said. Mbuji-Maye responded that it was a mistake by the soldiers, who had taken the youths to be illegal diamond miners, it said.

Chemicals destroying ozone layer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Academy of Sciences says fluorocarbon chemicals are destroying the Earth's atmospheric layer of protective ozone at a rate twice as fast as earlier predicted.

The report released Thursday renewed concerns that depletion of the ozone layer could result in increases in skin cancer and changes in the Earth's climate.

The academy's National Research Council said new calculations indicate atmospheric ozone could be reduced 16.5 percent because of worldwide use of fluorocarbon chemicals. Half of this depletion will occur in the next 30 years, it said.

Three years ago, the council predicted an eventual 7.5 percent ozone reduction. But new atmospheric measurements and mathematical estimates revised the prediction upward, it said in a report to the Environmental Protection Agency.

Ozone is a form of oxygen made in the stratosphere and concentrated in a layer about 20 miles above the Earth.

If more ultraviolet light reaches the Earth, some scientists fear widespread increases in skin cancer, possible unpredictable effects on plant life and changes in climate that could have many repercussions.

For example, scientists at Temple University have predicted that a 5 percent drop in ozone could cause a 10 percent increase in new skin cancer cases each year among fair-skinned persons.

Kate Jackson back as an angel

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now that she's free from 'Charlie's Angels,' Kate Jackson has decided to play — surprise! — an angel in her first independent production.

She and her husband, Andrew Stevens, play a couple of new angels in a remake of the 1937 film, "Topper." Jack Warden stars as the henpecked Cosmo Tipper in this two-hour film, airing Friday night on ABC.

Why a remake as the first project for their production company? "Because 'Topper' is exactly the kind of thing I have been hearing for three or four years that people really want," said Miss Jackson. "It's an old-fashioned movie. There's not one car chase or gunshot. There's not a single baby beaten. No one's coping with an illness. It has a message, but it doesn't take a sledgehammer to make you lean it. It's old-fashioned entertainment, but it's not frivolous. It's not to coin a phrase my ex-producer used. 'Mind candy.'"

That phrase was applied by producer Aaron Spelling to "Charlie's Angels," in which Miss Jackson played angel Sabrina Duncan for three years before her abrupt departure last spring.

Miss Jackson said she first thought of doing "Topper" a number of years ago when she was in "The Rookies." She said she was on a break from the show, sitting half asleep on a beach in Mexico, when it popped into her mind.

"I was thinking about what I wanted to do in my life," she recalled. "I wanted to have my own production company. You know how you have those little life moments when you know something important happened and you won't forget it? I look back on that as one of those moments when a decision was made. I don't know why, but I thought about 'Topper.'"

The 1937 movie was a trend-setter in its day. The movie, which starred Cary Grant and Constance Bennett as the couple and Roland Young as Topper, was a blend of slapstick, sophistication and the supernatural. Taken from a book by Thorne Smith, it also inspired two sequels and a 1950s television series.

Miss Jackson said the movie was expanded, a new subplot was added and Topper was changed from a bank president to the president of a law firm.

Odom to speak at church banquet

Carliss Odom, outstanding Christian layman from Little Rock, Ark., has been asked by Dr. Alvin Hiltbruner, pastor of Central Baptist Church, to share his outstanding Christian testimony at the Annual Family Stewardship Banquet Wednesday night at 6:30 in the church's Fellowship Hall.

Carliss Odom is a modern-day miracle. A victim of cerebral palsy, Carliss could not walk until he was six years old. His speech was unintelligible and the saliva poured uncontrolled from his mouth. For years he wore a band around his head to keep his skull from falling apart. His parents were told that he would be better off dead.

He started to school at age 12 and had reached the third grade by the time he was 15.

Then the miracle happened. He gave his life to Christ. He asked the Lord to take his life and use it for His glory and promised the Lord that he would speak for Him wherever he had the opportunity.

Wonderful things began to happen. He began to walk and talk better and to gain better control of his hands. His grades also began to improve. Soon he was able to make up for lost time by making two grades in one year. In high school he graduated near the head of his class.

With God's help Carliss went to college. During his college years he never forgot his promise to speak for his Lord. And it is a promise he has kept for over 25 years as he has traveled throughout the nation giving his testimony.

He has traveled as far away as Jerusalem, Israel and has given his testimony before more than 10,000 at one time. He has spoken in thousands of churches across America, as he tramps the nation for Jesus Christ.

He is often asked to return to a church five or six times and in some cases he has a standing invitation to return once a year.

Don't miss this opportunity to hear Carliss Odom. Reservations for the "Thanks in Giving" Banquet may be made by calling the church office before Monday evening.

Christian Center schedules revival

The Community Christian Center is pleased to announce a series of revival services to be held Wednesday through Sunday nights at 7 and Sunday morning at 11.

Rev. Lyndon Petty will be the evangelist, ministering both in the word and in song. Hebrews 13:8 declares, "Jesus Christ the same yesterday and forever."

Jesus still saves people from sin. Jesus still heals people of all diseases. Jesus still delivers people from all bondage, and Jesus still fills people with the Holy Spirit and power.

The church is located at 801 E. Campbell and the public is invited to attend.

Dallas evangelist here this week

Revival services will be held at the First Free Will Baptist Church, 326 N. Rider, beginning Monday and running through Friday. The services will be held nightly at 7:30 p.m.

Evangelist will be Rev. Leo Watkins of Dallas. Rev. Watkins is also a member of the Jack Griffin Quartet.

The Rev. L.C. Lynch, pastor, invites everyone to attend these services.

Full week at Fellowship Baptist

The Fellowship Baptist Church, 622 E. Francis, has a full week of activity in store beginning with a special showing of the film "He Restored My Soul" Sunday night.

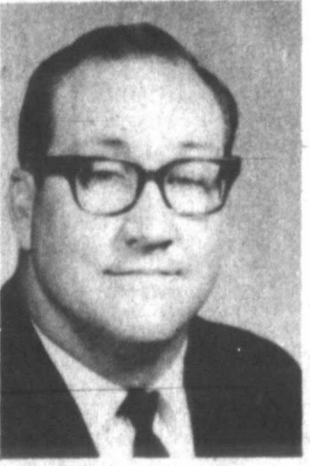

Scheduled to begin at 7, the film tells the story of Merrill Womach, who survived a light aircraft crash and now sings the praises of the Lord. Womach was critically burned in the crash, but managed to crawl to a nearby road, where he was picked up and hurried to a hospital in Klamath Falls, Ore. He sang all the way to the hospital.

Through more than 50 operations and months of surgery, Womach faced many complications, critical illnesses and impending death. Two blood clots passed through his heart and into his lungs. It was only after his family heard him sing after surgery that they knew he had survived.

With a voice range that covers more than four octaves, Womach has thrilled countless audiences with a radiance that causes listeners to forget the scars and focus their attention upon a beautiful man whose rise from the ashes is an inspiration to all who get to know him.

The church has also scheduled a week-long series of revival meetings featuring Evangelist Joe Seacrist, pastor of the Bible Baptist Church in Lawton, Okla. Revival services will begin at 7:30 each night, and the public is invited to attend.

Infant formula recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration said Thursday that Wyeth Laboratories is recalling 300,000 cans of its SMA infant formula because of a homogenization problem that made some infants mildly ill.

The products being recalled are SMA Concentrate in 13-ounce cans and SMA Ready to Feed in 8 and 32-ounce cans. The manufacturer distributed them nationwide between Sept. 24 and Oct. 22.

The FDA said the cans being recalled carry the following lot numbers: 124J, 125J, 126J, 127J and 128J. "No other SMA infant formulas are under recall," the agency said.

SMA is the third leading seller of infant formulas. A company spokesman in Philadelphia said a homogenizer at its Mason, Mich., plant malfunctioned, affecting most of three days production.

He said the 300,000 cans being recalled were distributed nationwide with the exceptions of the states of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Colorado, Utah and Wyoming, and the metropolitan areas of Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cleveland, and Youngstown and Canton, Ohio.

The FDA said that improper homogenization caused the formula to separate into two layers, with a fat-oil solution on top and water-protein solution on bottom. The company received three complaints that infants who drank the formula got mild upset stomachs, according to FDA spokesman Wayne Pines.

The agency said the faulty formula could cause infant vomiting, but "the illness would be transient and cause no permanent health problem."

HERE IS THE PATH

GETTING OUT... the Vote

Mrs. Jones is active in all types of community work. She is active in politics at the local level. From a list of voters at her elbow she telephones to see if any local residents need the services of the various car pools. Because of this service many who could not otherwise do so, get to the polls and vote.

But more than this, Mrs. Jones is a friend and servant of God. She supports her church and its services because she knows it is the center of all that is good and worthwhile in the Community. It is a place where the souls of men are uplifted and saved.

We, ourselves, would do well to emulate Mrs. Jones. May we urge that you, also, not only vote, but help get out the vote — that you not only attend church, but support it actively with your service.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Farmers to continue to benefit from expanded grain market

WASHINGTON (AP) — Experts at this year's outlook conference at the Agriculture Department generally shared an optimistic view that over the long haul U.S. farmers will continue to benefit from an expanding world demand for grain.

The optimism is timely because U.S. grain output, led by another record corn crop, is at an all-time high this year.

Department analysts continue to update crop production estimates and their projections on how much corn and other grain will be used in the year ahead.

New production estimates of this year's crops of corn, soybeans and some other commodities were due today. Those figures later will be used in analyzing the supply and demand situation for 1979-80.

At the department's annual outlook conference, which concluded Thursday, Maurice P. Brannon of Cargill Inc., one of the nation's leading exporters of farm products, said he found it "difficult to disagree" with USDA projections of record world grain utilization and trade in 1979-80.

But Brannon added that "some clouds on the horizon" could dampen the outlook slightly.

"The most obvious is transportation," he said. "Record export demand for grain and oilseeds is straining transportation capabilities to their limits, and the difficulties in solving these logistical problems should not be underestimated."

"Still, it is important to recognize that U.S. handling capacity has continued to expand. Our logistical system has consistently managed to move larger quantities of grain to export terminals each year."

As part of his discussion, Brannon defined three terms he said bear upon U.S. and global food systems:

—"Need" is what the other fellow thinks is good for me. It's what the nutritionist says is an adequate diet.

—"Want" is what I would like to have if I had my choice. I may not be able to pay for it, but I would reach for it.

—"Demand" is what I choose to buy when I can afford it."

Brannon said, "Much of the world food 'needs' and 'wants' that were being discussed during the 1960s became world food demand in the 1970s" as many countries, including poorer nations, strove to upgrade diets.

"If people around the world are to eat better, more food and feedstuffs must move from countries that can produce it to those who are failing to keep up because of a lack of resources. ... But will they be able to pay for it? Will their needs become effective demand?"

Brannon said, "Lessons that the U.S. learned during the 1970s should make one optimistic on that question. Many of the developing nations have become good customers for our farm products."

Another speaker, James P. Rudbeck of USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service, said "There are some very tentative indications that worldwide economic conditions and higher energy costs might temper the demand" for meat and other livestock products in some foreign countries and result in a slowdown in animal feeding.

Rudbeck added, "However, the evidence to date is not very convincing" and that overall feeding—discounting the United States and the Soviet Union—may increase slightly in 1979-80.

Also, he said, feeding in some of the developing countries—South Korea, Taiwan, Mexico, Iran, Venezuela and Brazil—is expected to "continue strong" in the coming year.

"In recent years," he said, "these countries accounted for nearly 15 percent of world trade, nearly double the percentage of the early 1970s."

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the third year in a row, planting of the 1980 corn crop could get off to a slow start, a weather analyst for the Agriculture Department's outlook board says.

Wet weather the last two seasons has delayed planting of what turned out to be huge crops.

In general, soil moisture conditions throughout the country are normal or better, except for the northern Rockies. Richard E. Felch told the annual outlook conference. As usual, he said, "April rainfall will be the real key to how the planting will develop," with soils already wet as they thaw.

He added that the problem is bad weather has delayed this year's harvest so much that some fall plowing has had to be put off. So "additional fieldwork will be required in the spring," Felch said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A drop in world sugar output in 1979-80 will result in the first decline in global reserve stocks in eight years, says the Agriculture Department.

Teenagers tricked by free lunch

DALLAS (AP) — The free tickets advertised the event as "the world's largest pizza party," but did not mention anything about a sermon.

However, teenagers at Lake Highlands Junior High School who attended the "party" say after supper they were herded into an auditorium and asked to give their lives to Christ while men in suits guarded the exits.

Steaming parents began making angry calls to the school the next day, and Assistant School Superintendent Tom Means agreed Thursday the parents were justified. He insisted the school had nothing to do with the event, which was sponsored by a local church.

"The last line on the tickets says 'Lake Highlands Junior High School,'" Means complained. "It was false advertising. It was a bad deal."

"I heard everything in the world from mothers and fathers, including reports that children were forced to attend. I would have been upset too, if my child had been involved."

A church official said the security measures were imposed because "we didn't want them running all around the school."

The tickets, distributed free to students at the school, said the event was "to hear Elvis Presley's (half) brother, Rick Stanley, and former Rice University football player David Stockwell." The three men were there all right, sponsored by Lake Highland Baptist Church to deliver an evangelistic crusade.

"The tickets said nothing about being sponsored by a church," one parent said. "But when they finished their pizza, they were herded like cattle into the auditorium and told they were not to leave unless they had to go to the hospital and someone would help them into an ambulance."

Some among the 400 in attendance left anyway. "When the people on the stage asked everyone to come forward and give their life to Christ, we ducked out," one student said.

School Principal Jerry Green said the event was "grossly misrepresented," and that the church has agreed to apologize.

Some students said "men in suits" were stationed at all the exits during the Tuesday night crusade and one said she was "afraid to leave."

A parent quoted some children: "They said when two girls started to leave, they were ushered back, and when a parent came in to take her child out, someone on the stage yelled, 'Thank you for taking your daughter out. If Jesus comes tonight, you'll both go to hell.'"

Church youth director Emmitt Carson said the whole thing was a misunderstanding.

Carter in Canada

President Carter is scheduled to travel north today, on his first official visit to Canada since taking office almost three years ago. Canada and the United States share a 4,000-mile-long boundary, and have been at peace with each other since the War of 1812. The two countries share many common interests and problems. Among them are issues involving energy, trade, air and water pollution, and fishing rights on both the east and west coasts. Carter is expected to discuss these matters with Canadian leaders during his two-day stay in Ottawa, Canada's capital. He will also speak before a joint session of the Canadian Parliament.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is the prime minister of Canada?

Pampa hosts Palo Duro tonight in home finale

Although it looks like Pampa and Amarillo High are headed for a District 3-AAAA showdown two weeks from now, Harvester coach Danny Palmer isn't getting ahead of himself.

Pampa hosts unheralded Palo Duro at 7:30 p.m. Friday night in a 3-AAAA contest at Harvester Stadium.

"It's going to be a tough game for us," Palmer emphasized. "Palo Duro doesn't have that bad a team."

Last week Pampa outplayed Plainview in the fourth quarter, but time ran out on the Harvesters as the Bulldogs won a 25-23 squeaker. Palo Duro used a variety of tricks to try and upset defending loop champion Amarillo last week, but to no avail. Amarillo won 21-6 to give the Sandies a 7-1 record.

Pampa is deadlocked with Amarillo for the district lead with a 2-0 mark, but a loss to the Dons Friday night could put the Harvesters 5-3 overall, out of the playoff picture.

Pampa's probable lineup Friday night looks like this: Offensive-Kennan Henderson at tight end, Danny Buzzard and Mike Graham at tackles, Mickey Bynum at center, Clyde Coffee and Hobby Gee at guards, Steve McDougall at split end, Greg Quarles at quarterback, Doug Kennedy at fullback, LeRoy Kuhn and Arthur Williams at halfbacks, Defense-Coffee at noseguard, Buzzard and Derrick Eldridge at tackles, Mark Jennings and Monte Covatt at linebackers, Billy Grimes and Clifford Anderson at ends, Wayne Dunn and Johnny Malone in the secondary, Brian Williams and Bobby Dorsey at safeties.

Despite Palo Duro's 1-7 record, the Dons have some good individuals.

Quarterback Ted Anthony ranks second in the league in passing with 44 completions in 122 attempts. His 863 yards passing is tops in the district.

Receivers Troy Smith and Mike Wafford are second and third respectively behind Pampa's McDougall in the pass-catching department.

The Dons main problem has been inexperience. Only three starters—Anthony, running back Robert Jenkins, linebacker Don Preston—returned to coach Ken Ozee this season.

Oilers host Raiders Sunday

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers, with a scoring attack led by a portly 5-8, 196-pound Austrian and Earl Campbell, and the Oakland Raiders, trying to overcome the horrors of playing on the road, meet in a National Football League game in the Astrodome Sunday.

The Oilers, 7-3, remain a strong contender for a playoff berth despite a sputtering offense that has had to rely on the rushing of Campbell and the kicking of Toni Fritsch.

Fritsch, the No. 3 scorer in the American Football Conference, has been responsible for three Oiler victories this season, including Monday's 9-6 victory over Miami when he kicked field goals of 46, 48 and 31 yards.

Fritsch also kicked the Oilers to a pair of overtime victories over Cincinnati and the New York Jets. Campbell retained the AFC rushing and scoring lead despite a pulled leg muscle that caused him to miss one game.

Houston Coach Bum Phillips continued to defend beleaguered quarterback Dan Pastorini, boomed long and often in the Astrodome this season for his slow start.

The Oilers relied almost exclusively on Campbell and the ground game against Miami. Campbell rushed for 120 of Houston's 179 yards and carried on 32 of the Oilers' running plays.

"We need to throw better and catch better, but I thought we displayed good judgement against Miami," Phillips said. "We seem to play better against a class football team. I don't know why, I just hope I can keep getting them to do it."

Oiler tight end Mike Barber suffered a knee injury against the Dolphins and was a questionable participant for Sunday's game but the Oilers will get little sympathy from the Raiders, who had 13 starters sidelined at one time early this season.

Strapped by injuries and losing three of their first four games, all on the road, the Raiders have since rallied with a two tight end offense behind quarterback Kenny Stabler, who is the No. 4 rated quarterback in the AFC with an 82.8 rating.

Oakland will take a 6-4 record into the game, including victories in five of its last six games. Overcoming their road slump won't be easy in the Astrodome, according to Raider Coach Tom Flores.

"One of the big keys is to contain Earl Campbell but you can't put all your concentration on him," Flores said. "I think Pastorini is a quality quarterback and the threat of him passing to (Ken) Burroughs is too much to overlook."

Pastorini, with a 47.0 quarterback rating, hit six of 10 passes for 11 yards against the Dolphins.

Simms: next superstar?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP special correspondent

If you aren't hooked already, you're going to like this new kid who is quarterbacking the New York Giants' football team. He has superstar written all over him.

It doesn't happen often but occasionally in this calloused, cynical world of professional sports, a star flashes across the firmament and automatically you say to yourself: "This guy's got it. He can't miss."

So it is with Phil Simms, an obscure young man out of an obscure little college in Kentucky who, thrust onto the firing line a third of the way through the season, turned the fangless and futile Giants into snarling tigers.

Mark him well. He has poise. He has talent. He has looks. More than that, he has those intangible qualities that help round out those rarities who ultimately become legends.

His blond head hasn't shown an inch of expansion from the sudden attention and adulation that has swept down upon him in a very short time. Not a trace of arrogance, instead a quiet modesty and a "Yes, sir," politeness. He is considerate of teammates, fans and the press.

This was never better illustrated than at the annual meeting of the Touchdown Club in New York this week when key members of the Giants and Jets were guests at one of the city's fashionable eateries.

The prospect of seeing the Giants' new jewel brought out football buffs in droves, and the kid was the center of the show.

Scores queued up to get a handshake and his autograph. He was trapped for almost an hour after the luncheon but he never gave a hint of boredom or impatience.

"Come on, Phil, we have a meeting at 3 o'clock," urged his agent, Michael Merkow of Century City, Calif.

Simms never wavered. "Just a minute until I finish these autographs," he replied. He didn't disappoint a single one.

"I write with my left," he explained, "throw and bat in baseball right-handed, kick left-footed, play golf right-handed."

Then later, despite the urgency of another appointment, the rookie quarterback sat down to answer questions of a few newsmen who had been unable to get within yards of him earlier.

"How in the world did you wind up at Morehead State?" someone asked him.

"They were the only ones that offered me a scholarship," he replied.

Simms demanded few headlines. At Morehead, in the little Ohio Valley Conference, he endured four losing seasons, figuring in a total of 10 victories while dropping 26 games. He wasn't even all-conference.

How did the Giants decide to pick him No. 1 in the college draft? "We had heard about him," said General Manager George Young.

Just before the Easter holidays, Coach (Ray) Perkins made a swing to look over quarterback prospects, including Jack Thompson (Washington State), Jeff Rutledge (Alabama) and Chuck Fusina (Penn State).

"Ray, who was a receiver himself, ran some patterns with Phil. We looked at movies of some of Phil's games. We were both convinced. Simms was our man. What impressed us most, besides his remarkable poise, was his accuracy and acuity."

George uses Ivy League words. The dictionary describes "acuity" as "sharpness, keenness of sense perception." A less erudite man might say Simms has the eyes of a bombardier. He sights targets quickly.

Pampa falls to AHS

Amarillo High got sweet revenge and kept its playoff hopes alive last night by drubbing the Pampa Harvesters, 14-7, 14-12.

The Sandies still have one game left against Palo Duro, and if they win, as it is predicted, a playoff game between Pampa and AHS will be scheduled to decide this year's District 3-AAAA champion.

The Sandies could do no wrong at the net, as their spikes made the struggling Harvester blocking look non-existent.

In the second game, the Pampa defense began to stiffen. Trailing 5-12 with 2 1/2 minutes to play, Susan Richardson, who replaced tiny Deana Porter in the backcourt, served eight straight points, by far the longest streak of the game.

Sharron King scored three of those points on spikes. Marnie Laycock had one spike to score, and Tina Robbins had a scoring block. The rally lasted only one minute, but it was enough to tie the score at 12-12.

Texas Democrats begin 1980 rejuvenation effort

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas Democrats, still smarting from their key election losses in 1978, have already begun a 1980 rejuvenation with a bi-partisan victory committee they hope will raise $1 million and rebuild the party's traditional superiority.

That coalition might also head off a fatal split in the state party ranks if the fast-developing Kennedy-Carter clash becomes nasty, Texas Democratic Chairman Billy Goldberg said Thursday.

The committee includes Democratic National Committeewoman Billie Carr of Houston, a leading supporter of Sen. Edward Kennedy, and Democratic National Chairman John White and Goldberg, who both back President Carter.

White has warned Democrats at the meeting here of the party's national committee that they are in the "extremely dangerous" position of becoming hopelessly split by the Kennedy-Carter fight and losing in 1980.

Goldberg said, "It's not an attempt to ward off any split. But it might very well have that effect. I don't anticipate any split."

"It's not a Carter committee, it's not a Kennedy committee and it's not a (California Gov. Edmund) Brown committee," he added. "This committee will be geared toward party strengthening and party building."

John Hill, a committee co-chairman and the unexpected loser to Republican Bill Clements in the 1978 gubernatorial election, said, "There has been some erosion in strength, some loss in vitality and effectiveness. I'm very concerned about that."

"We didn't get the vote out on election day in 1978. We've got to do that in 1980," Hill said.

Clements narrowly won to become the state's first Republican governor in more than a century.

The Democrats also failed again to unseat veteran Republican Sen. John Tower, who narrowly defeated Democratic nominee Bob Krueger last year.

Goldberg said he favors a non-binding presidential primary in Texas, especially with Kennedy and Brown in the race. The binding delegate selection process begins at precinct conventions after the polls close in the May primary.

He acknowledged that the actual primary would have little significance, except to "give people an opportunity to express themselves."

Goldberg said that possibly hundreds of thousands of Democrats could cross over and vote in the binding Republican primary the same day if Texans George Bush and John Connally are still contenders.

A BERKELEY COUNTY SCHOOL BUS taking children to the Middle School collided with a tractor-trailer early Thursday killing two children and injuring 25.

Truck, school bus collide two killed, 25 injured

MONCK'S CORNER, S.C. (AP) — A tractor-trailer hit a school bus carrying youngsters to class today, killing two children and injuring 25 others and the drivers of both vehicles, officials said.

Deputy Berkeley County Coroner James Preacher identified the dead as Edsel Nofsinger and Terry Martin, both 12, of Moncks Corner.

According to reports, the truck, carrying gravel and driven by J.P. Orvin, sheared off the left side of the bus, jumped an embankment, struck a tree and overturned. The driver was trapped in the wreckage for a short time.

The coroner said 25 of the 38 children on the bus were injured enough to be treated at four hospitals throughout the Charleston area. The drivers of the bus and truck were treated and released.

The bus was going to Berkeley Middle School in Moncks Corner after picking up students from the Lakewood and Chappell sections of the county.

Parents who came upon the wreckage pulled alongside the road trying to find out if their children were involved.

The accident occurred about 7:45 a.m. six miles southwest of Moncks Corner.

The bus driver, Verbeten Taylor, was "just shaken up," said Dr. Anthony Ladd of the Charleston County Hospital, where she was taken.

THIS YOUNG CAMBODIAN MOTHER suffers from malaria, a deadly insect-borne disease that has not yet affect her infant. Authorities report disease, as well as malnutrition, is taking a deadly toll on Cambodian refugees now in camps such as the one at Sa Kaew, Thailand.

Portrait of Rogers to be first in series

GRANITE, Okla. (AP) — A 28-foot-tall mosaic portrait of Will Rogers made from tiles of Oklahoma red granite will be dedicated Saturday. It is the first of three giant portraits planned in this rural Oklahoma town.

The 30-by-28-foot bust of the renowned humorist, a Claremore, Okla., native, is the creation of Bill Willis, who said the dedication will mark the beginning of the final leg of the world's largest granite mosaic.

Willis originated the "Giants of the Great Plains" project, which will cost an estimated $1 million. Besides the three portraits, roads and a tourist center will be built. Willis said he expects the project to be completed by November 1981.

The other two portraits will be of Sequoia, the Cherokee Indian who invented a system of writing in the 19th century, and the late Olympic gold medalist Jim Thorpe.

Willis is making the mosaic by piecing together granite tiles, which will be flesh tone when polished. He is using quarter-inch black and white dots to give the figures depth.

When completed, the mosaic will stand 116 feet tall and 124 feet wide, with a base 100 feet off the ground. The names of persons who donated $25 or more toward the project will be engraved on background panels, but the names will be visible only with the use of a telescope.

Oklahoma Lt. Gov. Spencer Burnard will be the host of the ceremony at 11 a.m. Saturday, and Lawton Mayor Wayne Gilly will be the emcee. A public barbecue will follow the ceremony.

Dr. Melvin Jones, president of Mark Twain Insurance Corp., will be the keynote speaker. A Vernon, Texas, jazz ensemble will accompany a Granite singing group.

Rogers, a member of the Cherokee nation, will represent the philosopher, Willis said. He said Rogers was chosen because of his worldwide appeal and his compassion for Americans.

Sequoia, leader of the Cherokees, was chosen to represent the intellectual for his love for his people and his desire to educate them.

Track star Thorpe, a member of the Sac and Fox tribe, was selected to represent the athlete for his perseverance in achieving goals and becoming the best in his field, Willis said.

Willis is using as models portraits by Charles Banks Wilson that hang in the Oklahoma Capitol.

"Now, more than ever, we need to hold before our young the great values of superior performance and the vision of greatness it inspires," Willis said.
