Beat the Sandies!

Amarillo High went up in flames at Thursday night's giant bonfire rally at Pampa High School. Heidi Allen, pictured below with Harvester fullback Doug Kennedy, was named Miss Flame and ignited the blaze that signals the annual battle with the Sandies. In accordance with the showdown for the District 3-AAAA football title tonight in Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium, Mayor H.R. Thompson has signed a proclamation designating Friday as Beat the Sandies day.

If shah not returned to Iran Safety of hostages threatened

By The Associated Press
An estimated 80,000 demonstrators marched on the U.S. Embassy in Tehran today and Moslem militants threatened to take harsh action against their hostages inside the mission if the United States forced the shah to go to any country but Iran.
NBC-TV news in Tehran said the march on the embassy was the biggest since the hostages were seized Nov. 4. After Moslem Sabbath prayers, loudspeakers broadcasting from minibuses led the demonstrators in anti-American chants.
The protest took on a carnival atmosphere, the British Broadcasting Corp. reported, with families and vendors mixing with the demonstrators. A long line of Tehran taxis drove past the embassy carrying stuffed animal effigies of wood and straw which people in the crowd struck while shouting anti-American slogans. It was not clear what the animals signified.
A spokesman for the militants inside the embassy told Tehran Radio: "We announce the message of the Iranian people to the world that if America expels the shah, it will be committing an offense even greater than its previous ones. The shah should be delivered to the Iranian nation with his hands tied. If America expels the shah, it must be certain that harsher decisions will be taken against the hostages."

The Associated Press in Bonn, West Germany reached the embassy in Tehran by telephone and spoke with a student who said, "So far those hostages are safe here and in a comfortable condition."
"But I'm not sure what would happen if the United States lets the shah leave. I'm not sure what action the people will take."
The broadcast, monitored in London, also said the militants would boycott American goods and that they urged other Iranians to ban U.S. products in any way possible during the coming week.
So far the U.S. government has refused to meet the militants' demand for the shah's extradition, and has given no indication it planned to expel him.
Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's 79-year-old revolutionary leader, has canceled all appointments for the next three weeks because of "slight fatigue and illness," the state radio said, and foreign diplomats in Tehran predicted a long siege for the hostages.
As the crisis entered its 13th day today, the United States mounted a new initiative to win increased domestic and international pressure for release of the captives, said by the State Department to number 60 to 62 Americans and eight non-Americans.

The number of hostages previously had been estimated at nearly 100, but the State Department said Thursday night that about 30 Iranian employees were freed shortly after the embassy takeover Nov. 4.
Iran was still insisting that Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, ousted by Khomeini's forces in January, be extradited from the United States before the captives could be released, and there was no sign the crisis was about to end soon, foreign diplomats in Tehran told The Associated Press in Bonn, West Germany, by telephone.
Further complicating the situation was an apparently growing dispute between some Iranian government officials and the demonstrators who seized the embassy. The conflict, which intensified Thursday, left it unclear who would decide the hostages' fate.
The protracted stalemate led to calls for President Carter to take even tougher steps against Iran.

Iran in position to cut off 60 percent of world's oil

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran, once regarded as the United States' policeman in the Persian Gulf but now as America's foe, is in a position to cut off the flow of 60 percent of the world's oil — by blockading the narrow Strait of Hormuz, the outlet from gulf oil nations to the world's sea lanes.
But, despite the crisis provoked by the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Western diplomatic sources in the Iranian capital rule out such drastic Iranian action.
"Arab gulf states, particularly Iraq, would consider that a very aggressive act. So I don't think the Iranians would dare do it," commented one diplomatic source reached by telephone from Nicosia. He added that the United States probably would deploy its Middle East and carrier-led Indian Ocean naval forces to break any blockade.
Iran's heavy dependence on foreign food and other imports from the West also militates against a sea blockade.
At its narrowest, the Strait of Hormuz forms a 24-mile water gap between southwestern Iran and the pro-Western sultanate of Oman.

But the strait's shipping lane actually is only about two miles wide and snakes through dangerous shoals. Tankers pass through the strait at the rate of one every 12 minutes.
An AP correspondent who recently visited Oman reported that leaders there say they regard mining of the channel as the biggest potential threat. The strait is about 200 feet deep most of the way across and this shallow channel, vessels to pass around any ship purposely sunk in an effort to block the channel.
Some Arab states would like to see some American military presence in the area, but not necessarily in the gulf itself. Conservative Arab oil states much prefer to have U.S. naval forces "over the horizon" in the Indian Ocean as a deterrent to Soviet penetration. They fear a U.S. presence in the gulf would invite a U.S.-Soviet confrontation in the area.
The closest thing to an American base in the Persian Gulf is a "supply facility" on the gulf island emirate of Bahrain for the U.S. Navy's five-ship Mideast force.

Senior Citizens Center request granted $2.6 million budget for county approved

By MELANIE MILLER Of The Pampa News
Final approval of the 1980 county budget was granted during the Gray County Commissioner's Court meeting this morning at the Courthouse.
County Judge Carl Kennedy said the $2.6 million budget was "very close to what we had prepared." One major change was made, an increase from $5,000 to $10,000 for the Senior Citizens Center.
Kennedy said the county will spend $82,600 more than originally prepared from the revenue sharing fund. All receipts, including county expenditures but excluding the district attorney's grant, are in the budget.
As required by law, a public hearing was also held on the budget during the meeting, but no one showed up to air their views on budget expenditures.
Commissioners also granted approval for a

Panhandle Regional Planning Commission application on a Federal Housing Administration subdivision west of Pampa. The 33-acre subdivision is located at the intersection of Hobart and Cinderella Streets.
Kennedy explained that the land will be developed and housing will be built on the site. Each lot will be 66 by 110 square feet.
"This is apparently a continuation of a development that's already out there," Kennedy said. He added that because federal funds are involved, the application had to be submitted through the PRPC.
The resignation of Marilyn Tate, Gray County extension agent for the past 4½ years, was accepted. She is accepting a similar position in Floyd County. Her resignation becomes effective Dec. 21. Ms. Tate also worked as the county 4-H coordinator here.

In other business, Kennedy read a letter received by County Attorney David Martindale from the opinions office of the state attorney general. A representative from that office said the ruling on the hospital leasing last April 1 should be available in "several more weeks." The final approval by the attorney general is the only item needing to be done, the letter said.
Commissioners approved bill payments totalling $149,258.41. Included in the bills was $62,000 for both Perry Lefors and McLean Airports, as well as over $18,000 in bills from Highland General and McLean Hospitals.
A budget adjustment of $158 for the county clerk's office was approved. The clerk attended a Vital Statistics Seminar in Austin and the money approved will be used for those costs.

Diary indicates Nixon took $500,000 payoff for pardoning Hoffa

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — What investigators believe may be a financial diary of organized crime allegedly indicates former President Nixon received $500,000 for pardoning Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa, the Arizona Republic said today.
The Phoenix newspaper said in a copyright story that authorities in at least three states were examining the ledger. An FBI spokesman told the Republic the agency was looking into the document but had some question about its authenticity.
The newspaper said law enforcement officials believe the diary implicates Nixon and several key aides, including John Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and Charles Colson, in the alleged Hoffa deal.
The newspaper said it had obtained a copy of the 19-page document and that "nearly $28 million in slot machine profits, according to the diary, were allegedly diverted from the Las Vegas, Nev., casinos during a 15-month period in 1972-73 to certain individuals, including Nixon, and used in various covert activities."
The Republic said the diary was turned over to authorities by Gerald Denono, who it described as "a Mafia hit man who currently is under federal protective custody following his conviction for slaying a former crime partner."
The Republic report could not be independently confirmed late Thursday.
FBI spokesman Otis Cox, contacted in Washington by The Associated Press, said, "I don't know anything about it. At this point, it would be handled by the local office."
Nixon was not available for comment.

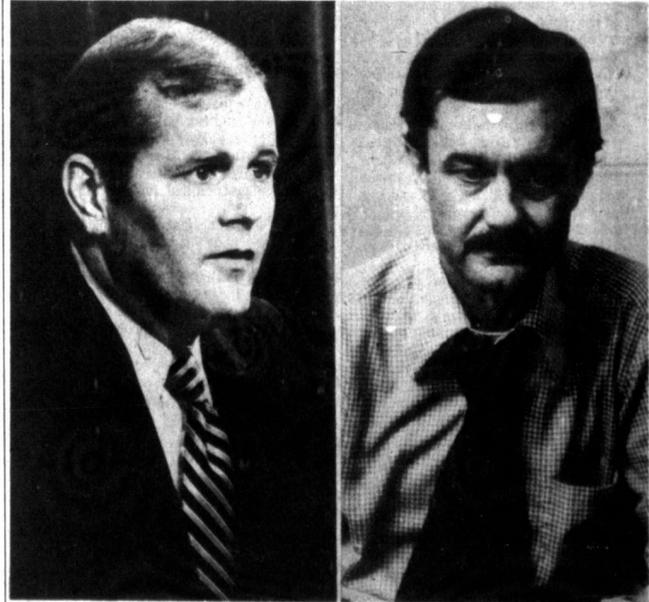

FBI investigating reports on Thursday's jet bombing

CHICAGO (AP) — The FBI said today it is investigating reports that a bomb which exploded aboard an American Airlines jetliner on a flight from Chicago to Washington, D.C., was the work of a pro-Iranian group. No one was injured in the incident.
The group claiming responsibility for the incident in anonymous telephone calls to the news media here threatened more bombings if actions were taken against Iranians in the Chicago area.
President Carter has ordered the investigation of the visa status of Iranian students in the United States in response to the taking of some 60 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.
Eighty passengers and crew members escaped the smoke-filled plane moments after American Flight 444 made an emergency landing Thursday afternoon at Washington's Dulles International Airport.
The Chicago Tribune, and two television stations, WBBM and WMAQ reported receiving calls from a man claiming an Iranian student group was responsible for the bombing.
The man, calling some 12 hours after the explosion, said he was a member of the group and threatened more bombings if actions were taken against Iranians in the Chicago area.
Investigators say the small explosive device was in a mail container in the plane's cargo hold.

A spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board, who asked not to be named, said it was a "very low yield" bomb.
Authorities said parts of an explosive device, including a battery and an altimeter, were recovered. An altimeter is an instrument designed to measure altitude and may have triggered the bomb as the plane climbed, authorities said.
The 727 jetliner was en route from Chicago to Washington's National Airport when the explosion occurred. "About half way to Washington, there was a sucking sound, like an implosion, in the plane, and a reduction of pressure," said passenger Art Plotnik.
"Very quickly, the whole fuselage filled with smoke. It was as close a call as you can have," he said.
Oxygen masks were lowered, Plotnik said, and "people were really panicking by this time. They were jumping up and down and screaming for the poor stewardess."
The Washington Post quoted an unidentified source as saying that if the bomb were sent through the mail, the person responsible wouldn't have known what flight it would have been assigned to.
One official, who also asked for anonymity, said the plane suffered minor damage, most caused by firemen who chopped a small hole in the compartment.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covington Commandment.

A question of conscience

There is a slaughter taking place in Southeast Asia and where are all the demonstrators? Protesting nuclear energy. Apparently people like Daniel Ellsberg think that closing the system with which the United States will generate electricity is more important than the millions of lives being lost in Vietnam and Cambodia. The silence from these antiwar humanitarians is deafening.

At least one former protest figure is making an effort to extend a hand to the victims of communist tyranny. And what does Joan Baez get for her sympathy for the suffering? Jane Fonda and Daniel Ellsberg chastise her for her efforts. It is clear many of her former antiwar allies are more disturbed by Joan Baez's activity because it draws attention to their lack of activity than they are at what she is doing.

No one is certain how many people have been killed since the communist victory. There is little doubt that millions have died. When population figures are brought into the calculation it is clear that a tragedy of monstrous proportions has taken place. Former New Left leaders stand speechless when asked about the situation, as if there were nothing they could do.

What could they do? For weeks supplies from the Red Cross and U.N. Children's Emergency Fund have been held back by the current Vietnamese-dominated government of Cambodia. While a frantic mass of Cambodians watch their bodies wither away from malnutrition, the regime made demands which would have politicized the distribution of aid. It was a logjam created by the Marxist rulers' attempt to gain leverage by controlling the distribution of the provisions. While the relief effort stalled children died of starvation.

What could the former antiwar protesters do? They, with more credibility than any American government official, could have telegraphed a demand that politics be downplayed while children are starving.

The political logjam has been broken, no thanks to the American Left. The current Cambodian regime finally agreed to an evenhanded relief effort that will deliver food to the hungry, whatever their politics might be. Not one of America's antiwar humanitarians, who risked beatings and jail to get America out of Southeast Asia, even took the time to publicly send a telegram.

Support from all over the noncommunist world is now beginning to pour into Thailand and Cambodia. No one has yet to hear from Fidel Castro, who only last week claimed to be the champion of starving children. Apparently everyone left of Joan Baez, who claims to be a pacifist and not a leftist, is trying to look the other way while thugs lay waste to Southeast Asia, spouting Marxist-Leninist slogans all the while. If freedom survives, history will record the callous disregard American antiwar figures are now demonstrating to the plight of the victims of regimes much of the antiwar movement helped put into power.

Campaign laws are roots of hypocrisy

We can sympathize with John Connally's complaint that in this stage the 1980 presidential campaign isn't a fair fight. He says federal law is making it easier for non-candidates for president to raise money and get publicity than it is for people such as himself who admit they are running.

Mr. Connally is right, of course. The political news is sounding like something out of Alice in Wonderland.

In the real world, there is a word for a man who talks as though he wants to be president, who acts as though he wants to be president and commands a following of people determined to make him the president. The word is candidate.

But in the world of the Federal Elections Commission and the Federal Communications Commission, one can be running for president like a greyhound after a rabbit and still not be a candidate. This is what irks Mr. Connally and no doubt discomfits the seven other Republicans who have "announced" their candidacy for the 1980 GOP nomination.

Mr. Connally and the others have come under a different set of campaign financing laws from those which govern the activities of "unannounced" candidates. The latter include Ronald Reagan and Howard Baker, who are known to be as interested in a lease on the White House as Mr. Connally. But they are not considered candidates in Alice's world, which was created by Congress to make elections more fair.

The FCC's rules for broadcasters, also laid down in the interest of firmness, require that equal time be offered to all candidates if publicity is aired about one of them. Those rules do not apply to pronouncements by Mr. Reagan or Mr. Baker. Nor, on the Democratic side, do they apply to Sen. Brown, whose real-world intentions are easy to see but who remains invisible in Wonderland.

So it was that Mr. Brown had to stop in mid-sentence and back up the other day during a television interview. He had let it slip that he is running for president. Everyone knows that he is, but he must not say so, or the Mad Hatter will drive him away from the tea party.

President Carter coyly says he will let us know in December whether he plans to run again, while his political minions work feverishly.

Election laws that make a distinction between "announced" and "unannounced" candidates where none may really exist are at the root of all this hypocrisy. Many were passed in the wake of the Watergate scandals, which seemed to call for reform in the way presidential campaigns are financed. The reforms were supposed to elevate the standards of honesty and fairness in politics, but they are having just the opposite effect.

New and revived racism

The Justice Department's Community Relations Service has some disarming news about revived racism: In the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, the CRS handled 44 cases involving Ku Klux Klan activities compared with only eight such cases in the previous year.

Although Klan-related cases occurred throughout the nation, they were concentrated in the Southeast and generally took the form of cross burnings, armed rallies, fire-bombings, open challenges to police and harassment of blacks and other minorities.

The CRS has more bad news — about an unprecedented form of racial strife. In the just-concluded fiscal year, the agency handled five cases involving disputes between Vietnamese refugees and whites or members of minority groups. There were no such cases in the prior fiscal year.

Struck by the awesome importance of surveys

By D.R. Segal

I used to purse my lips and roll my eyes when anybody said "survey" but now that I am on the payroll of a major consumer of surveys I can see I was wrong. There is more to the business than you might think. For example, all of our surveys are done in different colored covers so's you don't read the same one over and over again. I'd never have thought of that.

And some surveys explain what other surveys didn't bring out exactly right. This is called "refining" the results. Really high class surveys always have a chapter on "methodology" which explains the error curve and the way the questions were asked and things like that. Almost nobody reads that part. Either you believe the survey or you don't. It's an act of faith.

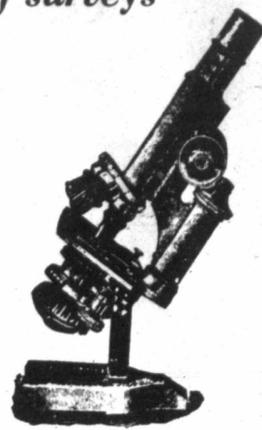

The principal value of a survey, is that it puts off having to do anything for a while. While the survey is being made you sit around and say hey, just wait until we get the results of that survey, then we'll know. If you are an old hand at the survey business you spend the interim reading surveys already done on the subject so that when your survey comes back you can say, hey, that doesn't agree with the survey they did in St. Looie last year so we'd better think about that some.

Nobody ever did anything while a) deciding to get a survey, b) waiting for the survey to be made, c) reading the survey after it was done or d) trying to figure out why it's different from the one in St. Looie.

I have an associate who is of the opinion that most crises, if left to simmer, will somehow solve themselves, and I suspect that surveys fit nicely into that pattern. The survey just gives natural forces a little extra breathing time and serves the same functions as the doctor who messes around harmlessly while the body silently heals itself.

I am not down on surveys, mind you, it's just that I am not certain that they are the most economical way of putting off doing something. A fellow could as well go fishing for a couple of weeks or take the kids up to Yellow Stone to smell the bears.

D.R. Segal is the president of Freedom Newspapers, Inc.

Chomp, chomp, chomp

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court agreed last week to decide whether you can patent a new life form created by man in a laboratory. It goes under the name of genetic engineering. One of the cases has to do with a scientist at General Electric who made a bacterium in the lab and called it Pseudomonas. The bacterium is capable of eating oil spills by breaking down the molecular structure of petroleum as it floats on the ocean.

I am not concerned whether you can patent Pseudomonas or not. What worries me is that the bacterium exists at all.

As with so many things scientists come up with, it sounds great in a test tube. Everyone hates oil spills, and if you can have hungry organisms feasting on the stuff it solves that problem.

But what happens after the bacterium eats up all the oil that is spilled? In a few days the Pseudomonas will start getting hungry again and going after oil that is being drilled up from the ocean floor. It will start chomping away at any fuel it can get its teeth in, and it's not inconceivable that as billions of them work their way through an oil field there will be nothing left to pump up but salt water.

Chomp, chomp, chomp—and it's goodby to the oil in the Gulf of Mexico. Chomp, chomp, chomp—and you can kiss the petroleum off the coast of California goodby.

The Pseudomonas can't tell the difference between oil spilled from a tanker and oil on the ocean floor. All it knows is that if it wants to survive, it has to eat. And one lousy tanker spill will not feed a family of bacteria very long.

If this isn't enough to make you nervous, what happens when the bacteria start clinging to the shoes of someone working on an oil rig? There is a big turnover in men who work on oceangoing rigs. After a while they long to drill on land. Suppose the rigger moves to Texas and wears the same shoes in the Panhandle. The bacteria will immediately start going down the well and chomp, chomp, chomp—it's arrivederci to Texas oil.

I know that someone will argue that the Pseudomonas won't eat oil unless it's mixed with salt water. But bacteria are very adaptable organisms, and if they can't swill their petroleum with salt water they'll take it straight.

Once the Pseudomonas gets into our domestic oil it's a short step for it to the refinery and then into your home heating tank. Chomp, chomp, chomp—and half the oil that cost you 90 cents a gallon will be digested by bacteria before it gets to your furnace.

I may be unfair to the Pseudomonas, or the man who created it. For all I know the bacterium may get its fill of oil spills and then die. But generic engineering is a dangerous game, and when you start creating bacteria in a test tube you have no idea what they're going to feast on.

Today it may just chomp on tar balls off Cape Cod, but tomorrow it might decide that sweet oil tasted better. When it does it's shalom to Saudi Arabia.

GOP plans raftless campaign

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Even as they battle one another in the primaries, the major Republican presidential contenders are quietly cooperating to insure that whoever wins the GOP nomination has a united party behind him.

All the GOP candidates are anxious to avoid the kind of nasty schism that lingered on between followers of Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford after the 1976 convention, a split that may well have contributed to Ford's defeat by Jimmy Carter.

Therefore, they are already working together — through designated top-level campaign aides — to minimize frictions and plan for a unified assault on the Democrats after the July 1980 Republican convention in Detroit.

The informal planning unit, which is known as "Group '80," was formed at the urgings of GOP National Chairman Bill Brock and meets periodically under his direction. Participants are concentrating on the sort of nuts-and-bolts preparation (e.g. voter bloc targeting, registration drives, etc.) which can pay dividends for any nominee regardless of ideology.

Even without the kind of spadework Brock is overseeing, the Republicans are likely to have a big organizational jump on the Democrats next year because their convention comes first, thereby giving them an entire extra month to gear up for the general election and to heal any intra-party breaches.

In 1976, the Carter-Mondale campaign used a similar head start to enormous advantage while Ford and Bob Dole, forced to hit the ground running, initially stumbled badly over various logistical hurdles.

Slowing progress

Although blacks comprise 11 percent of the U.S. population, they account for less than 1 percent of all the elected officials in the country, according to newly published figures from the Joint Center for Political Studies here in Washington.

Furthermore, black progress in attaining elective office seems to be slowing. Between July 1978 and July 1979, the number of black elected officials increased by just 2 percent to a total of 4,607, the smallest jump since the center started its annual survey in 1970.

The South, which has 54 percent of the black population, accounts for 60 percent of black elected officials; it is followed by the North Central states, the Northeast and the West.

Nearly half of all elected blacks (48 percent) hold office at the municipal level; another 26 percent are serving in education positions.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Nov. 16, the 320th day of 1979. There are 45 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1933, the United States and Soviet Union established diplomatic relations.

On this date:

In 1532, in Peru, the Inca empire fell to Spain.

In 1776, in the Revolutionary War, the British took Fort Washington on the Hudson River — and got 2,000 prisoners in the bargain.

In 1907, Oklahoma became the 46th state.

In 1932, New York's Palace Theater was converted into a movie house. The Palace had been the world's most famous vaudeville theater.

In 1941, Nazi Germany launched a second assault on Moscow — again doomed to failure.

In 1966, Dr. Samuel Sheppard of Cleveland was freed at his second murder trial — after nine years in prison.

Ten years ago: The "Apollo 12" spaceship was on its way to the moon — on a perfect path.

Five years ago: The World Food Conference in Rome approved the formation of a new United Nations committee to help improve the world food supply.

Today's birthday: Actor Burgess Meredith is 70.

Thought for today: A man may build himself a throne of bayonets, but he cannot sit on it. — William Ralph Inge (1860-1954)

11-year-old Texas boy unearths mammoth's rib

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Derek Saunders says it came as no surprise when a bone he found turned out to be 12,000 years old.

It just meant the 11-year-old's career as a paleontologist was finally getting off the ground.

"I thought it was pretty old," the sixth-grader said. "Young bones are white, and it takes them a while to fossilize."

Derek, a sixth-grader at Irving's Lamar Junior High School, found the bone last year while walking his bicycle through a local park. He showed it to his fifth-grade teacher and brought it to class again this year.

His current science teacher, Ann Miesch, took the bone to a meeting with professors from East Texas State University's Earth Sciences Department. A month later, the bone came back with a note identifying the bone as that of an elephant that lived in the Pleistocene Epoch of the Ice Age.

The bone is really that of a mammoth, Derek says, because no elephants lived in that time.

Derek said he has returned to the creek bed for more digs, but so far has found only cow bones.

A self-described "rock hound," Derek says he wants to be a paleontologist when he gets out of school. He started his collection of rocks and fossils when he was 7.

"I'm always aware," he said. "I'm always looking for things like that."

Derek's parents are Robert and Linda Adkins. He has two brothers — David, 12, and Aaron, 6.

Mrs. Adkins said she tried to throw away the fossil "about three times" before it was identified.

"It was in a plastic bag on the dresser and kept falling off," she said. "I can't remember when he hasn't been bringing things home. The first book he took out of the library was on dinosaurs."

But Mrs. Adkins can be rid of the pesky bone now. Derek is thinking of loaning it to the Dallas Museum of Natural History.

Judge denies defense motion to bar media

DALLAS (AP) — A state district judge denied a defense motion to bar the news media and public from a pretrial hearing on a minor arson case, saying the defendant had other alternatives to guarantee a free trial.

In their motion, defense attorneys cited a recent U.S. Supreme Court 5-4 decision in the Gannett Co. Inc. vs. DePasquale case that gave judges discretion to close hearings where pretrial evidence is introduced.

"A responsible press and a responsible bar can get together and give the defendant a fair trial," Judge Thomas Thorpe said Thursday.

"Matters sometimes do get into the press that will cause a defendant not to receive a fair trial," said the judge, who said that could be checked through the questioning of prospective jurors.

The defense also has the prerogative of asking for a change of venue, Thorpe noted.

His ruling came after the Dallas Morning News and WFAA-TV intervened to protest the motion.

The defendant, Blair Dewey Baker, is the son of a prominent Dallas civil attorney, B. Robert Baker.

He is accused of setting a fire in a trash receptacle behind a Dallas shopping center last May 12. The fire caused about $50 damage and no one was injured.

Thorpe did order attorneys not to talk to the news media about the case until the trial is over. The trial is scheduled to begin Dec. 3.

Defense attorney Fred Bruner said he filed the motion Oct. 17 to close the pretrial hearing after Thorpe told him reporters had been asking about the case even though the hearing had not yet been set.

"I wanted to protect my client," he said. "The case hadn't even been set for trial or for a first hearing and people were looking around. I didn't want my client hurt from advance publicity."

The prosecution had urged that the motion be denied.

"The public has the right to observe trials, and the press has the right to report trials," said Assistant District Attorney Marston Alexander, who is prosecuting the case against Baker.

"The public has the right to know of any potential danger in their midst. The only publicity concerning this case came after the defendant filed the motion requesting that the hearing be held out of the public eyes," Alexander said.

'I hope we'll keep our cool'

Clements: Embassy siege 'much more serious' than missile crisis of early '60s

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Seizure of the U.S. Embassy and American hostages in Iran is much more serious than the Cuban missile crisis of the early 1960s or the more recent Mayaguez incident, says Gov. Bill Clements.

Iranian situation in Washington today.

Clements also told the Permian Basin chapter of the Banking Administration Institute that he is convinced the prime lending rate will peak at 19 to 20 percent.

Clements was deputy secretary of defense and a member of the National Security Council when the Cambodians captured the Mayaguez and when North Koreans killed an Army officer in a "tree-chopping episode" in the Korean demilitarized zone.

The governor based his predictions on talks he has had with financial experts from across the country.

The consensus on interest rates among national and international financial experts, he said, is "They'll go up before they go down."

He told a meeting of West Texas bankers here Thursday that the situation in Tehran is much more volatile than the two "management crises" that occurred during his four-year tenure under presidents Nixon and Ford.

Texas legislators grappled with raising the usury ceiling from 10 to 12 percent last spring and Clements said he may include the interest rates in his call for a special legislative session next March or September. But he doesn't know what he'll propose, he added.

The governor has been a frequent critic of President Carter, but he told the bankers he has no bars for the president's handling of the Iranian takeover.

"My position at the moment is that we in Texas have no business fishing in those troubled waters," Clements said. "They are problems of national scope, governed by national policy. We should not try to put a bandaid on the problem in Texas."

Americans need to understand "that in a management crisis only a very small group in Washington, D.C., has the responsibility for making the decision," the Texas governor said.

One banker in the audience claimed that state government discriminates against small banks. He said his bank loses money on small loans.

"We should stand back and let them make them. Any decisions have to be based on the latest intelligence and its implications," he said.

Clements answered that he isn't sure there is anything he as governor can do to help. "I'm not sure freeing the market is the solution."

"No one in the public sector has this kind of information. Those people up there — who we elected — are charged with that responsibility, and we have to let them make the decisions."

"I hope we'll keep our cool, that we'll keep quiet," he said, adding that "Nothing constructive can be achieved through overly enthusiastic rhetoric."

House rejects Carter's plan for controlling hospital costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is blaming resounding House rejection of the president's standby hospital cost control plan on the medical lobby, but says it isn't about to admit defeat.

Although administration officials were surprised and upset over the House action Thursday, White House press secretary Jody Powell said "the ball game is not over yet" and vowed to get the hospital cost control legislation passed.

The next step may be to try to get the Senate to adopt the bill first.

On Thursday, the House voted 234-166 to dump Carter's plan in favor of a measure that would let the hospitals voluntarily police their own costs. It was a heavy blow to the administration since the bill had been touted as a key element in Carter's fight against inflation.

The new bill, authored by Rep. Richard A. Gephardt, D-Mo., and approved on a 321-75 vote, would also establish a special commission to study the causes of rising hospital costs and report its findings to Congress.

Powell described the House action as a "victory for the highly financed special interest lobby and a defeat for the common good."

He said he was referring to the hospital industry.

As members filed into the House chamber to vote Thursday, they passed through a waiting throng of hospital lobbyists packed in the hallway. There was a handful of administration lobbyists, too.

"We worked our heads off," said one White House representative who asked not to be named. "It was disappointing. We thought more members would come with us. We didn't think it would be this bad."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., however, wasn't surprised at the defeat. He said he was never optimistic about passage, even though he pleaded with the House to save the Carter bill.

"Asked why the administration pressed for House action, O'Neill said, 'I guess they figured they're in as good a shape as they'll ever be.'"

For two years, the administration has been promoting its own legislation that would have established guidelines for increases in hospital expenditures.

Carter's plan said hospitals that failed to stay within the federal guidelines — last calculated 11.6 percent this year — would have been subject to mandatory federal controls on how much they could charge for in-patient services.

Arguments against the administration plan centered on charges it would lessen the quality of care for patients while increasing the volume of red tape.

TEXAS

By The Associated Press

Widely scattered showers in Southwest Texas were expected to spread eastward into South Texas today.

But most of the state was to have clear skies and moderate to warm temperatures. Highs were to range from the middle 60s in the Panhandle and South Plains to the 70s over the remainder of Texas.

The showers, reported early today mainly in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas, were triggered by a weak upper level disturbance in southwestern New Mexico.

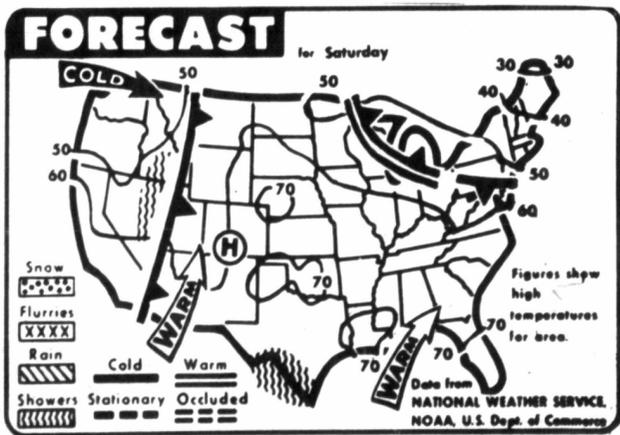

There were no reports of significant rainfall.

Most of Texas had clear skies during the pre-dawn hours. Temperatures during the early morning were mostly in the 30s and 40s although a few points in South Texas had readings in the 50s and 60s. Extremes ranged from 31 at Dalhart to 61 at both Corpus Christi and Laredo.

FORECAST

North Texas — Increasing cloudiness southwest today and tonight. Continued fair over remainder. Partly cloudy west and central Saturday, increasing cloudiness east. Slow warming trend through Saturday. Highs 69 to 72. Lows 37 to 44. Highs Saturday 70 to 73.

South Texas — Increasing cloudiness near the Rio Grande today, spreading eastward tonight and Saturday. Widely scattered showers from Lower Rio Grande Valley into Edwards Plateau today and tonight, spreading into Hill Country and South Central Texas Saturday.

SATURDAY'S FORECAST calls for showers over parts of Nevada and Idaho and along the Rio Grande. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Out of the shadow of his brother James

LIVINGSTON TAYLOR is making it on his own as a singer, not as the brother of James Taylor, he feels. Success to him is making people feel good with his music. (AP Laserphoto)

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Free of the artistic shadow cast by brother Sweet Baby James, Livingston Taylor says his life would be fulfilled if he could but smile some sunshine down your way.

"Everybody makes it on their own, in their own space, in their own way," the lanky, blond-haired Bostonian said in an interview. "I think there's an illusion that you'll be successful if you're around success."

"It's terrific being James Taylor's brother. My siblings are charismatic. My family's used to being visible. They've been used to it for a long time."

With four albums behind him, excluding a retrospective one, Taylor, 28, said changes must be expected and accepted by anyone living life to the fullest.

"A first album is written with no such thing as a thought to making a living at it," he said. "The first is perfection of the spirit. My first album, 'Livingston Taylor,' was all the writing I had done from age 15 to 20, when I made it. It's virgin and you never get back to that again."

"In making music, you've got to be willing to play live. It's everything. You can't be real fussy about where you're playing and you can't be worried about money — not compulsed about it."

Taylor said he has a large following in Japan, where he was preparing to tour. "I don't understand completely why they like me but they do and that pleases me," he said.

"The Japanese have a discipline that's unknown in this country and they are able to create beautiful things out of their discipline. Though I'm not very disciplined, I recognize its value. It doesn't mean I can't admire it in others. Often it's mistaken for squareness and that's not right."

A philosophical man who ponders every question and thoughtfully edits every response, Taylor said he's amazed by a public image of seriousness.

Cease-fire talks to begin

LONDON (AP) — With the major political difficulties in the Zimbabwe Rhodesia Peace talks overcome, cease-fire negotiations were due to start today between black and white commanders whose armies have been warring for seven years.

Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington on Thursday secured agreement from the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance and Bishop Abel Muzorewa's biracial administration to Britain's plan for direct rule during pre-independence elections.

The limelight in the 10-week-old talks then switched to the military commanders whose armies have fought an increasingly bloody war which has cost more than 20,000 lives.

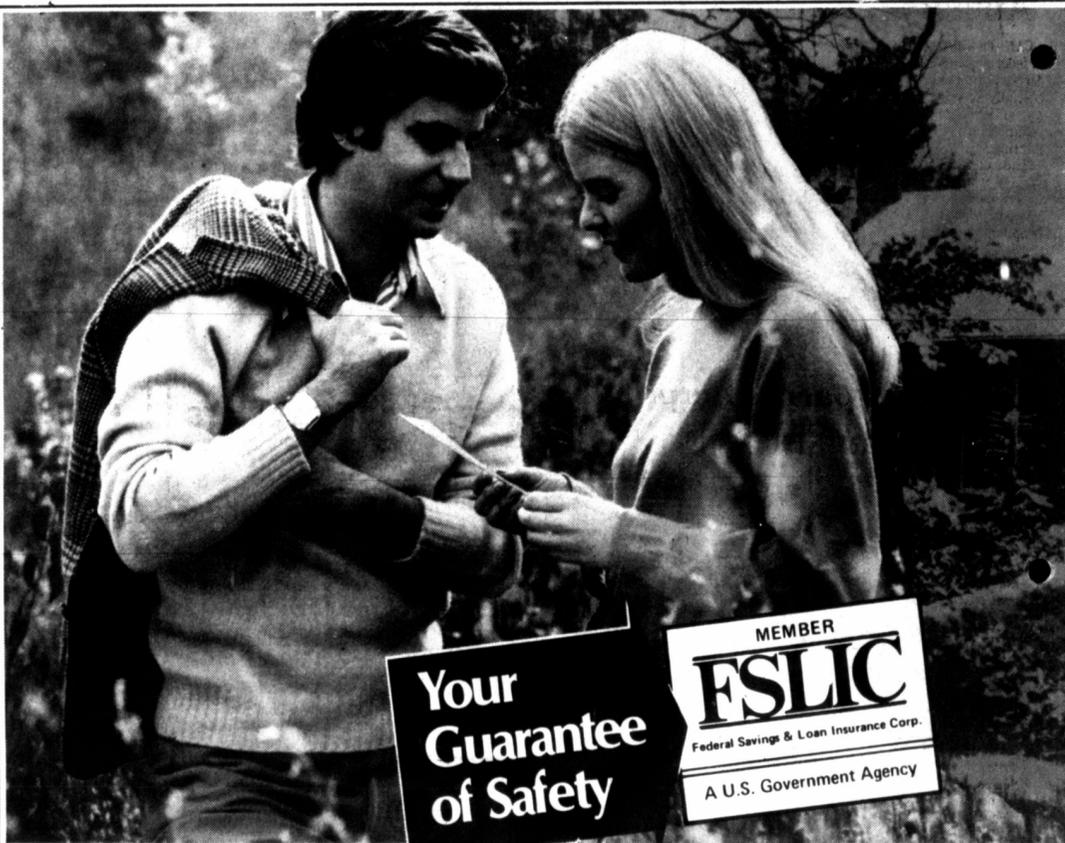

British sources cautioned late Thursday there were still problems. But the sources said if all went well a cease-fire could be agreed to within a week and a British governor could be on his way to the territory early in December.

Lt. Gen. Peter Walls, supreme commander of Muzorewa's army, police and air force and Josiah Tongogara, head of the larger of the Patriotic Front's two guerrilla armies, have both been in London for most of the conference. Tongogara heads Robert Mugabe's guerrilla army in Mozambique.

Walls, sources said, has had behind-the-scenes talks with British officials.

Late loan payers received spankings

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Former banker David Rhodes says spanking customers was an effective way of getting tardy loan payments — until some of his customers threatened to tell his superiors about the paddlings.

Now the former bank manager, who spanked the delinquent customers in his office with a wooden paddle, has been sentenced to a three-year prison term for misappropriating more than $88,000 in bank funds.

"I didn't want to hurt the bank, yet I couldn't stop what had started," said Rhodes, adding he was relieved when bank auditors detected the scheme. "I wanted to keep the bank's customers, to help the bank flourish, but it turned into a nightmare."

U.S. District Judge Paul A. Simmons issued the sentence on Thursday to Rhodes, former manager of a Century National Bank branch in Baden, Pa., who was arrested in August by FBI agents.

Rhodes, 38 and father of two, told Simmons the spankings started as a joke but snowballed out of control.

He said he paddled more than 50 persons who were delinquent on loan payments. "I never had any trouble with them afterwards," said Rhodes.

Rhodes estimated he averaged about 1,500 loans a year at the Beaver County bank from 1964 until his discharge in 1978.

However, Rhodes told the court he was forced to make eight unrecorded loans totaling $88,268 when six of those who were spanked threatened to report him to his superiors.

One of the six, none of whom has been charged, demanded more money or "he was going to make it out as a homosexual activity," Rhodes told Simmons.

Although he was aware the loans were illegal, Rhodes said he didn't turn himself in because he didn't think the authorities would believe his story. Bank officials said they could have made $348,000 had they been able to use the money in regular channels.

Defense attorney David Joyce said Rhodes, now manager of a cigar and candy firm, had no previous criminal record and enjoyed a spotless reputation in the community prior to his arrest.

"He was involved in a vicious cycle," said Joyce. Psychiatric tests showed that Rhodes did not have a mental problem.

Simmons said the sentence was in line with similar offenses under similar circumstances. "I'm not trying to hurt you," the judge told Rhodes. "I'm just trying to do what is fair."

Simmons recommended that Rhodes serve the time at the federal regional correctional institution in Mercer County so he might qualify for a work-release program.

Airport grant accepted

CANADIAN - Nearly $300,000 federal grants for Canadian Airport improvements was officially accepted and ratified by Hemphill County commissioners in their regular meeting earlier this week.

The official payment of $295,000 from the United States government to fund the airport project was filed following adoption.

Commissioners approved a bid of $29,343 from Ray Electric of Amarillo for modification of electrical currents at the airport, once expansion work is officially underway.

In other county business, commissioners agreed to advertise for the leasing of one half of the Medical Building for use as a medical clinic.

The commissioners also agreed to advertise for bids to lease the old jail building at Glazier with the stipulation that it will be maintained and not altered or destroyed.

Bids for both projects will be opened at the Dec. 10 meeting.

In final business, Pete Burton Ford Co. of Wheeler submitted a low bid of $7,326 for the purchase of a new pickup for Precinct Four. Eight bids were received for the vehicle.

Bilingual parrot helps teach Spanish class

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) — He can't grade papers, he can't conjugate verbs, and he spends most of his time babbling in a cage.

But he speaks in two languages, is a master of the trilled "r," and has become an unofficial instructor in Dr. Margaret McClear's Spanish class.

And most students don't seem to mind being taught by a talking parrot.

Trilling your R's "is usually the hardest thing an American has to learn about Spanish," said Wynter McFtridge, a senior at East Texas State and the bilingual bird's owner.

"Most of the class had not mastered it. Paco was doing it perfectly. Dr. McClear realized this, too. She let Paco keep talking."

Miss McFtridge says she and her bird go everywhere together, including to class. Now Paco has his own seat in Spanish class, and sometimes helps Dr. McClear make a point.

Miss McFtridge said the bird also sings opera and has delusions of grandeur.

"When we ride in the car on long trips, we both sing arias the whole way," Miss McFtridge said. "It certainly helps pass the time."

She said Paco is spoiled and sometimes tells strangers: "Stand back! I'm an eagle!"

"I got Paco from a friend when I was living in Panama," she said. "I started teaching him words in both English and Spanish, and he developed quite a vocabulary. I guess Paco has about 40 words in both English and Spanish."

"I'm used to it, but he does get me in trouble. One night I was going out with someone for the first time. We were making polite conversation when my date asked me what I wanted to do. Paco yelled out, 'whatever turns you on.'"

And reporters have no trouble in getting material from the cooperative bird.

FOCUS

The Zenger Case

245 years ago tomorrow, British soldiers arrested a New York newspaper publisher named John Peter Zenger. In his paper, Zenger had published articles criticizing the policies of the British governor. The British jailed Zenger for libel, or publishing material damaging to the governor's reputation. The soldiers burned Zenger's newspapers outside city hall. When Zenger went to trial the next year, the government argued that he should be found guilty simply for printing the articles. But Zenger's lawyer said the charge of libel did not apply, because Zenger had printed the truth. The jury's verdict of not guilty was considered an important victory for freedom of the press.

DO YOU KNOW — What 1765 British law placed a heavy tax on the paper used to make newspapers?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Willie Stargell is the Pittsburgh Pirates' first baseman.

Church news

Church celebrates 50th anniversary

The Church of the Brethren will celebrate its 50th anniversary in Pampa with a fellowship meal and program at 6 p.m. Sunday. The first organization of the Brethren in Gray County was July 21, 1894, on the John Stump farm near Laketon. The church began its activities in a schoolhouse on the Paris place two miles west and one north of Laketon. When the school was moved, church members conducted their services in another schoolhouse one mile north of Laketon.

The church was known as the Panhandle Church of the Brethren and from the year 1894 to 1921 had pastoral leadership. From 1921 to 1929 the church was without a pastor.

In August 1929 George E. Hallett of Fairview, Mo., answered the call of the Panhandle Brethren to come and help them re-organize and to serve them as pastor. A building was purchased on North Nelson Street and was converted into a church and parsonage.

Brother Hallett moved his family into the building and the first Sunday School and church services were conducted Oct. 26, 1929. The church was officially re-organized and dedicated as the Pampa Church of the Brethren on Nov. 24, 1929.

The church relocated at 600 N. Frost in 1938 and was remodeled and enlarged in 1948.

Besides Hallett, those who have served as pastor of the church include J.R. Jackson, Miller Hubbard, S.E. Thompson, Homer Kiracofe, Russel West Sr., Lyle Albright, Bob McFadden, Donald Speaker, Don West, James L. Minnich, Darrell C. Fryman, Bob Williams and present pastor Bryce Hubbard.

Cupbearers to appear twice

The name "cupbearer" means one who serves drink to another. In the Old Testament, Nehemiah was a cupbearer for the king.

Tim Taylor and David Harris are the Cupbearers, two young men seeking to share the love of Jesus in word and song.

The Cupbearers will appear at two local churches this weekend beginning at the Sunday morning service at Pampa Chapel, 711 E. Harvester, which will start at 11.

The second service will be on Monday night at 7 at Lamar Full Gospel Church, at the corner of Bond and South Sumner.

The public is invited to worship at either of these churches.

Rummage sale Saturday

The Foursquare Church ladies group will sponsor a bazaar and rummage sale Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Dairy Queen building at 1328 N. Hobart.

Original, handcrafted items will be featured at low prices. These make perfect Christmas gifts and lovely decorations.

Religious roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — A prime-time nationwide premiere for the film "The Joy of Bach" is scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 23, on nearly 300 stations of the Public Broadcasting System.

The film on the life and music of the composer was funded through the Lutheran Film Associates by Lutheran Brotherhood, the American Lutheran Church, Lutheran Church in America and George Gund Foundation.

The time and date of the film's showing may vary in some cities.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Access to the Scriptures and familiarity with their teaching is an important adjunct to freedom of religion in the United States," President Carter said in a special message for the observance of National Bible Week, November 18-25.

The message was released by Thomas Murphy, national chairman for the 39th year of the annual, non-secretarian observance sponsored by the Laymen's National Bible Committee. Murphy is chairman of General Motors Corporation.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Euthanasia is "contrary to God's law," but a Christian in good conscience may "let nature take its course," says a report on mercy killing issued by the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod's Commission on Theology and Church Relations.

The report says patient, doctor, nearest of kin, and pastor should normally be involved in the final decision to "let nature take its course." It allows the use of pain-killing medications "even at the risk of shortening life."

The report defines euthanasia as "the administration of a lethal dose to the patient or the deliberate refusal to use even the ordinary means of sustaining life." The report says the "discontinuance or avoidance of extraordinary means of preserving life when there is no prospect of recovery... does not, in a proper medical sense, signify euthanasia."

NEW YORK (AP) — The governing board of the National Council of Churches has started a year-long re-examination of its purpose.

The 266-member board, representing 32 Protestant and Orthodox communities whose members number more than 40 million people.

At its Nov. 8-10 meeting, the board also adopted a new policy statement on criminal justice and approved a fact-finding mission to the Middle East as part of the development of new NCC policy in that area.

The NCC's current Mideast policy affirms both Israel's right to secure borders and the Palestinians' right to self-determination and a national entity.

The policy statement on criminal justice argues that the present system may do more to perpetuate violence and disrespect for the law than to halt it. It calls for minimizing incarceration, and wider use of fines, mandatory community service and restitution to victims.

Israel gives Mount Sinai back to Egypt

MOUNT SINAI, Egypt (AP) — Egyptian soldiers raised their flag Thursday near this venerated desert mountain where Moses is said to have received the Ten Commandments as Israel made its fourth-stage withdrawal from territory captured in the 1967 Mideast War.

The flag-raising ceremony, attended by about 200 Egyptian and Israeli soldiers, passing tourists and Bedouin Arabs, clears the way for President Anwar Sadat to celebrate the second anniversary of his peace initiative.

Here the Ten Commandments came down with the moral injunction which is today applied to relations between people," said Israeli Gen. Dov Sion, referring to the Biblical caveat to "love thy neighbor."

The Israeli government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin agreed to turn over the 600-square-mile area in the south central Sinai two months early at the request of Sadat, who has placed great symbolic importance in its return.

The Egyptian leader has long said he wanted to build a three-in-one house of worship for Jews, Christians and Moslems at Mount Sinai, although some officials said he has altered these plans in deference to 30 solitude-seeking monks at the St. Catherine's Monastery, built 1,400 years ago.

At a military ceremony at an Israeli-built airfield 12 miles from the mountain, the Israeli flag was lowered and an Egyptian flag raised in a ceremony that has now been repeated four times as Israel carries out its phased withdrawal from the desert peninsula.

Under an agreement reached between Cairo and Jerusalem, tourists from Israel will be allowed to visit the area under Egyptian supervision.

Under the peace treaty, the Mount Sinai area was scheduled to revert to Egyptian control next January.

But Menachem Begin agreed to Sadat's request to advance the handover so Egypt could hold ceremonies there marking the second anniversary of Sadat's arrival in Jerusalem on Nov. 19, 1977.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy..."

PSALM 16-11

HERE IS THE PATH

THE JOY OF SHARING

There is pleasure in doing things with others. It may be looking at a picture magazine, or riding toys, or for parents it may even be sharing knowledge of the day's events that bring joy.

God's people have a desire to share with you in the greatest joy, that of worshipping together in God's House. ATTEND CHURCH

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Thank Mrs. Hale for holiday

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Sara Josephus Hale was a remarkable woman. As a writer recently put it, "She nagged Abraham Lincoln into making Thanksgiving a national holiday."

It's true that "Since the (autumn) of 1621, when the handful of Pilgrims who had escaped the preceding winter's famine appointed a day on which to celebrate the gathering of their first harvest in the New World, many... communities were wont to hold a festival of thanksgiving. But it was a local rather than a general custom, and no uniformity of date obtained."

It's also true that in 1789 George Washington issued a Thanksgiving Day Proclamation. But it took Sara Hale's determined campaign in the 19th century to make the fourth Thursday of every November the day when Americans look forward to gobbling down golden-brown roast turkey and feasting on luscious pumpkin pies.

But we would be doing Sara Hale an injustice if we didn't emphasize that this far-seeing woman's attitude had social significance. In her own words: "There is a deep moral influence in these periodical seasons of rejoicing, in which whole communities participate. They bring out, and together, as it were, the best sympathies in our natures."

How did Sara Hale manage to have us all celebrate Thanksgiving on the same day?

Left penniless at her husband's death, with five children to support, she became editor of "Godey's Lady's Book" in the 1830s and held sway there until 1870. Godey's set a pattern for the women's "service" magazines still flourishing today. The causes she espoused ranged from advocating higher education for women to crusading for remedies for civic health and sanitation problems. It was in the columns of Godey's that Mrs. Hale agitated for a common day of thanksgiving across America.

This talented woman also found time to write verse. Her "Mary Had a Little Lamb" will forever delight American children.

Nowadays Godey's is collected for its fashion color plates, but culinary buffs know that Godey's had a cooking department. Mrs. Hale herself wrote housekeeping and cookery books. If, like us, you admire Mrs. Hale and want to establish culinary kinship with her, here are pointers for Thanksgiving dinner culled from one of her books.

The Turkey. Mrs. Hale favored stuffing the bird with pork sausage and bread crumbs bound with beaten egg. During the roasting, she advised basting the bird with butter.

The Gravy. Mrs. Hale suggested adding sliced or grated roasted chestnuts to the gravy.

The Sweet Potatoes. Mrs. Hale decreed: "These are better roasted or baked, than boiled." Follow her dictum and you'll have great flavor and save time. We bake the sweet potatoes or yams in their jackets. When they are tender, we treat them as we do baked white potatoes: gash each in criss-cross fashion, gently squeeze the potato open, then tuck pats of butter and a sprig of parsley, watercress or fresh rosemary in the openings.

The Pumpkin Pie. In Mrs. Hale's day, cooks used fresh pumpkin. To prepare it she admonished: "In taking out the seeds do not scrape the inside of the pumpkin; the part nearest the seed is the sweetest." The filling she recommended is made with pureed cooked pumpkin, milk or cream, eggs, molasses or sugar plus cinnamon and ginger. "though allspice may be used." She added that "the peel of a lemon grated in gives it a pleasant flavor." All hail to Mrs. Hale's pumpkin pie!

FOR THANKSGIVING, this illustration of "An Easy-to-Make Godey Doll" dates back to the mid-19th century when Sara Josephus Hale, editor of Godey's magazine, campaigned to make Thanksgiving a national holiday. The illustration by G.P. Jones (Dover) includes instructions and ready-to-use patterns for a complete wardrobe.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm an 18-year-old girl with a problem I can't talk to anybody about. I am very shy, and just don't know how to say no to people.

About three months ago I want to bed with a guy I baby-sit for—I'll call him "Mr. M." He's divorced and has two little kids. Even though I knew it was wrong for me to go to bed with him, I didn't know how to turn him down without hurting his feelings.

"Mr. M." is a nice person, but he doesn't consider me in his class, or care about me as a person. He's dating a woman his age (35) who sometimes sleeps over.

Now that I've gone to bed with "Mr. M." five or six times, I don't know how to refuse him. I don't feel anything special for him, like I did for the guy I went steady with last year.

I want to quit baby-sitting for this man, but I really like his kids and they are crazy about me. Also, I'm too shy to tell him what's on my mind. What should I do?

CANT SAY NO

DEAR CANT: You CAN say no, and you MUST! Your problem is not "shyness," it's a very low self-esteem and lack of confidence. You need more help than I can give you in a letter. Please see a professional at your local mental health clinic. You must learn to assert yourself, and put an end to allowing yourself to be used.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 52-year-old divorcee in love with a charming, well-to-do 55-year-old widower I'll call Frank. He is delightful company and wants to marry me. Now for the problem.

Frank has two married daughters (whom I have never met) who want to ruin his life. They are so afraid that someone is going to take advantage of their father that they can't stand it. (His wife died two years ago and he's afraid to tell his daughters that he has been dating!)

When Frank takes me out, we have to go where his daughters will not find out about it. Also, when he comes to my home he takes a taxi so no one will see his car parked in front of my house!

DR. LAMB

Zinc, diet, vitamins and acne

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm an 18-year-old female and I have a very bad acne problem. I've had it now for two or three years. It's all over my back. Could this have something to do with my diet? Other than a dermatologist or drug prescription, is there any way I could get rid of it? Would zinc help?

DEAR READER — Acne, which includes pimples, blackheads and whiteheads, is caused by an overproduction of oily secretions from the skin. The substance is called sebum. The sebum may form a plug in the pores of the skin which can be white as a whitehead or the top can turn black which is a blackhead.

The black discoloration is thought to be either from skin pigment or from the effect of oxygen on the waxy plug itself. Many people make the mistake of thinking this is dirt and can be washed off. It can't. The little plug is usually just below the surface of the skin.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated. It will give you more information about these problems and what can be done about them. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I'm afraid neither zinc nor vitamins will help you with your problem. Most dermatologists today do not believe that the diet has much to do with acne either.

About the best aid you can have is to do everything you can to prevent oily secretions to the skin. If you happen to have long hair and particularly if it's oily, you might do well to change your hairstyle.

Sun over the affected area helps in some people.

Warm moist soaks to remove the excess oil and grease two or three times a day help. You may want to use a soap that helps particularly to remove oily material.

Some people also benefit from cleansing the area with ordinary alcohol two or three times a day or at any time that the skin looks or feels oily. I think if your home project doesn't work well, you really should see a doctor and let him prescribe a skin treatment program for you. And he may wish to prescribe an antibiotic if you're having lots of pimples.

The red pustules are usually caused from the breakdown of the sebum from bacterial action. The antibiotics eliminate the bacteria and, in the course of time, significantly decrease the pustule formation.

Dad and dancing

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and need your help. I'm a sophomore and our school has all kinds of dances that are chaperoned by teachers and administrators. My problem is that my dad won't allow me to attend any of them until I'm 16. Mom would allow me to go but not my dad.

When I ask him about it he says he doesn't want to talk about it.

Whenever my friends ask me why I don't go to the dances, I am too embarrassed to tell them the real reason so I make up some silly excuse. What can I do to get my dad to see it my way?—Melody, Torrance, Calif.

Melody: Have your school counselor call your father and invite him and your mom to the next school dance so they can evaluate the situation for themselves. It shouldn't take over 10 minutes for them to make up their minds.

I strongly support school-sponsored functions and would hope your parents could see value in school dances. For every minus there are 10 pluses.

Dr. Wallace: I have this friend (M) who is going steady with a guy. They get along just fine except for one small problem, another girlfriend of mine (A). A is always hanging around them and she flirts with this guy. This really gets M upset.

How can I let A know she is messing up M's relationship with this boy? Don't tell me to "butt out" because M requested my help. — Nancy, Dixon, Ill.

Nancy: I'm sorry but it's up to "M" or her boyfriend to handle the problem. If indeed it is a problem. If you should say something to A about it, she might tell you to butt out.

Democratic women telegram Carter

Members of the Tri-County Democratic Women's Club voted yesterday to send a telegram to President Jimmy Carter in support of his stand on the Iranian oil issue.

The group, which held its annual Thanksgiving luncheon, also re-elected Vickie Moose to serve as president for the coming year. Others elected were Mary Ann Irvin as vice president, Jean Cain as secretary and Jean Scott as treasurer.

The officers will be installed at the club's next meeting, a Christmas dinner on Dec. 18.

In other business, the group discussed the possibility of holding a district board meeting in Pampa. Mrs. Moose announced that Ruth Osborne of Pampa was elected third vice president of the Texas Federation of Democratic Women, during a convention last month in Austin.

She also announced that Potter-Randall Democratic Women will host a reception Nov. 26 for U.S. Representative Jack Hightower.

Phi Epsilon Beta discusses plans

Phi Epsilon Beta met last week to discuss some future activities.

Jana Whaley announced that the scrapbook from last year won second place during last month's competition at the Beta Sigma Phi convention.

A tea for rushees is planned Sunday at Kathy Topper's home. A Thanksgiving social is scheduled Nov. 17.

The members will donate to the J.J. Roach fund for the chapter's service project.

Donna Sexton and Beverly Alexander presented the program, "A Plan for Life".

Hostesses were Pattie Skidmore and Jana Whaley. The next meeting will be a pledge ritual Nov. 20.

Hensley didn't hear, feel bullet

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — John Hensley said he felt and heard nothing Feb. 15 when a rifle bullet tore through both eyes and ripped open the bridge of his nose.

"I just lost my vision suddenly. I thought I had received some kind of high voltage shock. I put my hand up to my face and could feel the damage," he testified earlier this year in the trial of a man later convicted for pulling the trigger in the shooting.

Hensley returns to the witness stand today in the attempted capital murder trial of Dr. Archie Herman Burkhalter, the ex-husband of Hensley's wife.

Burkhalter is accused of hiring two men to kill Hensley, who is a witness against the physician in a kidnapping case. The doctor is charged with abducting his ex-wife from her South Padre Island condominium and taking her to his Pasadena, Texas, hospital.

Assistant District Attorney Joe K. Hendley said after the trial recessed Thursday that Hensley was his last witness.

Defense lawyer Warren Barnett said he had some witnesses but agreed with Hendley that testimony in the case should end Tuesday.

In testimony Thursday, a Pasadena woman said the doctor asked her and her husband to dig up information on Hensley between December 1978 and January.

Elizabeth Fay Shaffer, wife of a private investigator, said her husband was a patient in Burkhalter's Pasadena Memorial Hospital when the doctor asked them for information on Hensley.

"He just wanted some information, anything on this person at all," she said.

Mrs. Shaffer said she called on another private investigator, David Groves, to help.

Burkhalter was interested if Hensley, alias John Hingle, had a criminal record and whether he was actually divorced from his first wife, she said. Mrs. Shaffer said she did not know Hensley was married to the former Mrs. Burkhalter.

Burkhalter is being tried with Scott David Minnick, one of the men the doctor allegedly offered $15,000 and a 1977 Cadillac for the killing. The other alleged conspirator, S.J. Wilburn, has been convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment in the case.

Wilburn was arrested minutes after the shooting on the Port Isabel side of the causeway linking the mainland with South Padre Island.

He was driving a 1968 Cadillac equipped with trunk flaps, a tripod and no back seat. The arrangement allowed someone to fire a weapon out the car without being seen.

Minnick was arrested later in the day driving a 1977 Cadillac, part of the alleged payoff, in Refugio County, about a three hour drive from South Padre Island.

Judy Jeter, whose husband testified earlier he helped Wilburn purchase a .22-caliber rifle police say was the attack weapon, testified Minnick told her about the unusual 1968 Cadillac.

Minnick also said Jay was mad at him "because they'd been setting up a deal and Scott goofed up. He had driven down to a corner to get some beer and passed a guy Jay was watching," Mrs. Jeter said.

Political fine tuning era begins

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is the era of political fine tuning, but the Ronald Reagan show hasn't changed.

The Reagan campaign is the longest running program in Republican presidential politics, unless you count perennial candidate Harold E. Stassen.

The former California governor began the active phase of his 1980 bid for the White House with themes, and words, which could have been lifted intact from his 1976 campaign.

So much for the advance suggestions that the new Reagan would tone down his conservatism and shift toward the GOP center. Indeed, the center may have shifted toward him as politicians in both parties try to cope with a public mood that is down on big government and big spending.

That accounts for some of the tuning of images as the 1980 campaign begins. Liberals would rather be called progressives. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy often cites his alliances with congressional conservatives on such matters as law enforcement and airline deregulation.

Reagan's image is firmly set, and he probably couldn't change it if he wanted to. His conservative philosophy has been spelled out in hundreds of speeches and papers over the past 15 years.

While the platform is the same, the strategy is different in this Reagan campaign. In 1976, he was the challenger, tackling an incumbent Republican president. In 1980, Reagan is the challenged — acknowledged by his rival candidates to be leading the field.

Last time, one of Reagan's problems was to dispel the suggestion that he was too far right, too extreme a conservative, for the nomination or the presidency. When that came up, as it often did, Reagan would recite his record as a candidate and as governor of California. When President Gerald Ford called him too far right, Reagan replied that the president twice had tried to recruit him for Cabinet positions.

That issue is almost certainly behind him. In its place, Reagan will have to deal with the suggestion that at 68, he's too old for the job. He will be 70 shortly after the next president is inaugurated.

He says his age is not a problem, and his managers are planning a campaign pace designed to demonstrate health and vigor.

Defending a lead beats playing catch-up. But it means that every rival will be looking for an opening, a misstep or a misstatement. He walked into some in 1976. He can't afford many in 1980.

His strategy this time has no place for face-to-face appearances with other GOP candidates. Reagan says he's not going to debate them, and sees no point in joint appearances that create the impression of a contest.

Last time, Reagan wanted to debate Ford. The president wasn't interested.

Freeze on Iranian assets could act like boomerang

NEW YORK (AP) — An government official was explaining why President Carter's freeze of Iranian government assets could boomerang on the United States, especially if it frightens off foreign investment.

"The oil producing countries dig up and send us a finite asset that took millions of years to produce. We burn it up, and in return we send them pieces of green paper that we can manufacture in huge quantities."

"They accept the paper, but then they leave it with us. They invest it in the United States, and the money then is lent out to Americans to build homes and factories and create jobs. They help finance us."

"And now, in effect, we tell them 'watch out, you can't do that; you can't take your money back.' I ask you, who was getting the better part of the deal? We were. And now we may be cutting our own throats."

Carter's freeze of assets applies only to Iran, and then only to government rather than private holdings. But some officials, private and governmental, fear it could unnerve other foreign investors.

Oil producing nations, for example, have joined Japan and Europe in viewing the United States as a sanctuary both for liquid assets, such as stocks, bonds and savings, and as a place for direct investments.

Will they continue to express this faith if they fear their national assets might be frozen, or that a freeze could spread to private liquid assets and then to direct investments, such as manufacturing plants?

The Iranian situation also resurrects an American fear: Do foreigners, particularly oil-producing nations, own enough of the United States to seriously disrupt the domestic economy should they decide to do so?

The General Accounting Office answers no to the latter question, concluding that the entire OPEC portfolio of stocks, bonds, Treasury bills and the like could be absorbed by U.S. markets in two or three days, albeit with serious price changes.

Still, one Commerce Department official estimated that price declines would not even be as bad as those created in October when the Federal Reserve raised the U.S. discount rate by one percentage point.

Portfolio investments such as these are one aspect of foreign investment. Direct investment, such as in factories, businesses and real estate, is another.

Commerce Department figures show that direct foreign investment through 1978 totaled $40.83 billion, but this amount minimizes the true value of the assets controlled, which was last estimated in 1974.

At that time, the foreign direct investment position was about $25 billion, but the value of assets was seven times that, or $175 billion. Using the same ratio, current assets might be more than $280 billion.

WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — A newly released public opinion survey shows that nearly two-thirds of all persons age 55 and older strongly back federal hospital cost control legislation.

The findings resulted from a survey of older citizens commissioned by the American Association of Retired Persons and the National Retired Teachers Association. Conducted by the Washington polling firm of Hamilton & Staff, the survey was released as the House prepares to vote on President Carter's cost containment legislation.

The House has put off a vote on that issue, however, until after Thanksgiving.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is being asked to approve legislation that would strip the Federal Trade Commission of its authority to decide antitrust cases.

Under the Antitrust Enforcement Improvements Act of 1979, this authority would be turned over to federal district courts. It would, however, leave the FTC with the power to bring complaints and prosecute in antitrust cases.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill authorizing $20.8 million in federal aid for the International Energy Exposition in Knoxville, Tenn., is awaiting final action in the House.

The measure, sponsored by Tennessee Sens. Howard Baker and James Saxner, was passed on voice vote by the Senate late Wednesday.

Carter asks for help in cutting U.S. fuel use

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, vowing that America won't sell freedom for oil, wants the nation's governors and other top state officials to help cut petroleum consumption by 4 percent to make up for the loss of Iranian imports.

Carter was meeting today at the White House with 35 to 40 governors and other top state officials to discuss the Iranian situation. They were called to the executive mansion after Carter announced Monday he was cutting off Iranian oil imports in response to the seizure of some 60 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Energy Department officials said the governors would be asked to voluntarily develop conservation programs, although the president now has conditional authority to force states to adopt such plans or face the prospect of a federally imposed plan. The officials asked not to be named.

Energy Secretary Charles W. Duncan, who also was meeting with the governors, was offering a long list of suggestions about specific conservation measures governors might choose for their states, said one official. Among the suggestions were rigidly enforcing the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit and encouraging carpooling and vanpooling.

The official said each governor eventually would be told how much oil his or her state was expected to conserve, but would be allowed to decide which conservation measures were most appropriate to achieve that level.

Each state will be expected to cut back by roughly 4 percent, although the impact might vary slightly from state to state because of differences in population growth or other factors that could affect the formula being used as a guideline for coming up with state targets.

"The situation is different in North Dakota than it is in Florida," the official said.

Iran now supplies about 700,000 barrels of oil per day to the United States, or about 4 percent of total U.S. consumption.

The cutoff of Iranian oil alone won't produce a severe enough shortage to require mandatory rationing, Administration officials have said. Americans could compensate for the loss by simply driving three miles less each day.

The president, in his strongest speech yet on the Iranian crisis, on Thursday linked America's thirst for foreign oil to the embassy siege, now in its 13th day.

The takeover "makes it starkly clear to all of us that our excessive dependence on foreign oil is a direct physical threat to our freedom and security as Americans," Carter told cheering delegates at an AFL-CIO convention here.

Conservation 'underrated priority'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, says soil conservation "is our most underrated priority" and should rate with energy and oil supplies in the public eye.

"I acknowledge that it may be a far-out thought, but it would be the ultimate irony if the Arabs elected to conserve their oil while we continued to export our topsoil to the Gulf of Mexico — and run out of topsoil before they ran out of oil," Culver said Thursday.

The Iowa farmer referred to the millions of tons of soil that wash away from valuable cropland each year, carried into streams where it pollutes water and winds up as silt deposits.

Culver's remarks were in a speech prepared for a National Conference on Soil Conservation Policies. The two-day meeting is sponsored by the Soil Conservation Society of America, the National Association of Conservation Districts and the Agriculture Department.

In his keynote address, Culver said he appeared "as an angry advocate for a total commitment by our nation to this priority problem" of conservation.

Government programs have helped and would work if properly used, he said. But those have been too little "and if we wait much longer, it will be too late," Culver said.

Farmers have "a basic commitment to good stewardship of the land they farm" but should not be blamed for not investing in conservation measures that don't pay a reasonable return on the investment, he said.

"You can't blame farmers for being confused by the conflicting admonitions to 'produce more now' yet 'conserve your land's productivity for the future,'" Culver said.

Although it was not mentioned in Culver's prepared text, government regulations requiring farmers to take part of their land from crop production have been suspended for 1980 crops of wheat, corn and other feedgrains.

Culver said he does not like a proposal being advanced by some people that farmers be forced to adopt good conservation plans before they are allowed to participate in federal commodity programs.

"A better alternative to this rather coercive approach would be to reward good conservation by providing higher loan rates and target prices to those who practice it," he said.

"This approach would provide the economic incentive that is needed to cover the costs of conservation measures," Culver added. "It would do so without undermining other incentives for farmers to participate in these programs."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of sheep and lambs being fed for the slaughter market as of Nov. 1 totaled about 1.04 million head, down 12 percent from a year ago, says the Agriculture Department.

Feeding increased only in Iowa and Nebraska from a year earlier, according to a report issued Thursday. It said the Nov. 1 inventory included:

Arizona, 46,000 head on feed and 60 percent of the state's inventory a year ago; California, 185,000 and 93 percent; Colorado, 420,000 and 91 percent; Iowa, 80,000 and 104 percent; Nebraska, 95,000 and 102 percent; Texas, 120,000 and 86 percent; and Wyoming, 90,000 and 72 percent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spain will be able to buy $3 million worth of U.S. cows and bulls for its breeding herds under a new credit package announced by the Agriculture Department.

Kelly M. Harrison, the department's general sales manager, said Thursday that repayments will be spread over five years. The arrangement, he said, will include costs of the cattle and transportation expenses.

Deliveries of the animals must be completed by Aug. 31, 1980, he said.

Tips for those traveling overseas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Holiday trips are a special treat for many people, and if you are planning a venture overseas, there are some things the U.S. Customs Service wants you to know.

For one thing, you can bring back more goods than used to be the case before you have to pay duty — but you have to have the items with you.

The amount of duty-free goods an individual can bring back has been increased from $100 to $300, Customs officials pointed out.

But to qualify the items have to be in your possession when you re-enter the country. There is no exemption for any purchases mailed or shipped to you, and duty will be charged on those items even if you didn't use up your $300 exemption.

Also, the duty-free exemption can include no more than 100 cigars, 200 cigarettes and one quart of liquor, and the liquor will be allowed only if permitted by the state where you re-enter the United States.

Customs Service officials emphasize that inspectors are familiar with the value of the most common items purchased by tourists and they urge that you not understate what you paid for these things in hope of paying less duty.

In some cases foreign shopowners have volunteered to show a lower price on a receipt, but even this won't fool the inspector.

If you do understate the value of an item, you can be charged a penalty in addition to the duty, and the goods may even be seized.

If you have any doubts about an item, ask the customs inspectors. You can send gifts to friends from another country and no duty will be charged if the value is less than $25. But that doesn't mean you can send yourself a gift duty-free, and people traveling together cannot send gifts to each other.

If you are taking any foreign-made goods with you, such as cameras, watches or tape recorders, register them with Customs before you leave the United States. That way you can avoid problems on return of trying to prove the item wasn't just purchased.

Country's most powerful regulatory agency

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission — an agency that regulates so many things besides railroads that it may be the most powerful such department in the nation — has two seats up for grabs.

Commissioners John Poerner and James Nugent, both former legislators who were appointed to their posts in non-election years, are now running with all the big industry money and political backing traditionally awarded incumbents.

The challengers are a timber baron's son and a muckraking journalist who used his tabloid to criticize the cozy relationship between the commissioners and the very industries they regulate.

What attracts so much attention to the 1980 statewide races for two $45,200-a-year jobs is the commission's duties.

The three-person agency was created in 1891 to control outrageous rail freight rates. Over the years, the commission kept its name but added duties.

Now it regulates the strip mining of coal, lignite and uranium, the rates and routes for intercity buses and trucks and the production of liquefied petroleum gas such as propane and butane.

But most vitally, it sets prices and regulates production for Texas' oil and gas industry, which supplies 25 percent of all fuel consumed in the United States.

"We know a senator can debate energy policy and we've seen a governor can spill oil on our beaches, but a railroad commissioner actually sets energy prices," says Jim Hightower, 36.

Hightower, given to cowboy hats and boots, touts himself as a candidate who owns no oil wells and gets no dividend checks from "Exxon or Lone Star Gas or one of the railroads."

He quit as editor of the bimonthly Texas Observer to run against Nugent, who was nicknamed "Supersnake" for his maneuvers in the Texas House.

Rep. Buddy Temple, one of the richest men ever to run for the commission, will oppose Poerner, whose previous campaign focused on the pronunciation of his name — Pur-ner.

Temple, 37, is the son of Arthur Temple Jr., who was chief officer of the Temple-Eastex lumber company before it merged with Time Inc. several years ago. The elder Temple is now vice chairman of the Time board.

Temple announced first, choosing to oppose Poerner. He estimated his race would cost $600,000 and said about one-fourth of the $200,000 he had raised had come from oil and gas people.

At a news conference last month, Temple told reporters he saw no need to investigate published reports that the oil industry created an artificial gas shortage this summer to jack up the prices. Nor did he see any reason to question data furnished by the industry on oil and gas reserves.

Hightower said he would not accept campaign money from the oil and gas industry. He said he chose to oppose Nugent because Nugent "best symbolizes the industry viewpoint" and way of doing things, which he wants to change.

Before he left Texas Monthly, the paper frequently ran articles on issues which concern the Texas Railroad Commission, such as strip mining and the end of train service to some small towns.

Earlier this year, Hightower's own columns criticized the commission, and he had special jabs for Nugent and Poerner. In a final Observer column, Hightower wrote: "There comes a time when writing about the bastards isn't enough."

Hightower said he has $10,000 in cash and firm commitments and expects to raise $300,000 — four times as much as a similar "consumer candidate" spent in the 1976 commission race.

"No way this is a lark," Hightower said. "At best it's an uphill fight."

The commission's powers of regulation are so extensive that former Gov. John Connally said he was looking for a "miracle man" when he sought a replacement for William Murray Jr. in 1963.

Murray resigned after published reports disclosed he had grossed more than $285,000 on a Throckmorton County oil lease.

The "miracle man" was El Paso civil appeals judge Jim Langdon, who served 14 years. He reportedly once described the commission's primary function as assuring "profr" persistent criticism that he was too friendly with the oil and gas people. A World War II Navy veteran, Langdon said he would "much rather be in a fox hole than being sniped at like this."

Langdon was succeeded by Poerner.

Nugent was appointed to fill a vacancy created when Jon Newton, also a former House member, resigned. Newton said he wanted to avoid any appearance of a conflict of interest after his wife received some family-owned land where natural gas had been discovered.

The third member of the commission is Mack Wallace. He succeeded former House Speaker Byron Tunnell, who resigned in 1973 to work in public affairs for Tenneco Inc., a huge conglomerate whose natural gas pipelines are regulated by the commission.

Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe appointed Nugent and Poerner in mid-term, which gives them the incumbents' advantage of running with financing from the industries they regulate.

This method of selection is so common that there have been only two races for commissioner since 1940 that did not involve incumbents.

Multinational corporations easy targets

NEW YORK (AP) — Multinational corporations, which have paid out $150 million to terrorists in the past 10 years, have become increasingly attractive targets because they tend to "cave in" to demands, says a report by a business-oriented research group.

Attacks against corporations and their employees are on the rise and "are now almost as certain as rainfall," said the Conference Board report released Thursday.

When executives are kidnapped, multinational corporations face multi-million-dollar ransom payments. Ransom demands in excess of $1 million were asked for each of 12 business executives kidnapped last year and the norm is now $5 million to $10 million, said the report by the non-profit group.

"Corporations can and do cave in to demands by terrorists," said E. Patrick McGuire, who headed the year-long research project, in explaining why business has become a prime terrorist target.

Government and military personnel were popular targets earlier in the decade but "could not, and did not, cave into demands," while corporations have paid out $150 million to terrorists in the past 10 years, McGuire said.

And the Conference Board report says one result of the trend is a boom in sales of ransom insurance.

McGuire said corporations now make hotel, airline and restaurant reservations for their employees under pseudonyms and remove identification from cars, trucks and airplanes.

But terrorist attacks — including assassinations and bombings — numbered 572 in 1975, 728 in 1976 and 1,256 in 1977. There were 2,662 reported acts of terrorism worldwide in the first nine months of this year, according to the report, compared with 1,511 for all of 1978.

Pampa girls nip Phillips

PHILLIPS-Pampa's Lady Harvesters nipped Phillips, 56-55, Thursday in a girls basketball scrimmage. Kellye Richardson led Pampa's scoring with 19 points, followed by Tammy Minyard, 8. Paula Baldwin, 7; Terri Tyrrell and Dwinna Treadwell, 6 each; Bobbie Skaggs and Debbie Albin, 4 each, and Nicky Polson, two.

The game was close all the way with Pampa trailing, 40-39, going into the final quarter.

"We worked real well together," Pampa Coach Mary Thomas said. "We moved the ball real well and the girls showed a lot of hustle."

The Lady Harvesters host Canadian at 5 p.m. Monday in another scrimmage.

"I'm looking forward to getting the season started and I know everyone on the team is," Thomas said.

Pampa opens the season at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday night on the homecourt with Perryton.

Akers denies magazine report

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A magazine report that Fred Akers is interested in the head coaching job at Louisiana State University has drawn a denial from the University of Texas mentor.

In denying the report, Akers restated that three years ago when he was at the University of Wyoming he said the only two jobs that interested him were Arkansas and Texas and "I'm where I want to be."

Texas Monthly magazine, in its December publication scheduled for release Monday, carried the report in its "State Secrets" column on the back page.

The magazine said Akers — disturbed over criticism of the offensive performance by his sixth-ranked Longhorns — has "let it be known that he might be interested in" taking over the LSU helm when Charlie McClendon steps down after this season.

The magazine also said there has been friction recently between Akers and Athletic Director Darrell Royal and that Akers felt recruiting might be easier at LSU than in the competitive Southwest Conference.

"I'm only interested in the University of Texas and doing the best we can this season and trying to make it to the Cotton Bowl," Akers told Austin television station KTBC Thursday night.

A spokesman for Texas Monthly said that the magazine stands by its story. LSU officials declined Thursday night to respond to the report.

McClendon steps down at the end of this season, and officials said only that the original statement of Athletic Director Paul Dietzel still stands: that the next coach of LSU "will be a current, proven college head football coach."

That eliminates such personalities as former Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian and former Kansas City Chiefs coach Hank Stram, but says nothing about Akers or other college head coaches.

Angry Carew quits tour

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — An incensed Rod Carew says he quit the major league baseball all-star tour of Japan earlier this week mostly because he felt major league officials had reneged on endorsement and appearance commitments and he felt he was "being used."

The California Angels' first baseman left the tour, scheduled for nine games and 16 days, after four games and six days, returning to his home on Monday.

Robert Fishel, an American League official, had earlier said Carew left the tour only because of a heel injury. Carew said Thursday that the heel injury was just part of his decision to return home.

Carew said he was initially hesitant to make the trip because of the heel injury that had bothered him during the last two months of the past season. But he said promises from the baseball commissioner's office and the Major League Promotions Bureau that he could make "$40,000 to $50,000" in endorsements and appearances convinced him to make the trip.

"Now I can't help but feel that we were told those things simply so that we would say 'yes' to making the trip," Carew said. "Now I definitely doubt that I'd ever make another."

The tour matches National and American League stars, with the series winners receiving $10,000 each and the losers getting $7,500.

"If I left only because of the heel," Carew said, "I wouldn't have gone in the first place. I wanted to stay home. But they made it sound as if it was something I couldn't pass up. They made all these promises to me and the others and they kept passing the buck."

"You either couldn't find them or they'd tell you to go talk to someone else. Nobody knew what was going on."

Two Penn State tackles named for Lombardi award

HOUSTON (AP) — Two defensive tackles from Penn State are among the nominees for the 1980 Lombardi Award honoring the nation's outstanding collegiate football linemen.

The nomination of Bruce Clark, the 1979 Lombardi winner as a junior, Matt Millen and 10 other players by 100 coaches, sportswriters and sportscasters was announced Thursday.

Four finalists will be chosen to attend the 10th awards dinner Jan. 17, when the winner will be announced.

Two of the 1980 nominees, Pittsburgh defensive end Hugh Green and Florida State nose guard Ron Simmons, are juniors.

The other seniors include Brad Budde, Southern California offensive guard; Tim Foley, Notre Dame offensive tackle; Curt Greer, Michigan defensive tackle; Doug Martin, Washington defensive tackle; Steve McMichael, Texas defensive tackle; Jim Richter, North Carolina State center; Dwight Stevenson, Alabama center; and Jim Stuckey, Clemson defensive tackle.

Proceeds from the $125-a-plate awards dinner go to American Cancer Society research projects.

Little Harvesters blank Plainview

Pampa's Little Harvesters scored in every quarter to hand Plainview a 26-0 shellacking Thursday in a ninth grade football game at Harvester Field.

Fullback Bill Carter opened the scoring with a two-yard burst off the left side, followed by Devin Mason's 20-yard scamper, a 9-yard pass from Dennis Daugherty to Randy Skaggs, and Danny Guerra's 41-yard reverse around end. Cody Allison kicked two PATs.

The offense compiled 243 yards in both rushing and passing while the defense was led by Jesus Santacruz with 10 tackles. Richard Baird and Darryl Caldwell had eight tackles apiece.

Coach Dickie Crockett said the offensive line of Paul Prentice, Todd Mitchell, Jerry Godfrey, Brian Bowen, Brad Voyles, and Royce Robinson did an outstanding job of blocking.

Randy Skaggs intercepted a pass for Pampa that killed a Plainview drive.

Fifty-two players saw action for the Little Harvesters.

Swimmers open with Tascosa

Pampa High's swimming team gets the season underway at 10 a.m. Saturday at the city youth center with a dual against Tascosa.

Both boys and girls will compete.

"It should be a good dual," Pampa coach Mike Eckhart said. "Tascosa boys beat by three points last year, but I think we've got a very strong team this year and are ready to go out and give them a run for the money."

Pampa's lineup on the boys team is as follows: Richard Steger, 200 medley relay, 200 individual medley, and 100 freestyle; Clay Douglass, 200 medley relay, 200 freestyle, and 500 freestyle; Eugene Thompson, 200 individual medley, 100 breaststroke and 400 freestyle relay; Scott Grayson, 200 medley relay, 100 butterfly, and 400 freestyle relay; Cody Moore, 200 medley relay, 100 backstroke, and 400 freestyle relay; Darrell Kyle, 200 medley relay, 100 freestyle, and 400 freestyle relay; Jerry Bond, 50 freestyle, 500 freestyle, and 400 freestyle relay; Mark Alexander, 200 medley relay and 100 breaststroke; Damon Cox, 200 medley relay, 200 individual medley, and 400 freestyle relay; Doug Auwen, 200 medley relay, 200 freestyle, and 100 backstroke; Greg Landrum, 100 freestyle, 400 freestyle relay; Sean Johnson, 50 freestyle; Brad Green, 100 breaststroke; Steven Taylor, 100 backstroke, 200 freestyle, and 400 freestyle.

There are only six girls on the Pampa squad, but all are good athletes, according to Eckhart.

He said the 200 medley relay, consisting of the Raymond Sisters (Lisa and Cindy), Julie Turner, and Lynda Cambern are exceptionally strong.

Harriers enter cc regionals

Pampa High's cross-country team will have to face that old nemesis—Tascosa—again in the Class AAAA Regionals Saturday in Lubbock.

"Tascosa has beaten us regularly all season," Pampa coach Charles Tindall said. "Tascosa won an invitational in Lubbock earlier and they will take a team to state, although they haven't competed against some of the El Paso teams this year. They should finish among the top ten."

Despite Tascosa's winning ways, Pampa could send two runners, possibly three, to the state meet, says Tindall.

"Joe Murray and Mike Wheeler have the best chance of making it to state," Tindall added. "Don Braswell could also come through with a strong performance for us."

Company files suit on Munson policy

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A British insurance company has filed suit in federal court seeking to have its policy covering the late Thurman Munson's aircraft declared invalid.

Cornhill Insurance Co. Ltd., an associate company of Lloyds of London, filed the suit Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Akron. Judge Leroy Contie was assigned to the case, but no hearing date has been set.

Munson, star catcher for the New York Yankees, was killed August 2 when his Cessna Citation jet aircraft crashed at Akron-Canton Airport while he was practicing takeoffs and landings.

Cornhill said in its suit that Munson violated a policy provision requiring him to fly with pilot-instructor Phillip Bradley until Munson had accumulated 100 hours flying time in the aircraft.

The suit said Munson, 32, of Canton, had flown 42 hours in the jet at the time of the crash and Bradley was not on board at the time. Cornhill said those facts invalidate any claims on the policy by the estate or any other persons who suffered injury or loss.

The company already has paid two lienholders on the aircraft, Yagen Aircraft Acceptance Corp. and the First National Bank of Dallas, a total of $1.1 million.

Those payments were made because an endorsement on the policy states that the insurance for the lienholders could not be invalidated by any act of neglect by the insured.

The suit said Munson borrowed $1.1 million of the $1,220,000 purchase price of the plane. Monthly payments on the loan, which were to have started August 15, would have been $15,631.

Another section of the policy provides for payment to Munson's estate of any amount over that owed the lienholders.

Munson's widow, Diana, has filed a claim asking Cornhill to pay the estate $120,000, plus $5,000 for "medical expenses."

The company has asked the court to declare invalid that claim, as well as claims filed by "various other persons for services in connection with preservation and storage of the wreckage of the aircraft" and any personal damage claims arising out of the crash.

David Hall and Jerry Anderson, friends of Munson, were on the jet and were injured when it crashed. Neither has filed suit.

The plane wreckage is being examined by private aviation experts hired by Munson's estate to determine whether a suit will be filed by the estate against Cessna.

Pampa spikers host Sandies for loop title

By D'ANNA CONWAY
Pampa spikers host Amarillo High tonight in a final showdown match to decide the District 3-AAAA championship. Gametime is set for 7:30 p.m. in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Both teams have identical 7-1 records in loop competition. Pampa beat the Sandies in the first round to take the first half of the title, and AHS defeated Pampa in the second round to gain the second half crown. Tonight's game will decide the district queens.

"They're so good," said Pampa coach Lynn Wolfe of the Sandies. "I had a chance to watch them play against Palo Duro, and they were almost awesome. I was really impressed."

Wolfe explained that the homecourt advantage syndrome might not be such an advantage to her Lady Harvesters.

Aggies, TCU in spoiler roles

By DENNE FREEMAN
AP sports writer

The Texas Aggies and Texas Christian Horned Frogs could really give the Cotton Bowl committee a bad case of the shakes this weekend.

Arkansas can sail right into the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day as the host team if it whips the Aggies Saturday in Kyle Field and takes out Southern Methodist Nov. 24 in Little Rock.

But the Aggies could put the Texas Longhorns on the front row of the Cotton Bowl race with an upset victory if Texas beats TCU then Baylor then the Aggies.

If TCU upset Texas, then Houston would have the edge over Arkansas because the Cougars beat the Razorbacks earlier in the year.

There are all sorts of ramifications if Arkansas doesn't maintain an unbeaten course.

Cotton Bowl officials will be on hand at College Station and Austin.

More importantly they will be scattered at various points to watch the doings in the Big Eight, and Big Ten and taking a look at unbeaten Florida State, looking at potential guest teams.

"There is the possibility we won't make any announcements Saturday," said Jim Brock, the executive director of the Cotton Bowl. "We'll keep everybody informed."

The Aggie-Arkansas game is rated a tossup while Texas is a 21-point favorite over the improving Horned Frogs in Austin.

In other games, Texas Tech is a one-point pick over Southern Methodist in Texas Stadium and No. 20 ranked Baylor is a solid 24-point selection over Rice in Waco.

Sun Bowl scouts will be on hand in Waco to eyeball the Bears.

The Sun Bowl is said to be locked on Washington as one team with hopes of luring an SWC club as the other.

Bowl committees can officially invite teams at 6 p.m. Saturday.

TCU Coach F. A. Dry just hopes Texas will still be celebrating its victory over Houston when the Horned Frogs come calling.

"I hope they're staying out all night celebrating, missing practice, missing classes and (Coach Fred) akers will have to kick a bunch of them off before we get there," said Dry.

Freshman Johnny Hector will start at tailback for Texas A&M in place of injured senior Curtis Dickey in the just with the Razorbacks at still under construction Kyle Field.

PAMPA HIGH's coaching staff will be hoping they can give the No. 1 sign after tonight's District 3-AAAA championship game with Amarillo High. From left to right are head coach Danny Palmer, Ricky Palmer, receiving and kicking coach, Rodney Bagley, defensive line coach, and Mike Brent, offensive backfield coach. Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium.

Harvesters-Sandies title clash tonight

Amarillo High Coach Larry Dippel summarized the situation perfectly.

"It's the biggest game of the year as far as I'm concerned and I'm sure Coach Palmer feels the same way."

Obviously, Dippel was speaking of the District 3-AAAA championship game between Pampa and Amarillo High at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium.

Both teams are 3-0 in loop play and the winner of tonight's contest advances to the state playoffs.

Overall, Pampa is 6-3 (forfeiting a 28-7 win over Dumas because of an ineligible player) while the Sandies have logged an 8-1 record, losing a 15-14 squeaker to Odessa.

Pampa Coach Danny Palmer said the Harvesters would have to solve Amarillo's defense to win, and Dippel agrees that his Sandies are strong defensively.

"Our strength would have to be our defense," said Dippel. "We've played good defense all year long. Offensively, we're a ball-control type team. We don't throw the ball a lot, but we do manage to control it."

Tackles David Berg, a 193-pound senior, and Marty Painter, a 187-pound senior, head Amarillo's steel curtain defense that have allowed opponents just 163 yards per game this season.

Junior running back Mark Mathiasmeier is the big gun on offense for the Sandies, leading the district in both rushing (845 yards) and scoring (62 points). Quarterback Jeff Lamb has completed almost 62 percent of his aeriels (28-58 for 311 yards and 2 TDs) to lead the district in passing.

ASU ordered to forfeit win

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — The Pacific-10 Conference ordered Arizona State to forfeit all of this season's league football victories in which eight ineligible players participated.

ASU, which had been 3-3 in Pac-10 play and 5-4 overall, now drops to 0-6 and 2-7, respectively.

One of ASU's conference victories was over Washington. But with the league ruling, the Huskies' 4-2 conference mark goes to 5-1, keeping Washington in the Rose Bowl race with the University of Southern California, which is 5-0-1.

An hour or so before the conference ruling Thursday night, ASU declared the eight players academically ineligible.

The players involved are linebacker Ben Apuna; defensive lineman Tony Baker; linebacker Louis Campbell; offensive linemen Brad Igou and Kani Kauahi; running backs Arthur Lane and Alvin Moore; and wingback Ron Washington.

Apuna, Kauahi, and Washington were starters.

Jim Muldoon, Pac-10 spokesman, said the decision was reached in a conference telephone call between Pac-10 members and league officials.

Dr. Fred Miller, ASU athletic director, had announced earlier that Rocky Mountain College of Billings, Mont., had withdrawn transfer degree credit awarded to the eight players for an extension course taken last summer in Gardena, Calif.

Miller said the credits were withdrawn because the players voluntarily informed Rocky Mountain College that they failed to complete any of the requirements necessary to receive credit in the course or courses involved.

"The withdrawal of his credit renders the student athletes ineligible to participate in football contests for the remainder of the season unless and until eligibility is restored by the Pac-10 Conference," said Miller.

Miller said the ineligibility stemmed from the failure of each of the players to meet the conference progress rule, which requires 24 hours of degree credit to be earned in the preceding 12 calendar months prior to competition.

Dippel feels the Sandies defense will be tested severely against Pampa.

"Their offense can do a lot of different things. They've got a good inside running game with Kennedy (Doug) and their Quarles (Greg) to McDougall (Steve) passing combination has been unstoppable all year," Dippel said.

Probable lineups for both teams are as follows:

Pampa Harvesters (6-3 record)

Offense: Ends-Kennan Henderson, 180-pound senior, and Steve McDougall, 160-pound junior; Tackles-Danny Buzzard, 210-pound senior, and Mike Graham, 180-pound junior; Center-Mickey Bynum, 200-pound senior; Guards-Clyde Coffee, 180-pound senior, and Robby Gee, 160-pound junior; Quarterback-Greg Quarles, 125-pound senior; Fullback-Doug Kennedy, 175-pound senior; Running backs-Lefty Kuhn, 170-pound junior, and Arthur Williams, 160-pound junior.

Defense: Coffee at noseguard; Buzzard and Derrick Eldridge, 210-pound senior, at tackles; Mark Jennings, 190-pound senior, and Monte Covalt, 160-pound senior, at linebackers; Billy Grimes, 190-pound senior, and Clifford Anderson, 175-pound junior, at ends; Dewayne Dunn, 175-pound senior, and Johnny Malone, 150-pound senior, in the secondary; Brian Williams, 160-pound senior, and Bobby Dorsey, 180-pound junior, at safeties.

Defense: Tony Ivie, 157-pound senior, and Gary Noble, 151-pound senior, at ends; David Berg, 193-pound senior, and Marty Painter, 170-pound senior, at tackles; Steve Brown and Mark Alder, 170-pound senior, at linebackers; Robert Carter, 176-pound senior, at middle guard; Jeff McClanahan, 160-pound senior, and Mark Kemp, 152-pound senior, at cornerbacks; Scott Allen, 158-pound senior, at strong safety, and Brian Talley, 165-pound senior, at free safety.

 Several things you have been hoping for are likely to be realized this coming year. Luck will play a part. Your practical approach will do the rest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The more trying the situation the more pronounced your leadership qualities will become. You'll know how to do things as they should be done today. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Ambitions you hope to realize can be achieved today, surprisingly, perhaps not in the manner which you first envisioned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Good things could happen to you today through friends and acquaintances you know socially. Be alert for profitable tips.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be tenacious. Put forth your best effort, but also trust your luck in competitive situations today. Dame Fortune is slanting the odds toward you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your judgment regarding large issues is quite keen today. You should be able to see the whole picture where others see only small fragments.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Shifting conditions tend to work to your advantage today. You could be brought into a joint venture that offers you a surprising gain.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Involvements where you will be working in conjunction with partners will be the ones offering the largest rewards today. They could even be of a social nature.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have the knack of utilizing your talents to your fullest advantage. Thus, you should be able to take small opportunities and turn them into large ones.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't deny yourself any opportunities for social expression today. You could be the life of the party if you let your hair down a bit.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Treat matters which mean something to you financially or materially optimistically today. Your positive attitude will carry you over the top.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) To advance your self-interests today, let your sense of humor supersede your assertiveness. Your wit has more power than a punch does.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for personal gain are exceptionally strong today. Breaks could come unexpectedly through unusual sources.

COMING SOON

MUSICAL - "OKLAHOMA"

The Pampa High School Concert Choir will present Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma" Monday and Tuesday night, curtain time being at 7:30 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend. Tickets are available from any choir member and various Pampa stores.

MAYOR RAY THOMPSON goes western and purchases two tickets to the P.H.S. Choral Department's production of Rogers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma," from chorister Brent Luck following a formal signing of a proclamation declaring Nov. 19-20 "Oklahoma Days in Pampa." The musical will open Monday night at 7:30 p.m. in the M.K. Brown Auditorium. (Staff Photo by Debbie Duke)

Horror shows are like roller coasters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Really good scary movies are constructed like roller coasters: Slow and uphill at the beginning, to set you up, then fast and terrifying the rest of the way.

This is the technique used in CBS' version of Stephen King's best-selling shocker, "Salem's Lot," except for one bothersome departure — the network bisected the movie for airing in two parts. Not just on separate nights, but on separate weeks.

Now that seems a little unfair. It's like getting on a giant coaster, enduring the long, slow ride up to that first peak, and then some guy stops the ride and tells you to come back next week for the rest.

Splitting "Salem's Lot" into two weeks isn't entirely fair to the movie, either. The first two-hour segment is very slow going, with at least 45 minutes of exposition before it gets close to the scary stuff. In fact, the first really scary part — the kind of scene that makes you pull your feet off the floor — doesn't come until the final few minutes of the first two hours.

That's no way to treat a horror movie, especially one with potential such as this. King's story is simple and classic horror: A writer, fascinated by childhood memories of the local haunted house, returns home to find that the place really is haunted.

The story employs the stock tools of the terror trade — vampires, crosses and the like — but takes such care in constructing a believable background and in developing the characters that the horror is all the more horrific once it starts.

In fact, the vampire chooses the tiny Maine village of Salem's Lot partly because of its wholesome insularity: The place is stocked with plenty of good red New England blood.

The good stuff starts when James Mason, the chief ghoul's advance man, hires a couple of trucker types to pick up a mysterious crate in nearby Bangor. The box transudes an eerie chill and moves by itself in the back of the truck. Guess what's in the box...

TRUST WORTHY HARDWARE STORES

TEXAS

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — The United Pentecostal Church Board of Presbyters has disfellowshipped the Rev. Charles Glass of the First Pentecostal Church in Sherman.

Glass and his wife have been charged by some members of the congregation with being preoccupied with fighting satanism and devil worship.

The action taken by the board means that Glass cannot preach in or be pastor of any of the church's 5,000 congregations in the Rev. Vernon Neely said.

The Sherman church has disassociated itself from the main church body.

While the board took its action Wednesday, Glass wife, Mary Jo, and another woman were found guilty of identifying themselves improperly to Garland police. Each paid a fine.

Attorney Joe Joiner said he would appeal the two convictions on the misdemeanor charges.

Rhodesian peace talks scheduled to start today

LONDON (AP) — With the major political difficulties in the Zimbabwe-Rhodesia peace talks overcome, cease-fire negotiations were due to start today between black and white commanders whose armies have been warring for seven years.

Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington on Thursday secured agreement from the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance and Bishop Abel Muzorewa's biracial administration to Britain's plan for direct rule during pre-independence elections.

The limelight in the 10-week-old talks then switched to the military commanders whose armies have fought an increasingly bloody war which has cost more than 20,000 lives.

British sources cautioned late Thursday there were still problems. But the sources said if all went well a cease-fire could be agreed to within a week and a British governor could be on his way to the territory early in December.

Lt. Gen. Peter Walls, supreme commander of Muzorewa's army, police and air force, and Josiah Tongogara, head of the larger of the Patriotic Front's two guerrilla armies, have both been in London for most of the conference. Tongogara heads Robert Mugabe's guerrilla army in Mozambique.

Walls, sources said, has had behind-the-scenes talks with British officials. But there was no confirmation that the white general and Tongogara have met yet.

Lookout Musifa, commander of Front co-leader Joshua Nkomo's forces in Zambia, has not yet arrived in London, officials said.

On Thursday, in a 15-word amendment to his original transition plan, Carrington said guerrillas, like government troops, would be under the proposed British governor's direct authority during the cease-fire.

Guerrilla chiefs said this satisfied their demands for equal status for guerrillas and government troops during the transition. They accepted the British plan, which Muzorewa endorsed two weeks ago.

British officials were confident that both sides were firmly agreed — providing that cease-fire negotiations succeed — that the governor will rule, maintaining law and order through the white-led police force.

UMW will accept Miller's resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A hospitalized Arnold Miller, whose fitness to run the United Mine Workers has come under increasing debate, is giving up control just one week after accusing union vice president Sam Church, his successor, of plotting his ouster.

The union's executive board was meeting today to formally accept Miller's resignation and to name him president emeritus, an action that automatically makes Church head of the 270,000-member union.

Union General Counsel Harrison Combs said in advance of the meeting that he had seen a copy of the board's resolution. He said he learned Thursday that Miller had decided to resign.

In fragile health for many years, Miller, 56, has been hospitalized in Charleston, W. Va., since suffering a heart attack while hunting four days ago.

His frequent absences from the union headquarters here have led more and more board members to question whether he was still fit to run the union. One, who asked not to be identified, said Miller "is incapable because of his sickness. He can't run the union."

Monday's heart attack was Miller's second. He had a stroke in 1978 and suffers from spinal arthritis and black lung disease, both the result of the more than 20 years Miller spent in the mines of West Virginia.

As the executive board looked for a graceful way to ease Miller out of day-to-day control, there was talk of forcing him to take indefinite sick leave or the honorary post of president emeritus.

But Miller apparently decided to take matters into his own hands after his latest heart attack and began making plans to step aside, said a union official who asked not to be named.

Miller had talked off and on of resigning for several months. Twice he told reporters he was considering resigning, only to later announce he would seek re-election in 1982.

Miller won the union presidency in 1972 on a reform platform pledging to make the union more democratic and give its locals greater autonomy. In recent years, however, critics have accused him of the same hunger for power he had attacked in his predecessor, W.A. "Tony" Boyle.

Miller has also become increasingly remote from Church, the Virginia miner who was Miller's running mate when he won a second five-year term in 1977.

Last week, Miller accused Church of scheming to replace him and said Church would not be on the 1982 ticket. Church replied by calling Miller a "very sick man."

On Thursday, Church said: "I think the world of Arnold Miller. I would do anything for that man. I have never said one thing against that man and I don't intend to."

TEXAS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Three medical specialists claim 15-year-old Billy Barnett, who died during a beating Oct. 22 by students from a rival student faction, was killed by the beating, not the rupture of a congenitally weak artery.

Bexar County Medical Examiner Dr. Ruben Santos had ruled that Barnett's injuries from the beating were minor and not enough to have caused death. The aneurysm that burst could have burst at any time, Santos added.

The ruling has been the source of much controversy.

Dr. Howard Huntington, a professor at the University of Texas Medical School here, testified during an examining trial Wednesday that the three-member panel felt the death was caused by bleeding from blows to the head.

Despite Santos' ruling, six Holmes High School students, five of them juveniles, have been charged with murder in the case. The five juveniles were arrested on warrants actually charging delinquent conduct, but alleging murder.

After the examining trial, the murder case against David Reyes, 18, was sent to the grand jury.

Huntington said there was no evidence Barnett, a member of the Holmes High School Rodeo Club, died from a ruptured aneurysm.

The artery in question was actually severed during the autopsy, the panel said.

Huntington said he and the two other doctors were asked by the district attorney's office to review Santos' autopsy report. Santos said he still stands by his ruling.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Police are investigating the shooting death of a young woman, whose body was discovered Wednesday in a vacant building used last month as a Halloween haunted house.

Hispanic leader, Clements exchange insults

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The governor of Texas and the national president of the nation's oldest Hispanic organization are calling each other names. One is a "gnat" and the other is "a buffoon in public office."

Gov. Bill Clements called League of United Latin American Citizens President Ruben Bonilla a "gnat" in a letter received Wednesday by a San Antonio attorney.

Bonilla, whose organization has 100,000 members, responded Thursday that it was typical of a man who is "a buffoon in public office."

Clements, a Republican who is often criticized by Bonilla and other Mexican-American leaders, berated Bonilla in a Nov. 5 letter to San Antonio attorney Fred Semaan.

Semaan had written to Clements to tell him he was leaving the Democratic Party because of "people like Ruben Bonilla." Semaan also said he was tired of Bonilla telling the president and the governor whom to appoint to vacant judgeships.

Bonilla had recently called on Clements to appoint Mexican-Americans to two recently vacated district judgeships here.

Clements replied in the letter. "I enjoyed hearing from you and am in total agreement with you regarding Ruben Bonilla. Welcome to the club! I have told Ruben to his face to calm down and stay out of business. He's a gnat. I agree 100 percent with you in this matter and appreciate your taking the time to express your views to me."

The letter was written on governor's office stationery and signed by Clements.

"The letter comes as no surprise," Bonilla said Thursday by phone from Harlingen.

"I would rather be a gnat who occasionally takes a stand against the governor's policies than a buffoon in public office. I would rather be a gnat who fights the governor's callousness for the Hispanic community than a man who has a knack for nothing," added Bonilla.

"I am not offended, but I am somewhat surprised that the state's chief executive officer would attack a Hispanic organization and its leader."

"Clements' pattern is consistently anti-Hispanic, anti-minority. He now has to resort to name calling that is typical of his negative leadership," continued the LULAC president.

"I leave it to the Hispanic community to determine its response to the governor by its actions in the next election. I feel I properly represent Hispanic sentiment in this state. The governor does not."

Clements spokesman Jon Ford said in Austin that he knew nothing about the Nov. 5 letter. Clements was not available for comment.

Clements has made several trips to newly oil-rich Mexico to improve relations.

"The governor has shown a great interest in Mexico's oil, but rejects its people," charged Bonilla.

Bonilla said that Clements has reminded him in personal meetings that Bonilla and a vast majority of other Mexican-Americans voted in 1978 for Democratic gubernatorial candidate John Hill.

"He has told me never to expect any help from the governor's office," said Bonilla.
