

Area oil companies expecting union strike

From staff and wire reports

Spokesmen for local oil companies said this morning they will not be affected by a planned strike by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (OCAW), although other companies in the area face the possibility of several hundred workers joining the move.

The copolymer plant in Borger, a branch of the Phillips Petroleum Company, has approximately 400 workers who belong to OCAW. They informed management Monday about the planned strike, which is scheduled to begin at the end of Tuesday's workday.

There are approximately 30 Phillips workers in Pampa who could be affected by the strike, but no one was available for comment at the Pampa office.

Norm Berkley, a spokesman for Phillips in Borger, said the workers did not specifically say if they would go on strike.

"It looks like they will, but they didn't say for sure," Berkley said.

He added that Phillips will only be affected in a minor way because supervisors could be put on the job to replace the striking workers.

In Pampa, companies that could be affected, but which had no one available for comment, were Amoco, Mobil, Atlantic Richfield and Diamond Shamrock. The local branch of Gulf is non-union and a Texaco spokesman said only Amarillo, with its plants, will be affected.

Spokesmen for the 60,000 refinery workers, a third of which work in the Gulf Coast region, have said they are ready for a long, "hard-fought" strike. They are striking because they cannot reach an agreement in a wage and benefits dispute with the 100 oil companies they call "the richest and most powerful industry in the world." OCAW president Robert Goss set a 4 p.m. deadline in Denver Monday for the new contract to be reached.

Oil companies across the nation are hopeful a new agreement will be reached by the deadline. But they said supervisors can keep the highly automated refineries going indefinitely, with no noticeable impact on U.S. fuel supplies.

The strike is the first nationwide walkout called by the OCAW union since 1969. Borger workers in Phillips went on strike last year for five months over local issues.

Goss said Monday his 411 locals were settling in for a "hard-fought confrontation" that could last for months. The 1969 strike lasted up to three months for some companies.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said the federal government was watching the talks closely and the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service "will be available to help the parties if they need it."

Neither side had asked for mediation Monday, the last day to reach agreement under a wage-benefits reopener clause contained in the current contract.

The union, whose members currently receive an average $9.55 per hour, last week rejected a nine percent offer from Gulf Oil Corp. — traditionally the industry's pace-setter.

It said wages would not be discussed until workers were given full health-care benefits, including dental care and prescription drugs, for the second year of its two-year contract with the industry.

Gulf and other companies offered to increase payments toward health-insurance benefits.

Carl Meyerdirk, Chicago-based manager of media services for Standard Oil of Indiana, said the company will "continue to operate with supervisory personnel."

"Refineries are highly automated today and I would think there would be no difference running with supervisory personnel," he said.

City considers tax move

City Commissioners met in executive session this morning to discuss the latest developments in the formation of the Gray County tax appraisal district board of directors with the city attorney.

According to an informed source, the commissioners will consider their next move in the Grandview-Hopkins declaratory judgment case against County Clerk Wanda Carter in which the city and the Pampa Independent School District intervened.

The suit was filed in October in order to determine the validity of a seven-man tax appraisal board resolution smaller taxing entities of the county had passed earlier in the month.

Carter had claimed the resolutions were not "timely filed." She had been told, she said, by the School Tax Assessment Practices Board in Austin that the resolutions using a three-fourths majority rule must be submitted before Oct. 1 before they are valid.

The taxing entities held a combined meeting Oct. 1, where several of the entities voted for a seven-man board. The resolutions were not turned in to Carter, however, until Oct. 12.

The most recent developments show Grandview-Hopkins has dismissed the suit against the county clerk. Their attorney George Whittenburg of the Whittenburg law firm in Amarillo confirmed the fact today.

"Under the plan as adopted by Grandview-Hopkins and the others," Whittenburg said, "Carter is not required to do anything."

The suit is in limbo, he added, until the City of Pampa and the Pampa Independent School District — who have intervened in the case — decide what to do.

Should these entities decide to continue in the suit against Grandview-Hopkins, the attorney said, it will be up to the courts to decide.

The smaller entities intend to go ahead with organization of the seven-man board, Whittenburg said. They are scheduled to meet Jan. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the Gray County Court Room.

In a related case in Travis County — which contains Austin, District Judge Charles Mathews has ruled the newly-created county wide central tax appraisal board can organize, but cannot take any action until the law suit is settled.

Their suit is similar to Gray County's, except that the resolutions of the smaller entities call for an eight-man board instead of a seven-man.

The new county tax appraisal board is the result of Senate Bill 621 directed at centralizing appraisals for all the taxing bodies in the county.

During the regular meeting of the city commission, three men were approved as members of the traffic commission. Tom Kelly, resident engineer for the Texas State Highway Department; W. C. Bass, manager of Dunlap's Department Store and Claude Wilson, a retiree were accepted for a two-year term on the traffic commission.

In other business, commissioners approved a 25 cent increase in fares for the Pampa Yellow Cab Company and the bids for the rescue tool for the fire department were rejected. It was decided that new specifications are to be written. New bids for the tool will be opened in the Feb. 12 meeting of the commission. City Manager Mack Wofford said.

New precinct lines drawn for election

By MELANIE MILLER

Of The Pampa News

It has been years in the making, but this election year, Gray County voters, especially those in Pampa, will finally cast their ballots within new precinct lines drawn up in 1978.

The forced redistricting arose out of a civil suit filed by Ralph Prock against the Gray County Commissioner's court at that time, which included Judge Don Cain and commissioners Joe Clarke, J.O. McCracken, Ted Simmons and Don Hinton.

Prock's suit contended that 20 percent of the county's total population was represented by three of the commissioners and 80 percent was represented by one commissioner. The latter was Precinct 2, which included Pampa at that time.

District 31 Judge Grainger McIlhenny issued a court order that the county had to be redistricted by August 31, 1978. Commissioners did so, somewhat reluctantly on the day of the deadline. New boundaries were set up along lines that divided Pampa into four commissioner's precincts, but existing county precinct lines were left the same.

Each of the four divisions in Pampa is connected with one of the four precincts in the county by a strip of land 30 feet wide. The Texas Supreme Court ruled several years ago that precinct lines must be "contiguous or not separated" by other precinct lines.

Because of the redistricting and the way it has shifted voter's precincts in the city, county officials are worried about confusion that has arisen from new precinct lines and redesignated precinct numbers on voter registration cards.

County officials were at first worried about the expense involved in changing the precincts, especially the addition of voting boxes. However, County Judge Carl Kennedy said only one box will have to be added and the total cost of the change will be minimal.

"Our only cost is coming from having to redesignate precinct numbers on registration cards," Kennedy said. "But there is going to be a lot of confusion from voters who vote in the wrong precinct. They're just going to have to learn what precinct they're in now."

He added that changing commissioner's precincts has naturally affected voter's precincts.

There are four new commissioner's precincts in Pampa, Kennedy explained. "At least two voter's precincts were then placed in each commissioner's precincts."

Those commissioner's precincts are set up on a basis of population. Precinct 1, which includes the northwest section of Pampa, has approximately 7806 voters. Precinct 2 (formerly just the city), which includes the southeast section of Pampa, has 8052 voters. Precinct 3, which includes the southwest portion of Pampa, has about 7922 voters; and Precinct 4, which includes the northeast section of Pampa, has approximately 7829 voters.

Within these precincts are the county voter's precincts and there are 14 in Gray County. Nine of these are in Pampa.

Khomeni goes into seclusion as turmoil mounts

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeni has decided to go into seclusion at the end of the week, closing his doors to all visitors for 15 days amid mounting communal violence and tension.

The office of the 79-year-old leader of the Iranian revolution said he was very tired and beginning Saturday would rest at his home in Qom, the Shiite Muslim holy city 100 miles south of Tehran.

The announcement came after a day of demonstrations and bloody clashes between religious and ethnic factions in nearly half a dozen cities. There were demonstrations by tens of thousands of Turkish-speaking Azerbaijanis in Tabriz, mounting tension in Sanandaj, the capital of Kurdistan, another killing in the Persian Gulf town of Bandar Lengeh, where between 41 and 56 people were killed during the weekend, and 11 persons reported killed elsewhere. The revolutionary prosecutor's office warned against "counter-revolutionary" demonstrations in Qom on Wednesday, a Shiite holy day.

At the U.N. headquarters in New York, U.S. Ambassador Donald McHenry expressed determination to seek sanctions against Iran in line with a Dec. 31 resolution committing the Security Council to action if the hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran were not released by Jan. 7.

The deadline passed and the hostages were spending their 66th day in captivity today. U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, reporting on his recent visit to Iran, told the Security Council council sanctions would stiffen the resistance of the students occupying the embassy to freeing their prisoners, but McHenry said "It is necessary for the international community to clearly express its view on the continued defiance of the council by Iran."

However, there was no indication when a resolution calling for sanctions would be submitted to the council. There was also speculation that the Soviet Union would veto the resolution in retaliation for the punitive measures taken against it by the U.S. government because of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

The students have said repeatedly they would not release the hostages until Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was returned to Iran to stand trial for mass murder and corruption.

The demonstrators Monday in Tabriz, the capital of Azerbaijan, set fire to the offices of Khomeni's revolutionary committee in the city because the committee had been arresting supporters of Ayatollah Mohammad Kazem Shariat-Madari, Iran's second-ranking religious leader. He is the religious leader of the Azerbaijanis and with them opposes Iran's new Islamic constitution because it vests supreme power in Khomeni for life and ignores the demands of the various ethnic minorities for autonomous home rule.

Western reporters were expelled from Tabriz, but reports reaching Tehran said Shariat-Madari's supporters were patrolling the streets because four of his adherents had been killed since Friday.

The reports also said 400 buses were being assembled to bring supporters of Shariat-Madari to Qom, the home of both him and Khomeni, for demonstrations on Wednesday.

House to open hearings on Carter's grain plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's $2.25 billion program to buy up American grain once destined for the Soviet Union will be closely scrutinized by Congress, perhaps before the program gets off the ground.

The House Agriculture Committee will open hearings on the program Jan. 29, said Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., the committee chairman.

He said his panel will conduct a "full, detailed review" of the program, announced Monday by Vice President Walter F. Mondale to help protect farmers from the severe declines in market prices that could come with having so much grain go unsold.

President Carter announced Friday that he was suspending the sale of about 14 million tons of grain the Soviet Union had contracted to buy. The move is part of the administration's retaliation against the Russians for their military intervention in Afghanistan.

Mondale said the government's massive purchase program was ordered by the president to help protect farmers from price drops if the grains were suddenly dumped on the market.

Mondale told a news conference the Agriculture Department will buy about 10 million metric tons of corn and 3.7 million tons of wheat plus lesser amounts of other grains from 22 exporting companies involved in sales to the Soviets.

That represents the difference between the roughly 21.6 million tons the Soviet Union has contracted to buy and 8 million tons officials say will be allowed to go to Russia under a long-term agreement.

The purchase program, Mondale said, "is not without cost to ourselves."

"American farmers are just as willing as other Americans to carry their share of the burden — but they must not be forced to carry an extra share just because they are farmers."

He added, however, that the program is not intended "to guarantee profits."

The grain will be stored under the government's regular reserve program, although the mechanics of the actual stockpiling are still being worked out. Grain from the stockpile will eventually be released onto the market slowly.

IDLE ELEVATORS were reported all across the nation today as grain buyers called a halt to trade. Elevator operator, Larry Miller, left, operator of the Farmers Cooperative Elevator at Mount Hope, Kan., discusses the situation with farmers John Beagley and Duane Rogers. Farmers who wanted to sell their grain Monday and today have been told to come back Wednesday when grain markets reopen. (AP Laserphoto)

Grain buyers take 'wait and see' position: elevators down

WICHITA (AP) — It was going to be market day for grain farmer Orval Thiessen. But no one was buying.

"I think if I could choose now, I would have sold my wheat last week," the Peabody, Kan., farmer said Monday after he was turned away by several country elevators.

"I really should have sold it during harvest," he added.

Last week, the market was sluggish. On Monday, there was no market.

Thiessen was one of hundreds of farmers holding grain who found themselves in a fix — the major grain markets were closed and country elevators weren't buying.

Elevator managers cited the suspension of grain futures trading and market uncertainty created by President Carter's decision to cut off grain sales to the Soviet Union as a signal of U.S. concern over Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Carter's action affected 17 million tons of grain worth $2 billion.

Most elevator managers said they expect lower prices when trading resumes Wednesday. Richard Partington, manager of an elevator near Andale, Kan., said "it's just a matter of how much lower."

A dozen farmers called the Elbing, Kan., Grain Co. elevator Monday, looking for a bid on their stored wheat. But Ed Andres, elevator manager, turned them away.

"I told them we weren't buying today and they'd just have to wait until Wednesday" when the grain markets reopen, he said. "Some weren't too happy."

Far-Mar-Co's huge elevator complex near Hutchinson wasn't buying grain because "there's just no place to sell it," said Gerold Peterson, a grain merchandiser.

"We don't know what the true market price is," he added.

Grain prices tumbled on foreign exchanges on Monday. However, the Carter administration later said it would spend $2.25 billion to buy the U.S. grain ordered by the Soviets but embargoed by Carter's order.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said the action should settle commodity markets, but some experts worried about the long-term effect of large government grain holdings.

The embargo came at a bad time for some farmers who had stored their grain, hoping to sell it after the first of the year to pay income taxes or bank notes. Many were worried by falling prices last week and delayed sales, hoping the price would inch up this week.

Galen Harper, a wheat farmer in Scott County, hadn't sold any of his summer wheat crop.

Authorities approve nation's first test-tube baby project

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Virginia health authorities gave approval today for the nation's first test-tube baby project at Eastern Virginia Medical School.

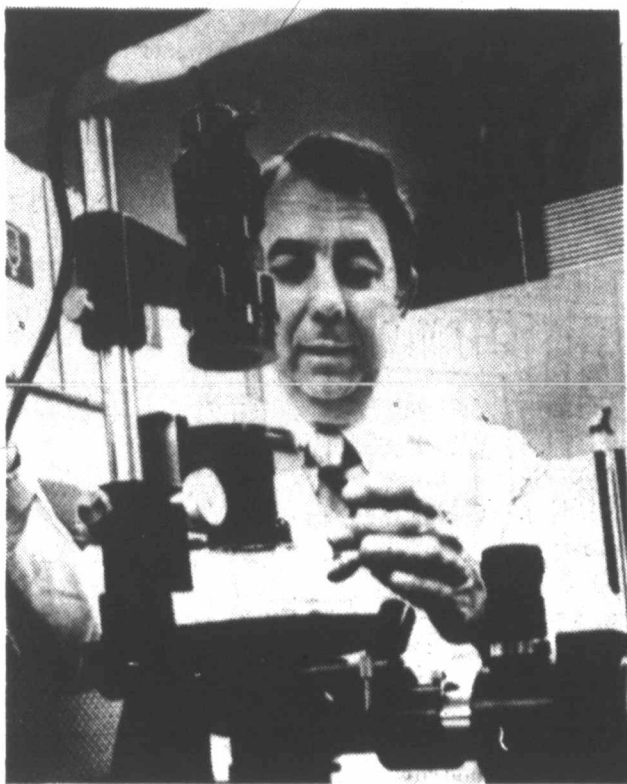

A spokesman in the office of state Health Commissioner Dr. James Kenley said Kenley had notified school authorities of his sanction for the $25,000 laboratory at Norfolk General Hospital.

Kenley's approval was necessary under Virginia's Certificate of Need law before the laboratory could be put into operation.

Kenley himself was not available for comment. Officials at Eastern Virginia Medical School and Hospital had said they were confident the health commissioner would approve the project, which is opposed by right-to-life organizations.

The medical school planned a news conference later in the day, with tours of the facilities where doctors would recover, fertilize and re-implant eggs from infertile women.

Court action by right-to-life groups appears almost certain now that the go-ahead has been given by the health commissioner.

Governor bans nuclear wastes

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has called for a ban on shipments of radioactive wastes to Pelican Island and action to force Todd Shipyards to remove any waste stored at the site for more than a year.

"This is an absolutely deplorable situation and one which must be rectified immediately," Clements said in a letter Monday to Dr. Robert Bernstein, state commissioner of health.

Clements said he has learned Todd has an estimated 11,000 drums of nuclear waste, although its State Health Department license limits it to 2,000 drums. He said the wastes included about 345,000 gallons of cooling water from a Sacramento, Calif., nuclear reactor and cooling water from an Arkansas reactor.

He said some drums have been in storage for several years although the license prohibits storage for more than a year. And he said Todd had shipped no nuclear waste out of Texas for permanent storage for at least two years.

Clements said Todd management officials admitted to a member of his staff that the temporary storage operation was in violation of its license from the health department.

In effect, the Todd Shipyards facility has become a quasi-permanent storage site in violation of their license and state law, Clements said.

Bernstein said the health department told Todd as far back as October to get rid of materials it had stored for more than a year "but they haven't done much about it."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Scaled down government

Good news. For the first time in 30 years tax money is going into state and local government at a smaller rate. A recent Rand Corporation report indicates that since 1975 the fraction of the gross national product consumed by local and state bureaucracies has decreased. This, according to the think tank, is due to national epidemic of state-imposed fiscal controls — a brushfire sparked by public indignation over increased taxation and governmental waste.

Rand found that half of all states have imposed some sort of limit on local or state taxes. 16 have adopted their controls since 1975. Tax limitation is not confined to any particular kind of state. Urban states and rural ones have enacted such legislation. States with traditionally high taxes (Alaska) have passed such laws, as well as ones with historically low tax levels (Indiana). The movement seems to reflect a national mood of voter disapproval of bond issues and even the ousting of free-spending incumbents from long-held public offices.

The tax revolt, as Rand sees it, may have been ignited by the public perception that people are not getting their money's worth for the taxes they pay. By 1978, seven out of 10 people felt that way. This change is due to more than the increased tax load.

Over the last 20 years there has been a shift away from government spending for programs such as road construction and maintenance to new spending plans that aid specific groups rather than the general taxpayers themselves.

Exemplifying this is the expansion of health and welfare spending. Simultaneously, there has been an increase in the number of higher-paid public employees and a decrease in the number of lower-paid public employees and a decrease in the number of lower-paid government workers, the ones usually doing the busy work.

In the past five years prior to the passage of Prop. 13 City of Los Angeles spending increased $400 million, yet services did not increase. Rand Corporation researchers found the number of police officers, firefighters, sanitation and street maintenance workers hardly changed. What increased was the number of employees of "overhead" agencies such as the offices of the mayor, city council, city attorney and controller. So what the taxpayers received for $400 million was more overhead, something to be grateful for — if you are part of the overhead.

The inflation rate has exacerbated the situation, pushing people into higher tax brackets. Coupling higher tax brackets with a decrease in services has created a public discontent that Rand predicts will result in much more than a fleeting expression of protest. The change in public mood could, the think tank speculates, be the beginning of a new era of scaled-down government.

We hope the prediction is correct that American taxpayers have finally wised up, and this will result in "scaled-down government." But it must always be remembered that politicians with something-for-nothing promises got us into the current economic mess. As long as they are around to tempt the public, the problem will still be only a voting box away.

No supply for no demand

On a lighter note, and just to show that not all the news out of the area is of oil, politics and revolutions. Saudi Arabians are about to be introduced to the wonders of the Western department store.

A consortium of Saudi businessmen intends to build a replica of the famed Harrods of London at an as yet undisclosed location in the desert kingdom. As outlined in a recent issue of Saudi Report, an official newsletter, Harrods II will be about half the scale of the original and will cost an estimated $31.5 million — unlikely to be missed considering the country's oil-generated income of more than $100 million per day.

The look and atmosphere of the London establishment will be faithfully duplicated, but some concessions will be made to special Saudi circumstances. Air conditioning, unnecessary in misty Britain, will be a must and in conformance with Koranic precepts the entire sales force will be male. Also, the store will carry nothing in the winter sports line.

Don't blame the oil companies

by JOHN B. RAE

Mr. Rae is Professor of the History of Technology, Emeritus, Harvey Mudd College, Claremont, California, and a past president of the Society of the History of Technology.

There is something very satisfying about finding a demon to blame when things are going wrong. It not only relieves us of any responsibility in the matter, because obviously the trouble is all the fault of the wicked demon, it also relieves us of the task of tackling the problem, finding out what is really causing it, and determining what has to be done to solve it. This is comforting when the problem is complicated and any solution is going to be difficult and uncomfortable. The catch to this attitude is that denouncing and even exorcising the demon does not remove the problem, and we are likely to find ourselves with the wrong solution because we attacked the wrong cause.

This is precisely where we are with our oil situation. Americans have enjoyed ample and cheap supplies of petroleum for 100 years. Those days have gone forever, but most of us refuse to believe it, primarily because we don't want to. Somebody has to be to blame because the only easily accessible oil fields left in the world happen to be outside the United States, under the control of governments who keep raising their prices.

The scapegoat, as we all know, is something called "Big Oil," or simply "The Oil companies." This is the demon that in some manner not clearly specified conspires to hold enormous quantities of oil from the market in order to force up prices, a notable feat if true in view of the fact that in the United States oil prices have been strictly controlled for several years. The oil is: (1) stored in abandoned gas stations (these stations must have an enormous capacity); (2) secretly shipped to Mexico (Pemex, the Mexican government oil monopoly, might have been expected to object to somebody else's oil entering the country like this); (3) kept in tankers offshore (an extremely expensive method of storing oil).

These suspicions are of course mindless nonsense, yet it is an appalling fact that a majority of Americans accept them as true, including many who might be expected to look at the problem with some degree of rationality: college professors, clergymen, radio and television commentators, news analysts.

The United States now imports half of its oil—some 20 million barrels a day. The bulk of this oil is absolutely controlled by the OPEC cartel, where members set prices and limit production. American oil companies have very little to say about it. The United States government might—OPEC countries have an embarrassingly adequate excuse for raising their prices in that world oil prices are quoted in dollars and the value of the dollar, as we all know, has been steadily deteriorating.

Our domestic sources of oil are depleted, except for the North Slope field, and that is good for about 1.5 million barrels a day for the next 25 years. There is more oil to be found—nobody really knows how much—but it will be in difficult and expensive places to drill, like the Arctic or the Bering Sea, or under the overthrust belt of the Rocky Mountains. The older fields may be made to yield more by secondary or tertiary recovery methods. There is oil to be had from shale and the conversion of coal. They all have one thing in common; the price tag will come high.

There is an oil shortage, it is not going to go away, there is no quick or easy solution, and the oil companies did not create it. On the contrary, they have tried vainly for years to warn us that it was coming. Nor did they exploit the situation—that was hardly possible in the United States, where oil and gas prices have been subject to an incredibly complex and unintelligent system of controls so that, for instance, imports of foreign oil have been subsidized by domestic producers. (This is called "entitlements.")

It is very regrettable that recent oil company earnings statements received the sensational publicity they did, with less than adequate consideration of the qualifying factors: that most of the profits came from abroad, that the period used for comparison was one of very low earnings, that the oil industry's profit level over time has been close to the average for all American industry, and above all that much of the profit represents oil in storage—inventory—that is now worth more than it cost originally but will have to be replaced at still higher cost.

One oil company executive summed it up for me: "If I have a barrel of oil that cost me five dollars and I have to pay 10 dollars to replace it, I have to get ten dollars for it."

What are the alternatives? Price controls? These have never in all history failed to guarantee shortages. Break up the oil companies? All that would be achieved would be lower efficiency, higher costs, and waste of resources. The big oil companies cooperate when it is to their advantage, as in the North Slope field, where drilling is "unitized" so as to avoid the needless waste of oil that occurred on Signal Hill in Long Beach for instance. But when it comes to selling the product, they compete energetically.

Have the government take over all or part of the oil business? Let's assume, charitably, that the government could do it as expertly as the privately-owned oil companies. It still could neither create oil nor reduce the cost of production, because cost is a measure of the resources in labor and materials that have to be employed to get the job done. The government could keep the price to the consumer down, because it does not have to show a profit, and this would undoubtedly have political appeal. But if price does not cover cost, the difference has to be made up somehow, and with governments "somehow" means through taxation. So we will pay the higher costs of oil anyway, either directly as consumers or indirectly as taxpayers.

All these options simply evade the critical issue. Regardless of what new discoveries may be made, oil is going to become scarcer and more expensive—which is why many oil companies are moving into other energy fields.

As a nation we need to free ourselves from dependence on imported oil, on both economic and security grounds, and the only way to do it is to face the real costs of getting along with less petroleum and switching to substitutes. The worst possible course we can take is to delude ourselves into believing that our oil shortage is an illusion created by "Big Oil" for its own nefarious purposes. That way lies refusal to conserve, refusal to accept the cost of developing alternative fuels, continuing balance-of-payment deficits, dependence on the dubious goodwill of unstable Middle East regimes, and in the end economic disaster.

Letters

The Pampa Baptist Temple will soon be gone! Yes, that's right. Our time is very short. Our stay here on this earth is almost over. As the Bible says in Genesis chapter five, there was a man named Enoch who "walked with God; and he was not: for God took him"; the same thing will happen to all who have been truly "born again".

First, Jesus himself will descend from heaven with a shout. Next there will be voices of archangels in the air. Then there will be the sound of the trumpet of God ringing throughout the universe. At that very second, "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye", the graves of all true Christians in all ages past, will open and their bodies will come forth to be united with their spirits and souls. As this takes place, all living truly saved Christians will be physically changed so that "this mortal will put on immortality".

After such a grand introduction and the eternal changes from earthly bodies to heavenly bodies have been completed, all who know Jesus as their Personal Savior will rise from this earth to meet Him in the air. From that moment on, as we first see Him face to face, we will be with the One that bought our salvation with His own blood. With Him in His glory; with Him as He reigns as King of Kings and Lord of Lords; and with Him as joint-heirs to all of heaven.

Yet not all will rejoice at the rapture of the Church. Those that have never accepted Jesus as their Savior and Lord and Master of their lives will be left for seven years of the worst economic crash this world has ever known. This "Tribulation Period" will make the "Great Depression" look like a banquet. People will cry out just wishing that they could die. As this time of great trouble comes to a close and that had never repented of their sins and had them washed in the blood of Jesus will be cast into the Lake of Fire that will burn for all eternity. Don't wait! Once the rapture takes place you cannot be saved. You have no hope! Don't miss heaven!

Congress you're next

by Paul Harvey

Let's not look for Reds under the bed every time we imagine there is a conspiracy to destroy our country from within.

Such paranoia discredits our country's defenders.

It is the purest and most innocent coincidence that the same people who brought down Richard Nixon and effectively neutered our Executive Branch of government now have their teeth in the trousers of Warren Burger and are with innuendo and hearsay-discrediting the U.S. Supreme Court.

Look out Congress—you're next! Two books were published in 1979—each equally revealing.

One was called "The Terrors of Justice" in which its author, Maurice Stans, reveals "the untruths" about Watergate. The other book is called "The Brethren" in which its authors, Bob Woodward and Scott Armstrong, have compiled clerk-level gossip and jabs from jealous justices to discredit the Supreme Court.

Guess which of the two books got prime-time coverage on TV? Which of the two expose books got 20 minutes of "60 Minutes"?

Which of the two books is being serialized by newspapers nationwide?

Again, now, let's not imagine that there is some kind of international or internal conspiracy going on in our country wherein major segments of the media lend themselves to the destruction of American institutions by propaganda.

It's just that there are always jackals yapping at the heels of a lion, little foxes gnawing away at the vine.

We put men on pedestals so that we can throw rocks at them.

Nor is God spared. Time magazine led a chorus of jeers in 1965, with a blazing front cover headline: GOD IS DEAD.

The most tempting target for the discreditors—after God—is our country and its institutions.

Watergate was partly a personal vendetta against a President who dared to criticize the media. Mostly, however, it was an exciting witch hunt in which traditional spoils-system politics-as-usual was made to appear sinister, sordid and sinful.

The cost—in ruined reputations and damaged lives and anxiety for the innocent—was of little or no concern to the media's mercenary hit men.

The cost—in open disdain for our White House and diminished public respect for our form of government—mattered not at all to the perpetrators of the purge.

Here we go again—with a volume that will be hashed and rehashed and reviewed and re-reviewed and promoted until every American—especially those who don't bother to read it—will imagine that from the smoke there must be fire.

Until the impression will be left with most Americans that the Supreme Court is corrupt.

There is nothing in the book that's foolish enough to say that—but that is its juicy implication.

Look out, Congress: on the heterological hit list you're next!

(c) 1979, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

First class fannies

Despite a White House prohibition of first-class air travel by federal employees, bureaucrats may still enjoy luxury service at the taxpayers' expense—if their rump is big enough.

According to federal regulations, a federal employee may travel first class if he has a note from his doctor stating that the employee's derriere is too wide to fit comfortably in the economy seats of a commercial airliner. First class seats are two to four inches wider than those in economy.

Now we know why the government says there is no fat to trim from the economy. They're all in first class!

His but mostly hers

Speaking of the White House, Rosalynn Carter's personal staff is now the largest in presidential history—costing the taxpayers $650,000 a year. According to Don Lambro of the UPI, Mrs. Carter now has a full-time staff of 21 persons to plan her travels and to "promote the Carter image."

The First Lady's personal staff includes four press secretaries, three social secretaries, three personal assistants, two project directors, two staff directors, schedule and advance assistants and a researcher. Mrs. Carter also has two separate staffs in charge of correspondence and White House entertaining.

Betty Ford had a personal staff of 12. Mrs. Carter's staff, however, more nearly equals that of Vice President Mondale's, who has 26. The salaries of Mrs. Carter's aides are among the highest in the government. Her chief of staff is paid $86,000, the same as presidential advisors Zbigniew Brzezinski and Hamilton Jordan. HE said he'd cut the size of the White House staff. Nobody asked HER.

Berry's World

DEAR ABBY

Grandma baffled by Abby's answer

DEAR ABBY: I am an avid reader of your column, and feel that you do much to help our teenagers. However, in a recent column you stated that a girl can become pregnant without "going all the way." You even printed a letter from a girl who claimed she was a virgin when she was married, but she was seven months pregnant! How can this be? A pregnant virgin? You can't be serious.

I am a 55-year-old grandmother, and I have no idea how a girl can be pregnant and still be a virgin.

If your statement baffles me, a fairly sophisticated adult woman who has been through it all, you can imagine how puzzled your teenager readers must be. I think you owe us an explanation.

DEAR S.U.D.: The legal definition of sexual intercourse is penetration of the female organ by the male organ. However, in order for a woman to be impregnated, all that is necessary is for the sperm of the male to meet the ovum of the female. This can be accomplished without actual penetration.

It is rare, but it is a matter of medical record that it has indeed occurred.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle something, once and for all? Do you have to give a wedding gift if you are invited to the reception but not to the wedding?

And if you have already spent $20 for a shower gift, are you expected to give a wedding gift too?

My mother says it's an unwritten law that you are supposed to give a gift that costs about as much as the hostess has spent to entertain you. For example: If it costs her, say, $6 to feed you at a bridal shower, you should spend that amount for a gift. And if it costs about $25 to entertain you at the reception, you should spend that amount for a wedding present. The shower gift, Mom says, has nothing to do with the wedding gift.

CONFUSED IN R.I.

DEAR CONFUSED: No one has to give a gift. A gift is something one voluntarily gives to show friendship, affection, appreciation, support, etc.

However, if a guest is invited to the wedding but not to the reception, it is not mandatory but it is proper and gracious to send a gift.

If a guest is invited to the reception, I think a gift is certainly in order.

ABBY: Regarding the letter signed FEEDING PIGS IN ILLINOIS, I would like to correct a misconception: Pigs do eat frequently, but they never eat more than they need to satisfy their hunger.

A farmer can put out enough food for several days without having to be concerned that the pigs will overeat. They never do.

I know this is true because I was born and brought up on a farm in Illinois.

FARMER

DEAR FARMER: If what you say is true, people who overeat would be better off if they ate like pigs! Today must be the day for defending animals. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A woman who suffered repeated batterings by her husband wrote to tell how she managed to stop his uncontrollable violence. She describes such violence as "animal behavior." This is NOT animal behavior; it is human sadism.

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

Turn bad weather into fun

By Louise Pierce

Any small annoyance in our older lives can be the cause of discomfort, of shouting at our mates, even of one of us leaving home for a little while to let our tempers cool down.

Take the weather — and this time of year, I wish you would. Several older couples have told me that bad weather gets on their nerves so much that they are grumpy and pick on each other until they can't stand being together. One leaves the house to seek other companionship for an evening or a day or longer.

When they do that, they run the risk of preferring some other place. And no couple married over a quarter century should love any setting more than home, sweet home. Nothing, most of all the weather, should ever be the cause of a husband and wife going their separate ways.

As we all know, we can't change the weather unless we change location. It's a part of our lives that we have to endure as happily as possible. So what can we do to lessen our irritation at winter's ice or summer's sizzle?

We can (1) ignore it, (2) adjust to it or (3) learn to like it.

Otis and I once ignored a snow storm. We had one of our most pleasurable times when we painted the attic during a three-day blizzard.

We couldn't leave the house and we'd read every printed piece we had. The TV worked only spasmodically. Even conversation sort of ran out for the first time ever.

Then we took stock of what we might do to pretend there was no snow outside. We owned a big brick home with an ample second story that had been sheet-rocked but never taped or painted. Otis looked upward and asked, "Is this the time to —?" And I finished his sentence with "—to paint the attic?" Yes!

We pulled down the disappearing stairway and climbed the creaking steps. It looked like a monumental task, but we had nothing else to do that day. We'd start it, we said, and finish it during some other storm. As it turned out, the blizzard continued long enough for us to finish the job.

We had a radio, so we sang and danced as we taped and painted. We stopped every hour to admire our splendid work. We planned the rooms we'd have up there and the beautiful stairway that would lead up from the living room.

We were so tired at night that we slept soundly.

We ate heartily and felt fine. We never worked on the attic again because we sold that house. But we ignored the weather those three days.

Some people say they can't adjust to whatever weather comes along. If you can do that, you are blessed with a marvelous disposition and you deserve to pat your own back.

We all adjusted in the days before air conditioning and central heating. We hugged the stove in winter and mopped our brows in summer. We complained a lot. But we adjusted.

Then you may be the hardy type who can learn to like severe weather. Maybe you can take the grandchildren sledding in winter and swimming in summer, even jumping into the water with them. If you can enjoy the weather, no matter how hot or cold it is, you will help yourselves and others. Complaining is contagious.

DEAR LOUISE: We've been married 30 years but I only see my husband in spring and fall. When bad weather hits, either hot or cold, he says he can't work outside and he won't sit around the house with me. He takes out for a river bank in hot weather and goes to a neighbor's basement to play cards in the winter. I don't mind him being gone because he'd scream about the weather if he was home. But I don't like sitting by myself either. I told him I might move in with two old maid cousins in another town. But I don't think he heard me because he was hurrying out the door so fast. If you were in my shoes, would you go or stay? M.V.

DEAR M.V.: If I were in your shoes, I'd wear them to tag right after my husband. Since you've stayed married this long, you must still love each other and get edgy only in bad weather.

A shady river bank can be delightful on a hot day — and fishing together can be so enjoyable that you'll want to do it often.

In the winter time, you might go to your neighbor's basement with your husband and enlist the neighbor's wife, plus other nearby wives, to have a pot-luck supper together. It could be so much fun that you'd repeat the pleasure.

Above all, don't let weather drive you from your loved-and-loving spouse. Happiness is too important to be affected by an over-abundance of snow or sunshine.

Write problems to DEAR LOUISE, Box 616, Pampa, Texas 79065.

DR. LAMB

By Laurence Lamb, M.D.

Milk substitute adds calcium

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've read in your column that older people need a quart of milk a day to insure strong bones. My husband is 57 years old and we were dairy farmers so we always liked milk and we were heavy milk drinkers. Now he's not able to drink milk or use any foods that contain it. If he does, his eyes water continuously and they feel like he has sand in them for as long as three days after using any food that has milk in it.

How can he possibly get his milk to keep his bones strong? Also is there a pill to put in the milk so that he can overcome this condition?

At one time he went to an allergist for shots every week but this was very expensive, along with the fact that after a time the shots no longer did very much for him.

DEAR READER — Usually when I talk about milk intolerance, I'm referring to the inability to break down the double sugar (lactose) found only in milk. That's because there's an absence of an enzyme in the small intestine that normally does this.

Your description of your husband's problem does not sound like this at all but rather sounds more like an allergy. I would suggest that your husband see an allergist again to see if there's anything else that can be done. Meanwhile, there are a number of milk substitutes that contain none of the milk protein. Usually if a person is allergic to milk, as opposed to having the problem with milk sugar, the allergy will be to the milk protein, not the sugar.

You might check the different milk substitutes that are available in the infant food section. Milk allergy is more common in infants and that's why those products are developed for infants. Some of these are made purely from soybean products that contain no milk at all. Others do contain lactose but the milk protein has been removed. You might wish to experiment with different ones of these to see if there is a milk substitute that he could use that would at least provide him some satisfaction and would definitely provide the calcium.

Men usually don't have as great a need for calcium supplements in the middle years as do women. Men do develop softening of the bones in the course of time if they're on a calcium deficient diet and there are other factors involved too. This usually doesn't occur until about 20 years after the time we see it occurring in women. This probably has something to do with the difference in sex hormones. A woman's sex hormones will diminish at the time of the menopause. This does not occur in men. Usually in healthy men there is no significant decrease in the level of sex hormones after the early 30s.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good And Bad.

Barrier islands may lose flood insurance funds

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND (AP) — Construction of shiny new condominiums and beach houses would stop abruptly if the federal government ceases its flood insurance program, say worried developers and town officials.

"If they were to pull flood insurance, it would be very difficult to build," city manager Kirby Lilljedahl said Monday. "I don't know of a lending institution that would grant a loan without it."

Lilljedahl and others know few details about the U.S. Interior Department's expected recommendation to halt the federally subsidized flood insurance program for barrier islands.

But the city official and other residents are worried about what they have heard from both the executive branch and a California congressman.

Rep. Philip Burton, D-Calif., has introduced legislation to halt any federal program that subsidizes building on undeveloped islands. He also wants the government to buy remaining undeveloped lands and create a barrier islands national park.

About two-thirds of the Texas coast is lined with barrier islands, strips of land dividing mainland from the ocean. Interior Department officials say most east coast barrier islands should be ineligible for flood insurance because of the risk from hurricanes and violent storm is so great.

South Padre Island Mayor Glen McGehee sees it as another attempt to halt coastal development.

"It's just another way for the environmentalists to get in the back door at us," he said. "They have tried to hurt development of the coastal area every way they could. They've got their wetlands and dunes protection and now this."

Police continue strike

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Shops are being robbed, private security firms are cashing in and well-to-do residents are considering private neighborhood patrols as this wealthy seaside city's first police strike goes into its seventh day today.

"There are a lot of paranoid people out there, especially in the wealthy neighborhoods," said Bill Wagner, owner of Presidio Security Systems, which has doubled its night patrols to meet demand.

In the Riviera section of the city, on a wooded ridge where homes valued $200,000 to $500,000 overlook the Pacific Ocean, the homeowners association planned to consider later today a proposal to hire private security guards.

Police said no increase in home burglaries has been reported so far in the week-old strike, but shop owners were hard hit as a skeleton police force of nine officers patrolled a city of 75,000 people on Monday. The normal complement is 25.

"We still have an abbreviated staff of the same dying old men," Police Chief James Glavis said, noting that he and all lieutenants and captains are working 12- and 14-hour shifts.

Glavis said public security was being limited to life-endangering emergencies and major crimes.

At least seven commercial burglaries, including a $50,000 jewelry theft discovered when the downtown store reopened Monday, have been attributed to the shortage of police, said police Capt. Charles Thompson.

5 killed, child abducted in Chicago shooting spree

CHICAGO (AP) — Five people were killed and a young girl was abducted Monday in three shooting incidents that appeared to be linked, police said.

Four people also were injured in the incidents on the city's North Side. The dead were identified as William Pagan, 43, Juan Jiminez, 38 and Aida Pagan, 38, all shot at a delicatessen; a woman who was shot in an apparent tavern robbery; and an armed man who confronted officers in an alley.

Authorities said 200 officers were alerted after police were summoned to Gina's Delicatessen on a robbery report and found Pagan and Jiminez dead from gunshot wounds in the head. The woman was shot to death, two people critically wounded and a 10-year-old girl abducted by bandits.

condition with a gunshot wound in the jaw.

A short time later, police said they rushed to the Lincoln Tavern, where an unidentified woman was shot to death, two people critically wounded and a 10-year-old girl abducted by bandits.

LaGrange Democrat challenges 'Killer Bee' senator's post

AUSTIN (AP) — Charging that Sen. Bill Patman is a "total outsider" who can't get things done, Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange, has announced as a candidate for the "Killer Bee" senator's job.

Wilson, 40, said Patman lost points with voters in the sprawling 18th Senatorial District when he joined the Killer Bees in halting Senate business last spring.

A Wilson-Patman race will hold more statewide interest than the run-of-the-mill legislative contest.

Besides being a Killer Bee, Patman has been the Senate's most outspoken opponent of any legislation that would raise interest rates. Patman's wife, Carrin, is a member of the Democratic National Committee. His father was the late U.S. Rep. Wright Patman, who also fought high interest rates as chairman of the House Banking Committee.

Wilson is regarded as father of the 1975 law creating the Texas Public Utility Commission. Texas Monthly put him on its "Ten Best" list of legislators and chose him as "star" of the 1975 lawmaking session.

Wilson, a rancher and businessman, abandoned what looked like a hopeless race for House speaker to run for Patman's seat in the Senate.

The two haven't been especially far apart on issues, and Wilson said he has "consistently voted against increases in the usury limit."

Style, Wilson said, "has a lot to do with" his decision to run.

Patman, shy, intense and single-minded, is less than popular in the clubby Senate.

Wilson said this has made Patman ineffective in representing the district, which extends from Bell County (Temple) in North Central Texas to Jackson County on the Gulf Coast.

"You don't have to be a good old boy, but neither can you be a total outsider," Wilson said.

He said pollster Lance Tarrance found that sentiment in the district ran two-to-one against the Killer Bees, who hid out and paralyzed the Senate for five days last spring. The Killer Bee senators protested procedural changes they regarded as a stacking of the deck in favor of a presidential primary bill favored by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Patman said he intends to run for re-election and questioned the accuracy of the Tarrance poll, saying questions about the Killer Bees "weren't phrased in a way to elicit a positive answer."

"Overwhelmingly, when people find out what the issues were and what the actions were, they support the action" of the Killer Bees, Patman said.

Spanish-speaking educator Carter's ambassador choice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. Julian Nava, a Spanish-speaking educator who once headed the Los Angeles City School Board, is President Carter's choice as the next U.S. ambassador to Mexico.

In today's editions of the Los Angeles Times, an Administration source says that Carter already has picked Nava for the post but the announcement will "not be real soon."

The nomination requires Senate approval, plus routine security and conflict-of-interest checks.

The 52-year-old Nava would be the first Mexican-American to serve in the post. Currently he is assistant to the president of California State University, Northridge. He is a former member of the Los Angeles school board, and served as its president.

Witches trial jury selection in 2nd day

PLAINVIEW (AP) — Jury selection in the twice-delayed murder trial of two self-professed witches charged with the Halloween 1977 slaying of a 15-year-old girl entered its second day today.

Defendants Loy Dean and Louise Stone are accused of the shotgun slaying of Roxanne Casas of Dimmitt. However, the defendants claim they never heard the shots fired at a pickup in which the teenager and three friends were riding.

Tensions surrounding the case in that small Panhandle town prompted a state district judge to move the trial to Plainview, 43 miles away.

Only 61 persons on a list of 280 potential jurors appeared in court Monday. State District Judge John T. Boyd excused 21 and 40 were tentatively accepted as prospective jurors.

Boyd said he probably will not sequester the panel, which was not expected to be picked before Wednesday.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

January 9, 1980

This coming year should be a progressive one, but your gains may not be made in large leaps. Be content to move steadily ahead a step at a time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) When conversing with others today, be careful not to dominate the conversation by telling them of your achievements. Tooting your own horn doesn't become you. Travel, resources, romance, luck, possible pitfalls and career for the months ahead are all discussed in your new Astro-Graph Letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your logic and your intuition may be in conflict today, causing you to be indecisive. Rely on the facts, not hunches.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Instead of passing on hearsay information about a friend today, you'd be wiser to say nothing at all. Idle gossip could hurt your pal.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Making impulsive decisions before carefully studying all the facts and alternatives could get you in a stew today. Stall for time if in doubt.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're likely to resent it today if others try to tell you how to do your work. Bear in mind that this will also be true if you offer unsolicited suggestions to co-workers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Rather than take others at face value today, you're apt to look for hidden motives behind their words. Being too suspicious could prove offensive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Tie a string around your finger today so that you don't forget to do something you promised your mate you would do. Your mind is apt to be on other things.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) More time is likely to be spent today on creating reasons why certain tasks should be postponed than effort made to go ahead and get the jobs done.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be careful in money matters today. If any mistakes occur they're not likely to be in your favor. Count your change and get receipts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's best you say nothing rather than to find fault with members of your family today. Compliments will keep the peace, criticism will raise a ruckus.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Do not spend time foolishly today worrying about things which may never happen. Look for positives, not negatives.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Avoid a pal who always borrows small items, yet fails to return them. He or she may be looking to you as a supplier again today.

Rams find the brass ring

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defensive end Fred Dryer called it a miracle. Coach Ray Malavasi said it was the greatest day of his life. Linebacker Jack Reynolds expressed disbelief. That's how it was for the Los Angeles Rams, who will finally play in the Super Bowl.

The seventh time was the charm for the Rams, who have been a perennial contender for the Super Bowl since a string of seven straight National Football Conference West Division championships began in 1973.

But through that period, there was no brass ring. Until now, that is.

Ironically, the Rams' record of 9-7 during the past National Football League season not only was the poorest of any of the 10 playoff teams, it was their worst mark since 1972. But that's become a moot point.

"This time it was our turn to win," said defensive end Jack Youngblood, who played in Sunday's 9-0 Los Angeles victory over Tampa Bay in the NFC championship game despite a hairline fracture in his lower left leg. "I didn't play that well. But I thank the good Lord for allowing me to play. I didn't want to let my teammates down."

Youngblood had been a part of his team's frustration for the past six years. In that period, the Rams reached the NFC title game four times, and four times they lost.

A Ram tradition of losing the big one is, for now, a thing of the past.

Next, the biggest game of all — Super Bowl XIV in nearby Pasadena on Jan. 20. The opponent — the powerful Pittsburgh Steelers. The Rams will be decided underdogs, but that's seems unimportant right now.

"The Pittsburgh Steelers? They're good," said Malavasi, the Rams' second-year head coach. "But we don't fear them. Like I've said before, we don't fear anyone."

Youngblood expressed optimism concerning the Super Bowl and promised to be ready.

"Are you kidding me?" he replied when asked if he'd be ready for Pittsburgh. "I'll be lying for that game. We're the one team the Steelers don't handle easily."

"Only one person can keep me out of that game. And I don't think he will. The Lord's with us this season."

The Rams bring some momentum with them into the Super Bowl. They have won six of their last seven games, with the only loss during that time a meaningless 29-14 setback to New Orleans in the regular-season finale, after they had clinched the West Division title.

Offensive tackle Doug France, who did a masterful job of blocking against Tampa Bay, said he felt some tough times this season contributed to what has happened in the playoffs.

Pampa hosts powerful Borger

The Pampa Harvesters will try and make it three wins in a row tonight, but they couldn't have picked a much tougher opponent to keep the winning streak going.

The Harvesters will have the homecourt advantage when they face powerful Borger at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the "Green Pit."

Pampa evened its record at 9-9 Friday night with an impressive 59-46 win over Canyon. Balanced scoring by Ronnie Faggins (19), Steve Glover (12), and Cedric Parker (10), and a pressure man to man defense was too much for Canyon to handle.

Pampa may have another advantage if Borger's high-scoring Brett Smith is unable to play. Smith, who scored 26 points in Borger's 54-36 win over Pampa in mid-December, sprained an ankle Monday and may not start. The 6-3 senior is averaging 22.2 points and 12 rebounds a game.

The Bulldogs have an 18-1 record, losing only to Snyder in the first round of the Snyder Tournament. Borger is ranked sixth in Class 4A by the Texas Coaches Association.

Wagoner wants to play again

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist's Charles Wagoner says he will work to overcome the injury that team physicians said brought an untimely end to the football career of the sensational freshman running back.

Team doctors have refused to give Wagoner medical clearance to play another season because his neck was broken Nov. 17 when he was tackled by two Texas Tech players on the opening kickoff at Texas Stadium.

"They said it, that I won't play football again, but I'm not giving up. I'm going to work at it for a year, lift weights and try to build up my neck. Then X-ray it again," said Wagoner.

"The doctors told me I was lucky I wasn't paralyzed," said Wagoner, the Mustangs' most consistent freshman player last season. "They said another lick could almost paralyze me. So from that respect, I'm not feeling too badly."

The 6-foot-2, 205-pound Wagoner suffered a cracked vertebra and a narrowing of the cushion between two vertebrae. Team physicians also found a buildup of calcium on one vertebra indicating a similar injury in the same location.

"Based on what we thought was a past injury and possibility of a future one, we didn't feel it was worth the risk to allow him to continue," said team physician Sam Morgan.

"TCU has a man paralyzed and so does Baylor. If you injure a knee or a shoulder, you can patch it, but in this area there can be no patching. This could have been a devastating injury," said Morgan. TCU's Kent Waldrep and Baylor's Kyle Woods have been paralyzed by injuries they sustained in College football games.

"He's one of the greatest young men there is, and it's really tragic that this has to end an extremely promising career," Meyer said. "But you can just look around and see some similar accidents, and thank God that he's still alive."

Named to the freshman All-America team, Wagoner led the Mustangs in rushing and was second statistically behind Craig James with 612 yards and an average gain per play of 4.6 yards to lead all SMU regulars.

He was recruited heavily by Oklahoma, Texas Tech, Texas A&M and UCLA but chose SMU where he, at times, was overshadowed by James and Eric Dickerson.

Wagoner will continue on scholarship at SMU and run track for the Mustangs this spring.

Lady Harvesters travel to Borger

Pampa's Lady Harvesters play Borger there at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

The Lady Harvesters lost to Borger, 54-37, in the first round of the Hereford Tournament in November, but then bounced back for a revenge win, 54-36, in mid-December.

Horned Frogs have Winter draft starts today Sunday practice

FORT WORTH (AP) — When new Texas Christian basketball Coach Jim Killingsworth decided to work his basketball team three and one-half hours Sunday after they came back from a losing trip to Rice, he knew what a bad grind his Horned Frogs had ahead in the Southwest Conference race.

"We play four games in eight days," said Killingsworth. "I don't know whether the work helped their (the players') attitude but it sure helped mine. We worked on some things that needed to be corrected, right then."

The winless Horned Frogs host Arkansas Tuesday night then entertain Texas Tech Saturday at 2 p.m. TCU leaves right after the game for San Antonio where it meets nationally-ranked Notre Dame Sunday afternoon on national television.

TCU then plays Texas in Austin the next Tuesday night.

"It's a good way to walk the gang plank," said Killingsworth. "They all have fine teams. I didn't have anything to do with the scheduling. But I don't enjoy playing a team like Notre Dame the day after a conference game and two days before another conference game."

Texas A&M and Texas Tech, both 2-0, lead the SWC chase with Arkansas also unbeaten in league games at 1-0.

Tech travels to Texas A&M for the feature matchup of the night. In other games Tuesday night, SMU (0-2) is at Baylor (0-1), and Texas (1-1) is at Houston (1-1).

Amarillo chamber honors Robison

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The Amarillo Chamber of Commerce has named a 250-pound defensive tackle from Gregory-Portland as Texas' outstanding high school football player of 1979.

Tommy Robison becomes the first defensive lineman to win the award in the 18 years the award has been presented and only the second player not a quarterback or running back.

The only other lineman to be recognized was offensive end Richard Osborn of San Antonio Lee, who later played for Texas A&M.

Robison was a three-year starter at Gregory-Portland, which had a record of 32-2-1 in that period. Earlier, he was named to the Parade Magazine all-America high school team. Robison made the all-state team last year as a junior and is expected to repeat.

"Tommy may be the best high school player in the nation," said his coach, Ray Akins.

"He is being flooded with college offers from coast to coast. Some days it looks like a college coaches' convention around here. There are two coaches from Notre Dame here right now," added Akins, father of former University of Texas quarterback Marty Akins.

With a scholastic average of 87, Robison ranks 44th in his senior class of 250. He said he is planning to play college football in Texas, but said he has not yet decided where.

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's annual winter free-agent draft began today with several of the most desirable players still available because they turned down the Oakland A's in the past.

Among those expected to go early were shortstop Juan Bustabad of Hialeah, Fla., University of Oregon outfielder Tom Dodd and a pair of former University of Texas pitchers, right-hander Steve Creel and lefty Jim Wright.

Bustabad was Oakland's first-round pick — fifth overall — last June. Creel was drafted by the A's in 1977 while Wright originally was selected by the St. Louis Cardinals. Both attended Texas but eventually dropped out.

Another high pick could be outfielder Dave Stenhouse, son of former Washington pitcher Dave Stenhouse. The A's picked Stenhouse last June but he was subsequently declared ineligible for the draft. The A's then selected Dodd, who had been declared ineligible at Oregon because of poor grades, but he declined to sign with Oakland.

"We used to draft kids and then try to sign them by telephone," says Bobby Hofman, a former A's official who recently was named director of scouting for the New York Yankees.

"We only signed about half of the kids we drafted because of that. We had no scouts to contact them."

The draft was being held in two parts — the regular phase for players from two-year colleges and college dropouts, and the secondary phase for players selected last June who failed to sign.

The Toronto Blue Jays, who had the worst record in the majors last year, had the No. 1 pick in the regular phase, and the Boston Red Sox had the first call in the secondary phase.

For the first time since the draft began in 1966, only the names of those selected in the first two rounds of each phase were to be made public.

Pampa Red loses in overtime

Pampa Red girls were nipped by Stanton, 27-18, Monday in an eighth grade girls basketball game that went into overtime before it was settled.

The contest was tied 17-all after four quarters, but Pampa was outscored, 4-1, in the overtime period.

Lisa Ellison and Liz Neslage led Pampa scoring with 5 points each. Eddy Campos added 3.

Hoyes and Hughes led Stanton with 8 and 7 point respectively.

Bird strikes fan

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Saturday night post-game scuffle, in which police said Boston rookie Larry Bird hit a taunting local fan with his travel bag, might prompt extra security here for pro basketball stars in the future, says a police official.

Police Sgt. Vic Abate said Monday that an abusive fan, who had been insulting Boston players, "apparently" spit on the Celtics star as Boston players signed autographs outside HemisFair Arena following San Antonio's 119-111 National Basketball Association victory.

"Bird then hit him on the head with his duffle bag," said Abate, who directed the police detail there.

The man, later identified by John Merla, fell to the ground, claimed to be injured and refused to get up, said Abate. About 10 minutes later, Merla complained of back pains and was taken by ambulance to a downtown hospital.

Merla called the San Antonio News on Monday and said he spit on Bird only after Boston center Dave Cowens and Bird spit on him. He said he still suffered from pains in his neck and back.

There were no arrests, and the Celtics departed on schedule, Abate said.

Hospital officials said Merla was brought to the emergency room, but wasn't admitted to the hospital. Merla could not be reached for comment.

Abate said he had "some suspicions" about Merla's alleged injuries.

"I looked at (Merla) him with a flashlight right after the incident and didn't see any sign of injury on his head," he said. "He was on the ground 10 minutes before he mentioned anything about his back."

Visiting NBA players leave the arena by a back door, but must walk about 50 feet across a parking lot to reach a bus. Fans often crowd around them in search of autographs.

"We may have to increase security at that point when there's a big-name player in town," said Abate. "This is an unfortunate incident. We have never had this problem before."

Spurs spokesman Wayne Witt said increased security was not immediately planned, but added, "It's a possibility."

Abate said police had concluded their investigation and filed the report. "The report is there if either party wants to file a complaint," he said.

Dallas still seeking pro cage franchise

HOUSTON (AP) — A group trying to bring professional basketball to Dallas "has done what the league has asked it to do," the general manager of the Houston Rockets says, adding it "will be a travesty" if big-city franchises block the expansion bid.

Ray Patterson, like officials of the San Antonio Spurs, would like to see a National Basketball Association team in Dallas because the travel would be easier and it would establish an instant rivalry.

Norm Sonju, president and general manager of a group seeking to operate an expansion team in Dallas next fall, said he will meet Thursday with the expansion committee in New York in what he views as the next natural step in bringing pro basketball to Dallas.

"I'm hopeful we can iron a deal out, put something into writing, then have it presented to the NBA governors in Washington Feb. 2. We already have a deal cut financially."

The fee is reported to be in the vicinity of $12 million.

However, the New York Knicks are said to be leading an attempt to get the six votes among the 22 club executives necessary to veto any expansion.

Knicks executives Mike Burke and Sonny Werblin invited officials of the Boston, New Jersey, Philadelphia, Chicago and Los Angeles teams — representing the league's six largest TV markets — to a secret Dec. 7 meeting at the posh "21 Club" in New York.

Burke said the discussions involved proposals that could "threaten the very foundation of the NBA."

"Dallas has done what the league has asked it to do. If, in fact, there has been an undercurrent in the NBA not to expand, I think the NBA owed it to Dallas to inform someone there," said Ray Patterson, the Rockets executive.

Patterson called the secret meeting of the six big-city NBA teams nothing new "and nothing to be alarmed about. They have never been expansion."
